these look interesting--thanks, Daniel--I second posting the entire list.

ruth

On 12/30/08 7:02 AM, "Daniel Zimmerman" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Cynie,
>
> You might find these interesting:
>
> Halifax, Joan. _Shamanic Voices: A Survey of Visionary Narratives_. New York: E. P. Dutton, 1979. ISBN: 0-525-47525-7.

Discusses the nature of shamanic song, with examples from shamans around the world in their own words.

McClain, Ernest G. _The Myth of Invariance: The Origin of the Gods, Mathematics and Music from the Rg Veda to Plato_.
Boulder & London: Shambhala, 1978. ISBN: 0-87773-118-7.
An amazing application of musical theory to mythological systems, "conceived as a musical companion for FOUR-DIMENSIONAL MAN:
The Philosophical Methodology of the Rg Veda by Antonio T. de Nicholas."

Booth, Mark W. _The Experience of Songs_. New Haven & London: Yale UP, 1981. ISBN: 0-300-02622-6.
A survey of song in eleven examples from medieval lyric to "White Christmas."

Please post all the suggestions you receive.

Best,

~ Dan Zimmerman

----- Original Message -----
From: "Cynie Cory" <[redacted]>
To: <[redacted]>
Sent: Monday, December 29, 2008 12:38 PM
Subject: Poetry as Song: Query

Can anyone recommend essays or books that specifically discuss poetry as song? I'm down with the deep song and the duende and Eliot, too. But I'm also interested in Shamanic song and Native American chants. One more thing: Where can I get a copy of Ann Carson's London lecture on Sappho and IF NOT WINTER? Thanks in advance, Cynie Cory

[redacted]

↑ Index

368. John Cunningham
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Tue 30 Dec 2008

I suppose one could say you have a case. However, do blacks from the ghetto really have a choice? Are athletes fully aware? I just saw a show on The Fifth Estate examining brain injury in pro-football athletes. Do pro-athletes really want to play hurt - including playing with concussions - or is it the owners of the teams that insist on it or else the athlete loses his position. John Herbert Cunningham

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
Sent: December 29, 2008 2:39 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

thank you, gwyn! (but prostitution affects many more females than males. still, yes, it does affect both & is odious everywhere.) besides, even if prostitutes were not forced or sold or beaten or young or broke or threatened every day or exposed to every kind of degradation instead of being admired as football players are, imagine selling your body for long-term effects on human being.

On 12/27/08 11:05 AM, "Gwyn McVay" <[redacted]> wrote:

> On Thu, Dec 25, 2008 at 11:25 AM, John Cunningham
<[redacted]
>> wrote:
>
>> For those of you who are speaking out against the body being used >> in commerce, why are you not speaking out against football or hockey where >> male bodies are being used in commerce? When you consider the damage that >> is >> done to the male body during that contact sport and the lingering effects
>> of >> it in terms of permanent injury and disability such as arthritis and other >> diseases, isn't this just as bad? Or is it that one affects women whereas >> the other affects men?
>
>
> Omigod, you're so right. I hurt in my anterior cruciate ligaments for all

of > those men FORCED or DECEIVED into collegiate and professional sports every > year; BEATEN if they try to leave; often denied any other employment options > in the case of being transgendered; not allowed to keep a PENNY of their > earnings... oh wait.
>
> Gwyn "Also, This Is a False Binary, Because Prostitution Affects All > Genders, And Not Just Adults" McVay
>
guidelines &

Internal Virus Database is out of date.
Checked by AVG - http://www.avg.com
Version: 8.0.134 / Virus Database: 270.4.5/1533 - Release Date: 03/07/2008 7:19 PM

↑ Index

369. Murat Nemet-Nejat
Re: Poetry as Song: Query
Tue 30 Dec 2008

Jerome Rothenberg's The Technicians of the Sacred is a very good place to look up.

Ciao,

Murat

On Tue, Dec 30, 2008 at 7:02 AM, Daniel Zimmerman <[redacted]>wrote:

> Cynie,
>
> You might find these interesting:
>
> Halifax, Joan. _Shamanic Voices: A Survey of Visionary Narratives_. New York: E. P. Dutton, 1979. ISBN: 0-525-47525-7.
> Discusses the nature of shamanic song, with examples from shamans around the world in their own words.
>
> McClain, Ernest G. _The Myth of Invariance: The Origin of the Gods, Mathematics and Music from the Rg Veda to Plato_.
> Boulder & London: Shambhala, 1978. ISBN: 0-87773-118-7.
> An amazing application of musical theory to mythological systems, "conceived as a musical companion for FOUR-DIMENSIONAL MAN:
> The Philosophical Methodology of the Rg Veda by Antonio T. de Nicholas."

> Booth, Mark W. _The Experience of Songs_. New Haven & London: Yale UP, 1981. ISBN: 0-300-02622-6.
> A survey of song in eleven examples from medieval lyric to "White Christmas."
>
> Please post all the suggestions you receive.
>
> Best,
>
> ~ Dan Zimmerman
>
> ----- Original Message ----- From: "Cynie Cory" <[redacted]>
> To: <[redacted]>
> Sent: Monday, December 29, 2008 12:38 PM
> Subject: Poetry as Song: Query
>
> Can anyone recommend essays or books that specifically discuss poetry as song? I'm down with the deep song and the duende and Eliot, too. But I'm also interested in Shamanic song and Native American chants. One more thing: Where can I get a copy of Ann Carson's London lecture on Sappho and IF NOT WINTER? Thanks in advance, Cynie Cory
>
> [redacted]

↑ Index

370. Charles Alexander

Re: OPEN LETTER to Elizabeth Alexander

Tue 30 Dec 2008

---

i'm definitely opposed to "screaming all the time." now and then, though, screams are warranted, as are smart objections.

charles

charles alexander
chax press
[redacted]
411 N 7th ave, suite 103
tucson arizona 85705
[redacted]

On Dec 26, 2008, at 6:29 PM, George Bowering wrote:

> No, I am saying that if you are screaming all the time, screams get less useful than smart objections.
>
> gb
>
> On Dec 23, 2008, at 8:23 PM, Charles Alexander wrote:
>
> George, are you now becoming a defender of prescriptive grammar? Would you have us all speak in gentle tones, possibly not dare to eat a peach, and certainly not spell SPACE large because it comes large here, large and without mercy.
>
> (ah but I think I've exceeded my posts today, and this one will die in that SPACE across which we meet)
>
> charles
>
> charles alexander
> chax press
> [redacted]
> 411 N 7th ave, suite 103
> tucson arizona 85705
> [redacted]
>
> On Dec 23, 2008, at 6:01 PM, George Bowering wrote:
>
> Why not just all upper case letters?
>
> On Dec 22, 2008, at 2:02 PM, CA Conrad wrote:
>
> A few people wrote personal notes to me saying that they're tired of > the culture wars.
>
> Um, this isn't some Queer Theory Class to me, THIS IS MY LIFE, and I'm > not the type of fag who gets pushed around, I PUSH BACK, which is why > I take stands. Which is why I'm appealing to Elizabeth Alexander's higher self. It must be VERY DIFFICULT to be invited to do such a reading, such a historical reading. Well, it would be difficult for me.

One person wrote me asking me to take "the higher road like Gandhi." Um, my protest suggestions were ALL nonviolent, I mean, I didn't ask Elizabeth to STAB someone at the microphone. Geeze, it's so ridiculous reading such e-mails.

AND I I'M JUST GOING TO SAY IT: If Obama were white, and chose a pastor who was openly racist NO ONE would question my anger. Well, unless you were also racist, but you know exactly what I'm saying here. Queer rights may keep taking a back seat as long as I'm alive, but that just means I'll go to the grave YELLING!

CAConrad
http://PhillySound.blogspot.com

welcome.html

George Harry Bowering
Likes towns with -ver- in them.

welcome.html

welcome.html

George Z. Bowering
Master of Arghs.

welcome.html

↑ Index

371. Peter Ciccariello
The Keep - Brain scan with leaf mold
Tue 30 Dec 2008

The Keep <goog_1230655593624>

Brain scan with leaf mold <http://ciccariello.viewbook.com/keep>

* *The poem as residence, prisoner; the poem as zygote, birth, genesis, origination; The original poem; the archeology of poetry.

<http://invisiblenotes.blogspot.com/>

<http://invisiblenotes.blogspot.com/>

<http://invisiblenotes.blogspot.com/>

<http://invisiblenotes.blogspot.com/>

<http://invisiblenotes.blogspot.com/>

<http://invisiblenotes.blogspot.com/>

- Peter Ciccariello
http://invisiblenotes.blogspot.com/ <http://invisiblenotes.blogspot.com/>

↑ Index

372. David-Baptiste Chirot
Re: capitalism and the long poem
Tue 30 Dec 2008

Dear Eireene--

Thank you so much for this excellent piece and the question you pose.

Seriality in writing as a deliberate form is directly an effect of Captialsim--in that serials such as the Feuilletons of Eugene Sue and the serial manner of publishing Dickens' novels, became one of the few ways that an author could make money directly from writing--and also it was used as a way to get people to keep buying the newspaper or journal in which the serial appeared.

Seriality of this kind is constructed round the desire to "want to know what happens next" and is accompanied by the acceptance by the reader that one "will pay any price to find out how the cliff hanger was resolved--and what happens next until the next cliff hanger is reached—“

An author often could make more money from selling a serial than having a book appear "all at once," due to the lack of copyright for American writers who were pirated outrageously by British publishes, and the lack of copy right in many other countries also.

A writer like Dostoyevsky who had gambling debts would crank out serials to pay off creditors, a vast improvement actually on the strategies open to Balzac, who often wrote six books at a time, for several different publishers, not having yet the serial at his disposal.

(Hence the often strange effect in many of Balzac’s works, that a book begun at one point in time, interrupted to complete two others more pressing, then returned to—the writer would suddenly decide that a different character should step into the spotlight from its previous position vaguely in the background at the edge of the wings and faded old curtains--, and in stepping forward, suddenly alter almost entirely the direction of the narrative and the meaning of the moral Balzac was presenting as another in his “philosophies des moeux” in the structure of the Comedie Humaine

A structure whose descriptions and analyses Karl Marx found to be the greatest and most perceptive study ever made of Capitalism in all its function and effects---

Seriality was continued in the early "Motion Pictures" with the famous feuilletons of Louis Feuillade so beloved of the Surrealist--"Judex" "Les Vampyrs" and etc--and in the US the endless series of "Adventures of Pauline' and her constellations of spin offs--tied to the rail road tracks as the train approaches--and escaping miraculously--only to have another misadventure seize hold of her before the reel runs out--and the lettering on the black screen says--"Wait Until Next Week to Find Out What---"

Serial production functions not unlike a model of addiction--once hooked, one HAS to keep coming back for MORE MORE MORE--which is at once the "same" and slightly different, just enough so, that the sense of being both satisfied that "the stuff is good" and at the same time give an extra "plug" in that one enjoys it for only so long and then has to be in the throes craving until the next fix can be obtained.

Soap operas came about for the same reason--to keep the customer coming back in order to have the familiar fix and also to experience the titillation of the seductive "wait for next time and I'll be there--just waiting for YOU--"

"Soap" opera referring to be sure to the selling of laundry soaps that paid for the serial production of these "Opere"--so that both the "serial" and the product become inseparably associated and one finds oneself suddenly craving--soap!!

Actually Language Poetry's assertions about grammar being an expression of, structured by, Captialsim, is a fallacy, in terms of linguistics, and is instead a kind of "soap" that sponsors the reader's having a new "mode of production" i.e. "a new line"--to develop an addiction to--'what will be the next book from language writers?--what will be the next exciting daring thing they do in their hair raising battle with capitalism"--in other words, a fallacious "anti-capitalist" production is marketed as just that--hey!! Buy us!! We are anti-capitalism's structuring of grammar!! We are liberating you!!--From what? –

From buying one form of poetry one is freed to buy another. Nothing has changed but the "exterior appearance" of the product. Inside it is the same old thing--production, product, authors, canons, sub divisions of categories of styles, rhetorical devices and "morphemic transgressions" replete with torque and the tensile strengths of the requisite number of "allowances for the reader's constructions of their own meanings"-- and all of these crammed within the new models so that one might choose still somehow between a convertible or a coupe, or perhaps simply a two door or a four door---

And what colors would you like these to come in?--With or with out ash trays, CD player--radio?--No smoking?—OK—we'll make a note of that—no lighter—either--

Oh!! Did someone mention Hybrids--??!! How marvelous!!--What a pun, mon vieux—do you mean automobiles or genres--?—or perhaps some fantastical life form—out of Lewis Carroll or Borges—

A used car dealer, a used poem dealer . . . .or perhaps in these days of tightened belts—the two combined and displaying their wares on the same much contracted "lot"

whose fading banners
may well not be seen by the dawn's early light—other than as limp remnants of plastic curling and scuttering across
the tarmacs in the gusts of an ill wind blowing no good—

Yes—from the assembly line to the poetic line—

Is a very fine line indeed—

And so one can replace the unemployed's former jobs on the assembly line

With jobs on the poetic line—

Hard at work creating serial production again--

The serial is created to "provoke and sustain interest through time--"

And indeed one might think of this interest as a paying of interest in that instead of one product in full paid for al at once, one is paying for the product stretched out through time, and so pays more for each "section" in the serial, bringing the total cost of the completed series to quite a bi more than if one had simply been able to purchase the whole thing inside one cover. But then--one would have been deprived of the thrill and the touch of each new issue each new episode arriving in the stores or in the mails or on line or video--awaiting with that craving so deliciously satisfied by the insertion into the human system of the capitalist addiction system--and then, as the pleasure is moving through out one in a sensuous erotic glow--suddenly one is cut off-and told to wait until next time--

And there one is, "Waiting for the Man, 26 dollars in your hand/he's never early, always late/the first thing you learn/is you just got to wait."

And so there were and may still be--long lines queuing up on the days that the "Man" is coming --shivering and shaking in the junk sick streets until at the last moment of unendurable waiting, when al are cursing the "Man" who is subjection them to this suffering--at this last moment when al are ready to forever consign this Monster to the dustbins of their crashed hopes and illusions--here he or she is!! And like salivating dogs they al rush to lick her (or his) feet and rub against his (or her) legs and practically shit themselves in delight--with outpourings of love finally getting their greedy paws on the serial's new installment, and putting down al their hard saved coins and bills for this immediate satisfying of the unbearable cravings building up--

How many times does one not find someone writing of having to satisfy their poetry fix with a quick rush to a book store and their tear off their coats, yank up their sleeves, wrap the nearest belt or cord around their scrawny arm and inject three or four chapbooks--and with great and sudden euphoria--plunk down whatever price they are told these precious "rocks" are jacked up to this week--

Who hasn’t seen lurking near the bookstores and poetry dens the sinister figure of the Reviewer loaded with the latest galleys and review copies of releases, wiling to sell them cheaper than the store--or forego the cash as long as the figure is paid for in some kind of trade--for sex perhaps, or say season ticket to the opera or bal game or perhaps simply the inside scoop on some trading tip on good old Wall Street--or a tip on the races--

A different method of composition was advocated by Edgar Allan Poe, who, in his "Principles of Poetry" and "Philospsophy of Composition" formulated one of the msot influential approaches to this day for the production of poems and , to be sure--short stories. This is to create works whcih, given the speeding up oflife and magazine prodcution, can be read in one sitting, because, argues Poe, only in having the entire poem or story all at once, is one experiencing the full power of the Effect. For Poe, --and this is also an argument against the "Inspiration” of Romanticism--a poem is constructed deliberately, almost mathematically as well as musically--by choosing first the effect to be experienced by the reader, and working "backwards," determining the elements and their arrangements with in the structure which is determined by the length of time as measured in numbers of words.

Where the serial exploits the drawing out of time, as a never quite consummated series of piquing of desire--the work as advocated by Poe--delivers an Effect so great that is far more satisfying than the long drawn-out "sickness" of serial addiction, with its attendant ever demanding layouts of cash--

The short story, the short poem--for Poe these offer a much more interesting field for the investigations of questions of composition--because they provide CONSTRAINTS--which provoke rather than limit discoveries--because "Necessity the Motherfucker of Invention" is a goad to the imagination completely at odds with its dispersal as in a serial--in which the poet or writer has far more TIME to dream up what happens next--

Poe's theories of Composition, traced via Baudelaire and his invention of the short prose poem--and the theory of Correspondances--is at the basis of French Symbolism as it culminates in Mallarme--a good friend of his Tuesdays attendee Felix Feneon, who, combining his anarchist ideas with those of the "creation of the effect"--much as Mallarme noted that Feneon's words were "detonators" as much as the bombs he advocated and may have thrown himself--comes up with the turning of his hack job writing "Faits Divers" for the mass circulation Le Matin into the writing simultaneously of news (Nouvelles) and "short stories" (nouvelles), which become known when published posthumously as his "Nouvelles en trois lignes"--News Stories/Short Stories in three lines. Like Poe, who published his works in newspapers and large circulation journals, Feneon is melding "news of the day” in its documentary "detective story" aspect with its fictional "Balloon Hoax" (published in a newspaper to emulate one that had been taken as truth) and "Purloined Letter," "Ms in a Bottle" aspects.

Since the short story and short poem, the "Faits Divers" hack filler turned into a short story/documented event do not create the dependence the "fort-da" psychology of Captilist Need and Desire, these short, effect driven works subvert in a strange way the more "profitable" serials in that they offer the "most bang for the buck'--as it were, rather than endlessly teasing out the most bucks for an ever differed bang as does the serial.

This "bang" effect is literally "realized, if one is willing to think of this way--in the naming of the NFL Baltimore Ravens for Poe's poem. The Ravens, a hard hitting team led by a Super bowl MVP Ray Lewis who has been charged in the past with connection to a homicide--play with indeed the most bang delivered for the buck--producing some "shocking" effects and like Poe producing a "mystery story to be investigated by detectives."

One of the reasons for Poe's development of his theories was not surprisingly, economic. In Poe’s time American writers had no copyright protection, so the one surest way to "get the most out" of a piece of writing was to have it produce its effect al at once, before it was pirated. "The Raven," for example, was pirated thousands of times--it was a "Platinum Selling Hit" for its times--yet Poe was paid only once, and that, for him, a not too miserly fee of a few dollars. was al he ever received.

In the 1890's, Henry James was faced with the example of Poe, a writer who in the past he had been dismissive of. After the fabulous failures of his dramatic pieces on the stage, James found himself in need of money to keep himself and his beloved Lamb House afloat. (His neighbors there were to become Stephen Crane, Joseph Conrad and H. G. Wells.)

James decided at first one the old famialar standby—the writing of a serial—which proved to be "The Turn of the Screw." As he worked to find a way to keep on creating an Effect on which each episode would end so as to keep the suspense hanging and make the reader desire intensely to purchase the nest episodes as they appeared—James began reconsidering Poe's theory of the Effect. From the creation of a ghost story serial, James began to turn to the creation of short stories which, like Poe's are created with the final effect in mind.

(While dictating aloud to his red haired Scottish typist "The Turn of the Screw," James discovered himself building in each episode to the proper cliff hanging effect—only to see not "an effect" produced on the typist, but rather his poker faced question as he paused with fingers in mid air to type the next words —"And then?" This may have contributed a bit towards James' deciding he would prefer to produce the Effect in toto in a short story—just to see what if any Effect it had on the seemingly unimpressionable red haired typist.)

Another interesting example is Roberto Bolano, who turned from writing poetry to producing short stories after his marriage and with a child on the way. Bolano, like many other writers who have used this material of the short story competition for short stories in themselves, discovered that in Spain a great many towns and small cities offered prizes for best short story on such and such a theme, place or person of the immediate region. Competing for prizes helped Bolano develop his skills at producing Effects that would "outshine" those of his opponents.

From the short stories he moved to the novella form, and he became aware his life was rapidly getting shorter and shorter, and that the best way to leave a profitable legacy for his family was to compose novels—and ever bigger ones!—Bolano devoted himself literally feverishly to the production of as man words as possible, in order to earn the most money posthumously for his widow and small son.

The connection between Captialsim and writing is NOT grammar, but WORD COUNT—page length—and, hopefully for the writer and publisher both, NAME

RECONITION—by which a much slighter prodcution can be marketed if the author's name, rather than the bulk, merits the raising of the price no matter how short a work may be.

In one of his essays the Italian Futurist (an ex-Symbolist whose Futurism is littered with many of the most hackneyed of Symbolist images and techniques), considered that literature and poetry could be assigned values based on a system of weights and measures, including that of measuring and weighing "quality"—which is not unrelated is it not to" Name Recognition" as a "guarantee" of at least a certain level of quality being available to the reader.

This is another of the paradoxes of the hack work of Feneon's Faits Divers—that in an anonymous poorly paid and very low-regarded form, he would decide to go about producing work of the highest quality, while getting absolutely no credit for it "in name" nor being rewarded for his extra efforts by any increase in the minimal pay.

And so it is only a century later that Feneon's Faits Divers aka Nouvelles en trois lignes appear in English, in a translation of most of the pieces. (The translation unfortunately uses the word "novels' for nouvelles—which disappears the punning of "short news items, news briefs" and short stories. Instead there is a making much by reveiewers of the pieces being "novels" which contradicts the entire meaning of the pun. It also makes impossible the contemporary punning of "news flashes" with today's "flash fictions.")

Flaubert, after all, had already accomplished the turning

Several decades
earlier of a provincial journal's Faits Divers into the novel Madame Bovary:

"Delphine Delamare, 27, wife of a medical officer in Ry, displayed insufficient austerity. Worse, she ran up debts. To avoid paying them, she took poison."

But then, despite the Figure of the Dead Author which strides so stridently about among the assertions of Authors who grow plump with the fees their Name Recognition brings as they Bang the Drum Slowly—perhaps SLOWLY NOT AS A DIRGE BUT AS A VERY VERY VERY LONG DRAWN OUT SERIAL—OR-- EVEN BETTER-- A DECADE ADTER DECADE ONGOING SOAP OPERA –

What writer of today would anonymously take on hack work of the slightest kind FOR THE LOWEST PAY and work on creating of each item a short story beautifully composed via the elements of structure known as syntax, word choice and the obligatory listing of information such as who what when why where-

And a few years later basically stop writing altogether
other than letters to friends and business associates—for it was Feneon’s “aspiration to silence”—his works were constructed to attain—

In effect, a writer who combines Bartleby’s “I prefer not to” with Rimbaud’s leaving of writing for work in a business establishment. (In Feneon’s case, a well- known Parisian art gallery turning his no longer being France’s best art critic since Baudelaire to use in selling the wares he once wrote of.)

See also:

Feneon's
Faits Divers and Poe's Principles of Poetryhttp://cronacasouversivafeneon.blogspot.com/2008/12/feneons-poe-tic-ghosthumously-anonymous.html

FELIX
FENEON AS CONCEPTUAL POET

http://cronacasouversivafeneon.blogspot.com/2008/12/felix-feneon-as-conceptual-poet.html

> Date: Mon, 29 Dec 2008 11:45:57 -0800
>
> From: [redacted]
>
> Subject: capitalism and the long poem
>
> To: [redacted]
>
> I sat down to write a little piece about this Russian poet, and came
>
> up with a strange take on the long poem--an idea that the Seriality of
>
> it is somehow related to consumer capitalism--
>
> http://tsky-reviews.blogspot.com/
>
> not the pleasantest thought--
>
> and so I was wondering if anyone has any good counter arguments, or
>
> different takes on why so many are so obsessed with this form right
>
> now. & will we fall out of love with it during the recession?
>
> e

> ==========

_____ It’s the same Hotmail®. If by “same” you mean up to 70% faster.
http://windowslive.com/online/hotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_hotmail_acq_broad1_122008

↑ Index

373. Troy Camplin

Re: capitalism and the long poem

Tue 30 Dec 2008

I think we've become obsessed with it precisely because it's fallen out of favor. Somebody, or a few people, wondered where it went, and began writing about it. It seems to me that the long poem became impossible with the abandonment of narrative by poets. How long can one keep up a feeling or a mood or an "experiment"? Frederick Fierstein writes quite long poems, but his poems also have narratives holding them together. Frederick Turner has written two epic poems. It seems that the gradual abandonment of narrative in poetry by the Modernists, especially the late Modernists, and the postmodern poets, far more than economic conditions, have contributed to the abandonment of long poetry as a form.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: Eireene Nealand <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Monday, December 29, 2008 1:45:57 PM
Subject: capitalism and the long poem

I sat down to write a little piece about this Russian poet, and came up with a strange take on the long poem--an idea that the seriality of it is somehow related to consumer capitalism--

http://tsky-reviews.blogspot.com/

not the pleasantest thought--

and so I was wondering if anyone has any good counter arguments, or different takes on why so many are so obsessed with this form right now. & will we fall out of love with it during the recession?

e

↑ Index

374. Crane's Bill Books

Re: Inauguration theology and poetics

Tue 30 Dec 2008

Thank you, Mark. It's interesting to me how responses to symbolic gestures can differ so greatly in kind and degree from responses to other sorts of gestures: for example, the Warren invitation is both infuriating and almost purely symbolic, while Obama's drafting of Ron Kirk and Arne Duncan, which will very likely have serious, concrete policy consequences, seem to have barely made a stir. Is this where poetics plays a role in the discussion? I've always felt that part of my job, as someone trying to work deeply and fastidiously with language, is to address both the efficacy of signs and symbols and the dangers they present. (As for civility, I'm in favor of it, but it seems that for the Democratic Party it has often meant "taking the high road" by giving the Republicans what they want, while for Republicans it usually means that the Democrats should be civil enough to take the high road and give them what they want.) Jeffrey

----- Original Message -----
From: "Mark Weiss" <[redacted]>
To: <[redacted]>
Sent: Monday, December 29, 2008 3:44 PM
Subject: Re: Inauguration theology and poetics

Everything a new president does is invested with the weight of symbolism, especially when the president is so little known. Obama's election strategy was to run as a symbol, the word "change" plastered on every lectern, but he let us know only in the vaguest terms what he actually believed or meant to do. So those with a mind to projected on to him whatever they hoped he'd be. There's a degree of smoke and mirrors to this. Obama's attempts to differentiate himself from Clinton, for instance, have resulted in his appointment of a Clinton cabinet and Hillary herself, whose judgement in international affairs he ridiculed, as Secretary of State. As it begins to be apparent that there's a man behind the symbol who almost certainly will represent change in the limited sense of not being like Bush but perhaps not much beyond that, it's reasonable to be trepidatious. All we have to look at now is the latest gestures, of which the Warren selection is one. The memory of Clinton's imposition of "don't ask don't tell" as an attempted sop to both sides is pretty fresh.

Lest we forget, it's not just gays who lose out in Warren's theology; Warren, along with most of his kind, thinks that Jews, Muslims, Hindus, etc., are destined for hell. In the face of that, trying to appeal to rank and file fundamentalists by courting their preachers seems counterproductive. Better to go over the heads of the clergy to their parishoners. In any case, the Republican leadership has made it pretty clear that they're not interested in reconciliation.

We'll know more soon. In the interim, it's our job to question the slender information we've got. It's what voters do, and it's more important than civility. Without it leaders don't learn what's good for them, and voters don't find out if their leaders are capable of learning.

Mark

At 02:35 PM 12/29/2008, you wrote:
>Warren gave equal stage to both Obama and McCain during the campaign, being >polite to both of them and letting them speak answering his questions, >knowing full well that Obama believed in choice in relation to abortion and >civil union in relation to gays. He avoided inflammatory rhetorical >devices.
>Obama is returning the gesture. In my world this is called civil discourse, >the reverse of the sickening demonizing which has been carried on by the >Bush administration, both domestically and internationally, the last eight >years.
>
>Ciao,
>
>Murat
>
>
>On Mon, Dec 29, 2008 at 5:40 AM, Jason Quackenbush <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> > rick warren is ridiculous and anybody who finds him scary needs a > > reality > > check. there are scary hatemongers out there. people who advocate > > physical > > violence, people who think stoning gays and > lesbians in the public square is > > what oughta be done. by virtue of his own desire to be a famous public > > religious leader, Rick Warren is entirely nonscary and to my knowledge > > is a > > more moderate anti-gay than that. he's not a > monster, he's just an idiot, as > > are the people who look to him for spiritual counsel.

> >
> > and yes, he is just one voice of many across a spectrum. and more > > importantly he represents the beliefs of a > significant swath of the american > > people. the way people are talking about this it's almost like the obama > > folks picked warren BECAUSE he was a misogynistic homophobe. which is > > ridiculous. Clearly they picked him because he is a prominent > > conservative > > christian leader. I will give anybody who can find me five prominent > > conservative christian pastors who support gay marriage, the rights of > > gays > > to adopt, are prochoice, and support easy access to birth control 5 US > > dollars. I know i'm not gonna have to give that money to anybody because > > by > > definition no conservative christian pastors believe any of those things > > because they are CONSERVATIVE shristian pastors.
> >
> > The reason I am really kind of annoyed at all of this is precisely that.
> > Rick Warren does not represent a fringe position, he is a mainline > > conservative. Ever since Obama appeared on the national stage he has > > been > > talking about breaking down the lines between liberal and conservative,
> > and > > talking about listening to the other side and being pragmatic about > > focussing on those areas where interests over lap as a way to build > > dialog > > that can then help us movve towards resoltion on morecontentious issues.
> > he > > has alwasy indicated that he was going to have a seat at the table for > > conservatives just as there would be one for liberals. well, guess what, > > conservatives are bigots and homophobes and are anti-choice misogynists.

> > It's what makes them conservatives. if conservatives are going to be > > involved in the process, part of the dialog, or whatever you want to > > call > > it, that means there are going to be figures on the national stage who > > are > > taking part in trying to form policy who will believe things that are > > reprehensibile. it's the ugly underneath of Thrid Way politics and > > anybody > > who didn't think this sort of thing was coming in an Obama > > administration > > was just naive. but i'd get used to it, because this is not going to be
> > the > > last time Obama gives an important job to someone whose opinions you > > don't > > like. this is what strategic progressivism > and tactical pragmatism look like > > in concert. Which is to say, I think folks should condemn rick warren
> > all > > they feel hthey need to, and I'm certainly never going to defend the > > guy, > > but I find it a little bit absurd that people are criticising obama for > > including peope like him when all he's talked about for the last two > > years > > on the campaign trail was his pragmatic politics of inclusiveness. What > > did > > you all who are feeling so angry and betrayed by warren delivering the > > invocation at the inauguration think he meant by that?
> >
> > I personally don't give a damn about any of this since it's clearly all > > political tactics and as such within a > pragmatic philosophy the only meaning > > that can be read into it is that meaning that we choose to give it. So i > > choose to disempower it. It's a gesture to religious nutbags and right > > wing > > goons in order show them that if they can behave themselves with a > > little > > etiquette then they don't have to sit at the kids table for the next > > four > > years. I don't see anything more than that going on with Rick Warren.
> > Now, > > given that Rick Warren is from California, his anti gay sentiments are a > > ot > > higher profile than would be some other megachurch baptist from arkasas > > or > > kentucky or something like that. But again, > you give conservatives a seat at > > the table, and you will getpeople who believe the things that rick > > warren > > believes

> >
> >
> > On Dec 27, 2008, at 11:08 PM, Corey Frost wrote:
> >
> > Jason, I didn't know that Joseph Lowery was also going to be speaking, > > so > >> my > >> note to the president-elect wasn't as well-researched as it could have > >> been,
> >> but I stand by my characterization of the Warren invitation as a > >> distinction. I don't know how many clergy were invited, but only one of > >> them > >> is giving the "invocation" - Rick Warren. You make it sound like he is > >> just > >> one of many voices from across the spectrum, which isn't the case. He's > >> been > >> chosen for a very high profile role, and it's an honor he doesn't > >> deserve.
> >> In the past there have been as many as five clergy involved in a single > >> inauguration, and not just Christians either. Not that inviting a few > >> more > >> religious folk, of whatever point of view, would make me happy, > >> really-my > >> point was more that I'd like to see a gay man of the cloth (or lesbian
> >> of > >> the cloth) standing alongside Warren, in the hope of making him seem > >> more > >> ridiculous than scary.
> >>
> >>
> >> On Fri, 26 Dec 2008 16:03:51 -0800, Jason Quackenbush <[redacted]>
> >> wrote:
> >>
> >> this is what drives me nuts about this whole conversation. other > >>> clergy, prominent respected clergy, with diametrically opposed views, > >>> have been invited and were invited at the same time that Warren was.

> >>> Rev. Joseph Lowery is going to be delivering the benediction. It's > >>> not as if Obama has just put Warren on a pedestal and gesticulating > >>> grandly in his direction intoned in solemn aspect "this i believe."
> >>>
> >>> this inauguration, ideologically, theologically, and politically is > >>> much more nuanced symbolically than people are giving it credit for > >>> being.
> >>>
> >>>
> >>
> >
> > Jason Quackenbush
> > [redacted]
> >
> > guidelines
> >
>

↑ Index

375. Elizabeth Switaj

Re: OPEN LETTER to Elizabeth Alexander

Tue 30 Dec 2008

So prescriptive grammar = smart objection? Or, there can be no smart objections unless they follow a specific set of grammatical rules?

On Fri, Dec 26, 2008 at 5:29 PM, George Bowering <[redacted]> wrote:

> No, I am saying that if you are screaming all the time, screams get less useful than smart objections.
>
> gb

↑ Index

376. Hugh Behm-Steinberg

Re: Poetry as Song: Query

Tue 30 Dec 2008

I'd also strongly recommend Felipe S. Molina and Larry Evers' Yaqui Deer Songs.

Hugh Behm-Steinberg

_____
From: Daniel Zimmerman <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, December 30, 2008 4:02:35 AM
Subject: Re: Poetry as Song: Query

Cynie,

You might find these interesting:

Halifax, Joan. _Shamanic Voices: A Survey of Visionary Narratives_. New York: E. P. Dutton, 1979. ISBN: 0-525-47525-7. Discusses the nature of shamanic song, with examples from shamans around the world in their own words.

McClain, Ernest G. _The Myth of Invariance: The Origin of the Gods, Mathematics and Music from the Rg Veda to Plato_. Boulder & London: Shambhala, 1978. ISBN: 0-87773-118-7. An amazing application of musical theory to mythological systems, "conceived as a musical companion for FOUR-DIMENSIONAL MAN: The Philosophical Methodology of the Rg Veda by Antonio T. de Nicholas."

Booth, Mark W. _The Experience of Songs_. New Haven & London: Yale UP, 1981. ISBN: 0-300-02622-6. A survey of song in eleven examples from medieval lyric to "White Christmas."

Please post all the suggestions you receive.

Best,

~ Dan Zimmerman

----- Original Message ----- From: "Cynie Cory" <[redacted]>
To: <[redacted]>
Sent: Monday, December 29, 2008 12:38 PM
Subject: Poetry as Song: Query

Can anyone recommend essays or books that specifically discuss poetry as song? I'm down with the deep song and the duende and Eliot, too. But I'm also interested in Shamanic song and Native American chants. One more thing: Where can I get a copy of Ann Carson's London lecture on Sappho and IF NOT WINTER? Thanks in advance, Cynie Cory

[redacted]

↑ Index

377. Charles Alexander

Michael Cross: In Felt Treeling

Tue 30 Dec 2008

Announcing A New Book

by MICHAEL CROSS

IN FELT TREELING: A Libretto

Poetry paperback
ISBN 0978925904751
64 pages
$16

In in felt treeling, Michael Cross has created a pastoral theatre in which elaborate patterns of resemblance are poetically measured by counter-voiced assertions of autonomy and difference. The world is invited to “err” and to “air” its intentions freely, treely, freewheelingly, treelingly. These poems are “felt” doubly, as both noun and verb, with their layered emotional registers and their playfully theatrical costume dressing. As this carefully scored work is animated by the vocal fabric of its setting in the woods, the reader becomes transfixed, like Daphne, within the lush, felt landscape of the poems. — Elizabeth Willis

Michael Cross’ post-objectivist poems lace archaic vocabularies into airy filagrees — spun wisps of whispered fragments and obliquely glimpsed scenes barely suspended in the draft. These poems suggest “tracery” in both senses of the word: a delicate interweaving of open- work lines, but also phrases traced from other pages, records of reading rendered as writing. And yet, despite that filigrane and the impression of found language, in felt treeling also has an astonishing sonic density that proves Cross’ language infelt [“inwardly felt or experienced”] and leaves the reader reeling, as syllabic hints and fragile internal rhymes transform words in a tour- de-force series of seriously playful midsummer metamorphoses. The slightest sleight or faintest feint moves this language from “squints” to “sequins,” from “herr” to “err,” from “slips” to “lips” to “lisp” to “ellipse.” Scored for Mezzo and Chorus with Narrator, this Virgilian libretto is also scored by virgules which cross the page in a signature poetic device that puts cæsura and linebreak into new lyric tension. A genuinely original formal invention, these distinctive marks both open and anchor the text, echoing the book’s dialogues of intimacy and distance. Airy and solid, felt and seen, separating and soldering, those solidi or separatrices are — like the poems they punctuate — little strokes of genius. — Craig Dworkin

The book can be purchased NOW on the chax press web site: chax.org

It will be available SOON from Small Press Distribution: spdboooks.org

charles alexander
chax press
[redacted]
411 N 7th ave, suite 103
tucson arizona 85705
[redacted]

↑ Index

378. Pam Brown
Call for reviewer for Jacket
Wed 31 Dec 2008

Dear Poeticists,

If you would like to write a review of Susan Schultz's 'Dementia Blog' for Jacket magazine please backchannel me at [redacted]

More info :
http://www.singinghorsepress.com/index.php?main_page=pubs_product_book_info&products_id=49

My own blogpost on the book:
http://thedeletions.blogspot.com/2008/12/no-velvet-on-word.html

Eileen Tabios review:
http://galatearesurrection11.blogspot.com/2008/12/dementia-blog-by-susan-m-schultz.html

All the best,
Happy New Year
Pam Brown

_____

blog : http://thedeletions.blogspot.com
website : http://pambrownbooks.blogspot.com/
associate editor : http://jacketmagazine.com/

_____

↑ Index

379. David Baratier
Final call, PSP Chapbook contest, 12/31
Wed 31 Dec 2008

Pavement Saw Chapbook Contest
<<<<<<<<<<<<<<>>>>>>>>>>>>>>
Submit electronically, save the hassle of printing out a manuscript and have your funds support poetry not the post office! Directly enter by using our website http://www.pavementsaw.org/pages/chapcontest.htm

$500 and 50 copies of the winning chapbook will be awarded to the winner. In addition to the prize winner, at least one other manuscript will be published under a standard royalty contract (author paid 10% of press run). Everyone is allowed to submit regardless of previous publication history. Every entrant will receive the equivalent cost of the entry fee in Pavement Saw Press titles.

Unlike many publishers whose collections are printed one copy at a time and therefore lack a large circulation, our chapbooks are published in a first edition of 400 copies plus overage. While chapbooks rarely receive exposure, ours have been reviewed in Poets and Writers, Publishers Weekly, The Georgia Review, Small Press Review and many others. Our previous winners have had subsequent full length books appear from a bevy of publishers including Curbstone Press, Cleveland State University Press, Bear Star Press, University of Georgia, and Hanging Loose Press.

Submit up to 32 pages of poetry. Include a signed cover letter with your name, address, phone number, e-mail, publication credits, a brief biography and the title of the chapbook. Include a cover page with your contact information and the chapbook title. Include a second page with the chapbook title only. Do not include your name on any pages inside the manuscript except for the first title page. No need for a contents page. All chapbooks are selected blindly / anonymously. Manuscripts will be considered until December 31st, 2008. Entry fee: $15 for US entries, $18 overseas, $21 electronic (world wide).

If you wish to submit electronically, send $21.00 via paypal to [redacted]. Then e-mail the manuscript as an attachment to the same address and we will send you an e-mail confirmation that your entry is all set. Electronic submissions need to be sent as PDF files or as word (.doc or .docx) files. Other formats are not accepted. The extra cost is to cover the paypal fees as well as the time, labor, ink, and so on, to print out your manuscript. Or use our website http://www.pavementsaw.org/pages/chapcontest.htm

If you wish to send via regular mail accompany your manuscript with a check in the amount of $15.00 payable to Pavement Saw Press. All contributors to the contest will receive books, chapbooks and journals equal to, or more than, the entry fee. Add $3 (US) for other countries to cover the extra postal charge. Do not include an SASE for notification of results. Do not send the only copy of your work. All manuscripts are recycled and individual comments on the manuscripts cannot be made. This year the editor will be the judge and, as it should be, he promises not to chose former students, former or potential sexual partners, press interns, or people that can make him famous. A decision will be reached in March. Entries should be sent to our address at the bottom of the page.

Previous Winners
Noah Eli Gordon, Acoustic Experience; Susan Terris, Marriage License; Dan Boehl, Work; Joshua Corey, Compostition Marble; Knute Skinner, The Other Shoe; Lisa Samuels, War Holdings; F. J. Bergmann, Sauce Robert; John Bradley, Add Musk Here; Amy King, The People Instruments; Will Nixon, The Fish are Laughing; Shelley Stenhouse, Pants; David Brooks, Right Livelihood; Douglas Goetsch, Wherever You Want; Joshua Mc Kinney, Permutations of the Gallery.

Pavement Saw Press
Chapbook Contest
321 Empire Street
Montpelier, OH 43543

Pavement Saw Chapbook Contest
<<<<<<<<<<<<<<>>>>>>>>>>>>>>
Submit electronically, save the hassle of printing out a manuscript and have your funds support poetry not the post office! Directly enter by using our website http://www.pavementsaw.org/pages/chapcontest.htm

$500 and 50 copies of the winning chapbook will be awarded to the winner. In addition to the prize winner, at least one other manuscript will be published under a standard royalty contract (author paid 10% of press run). Everyone is allowed to submit regardless of previous publication history. Every entrant will receive the equivalent cost of the entry fee in Pavement Saw Press titles.

Unlike many publishers whose collections are printed one copy at a time and therefore lack a large circulation, our chapbooks are published in a first edition of 400 copies plus overage. While chapbooks rarely receive exposure, ours have been reviewed in Poets and Writers, Publishers Weekly, The Georgia Review, Small Press Review and many others. Our previous winners have had subsequent full length books appear from a bevy of publishers including Curbstone Press, Cleveland State University Press, Bear Star Press, University of Georgia, and Hanging Loose Press.

Submit up to 32 pages of poetry. Include a signed cover letter with your name, address, phone number, e-mail, publication credits, a brief biography and the title of the chapbook. Include a cover page with your contact information and the chapbook title. Include a second page with the chapbook title only. Do not include your name on any pages inside the manuscript except for the first title page. No need for a contents page. All chapbooks are selected blindly / anonymously. Manuscripts will be considered until December 31st, 2008. Entry fee: $15 for US entries, $18 overseas, $21 electronic (world wide).

If you wish to submit electronically, send $21.00 via paypal to [redacted]. Then e-mail the manuscript as an attachment to the same address and we will send you an e-mail confirmation that your entry is all set. Electronic submissions need to be sent as PDF files or as word (.doc or .docx) files. Other formats are not accepted. The extra cost is to cover the paypal fees as well as the time, labor, ink, and so on, to print out your manuscript. Or use our website http://www.pavementsaw.org/pages/chapcontest.htm

If you wish to send via regular mail accompany your manuscript with a check in the amount of $15.00 payable to Pavement Saw Press. All contributors to the contest will receive books, chapbooks and journals equal to, or more than, the entry fee. Add $3 (US) for other countries to cover the extra postal charge. Do not include an SASE for notification of results. Do not send the only copy of your work. All manuscripts are recycled and individual comments on the manuscripts cannot be made. This year the editor will be the judge and, as it should be, he promises not to chose former students, former or potential sexual partners, press interns, or people that can make him famous. A decision will be reached in March. Entries should be sent to our address at the bottom of the page.

Previous Winners
Noah Eli Gordon, Acoustic Experience; Susan Terris, Marriage License; Dan Boehl, Work; Joshua Corey, Compostition Marble; Knute Skinner, The Other Shoe; Lisa Samuels, War Holdings; F. J. Bergmann, Sauce Robert; John Bradley, Add Musk Here; Amy King, The People Instruments; Will Nixon, The Fish are Laughing; Shelley Stenhouse, Pants; David Brooks, Right Livelihood; Douglas Goetsch, Wherever You Want; Joshua Mc Kinney, Permutations of the Gallery.

Pavement Saw Press
Chapbook Contest
321 Empire Street
Montpelier, OH 43543

Be well

David Baratier, Editor

Pavement Saw Press
321 Empire Street
Montpelier OH 43543
http://pavementsaw.org

Subscribe to our e-mail listserv at http://pavementsaw.org/list/?p=subscribe&id=1

↑ Index

380. Jason Quackenbush
Re: Inauguration theology and poetics
Wed 31 Dec 2008

Agreed. But it'll never happen.

On Dec 29, 2008, at 6:17 PM, Ryan Daley wrote:

> Get rid of prayer, I don't care who says it.
>
> On Mon, Dec 29, 2008 at 5:16 AM, Jason Quackenbush <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> if that's how you want to read it, then that's your option.
>
> my take on this particular lazy machine is that it is part of the move > towards inclusiveness that Obama has been talking about since he emerged on > the national stage.
>
> in the end, it's a dumb preacher saying a prayer at a public event though.
> if anything all of this debate about it is just overcharging a minor occurrence with excess meaning.
>
> On Dec 28, 2008, at 1:09 PM, Mark Weiss wrote:
>
> Which is to say that Obama is trying to be all things to all people? Must > be that sainthood thing.
>
> At 07:03 PM 12/26/2008, you wrote:
>
> this is what drives me nuts about this whole conversation. other clergy, prominent respected clergy, with diametrically opposed views,
> have been invited and were invited at the same time that Warren was.
> Rev. Joseph Lowery is going to be delivering the benediction. It's not as if Obama has just put Warren on a pedestal and gesticulating grandly in his direction intoned in solemn aspect "this i believe."
>
> this inauguration, ideologically, theologically, and politically is much more nuanced symbolically than people are giving it credit for being.
>
> On Dec 24, 2008, at 12:48 PM, Corey Frost wrote:

To Mr. Obama

Inviting Rick Warren to your inauguration was a horrible idea. His anti-gay-rights and anti-women, anti-choice ideas are an embarassment to a country that pretends to stand for liberty and equality, and by giving him this platform you are recognizing him above all other clergy in the country, many of whom are much more genuinely dedicated to the ideals of love and acceptance that your religion supposedly advocates. I am an atheist myself and I am put off by any sort of religious benediction at important state events, but I understand the symbolic significance of this for many people.

There are (roughly) two ways your decision could be interpreted: either you mostly agree with Warren and you feel he is worthy of this distinction, or else you disagree with him but feel that the inauguration should represent the different prominent ideologies of the populace, and this is your way of fostering "dialogue." I certainly hope, and have some reason to think, that the former isn't true, so I am assuming it's the latter. I like the idea of dialogue, openness, and inclusion, but I think your invitation to Warren does not serve this ideal. It actually prevents dialogue by exclusively privileging someone who is not open and not inclusive.

I hope you will take steps to fix this mistake. Univiting Rick Warren would be great, but I recognize that you are in politics and for political reasons you may not see this as an option. Therefore I strongly urge you to invite other clergy to take part who do not share Warren's close-minded, bigoted stances. If dialogue is what you want, then allow differing views. If you were to invite Gene Robinson, for example, the first openly gay bishop, then I could believe that your invitation to a homophobic right-wing evangelist was more than just a cheap bid for political support. Ask them to share the stage, and then we'll see who is really committed to dialogue.

welcome.html

Jason Quackenbush
[redacted]

welcome.html

> welcome.html
>
> Jason Quackenbush
> [redacted]
>
> guidelines
>
> welcome.html

Jason Quackenbush
[redacted]

↑ Index

381. Niels Hav
Re: I Called Richard Yates On The Phone: Musings From A Minor Poet
Wed 31 Dec 2008

Hi Doug,
Well done, I like that one,
fine work!

With best wishes to you & all for an inspired new year 09!
Niels
A love poem from The Literary Review
http://theliteraryreview.org/archives/Hav_Niels_51_3.pdf

On Mon, Dec 29, 2008 at 4:08 PM, Doug Holder <[redacted]>wrote:

> I Called Richard Yates On The Phone: Musings From A Minor Poet
>
> By Doug Holder
>
> An editor of a new literary magazine invited me to write an essay on the role > of the "Post Modern" Poet. Well, I am not sure what "Post Modern" means, but > I am a poet, however minor, and hell, for what it's worth I should know what > my own small role is and even the role of the much bigger fish in the poetry > sea. But I think I want to expand that question. What is the role of the writer?
>
> Now I am not known for the intellectual heft of my writing, be it community journalism or in my straightforward poetry. But I always have prided myself on tapping into my instincts, bringing my rather provincial personal experience to the universal. So as it happens I was thinking of the late novelist Richard Yates. I was reading Yates long before he became tremendously famous from the movie with Kate Winslet, etc... "Revolutionary Road." (based on the novel of the same title.) That book for me, was electric, as thrilling as Kerouac's "On the Road", but in a very different way. Both Yates and Kerouac made me go out and hungrily acquire and read everything they ever penned. They made me think outside my self-made box, made me realize the power of language and literature, and they spurred me on to read even more. From Yates, I found other chroniclers of the broad lawns and narrow minds of the suburbs in post World War ll America, like John Cheever and John Updike. And later I moved through the whole canon of contemporary American authors like Philip Roth, Saul Bellow, James Baldwin, Henry Roth, to name a few.

Some people say a great poem can make you cut yourself while shaving, or make you miss your subway stop. Well, I say it makes you want to call the author on the phone.

You see, years ago I lived in a rooming house in the Back Bay of Boston, right near where Yates lived. I used to see him shamble down Mass. Ave. He looked like a homeless guy; stooped over, disheveled—a man in serious disrepair. I heard he drank at the "Crossroads', a bar a few blocks from the hole-in-the-wall I lived in. I went in a few times but I missed him. I probably wouldn't have had enough gumption to speak to him anyway. So I tried to call him on the phone several times, but I got no answer. But the point is that his writing affected me so much I wanted to call him; I wanted to connect, in a tangible way.

He was a man of my father's generation. And since I am a Baby Boomer, and lived in the suburbs of New York City (as did the characters in Revolutionary Road), I knew the milieu he wrote about. My old man was a regular "Dashing Dan," a guy who hopped the Long Island Railroad everyday to the advertising canyons of Madison Ave. So in this novel "Revolutionary Road" I had a window into the mind of a guy trapped in this "Rat Race." I had lived on a "Revolutionary Road" in Rockville Center, NY with my parents' requisite barbecues and the tipsy cocktail parties that my brother and I witnessed at the top of the living room stairs.

> Here was a writer who was doing an exegesis of this milieu, the one I grew up > in and did not question (at least when I was in the thick of it). This regimented existence, from birth, death and infinity, was tightly choreographed, and I thought that it was the only game in town.
>
> And since, during this specific time, when I was living in the Back Bay, I happened to be a denizen of a down-at-the--heels rooming house—a bathroom down the hall affair, with other gone- to- seed residents, and playing at being an artist---well, I thought Yates really spoke to me.
>
> I often read his books, and at times they left me reeling, even crying. Even > though I never actually spoke to Yates, Yates spoke loudly to me. So what do
> I think is the role of the "Post Modern" Poet? I think I told you, pal.

↑ Index

382. Tarpaulin Sky Press

Now Available: TSky Journal #15 | Print Issue #2

Wed 31 Dec 2008

Tarpaulin Sky Literary Journal #15 | Print Issue #2
7"x9", 184 pages, perfectbound
ISBN 780977901982
$12 includes shipping, direct from TSky Press:
http://www.tarpaulinsky.com/Press/catalog.html

Cover Art by Brandon Downing.

New work by Aidan Thompson, Amber Nelson, Andrew Michael Roberts, Bernard Noël, Blake Butler, Brian Henry, Brigitte Byrd, Cal Freeman, Corey Mesler, Dan Thomas-Glass, Erin Lyndal Martin, George Kalamaras , Gregory Howard, Heather Green , Jamey Dunham, Jess Neiweem, Jill Magi, Joanna Ruocco, Jonah Winter, Kim Gek Lin Short, Kristen E. Nelson, Kristi Maxwell, Laynie Browne, Mark Cunningham, Megan Martin, Michael Clearwater, Michael Rerick, Patrick Morrissey, Peter Davis, Rae Gouirand, Rauan Klassnik, Richard Froude, Rob Cook, Sara Veglahn, and Tim Roberts.

↑ Index

383. Steve Tills

Write an inauguration speech

Wed 31 Dec 2008

Write an inauguration speech...

Aspire to "include" ALL living things.

See to what Depth, Breath, Salience, AND Precision you can bring the overall thrust and focus of your piece.

Monitor afterward, OR during, the degree to which you sought to differentiate your inauguration speech from those of the past OR sought to stay in the same ball park OR resolved issues around impulses to make your own speech stand out as different OR denied that such issues even exist. In brief, monitor to what degree your speech is "all about you" or "all about them," as truly "making it NEW" would, I think, transcend impulses to annihilate the status quo AND impulses to maintain the status quo.

OR

Write a parody of an inauguration speech, or write a satiric inauguration speech, and somehow, again, "include" ALL living things. Again, Transcend the human-centric.

Monitor afterward, OR during, the degree to which you wrote something NOT thoroughly predictable. That is, monitor to what degree you merely plugged in different words to what otherwise is the same parody or the same satire that has been written every time our species actualizes its innate ability/instinct for engaging said forms.

OR

Ignore both sets of guidelines set out above and Simply Write the Best Darn Inauguration Speech "Rick Warren" could possibly deliver.

OR

Write an inauguration speech to end all inauguration speeches forever. I am not sure why anybody would want to do this, but it (therefore) sounds like a good thing to try...

Steve Tills

↑ Index

384. Jim Andrews
New on Vispo.com: 1987 digital poetry by Geof Huth
Wed 31 Dec 2008

New on vispo.com:

ENDEMIC BATTLE COLLAGE AND OTHER 1987 APPLE BASIC POEMS
by Geof Huth
http://vispo.com/huth

Endemic Battle Collage and other 1987 Apple Basic Poems is a suite of programmed, animated poems by Geof Huth. This work is discussed in Chris Funkhouser's landmark book Prehistoric Digital Poetry. Because this early Huth work is digital and from 1987, it's been unavailable for many years. You can view the work as video at http://vispo.com/huth or download an emulator and view the poems through the emulator. Also included on vispo.com are writings by Geof Huth about these works and about digital poetry more generally. And an introduction by me to the project.

This is some of the earliest programmed+kinetic visual poetry created. This Huth work and bpNichol's related First Screening at http://vispo.com/bp exude the sense of excitement Nichol and Huth felt at this incunabular point in the intersection of visual and digital poetry with the cinematic.

Happy new year to all on the Poetics list!

ja

↑ Index

385. Corey Frost
Re: Inauguration theology and poetics
Wed 31 Dec 2008

I'm assuming he has a large following. It's not really my milieu. And I find that conservative Christian leaders tend to rise and fall in prominence according to fashion/scandal etc.

All I'm saying is that he will not be simply one voice among a spectrum of voices at the inauguration; in symbolic terms, his theology is being elevated as a representation of the "shared values and ideals" of the nation.

Besides, it wouldn't matter if everyone in the US agreed with him except CA Conrad, because he would still be wrong (i.e. unjust). Civil discourse means listening to differing views, of course, but that doesn't mean one has to validate a certain view just because a lot of people hold it.

Corey
Isn't an immoderate early riser either.

> Are you saying that there is not a large number of US people that like him and approve of him?
> That he has not acquired the following of many US people?
>
> Mr. G.H. Bowering
> Does not get up immoderately early.

↑ Index

386. amy king
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Wed 31 Dec 2008

How very kind of you to acknowledge there "might be a case." However, how common too to respond to the notion that prostitution is harmful to women on so many levels and to avoid the notion that this harm is namely done by men by equating some thin comparison with the "harm" done to men.

In other words, the only real commonality with your comparison between football and prostitution is that men also get hurt, mostly physically, and this fact is what you use to deflect any attention that should be turned on just how pervasive and strictly gendered the harm done by prostitution is. Kind of like when women say prostitution is harmful, we're told, 'Well women choose to be prostitutes!' as though that answer also renders invisible exactly who is controlling the strings to make prostitution happen -- because they want that 'service' -- and to avoid the myriad ways men get to abuse the system they create, uphold and support.

You better believe if women were the ones paying massive amounts of money and demanding more gore on the football field, even committing violence against the players when the impulse struck, there would be a national outcry of the rape of these players...

The comparison is something of another strawman meant to detract from actually examining just who really is committing the violence against women and how that violence is monetarily fueled by money men earn and spend and how that violence is not regulated and rarely punished.

By the way, I've only almost been to the Poetry Brothel and see no harm in the name as it's clearly a play on brothels that men and women participate in / simulate in weird ways, is even something of a debunking of the purpose of brothel. Never been invited to read and would likely find behaving as the poet-prostitute awkward at best as I'm no good at such simulations. Poor acting skills on my part, I guess.

Be well,

Amy

_____

Recent work
http://www.writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/King.html

Amy's Alias
http://amyking.org/

--- On Tue, 12/30/08, John Cunningham <[redacted]> wrote:

> From: John Cunningham <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Tuesday, December 30, 2008, 9:24 AM
> I suppose one could say you have a case. However, do blacks from the ghetto > really have a choice? Are athletes fully aware? I just saw a show on The > Fifth Estate examining brain injury in pro-football athletes. Do > pro-athletes really want to play hurt - including playing with concussions - > or is it the owners of the teams that insist on it or else the athlete loses > his position.
> John Herbert Cunningham
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB)
> [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
> Sent: December 29, 2008 2:39 PM
> To: [redacted]
> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>
> thank you, gwyn! (but prostitution affects many more females than males.
> still, yes, it does affect both & is odious everywhere.)
> besides, even if prostitutes were not forced or sold or beaten or young or > broke or threatened every day or exposed to every kind of

degradation
instead of being admired as football players are, imagine selling your body
for long-term effects on human being.

On 12/27/08 11:05 AM, "Gwyn McVay"
<[redacted]> wrote:

On Thu, Dec 25, 2008 at 11:25 AM, John Cunningham
<[redacted]
wrote:

For those of you who are speaking out against the body being used in commerce, why are you not speaking out against football or hockey
where male bodies are being used in commerce? When you consider the damage that
is done to the male body during that contact sport
and the lingering effects
of it in terms of permanent injury and disability such as arthritis and
other diseases, isn't this just as bad? Or is it that one affects women whereas
the other affects men?

Omigod, you're so right. I hurt in my anterior cruciate ligaments for all
of
those men FORCED or DECEIVED into collegiate and professional sports every year; BEATEN if they try to leave; often denied any other employment options
in the case of being transgendered; not allowed to keep a PENNY of their earnings... oh wait.

Gwyn "Also, This Is a False Binary, Because
Prostitution Affects All
Genders, And Not Just Adults" McVay

> all posts. Check
> guidelines &
>
> posts. Check guidelines
> Internal Virus Database is out of date.
> Checked by AVG - http://www.avg.com
> Version: 8.0.134 / Virus Database: 270.4.5/1533 - Release
> Date: 03/07/2008
> 7:19 PM

↑ Index

387. George Bowering
Re: OPEN LETTER to Elizabeth Alexander
Wed 31 Dec 2008

Where did you get the notion that prescriptive grammar was a subject?

On Dec 30, 2008, at 11:50 AM, Elizabeth Switaj wrote:

> So prescriptive grammar = smart objection? Or, there can be no smart objections unless they follow a specific set of grammatical rules?
>
> On Fri, Dec 26, 2008 at 5:29 PM, George Bowering <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> No, I am saying that if you are screaming all the time, screams get less > useful than smart objections.
>
> gb
>
> welcome.html

George Bowering
Scourge of modifier danglers.

↑ Index

388. Ruth Lepson
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Wed 31 Dec 2008

---

thanks. but I think this is like comparing apples and ...bananas.
happy new year.
ruth

On 12/30/08 9:24 AM, "John Cunningham" <[redacted]> wrote:

I suppose one could say you have a case. However, do blacks from the ghetto really have a choice? Are athletes fully aware? I just saw a show on The Fifth Estate examining brain injury in pro-football athletes. Do pro-athletes really want to play hurt - including playing with concussions - or is it the owners of the teams that insist on it or else the athlete loses his position.
John Herbert Cunningham

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
Sent: December 29, 2008 2:39 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

thank you, gwyn! (but prostitution affects many more females than males. still, yes, it does affect both & is odious everywhere.)
besides, even if prostitutes were not forced or sold or beaten or young or broke or threatened every day or exposed to every kind of degradation instead of being admired as football players are, imagine selling your body for long-term effects on human being.

On 12/27/08 11:05 AM, "Gwyn McVay" <[redacted]> wrote:

On Thu, Dec 25, 2008 at 11:25 AM, John Cunningham <[redacted]
wrote:

For those of you who are speaking out against the body being used in commerce, why are you not speaking out against football or hockey where male bodies are being used in commerce? When you consider the damage that is done to the male body during that contact sport and the lingering effects of it in terms of permanent injury and disability such as arthritis and other diseases, isn't this just as bad? Or is it that one affects women whereas the other affects men?

Omigod, you're so right. I hurt in my anterior cruciate ligaments for all of those men FORCED or DECEIVED into collegiate and professional sports every year; BEATEN if they try to leave; often denied any other employment options in the case of being transgendered; not allowed to keep a PENNY of their > earnings... oh wait.

>
> Gwyn "Also, This Is a False Binary, Because Prostitution Affects All Genders, And Not Just Adults" McVay
>
> guidelines &
>
> Internal Virus Database is out of date.
> Checked by AVG - http://www.avg.com
> Version: 8.0.134 / Virus Database: 270.4.5/1533 - Release Date: 03/07/2008 7:19 PM

↑ Index

389. George Bowering
Re: Inauguration theology and poetics
Wed 31 Dec 2008

On Dec 31, 2008, at 10:53 AM, Corey Frost wrote:

> . Civil discourse means > listening to differing views, of course, but that doesn't mean one has to > validate a certain view just because a lot of people hold it.

Would this include the U.S. Constitution
or the election of Obama?
>
>

George Bowering,
Fan of Alex Shibicky

↑ Index

390. Murat Nemet-Nejat
Re: capitalism and the long poem
Wed 31 Dec 2008

David,

Beautiful! Poetry should be infused with the dimension of failure, as anti-production.

Happy new year!

Ciao,

Murat

On Tue, Dec 30, 2008 at 1:46 PM, David-Baptiste Chirot <
[redacted]> wrote:

> Dear Eireene--
>
> Thank you so much for this excellent piece and the question you pose.
>
> Seriality in writing as a deliberate form is directly an effect of Captialsim--in that serials such as the Feuilletons of Eugene Sue and the serial manner of publishing Dickens' novels, became one of the few ways that an author could make money directly from writing--and also it was used as a way to get people to keep buying the newspaper or journal in which the serial appeared.
>
> Seriality of this kind is constructed round the desire to "want to know what happens next" and is accompanied by the acceptance by the reader that one "will pay any price to find out how the cliff hanger was resolved--and what happens next until the next cliff hanger is reached—"
>
> An author often could make more money from selling a serial than having a book appear "all at once," due to the lack of copyright for American writers who were pirated outrageously by British publishes, and the lack of copy right in many other countries also.
>
> A writer like Dostoyevsky who had gambling debts would crank out serials to pay off creditors, a vast improvement actually on the strategies open to Balzac, who often wrote six books at a time, for several different publishers, not having yet the serial at his disposal.
>
> (Hence the often strange effect in many of Balzac's works, that a book begun at one point in time, interrupted to complete two others more pressing, then returned to—the writer would suddenly decide that a different character should step into the spotlight from its previous position vaguely in the background at the edge of the wings and faded old curtains--, and in stepping forward, suddenly alter almost entirely the direction of the narrative and the meaning of the moral Balzac was presenting as another in his

"philosophies des moeux" in the structure of the Comedie Humaine

A structure whose descriptions and analyses Karl Marx found to be the greatest and most perceptive study ever made of Capitalism in all its function and effects---

Seriality was continued in the early "Motion Pictures" with the famous feuilletons of Louis Feuillade so beloved of the Surrealist--"Judex" "Les Vampyrs" and etc--and in the US the endless series of "Adventures of Pauline' and her constellations of spin offs--tied to the rail road tracks as the train approaches--and escaping miraculously--only to have another misadventure seize hold of her before the reel runs out--and the lettering on the black screen says--"Wait Until Next Week to Find Out What---"

Serial production functions not unlike a model of addiction--once hooked, one
HAS to keep coming back for MORE MORE MORE--which is at once the
"same" and slightly different, just enough so, that the sense of being both satisfied that "the stuff is good" and at the same time give an extra "plug" in that one enjoys it for only so long and then has to be in the throes craving until the next fix can be obtained.

Soap operas came about for the same reason--to keep the customer coming back in order to have the familiar fix and also to experience the titillation of the seductive "wait for next time and I'll be there--just waiting for YOU--"

"Soap" opera referring to be sure to the selling of laundry soaps that paid for the serial production of these "Opere"--so that both the "serial" and the product become inseparably associated and one finds oneself suddenly craving--soap!!

Actually Language Poetry's assertions about grammar being an expression of, structured by, Captialsim, is a fallacy, in terms of linguistics, and is instead
a kind of "soap" that sponsors the reader's having a new "mode of production" i.e. "a new line"--to develop an addiction to--'what will be the next book from language writers?--what will be the next exciting daring thing they do in their hair raising battle with capitalism"--in other words, a fallacious
"anti-capitalist" production is marketed as just that--hey!! Buy us!!
We are anti-capitalism's structuring of grammar!! We are liberating you!!--From what? –

From buying one form of poetry one is freed to buy another. Nothing has changed but the "exterior appearance" of the product. Inside it is the same old thing--production, product, authors, canons, sub divisions of categories of styles, rhetorical devices and "morphemic transgressions" replete with torque and the tensile strengths of the requisite number of "allowances for the reader's constructions of their own meanings"-- and all of these crammed within the new models so that one might choose still somehow between a convertible or a coupe, or perhaps simply a two door or a four door---

And what colors would you like these to come in?--With or with out ash trays,
CD player--radio?--No smoking?—OK—we'll make a note of that—no lighter—either--

Oh!! Did someone mention Hybrids--??!! How marvelous!!--What a pun, mon vieux—do you mean automobiles or genres--?—or perhaps some fantastical life form—out of Lewis Carroll or Borges—

A used car dealer, a used poem dealer . . . .or perhaps in these days of tightened belts—the two combined and displaying their wares on the same much contracted "lot"

whose fading banners
may well not be seen by the dawn's early light—other than as limp remnants of plastic curling and scuttering across
the tarmacs in the gusts of an ill wind blowing no good—

Yes—from the assembly line to the poetic line—

Is a very fine line indeed—

And so one can replace the unemployed's former jobs on the assembly line

With jobs on the poetic line—

Hard at work creating serial production again--

The serial is created to "provoke and sustain interest through time--"

And indeed one might think of this interest as a paying of interest in that instead of one product in full paid for al at once, one is paying for the product stretched out through time, and so pays more for each "section" in the serial, bringing the total cost of the completed series to quite a bi more than if one had simply been able to purchase the whole thing inside one cover. But then--one would have been deprived of the thrill and the touch of each new issue each new episode arriving in the stores or in the mails or on line or video--awaiting with that craving so deliciously satisfied by the insertion into the human system of the capitalist addiction system--and then, as the pleasure is moving through out one in a sensuous erotic glow--suddenly one is cut off-and told to wait until next

time--

And there one is, "Waiting for the Man, 26 dollars in your hand/he's never early, always late/the first thing you learn/is you just got to wait."

And so there were and may still be--long lines queuing up on the days that the "Man" is coming --shivering and shaking in the junk sick streets until at the last moment of unendurable waiting, when al are cursing the "Man" who is subjection them to this suffering--at this last moment when al are ready to forever consign this Monster to the dustbins of their crashed hopes and illusions--here he or she is!! And like salivating dogs they al rush to lick her (or his) feet and rub against his (or her) legs and practically shit themselves in delight--with outpourings of love finally getting their greedy paws on the serial's new installment, and putting down al their hard saved coins and bills for this immediate satisfying of the unbearable cravings building up--

How many times does one not find someone writing of having to satisfy their poetry fix with a quick rush to a book store and their tear off their coats, yank up their sleeves, wrap the nearest belt or cord around their scrawny arm and inject three or four chapbooks--and with great and sudden euphoria--plunk down whatever price they are told these precious "rocks" are jacked up to this week--

Who hasn't seen lurking near the bookstores and poetry dens the sinister figure of the Reviewer loaded with the latest galleys and review copies of releases, wiling to sell them cheaper than the store--or forego the cash as long as the figure is paid for in some kind of trade--for sex perhaps, or say season ticket to the opera or bal game or perhaps simply the inside scoop on some trading tip on good old Wall Street--or a tip on the races--

A different method of composition was advocated by Edgar Allan Poe, who, in his "Principles of Poetry" and "Philospsophy of Composition" formulated one of the msot influential approaches to this day for the production of poems and , to be sure--short stories. This is to create works whcih, given the speeding up oflife and magazine prodcution, can be read in one sitting, because, argues Poe, only in having the entire poem or story all at once, is one experiencing the full power of the Effect. For Poe, --and this is also an argument against the "Inspiration" of Romanticism--a poem is constructed deliberately, almost mathematically as well as musically--by choosing first the effect to be experienced by the reader, and working "backwards," determining the elements and their arrangements with in the structure which is determined by the length of time as measured in numbers of words.

Where the serial exploits the drawing out of time, as a never quite consummated series of piquing of desire--the work as advocated by Poe--delivers an Effect
so great that is far more satisfying than the long drawn-out "sickness" of serial addiction, with its attendant ever demanding layouts of cash--

The short story, the short poem--for Poe these offer a much more interesting field for the investigations of questions of composition--because they provide CONSTRAINTS--which provoke rather than limit discoveries--because
"Necessity the Motherfucker of Invention" is a goad to the imagination completely at odds with its dispersal as in a serial--in which the poet or writer has far more TIME to dream up what happens next--

Poe's theories of Composition, traced via Baudelaire and his invention of the *short prose poem--and the theory of Correspondances--is at the basis of French Symbolism as it culminates in Mallarme--a good friend of his Tuesdays attendee Felix Feneon, who, combining his anarchist ideas with those of the "creation of the effect"--much as Mallarme noted that Feneon's words were "detonators" as much as the bombs he advocated and may have thrown himself--comes up with the turning of his hack job writing "Faits Divers" for the mass circulation Le Matin into the writing simultaneously of news (Nouvelles) and "short stories" (nouvelles), which become known when published posthumously as his "Nouvelles en trois lignes"--News Stories/Short Stories in three lines. Like Poe, who published his works in newspapers and large circulation journals, Feneon is melding "news of the day" in its documentary "detective story" aspect with its fictional "Balloon Hoax" (published in a newspaper to emulate one that had been taken as truth) and "Purloined Letter,"

"Ms in a Bottle" aspects.*

Since the short story and short poem, the "Faits Divers" hack filler turned into a short story/documented event do not create the dependence the "fort-da" psychology of Captilist Need and Desire, these short, effect driven works subvert in a strange way the more "profitable" serials in that they offer the "most bang for the buck'--as it were, rather than endlessly teasing out the most bucks for an ever differed bang as does the serial.

*This "bang" effect is literally "realized, if one is willing to think of this way--in the naming of the NFL Baltimore Ravens for Poe's poem.
The Ravens, a hard hitting team led by a Super bowl MVP Ray Lewis who has been charged in the past with connection to a homicide--play with indeed the most bang delivered for the buck--producing some "shocking" effects and like Poe producing a "mystery story to be investigated by detectives."*

One of the reasons for Poe's development of his theories was not surprisingly, economic. In Poe's time American writers had no copyright protection, so the one surest way to "get the most out" of a piece of writing was to have it produce its effect al at once, before it was pirated. "The Raven," for example, was pirated thousands of times--it was a "Platinum Selling Hit" for its times--yet Poe was paid only once, and that, for him, a not too miserly fee of a few dollars. was al he ever received.

In the 1890's, Henry James was faced with the example of Poe, a writer who in the past he had been dismissive of. After the fabulous failures of his dramatic pieces on the stage, James found himself in need of money to keep himself and his beloved Lamb House afloat. (His neighbors there were to become Stephen Crane, Joseph Conrad and H. G. Wells.)

James decided at first one the old famialar standby—the writing of a serial—which proved to be "The Turn of the Screw." As he worked to find a way to keep on creating an Effect on which each episode would end so as to keep the suspense hanging and make the reader desire intensely to purchase the nest episodes as they appeared—James began reconsidering Poe's theory of the Effect. From the creation of a ghost story serial, James began to turn to the creation of short stories which, like Poe's are created with the final effect in mind.

(While dictating aloud to his red haired Scottish typist "The Turn of the Screw," James discovered himself building in each episode to the proper cliff hanging effect—only to see not "an effect" produced on the typist, but rather his poker faced question as he paused with fingers in mid air to type the next words—"And then?" This may have contributed a bit towards James' deciding he would prefer to produce the Effect in toto in a short story—just to see what if any Effect it had on the seemingly unimpressionable red haired typist.)

Another interesting example is Roberto Bolano, who turned from writing poetry to producing short stories after his marriage and with a child on the way. Bolano, like many other writers who have used this material of the short story competition for short stories in themselves, discovered that in Spain a great many towns and small cities offered prizes for best short story on such and such a theme, place or person of the immediate region.
Competing for prizes helped Bolano develop his skills at producing Effects that would "outshine" those of his opponents.

From the short stories he moved to the novella form, and he became aware his life was rapidly getting shorter and shorter, and that the best way to leave a profitable legacy for his family was to compose novels—and ever bigger ones!—Bolano devoted himself literally feverishly to the production of as man words as possible, in order to earn the most money posthumously for his widow and small son.

The connection between Captialsim and writing is NOT grammar, but WORD COUNT—page length—and, hopefully for the writer and publisher both, NAME RECONITION—by which a much slighter prodcution can be marketed if the author's name, rather than the bulk, merits the raising of the price no matter how short a work may be.

In one of his essays the Italian Futurist (an ex-Symbolist whose Futurism is littered with many of the most hackneyed of Symbolist images and techniques), considered that literature and poetry could be assigned values based on a system of weights and measures, including that of measuring and weighing "quality"—which is not unrelated is it not to" Name Recognition" as a "guarantee" of at least a certain level of quality being available to the reader.

This is another of the paradoxes of the hack work of Feneon's Faits Divers—that in an anonymous poorly paid and very low-regarded form, he would decide to go about producing work of the highest quality, while getting absolutely no credit for it "in name" nor being rewarded for his extra efforts by any increase in the minimal pay.

And so it is only a century later that Feneon's Faits Divers aka Nouvelles en trois lignes appear in English, in a translation of most of the pieces. (The translation unfortunately uses the word "novels' for nouvelles—which disappears the punning of "short news items, news briefs" and short stories. Instead there is a making much by reveiewers of the pieces being "novels" which contradicts the entire meaning of the pun. It also makes impossible the contemporary punning of "news flashes" with today's "flash fictions.")

Flaubert, after all, had already accomplished the turning

Several decades
earlier of a provincial journal's Faits Divers into the novel Madame Bovary:

"Delphine Delamare, 27, wife of a medical officer in Ry, displayed insufficient austerity. Worse, she ran up debts. To avoid paying them, she took poison."

But then, despite the Figure of the Dead Author which strides so stridently about among the assertions of Authors who grow plump with the fees their Name Recognition brings as they Bang the Drum Slowly—perhaps SLOWLY NOT AS A DIRGE BUT AS A VERY VERY VERY LONG DRAWN OUT

SERIAL—OR--
EVEN BETTER--
A DECADE ADTER DECADE ONGOING SOAP OPERA –

What writer of today would anonymously take on hack work of the slightest kind FOR THE LOWEST PAY and work on creating of each item a short story beautifully composed via the elements of structure known as syntax, word choice and the obligatory listing of information such as who what when why where-

And a few years later basically stop writing altogether other than letters to friends and business associates—for it was Feneon's "aspiration to silence"—his works were constructed to attain—

In effect, a writer who combines Bartleby's "I prefer not to" with Rimbaud's leaving of writing for work in a business establishment. (In Feneon's case, a well- known Parisian art gallery turning his no longer being France's best art critic since Baudelaire to use in selling the wares he once wrote of.)

See also:

Feneon's Faits Divers and Poe's Principles of Poetryhttp://cronacasouversivafeneon.blogspot.com/2008/12/feneons-poe-tic-ghosthumously-anonymous.html

FELIX FENEON AS CONCEPTUAL POET

http://cronacasouversivafeneon.blogspot.com/2008/12/felix-feneon-as-conceptual-poet.html

Date: Mon, 29 Dec 2008 11:45:57 -0800

From: [redacted]

Subject: capitalism and the long poem

To: [redacted]

I sat down to write a little piece about this Russian poet, and came up with a strange take on the long poem--an idea that the Seriality of it is somehow related to consumer capitalism--

http://tsky-reviews.blogspot.com/

not the pleasantest thought--

and so I was wondering if anyone has any good counter arguments, or different takes on why so many are so obsessed with this form right now. & will we fall out of love with it during the recession?

e

==========

It's the same Hotmail(R). If by "same" you mean up to 70% faster.

> http://windowslive.com/online/hotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_hotmail_acq_broad1_122008

↑ Index

391. Eireene Nealand
Re: capitalism and the long poem
Wed 31 Dec 2008

Yes, I think that this is the part that I was worrying about:

As DBChirot says: Serial production functions not unlike a model of addiction--once hooked, one HAS to keep coming back for MORE MORE MORE--which is at once the "same" and slightly different, just enough so, that the sense of being both satisfied that "the stuff is good" and at the same time give an extra "plug" in that one enjoys it for only so long and then has to be in the throes craving until the next fix can be obtained.

So there's a sort of repetition thing going on (I don't really follow this Freud stuff very well, but someone explained the Lacan/consumerism problem as similar, as Troy alludes to, one in postmodernism's problems of self: both stemming from an inherent emptiness--there is no self there at the center--so we keep trying to fill the lack or hole with one commodity or otherwise sexy thing after another.

It' not always the same thing, but there's a repetitive structure to the act of filling the hole--(okay this may not look like the long poems at all)--and maybe Lacan, being a structuralist (?), would say that that the motion of filling forms some sort of updatable subject?

well, now I am lost again.

I want to get to this part where Catherine Daly is where there's a possibility of woven funcitons but I'm not sure how to get from one to the other.

What's the source of all of that talk about the usable past? and available nerve endings and tissues, by the way. I feel like I must have somehow missed some whole big discussion here.

e

On 12/30/08, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
> I think we've become obsessed with it precisely because it's fallen out of favor. Somebody, or a few people, wondered where it went, and began writing about it. It seems to me that the long poem became impossible with the abandonment of narrative by poets. How long can one keep up a feeling or a mood or an "experiment"? Frederick Fierstein writes quite long poems, but his poems also have narratives holding them together. Frederick Turner has written two epic poems.

>
> Troy Camplin
>
>
>
> _____
> From: Eireene Nealand <[redacted]>
>
> To: [redacted]
>
> Sent: Monday, December 29, 2008 1:45:57 PM
>
> Subject: capitalism and the long poem
>
>
> I sat down to write a little piece about this Russian poet, and came > up with a strange take on the long poem--an idea that the seriality of > it is somehow related to consumer capitalism--
>
> http://tsky-reviews.blogspot.com/
>
> not the pleasantest thought--
>
> and so I was wondering if anyone has any good counter arguments, or > different takes on why so many are so obsessed with this form right > now. & will we fall out of love with it during the recession?
>
> e
>
>
>
>

↑ Index

392. Adam Tobin
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Wed 31 Dec 2008

Here's an interesting article, for those who are interested, about a more useful approach to bettering the terrible conditions of brothels: forming a prostitutes' union. http://www.sciam.com/article.cfm?id=the-prostitutes-union

I think as long as every mention of prostitution brings up just so much puritan moralizing, pimps and their bosses will continue to operate with impunity, out of the sight of polite society. Meanwhile police continue to fine and jail the women, in order to keep them out of sight of the neighbors whose real estate values they would otherwise

↑ Index

393. David-Baptiste Chirot
Warning Porno & Spam Mercahnts on poetics list--maybe is hacked?
Wed 31 Dec 2008

---

this is a warning
files coming in on th poetics list contain porno links and various marketing campaigns

_____ Life on your PC is safer, easier, and more enjoyable with Windows Vista®.
http://clk.atdmt.com/MRT/go/127032870/direct/01/

↑ Index

394. amy king
Re: Warning Porno & Spam Mercahnts on poetics list--maybe is hacked? -- NO, BUT
Wed 31 Dec 2008

Human error. I hit a wrong button when dealing with some spam just now. There should be about four spam emails that got through, so please avoid clicking suspicious links. If it looks like spam, it likely is - but the site is not hacked.

Thanks,

& happy turn of the year to you all tonight!

Amy

_____

Recent work
http://www.writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/King.html

Amy's Alias
http://amyking.org/

--- On Wed, 12/31/08, David-Baptiste Chirot <[redacted]> wrote:

> From: David-Baptiste Chirot <[redacted]>
> Subject: Warning Porno & Spam Mercahnts on poetics list--maybe is hacked?
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Wednesday, December 31, 2008, 4:34 PM
> this is a warning
> files coming in on th poetics list contain porno links and > various marketing campaigns

↑ Index

395. amy king

Re: Warning Porno & Spam Mercahnts on poetics list--maybe is hacked? -- NO, BUT

Wed 31 Dec 2008

Okay, I only found three and removed them from the archive. If someone spots the other, please let me know.

One spam email is a call for a "Secret Shopper", one is just gibberish in symbols, and the final one has a header "Lyrical Verse" from the "Star Journal" -- the latter is the one to ignore.

Thanks,

Amy

_____

Recent work
http://www.writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/King.html

Amy's Alias
http://amyking.org/

--- On Wed, 12/31/08, amy king <[redacted]> wrote:

> From: amy king <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: Warning Porno & Spam Mercahnts on poetics list--maybe is hacked? -- NO, BUT
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Wednesday, December 31, 2008, 4:45 PM
> Human error. I hit a wrong button when dealing with some > spam just now. There should be about four spam emails that > got through, so please avoid clicking suspicious links. If it looks like spam, it likely is - but the site is not hacked.

>
> Thanks,
>
> & happy turn of the year to you all tonight!
>
> Amy
>
> _____
>
> Recent work
> http://www.writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/King.html
>
> Amy's Alias
> http://amyking.org/
>
> --- On Wed, 12/31/08, David-Baptiste Chirot
> <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> From: David-Baptiste Chirot
> <[redacted]>
> Subject: Warning Porno & Spam Mercahnts on poetics list--maybe is hacked?
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Wednesday, December 31, 2008, 4:34 PM
> this is a warning
> files coming in on th poetics list contain porno links and > various marketing campaigns

↑ Index

396. Obododimma Oha

Re: Issue 1/Verzion 2

Wed 31 Dec 2008

Who will revise (re:vice), scramble, recycle, cannibalize ... on behalf of Shakespeare, e.e. cummings, etc, that appeared in that anthology? Or do we assume that dead poets are satisfied because dead poets don't bite? -- Obododimma.

On Sun, Dec 28, 2008 at 5:21 PM, <[redacted]> wrote:

> CALL FOR REMISSIONS: VERZION TWO:
>
> Remember Issue 1 - that PDF on the For Godot blog site that had computer-generated poems attributed to about 4,000 poets who had nothing to do with them?
>
> Well, some of the people to whom those names are legally attached got pretty upset about it, and others smiled. In any case, it seemed to me like there's a lot of raw material there that's going unused and unrecycled. Hence, VERZION TWO.
>
> If you are one of the names that appeared in that scurrilous publication, and if you weren't completely satisfied with the poem that appeared above it, here's your chance to do better - or at least different.
>
> Rewrite, revise, recycle, scramble or cannibalize "your" poem from Issue 1. Send the original, along with your revision to:
>
> joeharrington [at] sunflower [dot] com
>
> and I'll put it up (http://verziontwo.blogspot.com). Feel free to include a statement about what you liked or disliked in the original and what you did about it.
>
> Thanks
> Joe Harrington

--
Obododimma Oha
Senior Lecturer in Stylistics & Semiotics
Dept. of English
University of Ibadan
Nigeria

&

Fellow, Centre for Peace & Conflict Studies
University of Ibadan

Phone: [redacted];
[redacted].

↑ Index

397. Troy Camplin
Re: capitalism and the long poem
Wed 31 Dec 2008

There's a lot of interesting stuff here, but one does wonder how one fits pre-capitalist societies into this. The epic poem all but dies off with the advent of the Modern Era and capitalism. How does one fit the idea of line production in fact being LOST with the advent of capitalist society? Homer, Sophocles, Aeschylus, Euripides, Virgil, et al were well-known authors, all pre-capitalist. Certainly your points about serialization and novel production with Balzac are quite interesting and true, but your thesis almost treats literary production as having arisen with capitalism. How does one fit the rest of world literary history into your model?

Troy Camplin

_____
From: David-Baptiste Chirot <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, December 30, 2008 12:46:12 PM
Subject: Re: capitalism and the long poem

Dear Eireene--

Thank you so much for this excellent piece and the question you pose.

Seriality in writing as a deliberate form is directly an effect of Captialsim--in that serials such as the Feuilletons of Eugene Sue and the serial manner of publishing Dickens' novels, became one of the few ways that an author could make money directly from writing--and also it was used as a way to get people to keep buying the newspaper or journal in which the serial appeared.

Seriality of this kind is constructed round the desire to "want to know what happens next" and is accompanied by the acceptance by the reader that one "will pay any price to find out how the cliff hanger was resolved--and what happens next until the next cliff hanger is reached—“

An author often could make more money from selling a serial than having a book appear "all at once," due to the lack of copyright for American writers who were pirated outrageously by British publishes, and the lack of copy right in many other countries also.

A writer like Dostoyevsky who had gambling debts would crank out serials to pay off creditors, a vast improvement actually on the strategies open to Balzac, who often wrote six books at a time, for several different publishers, not having yet the serial at his disposal.

(Hence the often strange effect in many of Balzac’s works, that a book begun at one point in time, interrupted to complete two others more pressing, then returned to—the writer would suddenly decide that a different character should step into the spotlight from its previous position vaguely in the background at the edge of the wings and faded old curtains--, and in stepping forward, suddenly alter almost entirely the direction of the narrative and the meaning of the moral Balzac was presenting as another in his “philosophies des moeux” in the structure of the Comedie Humaine

A structure whose descriptions and analyses Karl Marx found to be the greatest and most perceptive study ever made of Capitalism in all its function and effects---

Seriality was continued in the early "Motion Pictures" with the famous feuilletons of Louis Feuillade so beloved of the Surrealist--"Judex" "Les Vampyrs" and etc--and in the US the endless series of "Adventures of Pauline' and her constellations of spin offs--tied to the rail road tracks as the train approaches--and escaping miraculously--only to have another misadventure seize hold of her before the reel runs out--and the lettering on the black screen says--"Wait Until Next Week to Find Out What---"

Serial production functions not unlike a model of addiction--once hooked, one HAS to keep coming back for MORE MORE MORE--which is at once the "same" and slightly different, just enough so, that the sense of being both satisfied that "the stuff is good" and at the same time give an extra "plug" in that one enjoys it for only so long and then has to be in the throes craving until the next fix can be obtained.

Soap operas came about for the same reason--to keep the customer coming back in order to have the familiar fix and also to experience the titillation of the seductive "wait for next time and I'll be there--just waiting for YOU--"

"Soap" opera referring to be sure to the selling of laundry soaps that paid for the serial production of these "Opere"--so that both the "serial" and the product become inseparably associated and one finds oneself suddenly craving--soap!!

Actually Language Poetry's assertions about grammar being an expression of, structured by, Captialsim, is a fallacy, in terms of linguistics, and is instead a kind of "soap" that sponsors the reader's having a new "mode of production" i.e. "a new line"--to develop an addiction to--'what will be the next book from language writers?--what will be the next exciting daring thing they do in their hair raising battle with capitalism"--in other words, a fallacious "anti-capitalist" production is marketed as just that--hey!! Buy us!! We are anti-capitalism’s structuring of grammar!! We are liberating you!!--From what? –

From buying one form of poetry one is freed to buy another. Nothing has changed but the "exterior appearance" of the product. Inside it is the same old thing--production, product, authors, canons, sub divisions of categories of styles, rhetorical devices and “morphemic transgressions” replete with torque and the tensile strengths of the requisite number of “allowances for the reader’s constructions of their own meanings”-- and all of these crammed within the new models so that one might choose still somehow between a convertible or a coupe, or perhaps simply a two door or a four door---

And what colors would you like these to come in?--With or with out ash trays, CD player--radio?--No smoking?—OK—we’ll make a note of that—no lighter—either--

Oh!! Did someone mention Hybrids--??!! How marvelous!!--What a pun, mon vieux—do you mean automobiles or genres--?—or perhaps some fantastical life form—out of Lewis Carroll or Borges—

A used car dealer, a used poem dealer . . . .or perhaps in these days of tightened belts—the two combined and displaying their wares on the same much contracted “lot”

whose fading banners
may well not be seen by the dawn’s early light—other than as limp remnants of plastic curling and scuttering across
the tarmacs in the gusts of an ill wind blowing no good—

Yes—from the assembly line to the poetic line—

Is a very fine line indeed—

And so one can replace the unemployed’s former jobs on the assembly line

With jobs on the poetic line—

Hard at work creating serial production again--

The serial is created to "provoke and sustain interest through time--"

And indeed one might think of this interest as a paying of interest in that instead of one product in full paid for al at once, one is paying for the product stretched out through time, and so pays more for each "section" in the serial, bringing the total cost of the completed series to quite a bi more than if one had simply been able to purchase the whole thing inside one cover. But then--one would have been deprived of the thrill and the touch of each new issue each new episode arriving in the stores or in the mails or on line or video--awaiting with that craving so deliciously satisfied by the insertion into the human system of the capitalist addiction system--and then, as the pleasure is moving through out one in a sensuous erotic glow--suddenly one is cut off-and told to wait until next time--

And there one is, "Waiting for the Man, 26 dollars in your hand/he's never early, always late/the first thing you learn/is you just got to wait."

And so there were and may still be--long lines queuing up on the days that the "Man" is coming --shivering and shaking in the junk sick streets until at the last moment of unendurable waiting, when al are cursing the "Man" who is subjection them to this suffering--at this last moment when al are ready to forever consign this Monster to the dustbins of their crashed hopes and illusions--here he or she is!! And like salivating dogs they al rush to lick her (or his) feet and rub against his (or her) legs and practically shit themselves in delight--with outpourings of love finally getting their greedy paws on the serial's new installment, and putting down al their hard saved coins and bills for this immediate satisfying of the unbearable cravings building up--

How many times does one not find someone writing of having to satisfy their poetry fix with a quick rush to a book store and their tear off their coats, yank up their sleeves, wrap the nearest belt or cord around their scrawny arm and inject three or four chapbooks--and with great and sudden euphoria--plunk down whatever price they are told these precious "rocks" are jacked up to this week--

Who hasn’t seen lurking near the bookstores and poetry dens the sinister figure of the Reviewer loaded with the latest galleys and review copies of releases, wiling to sell them cheaper than the store--or forego the cash as long as the figure is paid for in some kind of trade--for sex perhaps, or say season ticket to the opera or bal game or perhaps simply the inside scoop on some trading tip on good old Wall Street--or a tip on the races--

A different method of composition was advocated by Edgar Allan Poe, who, in his "Principles of Poetry" and "Philospsophy of Composition" formulated one of the msot influential approaches to this day for the production of poems and , to be sure--short stories. This is to create works whcih, given the speeding up oflife and magazine prodcution, can be read in one sitting, because, argues Poe, only in having the entire poem or story all at once, is one experiencing the full power of the Effect. For Poe, --and this is also an argument against the "Inspiration” of Romanticism--a poem is constructed deliberately, almost mathematically as well as musically--by choosing first the effect to be experienced by the reader, and working "backwards," determining the elements and their arrangements with in the structure which is determined by the length of time as measured in numbers of words.

Where the serial exploits the drawing out of time, as a never quite consummated series of piquing of desire--the work as advocated by Poe--delivers an Effect so great that is far more satisfying than the long drawn-out

"sickness" of serial addiction, with its attendant ever demanding layouts of cash--

The short story, the short poem--for Poe these offer a much more interesting field for the investigations of questions of composition--because they provide CONSTRAINTS--which provoke rather than limit discoveries--because "Necessity the Motherfucker of Invention" is a goad to the imagination completely at odds with its dispersal as in a serial--in which the poet or writer has far more TIME to dream up what happens next--

Poe's theories of Composition, traced via Baudelaire and his invention of the short prose poem--and the theory of Correspondances--is at the basis of French Symbolism as it culminates in Mallarme--a good friend of his Tuesdays attendee Felix Feneon, who, combining his anarchist ideas with those of the "creation of the effect"--much as Mallarme noted that Feneon's words were "detonators" as much as the bombs he advocated and may have thrown himself--comes up with the turning of his hack job writing "Faits Divers" for the mass circulation Le Matin into the writing simultaneously of news (Nouvelles) and "short stories" (nouvelles), which become known when published posthumously as his "Nouvelles en trois lignes"--News Stories/Short Stories in three lines. Like Poe, who published his works in newspapers and large circulation journals, Feneon is melding "news of the day" in its documentary "detective story" aspect with its fictional "Balloon Hoax" (published in a newspaper to emulate one that had been taken as truth) and "Purloined Letter," "Ms in a Bottle" aspects.

Since the short story and short poem, the "Faits Divers" hack filler turned into a short story/documented event do not create the dependence the "fort-da" psychology of Captilist Need and Desire, these short, effect driven works subvert in a strange way the more "profitable" serials in that they offer the "most bang for the buck'--as it were, rather than endlessly teasing out the most bucks for an ever differed bang as does the serial.

This "bang" effect is literally "realized, if one is willing to think of this way--in the naming of the NFL Baltimore Ravens for Poe's poem. The Ravens, a hard hitting team led by a Super bowl MVP Ray Lewis who has been charged in the past with connection to a homicide--play with indeed the most bang delivered for the buck--producing some "shocking" effects and like Poe producing a "mystery story to be investigated by detectives."

One of the reasons for Poe's development of his theories was not surprisingly, economic. In Poe's time American writers had no copyright protection, so the one surest way to "get the most out" of a piece of writing was to have it produce its effect al at once, before it was pirated. "The Raven," for example, was pirated thousands of times--it was a "Platinum Selling Hit" for its times--yet Poe was paid only once, and that, for him, a not too miserly fee of a few dollars. was al he ever received.

In the 1890's, Henry James was faced with the example of Poe, a writer who in the past he had been dismissive of. After the fabulous failures of his dramatic pieces on the stage, James found himself in need of money to keep himself and his beloved Lamb House afloat. (His neighbors there were to become Stephen Crane, Joseph Conrad and H. G. Wells.)

James decided at first one the old famialar standby—the writing of a serial—which proved to be "The Turn of the Screw." As he worked to find a way to keep on creating an Effect on which each episode would end so as to keep the suspense hanging and make the reader desire intensely to purchase the nest episodes as they appeared—James began reconsidering Poe's theory of the Effect. From the creation of a ghost story serial, James began to turn to the creation of short stories which, like Poe's are created with the final effect in mind.

(While dictating aloud to his red haired Scottish typist "The Turn of the Screw," James discovered himself building in each episode to the proper cliff hanging effect—only to see not "an effect" produced on the typist, but rather his poker faced question as he paused with fingers in mid air to type the next words —"And then?" This may have contributed a bit towards James' deciding he would prefer to produce the Effect in toto in a short story—just to see what if any Effect it had on the seemingly unimpressionable red haired typist.)

Another interesting example is Roberto Bolano, who turned from writing poetry to producing short stories after his marriage and with a child on the way. Bolano, like many other writers who have used this material of the short story competition for short stories in themselves, discovered that in Spain a great many towns and small cities offered prizes for best short story on such and such a theme, place or person of the immediate region. Competing for prizes helped Bolano develop his skills at producing Effects that would "outshine" those of his opponents.

From the short stories he moved to the novella form, and he became aware his life was rapidly getting shorter and shorter, and that the best way to leave a profitable legacy for his family was to compose novels—and ever bigger ones!—Bolano devoted himself literally feverishly to the production of as man words as possible, in order to earn the most money posthumously for his widow and small son.

The connection between Captialsim and writing is NOT grammar, but WORD COUNT—page length—and, hopefully for the writer and publisher both, NAME RECONITION—by which a much slighter prodcution can be marketed if the author's name, rather than the bulk, merits the raising of the price no matter how short a work may be.

In one of his essays the Italian Futurist (an ex-Symbolist whose Futurism is littered with many of the most hackneyed of Symbolist images and techniques), considered that literature and poetry could be assigned values based on a system of weights and measures, including that of measuring and weighing "quality"—which is not unrelated is it not to" Name Recognition" as a "guarantee" of at least a certain level of quality being available to the reader.

This is another of the paradoxes of the hack work of Feneon's Faits Divers—that in an anonymous poorly paid and very low-regarded form, he would decide to go about producing work of the highest quality, while getting absolutely no credit for it "in name" nor being rewarded for his extra efforts by any increase in the minimal pay.

And so it is only a century later that Feneon's Faits Divers aka Nouvelles en trois lignes appear in English, in a translation of most of the pieces. (The translation unfortunately uses the word "novels' for nouvelles—which disappears the punning of "short news items, news briefs" and short stories. Instead there is a making much by reveiewers of the pieces being "novels" which contradicts the entire meaning of the pun. It also makes impossible the contemporary punning of "news flashes" with today's "flash fictions.")

Flaubert, after all, had already accomplished the turning

Several decades
earlier of a provincial journal's Faits Divers into the novel Madame Bovary:

"Delphine Delamare, 27, wife of a medical officer in Ry, displayed insufficient austerity. Worse, she ran up debts. To avoid paying them, she took poison."

But then, despite the Figure of the Dead Author which strides so stridently about among the assertions of Authors who grow plump with the fees their Name Recognition brings as they Bang the Drum Slowly—perhaps SLOWLY NOT AS A DIRGE BUT AS A VERY VERY VERY LONG DRAWN OUT SERIAL—OR-- EVEN BETTER-- A DECADE ADTER DECADE ONGOING SOAP OPERA –

What writer of today would anonymously take on hack work of the slightest kind FOR THE LOWEST PAY and work on creating of each item a short story beautifully composed via the elements of structure known as syntax, word choice and the obligatory listing of information such as who what when why where-

And a few years later basically stop writing altogether
other than letters to friends and business associates—for it was Feneon's "aspiration to silence"—his works were constructed to attain—

In effect, a writer who combines Bartleby's "I prefer not to" with Rimbaud's leaving of writing for work in a business establishment. (In Feneon's case, a well- known Parisian art gallery turning his no longer being France's best art critic since Baudelaire to use in selling the wares he once wrote of.)

See also:

Feneon's
Faits Divers and Poe's Principles of Poetryhttp://cronacasouversivafeneon.blogspot.com/2008/12/feneons-poe-tic-ghosthumously-anonymous.html

FELIX
FENEON AS CONCEPTUAL POET

http://cronacasouversivafeneon.blogspot.com/2008/12/felix-feneon-as-conceptual-poet.html

> Date: Mon, 29 Dec 2008 11:45:57 -0800
>
> From: [redacted]
>
> Subject: capitalism and the long poem
>
> To: [redacted]
>
> I sat down to write a little piece about this Russian poet, and came
>
> up with a strange take on the long poem--an idea that the Seriality of
>
> it is somehow related to consumer capitalism--
>
> http://tsky-reviews.blogspot.com/
>
> not the pleasantest thought--
>
> and so I was wondering if anyone has any good counter arguments, or
>
> different takes on why so many are so obsessed with this form right
>
> now. & will we fall out of love with it during the recession?
>
> e
>
> ==========

_____ It's the same Hotmail®. If by "same" you mean up to 70% faster.

http://windowslive.com/online/hotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_hotmail_acq_broad1_122008

↑ Index

398. Ruth Lepson
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Wed 31 Dec 2008

---

sick of men saying it's puritan moralizing to criticize prostitution. whether it shd be legal or not is a complicated question. but I make no judgment about prostitutes. if anything, I wish the world could hold them in its arms in a loving way to counteract all they suffer.

On 12/31/08 4:33 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Here's an interesting article, for those who are interested, about a more useful approach to bettering the terrible conditions of brothels: forming a prostitutes' union.
> http://www.sciam.com/article.cfm?id=the-prostitutes-union
>
> I think as long as every mention of prostitution brings up just so much puritan moralizing, pimps and their bosses will continue to operate with impunity, out of the sight of polite society. Meanwhile police continue to fine and jail the women, in order to keep them out of sight of the neighbors whose real estate values they would otherwise

↑ Index

399. Troy Camplin
Re: capitalism and the long poem
Wed 31 Dec 2008

Now, repetition is very ancient, and is traceable to rituals of all sorts. It thus has a deep connection to religion. I'm of the opinion that repetitious arts and rituals helped our ancestors to see the patterns in nature better, making them better at noticing the subtle changes in the rhythms of nature, making them better hunters and gatherers, and be better at not being prey to predators. Repetition also has the effect of altering brain states too, though, so the result is religious experiences, mass hypnosis, etc. When decoupled from its religious and artistic origins, we repetitious buying, etc. that forms the core of many people's critique of capitalism. It seems to me, though, that the same people who make this critique then assume that all repetition is bad (many in the Marxist camp also are anti-religion, so wish to do away with that form of repetition as well), and the baby is thrown out with the bath water -- making people in fact even more prone to consumerist influences. There's pretty good evidence that people need repetition. With the anti-repetition mentality in some in the arts and humanities, these problems are only exacerbated. Removal of repetition from life and art dehumanizes both.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: Eireene Nealand <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, December 31, 2008 3:30:39 PM
Subject: Re: capitalism and the long poem

Yes, I think that this is the part that I was worrying about:

As DBChirot says: Serial production functions not unlike a model of addiction--once hooked, one HAS to keep coming back for MORE MORE MORE--which is at once the "same" and slightly different, just enough so, that the sense of being both satisfied that "the stuff is good" and at the same time give an extra "plug" in that one enjoys it for only so long and then has to be in the throes craving until the next fix can be obtained.

So there's a sort of repetition thing going on (I don't really follow this Freud stuff very well, but someone explained the Lacan/consumerism problem as similar, as Troy alludes to, one in postmodernism's problems of self: both stemming from an inherent emptiness--there is no self there at the center--so we keep trying to fill the lack or hole with one commodity or otherwise sexy thing after another.

It' not always the same thing, but there's a repetitive structure to the act of filling the hole--(okay this may not look like the long poems at all)--and maybe Lacan, being a structuralist (?), would say that that the motion of filling forms some sort of updatable subject?

well, now I am lost again.

I want to get to this part where Catherine Daly is where there's a possibility of woven funcitons but I'm not sure how to get from one to the other.

What's the source of all of that talk about the usable past? and available nerve endings and tissues, by the way. I feel like I must have somehow missed some whole big discussion here.

e

On 12/30/08, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
> I think we've become obsessed with it precisely because it's fallen out of favor. Somebody, or a few people, wondered where it went, and began writing about it. It seems to me that the long poem became impossible with the abandonment of narrative by poets. How long can one keep up a feeling or a mood or an "experiment"? Frederick Fierstein writes quite long poems, but his poems also have narratives holding them together. Frederick Turner has written two epic poems.

>
> Troy Camplin
>
>
>
> _____
> From: Eireene Nealand <[redacted]>
>
> To: [redacted]
>
> Sent: Monday, December 29, 2008 1:45:57 PM
>
> Subject: capitalism and the long poem
>
>
> I sat down to write a little piece about this Russian poet, and came > up with a strange take on the long poem--an idea that the seriality of > it is somehow related to consumer capitalism--
>
> http://tsky-reviews.blogspot.com/
>
> not the pleasantest thought--
>
> and so I was wondering if anyone has any good counter arguments, or > different takes on why so many are so obsessed with this form right > now. & will we fall out of love with it during the recession?
>
> e
>
>
>
>

↑ Index

400. Maria Damon
Re: Happy NY
Wed 31 Dec 2008

Dear All:
Please be very good to yourselves and your friends and loved ones this year.
May you all be happy, free from fear, and at peace.
Lots of love and happy new year.
Let's see what Obama and other changes can do.
xo, md

↑ Index

401. Halvard Johnson
Sonnet for the New Year
Wed 31 Dec 2008

Sonnet for the New Year

Pleistocene campfires flickering in the distance, deeply rooted slogans chat it up with money barons. Medical malpractice suits us just fine, thank you very much.
For instance, well-delivered apologies salve all wounds.

Partial reconciliations break step when crossing a bridge, miraculous transformations no longer expected or offered. Higher disease rates unrelated to education or health costs speak volumes to our well-tuned ears. Biology urges us to seek out music in the company of other people. Yahweh and other loud cellphone talkers gather to break bread to- gether, airwaves atremble with salutations, with greetings. On everyone’s lips, prospects for reelection, for theatrical productions that do not close in a month or less. And soon, all spats aside, someone texts us a toast, and all follow suit.

Hal

```
    !!!!!!!!!!
   /          \
  /—©…©—\
\      ~~      /
   \   __    /
```

Halvard Johnson
==========
[redacted]

http://home.earthlink.net/~halvard/index.html
http://entropyandme.blogspot.com
http://imageswithoutwords.blogspot.com
http://www.hamiltonstone.org
http://home.earthlink.net/~halvard/vidalocabooks.html

↑ Index

402. Poetry Project

New Year's Day and beyond at The Poetry Project

Wed 31 Dec 2008

We hope to see you here tomorrow! We¹ve been focused on planning this for so long that it feels like the only event. In fact, it is not‹ scroll down for info on what¹s happening here next week.

January 1, 2 PM
The 35th Annual New Year¹s Day Marathon Reading
ADMISSION: $17 general, $13 students & seniors, $10 members.

Poets and performers include Bruce Andrews & Sally Silvers, Arthur¹s Landing (Ernie Brooks, Steven Hall, & Peter Zummo), Vyt Bakaitis, Jim Behrle, Martine Bellen, Anselm Berrigan, Edmund Berrigan, Barbara Blatner, Justin Bond, Donna Brook, Franklin Bruno, Tisa Bryant, Peter Bushyeager, Reuben Butchart (w/ John Carroll), Steve Cannon, Yoshiko Chuma, Todd Colby, CAConrad, Corina Copp, Brenda Coultas, Geoffrey Cruickshank-Hagenbuckle, Mónica de la Torre, Katie Degentesh, Barry Denny, Maggie Dubris, Douglas Dunn, Marcella Durand, Steve Earle, Will Edmiston, Marty Ehrlich, Joe Eliot, Laura Elrick, Avram Fefer, Bonny Finberg, Jess Fiorini, Corrine Fitzpatrick, Foamola, Tonya Foster, David Freeman, Ed Friedman, Joanna Fuhrman, Cliff Fyman, Drew Gardner, John Giorno, John Godfrey, Abraham Gomez-Delgado, Sylvia Gorelick, Stephanie Gray, Ted Greenwald, John S. Hall, Diana Hamilton, David Henderson, Bob Hershon, Mitch Highfill, Bob Holman, Erica Hunt, Brenda Iijima, Lisa Jarnot, Hettie Jones, Patricia Spears Jones, Pierre Joris, Erica Kaufman, Lenny Kaye, Evan Kennedy, Aaron Kiely, Paul Killebrew, David Kirschenbaum, Bill Kushner, Paul La Farge, Susan Landers, Denize Lauture, Joseph Legaspi, Joel Lewis, Rachel Levitsky, Brendan Lorber, Filip Marinovic, Susan Maurer, Gillian McCain, Tracy McTague, Taylor Mead, Jonas Mekas, Maria Mirabal, Jennifer Monson, Tracie Morris, Gina Myers, Eileen Myles, Marc Nasdor, Murat Nemet-Nejat, Jim Neu, Richard O¹Russa, Akilah Oliver, Geoffrey Olsen, Dael Orlandersmith, Yuko Otomo, Ron Padgett, Julie Patton, Yvette Perez, Nicole Peyrafitte, Wanda Phipps, Kristin Prevallet, Arlo Quint, Chris Rael, Lee Ranaldo, Citizen Reno, Frances Richard, Renato Rosaldo, Bob Rosenthal, Douglas Rothschild, Thaddeus Rutkowski, Tom Savage, Harris

Schiff, David Shapiro, Elliott Sharp, Frank Sherlock, Nathaniel Siegel, Samita Sinha, Hal Sirowitz, Patti Smith, Christopher Stackhouse, Stacy Szymaszek, Anne Tardos, Cecil Taylor, Steven Taylor (w/ Debra Salvo), Susie Timmons, Rodrigo Toscano, David Vogen, Anne Waldman, Nicole Wallace, Jo Ann Wasserman, Phyllis Wat, Karen Weiser, Dustin Williamson, Max Winter, Don Yorty, Emily XYZ (w/ Myers Bartlett) and more.

Monday, January 5, 8 PM
ON Launch

ON features twenty-one essays by poets on poets of their approximate generation. Come find out what's going on and celebrate this new publication featuring exchanges on contemporary poetry and poetics. Contributors include Taylor Brady, CAConrad, Michael Cross, Thom Donovan, Jen Hofer, Sawako Nakayasu, Brenda Iijima, Alan Gilbert, Andrew Levy, Tim Peterson, Alli Warren, Suzanne Stein and more. Confirmed readers include CAConrad, Thom Donovan, Brenda Iijima, Tim Peterson, Andrew Levy, Kyle Schlesinger and more t.b.a.

Wednesday, January 7, 8 PM
Mitch Highfill & Katy Lederer

Mitch Highfill is the author of 7 books of poetry, including Moth Light (Abraham Lincoln) and REBIS (Open Mouth). His work has appeared in OCHO & Critiphoria. He will be accompanied by Natalia Paruz on musical saw. Katy Lederer is the author of the poetry collections, Winter Sex (Verse Press, 2002) and The Heaven-Sent Leaf (BOA Editions, 2008) as well as the memoir Poker Face: A Girlhood Among Gamblers (Crown, 2003), which Publishers Weekly included on its list of the Best Nonfiction Books of 2003 and Esquire Magazine named one of its eight Best Books of the Year 2003. Educated at the University of California at Berkeley and the Iowa Writers' Workshop, where she was an Iowa Arts Fellow, Katy serves as a Poetry Editor of Fence Magazine. For many years, she edited her own journal, Explosive, in a limited edition of 300 with hand-printed covers by the artist David Larsen.

Become a Poetry Project Member! http://poetryproject.com/membership.php

Calendar: http://www.poetryproject.com/calendar.php

The Poetry Project is located at St. Mark's Church-in-the-Bowery
131 East 10th Street at Second Avenue
New York City 10003
Trains: 6, F, N, R, and L.

www.poetryproject.com

Admission is $8, $7 for students/seniors and $5 for members (though now those who take out a membership at $95 or higher will get in FREE to all regular readings).

We are wheelchair accessible with assistance and advance notice. For more info call [redacted].

If you¹d like to be unsubscribed from this mailing list, please drop a line at [redacted].

↑ Index

403. Alan Sondheim
HAPPY NEW YEAR ANNUAL HAPPY NEW YEAR VIDEO!
Wed 31 Dec 2008

HAPPY NEW YEAR ANNUAL HAPPY NEW YEAR VIDEO FROM AZURE AND ALAN AND JULU TWINE AND ALAN DOJOJI AND OUR CAT OSSI WHO SHOULD COME FIRST AND HOPE EVERYTHING IS BETTER!
http://www.alansondheim.org/happynewyear.mp4

↑ Index

404. Stephen Vincent
MLA: Re: capitalism and the long poem
Wed 31 Dec 2008

What a 'flight' here, David. Thank you.
Just so that the shade of Capitalism does not critically destroy the genuine possibilites of writing and reading, I thought I will mention two recent events that gave me great listening/lit pleasure:
The MLA just finished dropping its presence into San Francisco. I am sure - aside from all the criticisms of x, y and z about such affairs - that colleagues in academia no doubt enjoyed parts of it, socializing et al. So more power to comradeship. But more than that, were two corrolary events made possible by the MLA:

Pleasure for me as a local were two events:
The Books Inc. reading celebration of the new Poems for the Millennium, volume 3: The University of California Book of Romantic and Postromantic Poetry, edited by Jerome Rothenberg and Jeffrey C. Robinson. Along with two happy editors, and several local poets (Berkson, McClure, Palmer, Scalapino), we were treated to a great evening of Rousseau, Coleridge, Wordsworth(s), Keats, Thoreau, Anonymous and on. Delicious stuff. Leslie Scalapino's reading of Coleridge's "Kubla Khan" was absolutely astonishing, an opiate in itself. As Jerry pointed out at one point, in joy, "After 70 years I am reminded of what got me writing poetry in the first place." Indeed it was great to see/hear all those retired Romantic apples lifted back off the ground and given back in 're-edible' form!

Last night, there was the Small Press Traffic sponsored marathon reading at the Hotel Utah with a focus on local poets - 30 of us at 2 mintues each with an audience of MLA poet visitors and locals. There in the non-corporate funk of an old building - its small stage much more known for local roots, punk, & world music - it was one of those wonderful ocassions where all levels of tribe - the young up to the elders 'slung it' into the air, indeed airing out the angsts and pleasures (formal and anti-formal, sexual and platonic, political), indeed an airing out of the 'geist' before plunging into the new era (aira) of Obama and Company. All followed by more drink, and much social, meeting new people from in town and out of town, the pleasures of exhanges with strangers.

Whoever 'we' are, we have the MLA to thank for providing catylist to such events - these colorful carnivals outside the Church/Castle walls - we who create to speak and write for 'the present' which, also, ultimately provide provisions (poems et al) to inform the study of the past.

Yes, it's a lousy economic model, but 'toot, toot', there are still such events as these.

Stephen Vincent
http://stephenvincent.net/blog/

> Dear Eireene--
>
>
>
> Thank you so much for this excellent piece and the question you pose.
>
>
>
> Seriality in writing as a deliberate form is directly an effect of > Captialsim--in that serials such as the Feuilletons of Eugene Sue and the > serial manner of publishing Dickens' novels, became one of the few ways > that an > author could make money directly from writing--and also it was used as a > way to > get people to keep buying the newspaper or journal in which the serial > appeared.
>

>
>
> Seriality of this kind is constructed round the desire to "want to know > what happens next" and is accompanied by the acceptance by the reader
that > one "will pay any price to find out how the cliff hanger was > resolved--and what happens next until the next cliff hanger is reached—"
>
>
>
> An author often could make more money from selling a serial than having a > book > appear "all at once," due to the lack of copyright for American > writers who were pirated outrageously by British publishes, and the lack
of
> copy right in many other countries also.
>
>
>
> A writer like Dostoyevsky who had gambling debts would crank out serials
to > pay > off creditors, a vast improvement actually on the strategies open to > Balzac, who often wrote six books at a time, for several different > publishers, not having yet the serial at his disposal.
>
>
>
> (Hence the often strange effect in many of Balzac's works, > that a book begun at one point in time, interrupted to complete two others
> more > pressing, then returned to—the writer would suddenly decide that a > different > character should step into the spotlight from its previous position vaguely
> in > the background at the edge of the wings and faded old curtains--, and in > stepping forward, suddenly alter almost entirely the direction of the > narrative

> and the meaning of the moral Balzac was presenting as another in his
> "philosophies des moeux" in the structure of the Comedie Humaine
>
>
>
> A structure whose descriptions and analyses Karl Marx found > to be the greatest and most perceptive study ever made of Capitalism in all > its > function and effects---
>
>
>
> Seriality was continued in the early "Motion Pictures" with the > famous feuilletons of Louis Feuillade so beloved of the > Surrealist--"Judex" "Les Vampyrs" and etc--and in the US
> the endless series of "Adventures of Pauline' and her constellations of > spin offs--tied to the rail road tracks as the train approaches--and > escaping > miraculously--only to have another misadventure seize hold of her before
> the > reel runs out--and the lettering on the black screen says--"Wait Until > Next Week to Find Out What---"
>
>
>
> Serial production functions not unlike a model of addiction--once hooked, > one
> HAS to keep coming back for MORE MORE MORE--which is at once the
> "same" and slightly different, just enough so, that the sense of > being both satisfied that "the stuff is good" and at the same time
> give an extra "plug" in that one enjoys it for only so long and then > has to be in the throes craving until the next fix can be obtained.
>
>

>
> Soap operas came about for the same reason--to keep the customer coming > back in > order to have the familiar fix and also to experience the titillation of
> the > seductive "wait for next time and I'll be there--just waiting for > YOU--"
>
>
>
> "Soap" opera referring to be sure to the selling of laundry soaps > that paid for the serial production of these "Opere"--so that both > the "serial" and the product become inseparably associated and one
> finds oneself suddenly craving--soap!!
>
>
>
> Actually Language Poetry's assertions about grammar being an expression of, > structured by, Captialsim, is a fallacy, in terms of linguistics, and is > instead > a kind of "soap" that sponsors the reader's having a new "mode
> of production" i.e. "a new line"--to develop an addiction > to--'what will be the next book from language writers?--what will be the > next > exciting daring thing they do in their hair raising battle with > capitalism"--in other words, a fallacious
> "anti-capitalist" production is marketed as just that--hey!! Buy us!!
> We are anti-capitalism's structuring of grammar!! We are liberating > you!!--From > what? –
>
>
>
> From buying one form

> of poetry one is freed to buy another. Nothing has changed but the > "exterior appearance" of the product. Inside it is the same old > thing--production, product, authors, canons, sub divisions of categories
of > styles, rhetorical devices and "morphemic transgressions" replete with > torque and the tensile strengths of the > requisite number of "allowances for the > reader's constructions of their own meanings"-- and all of these crammed > within the new models so > that one might choose still somehow between a convertible or a coupe, or > perhaps > simply a two door or a four door---
>
>
>
> And what colors would you like these to come in?--With or with out ash
> trays,
> CD player--radio?--No smoking?—OK—we'll make a note of that—no > lighter—either--
>
>
>
> Oh!! Did someone mention Hybrids--??!! How marvelous!!--What a pun, mon > vieux—do you mean automobiles or genres--?—or perhaps some fantastical life > form—out of Lewis Carroll or Borges—
>
>
>
> A used car dealer, a used poem dealer . . . .or perhaps in > these days of tightened belts—the two combined and displaying their wares > on > the same much contracted "lot"
>
> whose fading banners
> may well not be seen by the dawn's early light—other than as limp remnants

> of
> plastic curling and scuttering across > the tarmacs in the gusts of an ill wind blowing no good—
>
>
>
> Yes—from the assembly line to the poetic line—
>
> Is a very fine line indeed—
>
> And so one can replace the unemployed's former jobs on the assembly line
>
> With jobs on the poetic line—
>
> Hard at work creating serial production again--
>
>
>
> The serial is created to "provoke and sustain interest through > time--"
>
>
>
> And indeed one might think of this interest as a paying of interest in that > instead of one product in full paid for al at once, one is paying for the > product stretched out through time, and so pays more for each > "section" in the serial, bringing the total cost of the completed > series to quite a bi more than if one had simply been able to purchase the > whole thing inside one cover. But then--one would have been deprived of > the thrill and the touch of each new issue each new episode arriving in
the > stores or in the mails or on line or video--awaiting with that craving so > deliciously satisfied by the insertion into the human system of the > capitalist > addiction system--and then, as the pleasure is moving through out one in a > sensuous erotic glow--suddenly one is cut off-and told to wait until next > time--

>
>
>
> And there one is, "Waiting for the Man, 26 dollars in your hand/he's never > early, always late/the first thing you learn/is you just got to wait."
>
>
>
> And so there were and may still be--long lines queuing up on the days that
> the
> "Man" is coming --shivering and shaking in the junk sick streets > until at the last moment of unendurable waiting, when al are cursing the > "Man" who is subjection them to this suffering--at this last moment
> when al are ready to forever consign this Monster to the dustbins of their > crashed hopes and illusions--here he or she is!! And like salivating dogs > they > al rush to lick her (or his) feet and > rub against his (or her) legs and practically shit themselves
 in > delight--with > outpourings of love finally getting their greedy paws on the serial's new > installment, and putting down al their hard saved coins and bills for this > immediate satisfying of the unbearable cravings building up--
>
>
>
> How many times does one not find someone writing of having to satisfy their > poetry fix with a quick rush to a book store and their tear off their > coats, > yank up their sleeves, wrap the nearest belt or cord around their scrawny > arm > and inject three or four chapbooks--and with great and sudden > euphoria--plunk > down whatever price they are told these precious "rocks" are jacked > up to this week--
>

>
>
> Who hasn't seen lurking near the bookstores and poetry dens the sinister > figure > of the Reviewer loaded with the latest galleys and review copies of
>
 releases, > wiling to sell them cheaper than the store--or forego the cash as long as
> the > figure is paid for in some kind of trade--for sex perhaps, or say season > ticket > to the opera or bal game or perhaps simply the inside scoop on some trading > tip
> on good old Wall Street--or a tip on the races--
>
>
>
> A different method of composition was advocated by Edgar Allan Poe, who,
in > his > "Principles of Poetry" and "Philospsophy of Composition" > formulated one of the msot influential approaches to this day for the > production
> of poems and , to be sure--short stories. This is to create works whcih, > given the speeding up oflife and magazine prodcution, can be read in one > sitting, because, argues Poe, only in having the entire poem or story all
> at > once, is one experiencing the full power of the Effect.
 For Poe, --and > this is also an argument against the "Inspiration" of Romanticism--a poem > is constructed deliberately, almost mathematically as well as musically--by > choosing first the effect to be experienced by the reader, and working
> "backwards," determining the elements and their arrangements with in > the structure which is determined by the length of time as measured in > numbers > of words.

>
>
>
> Where the serial exploits the drawing out of time, as a never quite > consummated > series of piquing of desire--the work as advocated by Poe--delivers an > Effect
> so great that is far more satisfying than the long drawn-out
> "sickness" of serial addiction, with its attendant ever demanding > layouts of cash--
>
>
>
> The short story, the short poem--for Poe these offer a much more interesting > field for the investigations of questions of composition--because they > provide > CONSTRAINTS--which provoke rather than limit discoveries--because
>
> "Necessity the Motherfucker of Invention" is a goad to the > imagination completely at odds with its dispersal as in a serial--in which
> the > poet or writer has far more TIME to dream up what happens next--
>
>
>
> Poe's theories of Composition, traced via Baudelaire and his invention
of
> the > short prose poem--and the theory of Correspondances--is at the basis of > French
> Symbolism as it culminates in Mallarme--a good friend of his Tuesdays > attendee
> Felix Feneon, who, combining his anarchist ideas with those of the > "creation of the effect"--much as Mallarme noted that Feneon's words > were "detonators" as much as the bombs he advocated and may have
>
 thrown himself--comes up with the turning of his hack job writing
"Faits > Divers" for the mass circulation Le Matin into the writing simultaneously

> of news (Nouvelles) and "short stories" (nouvelles), which > become known when published posthumously as his "Nouvelles en trois > lignes"--News Stories/Short Stories in three lines. Like Poe, who > published his works in newspapers and large circulation journals, Feneon
is > melding "news of the day" in its documentary "detective story" > aspect with its fictional "Balloon Hoax" (published in a newspaper to > emulate one that had been taken as truth) and "Purloined Letter,"
> "Ms in a Bottle" aspects.
>
>
>
> Since the short story and short poem, the "Faits Divers" hack filler > turned into a short story/documented event do not create the dependence
the
> "fort-da" psychology of Captilist Need and Desire, these short, > effect driven works subvert in a strange way the more "profitable" > serials in that they offer the "most bang for the buck'--as it were, > rather than endlessly teasing out the most bucks for an ever differed bang
> as > does the serial.
>
>
>
> This "bang" effect is literally "realized, if one is willing to > think of this way--in the naming of the NFL Baltimore Ravens for Poe's > poem.
> The Ravens, a hard hitting team led by a Super bowl MVP Ray Lewis who has > been > charged in the past with connection to a homicide--play with indeed the > most > bang delivered for the buck--producing some "shocking" effects
and

> like Poe producing a "mystery story to be investigated by > detectives."
>
>
>
> One of the reasons for Poe's development of his theories was not
>
 surprisingly,
> economic. In Poe's time American writers had no copyright protection,
so > the one surest way to "get the most out" of a piece of writing was to > have it produce its effect al at once, before it was pirated. "The > Raven," for example, was pirated thousands of times--it was a > "Platinum Selling Hit" for its times--yet Poe was paid only once, and > that, for him, a not too miserly fee of a few dollars. was al he ever > received.
>
>
>
> In the 1890's, Henry James was faced with the example of > Poe, a writer who in the past he had been dismissive of. After the > fabulous failures of his dramatic pieces > on the stage, James found himself in need of money to keep himself and his > beloved Lamb House afloat. (His neighbors there were to become Stephen > Crane,
> Joseph Conrad and H. G. Wells.)
>
>
>
>
 James decided at first one the old famialar standby—the > writing of a serial—which proved to be "The Turn of the Screw." As he > worked to > find a way to keep on creating an Effect on which each episode would end so
> as > to keep the suspense hanging and make the reader desire intensely to > purchase > the nest episodes as they appeared—James began reconsidering Poe's theory

> of > the Effect. From the creation of a ghost > story serial, James began to turn to the creation of short stories which, > like Poe's > are created with the final effect in mind.
>
>
> (While dictating aloud to his red haired Scottish typist
> "The Turn of the Screw," James discovered himself building in each episode
> to > the proper cliff hanging effect—only to see not "an effect" produced on the > typist, but rather his poker faced question as he paused with fingers in > mid > air to type the next words—"And then?" This may have contributed a bit > towards > James' deciding he would prefer to produce the Effect in toto in a short > story—just to see what if any Effect it had on the seemingly > unimpressionable > red haired typist.)
>
>
>
> Another interesting example is Roberto Bolano, who turned > from writing poetry to producing short stories after his marriage and with > a child
> on the way. Bolano, like many other > writers who have used this material of the short story competition for > short > stories in themselves, discovered that in Spain a great many towns and > small > cities offered prizes for best short story on such and such a theme, place
> or > person of the immediate region.
> Competing for prizes helped Bolano develop his skills at producing > Effects that would "outshine" those of his opponents.

>
>
>
> From the short stories he moved to the novella form, and he > became aware his life was rapidly getting shorter and shorter, and that
the > best way to leave a profitable legacy for his family was to compose > novels—and > ever bigger ones!—Bolano devoted himself literally feverishly to the > production > of as man words as possible, in order to earn the most money posthumously > for > his widow and small son.
>
>
>
> The connection between Captialsim and writing is NOT > grammar, but WORD COUNT—page length—and, hopefully for the writer and > publisher
> both, NAME RECONITION—by which a much slighter prodcution can be marketed
> if > the author's name, rather than the bulk, merits the raising of the price no > matter how short a work may be.
>
>
>
> In one of his essays the Italian Futurist (an ex-Symbolist > whose Futurism is littered with many of the most hackneyed of Symbolist > images > and techniques), considered that literature and poetry could be assigned > values > based on a system of weights and measures, including that of measuring and > weighing "quality"—which is not unrelated is it not to" Name Recognition" > as a > "guarantee" of at least a certain level of quality being available to the > reader.
>

>
>
> This is another of the paradoxes of the hack work of > Feneon's Faits Divers—that in an anonymous poorly paid and very > low-regarded > form, he would decide to go about producing work of the highest quality, > while > getting absolutely no credit for it "in name" nor being rewarded for his
>
 extra > efforts by any increase in the minimal pay.
>
>
>
> And so it is only a century later that Feneon's Faits Divers > aka Nouvelles en trois lignes appear in English, in a translation of most
> of
> the pieces. (The translation unfortunately > uses the word "novels' for nouvelles—which disappears the punning of "short > news items, news briefs" and short stories. Instead there is a making much
> by > reveiewers of the pieces being "novels" which contradicts the entire > meaning of > the pun. It also makes impossible the contemporary punning of "news > flashes" > with today's "flash fictions.")
>
>
>
> Flaubert, after all, had already accomplished the turning
>
> Several decades
> earlier of a provincial journal's Faits Divers into the novel Madame > Bovary:
>
>
>
>

"Delphine Delamare, 27, wife of a medical officer in Ry, displayed > insufficient > austerity. Worse, she ran up debts. To avoid paying them, she took poison."
>
>
>
> But then, despite the Figure of the Dead Author which > strides so stridently about among the assertions of Authors who grow plump > with > the fees their Name Recognition brings as they Bang the Drum Slowly—perhaps
> SLOWLY NOT AS A DIRGE BUT AS A VERY VERY VERY LONG DRAWN OUT SERIAL—OR--
> EVEN BETTER--
> A DECADE ADTER DECADE ONGOING SOAP OPERA –
>
>
>
> What writer of today would anonymously take on hack work of > the slightest kind FOR THE LOWEST PAY and work on creating of each item
a > short > story beautifully composed via the elements of structure known as syntax, > word > choice and the obligatory listing of information such as who what when why > where-
>
>
>
> And a few years later basically stop writing altogether > other than letters to friends and business associates—for it was Feneon's
> "aspiration to silence"—his works were constructed to attain—
>
>
>
> In effect, a writer who combines Bartleby's "I prefer not > to" with Rimbaud's leaving of writing for work in a business establishment.

> (In > Feneon's case, a well- known Parisian art gallery turning his no longer > being France's > best art critic since Baudelaire to use in selling the wares he once wrote
> of.)
>
>
>
> See also:
>
> Feneon's
> Faits Divers and Poe's Principles of Poetryhttp://
>
cronacasouversivafeneon.blogspot.com/2008/12/feneons-poe-tic-ghosthumouslyanonymous.html
>
>
>
> FELIX
> FENEON AS CONCEPTUAL POET
>
>
>
http://cronacasouversivafeneon.blogspot.com/2008/12/felix-feneon-as-conceptual-poet.html
>
>
>
>
>
> > Date: Mon, 29 Dec 2008 11:45:57 -0800
>
> > From: [redacted]
>
> > Subject: capitalism and the long poem
>
> > To: [redacted]
>
> >
>

> > I sat down to write a little piece about this Russian poet, and came
>
> > up with a strange take on the long poem--an idea that the Seriality
of
>
> > it is somehow related to consumer capitalism--
>
> >
>
> > http://tsky-reviews.blogspot.com/
>
> >
>
> > not the pleasantest thought--
>
> >
>
> > and so I was wondering if anyone has any good counter arguments, or
>
> > different takes on why so many are so obsessed with this form right
>
> > now. & will we fall out of love with it during the recession?
>
> >
>
> > e
>
> >
>
> > ==========
>
>
>
> _____
> It's the same Hotmail(R). If by "same" you mean up to 70% faster.
>
>
http://windowslive.com/online/hotmail?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_hotmail_acq_broad1_122008

guidelines
>

==========
The Poetics List is

↑ Index

405. David-Baptiste Chirot
Re: capitalism and the long poem/happy new years!!!!!
Wed 31 Dec 2008

Dear Eireene—

I will write re the thing you name physically by which one may encounter

Series very simple

Is the sudden arrival of vast flows of series of images memories sound sayings persons that one has not thought of in so long

yet they are triggered not by a Madeleine outside oneself, but by the very movement of the muscles bones sinews and nerves as one bends say just a tiny bit to pick up some thing a child or oneself had dropped--

and as one is bending --out of nowhere come lowing these memories, dreams--imaginings in aeries and tumults and amoks--

rather than worrying about al these structuralisms, what one does is work with what is there in the immediate site sight cite --the materials which aw within the reach of ones body or a short walk or going alone walking--are the things one sees close buy--that cal to one and one responds or not—a

To be a debroullard in the debris yard--

To begin with next to nothing is the best form of learning al manner of incredible and unexpected things which begin to link for a person in their own ways, associations and series --

and not from those pre-arranged marriages of structures imposed on one--

Necessity is the Motherfucker of Invention--

What more kinds of "restraints" and
"constraints" does one need to impose on oneself on top of those already existing in things as they are or are not!

given how little one may have immediately there--the mind though gets going, quick!--at finding ways to o something interesting and maybe even fun--with just these few things--

Universe opens--

to begin with next to nothing --then there is so much room in which one sees how infinite are something all around one

and yet how little one may need than just a certain broken car emblem with the interesting letterings

or a leaf fragments sealed in an embrace with a rock, clinging so tightly as to” wrap its being around" rock worn smooth by rains--

Isn’t it interesting that one says one doesn’t have a self or it is such and such a critiqued version of it that one has isn’t one taking the word of somebody else about this?? And aren’t'

t they manifesting themselves very much as selves in doing so with such authority-- telling one in no uncertain terms that the self is passé, gone he way of the old made at home by oneself gingham dress--or the hand pump or water--

you see they are prescribing for you because of some doctorate in self ology--which gives their own self an incredible importance in telling others how they have none or at best a very teetering and Tower of Pisa leaning and decentered one wobbling about like a spinning top abt to keel over--

Before one takes these wags to seriously one has to ask oneself--how do they know so much about it--what are their examples and reasons--and how many of them are just hot air--or current trends--which in a few days or minutes or years will be hopelessly out of date and one wouldn't be caught dead leaving he house attired in them!

It is far more interesting to listen to and watch people in all their glories going through the actual situations in life--because here one fids the warp and woof of words and life wound around one another continually-and in this twisting and turn as it were--of the nerve around the sinews and muscle cables of that are operating the bones--

Cells in revolt or clam--the skin bearing signs of weathering and wear--

al of this is going on around one continually--and if one listens and looks and finds associations and links and repetitions by comepltely different persons of the same old story--million variation son a gesture or way of smelling a flower

What is right there before one is plenty enough to get goin with--

And without the need for a plan or an authoritative Michelin guide to the Soul or Self or Non self or Non I and al the rest of the things which they try to evade confessing that they actually do have very much a sense of self

And that self knows more about the non self than you do--

because they are not empty at all but very full of themselves!

No-there is something in one's being that is not empty--

if one just looks around one how much there is going on outside one that one finds oneself "getting lost in"--simply listening or looking and letting wander-following its own trains of associations--

i have been clinically dead four times--in a short period of years--and long before that near death experience--

One has periods in which one doesn’t know if one may not be leading actually a ghost humous existence-

that is i may be ghost writing my own posthumous works--

And have had moments when suddenly feeling that i was actually dead and just dreaming of things that had not been finished in life--not great important things like bike ride or going to meet my daughter and then one finds those are the things which are the great ones--

The heavy weight of emptiness which one is burdened with-- well who the hell is telling one this?

Perhaps they have spent far too much time regarding only those selves without looking around one listening to al that is here-- is a self empty--yes that is what one is told when one has repetitive patterns of stuffing oneself in some say--compulsively repeating actions whcih are not good for oneself yet somehow thinking that they will miraculously today be good for oneself-

And only to find that one has just done another greet injury to the being one lives with as oneself or someone--

In charge at least of keeping care of the body one is finding oneself walking about in--

Emptiness comes fro wanting to stuff things--to stuff time s to stuff materially a space or materially oneself--

Because one is afraid to look around and find that one may be al alone-

Not loved by anyone or cared about--

and what then?-

Then to simply begin backwards and think--loneliness! Now that is something i could take an interest in and find out how to live with it--set up a kind of housekeeping with it as it were

or a kind of give and take friendship in which one discover that both of you are laughing t he fact that you ahve between you only one shadow--

(This is from a story which will be in the next issue of
sous rature—

El colonel smiles. Checking his watch, he turns and approaches a chair on one side of the table set in the center of the large light filled room. This chair and the one on the table's other side are high backed, with strong arms of a wood hard as iron and painted in a still shiny black lacquer. The upholstered seats and backs are not uncomfortable and of a worn red fading into rose. With studied and precise, angular movements, El Colonel begins to arrange himself in the correct position in which to be found by his "immanent and eminent visitor."

El Colonel permits himself a barely audible and very brief laugh as "he takes possession of himself the better to assiduously arrange the head, the torso, the limbs, the folded hands, as though he were in the process of preparing a stuffed and mounted specimen of a representative example of a Colonel, whose taxidermist he himself was."

You see that is one way of handling the emptiness—

(He also-well you will see very soon!!)—

There is a great story of Charlie Parker—who at one point had just vanished—no on knew where he was, if he was alive if he had any means
of getting along—

And so one day someone from the club world sees the great Charlie Parker

Just humming long going through a trash bin loooking for something-

The man approaches Charlie very condescendingly yet concerned al the same-- and says how can he live like this such a genius and ho w sick the society's that is depriving him from making a living

--

Charlie turned and looked at this man and aid—what to you mean how I live like this—

And gesturing gall about him—al the dumpsters filled with food scraps, places to curl up from a pounding rain

And he said to the man

How can one not be living when there's so much stuff!!

You see—the Motherfucker of necessity and its Inventions!—

(Charlie Parker –like Billie Holiday with hers----lost his license to play evening Birdland the club named for him, because he was a narcotic addict and alcoholic)

To tell the truth, while writing this previous letter that you cite--and then pausing for a bit after—I was thinking –oh no!! Have I been on the level with thinking on series—no—not serial production, but series-so I was thinking why they are different?

And the first thing that came to mind was the letter-writing rookie "busher"

of Ring Lardner's You Know Me, Al—

Who writes the World Series as the World Serious

Which of course it is for him in terms of glory and money--

So right away one realizes that Seriality may be left to serial killers

while workers in Series enjoy being semi-literates whose mis-writings carry within them the shift of a sound, of a few letters and Voila!—an open entry back and forth between two realms suddenly joined by a swinging door--

a not-quite pun, yet close enough to function as a hinge—

In my case I know a series has no plan to it—out of the blue a phrase

a form

suddenly triggers a vast flowing "series" of associations—

So I just begin from there—

With the form or phrase that triggered this—

I thought back to al the different factories and the tulip bulb warehouse in Holland where I have worked—and the oncoming rush of those bits and pieces or huge boxes of things that one had to adjust to and perform with them dances of Fordian Motion—to the Tune of Taylor Time—

Or else!!

(Except in Holland some of us were “schwarzarbeiter” black workers—illegal alien workers—seasonal-- and so were tolerated to some extent---the good part was that when one ran amok the bosses and owners couldn’t do anything about it because THEY were illegally employing us! -- Alien workers!--

i have done quite a few "series" both in writing and in visual and sound works--

actually that is a way of working i enjoy a lot and i don’t necessarily do a series

like Pretty Maids

"all in a row"

OR--

"these pieces of the last two months are a series expressing the artist’s confrontation with the abyss, an event of which, he says, that though he looked at it—

Completely unlike what Nietzsche said

IT DID NOT LOOK BACK AT HIM--

i might take up a series months or years or minutes after having abandoned it when something truly stunning Found, Found me and I Found it--

when i work in a series, the series doesn’t come out of a preplanned structure in which the elements are all to function in a serial manner --

(if you've worked in factories you know what that is like!)—

No, a series is quite another “series of events” found long the way, associative, uncanny, fraught with sudden about faces and explosive interruptions—

So, being unknown until one arrives or encounters each thing “ahead of one” that calls out to one—

And it sure doesn’t have any of the aggressive quality of those objects coming right at one on the relentless merciless brutal assembly line!

Perhaps thinking in terms of series rather serials may be quite helpful—

William Burroughs wrote some thing very true which is ignored by people who glamorize it—of being a junky, Burroughs says—

“It’s not about kicks. It’s a way of life.”

And, again voicing the experience of untold numbers of recovering junkies the world over—the Matt Dillon character who tells his wife, Kelly Lynch, that she can have all the dope he didn’t give to Bill Burroughs, old Junkie Priest down the hall—

Because, the tells her—“for the addict every day is the same, one knows already how much needs to be measured out to keep the sickness
away that day—

And al the frantic desperate adventures along the way to keeping a stash going—

Every day the same old story—

But now that he is straight, Matt Dillon says, he is finding out that he wakes up every day and knows untold numbers of things he hasn’t thought of or known ahead of time, are going to happen to him this day--

Isn’t a Serial Killer basically like a dope fiend in that they are repeating endlessly the same old MO’s—with here and there a slight variation—

With some of the “intriguing” Killers there is a lot of planning to do so that all ritualistically goes “according to plan”—

At the risk of groans I’ll quote again Picasso though it’s basically the same with many others myself included—

“I do not seek, I find.”

Yet think of how many different Isms there have been in the last fifty years which are really interested in a “programmed chance (or not) Seriality” in which the variations are to be surprises, if random, or if not, the revealing through time of a structure that builds, rather than the exact following of one copy after another in endless rows as with the factory’s

Seriality—

There are some very interesting works done with many such different investigations of Seriality in music—especially—

You see, it is important to not make an either/or of Seriality /Series, when one comes down to it, it is the both/and of the different ways which elicits a greater invitation than if one sticks to just one side of the questions—

One may take such things and find with in them paradoxes, puns, the hinges which unhinge----that “take the doors themselves off their jambs!!” as Walt Whitman says—

And so turn inside out the rigid formulations which all too often become the “Rules for Freedom” in composition and life--

With a series. one has the ability to work in a freedom, an uncanniness, un expectedness, of the Found, that one doesn’t have in the most conceptions of the Serial—which is a working for some one else—and their profiting off that money you turn over to them in every way they can figure out--

To take back from you as much as possible, if not MORE than is humanly possible!

I would say that rather than choosing one aspect over another before one just for fun thinks and works with them in a casual or a disciplined manner --just kicking the old can around—and yet getting more and more disciplined and good at it!--

That—why not—follow Yogi Berra’s advice and “when you come to a fork in the road—take it!”

Many of the isms today and poetics and so forth tend to be proud of manuals exhorting Risk—transgression—risks and transgressions to be sure on the page or canvas or screen—

Yet these very things turn into formulas soon enough—because of the built in safety nets-

And then—why not turn to Boredom as the Next Big Thing! ---

And what after that?

You see this form of production's dependent on the Next Big Thing to keep the production lines rolling and the jobs created by the carving out of new genres and hybrids

And manuals and technological marvels—

And what do aloof them have in common other than one is being told continually to unquestioningly listen to the Authorities—so that one doesn’t get lost

Yet finding oneself lost—one finds out what is there—via Necessity the Motherfucker of Invention—

Not a junk necessity of just staying not-sick and just going on doing the same – the same--the same boring junkie life so similar at times to factory life--

And finding this on one's own, one awakes to the DIY—breaking free of needing someone to tell you what and how and when where and why to do and behave and think

According to plan--

Because now the only person who can figure it out is oneself--

And the Other and Others existing right beside and inside
and al around one—

Happy New Year to Everyone!!

> Date: Wed, 31 Dec 2008 13:30:39 -0800
>
> From: [redacted]
>
> Subject: Re: capitalism and the long poem
>
> To: [redacted]
>
>
> Yes, I think that this is the part that I was worrying about:
>
>
> As DBChirot says:

> Serial production functions not unlike a model of addiction--once hooked, one

> HAS to keep coming back for MORE MORE MORE--which is at once the
>
> "same" and slightly different, just enough so, that the sense of > being both satisfied that "the stuff is good" and at the same

time

> give an extra "plug" in that one enjoys it for only so long and then

> has to be in the throes craving until the next fix can be obtained.
>
>
> So there's a sort of repetition thing going on (I don't really follow
>
> this Freud stuff very well, but someone explained the
>
> Lacan/consumerism problem as similar, as Troy alludes to, one in
>
> postmodernism's problems of self: both stemming from an inherent > emptiness--there is no self there at the center--so we keep trying to fill the lack or hole with one commodity or otherwise sexy thing after another.

>
> It' not always the same thing, but there's a repetitive structure to the act of filling the hole--(okay this may not look like the long poems at all)--and maybe Lacan, being a structuralist (?), would say that that the motion of filling forms some sort of updatable subject?
>
> well, now I am lost again.
>
> I want to get to this part where Catherine Daly is where there's a possibility of woven funcitons but I'm not sure how to get from one to the other.
>
> What's the source of all of that talk about the usable past? and available nerve endings and tissues, by the way. I feel like I must have somehow missed some whole big discussion here.
>
> e
>
> On 12/30/08, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:

> > I think we've become obsessed with it precisely because it's fallen out of favor. Somebody, or a few people, wondered where it went, and began writing about it. It seems to me that the long poem became impossible with the abandonment of narrative by poets. How long can one keep up a feeling or a mood or an "experiment"? Frederick Fierstein writes quite long poems, but his poems also have narratives holding them together. Frederick Turner has written two epic poems.

> Troy Camplin
>
> _____
>
> From: Eireene Nealand <[redacted]>
>
> To: [redacted]
>
> Sent: Monday, December 29, 2008 1:45:57 PM
>
> Subject: capitalism and the long poem
>
> I sat down to write a little piece about this Russian poet, and came > > up with a strange take on the long poem--an idea that the seriality of > it is somehow related to consumer capitalism--

>
> http://tsky-reviews.blogspot.com/
>
> not the pleasantest thought--
>
> and so I was wondering if anyone has any good counter arguments, or different takes on why so many are so obsessed with this form right now. & will we fall out of love with it during the recession?
>
> e
>
> ==========

> ==========
>
> ==========

Dear Eireene—

I will write re the thing you name physically by which one may encounter

Series very simple

Is the sudden arrival of vast flows of series of images
memories sound sayings persons that one has not thought of in so long

yet they are triggered not by a Madeleine outside oneself, but by the very movement of the muscles bones sinews and nerves as one bends say just a tiny bit to pick up some thing a child or oneself had dropped--

and as one is bending --out of nowhere come lowing these memories, dreams--imaginings in aeries and tumults and amoks--

rather than worrying about al these structuralisms, what one does is work with what is there in the immediate site sight cite --the materials which aw within the reach of ones body or a short walk or going alone walking--are the things one sees close buy--that cal to one and one responds or not—a

To be a debroullard in the debris yard--

To begin with next to nothing is the best form of learning al manner of incredible and unexpected things which begin to link for a person in their own ways, associations and series --

and not from those pre-arranged marriages of structures
imposed on one--

Necessity is the Motherfucker of Invention--

What more kinds of "restraints" and
"constraints" does one need to impose on oneself on top of those already existing in things as they are

or are not!

given how little one may have immediately there--the mind though gets going, quick!--at finding ways to o something interesting and maybe even fun--with just these few things--

Universe opens--

to begin with next to nothing --then there is so much room in which one sees how infinite are something all around one

and yet how little one may need than just a certain broken car emblem with the interesting letterings

or a leaf fragments sealed in an embrace with a rock, clinging so tightly as to” wrap its being around" rock worn smooth by rains--

Isn’t it interesting that one says one doesn’t have a self or it is such and such a critiqued version of it that one has isn’t one taking the word of somebody else about this?? And aren’t'

t they manifesting themselves very much as selves in doing so with such authority-- telling one in no uncertain terms that the self is passé, gone he way of the old made at home by oneself gingham dress--or the hand pump

or water--

you see they are prescribing for you because of some doctorate in self ology--which gives their own self an incredible importance in telling others how they have none or at best a very teetering and Tower of Pisa leaning and decentered one wobbling about like a spinning top abt to keel over--

Before one takes these wags to seriously one has to ask oneself--how do they know so much about it--what are their examples and reasons--and how many of them are just hot air--or current trends--which in a few days or minutes or years will be hopelessly out of date and one wouldn't be caught dead leaving he house attired in them!

It is far more interesting to listen to and watch people in all their glories going through the actual situations in life--because here one fids the warp and woof of words and life wound around one another continually-and in this twisting and turn as it were--of the nerve around the sinews and muscle cables of that are operating the bones--

Cells in revolt or clam--the skin bearing signs of
weathering and wear--

al of this is going on around one continually--and if one listens and looks and finds associations and links and repetitions by comepltely different persons of the same old story--million variation son a gesture or way of smelling a flower

What is right there before one is plenty enough to get goin with--

And without the need for a plan or an authoritative Michelin guide to the Soul or Self or Non self or Non I and al the rest of the things which they try to evade confessing that they actually do have very much a sense of self

And that self knows more about the non self than you do--

because they are not empty at all but very full of themselves!

No-there is something in one's being that is not empty--

if one just looks around one how much there is going on outside one that one finds oneself "getting lost in"--simply listening or looking and letting wander-following its own trains of associations--

i have been clinically dead four times--in a short period of years--and long before that near death experience--

One has periods in which one doesn’t know if one may not be leading actually a ghost humous existence-

that is i may be ghost writing my own posthumous works--

And have had moments when suddenly feeling that i was actually dead and just dreaming of things that had not been finished in life--not great important things like bike ride or going to meet my daughter and then one finds those are the things which are the great ones--

The heavy weight of emptiness which one is burdened with--

well who the hell is telling one this?

Perhaps they have spent far too much time regarding only those selves without looking around one listening to al that is here-- is a self empty--yes that is what one is told when one has repetitive patterns of stuffing oneself in some say--compulsively repeating actions whcih are not good for oneself yet somehow thinking that they will miraculously today be good for oneself-

And only to find that one has just done another greet injury to the being one lives with as oneself or someone--

In charge at least of keeping care of the body one is finding oneself walking about in--

Emptiness comes fro wanting to stuff things--to stuff time s to stuff materially a space or materially oneself--

Because one is afraid to look around and find that one may be al alone-

Not loved by anyone or cared about--

and what then?-

Then to simply begin backwards and think--loneliness! Now that is something i could take an interest in and find out how to live with it--set up a kind of housekeeping with it as it were

or a kind of give and take friendship in which one discover that both of you are laughing t he fact that you ahve between you only one shadow--

(This is from a story which will be in the next issue of
sous rature—

El colonel smiles. Checking his watch, he turns and approaches a chair on one side of the table set in the center of the large light filled room. This chair and the one on the table's other side are high backed, with strong arms of a wood hard as iron and painted in a still shiny black lacquer. The upholstered seats and backs are not uncomfortable and of a worn red fading into rose. With studied and precise, angular movements, El Colonel begins to arrange himself in the correct position in which to be found by his "immanent and eminent visitor."

El Colonel permits himself a barely audible and very brief laugh as "he takes possession of himself the better to assiduously arrange the head, the torso, the limbs, the folded hands, as though he were in the process of preparing a stuffed and mounted specimen of a representative example of a Colonel, whose taxidermist he himself was."

You see that is one way of handling the emptiness—

(He also-well you will see very soon!!)—

There is a great story of Charlie Parker—who at one point had just vanished—no on knew where he was, if he was alive if he had any means
of getting along—

And so one day someone from the club world sees the great Charlie Parker

Just humming long going through a trash bin loooking for something-

The man approaches Charlie very condescendingly yet concerned al the same-- and says how can he live like this such a genius and ho w sick the society's that is depriving him from making a living

--

Charlie turned and looked at this man and aid—what to you mean how I live like this—

And gesturing gall about him—al the dumpsters filled with food scraps, places to curl up from a pounding rain

And he said to the man

How can one not be living when there's so much stuff!!

You see—the Motherfucker of necessity and its Inventions!—

(Charlie Parker –like Billie Holiday with hers----lost his license to play evening Birdland the club named for him, because he was a narcotic addict and alcoholic)

To tell the truth, while writing this previous letter that you cite--and then pausing for a bit after—I was thinking –oh no!! Have I been on the level with thinking on series—no—not serial production, but series-so I was thinking why they are different?

And the first thing that came to mind was the letter-writing rookie "busher"

of Ring Lardner's You Know Me, Al—

Who writes the World Series as the World Serious

Which of course it is for him in terms of glory and money--

So right away one realizes that Seriality may be left to serial killers

while workers in Series enjoy being semi-literates whose mis-writings carry within them the shift of a sound, of a few letters and Voila!—an open entry back and forth between two realms suddenly joined by a swinging door--

a not-quite pun, yet close enough to function as a hinge—

In my case I know a series has no plan to it—out of the blue a phrase

a form

suddenly triggers a vast flowing "series" of associations—

So I just begin from there—

With the form or phrase that triggered this—

I thought back to al the different factories and the tulip bulb warehouse in Holland where I have worked—and the oncoming rush of those bits and pieces or huge boxes of things that one had to adjust to and perform with them dances of Fordian Motion—to the Tune of Taylor Time—

Or else!!

(Except in Holland some of us were "schwarzarbeiter" black workers—illegal alien workers—seasonal-- and so were tolerated to some extent---the good part was that when one ran amok the bosses and owners couldn't do anything about it because THEY were illegally employing us! -- Alien workers!--

i have done quite a few "series" both in writing and in visual and sound works--

actually that is a way of working i enjoy a lot and i don't necessarily do a series

like Pretty Maids

"all in a row"

OR--

"these pieces of the last two months are a series expressing the artist's confrontation with the abyss, an event of which, he says, that though he looked at it—

Completely unlike what Nietzsche said

IT DID NOT LOOK BACK AT HIM--

i might take up a series months or years or minutes after having abandoned it when something truly stunning Found, Found me and I Found it--

when i work in a series, the series doesn't come out of a preplanned structure in which the elements are all to function in a serial manner --

(if you've worked in factories you know what that is like!)—

No, a series is quite another "series of events" found long the way, associative, uncanny, fraught with sudden about faces and explosive interruptions—

So, being unknown until one arrives or encounters each thing "ahead of one" that calls out to one—

And it sure doesn't have any of the aggressive quality of those objects coming right at one on the relentless merciless brutal assembly line!

Perhaps thinking in terms of series rather serials may be quite helpful—

William Burroughs wrote some thing very true which is ignored by people who glamorize it—of being a junky, Burroughs says—

"It's not about kicks. It's a way of life."

And, again voicing the experience of untold numbers of recovering junkies the world over—the Matt Dillon character who tells his wife, Kelly Lynch, that she can have all the dope he didn't give to Bill Burroughs, old Junkie Priest down the hall—

Because, the tells her—“for the addict every day is the same, one knows already how much needs to be measured out to keep the sickness
away that day—

And al the frantic desperate adventures along the way to keeping a stash going—

Every day the same old story—

But now that he is straight, Matt Dillon says, he is finding out that he wakes up every day and knows untold numbers of things he hasn’t thought of or known ahead of time, are going to happen to him this day--

Isn’t a Serial Killer basically like a dope fiend in that they are repeating endlessly the same old MO’s—with here and there a slight variation—

With some of the “intriguing” Killers there is a lot of planning to do so that all ritualistically goes “according to plan”—

At the risk of groans I’ll quote again Picasso though it’s basically the same with many others myself included—

“I do not seek, I find.”

Yet think of how many different Isms there have been in the last fifty years which are really interested in a “programmed chance (or not) Seriality” in which the variations are to be surprises, if random, or if not, the revealing through time of a structure that builds, rather than the exact following of one copy after another in endless rows as with the factory’s

Seriality—

There are some very interesting works done with many such different investigations of Seriality in music—especially—

You see, it is important to not make an either/or of Seriality /Series, when one comes down to it, it is the both/and of the different ways which elicits a greater invitation than if one sticks to just one side of the questions—

One may take such things and find with in them paradoxes, puns, the hinges which unhinge----that “take the doors themselves off their jambs!!” as Walt Whitman says—

And so turn inside out the rigid formulations which all too often become the “Rules for Freedom” in composition and life--

With a series. one has the ability to work in a freedom, an uncanniness, un expectedness, of the Found, that one doesn’t have in the most conceptions of the Serial—which is a working for some one else—and their profiting off that money you turn over to them in every way they can figure out--

To take back from you as much as possible, if not MORE than is humanly possible!

I would say that rather than choosing one aspect over another before one just for fun thinks and works with them in a casual or a disciplined manner --just kicking the old can around—and yet getting more and more disciplined and good at it!--

That—why not—follow Yogi Berra's advice and "when you come to a fork in the road—take it!"

Many of the isms today and poetics and so forth tend to be proud of manuals exhorting Risk—transgression—risks and transgressions to be sure on the page or canvas or screen—

Yet these very things turn into formulas soon enough—because of the built in safety nets-

And then—why not turn to Boredom as the Next Big Thing! ---

And what after that?

You see this form of production's dependent on the Next Big Thing to keep the production lines rolling and the jobs created by the carving out of new genres and hybrids

And manuals and technological marvels—

And what do aloof them have in common other than one is being told continually to unquestioningly listen to the Authorities—so that one doesn't get lost

Yet finding oneself lost—one finds out what is there—via Necessity the Motherfucker of Invention—

Not a junk necessity of just staying not-sick and just going on doing the same – the same--the same boring junkie life so similar at times to factory life--

And finding this on one's own, one awakes to the DIY—breaking free of needing someone to tell you what and how and when where
and why to do and behave and think

According to plan--

Because now the only person who can figure it out is oneself--

And the Other and Others existing right beside and inside
and al around one—

Happy New Year to Everyone!!

> Date: Wed, 31 Dec 2008 13:30:39 -0800
>
> From: [redacted]
>
> Subject: Re: capitalism and the long poem
>
> To: [redacted]
>
> Yes, I think that this is the part that I was worrying about:
>
> As DBChirot says:

> Serial production functions not unlike a model of addiction--once hooked, one

> HAS to keep coming back for MORE MORE MORE--which is at once the
>
> "same" and slightly different, just enough so, that the sense of > being both satisfied that "the stuff is good" and at the same time

> give an extra "plug" in that one enjoys it for only so long and then

> has to be in the throes craving until the next fix can be obtained.
>
> So there's a sort of repetition thing going on (I don't really follow
> this Freud stuff very well, but someone explained the > Lacan/consumerism problem as similar, as Troy alludes to, one in > postmodernism's problems of self: both stemming from an inherent > emptiness--there is no self there at the center--so we keep trying to > fill the lack or hole with one commodity or otherwise sexy thing after > another.
>
> It' not always the same thing, but there's a repetitive structure to
> the act of filling the hole--(okay this may not look like the long > poems at all)--and maybe Lacan, being a structuralist (?), would say > that that the motion of filling forms some sort of updatable subject?

> well, now I am lost again.
>
> I want to get to this part where Catherine Daly is where there's a possibility of woven funcitons but I'm not sure how to get from one to the other.
>
> What's the source of all of that talk about the usable past? and available nerve endings and tissues, by the way. I feel like I must have somehow missed some whole big discussion here.
>
> e
>
> On 12/30/08, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:

> > I think we've become obsessed with it precisely because it's fallen out of favor. Somebody, or a few people, wondered where it went, and began writing about it. It seems to me that the long poem became impossible with the abandonment of narrative by poets. How long can one keep up a feeling or a mood or an "experiment"? Frederick Fierstein writes quite long poems, but his poems also have narratives holding them together. Frederick Turner has written two epic poems.

> Troy Camplin
>
> ---
>
> From: Eireene Nealand <[redacted]>
>
> To: [redacted]

> Sent: Monday, December 29, 2008 1:45:57 PM
>
> Subject: capitalism and the long poem
>
> I sat down to write a little piece about this Russian poet, and came > > up with a strange take on the long poem--an idea that the seriality of > it is somehow related to consumer capitalism--

>
> http://tsky-reviews.blogspot.com/
>
> not the pleasantest thought--
>
> and so I was wondering if anyone has any good counter arguments, or different takes on why so many are so obsessed with this form right now. & will we fall out of love with it during the recession?
>
> e
>
> ==========
>
> ==========
>
> ==========

Dear Eireene—I wil write re the thing you name physcialy by which one may enouncterseries very simpleis the sudden arrival of vast flows of seriesof imnages memories sound sayings persons that one has not thought of in so so long yet they are triggered not bea madeleine outside oneself, but by the very movement of the muscles bones sinews and nervses as one bedsd say just a tiny bit to pick up some thing a child oroneself had dropped--and as oneis beding --outof nowhere come lowing these memroeis, dreams--imangings in aeries and

tumults and amoks-- rather than worrying about al hese structularisms, what one does is work withwhat is trhere in theimmediate site sight cite --the materials which aw within the reach ofones body or a short walk or going alone wlaking--are the thingsone ses close buy--that cal to one and one ressponds or not--ato be a debroullard in the debris yard-- to begin with next to nothing is the best form of learning al manner of incredble and unexpected things which begoin to link for apersonin their own awyas association series --and not from those pre-arranged marriages of structures imposed on one-- Necessity is the Motherfucker of Invention-- what more kindsof "restaints" and "constraints" doesone nedd toimpose on oneself on top of those alreadyexissting in things as they areor are not! given how litle one mayhhave immediately there--the mind though gets going, quick!--at dfindig ways to o something intersting and maybe even fun--withj ustt hese few thinggs--universe opens-- to being with next to nothing --then there is so much room in which one sees hwo infinite are something alll aroundoneand yet howlittle one may need thanjusta certain borekn car emlemwith the instresting letteringsor a leaf fragements sealed in an emrbace with a rock, cloiong so tightlas to"wrap its being around" rock worn worn smooth by rains-- isn't itintersting that one onesays one doesnthaveaslef or iuts such ana dusch a cirtiqued verison of it that one has isn'tone takeing the word of somebody else about this?? and aren't they manifesting themselves very much as selves in doing so with such authority--telling one in no unceratin terms that the slf is passe, gone he way of the old made at home by oneself gingham dress--or the hand pump or water-- you see they are prescribing for you becuause of some doctorate in self ology--which gives their own self an incredible importance in telling others how they have none or at best a very teetering and Tower of Pisa leaning and decenetered one wobbing about like a spinnng top abt to keel over-- Before one takes these wags to seriously onehas to askoneself--how do they know so much about it--what are their examples and reasons--and how many of them are just hotair--or current trends--which in a few days or minutes or years will be hopelessly out of date and one wouldn't be cuaght dead leaving he house attired in them! It i fr moreiontersting to liten to andwatch eople i altheir gories goingthroughthe actaul situations in lfoie--becuaehreone fids the earp and woof of words and life wound aroundone another continaully-andinthis twisting and turn as it were--of the nerve around the sinews and muscle cables of that are operating the bones-- cells in revolt or clam--the skin bearing signs of weathering and wear--al of this is goingonaroundone continully--and ifone listens and looks and finds assocaitons and links and repritions by comepltelydifferent persons of thesame ols story--amilion variationson a gestuyre or way of smeeling a flower what is right there before one is plenty enough to get goin with-- and without the need for aplan or an authoritive

Michelin guide to the Soul or Self or Non self or Non I and al the rest of the things which which they try to evade confesing that they actualy do have veruy much a senseof selfand that self knows more about thenon self than you do--because they are not empty at all but very full of themsleves! no-there is something in one's being that is not empty--if one just looks around one how much there is going on oustide one that one finds oneslef "getting lost in"--simlply listening or looking and letting wander-folwoing its own traions of associations-- i have been clincially dead four times--in a short period of years--and long before that near detah experince--one has periods in which one doesn not know ifone may not leding actualy a ghost humous existence-that is i may be ghost writing my own posthumous works--and have had moments when suddenlyfeeling that i was actauly dead and just draming of things that had not been finished in life--not great iomportant things things like bike ride or going to meet my daugter and then one finds those are the things which are the great ones--the heavy weight of emptiness which one is burdened with--wel who the hell is teling one this perhaps they have spent far to much time regarding only them mselevs without looking around one listenintg to al that is here--is a self empty--yes tha is what one is told whenone has reptitive patterns of stuffing oneself in some say--conpulsively repeatig actions whcih are notgood for oneself yet somehow thinking that they wil miraclous today be good foronself-and only to find that one has just done another gret injury to thebeing one lives with as oneslef or someone--in charge at least of keeping careofthe body one is finding oneself wlaking about in--emptioness comes fro wanting to stuff things--to stuff time s to stuff mateirly a space or materially oneself--becauseone is afariod tolook around and find that one may be al alone-notloved by anyone or cared about-- and what then?-then to simply beign bacwards and think--loneliness! now thatis somthing i could take an interst in and findout how to lvie with it--set up a kind of housekeeping with it as it wereor a kindof give and take friendhsip in whch one discover that both of you are laughing t he fact that youahve between you only oneshadow--

To tell the truth, while writing this previous letter you cite--and then pausing for a bit after—I was thinking –oh no!! Have I been on the level with thinking on series—no—not serial production, but series-so I was thinking why they are different?

And the first thing that came to mind was the letter-writing rookie “busher”

of Ring Lardner’s You Know Me, Al—

Who writes the World Series as the World Serious

Which of course it is for him in terms of glory and money--So right away one realizes that Seriality may be left to serial killers

while workers in Series enjoy being semi-literates whose mis-writings carry within them the shift of a sound, of a few letters and Voila!—an open entry back and forth between two realms suddenly joined by a swinging door--

a not-quite pun, yet close enough to function as a hinge—

In my case I know a series has no plan to it—out of the blue a phrasea form suddenly triggers a vast flowing “series” of associations—

So I just begin from there—

With the form or phrase that triggered this—

I thought back to al the different factories and the tulip bulb warehouse in Holland where I have worked—and the oncoming rush of those bits and pieces or huge boxes of things that one had to adjust to and perform with them dances of Fordian Motion—to the Tune of Taylor Time—

Or else!!

(Except in Holland some of us were “schwarzarbeiter” black workers—illegal alien workers—seasonal-- and so were tolerated to some extent---the good part was that when one ran amok the bosses and owners couldn’t do anything about it because THEY were illegally employing us! -- Alien workers!--

i have done quite a few "series" both in writing and in visual and sound works--

actually that is a way of working i enjoy a lot and i don’t necessarily do a series

like Pretty Maids

"all in a row"

OR--

"these pieces of the last two months are a series expressing the artist’s confrontation with the abyss, an event of which, he says, that though he looked at it—

Completely unlike what Nietzsche said

IT DID NOT LOOK BACK AT HIM--

i might take up a series months or years or minutes after having abandoned it when something truly stunning Found, Found me and I Found it--

when i work in a series, the series doesn’t come out of a preplanned structure in which the elements are all to function in a serial manner --

(if you've worked in factories you know what that is like!)—

No, a series is quite another “series of events” found long the way, associative, uncanny, fraught with sudden about faces and explosive interruptions—

So, being unknown until one arrives or encounters each thing “ahead of one” that calls out to one—

And it sure doesn’t have any of the aggressive quality of those objects coming right at one on the relentless merciless brutal assembly line!

Perhaps thinking in terms of series rather serials may be quite helpful—

William Burroughs wrote some thing very true which is ignored by people who glamorize it—of being a junky, Burroughs says—

“It’s not about kicks.
It’s a way of life.”

And, again voicing the experience of untold numbers of recovering junkies the world over—the Matt Dillon charcter who tells his wife, Kelly Lynch, that she can have all the dope he didn’t give to Bill Burroughs, old Junkie Priest down the hall—

Because, the tells her—“for the addict every day is the same, one knows already how much needs to be measured out to keep the sickness
away that day—

And al the frantic desperate adventures along the way to keeping a stash going—

Every day the same old story—

But now that he is straight, Matt Dillon says, he is finding out that he wakes up every day and knows untold numbers of things he hasn’t thought of or known ahead of time, are going to happen to him this day--

Isn’t a Serial Killer basically like a dope fiend in that they are repeating endlessly the same old MO’s—with here and there a slight variation—

With some of the “intriguing” Killers there is a lot of planning to do so that all ritualistically goes “according to plan”—

At the risk of groans I'll quote again Picasso though it's basically the same with many others myself included—

"I do not seek, I find."

Yet think of how many different Isms there have been in the last fifty years which are really interested in a "programmed chance (or not) Seriality" in which the variations are to be surprises, if random, or if not, the revealing through time of a structure that builds, rather than the exact following of one copy after another in endless rows as with the factory's

Seriality—

There are some very interesting works done with many such different investigations of Seriality in music—especially—

You see, it is important to not make an either/or of Seriality /Series, when one comes down to it, it is the both/and of the different ways which elicits a greater invitation than if one sticks to just one side of the questions—

One may take such things and find with in them paradoxes, puns, the hinges which unhinge----that "take the doors themselves off their jambs!!"
as Walt Whitman says—

And so turn inside out the rigid formulations which all too often become the "Rules for Freedom" in composition and life--

With a series. one has the ability to work in a freedom, an uncanniness, un expectedness, of the Found, that one doesn't have in the most conceptions of the Serial—which is a working for some one else—and their profiting off that money you turn over to them in every way they can figure out--

To take back from you as much as possible, if not MORE than is humanly possible!

I would say that rather than choosing one aspect over another before one just for fun thinks and works with them in a casual or a disciplined manner --just kicking the old can around—and yet getting more and more disciplined and good at it!--

That—why not—follow Yogi Berra's advice and "when you come to a fork in the road—take it!"

Many of the isms today and poetics and so forth tend to be proud of manuals exhorting Risk—transgression—risks and transgressions to be sure on the page or canvas or screen—

Yet these very things turn into formulas soon enough—because of the built in safety nets-

And then—why not turn to Boredom as the Next Big Thing! ---

And what after that?

You see this form of production's dependent on the Next Big Thing to keep the production lines rolling and the jobs created by the carving out of new genres and hybrids

And manuals and technological marvels—

And what do aloof them have in common other than one is being told continually to unquestioningly listen to the Authorities—so that one doesn't get lost

Yet finding oneself lost—one finds out what is there—via Necessity the Motherfucker of Invention—

Not a junk necessity of just staying not-sick and just going on doing the same – the same--the same boring junkie life so similar at times to factory life--

And finding this on one's own, one awakes to the DIY—breaking free of needing someone to tell you what and how and when where and why to do and behave and think

According to plan--

Because now the only person who can figure it out is oneself--

And the Other and Others existing right beside and inside
and al around one—

Happy New Year to Everyone!!

> Date: Wed, 31 Dec 2008 13:30:39 -0800
> From: [redacted]
> Subject: Re: capitalism and the long poem
> To: [redacted]
>
> Yes, I think that this is the part that I was worrying about:
>
> As DBChirot says:
> Serial production functions not unlike a model of addiction--once hooked, one HAS to keep coming back for MORE MORE MORE--which is at once the "same" and slightly different, just enough so, that the sense of being both satisfied that "the stuff is good" and at the same time give an extra "plug" in that one enjoys it for only so long and then has to be in the throes craving until the next fix can be obtained.
>
> So there's a sort of repetition thing going on (I don't really follow

this Freud stuff very well, but someone explained the Lacan/consumerism problem as similar, as Troy alludes to, one in postmodernism's problems of self: both stemming from an inherent emptiness--there is no self there at the center--so we keep trying to fill the lack or hole with one commodity or otherwise sexy thing after another.

It' not always the same thing, but there's a repetitive structure to the act of filling the hole--(okay this may not look like the long poems at all)--and maybe Lacan, being a structuralist (?), would say that that the motion of filling forms some sort of updatable subject?

well, now I am lost again.

I want to get to this part where Catherine Daly is where there's a possibility of woven funcitons but I'm not sure how to get from one to the other.

What's the source of all of that talk about the usable past? and available nerve endings and tissues, by the way. I feel like I must have somehow missed some whole big discussion here.

e

On 12/30/08, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
I think we've become obsessed with it precisely because it's fallen out of favor. Somebody, or a few people, wondered where it went, and began writing about it. It seems to me that the long poem became impossible with the abandonment of narrative by poets. How long can one keep up a feeling or a mood or an "experiment"? Frederick Fierstein writes quite long poems, but his poems also have narratives holding them together. Frederick Turner has written two epic poems.

Troy Camplin

From: Eireene Nealand <[redacted]>

To: [redacted]

Sent: Monday, December 29, 2008 1:45:57 PM

Subject: capitalism and the long poem

> I sat down to write a little piece about this Russian poet, and came up with a strange take on the long poem--an idea that the seriality of it is somehow related to consumer capitalism--
>
> http://tsky-reviews.blogspot.com/
>
> not the pleasantest thought--
>
> and so I was wondering if anyone has any good counter arguments, or different takes on why so many are so obsessed with this form right now. & will we fall out of love with it during the recession?
>
> e

Send e-mail anywhere. No map, no compass.
http://windowslive.com/oneline/hotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_hotmail_acq_anywhere_122008

↑ Index

406. Pam Brown
We have a reviewer for Dementia Blog
Wed 31 Dec 2008

Thanks everyone,
Jacket has a reviewer for Susan Schultz's book.

Best wishes for 2009,
Pam

---

blog : http://thedeletions.blogspot.com
website : http://pambrownbooks.blogspot.com/
associate editor : http://jacketmagazine.com/

↑ Index

407. William Slaughter
Notice: Mudlark
Wed 31 Dec 2008

New and On View: Mudlark Poster No. 78 (2009)

Five Poems by Sarah Gridley

Honey Ants | Is He Decently Put Back Together?
Return of the Native to the Widespread Hour
Ovation | The Orator's Maximal Likelihood

Sarah Gridley's poems have appeared in Chicago Review, Denver Quarterly, The Beloit Poetry Journal, jubilat, Drunken Boat, Meridian, Journal 1913, VOLT, Barrow Street, Crazyhorse, Gulf Coast, and Tusculum Review. Weather Eye Open, her first collection of poems, was published by the University of California Press (Berkeley 2005). A new collection, Green Is the Orator, is forthcoming from California in 2010. She received an MFA from the University of Montana in 2000, where she was a Richard Hugo Scholar and won the 1999 Merriam Frontier Award. Currently she is a Lecturer in poetry at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio.

Spread the word. Far and wide,

William Slaughter

MUDLARK
An Electronic Journal of Poetry & Poetics
Never in and never out of print...
E-mail: [redacted]
URL: http://www.unf.edu/mudlark

↑ Index

@poetics

The UB Poetics Discussion Group

Archive of Electronic Correspondence

January 2009

455 messages · Thu 1 Jan 2009 – Fri 30 Jan 2009

January 2009 opened with a swearing-in and a bailout, hope and insolvency arriving in the same weeks, and the list met the new administration in the currency of the moment: money, and the selling of the unsellable. Four hundred and fifty-five messages moved through it, and its largest currents ran to price — the poet performing intimacy for tips, the epic weighed against the market, the bank rescue, the body auctioned. In a month that made a president, the room mostly counted the cost of things.

The largest thread priced the poet directly. The Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory ran on into the new year — poets costumed as courtesans reading for coins, art dressed as sex work because the recession had made the metaphor literal — and the room dissected it at length, half scandalized and half recognizing itself. When a bailout thread arrived, one poster hung it on the same hook, passing along the news of a graduate student auctioning her virginity to pay tuition: the age of selling whatever the market would price, degree and poem and body alike.

The quarrel turned economic and formal at once. Under the heading capitalism and the long poem, the room asked whether the epic — the vast, uneconomical, time-devouring poem — was a form any market could still support, or whether its repetitions were, as one reader put it, a marker of trauma and "an existential emptiness that we can't seem to move beyond". The long poem became the test case: could poetry still afford its own ambition in a season when nothing could afford anything?

Against the ledger the month set the world's harder news and one flicker of hope. Gaza burned through the winter — a thread titled after Huxley's Eyeless in Gaza carried the war into the room — while the inauguration itself, when it came on the twentieth, brought Elizabeth Alexander at last to the podium to read to the largest audience a living poet would ever get. Recognition at the summit and catastrophe abroad, the bailout at home and the brothel down the block: the room held all of it in one cold January.

I have set January down exactly as the archive delivered it — the brothel's priced intimacy, the auctioned body, the long poem the market can no longer carry, the war in Gaza, and the inaugural poet at the summit — because it was the month hope and insolvency were sworn in together, and the list, characteristically, watched the money. A room that greeted a historic presidency by asking what a poem costs, whether an epic is still affordable, and what a person will sell to stay in school was not being cynical; it was noticing, before most, that the new era would be lived under the sign of price, and wondering aloud what, in such a season, a poem could possibly be worth.

— Kristen M. Fabians

Index

Writers, names mentioned, and concepts. Every number links to its message. 455 in all.

WRITERS

Allegrezza, William 57, 58
AND, mIEKAL 212, 309, 394, 414, 437
Anderson, Erik 427
Andrews, Jim 37, 71, 98, 152, 280, 299, 325, 337, 407
Austin, William James 246, 425
Ayers, Lana 32
Ballardini, Anny 103, 210, 296, 311
Benson, Cara 52, 72, 86, 182
Berkson, Bill 447
Blacksox 49, 415
Books, Spineless 399
Borchart, Sharon Mesmer/David 50
Bowering, George 26, 28, 56, 60, 61, 79, 95, 371, 413, 439
Bradshaw, Joseph 262, 442, 443
Brown, Pam 381
Buuck, David 129, 238, 320, 416
Cabri, Louis 365
Cain, Séamas 91, 105, 220, 253, 330, 448
Camplin, Troy 81, 97, 112, 123, 125, 126, 161, 173, 190, 223, 224, 228, 242, 323, 358, 421, 435
Cheek, Cris 159, 290, 319, 341
Chen, Ken 388
Chirot, David-Baptiste 11, 27, 134, 229, 241, 289, 301, 316, 338, 391, 445, 446
Ciccariello, Peter 94, 297, 396
Clark, Hilary 198
Conrad, CA 29, 118, 177, 188, 390
Cotner, Jon 322
Cunningham, John 9, 23, 48, 145, 245, 368, 369
Dalachinsky, Steve D. 113, 168, 207, 208, 226, 292, 293, 331, 349, 366, 432
Daley, Ryan 235, 237, 393
Daly, Catherine 89, 151, 181, 377, 378, 401
Damon, Maria 215, 216, 250, 266
Daniel Remein, Editor 234
Dean, Larry O. 199
Dewhurst, Robert 206
Dickey, Eric 268
Dorf, Carol 21
Dunn-hensley, Susan 179
Dykstra, Kristin 380
Earl, Amanda 153
Edgerton, Michael Tod 392
Ellis, Stephen 267
Elshtain, Eric 189
Exley, Roy 324
Al Filreis 59, 166
Foley, Jack 8
Foley, John 55
Fox, Skip 344
Frost, Corey 10
Ganick, Peter 174, 428
Gatza, Geoffrey 88, 106, 294
Giannini, David 144
Glass, Dan 180
Glass, Jesse 1
Glines, Steve 84
Gricevich, Andy 370
Gudding, Gabriel 310, 385
Halle, Steve 155, 353
Hamilton, Robin 195, 197, 271
Hansen, Jeff 6
Heller, Michael 295
Henriksen, Matt 204, 313
Herd, Colin 426
Hill, Laurie Schneider & Crag 178
Hinton, Laura 328, 342
Hoffman, Eric 146
Holder, Doug 82, 107, 132, 312, 387
Johnson, Halvard 200, 258, 287
Johnson, Paul Foster 133
Jorgensen, Alexander 83, 92, 99, 150
Joris, Pierre 4, 303
Karavatos, Nicholas 22, 420
Karmin, Jennifer 70, 191, 348, 406, 440
Kasimor, Mary 219
Kelleher, Michael 53, 160, 326, 400
King, Amy 108, 117, 157, 163, 192, 395, 455
King, Martha 149
Kirschenbaum, David 13, 209, 283, 336
Koeneke, Rodney 335
Konkol, Margaret 398
Lepson, Ruth 44, 45, 73, 75, 77, 87, 114, 115, 116, 119, 128, 138, 139, 140, 141, 169, 170, 171, 214, 222, 231, 232, 248, 249, 277, 321, 386
Levato, Francesco 422, 424
Lewis, Joel 34
List, Poetics 137
Malo, Mary Jo 167, 221, 257
Mandel, Charlotte 260
Martin, Camille 302, 383
Maurer, Susan 329
McLennan, Rob 148, 305, 404
McVay, Gwyn 51, 76
Mims, Martha Cinader 90, 230
Motika, Stephen 63
Mots, Les 389

Mukherjee, Aryanil 419, 450
Munday, Evan 194
Navarro, Diego 247
Nealand, Eireene 14, 25, 35, 122
Nelson, Jason 240
Nelson, Paul 3, 24, 54, 251, 403
Nemet-Nejat, Murat 142, 165, 405
Newman, Richard 12
NIELSEN, ALDON L 7, 42, 43, 306, 314, 359, 364
Norton, Lil 429
Norðdahl, Eiríkur Örn 64, 147, 444
Novack, Carol 31, 317, 352
Oha, Obododimma 74, 239, 261, 263, 284, 285, 286
Oliver, Laura 259
Osman, Jena 233
Peterson, Tim 154
Poe, Deborah 65
Press, AWAREing 196, 273, 379
Press, Hot Whiskey 318
Press, Tinfish 39
Pringle, Kate 252
Pritts, Nate 433
Project, Poetry 110, 272, 452
Quackenbush, Jason 172, 264, 307, 333, 454
Quarles, Lanny 96
Quartermain, Peter 17
Ray, Richard Louis 124
Reid, Jamie 18, 85
Review, Chicago 127
Robinson, James 33
Rothenberg, Jerome 436
Rumble, Ken 100, 451
Russell, Lauren 279, 291
Russell, Layne 202
Russell, Steve 15, 16, 40, 104, 121, 136, 201, 205, 275, 298, 339, 340, 360, 362, 384, 418, 431
Al Sadiq, Ismaelia 334
Sarai, Sarah 101, 102, 187, 288
Savage, Thomas 225, 343, 438
Schickling, Jared 185
Schlesinger, Kyle 38, 158, 162, 356, 373
School, Factory 244
Schuldt, Morgan 278
Schwartz, Gerald 186, 327, 354, 363
Seaman, David 143
Siegel, Gabriel 243
Singler, Fluffy 68, 69, 236
Smith, Dale 131
Sondheim, Alan 2, 80, 93, 211, 227, 274, 300, 355, 357, 376, 382, 411
Starr, Ron 372
Stempleman, Jordan 256, 367
Sullivan, Gary 66, 213
Switaj, Elizabeth 183, 203, 270
Teersteeg 423
St. Thomasino 36
Tieger, Aaron 409
Tills, Steve 218
Tobin, Adam 5, 111, 130
Traffic, Small Press 47, 417, 430
Trigilio, Tony 255
Twshaner 410
UbuWeb 19
Viegener, Matias 281, 282
Vincent, Stephen 30, 135, 175, 176, 304, 412, 434
Vitale, Anna 453
Watten, Barrett 441
Weber, Tomas 265
Weishaus, Joel 67, 402
Weiss, Mark 20, 46, 78, 109, 120, 184, 193, 217, 254, 308, 332, 361
Welford, Gabrielle 276, 315, 375, 397, 408, 449
Wilcox, Dan 156, 350, 351
Winks, Christopher Leland 269
Wintz, Sara 164
Wong, Lindsay 345, 346, 347
Zimmerman, Daniel 62, 374
}, { Brad Brace 41

NAMES MENTIONED

Abbott, Keith 105
Abel, David 262, 403, 443
Abendroth, Emily 233
Abish, Walter 383
Abramovic, Marina 19
Adams, John 313
Adamski, Nicholas 75, 97, 108, 111, 112, 115, 116, 117, 119, 121, 123, 125, 130, 140, 142
Alexander, Charles 213, 215
Alferi, Pierre 11
Ali, Kazim 313
Alice, Mary 7, 163, 185, 398, 455
Allan, Edgar 15, 16
Alsop, Maureen 313
Americans, Asian 6, 85, 95, 301, 402
Amerika, Mark 163, 336, 455
Amirkhanian, Charles 19, 262
Amram, David 450
Andrews, Betsy 13
Andrews, Bruce 416, 417, 430
Anton, Robert 19
Apollinaire, Guillaume 262
Apps, Stan 47, 129, 238
Armand, Louis 19, 449
Armantrout, Rae 11, 127, 336
Arnold, Elizabeth 127
Asante, Toni 70
Ashbery, John 272
Ashley, Robert 19, 406, 440

Atkins, Tim 424
Atlanta, Mark P. 220, 392, 406
Auden, W. H. 132
Augustine, Jane 298, 308
Austen, Jane 71
Austin, Geer 131, 149, 150, 280, 370, 393
Austin, Linda 262
Ave, Jackson 164
Baik, Cristiana 213, 215
Baker, Lori 7, 348
Baldwin, Joshua 355
Ballard, Micah 19
Banias, Ari 13
Baraka, Amiri 131, 208, 272, 301
Barnard, Mary 110, 162, 269, 286
Barnett, Anthony 406, 440
Barney, Matthew 19
Barr, Brandon 389
Bartlett, Jennifer 13, 443
Basinski, Michael 110, 272
Basinski, Mike 387
Bates, Joe 13
Baudelaire, Charles 15, 16, 272, 347
Baus, Eric 313
Beach, James 196, 273, 379
Beckett, Samuel 82
Beer, John 70, 155
Behrle, Jim 13
Behrman, David 19
Belle, Cecelia 19
Bennett, John M. 36, 74, 103, 253
Berger, Jonathan 199, 283
Berger, Stephanie 68, 73, 75, 78, 97, 104, 108, 109, 111, 112, 114, 115, 116, 117, 119, 120, 121, 123, 125, 130, 140, 141, 142, 185
Bergvall, Caroline 19
Berkeley, Michael 24, 213, 215, 306, 317, 336
Berlin, Irving 19, 71, 105, 129, 238, 357
Bernard, Kenneth 11, 220, 441
Bernstein, Charles 52, 100, 166, 177, 213, 215, 417, 430
Bernstein, Emma 11, 401, 416
Berrigan, Edmund 13
Berrigan, Ted 262, 272
Berryman, John 40, 107
Beuys, Joseph 274
Bianchi, Raymond L. 74, 103, 380, 424
Bidart, Frank 424
Birmingham, Jed 105
Blake, William 126, 145, 161, 165, 172, 173, 190, 194, 201, 276
Blanchot, Maurice 4
Blaser, Robin 24, 85, 95, 262, 346
Blau, Rachel 100
Bloom, Harold 163, 455
Blouin, Michael 404
Boat, Drunken 401
Boesky, Marianne 213, 215
Bok, Christian 19, 368, 371, 372, 373, 377, 381, 383, 389, 399, 401, 407
Bolano, Roberto 15, 16, 229, 249
Bolden, Emma 199
Bolton, Ken 433, 434, 438
Borges, Millicent 15, 16
Bowering, George H. 26
Bowering, Harry 413, 439
Boyer, Anne 213, 215, 452
Boykoff, Jules 244, 252
Bozicevic, Ana 163, 455
BpNichol 19, 85, 95, 194
Brady, Taylor 38, 158, 356
Bramhall, Allen 210
Brazil, David 71, 129, 238
Brecht, Bertolt 229, 249
Briante, Susan 336, 380
Brockwell, Stephen 404
Brook, Donna 13
Brossard, Nicole 100, 262, 305
Broughton, James 19
Brown, Ann 70
Brown, Brandon 38, 129, 238
Brown, Kurt 424
Browne, Colin 105, 410, 442
Browning, Robert 13, 280, 313
Bryan, John 191, 233, 440
Bryant, Dana 452
Bryant, Tisa 440
Bunting, Basil 262
Burgess, Matthew 13
Burke, Andrew 253
Burke, Edmund 200
Burkhardt, Rick 370
Burroughs, William S. 19, 450
Bush, George 62, 135, 196
Butler, William 132, 400
Byrne, Edward 210
Cafe, Poets 13
Cage, John 19, 428
Cale, John 19
Cameron, David 13
Cameron, Sharon 404
Campbell, Andy 280
Campbell, Bruce 441
Campbell, Jeremy 105, 134
Cannon, Steve 164, 208
Carr, Julie 255, 427
Carroll, Lewis 15, 16
Carson, Anne 262
Carson, Margaret 34, 46, 212, 219, 220, 222, 228, 239, 247, 248, 250, 254, 261, 263, 264, 266, 269, 271, 275, 279, 282, 284, 285, 286

Carter, Angela 2, 355, 411
Carver, Jane 450
Carver, Raymond 317
Casamassima, Christophe 52
Casey, Sean 209
Celan, Paul 4, 63
Ceravolo, Joseph 262
Cervantes, James 210, 274
Cha, Theresa Hak Kyung 262
Chace, Joel 395
Chadwick, Lynn 213, 215
Chang, Iris 387
Chaplin, Charlie 46
Cheney, Don 30, 135, 185, 196
Chernoff, Maxine 424
Cherry, Don 56
Chester, Jeff 213, 215
Child, Abby 416, 417, 430
Child, Abigail 70
Christie, Jason 38
Claire, Barbara 233, 387, 441
Clark, Douglas 210
Clark, Emilie 19, 101, 150, 198, 336, 406, 440
Clarke, Jack 85, 95
Clarke, Robin 82, 234, 305
Clausen, Andy 354, 362
Clifford, Pat 391, 419
Clinton, Bill 301, 335, 338, 367
Clover, Joshua 88
Coffey, Michael 13
Cohen, Alicia 262
Cohen, Joshua 317
Cohen, Leonard 82
Coleman, Jen 13
Coletti, John 13
Collins, Martha 150, 387
Collis, Stephen 443
Comments, Poets 88
Conner, Bruce 298, 308
Connolly, Kevin 194
Coolidge, Clark 19
Corelis, Jon 210
Corso, Gregory 450
County, Madison 90, 213, 215
Covey, Bruce 199
Crane, Lee 15, 16, 213, 215
Crawford, Holly 432
Creeley, Robert 19, 85, 95, 213, 215, 262, 387
Crooker, Barbara 74, 103
Cross, Michael 38, 158, 356
Cruz, Cynthia 163, 455
Cunningham, Brent 129, 238
Daniels, Chris 106
Darwish, Mahmoud 272
Davenport, Steve 269, 286
Davidson, Amanda 47, 238, 320, 416, 417, 430
Davidson, Daniel 105
Davies, Kevin 105
Davis, Martin 132, 199, 272
Degentesh, Katie 127
Delany, Samuel R. 110
Deleuze, Gilles 247, 263
Dennis, Carl 47, 210, 238, 253, 262, 320, 416, 417, 430
Derrida, Jacques 19
Desmond, Rae 220
Desnos, Robert 262
Devaney, Thomas 52
Dickinson, Mark 38
Dickow, Alexander 210
Dillon, Matt 210, 313
Dillon, Richard 210
Dine, Jim 252
Dojoji, Alan 93, 355
Dolin, Sharon 210, 255
Doller, Ben 313
Donato, Claire 204, 313
Donovan, Thom 38, 158, 356, 365, 370
Dorn, Edward 19
Dos, John 34, 46
Doty, Mark 387
Duemer, Joseph 74, 103
Duhamel, Denise 272
Duncan, Andrew 127
Duncan, Robert 3, 20, 21, 25, 28, 35, 40, 54, 61, 85, 95, 105, 262, 346, 438
Durgin, Patrick 191, 213, 215
Dworkin, Craig 373
Dylan, Bob 82
Dylan, Michael 212, 219, 222, 228, 239, 247, 248, 250, 254, 261, 263, 264, 266, 269, 271, 275, 279, 284, 285, 286, 288
Edmond, Martin 63
Edson, Russell 262
Elena, Maria 210, 395
Eli, Noah 336
Ellen, Mary 19
Elliott, George 305, 443
Eluard, Paul 127
Emerson, Claudia 346
England, Amy 105, 163, 387, 455
Esther, Little 403
Ethan, Jeffrey 450
Etter, Carrie 255
Eugene, Brett 15, 16, 34, 46, 82, 410
Evans, Brett 244
Evans, Steve 106
Fagin, Larry 272
Fainlight, Ruth 210
Falk, Pat 210
Farr, Roger 305

Federman, Raymond 427
Felix, Joel 15, 16
Ferguson, Jesse 404
Feuillade, Louis 15, 16
Fiedler, Leslie 85, 95
Finch, Annie 213, 215
Fiorini, Jessica 13
Firestone, Jennifer 13, 305, 395
Fisher, Ann 66, 83
Fishman, Ellen 295
Fishman, Lisa 191
Fitch, Andy 322
Foley, Patrick 55, 113
Folsom, Eric 176
Foreman, Richard 19
Forrest, Lisa 178, 180, 182, 400, 422
Foust, Graham 336
Fox, Hugh 107, 387
France, Peter 15, 16, 66, 83, 328, 394, 405, 408, 413, 414, 441
Frances, Mary 34, 46
Fraser, Kathleen 11
Fraser, Simon 85, 95
Freedman, Robert 411
Friedman, David M. 13
Fugate, Ethan 13
Fuhrman, Joanna 13
Fulton, Alice 404
Gallagher, Kristen 166, 177, 213, 215
Galvin, James 178, 180, 182
Gander, Forrest 313, 380, 424
Gardner, Drew 19
Gardner, Janet 387
Genet, Jean 104, 109, 114, 120, 141, 185
Giffin, Lawrence 429
Gilbert, Alan 38
Gilbert, Susan 158
Giles, Samantha 417, 430
Gillespie, William 399
Gilmore, Gary 209
Gimenez, Carmen 380
Ginsberg, Allan 85, 95
Ginsberg, Allen 34, 46, 134, 427, 450
Giorno, John 19, 213, 215
Gironda, Belle 38
Giscombe, Cecil 42
Gizzi, Peter 305, 427
Gladman, Renee 110
Glomski, Chris 191, 424
Godine, David 312
Godston, Daniel 191
Golata, Russ 49, 74, 103
Goldberg, Michael 129, 238
Goldman, Judith 70, 191
Goldsmith, Kenneth 19, 213, 215, 281, 401
Goldstein, Jack 19
Goldstein, Laura 70
Gonzalez, Ray 13, 388
Goodman, Amy 301
Gordon, Nada 13, 19, 106, 166, 177
Gordon, Robert 18, 19, 85, 95, 213, 215, 336, 370
Gorey, Edward 34, 46
Gould, Glenn 74, 103
Gould, Henry 74, 103, 210
Graham, Dan 19
Graham, David 210
Graham, Lea 7, 210, 305
Gray, Jason 395
Gray, Stephanie 13
Green, Heather 395
Greenberg, Arielle 392
Greenstreet, Kate 336
Greenwald, Ted 336
Gregg, Linda 262
Gregory, Dick 19, 220
Grenier, Robert 11
Grieco, Peter 400
Griffin, Tim 370
Griffiths, Bill 262
Grinnell, Tracy 11
Grumman, Bob 74, 103, 210
Guattari, Félix 247, 263
Guest, Barbara 262
Guinzio, Carolyn 204
Guston, Philip 19
Guthrie, Camille 272
Halpern, Rob 38, 158
Halsey, Alan 210
Hamilton, Ann 19
Hamilton, Diana 13
Hammond, Paul 52
Hampton, Fred 295
Harrington, Joe 128
Harris, Kaplan 387, 440
Harryman, Carla 262
Hart, Matt 313, 450
Harvey, George 79
Harvey, James 149
Harvey, Roy 100
Hav, Niels 419
Hayashida, Jennifer 388
Hayes, Jared 442
Heaney, Seamus 220
Hecht, Anthony 68, 73, 75, 78, 97, 104, 108, 109, 111, 112, 114, 115, 116, 117, 119, 120, 121, 123, 125, 130, 140, 141, 142, 185
Heidegger, Martin 333
Hejinian, Lyn 281
Heller, Mike 295
Herbert, George 34, 46
Herbert, John 9, 23, 37, 45, 48, 56, 77, 145, 161, 165, 173, 245, 259, 260, 265, 268, 292, 368, 369, 371, 372, 373, 377, 381, 383, 389

Heron, Patrick 392
Higgins, Billy 105, 370
Higgins, Dick 19, 262
Highfill, Mitch 38, 66, 83
Hillman, Brenda 52, 313
Hills, Henry 47, 238, 320, 416, 417, 430
Hofer, Jen 38, 158, 191, 213, 215, 424
Hoff, James 19
Hoffberg, Judith 309
Holloway, Rob 213, 215
Holman, Bob 210, 241, 277, 296, 316, 321, 323
Holmes, Janet 336
Holmes, Michael 336
Homan, Brandi 191
Homer 15, 16, 68, 73, 75, 78, 97, 104, 108, 109, 111, 112, 114, 115, 116, 117, 119, 120, 121, 123, 125, 130, 140, 141, 142, 185
Hong, Maxine 151
Hoover, Paul 52, 424
Horton, David 69, 81
Hosea, Chris 395
House, Poets 13, 63
House, White 135, 196, 364, 374
Howard, David 74, 103, 210
Howard, Scott 74, 103, 176, 317
Howe, Susan 17, 262
Howsare, Erika 392
Hoy, Dan 13
Hughes, Langston 272
Hughes, Peter 197
Hughes, Ted 220
Hugo, Richard 65, 251, 403
Hummel, Thomas 204, 313
Hunter, Robert 19, 82
Iijima, Brenda 13, 38, 158, 356
Indiana, Robert 150, 185, 294
Ireland, Lauren 13, 220, 330
Israel, David 27, 30, 66, 83, 135, 185, 196, 301, 304, 379, 403
Israeli, Henry 27, 135, 185, 196, 301
Jackson, Jesse 329, 387
Jacob, Max 272, 347
Jacobs, Jane 233
Jacobs, Ken 105
Jameson, Fred 70, 191
Janssen, Lisa 70, 191
Jarnot, Lisa 213, 215
Javier, Paolo 13, 47, 238, 320, 416, 417, 430
Jeffery, Mark 272
Jenks, Philip 262
Johnson, Kent 380
Johnston, Daniel 404
Jonas, Steve 19
Jones, Brian 19, 34, 46, 204, 280, 294
Jones, Jill 210
Jordan, June 230, 424
Joron, Andrew 442
Joseph, Lawrence 166, 177
Joseph, Safdie 11, 36, 210, 280, 327, 331, 343
Joyce, James 19, 34, 46
Joyce, Trevor 19, 107
Kafka, Franz 271
Kaiser, Henry 19
Kapsalis, Terri 191
Karasick, Adeena 13, 100, 213, 215
Katko, Justin 110, 272
Katz, Alex 163, 455
Katz, Eliot 168
Kaufman, Erica 244, 395
Keene, John 191
Kelley, Jeff 22
Kelley, Karen 262
Kelly, Patrick 59, 234, 388
Kelsey, Karla 110, 213, 215, 336, 410
Kendig, Diane 210
Kennedy, David 34, 46, 387
Kerouac, Jack 427
Killian, Kevin 100, 129, 305, 320, 451
King, Cindy 395
Kinnell, Galway 107
Kinsella, John 220
Kinsella, Thomas 220
Kirschenbaum, David A. 13, 209, 283, 336
Kirschenbaum, Matthew G. 13
Klein, Julia 70
Klink, Joanna 127
Knowles, Christopher 19
Kostelanetz, Richard 432
Kramer, Wendy 47, 129, 238
Kraus, Karl 34, 46
Krusoe, Jim 127
Kuchar, George 19
Lacan, Jacques 14, 19
Ladouceur, Ben 404
Lamoureux, Mark 13
Lampert, Gerald 194
Landrey, David 53
Lang, Abigail 11
Larkin, Maryrose 262
Larkin, Philip 362
Latta, John 88
Lau, David 345
Laughlin, James 13, 336
Lawless, Amy 13
Lawton, David 187, 206
Lederer, Katy 38, 66, 83
Leftwich, Jim 74, 103, 210, 253
Leonard, Tom 34, 46
Levertov, Denise 75, 97, 108, 111, 112, 115, 116, 117, 119, 121, 123, 125, 130, 140, 142
Levine, Jeffrey 387, 443
Levitsky, Rachel 427

Levy, Andrew 38, 158
Lew, Walter K. 13
Lewis, Bernard 15, 16, 230, 336
Licht, Alan 19
Lilly, Ruth 163, 455
Lin, Daniel 395
Little, Billy 18, 85, 95, 305
Liu, Timothy 388
Livia, Anna 19
Logan, William 348, 406
Lohmann, Sam 262, 443
Lomax, Alan 305
London, Frank 19, 105, 441
Louise, Bobbie 105, 301
Louv, Richard 257, 293
Mac Low, Jackson 19, 262
Lowell, Amy 294
Lowell, Robert 107
Lowenthal, Jessica 166, 177
Lunberry, Clark 36
Luoma, Bill 47, 238, 320, 416, 417, 430
Lurie, Bobbi 210
Luther, Martin 29, 50, 230
Mackey, Mary 317
Mackey, Nate 25, 35
Mackey, Nathaniel 25, 35, 317
Madison, James 370
Mallarmé, Stéphane 15, 16
Maloutas, Barbara 313, 336
Mancus, Tony 395
Mandelstam, Osip 4
Marie, Anne 19, 132, 251, 302, 311, 336
Marsh, Bill 52, 317
Marshall, Robert 19
Martin, Charles 74, 103
Martin, Chris 13
Marvin, Lee 19, 280
Marx, Karl 15, 16
Mauro, Nicole 233
Maxwell, Andrew 336
Mayakovsky, Vladimir 229, 249
Mayer, Bernadette 52, 163, 262, 272, 455
Mayer, Jane 401
Mayo, Tim 210
Mccaffery, Steve 11, 19
Meadows, Deborah A. 137
Meltzer, David 19
Menefee, Sarah 210
Menendez, Didi 294
Mercado, Nancy 168
Mercuri, John 36
Meredith, William 262
Metres, Philip 88
Mikkalo, Erika 191
Miller, Paul D. 13, 34, 46, 82, 105
Milosevich, Karla 47, 320, 416, 417, 430
Milton, John 105, 334
Mindock, Gloria 387
Miriam, Erica 19, 387
Mitchell, Joan 233
Mohammad, Kasey 213, 215, 410
Monk, Geraldine 210
Monk, Ian 372
Monroe, Harriet 82
Moody, Rick 19, 251
Moore, Allison 74, 103, 187, 206
Moore, Marianne 262
Moore, Nicholas 19
Morris, Robert 19
Morrison, Bill 38, 158, 320, 336, 356
Morrison, Rusty 313
Morse, Jesse 262, 443
Morton, Colin 404
Motherwell, Robert 347
Mottram, Eric 19
Moulthrop, Stuart 280
Muldoon, Paul 220, 424
Mullen, Harryette 262, 389
Mulligan, Jennifer 305, 404
Munro, Alice 160
Murfin, Ira S. 191
Murphy, Paul 74, 103, 210
Murphy, Ryan 13
Murphy, Sheila E. 210, 253
Mycue, Edward 74, 103, 210
Myles, Eileen 370
Naka, Michelle 52
Nakayasu, Sawako 38, 52, 158, 356, 427
Nathanson, Tenney 38
Nauman, Bruce 19
Nechvatal, Joseph 19
Nelson, Paul E. 3, 20, 21, 24, 25, 28, 35, 40, 54, 61, 403
Nevins, Bill 281
Newton, Keith 204
Nguyen, Hoa 38, 318, 356
Nicole, Anna 70, 156, 185
Niedecker, Lorine 262
Nielsen, Aldon L. 7, 42, 43, 306, 314, 359, 364, 374
Nielson, Melanie 213, 215
Noel, Urayoan 13
Notley, Alice 127, 142, 262
Nufer, Doug 372
O'Hara, Frank 213, 215, 272
Ochs, Larry 336
Oliver, Douglas 303
Olivia, Carrie 313
Olsen, Geoffrey 13
Olsen, Lance 25, 35, 255
Olson, Charles 28, 54, 61, 85, 95
Olson, Kirby 20, 28, 40, 54, 61, 85, 95
Oppen, George 100, 146, 171, 185, 262, 295
Owens, Mark 262

Owens, Richard 294
Pacific, Asian 39, 335
Pacosz, Christina 210
Paige, Abby 336
Palin, Sarah 29, 50, 301
Palm, Lars 74, 103
Palmer, Michael 262, 412
Parker, Frank 210
Parker, Michael 199, 210
Partridge, Amy 191
Patterson, Ian 313
Patton, Julie 38, 281, 356
Paulin, Tom 220
Pecore, Donna 74, 103
Pecqueur, Paul 13, 163, 395, 455
Peet, Christian 395
Peltier, Leonard 301
Perelman, Bob 262, 272
Perloff, Marjorie 19
Persky, Stan 85, 95
Pettibon, Raymond 47, 129, 320
Peverett, Michael 210
Phillips, Beth 262
Phillips, Carl 127
Picabia, Francis 436
Piombino, Nicholas 210
Piuma, Chris 262
Place, Vanessa 47, 194, 238, 281, 320, 348
Plath, Sylvia 107, 197
Poe, Allan 15, 16
Polito, Robert 424
Ponge, Francis 260, 265, 268, 292, 369
Porter, Anne 19
Posamentier, Evelyn 74, 103
Potter, Steve 233
Pound, Ezra 19, 20, 25, 28, 35, 40, 54, 61
Powell, Ren 336
Prevallet, Kristin 11
Price, Brett 395
Price, Seth 19
Prince, Richard 19, 294, 370
Professor, Kelly 7, 42, 43, 306, 314, 359, 364, 374
Pullinger, Kate 280
Purcell, Greg 13
Queneau, Raymond 347, 381
Queyras, Sina 194
Quixote, Don 274
Radon, Lisa 262
Ramos, Peter 380
Randall, Karen 7
Rankine, Claudia 47, 238, 320, 416, 417, 430
Raphael, Dan 262, 403
Rattray, David 206
Raven, Francis 15, 16
Raworth, Tom 11, 88
Reagan, Nancy 328, 342
Reddin, Elizabeth 13
Reed, Lou 19
Regan, Matthias 135, 185, 196
Reich, Steve 19
Remein, Daniel C. 234
Retallack, Joan 213, 215, 262
Revell, Donald 424
Reverdy, Pierre 259, 265
Reynolds, Rebecca 191, 348, 406
Rhodes, Shane 404
Rich, Frank 402
Rich, Susan 210
Richards, Brian 210
Riding, Laura 262, 444
Ridley, Sandra 404
Rilke, Rainer Maria 132
Rimbaud, Dee 15, 16, 20, 28, 40, 54, 61, 272
Rippeon, Andrew 38, 158
Roberts, Gary 34, 46, 359, 374
Roberts, Jenny 70
Rodefer, Stephen 11, 127
Rogers, Jennifer 34, 46
Ronk, Martha 410
Rooney, Kathleen 57
Rosenberg, David 127
Ross, Alex 19
Ross, Joe 11
Rossiter, Charlie 150
Rothenberg, Jerry 11
Roubaud, Jacques 11
Royer, Ric 395
Rubin, Michael 19
Sailers, Cynthia 213, 215
Sala, Jerome 13, 213, 215
Samperi, Frank 262
Sanchez, Jorge 272
Sanders, James 52
Sanders, Jay 387
Sappho 25, 35, 269, 286
Saroyan, William 262
Savage, Tom 13, 225, 438
Sawyer, Larry 424
Scalapino, Leslie 47, 238, 320
Scappettone, Jennifer 336, 424
Schneeman, George 19, 452
Schneiderman, Jason 199
Schoen, Jesse 336
Schultz, Susan M. 39
Schuster, Josh 317
Schwabsky, Barry 52, 395
Schwartz, Jerry 34, 46
Schwerner, Armand 19
Schwitters, Kurt 19, 262
Searle, John 333
Seaton, Peter 441
Sebastian, Nic 105, 107
Selby, Spencer 74, 103, 210

Sexton, Anne 107
Shakespeare, William 13
Shapiro, David 13, 106, 262
Shaw, Lytle 19, 213, 215, 336
Shea, James 255
Shepard, Matthew 29, 50
Shepard, Sam 19
Sherlock, Frank 244
Sherman, Cindy 251
Sherry, James 213, 215
Shimoda, Brandon 443
Shmailo, Larissa 210
Shufran, Lauren 38
Shurin, Aaron 412
Silem, Kasey 213, 215, 410
Silliman, Ron 19, 100, 213, 215, 262, 451
Simmons, Diane 220
Simon, Greg 19, 105, 317, 443
Simone, Frank 68, 73, 75, 78, 97, 104, 108, 109, 111, 112, 114, 115, 116, 117, 119, 120, 121, 123, 125, 130, 140, 141, 142, 185, 201, 276, 298, 308, 324, 332, 334, 339, 340, 424
Sims, Laura 370, 395
Skinner, Jonathan 38, 213, 215
Sky, Tarpaulin 317
Smith, Alexis 56
Smith, Harry 68, 73, 75, 78, 97, 104, 108, 109, 111, 112, 114, 115, 116, 117, 119, 120, 121, 123, 125, 130, 140, 141, 142, 150, 185, 187, 206, 213, 215, 380, 404, 449, 450
Smith, Patricia 25, 35, 68, 73, 75, 78, 97, 104, 108, 109, 111, 112, 114, 115, 116, 117, 119, 120, 121, 123, 125, 130, 140, 141, 142, 185
Smither, Elizabeth 210
Smithson, Robert 19
Snyder, Gary 134, 167, 178, 180, 182, 184, 186, 200
Snyder, Rick 241, 277, 296, 316, 321, 323
Sol, Adam 194
Spacks, Barry 210
Spahr, Boyd 25, 35
Spahr, Juliana 180, 182, 213, 215, 233
Sparrow, John 34, 46, 52, 272
Spender, Stephen 34, 46
Spicer, Jack 24, 29, 50, 262, 305, 427, 438
Spicer, John 24, 434, 438
Square, Madison 66, 83
Stackhouse, Christopher 191
Stalin, Joseph 308
Stanford, Frank 204
Stanley, George 85, 95
Stanley, Jared 82, 199
Stanton, Rob 168
Stecopoulos, Eleni 13
Steensen, Sasha 255
Stefans, Kim 213, 215, 373
Stein, Gertrude 6, 17, 213, 215, 262, 272
Stein, Suzanne 38, 158
Steiner, Konrad 47, 238, 320, 416, 417, 430
Stevens, Wallace 34, 46, 262
Stewart, Christine 348
Stewart, Jon 302, 311, 365
Stonecipher, Donna 392
Strickland, Stephanie 19, 313, 336, 452
Styron, William 75, 97, 108, 111, 112, 115, 116, 117, 119, 121, 123, 125, 130, 140, 142
Sullivan, Andrew 36, 424
Sutherland, Keston 127
Svalina, Mathias 13
Swensen, Cole 11, 305, 424
Szymaszek, Stacy 52, 213, 215, 427
Tabios, Eileen 74, 103, 210, 294
Taggart, John 262
Tarn, Nathaniel 262
Taylor, Tom 19, 38, 74, 103, 404
Taylor, Wendy 74, 103, 210
Teare, Brian 346
Tejada, Roberto 380
Templeton, Fiona 63
Terry, Philip 49, 164, 372
Texas, Irving 71, 131, 336
Theater, Poets 47, 129, 238, 320, 416, 417, 430
Thomas, Dylan 82, 199, 225, 234, 314, 343, 438
Thompson, George 13, 82, 404
Thurston, Kevin 294
Timmons, Matt 13, 272
Tipton, John 127
Tonelli, Chris 313
Toscano, Rodrigo 13, 52, 255, 336, 370, 380
Touchon, Cecil 210
Trinidad, David 272
Tucker, Aaron 406, 440
Turner, Victor 3, 14, 20, 21, 25, 28, 35, 40, 54, 61, 161, 165, 173, 262
Tynes, Jen 392
Tzara, Tristan 18, 19
Updike, John 34, 46
Upton, Lawrence 253
Valery, Paul 11
Vallejo, César 230, 262
Vassilakis, Nico 52, 210
Veglahn, Sara 427
Vermont, Charlie 336
Virgil 15, 16, 82, 345
Volkman, Karen 213, 215
Voyer, Edmund 68, 73, 75, 78, 97, 104, 108, 109, 111, 112, 114, 115, 116, 117, 119, 120, 121, 123, 125, 130, 140, 141, 142, 185
Waber, Dan 210, 432

Waldman, Anne 427
Waldrop, Keith 11, 347
Waldrop, Rosemary 347
Waldrop, Rosmarie 11
Walker, Laura 6
Wallace, Nicole 13, 34, 166, 177, 252, 404
Warhol, Andy 19, 75, 82, 97, 108, 111, 112, 115, 116, 117, 119, 121, 123, 125, 130, 140, 142
Warren, Kenneth 29, 38, 50, 158, 356, 404, 443
Warren, Rick 29, 50, 118, 328, 342
Washington, George 151, 191, 251, 374, 380, 403, 445, 446
Watson, Craig 272
Watts, Charles 135, 185, 196
Weaver, Rebecca 74, 103, 387
Weber, Damian 13, 265
Weiner, Hannah 70, 262
Weiner, Lawrence 19
Welch, Lew 262
Wellman, Donald 36
Wertheim, Christine 281, 282
Westbrook, Dillon 47, 238, 320, 416, 417, 430
Whalen, Philip 85, 95
White, Jared 313
Whitehead, Gregory 19
Whitehead, Ron 19, 110
Whitman, Walt 11, 354, 362
Wieners, John 206
Williams, Jonathan 262
Williams, Paul O. 19, 34, 46, 150, 443
Williams, Tyrone 326, 419
Williams, William Carlos 19, 85, 95, 262
Wilson, Karen 105
Wilson, Robert 19
Winkfield, Trevor 272
Wittgenstein, Ludwig 71, 101, 102, 190, 201, 276
Wolfe, Thomas 82
Wordsworth, William 167, 178, 180, 182, 184, 186, 200, 257, 293
Wright, C. D. 13, 262
Yankelevich, Matvei 129, 238
Yates, Katie 38
Yeary, James 262
Young, Dean 313
Young, Karl 210
Young, Mark 210
Young, Stephanie 213, 215
Zawacki, Andrew 442
Zolf, Rachel 213, 215, 404
Zorn, John 416, 417, 430
Zukofsky, Louis 17, 262
Zurawski, Magdalena 100, 213, 215
Žižek, Slavoj 384, 397

CONCEPTS

Activism and protest 18, 118, 301, 406, 448
Aesthetics 7, 100, 163, 172, 190, 201, 274, 276, 294, 310, 385, 402, 455
Affect 416, 417, 430
Afghanistan 27, 229, 249
African American poetry 150, 185, 412
Anthologies 13, 19, 39, 74, 85, 95, 103, 150, 151, 163, 185, 194, 210, 233, 241, 277, 290, 296, 310, 316, 321, 323, 338, 341, 404, 455
Anti-Semitism 29, 50
Appropriation 12, 19, 23, 29, 50, 107, 120, 141, 185, 196, 281, 367
Archives and libraries 11, 19, 34, 46, 65, 85, 95, 100, 110, 188, 194, 198, 205, 207, 213, 215, 220, 224, 225, 227, 235, 236, 237, 243, 252, 272, 274, 297, 309, 317, 382, 387, 398, 400, 403, 412, 419, 441, 448
Autobiography 19, 66, 83, 85, 95, 107, 127, 148, 151, 153, 213, 215, 295, 305, 400
Avant-garde 69, 81, 90, 137, 213, 215, 230, 370, 398, 427
Beat generation 349, 366
Beauty 126, 145, 161, 165, 172, 173, 185, 190, 201, 220, 276, 299, 307, 327, 331, 343
Biography 91, 92, 272, 422, 426
Blogs 3, 4, 6, 7, 13, 14, 15, 16, 19, 20, 21, 22, 24, 25, 27, 28, 29, 30, 34, 35, 40, 42, 43, 46, 47, 50, 54, 61, 67, 69, 81, 83, 88, 90, 94, 96, 100, 103, 106, 107, 118, 128, 129, 135, 148, 150, 155, 166, 167, 174, 176, 177, 178, 180, 182, 183, 184, 185, 186, 188, 191, 194, 196, 200, 204, 205, 207, 210, 211, 213, 215, 216, 221, 224, 225, 226, 227, 230, 234, 235, 236, 237, 238, 243, 252, 253, 257, 258, 262, 276, 278, 287, 291, 293, 294, 296, 303, 304, 305, 306, 310, 311, 314, 316, 320, 321, 323, 336, 338, 345, 346, 347, 348, 351, 352, 353, 359, 364, 370, 374, 379, 381, 387, 390, 396, 397, 403, 404, 408, 409, 412, 413, 414, 416, 417, 423, 428, 429, 430, 433, 434, 436, 438, 443, 451
Book announcements 13, 19, 39, 110, 131, 191, 213, 215, 233, 234, 244, 252, 278, 294, 295, 317, 345, 346, 347, 382, 386, 390, 419
Bookstores 15, 16, 34, 46, 107, 188, 198, 205, 207, 224, 225, 235, 236, 237, 243, 252, 295, 329, 386, 387, 427, 443, 448
Calls for submissions 133, 151, 234
Capitalism 3, 14, 15, 16, 20, 21, 25, 28, 29, 35, 40, 50, 54, 61, 68, 73, 75, 78, 97, 104, 108, 109, 111, 112, 114, 115, 116, 117, 119, 120, 121, 123, 125, 130, 140, 141, 142, 185, 212, 219, 222, 228, 239, 247,

248, 250, 252, 254, 261, 263, 264, 266, 269, 271, 275, 279, 284, 286, 288
Censorship 213, 215, 244
Cities 7, 58, 85, 95, 100, 105, 149, 150, 194, 206, 220, 221, 226, 229, 249, 257, 274, 283, 293, 339, 345, 400, 403, 404, 448
Climate 130, 357, 382
Close reading 177
Collage and montage 19, 71, 82, 272, 412, 416, 417, 430, 440
Conceptual writing 15, 16, 19, 213, 215, 281, 282, 453
Conferences and festivals 7, 12, 23, 27, 70, 71, 85, 95, 105, 131, 191, 194, 199, 255, 274, 330, 336, 348, 357, 370, 403, 404, 406, 420, 440, 449, 452
Copyright and permissions 15, 16, 19, 29, 50, 273, 299, 307, 434, 441
Craft 251, 336
Creative writing pedagogy 7, 326, 400, 449
Dada 18, 19, 229, 249, 262
Deconstruction 120, 141, 167, 178, 180, 182, 184, 185, 186, 200, 221, 226, 257, 293, 355
Difficulty 55, 113, 274, 301, 355
Digital archives 19, 77, 108, 112, 116, 117, 119, 123, 125, 157, 163, 177, 185, 192, 213, 215, 295
Disability 77
Dreams 15, 16, 40, 118, 163, 168, 281, 294, 305, 436, 447, 452, 455
Ecology and ecopoetics 4, 194, 213, 215, 301, 346
Editing 74, 90, 103, 158, 210, 213, 215, 241, 277, 296, 316, 321, 323, 370, 380
Ekphrasis 251
Electronic poetry and hypertext 19, 218, 240, 428, 436
Elegy 194
Empire and imperialism 19
Epic 3, 14, 15, 16, 20, 21, 25, 28, 35, 40, 54, 61, 229, 249, 294, 398, 451
Epistemology 295
Ethics 7, 194, 370
Experimental poetry 39, 63, 81, 236, 262, 336, 452
Fascism 19, 161, 165, 173, 229, 249, 272
Feminism 68, 73, 75, 78, 97, 100, 104, 108, 109, 111, 112, 114, 115, 116, 117, 119, 120, 121, 123, 125, 130, 140, 141, 142, 185, 228, 248
Film 13, 19, 29, 34, 46, 50, 66, 71, 82, 83, 90, 147, 149, 213, 215, 229, 249, 255, 272, 281, 294, 317, 416, 417, 422, 430, 433, 434, 438, 450
Flarf 106
Fluxus 19, 309
Formalism 454
Free verse 68
Futurism 15, 16, 19, 229, 249, 262
Gender 7
Grants and funding 19, 72, 100, 163, 229, 230, 249, 330, 336, 346, 367, 455
Haiku 305, 449
Humour and satire 7, 12, 18, 19, 23, 132, 144, 251, 338, 370, 394, 405, 408, 413, 414
Ideology 125, 126, 145, 161, 165, 172, 173, 190, 201, 276, 324, 332, 339
Improvisation 213, 215, 346, 416, 417, 430
Indigenous and Native poetics 151, 185, 229, 249, 276, 397, 408, 413, 414
Interviews 19, 29, 50, 82, 90, 107, 127, 132, 163, 213, 215, 233, 301, 305, 387, 404, 408, 413, 414, 427, 455
Israel and Palestine 19, 27, 30, 66, 83, 135, 185, 196, 301, 304, 379, 394, 403, 405, 408, 413, 414
Language poetry 15, 16, 19, 213, 215, 354, 362
Latino and Latin American poetry 356
Letters and correspondence 100, 325, 333, 337, 391, 454
List moderation 105, 126, 145, 157, 161, 165, 172, 173, 185, 190, 195, 201, 276, 282, 301, 357, 412
Little magazines 15, 16, 19, 39, 49, 71, 99, 110, 149, 150, 163, 166, 177, 212, 213, 215, 219, 222, 228, 229, 233, 234, 239, 247, 248, 249, 250, 252, 254, 261, 263, 264, 266, 269, 271, 272, 275, 278, 279, 284, 285, 286, 305, 356, 370, 398, 406, 410, 440, 441, 448, 455
Lyric poetry 294, 295, 304, 379
Marxism 14, 29, 50, 126, 145, 161, 165, 172, 173, 190, 201, 276
Materiality of the text 294
Memory 11, 70, 107, 132, 191, 206, 213, 215, 327, 331, 343, 348, 406, 410, 440, 442, 448
MFA programs 110, 150, 162, 188, 195, 197, 198, 202, 205, 207, 213, 215, 217, 224, 225, 232, 235, 236, 237, 243, 251, 252, 272, 282, 392, 398
Modernism 3, 14, 20, 21, 25, 28, 35, 40, 54, 61, 107, 126, 145, 161, 163, 165, 172, 173, 190, 201, 276, 345, 436, 455
Mourning and loss 46, 107, 229, 249, 304, 379
Multiculturalism 126, 145, 161, 165, 172, 173, 190, 201, 276
Music and poetry 2, 3, 6, 7, 13, 15, 16, 19, 20, 21, 25, 28, 34, 35, 40, 46, 54, 61, 63, 66, 82, 83, 90, 105, 126, 145, 149, 152, 161, 165, 166, 172, 173, 177, 187, 190, 201, 206, 208, 213, 215, 229, 249, 258, 273, 274, 276, 281, 283, 290, 295, 305, 306, 313, 314, 326, 327, 331, 332, 336,

339, 343, 349, 354, 355, 362, 365, 366, 367, 386, 400, 411, 416, 417, 428, 430, 443, 450, 451
Nationalism 7, 310
Nature 14, 21, 25, 35, 84, 90, 93, 107, 126, 145, 161, 165, 167, 172, 173, 178, 180, 181, 182, 183, 184, 185, 186, 190, 194, 200, 201, 218, 219, 221, 226, 228, 248, 257, 270, 274, 276, 281, 293, 294, 299, 307, 327, 331, 343, 374
Negativity and refusal 107
Obituary and memorial 18, 34, 46, 309, 452
Objectivism 100, 295
Ontology 65, 132
Oulipo 368, 371, 372, 373, 377, 381, 383, 389, 399, 401, 407
Performance and the poetry reading 13, 22, 49, 53, 58, 68, 73, 75, 78, 85, 90, 95, 97, 100, 104, 108, 109, 111, 112, 114, 115, 116, 117, 119, 120, 121, 123, 125, 130, 140, 141, 142, 150, 156, 160, 163, 168, 185, 187, 188, 194, 198, 205, 206, 207, 213, 215, 224, 225, 235, 236, 237, 243, 251, 252, 326, 335, 392, 400, 403, 410, 442
Philosophy 15, 16, 29, 50, 71, 100, 126, 145, 161, 165, 172, 173, 190, 201, 229, 249, 251, 274, 276, 299, 307, 325, 327, 331, 333, 337, 343, 347, 370, 384, 397, 454
Place and region 18, 105, 181, 184, 213, 215, 327, 328, 331, 342, 343
Poet laureate 150, 213, 215, 230, 449
Poetics 3, 9, 10, 17, 19, 20, 21, 23, 25, 26, 28, 33, 35, 38, 40, 45, 48, 54, 56, 61, 75, 77, 97, 100, 108, 111, 112, 115, 116, 117, 119, 121, 123, 125, 130, 131, 137, 140, 142, 145, 158, 161, 165, 173, 181, 185, 213, 215, 234, 252, 271, 281, 295, 299, 305, 307, 310, 326, 327, 331, 338, 343, 344, 345, 346, 347, 356, 373, 374, 383, 387, 402, 404, 416, 417, 424, 427, 430, 441, 450
Politics and poetry 272
Postmodernism 14, 107, 126, 145, 161, 165, 172, 173, 190, 201, 276
Print vs. digital 18, 19, 21, 25, 35, 75, 85, 95, 97, 103, 107, 108, 111, 112, 115, 116, 117, 119, 121, 123, 125, 130, 137, 140, 142, 149, 188, 205, 207, 210, 213, 215, 224, 225, 233, 235, 236, 237, 243, 252, 281, 282, 294, 296, 311, 316, 321, 323, 329, 333, 345, 346, 347, 386, 390, 429
Prizes and awards 19, 31, 39, 71, 100, 110, 160, 163, 194, 213, 215, 272, 295, 317, 326, 336, 346, 347, 352, 392, 410, 450, 455
Procedural and constraint writing 213, 215, 229, 249
Prose poem 15, 16, 272, 278, 369
Prosody and meter 365
Queer poetics 7, 29, 50, 51, 60, 62, 108, 110, 112, 116, 117, 118, 119, 123, 125, 229, 249, 343
Race and poetry 7, 41, 108, 112, 116, 117, 119, 123, 125, 131, 135, 150, 185, 196, 229, 249, 310
Reading announcements 19, 49, 160, 255, 262, 272, 301, 326, 335, 349, 366, 452
Religion and the sacred 14, 19, 29, 41, 50, 100, 105, 123, 126, 145, 150, 161, 165, 172, 173, 190, 201, 262, 276, 290, 298, 308, 327, 331, 332, 334, 339, 343, 358, 359, 368, 371, 372, 373, 377, 381, 383, 389, 395, 399, 401, 407
Representation 398, 407
Reviewing and criticism 15, 16, 19, 24, 49, 84, 86, 110, 127, 134, 146, 149, 163, 171, 180, 182, 191, 194, 205, 213, 215, 224, 225, 233, 235, 236, 237, 252, 272, 295, 305, 317, 335, 336, 345, 356, 392, 398, 410, 412, 419, 441, 445, 446, 455
Revision 128, 224, 235, 237, 252, 370
Romanticism 15, 16, 145, 161, 165, 173
Science 15, 16, 19, 126, 145, 161, 163, 165, 172, 173, 190, 201, 244, 252, 276, 298, 308, 333, 407, 435, 454, 455
Semiotics 69, 74, 81, 239, 247, 254, 261, 263, 264, 454
Serial poem 3, 14, 15, 16, 20, 21, 24, 25, 28, 35, 39, 40, 54, 61, 66, 83, 100, 213, 215, 410
Sestina 19
Small press publishing 15, 16, 31, 34, 38, 39, 46, 47, 49, 107, 110, 129, 132, 144, 148, 160, 162, 183, 189, 194, 197, 213, 215, 233, 238, 244, 272, 278, 305, 312, 313, 317, 320, 336, 346, 356, 387, 392, 398, 404, 417, 419, 430
Social media 187, 199, 206, 208, 209, 290, 319, 336, 392, 451
Software and code 251, 325, 333, 337, 454
Sonnet 40, 195, 442
Sound poetry 262, 302, 311, 426, 453
Structuralism 14
Subjectivity 24, 55, 69, 81, 107, 113, 123, 124, 139, 183, 194, 356
Sublime 257, 293
Surrealism 15, 16, 69, 81
Terrorism 301
The academy 7, 17, 19, 22, 34, 42, 43, 46, 71, 74, 85, 95, 100, 105, 110, 131, 151, 194, 195, 213, 215, 220, 239, 247, 252, 254, 261, 263, 264, 272, 276, 280, 301, 302, 305, 306, 311, 314, 317, 336, 345, 346, 347, 359, 364, 367, 374, 378, 380, 387, 392, 393, 397, 398, 402, 403, 408, 410, 413, 414, 419, 427, 441, 442, 450, 452

The body 68, 73, 75, 78, 97, 104, 107, 109, 114, 126, 145, 161, 165, 172, 173, 190, 201, 276, 278, 337, 346, 355, 454
The canon 294
The Holocaust 29, 39, 50, 118, 126, 143, 145, 161, 165, 170, 172, 173, 190, 201, 229, 249, 276
The internet 27, 62, 71, 118, 143, 170, 280, 448
The Iraq war 19, 27, 30, 118, 229, 249, 384, 397
The listserv 3, 7, 20, 28, 32, 40, 53, 54, 61, 85, 86, 95, 110, 124, 139, 160, 217, 232, 272, 326, 345, 346, 347, 354, 362, 387, 400
Theatre 13, 47, 63, 68, 73, 75, 78, 82, 90, 97, 100, 104, 107, 108, 109, 111, 112, 114, 115, 116, 117, 119, 120, 121, 123, 125, 129, 130, 140, 141, 142, 185, 220, 236, 238, 272, 301, 320, 367, 370, 416, 417, 422, 430, 436
Torture and Abu Ghraib 29, 50, 340, 360, 370
Translation 8, 15, 16, 55, 113, 126, 127, 133, 137, 145, 151, 161, 165, 172, 173, 190, 191, 201, 213, 215, 229, 249, 269, 276, 286, 305, 317, 335, 336, 347, 367, 403, 412, 416, 417, 419, 420, 424, 427, 430, 436, 441, 443
Vietnam 19, 328, 342
Visual and concrete poetry 19, 37, 48, 56, 83, 91, 92, 98, 99, 152, 280, 309, 310, 337, 407, 432, 454
Visual art 13, 15, 16, 19, 22, 82, 90, 105, 110, 126, 132, 145, 160, 161, 162, 163, 165, 172, 173, 175, 176, 185, 190, 191, 201, 208, 213, 215, 220, 246, 262, 272, 274, 276, 281, 289, 297, 305, 316, 321, 322, 323, 326, 347, 367, 404, 410, 412, 425, 450, 454, 455

Contents

Every entry links to its message. 455 in all.

1 JAN 2009

1. Jesse Glass — Happy New Year from Ahadada Books
2. Alan Sondheim — YouTube recording of our set at Bowery Poetry Club
3. Paul Nelson — Re: capitalism and the long poem
4. Pierre Joris — New Nomadics Posts!
5. Adam Tobin — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
6. Jeff Hansen — World Premiere Opera based on Stein's The Making of the Americans
7. ALDON L NIELSEN — FW: African American Literature - Conference Update and CFP
8. Jack Foley — (no subject)
9. John Cunningham — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
10. Corey Frost — Re: Inauguration theology and poetics 11. David-Baptiste Chirot — FW: 07/01/09 Parution/Projection des archives Double Change @ Libra...

2 JAN 2009

12. Richard Newman — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
13. David Kirschenbaum — The Portable Boog Reader 3 Online PDF Now Available
14. Eireene Nealand — Re: capitalism and the long poem
15. steve russell — Re: capitalism and the long poem
16. steve russell — Re: capitalism and the long poem
17. Peter Quartermain — Disjunctive Poetics in paperback
18. Jamie Reid — BILLY LITTLE NOVEMBER 14, 1943 - JANUARY 1, 2009

3 JAN 2009

19. UbuWeb — UBUWEB :: Featured Resources for the Year, 2008 (+Jan '09)
20. Mark Weiss — Re: capitalism and the long poem
21. carol dorf — Re: capitalism and the long poem
22. Nicholas Karavatos — at the Accident Gallery in Eureka, CA on Thursday the 8thþþ
23. John Cunningham — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
24. Paul Nelson — More on the evolution of the Serial poem
25. Eireene Nealand — Re: capitalism and the long poem
26. George Bowering — Re: Inauguration theology and poetics
27. David-Baptiste Chirot — YES, WE CAN STOP THE BLOODSHED: Links to Petitions and Events To Te...
28. George Bowering — Re: capitalism and the long poem
29. CA Conrad — OPEN LETTER to Rick Warren's new friend Melissa Etheridge /\\//\\\\/////\\\\\\...
30. Stephen Vincent — Eyeless in Gaza
31. Carol Novack — 2009 PressPress Chapbook Award
32. Lana Ayers — Call for Poetry Postcard participants
33. James Robinson — Data-Tantrum: Looking for members

4 JAN 2009

34. Joel Lewis — Gotham Book Mart Holdings Are Given to Penn
35. Eireene Nealand — Re: capitalism and the long poem
36. St. Thomasino — e·ratio is reading for issue 12
37. Jim Andrews — hockey violence (was poetry brothel)
38. Kyle Schlesinger — ON LAUNCH at The Poetry Project NYC ON Monday January 5th @ 8:00
39. Tinfish Press — Happy New Year from Tinfish Press in Kane`ohe, Hawai`i
40. steve russell — Re: capitalism and the long poem
41. { brad brace } — Reflected-Light --> Remaining-Days
42. ALDON L NIELSEN — photos from MLA off-site reading
43. ALDON L NIELSEN — Re: sound file from MLA off-site reading
44. Ruth Lepson — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

45. Ruth Lepson — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
46. Mark Weiss — Re: Gotham Book Mart Holdings Are Given to Penn
47. Small Press Traffic — Small Press Traffic's Annual Poets Theater -- 3 Glorious Nights: Janu…

5 JAN 2009

48. John Cunningham — Re: hockey violence (was poetry brothel)
49. blacksox — It's almost 1st Tuesday
50. Sharon Mesmer/David Borchart — Re: OPEN LETTER to Rick Warren's new friend Melissa Etheridge
51. Gwyn McVay — Re: hockey violence (was poetry brothel)
52. Cara Benson — Sous Rature 2ssue is online
53. Michael Kelleher — Literary Buffalo Newsletter 01.05.09-01.11.09
54. Paul Nelson — Re: capitalism and the long poem
55. John Foley — EZRA POUND FLASHPOINT EXTRA!
56. George Bowering — Re: hockey violence (was poetry brothel)
57. William Allegrezza — Come to Series A this Wed.
58. William Allegrezza — Any experimental writers coming to Chicago this spring/summer?
59. Al Filreis — dial a poem
60. George Bowering — Re: hockey violence (was poetry brothel)
61. George Bowering — Re: capitalism and the long poem
62. Daniel Zimmerman — Re: hockey violence (was poetry brothel)
63. Stephen Motika — Celan Tribute featuring Fiona Templeton and Barbez

6 JAN 2009

64. Eiríkur Örn Norðdahl — Inger Christensen - 1935-2009
65. Deborah Poe — our parenthetical ontology: deborah poe (ordering and events)
66. Gary Sullivan — Mitch Highfill and Katy Lederer
67. Joel Weishaus — Fw: Reality Too-December 2008
68. Fluffy Singler — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
69. Fluffy Singler — FW: language v. experimental 70. Jennifer Karmin — WEEK ONE: When Does It or You Begin?
71. Jim Andrews — 88 Constellations for Wittgenstein by David Clark
72. Cara Benson — The NEW & IMPROVED New Deal
73. Ruth Lepson — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
74. Obododimma Oha — While the He/Art Pants Live
75. Ruth Lepson — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
76. Gwyn McVay — Re: hockey violence (was poetry brothel)
77. Ruth Lepson — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
78. Mark Weiss — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

7 JAN 2009

79. George Bowering — Re: hockey violence (was poetry brothel)
80. Alan Sondheim — uke juke
81. Troy Camplin — Re: language v. experimental
82. Doug Holder — I Will Always Remember It Well: The Chelsea Hotel
83. Alexander Jorgensen — Re: Visual Poetry online - Thrill!
84. Steve Glines — Wilderness House Literary Review
85. Jamie Reid — More about Billy Little
86. Cara Benson — URGENT - poets needed for PEN Prison Writing Contest
87. Ruth Lepson — prostitution
88. Geoffrey Gatza — Praise on the feneon collective
89. Catherine Daly — Re: Issue 1/Verzion 2
90. Martha Cinader Mims — L&BH Network Fresh Literary Content January 7, 2009
91. Séamas Cain — Concrete Poetry of Niikuni Seiichi
92. Alexander Jorgensen — "The Concrete Poetry of Niikuni Seiichi : Between Poetry and Art"
93. Alan Sondheim — edenic and others
94. Peter Ciccariello — moral ground

95. George Bowering — Re: More about Billy Little
96. lanny quarles — Recently on Jellybean Weirdo and Phaneronoemikon

8 JAN 2009

97. Troy Camplin — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
98. Jim Andrews — Re: hockey violence (was poetry brothel)
99. Alexander Jorgensen — Visual Poetry - VISPO - Poll
100. Ken Rumble — Fwd: Start the New Year Off Right...
101. Sarah Sarai — Re: 88 Constellations for Wittgenstein by David Clark
102. Sarah Sarai — Re: 88 Constellations for Wittgenstein by David Clark
103. Anny Ballardini — The Election Anthology
104. steve russell — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
105. Séamas Cain — Radiator festival & satellite events
106. Geoffrey Gatza — Further on the feneon collective
107. Doug Holder — The Fearful Symmetries of Lo Galluccio’s Sarasota VII
108. amy king — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
109. Mark Weiss — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
110. Poetry Project — Events at The Poetry Project January
111. Adam Tobin — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
112. Troy Camplin — Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
113. steve d. dalachinsky — Re: EZRA POUND FLASHPOINT EXTRA!
114. Ruth Lepson — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
115. Ruth Lepson — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
116. Ruth Lepson — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
117. amy king — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
118. CA Conrad — Re: OPEN LETTER to Rick Warren's new friend Melissa Etheridge
119. Ruth Lepson — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
120. Mark Weiss — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
121. steve russell — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

9 JAN 2009

122. Eireene Nealand — Russian (Literary) Agent
123. Troy Camplin — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
124. Richard Louis Ray — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
125. Troy Camplin — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
126. Troy Camplin — On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry
127. Chicago Review — New issue of Chicago Review
128. Ruth Lepson — Re: Issue 1/Verzion 2
129. David Buuck — Friday 1/16: Small Press Traffic's Poets Theater Fest 09, night 1
130. Adam Tobin — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
131. Dale Smith — Amiri Baraka on Ed Dorn
132. Doug Holder — Human Derivatives in Doug Holder’s: The Man in the Booth in the Midtown Tunn...

10 JAN 2009

133. Paul Foster Johnson — Litmus Press Call for Submissions
134. David-Baptiste Chirot — Ginsberg & Gary Snyder: Two collections of Letters reviewed --NY Ti...
135. Stephen Vincent — Re: Eyeless in Gaza
136. steve russell — Re: Prostitution in Sweden
137. Poetics List — Fwd: Tango with Cows [on behalf of Deborah A. Meadows]
138. Ruth Lepson — Re: Prostitution in Sweden
139. Ruth Lepson — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
140. Ruth Lepson — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

11 JAN 2009

141. Ruth Lepson — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

142. Murat Nemet-Nejat — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
143. David Seaman — Adam
144. David Giannini — please post
145. John Cunningham — Re: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry
146. Eric Hoffman — Oppen quote - help!
147. Eiríkur Örn Norðdahl — Re: Prostitution in Sweden
148. Rob McLennan — [[redacted]: AngelHousePress Essay Series, # 1]
149. Martha King — Joan Silber & Mike DeCapite read NYC 2-5
150. Alexander Jorgensen — STEEL PUDDING anthology gives voice to African-American life in Gary,...
151. Catherine Daly — Fwd: [WOM-PO] CFP: UCLA indigenous connections
152. Jim Andrews — Microsoft Songsmith

12 JAN 2009

153. Amanda Earl — AngelHousePress Essay Series
154. Tim Peterson — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
155. Steve Halle — John Beer @ Seven Corners
156. Dan Wilcox — Third Thursday Poetry Night -- Nicole Karas, Open Mic
157. amy king — Want your poem to reach nearly two million people?
158. Kyle Schlesinger — getting ON
159. cris cheek — gene robinson to give invocation at inauguration
160. Michael Kelleher — Literary Buffalo Newsletter 01.12.09-01.18.09
161. Troy Camplin — Re: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry
162. Kyle Schlesinger — TONIGHT @ THE POETRY PROJECT: Cyrus Console & Jessica Dessner
163. amy king — Stain of Poetry: A Reading Series -- January's Stars!
164. Sara Wintz — for all those new yorkers in the house...
165. Murat Nemet-Nejat — Re: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry
166. Al Filreis — PoemTalk #13: Kathleen Fraser's "The Cars"
167. Mary Jo Malo — Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?
168. steve d. dalachinsky — Re: getting inauguerated
169. Ruth Lepson — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
170. Ruth Lepson — Re: Adam
171. Ruth Lepson — Re: Oppen quote - help!
172. Jason Quackenbush — Re: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry
173. Troy Camplin — Re: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry
174. peter ganick — place to send experimental words/texts.
175. Stephen Vincent — Stephen Vincent's "Haptics" - Braunstein-Quay Gallery, San Francisco
176. Stephen Vincent — OOPs: Stephen Vincent's "Haptics" - Braunstein-Quay Gallery, San Francis...
177. CA Conrad — Kathleen Fraser's THE CARS....
178. Laurie Schneider & Crag Hill — Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?
179. susan dunn-hensley — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
180. Dan Glass — Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?
181. Catherine Daly — Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?
182. Cara Benson — Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?
183. Elizabeth Switaj — Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?
184. Mark Weiss — Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?

13 JAN 2009

185. jared schickling — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
186. Gerald Schwartz — Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?
187. Sarah Sarai — Hubert Huncke tribute, after the fact, Patti Smith, David Lawton, Tatum
188. CA Conrad — coMpetition does
189. Eric Elshtain — New Beard of Bees Chapbook
190. Troy Camplin — Re: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry
191. Jennifer Karmin — WEEK TWO: When Does It or You Begin?
192. amy king — AWP Chicago Events?

193. Mark Weiss — Re: [SPAM]Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
194. Evan Munday — Re: AWP Chicago Off-site Event
195. Robin Hamilton — Re: coMpetition does
196. AWAREing Press — Re: Eyeless in Gaza
197. Robin Hamilton — Re: coMpetition does
198. Hilary Clark — Re: coMpetition does
199. Larry O. Dean — AWP Offsite Event: Reading Bewteen the Lines
200. Halvard Johnson — Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?
201. steve russell — Re: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry
202. Layne Russell — Re: coMpetition does
203. Elizabeth Switaj — Re: Eyeless in Gaza
204. Matt Henriksen — Cannibal Books 2009 Subscriptions
205. steve russell — Re: coMpetition does

14 JAN 2009

206. Robert Dewhurst — Re: Hubert Huncke tribute, after the fact, Patti Smith, David Lawton, Tat...
207. steve d. dalachinsky — Re: coMpetition does
208. steve d. dalachinsky — space available for meetings poetry events book parties small conce...
209. David Kirschenbaum — NYC Tues./ Gilmore Boys Live, Lyrics By Me
210. Anny Ballardini — the Winter Anthology
211. Alan Sondheim — blog article about The Accidental Artist
212. mIEKAL aND — Bailout
213. Gary Sullivan — SEGUE WINTER-SPRING 2009
214. Ruth Lepson — Re: [SPAM]Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
215. Maria Damon — Re: SEGUE WINTER-SPRING 2009
216. Maria Damon — Re: blog article about The Accidental Artist
217. Mark Weiss — Re: [SPAM]Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
218. Steve Tills — Subject: Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?
219. Mary Kasimor — Re: Bailout
220. Séamas Cain — Papers of the poet Thomas Kinsella
221. Mary Jo Malo — Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?
222. Ruth Lepson — Re: Bailout
223. Troy Camplin — Re: [SPAM]Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
224. Troy Camplin — Re: coMpetition does
225. Thomas savage — Re: coMpetition does
226. steve d. dalachinsky — Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?
227. Alan Sondheim — Re: blog article about The Accidental Artist
228. Troy Camplin — Re: Bailout
229. David-Baptiste Chirot — Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
230. Martha Cinader Mims — L&BH Network Fresh Literary Content January 14, 2009
231. Ruth Lepson — Re: [SPAM]Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
232. Ruth Lepson — Re: [SPAM]Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
233. Jena Osman — ChainLinks update
234. Daniel Remein, Editor — fashion
235. Ryan Daley — Re: coMpetition does
236. Fluffy Singler — Re: coMpetition does
237. Ryan Daley — Re: coMpetition does

15 JAN 2009

238. David Buuck — Reminder: Small Press Traffic's Poets Theater 09 starts this Friday!
239. Obododimma Oha — Re: Bailout
240. Jason Nelson — strange new digital poetry
241. David-Baptiste Chirot — About Poetry: Presidential Inauguration Poetry & "Where the He/art ...
242. Troy Camplin — Re: [SPAM]Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

243. gabriel siegel — Re: coMpetition does
244. Factory School — New Factory School Publications
245. John Cunningham — name of French poet
246. William James Austin — trouble with Blackbox
247. Diego Navarro — Re: Bailout
248. Ruth Lepson — Re: Bailout
249. Ruth Lepson — Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
250. Maria Damon — Re: Bailout
251. Paul Nelson — Hugo House Executive Director
252. Kate Pringle — Book Release Party: Pringle and Boykoff at The Green Arcade in SF
253. Séamas Cain — The literary blog of Peter Ganick
254. Mark Weiss — Re: Bailout
255. Tony Trigilio — Court Green and Fence: Off-Site AWP Reading (Feb. 12, 6:30 p.m.)
256. Jordan Stempleman — Re: name of French poet
257. Mary Jo Malo — Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?
258. Halvard Johnson — Re: coMpetition does
259. laura oliver — Re: name of French poet
260. Charlotte Mandel — Re: name of French poet
261. Obododimma Oha — Re: Bailout
262. joseph bradshaw — Spare Room Turns 100!
263. Obododimma Oha — Re: Bailout
264. Jason Quackenbush — Re: Bailout
265. Tomas Weber — Re: name of French poet
266. Maria Damon — Re: Bailout
267. Stephen Ellis — Re: Bailout
268. Eric Dickey — Re: name of French poet
269. Christopher Leland Winks — Re: Bailout
270. Elizabeth Switaj — Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?
271. Robin Hamilton — Re: Bailout
272. Poetry Project — Events and Workshops at The Poetry Project
273. AWAREing Press — Re: Eyeless in Gaza
274. Alan Sondheim — Check out installation in Second Life by DC Spensley (fwd)
275. steve russell — Re: Bailout
276. Gabrielle Welford — simone weil
277. Ruth Lepson — Re: About Poetry: Presidential Inauguration Poetry & "Where the He/art Pants"…

16 JAN 2009

278. Morgan Schuldt — New from CUE Editions
279. Lauren Russell — Re: Bailout
280. Jim Andrews — <terminal>
281. Matias Viegener — UNTITLED NEW YORK: SPECULATIONS ON THE EXPANDED FIELD OF WRITING
282. Matias Viegener — WOIDS 'N AHT – 3 ARTISTS ON TEXT – Los Angeles, Sun Jan 25th, 2pm
283. David Kirschenbaum — Advertise in Boog City 54 / Urban Folk 17
284. Obododimma Oha — Re: Bailout
285. Obododimma Oha — Re: Bailout
286. Obododimma Oha — Re: Bailout
287. Halvard Johnson — Re: Bailout
288. Sarah Sarai — Re: Bailout
289. David-Baptiste Chirot — American painter Andrew Wyeth dies at 91 - Yahoo! News
290. cris cheek — A Radically Inclusive Online Anthology of Responses to the Inauguration of the…
291. Lauren Russell — Re: Bailout
292. steve d. dalachinsky — Re: name of French poet
293. steve d. dalachinsky — Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?

294. Geoffrey Gatza — Housecat Kung Fu: Strange Poems For Wild Children by Geoffrey Gatza
295. Michael Heller — New Book
296. Anny Ballardini — Re: About Poetry: Presidential Inauguration Poetry & "Where the He/art Pa...
297. Peter Ciccariello — Stephen Vincent at the Braunstein/Quay Gallery
298. steve russell — Re: Simone Weil

17 JAN 2009

299. Jim Andrews — e to a friend about a philosophy of computer art
300. Alan Sondheim — these are good, great, i don't havemuch to say about them, they'll have to
301. David-Baptiste Chirot — Democracy Now! --Palestinian and American Indian perspectives on th...
302. Camille Martin — Camille Martin Salutes Obama on CKLN's "In Other Words"
303. Pierre Joris — New Nomadics Posts
304. Stephen Vincent — Re: Eyeless in Gaza
305. Rob McLennan — newish on rob's clever blog
306. ALDON L NIELSEN — American Book Awards
307. Jason Quackenbush — Re: e to a friend about a philosophy of computer art
308. Mark Weiss — Re: Simone Weil

18 JAN 2009

309. mIEKAL aND — Fwd: Judith Hoffberg {RIP}
310. Gabriel Gudding — help me: blogging "The Best American Poetry"
311. Anny Ballardini — Re: Camille Martin Salutes Obama on CKLN's "In Other Words"
312. Doug Holder — David Godine and Print On Demand
313. Matt Henriksen — The Burning Chair Readings 2 1/2 nights @ AWP Chicago
314. ALDON L NIELSEN — Inaugural Poem (never delivered)
315. Gabrielle Welford — Re: Bailout
316. David-Baptiste Chirot — Prostituiton and RE: Presidential Inauguration Poetry & "Where the...
317. Carol Novack — SAVE THE DATE: MAD HATTERS' REV WITH HARP & ALTAR at THE KGB BAR, FRIDAY, FE...
318. Hot Whiskey Press — Hecate Lochia by Hoa Nguyen (Hot Whiskey Press)

19 JAN 2009

319. cris cheek — This is your ticket to the Inauguration
320. David Buuck — This Friday 1/23: SPT's POETS THEATER FEST night 2!
321. Ruth Lepson — Re: Prostituiton and RE: Presidential Inauguration Poetry & "Where the He/ar...
322. Jon Cotner — Transcription Issue
323. Troy Camplin — Re: Prostituiton and RE: Presidential Inauguration Poetry & "Where the He/a...

20 JAN 2009

324. Roy Exley — Re: Simone Weil
325. Jim Andrews — Re: e to a friend about a philosophy of computer art
326. Michael Kelleher — Literary Buffalo Newsletter 01.19.09-01.25.09
327. Gerald Schwartz — Alexander's poem/ Lowery's Benediction
328. laura hinton — Re: This is your ticket to the Inauguration
329. susan maurer — happy inauguration day
330. Séamas Cain — The Western Writers' Centre
331. steve d. dalachinsky — Re: Alexander's poem/ Lowery's Benediction
332. Mark Weiss — Re: Simone Weil
333. Jason Quackenbush — Re: e to a friend about a philosophy of computer art
334. Ismaelia al Sadiq — Re: Simone Weil

21 JAN 2009

335. Rodney Koeneke — Reading in Portland this SATURDAY, 1/24: ALLISON COBB & C.S. PEREZ
336. David Kirschenbaum — NYC Tues./ Boog City presents Ahsahta Press and Jesse Schoen
337. Jim Andrews — Re: e to a friend about a philosophy of computer art
338. David-Baptiste Chirot — Re: Prostituiton and RE: Presidential Inauguration Poetry & "Where...
339. steve russell — Re: Simone Weil
340. steve russell — Re: Simone Weil
341. cris cheek — postmoot.net closes tonite
342. laura hinton — Re: Alexander's poem/ Lowery's Benediction
343. Thomas savage — Re: Alexander's poem/ Lowery's Benediction
344. Skip Fox — Re: Alexander's poem/ Lowery's Benediction
345. Lindsay Wong — NEW BOOK: Virgil and the Mountain Cat
346. Lindsay Wong — NEW BOOK: Sight Map
347. Lindsay Wong — NEW BOOK: Transcendental Studies
348. Jennifer Karmin — WEEK THREE: When Does It or You Begin?
349. steve d. dalachinsky — very special gig shiraishi also reads jan 28 at st marks and jan 30 ...
350. Dan Wilcox — Re: Alexander's poem/ Lowery's Benediction
351. Dan Wilcox — Re: Alexander's poem/ Lowery's Benediction

22 JAN 2009

352. Carol Novack — Elizabeth Alexander's poem
353. Steve Halle — Holms Troelstrup @ Seven Corners
354. Gerald Schwartz — Re: Alexander's poem, Dospassos, Marilyn Nelson...
355. Alan Sondheim — Alan Sondheim online Second Life opening in uqbar, media art culture e Rina...
356. Kyle Schlesinger — ON CALL
357. Alan Sondheim — [WDL] transmediale.09 online (fwd)
358. Troy Camplin — Re: Alexander's poem/ Lowery's Benediction
359. ALDON L NIELSEN — Re: Alexander's poem/ Lowery's Benediction
360. steve russell — GUANTANAMO
361. Mark Weiss — hello, I must be going
362. steve russell — Re: Alexander's poem, Dospassos, Marilyn Nelson...
363. Gerald Schwartz — Nelson's poem
364. ALDON L NIELSEN — enough to make you swear

23 JAN 2009

365. Louis Cabri — Re: Alexander's poem/ Lowery's Benediction
366. steve d. dalachinsky — gig
367. Jordan Stempleman — Call for Applications: International Writing Program (University of Iow...
368. John Cunningham — Oulipo & Christian Bok
369. John Cunningham — Proemes
370. Andy Gricevich — Nonsense Company and Cannot Exist reading--NYC and Philly
371. George Bowering — Re: Oulipo & Christian Bok
372. Ron Starr — Re: Oulipo & Christian Bok
373. Kyle Schlesinger — Re: Oulipo & Christian Bok
374. Daniel Zimmerman — Re: enough to make you swear
375. Gabrielle Welford — Re: Nelson's poem
376. Alan Sondheim — ESP-DISK I'm Playing at Zebulon this Sunday night -
377. Catherine Daly — Re: Oulipo & Christian Bok
378. Catherine Daly — Re: Call for Applications: International Writing Program (University of Io...

24 JAN 2009

379. AWAREing Press — Re: Eyeless in Gaza
380. Kristin Dykstra — Mandorla reading - Chicago, 2/13

381. Pam Brown — Re: Oulipo & Christian Bok
382. Alan Sondheim — NetBehaviour Digest, Vol 192, Issue 6 (fwd) - James Lovelock - see belw (fw…
383. Camille Martin — Re: Oulipo & Christian Bok
384. steve russell — unknown unknowns/unknown knowns/ Slavoj Zizek
385. Gabriel Gudding — post-american writing
386. Ruth Lepson — new book
387. Doug Holder — From the Pais of New England: Interviews with Poets and Writers

25 JAN 2009

388. Ken Chen — AAWW - Lunar New Year countdown party TONIGHT!
389. Les Mots — Re: Oulipo & Christian Bok
390. CA Conrad — Ish Klein's AMAZING first book!
391. David-Baptiste Chirot — from Aryanil Mukherjee: Telegraph India Article On Non-mainstream E…
392. Michael Tod Edgerton — VOX Presents Jen Tynes, Caroline Noble Whitbeck, and Michael Tod Edg…
393. Ryan Daley — Reading This Tuesday at Cornelia Street Cafe!
394. mIEKAL aND — Globish

26 JAN 2009

395. amy king — The Stain of Poetry: Berkson, Cruz, Fagan, Fortin, Pecqueur, and Rasmovicz!
396. Peter Ciccariello — Sorry - broken link -------I want to dissect your language, otherwise
397. Gabrielle Welford — Re: unknown unknowns/unknown knowns/ Slavoj Zizek
398. Margaret Konkol — S M A L L P R E S S in the A R C H I V E Talk Series BUFFALO N. Y.
399. Spineless Books — Re: Oulipo & Christian Bok
400. Michael Kelleher — Literary Buffalo Newsletter 01.28.09-02.01.09
401. Catherine Daly — Re: Oulipo & Christian Bok
402. Joel Weishaus — Re: POETICS Digest - 23 Jan 2009 to 25 Jan 2009 (#2009-21)
403. Paul Nelson — Jose Kozer in the NW
404. Rob McLennan — THE FIFTH ISSUE OF OTTAWATER IS HERE!
405. Murat Nemet-Nejat — Re: Globish
406. Jennifer Karmin — ART ACTIVISM in Chicago this week!
407. Jim Andrews — Re: Oulipo & Christian Bok
408. Gabrielle Welford — Re: Globish
409. aaron tieger — ANXIETY CHANT by Aaron Tieger
410. twshaner — Laynie Browne & Endi Hartigan Reading in Eugene
411. Alan Sondheim — Zebulon set from last night
412. Stephen Vincent — Martin Puryear & The First 100 Days of President Obama
413. George Bowering — Re: Globish
414. mIEKAL aND — Re: Globish
415. blacksox — Re: Zebulon set from last night

27 JAN 2009

416. David Buuck — This Friday 1/20: SPT's POETS THEATER INTERMEDIA NIGHT
417. Small Press Traffic — SPT: This Friday 1/30: Poets Theater Inter-Media Night!
418. steve russell — Re: Globish
419. Aryanil Mukherjee — Book Review Updates @ Kaurab
420. Nicholas Karavatos — CFP - "Translation in the New Millennium" - 2nd International Conferen…
421. Troy Camplin — Re: Globish
422. Francesco Levato — "No Love for Love" - Poetry Center of Chicago Annual Benefit
423. teersteeg — Inaugural poem--
424. Francesco Levato — AWP Chicago - Poetry Center Events
425. William James Austin — Blackbox
426. colin herd — Sound Poet from Brasil, Jamil Jorge
427. Erik Anderson — FW: Bombay Gin 35.1 Just Released

428. peter ganick — yes ...
429. Lil Norton — New Lil Norton Book, Comment Is Free Vol. 3
430. Small Press Traffic — SPT: This Friday 1/30: Poets Theater Inter-Media Night!

28 JAN 2009

431. steve russell — Globish
432. steve d. dalachinsky — Re: Richard Kostelanetz's SRAM/BLEDS at AC[Chapel]
433. Nate Pritts — spicer's poetry
434. Stephen Vincent — Re: spicer's poetry
435. Troy Camplin — Globish
436. Jerome Rothenberg — Milos Sovak
437. mIEKAL aND — Re: Globish
438. Thomas savage — Re: spicer's poetry
439. George Bowering — Re: Globish
440. Jennifer Karmin — FINAL WEEK: When Does It or You Begin?
441. Barrett Watten — contact / Poetics Journal Guide and Archive
442. joseph bradshaw — Sprare Room Presents Laynie Brown & Jared Hayes 2/1, Portland
443. joseph bradshaw — Friday 1/30 Peaches & Bats #3 Release Party, Portland

29 JAN 2009

444. Eiríkur Örn Norðdahl — Re: Globish
445. David-Baptiste Chirot — NY Times: Washington Post's Book World Goes Out of Print as a Separ...
446. David-Baptiste Chirot — NY Times: Washington Post's Book World Goes Out of Print as a Separ...
447. Bill Berkson — Berkson PORTRAIT AND DREAM at Cue Art Foundation, New York
448. Séamas Cain — Attack against the COX18 cultural centre in Milan, Italy
449. Gabrielle Welford — it's ukiaHaiku festival time again! (fwd)
450. Aryanil Mukherjee — I Gave Away The Sky:: Remembering Gregory Corso
451. Ken Rumble — Viking Rock, This Friday, Jan. 30, 9 pm, Durham, NC
452. Poetry Project — A message from The Poetry Project
453. Anna Vitale — submit! submit! raise up your fists.
454. Jason Quackenbush — Re: e to a friend about a philosophy of computer art

30 JAN 2009

455. amy king — Reminder Tonight, Friday - Berkson, Cruz, Fagan, Fortin, Pecqueur, Rasmovicz

1. Jesse Glass
Happy New Year from Ahadada Books
Thu 1 Jan 2009

See what we're up to: www.ahadadabooks.com Jess

↑ Index

2. Alan Sondheim
YouTube recording of our set at Bowery Poetry Club
Thu 1 Jan 2009

YouTube recording of our set at Bowery Poetry Club

Today we visited ESP-Disk and found that someone had put up part of our set on YouTube - http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=NAre8RTwF5g - Azure Carter singing, I'm on an Epiphone electric, no effects. Do check this out! It's not a particularly good video but it gives an idea of our live music, at least on guitar. (Next set is January 25, on guitar, tenor banjo, Alpine zither.)

- Alan

↑ Index

3. Paul Nelson
Re: capitalism and the long poem
Thu 1 Jan 2009

One of the most fascinating developments of the post-modern era Troy,

One of the most fascinating developments of the post-modern era (& the era since then) is the development (evolution) of the Serial Poem. Robin Blaser's 'The Holy Forest' and Nate Mackey's 'Mu' or 'Song of the Andoumbolou' (which together could be considered part of the same poem) are two stellar examples of this. These are more recent examples and 'The Maximus Poems' and 'Paterson' are other examples and I am sure folks on the list could chip in their own favorites.

The narrative that emerges is not as obvious and requires more study, more of a commitment than what was previously known as 'epic.'

The recognition of these in a mode similar to the epics of the past is very much a function of this shift in literature, especially after 1945 (the beginning of the post-modern era) and Jack Spicer's notion gets close to summing it up:

…The trick naturally is what Duncan learned years ago and tried to teach us – not to search for the perfect poem but to let your way of writing of the moment go along its own paths, explore and retreat but never be fully realized (confined) within the boundaries of one poem...

It's pleasing to be back to actual poetics on the poetics list.

Happy New Year.

Paul E. Nelson

Global Voices Radio
SPLAB!
American Sentences
Organic Poetry
Poetry Postcard Blog

Ilalqo, WA [redacted]

From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, December 30, 2008 10:50:09 AM
Subject: Re: capitalism and the long poem

I think we've become obsessed with it precisely because it's fallen out of favor. Somebody, or a few people, wondered where it went, and began writing about it. It seems to me that the long poem became impossible with the abandonment of narrative by poets. How long can one keep up a feeling or a mood or an "experiment"? Frederick Fierstein writes quite long poems, but his poems also have narratives holding them together. Frederick Turner has written two epic poems. It seems that the gradual abandonment of narrative in poetry by the Modernists, especially the late Modernists, and the postmodern poets, far more than economic conditions, have contributed to the abandonment of long poetry as a form.

Troy Camplin

From: Eireene Nealand <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Monday, December 29, 2008 1:45:57 PM
Subject: capitalism and the long poem

I sat down to write a little piece about this Russian poet, and came up with a strange take on the long poem--an idea that the seriality of it is somehow related to consumer capitalism--

http://tsky-reviews.blogspot.com/

not the pleasantest thought--

and so I was wondering if anyone has any good counter arguments, or different takes on why so many are so obsessed with this form right now. & will we fall out of love with it during the recession?

e

↑ Index

4. Pierre Joris

New Nomadics Posts!

Thu 1 Jan 2009

Check out these new posts on Nomadics blog — http://pjoris.blogspot.com/

Happy New Year!
"The Clash of Ignorance"
Blanchot Celebration Online Now
Mandelstam via Celan
Celan on poetic practice
ENVIRONMENTAL CRISIS
600.000 More Shoes to Hurl
==========
"Play what you don't know" -- Sun Ra
==========
Pierre Joris
244 Elm Street
Albany NY 12202-1310
h: [redacted]
c: [redacted]
o: 518 442 40 71
Euro cell: (011 33) 6 75 43 57 10
email: [redacted]
http://pierrejoris.com
blog:http://pjoris.blogspot.com/
==========

↑ Index

5. Adam Tobin
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Thu 1 Jan 2009

I don't think it's puritan moralizing to criticize prostitution; I think it's puritan moralizing to disallow its use as a metaphor.

On Dec 31, 2008, at 5:43 PM, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]> wrote:

> sick of men saying it's puritan moralizing to criticize prostitution.
> whether it shd be legal or not is a complicated question. but I make no > judgment about prostitutes. if anything, I wish the world could hold them in > its arms in a loving way to counteract all they suffer.
>
> On 12/31/08 4:33 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> Here's an interesting article, for those who are interested, about a more > useful approach to bettering the terrible conditions of brothels: forming a > prostitutes' union.
> http://www.sciam.com/article.cfm?id=the-prostitutes-union
>
> I think as long as every mention of prostitution brings up just so much > puritan moralizing, pimps and their bosses will continue to operate with > impunity, out of the sight of polite society. Meanwhile police continue to > fine and jail the women, in order to keep them out of sight of the neighbors
> whose real estate values they would otherwise
>
> guidelines &

↑ Index

6. Jeff Hansen
World Premiere Opera based on Stein's The Making of the Americans
Thu 1 Jan 2009

A few weeks ago the Walker Arts Center in Minneapolis was the venue for the world premiere of the opera The Making of the Americans, which is based on the Gertrude Stein novel of the same name. It was directed by Jay Scheib, and written by Brooklyn-based composer Anthony Gatt. I have heard nothing but rave reviews of the event.

On my blog there is an extended discussion about the event with Greg Hewett, a widely published poet, opera buff, and Carleton College English professor.

http://experimentalfictionpoetry.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

7. ALDON L NIELSEN

FW: African American Literature - Conference Update and CFP

Thu 1 Jan 2009

Please share the following conference update with listservs and interested individuals. Thank you. Lovalerie

Â

CallÂ for Proposals (deadline February 5)

Celebrating African American Literature: The Novel Since 1988

October 23-24, 2009, Nittany Lion Inn, Penn State-University Park

Â

Confirmed Speakers: Maryemma Graham, Houston A. Baker, Jr., Alice Randall, Mat Johnson, and Martha Southgate

Â

We invite paper, panel, and roundtable proposals on theoretical, critical, or pedagogical approaches to works produced since 1988. We are especially interested in proposals that address the work of featured novelists Alice Randall,Â Mat Johnson, and Martha Southgate. Proposals focusing on satire, transnationalism, cosmopolitanism, or any of the topics listed below are also welcomed. Selected essays will once again be edited for publication. [The previous conference yielded NEW ESSAYS ON THE AFRICAN AMERICAN NOVEL: FROM HURSTON AND ELLISON TO MORRISON AND WHITEHEAD (Palgrave 2008)]

Aesthetic Frameworks or Models Comedy
Music
Detective Fiction
Ethics
Hip-Hop
Literature and American Legal Discourse

LGBT Novels
Popular Fiction
[Re]constructions of Race and/or Gender Revisioning Oral Traditions
Revisioning Signifying Practice
Sexuality
Speculative Fiction
Urban Experience Novels

Submit carefully written abstracts (300 words) via e-mail attachment to: <#>. PleaseÂ provide complete identificationâ€”names, institution name, phone numbers, and e-mail addresses. Deadline for submission is February 5, 2009. During March 2009 you will receive e-mail notification regarding abstract acceptance. Important note: Persons whose abstracts are accepted should register for the conference by August 15, 2009.

Â

Questions regarding proposals should be sent to:
Lovalerie King
Department of English
The Pennsylvania State University
E-mail: <#>
Conference Web site: http://www.outreach.psu.edu/programs/AfAmNovel

Itâ€™s the same HotmailÂ®. If by â€œsameâ€ you mean up to 70% faster. <http://windowslive.com/online/hotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_hotmail_acq_broad1_122008> -- You are currently subscribed to horton as: <#>. To unsubscribe send a blank email to <#>

<<

Aldon L. Nielsen
Kelly Professor of American Literature
The Pennsylvania State University
116 Burrowes
University Park, PA 16802-6200

[redacted]

↑ Index

8. Jack Foley

(no subject)

Thu 1 Jan 2009

ANNOUNCING .....

FLASHPOINT EXTRA!
Winter 2009
http://www.flashpointmag.com

EZRA POUND & WALL STREET

featuring

CANTO XLV
"With Usura"

GIANO ACCAME
(translated by WAYNE POUNDS)

ELLEN CARDONA

DAVID HICKMAN

MAC OLIVER

BRENDON KERESEY

TONY EVANS

ROSALIE GANCIE

CARLO PARCELLI

"Along the frontier where the arts & politics clash ..."

↑ Index

9. John Cunningham

Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

Thu 1 Jan 2009

I never once ever remotely indicated that prostitution shouldn't be criticized, Ruth. I certainly do agree, separate and apart from the idea of puritan moralizing, that prostitution should be legalized and run in a humane manner where the health and safety of the women engaged in the practice are one of the paramount concerns. Prostitution has been with us forever and will continue to be with us forever. So, it certainly makes sense to respond to this in a manner that takes this into account. Hasn't your country learned from its experience with prohibition. The only thing that it accomplished through criminalization is to support organized crime and increase the need for a larger police force. Here in Canada, our Neo-Conservative Party, has goosestepped its way it thinking that all the evil in the world has been unleashed by having a safe injection site in Vancouver. Ah, the folly of modern government and society. John Herbert Cunningham

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
Sent: December-31-08 4:43 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

sick of men saying it's puritan moralizing to criticize prostitution. whether it shd be legal or not is a complicated question. but I make no judgment about prostitutes. if anything, I wish the world could hold them in its arms in a loving way to counteract all they suffer.

On 12/31/08 4:33 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:

>
> Here's an interesting article, for those who are interested, about a more > useful approach to bettering the terrible conditions of brothels: forming
a > prostitutes' union.
> http://www.sciam.com/article.cfm?id=the-prostitutes-union
>
> I think as long as every mention of prostitution brings up just so much > puritan moralizing, pimps and their bosses will continue to operate with > impunity, out of the sight of polite society. Meanwhile police continue
to > fine and jail the women, in order to keep them out of sight of the neighbors

> whose real estate values they would otherwise
>
guidelines &

↑ Index

10. Corey Frost

Re: Inauguration theology and poetics

Thu 1 Jan 2009

On Wed, 31 Dec 2008 12:54:49 -0800, George Bowering <[redacted]> wrote:

> On Dec 31, 2008, at 10:53 AM, Corey Frost wrote:
>
> . Civil discourse means > listening to differing views, of course, but that doesn't mean one has to > validate a certain view just because a lot of people hold it.
>
> Would this include the U.S. Constitution
> or the election of Obama?

Yes.

↑ Index

11. David-Baptiste Chirot

FW: 07/01/09 Parution/Projection des archives Double Change @ Librairie M. Ignazi

Thu 1 Jan 2009

From: [redacted]
To: [redacted]
Subject: 07/01/09 Parution/Projection des archives Double Change @ Librairie M. Ignazi
Date: Thu, 1 Jan 2009 18:40:19 +0100

Double Change a le plaisir de vous annoncer la parution en janvier 2009 aux Presses du Réel dans une édition Motion Method Memo

Double Change a le plaisir de vous annoncer la parution en janvier 2009 aux Presses du Réel dans une édition Motion Method Memory de :

Double Change 1 — Archive filmée de
poésie — 2004-2005 (9 DVD)

Double Change 2 — Archive filmée de
poésie — 2005-2006 (9 DVD)

http://www.doublechange.com/dcblog/?p=56

Vous êtes cordialement invités à la projection qui aura lieu en présence des auteurs le mercredi 7 janvier 2009 à partir de 19 heures à la Librairie Michèle Ignazi, 17 rue de Jouy, 75004 Paris.

Double Change 1 — Archive filmée de poésie — 2004-2005

9 films réalisés
par Meryem Delagarde

Édités par
Abigail Lang & Dominique Pasqualini

Charles
Bernstein | Juliette Valéry

Jean-François
Bory | Rosmarie Waldrop

Rae Armantrout |
Philippe Beck

Cécile Mainardi
| Joe Ross | Yannick Liron

Jacques Roubaud
| Keith Waldrop

Norma Cole |
Emmanuel Hocquard

Cole Swensen

Valérie Mréjen |
Bill Berkson

Walt Whitman
Hom(m)age 2005 | 1855

Édition bilingue (français / anglais), 9 DVD vidéo sous coffret, 14 x 12,5 cm (coffret, jaquettes ill. coul.), janvier 2009, ISBN : 978-2-84066-299-0, EAN : 9782840662990, 45 €.

http://www.lespressesdureel.com/ouvrage.php?id=1210

Double Change 2 — Archive filmée de poésie — 2005-2006

9 films réalisés
par Meryem Delagarde

Édités par
Abigail Lang & Dominique Pasqualini

Joseph Mouton |
Robert Grenier

Oscarine Bosquet
| Kristin Prevallet

Yves Di Manno |
Jerome Rothenberg

Jerome
Rothenberg

Isabelle Garron
| Tracy Grinnell

Tom Raworth |
Pierre Alferi

Pierre Fourny |
Thalia Field

Bernard
Heidsieck | Karen Mac Cormack | Steve Mccaffery

Kathleen Fraser
| Ryoko Sekiguchi

Édition bilingue (français / anglais), 9 DVD vidéo sous coffret, 14 x 12,5 cm (coffret, jaquettes ill. coul.), janvier 2009, ISBN : 978-2-84066-300-3, EAN : 9782840663003, 45 €.

http://www.lespressesdureel.com/ouvrage.php?id=1209

La prochaine lecture aura lieu le dimanche 25 janvier à La Bellevilloise et accueillera Stephen Rodefer et Eric Suchère. Les détails seront bientôt disponibles en ligne sur le site : www.doublechange.com

- BONNE ANNEE A TOUS -

Message propulsé par splio

Powered by splio

Cliquez ici pour vous désinscrire

_____ It’s the same Hotmail®. If by “same” you mean up to 70% faster.

http://windowslive.com/online/hotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_hotmail_acq_broad1_122008

↑ Index

12. Richard Newman

Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

Fri 2 Jan 2009

Ruth and Amy make important points: That there may be parallels between prostitution and football does not make it invalid to criticize the specific institution, and specifics of the institution, of prostitution; nor does criticizing prostitution invalidate criticisms of football or any other form of labor; nor does the fact that both prostitution and football are labor mean that the precise terms of any particular critique should apply precisely in the same way to both of them. If prostitutes and the work they do were valued and valorized in this culture in the way that football players are, I imagine we would be having a very different conversation about The Poetry Brothel, but we do not value and valorize prostitutes, and while one reason we do not may have to do with a general (generic) squeamishness about sex and what it means to sell sex, another, more pervasive reason, has to do with the misogyny of our culture and how women are situated physically, politically, culturally and socioeconomically by that misogyny--and, need I say it?, the ways in which this misogyny and the institutions it forms and informs serve the needs of men.

Why does the idea of the Poetry Slam not elicit critiques of the sort that Ruth brought up about The Poetry Brothel in terms of the commodification of men's bodies, etc. in wrestling smack downs, boxing or other violent sports? Well, one reason is that those sports do not, ultimately, devalue men; they may put men's bodies at great risk, but they actually enhance the status of the men who participate in them as men; prostitution also puts women's bodies at great risk, but rather than enhance prostitutes' status as women, it merely cements the status of the women who are prostitutes as second-class, dirty, or whatever appropriate adjective you wish to apply.

This does not mean that we ought not to critique the Poetry Slam and the sports for which it is a literary performance metaphor from a masculine-gendered perspective, but even then the terms of the critique will be different because men and women are positioned differently in terms of our genders. To try to level everything off by equating the ways in which men are violence-objects in our culture to the ways in which women are sexual-objects, and by suggesting that the consequences of that objectification ought also be seen as equal (which means, essentially, interchangeable) is to deny, ignore and therefore perpetuate the reality of male dominance in the lives of both men and women.

I have not been to The Poetry Brothel, but it seems to me, at least conceptually, to be brilliant satire, something along the lines of Woody Allen's The Whores of Mensa. I do wonder about the difference between writing this kind of satire and performing it, especially when the performance takes place regularly and someone is making (however little) money; but that, too, seems to me what good satire is supposed to do: call into question where we draw our lines by crossing them in ways that some will find offensive and others will find, well, satirical.

Richard

On Wed, Dec 31, 2008 at 5:43 PM, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> sick of men saying it's puritan moralizing to criticize prostitution.
> whether it shd be legal or not is a complicated question. but I make no > judgment about prostitutes. if anything, I wish the world could hold them in > its arms in a loving way to counteract all they suffer.
>
>
> On 12/31/08 4:33 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> >
> > Here's an interesting article, for those who are interested, about a more > > useful approach to bettering the terrible conditions of brothels: forming a > > prostitutes' union.
> > http://www.sciam.com/article.cfm?id=the-prostitutes-union
> >
> > I think as long as every mention of prostitution brings up just so much > > puritan moralizing, pimps and their bosses will continue to operate with > > impunity, out of the sight of polite society. Meanwhile police continue to > > fine and jail the women, in order to keep them out of sight of the neighbors
> > whose real estate values they would otherwise
> >
>

--
Richard Jeffrey Newman
Associate Professor, English
Coordinator, Creative Writing
Nassau Community College
Garden City, NY 11530
http://faculty.ncc.edu/newmanr
O: [redacted]
F: [redacted]

--
Literary Arts Director
Persian Arts Festival
www.persianartsfestival.org
[redacted]
--
www.richardjnewman.com

↑ Index

13. David Kirschenbaum
The Portable Boog Reader 3 Online PDF Now Available
Fri 2 Jan 2009

Please forward

Hi all,

Jim Behrle, Joanna Fuhrman, Brenda Iijima, Paolo Javier, Mark Lamoureux, and I have gathered work from 72 New York City poets. The Portable Boog Reader 3, An Anthology of New York City Poetry debuted yesterday at the Poetry Project's and Bowery Poetry Club's annual New Year's Day marathons. It iwill be available at our drop spots throughout the East Village and other parts of lower Manhattan, and Greenpoint and Williamsburg, Brooklyn as of this Sunday.

And right now the online pdf is available at:

http://welcometoboogcity.com/boogpdfs/bc53.pbr3.pdf

We're all very happy to share this great work and to have an anthology available to so many people for free. The 72 contributors are:

Ammiel Alcalay * Betsy Andrews * Ari Banias * Jennifer Bartlett * Martine Bellen

Edmund Berrigan * Kate Broad * Julian Brolaski * Donna Brook

Sommer Browning * Matthew Burgess * David Cameron * Mike Coffey

Jen Coleman * John Coletti * Matt Cozart * Elaine Equi * Jessica Fiorini

Jennifer Firestone * Ed Friedman * Ethan Fugate * Rigoberto González

Nada Gordon * Stephanie Gray * Shafer Hall * Diana Hamilton * Hayley Heaton

Cathy Park Hong * Vanessa Hope * Dan Hoy * Lauren Ireland * Adeena Karasick

Basil King * Martha King * Noelle Kocot-Tomblin * Dorothea Lasky * Jeff Laughlin

Amy Lawless * Walter K. Lew * Tan Lin * Tao Lin * Filip Marinovich * Justin Marks

Chris Martin * Tracey McTague * Stephen Paul Miller * Feliz L. Molina

Ryan Murphy * Elinor Nauen * Uche Nduka * Urayoán Noel * Akilah Oliver

Geoffrey Olsen * Jean-Paul Pecqueur * Greg Purcell * Elizabeth Reddin

Jerome Sala * Tom Savage * David Sewell * David Shapiro

Kimberly Ann Southwick * Eleni Stecopoulos * Christina Strong * Mathias Svalina

Jeremy James Thompson * Susie Timmons * Rodrigo Toscano * Nicole Wallace

Damian Weber * Max Winter * Sara Wintz * Erica Wright

To view last year's anthology:

http://welcometoboogcity.com/boogpdfs/bc47.pdf

Happy New Year.

as ever,
David

Please patronize our advertisers:

Bowery Poetry Club * http://www.bowerypoetry.com
Building Long Island * http://www.buildinglongisland.com/
Farfalla Press * http://www.farfallapress.blogspot.com/
Litmus Press/Aufgabe * http://www.litmuspress.org/
Zinc Bar Talk/Reading Series • http://www.lungfull.org/zinc/index.html

---

Advertising or donation inquiries can be directed to [redacted] or by calling 212-842-BOOG (2664)

Thanks to our copy editor Joe Bates, guest proofreader Estelle Kirschenbaum, and Sommer Browning for the stellar cover art

2,750 copies of Boog City are distributed among, and available for free at, the following locations:

MANHATTAN

THE EAST VILLAGE

Acme Underground
Anthology Film Archives
Bluestockings
Bowery Poetry Club
Café Pick Me Up
Cake Shop
Lakeside Lounge
Life Café
Living Room
Mission Café
Nuyorican Poets Café
Other Music
Pianos
St. Mark's Books
St. Mark's Church
Shakespeare & Co.
Sidewalk Café
Sunshine Theater
Trash and Vaudeville
Two Boots Video

OTHER PARTS OF MANHATTAN

Angelika Film Center and Café
Hotel Chelsea
Mercer Street Books
Poets House

BROOKLYN

WILLIAMSBURG

Bliss Café
Galapagos
Sideshow Gallery
Spoonbill & Sugartown
Supercore Café

GREENPOINT

Champion Coffee
East Coast Aliens
Greenpoint Coffee House
Permanent Records
Photoplay Video & DVD
Thai Cafe

P.P.S. And read every Boog City back issue, all 53, now online:

from 1
http://welcometoboogcity.com/boogpdfs/bc01.pdf

to 53
http://welcometoboogcity.com/boogpdfs/bc53.pbr3.pdf

just change the issue number in the url from 01 on through to 53

--
David A. Kirschenbaum, editor and publisher
Boog City
330 W. 28th St., Suite 6H
NY, NY 10001-4754
For event and publication information:
http://welcometoboogcity.com/
T: (212) 842-BOOG (2664)
F: [redacted]

↑ Index

14. Eireene Nealand

Re: capitalism and the long poem

Fri 2 Jan 2009

This is a good point. I don't think that I'm trying to say that the repetition itself is so bad, it's more that it's a marker of trauma, or in Golynko's case a marker of an existential emptiness that we can't seem to move beyond (not that moving beyond has to be a goal in a sense of throwing out some bad thing, but maybe more in the sense of seeing what all of our litle spores of culture are growing out of).

When we think about the (supposedly) thousand-three-hundred-eighty-two Eskimo words for snow, and our own five-thousand-fifty-two words for marijuana (i am totally making these numbers up) the function is so diferent.

The marijuana words aren't trying to distinguish between anything, they have to keep moving around so that in a quite physical sense they won't get "caught."

(& well, of course it is not they who will get caught, but us.)

and maybe instead of running and running to would be good to do something about that big boot that is squashing us into emptiness.

Well, now I am making value judgements.

It's not that I want to get god back or do away with emptiness, but it's good to notice that it is there and how we are working through it. Maybe the emptiness can get some names too?

e

On 12/31/08, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
> Now, repetition is very ancient, and is traceable to rituals of all sorts. It thus has a deep connection to religion. I'm of the opinion that repetitious arts and rituals helped our ancestors to see the patterns in nature better, making them better at noticing the subtle changes in the rhythms of nature, making them better hunters and gatherers, and be better at not being prey to predators. Repetition also has the effect of altering brain states too, though, so the result is religious experiences, mass hypnosis, etc. When decoupled from its religious and artistic origins, we repetitious buying, etc. that forms the core of many people's critique of capitalism. It seems to me, though, that the same people who make this critique then assume that all repetition is bad (many in the Marxist camp also are anti-religion, so wish to do away with that form of repetition as well), and the baby is thrown out with the bath water -- making people in fact even more > prone to consumerist influences. There's pretty good evidence that people need repetition. With the anti-repetition mentality in some in the arts and humanities, these problems are only exacerbated. Removal of repetition from life and art dehumanizes both.
>
>
> Troy Camplin
>
>
>
> _____
> From: Eireene Nealand <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
>
> Sent: Wednesday, December 31, 2008 3:30:39 PM
> Subject: Re: capitalism and the long poem
>
>
> Yes, I think that this is the part that I was worrying about:

>
> As DBChirot says:
> Serial production functions not unlike a model of addiction--once hooked, one
> HAS to keep coming back for MORE MORE MORE--which is at once the
> "same" and slightly different, just enough so, that the sense of > being both satisfied that "the stuff is good" and at the same time > give an extra "plug" in that one enjoys it for only so long and then > has to be in the throes craving until the next fix can be obtained.
>
> So there's a sort of repetition thing going on (I don't really follow
> this Freud stuff very well, but someone explained the > Lacan/consumerism problem as similar, as Troy alludes to, one in > postmodernism's problems of self: both stemming from an inherent > emptiness--there is no self there at the center--so we keep trying to > fill the lack or hole with one commodity or otherwise sexy thing after > another.
>
> It' not always the same thing, but there's a repetitive structure to > the act of filling the hole--(okay this may not look like the long > poems at all)--and maybe Lacan, being a structuralist (?), would say > that that the motion of filling forms some sort of updatable subject?
>
> well, now I am lost again.
>
> I want to get to this part where Catherine Daly is where there's a > possibility of woven funcitons but I'm not sure how to get from one to > the other.
>
> What's the source of all of that talk about the usable past? and > available nerve endings and tissues, by the way. I feel like I must > have somehow missed some whole big discussion here.
>
> e
>
>
>
>
>
> On 12/30/08, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
> > I think we've become obsessed with it precisely because it's fallen out of favor. Somebody, or a few people, wondered where it went, and began writing about it. It seems to me that the long poem became impossible with the abandonment of narrative by poets. How long can one keep up a feeling or a mood or an "experiment"? Frederick Fierstein writes quite long poems, but his poems also have narratives holding them together. Frederick Turner has written two epic poems.

> >
> > Troy Camplin
> >
> >
> >
> > _____
> > From: Eireene Nealand <[redacted]>
> >
> > To: [redacted]
> >
> > Sent: Monday, December 29, 2008 1:45:57 PM
> >
> > Subject: capitalism and the long poem
> >
> >
> > I sat down to write a little piece about this Russian poet, and came > > up with a strange take on the long poem--an idea that the seriality of > > it is somehow related to consumer capitalism--
> >
> > http://tsky-reviews.blogspot.com/
> >
> > not the pleasantest thought--
> >
> > and so I was wondering if anyone has any good counter arguments, or > > different takes on why so many are so obsessed with this form right > > now. & will we fall out of love with it during the recession?
> >
> > e
> >
> >
> > ==========
> >
> > ==========
> >
>
>
>

↑ Index

15. steve russell

Re: capitalism and the long poem

Fri 2 Jan 2009

---

maybe heroic, epic poems died with the advent of capitalism, or modernity.

--- On Wed, 12/31/08, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: capitalism and the long poem
To: [redacted]
Date: Wednesday, December 31, 2008, 5:31 PM

There's a lot of interesting stuff here, but one does wonder how one fits pre-capitalist societies into this. The epic poem all but dies off with the advent of the Modern Era and capitalism. How does one fit the idea of line production in fact being LOST with the advent of capitalist society? Homer, Sophocles, Aeschylus, Euripides, Virgil, et al were well-known authors, all pre-capitalist. Certainly your points about serialization and novel production with Balzac are quite interesting and true, but your thesis almost treats literary production as having arisen with capitalism. How does one fit the rest of world literary history into your model?

Troy Camplin

_____
From: David-Baptiste Chirot <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, December 30, 2008 12:46:12 PM
Subject: Re: capitalism and the long poem

Dear Eireene--

Thank you so much for this excellent piece and the question you pose.

Seriality in writing as a deliberate form is directly an effect of Captialsim--in that serials such as the Feuilletons of Eugene Sue and the serial manner of publishing Dickens' novels, became one of the few ways that an author could make money directly from writing--and also it was used as a way to get people to keep buying the newspaper or journal in which the serial appeared.

Seriality of this kind is constructed round the desire to "want to know what happens next" and is accompanied by the acceptance by the reader that one "will pay any price to find out how the cliff hanger was resolved--and what happens next until the next cliff hanger is reached—“

An author often could make more money from selling a serial than having a book appear "all at once," due to the lack of copyright for American writers who were pirated outrageously by British publishes, and the lack of copy right in many other countries also.

A writer like Dostoyevsky who had gambling debts would crank out serials to pay off creditors, a vast improvement actually on the strategies open to Balzac, who often wrote six books at a time, for several different publishers, not having yet the serial at his disposal.

(Hence the often strange effect in many of Balzac’s works, that a book begun at one point in time, interrupted to complete two others more pressing, then returned to—the writer would suddenly decide that a different character should step into the spotlight from its previous position vaguely in the background at the edge of the wings and faded old curtains--, and in stepping forward, suddenly alter almost entirely the direction of the narrative and the meaning of the moral Balzac was presenting as another in his “philosophies des moeux” in the structure of the Comedie Humaine

A structure whose descriptions and analyses Karl Marx found to be the greatest and most perceptive study ever made of Capitalism in all its function and effects---

Seriality was continued in the early "Motion Pictures" with the famous feuilletons of Louis Feuillade so beloved of the Surrealist--"Judex" "Les Vampyrs" and etc--and in the US the endless series of "Adventures of Pauline' and her constellations of spin offs--tied to the rail road tracks as the train approaches--and escaping miraculously--only to have another misadventure seize hold of her before the reel runs out--and the lettering on the black screen says--"Wait Until Next Week to Find Out What---"

Serial production functions not unlike a model of addiction--once hooked, one HAS to keep coming back for MORE MORE MORE--which is at once the "same" and slightly different, just enough so, that the sense of being both satisfied that "the stuff is good" and at the same time give an extra "plug" in that one enjoys it for only so long and then has to be in the throes craving until the next fix can be obtained.

Soap operas came about for the same reason--to keep the customer coming back in order to have the familiar fix and also to experience the titillation of the seductive "wait for next time and I'll be there--just waiting for YOU--"

"Soap" opera referring to be sure to the selling of laundry soaps that paid for the serial production of these "Opere"--so that both the "serial" and the product become inseparably associated and one finds oneself suddenly craving--soap!!

Actually Language Poetry's assertions about grammar being an expression of, structured by, Captialsim, is a fallacy, in terms of linguistics, and is instead
a kind of "soap" that sponsors the reader's having a new "mode of production" i.e. "a new line"--to develop an addiction to--'what will be the next book from language writers?--what will be the next exciting daring thing they do in their hair raising battle with capitalism"--in other words, a fallacious
"anti-capitalist" production is marketed as just that--hey!! Buy us!!
We are anti-capitalism's structuring of grammar!! We are liberating you!!--From what? –

From buying one form of poetry one is freed to buy another. Nothing has changed but the "exterior appearance" of the product. Inside it is the same old thing--production, product, authors, canons, sub divisions of categories of styles, rhetorical devices and "morphemic transgressions" replete with torque and the tensile strengths of the requisite number of "allowances for the reader's constructions of their own meanings"-- and all of these crammed within the new models so that one might choose still somehow between a convertible or a coupe, or perhaps simply a two door or a four door---

And what colors would you like these to come in?--With or with out ash trays, CD player--radio?--No smoking?—OK—we'll make a note of that—no lighter—either--

Oh!! Did someone mention Hybrids--??!! How marvelous!!--What a pun, mon vieux—do you mean automobiles or genres--?—or perhaps some fantastical life form—out of Lewis Carroll or Borges—

A used car dealer, a used poem dealer . . . .or perhaps in these days of tightened belts—the two combined and displaying their wares on the same much contracted "lot"

whose fading banners
may well not be seen by the dawn's early light—other than as limp remnants of plastic curling and scuttering across
the tarmacs in the gusts of an ill wind blowing no good—

Yes—from the assembly line to the poetic line—

Is a very fine line indeed—

And so one can replace the unemployed’s former jobs on the assembly line

With jobs on the poetic line—

Hard at work creating serial production again--

The serial is created to "provoke and sustain interest through time--"

And indeed one might think of this interest as a paying of interest in that instead of one product in full paid for al at once, one is paying for the product stretched out through time, and so pays more for each "section" in the serial, bringing the total cost of the completed series to quite a bi more than if one had simply been able to purchase the whole thing inside one cover. But then--one would have been deprived of the thrill and the touch of each new issue each new episode arriving in the stores or in the mails or on line or video--awaiting with that craving so deliciously satisfied by the insertion into the human system of the capitalist addiction system--and then, as the pleasure is moving through out one in a sensuous erotic glow--suddenly one is cut off-and told to wait until next time--

And there one is, "Waiting for the Man, 26 dollars in your hand/he's never early, always late/the first thing you learn/is you just got to wait."

And so there were and may still be--long lines queuing up on the days that the "Man" is coming --shivering and shaking in the junk sick streets until at the last moment of unendurable waiting, when al are cursing the "Man" who is subjection them to this suffering--at this last moment when al are ready to forever consign this Monster to the dustbins of their crashed hopes and illusions--here he or she is!! And like salivating dogs they al rush to lick her (or his) feet and rub against his (or her) legs and practically shit themselves in delight--with outpourings of love finally getting their greedy paws on the serial's new installment, and putting down al their hard saved coins and bills for this immediate satisfying of the unbearable cravings building up--

How many times does one not find someone writing of having to satisfy their poetry fix with a quick rush to a book store and their tear off their coats, yank up their sleeves, wrap the nearest belt or cord around their scrawny arm and inject three or four chapbooks--and with great and sudden euphoria--plunk down whatever price they are told these precious "rocks" are jacked up to this week--

Who hasn’t seen lurking near the bookstores and poetry dens the sinister figure of the Reviewer loaded with the latest galleys and review copies of releases,

wiling to sell them cheaper than the store--or forego the cash as long as the figure is paid for in some kind of trade--for sex perhaps, or say season ticket to the opera or bal game or perhaps simply the inside scoop on some trading tip on good old Wall Street--or a tip on the races--

A different method of composition was advocated by Edgar Allan Poe, who, in his "Principles of Poetry" and "Philospsophy of Composition" formulated one of the msot influential approaches to this day for the production of poems and , to be sure--short stories. This is to create works whcih, given the speeding up oflife and magazine prodcution, can be read in one sitting, because, argues Poe, only in having the entire poem or story all at once, is one experiencing the full power of the Effect. For Poe, --and this is also an argument against the "Inspiration" of Romanticism--a poem is constructed deliberately, almost mathematically as well as musically--by choosing first the effect to be experienced by the reader, and working "backwards," determining the elements and their arrangements with in the structure which is determined by the length of time as measured in numbers of words.

Where the serial exploits the drawing out of time, as a never quite consummated series of piquing of desire--the work as advocated by Poe--delivers an Effect so great that is far more satisfying than the long drawn-out "sickness" of serial addiction, with its attendant ever demanding layouts of cash--

The short story, the short poem--for Poe these offer a much more interesting field for the investigations of questions of composition--because they provide CONSTRAINTS--which provoke rather than limit discoveries--because "Necessity the Motherfucker of Invention" is a goad to the imagination completely at odds with its dispersal as in a serial--in which the poet or writer has far more TIME to dream up what happens next--

Poe's theories of Composition, traced via Baudelaire and his invention of the short prose poem--and the theory of Correspondances--is at the basis of French Symbolism as it culminates in Mallarme--a good friend of his Tuesdays attendee Felix Feneon, who, combining his anarchist ideas with those of the "creation of the effect"--much as Mallarme noted that Feneon's words were "detonators" as much as the bombs he advocated and may have thrown himself--comes up with the turning of his hack job writing "Faits Divers" for the mass circulation Le Matin into the writing simultaneously of news (Nouvelles) and "short stories" (nouvelles), which become known when published posthumously as his "Nouvelles en trois lignes"--News Stories/Short Stories in three lines. Like Poe, who published his works in newspapers and large circulation journals, Feneon is melding "news of the day" in its documentary "detective story" aspect with its fictional "Balloon Hoax" (published in a newspaper to emulate one that had been taken as truth) and "Purloined Letter," "Ms in a Bottle" aspects.

Since the short story and short poem, the "Faits Divers" hack filler turned into a short story/documented event do not create the dependence the "fort-da" psychology of Captilist Need and Desire, these short, effect driven works subvert in a strange way the more "profitable" serials in that they offer the "most bang for the buck'--as it were, rather than endlessly teasing out the most bucks for an ever differed bang as does the serial.

This "bang" effect is literally "realized, if one is willing to think of this way--in the naming of the NFL Baltimore Ravens for Poe's poem. The Ravens, a hard hitting team led by a Super bowl MVP Ray Lewis who has been charged in the past with connection to a homicide--play with indeed the most bang delivered for the buck--producing some "shocking" effects and like Poe producing a "mystery story to be investigated by detectives."

One of the reasons for Poe's development of his theories was not surprisingly, economic. In Poe’s time American writers had no copyright protection, so the one surest way to "get the most out" of a piece of writing was to have it produce its effect al at once, before it was pirated. "The Raven," for example, was pirated thousands of times--it was a "Platinum Selling Hit" for its times--yet Poe was paid only once, and that, for him, a not too miserly fee of a few dollars. was al he ever received.

In the 1890’s, Henry James was faced with the example of Poe, a writer who in the past he had been dismissive of. After the fabulous failures of his dramatic pieces on the stage, James found himself in need of money to keep himself and his beloved Lamb House afloat. (His neighbors there were to become Stephen Crane, Joseph Conrad and H. G. Wells.)

James decided at first one the old famialar standby—the writing of a serial—which proved to be “The Turn of the Screw.” As he worked to find a way to keep on creating an Effect on which each episode would end so as to keep the suspense hanging and make the reader desire intensely to purchase the nest episodes as they appeared—James began reconsidering Poe’s theory of the Effect. From the creation of a ghost story serial, James began to turn to the creation of short stories which, like Poe’s are created with the final effect in mind.

(While dictating aloud to his red haired Scottish typist “The Turn of the Screw,” James discovered himself building in each episode to the proper cliff hanging effect—only to see not “an effect” produced on the typist, but rather his poker faced question as he paused with fingers in mid air to type the next words —“And then?” This may have contributed a bit towards James’ deciding he would prefer to produce the Effect in toto in a short story—just to see what if any Effect it had on the seemingly unimpressionable red haired typist.)

Another interesting example is Roberto Bolano, who turned from writing poetry to producing short stories after his marriage and with a child on the way. Bolano, like many other writers who have used this material of the short story competition for short stories in themselves, discovered that in Spain a great many towns and small cities offered prizes for best short story on such and such a theme, place or person of the immediate region.
Competing for prizes helped Bolano develop his skills at producing Effects that would “outshine” those of his opponents.

From the short stories he moved to the novella form, and he became aware his life was rapidly getting shorter and shorter, and that the best way to leave a profitable legacy for his family was to compose novels—and ever bigger ones!—Bolano devoted himself literally feverishly to the production of as man words as possible, in order to earn the most money posthumously for his widow and small son.

The connection between Captialsim and writing is NOT grammar, but WORD COUNT—page length—and, hopefully for the writer and publisher both, NAME RECONITION—by which a much slighter prodcution can be marketed if the author’s name, rather than the bulk, merits the raising of the price no matter how short a work may be.

In one of his essays the Italian Futurist (an ex-Symbolist whose Futurism is littered with many of the most hackneyed of Symbolist images and techniques), considered that literature and poetry could be assigned values based on a system of weights and measures, including that of measuring and weighing “quality”—which is not unrelated is it not to” Name Recognition” as a “guarantee” of at least a certain level of quality being available to the reader.

This is another of the paradoxes of the hack work of Feneon’s Faits Divers—that in an anonymous poorly paid and very low-regarded form, he would decide to go about producing work of the highest quality, while getting absolutely no credit for it “in name” nor being rewarded for his extra efforts by any increase in the minimal pay.

And so it is only a century later that Feneon’s Faits Divers aka Nouvelles en trois lignes appear in English, in a translation of most of the pieces. (The translation unfortunately uses the word “novels’ for nouvelles—which disappears the punning of “short news items, news briefs” and short stories. Instead there is a making much by reveiewers of the pieces being “novels” which contradicts the entire meaning of the pun. It also makes impossible the contemporary punning of “news flashes” with today’s “flash fictions.”)

Flaubert, after all, had already accomplished the turning

Several decades
earlier of a provincial journal’s Faits Divers into the novel Madame Bovary:

“Delphine Delamare, 27, wife of a medical officer in Ry, displayed insufficient
austerity. Worse, she ran up debts. To avoid paying them, she took poison.”

But then, despite the Figure of the Dead Author which strides so stridently about among the assertions of Authors who grow plump with the fees their Name Recognition brings as they Bang the Drum Slowly—perhaps SLOWLY NOT AS A DIRGE BUT AS A VERY VERY VERY LONG DRAWN OUT SERIAL—OR-- EVEN BETTER-- A DECADE ADTER DECADE ONGOING SOAP OPERA –

What writer of today would anonymously take on hack work of the slightest kind FOR THE LOWEST PAY and work on creating of each item a short story beautifully composed via the elements of structure known as syntax, word choice and the obligatory listing of information such as who what when why where-

And a few years later basically stop writing altogether
other than letters to friends and business associates—for it was Feneon’s “aspiration to silence”—his works were constructed to attain—

In effect, a writer who combines Bartleby’s “I prefer not to” with Rimbaud’s leaving of writing for work in a business establishment. (In Feneon’s case, a well- known Parisian art gallery turning his no longer being France’s best art critic since Baudelaire to use in selling the wares he once wrote of.)

See also:

Feneon's
Faits Divers and Poe's Principles of Poetryhttp://cronacasouversivafeneon.blogspot.com/2008/12/feneons-poe-tic-ghosthumously-anonymous.html

FELIX
FENEON AS CONCEPTUAL POET

http://cronacasouversivafeneon.blogspot.com/2008/12/felix-feneon-as-conceptual-poet.html

> Date: Mon, 29 Dec 2008 11:45:57 -0800
>
> From: [redacted]
>
> Subject: capitalism and the long poem
>
> To: [redacted]
>
> I sat down to write a little piece about this Russian poet, and came up with a strange take on the long poem--an idea that the Seriality of it is somehow related to consumer capitalism--
>
> http://tsky-reviews.blogspot.com/
>
> not the pleasantest thought--
>
> and so I was wondering if anyone has any good counter arguments, or different takes on why so many are so obsessed with this form right now. & will we fall out of love with it during the recession?
>
> e
>
> ==========

_____ It's the same Hotmail®. If by "same" you mean up to 70% faster. http://windowslive.com/online/hotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_hotmail_acq_broad1_122008

↑ Index

16. steve russell

Re: capitalism and the long poem

Fri 2 Jan 2009

Perhaps the soap opera is post history: the viewer, the addict, must tune into episode after dopey episode, never fully satisfied, always groping for some finale, a resolution, a hopeful high ... poor guy, semi-literate, post McClued-in-tuned-in-or-out-to-what...

--- On Wed, 12/31/08, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: capitalism and the long poem
To: [redacted]
Date: Wednesday, December 31, 2008, 5:31 PM

There's a lot of interesting stuff here, but one does wonder how one fits pre-capitalist societies into this. The epic poem all but dies off with the advent of the Modern Era and capitalism. How does one fit the idea of line production in fact being LOST with the advent of capitalist society? Homer, Sophocles, Aeschylus, Euripides, Virgil, et al were well-known authors, all pre-capitalist. Certainly your points about serialization and novel production with Balzac are quite interesting and true, but your thesis almost treats literary production as having arisen with capitalism. How does one fit the rest of world literary history into your model?

Troy Camplin

_____
From: David-Baptiste Chirot <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, December 30, 2008 12:46:12 PM
Subject: Re: capitalism and the long poem

Dear Eireene--

Thank you so much for this excellent piece and the question you pose.

Seriality in writing as a deliberate form is directly an effect of Captialsim--in that serials such as the Feuilletons of Eugene Sue and the serial manner of publishing Dickens' novels, became one of the few ways that an author could make money directly from writing--and also it was used as a way to get people to keep buying the newspaper or journal in which the serial appeared.

Seriality of this kind is constructed round the desire to "want to know what happens next" and is accompanied by the acceptance by the reader that one "will pay any price to find out how the cliff hanger was resolved--and what happens next until the next cliff hanger is reached—“

An author often could make more money from selling a serial than having a book appear "all at once," due to the lack of copyright for American writers who were pirated outrageously by British publishes, and the lack of copy right in many other countries also.

A writer like Dostoyevsky who had gambling debts would crank out serials to pay off creditors, a vast improvement actually on the strategies open to Balzac, who often wrote six books at a time, for several different publishers, not having yet the serial at his disposal.

(Hence the often strange effect in many of Balzac’s works, that a book begun at one point in time, interrupted to complete two others more pressing, then returned to—the writer would suddenly decide that a different character should step into the spotlight from its previous position vaguely in the background at the edge of the wings and faded old curtains--, and in stepping forward, suddenly alter almost entirely the direction of the narrative and the meaning of the moral Balzac was presenting as another in his “philosophies des moeux” in the structure of the Comedie Humaine

A structure whose descriptions and analyses Karl Marx found to be the greatest and most perceptive study ever made of Capitalism in all its function and effects---

Seriality was continued in the early "Motion Pictures" with the famous feuilletons of Louis Feuillade so beloved of the Surrealist--"Judex" "Les Vampyrs" and etc--and in the US the endless series of "Adventures of Pauline' and her constellations of spin offs--tied to the rail road tracks as the train approaches--and escaping miraculously--only to have another misadventure seize hold of her before the reel runs out--and the lettering on the black screen says--"Wait Until Next Week to Find Out What---"

Serial production functions not unlike a model of addiction--once hooked, one HAS to keep coming back for MORE MORE MORE--which is at once the "same" and slightly different, just enough so, that the sense of being both satisfied that "the stuff is good" and at the same time give an extra "plug" in that one enjoys it for only so long and then has to be in the throes craving until the next fix can be obtained.

Soap operas came about for the same reason--to keep the customer coming back in order to have the familiar fix and also to experience the titillation of the seductive "wait for next time and I'll be there--just waiting for YOU--"

"Soap" opera referring to be sure to the selling of laundry soaps that paid for the serial production of these "Opere"--so that both the "serial" and the product become inseparably associated and one finds oneself suddenly craving--soap!!

Actually Language Poetry's assertions about grammar being an expression of, structured by, Captialsim, is a fallacy, in terms of linguistics, and is instead
a kind of "soap" that sponsors the reader's having a new "mode of production" i.e. "a new line"--to develop an addiction
to--'what will be the next book from language writers?--what will be the next exciting daring thing they do in their hair raising battle with capitalism"--in other words, a fallacious

"anti-capitalist" production is marketed as just that--hey!! Buy us!!
We are anti-capitalism's structuring of grammar!! We are liberating you!!--From
what? –

From buying one form of poetry one is freed to buy another. Nothing has changed but the "exterior appearance" of the product. Inside it is the same old thing--production, product, authors, canons, sub divisions of categories of styles, rhetorical devices and "morphemic transgressions" replete with torque and the tensile strengths of the requisite number of "allowances for the reader's constructions of their own meanings"-- and all of these crammed
within the new models so that one might choose still somehow between a convertible or a coupe, or perhaps simply a two door or a four door---

And what colors would you like these to come in?--With or with out ash trays, CD player--radio?--No smoking?—OK—we'll make a note of that—no lighter—either--

Oh!! Did someone mention Hybrids--??!! How marvelous!!--What a pun, mon vieux—do you mean automobiles or genres--?—or perhaps some fantastical life
form—out of Lewis Carroll or Borges—

A used car dealer, a used poem dealer . . . .or perhaps in these days of tightened belts—the two combined and displaying their wares on the same much contracted "lot"

whose fading banners
may well not be seen by the dawn's early light—other than as limp remnants
of
plastic curling and scuttering across
the tarmacs in the gusts of an ill wind blowing no good—

Yes—from the assembly line to the poetic line—

Is a very fine line indeed—

And so one can replace the unemployed's former jobs on the assembly line

With jobs on the poetic line—

Hard at work creating serial production again--

The serial is created to "provoke and sustain interest through time--"

And indeed one might think of this interest as a paying of interest in that instead of one product in full paid for al at once, one is paying for the product stretched out through time, and so pays more for each "section" in the serial, bringing the total cost of the completed series to quite a bi more than if one had simply been able to purchase the whole thing inside one cover. But then--one would have been deprived of the thrill and the touch of each new issue each new episode arriving in the stores or in the mails or on line or video--awaiting with that craving so deliciously satisfied by the insertion into the human system of the capitalist addiction system--and then, as the pleasure is moving through out one in a sensuous erotic glow--suddenly one is cut off-and told to wait until next time--

And there one is, "Waiting for the Man, 26 dollars in your hand/he's never early, always late/the first thing you learn/is you just got to wait."

And so there were and may still be--long lines queuing up on the days that the "Man" is coming --shivering and shaking in the junk sick streets until at the last moment of unendurable waiting, when al are cursing the "Man" who is subjection them to this suffering--at this last moment when al are ready to forever consign this Monster to the dustbins of their crashed hopes and illusions--here he or she is!! And like salivating dogs they al rush to lick her (or his) feet and rub against his (or her) legs and practically shit themselves in delight--with outpourings of love finally getting their greedy paws on the serial's new installment, and putting down al their hard saved coins and bills for this immediate satisfying of the unbearable cravings building up--

How many times does one not find someone writing of having to satisfy their poetry fix with a quick rush to a book store and their tear off their coats, yank up their sleeves, wrap the nearest belt or cord around their scrawny arm and inject three or four chapbooks--and with great and sudden euphoria--plunk down whatever price they are told these precious "rocks" are jacked up to this week--

Who hasn’t seen lurking near the bookstores and poetry dens the sinister figure of the Reviewer loaded with the latest galleys and review copies of releases, wiling to sell them cheaper than the store--or forego the cash as long as the figure is paid for in some kind of trade--for sex perhaps, or say season ticket to the opera or bal game or perhaps simply the inside scoop on some trading tip on good old Wall Street--or a tip on the races--

A different method of composition was advocated by Edgar Allan Poe, who, in his "Principles of Poetry" and "Philospsophy of Composition" formulated one of the msot influential approaches to this day for the production of poems and , to be sure--short stories. This is to create works whcih, given the speeding up oflife and magazine prodcution, can be read in one sitting, because, argues Poe, only in having the entire poem or story all at once, is one experiencing the full power of the Effect. For Poe, --and this is also an argument against the "Inspiration" of Romanticism--a poem is constructed deliberately, almost mathematically as well as musically--by choosing first the effect to be experienced by the reader, and working "backwards," determining the elements and their arrangements with in the structure which is determined by the length of time as measured in numbers of words.

Where the serial exploits the drawing out of time, as a never quite consummated series of piquing of desire--the work as advocated by Poe--delivers an Effect so great that is far more satisfying than the long drawn-out "sickness" of serial addiction, with its attendant ever demanding layouts of cash--

The short story, the short poem--for Poe these offer a much more interesting field for the investigations of questions of composition--because they provide CONSTRAINTS--which provoke rather than limit discoveries--because "Necessity the Motherfucker of Invention" is a goad to the imagination completely at odds with its dispersal as in a serial--in which the poet or writer has far more TIME to dream up what happens next--

Poe's theories of Composition, traced via Baudelaire and his invention of the short prose poem--and the theory of Correspondances--is at the basis of French Symbolism as it culminates in Mallarme--a good friend of his Tuesdays attendee Felix Feneon, who, combining his anarchist ideas with those of the "creation of the effect"--much as Mallarme noted that Feneon's words were "detonators" as much as the bombs he advocated and may have thrown himself--comes up with the turning of his hack job writing "Faits Divers" for the mass circulation Le Matin into the writing simultaneously of news (Nouvelles) and "short stories" (nouvelles), which become known when published posthumously as his "Nouvelles en trois lignes"--News Stories/Short Stories in three lines. Like Poe, who published his works in newspapers and large circulation journals, Feneon is melding "news of the day" in its documentary "detective story" aspect with its fictional "Balloon Hoax" (published in a newspaper to emulate one that had been taken as truth) and "Purloined Letter," "Ms in a Bottle" aspects.

Since the short story and short poem, the "Faits Divers" hack filler turned into a short story/documented event do not create the dependence the "fort-da" psychology of Captilist Need and Desire, these short, effect driven works subvert in a strange way the more "profitable" serials in that they offer the "most bang for the buck'--as it were, rather than endlessly teasing out the most bucks for an ever differed bang as does the serial.

This "bang" effect is literally "realized, if one is willing to think of this way--in the naming of the NFL Baltimore Ravens for Poe's poem. The Ravens, a hard hitting team led by a Super bowl MVP Ray Lewis who has been charged in the past with connection to a homicide--play with indeed the most bang delivered for the buck--producing some "shocking" effects and like Poe producing a "mystery story to be investigated by detectives."

One of the reasons for Poe's development of his theories was not surprisingly, economic. In Poe's time American writers had no copyright protection, so the one surest way to "get the most out" of a piece of writing was to have it produce its effect al at once, before it was pirated. "The Raven," for example, was pirated thousands of times--it was a "Platinum Selling Hit" for its times--yet Poe was paid only once, and that, for him, a not too miserly fee of a few dollars. was al he ever received.

In the 1890's, Henry James was faced with the example of Poe, a writer who in the past he had been dismissive of. After the fabulous failures of his dramatic pieces on the stage, James found himself in need of money to keep himself and his beloved Lamb House afloat. (His neighbors there were to become Stephen Crane, Joseph Conrad and H. G. Wells.)

James decided at first one the old famialar standby—the writing of a serial—which proved to be "The Turn of the Screw." As he worked to find a way to keep on creating an Effect on which each episode would end so as to keep the suspense hanging and make the reader desire intensely to purchase the nest episodes as they appeared—James began reconsidering Poe's theory of the Effect. From the creation of a ghost story serial, James began to turn to the creation of short stories which, like Poe's are created with the final effect in mind.

(While dictating aloud to his red haired Scottish typist "The Turn of the Screw," James discovered himself building in each episode to the proper cliff hanging effect—only to see not "an effect" produced on the typist, but rather his poker faced question as he paused with fingers in mid air to type the next words —"And then?" This may have contributed a bit towards James' deciding he would prefer to produce the Effect in toto in a short story—just to see what if any Effect it had on the seemingly unimpressionable red haired typist.)

Another interesting example is Roberto Bolano, who turned from writing poetry to producing short stories after his marriage and with a child on the way. Bolano, like many other writers who have used this material of the short story competition for short stories in themselves, discovered that in Spain a great many towns and small cities offered prizes for best short story on such and such a theme, place or person of the immediate region.

Competing for prizes helped Bolano develop his skills at producing Effects that would “outshine” those of his opponents.

From the short stories he moved to the novella form, and he became aware his life was rapidly getting shorter and shorter, and that the best way to leave a profitable legacy for his family was to compose novels—and ever bigger ones!—Bolano devoted himself literally feverishly to the production of as man words as possible, in order to earn the most money posthumously for his widow and small son.

The connection between Captialsim and writing is NOT grammar, but WORD COUNT—page length—and, hopefully for the writer and publisher both, NAME RECONITION—by which a much slighter prodcution can be marketed if the author’s name, rather than the bulk, merits the raising of the price no matter how short a work may be.

In one of his essays the Italian Futurist (an ex-Symbolist whose Futurism is littered with many of the most hackneyed of Symbolist images and techniques), considered that literature and poetry could be assigned values based on a system of weights and measures, including that of measuring and weighing “quality”—which is not unrelated is it not to” Name Recognition” as a “guarantee” of at least a certain level of quality being available to the reader.

This is another of the paradoxes of the hack work of Feneon’s Faits Divers—that in an anonymous poorly paid and very low-regarded form, he would decide to go about producing work of the highest quality, while getting absolutely no credit for it “in name” nor being rewarded for his extra efforts by any increase in the minimal pay.

And so it is only a century later that Feneon’s Faits Divers aka Nouvelles en trois lignes appear in English, in a translation of most of the pieces. (The translation unfortunately uses the word “novels’ for nouvelles—which disappears the punning of “short news items, news briefs” and short stories. Instead there is a making much by reveiewers of the pieces being “novels” which contradicts the entire meaning of the pun. It also makes impossible the contemporary punning of “news flashes” with today’s “flash fictions.”)

Flaubert, after all, had already accomplished the turning

Several decades
earlier of a provincial journal's Faits Divers into the novel Madame Bovary:

"Delphine Delamare, 27, wife of a medical officer in Ry, displayed insufficient austerity. Worse, she ran up debts. To avoid paying them, she took poison."

But then, despite the Figure of the Dead Author which strides so stridently about among the assertions of Authors who grow plump with the fees their Name Recognition brings as they Bang the Drum Slowly—perhaps SLOWLY NOT AS A DIRGE BUT AS A VERY VERY VERY LONG DRAWN OUT SERIAL—OR-- EVEN BETTER-- A DECADE ADTER DECADE ONGOING SOAP OPERA –

What writer of today would anonymously take on hack work of the slightest kind FOR THE LOWEST PAY and work on creating of each item a short story beautifully composed via the elements of structure known as syntax, word choice and the obligatory listing of information such as who what when why where-

And a few years later basically stop writing altogether
other than letters to friends and business associates—for it was Feneon's "aspiration to silence"—his works were constructed to attain—

In effect, a writer who combines Bartleby's "I prefer not to" with Rimbaud's leaving of writing for work in a business establishment. (In Feneon's case, a well- known Parisian art gallery turning his no longer being France's best art critic since Baudelaire to use in selling the wares he once wrote of.)

See also:

Feneon's
Faits Divers and Poe's Principles of Poetryhttp://cronacasouversivafeneon.blogspot.com/2008/12/feneons-poe-tic-ghosthumously-anonymous.html

FELIX
FENEON AS CONCEPTUAL POET

http://cronacasouversivafeneon.blogspot.com/2008/12/felix-feneon-as-conceptual-poet.html

> Date: Mon, 29 Dec 2008 11:45:57 -0800
>
> From: [redacted]
>
> Subject: capitalism and the long poem
>
> To: [redacted]

> I sat down to write a little piece about this Russian poet, and came up with a strange take on the long poem--an idea that the Seriality of it is somehow related to consumer capitalism--
>
> http://tsky-reviews.blogspot.com/
>
> not the pleasantest thought--
>
> and so I was wondering if anyone has any good counter arguments, or different takes on why so many are so obsessed with this form right now. & will we fall out of love with it during the recession?
>
> e
>
> ==========

_____ It’s the same Hotmail®. If by “same” you mean up to 70% faster.
http://windowslive.com/online/hotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_hotmail_acq_broad1_122008

↑ Index

17. Peter Quartermain

Disjunctive Poetics in paperback

Fri 2 Jan 2009

I'm happy to announce that Cambridge University Press has (at last) issued

Disjunctive Poetics: From Gertrude Stein and Louis Zukofsky to Susan Howe

in paperback (digital reprint). ISBN 978-0-521-10130-1

It'as not exactly cheap, at something like $35.00, but that's less than half the hardback price, and, hmmm, maybe affordable?

=========
Peter Quartermain
846 Keefer Street
Vancouver

BC Canada V6A 1Y7
[redacted] (voice and fax)
[redacted]
=========

↑ Index

18. Jamie Reid

BILLY LITTLE NOVEMBER 14, 1943 - JANUARY 1, 2009

Fri 2 Jan 2009

Billy Little: October 14, 1943 - January 1, 2009

Our dear comrade and brother poet, Billy Little, slipped away from this life at about 5 AM on New Years Day. It almost seems to me as if he were imitating one of his idols, dada hero Tristan Tzara, who died on Christmas Day in 1963. For several days he had been telling his friends that each day might be his last, but he hung on and continued to breathe one day after another for several days, until finally he lost the ability to speak and passed away. Billy spent his last days on his beloved Hornby Island, surrounded by his friends.

He had been resigned to this final result since hearing from his doctors last January that the abdominal cancer through which he had endured several rounds of chemotherapy and surgery would finally take his life in a matter of months rather than years. He lived the months that were left to him with great courage and good humour, sometimes in tears, he told me once, that he should have to leave the world, the life and the people that he loved with such passion and devotion. The people at his bedside near the end, his son Matt Little, Gordon Payne and his caregiver, Colleen Work, confirmed that through his last hours, though he could not speak, he was clearly smiling.

Billy’s son, Matt, will be inviting friends to the Hornby Island ball park on Sunday, January 4. In commemoration of Billy’s life-long devoted attachment to books and ideas, Matt will be handing out items from Billy’s book collection.

Further notice of an expanded memorial event will be posted later.

Typically, Billy left his life with a jest, a protest, leaving behind his own obituary:

obituary

after decades of passion, dedication to world peace and justice, powerful frindships, recognition, being loved undeservedly by extraordinary women, a close and powerful relationship with a strong, handsome, capable, thoughtful son Matt, a never ending stream of amusing ideas, affections shared with a wide range of creative men and women, a long residence in the paradisical landscape of hornby island, sucess after sucess in the book trade, fabulous meals, unmeasurable inebriation, dancing beyond exhaustion, satori after satori, billy little regrets he's unable to schmooze today. in lieu of flowers please send a humongous donation to the war resisters league.

I'd like my tombstone to read:

billy little poet
hydro is too expensive

but I'd like my mortal remains to be set adrift on a flaming raft off chrome island

↑ Index

19. UbuWeb

UBUWEB :: Featured Resources for the Year, 2008 (+Jan '09)

Sat 3 Jan 2009

__ U B U W E B __
http://ubu.com

---------- UBUWEB :: Featured Resources for the Year, 2008 (+ Jan '09) ----------

January 2009
Selected by James Hoff

1. Sjollander/Weck: Extracts from Monument
http://ubu.com/film/sjolander_monument.html

2. Ron Rice: A Brief History of Anti-Records and Conceptual Records http://ubu.com/papers/rice.html

3. Alan Sondheim: Run by Me
http://www.ubu.com/contemp/sondheim/index.html

4. Ulay: Action in 14 Predetermined Sequences http://ubu.com/film/ulay_action.html

5. Joseph Nechvatal: viral symphOny (28'09") http://ubu.com/sound/nechvatal.html

6. Henry Chopin Performance: Undated
http://ubu.com/film/chopin.html

7. CoLab: All Color News Sampler
http://ubu.com/film/colab_news.html

8. Wim Mertens / John Cage "So that each person is in charge of himself."
http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/chicago_82/Chicago_82-B2_Cage-Mertens_So-that-each.mp3 from A Dip in the Lake

http://www.ubu.com/sound/chicago82.html

9. Dec-Francis: Rant 2
http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/dec_francis/Dec-Francis-E_rant2.mp3

10. Charlemagne Palestine: Island Song
http://www.ubu.com/film/palestine.html

James Hoff is an artist living in New York City. He, along with Miriam Katzeff, is the co-founder of http://www.primaryinformation.org/Primary Information.
html

December 2008
Selected by Julian Cowley

1. Robert Ashley - Music with Roots in the Aether http://ubu.com/film/aether.html

2. Joe Jones/ Chicken to Kitchen - Fluxus Meditation http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/jones_joe/chicken/Jones-Joe+Chicken-to-Kitchen_02-Fluxus-Meditation.mp3 from Fluxsaints (1992)

http://ubu.com/sound/jones.html

3. Robert Wilson - Christopher Knowles - The Sundance Kid Is Beautiful (1975)
http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/dial_a_poem_poets/big_ego/Big_Ego_05-wilson.mp3

from Giorno Poetry Systems, Big Ego
http://ubu.com/sound/big_ego.html

4. Wolf Vostell - De/Collage [LP] (1980)
http://www.ubu.com/sound/vostell.html

5. John Cage and Raahsan Roland Kirk - Sound?? (1966)
http://www.ubu.com/film/kirk.html

6. Nicholas Moore, Spleen (Ubu Editions, 2004)
http://ubu.com/ubu/moore_spleen.html

7. Pina Bausch Documentary (directed by Anne Linsel) (2006)
http://www.ubu.com/film/bausch_linsel.html

8. David Behrman, Long Throw (Roulette, 2008)
http://www.ubu.com/film/roulette_behrman.html

9. Derek Bailey, Interview by Henry Kaiser (1987)
http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/bailey_derek/Derek-Bailey-Interview-by-Henry-Kaiser_KPFA_2-7-87.mp3

10. Vito Acconci, The Bristol Project (2001)
http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/acconci_vito/Acconci-Vito_The-Bristol-Project_2001.mp3

Julian Cowley contributes regularly to The Wire and occasionally to other music magazines. He has also lectured and written extensively on literature. During the 1980s he had the good fortune to work closely for several years with poet and critic Eric Mottram, whose inexhaustible conversation was, in effect, a foretaste of the UbuWeb experience.

November 2008
Selected by Neville Wakefield

1. Willoughby Sharp Interviews Vito Acconci (1973)
http://www.ubuweb.com/film/acconci_sharp.html

2. Bas Jan Ader - Selected Works (1970-71)
http://www.ubu.com/film/ader_selected.html

3. Pipilotti Rist - Video Works (1986-2003)
http://www.ubu.com/film/rist.html

4. Chris Burden - Documentation of Selected Works 1971-74
http://www.ubu.com/film/burden.html

5. ohan Grimonprez - Dial H-I-S-T-O-R-Y (1997)
http://www.ubu.com/film/grimonprez_dial.html J

6. The Films of Jack Goldstein (1974-1978)
http://www.ubu.com/film/goldstein.html

7. Gordon Matta-Clark - Splitting, Bingo/Ninths, Substrait (Underground Dailies) (1974-1976) http://www.ubu.com/film/gmc_splitting.html

8. Lawrence Weiner - WATER IN MILK EXISTS (2008)
http://www.ubu.com/film/weiner_water.html

9. Psychic TV - "Unclean" http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/dial_a_poem_poets/demon/Demon_04_psychic.mp3

10. Robert Smithson - Bootleg of Hotel Palenque by Alex Hubbard (1969 / 2004)
http://www.ubu.com/film/smithson_hotel.html

Neville Wakefield is a writer and curator living in NYC. Recent film projects include 'http://www.destricted.com/destricted ' a compilation of commissioned films by Marina Abramovic, Matthew Barney, Marco Brambilla, Larry Clark, Gaspar Noe, Richard Prince and Sam Taylor Wood. Senior curatorial advisor to PS1 and curator of Frieze. He is also creative director of 'tar' magazine .html

October 2008
Selected by Gary Sullivan

1. Jaap Blonk's sound files http://www.ubu.com/sound/blonk.html J

2. Dada Magazine
http://www.ubu.com/historical/dada/index.html

3. Drew Gardner's sound files http://www.ubu.com/sound/gardner.html

4. Kenneth Goldsmith, editor, "Publishing the Unpublishable" series http://ubuweb.com/ubu/unpub.html

5. George Kuchar's films (especially "Corruption of the Damned") http://www.ubu.com/film/kuchar.html

6. Anders Lundgerg, Jonas Magnusson and Jesper Olsson, editors, "After Language Poetry" papers http://www.ubu.com/papers/oei/index.html

7. Paper Rad's "P-Unit Mixtape" http://ubuweb.com/film/paperrad_p.html

8. Bern Porter's page
http://www.ubu.com/historical/porter/index.html

9. erome Rothenberg's Ethnopoetics : Soundings page (especially "Ca Dao, Vietnamese Folk Poems") http://www.ubu.com/ethno/soundings/vietnam.html J

10. Survival Research Laboratories, "Virtues of Negative Fascination" http://ubuweb.com/film/srl_virtues.html

Poet and cartoonist Gary Sullivan lives in Brooklyn with http://ululate.blogspot.com/Nada Gordon . Together, they wrote the book Swoon . Gary's most recent book is PPL in a Depot . He has published three issues of a comic book, Elsewhere, and maintains a blog by the same name.

September 2008
Selected by Rick Moody

1. Komar and Melamid and Dave Soldier, "The Most Unwanted Song"
Â¥http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/komar_melamid/KomarMelamid_The-Most-UnwantedSong.mp3

2. Jacques Derrida, "On Religion"

Part 1
http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/derrida_jacques/Derrida-Jacques_On-Religion_Part-1.mp3

Part 2
http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/derrida_jacques/Derrida-Jacques_On-Religion_Part-2.mp3

3. Assorted Street Posters http://www.ubu.com/outsiders/ass.html

4. William Carlos Williams, "Danse Russe."
http://media.sas.upenn.edu/pennsound/authors/Williams-WC/05_Emerson-Recording_08-50/Williams-WC_12_Widows-Lament_prod-Emerson_08-50.mp3

5. Beth B., "Stigmata"
http://www.ubu.com/film/b.html

6. James Joyce, "Anna Livia Plurabelle" http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/joyce_james/Joyce-James_Anna-Livia-Plurabelle.mp3

7. Tellus #14, "Just Intonation" http://www.ubu.com/sound/tellus_14.html

8. Hugo Ball, "Karawane," performed by Marie Osmond http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/ball_hugo/Marie-Osmond_Hugo-Ball_Karawane.mp3

9. Gregory Whitehead, "We All Scream Alone" http://mediamogul.seas.upenn.edu/pennsound/authors/Whitehead/Gregory_Whitehead-We_All_Scream_Alone_1992.mp3

10. John Cage Meets Sun Ra http://www.ubu.com/film/cage_kirk.html

Rick Moody is the author of four novels, three collections of stories, and a memoir, THE BLACK VEIL. He also plays music with The Wingdale Community Singers

August 2008
Selected by Ben Rubin

1. Erik Saite - A Day in the Life of a Musician http://www.ubu.com/papers/satie_day.html

2. Richard Leacock - For an Uncontrolled Cinema http://www.ubuweb.com/papers/leacock_richard-uncontrolled_cinema.html

3. William S. Burroughs - The Cut-Up Method of Brion Gysin
http://www.ubu.com/papers/burroughs_gysin.html

4. Claude Cloksy - The first thousand numbers classified in alphabetical order http://www.ubu.com/concept/closky_1000.html

5. Robert Smithson - A Heap of Language http://www.ubu.com/concept/smithson_heap.html

6. Vito Acconci - RE
http://www.ubu.com/concept/acconci_re.html

7. Marshall McLuhan - The Medium is the Massage, Side A http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/mcluhan_marshall/Mcluhan-Marshall_The-Medium-Is-The-Massage_01.mp3

Side B
http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/mcluhan_marshall/Mcluhan-Marshall_The-Medium-Is-The-Massage_02.mp3

8. Raphael Rubinstein - A Brief History of Appropriative Writing
http://www.ubu.com/papers/rubinstein.html

9. Marjorie Perloff - The Music of Verbal Space
http://www.ubu.com/papers/perloff02.html

10. Steve Reich - Pendulum Music (score)
http://www.ubu.com/aspen/aspen8/leadPendulum.html #reich

Ben Rubin is a media artist based in New York City. He has been a frequent collaborator with artists and performers including Laurie Anderson, Diller+Scofidio, Ann Hamilton, Arto Lindsay, Steve Reich, and Beryl Korot.

July 2008
Selected by Zach Feuer

1. Paul McCarthy - Painter (1995)
http://ubu.com/film/mccarthy_painter.html

2. Pipilotti Rist - Video Works (1986-1999)
http://ubu.com/film/rist.html

3. Richard Kern - My Nightmare (1993) http://ubu.com/film/kern_nightmare.html

4. Bas Jan Ader - Fall I and II (1970)
http://ubu.com/film/ader_selected.html

5. Lynda Benglis - Female Sensibility (1974)
http://ubu.com/film/benglis_female.html

6. Sophie Calle and Greg Shepard - No Sex Last Night aka Double-Blind (1992)
http://www.ubu.com/film/calle_double.html

7. Kembra Pfahler - Cornella; The Story of a Burning Bush (1985)
http://www.ubu.com/film/pfhaler.html

8. Robert Morris and Stan VanDerBeek - Site (excerpt) (1964, .mov)
http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/aspen/qt/morris.mov

9. Carolee Schneeman - Meat Joy (1964)
http://www.ubu.com/film/schneeman_meatjoy.html

10. Dan Graham - Rock My Religion (1982-84)
http://www.ubu.com/film/graham_rock.html

Zach Feuer owns the creatively named Zach Feuer Gallery in New York City.html

June 2008
Selected by Ron Silliman

1.Frank Film (1973), Frank and Caroline Mouris
http://ubu.com/film/mouris.html

2. The Name (1973), Robert Creeley
http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/dial_a_poem_poets/disconnected/Disconnected_11_creeley.mp3

3. Recollections of Grande Apachera (1973), Edward Dorn http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/dial_a_poem_poets/disconnected/Disconnected_28_dorn.mp3

4. Reading at Goddard College (1973), Robert Creeley http://media.sas.upenn.edu/pennsound/authors/Creeley/Goddard/Creeley-Robert_Full_Goddard_VT_5-18-73.mp3

5. Carnival The First Panel: 1967-1970 (1973), Steve McCaffery
http://www.ubu.com/papers/mc_carn1.html

6. Black Tarantula Crossword Gathas (excerpt) (1973), Jackson Mac Low http://media.sas.upenn.edu/pennsound/authors/Mac-Low/CDs/Doings/Mac-Low-Jackson_08_Black-Tarantula_Doings_1982.mp3

7. A Vocabulary for Sharon Belle Matlin (1973), Jackson Mac Low http://media.sas.upenn.edu/pennsound/authors/Mac-Low/CDs/Doings/Mac-Low-Jackson_09_Vocabulary-for-Mattlin_Doings_1982.mp3

8. Heavy Aspirations (1973), Charles Amirkhanian http://ubu.com/sound/files/10+2_02.Charles_Amirkhanian.mp3

9. Armand Schwerner (1973), Phil Niblock (real video .rm file)
http://media.sas.upenn.edu/pennsound/video/Schwerner/Schwerner-Armand-by-Phill-Niblock_c-1973.rm

10. High Kukus (1973), James Broughton http://greylodge.org/gpc/film/broughton_kuku.html

Ron Silliman was once a slow left-handed second baseman. Now he lives in a faux forest in what was once the Biddle Estate

May 2008
Selected by Christian Bok

1. Claude Closky: "The First Thousand Numbers Classified in Alphabetical Order" (1989) [PDF] http://www.ubu.com/concept/Claude_Closky_1000.pdf

2. Derek Beaulieu: "Flatland" (2007) [PDF]
http://writing.upenn.edu/pepc/authors/beaulieu/Beaulieu-Derek_Flatland.pdf

3. Darren Wershler-Henry: "The Tapeworm Foundry" (2002)
http://www.ubu.com/ubu/wershler_tapeworm.html

4. Claude Simon: "Properties of Several Geometric and Non-Geometric Figures" (1971) http://www.ubu.com/ubu/simon_properties.html

5. F. T. Marinetti: "Dune, Parole in Liberte" (1914)
http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/bruhin_anton/rotomotor/Bruhin-Anton_Rotomotor_05_Rotomotor.mp3

6. Survival Research Laboratories: "Virtues of Negative Fascination" (1985-86)
http://www.ubu.com/film/srl_virtues.html

7. Seth Price: "Video Game Soundtracks 1983-1987 (2001)
http://media.sas.upenn.edu/pennsound/authors/Price/Vidz/Price-Seth_Vid-Trax_CONTINUOUS_MIX_2001.mp3

8. Trek Bloopers
http://www.ubu.com/outsiders/365/2007/199.shtml

9. Anton Bruhin: "Rotomotor" (1976-77)
http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/bruhin_anton/rotomotor/Bruhin-Anton_Rotomotor_05_Rotomotor.mp3

10. RACTER: "The Policeman's Beard Is Half-Constructed" (1984)
http://www.ubu.com/historical/racter/index.html

BONUS TRACK:
"Music from Mathematics" (1962)
http://www.ubu.com/outsiders/365/2003/260.shtml IBM 7090

Christian Bok is the author of Eunoia.

April 2008
Selected by Laura Beiles

1. nita Feldman and Michael Kowalski, Riffle (1985)
http://ubu.wfmu.org/sound/tellus_12/Tellus-12_07_Anita-Feldman-and-Michael-Kowalski-Riffle.mp3A

2. MoMA: Writing in Time (2007)
http://www.ubu.com/sound/moma.html

3. Piotr Kamler, Films (1960s-90s)
http://www.ubu.com/film/kamler.html

4. Fortunato Depero, Verbalizzazione astratta di signora (1916) http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/depero_fortunato/Depero-Fortunato_Verbal.mp3

5. Penelope Umbrico, All the Dishes on Ebay (2002-03)
http://www.ubu.com/contemp/umbrico/arrhythmia-allthedishesonebay/index.html

6. Catherine Jauniaux and Ikue Mori, 'Smell' (1992)
http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/tellus_26/Tellus-26_05-Smell.mp3

7. Abbie Hoffman Makes Gefilte Fish (1973)
http://www.ubu.com/film/hoffman.html

8. Mary Lou Green on Andy Warhol's Hair (1963)
http://ubu.wfmu.org/sound/warhol_andy/cronenberg/13_Cronenberg_Haircut.mp3

9. Sophie Calle and Gregory Shephard, Double Blind (1992)
http://www.ubu.com/film/calle_double.html

10. Cioni Carpi, Three Short Films (1960-62)
http://www.ubu.com/film/carpi_three_short.html

Laura Beiles is an associate educator in the Department of Education Adult and Academic Programs at The Museum of Modern Art, where she has organized programs with artists, poets, scholars, architects, and designers for seven years. In May of 2007, she received her MA in Art History from Hunter College, and received the Shuster Award for her thesis, "Creating National and International Identities: The Futurist Exhibitions at the Venice Biennale under Fascism, 1928-1942'. Prior to coming to MoMA, she worked at NYU's La Pietra in Florence and the Peggy Guggenheim Collection in Venice.

March 2008
Selected by Seth Price

1. Tessa Hughes-Freeland "Baby Doll" (1982)
http://ubu.com/film/freeland.html

2. Marie Menken "Glimpse of the Garden" (1957)
http://www.ubu.com/film/menken.html

3. Robert Barry "Interview (1969)" http://www.ubu.com/papers/barry_interview.html

4. Ethyl Eichelberger "Jocasta (Boy Crazy) or "She Married Her Son" (1986)
http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/uproar/The-Uproar-Tapes_05_Ethyl-Eichelberger.mp3

5. Lytle Shaw "Low-Level Bureaucratic Structures: Principles of the Emeryville Shellmound http://www.ubu.com/ubu/shaw_low.html

6. Taj Mahal Travellers "Taj Mahal Travellers on Tour" (1973)
http://www.ubu.com/film/taj.html

7. Asger Jorn "Pataphysics: A Religion in the Making" http://www.ubu.com/papers/jorn_pataphysics.html

8. Racter "The Policeman's Beard Is Half-Constructed" (1984)
http://www.ubu.com/historical/racter/index.html

9. Tristan Tzara "A Note on Negro Poetry" (1918)
http://www.ubu.com/ethno/discourses/tzara.html

10. I.B.M. 7090 "Music From Mathematics" (1962)
http://www.wfmu.org/365/2003/260.shtml

Seth Price is an artist.

March 2008
Selected by Stephanie Stricklandhtml

1. Maya Deren, "Divine Horsemen" http://www.ubu.com/film/deren.html

2. "Concrete!" Ruth and Marvin Sackner Archive http://www.ubu.com/film/sackner_concrete.html

3. Jason Nelson, "Poetry Cube" http://www.ubu.com/contemp/nelson/index.html

4. b. p. Nichol, "White Text Sure" http://media.sas.upenn.edu/pennsound/authors/bpNichol/Ear-Rational-1982/bpNichol_12_White-Txt-Sure_1978.mp3

5. Yoko Ono, "Snow Is Falling All the Time" http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/aspen/mp3/ono2.mp3

6. Dick Higgins, "Horizons" [PDF]
http://ubu.com/ubu/higgins_horizons.html

7. Ketjak: the Ramayana Monkey Chant http://ubu.wfmu.org/sound/ethno/ketjack/mp3/Ketjak-the-Ramayana-Monkey-Chant.mp3

8. Concrete Poetry: A World View" Mary Ellen Solt http://www.ubu.com/papers/solt/index.html "

9. Raphael Rubinstein, "Gathered, not Made: A Brief History of Appropriative Writing" http://www.ubu.com/papers/rubinstein.html

10. Kenneth Goldsmith and Conceptual Poetics http://www.ubu.com/papers/kg_ol.html

Bonus

11. Glossolalia: Speaking in Tongues http://ubu.wfmu.org/sound/ethno/gloss/mp3/Unknown-Artist_Glossolalia.mp3

12. Caroline Bergvall, "About Face" http://mediamogul.seas.upenn.edu/pennsound/authors/Bergvall/Bergvall-Caroline-About-Face-2004.mp3

Stephanie Strickland is a poet. Her latest collaborative hypermedia work is first shown at e-Poetry 2007 in Paris and published in `hyperrhiz: new media cultures . Her latest book, Zone : Zero (with digital poetry CD) will appear from Ahsahta Press in fall 2008. She recently published "Quantum Poetics: Six Thoughts, in Media Poetry: An International Anthology," edited by Eduardo Kac, co-edited The Iowa Review Web issue, Coding: Jason Nelson, Donna Leishman, and Electronic Writing , and also co-edited the first Electronic Literature Collection, published by the Electronic Literature Organization

February 2008
Selected by Alan Licht

1. Derek Bailey Interview by Henry Kaiser
http://ubu.com/sound/bailey.html

2. Richard Foreman MP3 loops from Now That Communism Is Dead My Life Feels Empty http://ubu.com/sound/foreman.html

3. Bruce Nauman "Record"
http://ubu.com/sound/nauman.html

4. bpNichol â€” all sound works http://ubu.com/sound/nichol.html

5. Cornelius Cardew "Stockhausen Serves Imperialism" http://ubu.com/historical/cardew/index.html

6. Philip Guston/Clark Coolidge "Poor Richard" http://ubu.com/historical/guston/guston_nixon.html

7. Lou Reed "the View from the Bandstand" http://www.ubu.com/aspen/aspen3/bandstand.html

8. Jack Smith "Buzzards Over Baghdad" http://www.ubu.com/aspen/aspen3/flipbook.html

9. Richard Meltzer "Barbara Mauritz: Music Box" http://ubu.com/concept/meltzer_music.html

10. Adrian Piper "Untitled 1968" http://ubu.com/concept/piper_68.html

Over the past two decades, guitarist Alan Licht has worked with a veritable who's who of the experimental world. He has released five albums of compositions for tape and solo guitar, and his sound and video installations have been exhibited in the U.S. and Europe. His new book Sound Art: Beyond Music, Between Media , the first extensive survey of the genre in English, was published by Rizzoli in fall 2007.

February 2008
Selected by Bettina Funckehtml

1. Harun Farocki, Inextinguishable Fire (1969) and How to Live in the German Federal Republic (1986)- Note! Films Removed by copyright holder's request

2. UbuWeb Hall of Shame
3. Robert Frank, Energy and How to Get It (1981)
http://ubu.com/film/frank.html

4. J. G. Ballard, Shanghai Jim (1991)
http://ubu.com/film/ballard.html

5. Pandit Pran Nath Ragas of Morning and Night (1968)
http://ubu.com/sound/nath.html

6. Hrabanus Marus De adoratione crucis ab opifice / De Laudibus Sanctae Crucis Augsburg (ca. 845) http://www.ubu.com/historical/early/early01.html

7. Jacques Lacan, Television (1973)
http://ubu.com/film/lacan.html

8. Joan Jonas "The Anchor Stone" (1988)
http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/artist_tellus/Tellus-21-Artists_15_jonas.mp3

9. Inuit Throat Singing, from Ethnopoetics
http://ubu.com/ethno/soundings/inuit.html

10. Assorted Street Posters (1985-present) http://ubu.com/outsiders/ass.html

from Outsiders
http://ubu.com/outsiders/index.html

Bettina Funcke is the Senior U.S. Editor of Parkett Magazine

January 2008
Selected by Alex Ross

1. Robert Ashley "She Was a Visitor" http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/extended_voices/Extended-Voices_4_Robert-Ashley.mp3Â¥

2. Kurt Schwitters "Sonata in Urlauten" http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/schwitters_kurt/ursonate/Schwitters-Kurt_Ursonate_01_Einleitung_Und_Erster_Teil.mp3

3. John Cale "Loop"
http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/aspen/mp3/loop.mp3

4. The Films of Mauricio Kagel
http://www.ubu.com/film/kagel.html

5. hCharles Amirkhanian "Dog of Stravinsky" ttp://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/amirkhanian_charles/mental_radio/Amirkhanian_Charles-Mental_Radio-03_Dog.mp3

6. Bernd Alois Zimmermann "Musique pour le soupers de Roi Ubu" http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/zimmerman_ba/Zimmermann-Bernd-Alois_Roi-Ubu.mp3

7. Pauline Oliveros "Sound Patterns" http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/extended_voices/Extended-Voices_1_Pauline-Oliveros.mp3

8. Ezra Pound "Sestina: Altaforte" http://media.sas.upenn.edu/pennsound/authors/Pound/1939/Pound-Ezra_01_Sestina-Altaforte_Harvard_1939.mp3

9. John Cage "4'33"
http://ubu.com/film/cage_433.html

10. Robert Ashley "The Wolfman" http://ubu.artmob.ca/sound/source/Ashley-Robert_Wolfman.mp3

Alex Ross has been the music critic of The New Yorker since 1996. His work has also appeared in The New Republic, The London Review of Books, Lingua Franca, and The Guardian. From 1992 to 1996 he was a critic at The New York Times. He has received two ASCAP-Deems Taylor Awards for music criticism, fellowships from the American Academy in Berlin and the Banff Centre, and a Letter of Distinction from the American Music Center for contributions to the field of contemporary music. He played keyboards in the noise band Miss Teen Schnauzer, which gave only one public performance, in 1991. His first book, The Rest Is Noise: Listening to the Twentieth Century ," a cultural history of music since 1900, was published in October 2007 by Farrar, Straus and Giroux.

---------- UBUWEB :: Featured Resources for the Year, 2008 (+ Jan '09) ----------

UBUWEB IS ENTIRELY FREE

__ U B U W E B __
http://ubu.com

Apologies for cross-postings. Please forward.

↑ Index

20. Mark Weiss
Re: capitalism and the long poem
Sat 3 Jan 2009

Putting aside the dubiousness of the term post modern and the assignment of dates to it, Pound was writing the serial poem that was the acknowledged model for Olson and Duncan well before 1945, and Rimbaud was doing it even earlier. It shouldn't be difficult to come up with a few more, but I have to run out the door--promises to keep, restless horses, etc.

Mark

At 08:16 AM 1/1/2009, you wrote:
>One of the most fascinating developments of the post-modern era
>Troy, One of the most fascinating developments >of the post-modern era (& the era since then) is >the development (evolution) of the Serial Poem.
>Robin Blaser's 'The Holy Forest' and Nate >Mackey's 'Mu' or 'Song of the Andoumbolou' >(which together could be considered part of the >same poem) are two stellar examples of this.
>These are more recent examples and 'The Maximus >Poems' and 'Paterson' are other examples and I >am sure folks on the list could chip in their >own favorites. The narrative that emerges is not >as obvious and requires more study, more of a >commitment than what was previously known as >'epic.' The recognition of these in a mode >similar to the epics of the past is very much a >function of this shift in literature, especially >after 1945 (the beginning of the post-modern >era) and Jack Spicer's notion gets close to >summing it up: ...The trick naturally is what >Duncan learned years ago and tried to teach us >not to search for the perfect poem but to let >your way of writing of the moment go along its >own paths, explore and retreat but never be >fully realized (confined) within the boundaries >of one poem... It's pleasing to be back to >actual poetics on the poetics list. Happy New >Year. Paul E. Nelson Global Voices Radio SPLAB!

>American Sentences Organic Poetry Poetry
>Postcard Blog Ilalqo, WA [redacted]
>_____ From: Troy >Camplin <[redacted]> To:
>[redacted] Sent: Tuesday, >December 30, 2008 10:50:09 AM Subject: Re: >capitalism and the long poem I think we've >become obsessed with it precisely because it's >fallen out of favor. Somebody, or a few people, >wondered where it went, and began writing about >it. It seems to me that the long poem became >impossible with the abandonment of narrative by >poets. How long can one keep up a feeling or a >mood or an "experiment"? Frederick Fierstein >writes quite long poems, but his poems also have >narratives holding them together. Frederick >Turner has written two epic poems. It seems that >the gradual abandonment of narrative in poetry >by the Modernists, especially the late >Modernists, and the postmodern poets, far more >than economic conditions, have contributed to >the abandonment of long poetry as a form. Troy >Camplin _____ From:
>Eireene Nealand <[redacted]> To:
>[redacted] Sent: Monday, >December 29, 2008 1:45:57 PM Subject: capitalism >and the long poem I sat down to write a little >piece about this Russian poet, and came up with >a strange take on the long poem--an idea that >the seriality of it is somehow related to >consumer capitalism-- >http://tsky-reviews.blogspot.com/ not the >pleasantest thought-- and so I was wondering if >anyone has any good counter arguments, or >different takes on why so many are so obsessed >with this form right now. & will we fall out of >love with it during the recession? e

>========== The Poetics
>========== The Poetics
>

↑ Index

21. carol dorf

Re: capitalism and the long poem

Sat 3 Jan 2009

I think the long poem is often more a poem in interrelated segments -- Patricia Smith's "Blood Dazzler" approaches Katrina from numerous viewpoints including the Hurricane's. At the opposite end of the public/personal scale, Rusty Morrison's "the true keeps calm biding its story," is a formal experiment in the nature of the book-length poem.

In reading these book-length poems, the individual segments provide a way to move through aspects of language/experience.

On 1/1/09, Paul Nelson <[redacted]> wrote:
> One of the most fascinating developments of the post-modern era
> Troy,
>
> One of the most fascinating developments of the post-modern era (& the era > since then) is the development (evolution) of the Serial Poem. Robin > Blaser's 'The Holy Forest' and Nate Mackey's 'Mu' or 'Song of the > Andoumbolou' (which together could be considered part of the same poem) are > two stellar examples of this. These are more recent examples and 'The > Maximus Poems' and 'Paterson' are other examples and I am sure folks on the > list could chip in their own favorites.
>
> The narrative that emerges is not as obvious and requires more study, more > of a commitment than what was previously known as 'epic.'
>
> The recognition of these in a mode similar to the epics of the past is very > much a function of this shift in literature, especially after 1945 (the > beginning of the post-modern era) and Jack Spicer's notion gets close to > summing it up:

>
> …The trick naturally is what Duncan learned > years ago and tried to teach us – not to search for the perfect poem but to > let > your way of writing of the moment go along its own paths, explore and > retreat
> but never be fully realized (confined) within the boundaries of one poem…
>
>
>
> It's pleasing to be back to actual poetics on the poetics list.
>
> Happy New Year.
>
>
> Paul E. Nelson
>
> Global Voices Radio
> SPLAB!
> American Sentences
> Organic Poetry
> Poetry Postcard Blog
>
> Ilalqo, WA [redacted]
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
> _____
> From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Tuesday, December 30, 2008 10:50:09 AM
> Subject: Re: capitalism and the long poem
>
> I think we've become obsessed with it precisely because it's fallen out of > favor. Somebody, or a few people, wondered where it went, and began writing > about it. It seems to me that the long poem became impossible with the > abandonment of narrative by poets. How long can one keep up a feeling or a > mood or an "experiment"? Frederick Fierstein writes quite long poems, but > his poems also have narratives holding them together. Frederick Turner has > written two epic poems. It seems that the gradual abandonment of narrative > in poetry by the Modernists, especially the late Modernists, and the > postmodern poets, far more than economic conditions, have contributed to

the > abandonment of long poetry as a form.
>
> Troy Camplin
>
>
>
> _____
> From: Eireene Nealand <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Monday, December 29, 2008 1:45:57 PM
> Subject: capitalism and the long poem
>
> I sat down to write a little piece about this Russian poet, and came > up with a strange take on the long poem--an idea that the seriality of > it is somehow related to consumer capitalism--
>
> http://tsky-reviews.blogspot.com/
>
> not the pleasantest thought--
>
> and so I was wondering if anyone has any good counter arguments, or > different takes on why so many are so obsessed with this form right > now. & will we fall out of love with it during the recession?
>
> e
>
>
>
>
>

↑ Index

22. Nicholas Karavatos
at the Accident Gallery in Eureka, CA on Thursday the 8thþþ
Sat 3 Jan 2009

Poet Nicholas Karavatos will perform poems in spontaneous collaboration with electric guitarist Jeff Kelley at the Accident Gallery in Eureka on Thursday, January 8, 2009.

The evening begins with an open mic at 7:30, followed by the inter-media spoken word performance by Nicholas Karavatos and Jeff Kelley.

Accident Gallery
210 C St
Eureka, CA 95501
[redacted]

Nicholas Karavatos
Dept of English
American University of Sharjah
PO Box 26666
Sharjah
United Arab Emirates
http://nicholaskaravatos.blogspot.com/

_____ It’s the same Hotmail®. If by “same” you mean up to 70% faster.
http://windowslive.com/online/hotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_hotmail_acq_broad1_122008

↑ Index

23. John Cunningham
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Sat 3 Jan 2009

A very interesting and relevant response, Richard. I was watching the news yesterday and noted that a young man was killed as a result of a hockey fight. The newscaster implied that only a limited sector of the hockey audience was interested in watching hockey fights. My first thought was, "Bullshit!". That's part and parcel of being a hockey player and it's never going to change. The male stereotype is one of power and strength, of laughing in the face of danger. Would anyone be interested in watching people drive cars around an oval track if not for the expectation of accidents? Isn't that one of the reasons why tennis, which demands a damned sight more athletic ability than football or, perhaps, hockey, not as popular a sport? Although golf and baseball and watching grass grow are pretty popular, aren't they? John Herbert Cunningham

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Richard Newman
Sent: January-02-09 8:26 AM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

Ruth and Amy make important points: That there may be parallels between prostitution and football does not make it invalid to criticize the specific institution, and specifics of the institution, of prostitution; nor does criticizing prostitution invalidate criticisms of football or any other form of labor; nor does the fact that both prostitution and football are labor mean that the precise terms of any particular critique should apply precisely in the same way to both of them. If prostitutes and the work they do were valued and valorized in this culture in the way that football players are, I imagine we would be having a very different conversation about The Poetry Brothel, but we do not value and valorize prostitutes, and while one reason we do not may have to do with a general (generic) squeamishness about sex and what it means to sell sex, another, more pervasive reason, has to do with the misogyny of our culture and how women are situated physically, politically, culturally and socioeconomically by that misogyny--and, need I say it?, the ways in which this misogyny and the institutions it forms and informs serve the needs of men.

Why does the idea of the Poetry Slam not elicit critiques of the sort that Ruth brought up about The Poetry Brothel in terms of the commodification of men's bodies, etc. in wrestling smack downs, boxing or other violent sports? Well, one reason is that those sports do not, ultimately, devalue men; they may put men's bodies at great risk, but they actually enhance the status of the men who participate in them as men; prostitution also puts women's bodies at great risk, but rather than enhance prostitutes' status as women, it merely cements the status of the women who are prostitutes as second-class, dirty, or whatever appropriate adjective you wish to apply.

This does not mean that we ought not to critique the Poetry Slam and the sports for which it is a literary performance metaphor from a masculine-gendered perspective, but even then the terms of the critique will be different because men and women are positioned differently in terms of our genders. To try to level everything off by equating the ways in which men are violence-objects in our culture to the ways in which women are sexual-objects, and by suggesting that the consequences of that objectification ought also be seen as equal (which means, essentially, interchangeable) is to deny, ignore and therefore perpetuate the reality of male dominance in the lives of both men and women.

I have not been to The Poetry Brothel, but it seems to me, at least conceptually, to be brilliant satire, something along the lines of Woody Allen's The Whores of Mensa. I do wonder about the difference between writing this kind of satire and performing it, especially when the performance takes place regularly and someone is making (however little) money; but that, too, seems to me what good satire is supposed to do: call into question where we draw our lines by crossing them in ways that some will find offensive and others will find, well, satirical.

Richard

On Wed, Dec 31, 2008 at 5:43 PM, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> sick of men saying it's puritan moralizing to criticize prostitution.
> whether it shd be legal or not is a complicated question. but I make no > judgment about prostitutes. if anything, I wish the world could hold them
in > its arms in a loving way to counteract all they suffer.
>
>
> On 12/31/08 4:33 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> >
> > Here's an interesting article, for those who are interested, about a
more > > useful approach to bettering the terrible conditions of brothels: forming a
> > prostitutes' union.
> > http://www.sciam.com/article.cfm?id=the-prostitutes-union
> >
> > I think as long as every mention of prostitution brings up just so much > > puritan moralizing, pimps and their bosses will continue to operate with > > impunity, out of the sight of polite society. Meanwhile police continue
to > > fine and jail the women, in order to keep them out of sight of the neighbors
> > whose real estate values they would otherwise
> >
guidelines &
>

--
Richard Jeffrey Newman
Associate Professor, English

Coordinator, Creative Writing
Nassau Community College
Garden City, NY 11530
http://faculty.ncc.edu/newmanr
O: [redacted]
F: [redacted]
--
Literary Arts Director
Persian Arts Festival
www.persianartsfestival.org
[redacted]
--
www.richardjnewman.com

↑ Index

24. Paul Nelson

More on the evolution of the Serial poem

Sat 3 Jan 2009

Came across Rob McLannan's brilliant review of the new Spicer collected and his are the comments between George Bowering's and the editors. The link is:

http://robmclennan.blogspot.com/2008/12/my-vocabulary-did-this-to-me-collected.html

The genesis of Baseball, according to the beginning of the poem, is that, in the beginning, God made baseball. The poem was written during the baseball season of 1965. It’s dedicated to the great American poet Jack Spicer, who told us how to write a serial poem and who was also interested in baseball. He was a San Francisco Giants fan. Some of my critic friends like the poem because it’s the first long poem in sections that I published. Jack Spicer died about halfway through that summer, or two-thirds of the way through that summer, in Berkeley, at the age of thirty-nine, and his death begins to enter into the last part of the poem as part of the subject. It’s an important poem to me because it’s a long poem that is not continuous in a narrative sense … doesn’t have a set of characters, doesn’t have a climax and all that business. All that holds it together is the fact that what’s being written about is baseball. It’s written in nine sections, i.e., nine innings, and it deals with my childhood memories of baseball being played in Oliver, and big-league baseball, and baseball as a metaphor, and baseball as something cosmic. But really, the subject of the bookis poetry. It reflects on itself. It has a lot to say about how one makes poetry. So the love for baseball is a disguised way of talking about a love for poetry.What I’ve always appreciated about Spicer’s “serial poems” is how they connect through their sheer disconnect, letting the umbrella of concept/title cover everything that falls under it, connecting the poem, sometimes, simply because it is part of the same single piece. When Spicer wrote serially, everything fell into the poem, and the tangent, as well as serial repetition, became the point, as opposed to working against the point. Talking about Spicer's serial poem in the introduction, the editors write:

Spicer conceived of and developed the "serial poem": a book-length progression of short poems that function together as a single movement. In his lectures, Spicer quoted Blaser's description of the serial poem as akin to being in a dark house, where you throw a light on in a room, then turn it off, and enter the next room, where you turn on a light, and so on. This movement from room to room in an architectural structure makes sense if you think of "stanza" as coming from the Italian for "small room." As his poetry moves from dark room to dark room, each flash of illumination leaves an afterimage on the imagination, and the lines of the poems become artifacts of an ongoing engagement with larger forces.

This is the notion of serial poem which interests me.

Paul E. Nelson

Global Voices Radio
SPLAB!
American Sentences
Organic Poetry
Poetry Postcard Blog

Ilalqo, WA [redacted]

↑ Index

25. Eireene Nealand

Re: capitalism and the long poem

Sat 3 Jan 2009

---

yes, i think this is an important part of it, the interrelated segments-- --little bits of incompleteness hooking up with other incomplete bits.

a garland of fragments. (not my own line)

"Blood Dazzler" sounds great. (and I just looked up a few excerpts--good too)

Page duBois wote a little bit about this in "Sappho is Burning" but maybe she thought that there was more of a person in our times to hold all of the fragments together.

Maybe it is just bits of other series that show up in the gaps.

(but now I'm running off into theory land again).

Pound, H.D., Olsen, Duncan, okay.

it's this odd "irreal" hypercapitaism that I'm looking more at.

Is there anyone that you guys would throw in a line with say,

Mackey, Spahr, Roberson...

(will look at more of Patricia Smith)

That line makes me think more about music and modalities as being ways of moving around.

Maybe Spahr is more like Golynko in that there are fewer--what to call them--monsters--unidentifiable objects on the surface (tho they are there).

e

On 1/3/09, carol dorf <[redacted]> wrote:
> I think the long poem is often more a poem in interrelated segments --
> Patricia Smith's "Blood Dazzler" approaches Katrina from numerous > viewpoints including the Hurricane's. At the opposite end of the > public/personal scale, Rusty Morrison's "the true keeps calm biding > its story," is a formal experiment in the nature of the book-length
> poem.
>
> In reading these book-length poems, the individual segments provide a > way to move through aspects of language/experience.
>
>
> On 1/1/09, Paul Nelson <[redacted]> wrote:
> > One of the most fascinating developments of the post-modern era
> > Troy,
> >
> > One of the most fascinating developments of the post-modern era (& the era > > since then) is the development (evolution) of the Serial Poem. Robin > > Blaser's 'The Holy Forest' and Nate Mackey's 'Mu' or 'Song of the > > Andoumbolou' (which together could be considered part of the same poem) are > > two stellar examples of this. These are more recent examples and 'The > > Maximus Poems' and 'Paterson' are other examples and I am sure folks on the > > list could chip in their own favorites.
> >

> > The narrative that emerges is not as obvious and requires more study, more > > of a commitment than what was previously known as 'epic.'
> >
> > The recognition of these in a mode similar to the epics of the past is very > > much a function of this shift in literature, especially after 1945 (the > > beginning of the post-modern era) and Jack Spicer's notion gets close to > > summing it up:
> >
> > …The trick naturally is what Duncan learned > > years ago and tried to teach us – not to search for the perfect poem but to > > let > > your way of writing of the moment go along its own paths, explore and > > retreat
> > but never be fully realized (confined) within the boundaries of one poem…
> >
> >
> >
> > It's pleasing to be back to actual poetics on the poetics list.
> >
> > Happy New Year.
> >
> >
> > Paul E. Nelson
> >
> > Global Voices Radio
> > SPLAB!
> > American Sentences
> > Organic Poetry
> > Poetry Postcard Blog
> >
> > Ilalqo, WA [redacted]
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> > _____
> > From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
> > To: [redacted]

> > Sent: Tuesday, December 30, 2008 10:50:09 AM
> > Subject: Re: capitalism and the long poem
> >
> > I think we've become obsessed with it precisely because it's fallen out of > > favor. Somebody, or a few people, wondered where it went, and began writing
> > about it. It seems to me that the long poem became impossible with the > > abandonment of narrative by poets. How long can one keep up a feeling or
a > > mood or an "experiment"? Frederick Fierstein writes quite long poems, but > > his poems also have narratives holding them together. Frederick Turner has > > written two epic poems. It seems that the gradual abandonment of narrative
> > in poetry by the Modernists, especially the late Modernists, and the > > postmodern poets, far more than economic conditions, have contributed to
the > > abandonment of long poetry as a form.
> >
> > Troy Camplin
> >
> >
> >
> > _____
> > From: Eireene Nealand <[redacted]>
> > To: [redacted]
> > Sent: Monday, December 29, 2008 1:45:57 PM
> > Subject: capitalism and the long poem
> >
> > I sat down to write a little piece about this Russian poet, and came > > up with a strange take on the long poem--an idea that the seriality of > > it is somehow related to consumer capitalism--
> >
> > http://tsky-reviews.blogspot.com/
> >
> > not the pleasantest thought--
> >
> > and so I was wondering if anyone has any good counter arguments, or > > different takes on why so many are so obsessed with this form right > > now. & will we fall out of love with it during the recession?
> >

> > e
> >
> > ==========
> >
> > ==========
> >
> >
> > ==========
> >
>
>

↑ Index

26. George Bowering
Re: Inauguration theology and poetics
Sat 3 Jan 2009

On Jan 1, 2009, at 11:10 AM, Corey Frost wrote:

> On Wed, 31 Dec 2008 12:54:49 -0800, George Bowering
> <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> On Dec 31, 2008, at 10:53 AM, Corey Frost wrote:
>
> . Civil discourse means > listening to differing views, of course, but that doesn't mean one > has to > validate a certain view just because a lot of people hold it.
>
> Would this include the U.S. Constitution
> or the election of Obama?
>
> Yes.

And you believe that permitting a view to be expressed equals validating it?

I wish I had known that before allowing my students to speak their minds all those years!
>
> welcome.html
>

George H. Bowering, OC
Dull as dishwater.

↑ Index

27. David-Baptiste Chirot

YES, WE CAN STOP THE BLOODSHED: Links to Petitions and Events To Tell US Leaders to Stop Bloodshed in Gaza-Israel

Sat 3 Jan 2009

YES, WE CAN
JOIN THE INTERNATIONAL PROTESTS GROWING BY THE HOUR

Links to contact members of the current and soon to be US Government to sayYES, WE CAN STOP THE BLOODSHEDYES, WE CAN STOP THE SLAUGHTER FUNDED BY US TAX DOLLARS
YES, WE CAN BRING HOPE AND PEACE
Just
Foreign Policy News

January 2, 2009

Just Foreign Policy News on the Web

If you're having trouble reading the email version, try the web version:

http://www.justforeignpolicy.org/newsroom/blog/

Write Now to Save Lives in Gaza

Urge US officials to support an immediate ceasefire and lifting the blockade on Gaza -

Write to President-elect Obama:

http://justforeignpolicy.org/involved/gazaceasefireobama.html

Write to President Bush and Congress:

http://justforeignpolicy.org/involved/gazaceasefirebushcongress.html

Background:

Calling Out Bush's War in Gaza

The Bush Administration provided the weapons, knowing what they would be used for.

http://www.huffingtonpost.com/robert-naiman/calling-out-bushs-war-in_b_154825.html

The Gaza War is Completely Stoppable

http://www.commondreams.org/view/2008/12/31-9

American Jews Call for Immediate Ceasefire, End of Gaza Blockade

http://www.huffingtonpost.com/robert-naiman/american-jews-call-for-im_b_154353.html

Emergency
Conference Call &

More Action to Take on Gaza Through six days of attacks on the occupied Gaza Strip, Israel has killed at least 430 Palestinians and injured at least 2,250 with U.S. weapons in violation of U.S.
law. Israel
now stands ready to invade the Gaza Strip with troops at any moment.

Israel's attacks come on top of a brutal siege of the Gaza Strip, which has created a humanitarian catastrophe of dire proportions for Gaza's 1.5 million Palestinian residents by restricting the provision of food, fuel, medicine, electricity, and other necessities of life.

Make no mistake
about it-Israel's war and siege on the Gaza Strip would not be possible without the jets, helicopters, ships, missiles, and fuel provided by the United States. Additional troubling details continue to emerge about the misuse of U.S. weapons by Israel:

* Israel is dropping GBU-39 small diameter bombs on the Gaza Strip. According to weapons experts, these bombs contain uranium oxide and have left behind radioactive contamination in places such as Kosovo, Iraq, and Afghanistan.
In September 2008, Boeing received a $77 million contract to transfer 1,000 of these bombs to Israel.

* On December 30, the Israeli navy intentionally rammed a boat in international waters which was carrying medical supplies to the Gaza Strip, nearly causing it to sink. The passengers of The Dignity included doctors and recent Green Party Presidential candidate Cynthia McKinney. In July 2008, the United States signed a contract to transfer $1.9 billion of naval combat ships to Israel.

TAKE ACTION

Find out what you can do to take action by clicking here. Action steps include:

* Participate in a US Campaign emergency conference call on Monday, January 5 at 9PM Eastern. To RSVP and get call-info, send your name and organizational affiliation (if any) to us by clicking here.

* Join one of nearly 150 protests in the United States against Israel's attacks.

* Download resources and sign up for organizing packets to educate and organize people in your community to end U.S. military aid to Israel.

* Contact the President and set up meetings with your Members of Congress.

* Download talking points for getting our message into the media.

* Step up the pressure on President Elect-Obama and the new Congress by signing our open letter and by coming to DC for Inauguration Day and our Feb. 1-2 Grassroots Advocacy Training and Lobby Day.

* Make a tax-deductible contribution to us so that less of your taxes go to Israel's war machine.

TAKE ACTION NOW

Humanitarian implosion in Gaza.

Urge Secretary Rice to help end the civilian bloodshed!

Dear david,

It may be a new year, but the bloodshed in Gaza this past week is a clear reminder that there's no time to wait to protect human rights in 2009.

Since December 27, these horrific attacks on Gaza have caused over 400 Palestinian deaths and 2000 injuries. Rocket fire by armed Palestinian groups, including Hamas, has taken the lives of 4 Israelis and caused several dozen injuries. Amnesty International condemns the violence on both sides and calls on both parties to abide by international law and policies.

The U.S. government cannot continue this lop-sided blame on Hamas for the crisis. Ask Secretary Rice to urgently express deep concern about Israel's disproportional response and its policies which have brought the Gaza Strip to the brink of humanitarian disaster.

Civilians in Gaza, already trapped in disgraceful humanitarian conditions, are victims of Israeli air strikes and intensified attacks. Israeli blockades of humanitarian supplies continue to deny Palestinians the food and medical supplies they desperately need.

Join Amnesty International in calling for Secretary Rice to:
Pressure Israel
and Palestinian armed groups to cease attacks on civilians Demand an end to Israel's disproportional response Urge Israel to open the crossings to let humanitarian aid in Together we can help lift Gaza out of this crisis.

Sincerely,

Curt Goering

Senior Deputy Executive Director

Amnesty International USA

_____ It’s the same Hotmail®. If by “same” you mean up to 70% faster.
http://windowslive.com/online/hotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_hotmail_acq_broad1_122008

↑ Index

28. George Bowering
Re: capitalism and the long poem
Sat 3 Jan 2009

Charles Olson as a writer of the serial poem?
I wish we could hear Jack Spicer's response to that notion!

gb

On Jan 3, 2009, at 7:51 AM, Mark Weiss wrote:

> Putting aside the dubiousness of the term post modern and the assignment of dates to it, Pound was writing the serial poem that was the acknowledged model for Olson and Duncan well before 1945, and Rimbaud was doing it even earlier. It shouldn't be difficult to come up with a few more, but I have to run out the door--promises to keep, restless horses, etc.

Mark

At 08:16 AM 1/1/2009, you wrote:
One of the most fascinating developments of the post-modern era Troy, One of the most fascinating developments of the post-modern era (& the era since then) is the development (evolution) of the Serial Poem. Robin Blaser's 'The Holy Forest' and Nate Mackey's 'Mu' or 'Song of the Andoumbolou' (which together could be considered part of the same poem) are two stellar examples of this. These are more recent examples and 'The Maximus Poems' and 'Paterson' are other examples and I am sure folks on the list could chip in their own favorites. The narrative that emerges is not as obvious and requires more study, more of a commitment than what was previously known as 'epic.' The recognition of these in a mode similar to the epics of the past is very much a function of this shift in literature, especially after 1945 (the beginning of the post-modern era) and Jack Spicer's notion gets close to summing it up: ...The trick naturally is what Duncan learned years ago and tried to teach us not to search for the perfect poem but to let your way of writing of the moment go along its own paths, explore and retreat but never be fully realized (confined) within the boundaries of one poem... It's pleasing to be back to actual poetics on the poetics list. Happy New Year. Paul E. Nelson Global Voices Radio SPLAB! American Sentences Organic Poetry Poetry Postcard Blog Ilalqo, WA [redacted] _____ From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]> To: [redacted] Sent: Tuesday, December 30, 2008 10:50:09 AM Subject: Re: capitalism and the long poem I think we've become obsessed with it precisely because it's fallen out of favor. Somebody, or a few people, wondered where it went, and began writing about it. It seems to me that the long poem became impossible with the abandonment of narrative by poets. How long can one keep up a feeling or a mood or an "experiment"? Frederick Fierstein writes quite long poems, but his poems also have narratives holding them together. Frederick Turner has written two epic poems. It seems that the gradual abandonment of narrative in poetry by the Modernists, especially the late Modernists, and the postmodern poets, far more than economic conditions, have contributed to the abandonment of long poetry as a form. Troy Camplin _____ From: Eireene Nealand <[redacted]> To: [redacted] Sent: Monday, December 29, 2008 1:45:57 PM Subject: capitalism and the long poem

> I sat down to write a little piece about this Russian poet, and came up with a strange take on the long poem--an idea that the seriality of it is somehow related to consumer capitalism-- http://tsky-reviews.blogspot.com/ not the pleasantest thought-- and so I was wondering if anyone has any good counter arguments, or different takes on why so many are so obsessed with this form right now. & will we fall out of love with it during the recession? e ========== The Poetics List
>
> welcome.html
>
> welcome.html

GB
Is currently imagining the universe.

↑ Index

29. CA Conrad
OPEN LETTER to Rick Warren's new friend Melissa Etheridge /\\//\\\\//////\\\\\\//////\\\\\\\\//////////
Sat 3 Jan 2009

Dear Melissa Etheridge, it seemed like good news that you had met with Pastor Rick Warren to confront him on his homophobic disinformation campaign. It makes sense that many thoughtful, open-minded people are thinking that your meeting with Warren made for a good, productive meeting of the minds. Many of these same people worked VERY HARD to get Mr. Obama elected, so the idea of him CHOOSING an openly homophobic anti-Semite like Warren to give "the blessing" at his inauguration to set the spiritual tone of his presidency is a very difficult thing to wrap our minds around. Our feeling of betrayal is appropriate.

To be honest Melissa I have no idea how much experience you have with Fundamentalist Christians, but they're called FUNDAMENTALIST for a reason. When you say you are interested in peace I don't doubt you for a minute. But when you say we should volunteer to be more visible it's nothing but weird to me. Your direct quote is, "Maybe if they get to know us, they won't fear us." But we queers don't grow on trees on a faraway island. Fundamentalist Christians deal with us all the time because live in their towns. They gave birth to us, we are in their families, and we don't need to visit because we're already there. They know us and we know them, quite well.

From my own experience and understanding with Fundamentalist Christian relatives, there are some who will not allow me to use their towels or toilets because I'm queer. You wouldn't be allowed to either, no matter how many CDs you've sold. Never mind gay marriage, you can't take a shit! And these are people who LOVED me dearly when I was a boy. I FELT their love, and remember it well. And I also remember how painful it was to let them know I was queer, having grown up hearing their sadistic vitriol. My options were to hide or come out. Hiding is an option only for the true masochist, and I am not one. A relative said to me, "You were such a handsome boy, we had such hope for you." In an instant I became someone who was now ugly and without hope.

If I die tomorrow some members of my family will say, "We know where he's headed!" These are extremely unreasonable and uncompromising people, and their bible backs them up one hundred percent. I've read these passages, I've had them read to me. Queers are an abomination, period. We can serve all the soup in the world to all the homeless of the world but we're still going to Hell. The bible says so, period. And Rick Warren can say Jews and queers are going to Hell as gently as he can, but he still says it, and in doing so he makes Jews and queers subhuman animals not worthy of God's love. We are refuse, and THAT is the very kind of philosophy which encouraged Aaron McKinney to torture and murder Matthew Shepard. THAT is the very philosophy which permitted Roland Button to run over Erika Keels four times with his car, and the very philosophy that made her so invisible and inhuman that Philadelphia police wrote her death down as an accident, which remains classified an accident to this day. Despite the medical examiner's report, despite witnesses, despite petitions and marching and demonstrating on behalf of this 20-year old African American transwoman, her murderer has never stood trial, see this: http://www.petitiononline.com/ErikaK/

My boyfriend Earth was murdered in Tennessee. His twin brother who still lives in Philadelphia told me his hands were tied behind his back, he was dowsed with gasoline and set on fire. Over and over I asked, "HOW could they do this!!!!? HOW could they do this!!!!?" But we all know how, we know exactly how. Whoever murdered him was able to find the necessary apathy from a legacy of hate, a legacy of PERMISSION, handed down from church to church, quoting verse to sanction and spur their actions.

In Adolf Hitler's Germany the clergy who used the pulpit to spread hatred of Jews and Homosexuals were doing so to ease the troubled conscience, to act as a link to the voice of God to ORDAIN The Holocaust. Ask yourself how guilty are these men who used their positions of respect and their aura of holiness to push their trusting congregations to commit such atrocities?

Rick Warren is the author of one of the best-selling hardcover books in publishing history. And this is a country where he should be allowed to express himself freely, but so should we be allowed to counter it, to let the voice of reason break through. Millions of people trust and absorb Warren's message that Jews will burn in Hell, and that queers are not FIT to be treated the same as decent heterosexual Christians. Melissa why do you ask US to volunteer in his church? Why not ask these Fundamentalist Christians to volunteer at gay community centers and the queer suicide hotlines? Instead of asking US to show how worthy we are, how about they be asked to prove their worthiness for a change? It is WRONG to grovel up to them for acceptance, for these are the people who pushed US away in the first place, remember? The compromises they demand of us are too expensive and would eat us alive.

We need to be LOUD and be LOUD NOW, not to get through to the people who have shunned us and discarded us, but for the young queer people growing up in these repressive, dangerous families. We need to prevent yet more suicides. And it would be nice to prevent gay bashing and murders, but that's a whole long battle which involves centuries of permission to undo. Did you see the movie Borat? The people being interviewed in the film were not actors. There's a man at a rodeo scene who says without hesitation into the camera that "we're working on" being able to hang queers here like they do in Borat's country. The man openly admires hanging queers elsewhere in the world. Some days THE ONLY THING keeping these bloodthirsty people in check in America is their fear of prison and the electric chair, and some days that's all we queers have between our lives and the grave.

In "Homosexuality and Marxism," the great American poet Jack Spicer wrote:

Homosexuality is essentially being alone. Which is a fight against the capitalist bosses who do not want us to be alone. Alone we are dangerous. Our dissatisfaction could ruin America. Our love could ruin the universe if we let it.

Thank you Jack, for that! This ruin to me is transformative, is the Phoenix, and feels nothing less than essential for love to DEMAND its increase. Melissa please don't ask us to prove that we're good people, because if we have to prove it, then how good are the people asking us to prove it? And frankly I'm VERY GLAD that Barak Obama won and not John McCain and Sarah Palin, but at the same time Obama is LUCKY I didn't know he would CHOOSE Rick Warren's blessing BEFORE election day. You'll see me at the inauguration, I'll be the one with the sign that says, "YOU'RE LUCKY I CAN'T TAKE MY VOTE BACK!"

For all those who have suffered and continue to suffer, we must remember Dr. Martin Luther King's words, "The time is always right to do what is right."

Most sincerely,
poet CAConrad

http://PhillySound.blogspot.com <http://phillysound.blogspot.com/>

↑ Index

30. Stephen Vincent
Eyeless in Gaza
Sat 3 Jan 2009

In 8 years, the Bush Regime - neocons, and no doubt with Israel's complicity - imagined Iraq's demise would 'reconfigure the Mideast' with democracies up and instantly flourishing in the glow of a successful invasion. Now Israel invades Gaza - with American armor and support - still imagining/dreaming a reconfiguration of the Mideast. If 'slaughter' counts as vision 'they' are clearly winning by the dead in numbers. If this invasion counts as the Israel/American 'vision' in any other sense, 'Eyeless in Gaza' appears to be more accurate than ever. Might as well imagine a tank or Cheney threading a needle's eye.

What keeps these people - other than pathology - running this wheel over and over again? One - somewhat helpless at the moment - can only 'hope' that this is Bush & Cheney's "Last Tape" and that Hilary-Obama might (might) pour some water on 'the powder' and work out a vocabulary not built on slaughter.

Stephen Vincent
http://stephenvincent.net/blog/

↑ Index

31. Carol Novack
2009 PressPress Chapbook Award
Sat 3 Jan 2009

—

↑ Index

32. Lana Ayers
Call for Poetry Postcard participants
Sat 3 Jan 2009

Dear Poet,

Call for participants to the 2009 Poetry Postcard Project inspired by Organic poetry Guy Paul Nelson http://organicpoetry.com/

Come join the fun.

Just imagine going to your mailbox and finding a postcard in it with a few lines of verse among all your bills and advertisements. Would that make you day?

What¢s involved:

Write a poem on a postcard once a week, every week and mail it to someone on the list.

Don¢t agonize over what to write, just jot a few lines and send. It should be fun and easy. Write about where your are, write about the postcard image, get inspiration from postcards you¢ve received. Remember you have an eager and enthusiastic audience waiting for your words.

How to get started? Go to http://ConcreteWolf.com/perennial and Register.. Once you register you can add your address info and join the list. Please make sure your address info shows up correctly on the list.

Be sure to check postage rates at http://USPS.com before mailing oversized cards or mailing to other countries.

Any questions? email Lana at [redacted]

Happy 2009,

Lana

↑ Index

33. James Robinson

Data-Tantrum: Looking for members

Sat 3 Jan 2009

Hey there,
<http://data-tantrum.ning.com/>
I've just started a social network at http://data-tantrum.ning.com/ So if you're interested in "differentiated poetics" or literacy w/o borders, check it out. Better yet, join.

Looking to discuss multi-modal input and a poetics that includes not just words, but food, dance, video games, you name it...

Basically, any form of engineered experience or communicaion that causes an effect.

The first discussion is basically a "fantasy curricula league" for k-12. Could be fun...

Hope to see you there,

JR

↑ Index

34. Joel Lewis

Gotham Book Mart Holdings Are Given to Penn

Sun 4 Jan 2009

---

from NY TIMESJANUARY 2, 2009, 12:51 PM By SEWELL CHAN <http://cityroom.blogs.nytimes.com/author/sewell-chan/>Andreas Brown, the last owner of the Gotham Book Mart, readied vintage photos of Arthur Miller and James Joyce in 2004 in preparation for a move to a new location. (Photo: Frances Roberts for The New York Times)

Updated, 4:50 p.m. | About 200,000 items from the Gotham Book Mart, which closed in 2007 after 87 years as a New York literary haven of international stature, have been donated<http://www.upenn.edu/pennnews/article.php?id=1504> to the University of Pennsylvania.

An anonymous donor purchased the store's inventory and donated it to the university, which announced the donation on Dec. 18. The holdings — primarily modern and contemporary poetry and literature, but also including works on art, architecture, jewelry, music, dance and film — will go to Penn's Rare Book and Manuscript Library, which is known for its collection of antiquarian materials from before 1850. Citing experts, The Philadelphia Inquirer reported on Thursday that the collection was valued at several million dollars<http://www.philly.com/philly/news/local/20090101_Gotham_Book_Mart_trove_bound_for_U__of_Pennsylvania.html>, but most of the store's inventory was bought at an auction by its landlords for $400,000 in 2007.

"We're honored to steward the collection and give it new life as an academic resource," H. Carton Rogers, vice provost and director of libraries at the University of Pennsylvania, said in a statement.

The collection includes first editions, experimental literary magazines and books from small presses, including "outsider literature" published by Black Sparrow Press and poetry published by St. Mark's Church, the university said.

The collection includes "proofs, advance copies, pamphlets, photographs, posters, reference works, catalogs, broadsides, prints and postcards," the university said. There are books from the personal libraries of Truman Capote<http://topics.nytimes.com/top/reference/timestopics/people/c/truman_capote/index.html> and Anaïs Nin<http://select.nytimes.com/gst/abstract.html?res=F40815F83C5D167493C4A8178AD85F438785F9>, as well as items signed by Arthur Miller, Tennessee Williams, Robinson Jeffers, Woody Allen, Wallace Stevens and John Updike.

The Gotham Book Mart was founded on West 45th Street in 1920 by Frances Steloff<http://select.nytimes.com/gst/abstract.html?

res=FA0712FC3E590C708EDDAC0894D1484D81>. It was the haunt of literary figures like Theodore Dreiser, John Dos Passos, H. L. Mencken, Arthur Miller, John Updike, J. D. Salinger and Eugene O'Neill. Itexhibited<http://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?res=9500E1DE1431F934A25757C0A9669C8B63> the works of the artist Edward Gorey. Its customers included George and Ira Gershwin, Charlie Chaplin, Alexander Calder, Stephen Spender, Woody Allen, Saul Bellow, John Guare, Katharine Hepburn and Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis. At various points, Allen Ginsberg, LeRoi Jones and Tennessee Williams (for a day) worked as clerks there.

Under Miss Steloff, the store twice moved to larger quarters, but stayed within a two-block area, settling in 1946 at 41 West 47th Street. Miss Steloff sold the Gotham<http://select.nytimes.com/gst/abstract.html?res=F40E16FE3D5C147493C7AB178AD85F4C8685F9> in 1967 to Andreas Brown, another book lover, but continued to live in an apartment on the third floor, above the store, and remained as a working consultant.

"Along with its fame and reputation, the Gotham was also a very carefully operated book business," Herbert Mitgang wrote in an obituary<http://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?res=950DE2DD113DF935A25757C0A96F948260> of Miss Steloff<http://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?res=9B0DE1D6113BF933A05751C1A961948260>, who died in 1989 at age 101. "As the owner and the person who paid the salaries, Miss Steloff was demanding, irascible, unwearying and unable to understand why no one else was willing to put as many hours or as much concentration into the store as she did."

Beloved as it was, the bookstore had many problems over the years. In 1997, Mr. Brown agreed to pay $1.4 million<http://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?res=9F02EEDE1E39F930A25756C0A961958260> to Joanne Carson, who had turned over $640,000 in savings to him in 1988 and 1991 to help him buy and repair the brownstone that houses the store. In 1995, she decided she wanted her loan back with interest, and filed suit<http://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?res=9907E1DB1130F934A35756C0A961958260> against him. The Gotham Book Mart's final home, at 16 East 46th Street. (Photo: Tina Fineberg for The New York Times)

Mr. Brown said he would pay the money back in 2000, after selling the building. But the sale did not occur until 2003, when Mr. Brown sold the building<http://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?

res=9504E0DA163FF931A15754C0A9659C8B63>, a town house in the heart of the diamond district, for $7.2 million. In 2004, the store moved <http://www.nytimes.com/2004/08/04/books/04goth.html> to the former H. P. Kraus antiquarian bookstore, at 16 East 46th Street<http://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?res=9A0CE4DA173CF937A3575BC0A9629C8B63>, which had closed in 2003.

It later emerged that two benefactors who had wished to remain anonymous — Leonard A. Lauder<http://topics.nytimes.com/top/reference/timestopics/people/l/leonard_a_lauder/index.html>, the cosmetics heir, who has an interest in antique postcards, and Edmondo Schwartz, a real estate developer — had purchased the East Side building for $5.2 million and leased it to Mr. Brown to save the Gotham. But by 2006, he had fallen behind<http://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?res=9D00EEDB1031F93AA2575AC0A9609C8B63> on his $51,000 monthly rent and owed at least $500,000 in rent, taxes, interest and other fees, and the landlords moved to evict him. The store was on its last legs.

In May 2007, many of Gotham's possessions — including books signed by Mr. Updike, letters from D. H. Lawrence, and Andy Warhol's wig rack — were sold at auction <http://www.nytimes.com/2007/05/23/nyregion/23gotham.html> to the landlords, who bid $400,000. The store's workers had never finished unpacking the books from the 2004 move.

The university said that it knew the identity of the donor but that the donor had insisted on anonymity.

Mr. Lauder, former chairman of the Estée Lauder Companies, graduated from Penn in 1954 and is an emeritus member of its board of trustees. Jonathan J. Faust, a lawyer for Mr. Lauder, declined to comment on Mr. Lauder's involvement with Gotham Book Mart.

↑ Index

35. Eireene Nealand

Re: capitalism and the long poem

Sun 4 Jan 2009

---

ps. I should note, though, that at last hear Nate Mackey does consider himself in line with Duncan, or at least has learned much from him. He also teaches a class on H.D. So it's me, making a break, if such is warranted.

(now it feels like a legal disclaimer) but I'm not interested in the schools so much as something more like an idea or technique that would help us to think about this seriality thing. and incompletes if that is a part of where it goes.

On 1/3/09, Eireene Nealand <[redacted]> wrote:
> yes, i think this is an important part of it, the interrelated segments--
> --little bits of incompleteness hooking up with other incomplete bits.
>
> a garland of fragments. (not my own line)
>
> "Blood Dazzler" sounds great. (and I just looked up a few excerpts--good too)
>
> Page duBois wote a little bit about this in "Sappho is Burning" but > maybe she thought that there was more of a person in our times to hold > all of the fragments together.
>
> Maybe it is just bits of other series that show up in the gaps.
>
> (but now I'm running off into theory land again).
>
> Pound, H.D., Olsen, Duncan, okay.
>
> it's this odd "irreal" hypercapitaism that I'm looking more at.
>
> Is there anyone that you guys would throw in a line with say,
>
> Mackey, Spahr, Roberson...
>
> (will look at more of Patricia Smith)
>
> That line makes me think more about music and modalities as being ways > of moving around.
>
> Maybe Spahr is more like Golynko in that there are fewer--what to call > them--monsters--unidentifiable objects on the surface (tho they are > there).
>
>
> e
>
>
> On 1/3/09, carol dorf <[redacted]> wrote:
> > I think the long poem is often more a poem in interrelated segments --
> > Patricia Smith's "Blood Dazzler" approaches Katrina from numerous > > viewpoints including the Hurricane's. At the opposite end of the > > public/personal scale, Rusty Morrison's "the true keeps calm biding > > its story," is a formal experiment in the nature of the book-length

> > poem.
> >
> > In reading these book-length poems, the individual segments provide a > > way to move through aspects of language/experience.
> >
> >
> > On 1/1/09, Paul Nelson <[redacted]> wrote:
> > > One of the most fascinating developments of the post-modern era
> > > Troy,
> > >
> > > One of the most fascinating developments of the post-modern era (&
the era
> > > since then) is the development (evolution) of the Serial Poem. Robin > > > Blaser's 'The Holy Forest' and Nate Mackey's 'Mu' or 'Song of the > > > Andoumbolou' (which together could be considered part of the same poem) are > > > two stellar examples of this. These are more recent examples and 'The > > > Maximus Poems' and 'Paterson' are other examples and I am sure folks on the > > > list could chip in their own favorites.
> > >
> > > The narrative that emerges is not as obvious and requires more study,
more
> > > of a commitment than what was previously known as 'epic.'
> > >
> > > The recognition of these in a mode similar to the epics of the past is very > > > much a function of this shift in literature, especially after 1945 (the > > > beginning of the post-modern era) and Jack Spicer's notion gets close to > > > summing it up:
> > >
> > > ...The trick naturally is what Duncan learned > > > years ago and tried to teach us – not to search for the perfect poem but
to > > > let > > > your way of writing of the moment go along its own paths, explore and > > > retreat
> > > but never be fully realized (confined) within the boundaries of one poem...
> > >
> > >

> > >
> > > It's pleasing to be back to actual poetics on the poetics list.
> > >
> > > Happy New Year.
> > >
> > >
> > > Paul E. Nelson
> > >
> > > Global Voices Radio
> > > SPLAB!
> > > American Sentences
> > > Organic Poetry
> > > Poetry Postcard Blog
> > >
> > > Ilalqo, WA [redacted]
> > >
> > >
> > >
> > >
> > >
> > >
> > >
> > >
> > > _____
> > > From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
> > > To: [redacted]
> > > Sent: Tuesday, December 30, 2008 10:50:09 AM
> > > Subject: Re: capitalism and the long poem
> > >
> > > I think we've become obsessed with it precisely because it's fallen out of > > > favor. Somebody, or a few people, wondered where it went, and began writing > > > about it. It seems to me that the long poem became impossible with the > > > abandonment of narrative by poets. How long can one keep up a feeling or a > > > mood or an "experiment"? Frederick Fierstein writes quite long poems, but > > > his poems also have narratives holding them together. Frederick Turner has > > > written two epic poems. It seems that the gradual abandonment of narrative > > > in poetry by the Modernists, especially the late Modernists, and the > > > postmodern poets, far more than economic conditions, have contributed to the > > > abandonment of long poetry as a form.

> > >
> > > Troy Camplin
> > >
> > >
> > >
> > > _____
> > > From: Eireene Nealand <[redacted]>
> > > To: [redacted]
> > > Sent: Monday, December 29, 2008 1:45:57 PM
> > > Subject: capitalism and the long poem
> > >
> > > I sat down to write a little piece about this Russian poet, and came > > > up with a strange take on the long poem--an idea that the seriality of > > > it is somehow related to consumer capitalism--
> > >
> > > http://tsky-reviews.blogspot.com/
> > >
> > > not the pleasantest thought--
> > >
> > > and so I was wondering if anyone has any good counter arguments, or > > > different takes on why so many are so obsessed with this form right > > > now. & will we fall out of love with it during the recession?
> > >
> > > e
> > >
> > > ==========
> > >
> > > ==========
> > >
> > >
> > > ==========
> > >
> >
> > ==========
> >
>

↑ Index

36. St. Thomasino
e·ratio is reading for issue 12
Sun 4 Jan 2009

e·
e·ratio is reading for poetry and for digital art and for whatever cannot be said no to. so click on by and have a look-see.

http://www.eratiopostmodernpoetry.com

a noun sing e·ratio 11 · 2008

with poetry by David Appelbaum, Donald Wellman, Mary Ann Sullivan, Joseph F. Keppler, Patrick Lawler, James Stotts, David Annwn, David Rushmer, Melanie Brazzell, Jennifer Juneau, John M. Bennett, Geof Huth, John Mercuri Dooley, Mark Cunningham, Derek Owens, Gautam Verma, and Clark Lunberry

http://www.eratiopostmodernpoetry.com

edited by gregory vincent st. thomasino
e·

↑ Index

37. Jim Andrews
hockey violence (was poetry brothel)
Sun 4 Jan 2009

The most popular sport on Earth, soccer/football, rarely involves fighting. The stadiums sometimes seat 150,000, such as in Rio, and the players are paid ten times what hockey players receive. Baseball, also, is more popular, at least in Japan and the United States. The stadiums seat 80,000 and the players are paid ten times what hockey players receive. And, again, fighting is not typical in baseball, and this is true of most other high-profile sports.

Hockey, in the USA, is veiwed as a goon show, one step up from all star wrestling. Whereas, in Canada, your point of view is common, John. That pro hockey allows fighting is a business decision. Whether they do or don't permit fighting won't change the general level of popularity of hockey in the USA. It is not going to be as popular as baseball, football, or basketball in the USA regardless of whether fighting is permitted. It's not their game. But, with fighting permitted, the owners do better financially than they would otherwise.

One of these days a lawyer is going to successfully prosecute a case which arises out of on-ice violence. To the tune of millions of dollars in damages against an NHL club and its personnel. Only then will the business men rethink their business decision.

In the meantime, the code lends not only hockey but Canadian society an annoying, slightly retarded thugishness.

I was sorry to hear of the death of Don Sanderson from a hockey fight. Unfortunately he won't be the last.

I have been watching the world junior tournament. It's been very hard-hitting, tough, fast, exciting hockey--more exciting, I would say, than NHL hockey--and there is hardly any fighting. I don't miss it a bit. In fact the last few games in that tournament I've watched (Canada-Russia, Canada-USA, USA-Slovakia, Slovakia-Sweden) have been some of the most thrilling hockey games I've ever seen. And just about entirely without fisticuffs.

ja
http://vispo.com

> A very interesting and relevant response, Richard. I was watching the news yesterday and noted that a young man was killed as a result of a hockey fight. The newscaster implied that only a limited sector of the hockey audience was interested in watching hockey fights. My first thought was, "Bullshit!". That's part and parcel of being a hockey player and it's never > going to change. The male stereotype is one of power and strength, of laughing in the face of danger. Would anyone be interested in watching people drive cars around an oval track if not for the expectation of accidents? Isn't that one of the reasons why tennis, which demands a damned > sight more athletic ability than football or, perhaps, hockey, not as popular a sport? Although golf and baseball and watching grass grow are pretty popular, aren't they?
> John Herbert Cunningham

↑ Index

38. Kyle Schlesinger

ON LAUNCH at The Poetry Project NYC ON Monday January 5th @ 8:00

Sun 4 Jan 2009

ON LAUNCH
Poetry Project
Monday January 5th, 2009 @ 8:00

ON features twenty-one essays by poets on poets of their approximate generation. Come find out what's going on and celebrate this new publication featuring exchanges on contemporary poetry and poetics. Contributors include Taylor Brady, Brandon Brown, CAConrad, Jason Christie, Michael Cross, Thom Donovan, Eli Drabman, Rob Halpern, Jen Hofer, Alan Gilbert, Brenda Iijima,

Andrew Levy, Edric Mesmer, Sawako Nakayasu, Tenney Nathanson, Richard Owens, Tim Peterson, Andrew Rippeon, Kyle Schlesinger, Jonathan Skinner, Dale Smith, Suzanne Stein, Ali Warren, Katie Yeats ON Arakawa/Gins, Taylor Brady, CAConrad, Michael Cross, Beverly Dahlen, Michael deBeyer, Mark Dickinson, kari edwards, DJ/Rupture, Thom Donovan, Belle Gironda, Brenda Iijima, CJ Martin, Emily McVarish, Yedda Morrison, Hoa Nguyen, Sawako Nakayasu, Julie Patton, Lauren Shufran, Suzanne Stein, Dana Ward, and Ali Warren. Confirmed readers include CAConrad, Thom Donovan, Alan Gilbert, Brenda Iijima, Julie Patton, Tim Peterson, Andrew Levy, Kyle Schlesinger and Katie Yates.

Copies of ON will be available for $12.
Also available from Small Press Distribution: http://spdbooks.org and Cuneiform Press: http://www.cuneiformpress.com Submission guidelines and more available at:
http://oncontemporaries.wordpress.com

The Poetry Project is located at St. Mark's Church-in-the-Bowery
131 East 10th Street at Second Avenue
New York City 10003
Trains: 6, F, N, R, and L.
[redacted]
www.poetryproject.com

Admission is $8, $7 for students/seniors and $5 for members (though now those who take out a membership at $95 or higher will get in FREE to all regular readings).

We are wheelchair accessible with assistance and advance notice. For more info call [redacted].

Forthcoming at the Poetry Project:

Wednesday January 7th at 8pm
Mitch Highfill & Katy Lederer

Monday January 12th at 8pm
Cyrus Console & Jessica Dessner

↑ Index

39. Tinfish Press

Happy New Year from Tinfish Press in Kane`ohe, Hawai`i

Sun 4 Jan 2009

Happy new year, friends of Tinfish Press!

Tinfish Press depends on the curiosity of its readers for revenues that enable us to continue publishing works of experimental poetry from the Pacific.

Our journal comes out once a year. Besides providing an anthology of important work from the Pacific (our most recent, #18, was devoted to long poems), each issue is a work of art, constructed of recycled materials and innovative graphic designs.

We also publish chapbooks and full length books. If you teach, please consider "adopting" our books and journal issues for your courses. They teach well and fill the holes in many standard poetry curriculum. Our authors write from Hawai`i, the west coast of the American continent, Australia, Aotearoa / New Zealand, and elsewhere.

For more information on us, please go to www.tinfishpress.com and consider subscribing today! ($25 for three issues, available on-line or at our street address.)

We are also pleased that Sarith Peou's Corpse Watching (2007) is a 2008 Asian American Literary Award for Poetry finalist. This book offers an evocative witness to the Cambodian holocaust of the late 1970s. Designed by Lian Lederman (with a foreword by Ed Bok Lee), Corpse Watching also features photographs from Tuol Sleng prison, where thousands of Cambodians were killed by the Khmer Rouge (images provided by the Cambodia Documentation Center).

Reprints are now available for purchase. $12 each, available on-line from www.tinfishpress.com.

Begin your 2009 with our journal and books. We wish you the best for this new year!

Aloha, Susan
Edit girl

--
Susan M. Schultz
Editor, Tinfish Press
www.tinfishpress.com

↑ Index

40. steve russell
Re: capitalism and the long poem
Sun 4 Jan 2009

& Berryman/ Dream Songs. what to cALL IT? agony, soap sonnets???

--- On Sat, 1/3/09, Mark Weiss <[redacted]> wrote:

From: Mark Weiss <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: capitalism and the long poem
To: [redacted]
Date: Saturday, January 3, 2009, 10:51 AM

Putting aside the dubiousness of the term post modern and the assignment of dates to it, Pound was writing the serial poem that was the acknowledged model for Olson and Duncan well before 1945, and Rimbaud was doing it even earlier. It shouldn't be difficult to come up with a few more, but I have to run out the door--promises to keep, restless horses, etc.

Mark

At 08:16 AM 1/1/2009, you wrote:
> One of the most fascinating developments of the post-modern era
> Troy, One of the most fascinating developments of the post-modern era
(& the era since then) is the development (evolution) of the Serial Poem.
Robin Blaser's 'The Holy Forest' and Nate Mackey's 'Mu' or 'Song of the Andoumbolou' (which together could be considered part of the same poem) are two stellar examples of this. These are more recent examples and 'The Maximus Poems' and 'Paterson' are other examples and I am sure folks on the list could chip in their own favorites. The narrative that emerges is not as obvious and requires more study, more of a commitment than what was previously known as 'epic.' The recognition of these in a mode similar to the epics of the past is very much a function of this shift in literature, especially after 1945 (the beginning of the post-modern era) and Jack Spicer's notion gets close to summing it up: ...The trick naturally is what Duncan learned years ago and tried to teach us not to search for the perfect poem but to let your way of writing of the moment go along its own paths, explore and retreat but never be fully realized (confined) within the boundaries of one poem... It's pleasing to be back to actual poetics on the poetics list. Happy New Year. Paul E. Nelson Global Voices Radio SPLAB!
American
Sentences Organic Poetry Poetry Postcard Blog Ilalqo, WA [redacted]
_____ From: Troy Camplin
<[redacted]> To: [redacted] Sent: Tuesday, December 30, 2008 10:50:09 AM Subject: Re: capitalism and the long poem I think we've become obsessed with it precisely because it's fallen out of favor. Somebody, or a few people, wondered where it went, and began writing about it. It seems to me that the long poem became impossible with the abandonment of narrative by poets. How long can one keep up a feeling or a mood

or an "experiment"? Frederick Fierstein writes quite long poems, but his poems also have narratives holding them together. Frederick Turner has written two epic poems. It seems that the gradual abandonment of narrative in poetry by the Modernists, especially the late Modernists, and the postmodern poets, far more than economic conditions, have contributed to the abandonment
of long poetry as a form. Troy Camplin _____ From:
Eireene Nealand <[redacted]> To: [redacted] Sent:
Monday, December 29, 2008 1:45:57 PM Subject: capitalism and the long poem
I sat down to write a little piece about this Russian poet, and came up with a strange take on the long poem--an idea that the seriality of it is somehow related to consumer capitalism-- http://tsky-reviews.blogspot.com/ not the pleasantest thought-- and so I was wondering if anyone has any good counter arguments, or different takes on why so many are so obsessed with this form right now. & will we fall out of love with it during the recession? e
>

↑ Index

41. { brad brace }

Reflected-Light --> Remaining-Days

Sun 4 Jan 2009

---

http://bbrace.net/R/Reflected-Light.html

Reflected-Light Reflected-Moonshine Reflecting-Power
Reflecting-Rails
Reflections-Just-Here
Reflex-Action
Reflexive-Immersion
Reflexive-Recoil Refreshing-Calm Refreshing-Juice
Refuse-Resurrections
Refuse-Rocks Refused-Admission
Regaining-Respect
Regal-Gleam
Regal-Incognito
Regal-Process
Regal-Profusion

Regally-Adorned
Regimented-Rows Region-Remains Regional-Flavor
Regional-Ramifications Registering-Resolution Regret-and-Remorse Regretted-Recognition
Regular-Attendance
Regular-Circle
Regular-Fare
Regular-Features
Regular-Functionality
Regular-Intervals
Regular-Little-Peach
Regular-Manifestations
Regular-Meals
Regular-Network
Regular-Recluse
Regular-Returning
Regular-Rhythm
Regular-Seasons
Regular-System
Regular-Tinkle
Regular-Turns
Regularly-Renew Regulated-Beforehand Reign-Supreme Reigning-Monarch
Reigning-Sovereigns
Reignited-Satisfaction
Rejoicing-Inwardly
Rejuvenating-Allusion
Rejuvenating-Refreshment
Relatively-Established-Demand Relatively-Rapidly Relatively-Recent Relaxed-Tone
Relay-Race
Relentless-Kinetic-Thrust Relentless-Necessity Relentless-Pain

Relentless-Profusion Relentless-Pummelling Relentless-Rush
Relevant-Distinction Relevant-Nuance
Reliable-Particle-Count Reliable-Regular Relief-Effort
Relief-Flooding
Relief-Thronging
Religious-Anxiety
Religious-Folds
Religious-Invective
Religious-Obligations Religious-Rite
Reluctant-Particles Reluctant-Shake Reluctant-Traces Remained-External Remained-Hidden Remained-Kneeling Remaining-Days

http://bbrace.net/R/Reflected-Light.html

↑ Index

42. ALDON L NIELSEN photos from MLA off-site reading
Sun 4 Jan 2009

---

photos of pretty much everybody whose last name comes after Giscombe now up at the heatstrings blog for your inspection:

<http://heatstrings.blogspot.com/>

<<

Aldon L. Nielsen
Kelly Professor of American Literature
The Pennsylvania State University
116 Burrowes
University Park, PA 16802-6200

[redacted]

↑ Index

43. ALDON L NIELSEN

Re: sound file from MLA off-site reading

Sun 4 Jan 2009

>
This link will take you to a downloadable MP3 file from this year's MLA reading -- I'm sorry to say that I arrived late due to a prior commitment, and that my batteries ran out before the end (the replacement batteries having been mistakenly discarded by an over-eager table clearer at the previous event) --Â

>
So, this is roughly everybody from GORDON through ROTHENBERG -- the link will be active for downloading for the next seven days and will then vanish --Â

>
<https://www.yousendit.com/download/WnBURE9uTWN0TWtLSkE9PQ>
>

<<

44. Ruth Lepson

Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

Sun 4 Jan 2009

---

not disallowing but criticizing--one's metaphors are important info.

On 1/1/09 10:09 AM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:

> I don't think it's puritan moralizing to criticize prostitution; I > think it's puritan moralizing to disallow its use as a metaphor.
>
> On Dec 31, 2008, at 5:43 PM, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> sick of men saying it's puritan moralizing to criticize prostitution.
> whether it shd be legal or not is a complicated question. but I make no
> judgment about prostitutes. if anything, I wish the world could hold them in > its arms in a loving way to counteract all they suffer.
>
> On 12/31/08 4:33 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> Here's an interesting article, for those who are interested, about a more > useful approach to bettering the terrible conditions of brothels: forming a > prostitutes' union.
> http://www.sciam.com/article.cfm?id=the-prostitutes-union
>
> I think as long as every mention of prostitution brings up just so much
> puritan moralizing, pimps and their bosses will continue to operate with > impunity, out of the sight of polite society. Meanwhile police continue to > fine and jail the women, in order to keep them out of sight of the neighbors
> whose real estate values they would otherwise
>
> guidelines &

↑ Index

45. Ruth Lepson

Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

Sun 4 Jan 2009

---

it wasn't you who said that, I believe--been away so may be confused. thanks for your note.
ruth

On 1/1/09 2:06 PM, "John Cunningham" <[redacted]> wrote:

> I never once ever remotely indicated that prostitution shouldn't be criticized, Ruth. I certainly do agree, separate and apart from the idea of puritan moralizing, that prostitution should be legalized and run in a humane manner where the health and safety of the women engaged in the practice are one of the paramount concerns. Prostitution has been with us forever and will continue to be with us forever. So, it certainly makes sense to respond to this in a manner that takes this into account. Hasn't your country learned from its experience with prohibition. The only thing that it accomplished through criminalization is to support organized crime and increase the need for a larger police force. Here in Canada, our Neo-Conservative Party, has goosestepped its way it thinking that all the evil in the world has been unleashed by having a safe injection site in Vancouver. Ah, the folly of modern government and society.
> John Herbert Cunningham
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
> Sent: December-31-08 4:43 PM
> To: [redacted]
> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>
> sick of men saying it's puritan moralizing to criticize prostitution. whether it shd be legal or not is a complicated question. but I make no judgment about prostitutes. if anything, I wish the world could hold them in its arms in a loving way to counteract all they suffer.
>
> On 12/31/08 4:33 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> Here's an interesting article, for those who are interested, about a more useful approach to bettering the terrible conditions of brothels: forming a prostitutes' union.
> http://www.sciam.com/article.cfm?id=the-prostitutes-union
>
> I think as long as every mention of prostitution brings up just so much puritan moralizing, pimps and their bosses will continue to operate with

> impunity, out of the sight of polite society. Meanwhile police continue to > fine and jail the women, in order to keep them out of sight of the neighbors
> whose real estate values they would otherwise
>
> guidelines &

↑ Index

46. Mark Weiss
Re: Gotham Book Mart Holdings Are Given to Penn
Sun 4 Jan 2009

It was a great bookstore to browse in, and very receptive to small presses, accepting books on consignment. Part of its business plan was never to pay for the books if sold or return them if not. I guess that somwewhat tempers my grief at Gotham's passing.

Mark

At 12:20 AM 1/4/2009, you wrote: >from NY TIMESJANUARY 2, 2009, 12:51 PM
>By SEWELL CHAN
<http://cityroom.blogs.nytimes.com/author/sewell-chan/>Andreas >Brown, the last owner of the Gotham Book Mart, readied vintage photos of >Arthur Miller and James Joyce in 2004 in preparation for a move to a new >location. (Photo: Frances Roberts for The New York Times)
>
>Updated, 4:50 p.m. | About 200,000 items from the Gotham Book Mart, which >closed in 2007 after 87 years as a New York literary haven of international >stature, have been >donated<http://www.upenn.edu/pennnews/article.php?id=1504> to >the University of Pennsylvania.
>
>An anonymous donor purchased the store's inventory and donated it to the >university, which announced the donation on Dec. 18. The holdings — >primarily modern and contemporary poetry and literature, but also including >works on art, architecture, jewelry, music, dance and film — will go to >Penn's Rare Book and Manuscript Library, which is known for its collection >of antiquarian materials from before 1850. Citing experts, The Philadelphia >Inquirer reported on Thursday that the collection was valued at several >million >dollars<http://www.philly.com/philly/news/local/20090101_Gotham_Book_Mart_trove_bound_for_U__of_Pennsylvania.html>, >but most of the store's inventory was bought at an auction by its landlords >for $400,000 in 2007.

>
>"We're honored to steward the collection and give it new life as an academic >resource," H. Carton Rogers, vice provost and director of libraries at the >University of Pennsylvania, said in a statement.
>
>The collection includes first editions, experimental literary magazines and >books from small presses, including "outsider literature" published by Black >Sparrow Press and poetry published by St. Mark's Church, the university >said.
>
>The collection includes "proofs, advance copies, pamphlets, photographs, >posters, reference works, catalogs, broadsides, prints and postcards," the >university said. There are books from the personal libraries of Truman >Capote<http://topics.nytimes.com/top/reference/timestopics/people/c/truman_capote/index.html> > and Anaïs
> Nin<http://select.nytimes.com/gst/abstract.html?res=F40815F83C5D167493C4A8178AD85F438785F9>, >as well as items signed by Arthur Miller, Tennessee Williams, Robinson >Jeffers, Woody Allen, Wallace Stevens and John Updike.
>
>The Gotham Book Mart was founded on West 45th Street in 1920 by Frances >Steloff<http://select.nytimes.com/gst/abstract.html?res=FA0712FC3E590C708EDDAC0894D1484D81>.
>It was the haunt of literary figures like Theodore Dreiser, John Dos Passos,
>H. L. Mencken, Arthur Miller, John Updike, J. D. Salinger and Eugene >O'Neill.
>Itexhibited<http://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?res=9500E1DE1431F934A25757C0A9669C8B63>
>the >works of the artist Edward Gorey. Its customers included George and Ira >Gershwin, Charlie Chaplin, Alexander Calder, Stephen Spender, Woody Allen, >Saul Bellow, John Guare, Katharine Hepburn and Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis.
>At various points, Allen Ginsberg, LeRoi Jones and Tennessee Williams (for a >day) worked as clerks there.
>
>Under Miss Steloff, the store twice moved to larger quarters, but stayed >within a two-block area, settling in 1946 at 41 West 47th Street. Miss

>Steloff sold the >Gotham<http://select.nytimes.com/gst/abstract.html?
res=F40E16FE3D5C147493C7AB178AD85F4C8685F9>
>in >1967 to Andreas Brown, another book lover, but continued to live in an >apartment on the third floor, above the store, and remained as a working >consultant.
>
>"Along with its fame and reputation, the Gotham was also a very carefully >operated book business," Herbert Mitgang wrote in an >obituary<http://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?
res=950DE2DD113DF935A25757C0A96F948260> > of Miss
> Steloff<http://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?
res=9B0DE1D6113BF933A05751C1A961948260>, >who died in 1989 at age 101. "As the owner and the person who paid the >salaries, Miss Steloff was demanding, irascible, unwearying and unable to >understand why no one else was willing to put as many hours or as much >concentration into the store as she did."
>
>Beloved as it was, the bookstore had many problems over the years. In 1997, >Mr. Brown agreed to pay $1.4 >million<http://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?
res=9F02EEDE1E39F930A25756C0A961958260>
>to >Joanne Carson, who had turned over $640,000 in savings to him in 1988 and >1991 to help him buy and repair the brownstone that houses the store. In >1995, she decided she wanted her loan back with interest, and filed >suit<http://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?
res=9907E1DB1130F934A35756C0A961958260> >against >him.
>The Gotham Book Mart's final home, at 16 East 46th Street. (Photo: Tina >Fineberg for The New York Times)
>
>Mr. Brown said he would pay the money back in 2000, after selling the >building. But the sale did not occur until 2003, when Mr. Brown sold the >building<http://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?
res=9504E0DA163FF931A15754C0A9659C8B63>, >a town house in the heart of the diamond district, for $7.2 million. In >2004, the store moved <http://www.nytimes.com/2004/08/04/books/04goth.html> to >the former H. P. Kraus antiquarian bookstore, at 16 East 46th >Street<http://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?

res=9A0CE4DA173CF937A3575BC0A9629C8B63>, >which had closed in 2003.
>
>It later emerged that two benefactors who had wished to remain >anonymous — Leonard
>A.
>Lauder<http://topics.nytimes.com/top/reference/timestopics/people/l/leonard_a_lauder/index.html>,
>the cosmetics heir, who has an interest in antique postcards, and Edmondo >Schwartz, a real estate developer — had purchased the East Side building for >$5.2 million and leased it to Mr. Brown to save the Gotham. But by 2006, he >had fallen >behind<http://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?
res=9D00EEDB1031F93AA2575AC0A9609C8B63>
>on >his $51,000 monthly rent and owed at least $500,000 in rent, taxes, interest >and other fees, and the landlords moved to evict him. The store was on its >last legs.
>
>In May 2007, many of Gotham's possessions — including books signed by Mr.
>Updike, letters from D. H. Lawrence, and Andy Warhol's wig rack — were sold >at auction <http://www.nytimes.com/2007/05/23/nyregion/23gotham.html> to
the >landlords, who bid $400,000. The store's workers had never finished >unpacking the books from the 2004 move.
>
>The university said that it knew the identity of the donor but that the >donor had insisted on anonymity.
>
>Mr. Lauder, former chairman of the Estée Lauder Companies, graduated from >Penn in 1954 and is an emeritus member of its board of trustees. Jonathan J.
>Faust, a lawyer for Mr. Lauder, declined to comment on Mr. Lauder's >involvement with Gotham Book Mart.
>

↑ Index

47. Small Press Traffic

Small Press Traffic's Annual Poets Theater -- 3 Glorious Nights: January 16th, 23rd, & 30th

Sun 4 Jan 2009

SMALL PRESS TRAFFIC'S POETS THEATER FEST 09

Please join us for our annual fundraiser — three nights of innovative performance, theater, & video works:

*JANUARY 16, 2009 *
Short plays by Raymond Pettibon, Bhanu Kapil, Stan Apps, Daniil Kharms, Wendy Kramer, Tetra Balestri & more!

*JANUARY 23, 2009 *
Longer plays by Leslie Scalapino, Vanessa Place, & surprise play "TBA"
*

JANUARY 30, 2009 * Inter-media work & videos by Linh Dinh, Heriberto Yépez, Konrad Steiner, Henry Hills, Paolo Javier & Dennis Somera, Ariana Reines, Dillon Westbrook, Karla Milosevich, Cassie Riger & Amanda Davidson, Bill Luoma, Claudia Rankine & more!

All shows start at 7:30 pm sharp.
Refreshments will be served.
$10 donation -- Don't miss it!

Timken Hall, California College of the Arts
1111 8th Street, San Francisco

To volunteer please email [redacted]

For more information on SPT's spring 2009 programs:
www.sptraffic.org or smallpresstraffic.blogspot.com

We'll see you Fridays!

_____

Small Press Traffic
Literary Arts Center at CCA
1111 -- 8th Street
San Francisco, CA 94107
[redacted]

<http://www.sptraffic.org/>http://www.sptraffic.org www.smallpresstraffic.blogspot.com

↑ Index

48. John Cunningham

Re: hockey violence (was poetry brothel)

Mon 5 Jan 2009

I completely agree with you. Which doesn't change my opinion any that professional sports and prostitution have certain commonalities. john

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Jim Andrews
Sent: January-04-09 1:22 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: hockey violence (was poetry brothel)

The most popular sport on Earth, soccer/football, rarely involves fighting. The stadiums sometimes seat 150,000, such as in Rio, and the players are paid ten times what hockey players receive. Baseball, also, is more popular, at least in Japan and the United States. The stadiums seat 80,000 and the players are paid ten times what hockey players receive. And, again, fighting is not typical in baseball, and this is true of most other high-profile sports.

Hockey, in the USA, is veiwed as a goon show, one step up from all star wrestling. Whereas, in Canada, your point of view is common, John. That pro hockey allows fighting is a business decision. Whether they do or don't permit fighting won't change the general level of popularity of hockey in the USA. It is not going to be as popular as baseball, football, or basketball in the USA regardless of whether fighting is permitted. It's not their game. But, with fighting permitted, the owners do better financially than they would otherwise.

One of these days a lawyer is going to successfully prosecute a case which arises out of on-ice violence. To the tune of millions of dollars in damages against an NHL club and its personnel. Only then will the business men rethink their business decision.

In the meantime, the code lends not only hockey but Canadian society an annoying, slightly retarded thugishness.

I was sorry to hear of the death of Don Sanderson from a hockey fight. Unfortunately he won't be the last.

I have been watching the world junior tournament. It's been very hard-hitting, tough, fast, exciting hockey--more exciting, I would say, than

NHL hockey--and there is hardly any fighting. I don't miss it a bit. In fact the last few games in that tournament I've watched (Canada-Russia, Canada-USA, USA-Slovakia, Slovakia-Sweden) have been some of the most thrilling hockey games I've ever seen. And just about entirely without fisticuffs.

ja
http://vispo.com

> A very interesting and relevant response, Richard. I was watching the news yesterday and noted that a young man was killed as a result of a hockey fight. The newscaster implied that only a limited sector of the hockey audience was interested in watching hockey fights. My first thought was, "Bullshit!". That's part and parcel of being a hockey player and it's never > going to change. The male stereotype is one of power and strength, of laughing in the face of danger. Would anyone be interested in watching people drive cars around an oval track if not for the expectation of accidents? Isn't that one of the reasons why tennis, which demands a damned > sight more athletic ability than football or, perhaps, hockey, not as popular a sport? Although golf and baseball and watching grass grow are pretty popular, aren't they?
> John Herbert Cunningham

↑ Index

49. blacksox
It's almost 1st Tuesday
Mon 5 Jan 2009

The Orlando Poetry Group presents:
1st Tuesdays @
The Daily Grind
3060 S.R. 436 Suite 100
APOPKA, FL 32703
[redacted]

Proudly Featuring
Terry Godbey
Terry Godbey, whose chapbook "Behind Every Door" was published in 2006, and won Slipstreamâ€™s 19th Annual Poetry Chapbook Competition. Began writing poetry in earnest in 1999, inspired by her sonâ€™s fascination with trains. Since then she has published more than 90 poems in literary magazines including "Poet Lore," "Rosebud," "Potomac Review," "CALYX Journal," "Rattle," "The Cafe Review," "Slipstream" and "Pearl." She is a copy editor at the â€˜Orlando Sentinelâ€™ and lives in Maitland Florida
January 6 @ 7:30 pm

Hosted By Russ Golata
[redacted]

A very special evening with Terry Godbey
Followed by Apopkaâ€™s fastest growing Open Mic

Donâ€™t miss Terry Godbey
Only YOU can make this night special Please join us

↑ Index

50. Sharon Mesmer/David Borchart

Re: OPEN LETTER to Rick Warren's new friend Melissa Etheridge

Mon 5 Jan 2009

CA, I really hope you sent both this one and the one to Elizabeth Alexander to them!

On Jan 3, 2009, at 4:32 PM, CA Conrad wrote:

> Dear Melissa Etheridge, it seemed like good news that you had met with > Pastor Rick Warren to confront him on his homophobic disinformation > campaign. It makes sense that many thoughtful, open-minded people are > thinking that your meeting with Warren made for a good, productive meeting > of the minds. Many of these same people worked VERY HARD to get Mr. Obama > elected, so the idea of him CHOOSING an openly homophobic anti-Semite > like Warren to give "the blessing" at his inauguration to set the spiritual > tone of his presidency is a very difficult thing to wrap our minds around.
> Our feeling of betrayal is appropriate.
>
> To be honest Melissa I have no idea how much experience you have with > Fundamentalist Christians, but they're called FUNDAMENTALIST for a reason.
> When you say you are interested in peace I don't doubt you for a minute.
> But when you say we should volunteer to be more visible it's nothing but > weird to me. Your direct quote is, "Maybe if they get to know us, they > won't fear us." But we queers don't grow on trees on a faraway island.
> Fundamentalist Christians deal with us all the time because live in their towns. They gave birth to us, we are in their families, and we don't need to visit because we're already there. They know us and we know them, quite well.

From my own experience and understanding with Fundamentalist Christian relatives, there are some who will not allow me to use their towels or toilets because I'm queer. You wouldn't be allowed to either, no matter how many CDs you've sold. Never mind gay marriage, you can't take a shit! And these are people who LOVED me dearly when I was a boy. I FELT their love, and remember it well. And I also remember how painful it was to let them know I was queer, having grown up hearing their sadistic vitriol. My options were to hide or come out. Hiding is an option only for the true masochist, and I am not one. A relative said to me, "You were such a handsome boy, we had such hope for you." In an instant I became someone who was now ugly and without hope.

If I die tomorrow some members of my family will say, "We know where he's headed!" These are extremely unreasonable and uncompromising people, and their bible backs them up one hundred percent. I've read these passages, I've had them read to me. Queers are an abomination, period. We can serve all the soup in the world to all the homeless of the world but we're still going to Hell. The bible says so, period. And Rick Warren can say Jews and queers are going to Hell as gently as he can, but he still says it, and in doing so he makes Jews and queers subhuman animals not worthy of God's love. We are refuse, and THAT is the very kind of philosophy which encouraged Aaron McKinney to torture and murder Matthew Shepard. THAT is the very philosophy which permitted Roland Button to run over Erika Keels four times with his car, and the very philosophy that made her so invisible and inhuman that Philadelphia police wrote her death down as an accident, which remains classified an accident to this day.

Despite the medical examiner's report, despite witnesses, despite petitions and marching and demonstrating on behalf of this 20-year old African American transwoman, her murderer has never stood trial, see this:
http://www.petitiononline.com/ErikaK/

My boyfriend Earth was murdered in Tennessee. His twin brother who still lives in Philadelphia told me his hands were tied behind his back, he was dowsed with gasoline and set on fire. Over and over I asked, "HOW could they do this!!!!? HOW could they do this!!!!?" But we all know how, we know exactly how. Whoever murdered him was able to find the necessary apathy from a legacy of hate, a legacy of PERMISSION, handed down from church to church, quoting verse to sanction and spur their actions.

In Adolf Hitler's Germany the clergy who used the pulpit to spread hatred of Jews and Homosexuals were doing so to ease the troubled conscience, to act as a link to the voice of God to ORDAIN The Holocaust. Ask yourself how guilty are these men who used their positions of respect and their aura of holiness to push their trusting congregations to commit such atrocities?

Rick Warren is the author of one of the best-selling hardcover books in publishing history. And this is a country where he should be allowed to express himself freely, but so should we be allowed to counter it, to let the voice of reason break through. Millions of people trust and absorb Warren's message that Jews will burn in Hell, and that queers are not FIT to be treated the same as decent heterosexual Christians. Melissa why do you ask US to volunteer in his church? Why not ask these Fundamentalist Christians to volunteer at gay community centers and the queer suicide hotlines? Instead of asking US to show how worthy we are, how about they be asked to prove their worthiness for a change? It is WRONG to grovel up to them for acceptance, for these are the people who pushed US away in the first place, remember? The compromises they demand of us are too expensive and would eat us alive.

*We need to be LOUD and be LOUD NOW, not to get through to the people who have shunned us and discarded us, but for the young queer people growing up in these repressive, dangerous families. We need to prevent yet more suicides. And it would be nice to prevent gay bashing and murders, but that's a whole long battle which involves centuries of permission to undo.
Did you see the movie Borat? The people being interviewed in the film were not actors. There's a man at a rodeo scene who says without hesitation into the camera that "we're working on" being able to hang queers here like they do in Borat's country. The man openly admires hanging queers elsewhere in the world. Some days THE ONLY THING keeping these bloodthirsty people in check in America is their fear of prison and the electric chair, and some days that's all we queers have between our lives and the grave.*

In "Homosexuality and Marxism," the great American poet Jack Spicer wrote:

> *Homosexuality is essentially being alone. Which is a fight against the > capitalist bosses who do not want us to be alone. Alone we are dangerous.
> Our dissatisfaction could ruin America. Our love could ruin the universe if we let it.*

Thank you Jack, for that! This ruin to me is transformative, is the Phoenix, and feels nothing less than essential for love to DEMAND its increase. Melissa please don't ask us to prove that we're good people, because if we have to prove it, then how good are the people asking us to prove it? And frankly I'm VERY GLAD that Barak Obama won and not John McCain and Sarah Palin, but at the same time Obama is LUCKY I > didn't know he > would CHOOSE Rick Warren's blessing BEFORE election day. You'll see me at > the inauguration, I'll be the one with the sign that says, "YOU'RE LUCKY I > CAN'T TAKE MY VOTE BACK!"

>
> For all those who have suffered and continue to suffer, we must remember Dr.
> Martin Luther King's words, "The time is always right to do what is right."
>
> Most sincerely,
> poet CAConrad
>
> http://PhillySound.blogspot.com <http://phillysound.blogspot.com/>
>
> welcome.html

↑ Index

51. Gwyn McVay

Re: hockey violence (was poetry brothel)

Mon 5 Jan 2009

On Sun, Jan 4, 2009 at 2:21 PM, Jim Andrews <[redacted]> wrote:

> In the meantime, the code lends not only hockey but Canadian society an annoying, slightly retarded thugishness.

Oh my God, we did not just go there in the derailment of brothel metaphors into sports, did we? Because some of the least thuggish athletes I've met were people I got to know while working at the DC headquarters of Special Olympics International.

I mean, people on this thread are very politely avoiding saying "That's so gay" in part because they know that there are gay people on this list and that CA Conrad, among others, would stomp a mudhole of rhetoric in the rhetorical ass of the first person to do so. But because we're all hip hip hip hip hip and intellectual, we just absolutely know that nobody is going to object to the casual slinging of the term "retarded" for people who may or may not in fact have mental retardation, right? How edgy, sir. How totally edgy.

Gwyn "Person of Alternative Skeletal Alignment" McVay, off to download and test some crippleware

↑ Index

52. Cara Benson

Sous Rature 2ssue is online

Mon 5 Jan 2009

http://www.necessetics.com/2ssue.ht (sorry for triple announcements...

http://www.necessetics.com/2ssue.html

is now online

featuring the fabulous conviviations of

In chro(no)logical order

Bernadette Mayer
Nico Vassilakis
Brooklyn Copeland
Maria Williams-Russell
Peter Ciccariello
William Allegrezza
David-Baptiste Chirot
Rodrigo Toscano
Christophe Casamassima
James Sanders
Barry Schwabsky
Michelle Naka Pierce
w/ Sue Hammond West
Alexander Jorgensen
Celina Su
Matina Stamatakis
Amy King
Bill Marsh
Brenda Hillman
Charles Bernstein
Samit Roy
Stacy Szymaszek
Paul Hoover
Sawako Nakayasu
Thomas Devaney
Sparrow

_____

http://www.necessetics.com

http://www.necessetics.com/sousrature.html

↑ Index

53. Michael Kelleher
Literary Buffalo Newsletter 01.05.09-01.11.09
Mon 5 Jan 2009

LITERARY BUFFALO
01.05.09-01.11.09

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

If you haven?t yet given to the year-end campaign, it?s not too late!

To make donation, please visit our website:

http://www.justbuffalo.org/index.php?task=view&id=45

You can also donate over the phone by calling [redacted]. Or you can send a check or money order to Just Buffalo Literary Center, 617 Main St., Suite 202A, Buffalo, NY 14203.

EVENTS THIS WEEK

Visit the Literary Buffalo calendar at www.justbuffalo.org for more detailed info on these events. All events free and open to the pubic unless otherwise noted.

01.07.08

Just Buffalo/Center for Inquiry Literary CafÃ‡
David Landrey and Michael Kelleher
Poetry Reading
Wednesday, January 7, 7:30 PM
Center for Inquiry, 1310 Sweet Home Road, AmherstË‡

JUST BUFFALO MEMBER WRITER CRITIQUE GROUP

http://www.justbuffalo.org/docs/Writer_Critique_Group.pdf

UNSUBSCRIBE

If you would like to unsubscribe from this list, just say so and you will immediately be removed.

Michael Kelleher
Artistic Director
Just Buffalo Literary Center
Market Arcade
617 Main St., Ste. 202A

Buffalo, NY 14203
[redacted]
[redacted] (fax)
www.justbuffalo.org
[redacted]

↑ Index

54. Paul Nelson

Re: capitalism and the long poem

Mon 5 Jan 2009

_____
From: George Bowering <bowering

_____
From: George Bowering <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Saturday, January 3, 2009 12:16:03 PM
Subject: Re: capitalism and the long poem

Charles Olson as a writer of the serial poem?
I wish we could hear Jack Spicer's response to that notion!

gb

George,

What would be your guess, since you studied with Jack?

Paul

On Jan 3, 2009, at 7:51 AM, Mark Weiss wrote:

> Putting aside the dubiousness of the term post modern and the assignment of dates to it, Pound was writing the serial poem that was the acknowledged model for Olson and Duncan well before 1945, and Rimbaud was doing it even earlier. It shouldn't be difficult to come up with a few more, but I have to run out the door--promises to keep, restless horses, etc.
>
> Mark
>
>
> At 08:16 AM 1/1/2009, you wrote:
>> One of the most fascinating developments of the post-modern era
>> Troy, One of the most fascinating developments of the post-modern era (& the era since then) is the development (evolution) of the Serial Poem. Robin Blaser's 'The Holy Forest' and Nate Mackey's 'Mu' or 'Song of the Andoumbolou' (which together could be considered part of the same poem) are two stellar examples of this. These are more recent examples and 'The Maximus Poems' and 'Paterson' are other examples and I am sure folks on the list could chip in their own favorites. The narrative that emerges is not as obvious and requires more study, more of a commitment than what was previously known as 'epic.' The recognition of these in a mode similar to the epics of the past is very much a function of this shift in literature, especially after 1945 (the beginning of the post-modern era) and Jack Spicer's notion gets close to summing it up: ... The trick naturally is what Duncan learned years ago and tried to teach us not to search for the perfect poem but to let your way of writing of the moment go along its own paths, explore and retreat but never be fully realized (confined) within the boundaries of one poem... It's pleasing to be back to actual poetics on the poetics list. Happy New Year. Paul E. Nelson Global Voices Radio SPLAB! American Sentences Organic Poetry Poetry Postcard Blog Ilalqo, WA [redacted]

_____ From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]> To: [redacted] Sent: Tuesday, December 30, 2008 10:50:09 AM Subject: Re: capitalism and the long poem I think we've become obsessed with it precisely because it's fallen out of favor. Somebody, or a few people, wondered where it went, and began writing about it. It seems to me that the long poem became impossible with the abandonment of narrative by poets. How long can one keep up a feeling or a mood or an "experiment"? Frederick Fierstein writes quite long poems, but his poems also have narratives holding them together. Frederick Turner has written two epic poems. It seems that the gradual abandonment of narrative in poetry by the Modernists, especially the late Modernists, and the postmodern poets, far more than economic conditions, have contributed to the abandonment of long poetry as a form. Troy Camplin
_____ From: Eireene Nealand <[redacted]> To: [redacted]
Sent: Monday, December 29, 2008 1:45:57 PM Subject: capitalism and the long poem I sat down to write a little piece about this Russian poet, and came up with a strange take on the long poem--an idea that the seriality of it is somehow related to consumer capitalism-- http://tsky-reviews.blogspot.com/ not the pleasantest thought-- and so I was wondering if anyone has any good counter arguments, or different takes on why so many are so obsessed with this form right now. & will we fall out of love with it during the recession? e
>>
>
>

GB
Is currently imagining the universe.

↑ Index

55. John Foley
EZRA POUND FLASHPOINT EXTRA!
Mon 5 Jan 2009

(Due to the technical difficulty that I forgot to put a subject in the subject line of the email, this announcement, which originally appeared January 1, might have missed many who were not intrigued by a subject listed as "no subject given." My apologies to those at FlashPoint, including me, and to all who would have liked to know about this new EXTRA! -- jrf)

ANNOUNCING .....

FLASHPOINT EXTRA!
Winter 2009
http://www.flashpointmag.com

EZRA POUND & WALL STREET

featuring

CANTO XLV
"With Usura"

GIANO ACCAME
(translated by WAYNE POUNDS)

ELLEN CARDONA

DAVID HICKMAN

MAC OLIVER

BRENDON KERESEY

TONY EVANS

ROSALIE GANCIE

CARLO PARCELLI

"Along the frontier
where the arts & politics clash ..."

↑ Index

56. George Bowering
Re: hockey violence (was poetry brothel)
Mon 5 Jan 2009

Is that why Don Cherry dresses like a cliche pimp?

On Jan 4, 2009, at 9:27 PM, John Cunningham wrote:

I completely agree with you. Which doesn't change my opinion any that professional sports and prostitution have certain commonalities.
john

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB)
[mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Jim Andrews
Sent: January-04-09 1:22 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: hockey violence (was poetry brothel)

The most popular sport on Earth, soccer/football, rarely involves fighting.
The stadiums sometimes seat 150,000, such as in Rio, and the players are paid ten times what hockey players receive. Baseball, also, is more popular, at least in Japan and the United States. The stadiums seat 80,000 and the players are paid ten times what hockey players receive. And, again, fighting is not typical in baseball, and this is true of most other high-profile sports.

Hockey, in the USA, is veiwed as a goon show, one step up from all star wrestling. Whereas, in Canada, your point of view is common, John. That pro hockey allows fighting is a business decision. Whether they do or don't permit fighting won't change the general level of popularity of hockey in the USA. It is not going to be as popular as baseball, football, or basketball in the USA regardless of whether fighting is permitted. It's not their game. But, with fighting permitted, the owners do better financially than they would otherwise.

One of these days a lawyer is going to successfully prosecute a case which arises out of on-ice violence. To the tune of millions of dollars in damages against an NHL club and its personnel. Only then will the business men rethink their business decision.

In the meantime, the code lends not only hockey but Canadian society an annoying, slightly retarded thugishness.

I was sorry to hear of the death of Don Sanderson from a hockey fight.
Unfortunately he won't be the last.

I have been watching the world junior tournament. It's been very hard-hitting, tough, fast, exciting hockey--more exciting, I would say, than

NHL hockey--and there is hardly any fighting. I don't miss it a bit. In fact the last few games in that tournament I've watched (Canada-Russia, Canada-USA, USA-Slovakia, Slovakia-Sweden) have been some of the most thrilling hockey games I've ever seen. And just about entirely without fisticuffs.

ja
http://vispo.com

A very interesting and relevant response, Richard. I was watching the news yesterday and noted that a young man was killed as a result of a hockey fight. The newscaster implied that only a limited sector of the hockey audience was interested in watching hockey fights. My first thought was,
"Bullshit!". That's part and parcel of being a hockey player and it's never going to change. The male stereotype is one of power and strength, of laughing in the face of danger. Would anyone be interested in watching people drive cars around an oval track if not for the expectation of accidents? Isn't that one of the reasons why tennis, which demands a damned sight more athletic ability than football or, perhaps, hockey, not as popular a sport? Although golf and baseball and watching grass grow are pretty popular, aren't they?
John Herbert Cunningham

guidelines

welcome.html

George Henry Bowering
Once saw Alexis Smith plain.

↑ Index

57. William Allegrezza
Come to Series A this Wed.
Mon 5 Jan 2009

Come to Series A this Wednesday!

January 5, 7:00-8:00 p.m.
    Steve Halle
    Kathleen Rooney

Hyde Park Art Center.
5020 S. Cornell Avenue
Chicago, IL

BYOB.

For more information, see http://moriapoetry.com/seriesa.html

Bill Allegrezza

↑ Index

58. William Allegrezza
Any experimental writers coming to Chicago this spring/summer?
Mon 5 Jan 2009

I'm looking for writers coming through Chicago or willing to come to Chicago for Series A, the reading series that I run. I have plenty of local writers to chose from, but I want to bring in some people from outside the city. Fiction or poetry.

Bill Allegrezza

↑ Index

59. Al Filreis
dial a poem
Mon 5 Jan 2009

[redacted]

or: 215 746-POEM

Happy '09 from all of us at the Kelly Writers House in Philadelphia. With the new year we launch another new project. Call the phone number above any day, at any time, and hear

1) what's happening tonight or very soon at the Writers House 2) highlights of upcoming events 3) a featured poem read at the Writers House, from our archives 4) a featured recording of Writers House-affiliated students

We urge all friends of the Writers House to add this number - which we call "6-POEM" - to their contacts list, speed dial, and address book.

"What's happening" will be updated almost every day. The other features will be updated frequently.

Once again, best wishes for the new year,

- Al

Al Filreis
http://www.writing.upenn.edu/~afilreis

↑ Index

60. George Bowering
Re: hockey violence (was poetry brothel)
Mon 5 Jan 2009

On Jan 5, 2009, at 8:46 AM, Gwyn McVay wrote:

> I mean, people on this thread are very politely avoiding saying
> "That's so > gay" in part because they know that there are gay people on this list

What does that mean? Who says that?

Bowering
A gerund and your friend.

↑ Index

61. George Bowering
Re: capitalism and the long poem
Mon 5 Jan 2009

The long poems by Pound and Olson were planned, based on study of history, and in Olson's case, archaeology, for God's sake!

On Jan 5, 2009, at 9:59 AM, Paul Nelson wrote:

_____
From: George Bowering <bowering

_____
From: George Bowering <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Saturday, January 3, 2009 12:16:03 PM
Subject: Re: capitalism and the long poem

Charles Olson as a writer of the serial poem?
I wish we could hear Jack Spicer's response to that notion!

gb

George,

What would be your guess, since you studied with Jack?

Paul

On Jan 3, 2009, at 7:51 AM, Mark Weiss wrote:

Putting aside the dubiousness of the term post modern and the assignment of dates to it, Pound was writing the serial poem that was the acknowledged model for Olson and Duncan well before 1945, and Rimbaud was doing it even earlier. It shouldn't be difficult to come up with a few more, but I have to run out the door-- promises to keep, restless horses, etc.

Mark

At 08:16 AM 1/1/2009, you wrote:
One of the most fascinating developments of the post-modern era Troy, One of the most fascinating developments of the post-modern era (& the era since then) is the development (evolution) of the Serial Poem. Robin Blaser's 'The Holy Forest' and Nate Mackey's 'Mu' or 'Song of the Andoumbolou' (which together could be considered part of the same poem) are two stellar examples of this. These are more recent examples and 'The Maximus Poems' and 'Paterson' are other examples and I am sure folks on the list could chip in their own favorites. The narrative that emerges is not as obvious and requires more study, more of a commitment than what was previously known as 'epic.' The recognition of these in a mode similar to the epics of the past is very much a function of this shift in literature, especially after 1945 (the beginning of the post-modern era) and Jack Spicer's notion gets close to summing it up: ...The trick naturally is what Duncan learned years ago and tried to teach us not to search for the perfect poem but to let your way of writing of the moment go along its own paths, explore and retreat but never be fully realized (confined) within the boundaries of one poem... It's pleasing to be back to actual poetics on the poetics list. Happy New Year. Paul E. Nelson Global Voices Radio SPLAB! American Sentences Organic Poetry Poetry Postcard Blog Ilalqo, WA [redacted] _____ From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]> To: [redacted] Sent: Tuesday, December 30, 2008 10:50:09 AM Subject: Re: capitalism and the long poem I think we've become obsessed with it precisely because it's fallen out of favor. Somebody, or a few people, wondered where it went, and began writing about it. It seems to me that the long poem became impossible with the abandonment of narrative by poets. How long can one keep up a feeling or a mood or an "experiment"? Frederick Fierstein writes quite long poems, but his poems also have narratives holding them together. Frederick Turner has written two epic poems. It seems that the gradual abandonment of narrative in poetry by the Modernists, especially the late Modernists, and the postmodern poets, far more than economic conditions, have contributed to the abandonment of long poetry as a form. Troy Camplin _____ From: Eireene Nealand <[redacted]> To: [redacted] Sent: Monday, December 29, 2008 1:45:57 PM Subject: capitalism and the long poem I sat down to write a little piece about this Russian poet, and came up with a strange take on the long poem--an idea that the seriality of it is somehow related to consumer capitalism-- http://tsky-reviews.blogspot.com/ not the pleasantest thought-- and so I was wondering if anyone has any good counter arguments, or different takes on why so many are so obsessed with this form right now. & will we fall out of love with it during the recession? e

welcome.html

welcome.html

GB
Is currently imagining the universe.

welcome.html

> welcome.html

George
Satisfied with his undergarments.

↑ Index

62. Daniel Zimmerman
Re: hockey violence (was poetry brothel)
Mon 5 Jan 2009

Gwyn,

Would you prefer that Jim had said "slightly slow-witted (or simple-minded) thuggishness"? Roget doesn't list those alternatives to "retarded" as "offensive." However, Jim seemed to want to express the offensiveness (to him) of a part of Canadian society. If he wanted to call someone a bastard, would you chide him for not saying "child of unmarried parents"? Would "dung cranium" sting as aptly as "shithead"? Should we scruple as much in our poetry as in email to make sure not to offend ANYone? Jim referred to an aspect of society-- not to a specific individual. I'd agree that to call a person of low intelligence "retarded" might offend some people (including the person so designated), but it seems to me perfectly OK to call people retarded who clearly do not have low intelligence but whose opinions or behavior suggest that they have abandoned their customary average (or high) intelligence regarding a specific situation. If they deserve opprobrium, let them have it! George W. Bush, for example, richly deserves that epithet, even though the Internet tells me he has an IQ of 125 ("Are you smarter than a 5th grader?" &c.).

Could we talk about poetry now?

~ Dan Zimmerman

----- Original Message -----
From: "Gwyn McVay" <[redacted]>
To: <[redacted]>
Sent: Monday, January 05, 2009 11:46 AM
Subject: Re: hockey violence (was poetry brothel)

> On Sun, Jan 4, 2009 at 2:21 PM, Jim Andrews <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> In the meantime, the code lends not only hockey but Canadian society an annoying, slightly retarded thugishness.
>
> Oh my God, we did not just go there in the derailment of brothel metaphors into sports, did we? Because some of the least thuggish athletes I've met > were people I got to know while working at the DC headquarters of Special Olympics International.

>
> I mean, people on this thread are very politely avoiding saying "That's so gay" in part because they know that there are gay people on this list and that CA Conrad, among others, would stomp a mudhole of rhetoric in the rhetorical ass of the first person to do so. But because we're all hip hip hip hip hip and intellectual, we just absolutely know that nobody is going to object to the casual slinging of the term "retarded" for people who may or may not in fact have mental retardation, right? How edgy, sir. How totally edgy.
>
> Gwyn "Person of Alternative Skeletal Alignment" McVay, off to download and test some crippleware

↑ Index

63. Stephen Motika
Celan Tribute featuring Fiona Templeton and Barbez
Mon 5 Jan 2009

Force of Light: A Multimedia Tribute to the Life & Poetry of Paul Celan
Featuring with Fiona Templeton & Barbez

Wednesday, January 7, 7:00pm

Barbez, a critically-acclaimed "ethno-punk-cabaret" ensemble, performs Force of Light, a multimedia event that interweaves the poetry of Paul Celan with music and video. Experimental poet, playwright and performance artist Fiona Templeton will narrate.

Cosponsored by Poets House and the Museum of Jewish Heritage.
Museum of Jewish Heritage
Edmond J. Safra Plaza
36 Battery Place
New York City

For details, visit www.mjhnyc.org
$12 for adults, $10 for students and seniors, $7 for Poets House Members and Museum of Jewish Heritage Members

↑ Index

64. Eiríkur Örn Norðdahl
Inger Christensen - 1935-2009
Tue 6 Jan 2009

Inger Christensen died last friday.

http://www.norddahl.org/english/2009/01/inger-christensen-1935-2009/

--
www.norddahl.org
EirÃkur Ã–rn NorÃ°dahl
Fleminginkatu 9A 10
00530 Helsinki
Finland

↑ Index

65. Deborah Poe
our parenthetical ontology: deborah poe (ordering and events)
Tue 6 Jan 2009

Hello All,

My poetry collection *Our Parenthetical Ontology *is available to order: http://custom-words.com/poe.html. If anyone is interested in reviewing, please reply with your address so that I can send you a copy.

I have scheduled readings during 2008/2009 to welcome my book into the world. Listed here are the upcoming events:
http://deborahpoe.com/readings.htm

My next reading is in Seattle at Richard Hugo House on Monday evening, January 12th:
http://www.hugohouse.org/events/
http://deborahpoe.com/spontaneouslylum_seattle.pdf (large file)

I hope to see you in 2009 at one of the events. Best wishes to you for the New Year,

Deborah Poe

↑ Index

66. Gary Sullivan
Mitch Highfill and Katy Lederer
Tue 6 Jan 2009

Mitch Highfill & Katy Lederer
Wednesday, Jan 7, Poetry Project
2nd Ave & 10th St, NYC, 8:00 pm

Mitch Highfill is the author of 7 books of poetry, including Moth Light (Abraham Lincoln) and REBIS (Open Mouth). His work has appeared in OCHO & Critiphoria.

Katy Lederer is the author of the poetry collections, Winter Sex (Verse Press, 2002) and The Heaven-Sent Leaf (BOA Editions, 2008) as well as the memoir Poker Face: A Girlhood Among Gamblers (Crown, 2003).

Mitch will be reading the serial poem, Moth Light, accompanied by Natalia Paruz on musical saw.

Here is some info on Natalia:

NATALIA PARUZ, affectionately known as the ‘Saw Lady‘, has spent over a decade bringing the rare art form of playing music on a carpenter’s saw to audiences around the world. She performed with the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra conducted by Zubin Mehta, with the Westchester Philharmonic Orchestra, the Royal Air Moroccan Symphony Orchestra and at Lincoln Center’s Avery Fisher Hall with PDQ Bach composer Peter Schickele and with the Little Orchestra Society. November 2007 marked her Carnegie Hall debut as a musical saw soloist and June 2008 marked her Madison Square Garden debut. Television appearances include FOX (Good Day New York), ABC (Good Morning America), MTV (Andy Milonakis Show), VH1 (Behind the Music), History Channel (Tool Box), PBS (NY Voices), MSG (NYC Soundtracks).

Film appearances include ‘Dummy‘ with Adrian Brody. Natalia’s saw can be heard on the soundtracks of films such as El Carnaval Sodoma/Arthuro Ripstein and American Carny. Radio performances include NPR (A Prairie Home Companion), XM Satelite Radio & WBAI. Natalia received citations of honor from the New York City Council, the New York State Senate and a medal of honor from Paris, France.

_____ It’s the same Hotmail®. If by “same” you mean up to 70% faster.
http://windowslive.com/online/hotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_hotmail_acq_broad1_122008

↑ Index

67. Joel Weishaus

Fw: Reality Too-December 2008

Tue 6 Jan 2009

Dear Friends and Colleagues;

December concludes the "Reality Too" blog:
http://web.pdx.edu/~pdx00282/blog/December.htm

Mirror site: http://www.cddc.vt.edu/host/weishaus/Blog/December.htm

Introduction: http://web.pdx.edu/~pdx00282/blog/intro.htm

I want to thank everyone who has taken the time to read it, and especially those who offered your guidance during the past year. Now my work continues into other means. Have a wondrous 2009.

-Joel

↑ Index

68. Fluffy Singler

Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

Tue 6 Jan 2009

I saw reference in there to men and gigolos. I have a problem with the old school "sex degrades women" feminist argument. Is a the location of a brothel and the profession of prostitution always and inherently degrading to women? I thought there were sex-positive feminists who were working against that idea.

-----Original Message-----
From: steve russell [mailto:[redacted]]
Sent: Sunday, December 21, 2008 5:49 PM
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

this seems pretty light hearted.
I'm sorry to hear about the wicked (objects, et cetera) capitalist.
i suspect that the most die hard feminist could enjoy her/himself.

--- On Fri, 12/19/08, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]> wrote:
From: mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
Subject: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Friday, December 19, 2008, 4:15 PM

New York poetry brothel tempts with verse

Published: Friday December 19, 2008

http://rawstory.com/news/afp/
New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_12192008.ht ml

The prostitute whispers, wets her lips and prepares to bare... her heart with a
poem.

Welcome to New York's Poetry Brothel, where punters delve between the lines, not the sheets.

At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper Factory the look was bona fide bordello.

Literary ladies of the night flitted between intimate, candle-lit nooks, red lights and paintings of nudes.

Some of the poetesses for sale sported retro-style garter belts and frilly knickers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.

But transactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind, not the body, and a moment with the catalogue, replete with pictures and whimsical descriptions, reveals what's on offer.

Page four boasts The Professor, swearing to have heard "the wail of your striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."

Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets she doesn't know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 claiming she can "coax your drum."

Gigolo poets are available, not least Poetry Brothel co-founder Nicholas Adamski, who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops tempestuous, dark looks with an eye patch.

"Poetry is what I love more than anything," cooed The Madame, the sultry spirit behind the whole idea.

The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dressed for the part in low-cut dress, elbow-length black gloves and a peacock headdress.

"I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing poetry than listening to some old man sitting on a chair on a stage," she explained by the light of a guttering candle.

One-on-one encounters, for which "clients" pay three to five dollars in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free reading, took place upstairs.

The "whores" read from their own material, much of which is free verse, making for intense, sometimes baffling performances.

But for those needing a break, the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco guitarists, a fortune-teller, a blackjack table and a bar specializing in port and whisky

The young hedonists, most of them students, appear to have struck a surprisingly successful formula.

"There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets show a lot of cleavage," said The Professor, otherwise known as Jennifer Michael Hecht, aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhattan's New School.

She teaches writing to many of the Brothel's regulars and is proud of the result.

"It's kind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis. At two in the morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place reading poetry," she said.

"The custom is to read poetry alone, but we know that from Homer onward, people read it aloud and in groups."

By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed and getting fuller -- and rowdier.

The fortune teller, bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes, mumbled to someone about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The Madame, yet another glass of port in hand, introduced poet "whores" in a voice suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.

When Patricia Smith, a well-established poet, took the mike to declaim a long and rhythmical poem about love and making love, there were rock concert cheers from the crowd.

"I always shudder when I pray," Smith intoned in a mesmerizing voice, "so your name must be a prayer."

Even for these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis sweeping the country.

One of the poets, 22-year-old Nina Cheng, was about to start a job at Bear Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is writing a play about the experience and applying for a playwright's course at Yale.

"I'd thought I'd do banking and get into the arts when I retired -- not this early," said Cheng, known at the Brothel as The Opium Eater.

Another poetry prostitute, 27-year-old Rachel Herman-Gross, aka Simone, worried that crashing stock markets will pull the rug from under the arts scene. "It's going to be a lot harder. A lot of artists are sustained by grants from people with money."

But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the Poetry Brothel proves there are ways to survive.

"Money's always been scarce for artists and they're very resourceful people," said Edmund Voyer, 54, a hefty man described as an "evangelist" on his business card and who came to the Zipper Factory wearing a kilt.

His drinking companion, Jennifer Hoa, 27, agreed money and art would always find ways to meet.

"I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer, but I come here," she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."

The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.

"Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems," she murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation. Or say you don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm hungry.'"

↑ Index

69. Fluffy Singler

FW: language v. experimental

Tue 6 Jan 2009

I'm hopelessly behind on reading the digests, so I hope this isn't so late as to be irrelevant completely.

I disagree that it's about white noise. But I do think can be about sound and noise to a degree and also about effect. Much of what I've read on here about experimentalism in poetry is about the experiment itself but rarely about what we hope to accomplish when we experiment, what our relationship is to the reader or listener. I personally believe this comes from what I think of as a confessionalist ethos, the idea that poetry is about the self-expression of the poet, whether it's the expression of the poet's experimental inquiries or the poet's subjectivity and feelings.

For me the point of work that you might categorize as "white noise" and subverting the meaning of words is to scramble and reorganize the way we process language. My belief is that in a world in which language is constantly misused and used against us--in a world that is virtually composed of Orwellian newspeak, in which we are assaulted by the specious "logic" of advertising and political language, the insidious ways that our deepest beliefs and values are perverted, that rewiring the way we process language is vital and poetry is the one art form that is poised to do so because of the way in which language can be used to create surrealistic images, unusual sound associations, and help all of us who hear and read the work to develop our ability for creative response to the world around us. There are so many literary forms well-suited to didacticism and even to descriptive work, but few that have the freedom to experiment with and explode and reconfigure language the way poetry does.

-----Original Message-----
From: Troy Camplin [mailto:[redacted]]
Sent: Saturday, December 06, 2008 10:00 AM
Subject: Re: language v. experimental

Words mean things. All this kind of thing attempts to do is turn information into white noise.

Troy Camplin

From: lanny quarles <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Thursday, December 4, 2008 10:10:19 AM
Subject: Re: language v. experimental

While I respect the deep feeling and intellectual fervor of the spirit of such a debate, the issue is one of cultural semantics. Biologically, the probability gradient such a debate represents in terms of the physical combinatorics of essence in one versus the other, ie the quality of difference in substance, would seem to render either both equally interesting. What is interesting to me is to develope practices, which, though seeming externally to be 'experimental' or 'avant-garde' are actually post-semantic emblematicisms harking much closer to a kind of hermetic hieroglyphics as represented by a system like Gerhard Dorn's in his

ON THE MONARCHY OF
THE TERNARY IN UNITY,
VERSUS THE SINGLE COMBAT
OF THE DYAD CONFUSED IN THE MULTITUDE,

which iconistically echoes
the semiotic mantic (manic tic) of our singularly self-involved world and collective cultus.

I am of the same local phenomenon as the mimi virus.
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Mimivirus

I own a can of "Blow Off Duster" for removing tiny dust particles, of which some are probably my own sloughed off microparticles, namelessly rejoining the great flotsam of the grating work.
I don't call it the great work, because it is tiny, Horton hears a hoo tiny, but grate, because a grate is like a grille, or a gryllus, an oddly elegant little monster built willy nilly from various parts to represent the thing it thought it needed to represent at the time. Also grating can be annoying.

http://www.blowoff.com/blowoff/duster.html

Lanny Quarles
http://jellybeanweirdo.blogspot.com/
http://pnoise.blogspot.com/
http://www.phaneron.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

70. Jennifer Karmin
WEEK ONE: When Does It or You Begin?
Tue 6 Jan 2009

WHEN DOES IT OR YOU BEGIN? (MEMORY AS INNOVATION)
Festival of Writing, Performance, & Video

Curated by Amina Cain & Jennifer Karmin
at Links Hall
3435 N. Sheffield Avenue
Chicago, IL

WEEK ONE Individual Memory: A Celebration for Hannah Weiner featuring performative readings, butoh dance, & installations

FRIDAY, JANUARY 9 at 8pm
Judith Goldman with collaborators
[John Beer, Lisa Janssen, Julia Klein & Monica Westin]
Nicole LeGette
Jenny Roberts
Timothy Yu
video by Abigail Child
talkback with Laura Goldstein opening night reception with festival artists

SATURDAY, JANUARY 10 at 8pm
Lee Ann Brown with collaborators
[A D Jameson, Toni Asante Lightfoot, Sarah Merchlewitz,
Anni Rossi, Aurora Tabar, Rachel Tredon & Miranda Torn]
Roberto Harrison
Nicole LeGette
Jenny Roberts

SUNDAY, JANUARY 11 at 7pm
Lee Ann Brown with collaborators
[A D Jameson, Toni Asante Lightfoot, Sarah Merchlewitz,
Anni Rossi, Aurora Tabar, Rachel Tredon & Miranda Torn]

Judith Goldman with collaborators
[John Beer, Lisa Janssen, Julia Klein & Monica Westin]
Jenny Roberts
Timothy Yu
video by Abigail Child

TICKETS $12
$10 students, seniors, & working artists/writers

FULL SCHEDULE ONLINE
http://www.linkshall.org/09-pp-jan.shtml

WEEK ONE: BUTOH WORKSHOP
January 10 from 11am-3pm
Topography of the Subtle Senses with Nicole LeGette $35

↑ Index

71. Jim Andrews
88 Constellations for Wittgenstein by David Clark
Tue 6 Jan 2009

---

88 CONSTELLATIONS FOR WITTGENSTEIN (TO BE PLAYED WITH THE LEFT HAND) http://88constellations.net
DAVID CLARK

"Lyrical and philosophical, this sprawling feature-length interactive film for the internet contemplates the life and work of the influential Austrian philosopher Ludwig Wittgenstein through 88 interactive Flash animations, each one corresponding to a constellation from the night sky. The viewer is invited to navigate through a web of interconnecting narratives that move from association to association - bringing Wittgenstein's work into conversation with our contemporary digital culture. The work is an interactive collage. It is story of a man's life told in fragments. It is a map of coincidence and correspondences. It is a digital film. It is story-telling as browsing.

David Clark is known for his website 'A is for Apple' that has been shown at over 50 film festivals around the world including Sundance, SIGGRAPH, Transmediale in Berlin and the American Museum of the Moving Image. 'A is for Apple' won 'Best in Show' at the 2003 SXSW Interactive Festival in Austen, Texas and First Prize at FILE2002 in Sao Paulo, Brazil. He is a member of the new media collective 'computer.says.no'. He studied at the School of the Art Institute of Chicago, the Whitney Program in New York, and the Canadian Film Centre in Toronto. He currently teaches film and media arts at NSCAD University in Halifax. His personal website is www.chemicalpictures.net ."

Above text lifted from http://www.hz-journal.org/netg/g12.html

ja

↑ Index

72. Cara Benson
The NEW & IMPROVED New Deal
Tue 6 Jan 2009

---

do forgive me if this already went around...but!
There's
hey all -

do forgive me if this already went around...but!
There's a petition on to channel some funding to the arts.

http://www.ipetitions.com/petition/artsstimulus/index.html

_____

http://www.necessetics.com

http://www.necessetics.com/sousrature.html

↑ Index

73. Ruth Lepson
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Tue 6 Jan 2009

---

yes I think prostitution does-- oh, boy, or oh, girl, now I'm going to get blasted & don't have time to respond to much right now!

but I believe this because anything that objectifies human beings keeps them from being seen a fully human, and using another person's body & paying for it in a male-dominated culture is inherently wrong, I believe. There are some feminists working against this idea but others like me who will continue to object. I just saw Milk, and the sex in it was so wild & so sweet--wish hetero sex could be like that but in our culture so far it usually isn't.

How wd you like to be in a place where anyone cd come in & you wd have to have sex with that person no matter how odious & that person was coming to you to act out fantasies that cd be harmful & you had to pretend to like it & do this over & over every day?

On 1/6/09 2:34 PM, "Fluffy Singler" <[redacted]> wrote:

*I saw reference in there to men and gigolos. I have a problem with the old school "sex degrades women" feminist argument. Is a the location of a brothel and the profession of prostitution always and inherently degrading to women? I thought there were sex-positive feminists who were working against that idea.*

-----Original Message-----
From: steve russell [mailto:[redacted]]
Sent: Sunday, December 21, 2008 5:49 PM
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

this seems pretty light hearted.
I'm sorry to hear about the wicked (objects, et cetera) capitalist.
i suspect that the most die hard feminist could enjoy her/himself.

--- On Fri, 12/19/08, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]> wrote:
From: mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
Subject: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Friday, December 19, 2008, 4:15 PM

New York poetry brothel tempts with verse

Published: Friday December 19, 2008

http://rawstory.com/news/afp/New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_12192008.html

The prostitute whispers, wets her lips and prepares to bare... her heart with a
poem.

Welcome to New York's Poetry Brothel, where punters delve between the lines, not the sheets.

At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper Factory the look was bona fide bordello.

Literary ladies of the night flitted between intimate, candle-lit nooks, red lights and paintings of nudes.

Some of the poetesses for sale sported retro-style garter belts and frilly knickers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.

But transactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind, not the body, and a moment with the catalogue, replete with pictures and whimsical descriptions, reveals what's on offer.

Page four boasts The Professor, swearing to have heard "the wail of your striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."

Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets she doesn't know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 claiming she can "coax your drum."

Gigolo poets are available, not least Poetry Brothel co-founder Nicholas Adamski, who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops tempestuous, dark looks with an eye patch.

"Poetry is what I love more than anything," cooed The Madame, the sultry spirit behind the whole idea.

The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dressed for the part in low-cut dress, elbow-length black gloves and a peacock headdress.

"I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing poetry than listening to some old man sitting on a chair on a stage," she explained by the light of a guttering candle.

One-on-one encounters, for which "clients" pay three to five dollars in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free reading, took place upstairs.

The "whores" read from their own material, much of which is free verse, making for intense, sometimes baffling performances.

But for those needing a break, the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco guitarists, a fortune-teller, a blackjack table and a bar specializing in port and whisky

The young hedonists, most of them students, appear to have struck a surprisingly successful formula.

"There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets show a lot of cleavage," said The Professor, otherwise known as Jennifer Michael Hecht, aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhattan's New School.

She teaches writing to many of the Brothel's regulars and is proud of the result.

"It's kind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis. At two in the morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place reading poetry," she said.

"The custom is to read poetry alone, but we know that from Homer onward, people read it aloud and in groups."

By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed and getting fuller -- and rowdier.

The fortune teller, bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes, mumbled to someone about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The Madame, yet another glass of port in hand, introduced poet "whores" in a voice suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.

When Patricia Smith, a well-established poet, took the mike to declaim a long and rhythmical poem about love and making love, there were rock concert cheers from the crowd.

"I always shudder when I pray," Smith intoned in a mesmerizing voice, "so your name must be a prayer."

Even for these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis sweeping the country.

One of the poets, 22-year-old Nina Cheng, was about to start a job at Bear Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is writing a play about the experience and applying for a playwright's course at Yale.

"I'd thought I'd do banking and get into the arts when I retired -- not this early," said Cheng, known at the Brothel as The Opium Eater.

Another poetry prostitute, 27-year-old Rachel Herman-Gross, aka Simone, worried that crashing stock markets will pull the rug from under the arts scene. "It's going to be a lot harder. A lot of artists are sustained by grants from people with money."

But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the Poetry Brothel proves there are ways to survive.

"Money's always been scarce for artists and they're very resourceful people," said Edmund Voyer, 54, a hefty man described as an "evangelist" on his business card and who came to the Zipper Factory wearing a kilt.

His drinking companion, Jennifer Hoa, 27, agreed money and art would always find ways to meet.

> "I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer, but I come here," she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."
>
> The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.
>
> "Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems," she murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation. Or say you don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm hungry.'"

↑ Index

74. Obododimma Oha
While the He/Art Pants Live
Tue 6 Jan 2009

Obododimma Oha and Anny Ballardini are pleased to announce the new Anthology on the Poets' Corner:

While the He/art Pants: Poetic Responses to the 2008 American Elections. We wish to thank all the contributors who have made it possible, and invite you to read and spread the good news.

· While the He/art Pants:<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2664>(Poetic Responses to the 2008 American Elections) · Editorial: Obododimma Oha<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2665> · Editorial: Anny Ballardini<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2666> · Edward Mycue<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2671> · Jared Schickling<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2672> · Bill Morgan <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2673> · John M. Bennett<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2674> · Conrad Reeder<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2675> · Tom McBride <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2676> · Gerald Schwartz<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2677> · Farideh Hassanzadeh-Mostafavi<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2678> · Russ Golata

<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2679> · Evelyn Posamentier<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2680> · Gina Sangster Hayman<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2681> · Matt Johnson<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2682> · Susan Bright<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2683> · Daniel Zimmerman<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2684> · Fan Ogilvie <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2685> · Henry Gould <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2686> · Carol Novack<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2687> · Joseph Duemer<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2688> · Peter Ciccariello<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2689> · Spencer Selby<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2690> · Eugen Galasso<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2691> · Grace Cavalieri<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2692> · Amy King <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2693> *· * Halvard Johnson<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2695> · Raymond Bianchi<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2696> · Lars Palm <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2697> · George Spencer<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2698> · Bob Grumman <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2702> · Wendy Taylor Carlisle<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2703> · Br. Tom Murphy<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2704> · Annetta L. Gomez-Jefferson<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2705> · Uzor Maxim Uzoatu<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2706> · Jukka-Pekka Kervinen<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2707> · David Howard<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2708> · Obiwu <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2709> · Afam Akeh <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2720> · Jim Leftwich <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2721> · Charles Martin <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2722> · Luc Fierens <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2723> · Eileen Tabios <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2730>

· Donna Pecore <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2731> · Francesco Levato <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2739> · Tony Trigilio <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2740> · Terri Moore <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2741> · Barbara Crooker <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2742> · Vincent Francone <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2743> · David-Baptiste Chirot <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2755> · Julene Tripp Weaver <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2756> *· * Daniela Gioseffi<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2791> · Obododimma Oha<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2827> · Judith Laura<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2829>

· While the He/art Pants:<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2664>(Poetic Responses to the 2008 American Elections)

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2664

· Editorial: Obododimma Oha<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2665>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2665

· Editorial: Anny Ballardini<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2666>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2666

· Edward Mycue<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2671>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2671

· Jared Schickling<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2672>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2672

· Bill Morgan <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2673>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2673

· John M. Bennett<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2674>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2674

· Conrad Reeder<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2675>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2675

· Tom McBride <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2676>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2676

· Gerald Schwartz<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2677>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2677

· Farideh Hassanzadeh-Mostafavi<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2678>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2678

· Russ Golata <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2679>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2679

· Evelyn Posamentier<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2680>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2680

· Gina Sangster Hayman<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2681>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2681

· Matt Johnson<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2682>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2682

· Susan Bright<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2683>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2683

· Daniel Zimmerman<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2684>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2684

· Fan Ogilvie <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2685>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2685

· Henry Gould <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2686>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2686

· Carol Novack<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2687>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2687

· Joseph Duemer<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2688>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2688

· Peter Ciccariello<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2689>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2689

· Spencer Selby<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2690>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2690

· Eugen Galasso<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2691>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2691

· Grace Cavalieri<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2692>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2692

· Amy King <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2693>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2693

· Halvard Johnson<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2695>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2695

· Raymond Bianchi<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2696>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2696

· Lars Palm <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2697>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2697

. George Spencer<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2698>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2698

. Bob Grumman <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2702>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2702

. Wendy Taylor Carlisle<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2703>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2703

. Br. Tom Murphy<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2704>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2704

. Annetta L. Gomez-Jefferson<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2705>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2705

. Uzor Maxim Uzoatu<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2706>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2706

. Jukka-Pekka Kervinen<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2707>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2707

. David Howard<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2708>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2708

. Obiwu <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2709>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2709

. Afam Akeh <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2720>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2720

. Jim Leftwich<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2721>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2721

· Charles Martin<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2722>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2722

· Luc Fierens <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2723>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2723

· Eileen Tabios<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2730>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2730

· Donna Pecore<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2731>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2731

· Francesco Levato<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2739>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2739

· Tony Trigilio<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2740>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2740

· Terri Moore <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2741>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2741

· Barbara Crooker<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2742>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2742

· Vincent Francone<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2743>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2743

· David-Baptiste Chirot<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2755>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2755

· Julene Tripp Weaver<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2756>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2756

· Daniela Gioseffi<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2791>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2791

· Obododimma Oha<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2827>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2827

· Judith Laura<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2829>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2829

--
Obododimma Oha
Senior Lecturer in Stylistics & Semiotics
Dept. of English
University of Ibadan
Nigeria

&

Fellow, Centre for Peace & Conflict Studies
University of Ibadan

Phone: [redacted];
[redacted].

↑ Index

75. Ruth Lepson

Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

Tue 6 Jan 2009

I guess I must be 200 years old--does nobody else agree that it's common sense that prostitution is essentially different from other kinds of 'work'?

On 12/23/08 10:00 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Why is the capitalist exploitation of women at a brothel worse than, say, the capitalist exploitation of women at a Zipper Factory? It's just a different kind of labor, no? Given that some artists are seemingly comfortable with capitalism, why should they not acknowledge it in the name of their ventures?
>
> I understand, of course, that brothels have a particular history with a particular kind of violence attached to it, but so do factories. Do you direct the same righteous anger at Andy Warhol?

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
Sent: Monday, December 22, 2008 5:01 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

brothels about as funny as slavery.
which British feminist?

On 12/21/08 1:44 PM, "steve russell" <[redacted]> wrote:

somewhat related: William Styron, the way he waxes his libido in "Sophie's Choice."
i'm still looking for the book of essays by the British Feminist who enlightened me.

--- On Sat, 12/20/08, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Saturday, December 20, 2008, 6:51 PM

cooptation of poetry by capitalist objectification of women. not funny. to use a brothel as a metaphor is disgusting. I remember when Denise Levertov criticized a poet for using napalm as a metaphor for personal pain, saying you don't know what it feels like & it's much worse than the way you are characterizing it.

On 12/19/08 4:15 PM, "mIEKAL aND" <[redacted]> wrote:

New York poetry brothel tempts with verse

Published: Friday December 19, 2008

http://rawstory.com/news/afp/New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_12192008.html

The prostitute whispers, wets her lips and prepares to bare... her heart with a poem.

Welcome to New York's Poetry Brothel, where punters delve between the lines, not the sheets.

At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper Factory the look was bona fide bordello.

Literary ladies of the night flitted between intimate, candle-lit nooks, red lights and paintings of nudes.

Some of the poetesses for sale sported retro-style garter belts and frilly knickers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.

But transactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind, not the body, and a moment with the catalogue, replete with pictures and whimsical descriptions, reveals what's on offer.

Page four boasts The Professor, swearing to have heard "the wail of your striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."

Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets she doesn't know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 claiming she can "coax your drum."

Gigolo poets are available, not least Poetry Brothel co-founder Nicholas Adamski, who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops tempestuous, dark looks with an eye patch.

"Poetry is what I love more than anything," cooed The Madame, the sultry spirit behind the whole idea.

The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dressed for the part in low-cut dress, elbow-length black gloves and a peacock headdress.

"I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing poetry than listening to some old man sitting on a chair on a stage," she explained by the light of a guttering candle.

One-on-one encounters, for which "clients" pay three to five dollars in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free reading, took place upstairs.

The "whores" read from their own material, much of which is free verse, making for intense, sometimes baffling performances.

But for those needing a break, the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco guitarists, a fortune-teller, a blackjack table and a bar specializing in port and whisky

The young hedonists, most of them students, appear to have struck a surprisingly successful formula.

"There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets show a lot of cleavage," said The Professor, otherwise known as Jennifer Michael Hecht, aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhattan's New School.

She teaches writing to many of the Brothel's regulars and is proud of the result.

"It's kind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis. At two in the morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place reading poetry," she said.

"The custom is to read poetry alone, but we know that from Homer onward, people read it aloud and in groups."

By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed and getting fuller -- and rowdier.

The fortune teller, bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes, mumbled to someone about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The Madame, yet another glass of port in hand, introduced poet "whores" in a voice suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.

When Patricia Smith, a well-established poet, took the mike to declaim a long and rhythmical poem about love and making love, there were rock concert cheers from the crowd.

"I always shudder when I pray," Smith intoned in a mesmerizing voice, "so your name must be a prayer."

Even for these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis sweeping the country.

One of the poets, 22-year-old Nina Cheng, was about to start a job at Bear Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is writing a play about the experience and applying for a playwright's course at Yale.

"I'd thought I'd do banking and get into the arts when I retired -- not this early," said Cheng, known at the Brothel as The Opium Eater.

Another poetry prostitute, 27-year-old Rachel Herman-Gross, aka Simone, worried that crashing stock markets will pull the rug from under the arts scene. "It's going to be a lot harder. A lot of artists are sustained by grants from people with money."

But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the Poetry Brothel proves there are ways to survive.

"Money's always been scarce for artists and they're very resourceful people," said Edmund Voyer, 54, a hefty man described as an "evangelist" on his business card and who came to the Zipper Factory wearing a kilt.

His drinking companion, Jennifer Hoa, 27, agreed money and art would always find ways to meet.

"I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer, but I come here," she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."

The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.

"Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems," she murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation. Or say you don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm hungry.'"

guidelines &

↑ Index

76. Gwyn McVay
Re: hockey violence (was poetry brothel)
Tue 6 Jan 2009

On Mon, Jan 5, 2009 at 5:56 PM, Daniel Zimmerman <[redacted]>wrote:

> Gwyn,
>
> (&c.).
>
> Could we talk about poetry now?
>
> ~ Dan Zimmerman
>
>
Oh snap. I got told.
Convincing reductio ad absurdum is convincing, as always. Sleet glazes all, triumphantly.

Gwyn

↑ Index

77. Ruth Lepson
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Tue 6 Jan 2009

---

yes & almost all prostitutes--something like 90%--in the US--have been sexually abused as children, & it's the only way they know to get 'love.'

On 12/31/08 2:57 PM, "amy king" <[redacted]> wrote:

> *How very kind of you to acknowledge there "might be a case." However, how common too to respond to the notion that prostitution is harmful to women on so many levels and to avoid the notion that this harm is namely done by men by equating some thin comparison with the "harm" done to men.*
>
> In other words, the only real commonality with your comparison between football and prostitution is that men also get hurt, mostly physically, and this fact is what you use to deflect any attention that should be turned on just how pervasive and strictly gendered the harm done by prostitution is. Kind of like when women say prostitution is harmful, we're told, 'Well women choose to be prostitutes!' as though that answer also renders invisible exactly who is controlling the strings to make prostitution happen -- because they want that 'service' -- and to avoid the myriad ways men get to abuse the system they create, uphold and support.

You better believe if women were the ones paying massive amounts of money and demanding more gore on the football field, even committing violence against the players when the impulse struck, there would be a national outcry of the rape of these players...

The comparison is something of another strawman meant to detract from actually examining just who really is committing the violence against women and how that violence is monetarily fueled by money men earn and spend and how that violence is not regulated and rarely punished.

By the way, I've only almost been to the Poetry Brothel and see no harm in the name as it's clearly a play on brothels that men and women participate in / simulate in weird ways, is even something of a debunking of the purpose of brothel. Never been invited to read and would likely find behaving as the poet-prostitute awkward at best as I'm no good at such simulations. Poor acting skills on my part, I guess.

Be well,

Amy

Recent work
http://www.writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/King.html

Amy's Alias
http://amyking.org/

--- On Tue, 12/30/08, John Cunningham <[redacted]> wrote:

From: John Cunningham <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Tuesday, December 30, 2008, 9:24 AM
I suppose one could say you have a case. However, do blacks from the ghetto really have a choice? Are athletes fully aware? I just saw a show on The Fifth Estate examining brain injury in pro-football athletes. Do pro-athletes really want to play hurt - including playing with concussions - or is it the owners of the teams that insist on it or else the athlete loses

his position.
John Herbert Cunningham

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB)
[mailto:[redacted]] On
Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
Sent: December 29, 2008 2:39 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

thank you, gwyn! (but prostitution affects many more females than males.
still, yes, it does affect both & is odious everywhere.)
besides, even if prostitutes were not forced or sold or beaten or young or broke or threatened every day or exposed to every kind of degradation
instead of being admired as football players are, imagine selling your body
for long-term effects on human being.

On 12/27/08 11:05 AM, "Gwyn McVay"
<[redacted]> wrote:

On Thu, Dec 25, 2008 at 11:25 AM, John Cunningham
<[redacted]
wrote:

For those of you who are speaking out against the
body being used
in commerce, why are you not speaking out against football or hockey
where male bodies are being used in commerce? When you consider the damage that
is done to the male body during that contact sport
and the lingering effects
of
it in terms of permanent injury and disability
such as arthritis and
other

> diseases, isn't this just as bad? Or is it > that one affects women whereas
> the other affects men?
>
> Omigod, you're so right. I hurt in my anterior > cruciate ligaments for all
> of
> those men FORCED or DECEIVED into collegiate and
> professional sports every > year; BEATEN if they try to leave; often denied any > other employment
> options
> in the case of being transgendered; not allowed to > keep a PENNY of their
> earnings... oh wait.
>
> Gwyn "Also, This Is a False Binary, Because
> Prostitution Affects All
> Genders, And Not Just Adults" McVay
>
> all posts. Check
> guidelines &
>
> posts. Check guidelines
> Internal Virus Database is out of date.
> Checked by AVG - http://www.avg.com
> Version: 8.0.134 / Virus Database: 270.4.5/1533 - Release
> Date: 03/07/2008
> 7:19 PM

↑ Index

78. Mark Weiss

Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

Tue 6 Jan 2009

I think we need to make a distinction between prostitution and the fantasy of prostitution. Most prostitution is compelled or a response to desperation. Most fantasy prostitution, playing dress-up and the like, isn't.

At 02:34 PM 1/6/2009, you wrote:
>I saw reference in there to men and gigolos. I have a problem with the old >school "sex degrades women" feminist argument. Is a the location of a >brothel and the profession of prostitution always and inherently degrading >to women? I thought there were sex-positive feminists who were working >against that idea.

>
>-----Original Message-----
>From: steve russell [mailto:[redacted]]
>Sent: Sunday, December 21, 2008 5:49 PM
>Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>
>this seems pretty light hearted.
>I'm sorry to hear about the wicked (objects, et cetera) capitalist.
>i suspect that the most die hard feminist could enjoy her/himself.
>
>--- On Fri, 12/19/08, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]> wrote:
>From: mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
>Subject: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>To: [redacted]
>Date: Friday, December 19, 2008, 4:15 PM
>
>New York poetry brothel tempts with verse
>
>Published: Friday December 19, 2008
>
>http://rawstory.com/news/afp/New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_12192008.ht >ml
>
>The prostitute whispers, wets her lips and prepares to bare... her heart
>with a
>poem.
>
>Welcome to New York's Poetry Brothel, where punters delve between the >lines, not the sheets.
>
>At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper Factory the >look was bona fide bordello.
>
>Literary ladies of the night flitted between intimate, candle-lit nooks, red >lights and paintings of nudes.
>
>Some of the poetesses for sale sported retro-style garter belts and frilly >knickers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.

>
>But transactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind, not the body, and a >moment with the catalogue, replete with pictures and whimsical descriptions, >reveals what's on offer.
>
>Page four boasts The Professor, swearing to have heard "the wail of your >striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."
>
>Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets she doesn't >know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 claiming she >can "coax your drum."
>
>Gigolo poets are available, not least Poetry Brothel co-founder Nicholas >Adamski, who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops tempestuous, dark >looks
>with an eye patch.
>
>"Poetry is what I love more than anything," cooed The Madame, the >sultry spirit behind the whole idea.
>
>The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dressed for the part in >low-cut dress, elbow-length black gloves and a peacock headdress.
>
>"I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing poetry than listening to some >old man sitting on a chair on a stage," she explained by the light of a >guttering candle.
>
>One-on-one encounters, for which "clients" pay three to five dollars >in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free reading, took place >upstairs.
>
>The "whores" read from their own material, much of which is free
>verse, making for intense, sometimes baffling performances.
>
>But for those needing a break, the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco
>guitarists,
>a fortune-teller, a blackjack table and a bar specializing in port and >whisky
>
>The young hedonists, most of them students, appear to have struck a >surprisingly successful formula.

>
>"There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets show a lot of >cleavage," said The Professor, otherwise known as Jennifer Michael Hecht, >aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhattan's New School.
>
>She teaches writing to many of the Brothel's regulars and is proud of the >result.
>
>"It's kind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis. At two in >the morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place reading >poetry," she said.
>
>"The custom is to read poetry alone, but we know that from Homer onward, >people read it aloud and in groups."
>
>By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed and getting fuller -- and rowdier.
>
>The fortune teller, bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes, mumbled to >someone >about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The Madame, yet >another glass of port in hand, introduced poet "whores" in a voice >suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.
>
>When Patricia Smith, a well-established poet, took the mike to declaim a >long >and rhythmical poem about love and making love, there were rock concert
>cheers
>from the crowd.
>
>"I always shudder when I pray," Smith intoned in a mesmerizing voice,
>"so your name must be a prayer."
>
>Even for these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis sweeping >the country.
>
>One of the poets, 22-year-old Nina Cheng, was about to start a job at Bear >Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is writing a play about
>the >experience and applying for a playwright's course at Yale.
>
>"I'd thought I'd do banking and get into the arts when I retired
>-- not this early," said Cheng, known at the Brothel as The Opium Eater.

>
>Another poetry prostitute, 27-year-old Rachel Herman-Gross, aka Simone, >worried
>that crashing stock markets will pull the rug from under the arts scene.
>"It's going to be a lot harder. A lot of artists are sustained by >grants from people with money."
>
>But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the Poetry
>Brothel proves there are ways to survive.
>
>"Money's always been scarce for artists and they're very >resourceful people," said Edmund Voyer, 54, a hefty man described as an >"evangelist" on his business card and who came to the Zipper Factory >wearing a kilt.
>
>His drinking companion, Jennifer Hoa, 27, agreed money and art would always >find ways to meet.
>
>"I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer, but I come >here," she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."
>
>The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.
>
>"Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems," she >murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation. Or say you >don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm hungry.'"
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

↑ Index

79. George Bowering

Re: hockey violence (was poetry brothel)

Wed 7 Jan 2009

> some of the least thuggish athletes I've met > were people I got to know while working at the DC headquarters

They aren't all that thuggish at Marvel, either.

George Harvey Bowering
Fond of many dead people.

↑ Index

80. Alan Sondheim
uke juke
Wed 7 Jan 2009

---

uke juke

http://www.alansondheim.org/uke0.mp3
http://www.alansondheim.org/uke1.mp3
http://www.alansondheim.org/uke2.mp3
http://www.alansondheim.org/uke3.mp3
http://www.alansondheim.org/uke4.mp3

ukelele tunes, the first recorded with laptop microphone, the others with zoom.

↑ Index

81. Troy Camplin
Re: language v. experimental
Wed 7 Jan 2009

I was responding to the specific posting which is, itself, a lot of white noise. But it sounds like you and I are really not all that far off as to what it is that poetry is and can do. Whether "experimental" or not, one of the primary roles of all the arts is to act as a blaze on the edge of the known and the unknown, breaking new paths. It can sometimes do this, as you suggest, by going back to original meanings -- poetry can and should release us from the stranglehold of political correctness, whether that PC comes from the Left, the Right, or anyone else. It's not so much an issue of "subverting" the meaning of words as opening words up to new (or interesting old) meanings. Poetry is thus expansive. It seems to me that all too often subversion for the sake of subversion is as restrictive as what is being subverted.

In the end, poetry has to communicate something for it to have any effectiveness at all. To pick up on my metaphor of blazing a trail, if a poem deals only with what is known, is in known territory, it's really not needed. You don't need a blaze in home territory. But if you are outside of known territory, you are lost. I think too much so-called experimental poetry is outside of known territory. A blaze, to be effective, is right on the edge of the known and the unknown. It creates a new space where once can investigate and claim as home territory without being lost. All great poetry is a blaze.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: Fluffy Singler <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, January 6, 2009 1:34:59 PM
Subject: FW: language v. experimental

I'm hopelessly behind on reading the digests, so I hope this isn't so late as to be irrelevant completely.

I disagree that it's about white noise. But I do think can be about sound and noise to a degree and also about effect. Much of what I've read on here about experimentalism in poetry is about the experiment itself but rarely about what we hope to accomplish when we experiment, what our relationship is to the reader or listener. I personally believe this comes from what I think of as a confessionalist ethos, the idea that poetry is about the self-expression of the poet, whether it's the expression of the poet's experimental inquiries or the poet's subjectivity and feelings.

For me the point of work that you might categorize as "white noise" and subverting the meaning of words is to scramble and reorganize the way we process language. My belief is that in a world in which language is constantly misused and used against us--in a world that is virtually composed of Orwellian newspeak, in which we are assaulted by the specious "logic" of advertising and political language, the insidious ways that our deepest beliefs and values are perverted, that rewiring the way we process language is vital and poetry is the one art form that is poised to do so because of the way in which language can be used to create surrealistic images, unusual sound associations, and help all of us who hear and read the work to develop our ability for creative response to the world around us. There are so many literary forms well-suited to didacticism and even to descriptive work, but few that have the freedom to experiment with and explode and reconfigure language the way poetry does.

-----Original Message-----
From: Troy Camplin [mailto:[redacted]]
Sent: Saturday, December 06, 2008 10:00 AM
Subject: Re: language v. experimental

Words mean things. All this kind of thing attempts to do is turn information into white noise.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: lanny quarles <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]

Sent: Thursday, December 4, 2008 10:10:19 AM
Subject: Re: language v. experimental

While I respect the deep feeling and intellectual fervor of the spirit of such a debate, the issue is one of cultural semantics. Biologically, the probability gradient such a debate represents in terms of the physical combinatorics of essence in one versus the other,
ie the quality of difference in substance, would seem to render either both equally interesting. What is interesting to me is to develope practices, which, though seeming externally to be 'experimental' or 'avant-garde' are actually post-semantic emblematicisms
harking much closer to a kind of hermetic hieroglyphics as represented by a system like Gerhard Dorn's in his

ON THE MONARCHY OF
THE TERNARY IN UNITY,
VERSUS THE SINGLE COMBAT
OF THE DYAD CONFUSED IN THE MULTITUDE,

which iconistically echoes
the semiotic mantic (manic tic) of our singularly self-involved world and collective cultus.

I am of the same local phenomenon as the mimi virus.
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Mimivirus

I own a can of "Blow Off Duster" for removing tiny dust particles, of which some are probably my own sloughed off microparticles, namelessly rejoining the great flotsam of the grating work.
I don't call it the great work, because it is tiny, Horton hears a hoo tiny, but grate, because a grate is like a grille, or a gryllus, an oddly elegant little monster built willy nilly from various parts to represent the thing it thought it needed to represent at the time. Also grating can be annoying.

http://www.blowoff.com/blowoff/duster.html

Lanny Quarles
http://jellybeanweirdo.blogspot.com/
http://pnoise.blogspot.com/
http://www.phaneron.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

82. Doug Holder

I Will Always Remember It Well: The Chelsea Hotel

Wed 7 Jan 2009

I Will Always Remember It Well: The Chelsea Hotel

I Will Always Remember It Well: The Chelsea Hotel

I have always heard and read about the Chelsea Hotel, in the Chelsea Section of New York City. Recently I visited, and resided for a short stay in this literary landmark. Of course I remember Leonard Cohen's lament of a song "I Remember You Well At The Chelsea Hotel," and Dylan Thomas' daughter talked to me about her father's last days at the Chelsea, (during the time he drank himself to death), in an interview I conducted with her. The composer Virgil Thompson was a long-term resident; Sid Vicious and Nancy were holed up in a room there, as well as the novelist Thomas Wolfe of "You Can't Go Home Again" fame. I am told he wrote for days on end standing up, rather than sitting at a desk. Arthur C. Clarke wrote "2001: A Space Odyssey" while staying at the Hotel. The playwright Arthur Miller spent part of his honeymoon with Marilyn Monroe at the Chelsea; Bob Dylan stayed there and composed several songs (there was a failed attempt to renovate his room recently). A friend of mine Philip Segal, a professor of English in NYC, told me over dinner during my stay at that the Hotel, that he attended several parties at the Chelsea. The rooms were so small and cramped that the parties spilled out into the generous halls that were and still are peppered with artwork of all stripes. He told me that the space in the hallways is so spacious that a ballet company practiced there regularly.

The Chelsea has a reputation of being a literary and artistic flophouse of sorts. A place where the famous, not so famous, the shut-in, the dreamer and the drifter coexisted. And since I was making a trek to New York to meet with some fellow poets, I decided to book a room for a few nights.

The Chelsea, a twelve story builiding with brick and wrought iron balcony balustrades, was the first building in NYC to be listed as a cultural preservation site and historic building of note. It opened in 1884 as one of the first private apartment cooperatives. Since 1946, the motel had been managed by the Bard family, and since 1955 Stanley Bard ran the joint, until he was ousted by a management company in 2007. Bard was a much loved manager, presiding benevolently over the residents and the guests who lived there. Bard seemed to understand the concept of the starving artist, allowing some to pay rent by paintings, etc… However the new management is much more bottom line, and since Bard left there has been controversy, as residents have mounted a campaign of banners, pranks, and protests toward getting Bard back. Ed Hamilton a resident and author of "Legends of the Chelsea Hotel…" told me that "Unfortunately, the hotel is no longer accepting permanent residents and that is a shame. The permanent tenants are as important to the hotel as the tourists."

Upon arriving at the Chelsea my wife and I noticed a guitar store adjacent to the hotel was having a "Bernie Madoff Clearance Sale." Now the lobby ain't your typical Holiday Inn affair. When we entered we saw a man staring intensely at us, looking for all the world like the resurrection of Samuel Beckett. He was sitting under a suspended paper mache scultpure of a fat lady on a swing. The lobby was full of artworks, murals, etc… There was a painting of an elongated, long-faced Fido, aptly named "Chelsea Dog" that captured my attention. The front desk looked like a prop from Eugene O'Neill's play "Hughie." I saw that play some years ago. It starred the actor Jason Robards, who played a down-at-the-heels snake oil salesman, living out his failed life, in a failed, gone-to seed hotel.

We took a squeaking elevator to our room on the third floor. A balding, distracted gentleman asked my wife if she knew where "The Shining" painting was (based on the Stephen King movie). We didn't now but we ran across it later. The floor we stayed on, and in fact all the floors, are full of artwork, many from of the residents. Even the fire extinguishers were adorned with stickers and graffiti, that made them look like sites of art installation…I guess they are. There is an eclectic selection of paintings on the walls in the gothic halls, including prints of Roy Cohn (of all people), Eisenhower, Jimi Hendricks, Hunter Thompson, a beguiling "Horse On Oil Canvas" by Joe Andoe, a photo montage of Andy Warhol and Muhammad Ali, and a huge mural that depicts residents in dialogue: "Myra Resnick in 308 says the Chelsea rocks!" On the top floor you experience ethereal sky light, and series of suspended mobiles, wafting images on the ceilings.

Forty percent of the rooms are saved for residents, and there is a definite sense of community in the place. Ed Hamilton wrote that the Chelsea is the "Last Outpost of Bohemia." I advise you to visit and make haste/ the way things are going /there is no time to waste!

↑ Index

83. Alexander Jorgensen
Re: Visual Poetry online - Thrill!
Wed 7 Jan 2009

http://www.necessetics.com/alexander.html

A new piece of work appearing at Sous Rature. Must say that I much admire Cara Benson's hard work and vision. This issue, only its second, is packed with wonderful work.

Regards,
Alex
---

http://www.blackrobertjournal.blogspot.com

--- On Tue, 1/6/09, Gary Sullivan <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Gary Sullivan <[redacted]>
Subject: Mitch Highfill and Katy Lederer
To: [redacted]
Date: Tuesday, January 6, 2009, 4:13 PM

Mitch Highfill & Katy Lederer
Wednesday, Jan 7, Poetry Project
2nd Ave & 10th St, NYC, 8:00 pm

Mitch Highfill is the author of 7 books of poetry, including Moth Light (Abraham Lincoln) and REBIS (Open Mouth). His work has appeared in OCHO & Critiphoria.

Katy Lederer is the author of the poetry collections, Winter Sex (Verse Press, 2002) and The Heaven-Sent Leaf (BOA Editions, 2008) as well as the memoir Poker Face: A Girlhood Among Gamblers (Crown, 2003).

Mitch will be reading the serial poem, Moth Light, accompanied by Natalia Paruz on musical saw.

Here is some info on Natalia:

NATALIA PARUZ, affectionately known as the ‘Saw Lady‘, has spent over a decade bringing the rare art form of playing music on a carpenter’s saw to audiences around the world. She performed with the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra conducted by Zubin Mehta, with the Westchester Philharmonic Orchestra, the Royal Air Moroccan Symphony Orchestra and at Lincoln Center’s Avery Fisher Hall with PDQ Bach composer Peter Schickele and with the Little Orchestra Society. November 2007 marked her Carnegie Hall debut as a musical saw soloist and June 2008 marked her Madison Square Garden debut. Television appearances include FOX (Good Day New York), ABC (Good Morning America), MTV (Andy Milonakis Show), VH1 (Behind the Music), History Channel (Tool Box), PBS (NY Voices), MSG (NYC Soundtracks).

Film appearances include 'Dummy' with Adrian Brody. Natalia's saw can be heard on the soundtracks of films such as El Carnaval Sodoma/Arthuro Ripstein and American Carny. Radio performances include NPR (A Prairie Home Companion), XM Satelite Radio & WBAI. Natalia received citations of honor from the New York City Council, the New York State Senate and a medal of honor from Paris, France.

_____ It's the same Hotmail®. If by "same" you mean up to 70% faster.
http://windowslive.com/online/hotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_hotmail_acq_broad1_122008

↑ Index

84. Steve Glines
Wilderness House Literary Review
Wed 7 Jan 2009

We are pleased to announce that our winter issue is available for viewing:
http://www.whlreview.com

Cheers
Steve Glines

↑ Index

85. Jamie Reid
More about Billy Little
Wed 7 Jan 2009

I thought American readers, and particularly some of Billy's old friends from SUNYAB on this listserv might appreciate a little historical context on my earlier posting about the passing of Billy Little.

Billy was an early alumnus of the SUNYAB project ,one of at least four Americans related to the literary movement associated with the New American Poetry anthology who migrated to Canada in the late 1960s and early 1970s. Robin Blaser, Stan Persky and George Stanley have each made remarkable contributions to the life of the poetry community in Vancouver, and so has Billy Little. Billy was raised in New York and served his apprenticeship in poetry at the Poetry Project in New York City. He then shuffled off to Buffalo where he was one of the early students in the SUNYAB program, where he met Robert Creeley, Jack Clarke, Ed Dorn, Leslie Fiedler and other luminaries, including an entire contingent of Canadian poets who had travelled to Buffalo to learn especially from Olson and Creeley.

Billy came to Vancouver as a second generation partisan of the New American Poetry, as many others had done before him, including those who attended and presided over the Vancouver Poetry Conference of 1963, including Charles Olson, Robert Creeley, Robert Duncan, Allan Ginsberg, Philip Whalen and others. On his arrival in Vancouver in 1972, Billy fell in immediately with the local contingent of poets and began a residence that lasted for more than 30 years, in which he became a familiar and welcome figure in literary gatherings in the city.

He performed remarkable deeds for the poetry community of Vancouver, for which not only the poets of the city, but the citizens themselves should be grateful. In his profession as a second-hand book seller, and as a genuine and non-sectarian expert in North American poetry in general, along with his partners in the book trade, he made available to Vancouverites a range of poetry publications and knowledge which might otherwise have been inaccessible. At Octopus Books and later at R2B2 Books, he was a co- organizer of one of the longest lasting poetry reading series in the city, providing a forum for “outside” poets throughout North America, and also a gathering-ground for the local poetry contingent. When he worked at the Special Collections Library at Simon Fraser University (incidentally, one of the most complete collections related to the poets associated with the New American Poetry), he undertook the task of cataloguing the extensive ouevre of the revered Canadian poet, bpNichol available at SCL, a genuine service to posterity.

He was an indefatigable publisher of samizdat style literature, consistent with his belief that poetry should be a kind of action which might help to make a better world. In this role, he was an ardent publicist and promoter of our local poets. All this apart from his wonderful store of poetry lore and knowledge, second to none in the city, which made his influence on the local scene truly incalculable. During his final years he lived on the idyllic Hornby Island, just off the coast. The island has been one of the unknown havens of some of Canada’s finest artists, some well-known, like Jack Shadbolt and Wayne Ngan; others, like Jerry Pethick and Gordon Payne, barely discovered, or waiting to be discovered. Billy was their friend and sometimes advisor, because he knew and understood a lot.

Mostly, I guess, I just wanted to say that like other Vancouver poets, I’m grateful for the presence of Billy in our city as a representative of what is best in the American character and culture, from which we have all learned and taken heart. For his remaining friends at Buffalo, and for others who might be interested, I’d like to post this brief memoir poem about Ed Dorn composed by Billy, because it seems to me to provide a wise and welcome reminder of our real place in the world.

The attachment contains a video documenting the launch of Billy’s sole conventional publication, a collection of poems entitled St. Ink. The book was the result of a coming together of some of Billy's many friends so as to be able to present him with the kind of tribute we felt that he deserved. It contains his own sharp disclaimer of the book publishing process as a means of making poetry usefully available, and his preference for the self-publishing samizdat style of immediate publication. Here’s the poem about Ed Dorn. :

stuck his neck out
(for joe and charlie)

i love this photo of ed dorn
a ghost before he died
his neck so thin his tie seemed just his neck continuing outside his shirt
as if he were neck
clear to his belly button

what i mean is thousands should have filled streets
the day of his funeral
if we were truly greeks
real democrats

smashing limousine windows
in his honour, banks in flames
he should have been taken by train
back to idaho
by way of gloucester
and kent state and lawrence and san francisco
and the skagit valley

ed dorn is the poet chaplin always hoped to be the poet john adams cried out for the poet with the six foot ear

the last time i saw ed
over salmon and corn
in bob and mary's backyard
ed caught me assuming all the world knew and thought highly of Charles Olson and William Carlos Williams
"billy," he said,
"who even heard of these people?"

↑ Index

86. Cara Benson

URGENT - poets needed for PEN Prison Writing Contest

Wed 7 Jan 2009

(this top line i'm writing right here is a throwaway line because i still don't know how to manage a submission to listserv)

Here's the deal, folks.

NYC area poets needed tout de suite to help review poetry entries for this year's PEN Prison Writing Contest.

Can anybody help?

please backchannel me (I feel so cool saying that.

Thanks!

_____

http://www.necessetics.com

http://www.necessetics.com/sousrature.html

↑ Index

87. Ruth Lepson

prostitution

Wed 7 Jan 2009

---

in cambodia, india, belize, thailand, sex slaves‹the slavery of the 21st c. girls are sold sometimes from cages when they are virgins of 10 & 11. most get AIDS within months bec it is believed that sleeping with a virgin can cure a man of it. most don¹t make it into their 20s. they are tortured, electric shock is used on them to keep them there. they have no hope. they are subjected to violence daily by the men who have sex with them. they live in terror. why? bec of the low esteem in which poor girls are held in those cultures, and for ex in india the gap btwn rich & poor & btwn genders is growing. every year in india 250,000 to 300,000 girls are forced into prostitution. prostitution is based upon the lack of value given to these lives.

↑ Index

88. Geoffrey Gatza
Praise on the feneon collective
Wed 7 Jan 2009

Newly at http://faitsdiversdelapoesie.blogspot.com/

Comments by poets and scholars Philip Metres, Luc Sante, Jerome Rothenberg, Don Share, Joshua Clover, Tom Raworth, and John Latta.

More to come.

thank you for reading,

--the feneon collective

↑ Index

89. Catherine Daly
Re: Issue 1/Verzion 2
Wed 7 Jan 2009

---

can we just -- you know -- write something?

--
All best,
Catherine Daly
[redacted]

↑ Index

90. Martha Cinader Mims
L&BH Network Fresh Literary Content January 7, 2009
Wed 7 Jan 2009

L&BH Network Fresh Literary Content January 7, 2009

L&BH Bulletin Board

sonomaarts on "Call for Contributors to SonomaArts.com" sonomaarts
Dec 31, '08, 01:01 PM
Call for Contributors!

The new SonomaArts.com is in need of regular and guest contributors for new and engaging content. This community arts portal is envisioned as the one-stop destination for arts information pertaining to Sonoma County and beyond. Toward this end, the site managers seek proposals for regular editorial columns (articles of 500-1,500 words) and blogs/vlogs/podcasts focused on specific areas of interest within the general categories of Visual Arts, Theater, Dance, Music, Film and Digital Arts, Literary Arts, Arts Education, and the Non-Profit Arts Sector. Columns and blogs/vlogs/podcasts may be informational, critical, or op-ed in nature, with emphasis on trends, exhibitions/events, interviews, etc. Writers, therefore, should be â€œexpertsâ€ in their field, with sufficient practical, educational, and/or professional experience to ground and contextualize the content they present. That said, the mission of SonomaArts.com is one of broad appeal, so creativity and innovation is encouraged as you pitch your ideal column, blog, vlog, or podcast.

GUIDELINES FOR WRITTEN CONTENT

Read moreâ€¦

L&BH Network Mailing Lists
[PCOPWC] Reginald Lockett Tribute on Friday, February 27th - We Need Your Support Kim McMillon
[BANG!] Poetry Reading to honor Dr. King and President Elect Obama Martha Cinader Mims
L&BH Poetry Cafe Blog

Harvest Time michael lee johnson Today, 07:03 PM A MÃ©tis Indian lady, drunk, hands blanketed over as in prayer, over a large brown fruit basket naked of fruit, no vine, no vineyard insideâˆ’approaches the Edmonton, Alberta adoption agency. There are only spirit gods inside her empty purse. Inside, an infant, refrained from life, with a fruity wine sap apple wedged like a teaspoon of autumn sun inside its mouth. A shallow pool of tears starts to mount in [...] Read moreâ€¦

NO HOLDS BARD 2009 RESOLUTIONS
dr. charles frederickson
Today, 02:18 PM
20/20 VISION XVIII. Monitor lizards passing as rocks Basking sunbathers carnivorous night prowlers Insects eels crabs birds rodents Scavenger hunt smorgasbord swallowed whole Hissing sinuous spiny tailed undulations Venomous forked tongue lashing out Toothy jaws ripping apart prey Resilient nature licks her wounds Dr. Charles Frederickson (www.poeartry-combo.com) & Saknarin Chinayote (www.poeartrygallery.th.gs) Co-editors of AvantGardeTimes.com Read moreâ€¦

O HUMANS ! Dr. T. Ashok Chakravarthy Yesterday, 05:50 PM O Humans ! Let us impart A thought of peace O Humans ! Let us not inject The venom of hatred. Humans are we Humans are we. O Humans ! Let us balm The wounded hearts O Humans ! Let us not incite The notion of revenge. Humans are we Humans are we. O Humans ! Let us project The positive attitude O Humans ! Let us not ignore The poor and hungry. Humans are we Humans are [...] Read moreâ€¦

Gingerbread Lady michael lee johnson Monday, 05:22 PM Gingerbread lady, no sugar or cinnamon spice; years ago arthritis and senility took their toll. Crippled mind moves in then out, like an old sexual adventure blurred in an imagination of fingertip thoughts. Who in hell remembers the characters? There was George, her lover, near the bridge at the Chicago River: she missed his funeral; her friends were there. She always made feather-light [...] Read moreâ€¦

NO HOLDS BARD 2009 RESOLUTIONS
dr. charles frederickson
Monday, 02:54 PM
20/20 VISION I. Springing forth unclenched fist release Burst pods fleshy pulp overspill Nascent buds prematurely forced open Late bloomer rapeseed on hold Nipped thorny pink tea roses Bottled eau de cologne enticing suitors Porcelain petals that never wilt Pipe cleaner stems bent straight Dr. Charles Frederickson (www.poeartry-combo.com) & Saknarin Chinayote (www.poeartrygallery.th.gs) Co-editors of AvantGardeTimes.com Adapted Thai poEtpourri structural scheme 4-line 20-word [...] Read moreâ€¦

Martha Cinader Mims
Listen & Be Heard Network
[redacted]
http://www.listenandbeheard.net

Get Skype and call me for free.

↑ Index

91. Séamas Cain

Concrete Poetry of Niikuni Seiichi

Wed 7 Jan 2009

The National Museum of Art at Osaka, Japan, is presenting an exhibit of "the Concrete Poetry of Niikuni Seiichi : Between Poetry and Art" through Sunday, March 22, 2009. http://www.nmao.go.jp/english/home.html

For a biography of Niikuni Seiichi, go to
http://www.nmao.go.jp/english/niikuni/index.html

For three examples of poems by Niikuni Seiichi, go to http://www.nmao.go.jp/english/niikuni/works/index.html

Best regards,

Séamas Cain
http://alazanto.org/seamascain
http://seamascain.writernetwork.com
http://www.mnartists.org/Seamas_Cain

_____

↑ Index

92. Alexander Jorgensen
"The Concrete Poetry of Niikuni Seiichi : Between Poetry and Art"
Wed 7 Jan 2009

The National Museum of Art at Osaka, Japan, is presenting an exhibit of "the Concrete Poetry of Niikuni Seiichi : Between Poetry and Art" through Sunday, March 22, 2009. http://www.nmao.go.jp/english/home.html

For a biography of Niikuni Seiichi, go to
http://www.nmao.go.jp/english/niikuni/index.html

For three examples of poems by Niikuni Seiichi, go to
http://www.nmao.go.jp/english/niikuni/works/index.html

Best regards,

Séamas Cain
http://alazanto.org/seamascain
http://seamascain.writernetwork.com
http://www.mnartists.org/Seamas_Cain

↑ Index

93. Alan Sondheim
edenic and others
Wed 7 Jan 2009

edenic and others

so a picture book of one of many possibilities, nature in Second Life, presided over by Dojoji creator/inhabiter. or possibility visitor. trees pay obeisance as always. I am Dojoji.

http://www.alansondheim.org/treas1.jpg
http://www.alansondheim.org/treas2.jpg
http://www.alansondheim.org/treas3.jpg
http://www.alansondheim.org/treas4.jpg
http://www.alansondheim.org/treas5.jpg

for Rousseau and Rousseau

"if you look at the most recent series for example, which is the treas jpg series at alansondheim.org, you'll find something of the machine in the garden, edenic and repetitive sexuality and habitus (including problematic divisions such as nature/culture, real/ virtual etc.), etc. - hopefully one might think through or experience the juxtapositions."

↑ Index

94. Peter Ciccariello moral ground
Wed 7 Jan 2009

---

moral ground <http://ciccariello.viewbook.com/moral#/1/>

- Peter Ciccariello
http://invisiblenotes.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

95. George Bowering
Re: More about Billy Little
Wed 7 Jan 2009

Well said, Jamie.

GB

On Jan 7, 2009, at 8:01 AM, Jamie Reid wrote:

> I thought American readers, and particularly some of Billy's old friends from > SUNYAB on this listserv might appreciate a little historical context on my > earlier posting about the passing of Billy Little.
>
> Billy was an early alumnus of the SUNYAB project ,one of at least four Americans related to the literary movement associated with the New American Poetry anthology who migrated to Canada in the late 1960s and early 1970s.

Robin Blaser, Stan Persky and George Stanley have each made remarkable contributions to the life of the poetry community in Vancouver, and so has Billy Little. Billy was raised in New York and served his apprenticeship in poetry at the Poetry Project in New York City. He then shuffled off to Buffalo where he was one of the early students in the SUNYAB program, where he met Robert Creeley, Jack Clarke, Ed Dorn, Leslie Fiedler and other luminaries, including an entire contingent of Canadian poets who had travelled to Buffalo to learn especially from Olson and Creeley.

Billy came to Vancouver as a second generation partisan of the New American Poetry, as many others had done before him, including those who attended and presided over the Vancouver Poetry Conference of 1963, including Charles Olson, Robert Creeley, Robert Duncan, Allan Ginsberg, Philip Whalen and others. On his arrival in Vancouver in 1972, Billy fell in immediately with the local contingent of poets and began a residence that lasted for more than 30 years, in which he became a familiar and welcome figure in literary gatherings in the city.

He performed remarkable deeds for the poetry community of Vancouver, for which not only the poets of the city, but the citizens themselves should be grateful. In his profession as a second-hand book seller, and as a genuine and non-sectarian expert in North American poetry in general, along with his partners in the book trade, he made available to Vancouverites a range of poetry publications and knowledge which might otherwise have been inaccessible. At Octopus Books and later at R2B2 Books, he was a co-organizer of one of the longest lasting poetry reading series in the city, providing a forum for “outside” poets throughout North America, and also a gathering-ground for the local poetry contingent. When he worked at the Special Collections Library at Simon Fraser University (incidentally, one of the most complete collections related to the poets associated with the New American Poetry), he undertook the task of cataloguing the extensive ouevre of the revered Canadian poet, bpNichol available at SCL, a genuine service to posterity.

He was an indefatigable publisher of samizdat style literature, consistent with his belief that poetry should be a kind of action which might help to make a better world. In this role, he was an ardent publicist and promoter of our local poets. All this apart from his wonderful store of poetry lore and knowledge, second to none in the city, which made his influence on the local scene truly incalculable. During his final years he lived on the idyllic Hornby Island, just off the coast. The island has been one of the unknown havens of some of Canada's finest artists, some well-known, like Jack Shadbolt and Wayne Ngan; others, like Jerry Pethick and Gordon Payne, barely discovered, or waiting to be discovered. Billy was their friend and sometimes advisor, because he knew and understood a lot.

Mostly, I guess, I just wanted to say that like other Vancouver poets, I'm grateful for the presence of Billy in our city as a representative of what is best in the American character and culture, from which we have all learned and taken heart. For his remaining friends at Buffalo, and for others who might be interested, I'd like to post this brief memoir poem about Ed Dorn composed by Billy, because it seems to me to provide a wise and welcome reminder of our real place in the world.

The attachment contains a video documenting the launch of Billy's sole conventional publication, a collection of poems entitled St. Ink.

The book was the result of a coming together of some of Billy's many friends so as to be able to present him with the kind of tribute we felt that he deserved.
It contains his own sharp disclaimer of the book publishing process as a means of making poetry usefully available, and his preference for the self-publishing samizdat style of immediate publication. Here's the poem about Ed Dorn.
:

stuck his neck out
(for joe and charlie)

i love this photo of ed dorn
a ghost before he died
his neck so thin
his tie seemed just his neck continuing outside his shirt
as if he were neck
clear to his belly button

what i mean is thousands
should have filled streets
the day of his funeral
if we were truly greeks
real democrats

smashing limousine windows
in his honour, banks in flames
he should have been taken by train
back to idaho
by way of gloucester
and kent state and lawrence
and san francisco
and the skagit valley

ed dorn is the poet chaplin
always hoped to be the poet john adams cried out for the poet with the six foot ear

the last time i saw ed

> over salmon and corn
> in bob and mary's backyard
> ed caught me assuming
> all the world knew and thought highly of
> Charles Olson and William Carlos Williams
> "billy," he said,
> "who even heard of these people?"
>
> welcome.html

George Bowering, esq.
Not a morning kind of guy.

↑ Index

96. lanny quarles
Recently on Jellybean Weirdo and Phaneronoemikon
Wed 7 Jan 2009

Recently on Phaneronoemikon:

Sax Leechd
dwine
Meng Chiao's Owls Shallowly Grieving The Convergin...
Boonique
Poem about Poetry.
Actin'
Moving Toward Asymmetry
Why I Wall Elways Boo Wetter Than Ill of Hue.

http://phaneron.blogspot.com/

Recently on Jellybean Weirdo:

Deep Fried Gaza Strips.
Once Upon a Ringtone So Dojoboner, So Earnipple Pe... goth-loli maids (2008)
dwine broodth Dad's Tijuana Brass Sideburns
possibly or maybe is what Tom would always say OMG BFF LOL
Callow Rose
Something from Bob Brueckl..
LETTERS ALL WASHED OFF.
TOM BOBBINS + ZE = FUHJI
A Hosehead's Ray

http://jellybeanweirdo.blogspot.com/

Lanny Quarles
http://www.hevanet.com/solipsis/

A four-wheel drive mud amoeba installer technician latte' drinks its own longbongdong whiskey's cellphone's ringthong

Jimminy Kricket said "gryllust's last largesse"...

A germane capriccio makes a raw tuna golem take up texting to torque the world's resources, an amoeba dolphin colophon orgy ensues with 'scolon-phoenixs'..

↑ Index

97. Troy Camplin
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Thu 8 Jan 2009

I think prostitution should be legalized precisely because of all the problems that come about precisely because it's not legal and because in a free market, two free adults should be able to enter into any sort of relationship they desire, whether that be employee-employer, prostitute-client, artist-patron, or any other sort of relationship. Prostitution is no different than a woman who has sex with a guy she has no intention of seeing again after accepting an expensive dinner and some drinks from him -- only she gets the money directly, and can use the money (hopefully) more wisely. So you think that it's a different kind of work only because genitalia are involved? It's labor using a different set of muscles is all.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, January 6, 2009 10:04:06 PM
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

I guess I must be 200 years old--does nobody else agree that it's common sense that prostitution is essentially different from other kinds of 'work'?

On 12/23/08 10:00 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Why is the capitalist exploitation of women at a brothel worse than, say, the capitalist exploitation of women at a Zipper Factory? It's just a different kind of labor, no? Given that some artists are seemingly comfortable with capitalism, why should they not acknowledge it in the name of their ventures?

I understand, of course, that brothels have a particular history with a particular kind of violence attached to it, but so do factories. Do you direct the same righteous anger at Andy Warhol?

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
Sent: Monday, December 22, 2008 5:01 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

brothels about as funny as slavery.
which British feminist?

On 12/21/08 1:44 PM, "steve russell" <[redacted]> wrote:

somewhat related: William Styron, the way he waxes his libido in "Sophie's Choice."
i'm still looking for the book of essays by the British Feminist who enlightened me.

--- On Sat, 12/20/08, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Saturday, December 20, 2008, 6:51 PM

cooptation of poetry by capitalist objectification of women. not funny. to use a brothel as a metaphor is disgusting. I remember when Denise Levertov criticized a poet for using napalm as a metaphor for personal pain, saying you don't know what it feels like & it's much worse than the way you are characterizing it.

On 12/19/08 4:15 PM, "mIEKAL aND" <[redacted]> wrote:

New York poetry brothel tempts with verse

Published: Friday December 19, 2008

http://rawstory.com/news/afp/New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_12192008.html

The prostitute whispers, wets her lips and prepares to bare... her heart with a poem.

Welcome to New York's Poetry Brothel, where punters delve between the lines, not the sheets.

At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper Factory the look was bona fide bordello.

Literary ladies of the night flitted between intimate, candle-lit nooks, red lights and paintings of nudes.

Some of the poetesses for sale sported retro-style garter belts and frilly knickers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.

But transactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind, not the body, and a moment with the catalogue, replete with pictures and whimsical descriptions, reveals what's on offer.

Page four boasts The Professor, swearing to have heard "the wail of your striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."

Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets she doesn't know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 claiming she can "coax your drum."

Gigolo poets are available, not least Poetry Brothel co-founder Nicholas Adamski, who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops tempestuous, dark looks with an eye patch.

"Poetry is what I love more than anything," cooed The Madame, the sultry spirit behind the whole idea.

The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dressed for the part in low-cut dress, elbow-length black gloves and a peacock headdress.

"I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing poetry than listening to some old man sitting on a chair on a stage," she explained by the light of a guttering candle.

One-on-one encounters, for which "clients" pay three to five dollars in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free reading, took place upstairs.

The "whores" read from their own material, much of which is free verse, making for intense, sometimes baffling performances.

But for those needing a break, the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco guitarists, a fortune-teller, a blackjack table and a bar specializing in port and whisky

The young hedonists, most of them students, appear to have struck a surprisingly successful formula.

"There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets show a lot of cleavage," said The Professor, otherwise known as Jennifer Michael Hecht, aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhattan's New School.

She teaches writing to many of the Brothel's regulars and is proud of the result.

"It's kind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis. At two in the morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place reading poetry," she said.

"The custom is to read poetry alone, but we know that from Homer onward, people read it aloud and in groups."

By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed and getting fuller -- and rowdier.

The fortune teller, bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes, mumbled to someone about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The Madame, yet another glass of port in hand, introduced poet "whores" in a voice suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.

When Patricia Smith, a well-established poet, took the mike to declaim a long and rhythmical poem about love and making love, there were rock concert cheers from the crowd.

"I always shudder when I pray," Smith intoned in a mesmerizing voice, "so your name must be a prayer."

Even for these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis sweeping the country.

One of the poets, 22-year-old Nina Cheng, was about to start a job at Bear Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is writing a play about the experience and applying for a playwright's course at Yale.

"I'd thought I'd do banking and get into the arts when I retired -- not this early," said Cheng, known at the Brothel as The Opium Eater.

Another poetry prostitute, 27-year-old Rachel Herman-Gross, aka Simone, worried that crashing stock markets will pull the rug from under the arts scene. "It's going to be a lot harder. A lot of artists are sustained by grants from people with money."

But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the Poetry Brothel proves there are ways to survive.

"Money's always been scarce for artists and they're very resourceful people," said Edmund Voyer, 54, a hefty man described as an "evangelist" on his business card and who came to the Zipper Factory wearing a kilt.

His drinking companion, Jennifer Hoa, 27, agreed money and art would always find ways to meet.

"I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer, but I come here," she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."

The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.

"Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems," she murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation. Or say you don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm hungry.'"

guidelines &

↑ Index

98. Jim Andrews
Re: hockey violence (was poetry brothel)
Thu 8 Jan 2009

Sorry Gwyn. Didn't mean to impune those with mental retardation, just those who think fighting's OK in hockey. Not trying to hijack the thread.

ja
http://vispo.com

↑ Index

99. Alexander Jorgensen
Visual Poetry - VISPO - Poll
Thu 8 Jan 2009

For an upcoming issue of Black Robert Journal, I would like to include a number of statements related to visual poetry. Your participation will most sincerely be appreciated in what is an effort to explore the various motivations and ideas related to contemporary vispo. As Managing Editor, my hope is to include a myriad of thoughts.

Please back channel all responses.

Question: What is visual poetry - its form and purpose?

Regards,
Alexander Jorgensen

↑ Index

100. Ken Rumble
Fwd: Start the New Year Off Right...
Thu 8 Jan 2009

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Magdalena Zurawski <[redacted]>
Date: Sun, Jan 4, 2009 at 10:01 PM
Subject: Start the New Year Off Right...

Minor American Poetry Reading Series
Rachel Blau DuPlessis & Adeena Karasick
January 10, 2008 -- 8pm

LOCATION (Ken Rumble):
500 n. duke st

apt. 55-204
(go to the 55 & 54 awning and hit the 55-204 buzzer)

Hosted by Ken & Violet Rumble
Curated by Magdalena Zurawski

Rachel Blau DuPlessis is the author of eleven books of poetry; her long poem project, begun in 1986, is collected as *Drafts 1-38, Toll, *from Wesleyan University Press, as well as *DRAFTS Drafts 39-57, Pledge, with Draft, unnumbered: Précis *and Torques: Drafts 58-76, both from Salt Publishing. salt Modern Poets). DuPlessis is also known for her innovative essays in The Pink Guitar: Writing as Feminist Practice and Blue Studios: Poetry and Its Cultural Work. She is the editor of The Selected Letters of George Oppen (Duke, 1990) and co-editor of The Objectivist Nexus: Essays in Cultural Poetics. Her critical books include Genders, Races, and Religious Cultures in Modern American Poetry, 1908-1934 (Cambridge, 2001). DuPlessis has received the Roy Harvey Pearce / Archive for New Poetry Prize (2002) as a scholar poet. In 2002 she was awarded a Pew Fellowship for Artists.

******

Adeena Karasick (www.adeenakarasick.com <http://www.adeenakarsick.com/>) is an internationally acclaimed and award winning poet, media-artist and author of six books of poetry and poetic theory: The House That Hijack Built (Talonbooks, 2004), The Arugula Fugues (Zasterle Press, 2001), Dyssemia Sleaze (Talonbooks, Spring 2000), Genrecide (Talonbooks, 1996), * Memewars* (Talonbooks, 1994), and The Empress Has No Closure (Talonbooks, 1992), as well as 4 videopoems all available on YouTube. All her work is marked with an urban, Jewish, feminist aesthetic that continually challenges linguistic habits and normative modes of meaning production. Engaged with the art of combination and turbulence of thought, her work is a testament to the creative and regenerative power of language and its infinite possibilities for pushing meaning to the limits of its semantic boundaries.

For over 20 years her linguistically provocative, philosophically complex wordplay continues to excite audiences nationally, internationally and locally, and she has recently been granted the MPS Mobile Award as being the world's first "Mobile Poet" whereby her work is being made available on mobile devices (cell phones and smart phones) throughout the world. Her writing has been described as "electricity in language" (Nicole Brossard) "plural, cascading, exuberant in its cross-fertilization of punning and knowing, theatre and theory" (Charles Bernstein) "a tour de force of linguistic doublespeak" (Globe and Mail) "and opens up the possibilities of reading" (Vancouver Courier). She is Professor of Poetry and Cultural Theory at City University of New York.

Forthcoming (April 2009) is Amuse Bouche: Tasty Treats for the Mouth (April, Talonbooks 2009).

--
Check out my book Key Bridge:
http://www.carolinawrenpress.org/books.html

And I'm on the road giving readings!:

TBA

Reviews of Key Bridge:

Ron Silliman:
http://ronsilliman.blogspot.com/2007/04/i-know-ken-rumble-originally-from-his.html

Kevin Killian:
http://www.amazon.com/gp/product/customer-reviews/0932112544/ref=cm_cr_dp_all_top/002-7537401-5750437?ie=UTF8&n=283155&s=books#customerReviews

And projects:

http://durhamhastheworstroadsintheworld.blogspot.com

↑ Index

101. Sarah Sarai
Re: 88 Constellations for Wittgenstein by David Clark
Thu 8 Jan 2009

Thank you for posting 88 Constellations for Wittgenstein link. Stunning. Will observe all 88 in eternal sky of cyberspace.

"story-telling as browsing" (per blurb) poetry as browsing, too.

Left hand? The icon on the upper left, in each of the 88, navigates back to the menu (I add for people like me who panic when they think they're trapped in a room, cyber all the scarier).

88 CONSTELLATIONS FOR WITTGENSTEIN (TO BE PLAYED WITH THE LEFT HAND) http://88constellations.net

(original posted by Jim Clark)

↑ Index

102. Sarah Sarai
Re: 88 Constellations for Wittgenstein by David Clark
Thu 8 Jan 2009

---

i meant original posted by jim andrews. i should know better than to type while staring at heavenly firmament, fixed stars, perseus & co.

↑ Index

103. Anny Ballardini
The Election Anthology
Thu 8 Jan 2009

Obododimma Oha and Anny Ballardini are pleased to announce the new Anthology on the Poets' Corner:

While the He/art Pants: Poetic Responses to the 2008 American Elections. We wish to thank all the contributors who have made it possible, and invite you to read and spread the good news.

· While the He/art Pants:<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2664>(Poetic Responses to the 2008 American Elections) · Editorial: Obododimma Oha<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2665> · Editorial: Anny Ballardini<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2666> · Edward Mycue<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2671> · Jared Schickling<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2672> · Bill Morgan <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2673> · John M. Bennett<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2674> · Conrad Reeder<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2675> · Tom McBride <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2676> · Gerald Schwartz<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2677> · Farideh Hassanzadeh-Mostafavi<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2678> · Russ Golata <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2679> · Evelyn Posamentier<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2680> · Gina Sangster Hayman<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2681> · Matt Johnson<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2682> · Susan Bright<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2683> · Daniel Zimmerman<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2684> · Fan Ogilvie

<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2685> · Henry Gould <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2686> · Carol Novack<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2687> · Joseph Duemer<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2688> · Peter Ciccariello<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2689> · Spencer Selby<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2690> · Eugen Galasso<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2691> · Grace Cavalieri<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2692> · Amy King <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2693> *· * Halvard Johnson<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2695> · Raymond Bianchi<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2696> · Lars Palm <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2697> · George Spencer<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2698> · Bob Grumman <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2702> · Wendy Taylor Carlisle<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2703> · Br. Tom Murphy<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2704> · Annetta L. Gomez-Jefferson<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2705> · Uzor Maxim Uzoatu<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2706> · Jukka-Pekka Kervinen<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2707> · David Howard<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2708> · Obiwu <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2709> · Afam Akeh <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2720> · Jim Leftwich <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2721> · Charles Martin <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2722> · Luc Fierens <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2723> · Eileen Tabios <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2730> · Donna Pecore <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2731> · Francesco Levato <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2739> · Tony Trigilio <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2740> · Terri Moore <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2741> · Barbara Crooker <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2742> · Vincent Francone <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2743> · David-

Baptiste Chirot <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2755> · Julene Tripp Weaver <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2756> *· * Daniela Gioseffi<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2791> · Obododimma Oha<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2827> · Judith Laura<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2829>

· While the He/art Pants:<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2664>(Poetic Responses to the 2008 American Elections)

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2664

· Editorial: Obododimma Oha<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2665>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2665

· Editorial: Anny Ballardini<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2666>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2666

· Edward Mycue<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2671>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2671

· Jared Schickling<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2672>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2672

· Bill Morgan <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2673>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2673

· John M. Bennett<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2674>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2674

· Conrad Reeder<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2675>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2675

· Tom McBride <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2676>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2676

· Gerald Schwartz<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2677>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2677

· Farideh Hassanzadeh-Mostafavi<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2678>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2678

· Russ Golata <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2679>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2679

· Evelyn Posamentier<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2680>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2680

· Gina Sangster Hayman<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2681>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2681

· Matt Johnson<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2682>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2682

· Susan Bright<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2683>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2683

· Daniel Zimmerman<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2684>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2684

· Fan Ogilvie <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2685>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2685

· Henry Gould <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2686>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2686

· Carol Novack<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2687>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2687

· Joseph Duemer<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2688>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2688

· Peter Ciccariello<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2689>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2689

· Spencer Selby<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2690>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2690

· Eugen Galasso<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2691>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2691

· Grace Cavalieri<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2692>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2692

· Amy King <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2693>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2693

· Halvard Johnson<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2695>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2695

· Raymond Bianchi<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2696>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2696

· Lars Palm <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2697>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2697

· George Spencer<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2698>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2698

· Bob Grumman <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2702>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2702

· Wendy Taylor Carlisle<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2703>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2703

· Br. Tom Murphy<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2704>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2704

· Annetta L. Gomez-Jefferson<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2705>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2705

· Uzor Maxim Uzoatu<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2706>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2706

· Jukka-Pekka Kervinen<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2707>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2707

· David Howard<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2708>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2708

· Obiwu <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2709>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2709

· Afam Akeh <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2720>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2720

· Jim Leftwich<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2721>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2721

· Charles Martin<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2722>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2722

· Luc Fierens <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2723>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2723

· Eileen Tabios<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2730>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2730

· Donna Pecore<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2731>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2731

· Francesco Levato<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2739>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2739

· Tony Trigilio<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2740>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2740

· Terri Moore <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2741>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2741

· Barbara Crooker<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2742>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2742

· Vincent Francone<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2743>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2743

· David-Baptiste Chirot<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2755>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2755

· Julene Tripp Weaver<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2756>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2756

· Daniela Gioseffi<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2791>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2791

· Obododimma Oha<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2827>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2827

· Judith Laura<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2829>

http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2829

--
Anny Ballardini
http://annyballardini.blogspot.com/
http://www.fieralingue.it/modules.php?name=poetshome
http://www.moriapoetry.com/ebooks.html
I Tell You: One must still have chaos in one to give birth to a dancing star!

↑ Index

104. steve russell
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Thu 8 Jan 2009

---

interesting distinction: Genet did a number with the fantasy realm. But what, exactly, do you mean, Mark, by the fantasy of prostitution? Phone sex? I suppose that's somewhat harmless. But that ain't the real thing. When it's real, as in the sex trade, we're talking ugly/ugly/ugly.

--- On Tue, 1/6/09, Mark Weiss <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Mark Weiss <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Tuesday, January 6, 2009, 11:41 PM

I think we need to make a distinction between prostitution and the fantasy of prostitution. Most prostitution is compelled or a response to desperation. Most fantasy prostitution, playing dress-up and the like, isn't.

At 02:34 PM 1/6/2009, you wrote:
>I saw reference in there to men and gigolos. I have a problem with the old >school "sex degrades women" feminist argument. Is a the location of a >brothel and the profession of prostitution always and inherently degrading
>to women? I thought there were sex-positive feminists who were working >against that idea.
>
>-----Original Message-----
>From: steve russell [mailto:[redacted]]
>Sent: Sunday, December 21, 2008 5:49 PM
>Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>
>this seems pretty light hearted.
>I'm sorry to hear about the wicked (objects, et cetera) capitalist.

>i suspect that the most die hard feminist could enjoy her/himself.
>
>--- On Fri, 12/19/08, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]> wrote:
>From: mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
>Subject: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>To: [redacted]
>Date: Friday, December 19, 2008, 4:15 PM
>
>New York poetry brothel tempts with verse
>
>Published: Friday December 19, 2008
>
>http://rawstory.com/news/afp/New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_12192008.ht >ml
>
>The prostitute whispers, wets her lips and prepares to bare... her heart
>with a
>poem.
>
>Welcome to New York's Poetry Brothel, where punters delve between the >lines, not the sheets.
>
>At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper Factory
the
>look was bona fide bordello.
>
>Literary ladies of the night flitted between intimate, candle-lit nooks, red
>lights and paintings of nudes.
>
>Some of the poetesses for sale sported retro-style garter belts and frilly >knickers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.
>
>But transactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind, not the body, and a >moment with the catalogue, replete with pictures and whimsical descriptions,
>reveals what's on offer.
>
>Page four boasts The Professor, swearing to have heard "the wail of your >striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."

>
>Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets she doesn't >know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 claiming
she >can "coax your drum."
>
>Gigolo poets are available, not least Poetry Brothel co-founder Nicholas >Adamski, who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops tempestuous, dark >looks
>with an eye patch.
>
>"Poetry is what I love more than anything," cooed The Madame, the
>sultry spirit behind the whole idea.
>
>The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dressed for the part in >low-cut dress, elbow-length black gloves and a peacock headdress.
>
>"I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing poetry than listening to some >old man sitting on a chair on a stage," she explained by the light of
a >guttering candle.
>
>One-on-one encounters, for which "clients" pay three to five dollars
>in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free reading, took place >upstairs.
>
>The "whores" read from their own material, much of which is free
>verse, making for intense, sometimes baffling performances.
>
>But for those needing a break, the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco
>guitarists,
>a fortune-teller, a blackjack table and a bar specializing in port and >whisky
>
>The young hedonists, most of them students, appear to have struck a >surprisingly successful formula.
>
>"There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets show a
lot of

>cleavage," said The Professor, otherwise known as Jennifer Michael Hecht,
>aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhattan's New School.
>
>She teaches writing to many of the Brothel's regulars and is proud of
the >result.
>
>"It's kind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis. At two
in >the morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place reading >poetry," she said.
>
>"The custom is to read poetry alone, but we know that from Homer
onward,
>people read it aloud and in groups."
>
>By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed and getting fuller -- and rowdier.
>
>The fortune teller, bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes, mumbled to >someone
>about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The Madame, yet >another glass of port in hand, introduced poet "whores" in a voice
>suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.
>
>When Patricia Smith, a well-established poet, took the mike to declaim a >long >and rhythmical poem about love and making love, there were rock concert
>cheers
>from the crowd.
>
>"I always shudder when I pray," Smith intoned in a mesmerizing
voice,
>"so your name must be a prayer."
>
>Even for these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis
sweeping
>the country.
>
>One of the poets, 22-year-old Nina Cheng, was about to start a job at Bear

>Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is writing a play about
>the >experience and applying for a playwright's course at Yale.
>
>"I'd thought I'd do banking and get into the arts when I
retired
>-- not this early," said Cheng, known at the Brothel as The Opium Eater.
>
>Another poetry prostitute, 27-year-old Rachel Herman-Gross, aka Simone,
>worried
>that crashing stock markets will pull the rug from under the arts scene.
>"It's going to be a lot harder. A lot of artists are sustained by >grants from people with money."
>
>But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the Poetry
>Brothel proves there are ways to survive.
>
>"Money's always been scarce for artists and they're very >resourceful people," said Edmund Voyer, 54, a hefty man described as an
>"evangelist" on his business card and who came to the Zipper
Factory
>wearing a kilt.
>
>His drinking companion, Jennifer Hoa, 27, agreed money and art would always >find ways to meet.
>
>"I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer, but I come >here," she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."
>
>The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.
>
>"Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems," she >murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation. Or say you >don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm hungry.'"
>
guidelines
>
>
>

>
guidelines
>
>

↑ Index

105. Séamas Cain
Radiator festival & satellite events
Thu 8 Jan 2009

_____

RADIATOR: EXPLOITS IN THE WIRELESS CITY

http://www.radiator-festival.org

13 – 24 January 2009

Launch event: 14 January 6-11pm

Frank Abbott & Duncan Higgins UK // Annexinema UK // Annual General Meeting (AGM) IT/DK // Ryosuke Akiyoshi JP // Blu UK // Jim Brouwer & Chris Cousin UK // Andrew Browne & Katie Doubleday UK // Patrick Farmer UK // Sebastian Craig UK // Glenn Davidson (Artstation) UK // Siân Robinson Davies UK // Dis-locate JP/UK // Niklas Goldbach DE // Hatch UK // Candice Jacobs UK // JODI NL/BE // Miska Knapek DK/SE // Dominic Lash UK // Folke Köbberling & Martin Kaltwasser DE // Son Woo Kyung JP // Matt Milton UK // Leona Misu JP // Yuko Mohri JP // Suzanne Moxhay UK // Ian Nesbitt UK // Christian Nold UK // N55 DK // Chris Oakley UK // Origami Biro & The Joy of Box UK // The Owl Project UK // Plankton AU // paiR UK // Paula Rousch PT/UK // Rustie (Warp) UK // Scott Jon Siegel USA // Spamchop UK // Stanza UK // Akihiko Taniguchi JP // John Timberlake UK // Trampoline: Platform for New Media Art DE/UK // Michiko Tsuda JP // Visual Correspondents NL // John Wall UK // Mizuki WatanabeJP // Shunsuke Watanabe JP // Wounded Knee UK // ZimmerFrei IT

Background :

The 4th Radiator festival & symposium, "Exploits in the Wireless City ", aims to instigate discussion and debate based on the understanding that the development of digital networks are transforming our notion of (public and private) space. In its critique, Radiator will question the opportunities, future strategies and implementations that artists, poets, and communities face when learning to act within these new hybrid city spaces.

Through its artistic interventions, Radiator will put theory into practice with projects and events that both position and challenge the dominant forces at work in the urban environment and explore the new territories opened up by hybrid space.

The Going Underground project, investigates this infrastructure by placing 5 artists or poets into the urban confines of British cities: Glenn Davidson (Artstation) (UK), Folke Köbberling & Martin Kaltwasser (DE), Ian Nesbitt (UK), Christian Nold (UK), N55 (DK). These poets and artists will act as sleeper agents, observing and gathering information from a range of different sources including; architects, planning departments, city council offices, surveillance, monitoring centre's and the Police to create new work in response to their research.

The Radiator festival and symposium is curated by Anette Schäfer & Miles Chalcraft from Trampoline. Trampoline has hosted and curated events in both Nottingham and Berlin since 1997.

http://www.radiator-festival.org

Symposium : Exploits in the Wireless City

15-16 January 2009

A two day event at Broadway Media Centre, Nottingham.

Bringing together artists and poets with architects, urban theorists, computer scientists, sociologists and fellow citizens, the symposium will explore, question and play with a new urban landscape where the re-conceptualizing of the public sphere in the regeneration developments of the East Midlands mirror those around Europe.

Participants in the Symposium :

Presentations by: Saskia Sassen (keynote) // Richard Barbrook // Duncan Campbell // Rob Van Kranenburg // Charlie Gere // Saul Albert // Simon Sheikh // Peter Goodwin // Neil Cummings // Krzysztof Nawratek // Holger Schnädelbach // JODI // Usman Haque // Gordan Savicic // Folke Köbberling, Martin Kaltwasser // Glenn Davidson (Artstation) // Ion Sørvin, Øivind Alexander Slaatto (N55) // Ian Nesbitt // Stanza

Chairs and Moderators : Kuba Szreder // Sean Dodson // Joost Van Loon // Susanne Jaschko // David Crouch // Andreas Wittel

Observers and advisors : Sarah Cook // Regine Debatty // Laura Sillars // Alessandro Ludovico

Radiator Festival & Satellite Events :

13-24 January 2009

JODI // Blu // Visual Foreign Correspondents - January 2009 // Digital Broadway // Broadway Media Centre // inc Artist's Talk from JODI & Screening of Spectre of the Spectres

Nikolas Goldbach // Suzanne Moxhay // Visual Foreign Correspondents - 13 – 24 Jan // Urban Screens // Nottingham // Leicester // Derby

Dis-locate – 13 – 24 Jan // Dis-locate is a project based in Japan presenting an annual festival in Tokyo/Yokohama that investigates the relationship between new media and the environment // 13 January Preview 6-8pm // Hand and Heart Gallery // inc. Artist's Talk & Screening

Hatch - 13 Jan 8pm // A performance platform curated by Michael Pinchbeck & Nathan Miller // Loggerheads

Exploits in the Wireless City Exhibition 14 – 24 Jan // Glenn Davidson (Artstation) // Sebastain Craig // Candice Jacobs // Köbberling & Kaltwasser // N55 // Ian Nesbitt // Stanza // Surface Gallery

Dealmaker & Wigflex Presents 14 Jan 9pm – 1am // Rustie (Warp) // Spamchop // Keaver & Brause // Electronica music // Brownes

QUAD Jan 15 5–9.30pm // Annual General Meeting [AGM] // Sîan Robinson Davies // Bill Drummond // Charlie Gere // Paula Roush // Akihko Taniguchi // Jane & Louise Wilson // As part of Symposium trip

Origami Biro and The Joy of Box // Chris Cousin & Jim Brouwer – 15 Jan 9pm // Live experimental electronic music/performance // The New Art Exchange

Trampoline Platform Event – 16 Jan // The Owl Project // Burd & Scarr // Wounded Knee // Patrick Farmer // Dominic Lash // Matt Milton // MIDSR // Lovebites
Fusing Frames Workshop // The New Art Exchange //
Andrew Brown & Kaite Doubleday // Open City Walk

Annexinema – 17 Jan 8pm // An evening of artist's short films curated by Emily Wilczek & Ian Nesbitt // The Art Organisation
John Wall – 24 Jan 8pm // Closing Event // Backlit

http://www.radiator-festival.org

Symposium Tickets
Full Pass: £ 60 (concs. £ 45)
Single Day: £ 35 (concs. £ 25)
Prices include lunch, refreshments, trip to Derby QUAD & Radiator Festival events (on a first come first serve basis).
Accommodation: special hotel deals with Radiator bookings. Email for details or check website nearer the time.
For Bookings, ring (0)[redacted]

Travel
Train // London – Nottingham range from £1 - £11 each way on Megatrain.co.uk – Book Early!
Car // From Lincoln 1hr // Sheffield 1hr // Birmingham 1.5hrs // Manchester 2hrs // Liverpool 2.5hrs // Bristol 2.5hrs Plane // Super cheap flights with Ryan Air to Nottingham East Midlands from 5€ all incl.!!!

Contact Details
Radiator Festival // 14-18 Broad St // Nottingham // NG1 3AL // England // UK
Tel [redacted] – 840 92 72
[redacted]
www.radiator-festival.org

If you would like to be kept updated, subscribe to the e-newsletter or TXT (R8R) to [redacted]

Partners : Broadway Media Centre // Nottingham Trent University // East Midlands New Technology Initiative // Surface Gallery // Ibis Hotel // Trampoline // The New Art Exchange // Neighbourhood Development Company // FACT // QUAD // Big Screen Derby // Japan Society // British Council // The Arts Organisation // Ibis // Phoenix // Nottingham Royal Centre // Hand & Heart Gallery // Lee Rosie's Tearoom // Backlit

Best regards,

Séamas Cain
http://alazanto.org/seamascain
http://seamascain.writernetwork.com
http://www.mnartists.org/Seamas_Cain

↑ Index

106. Geoffrey Gatza
Further on the feneon collective
Thu 8 Jan 2009

Further comments directed to the feneon collective, posted today.

By Ange Mlinko, Steve Evans, David Shapiro, Nada Gordon, Chris Daniels, and a Leading Flarf Poet.

http://faitsdiversdelapoesie.blogspot.com/

thank you for reading,

--the feneon collective

↑ Index

107. Doug Holder

The Fearful Symmetries of Lo Galluccio's Sarasota VII

Thu 8 Jan 2009

Boston Area Small Press and Poetry Scene This blog consists of reviews, interviews, news, etc...from the world of the Boston area small press and poetry scene and beyond. Regular contributors are reviewers for the "Ibbetson Update," such as: Hugh Fox, Lo Galluccio, Irene Koronas, Michael Todd Steffen,, Richard Wilhelm, Steve Glines, Mignon Ariel King, Mike Amado, and Pam Rosenblatt. founder Doug Holder: [redacted]. * B A S P P S is listed in the New Pages Index of Alternative Literary Blogs.

Thursday, January 08, 2009
The Fearful Symmetries of Lo Galluccio's Sarasota VII

http://dougholder.blogspot.com

The Fearful Symmetries of Lo Galluccio's Sarasota VII

article by Michael T. Steffen

From the sepulchral artifacts of ancient Egypt to the horror films we watch in our cinemas, civilizations have attested again and again to the powerful creative articulation people find in the loss of loved ones. Far from any form of closure, grief resonates irresolutely within us, demanding response after response, a virtual wellspring of language, the poet's torment and treasure. Formally approached, art provides a medium of exploration to channel and cultivate the enormous curiosity that loss bequeaths to us. Yet drawing expressions from these sources of our inspirations hardly depletes the well. So much happens simultaneously in our relationships: you as you are, you as I perceive or desire you, I as am and as am perceived/project myself. Factor in time and the complexity deepens: you as you are, you as you were and would want me to be this new year… Many writers feel some accomplishment in extracting an element or so from the complexity in a given piece of writing. More boldly, however, attempts now and then are made exposing the artist in a defiant embracing of as much elemental psychic transference as she or he can, resulting in some of the works we read in classes at the highest levels, The Odyssey, Hamlet, The Waste Land. I don't mean to mince values by comparing Lo Galluccio's Sarasota VII with the great masterpieces of world literature. (Irene Koronas in Sarasota VII sees traces of Robert Lowell, John Berryman, Sylvia Plath and Anne Sexton, to name a few.) Yet reading Sarasota VII gave me the impression of a poet drawing into that kind of perilous arena, a tamer in a cage surrounded by dangerous "symmetries." While wary of falsely glorifying Sarasota VII, I think it important to acknowledge the work's barest formal venture, the confrontational expectations proposed and that Galluccio was able to contain this material and shape it into one work. It attests to a great character of faith and resilience in it author.

The perceiving of multiple identities (I-thou, am, are, is, was…to become…) haunts Sarasota VII and also seeds the work with brilliant insights.

…those of us who lose a reflection of ourselves in childhood have two lives. We know ourselves against life and against death. As a tree knows itself against a space of sky and against a density of earth (I,3).

We know hot from cold, both of shared elements, water or air. So life from death, yet again of shared elements, memory and language, which make us human, the creature for whom so much of the present is composed of the past, memory, language.

And the life of the body is known from that of the mind.

The smell of barbecue rising through the open window, caress of wind, a desire to lie on the floor and feed kisses with kisses on some mouth, even a woman’s, even her own. The sensation makes her dizzy and enormous. Enormously earth-bound and stupid. Smarter than words. The body defies all ideas and projections of ideas. The body wants only to move, to rest and to touch. It offers ecstasy and expression. The mind dangles spiders, spins cobwebs, and explanations that mummify

the rest. Split? (I,8).

This is wonderful poetry, naming—this from that, Adam in the garden, Joyce in The Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man. It is the beginning of a galaxy, analysis, the splitting or separation of matter, this from that, the poetry of the discovery (rediscovery) of each thing, consummately of the beloved, the so significant other, at whose meeting we begin to synthesize, to know and identify with and in part become one with.

We kissed. Again and again. For nine months.

I sent you home. I loved you. I loved the taste of you. Knew the danger of you and you walked home in my jacket. “I already expect to die,” you said. Just like a survivor. I knew that better than almost anyone else, you knew the art of survival and how to feed yourself (I,15).

Anxiously in section 12 of Part I Galluccio asks, “Can one form a work of art without attention to form, without a basis in it?” In fact, Sarasota VII enacts a universally recognizable formation in its taking apart and synthesizing things, people, psyches, worlds. The form of human life synthesizes the fetus out of a series of meiosis or splitting of cells. That is nature’s task, initiating a life out of the initiation of two deaths, those of the lovers or sexual partners. The anxiety of that natural death ignites the intellect of the artist in defiance, whose spidery mind at some point refuses and steps back away from the completion of the natural sexual death.

you’d feed off me. Now you say, “You were lonely.”

Now you say, “You shouldn’t have let me steal your power.” I say: “We were twins.” I say: “You shouldn’t have needed to steal the power you admired and hated”

(I,15).

So the lost lover, the subject of Part I, failed to become the provider. Instead, “You offered heat. You breathe lies and drama… You became my theatre… (ibid).

Classically, in the Latin poet Horace’s terms, dramatic form was linear and consisted of a beginning, a middle and an end. It established the characters in the setting of a significant moment, troubled those characters with that moment, then (comedy) resolved that trouble or (tragedy) further unraveled the characters in the exaltation of their dilemmas. It’s not the lack of formative polarities that is missing in Sarasota VII. It is their linear playing out, a more obvious and logical sequence, which we are denied, perhaps which we today expect to be denied.

Galluccio owns this work, though, as a memoir, yet the notion of drama is frequently conjured so that a nifty sleight of the theatrical echoes over into the reader’s perceptions. I particularly liked the section that identified actors and criminals:

Both refuse a set place. A legitimate space. They ribbon graffiti on the walls of worlds solid hands and straight minds have constructed. They wear masks. What distinguishes the outlaw, the actor? His long-term cowardice or his continuously summoned, quickly

spurted courage? (I, 10).

Part II shifts its focus from lost lover to lost father, and also visits Galluccio's experience with drama. Rather than being disappointed sexually, the child orphaned by the parent's death deals with a larger, more cosmic sensation of abandonment, and the poet sings the plangent refrain, "Because I'm fatherless…"

Because I'm fatherless the director wants me to come by his bungalow for a drink so he can confide in me all the frustrations of his theatrical kingdom. Like

Viola in "Twelfth Night" I'm to become sympathetic and marooned by this Duke's forlorn appetite. I decline…

(II. I.)

Though it is refused the presentation of linear form, there is a story, a drama to Sarasota VII. Out of a similar refusal Vladimir Nabokov wrote his memoir- style novel The Real Life of Sebastian Knight. Formally the memoir is appropriate to the spirit of post-modernism in that its narration is topical rather than temporal, its narration simultaneous rather than linear, all things happening at once in the out-of-time moment of remembering and writing.

If Sarasota VII elicits comparison with great works, it is I think because Galluccio has dared to flutter around some very long-burning flames, love and death, the rules of the mind vs. the joys and pains of the body, the comforts of being accepted vs. the stings of rejection, deeply the daughter and the father.

It would be wrong simply to flatter and inflate the author unjustly. Sarasota VII is not a bad attempt at artistic surrender in amplitude. Whether it is enough for a young literary talent to rest upon, that is the author's decision. It is a generous gift to us readers certainly.

About The Book of Nightmares Galway Kinnell was told that it was a great poem despite its many flaws.

Impressive in scope, continuity and sustained melody, Sarasota VII bears everything necessary, high and low, to be read with enthusiasm and consideration.

Sarasota VII is available for $12.00 from Cervana Barva Press/ P.O. Box 440357/

W. Somerville, MA 02144-3222/ www.cervanabarvapress.com.

See also, Bookstore: www.thelostbookshelf.com

↑ Index

108. amy king
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Thu 8 Jan 2009

This is so wrong-headed, Troy, that I don't even know where to begin. I'm not talking about the debate over legalizing prostitution; I'm referring to your reductive, ridiculously simplistic rationale: Prostitution is just anatomy, Troy? That's right in line with your reasoning that you can't possibly be racist because you're married to a minority. Some news, Troy: you can be racist even if you are a minority! Ever heard of a self-loathing [insert your label here]? I can even be homophobic while being a lesbian! Such a reductionist claim is the primary pillar used to defend prostitution by the men who use and abuse the women stuck in that system, happily ignoring the psychological damage they pay to "work" these women -- "it's just anatomy" allows these guys to revel in the role they play in maintaining and enjoying such a crappy system that preys upon the systematic abuse of girls and women as well as economically-deprived women, who end up stuck using "a different set of muscles" to sustain themselves and likely their children whose father is nowhere to be seen, except possibly in one of those lines now asking the government to bail himself and his favorite industry out (http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2009/01/07/porn-bailout-larry-flynt_n_155878.html). Let those fathers and men turn to prostitution, then! It's just anatomy, after all.

Amy

_____

Recent work

http://www.writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/King.html

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

--- On Thu, 1/8/09, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Thursday, January 8, 2009, 12:26 AM

I think prostitution should be legalized precisely because of all the problems that come about precisely because it's not legal and because in a free market, two free adults should be able to enter into any sort of relationship they desire, whether that be employee-employer, prostitute-client, artist-patron, or any other sort of relationship. Prostitution is no different than a woman who has sex with a guy she has no intention of seeing again after accepting an expensive dinner and some drinks from him -- only she gets the money directly, and can use the money (hopefully) more wisely. So you think that it's a different kind of work only because genitalia are involved? It's labor using a different set of muscles is all.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, January 6, 2009 10:04:06 PM
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

I guess I must be 200 years old--does nobody else agree that it's common sense that prostitution is essentially different from other kinds of 'work'?

On 12/23/08 10:00 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Why is the capitalist exploitation of women at a brothel worse than, say, > the capitalist exploitation of women at a Zipper Factory? It's just a > different kind of labor, no? Given that some artists are seemingly > comfortable with capitalism, why should they not acknowledge it in the name
> of their ventures?
>
> I understand, of course, that brothels have a particular history with a > particular kind of violence attached to it, but so do factories. Do you > direct the same righteous anger at Andy Warhol?
>
>
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On
> Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
> Sent: Monday, December 22, 2008 5:01 PM
> To: [redacted]
> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>
> brothels about as funny as slavery.

> which British feminist?
>
>
> On 12/21/08 1:44 PM, "steve russell"
<[redacted]> wrote:
>
>> somewhat related: William Styron, the way he waxes his libido in
>> "Sophie's Choice."
>> i'm still looking for the book of essays by the British Feminist
who >> enlightened me.
>>
>> --- On Sat, 12/20/08, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
wrote:
>> From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
>> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>> To: [redacted]
>> Date: Saturday, December 20, 2008, 6:51 PM
>>
>> cooptation of poetry by capitalist objectification of women. not >> funny. to use a brothel as a metaphor is disgusting. I remember when >> Denise Levertov criticized a poet for using napalm as a metaphor for >> personal pain, saying you don't know what it feels like &
it's much
>> worse than the way you are characterizing it.
>>
>>
>> On 12/19/08 4:15 PM, "mIEKAL aND"
<[redacted]>
>> wrote:
>>
>>> New York poetry brothel tempts with verse
>>>
>>> Published: Friday December 19, 2008
>>>
>>>
>> http://rawstory.com/news/afp/New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_12192
>> 008.html
>>>
>>> The prostitute whispers, wets her lips and prepares to bare... her >>> heart with a poem.
>>>

>>> Welcome to New York's Poetry Brothel, where punters delve between the >>> lines, not the sheets.
>>>
>>> At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper >>> Factory the look was bona fide bordello.
>>>
>>> Literary ladies of the night flitted between intimate, candle-lit >>> nooks, red lights and paintings of nudes.
>>>
>>> Some of the poetesses for sale sported retro-style garter belts and >>> frilly knickers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.
>>>
>>> But transactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind, not the body, >>> and a moment with the catalogue, replete with pictures and whimsical >>> descriptions, reveals what's on offer.
>>>
>>> Page four boasts The Professor, swearing to have heard "the wail of >>> your striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."
>>>
>>> Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets she
>> doesn't >>> know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 claiming >>> she can "coax your drum."
>>>
>>> Gigolo poets are available, not least Poetry Brothel co-founder
>>> Nicholas Adamski, who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops >>> tempestuous, dark looks with an eye patch.
>>>
>>> "Poetry is what I love more than anything," cooed The Madame,
>> the
>>> sultry spirit behind the whole idea.
>>>
>>> The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dressed for the part >>> in low-cut dress, elbow-length black gloves and a peacock headdress.

>>>
>>> "I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing poetry than listening to
>> some >>> old man sitting on a chair on a stage," she explained by the light of
>>> a guttering candle.
>>>
>>> One-on-one encounters, for which "clients" pay three to five >> dollars
>>> in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free reading, took place
>>> upstairs.
>>>
>>> The "whores" read from their own material, much of which is free
>>> verse, making for intense, sometimes baffling performances.
>>>
>>> But for those needing a break, the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco
>>> guitarists, a fortune-teller, a blackjack table and a bar >>> specializing in port and whisky
>>>
>>> The young hedonists, most of them students, appear to have struck
a >>> surprisingly successful formula.
>>>
>>> "There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets show a
>> lot of >>> cleavage," said The Professor, otherwise known as Jennifer
Michael
>>> Hecht, aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhattan's New School.
>>>
>>> She teaches writing to many of the Brothel's regulars and is proud of
>>> the result.
>>>
>>> "It's kind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis.
At two

>> in >>> the morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place >>> reading poetry," she said.
>>>
>>> "The custom is to read poetry alone, but we know that from Homer
>>> onward, people read it aloud and in groups."
>>>
>>> By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed and getting fuller --
and >>> rowdier.
>>>
>>> The fortune teller, bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes, mumbled
to >>> someone about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The >> Madame,
>>> yet another glass of port in hand, introduced poet
"whores" in a
>> voice
>>> suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.
>>>
>>> When Patricia Smith, a well-established poet, took the mike to >>> declaim a long and rhythmical poem about love and making love,
there
>>> were rock concert cheers from the crowd.
>>>
>>> "I always shudder when I pray," Smith intoned in a mesmerizing
>> voice,
>>> "so your name must be a prayer."
>>>
>>> Even for these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis
>>> sweeping the country.
>>>
>>> One of the poets, 22-year-old Nina Cheng, was about to start a job
at >>> Bear Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is writing
a >>> play about the experience and applying for a playwright's course at >>> Yale.

>>>
>>> "I'd thought I'd do banking and get into the arts
when I
>> retired -- >>> not this early," said Cheng, known at the Brothel as The Opium Eater.
>>>
>>> Another poetry prostitute, 27-year-old Rachel Herman-Gross, aka >>> Simone, worried that crashing stock markets will pull the rug from >>> under the arts scene. "It's going to be a lot harder. A
lot of >> artists
>>> are sustained by grants from people with money."
>>>
>>> But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the Poetry
>> Brothel
>>> proves there are ways to survive.
>>>
>>> "Money's always been scarce for artists and they're very >> resourceful
>>> people," said Edmund Voyer, 54, a hefty man described as an >>> "evangelist" on his business card and who came to the Zipper
>> Factory
>>> wearing a kilt.
>>>
>>> His drinking companion, Jennifer Hoa, 27, agreed money and art would >>> always find ways to meet.
>>>
>>> "I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer,
but I come >>> here," she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."
>>>
>>> The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.
>>>
>>> "Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems,"

>> she >>> murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation. Or say you >>> don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm hungry.'"
>>>
Check
>> guidelines &
>>
>>
>>
>>
>>
>>
>
guidelines
>
guidelines &

↑ Index

109. Mark Weiss
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Thu 8 Jan 2009

I'm not sure what you're objecting to, as you seem to be paraphrasing what I said. In the best of all possible worlds there would probably be some voluntary prostitution, but I'd still wonder at the psychological cost to those who chose to make their living that way. Choosing to playact at prostitution, like the women in the poetry brothel, is simply fantasy, and no more destructive, I'd think, than wearing a pirate costume. It's under the category of "whatever gets you off."

Mark

At 01:45 PM 1/8/2009, steve russell wrote:
>interesting distinction: Genet did a number with the fantasy realm.
>But what, exactly, do you mean, Mark, by the fantasy of >prostitution? Phone sex? I suppose that's somewhat harmless. But >that ain't the real thing. When it's real, as in the sex trade, >we're talking ugly/ugly/ugly.
>
>--- On Tue, 1/6/09, Mark Weiss <[redacted]> wrote:
>From: Mark Weiss <[redacted]>
>Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

>To: [redacted]
>Date: Tuesday, January 6, 2009, 11:41 PM
>
>I think we need to make a distinction between prostitution and the >fantasy of prostitution. Most prostitution is compelled or a response >to desperation. Most fantasy prostitution, playing dress-up and the >like, isn't.
>
>At 02:34 PM 1/6/2009, you wrote:
> >I saw reference in there to men and gigolos. I have a problem with the old > >school "sex degrades women" feminist argument. Is a the location >of a > >brothel and the profession of prostitution always and inherently >degrading
> >to women? I thought there were sex-positive feminists who were working > >against that idea.
> >
> >-----Original Message-----
> >From: steve russell [mailto:[redacted]]
> >Sent: Sunday, December 21, 2008 5:49 PM
> >Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
> >
> >this seems pretty light hearted.
> >I'm sorry to hear about the wicked (objects, et cetera) capitalist.
> >i suspect that the most die hard feminist could enjoy her/himself.
> >
> >--- On Fri, 12/19/08, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]> wrote:
> >From: mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
> >Subject: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
> >To: [redacted]
> >Date: Friday, December 19, 2008, 4:15 PM
> >
> >New York poetry brothel tempts with verse
> >
> >Published: Friday December 19, 2008
> >
>
>http://rawstory.com/news/afp/New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_12192008.ht > >ml
> >
> >The prostitute whispers, wets her lips and prepares to bare... her heart

> >with a
> >poem.
> >
> >Welcome to New York's Poetry Brothel, where punters delve between the > >lines, not the sheets.
> >
> >At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper Factory
>the
> >look was bona fide bordello.
> >
> >Literary ladies of the night flitted between intimate, candle-lit nooks,
>red
> >lights and paintings of nudes.
> >
> >Some of the poetesses for sale sported retro-style garter belts and frilly > >knickers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.
> >
> >But transactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind, not the body, and a > >moment with the catalogue, replete with pictures and whimsical >descriptions,
> >reveals what's on offer.
> >
> >Page four boasts The Professor, swearing to have heard "the wail of >your > >striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."
> >
> >Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets she
>doesn't > >know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 claiming
>she > >can "coax your drum."
> >
> >Gigolo poets are available, not least Poetry Brothel co-founder Nicholas > >Adamski, who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops tempestuous, dark > >looks
> >with an eye patch.
> >
> >"Poetry is what I love more than anything," cooed The Madame, the
> >sultry spirit behind the whole idea.
> >
> >The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dressed for the part in > >low-cut dress, elbow-length black gloves and a peacock headdress.

> >
> >"I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing poetry than listening to
>some > >old man sitting on a chair on a stage," she explained by the light of
>a > >guttering candle.
> >
> >One-on-one encounters, for which "clients" pay three to five
>dollars
> >in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free reading, took place > >upstairs.
> >
> >The "whores" read from their own material, much of which is free
> >verse, making for intense, sometimes baffling performances.
> >
> >But for those needing a break, the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco
> >guitarists,
> >a fortune-teller, a blackjack table and a bar specializing in port and > >whisky
> >
> >The young hedonists, most of them students, appear to have struck a > >surprisingly successful formula.
> >
> >"There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets show a
>lot of > >cleavage," said The Professor, otherwise known as Jennifer Michael >Hecht,
> >aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhattan's New School.
> >
> >She teaches writing to many of the Brothel's regulars and is proud of
>the > >result.
> >
> >"It's kind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis. At two
>in > >the morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place reading > >poetry," she said.
> >
> >"The custom is to read poetry alone, but we know that from Homer
>onward,
> >people read it aloud and in groups."

> >
> >By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed and getting fuller -- and
>rowdier.
> >
> >The fortune teller, bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes, mumbled to > >someone
> >about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The Madame, yet > >another glass of port in hand, introduced poet "whores" in a
>voice
> >suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.
> >
> >When Patricia Smith, a well-established poet, took the mike to declaim a > >long > >and rhythmical poem about love and making love, there were rock concert
> >cheers
> >from the crowd.
> >
> >"I always shudder when I pray," Smith intoned in a mesmerizing
>voice,
> >"so your name must be a prayer."
> >
> >Even for these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis
>sweeping
> >the country.
> >
> >One of the poets, 22-year-old Nina Cheng, was about to start a job at Bear > >Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is writing a play about
> >the > >experience and applying for a playwright's course at Yale.
> >
> >"I'd thought I'd do banking and get into the arts when I
>retired
> >-- not this early," said Cheng, known at the Brothel as The Opium >Eater.
> >
> >Another poetry prostitute, 27-year-old Rachel Herman-Gross, aka Simone,
> >worried
> >that crashing stock markets will pull the rug from under the arts scene.
> >"It's going to be a lot harder. A lot of artists are sustained by > >grants from people with money."
> >
> >But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the Poetry

> >Brothel proves there are ways to survive.
> >
> >"Money's always been scarce for artists and they're very > >resourceful people," said Edmund Voyer, 54, a hefty man described as
>an
> >"evangelist" on his business card and who came to the Zipper
>Factory
> >wearing a kilt.
> >
> >His drinking companion, Jennifer Hoa, 27, agreed money and art would always
> >find ways to meet.
> >
> >"I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer, but I come > >here," she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."
> >
> >The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.
> >
> >"Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems," she > >murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation. Or say you > >don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm hungry.'"
> >
>guidelines
> >
> >
> >
> >
>guidelines
> >
> >
>
>
>
>
>
>

↑ Index

110. Poetry Project

Events at The Poetry Project January

Thu 8 Jan 2009

We have a great week of events planned here at The Poetry Project!

Monday, January 12, 8 PM
Cyrus Console & Jessica Dessner

Cyrus Console is from Topeka, Kansas. His first book, Brief Under Water, is available from Burning Deck Press. He lives in Lawrence, Kansas. Jessica Dessner is slowly making the transition from dancer/choreographer to poet/visual artist. Her poems have appeared or are forthcoming in La Petite Zine, Sal Mimeo, The Invisible Stitch, and H_NGM_N, and her chapbook, Wit's End with Bric-a-Brac, was published by Green Zone in 2006. She holds a BA in Dance from Barnard College and recently completed the New School's Poetry MFA program. Her drawings will be featured in the artwork for two upcoming record releases, the Welcome Wagon's Welcome to the Welcome Wagon, and Osso's Run Rabbit, Run, a string arrangement of Sufjan Stevens' Enjoy Your Rabbit.

Wednesday, January 14, 8 PM
Samuel R. Delany & Renee Gladman

Critic and novelist Samuel R. Delany published his first novel, The Jewels of Aptor, in 1962 at the age of 20. Since then he has gone on to become one of the most widely influential science fiction writers in America. He is a winner of four Nebula Awards, two Hugo Awards, and the William Whitehead Memorial Award for a Lifetime¹s Contribution to Lesbian and Gay writing. His latest novel is Dark Reflections, and Through the Valley of the Nest of Spiders is forthcoming. He is a professor of English and creative writing at Temple University. Renee Gladman is the author of four books, most recently Newcomer Can't Swim, prose installations published by Kelsey St. Press in 2007. A new work, Toaf, is forthcoming from Atelos this fall. Gladman is editor and publisher of Leon Works, an independent press for experimental prose and other thought projects based in the sentence, and teaches fiction in the Program in Literary Arts at Brown University. She lives in Jamaica Plain.

Friday, January 16, 10 PM
Michael Basinski & Justin Katko

Michael Basinski is the curator of The Poetry Collection at the State University of New York at Buffalo. He performs his work as a solo poet and in ensemble with BuffFluxus. Among his many books of poetry are Of Venus 93 (Little Scratch Pad); All My Eggs Are Broken (BlazeVox); Heka (Factory School); Strange Things Begin to Happen When a Meteor Crashes in the Arizona Desert (Burning Press); and AuXin (an Amphibole book, Amphibole is a vehicle of They Are Flying Planes). His poems have appeared in Dandelion, BoxKite, Antennae, Unbearables Magazine, Open Letter, Torgue, Leopold Bloom, Wooden Head Review, Basta, Kiosk, Explosive Magazine, Deluxe Rubber Chicken, First Offense, Terrible Work, Juxta, Kenning, Witz, Lungfull, Lvng, Generator, Tinfish, Curicule Patterns, Score, Unarmed, Rampike, First Intensity, House Organ, Ferrum Wheel, End Note, Ur Vox, Damn the Caesars, Pilot, 1913, Filling Station, Public Illumination, Words, They Are Flying Planes and in others. Justin Katko is a poet and publisher. He edits the small press Critical Documents, which specializes in contemporary poetry from the UK and the US. He is completing an MFA in Electronic Writing at Brown University.

Become a Poetry Project Member! http://poetryproject.com/membership.php

Calendar: http://www.poetryproject.com/calendar.php

The Poetry Project is located at St. Mark's Church-in-the-Bowery
131 East 10th Street at Second Avenue
New York City 10003
Trains: 6, F, N, R, and L.
[redacted]
www.poetryproject.com

Admission is $8, $7 for students/seniors and $5 for members (though now those who take out a membership at $95 or higher will get in FREE to all regular readings).

We are wheelchair accessible with assistance and advance
notice. For more info call [redacted].

If you¹d like to be unsubscribed from this mailing list, please drop a line at [redacted].

↑ Index

111. Adam Tobin
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Thu 8 Jan 2009

I did overstate the case a bit -- only because i thought your reaction against The Poetry Brothel was itself overstated. Of course sex is different from sewing.

And sewing is different from mining, and mining is different from picking cotton, etc. -- all of these industries have had -- and do have -- their own slavery problems. And all of them have different occupational hazards and terrible working conditions that need to be addressed, and will only be addressed if the workers can bargain collectively because the bosses are interested only in profits etc. etc. etc.

I propose that a major reason that slavery persists in the sex industry is that the labor movement has utterly ignored those workers, largely because of the knee-jerk moralizing that is our culture's rote response to any mention of sex-work. (and because it apparently takes an involved argument to convince even well-meaning people that sex can be considered work at all.)

(I may be the old-fashioned one here, calling for solidarity across different types of work. But that old labor-movement ethic seems still useful to me -- whereas the old "shame-on-the-women-who-dress-like-whores" ethic seems singularly counterproductive.)

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
Sent: Tuesday, January 06, 2009 11:04 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

I guess I must be 200 years old--does nobody else agree that it's common sense that prostitution is essentially different from other kinds of 'work'?

On 12/23/08 10:00 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Why is the capitalist exploitation of women at a brothel worse than, > say, the capitalist exploitation of women at a Zipper Factory? It's > just a different kind of labor, no? Given that some artists are > seemingly comfortable with capitalism, why should they not acknowledge > it in the name of their ventures?
>
> I understand, of course, that brothels have a particular history with > a particular kind of violence attached to it, but so do factories. Do > you direct the same righteous anger at Andy Warhol?
>
>
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]]
> On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
> Sent: Monday, December 22, 2008 5:01 PM
> To: [redacted]
> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>
> brothels about as funny as slavery.

> which British feminist?
>
>
> On 12/21/08 1:44 PM, "steve russell" <[redacted]> wrote:
>
>> somewhat related: William Styron, the way he waxes his libido in
>> "Sophie's Choice."
>> i'm still looking for the book of essays by the British Feminist who >> enlightened me.
>>
>> --- On Sat, 12/20/08, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]> wrote:
>> From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
>> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>> To: [redacted]
>> Date: Saturday, December 20, 2008, 6:51 PM
>>
>> cooptation of poetry by capitalist objectification of women. not >> funny. to use a brothel as a metaphor is disgusting. I remember when >> Denise Levertov criticized a poet for using napalm as a metaphor for >> personal pain, saying you don't know what it feels like & it's much >> worse than the way you are characterizing it.
>>
>>
>> On 12/19/08 4:15 PM, "mIEKAL aND" <[redacted]>
>> wrote:
>>
>>> New York poetry brothel tempts with verse
>>>
>>> Published: Friday December 19, 2008
>>>
>>>
>> http://rawstory.com/news/afp/New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_1219
>> 2
>> 008.html
>>>
>>> The prostitute whispers, wets her lips and prepares to bare... her >>> heart with a poem.
>>>
>>> Welcome to New York's Poetry Brothel, where punters delve between >>> the lines, not the sheets.
>>>
>>> At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper

>>> Factory the look was bona fide bordello.
>>>
>>> Literary ladies of the night flitted between intimate, candle-lit >>> nooks, red lights and paintings of nudes.
>>>
>>> Some of the poetesses for sale sported retro-style garter belts and >>> frilly knickers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.
>>>
>>> But transactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind, not the >>> body, and a moment with the catalogue, replete with pictures and >>> whimsical descriptions, reveals what's on offer.
>>>
>>> Page four boasts The Professor, swearing to have heard "the wail of >>> your striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."
>>>
>>> Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets she
>> doesn't >>> know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 claiming >>> she can "coax your drum."
>>>
>>> Gigolo poets are available, not least Poetry Brothel co-founder
>>> Nicholas Adamski, who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops >>> tempestuous, dark looks with an eye patch.
>>>
>>> "Poetry is what I love more than anything," cooed The Madame,
>> the
>>> sultry spirit behind the whole idea.
>>>
>>> The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dressed for the >>> part in low-cut dress, elbow-length black gloves and a peacock headdress.
>>>
>>> "I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing poetry than listening to
>> some >>> old man sitting on a chair on a stage," she explained by the light >>> of a guttering candle.
>>>
>>> One-on-one encounters, for which "clients" pay three to five
>> dollars
>>> in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free reading, took >>> place upstairs.
>>>

>>> The "whores" read from their own material, much of which is free
>>> verse, making for intense, sometimes baffling performances.
>>>
>>> But for those needing a break, the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco
>>> guitarists, a fortune-teller, a blackjack table and a bar
>>> specializing in port and whisky
>>>
>>> The young hedonists, most of them students, appear to have struck a >>> surprisingly successful formula.
>>>
>>> "There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets show a
>> lot of
>>> cleavage," said The Professor, otherwise known as Jennifer Michael >>> Hecht, aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhattan's New School.
>>>
>>> She teaches writing to many of the Brothel's regulars and is proud >>> of the result.
>>>
>>> "It's kind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis. At two
>> in
>>> the morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place
>>> reading poetry," she said.
>>>
>>> "The custom is to read poetry alone, but we know that from Homer >>> onward, people read it aloud and in groups."
>>>
>>> By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed and getting fuller -- and
>>> rowdier.
>>>
>>> The fortune teller, bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes, mumbled >>> to someone about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The >> Madame,
>>> yet another glass of port in hand, introduced poet "whores" in a
>> voice
>>> suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.
>>>
>>> When Patricia Smith, a well-established poet, took the mike to >>> declaim a long and rhythmical poem about love and making love, there >>> were rock concert cheers from the crowd.
>>>
>>> "I always shudder when I pray," Smith intoned in a mesmerizing
>> voice,

>>> "so your name must be a prayer."
>>>
>>> Even for these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis
>>> sweeping the country.
>>>
>>> One of the poets, 22-year-old Nina Cheng, was about to start a job >>> at Bear Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is >>> writing a play about the experience and applying for a playwright's >>> course at Yale.
>>>
>>> "I'd thought I'd do banking and get into the arts when I
>> retired --
>>> not this early," said Cheng, known at the Brothel as The Opium Eater.
>>>
>>> Another poetry prostitute, 27-year-old Rachel Herman-Gross, aka >>> Simone, worried that crashing stock markets will pull the rug from >>> under the arts scene. "It's going to be a lot harder. A lot of >> artists
>>> are sustained by grants from people with money."
>>>
>>> But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the Poetry
>> Brothel
>>> proves there are ways to survive.
>>>
>>> "Money's always been scarce for artists and they're very
>> resourceful
>>> people," said Edmund Voyer, 54, a hefty man described as an
>>> "evangelist" on his business card and who came to the Zipper
>> Factory
>>> wearing a kilt.
>>>
>>> His drinking companion, Jennifer Hoa, 27, agreed money and art would >>> always find ways to meet.
>>>
>>> "I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer, but I come >>> here," she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."
>>>
>>> The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.
>>>
>>> "Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems,"
>> she >>> murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation. Or say you >>> don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm hungry.'"

>>>
>> guidelines &
>>
>>
>>
>>
>>
>>
>
>

↑ Index

112. Troy Camplin
Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Thu 8 Jan 2009

Let them. Ever heard of male prostitutes? Giggalos? I don't know what this had to do with reductivism. I would argue that the world is far more complex than the simple black and white approach you are taking to prostitution. It is the institution it is because it is illegal and stigmatized. You it is in fact your attitude toward it that makes it the degrading job it is. You are the one rejecting this or that sexual expression as wrong or degrading or something that should be made illegal. It your puritanism that's wrong-headed in my opinion, and the inability to think outside of that puritanistic ethic.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: amy king <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Thursday, January 8, 2009 5:03:29 PM
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

This is so wrong-headed, Troy, that I don't even know where to begin. I'm not talking about the debate over legalizing prostitution; I'm referring to your reductive, ridiculously simplistic rationale: Prostitution is just anatomy, Troy? That's right in line with your reasoning that you can't possibly be racist because you're married to a minority. Some news, Troy: you can be racist even if you are a minority! Ever heard of a self-loathing [insert your label here]? I can even be homophobic while being a lesbian! Such a reductionist claim is the primary pillar used to defend prostitution by the men who use and abuse the women stuck in that system, happily ignoring the psychological damage they pay to "work" these women -- "it's just anatomy" allows these guys to revel in the role they play in maintaining and enjoying such a crappy system that preys upon the systematic abuse of girls and women as well as economically-deprived women, who end up stuck using "a different set of muscles" to sustain themselves and likely their children whose father is nowhere to be seen, except possibly in one of those lines now asking the government to bail himself and his favorite industry out (http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2009/01/07/porn-bailout-larry-flynt_n_155878.html). Let those fathers and men turn to prostitution, then! It's just anatomy, after all.

Amy

_____

Recent work

http://www.writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/King.html

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

--- On Thu, 1/8/09, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Thursday, January 8, 2009, 12:26 AM

I think prostitution should be legalized precisely because of all the problems that come about precisely because it's not legal and because in a free market, two free adults should be able to enter into any sort of relationship they desire, whether that be employee-employer, prostitute-client, artist-patron, or any other sort of relationship. Prostitution is no different than a woman who has sex with a guy she has no intention of seeing again after accepting an expensive dinner and some drinks from him -- only she gets the money directly, and can use the money (hopefully) more wisely. So you think that it's a different kind of work only because genitalia are involved? It's labor using a different set of muscles is all.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, January 6, 2009 10:04:06 PM
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

I guess I must be 200 years old--does nobody else agree that it's common sense that prostitution is essentially different from other kinds of 'work'?

On 12/23/08 10:00 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Why is the capitalist exploitation of women at a brothel worse than, say,
> the capitalist exploitation of women at a Zipper Factory? It's just a > different kind of labor, no? Given that some artists are seemingly > comfortable with capitalism, why should they not acknowledge it in the name
> of their ventures?
>
> I understand, of course, that brothels have a particular history with a > particular kind of violence attached to it, but so do factories. Do you > direct the same righteous anger at Andy Warhol?
>
>
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On
> Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
> Sent: Monday, December 22, 2008 5:01 PM
> To: [redacted]
> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>
> brothels about as funny as slavery.
> which British feminist?
>
>
> On 12/21/08 1:44 PM, "steve russell"
<[redacted]> wrote:
>
>> somewhat related: William Styron, the way he waxes his libido in
>> "Sophie's Choice."
>> i'm still looking for the book of essays by the British Feminist
who >> enlightened me.
>>
>> --- On Sat, 12/20/08, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
wrote:
>> From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
>> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>> To: [redacted]
>> Date: Saturday, December 20, 2008, 6:51 PM
>>

>> cooptation of poetry by capitalist objectification of women. not >> funny. to use a brothel as a metaphor is disgusting. I remember when >> Denise Levertov criticized a poet for using napalm as a metaphor for >> personal pain, saying you don't know what it feels like &
it's much
>> worse than the way you are characterizing it.
>>
>>
>> On 12/19/08 4:15 PM, "mIEKAL aND"
<[redacted]>
>> wrote:
>>
>>> New York poetry brothel tempts with verse
>>>
>>> Published: Friday December 19, 2008
>>>
>>>
>> http://rawstory.com/news/afp/New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_12192
>> 008.html
>>>
>>> The prostitute whispers, wets her lips and prepares to bare... her >>> heart with a poem.
>>>
>>> Welcome to New York's Poetry Brothel, where punters delve
between the >>> lines, not the sheets.
>>>
>>> At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper >>> Factory the look was bona fide bordello.
>>>
>>> Literary ladies of the night flitted between intimate, candle-lit >>> nooks, red lights and paintings of nudes.
>>>
>>> Some of the poetesses for sale sported retro-style garter belts
and >>> frilly knickers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.
>>>
>>> But transactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind, not the body,
>>> and a moment with the catalogue, replete with pictures and whimsical
>>> descriptions, reveals what's on offer.

>>>
>>> Page four boasts The Professor, swearing to have heard "the wail of
>>> your striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."
>>>
>>> Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets she
>> doesn't >>> know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 claiming
>>> she can "coax your drum."
>>>
>>> Gigolo poets are available, not least Poetry Brothel co-founder
>>> Nicholas Adamski, who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops >>> tempestuous, dark looks with an eye patch.
>>>
>>> "Poetry is what I love more than anything," cooed The Madame,
>> the
>>> sultry spirit behind the whole idea.
>>>
>>> The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dressed for the part >>> in low-cut dress, elbow-length black gloves and a peacock headdress.
>>>
>>> "I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing poetry than listening to
>> some >>> old man sitting on a chair on a stage," she explained by the light of
>>> a guttering candle.
>>>
>>> One-on-one encounters, for which "clients" pay three to five >> dollars
>>> in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free reading, took place
>>> upstairs.
>>>
>>> The "whores" read from their own material, much of which
is free
>>> verse, making for intense, sometimes baffling performances.

>>>
>>> But for those needing a break, the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco
>>> guitarists, a fortune-teller, a blackjack table and a bar
>>> specializing in port and whisky
>>>
>>> The young hedonists, most of them students, appear to have struck
a >>> surprisingly successful formula.
>>>
>>> "There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets
show a
>> lot of >>> cleavage," said The Professor, otherwise known as Jennifer
Michael
>>> Hecht, aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhattan's New School.
>>>
>>> She teaches writing to many of the Brothel's regulars and is proud of
>>> the result.
>>>
>>> "It's kind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis.
At two
>> in >>> the morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place
>>> reading poetry," she said.
>>>
>>> "The custom is to read poetry alone, but we know that from Homer
>>> onward, people read it aloud and in groups."
>>>
>>> By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed and getting fuller --
and >>> rowdier.
>>>
>>> The fortune teller, bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes, mumbled
to >>> someone about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The >> Madame,
>>> yet another glass of port in hand, introduced poet
"whores" in a

>> voice
>>> suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.
>>>
>>> When Patricia Smith, a well-established poet, took the mike to >>> declaim a long and rhythmical poem about love and making love, there >>> were rock concert cheers from the crowd.
>>>
>>> "I always shudder when I pray," Smith intoned in a mesmerizing
>> voice,
>>> "so your name must be a prayer."
>>>
>>> Even for these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis
>>> sweeping the country.
>>>
>>> One of the poets, 22-year-old Nina Cheng, was about to start a job at >>> Bear Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is writing a >>> play about the experience and applying for a playwright's course at >>> Yale.
>>>
>>> "I'd thought I'd do banking and get into the arts when I
>> retired --
>>> not this early," said Cheng, known at the Brothel as The Opium Eater.
>>>
>>> Another poetry prostitute, 27-year-old Rachel Herman-Gross, aka >>> Simone, worried that crashing stock markets will pull the rug from >>> under the arts scene. "It's going to be a lot harder. A lot of >> artists
>>> are sustained by grants from people with money."
>>>
>>> But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the Poetry
>> Brothel
>>> proves there are ways to survive.

>>>
>>> "Money's always been scarce for artists and they're very
>> resourceful
>>> people," said Edmund Voyer, 54, a hefty man described as an >>> "evangelist" on his business card and who came to the Zipper
>> Factory
>>> wearing a kilt.
>>>
>>> His drinking companion, Jennifer Hoa, 27, agreed money and art would >>> always find ways to meet.
>>>
>>> "I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer,
but I come
>>> here," she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."
>>>
>>> The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.
>>>
>>> "Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems,"
>> she >>> murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation. Or say you >>> don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm hungry.'"
>>>
Check
>> guidelines &
>>
>>
>>
>>
>>
>>
>
guidelines
>
guidelines &

↑ Index

113. steve d. dalachinsky

Re: EZRA POUND FLASHPOINT EXTRA!

Thu 8 Jan 2009

---

happy new year to you and yers jack

On Mon, 5 Jan 2009 13:13:02 -0500 John Foley <[redacted]> writes: > (Due to the technical difficulty that I forgot to put a subject in > the subject > line of the email, this announcement, which originally appeared > January 1,
> might have missed many who were not intrigued by a subject listed as
> "no
> subject given." My apologies to those at FlashPoint, including me, > and to all > who would have liked to know about this new EXTRA! -- jrf)
>
> ANNOUNCING .....
>
> FLASHPOINT EXTRA!
> Winter 2009
> http://www.flashpointmag.com
>
> EZRA POUND & WALL STREET
>
> featuring
>
> CANTO XLV
> "With Usura"
>
> GIANO ACCAME
> (translated by WAYNE POUNDS)
>
> ELLEN CARDONA
>
> DAVID HICKMAN
>
> MAC OLIVER
>
> BRENDON KERESEY
>
> TONY EVANS
>

> ROSALIE GANCIE
>
> CARLO PARCELLI
>
> "Along the frontier > where the arts & politics clash ..."
>
>
>

↑ Index

114. Ruth Lepson

Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

Thu 8 Jan 2009

---

but WHY something gets you off is the question.

On 1/8/09 6:37 PM, "Mark Weiss" <[redacted]> wrote:

> I'm not sure what you're objecting to, as you seem to be paraphrasing what I said. In the best of all possible worlds there would probably be some voluntary prostitution, but I'd still wonder at the psychological cost to those who chose to make their living that way. Choosing to playact at prostitution, like the women in the poetry brothel, is simply fantasy, and no more destructive, I'd think, than wearing a pirate costume. It's under the category of "whatever gets you off."
>
> Mark
>
> At 01:45 PM 1/8/2009, steve russell wrote:
> interesting distinction: Genet did a number with the fantasy realm. But what, exactly, do you mean, Mark, by the fantasy of prostitution? Phone sex? I suppose that's somewhat harmless. But that ain't the real thing. When it's real, as in the sex trade, we're talking ugly/ugly/ugly.
>
> --- On Tue, 1/6/09, Mark Weiss <[redacted]> wrote:
> From: Mark Weiss <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Tuesday, January 6, 2009, 11:41 PM
>
> I think we need to make a distinction between prostitution and the fantasy of prostitution. Most prostitution is compelled or a response to desperation. Most fantasy prostitution, playing dress-up and the like, isn't.

At 02:34 PM 1/6/2009, you wrote:
I saw reference in there to men and gigolos. I have a problem with the old school "sex degrades women" feminist argument. Is a the location of a *brothel and the profession of prostitution always and inherently degrading* to women? I thought there were sex-positive feminists who were working against that idea.

-----Original Message-----
From: steve russell [mailto:[redacted]]
Sent: Sunday, December 21, 2008 5:49 PM
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

this seems pretty light hearted.
I'm sorry to hear about the wicked (objects, et cetera) capitalist.
i suspect that the most die hard feminist could enjoy her/himself.

--- On Fri, 12/19/08, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]> wrote:
From: mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
Subject: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Friday, December 19, 2008, 4:15 PM

New York poetry brothel tempts with verse

Published: Friday December 19, 2008

http://rawstory.com/news/afp/New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_12192008.html

The prostitute whispers, wets her lips and prepares to bare... her heart with a
poem.

Welcome to New York's Poetry Brothel, where punters delve between the lines, not the sheets.

At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper Factory the
look was bona fide bordello.

Literary ladies of the night flitted between intimate, candle-lit nooks, red lights and paintings of nudes.

Some of the poetesses for sale sported retro-style garter belts and frilly knickers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.

But transactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind, not the body, and a moment with the catalogue, replete with pictures and whimsical descriptions,
reveals what's on offer.

Page four boasts The Professor, swearing to have heard "the wail of your
striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."

Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets she doesn't know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 claiming she can "coax your drum."

Gigolo poets are available, not least Poetry Brothel co-founder Nicholas Adamski, who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops tempestuous, dark looks
with an eye patch.

"Poetry is what I love more than anything," cooed The Madame, the sultry spirit behind the whole idea.

The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dressed for the part in low-cut dress, elbow-length black gloves and a peacock headdress.

"I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing poetry than listening to some old man sitting on a chair on a stage," she explained by the light of a guttering candle.

One-on-one encounters, for which "clients" pay three to five dollars in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free reading, took place upstairs.

The "whores" read from their own material, much of which is free verse, making for intense, sometimes baffling performances.

But for those needing a break, the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco guitarists,
a fortune-teller, a blackjack table and a bar specializing in port and whisky

The young hedonists, most of them students, appear to have struck a surprisingly successful formula.

"There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets show a lot of cleavage," said The Professor, otherwise known as Jennifer Michael Hecht, aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhattan's New School.

She teaches writing to many of the Brothel's regulars and is proud of the result.

"It's kind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis. At two in the morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place reading poetry," she said.

"The custom is to read poetry alone, but we know that from Homer onward, people read it aloud and in groups."

By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed and getting fuller -- and rowdier.

The fortune teller, bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes, mumbled to someone about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The Madame, yet another glass of port in hand, introduced poet "whores" in a voice suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.

When Patricia Smith, a well-established poet, took the mike to declaim a long and rhythmical poem about love and making love, there were rock concert cheers from the crowd.

"I always shudder when I pray," Smith intoned in a mesmerizing voice, "so your name must be a prayer."

Even for these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis sweeping the country.

One of the poets, 22-year-old Nina Cheng, was about to start a job at Bear Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is writing a play about the experience and applying for a playwright's course at Yale.

"I'd thought I'd do banking and get into the arts when I
retired
-- not this early," said Cheng, known at the Brothel as The Opium Eater.

Another poetry prostitute, 27-year-old Rachel Herman-Gross, aka Simone,
worried
that crashing stock markets will pull the rug from under the arts scene.
"It's going to be a lot harder. A lot of artists are sustained by grants from people with money."

But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the Poetry
Brothel proves there are ways to survive.

"Money's always been scarce for artists and they're very resourceful people," said Edmund Voyer, 54, a hefty man described as
an
"evangelist" on his business card and who came to the Zipper
Factory
wearing a kilt.

His drinking companion, Jennifer Hoa, 27, agreed money and art would always find ways to meet.

"I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer, but I come here," she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."

The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.

"Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems," she murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation. Or say you don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm hungry.'"

guidelines

guidelines

↑ Index

115. Ruth Lepson
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Thu 8 Jan 2009

but I don't believe either considering it labor or shame on women is right. in a free society women cd dress any way they wanted not just in ways dictated by the society as sexy.

On 1/8/09 8:22 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:

> I did overstate the case a bit -- only because i thought your reaction against The Poetry Brothel was itself overstated. Of course sex is different from sewing.
>
> And sewing is different from mining, and mining is different from picking cotton, etc. -- all of these industries have had -- and do have -- their own slavery problems. And all of them have different occupational hazards and terrible working conditions that need to be addressed, and will only be addressed if the workers can bargain collectively because the bosses are interested only in profits etc. etc. etc.
>
> I propose that a major reason that slavery persists in the sex industry is that the labor movement has utterly ignored those workers, largely because of the knee-jerk moralizing that is our culture's rote response to any mention of sex-work. (and because it apparently takes an involved argument to convince even well-meaning people that sex can be considered work at all.)
>
> (I may be the old-fashioned one here, calling for solidarity across different types of work. But that old labor-movement ethic seems still useful to me -- whereas the old "shame-on-the-women-who-dress-like-whores" ethic seems singularly counterproductive.)
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
> Sent: Tuesday, January 06, 2009 11:04 PM
> To: [redacted]
> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>
> I guess I must be 200 years old--does nobody else agree that it's common sense that prostitution is essentially different from other kinds of 'work'?

On 12/23/08 10:00 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:

Why is the capitalist exploitation of women at a brothel worse than, say, the capitalist exploitation of women at a Zipper Factory? It's just a different kind of labor, no? Given that some artists are seemingly comfortable with capitalism, why should they not acknowledge it in the name of their ventures?

I understand, of course, that brothels have a particular history with a particular kind of violence attached to it, but so do factories. Do you direct the same righteous anger at Andy Warhol?

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]]
On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
Sent: Monday, December 22, 2008 5:01 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

brothels about as funny as slavery.
which British feminist?

On 12/21/08 1:44 PM, "steve russell" <[redacted]> wrote:

somewhat related: William Styron, the way he waxes his libido in "Sophie's Choice."
i'm still looking for the book of essays by the British Feminist who enlightened me.

--- On Sat, 12/20/08, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Saturday, December 20, 2008, 6:51 PM

cooptation of poetry by capitalist objectification of women. not funny. to use a brothel as a metaphor is disgusting. I remember when Denise Levertov criticized a poet for using napalm as a metaphor for personal pain, saying you don't know what it feels like & it's much worse than the way you are characterizing it.

> On 12/19/08 4:15 PM, "mIEKAL aND" <[redacted]>
> wrote:
>
> New York poetry brothel tempts with verse
>
> Published: Friday December 19, 2008
>
> http://rawstory.com/news/afp/New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_1219
> 2
> 008.html
>
> The prostitute whispers, wets her lips and prepares to bare... her > heart with a poem.
>
> Welcome to New York's Poetry Brothel, where punters delve between > the lines, not the sheets.
>
> At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper > Factory the look was bona fide bordello.
>
> Literary ladies of the night flitted between intimate, candle-lit
> nooks, red lights and paintings of nudes.
>
> Some of the poetesses for sale sported retro-style garter belts and
> frilly knickers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.
>
> But transactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind, not the > body, and a moment with the catalogue, replete with pictures and > whimsical descriptions, reveals what's on offer.
>
> Page four boasts The Professor, swearing to have heard "the wail of
> your striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."
>
> Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets she
> doesn't > know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 claiming > she can "coax your drum."
>
> Gigolo poets are available, not least Poetry Brothel co-founder
> Nicholas Adamski, who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops
> tempestuous, dark looks with an eye patch.
>
> "Poetry is what I love more than anything," cooed The Madame,
> the
> sultry spirit behind the whole idea.
>
> The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dressed for the part in low-cut dress, elbow-length black gloves and a peacock headdress.

"I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing poetry than listening to some old man sitting on a chair on a stage," she explained by the light of a guttering candle.

One-on-one encounters, for which "clients" pay three to five dollars in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free reading, took place upstairs.

The "whores" read from their own material, much of which is free verse, making for intense, sometimes baffling performances.

But for those needing a break, the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco guitarists, a fortune-teller, a blackjack table and a bar specializing in port and whisky

The young hedonists, most of them students, appear to have struck a surprisingly successful formula.

"There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets show a lot of cleavage," said The Professor, otherwise known as Jennifer Michael Hecht, aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhattan's New School.

She teaches writing to many of the Brothel's regulars and is proud of the result.

"It's kind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis. At two in the morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place reading poetry," she said.

"The custom is to read poetry alone, but we know that from Homer onward, people read it aloud and in groups."

By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed and getting fuller -- and rowdier.

The fortune teller, bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes, mumbled to someone about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The Madame,
yet another glass of port in hand, introduced poet "whores" in a voice
suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.

When Patricia Smith, a well-established poet, took the mike to declaim a long and rhythmical poem about love and making love, there were rock concert cheers from the crowd.

"I always shudder when I pray," Smith intoned in a mesmerizing voice,
"so your name must be a prayer."

Even for these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis sweeping the country.

One of the poets, 22-year-old Nina Cheng, was about to start a job at Bear Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is writing a play about the experience and applying for a playwright's course at Yale.

"I'd thought I'd do banking and get into the arts when I retired -- not this early," said Cheng, known at the Brothel as The Opium Eater.

Another poetry prostitute, 27-year-old Rachel Herman-Gross, aka Simone, worried that crashing stock markets will pull the rug from under the arts scene. "It's going to be a lot harder. A lot of artists are sustained by grants from people with money."

But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the Poetry Brothel proves there are ways to survive.

"Money's always been scarce for artists and they're very resourceful people," said Edmund Voyer, 54, a hefty man described as an "evangelist" on his business card and who came to the Zipper Factory
wearing a kilt.

His drinking companion, Jennifer Hoa, 27, agreed money and art would always find ways to meet.

"I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer, but I come here," she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."

The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.

"Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems," she > murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation. Or say you don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm hungry.'"

>
> guidelines &

↑ Index

116. Ruth Lepson

Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

Thu 8 Jan 2009

---

this is getting depressing. why don't you try being a prostitute for a week and see how you feel about it. why is it puritanism to imagine an egalitarian world where women are not objectified?

On 1/8/09 8:44 PM, "Troy Camplin" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Let them. Ever heard of male prostitutes? Giggalos? I don't know what this had to do with reductivism. I would argue that the world is far more complex than the simple black and white approach you are taking to prostitution. It is the institution it is because it is illegal and stigmatized. You it is in fact your attitude toward it that makes it the degrading job it is. You are the one rejecting this or that sexual expression as wrong or degrading or something that should be made illegal. It your puritanism that's wrong-headed in my opinion, and the inability to think outside of that puritanistic ethic.
>
> Troy Camplin
>
> ---
>
> From: amy king <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Thursday, January 8, 2009 5:03:29 PM
> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>
> This is so wrong-headed, Troy, that I don't even know where to begin. I'm not talking about the debate over legalizing prostitution; I'm referring to your reductive, ridiculously simplistic rationale: Prostitution is just anatomy, Troy? That's right in line with your reasoning that you can't possibly be racist because you're married to a minority. Some news, Troy: you can be racist even if you are a minority! Ever heard of a self-loathing [insert your label here]? I can even be homophobic while being a lesbian! Such a reductionist claim is the primary pillar used to defend prostitution by the men who use and abuse the women stuck in that system, happily ignoring the psychological damage they pay to "work" these women -- "it's just anatomy" allows these guys to revel in the role they play in maintaining and enjoying such a crappy system that preys upon the systematic abuse of girls and women as well as economically-deprived women, who end up stuck using "a different set of muscles" to sustain themselves and likely their children whose father is nowhere to be seen, except possibly in one of those lines now asking the government to bail himself and his favorite industry out (http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2009/01/07/porn-bailout-larry-flynt_n_155878.html). Let those fathers and men turn to prostitution, then! It's just anatomy, after all.

Amy

_____

Recent work

http://www.writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/King.html

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

--- On Thu, 1/8/09, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Thursday, January 8, 2009, 12:26 AM

I think prostitution should be legalized precisely because of all the problems that come about precisely because it's not legal and because in a free market, two free adults should be able to enter into any sort of relationship they desire, whether that be employee-employer, prostitute-client, artist-patron, or any other sort of relationship. Prostitution is no different than a woman who has sex with a guy she has no intention of seeing again after accepting an expensive dinner and some drinks from him -- only she gets the money directly, and can use the money (hopefully) more wisely. So you think that it's a different kind of work only because genitalia are involved? It's labor using a different set of muscles is all.

Troy Camplin

From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, January 6, 2009 10:04:06 PM
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

I guess I must be 200 years old--does nobody else agree that it's common sense that prostitution is essentially different from other kinds of 'work'?

On 12/23/08 10:00 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]>
wrote:

Why is the capitalist exploitation of women at a brothel worse than, say, the capitalist exploitation of women at a Zipper Factory? It's just a different kind of labor, no? Given that some artists are seemingly comfortable with capitalism, why should they not acknowledge it in the name of their ventures?

I understand, of course, that brothels have a particular history with a particular kind of violence attached to it, but so do factories. Do you direct the same righteous anger at Andy Warhol?

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
Sent: Monday, December 22, 2008 5:01 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

brothels about as funny as slavery.
which British feminist?

On 12/21/08 1:44 PM, "steve russell"
<[redacted]> wrote:

somewhat related: William Styron, the way he waxes his libido in
"Sophie's Choice."
i'm still looking for the book of essays by the British Feminist
who
enlightened me.

--- On Sat, 12/20/08, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
wrote:
From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Saturday, December 20, 2008, 6:51 PM

cooptation of poetry by capitalist objectification of women. not funny. to use a brothel as a metaphor is disgusting. I remember when Denise Levertov criticized a poet for using napalm as a metaphor for personal pain, saying you don't know what it feels like &
it's much
worse than the way you are characterizing it.

On 12/19/08 4:15 PM, "mIEKAL aND"
<[redacted]>
wrote:

New York poetry brothel tempts with verse

Published: Friday December 19, 2008

http://rawstory.com/news/afp/New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_12192
008.html

The prostitute whispers, wets her lips and prepares to bare... her heart with a poem.

Welcome to New York's Poetry Brothel, where punters delve
between the
lines, not the sheets.

At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper
Factory the look was bona fide bordello.

Literary ladies of the night flitted between intimate, candle-lit nooks, red lights and paintings of nudes.

Some of the poetesses for sale sported retro-style garter belts and
frilly knickers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.

But transactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind, not the body, and a moment with the catalogue, replete with pictures and whimsical descriptions, reveals what's on offer.

Page four boasts The Professor, swearing to have heard "the wail of your striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."

Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets she doesn't know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 claiming
she can "coax your drum."

Gigolo poets are available, not least Poetry Brothel co-founder
Nicholas Adamski, who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops
tempestuous, dark looks with an eye patch.

"Poetry is what I love more than anything," cooed The Madame,
the
sultry spirit behind the whole idea.

The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dressed for the part in low-cut dress, elbow-length black gloves and a peacock headdress.

"I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing poetry than listening to some old man sitting on a chair on a stage," she explained by the light of
a guttering candle.

One-on-one encounters, for which "clients" pay three to five
dollars
in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free reading, took place

upstairs.

The "whores" read from their own material, much of which
is free
verse, making for intense, sometimes baffling performances.

But for those needing a break, the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco
guitarists, a fortune-teller, a blackjack table and a bar
specializing in port and whisky

The young hedonists, most of them students, appear to have struck
a
surprisingly successful formula.

"There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets show a
lot of cleavage," said The Professor, otherwise known as Jennifer
Michael
Hecht, aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhattan's New School.

She teaches writing to many of the Brothel's regulars and is proud of
the result.

"It's kind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis.
At two
in the morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place
reading poetry," she said.

"The custom is to read poetry alone, but we know that from Homer
onward, people read it aloud and in groups."

By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed and getting fuller --
and rowdier.

The fortune teller, bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes, mumbled
to someone about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The Madame,
yet another glass of port in hand, introduced poet
"whores" in a

voice
suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.

When Patricia Smith, a well-established poet, took the mike to declaim a long and rhythmical poem about love and making love,
there
were rock concert cheers from the crowd.

"I always shudder when I pray," Smith intoned in a mesmerizing
voice,
"so your name must be a prayer."

Even for these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis
sweeping the country.

One of the poets, 22-year-old Nina Cheng, was about to start a job
at Bear Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is writing
a play about the experience and applying for a playwright's course at Yale.

"I'd thought I'd do banking and get into the arts
when I
retired -- not this early," said Cheng, known at the Brothel as The Opium Eater.

Another poetry prostitute, 27-year-old Rachel Herman-Gross, aka Simone, worried that crashing stock markets will pull the rug from under the arts scene. "It's going to be a lot harder. A
lot of
artists
are sustained by grants from people with money."

But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the Poetry
Brothel
proves there are ways to survive.

"Money's always been scarce for artists and they're
very resourceful
people," said Edmund Voyer, 54, a hefty man described as an "evangelist" on his business card and who came to the

Zipper
Factory
wearing a kilt.

His drinking companion, Jennifer Hoa, 27, agreed money and art would always find ways to meet.

"I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer,
but I come
here," she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."

The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.

"Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems,"
she murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation. Or say you don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm hungry.'"

Check
guidelines &

guidelines

guidelines &

↑ Index

117. amy king
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Thu 8 Jan 2009

Way to try to flip the script, Troy. If you call me a Puritan (your usual name-calling and labeling tactic), maybe no one will notice that you are the one with the "black and white approach." The "Puritan" accusation remains the old stand-by, an all too common justification against anyone critical of a system that certainly capitalizes on the disenfranchisement (and abuse) of women, no matter how many ways you try to spin what happens in a sex-(and-often-worse)-for-cash exchange. Prostitution is just "a different set of muscles" is as reductive a defense as you can get.

And trying to make "prostitution" synonymous with "sexual expression" is yet another way to render invisible the harshness that real prostitutes --not romanticized made-for-TV dominatrices-- contend with daily to survive. It would be very convenient for your fantastical rationale if it were only my "attitude toward it that makes it the degrading job it is." Sometimes women, and some men, risk speaking out against the atrocities that prostitutes have to face and are often accused of such nonsense as "degrading the job" in an effort to shut us up. The risk for those of us who are critical of such an "industry" is that each time we speak, several people, often men, will then accuse of us of all sorts of "Puritanical" reactions, and then we get to hear the justifications of why prostitution is really great and just "sexual expression."

The majority of prostitutes in the world are women, and the majority of them enter the "trade" because of acute poverty, prior emotional/sexual abuse, or have been kidnapped. In the latter case, the girls and women have been trafficked and are slaves, not workers even in the remotest sense. Only a very small percentage of prostitutes will say they do what they do for "sexual expression", and often prostitutes turn to drug use just to get through the "work". So much for "expression." Rare is the glamorous house run and protected by a madame who pays her luxuriating prostitutes well. Much, much more common is the work demanded by a pimp who puts his "workers" at risk by making johns pay more so that the "workers" will be forced to go bareback or worse. Even legalized, I doubt the hierarchy of disbursement in such an industry would change; the "business", run by men, would get the most money, starting with whomever owned the "business" and on down to the bouncers, while the prostitutes would continue to receive a very small percentage, despite the fact that it is their bodies that are put at risk, that perform, and receive, all of the "work," and the ensuing psychological and physical harm that we would like to tiptoe around and pretend doesn't happen since one "chooses" to enter such an exchange.

The actual work of handing your body over to a stranger for some cash, paradoxically so that your body can continue to survive, is what makes the "job" degrading, Troy. Call me a Puritan and any other names you like, call it "sexual expression" when the livery drivers in my neighborhood pay poor women twenty bucks for a blow job between cars or in the front seat, but please try to imagine the details of the work you are trying to romanticize before you reduce what these women do to "sexual expression" and "workers" just using a "different set of muscles".

Amy

_____

Recent work

http://www.writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/King.html

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

--- On Thu, 1/8/09, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Subject: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Thursday, January 8, 2009, 8:44 PM

Let them. Ever heard of male prostitutes? Giggalos? I don't know what this had to do with reductivism. I would argue that the world is far more complex than the simple black and white approach you are taking to prostitution. It is the institution it is because it is illegal and stigmatized. You it is in fact your attitude toward it that makes it the degrading job it is. You are the one rejecting this or that sexual expression as wrong or degrading or something that should be made illegal. It your puritanism that's wrong-headed in my opinion, and the inability to think outside of that puritanistic ethic.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: amy king <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Thursday, January 8, 2009 5:03:29 PM
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

This is so wrong-headed, Troy, that I don't even know where to begin. I'm not talking about the debate over legalizing prostitution; I'm referring to your reductive, ridiculously simplistic rationale: Prostitution is just anatomy, Troy? That's right in line with your reasoning that you can't possibly be racist because you're married to a minority. Some news, Troy: you can be racist even if you are a minority! Ever heard of a self-loathing [insert your label here]? I can even be homophobic while being a lesbian! Such a reductionist claim is the primary pillar used to defend prostitution by the men who use and abuse the women stuck in that system, happily ignoring the psychological damage they pay to "work" these women -- "it's just anatomy" allows these guys to revel in the role they play in maintaining and enjoying such a crappy system that preys upon the systematic abuse of girls and women as well as economically-deprived women, who end up stuck using "a different set of muscles" to sustain themselves and likely their children whose father is nowhere to be seen, except possibly in one of those lines now asking the government to bail himself and his favorite industry out (http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2009/01/07/porn-bailout-larry-flynt_n_155878.html). Let those fathers and men turn to prostitution, then! It's just anatomy, after all.

Amy

_____

Recent work

http://www.writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/King.html

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

--- On Thu, 1/8/09, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Thursday, January 8, 2009, 12:26 AM

I think prostitution should be legalized precisely because of all the problems that come about precisely because it's not legal and because in a free market, two free adults should be able to enter into any sort of relationship they desire, whether that be employee-employer, prostitute-client, artist-patron, or any other sort of relationship. Prostitution is no different than a woman who has sex with a guy she has no intention of seeing again after accepting an expensive dinner and some drinks from him -- only she gets the money directly, and can use the money (hopefully) more wisely. So you think that it's a different kind of work only because genitalia are involved? It's labor using a different set of muscles is all.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]

Sent: Tuesday, January 6, 2009 10:04:06 PM
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

I guess I must be 200 years old--does nobody else agree that it's common sense that prostitution is essentially different from other kinds of 'work'?

On 12/23/08 10:00 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Why is the capitalist exploitation of women at a brothel worse than, say,
> the capitalist exploitation of women at a Zipper Factory? It's just a > different kind of labor, no? Given that some artists are seemingly > comfortable with capitalism, why should they not acknowledge it in the name
> of their ventures?
>
> I understand, of course, that brothels have a particular history with a > particular kind of violence attached to it, but so do factories. Do you > direct the same righteous anger at Andy Warhol?
>
>
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On
> Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
> Sent: Monday, December 22, 2008 5:01 PM
> To: [redacted]
> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>
> brothels about as funny as slavery.
> which British feminist?
>
>
> On 12/21/08 1:44 PM, "steve russell"
<[redacted]> wrote:
>
>> somewhat related: William Styron, the way he waxes his libido in
>> "Sophie's Choice."
>> i'm still looking for the book of essays by the British Feminist
who >> enlightened me.
>>
>> --- On Sat, 12/20/08, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
wrote:
>> From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>

>> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>> To: [redacted]
>> Date: Saturday, December 20, 2008, 6:51 PM
>>
>> cooptation of poetry by capitalist objectification of women. not >> funny. to use a brothel as a metaphor is disgusting. I remember when >> Denise Levertov criticized a poet for using napalm as a metaphor for >> personal pain, saying you don't know what it feels like &
it's much
>> worse than the way you are characterizing it.
>>
>>
>> On 12/19/08 4:15 PM, "mIEKAL aND"
<[redacted]>
>> wrote:
>>
>>> New York poetry brothel tempts with verse
>>>
>>> Published: Friday December 19, 2008
>>>
>>>
>> http://rawstory.com/news/afp/New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_12192
>> 008.html
>>>
>>> The prostitute whispers, wets her lips and prepares to bare... her >>> heart with a poem.
>>>
>>> Welcome to New York's Poetry Brothel, where punters delve
between the >>> lines, not the sheets.
>>>
>>> At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper >>> Factory the look was bona fide bordello.
>>>
>>> Literary ladies of the night flitted between intimate, candle-lit >>> nooks, red lights and paintings of nudes.
>>>
>>> Some of the poetesses for sale sported retro-style garter belts
and >>> frilly knickers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.
>>>
>>> But transactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind, not the

body,
>>> and a moment with the catalogue, replete with pictures and
whimsical
>>> descriptions, reveals what's on offer.
>>>
>>> Page four boasts The Professor, swearing to have heard "the wail of
>>> your striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."
>>>
>>> Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets she
>> doesn't >>> know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 claiming
>>> she can "coax your drum."
>>>
>>> Gigolo poets are available, not least Poetry Brothel co-founder
>>> Nicholas Adamski, who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops >>> tempestuous, dark looks with an eye patch.
>>>
>>> "Poetry is what I love more than anything," cooed The Madame,
>> the
>>> sultry spirit behind the whole idea.
>>>
>>> The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dressed for the part >>> in low-cut dress, elbow-length black gloves and a peacock headdress.
>>>
>>> "I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing poetry than listening to
>> some >>> old man sitting on a chair on a stage," she explained by the light of
>>> a guttering candle.
>>>
>>> One-on-one encounters, for which "clients" pay three to five >> dollars
>>> in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free reading, took place
>>> upstairs.

>>>
>>> The "whores" read from their own material, much of which
is free
>>> verse, making for intense, sometimes baffling performances.
>>>
>>> But for those needing a break, the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco
>>> guitarists, a fortune-teller, a blackjack table and a bar
>>> specializing in port and whisky
>>>
>>> The young hedonists, most of them students, appear to have struck
a >>> surprisingly successful formula.
>>>
>>> "There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets
show a
>> lot of >>> cleavage," said The Professor, otherwise known as Jennifer
Michael
>>> Hecht, aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhattan's New School.
>>>
>>> She teaches writing to many of the Brothel's regulars and is proud of
>>> the result.
>>>
>>> "It's kind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis.
At two
>> in >>> the morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place
>>> reading poetry," she said.
>>>
>>> "The custom is to read poetry alone, but we know that from Homer
>>> onward, people read it aloud and in groups."
>>>
>>> By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed and getting fuller --
and >>> rowdier.
>>>
>>> The fortune teller, bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes, mumbled
to >>> someone about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The >> Madame,

>>> yet another glass of port in hand, introduced poet
"whores" in a
>> voice
>>> suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.
>>>
>>> When Patricia Smith, a well-established poet, took the mike to >>> declaim a long and rhythmical poem about love and making love,
there
>>> were rock concert cheers from the crowd.
>>>
>>> "I always shudder when I pray," Smith intoned in a mesmerizing
>> voice,
>>> "so your name must be a prayer."
>>>
>>> Even for these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis
>>> sweeping the country.
>>>
>>> One of the poets, 22-year-old Nina Cheng, was about to start a job
at >>> Bear Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is writing
a >>> play about the experience and applying for a playwright's course at >>> Yale.
>>>
>>> "I'd thought I'd do banking and get into the arts
when I
>> retired -- >>> not this early," said Cheng, known at the Brothel as The Opium Eater.
>>>
>>> Another poetry prostitute, 27-year-old Rachel Herman-Gross, aka >>> Simone, worried that crashing stock markets will pull the rug from >>> under the arts scene. "It's going to be a lot harder. A
lot of
>> artists
>>> are sustained by grants from people with money."
>>>

>>> But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the Poetry
>> Brothel
>>> proves there are ways to survive.
>>>
>>> "Money's always been scarce for artists and they're very
>> resourceful
>>> people," said Edmund Voyer, 54, a hefty man described as an >>> "evangelist" on his business card and who came to the Zipper
>> Factory
>>> wearing a kilt.
>>>
>>> His drinking companion, Jennifer Hoa, 27, agreed money and art would >>> always find ways to meet.
>>>
>>> "I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer,
but I come
>>> here," she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."
>>>
>>> The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.
>>>
>>> "Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems,"
>> she >>> murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation. Or say you >>> don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm hungry.'"
>>>
Check
>> guidelines &
>>
>>
>>
>>
>>
>>
>

guidelines
>
guidelines &

↑ Index

118. CA Conrad
Re: OPEN LETTER to Rick Warren's new friend Melissa Etheridge
Thu 8 Jan 2009

Sharon Mesmer wrote:
<<<CA, I really hope you sent both this one and the one to Elizabeth <<<Alexander to them!

Thanks Sharon, and yes, but I don't care if they ever read them, it's all about getting word out, especially why Rick Warren is the same voice as the clergy who ordained the Holocaust in WWII.

But they've been picked up and printed elsewhere on the Internet and now I'm getting lots of e-mail from people who are praying for me. I was saying thanks, at first, but, it's too much to try to write to all of these people and ask if they understand WHY it is I even wrote what I wrote, you know? It's like talking to my relatives who won't let me use the bathroom because they're afraid of AIDS, which I don't even have but they keep thinking AIDS equals queer, like 911 equals Iraq, it's such a fucking mess.

But like I said I really don't want to change people, that's a job someone else needs to take on. What I want is to reach all the queer kids in these families before they kill themselves, and Melissa Etheridge is not doing that by saying ISN'T IT GREAT RICK WARREN OWNS ALL MY RECORDS? Please, who cares if he owns her records?

And it's true I keep thinking What Would kari Think? No one kept a tally of the daily massacre like kari edwards did on her blogs. She was so amazing, and I could never withstand keeping such things in check every single day, it's a brutal world. It gets into the whole idea of WHAT IS IT we are doing here on planet Earth anyway, and it races into a nonstop self analysis that winds up not coming up with answers, really, in the end. Which leads back to those who accept scripted answers and judge at will those who do not fit the answers settled for. One big circle of lawn darts coming down, and do you stand in the way, get out of the way, and when you get out of the way are you busy taking notes, busy saying nothing, not busy like watching tv, or, maybe we just need a break? We all need a break. When we were in Philly getting REALLY ANGRY about the murder of Erika Keels the thing that kept being said in the meetings I was at for the protest demonstration was that NO ONE CARED, but then someone would say, HEY THERE'S 20 OF US IN THIS ROOM WHO CARE.

A few days ago I had a dream that I was at an anti war march and the signs were for something else, the signs were about other things like A LOT of different OTHER things that had nothing to do with the anti war march and I kept asking everyone what was going on and getting no sensible answers all along the road and I made my own sign that WAS about the war but then it would suddenly be about gay marriage and I didn't even want to get married, then at some point I remember thinking something really fucking paranoid like it was a plot to confuse everyone, but then that didn't make sense because WE WERE everyone after all, right, so.... Glad to wake from that one feeling a little clearer about how things are not so clear these days for us.

CAConrad
http://PhillySound.blogspot.com <http://phillysound.blogspot.com/>

↑ Index

119. Ruth Lepson
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Thu 8 Jan 2009

---

thank you, Amy. Well said.

On 1/8/09 10:42 PM, "amy king" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Way to try to flip the script, Troy. If you call me a Puritan (your usual name-calling and labeling tactic), maybe no one will notice that you are the one with the "black and white approach." The "Puritan" accusation remains the old stand-by, an all too common justification against anyone critical of a system that certainly capitalizes on the disenfranchisement (and abuse) of women, no matter how many ways you try to spin what happens in a sex-(and-often-worse)-for-cash exchange. Prostitution is just "a different set of muscles" is as reductive a defense as you can get.
>
> And trying to make "prostitution" synonymous with "sexual expression" is yet another way to render invisible the harshness that real prostitutes --not romanticized made-for-TV dominatrices-- contend with daily to survive. It would be very convenient for your fantastical rationale if it were only my "attitude toward it that makes it the degrading job it is." Sometimes women, and some men, risk speaking out against the atrocities that prostitutes have to face and are often accused of such nonsense as "degrading the job" in an effort to shut us up. The risk for those of us who are critical of such an "industry" is that each time we speak, several people, often men, will then accuse of us of all sorts of "Puritanical" reactions, and then we get to hear the justifications of why prostitution is really great and just "sexual expression."
>
> The majority of prostitutes in the world are women, and the majority of them enter the "trade" because of acute poverty, prior emotional/sexual abuse, or have been kidnapped. In the latter case, the girls and women have been trafficked and are slaves, not workers even in the remotest sense. Only a very small percentage of prostitutes will say they do what they do for "sexual expression", and often prostitutes turn to drug use just to get through the "work". So much for "expression." Rare is the glamorous house run and protected by a madame who pays her luxuriating prostitutes well. Much, much more common is the work demanded by a pimp who puts his "workers" at risk by making johns pay more so that the "workers" will be forced to go bareback or worse. Even legalized, I doubt the hierarchy of disbursement in such an industry would change; the "business", run by men, would get the most money, starting with whomever owned the "business" and on down to the bouncers, while the prostitutes would continue to receive a very small percentage, despite the fact that it is their bodies that are put at risk, that perform, and receive, all of the "work," and the ensuing psychological and physical harm that we would like to tiptoe around and pretend doesn't happen since one "chooses" to enter such an exchange.

The actual work of handing your body over to a stranger for some cash, paradoxically so that your body can continue to survive, is what makes the "job" degrading, Troy. Call me a Puritan and any other names you like, call it "sexual expression" when the livery drivers in my neighborhood pay poor women twenty bucks for a blow job between cars or in the front seat, but please try to imagine the details of the work you are trying to romanticize before you reduce what these women do to "sexual expression" and "workers" just using a "different set of muscles".

Amy

Recent work

http://www.writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/King.html

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

--- On Thu, 1/8/09, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Subject: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]

Date: Thursday, January 8, 2009, 8:44 PM

Let them. Ever heard of male prostitutes? Giggalos? I don't know what this had to do with reductivism. I would argue that the world is far more complex than the simple black and white approach you are taking to prostitution. It is the institution it is because it is illegal and stigmatized. You it is in fact your attitude toward it that makes it the degrading job it is. You are the one rejecting this or that sexual expression as wrong or degrading or something that should be made illegal. It your puritanism that's wrong-headed in my opinion, and the inability to think outside of that puritanistic ethic.

Troy Camplin

From: amy king <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Thursday, January 8, 2009 5:03:29 PM
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

This is so wrong-headed, Troy, that I don't even know where to begin. I'm not talking about the debate over legalizing prostitution; I'm referring to your reductive, ridiculously simplistic rationale: Prostitution is just anatomy, Troy? That's right in line with your reasoning that you can't possibly be racist because you're married to a minority. Some news, Troy: you can be racist even if you are a minority! Ever heard of a self-loathing [insert your label here]? I can even be homophobic while being a lesbian! Such a reductionist claim is the primary pillar used to defend prostitution by the men who use and abuse the women stuck in that system, happily ignoring the psychological damage they pay to "work" these women -- "it's just anatomy" allows these guys to revel in the role they play in maintaining and enjoying such a crappy system that preys upon the systematic abuse of girls and women as well as economically-deprived women, who end up stuck using "a different set of muscles" to sustain themselves and likely their children whose father is nowhere to be seen, except possibly in one of those lines now asking the government to bail himself and his favorite industry out (http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2009/01/07/porn-bailout-larry-flynt_n_155878.html). Let those fathers and men turn to prostitution, then! It's just anatomy, after all.

Amy

_____

Recent work

http://www.writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/King.html

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

--- On Thu, 1/8/09, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Thursday, January 8, 2009, 12:26 AM

I think prostitution should be legalized precisely because of all the problems that come about precisely because it's not legal and because in a free market, two free adults should be able to enter into any sort of relationship they desire, whether that be employee-employer, prostitute-client, artist-patron, or any other sort of relationship. Prostitution is no different than a woman who has sex with a guy she has no intention of seeing again after accepting an expensive dinner and some drinks from him -- only she gets the money directly, and can use the money (hopefully) more wisely. So you think that it's a different kind of work only because genitalia are involved? It's labor using a different set of muscles is all.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, January 6, 2009 10:04:06 PM
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

I guess I must be 200 years old--does nobody else agree that it's common sense that prostitution is essentially different from other kinds of 'work'?

On 12/23/08 10:00 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:

Why is the capitalist exploitation of women at a brothel worse than, say, the capitalist exploitation of women at a Zipper Factory? It's just a different kind of labor, no? Given that some artists are seemingly comfortable with capitalism, why should they not acknowledge it in the name of their ventures?

I understand, of course, that brothels have a particular history with a particular kind of violence attached to it, but so do factories. Do you direct the same righteous anger at Andy Warhol?

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
Sent: Monday, December 22, 2008 5:01 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

brothels about as funny as slavery.
which British feminist?

On 12/21/08 1:44 PM, "steve russell" <[redacted]> wrote:

somewhat related: William Styron, the way he waxes his libido in "Sophie's Choice."
i'm still looking for the book of essays by the British Feminist who enlightened me.

--- On Sat, 12/20/08, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Saturday, December 20, 2008, 6:51 PM

cooptation of poetry by capitalist objectification of women. not funny. to use a brothel as a metaphor is disgusting. I remember when Denise Levertov criticized a poet for using napalm as a metaphor for personal pain, saying you don't know what it feels like & it's much worse than the way you are characterizing it.

On 12/19/08 4:15 PM, "mIEKAL aND"
<[redacted]>
wrote:

New York poetry brothel tempts with verse

Published: Friday December 19, 2008

http://rawstory.com/news/afp/New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_12192008.html

The prostitute whispers, wets her lips and prepares to bare... her heart with a poem.

Welcome to New York's Poetry Brothel, where punters delve between the lines, not the sheets.

At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper Factory the look was bona fide bordello.

Literary ladies of the night flitted between intimate, candle-lit nooks, red lights and paintings of nudes.

Some of the poetesses for sale sported retro-style garter belts and frilly knickers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.

But transactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind, not the body, and a moment with the catalogue, replete with pictures and whimsical descriptions, reveals what's on offer.

Page four boasts The Professor, swearing to have heard "the wail of your striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."

Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets she doesn't know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 claiming she can "coax your drum."

Gigolo poets are available, not least Poetry Brothel co-founder Nicholas Adamski, who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops tempestuous, dark looks with an eye patch.

"Poetry is what I love more than anything," cooed The Madame, the sultry spirit behind the whole idea.

The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dressed for the part in low-cut dress, elbow-length black gloves and a peacock headdress.

"I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing poetry than listening to some old man sitting on a chair on a stage," she explained by the light of a guttering candle.

One-on-one encounters, for which "clients" pay three to five dollars in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free reading, took place upstairs.

The "whores" read from their own material, much of which is free verse, making for intense, sometimes baffling performances.

But for those needing a break, the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco guitarists, a fortune-teller, a blackjack table and a bar specializing in port and whisky

The young hedonists, most of them students, appear to have struck a surprisingly successful formula.

"There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets show a

*lot of cleavage," said The Professor, otherwise known as Jennifer
Michael
Hecht, aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhattan's New School.*

*She teaches writing to many of the Brothel's regulars and is
proud of
the result.*

*"It's kind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis.
At two
in the morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place
reading poetry," she said.*

*"The custom is to read poetry alone, but we know that from Homer
onward, people read it aloud and in groups."*

*By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed and getting fuller --
and
rowdier.*

*The fortune teller, bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes, mumbled
to someone about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The Madame,
yet another glass of port in hand, introduced poet
"whores" in a
voice
suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.*

*When Patricia Smith, a well-established poet, took the mike to declaim a long and rhythmical poem about love and making love,
there
were rock concert cheers from the crowd.*

*"I always shudder when I pray," Smith intoned in a mesmerizing
voice,
"so your name must be a prayer."*

*Even for these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis
sweeping the country.*

One of the poets, 22-year-old Nina Cheng, was about to start a job at Bear Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is writing a play about the experience and applying for a playwright's course at Yale.

"I'd thought I'd do banking and get into the arts when I retired -- not this early," said Cheng, known at the Brothel as The Opium Eater.

Another poetry prostitute, 27-year-old Rachel Herman-Gross, aka Simone, worried that crashing stock markets will pull the rug from under the arts scene. "It's going to be a lot harder. A lot of artists are sustained by grants from people with money."

But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the Poetry Brothel proves there are ways to survive.

"Money's always been scarce for artists and they're very resourceful people," said Edmund Voyer, 54, a hefty man described as an "evangelist" on his business card and who came to the Zipper Factory wearing a kilt.

His drinking companion, Jennifer Hoa, 27, agreed money and art would always find ways to meet.

"I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer, but I come here," she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."

The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.

"Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems,"

> she > murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation. Or > say you > don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm > hungry.'"
>
> Check
> guidelines &
>
> guidelines
>
> guidelines &

↑ Index

120. Mark Weiss

Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

Thu 8 Jan 2009

When we all wear golden slippers and are pure of heart things may be different. Til then even women get to enjoy whatever fantasy. Though I imagine some will deconstruct their motives.

Years ago I was invited to a party in the Hamptons. Turns out it was a "lingerie and toga" party. Nobody told me, so I wasn't dressed appropriately. It was a lot of young professionals, dressed as the name suggests. It was very sad, not because of the indecorous clothes, but because it was otherwise crushingly decorous. Go figure.

Young men and women are in the business of getting each others' attention. Appears to be instinctual. Seems a shame to judge them for it.

Mark

At 10:08 PM 1/8/2009, Ruth Lepson wrote:
>but WHY something gets you off is the question.
>
>
>On 1/8/09 6:37 PM, "Mark Weiss" <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> > I'm not sure what you're objecting to, as you seem to be paraphrasing > > what I said. In the best of all possible worlds there would probably > > be some voluntary prostitution, but I'd still wonder at the > > psychological cost to those who chose to make their living that way.
> > Choosing to playact at prostitution, like the women in the poetry > > brothel, is simply fantasy, and no more destructive, I'd think, than > > wearing a pirate costume. It's under the category of "whatever > gets you off."
> >
> > Mark
> >
> > At 01:45 PM 1/8/2009, steve russell wrote:
> >> interesting distinction: Genet did a number with the fantasy realm.
> >> But what, exactly, do you mean, Mark, by the fantasy of > >> prostitution? Phone sex? I suppose that's somewhat harmless. But > >> that ain't the real thing. When it's real, as in the sex trade, > >> we're talking ugly/ugly/ugly.
> >>
> >> --- On Tue, 1/6/09, Mark Weiss <[redacted]> wrote:
> >> From: Mark Weiss <[redacted]>
> >> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
> >> To: [redacted]
> >> Date: Tuesday, January 6, 2009, 11:41 PM
> >>
> >> I think we need to make a distinction between prostitution and the > >> fantasy of prostitution. Most prostitution is compelled or a response > >> to desperation. Most fantasy prostitution, playing dress-up and the > >> like, isn't.
> >>
> >> At 02:34 PM 1/6/2009, you wrote:
> >>> I saw reference in there to men and gigolos. I have a problem > with the old > >>> school "sex degrades women" feminist argument. Is a the location > >> of a > >>> brothel and the profession of prostitution always and inherently > >> degrading > >>> to women? I thought there were sex-positive feminists who were working > >>> against that idea.

> >>>
> >>> -----Original Message-----
> >>> From: steve russell [mailto:[redacted]]
> >>> Sent: Sunday, December 21, 2008 5:49 PM
> >>> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
> >>>
> >>> this seems pretty light hearted.
> >>> I'm sorry to hear about the wicked (objects, et cetera) capitalist.
> >>> i suspect that the most die hard feminist could enjoy her/himself.
> >>>
> >>> --- On Fri, 12/19/08, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]> wrote:
> >>> From: mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
> >>> Subject: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
> >>> To: [redacted]
> >>> Date: Friday, December 19, 2008, 4:15 PM
> >>>
> >>> New York poetry brothel tempts with verse
> >>>
> >>> Published: Friday December 19, 2008
> >>>
> >>>
>
http://rawstory.com/news/afp/New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_12192008
.ht
> >>> ml
> >>>
> >>> The prostitute whispers, wets her lips and prepares to bare... her heart
> >>> with a
> >>> poem.
> >>>
> >>> Welcome to New York's Poetry Brothel, where punters delve between
the > >>> lines, not the sheets.
> >>>
> >>> At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper

Factory
> >> the
> >>> look was bona fide bordello.
> >>>
> >>> Literary ladies of the night flitted between intimate, candle-lit nooks,
> >> red
> >>> lights and paintings of nudes.
> >>>
> >>> Some of the poetesses for sale sported retro-style garter belts
> and frilly > >>> knickers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.
> >>>
> >>> But transactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind, not the > body, and a > >>> moment with the catalogue, replete with pictures and whimsical > >> descriptions,
> >>> reveals what's on offer.
> >>>
> >>> Page four boasts The Professor, swearing to have heard "the wail of > >> your > >>> striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."
> >>>
> >>> Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets she
> >> doesn't > >>> know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 claiming
> >> she > >>> can "coax your drum."
> >>>
> >>> Gigolo poets are available, not least Poetry Brothel co-founder Nicholas > >>> Adamski, who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops tempestuous, dark
> >>> looks
> >>> with an eye patch.
> >>>
> >>> "Poetry is what I love more than anything," cooed The Madame, the
> >>> sultry spirit behind the whole idea.
> >>>
> >>> The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dressed for the part
in > >>> low-cut dress, elbow-length black gloves and a peacock headdress.
> >>>
> >>> "I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing poetry than listening to

> >> some > >>> old man sitting on a chair on a stage," she explained by the light of
> >> a > >>> guttering candle.
> >>>
> >>> One-on-one encounters, for which "clients" pay three to five
> >> dollars
> >>> in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free reading, took place > >>> upstairs.
> >>>
> >>> The "whores" read from their own material, much of which is free
> >>> verse, making for intense, sometimes baffling performances.
> >>>
> >>> But for those needing a break, the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco
> >>> guitarists,
> >>> a fortune-teller, a blackjack table and a bar specializing in port and > >>> whisky
> >>>
> >>> The young hedonists, most of them students, appear to have struck a > >>> surprisingly successful formula.
> >>>
> >>> "There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets show a
> >> lot of
> >>> cleavage," said The Professor, otherwise known as Jennifer Michael > >> Hecht,
> >>> aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhattan's New School.
> >>>
> >>> She teaches writing to many of the Brothel's regulars and is proud of
> >> the > >>> result.
> >>>
> >>> "It's kind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis. At two
> >> in > >>> the morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place reading
> >>> poetry," she said.
> >>>
> >>> "The custom is to read poetry alone, but we know that from Homer
> >> onward,
> >>> people read it aloud and in groups."
> >>>
> >>> By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed and getting fuller -- and

> >> rowdier.
> >>>
> >>> The fortune teller, bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes, mumbled to > >>> someone
> >>> about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The Madame, yet > >>> another glass of port in hand, introduced poet "whores" in a
> >> voice
> >>> suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.
> >>>
> >>> When Patricia Smith, a well-established poet, took the mike to declaim a > >>> long > >>> and rhythmical poem about love and making love, there were rock concert
> >>> cheers
> >>> from the crowd.
> >>>
> >>> "I always shudder when I pray," Smith intoned in a mesmerizing
> >> voice,
> >>> "so your name must be a prayer."
> >>>
> >>> Even for these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis
> >> sweeping
> >>> the country.
> >>>
> >>> One of the poets, 22-year-old Nina Cheng, was about to start a > job at Bear > >>> Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is writing a > play about
> >>> the > >>> experience and applying for a playwright's course at Yale.
> >>>
> >>> "I'd thought I'd do banking and get into the arts when I
> >> retired
> >>> -- not this early," said Cheng, known at the Brothel as The Opium > >> Eater.
> >>>
> >>> Another poetry prostitute, 27-year-old Rachel Herman-Gross, aka Simone,
> >>> worried
> >>> that crashing stock markets will pull the rug from under the arts scene.
> >>> "It's going to be a lot harder. A lot of artists are sustained by > >>> grants from people with money."

> >>>
> >>> But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the Poetry
> >>> Brothel proves there are ways to survive.
> >>>
> >>> "Money's always been scarce for artists and they're very > >>> resourceful people," said Edmund Voyer, 54, a hefty man described as
> >> an
> >>> "evangelist" on his business card and who came to the Zipper
> >> Factory
> >>> wearing a kilt.
> >>>
> >>> His drinking companion, Jennifer Hoa, 27, agreed money and art > would always > >>> find ways to meet.
> >>>
> >>> "I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer, but I come > >>> here," she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."
> >>>
> >>> The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.
> >>>
> >>> "Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems," she > >>> murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation. Or say you > >>> don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm hungry.'"
> >>>
> >> guidelines
> >>>
> >>>
> >>>
> >>>
> >> guidelines
> >>>
> >>>
> >>
> guidelines
> >>
> >>
> >>
> >>
> >>
> >
> guidelines &
>

↑ Index

121. steve russell
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Thu 8 Jan 2009

---

isn't prostitution legal in Denmark?
as well as certain narcotics?

with our luck, we'll have a prostitution czar.
the labor movement has no choice but to ignore sex workers since they're not protected by the law. their work, after all, is considered unlawful.

--- On Thu, 1/8/09, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Thursday, January 8, 2009, 10:11 PM

but I don't believe either considering it labor or shame on women is right. in a free society women cd dress any way they wanted not just in ways dictated by the society as sexy.

On 1/8/09 8:22 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:

> I did overstate the case a bit -- only because i thought your reaction > against The Poetry Brothel was itself overstated. Of course sex is > different from sewing.
>
> And sewing is different from mining, and mining is different from picking > cotton, etc. -- all of these industries have had -- and do have -- their own > slavery problems. And all of them have different occupational hazards and > terrible working conditions that need to be addressed, and will only be > addressed if the workers can bargain collectively because the bosses are > interested only in profits etc. etc. etc.
>
> I propose that a major reason that slavery persists in the sex industry is > that the labor movement has utterly ignored those workers, largely because > of the knee-jerk moralizing that is our culture's rote response to any > mention of sex-work. (and because it apparently takes an involved argument > to convince even well-meaning people that sex can be considered work at > all.)
>
> (I may be the old-fashioned one here, calling for solidarity across > different types of work. But that old labor-movement ethic seems still > useful to me -- whereas the old "shame-on-the-women-who-dress-like-whores" > ethic seems singularly counterproductive.)

>
>
>
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On
> Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
> Sent: Tuesday, January 06, 2009 11:04 PM
> To: [redacted]
> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>
> I guess I must be 200 years old--does nobody else agree that it's common > sense that prostitution is essentially different from other kinds of 'work'?
>
>
> On 12/23/08 10:00 PM, "Adam Tobin"
<[redacted]> wrote:
>
>> Why is the capitalist exploitation of women at a brothel worse than,
>> say, the capitalist exploitation of women at a Zipper Factory?
It's
>> just a different kind of labor, no? Given that some artists are >> seemingly comfortable with capitalism, why should they not acknowledge >> it in the name of their ventures?
>>
>> I understand, of course, that brothels have a particular history with >> a particular kind of violence attached to it, but so do factories. Do >> you direct the same righteous anger at Andy Warhol?
>>
>>
>>
>> -----Original Message-----
>> From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]]
>> On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
>> Sent: Monday, December 22, 2008 5:01 PM
>> To: [redacted]

>> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>>
>> brothels about as funny as slavery.
>> which British feminist?
>>
>>
>> On 12/21/08 1:44 PM, "steve russell"
<[redacted]> wrote:
>>
>>> somewhat related: William Styron, the way he waxes his libido in
>>> "Sophie's Choice."
>>> i'm still looking for the book of essays by the British Feminist who >>> enlightened me.
>>>
>>> --- On Sat, 12/20/08, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
wrote:
>>> From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
>>> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>>> To: [redacted]
>>> Date: Saturday, December 20, 2008, 6:51 PM
>>>
>>> cooptation of poetry by capitalist objectification of women. not >>> funny. to use a brothel as a metaphor is disgusting. I remember when >>> Denise Levertov criticized a poet for using napalm as a metaphor for >>> personal pain, saying you don't know what it feels like &
it's much
>>> worse than the way you are characterizing it.
>>>
>>>
>>> On 12/19/08 4:15 PM, "mIEKAL aND"
<[redacted]>
>>> wrote:
>>>
>>>> New York poetry brothel tempts with verse
>>>>
>>>> Published: Friday December 19, 2008
>>>>
>>>>
>>>

http://rawstory.com/news/afp/New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_1219
>>> 2
>>> 008.html
>>>>
>>>> The prostitute whispers, wets her lips and prepares to bare...
her
>>>> heart with a poem.
>>>>
>>>> Welcome to New York's Poetry Brothel, where punters delve between >>>> the lines, not the sheets.
>>>>
>>>> At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper
>>>> Factory the look was bona fide bordello.
>>>>
>>>> Literary ladies of the night flitted between intimate, candle-lit
>>>> nooks, red lights and paintings of nudes.
>>>>
>>>> Some of the poetesses for sale sported retro-style garter belts and >>>> frilly knickers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.
>>>>
>>>> But transactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind, not
the >>>> body, and a moment with the catalogue, replete with pictures
and
>>>> whimsical descriptions, reveals what's on offer.
>>>>
>>>> Page four boasts The Professor, swearing to have heard
"the wail of >>>> your striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."
>>>>
>>>> Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets
she
>>> doesn't >>>> know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 claiming
>>>> she can "coax your drum."

>>>>
>>>> Gigolo poets are available, not least Poetry Brothel co-founder
>>>> Nicholas Adamski, who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops >>>> tempestuous, dark looks with an eye patch.
>>>>
>>>> "Poetry is what I love more than anything," cooed The Madame,
>>> the
>>>> sultry spirit behind the whole idea.
>>>>
>>>> The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dressed for
the
>>>> part in low-cut dress, elbow-length black gloves and a peacock > headdress.
>>>>
>>>> "I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing poetry than listening to
>>> some >>>> old man sitting on a chair on a stage," she explained by the light
>>>> of a guttering candle.
>>>>
>>>> One-on-one encounters, for which "clients" pay three to five >>> dollars
>>>> in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free reading, took >>>> place upstairs.
>>>>
>>>> The "whores" read from their own material, much of which is free
>>>> verse, making for intense, sometimes baffling performances.
>>>>
>>>> But for those needing a break, the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco
>>>> guitarists, a fortune-teller, a blackjack table and a bar
>>>> specializing in port and whisky
>>>>
>>>> The young hedonists, most of them students, appear to have struck a >>>> surprisingly successful formula.

>>>>
>>>> "There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets show a
>>> lot of >>>> cleavage," said The Professor, otherwise known as Jennifer Michael
>>>> Hecht, aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhattan's
New School.
>>>>
>>>> She teaches writing to many of the Brothel's regulars and is proud >>>> of the result.
>>>>
>>>> "It's kind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis. At two
>>> in >>>> the morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place
>>>> reading poetry," she said.
>>>>
>>>> "The custom is to read poetry alone, but we know that from Homer >>>> onward, people read it aloud and in groups."
>>>>
>>>> By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed and getting fuller
-- and
>>>> rowdier.
>>>>
>>>> The fortune teller, bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes, mumbled >>>> to someone about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The >>> Madame,
>>>> yet another glass of port in hand, introduced poet
"whores" in a
>>> voice
>>>> suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.
>>>>
>>>> When Patricia Smith, a well-established poet, took the mike to >>>> declaim a long and rhythmical poem about love and making love,
there
>>>> were rock concert cheers from the crowd.

>>>>
>>>> "I always shudder when I pray," Smith intoned in a mesmerizing
>>> voice,
>>>> "so your name must be a prayer."
>>>>
>>>> Even for these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis
>>>> sweeping the country.
>>>>
>>>> One of the poets, 22-year-old Nina Cheng, was about to start a job >>>> at Bear Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is >>>> writing a play about the experience and applying for a playwright's >>>> course at Yale.
>>>>
>>>> "I'd thought I'd do banking and get into the arts when I
>>> retired --
>>>> not this early," said Cheng, known at the Brothel as The Opium Eater.
>>>>
>>>> Another poetry prostitute, 27-year-old Rachel Herman-Gross, aka >>>> Simone, worried that crashing stock markets will pull the rug from >>>> under the arts scene. "It's going to be a lot harder. A lot of >>> artists
>>>> are sustained by grants from people with money."
>>>>
>>>> But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the Poetry
>>> Brothel
>>>> proves there are ways to survive.
>>>>
>>>> "Money's always been scarce for artists and they're very
>>> resourceful
>>>> people," said Edmund Voyer, 54, a hefty man described as an

>>>> "evangelist" on his business card and who came to the Zipper
>>> Factory
>>>> wearing a kilt.
>>>>
>>>> His drinking companion, Jennifer Hoa, 27, agreed money and art would >>>> always find ways to meet.
>>>>
>>>> "I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer, but I come >>>> here," she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."
>>>>
>>>> The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.
>>>>
>>>> "Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems,"
>>> she >>>> murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation.
Or say you >>>> don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm hungry.'"
>>>>
Check
>>> guidelines &
>>>
Check
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>>
Check
>>>
>>
>>
>
guidelines
>
guidelines &

↑ Index

122. Eireene Nealand
Russian (Literary) Agent
Fri 9 Jan 2009

—

↑ Index

123. Troy Camplin
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Fri 9 Jan 2009

There are a lot of degrading jobs, but that doesn't mean we should make them illegal. Which was really my only point. And different people consider different work degrading. One person may love being a security guard, while another will find it degrading and depressing. Want to work in a sewer? In a mine? My guess is that you and many others here would find the jobs on the TV show "Dirty Jobs" to be too degrading.

The world is far, far, far more complex than you seem to think it is. Thus, I laugh when I get accused by you of reductionism. You, who reduce everything to racism, sexism, etc. and thus reduce everything to race, sex, etc. Your romanticized notions about human beings in general -- that we can or even should treat every person in their full "subjectivity" -- would be laughable if it weren't so dangerous. The fact is that we treat everyone with a mixture of objectivity and subjectivity. We can't know each person personally -- that is utterly impossible. And you don't want to do so, either. You don't care one iota about the personal life of the plumber you call to fix your toilet. He's a toilet-fixing machine for all you care. Just pay him what he asks, and get him out of there as soon as possible.

I accuse you or puritanism precisely because it is precisely that attitude toward sex that is behind your objections to prostitution being made illegal, and nothing more. You can dress it up any way you like to convince yourself otherwise, but it's the retention of this strand of Christian thinking and morality in your thinking that is behind this. You're mad only because I have accused you of something you have accused numerous others of.

Finally, you are assuming that just because I think prostitution should be legalized and brought above boards to that prostitutes can in fact be treated better than they are under the system you prefer that I "approve" of it. Those are two different things. My point was the "different kinds of muscles" was to point out the absurdity of objecting to it as work per se. What you chose to interpret as reductionism was merely a satyrical point -- but then, I've already observed that you're humorless.

Troy Camplin

From: amy king <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Thursday, January 8, 2009 9:42:59 PM
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

Way to try to flip the script, Troy. If you call me a Puritan (your usual name-calling and labeling tactic), maybe no one will notice that you are the one with the "black and white approach." The "Puritan" accusation remains the old stand-by, an all too common justification against anyone critical of a system that certainly capitalizes on the disenfranchisement (and abuse) of women, no matter how many ways you try to spin what happens in a sex-(and-often-worse)-for-cash exchange. Prostitution is just "a different set of muscles" is as reductive a defense as you can get.

And trying to make "prostitution" synonymous with "sexual expression" is yet another way to render invisible the harshness that real prostitutes --not romanticized made-for-TV dominatrices-- contend with daily to survive. It would be very convenient for your fantastical rationale if it were only my "attitude toward it that makes it the degrading job it is." Sometimes women, and some men, risk speaking out against the atrocities that prostitutes have to face and are often accused of such nonsense as "degrading the job" in an effort to shut us up. The risk for those of us who are critical of such an "industry" is that each time we speak, several people, often men, will then accuse of us of all sorts of "Puritanical" reactions, and then we get to hear the justifications of why prostitution is really great and just "sexual expression."

The majority of prostitutes in the world are women, and the majority of them enter the "trade" because of acute poverty, prior emotional/sexual abuse, or have been kidnapped. In the latter case, the girls and women have been trafficked and are slaves, not workers even in the remotest sense. Only a very small percentage of prostitutes will say they do what they do for "sexual expression", and often prostitutes turn to drug use just to get through the "work". So much for "expression." Rare is the glamorous house run and protected by a madame who pays her luxuriating prostitutes well. Much, much more common is the work demanded by a pimp who puts his "workers" at risk by making johns pay more so that the "workers" will be forced to go bareback or worse. Even legalized, I doubt the hierarchy of disbursement in such an industry would change; the "business", run by men, would get the most money, starting with whomever owned the "business" and on down to the bouncers, while the prostitutes would continue to receive a very small percentage, despite the fact that it is their bodies that are put at risk, that perform, and receive, all of the "work," and the ensuing psychological and physical harm that we would like to tiptoe around and pretend doesn't happen since one "chooses" to enter such an exchange.

The actual work of handing your body over to a stranger for some cash, paradoxically so that your body can continue to survive, is what makes the "job" degrading, Troy. Call me a Puritan and any other names you like, call it "sexual expression" when the livery drivers in my neighborhood pay poor women twenty bucks for a blow job between cars or in the front seat, but please try to imagine the details of the work you are trying to romanticize before you reduce what these women do to "sexual expression" and "workers" just using a "different set of muscles".

Amy

_____

Recent work

http://www.writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/King.html

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

--- On Thu, 1/8/09, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Subject: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Thursday, January 8, 2009, 8:44 PM

Let them. Ever heard of male prostitutes? Giggalos? I don't know what this had to do with reductivism. I would argue that the world is far more complex than the simple black and white approach you are taking to prostitution. It is the institution it is because it is illegal and stigmatized. You it is in fact your attitude toward it that makes it the degrading job it is. You are the one rejecting this or that sexual expression as wrong or degrading or something that should be made illegal. It your puritanism that's wrong-headed in my opinion, and the inability to think outside of that puritanistic ethic.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: amy king <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Thursday, January 8, 2009 5:03:29 PM
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

This is so wrong-headed, Troy, that I don't even know where to begin. I'm not talking about the debate over legalizing prostitution; I'm referring to your reductive, ridiculously simplistic rationale: Prostitution is just anatomy, Troy? That's right in line with your reasoning that you can't possibly be racist because you're married to a minority. Some news, Troy: you can be racist even if you are a minority! Ever heard of a self-loathing [insert your label here]? I can even be homophobic while being a lesbian! Such a reductionist claim is the primary pillar used to defend prostitution by the men who use and abuse the women stuck in that system, happily ignoring the psychological damage they pay to "work" these women -- "it's just anatomy" allows these guys to revel in the role they play in maintaining and enjoying such a crappy system that preys upon the systematic abuse of girls and women as well as economically-deprived women, who end up stuck using "a different set of muscles" to sustain themselves and likely their children whose father is nowhere to be seen, except possibly in one of those lines now asking the government to bail himself and his favorite industry out (http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2009/01/07/porn-bailout-larry-flynt_n_155878.html). Let those fathers and men turn to prostitution, then! It's just anatomy, after all.

Amy

_____

Recent work

http://www.writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/King.html

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

--- On Thu, 1/8/09, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Thursday, January 8, 2009, 12:26 AM

I think prostitution should be legalized precisely because of all the problems that come about precisely because it's not legal and because in a free market, two free adults should be able to enter into any sort of relationship they desire, whether that be employee-employer, prostitute-client, artist-patron, or any other sort of relationship. Prostitution is no different than a woman who has sex with a guy she has no intention of seeing again after accepting an expensive dinner and some drinks from him -- only she gets the money directly, and can use the money (hopefully) more wisely. So you think that it's a different kind of work only because genitalia are involved? It's labor using a different set of muscles is all.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, January 6, 2009 10:04:06 PM
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

I guess I must be 200 years old--does nobody else agree that it's common sense that prostitution is essentially different from other kinds of 'work'?

On 12/23/08 10:00 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Why is the capitalist exploitation of women at a brothel worse than, say,
> the capitalist exploitation of women at a Zipper Factory? It's just a > different kind of labor, no? Given that some artists are seemingly > comfortable with capitalism, why should they not acknowledge it in the name
> of their ventures?
>
> I understand, of course, that brothels have a particular history with a > particular kind of violence attached to it, but so do factories. Do you > direct the same righteous anger at Andy Warhol?
>
>
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On
> Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
> Sent: Monday, December 22, 2008 5:01 PM
> To: [redacted]
> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>
> brothels about as funny as slavery.
> which British feminist?
>
>
> On 12/21/08 1:44 PM, "steve russell"
<[redacted]> wrote:
>
>> somewhat related: William Styron, the way he waxes his libido in
>> "Sophie's Choice."
>> i'm still looking for the book of essays by the British Feminist
who

>> enlightened me.
>>
>> --- On Sat, 12/20/08, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
wrote:
>> From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
>> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>> To: [redacted]
>> Date: Saturday, December 20, 2008, 6:51 PM
>>
>> cooptation of poetry by capitalist objectification of women. not >> funny. to use a brothel as a metaphor is disgusting. I remember when >> Denise Levertov criticized a poet for using napalm as a metaphor for >> personal pain, saying you don't know what it feels like &
it's much
>> worse than the way you are characterizing it.
>>
>>
>> On 12/19/08 4:15 PM, "mIEKAL aND"
<[redacted]>
>> wrote:
>>
>>> New York poetry brothel tempts with verse
>>>
>>> Published: Friday December 19, 2008
>>>
>>>
>> http://rawstory.com/news/afp/New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_12192
>> 008.html
>>>
>>> The prostitute whispers, wets her lips and prepares to bare... her >>> heart with a poem.
>>>
>>> Welcome to New York's Poetry Brothel, where punters delve
between the >>> lines, not the sheets.
>>>
>>> At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper >>> Factory the look was bona fide bordello.
>>>
>>> Literary ladies of the night flitted between intimate, candle-lit >>> nooks, red lights and paintings of nudes.
>>>

>>> Some of the poetesses for sale sported retro-style garter belts
and >>> frilly knickers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.
>>>
>>> But transactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind, not the
body,
>>> and a moment with the catalogue, replete with pictures and
whimsical
>>> descriptions, reveals what's on offer.
>>>
>>> Page four boasts The Professor, swearing to have heard "the wail of
>>> your striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."
>>>
>>> Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets she
>> doesn't >>> know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 claiming
>>> she can "coax your drum."
>>>
>>> Gigolo poets are available, not least Poetry Brothel co-founder
>>> Nicholas Adamski, who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops >>> tempestuous, dark looks with an eye patch.
>>>
>>> "Poetry is what I love more than anything," cooed The Madame,
>> the
>>> sultry spirit behind the whole idea.
>>>
>>> The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dressed for the part >>> in low-cut dress, elbow-length black gloves and a peacock headdress.
>>>
>>> "I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing poetry than listening to
>> some >>> old man sitting on a chair on a stage," she explained by the light of
>>> a guttering candle.
>>>
>>> One-on-one encounters, for which "clients" pay three to five >> dollars

>>> in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free reading, took place
>>> upstairs.
>>>
>>> The "whores" read from their own material, much of which
is free
>>> verse, making for intense, sometimes baffling performances.
>>>
>>> But for those needing a break, the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco
>>> guitarists, a fortune-teller, a blackjack table and a bar
>>> specializing in port and whisky
>>>
>>> The young hedonists, most of them students, appear to have struck
a >>> surprisingly successful formula.
>>>
>>> "There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets
show a
>> lot of >>> cleavage," said The Professor, otherwise known as Jennifer
Michael
>>> Hecht, aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhattan's New School.
>>>
>>> She teaches writing to many of the Brothel's regulars and is proud of
>>> the result.
>>>
>>> "It's kind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis.
At two
>> in >>> the morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place
>>> reading poetry," she said.
>>>
>>> "The custom is to read poetry alone, but we know that from Homer
>>> onward, people read it aloud and in groups."
>>>
>>> By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed and getting fuller --
and

>>> rowdier.
>>>
>>> The fortune teller, bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes, mumbled
to >>> someone about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The >> Madame,
>>> yet another glass of port in hand, introduced poet
"whores" in a
>> voice
>>> suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.
>>>
>>> When Patricia Smith, a well-established poet, took the mike to >>> declaim a long and rhythmical poem about love and making love,
there
>>> were rock concert cheers from the crowd.
>>>
>>> "I always shudder when I pray," Smith intoned in a mesmerizing
>> voice,
>>> "so your name must be a prayer."
>>>
>>> Even for these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis
>>> sweeping the country.
>>>
>>> One of the poets, 22-year-old Nina Cheng, was about to start a job
at >>> Bear Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is writing
a >>> play about the experience and applying for a playwright's course at >>> Yale.
>>>
>>> "I'd thought I'd do banking and get into the arts
when I
>> retired -- >>> not this early," said Cheng, known at the Brothel as The Opium Eater.
>>>
>>> Another poetry prostitute, 27-year-old Rachel Herman-Gross, aka >>> Simone, worried that crashing stock markets will pull the rug from >>> under the arts scene. "It's going to be a lot harder. A

lot of
>> artists
>>> are sustained by grants from people with money."
>>>
>>> But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the Poetry
>> Brothel
>>> proves there are ways to survive.
>>>
>>> "Money's always been scarce for artists and they're very
>> resourceful
>>> people," said Edmund Voyer, 54, a hefty man described as an >>> "evangelist" on his business card and who came to the Zipper
>> Factory
>>> wearing a kilt.
>>>
>>> His drinking companion, Jennifer Hoa, 27, agreed money and art would >>> always find ways to meet.
>>>
>>> "I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer,
but I come
>>> here," she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."
>>>
>>> The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.
>>>
>>> "Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems,"
>> she >>> murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation. Or say you >>> don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm hungry.'"
>>>
Check
>> guidelines &
>>
>>

>>
>>
>>
>>
>
guidelines
>
guidelines &

↑ Index

124. Richard Louis Ray
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Fri 9 Jan 2009

Well, I really hate to come out of lurkdom on the list with a response to this discussion, but I think the following view is worth taking into consideration while contemplating the topic at hand. I spoke to a friend yesterday who was in "the business" for a couple years in NYC in the early 2000s, a friend whom I lived with during part of the time, and she wanted to make it very clear that in many instances, she didn't have to perform sexual activities with her clients, or that the sexual part was minimal, a hand job or pissing in the client's mouth. There was an old boxing coach who would call girls and teach them a few tricks and have them beat up on him a bit. She said many of her Jewish clients would get girls simply to spank them. Probably a demoralizing experience if your approach is one of your flesh being violated, but her take on it was that, for the money, it was no less demoralizing than frying burgers for minimum wage. Of course there were many men, some of whom she found attractive and enjoyed intercourse with, some of whom she didn't, in which case, she would keep the encounter strictly business. She acknowledged the risks, but said she would consider someone grossly ignorant and foolish to have entered the profession and not have been aware of the risks and taken measures to prevent any disasters. She always had a driver "tough guy" waiting outside in case she didn't come out at the appointed time. This cut down on her profits, but she felt the potential protection was worth it. She got herself tested regularly and put a decent portion of the money away as a nest egg. If she went on a call and "didn't feel right about it" when she got there or if the guy had "obvious signs of disease" she would call her driver immediately and leave. She also said that several of the girls she worked with, including her sister, seemed to enjoy the work more times than not, and that in some cases, it seemed boost their confidence, strength of mind, and sense of independence. We didn't get into the details of how and why. She did admit that it wasn't a job she would want to work for very long, and said she got out of it mainly because she'd grown tired of it, but she didn't regret having gone through the experience and felt that, overall, much of how you felt about it was dependent on the attitude you brought to it.

I'm not saying there aren't countless sex-related atrocities occurring around the world daily...I spent a while investigating the situation in Romania a couple years back and was rather disgusted to say the least, but I think it's important to consider the subject from as many angles as possible, including considering some of the more positive outcomes as well.

RR

↑ Index

125. Troy Camplin
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Fri 9 Jan 2009

Egalitarianism and objectification of women are (thankfully) two different things. I am for equality, but egalitarianism is one of the greatest evils, one of the most hideously destructive ideologies that ever developed. If you like mass slaughter, there is no quicker path to it than through egalitarianism (the French Revolution, the Soviet Union, the Eastern Bloc, Cambodia, Cuba, China during the Cultural Revolution). And, besides, you're not actually in favor of de-objectifying people. You don't actually want to get to know your plumber when you call him or her. You want them to do the job you called them to do and get out of your house. They might as well be a robot as far as you or anyone else who calls them is concerned, a few formal niceties aside. And I don't see how legalizing prostitution and getting is above board so that it can be regulated in any way objectifies the women who are prostitutes. It seems to me that it actually makes their lives much better than it is. It makes it increasingly likely that someone in their lives is not going to objectify them. The vast majority of problems with prostitution come about precisely because it is illegal -- much like the vast majority of problems surrounding drugs comes about because they are illegal (we learned the lesson with alcohol, but still haven't learned it with drugs).

Troy Camplin

From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Thursday, January 8, 2009 9:12:23 PM
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

this is getting depressing. why don't you try being a prostitute for a week and see how you feel about it. why is it puritanism to imagine an egalitarian world where women are not objectified?

On 1/8/09 8:44 PM, "Troy Camplin" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Let them. Ever heard of male prostitutes? Giggalos? I don't know what this had to do with reductivism. I would argue that the world is far more complex than the simple black and white approach you are taking to prostitution. It is the institution it is because it is illegal and stigmatized. You it is in fact your attitude toward it that makes it the degrading job it is. You are the one rejecting this or that sexual expression as wrong or degrading or something that should be made illegal. It your puritanism that's wrong-headed in my opinion, and the inability to think outside of that puritanistic ethic.
>
> Troy Camplin
>
> ---
>
> From: amy king <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Thursday, January 8, 2009 5:03:29 PM
> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>
> This is so wrong-headed, Troy, that I don't even know where to begin. I'm not talking about the debate over legalizing prostitution; I'm referring to your reductive, ridiculously simplistic rationale: Prostitution is just anatomy, Troy? That's right in line with your reasoning that you can't possibly be racist because you're married to a minority. Some news, Troy: you can be racist even if you are a minority! Ever heard of a self-loathing [insert your label here]? I can even be homophobic while being a lesbian! Such a reductionist claim is the primary pillar used to defend prostitution by the men who use and abuse the women stuck in that system, happily ignoring the psychological damage they pay to "work" these women -- "it's just anatomy" allows these guys to revel in the role they play in maintaining and enjoying such a crappy system that preys upon the systematic abuse of girls and women as well as economically-deprived women, who end up stuck using "a different set of muscles" to sustain themselves and likely their children whose father is nowhere to be seen, except possibly in one of those lines now asking the government to bail himself and his favorite industry out (http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2009/01/07/porn-bailout-larry-flynt_n_155878.html). Let those fathers and men turn to prostitution, then! It's just anatomy, after all.
>
> Amy

_____

Recent work

http://www.writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/King.html

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

--- On Thu, 1/8/09, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Thursday, January 8, 2009, 12:26 AM

I think prostitution should be legalized precisely because of all the problems that come about precisely because it's not legal and because in a free market, two free adults should be able to enter into any sort of relationship they desire, whether that be employee-employer, prostitute-client, artist-patron, or any other sort of relationship. Prostitution is no different than a woman who has sex with a guy she has no intention of seeing again after accepting an expensive dinner and some drinks from him -- only she gets the money directly, and can use the money (hopefully) more wisely. So you think that it's a different kind of work only because genitalia are involved? It's labor using a different set of muscles is all.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, January 6, 2009 10:04:06 PM
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

I guess I must be 200 years old--does nobody else agree that it's common sense that prostitution is essentially different from other kinds of 'work'?

On 12/23/08 10:00 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]>
wrote:

Why is the capitalist exploitation of women at a brothel worse than, say, the capitalist exploitation of women at a Zipper Factory? It's just a different kind of labor, no? Given that some artists are seemingly comfortable with capitalism, why should they not acknowledge it in the name of their ventures?

I understand, of course, that brothels have a particular history with a particular kind of violence attached to it, but so do factories. Do you direct the same righteous anger at Andy Warhol?

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
Sent: Monday, December 22, 2008 5:01 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

brothels about as funny as slavery.
which British feminist?

On 12/21/08 1:44 PM, "steve russell"
<[redacted]> wrote:

somewhat related: William Styron, the way he waxes his libido in "Sophie's Choice."
i'm still looking for the book of essays by the British Feminist
who
enlightened me.

--- On Sat, 12/20/08, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
wrote:
From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Saturday, December 20, 2008, 6:51 PM

cooptation of poetry by capitalist objectification of women. not funny. to use a brothel as a metaphor is disgusting. I remember when Denise Levertov criticized a poet for using napalm as a metaphor for personal pain, saying you don't know what it feels like &

it's much
worse than the way you are characterizing it.

On 12/19/08 4:15 PM, "mIEKAL aND"
<[redacted]>
wrote:

New York poetry brothel tempts with verse

Published: Friday December 19, 2008

http://rawstory.com/news/afp/New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_12192
008.html

The prostitute whispers, wets her lips and prepares to bare... her heart with a poem.

Welcome to New York's Poetry Brothel, where punters delve
between the
lines, not the sheets.

At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper
Factory the look was bona fide bordello.

Literary ladies of the night flitted between intimate, candle-lit
nooks, red lights and paintings of nudes.

Some of the poetesses for sale sported retro-style garter belts
and
frilly knickers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.

But transactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind, not the
body,
and a moment with the catalogue, replete with pictures and
whimsical
descriptions, reveals what's on offer.

Page four boasts The Professor, swearing to have heard "the wail of
your striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."

Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets she
doesn't know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 claiming

she can "coax your drum."

Gigolo poets are available, not least Poetry Brothel co-founder Nicholas Adamski, who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops tempestuous, dark looks with an eye patch.

"Poetry is what I love more than anything," cooed The Madame, the sultry spirit behind the whole idea.

The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dressed for the part in low-cut dress, elbow-length black gloves and a peacock headdress.

"I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing poetry than listening to some old man sitting on a chair on a stage," she explained by the light of a guttering candle.

One-on-one encounters, for which "clients" pay three to five dollars in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free reading, took place upstairs.

The "whores" read from their own material, much of which is free verse, making for intense, sometimes baffling performances.

But for those needing a break, the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco guitarists, a fortune-teller, a blackjack table and a bar specializing in port and whisky

The young hedonists, most of them students, appear to have struck a surprisingly successful formula.

"There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets show a lot of cleavage," said The Professor, otherwise known as Jennifer Michael Hecht, aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhattan's New School.

She teaches writing to many of the Brothel's regulars and is proud of the result.

"It's kind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis. At two in the morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place reading poetry," she said.

"The custom is to read poetry alone, but we know that from Homer onward, people read it aloud and in groups."

By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed and getting fuller -- and rowdier.

The fortune teller, bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes, mumbled to someone about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The Madame, yet another glass of port in hand, introduced poet "whores" in a voice suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.

When Patricia Smith, a well-established poet, took the mike to declaim a long and rhythmical poem about love and making love, there were rock concert cheers from the crowd.

"I always shudder when I pray," Smith intoned in a mesmerizing voice, "so your name must be a prayer."

Even for these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis sweeping the country.

One of the poets, 22-year-old Nina Cheng, was about to start a job at Bear Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is writing a play about the experience and applying for a playwright's course at Yale.

"I'd thought I'd do banking and get into the arts when I retired -- not this early," said Cheng, known at the Brothel as The Opium Eater.

Another poetry prostitute, 27-year-old Rachel Herman-Gross, aka Simone, worried that crashing stock markets will pull the rug from under the arts scene. "It's going to be a lot harder. A lot of artists are sustained by grants from people with money."

But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the Poetry Brothel proves there are ways to survive.

"Money's always been scarce for artists and they're very resourceful people," said Edmund Voyer, 54, a hefty man described as an "evangelist" on his business card and who came to the Zipper Factory wearing a kilt.

His drinking companion, Jennifer Hoa, 27, agreed money and art would always find ways to meet.

"I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer, but I come here," she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."

The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.

"Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems," she murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation. Or say you don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm > hungry.'"

>
> Check
> guidelines &
>
> guidelines
>
> guidelines &

↑ Index

126. Troy Camplin

On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry

Fri 9 Jan 2009

In English the words holy, whole, hale, and health are etymologically connected – Old English halig, hal, and hælth, respectively, which are all related to hal. Thus are they conceptually connected. To see the world as holy is to see the world as whole – it is to have the world "appear infinite and holy, whereas it now appears finite and corrupt" (William Blake, "The Marriage of Heaven and Hell"). The word holistic comes from the Greek holos, whole. Thus the holy is holistic – God is holy because He encompasses all. Perhaps one could even say that we can recognize the divine only when we come to see the world as a whole, when we see the universe as universal. When we can come

To see a World in a grain of sand,
And a Heaven in a wild flower,
Hold Infinity in the palm of your hand,
And Eternity in an hour. (William Blake, "Auguries of Innocence")

Health and hale is the same. To have health is to have wholeness. To be hale is to be healthy – whole and complete. To make healthy is to make whole again. One is healed through medication. But ideally, one would rather maintain one's health than have to withstand the ravages of medication (pharmaceutical comes from the Greek pharmakon, which means both poison and medicine – as it does today), though medication is necessary to stave off disease. This is the purpose of Plato's Pharmakon, to stave off disease. For disease is the opposite of health.

The Modern Era, which we are still in, though we may be at the end of it, began when Descartes split man in two – body and soul. It was a necessary division for the development of modern science (which Descartes all but admits to – the division is so the Church will tend to the soul, while the body is left alone, to be tended to by scientists such as Descartes), but it was certainly an unholy division (as all divisions are, by definition). Kant deepened this division. Hegel tried to mend it through philosophical synthesis. Marx tried to mend it by recommending the overthrow of half of the world – the world would then be wholly Proletarian. Nietzsche responded to Hegel by dividing the world up even more – for him, humans are not divided into body and soul, but are instead a series of masks. With postmodernism, the division is complete: men and women, multiculturalism, radical Cartesian individualism divide us up more and more. Any universality is denied. A necessary development – and not without its truth (I am aware of the irony of using the word truth, which comes from the Old English treowth, related to the word troth, from which we get the word betrothed, to speak of an idea that is more interested in divorce than betrothal). But it is precisely as unholy as one can get.

The deep divisions fostered by postmodernism came about because of a view that grand narratives, attempts to universalize, and seeing the world as holistic created the problems of the 20th Century. The Marxist grand narrative gave us the gulag of the Soviet Union, the massacres of the Khmer Rouge in Cambodia, and any number of other slaughters done by governments who had embraced Marxist philosophy. We looked back on history after the Holocaust, saw the grand narrative of Christianity had in the past itself promoted the killing of Jews – particularly in the Inquisition – and concluded that it too was dangerous. One could also mention The Terror of the French Revolution. What did Marxism, Medieval Christianity, and the French Revolution have in common? One thing was that they were all grand narratives. Thus, the logic goes, it must be grand narratives which are bad. And what do grand narratives do? They see the world as a whole, which must be encompassed by their ideology. To make the world a whole, it must be placed under their one ideology. Thus, holistic world views were seen as bad – thus were they, and holiness, rejected. The path to Heaven – whether that heaven was celestial or earthly – seemed to lead us straight into Hell. Perhaps in part the rejection of holding a holistic view came about because it is related to the holy, and the holy has been rejected. To the extent that wisdom is the ability to see the unity of the world – meaning wisdom is the ability to see the world as holy – wisdom was also rejected as impossible, perhaps even undesirable.

The error in this way of thinking derives from the error made in seeing Communism, Christianity, or the ideals of the French Revolution as interested in seeing the world as holistic. None of them saw the world as holistic, as holy – they instead wanted to make the world whole, under their particular umbrellas. They too fostered divisions – there were enemies who had to be either converted or killed in order that the world could be made holy. “For the cherub with his flaming sword is hereby commanded to leave his guard at tree of life; and when he does, the whole creation will be consumed and appear infinite and holy” (Blake “The Marriage of Heaven and Hell”). Now Blake here uses the word “appear.” None of them saw the world as holy. It had to be made so – through conflagration, if necessary. Postmodern thought, by dividing the world even more, does not help us to see the world as holy – quite the contrary. However, by insisting on equality among the various parts – among individuals, among cultures, among religions, among any number of groups of individuals – postmodern thought may ironically make it now possible to see the world as being, rather than needing to become, holy.

It may seem ironic to suggest that only by reaching the most severe of divisions – seeing the world as eminently unholy – that we can finally come to see that the world is in fact holy, but I am not being ironic. To see the world as holy is not to see everything in the world as equal in an egalitarian sense. There are hierarchies. To see the world as holy is to understand how everything fits into the world as a whole. It is to see the world as an immense organism, and to care for its health. An organism is made up of systems, organs, tissues, cells, organelles, and various biochemicals. For one group to want to envelop the entire world in one way of thinking, believing, viewing the world, would be the same as one cell wanting to envelop the entire organism in that one type of cell. We have a word for cells that want to do that: cancer. The postmodernists have mistaken viewing the actions of cancerous cells for seeing the whole organism. Cancer must be fought, not mistaken for the animal it is in. That is the only way one can have a healthy organism – and it is the only way to have a holy world.. Like a healthy organism, a holy world is complex. Like a healthy organism, a holy world has smoothly working parts in communication with each other through clear rules that proscribe what each part needs to do for the whole to work well. Like a healthy organism, this cannot come from any centralized authority – there is no one control cell in the body, and the brain must have the lungs just as much as the lungs must have the brain. A holy world is like a healthy organism.

In Negative Theology, one comes to know what God is by figuring out what God is not. Aristotle says that if you are not sure if something is good, try to figure out what is bad, and you can then deduce that what is good is its opposite. The following are unhealthy:

1. Overeating, including eating a high percentage of foods with low nutritional value, while remaining inactive (not exercising) 2. Either stagnation or change without continuity – both create instability 3. Stress and anxiety – which comes about from not realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, and can lead to anger at those very things 4. Hatred – aside from raising the blood pressure, it can cause one to act in ways that would be unhealthy for the object of our hatred 5. Cancer – already discussed 6. Excess – including the excess of moderation 7. Shackles – prevents sufficient movement, equating to lack of exercise 8. Pollution – it can lead to any number of diseases 9. An overly-clean environment – it can prevent our immune systems from developing properly, making us more susceptible to diseases, especially autoimmune diseases 10. Suicide – inherently and obviously unhealthy 11. Isolation – loneliness can lead to depression, which depresses the immune system 12. Ignorance – either of the world or of oneself, as one cannot maintain one's health if one is ignorant of what can harm it or improve it

This leads one to posit the following are healthy:

1. Exercise, with a diet proper to the amount of exercise and of high nutritional value
2. Change with continuity
3. Realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, thus reducing stress and anxiety
4. Love
5. Keeping the body in hierarchical harmony
6. Moderation in everything, including moderation – remembering that moderation is an extreme in the same way that life is an extreme state of organic chemistry
7. Freedom – remembering that freedom does not equate to a lack of rules, but is rather what is achieved through playing by the best rules
8. Cleanliness (which, as the saying goes, is next to Godliness, meaning it is holy)
9. A non-sanitized world – a world without dirt is a world that makes unhealthy organisms
10. Love of one's own life
11. Friends
12. Knowledge – including self-knowledge

One can make a similar list of what makes for a healthy mind: 1. Taking in healthy information – good art, music, literature, philosophy, the sciences, etc. – with sufficient exercise of the mind through thought, discussion, and writing 2.

Change with continuity 3.. Realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, thus reducing stress and anxiety, which can negatively affect the mind as well as the body 4. Love 5. Having a variety of inputs – obsession with one thing alone is a kind of mental cancer 6. Moderation in everything, including moderation – moderation of reading, of rigorous thought, sexual thoughts, work, play, physical activity, etc. 7. Freedom of thought – we must not think in shackles, but with flexible rules 8. Cleanliness of thought – this does not necessarily mean what it has traditionally meant in the West, though it can certainly contain some elements; thinking about sex is in and of itself not unclean 9. Realization that we do not and cannot live in a sanitized world, as that stops thought and creativity 10. Love of thinking 11. Friends – as Aristotle says in Rhetoric, "a wide circle of friends, a virtuous circle of friends," and, I would add, a mentally stimulating circle of friends 12. Knowledge – including self knowledge – with the goal of wisdom

A holy world is one that parallels the healthy body and the healthy mind, and will have the above qualities, including moderation in everything, including moderation (i.e., it will be a just world), freedom (this is freedom from, not freedom to), love, friendship, and beauty. A holy world is a beautiful world, both having variety in unity, unity in variety, complexity, and fluid hierarchy that is self-similar regardless of scale. All of the parts, living in love and friendship (which does not exclude healthy competition, such as we find in sports and in free trade), living in a complex dynamic with each other, living as individuals in various communities, many of which overlap and are nested within other communities, must be self-similar to have a holy world.

In Greek, to kalon means the beautiful, but it can also mean the honorable or the noble – and kala can mean either things that are beautiful or things that are morally good. In the Rhetoric, Aristotle says that "Now kalon describes whatever, through being chosen for itself, is praiseworthy or whatever, through being good [agathon], is pleasant because it is good [agathon]. If this, then, is the kalon, then virtue is necessarily kalon; for it is praiseworthy because of being good [agathon]" (79). Elaine Scarry points out that in English too, there is a connection between beauty and the good (the just), when she points out that to say that something is fair is to say that it is either beautiful or that it is just. In Greek and in English, the beautiful and the good are connected. If a holy world is a beautiful world, it is a good and just world as well. As Heraclitus said, "For god all things are fair and just, but men have taken some things as unjust, others as just" (LXVIII). The key here is that we see the world itself as just – not the actions of each and every individual. The world is itself justified and cannot itself be unjust. This is consistent with the teachings of any religion that sees the world as having been created by God or the gods – how could a fair and just god create a world that was itself unjust? And if theistic religions are rejected, how can the world itself possibly be unjust? To say it is unjust is to give it anthropomorphic qualities. It is people who have taken some things as being just, others as unjust – but the world itself is self-justified. Those who do not see the world as just are those who do not see the world as holy – often they are the same people who think the only way the world can be justified is if the world is made holy through the transformation of it into a perfect mirror of themselves. But we have seen that a world made up of only one world view is a cancerous world – and the world, as a cancerous organism, will die. An organism cannot consist of one type of cell – that is the unhealthiest of organisms. And a world having only one world view is the unhealthiest of worlds. In the same way that a healthy body consists of a variety of cells that are variations of the same theme coded by identical DNA, a healthy world consists of a variety of peoples that are variations of the same themes coded for by our being human and sharing the same cultural universals.

Beauty is also related to health – as we can see in the beauty we find in nature. Healthy plants produce the most beautiful flowers. Healthy peacocks produce the largest, most symmetrical, most colorful feathers. Healthy gobies and other territorial reef fish have the brightest colors. All of this natural beauty is the advertisement of health to the opposite sex. The healthiest human bodies (neither overweight nor super model thin) are the most beautiful. Thus is there also a relationship between health, beauty, and sex. If beauty can thus be equated to health, we can see that beauty is again equated to the holy. And we can see too that sex in-and-of-itself is and cannot be unholy, as it is connected (but not equivalent) to beauty.

A holy world is a whole world. It is a healthy world. It is a good and just world. It is a complex world. It is a world of individuals in community. It is a beautiful world. But is it a possible world? I have already given the answer: the world is itself already holy. We just have to learn to see it as holy. That is how we will heal the world. And, as we do, we will become less and less likely to want or try to eliminate those who disagree with us – until we are all in agreement on this one issue, as all the cells in an organism are in agreement on the one issue that they must work together for the health of the whole, even as each performs its own function. Thus, the world will become more and more holy in our eyes. In works of tragedy, nomos (convention, human law, naming; from which we get the words nomad and nomenclature, and which is the changing and changeable aspect of the world) comes into conflict with physis (or nature; from which we get the word physics). That is the position we are now in. When we get nomos to map onto physis (Heraclitus calls this conjunction logos – which can be translated as saying, speech, discourse, word, account, explanation, reason, principle, collection, enumeration, ratio, proportion), we will see the world as it truly is: holy.

On the Holy

Where lies the holy in the modern world?
It lies in Blake's world in a grain of sand –
It lies, and lies like the truth, in patterns
Like self-organized rings of rocks barren
Arctic fields create. It lies in the branch
Of every tree and species, leafing out
From the known into the unknown. It lies
In every song, painting and rhythmic verse.
We have looked at every leaf and petal,
At the bark and at the wood, every cell
And strand of DNA is now known –
And we have forgotten that all of this
Was once a tree that gave us shade and filled
The air with delicate sweetness and held
The grains of sand against its roots to hold
The ground in place, even as that ground moves
And changes in tiny ways we refuse
To see. In this we can see the holy.
This is where it lies, now and forever,
On the edge of order and wild chaos,
Where the infinite holds in the finite,
Where we, ourselves holy, have always lived.

Troy Camplin

↑ Index

127. Chicago Review

New issue of Chicago Review

Fri 9 Jan 2009

---

* * *

CHICAGO REVIEW is pleased to announce the publication of its Winter 2009 issue (54:3) on STEPHEN RODEFER.

This special issue includes an interview with Stephen Rodefer, critical essays by Keston Sutherland and David Georgi, two essays and four poems by Rodefer himself, a memoir by Fanny Howe and a checklist.

plus...

POETRY by Rae Armantrout, Carl Phillips, Ange Mlinko, Endi Hartigan, John Tipton, Joanna Klink, Alice Notley, Paul Éluard (translated by Robert Huddleston) and Elizabeth Arnold

FICTION by Jim Krusoe & Michael Byers

REVIEWS of John Matthias, Katie Degentesh, August Kleinzahler and Martin Corless-Smith and COMMENTARY by David Rosenberg and Andrew Duncan

* * *

To order, visit:
http://humanities.uchicago.edu/orgs/review/index.shtml

Enter coupon code CANARD for a discount on issues and subscriptions!

* * *

CHICAGO REVIEW
5801 South Kenwood
Chicago, IL 60637
http://humanities.uchicago.edu/review

↑ Index

128. Ruth Lepson
Re: Issue 1/Verzion 2
Fri 9 Jan 2009

---

how do we find the originals, Joe?

On 12/28/08 11:21 AM, "[redacted]"
<[redacted]> wrote:

> CALL FOR REMISSIONS: VERZION TWO:
>
> Remember Issue 1 - that PDF on the For Godot blog site that had computer-generated poems attributed to about 4,000 poets who had nothing to do with them?
>
> Well, some of the people to whom those names are legally attached got pretty upset about it, and others smiled. In any case, it seemed to me like there's a lot of raw material there that's going unused and unrecycled. Hence, VERZION TWO.
>
> If you are one of the names that appeared in that scurrilous publication, and if you weren't completely satisfied with the poem that appeared above it, here's your chance to do better - or at least different.
>
> Rewrite, revise, recycle, scramble or cannibalize ³your² poem from Issue 1. Send the original, along with your revision to:
>
> joeharrington [at] sunflower [dot] com

> and I'll put it up (http://verziontwo.blogspot.com). Feel free to include a statement about what you liked or disliked in the original and what you did about it.
>
> Thanks
> Joe Harrington

↑ Index

129. David Buuck

Friday 1/16: Small Press Traffic's Poets Theater Fest 09, night 1

Fri 9 Jan 2009

Please join us for a full night of theater, performance, and other delights, at the first night of our annual Poets Theater Fest fundraiser. Featuring:

WORLD PREMIERES OF:

"Only the Money is Real" by Raymond Pettibon (directed by Kevin Killian)

"Perverted Virtue" by Tetra Balestri (directed by Milenko Skoknic)

"Rabbit Butoh, Bunny Butoh" by Bhanu Kapil (directed by Erin Morrill)

"Elsa in Berlin" by Stan Apps (directed by David Brazil)

"Trademark Girls" by Wendy Kramer (directed by Mac McGinnes)

plus: three short plays by Daniil Kharms, trans. Matvei Yankelevich (directed by Brent Cunningham) intermission performances by Lindsey Boldt, Ariel Goldberg, Brandon Brown, Lara Durbeck, and others as well as a huge raffle, with artworks, signed broadsides and more, from a variety of poets, artists, and presses. wine & refreshments will be served.

see you then & there!
Show starts promptly at 730pm. $10
Timken Hall, California College of the Arts
1111 8th St., San Francisco

sptraffic.org
smallpresstraffic.blogspot.com

↑ Index

130. Adam Tobin
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Fri 9 Jan 2009

---

but you were the one crying shame! on the women of the Poetry Brothel! for dressing like whores!

(please note that I am NOT arguing that prostitution is not a sexist institution. clearly it is. and i agree that it is part of a complex of normative heterosexuality that does terrible violence to all women. But as for the actual women who are living in actual slavery, i think complaining about the symbolic degrading of womankind does nothing for them: it's like trying to improve the safety of coal mines by complaining about climate change.

And if you're just using those women (who are very real, and many of them living in absolutely horrific situations, as you rightly pointed out) as symbols of Degraded Womankind, you are doing a disservice to them and also to the many many women (some of whom must be subscribers to this list) who work in other parts of the sex trade -- exotic dancers, high-end call-girls, dominatrices, nude housekeepers, pornographic models, hooters waitresses, etc. -- some of these people are my friends and i take it personally -- and I think that their own struggles for better working conditions are not unrelated to the struggle against slavery in other parts of their bosses' businesses...

-- but i'm sorry that i overreacted and became part of a litany of men (all men! really! can it really be that there are no women here who work in the sex trade??) who are all seemingly trying to justify the institution as an institution. I am not trying to justify it, just trying to defend my friends who work there from the harsh judgments of their elders...

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
Sent: Thursday, January 08, 2009 10:11 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

but I don't believe either considering it labor or shame on women is right. in a free society women cd dress any way they wanted not just in ways dictated by the society as sexy.

On 1/8/09 8:22 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:

> I did overstate the case a bit -- only because i thought your reaction > against The Poetry Brothel was itself overstated. Of course sex is > different from sewing.
>

> And sewing is different from mining, and mining is different from > picking cotton, etc. -- all of these industries have had -- and do > have -- their own slavery problems. And all of them have different > occupational hazards and terrible working conditions that need to be > addressed, and will only be addressed if the workers can bargain > collectively because the bosses are interested only in profits etc. etc.
etc.
>
> I propose that a major reason that slavery persists in the sex > industry is that the labor movement has utterly ignored those workers, > largely because of the knee-jerk moralizing that is our culture's rote > response to any mention of sex-work. (and because it apparently takes > an involved argument to convince even well-meaning people that sex can > be considered work at > all.)
>
> (I may be the old-fashioned one here, calling for solidarity across > different types of work. But that old labor-movement ethic seems still > useful to me -- whereas the old "shame-on-the-women-who-dress-like-whores" > ethic seems singularly counterproductive.)
>
>
>
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]]
> On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
> Sent: Tuesday, January 06, 2009 11:04 PM
> To: [redacted]
> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>
> I guess I must be 200 years old--does nobody else agree that it's > common sense that prostitution is essentially different from other kinds of 'work'?
>
>
> On 12/23/08 10:00 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:
>
>> Why is the capitalist exploitation of women at a brothel worse than,
>> say, the capitalist exploitation of women at a Zipper Factory? It's >> just a different kind of labor, no? Given that some artists are >> seemingly comfortable with capitalism, why should they not >> acknowledge it in the name of their ventures?

>>
>> I understand, of course, that brothels have a particular history with >> a particular kind of violence attached to it, but so do factories.
>> Do you direct the same righteous anger at Andy Warhol?
>>
>>
>>
>> -----Original Message-----
>> From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]]
>> On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
>> Sent: Monday, December 22, 2008 5:01 PM
>> To: [redacted]
>> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>>
>> brothels about as funny as slavery.
>> which British feminist?
>>
>>
>> On 12/21/08 1:44 PM, "steve russell" <[redacted]> wrote:
>>
>>> somewhat related: William Styron, the way he waxes his libido in
>>> "Sophie's Choice."
>>> i'm still looking for the book of essays by the British Feminist who >>> enlightened me.
>>>
>>> --- On Sat, 12/20/08, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]> wrote:
>>> From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
>>> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>>> To: [redacted]
>>> Date: Saturday, December 20, 2008, 6:51 PM
>>>
>>> cooptation of poetry by capitalist objectification of women. not >>> funny. to use a brothel as a metaphor is disgusting. I remember when >>> Denise Levertov criticized a poet for using napalm as a metaphor for >>> personal pain, saying you don't know what it feels like & it's much >>> worse than the way you are characterizing it.
>>>
>>>
>>> On 12/19/08 4:15 PM, "mIEKAL aND" <[redacted]>
>>> wrote:
>>>

>>>> New York poetry brothel tempts with verse
>>>>
>>>> Published: Friday December 19, 2008
>>>>
>>>>
>>> http://rawstory.com/news/afp/New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_121
>>> 9
>>> 2 >>> 008.html
>>>>
>>>> The prostitute whispers, wets her lips and prepares to bare... her >>>> heart with a poem.
>>>>
>>>> Welcome to New York's Poetry Brothel, where punters delve between >>>> the lines, not the sheets.
>>>>
>>>> At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper >>>> Factory the look was bona fide bordello.
>>>>
>>>> Literary ladies of the night flitted between intimate, candle-lit >>>> nooks, red lights and paintings of nudes.
>>>>
>>>> Some of the poetesses for sale sported retro-style garter belts and >>>> frilly knickers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.
>>>>
>>>> But transactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind, not the >>>> body, and a moment with the catalogue, replete with pictures and >>>> whimsical descriptions, reveals what's on offer.
>>>>
>>>> Page four boasts The Professor, swearing to have heard "the wail of >>>> your striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."
>>>>
>>>> Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets she
>>> doesn't >>>> know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 >>>> claiming she can "coax your drum."
>>>>
>>>> Gigolo poets are available, not least Poetry Brothel co-founder
>>>> Nicholas Adamski, who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops >>>> tempestuous, dark looks with an eye patch.
>>>>
>>>> "Poetry is what I love more than anything," cooed The Madame,

>>> the
>>>> sultry spirit behind the whole idea.
>>>>
>>>> The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dressed for the
>>>> part in low-cut dress, elbow-length black gloves and a peacock > headdress.
>>>>
>>>> "I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing poetry than listening to
>>> some >>>> old man sitting on a chair on a stage," she explained by the light >>>> of a guttering candle.
>>>>
>>>> One-on-one encounters, for which "clients" pay three to five
>>> dollars
>>>> in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free reading, took >>>> place upstairs.
>>>>
>>>> The "whores" read from their own material, much of which is free
>>>> verse, making for intense, sometimes baffling performances.
>>>>
>>>> But for those needing a break, the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco
>>>> guitarists, a fortune-teller, a blackjack table and a bar
>>>> specializing in port and whisky
>>>>
>>>> The young hedonists, most of them students, appear to have struck a >>>> surprisingly successful formula.
>>>>
>>>> "There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets show a
>>> lot of
>>>> cleavage," said The Professor, otherwise known as Jennifer Michael >>>> Hecht, aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhattan's New School.
>>>>
>>>> She teaches writing to many of the Brothel's regulars and is proud >>>> of the result.
>>>>
>>>> "It's kind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis. At two
>>> in
>>>> the morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place
>>>> reading poetry," she said.
>>>>
>>>> "The custom is to read poetry alone, but we know that from Homer >>>> onward, people read it aloud and in groups."

>>>>
>>>> By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed and getting fuller -- and
>>>> rowdier.
>>>>
>>>> The fortune teller, bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes, mumbled >>>> to someone about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The >>> Madame,
>>>> yet another glass of port in hand, introduced poet "whores" in a
>>> voice
>>>> suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.
>>>>
>>>> When Patricia Smith, a well-established poet, took the mike to
>>>> declaim a long and rhythmical poem about love and making love, >>>> there were rock concert cheers from the crowd.
>>>>
>>>> "I always shudder when I pray," Smith intoned in a mesmerizing
>>> voice,
>>>> "so your name must be a prayer."
>>>>
>>>> Even for these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis
>>>> sweeping the country.
>>>>
>>>> One of the poets, 22-year-old Nina Cheng, was about to start a job >>>> at Bear Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is >>>> writing a play about the experience and applying for a playwright's >>>> course at Yale.
>>>>
>>>> "I'd thought I'd do banking and get into the arts when I
>>> retired --
>>>> not this early," said Cheng, known at the Brothel as The Opium Eater.
>>>>
>>>> Another poetry prostitute, 27-year-old Rachel Herman-Gross, aka >>>> Simone, worried that crashing stock markets will pull the rug from >>>> under the arts scene. "It's going to be a lot harder. A lot of >>> artists
>>>> are sustained by grants from people with money."
>>>>
>>>> But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the Poetry
>>> Brothel
>>>> proves there are ways to survive.
>>>>
>>>> "Money's always been scarce for artists and they're very

>>> resourceful
>>>> people," said Edmund Voyer, 54, a hefty man described as an
>>>> "evangelist" on his business card and who came to the Zipper
>>> Factory
>>>> wearing a kilt.
>>>>
>>>> His drinking companion, Jennifer Hoa, 27, agreed money and art >>>> would always find ways to meet.
>>>>
>>>> "I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer, but I come >>>> here," she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."
>>>>
>>>> The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.
>>>>
>>>> "Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems,"
>>> she >>>> murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation. Or say you >>>> don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm hungry.'"
>>>>
>>> guidelines &
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>
>>
>
>

↑ Index

131. Dale Smith
Amiri Baraka on Ed Dorn
Fri 9 Jan 2009

Amiri Baraka's essay, "Ed Dorn & The Western World," is now available through Effing Press: http://effingpress.com/baraka.htm.

It is based on a talk Baraka gave in March 2008 during the Ed Dorn Symposium, sponsored by the University of Colorado-Boulder. In the essay he looks at how both men addressed ethnic division and the consequences of race in their work. This is a substantial reflection on the history of New American poetics. I encourage everyone to purchase a copy today.

Thanks,

Dale

--
Dale Smith
Doctoral Student, Department of English University of Texas
1 University Station, B5000
Austin, TX 78712

↑ Index

132. Doug Holder

Human Derivatives in Doug Holder's: The Man in the Booth in the Midtown Tunnel (Cervena Barva Press

Fri 9 Jan 2009

Human Derivatives in Doug Holder's: The Man in the Booth in the Midtown Tunnel

Human Derivatives in Doug Holder's: The Man in the Booth in the Midtown Tunnel (Cervena Barva Press)

article by Michael Todd Steffen

The man in the booth in the Midtown Tunnel, not the title of a poem but its subject, gives us, the passengers on the subway, a fleeting camera click of glimpse of a man defined in his function. He is confined to an extreme example of a human reduced from nearly all that makes him human, precisely because of how the world today is structured, encountered and processed. He is like a zoo animal. He paces the perimeter Of his cage, poet Doug Holder writes in lines reminiscent of Rainier Marie Rilke The Panther.

Holder typically takes these sorts of verbal photographs of people unusually overridden by probably what is not a definitive moment for the people as they really are, but by awkward vivid moments that would package them palatably for our quick-take-for-thrills media consciousness. People confined to monotonous jobs of function in a tunnel booth or at a post office machine, confined ridiculously for two years in a toilet, gotten up in colonial attire, apprehended at a maddened moment painting the statue of John Harvard red while tourists snap pictures.

The poet is snapping these photos partaking in the mania of his contemporary culture, and in doing so he is exercising a mimesis of the dynamics of 21st century perception, how data about ourselves is created and presented to others. As though our experience today consisted of a rapid succession of sudden images, spaced messages left, brief chats, sandwiches in wrappers on the go, news headlines, shifting windows, all with a hawks eye out for the next quirk or embarrassment to give cause to the perpetual laugh-track that must punctuate each moments joke, each segment of the day.

These are as serious implications as one would want to draw from a poet whose (can it be?) earnest intention is to humor us. Yet that Holder's perceptions are so keenly attuned to how the world works today gives an underlying substance to his seeming legerdemain, short poems of truncated lines, almost epigrammatic,laconic, tongue-in-cheek, yet at the same time oddly in the sympathetic spirit that Auden remembered in William Butler Yeats:

In a rapture of distress

Sing of human unsuccess.

And Doug Holder's disappointments succeed because, in partaking of the swift momentum of today's mediatized mindset, he stubbornly entertains his subjects as human in their dilemmas of being exposed. If the man in the booth of the Midtown Tunnel appears caged to us, how must we appear to him?

Faceless and a blur,

Behind thick plates

Of light-bleached glass.

Poignantly from so little, Holder produces a rather profound insight, articulated with lyrical simplicity:

And we will

All remain

Ignorant of Each other.

A danger the poet risks in tailoring verse to popular contemporary expectations is that his or her work may be read with no more attention, say, than that ordinarily given to a cartoon strip or a note to the editor. Holders deft word-smithing, however, can halt us in the slaloms down the slopes, to want to mull over such coinings and scrivennings as blue uniform (Man in the Booth), It is only a hassle, (The Woman who Sat), sea of manila (Postal Worker), the oxymoronic age's inertia (Two Old Women) and the metaphysical conceits of Bites of memory (The Last Hotdog) and of the final strophe in Postal Worker,

You feel

Ready to Be returned to

Your sender

a dazzling compression of the momentary and mechanical with the ontological and transcendent.

In the recent year we have seen Doug Holder, a prolific and generous advocate of emerging poets in the Boston area, up in arms defending the worthiness of small press publications. Tirelessly he has organized readings and conducted interviews with local and national writers, giving them light of day on the Ibbetson Street website pages, in the Lyrical Somerville, and on the local Public Television program Author to Author. He has greatly helped give purpose to area intellectuals who meditate and labor to find expression in poetry and share as a community on Saturday mornings with the Bagels & Bards at the Davis Square Au Bon Pain. Cambridge/Somerville is a better place because of Doug Holder, and the small press made vital and serious because of the many publications he has been involved with, not least this latest collection of his own poetry that yields and yields enjoyment and meaning on reading after reading.

The Man in the Booth in the Midtown Tunnel by Doug Holder is available for $13.00 through Cervana Barva Press/P.O. Box 440357/W. Somerville, MA 02144-3222. http://cervenabarvapress.com

↑ Index

133. Paul Foster Johnson
Litmus Press Call for Submissions
Sat 10 Jan 2009

We are currently accepting new manuscripts for our poetry series. Manuscripts must be postmarked by February 15, 2009 to be considered for publication in 2010-11.

We are interested in unpublished book-length manuscripts (60 pages or more) of innovative poetry or cross-genre works written in English. We will consider works written in English by non-U.S. authors in this series but works in translation are subject to our Translation Series guidelines.

Please send 2 copies of your manuscript, an acknowledgments page (if applicable), and a cover letter including your name, the title of your manuscript, your address, phone number, and email to:

Litmus Press
Poetry Series

P.O. Box 25526
Brooklyn, NY 11202-5526

We regret that we cannot return your manuscript, so please do not send your only copy. Manuscripts will be recycled at the end of our reading period. Publication decisions will be announced in Spring 2009.

We do not accept submissions via email at this time.

↑ Index

134. David-Baptiste Chirot

Ginsberg & Gary Snyder: Two collections of Letters reviewed --NY Times

Sat 10 Jan 2009

Books / Sunday Book
Reviewhttp://www.nytimes.com/2009/01/11/books/review/Campbell-t.html

Howls
By JAMES CAMPBELL
Two collections of letters by Allen Ginsberg and Gary Snyder, both edited by Bill Morgan, illuminate the poets' careers and emotional life.

_____ Windows Live™
Hotmail®: Chat. Store. Share. Do more with mail.
http://windowslive.com/howitworks?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_hm_justgotbetter_howitworks_012009

↑ Index

135. Stephen Vincent

Re: Eyeless in Gaza

Sat 10 Jan 2009

It is no longer 'Eyeless in Gaza" - Israel's attempts to keep the media out of Gaza notwithstanding, on the outside we have more than an absolutely awful 'Eyeful' now. Even from the standpoint of traditional Ghetto (Occupation) management standards, the carnage of Palestinians, plus buildings, infrastructure and homes is an absolute outrage and failure. In terms of American racial history, Gaza in many ways so much echos Kansas City, Watts, Detroit and any number of other ghetto uprisings that have been mercilessly caused and the repressions of which have been mercilessly executed.

As Hitler & Company envisioned Jews as a permanent threat to some concept of German purity, progress, etc., what does the Israeli leadership, such as it is, seek to eliminate in Gaza!

Going back to the '60's in California I can remember racist Governor Ronald Regan & company hearing and magnifying the 'threat' of separatist and armed Black militants. Instead of figuring out ways to negotiate and deal with the real issues inside ghetto communities, they responded in the same heavy handed paranoid manner that Israel's right wing is responding to Hamas - that is by demonizing and (now obviously) seeking their liquidation on all levels - institutional, cultural, etc. etc. As if this kind of punishment has ever been successful - short run, maybe yes, but long term most always a form of national self-poisoning. (i.e., witness the wonderful, self-destructing condition of the USA today!)

& all with the final 'last days' support of support of George Bush and Dick Cheney - and all 'in our name'. Again.

Watch Israel withdraw from Gaza on the day before the Inauguration. Astonishing (or not) what garbage these people are dumping into Obama's White House the week before he moves in! Oy!

Stephen Vincent
http://stephenvincent.net/blog/

↑ Index

136. steve russell
Re: Prostitution in Sweden
Sat 10 Jan 2009

---

some info from wikipedia:

Sweden considers prostitution a form of Violence against Women. Only the customer is prosecuted.

as for male prostitutes, the same rules apply.
the customer is held in contempt.

this, i suppose, would discourage pimps, brothels, et cetera. as far as i can tell, Sweden has the most enlightened approach towards the world's "oldest proffession."

↑ Index

137. Poetics List
Fwd: Tango with Cows [on behalf of Deborah A. Meadows]
Sat 10 Jan 2009

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Deborah A. Meadows <[redacted]>
Date: Sat, Jan 10, 2009 at 6:13 PM

Subject: Tango with Cows
To: [redacted]

Poetics list,

I just came upon this:
http://www.getty.edu/art/exhibitions/tango_with_cows/

It's a link to Russian Avant-garde book exhibited at The Getty presently. It has a great feature on the right hand side "Page through Books," so four of the books load allowing you to turn pages, click for an audio reading of poems, click for English translation. The book "Explodity (Vzoral)"1914 has K. Malevich artwork, etc.

Deborah Meadows

↑ Index

138. Ruth Lepson
Re: Prostitution in Sweden
Sat 10 Jan 2009

---

goddess bless you for sending this & bless sweden.

On 1/10/09 6:15 PM, "steve russell" <[redacted]> wrote:

> some info from wikipedia:
>
> Sweden considers prostitution a form of Violence against Women.
> Only the customer is prosecuted.
>
> as for male prostitutes, the same rules apply.
> the customer is held in contempt.
>
> this, i suppose, would discourage pimps, brothels, et cetera.
> as far as i can tell, Sweden has the most enlightened approach towards the world's "oldest > proffession."

↑ Index

139. Ruth Lepson

Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

Sat 10 Jan 2009

I appreciate your writing, Richard, and adding some specificity to the conversation. However, I doubt I will ever agree that all that you describe is ok. In fact, it's awful for someone to be subjected to these things. Imagine how tough she must have become to deal with all of this--covering up her feelings, her sense of dignity. Not good for anyone.

On 1/9/09 9:13 AM, "Richard Louis Ray" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Well, I really hate to come out of lurkdom on the list with a response to this discussion, but I think the following view is worth taking into consideration while contemplating the topic at hand. I spoke to a friend yesterday who was in "the business" for a couple years in NYC in the early 2000s, a friend whom I lived with during part of the time, and she wanted to make it very clear that in many instances, she didn't have to perform sexual activities with her clients, or that the sexual part was minimal, a hand job or pissing in the client's mouth. There was an old boxing coach who would call girls and teach them a few tricks and have them beat up on him a bit. She said many of her Jewish clients would get girls simply to spank them. Probably a demoralizing experience if your approach is one of your flesh being violated, but her take on it was that, for the money, it was no less demoralizing than frying burgers for minimum wage. Of course there were many men, some of whom she found attractive and enjoyed intercourse with, some of whom she didn't, in which case, she would keep the encounter strictly business. She acknowledged the risks, but said she would consider someone grossly ignorant and foolish to have entered the profession and not have been aware of the risks and taken measures to prevent any disasters. She always had a driver "tough guy" waiting outside in case she didn't come out at the appointed time. This cut down on her profits, but she felt the potential protection was worth it. She got herself tested regularly and put a decent portion of the money away as a nest egg. If she went on a call and "didn't feel right about it" when she got there or if the guy had "obvious signs of disease" she would call her driver immediately and leave. She also said that several of the girls she worked with, including her sister, seemed to enjoy the work more times than not, and that in some cases, it seemed boost their confidence, strength of mind, and sense of independence. We didn't get into the details of how and why. She did admit that it wasn't a job she would want to work for very long, and said she got out of it mainly because she'd grown tired of it, but she didn't regret having gone through the experience and felt that, overall, much of how you felt about it was dependent on the attitude you brought to it.
>
> I'm not saying there aren't countless sex-related atrocities occurring around the world daily...I spent a while investigating the situation in

> Romania a couple years back and was rather disgusted to say the least, but I think it's important to consider the subject from as many angles as possible, including considering some of the more positive outcomes as well.
>
> RR

↑ Index

140. Ruth Lepson

Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

Sat 10 Jan 2009

---

twisting my words!
so writing about objections to prostitution does nothing, huh--so words don't matter?
I think all those jobs are degrading.
I wd like to defend yr friends by getting them better jobs.
I am not criticizing these women.
Better working conditions wd be not having to succumb to male ideas of sexuality in our culture, such narrow constraints.

On 1/9/09 5:49 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:

> but you were the one crying shame! on the women of the Poetry Brothel! for dressing like whores!
>
> (please note that I am NOT arguing that prostitution is not a sexist institution. clearly it is. and i agree that it is part of a complex of normative heterosexuality that does terrible violence to all women. But as for the actual women who are living in actual slavery, i think complaining about the symbolic degrading of womankind does nothing for them: it's like trying to improve the safety of coal mines by complaining about climate change.
>
> And if you're just using those women (who are very real, and many of them living in absolutely horrific situations, as you rightly pointed out) as symbols of Degraded Womankind, you are doing a disservice to them and also to the many many women (some of whom must be subscribers to this list) who work in other parts of the sex trade -- exotic dancers, high-end call-girls, dominatrices, nude housekeepers, pornographic models, hooters waitresses, etc. -- some of these people are my friends and i take it personally -- and I think that their own struggles for better working conditions are not unrelated to the struggle against slavery in other parts of their bosses' businesses...
>
> -- but i'm sorry that i overreacted and became part of a litany of men (all men! really! can it really be that there are no women here who work in the sex trade??) who are all seemingly trying to justify the institution as an institution. I am not trying to justify it, just trying to defend my friends who work there from the harsh judgments of their elders...

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
Sent: Thursday, January 08, 2009 10:11 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

but I don't believe either considering it labor or shame on women is right. in a free society women cd dress any way they wanted not just in ways dictated by the society as sexy.

On 1/8/09 8:22 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:

I did overstate the case a bit -- only because i thought your reaction against The Poetry Brothel was itself overstated. Of course sex is different from sewing.

And sewing is different from mining, and mining is different from picking cotton, etc. -- all of these industries have had -- and do have -- their own slavery problems. And all of them have different occupational hazards and terrible working conditions that need to be addressed, and will only be addressed if the workers can bargain collectively because the bosses are interested only in profits etc. etc. etc.

I propose that a major reason that slavery persists in the sex industry is that the labor movement has utterly ignored those workers, largely because of the knee-jerk moralizing that is our culture's rote response to any mention of sex-work. (and because it apparently takes an involved argument to convince even well-meaning people that sex can be considered work at all.)

(I may be the old-fashioned one here, calling for solidarity across different types of work. But that old labor-movement ethic seems still useful to me -- whereas the old "shame-on-the-women-who-dress-like-whores" ethic seems singularly counterproductive.)

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]]
On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
Sent: Tuesday, January 06, 2009 11:04 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

I guess I must be 200 years old--does nobody else agree that it's common sense that prostitution is essentially different from other kinds of 'work'?

On 12/23/08 10:00 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:

Why is the capitalist exploitation of women at a brothel worse than, say, the capitalist exploitation of women at a Zipper Factory? It's just a different kind of labor, no? Given that some artists are seemingly comfortable with capitalism, why should they not acknowledge it in the name of their ventures?

I understand, of course, that brothels have a particular history with a particular kind of violence attached to it, but so do factories. Do you direct the same righteous anger at Andy Warhol?

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]]
On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
Sent: Monday, December 22, 2008 5:01 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

brothels about as funny as slavery.
which British feminist?

On 12/21/08 1:44 PM, "steve russell" <[redacted]> wrote:

somewhat related: William Styron, the way he waxes his libido in "Sophie's Choice."
i'm still looking for the book of essays by the British Feminist who enlightened me.

--- On Sat, 12/20/08, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]> wrote:

From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Saturday, December 20, 2008, 6:51 PM

cooptation of poetry by capitalist objectification of women. not funny. to use a brothel as a metaphor is disgusting. I remember when Denise Levertov criticized a poet for using napalm as a metaphor for personal pain, saying you don't know what it feels like & it's much worse than the way you are characterizing it.

On 12/19/08 4:15 PM, "mIEKAL aND" <[redacted]> wrote:

New York poetry brothel tempts with verse

Published: Friday December 19, 2008

*http://rawstory.com/news/afp/New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_1219
2
008.html*

The prostitute whispers, wets her lips and prepares to bare... her heart with a poem.

Welcome to New York's Poetry Brothel, where punters delve between the lines, not the sheets.

At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper Factory the look was bona fide bordello.

Literary ladies of the night flitted between intimate, candle-lit nooks, red lights and paintings of nudes.

Some of the poetesses for sale sported retro-style garter belts and frilly knickers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.

But transactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind, not the body, and a moment with the catalogue, replete with pictures and whimsical descriptions, reveals what's on offer.

Page four boasts The Professor, swearing to have heard "the wail of your striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."

Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets she

*doesn't
know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 claiming she can "coax your drum."*

*Gigolo poets are available, not least Poetry Brothel co-founder
Nicholas Adamski, who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops
tempestuous, dark looks with an eye patch.*

*"Poetry is what I love more than anything," cooed The Madame, the
sultry spirit behind the whole idea.*

*The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dressed for the part in low-cut dress, elbow-length black gloves and a peacock
headdress.*

"I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing poetry than listening to some old man sitting on a chair on a stage," she explained by the light of a guttering candle.

*One-on-one encounters, for which "clients" pay three to five dollars
in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free reading, took place upstairs.*

*The "whores" read from their own material, much of which is free
verse, making for intense, sometimes baffling performances.*

*But for those needing a break, the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco
guitarists, a fortune-teller, a blackjack table and a bar
specializing in port and whisky*

The young hedonists, most of them students, appear to have struck a surprisingly successful formula.

"There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets show a lot of cleavage," said The Professor, otherwise known as Jennifer Michael Hecht, aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhattan's New School.

She teaches writing to many of the Brothel's regulars and is proud of the result.

*"It's kind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis. At two in the morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place
reading poetry," she said.*

"The custom is to read poetry alone, but we know that from Homer onward, people read it aloud and in groups."

By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed and getting fuller -- and rowdier.

The fortune teller, bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes, mumbled to someone about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The Madame,
yet another glass of port in hand, introduced poet "whores" in a voice
suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.

When Patricia Smith, a well-established poet, took the mike to declaim a long and rhythmical poem about love and making love, there were rock concert cheers from the crowd.

"I always shudder when I pray," Smith intoned in a mesmerizing voice,
"so your name must be a prayer."

Even for these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis sweeping the country.

One of the poets, 22-year-old Nina Cheng, was about to start a job at Bear Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is writing a play about the experience and applying for a playwright's course at Yale.

"I'd thought I'd do banking and get into the arts when I retired -- not this early," said Cheng, known at the Brothel as The Opium Eater.

Another poetry prostitute, 27-year-old Rachel Herman-Gross, aka Simone, worried that crashing stock markets will pull the rug from under the arts scene. "It's going to be a lot harder. A lot of artists are sustained by grants from people with money."

But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the Poetry Brothel proves there are ways to survive.

"Money's always been scarce for artists and they're very resourceful people," said Edmund Voyer, 54, a hefty man described as an "evangelist" on his business card and who came to the Zipper

> Factory
> wearing a kilt.
>
> His drinking companion, Jennifer Hoa, 27, agreed money and art > would always find ways to meet.
>
> "I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer, but I come > here," she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."
>
> The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.
>
> "Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems,"
> she
> murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation. Or say you > don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm hungry.'"
>
> guidelines &

↑ Index

141. Ruth Lepson
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Sun 11 Jan 2009

---

who's judging men & women for trying to get each others' attention? there are an infinite number of ways of doing that, I suppose. I myself used to be very good at it. the best party I ever went to was given by a crazy gal doing off-broadway--she brought her troupe to town & they brought their costumes & put them all over the floor. every hour we had to change outfits. we cd combine anything with anything. that was liberating.

On 1/8/09 11:12 PM, "Mark Weiss" <[redacted]> wrote:

> When we all wear golden slippers and are pure of heart things may be > different. Til then even women get to enjoy whatever fantasy. Though > I imagine some will deconstruct their motives.

Years ago I was invited to a party in the Hamptons. Turns out it was a "lingerie and toga" party. Nobody told me, so I wasn't dressed appropriately. It was a lot of young professionals, dressed as the name suggests. It was very sad, not because of the indecorous clothes, but because it was otherwise crushingly decorous. Go figure.

Young men and women are in the business of getting each others' attention. Appears to be instinctual. Seems a shame to judge them for it.

Mark

At 10:08 PM 1/8/2009, Ruth Lepson wrote:
but WHY something gets you off is the question.

On 1/8/09 6:37 PM, "Mark Weiss" <[redacted]> wrote:

I'm not sure what you're objecting to, as you seem to be paraphrasing what I said. In the best of all possible worlds there would probably be some voluntary prostitution, but I'd still wonder at the psychological cost to those who chose to make their living that way. Choosing to playact at prostitution, like the women in the poetry brothel, is simply fantasy, and no more destructive, I'd think, than wearing a pirate costume. It's under the category of "whatever gets you off."

Mark

At 01:45 PM 1/8/2009, steve russell wrote:
interesting distinction: Genet did a number with the fantasy realm. But what, exactly, do you mean, Mark, by the fantasy of prostitution? Phone sex? I suppose that's somewhat harmless. But that ain't the real thing. When it's real, as in the sex trade, we're talking ugly/ugly/ugly.

--- On Tue, 1/6/09, Mark Weiss <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Mark Weiss <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Tuesday, January 6, 2009, 11:41 PM

I think we need to make a distinction between prostitution and the fantasy of prostitution. Most prostitution is compelled or a response to desperation. Most fantasy prostitution, playing dress-up and the like, isn't.

At 02:34 PM 1/6/2009, you wrote:
I saw reference in there to men and gigolos. I have a problem

with the old school "sex degrades women" feminist argument. Is a the location of a *brothel and the profession of prostitution always and inherently*
degrading
to women? I thought there were sex-positive feminists who were working against that idea.

-----Original Message-----
From: steve russell [mailto:[redacted]]
Sent: Sunday, December 21, 2008 5:49 PM
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

this seems pretty light hearted.
I'm sorry to hear about the wicked (objects, et cetera) capitalist.
i suspect that the most die hard feminist could enjoy her/himself.

--- On Fri, 12/19/08, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]> wrote:
From: mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
Subject: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Friday, December 19, 2008, 4:15 PM

New York poetry brothel tempts with verse

Published: Friday December 19, 2008

http://rawstory.com/news/afp/New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_12192008.ht
ml

The prostitute whispers, wets her lips and prepares to bare... her heart with a
poem.

Welcome to New York's Poetry Brothel, where punters delve between the lines, not the sheets.

At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper Factory
the
look was bona fide bordello.

Literary ladies of the night flitted between intimate, candle-lit nooks,
red
lights and paintings of nudes.

Some of the poetesses for sale sported retro-style garter belts
and frilly

knickers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.

But transactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind, not the body, and a moment with the catalogue, replete with pictures and whimsical descriptions, reveals what's on offer.

Page four boasts The Professor, swearing to have heard "the wail of your striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."

Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets she doesn't know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 claiming she can "coax your drum."

Gigolo poets are available, not least Poetry Brothel co-founder Nicholas Adamski, who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops tempestuous, dark looks with an eye patch.

"Poetry is what I love more than anything," cooed The Madame, the sultry spirit behind the whole idea.

The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dressed for the part in low-cut dress, elbow-length black gloves and a peacock headdress.

"I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing poetry than listening to some old man sitting on a chair on a stage," she explained by the light of a guttering candle.

One-on-one encounters, for which "clients" pay three to five dollars in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free reading, took place upstairs.

The "whores" read from their own material, much of which is free verse, making for intense, sometimes baffling performances.

But for those needing a break, the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco guitarists, a fortune-teller, a blackjack table and a bar specializing in port and whisky

The young hedonists, most of them students, appear to have struck a surprisingly successful formula.

"There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets show a lot of cleavage," said The Professor, otherwise known as Jennifer Michael Hecht, aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhattan's New School.

She teaches writing to many of the Brothel's regulars and is proud of the result.

"It's kind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis. At two in the morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place reading poetry," she said.

"The custom is to read poetry alone, but we know that from Homer onward, people read it aloud and in groups."

By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed and getting fuller -- and rowdier.

The fortune teller, bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes, mumbled to someone about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The Madame, yet another glass of port in hand, introduced poet "whores" in a voice suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.

When Patricia Smith, a well-established poet, took the mike to declaim a long and rhythmical poem about love and making love, there were rock concert cheers from the crowd.

"I always shudder when I pray," Smith intoned in a mesmerizing voice, "so your name must be a prayer."

Even for these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis sweeping the country.

One of the poets, 22-year-old Nina Cheng, was about to start a job at Bear

Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is writing a play about the experience and applying for a playwright's course at Yale.

"I'd thought I'd do banking and get into the arts when I retired -- not this early," said Cheng, known at the Brothel as The Opium Eater.

Another poetry prostitute, 27-year-old Rachel Herman-Gross, aka Simone, worried that crashing stock markets will pull the rug from under the arts scene. "It's going to be a lot harder. A lot of artists are sustained by grants from people with money."

But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the Poetry Brothel proves there are ways to survive.

"Money's always been scarce for artists and they're very resourceful people," said Edmund Voyer, 54, a hefty man described as an "evangelist" on his business card and who came to the Zipper Factory wearing a kilt.

His drinking companion, Jennifer Hoa, 27, agreed money and art would always find ways to meet.

"I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer, but I come here," she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."

The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.

"Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems," she murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation. Or say you don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm hungry.'"

guidelines

guidelines

> guidelines
>
> guidelines &

↑ Index

142. Murat Nemet-Nejat

Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

Sun 11 Jan 2009

Alice Notley has a poem which starts with the protagonist saying she a woman in a whore house. I can not at this moment remember the title.

Ciao,

Murat

On Sat, Jan 10, 2009 at 11:49 PM, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>wrote:

> twisting my words!
> so writing about objections to prostitution does nothing, huh--so words don't matter?
> I think all those jobs are degrading.
> I wd like to defend yr friends by getting them better jobs.
> I am not criticizing these women.
> Better working conditions wd be not having to succumb to male ideas of sexuality in our culture, such narrow constraints.
>
> On 1/9/09 5:49 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> but you were the one crying shame! on the women of the Poetry Brothel! for > dressing like whores!
>
> (please note that I am NOT arguing that prostitution is not a sexist institution. clearly it is. and i agree that it is part of a complex of normative heterosexuality that does terrible violence to all women. But as > for the actual women who are living in actual slavery, i think complaining > about the symbolic degrading of womankind does nothing for them: it's like trying to improve the safety of coal mines by complaining about climate change.

And if you're just using those women (who are very real, and many of them living in absolutely horrific situations, as you rightly pointed out) as symbols of Degraded Womankind, you are doing a disservice to them and also to the many many women (some of whom must be subscribers to this list) who work in other parts of the sex trade -- exotic dancers, high-end call-girls, dominatrices, nude housekeepers, pornographic models, hooters waitresses, etc. -- some of these people are my friends and i take it personally -- and
I think that their own struggles for better working conditions are not unrelated to the struggle against slavery in other parts of their bosses' businesses...

-- but i'm sorry that i overreacted and became part of a litany of men (all men! really! can it really be that there are no women here who work in the sex trade??) who are all seemingly trying to justify the institution as an institution. I am not trying to justify it, just trying to defend my friends who work there from the harsh judgments of their elders...

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
Sent: Thursday, January 08, 2009 10:11 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

but I don't believe either considering it labor or shame on women is right.
in a free society women cd dress any way they wanted not just in ways dictated by the society as sexy.

On 1/8/09 8:22 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:

I did overstate the case a bit -- only because i thought your reaction against The Poetry Brothel was itself overstated. Of course sex is different from sewing.

And sewing is different from mining, and mining is different from picking cotton, etc. -- all of these industries have had -- and do have -- their own slavery problems. And all of them have different occupational hazards and terrible working conditions that need to be addressed, and will only be addressed if the workers can bargain collectively because the bosses are interested only in profits etc. etc. etc.

I propose that a major reason that slavery persists in the sex industry is that the labor movement has utterly ignored those workers, largely because of the knee-jerk moralizing that is our culture's rote response to any mention of sex-work. (and because it apparently takes an involved argument to convince even well-meaning people that sex can be considered work at all.)

(I may be the old-fashioned one here, calling for solidarity across different types of work. But that old labor-movement ethic seems still useful to me -- whereas the old "shame-on-the-women-who-dress-like-whores" ethic seems singularly counterproductive.)

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]]
On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
Sent: Tuesday, January 06, 2009 11:04 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

I guess I must be 200 years old--does nobody else agree that it's common sense that prostitution is essentially different from other kinds of 'work'?

On 12/23/08 10:00 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:

Why is the capitalist exploitation of women at a brothel worse than, say, the capitalist exploitation of women at a Zipper Factory? It's just a different kind of labor, no? Given that some artists are seemingly comfortable with capitalism, why should they not acknowledge it in the name of their ventures?

I understand, of course, that brothels have a particular history with a particular kind of violence attached to it, but so do factories. Do you direct the same righteous anger at Andy Warhol?

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]]
On Behalf Of Ruth Lepson
Sent: Monday, December 22, 2008 5:01 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

brothels about as funny as slavery.
which British feminist?

On 12/21/08 1:44 PM, "steve russell" <[redacted]> wrote:

somewhat related: William Styron, the way he waxes his libido in "Sophie's Choice."
i'm still looking for the book of essays by the British Feminist who enlightened me.

--- On Sat, 12/20/08, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Saturday, December 20, 2008, 6:51 PM

cooptation of poetry by capitalist objectification of women. not funny. to use a brothel as a metaphor is disgusting. I remember when Denise Levertov criticized a poet for using napalm as a metaphor for personal pain, saying you don't know what it feels like & it's much worse than the way you are characterizing it.

On 12/19/08 4:15 PM, "mIEKAL aND" <[redacted]>
wrote:

New York poetry brothel tempts with verse

Published: Friday December 19, 2008

http://rawstory.com/news/afp/New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_1219
2

008.html

The prostitute whispers, wets her lips and prepares to bare... her heart with a poem.

Welcome to New York's Poetry Brothel, where punters delve between the lines, not the sheets.

At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper Factory the look was bona fide bordello.

Literary ladies of the night flitted between intimate, candle-lit nooks, red lights and paintings of nudes.

Some of the poetesses for sale sported retro-style garter belts and frilly knickers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.

But transactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind, not the body, and a moment with the catalogue, replete with pictures and whimsical descriptions, reveals what's on offer.

Page four boasts The Professor, swearing to have heard "the wail of your striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."

Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets she doesn't know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 claiming she can "coax your drum."

Gigolo poets are available, not least Poetry Brothel co-founder Nicholas Adamski, who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops tempestuous, dark looks with an eye patch.

"Poetry is what I love more than anything," cooed The Madame, the
sultry spirit behind the whole idea.

The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dressed for the part in low-cut dress, elbow-length black gloves and a peacock headdress.

"I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing poetry than listening to some old man sitting on a chair on a stage," she explained by the light of a guttering candle.

One-on-one encounters, for which "clients" pay three to five dollars in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free reading, took place upstairs.

The "whores" read from their own material, much of which is free verse, making for intense, sometimes baffling performances.

But for those needing a break, the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco guitarists, a fortune-teller, a blackjack table and a bar specializing in port and whisky

The young hedonists, most of them students, appear to have struck a surprisingly successful formula.

"There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets show a lot of cleavage," said The Professor, otherwise known as Jennifer Michael Hecht, aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhattan's New School.

She teaches writing to many of the Brothel's regulars and is proud of the result.

"It's kind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis. At two in the morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place reading poetry," she said.

"The custom is to read poetry alone, but we know that from Homer onward, people read it aloud and in groups."

By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed and getting fuller -- and rowdier.

The fortune teller, bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes, mumbled to someone about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The Madame, yet another glass of port in hand, introduced poet "whores" in a voice suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.

When Patricia Smith, a well-established poet, took the mike to declaim a long and rhythmical poem about love and making love, there were rock concert cheers from the crowd.

"I always shudder when I pray," Smith intoned in a mesmerizing voice, "so your name must be a prayer."

Even for these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis

sweeping the country.

One of the poets, 22-year-old Nina Cheng, was about to start a job at Bear Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is writing a play about the experience and applying for a playwright's course at Yale.

"I'd thought I'd do banking and get into the arts when I retired -- not this early," said Cheng, known at the Brothel as The Opium Eater.

Another poetry prostitute, 27-year-old Rachel Herman-Gross, aka Simone, worried that crashing stock markets will pull the rug from under the arts scene. "It's going to be a lot harder. A lot of artists are sustained by grants from people with money."

But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the Poetry Brothel proves there are ways to survive.

"Money's always been scarce for artists and they're very resourceful people," said Edmund Voyer, 54, a hefty man described as an "evangelist" on his business card and who came to the Zipper Factory wearing a kilt.

His drinking companion, Jennifer Hoa, 27, agreed money and art would always find ways to meet.

"I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer, but I come here," she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."

The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.

"Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems," she murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation. Or say you don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm hungry.'"

guidelines &

> guidelines
>
> guidelines &

↑ Index

143. David Seaman

Adam

Sun 11 Jan 2009

This remark is interesting and courageous, in this context. It has become dangerous to enter the dialogue. I have been surprised at how long this debate has gone on, and it begins to resemble one of those feuds that gets worse through responding rhetoric, further alienating the conversants. One of the dangers of the internet, we can speak too soon, and too rashly. (Been there, my Dutch friends.)

Are we able to use any imagery at all? A holocaust of the mind, the poetry brothel, a genocide of vegetables, a lasagne of literature, a smoothie of symbolism. “Epater les bourgeois!” Well, we seem to have done it.

I think this discussion has gotten out of hand. I would love to use my wife’s breasts and my rising manhood in poetic imagery, and do it without implicitly supporting sex slaves in Thailand. For me, all poetry is about creativity, and all creativity is about sex, and all sex is … well, you get the idea.

Davoid

↑ Index

144. David Giannini

please post

Sun 11 Jan 2009

A D A S T R A P R E S S
16 Reservation Road . Easthampton . MA . 01027 ANNOUNCING: A Z T W O: Words of Travel poems by David Giannini
DATE OF PUBLICATION: JANUARY 2009

ISBN 13: 978-0-9822495-0-5 5.5" x 8.5" paper wrapper 34 pages $18.00
CONTENTS: A suite of twenty-five poems inspired by the Sedona, Arizona area and the Sinagua Indian culture that once thrived and mysteriously disappeared there. In these poems there is history, humor, passion and love.
EDITION: Limited to 220 copies. Handset Monotype Garamond type, letterpress printed on archival quality Mohawk Superfine text, handsewn with a Classic Laid Duplex recycled cover and illustrated with Sinagua Indian designs and petroglyphs, printed in different hand-mixed colors.
Who can prove we are not the spirits of this we move through?
(from "Feel of the Desert")
DISTRIBUTORS: Small Press Distribution [redacted] (www.spdbooks.org)
Amazon.com
And: Directly from the Publisher (add $2.50 shipping)
ABOUT THE AUTHOR
DAVID GIANNINI is the author of over thirty poetry collections, most recently How Else? (Longhouse Press) and Low-Tide Cards (Country Valley Press) and including Antonia & Clara (Adastra 1992).
- -
Order Form
AZ TWO: Words of Travel by David Giannini
Send ____ copy(ies) at $18.00 each plus $2.50 shipping, for a total of $_____ Ship To:
Mail order and payment (institutions may invoice) to:
ADASTRA PRESS . 16 Reservation Road . Easthampton . MA 01027

↑ Index

145. John Cunningham
Re: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry
Sun 11 Jan 2009

Thank you, Troy, for this rather detailed overview on theology. There are a couple of points with which I take exception. Being a Buddhist/Taoist, I take exception to your use of the word 'holy'. I would much rather see the word 'spiritual' used as, in my mind, 'holy' is, in fact, a divisive word - something which, in opposition to, is one of the main themes of your expurgation. Another is your discussion of Christianity. Unfortunately, in all things verging on the spiritual, the original message of the originator is corrupted once it gets into the hands of man. This is true even of Buddhism where a religion was created where none was intended. The philosophy of Buddhism and Taoism is intended to act on an individual basis although the concept of the sangha may create confusion. However, when the sangha is considered as a spiritual body there to support the individual in their quest for nirvana (nirbbana), then the individual remains paramount. Finally, your use of the term 'postmodern'. If we accept Foucault's concept of the rupture and his adoption of the terms 'epoch' as areas in which new conceptions of old concepts has occurred, then 'modernism' is just an extension, the dying breath, of romanticism. Therefore, the correct term should be 'post-romantic'. Just some random thoughts. John Herbert Cunningham

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Troy Camplin
Sent: January-09-09 11:25 AM
To: [redacted]
Subject: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry

In English the words holy, whole, hale, and health are etymologically connected – Old English halig, hal, and hælth, respectively, which are all related to hal. Thus are they conceptually connected. To see the world as holy is to see the world as whole – it is to have the world “appear infinite and holy, whereas it now appears finite and corrupt” (William Blake, “The Marriage of Heaven and Hell”). The word holistic comes from the Greek holos, whole. Thus the holy is holistic – God is holy because He encompasses all. Perhaps one could even say that we can recognize the divine only when we come to see the world as a whole, when we see the universe as universal. When we can come

To see a World in a grain of sand,
And a Heaven in a wild flower,
Hold Infinity in the palm of your hand,
And Eternity in an hour. (William Blake, “Auguries of Innocence”)

Health and hale is the same. To have health is to have wholeness. To be hale is to be healthy – whole and complete. To make healthy is to make whole again. One is healed through medication. But ideally, one would rather maintain one’s health than have to withstand the ravages of medication (pharmaceutical comes from the Greek pharmakon, which means both poison and medicine – as it does today), though medication is necessary to stave off disease. This is the purpose of Plato’s Pharmakon, to stave off disease. For disease is the opposite of health.

The Modern Era, which we are still in, though we may be at the end of it, began when Descartes split man in two – body and soul. It was a necessary division for the development of modern science (which Descartes all but admits to – the division is so the Church will tend to the soul, while the body is left alone, to be tended to by scientists such as Descartes), but it was certainly an unholy division (as all divisions are, by definition). Kant deepened this division. Hegel tried to mend it through philosophical synthesis. Marx tried to mend it by recommending the overthrow of half of the world – the world would then be wholly Proletarian. Nietzsche responded to Hegel by dividing the world up even more – for him, humans are not divided into body and soul, but are instead a series of masks. With postmodernism, the division is complete: men and women, multiculturalism, radical Cartesian individualism divide us up more and more. Any universality is denied. A necessary development – and not without its truth (I am aware of the irony of using the word truth, which comes from the Old English treowth, related to the word troth, from which we get the word betrothed, to speak of an idea that is more interested in divorce than betrothal). But it is precisely as unholy as one can get.

The deep divisions fostered by postmodernism came about because of a view that grand narratives, attempts to universalize, and seeing the world as holistic created the problems of the 20th Century. The Marxist grand narrative gave us the gulag of the Soviet Union, the massacres of the Khmer Rouge in Cambodia, and any number of other slaughters done by governments who had embraced Marxist philosophy. We looked back on history after the Holocaust, saw the grand narrative of Christianity had in the past itself promoted the killing of Jews – particularly in the Inquisition – and concluded that it too was dangerous. One could also mention The Terror of the French Revolution. What did Marxism, Medieval Christianity, and the French Revolution have in common? One thing was that they were all grand narratives. Thus, the logic goes, it must be grand narratives which are bad. And what do grand narratives do? They see the world as a whole, which must be encompassed by their ideology. To make the world a whole, it must be placed under their one ideology. Thus, holistic world views were seen as bad – thus were they, and holiness, rejected. The path to Heaven – whether that heaven was celestial or earthly – seemed to lead us straight into Hell. Perhaps in part the rejection of holding a holistic view came about because it is related to the holy, and the holy has been rejected. To the extent that wisdom is the ability to see the unity of the world – meaning wisdom is the ability to see the world as holy – wisdom was also rejected as impossible, perhaps even undesirable.

The error in this way of thinking derives from the error made in seeing Communism, Christianity, or the ideals of the French Revolution as interested in seeing the world as holistic. None of them saw the world as holistic, as holy – they instead wanted to make the world whole, under their particular umbrellas. They too fostered divisions – there were enemies who had to be either converted or killed in order that the world could be made holy. “For the cherub with his flaming sword is hereby commanded to leave his guard at tree of life; and when he does, the whole creation will be consumed and appear infinite and holy” (Blake “The Marriage of Heaven and Hell”). Now Blake here uses the word “appear.” None of them saw the world as holy. It had to be made so – through conflagration, if necessary. Postmodern thought, by dividing the world even more, does not help us to see the world as holy – quite the contrary. However, by insisting on equality among the various parts – among individuals, among cultures, among religions, among any number of groups of individuals – postmodern thought may ironically make it now possible to see the world as being, rather than needing to become, holy.

It may seem ironic to suggest that only by reaching the most severe of divisions – seeing the world as eminently unholy – that we can finally come to see that the world is in fact holy, but I am not being ironic. To see the world as holy is not to see everything in the world as equal in an egalitarian sense. There are hierarchies. To see the world as holy is to understand how everything fits into the world as a whole. It is to see the world as an immense organism, and to care for its health. An organism is made up of systems, organs, tissues, cells, organelles, and various biochemicals. For one group to want to envelop the entire world in one way of thinking, believing, viewing the world, would be the same as one cell wanting to envelop the entire organism in that one type of cell. We have a word for cells that want to do that: cancer. The postmodernists have mistaken viewing the actions of cancerous cells for seeing the whole organism. Cancer must be fought, not mistaken for the animal it is in. That is the only way one can have a healthy organism – and it is the only way to have a holy world.. Like a healthy organism, a holy world is complex. Like a healthy organism, a holy world has smoothly working parts in communication with each other through clear rules that proscribe what each part needs to do for the whole to work well. Like a healthy organism, this cannot come from any centralized authority – there is no one control cell in the body, and the brain must have the lungs just as much as the lungs must have the brain. A holy world is like a healthy organism.

In Negative Theology, one comes to know what God is by figuring out what God is not. Aristotle says that if you are not sure if something is good, try to figure out what is bad, and you can then deduce that what is good is its opposite. The following are unhealthy:

1. Overeating, including eating a high percentage of foods with low nutritional value, while remaining inactive (not exercising) 2. Either stagnation or change without continuity – both create instability 3. Stress and anxiety – which comes about from not realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, and can lead to anger at those very things 4. Hatred – aside from raising the blood pressure, it can cause one to act in ways that would be unhealthy for the object of our hatred 5. Cancer – already discussed 6. Excess – including the excess of moderation 7. Shackles – prevents sufficient movement, equating to lack of exercise 8. Pollution – it can lead to any number of diseases 9. An overly-clean environment – it can prevent our immune systems from developing properly, making us more susceptible to diseases, especially autoimmune diseases 10. Suicide – inherently and obviously unhealthy 11. Isolation – loneliness can lead to depression, which depresses the immune system 12. Ignorance – either of the world or of oneself, as one cannot maintain one's health if one is ignorant of what can harm it or improve it

This leads one to posit the following are healthy:

1. Exercise, with a diet proper to the amount of exercise and of high nutritional value
2. Change with continuity
3. Realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, thus reducing stress and anxiety
4. Love
5. Keeping the body in hierarchical harmony
6. Moderation in everything, including moderation – remembering that moderation is an extreme in the same way that life is an extreme state of organic chemistry
7. Freedom – remembering that freedom does not equate to a lack of rules, but is rather what is achieved through playing by the best rules
8. Cleanliness (which, as the saying goes, is next to Godliness, meaning it is holy)
9. A non-sanitized world – a world without dirt is a world that makes unhealthy organisms
10. Love of one's own life
11. Friends
12. Knowledge – including self-knowledge

One can make a similar list of what makes for a healthy mind: 1. Taking in healthy information – good art, music, literature, philosophy, the sciences, etc. – with sufficient exercise of the mind through thought, discussion, and writing 2. Change with continuity 3.. Realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, thus reducing stress and anxiety, which can negatively affect the mind as well as the body 4. Love 5. Having a variety of inputs – obsession with one thing alone is a kind of mental cancer 6. Moderation in everything, including moderation – moderation of reading, of rigorous thought, sexual thoughts, work, play, physical activity, etc. 7. Freedom of thought – we must not think in shackles, but with flexible rules 8. Cleanliness of thought – this does not necessarily mean what it has traditionally meant in the West, though it can certainly contain some elements; thinking about sex is in and of itself not unclean 9. Realization that we do not and cannot live in a sanitized world, as that stops thought and creativity 10. Love of thinking 11. Friends – as Aristotle says in Rhetoric, "a wide circle of friends, a virtuous circle of friends," and, I would add, a mentally stimulating circle of friends 12. Knowledge – including self knowledge – with the goal of wisdom

A holy world is one that parallels the healthy body and the healthy mind, and will have the above qualities, including moderation in everything, including moderation (i.e., it will be a just world), freedom (this is freedom from, not freedom to), love, friendship, and beauty. A holy world is a beautiful world, both having variety in unity, unity in variety, complexity, and fluid hierarchy that is self-similar regardless of scale. All of the parts, living in love and friendship (which does not exclude healthy competition, such as we find in sports and in free trade), living in a complex dynamic with each other, living as individuals in various communities, many of which overlap and are nested within other communities, must be self-similar to have a holy world.

In Greek, to kalon means the beautiful, but it can also mean the honorable or the noble – and kala can mean either things that are beautiful or things that are morally good. In the Rhetoric, Aristotle says that "Now kalon describes whatever, through being chosen for itself, is praiseworthy or whatever, through being good [agathon], is pleasant because it is good [agathon]. If this, then, is the kalon, then virtue is necessarily kalon; for it is praiseworthy because of being good [agathon]" (79). Elaine Scarry points out that in English too, there is a connection between beauty and the good (the just), when she points out that to say that something is fair is to say that it is either beautiful or that it is just. In Greek and in English, the beautiful and the good are connected. If a holy world is a beautiful world, it is a good and just world as well. As Heraclitus said, "For god all things are fair and just, but men have taken some things as unjust, others as just" (LXVIII). The key here is that we see the world itself as just – not the actions of each and every individual. The world is itself justified and cannot itself be unjust. This is consistent with the teachings of any religion that sees the world as having been created by God or the gods – how could a fair and just god create a world that was itself unjust? And if theistic religions are rejected, how can the world itself possibly be unjust? To say it is unjust is to give it anthropomorphic qualities. It is people who have taken some things as being just, others as unjust – but the world itself is self-justified. Those who do not see the world as just are those who do not see the world as holy – often they are the same people who think the only way the world can be justified is if the world is made holy through the transformation of it into a perfect mirror of themselves.

But we have seen that a world made up of only one world view is a cancerous world – and the world, as a cancerous organism, will die. An organism cannot consist of one type of cell – that is the unhealthiest of organisms. And a world having only one world view is the unhealthiest of worlds. In the same way that a healthy body consists of a variety of cells that are variations of the same theme coded by identical DNA, a healthy world consists of a variety of peoples that are variations of the same themes coded for by our being human and sharing the same cultural universals.

Beauty is also related to health – as we can see in the beauty we find in nature. Healthy plants produce the most beautiful flowers. Healthy peacocks produce the largest, most symmetrical, most colorful feathers. Healthy gobies and other territorial reef fish have the brightest colors. All of this natural beauty is the advertisement of health to the opposite sex. The healthiest human bodies (neither overweight nor super model thin) are the most beautiful. Thus is there also a relationship between health, beauty, and sex. If beauty can thus be equated to health, we can see that beauty is again equated to the holy. And we can see too that sex in-and-of-itself is and cannot be unholy, as it is connected (but not equivalent) to beauty.

A holy world is a whole world. It is a healthy world. It is a good and just world. It is a complex world. It is a world of individuals in community. It is a beautiful world. But is it a possible world? I have already given the answer: the world is itself already holy. We just have to learn to see it as holy. That is how we will heal the world. And, as we do, we will become less and less likely to want or try to eliminate those who disagree with us – until we are all in agreement on this one issue, as all the cells in an organism are in agreement on the one issue that they must work together for the health of the whole, even as each performs its own function. Thus, the world will become more and more holy in our eyes. In works of tragedy, nomos (convention, human law, naming; from which we get the words nomad and nomenclature, and which is the changing and changeable aspect of the world) comes into conflict with physis (or nature; from which we get the word physics). That is the position we are now in. When we get nomos to map onto physis (Heraclitus calls this conjunction logos – which can be translated as saying, speech, discourse, word, account, explanation, reason, principle, collection, enumeration, ratio, proportion), we will see the world as it truly is: holy.

On the Holy

Where lies the holy in the modern world?
It lies in Blake’s world in a grain of sand –
It lies, and lies like the truth, in patterns
Like self-organized rings of rocks barren

Arctic fields create. It lies in the branch
Of every tree and species, leafing out
From the known into the unknown. It lies
In every song, painting and rhythmic verse.
We have looked at every leaf and petal,
At the bark and at the wood, every cell
And strand of DNA is now known –
And we have forgotten that all of this
Was once a tree that gave us shade and filled
The air with delicate sweetness and held
The grains of sand against its roots to hold
The ground in place, even as that ground moves
And changes in tiny ways we refuse
To see. In this we can see the holy.
This is where it lies, now and forever,
On the edge of order and wild chaos,
Where the infinite holds in the finite,
Where we, ourselves holy, have always lived.

Troy Camplin

↑ Index

146. Eric Hoffman

Oppen quote - help!

Sun 11 Jan 2009

Please help! I'm trying to locate the source of the following passage from one of Oppen's Daybooks or Papers, published in Sulfur, Conjunctions, Iowa Review, Germ, Jubilat or Ironwood? I don't think it's included in Cope's book . . .

"Clarity for my sake. That I may understand my life."

Thank you in advance!

↑ Index

147. Eiríkur Örn Norðdahl

Re: Prostitution in Sweden

Sun 11 Jan 2009

It's not all roses though - as far as I know this has caused alot of problems - i.e. as the prostitute is no longer a criminal, but still a part of the "game", she or he becomes a threat to the rest of the players, as she or he can at any time run to the police, snitch on everyone and get off scott-free - and in the underground world threats tend to become neutralized: i.e. prostitution in Sweden has a tendency to be eastern european women locked up in hotel rooms without any connection to the outside world (as in the Lukas Moodyson film, Lilja 4ever). Which is not a good thing.

And as far as I know, it's not only the customer but also the pimp or agent or any third party which stands to benefit from the prostitution.

On 1/11/09 6:40 AM, "Ruth Lepson" <[redacted]> wrote:

> goddess bless you for sending this & bless sweden.
>
> On 1/10/09 6:15 PM, "steve russell" <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> some info from wikipedia:
> Â
> Sweden considers prostitution a form of Violence against Women.
> Only the customer is prosecuted.
>
> as for male prostitutes, the same rules apply.
> the customer is held in contempt.
>
> this, i suppose, would discourage pimps, brothels, et cetera.
> as far as i can tell, Sweden has the most enlightened approach towards the world's "oldest > proffession."

--
www.norddahl.org
EirÃkur Ã–rn NorÃ°dahl
Fleminginkatu 9A 10
00530 Helsinki
Finland

↑ Index

148. Rob McLennan
[[redacted]: AngelHousePress Essay Series, # 1]
Sun 11 Jan 2009

hi all,

the first in the series is up on Angelhousepress.com under Essays.

the essay was written by rob mclennan, whose poetry appears in the first issue of experiment-o. the essay concerns "house, a tiny memoir", a work in progress. AngelHousePress will be publishing selections from this collection in the near future.

enjoy!

Amanda

-- writer/editor/publisher ...STANZAS mag, above/ground press & Chaudiere Books (www.chaudierebooks.com) ...coord.,SPAN-O + ottawa small press fair ...13th poetry coll'n - The Ottawa City Project ...novel - white www.abovegroundpress.blogspot.com * http://robmclennan.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

149. Martha King

Joan Silber & Mike DeCapite read NYC 2-5

Sun 11 Jan 2009

---

¥ P R O S E P R O S S E R I E S at the T E L E P H O N E G R I L L *¥

* *

JOAN SILBER and MIKE DeCAPITE

* *

Two urban veterans with vastly different angles on urban life

* *

Thursday, February 5, 2009, 6:30 [boldly prompt!] to 8:30

* *

The Telephone Bar & Grill – 149 Second Avenue btw 9th & 10th Streets

All trains to Union Square, 6 to Astor Place, F to Second Avenue

* *

*JOAN SILBER sixth book The Size of the World (W.W. Norton 2008) is garnering great reviews and even better word of mouth-- ironically delightful for a book that hinges on seeing the quotidian in the "exotic" world. As the New York Times Book Review* put it: *"*Slowly, almost while your attention is somewhere else, the intensity level rises. And rises. Notes sounded softly in the early stories deepen and resonate, until Silber's quiet music has turned symphonic."

* ***

The author of five previous books, including, Ideas of Heaven: A Ring of Stories, and Household Words, Silber's novels and short prose have become well-known for their precision and passion – qualities that enable her to explore some of horrors of contemporary life with deft command.

And she's a wonderful reader*. *

*MIKE DeCAPITE's *work first appeared in the three issues of *CUZ *magazine published in 1988 and 1989. His first novel, Through the Windshield, gathered notoriety in the ten years it was passed around in manuscript before DeCapite published it himself, through his Sparkle Street Books, in 1998.

Harvey Pekar, reviewing the book for the Austin Chronicle, called it "one of the best American novels of the last several years." Rain Taxi ran an appreciation of the book by Jocko Weyland early last year. DeCapite's story "Sitting Pretty" was published as a CUZ Edition in 1999, and selected for The Italian American Reader, published by HarperCollins in 2003. In 2003 and 2004, he wrote a monthly personal-observation column for * angle *magazine called "Radiant Fog." He's since completed a second novel, Ruined for Life!, an excerpt of which can be read at 3:AM magazine online. After twelve years in San Francisco, DeCapite moved back to Brooklyn in 2005.

* *

* *

NEXT UP: March 5th the readers are The Brooklyn Rail's film critic David Wilentz and founding member of Ed's Redeeming Qualities, novelist Dani Leone, writing as L. E. Leone. Save the date!

The readings take place in the comfortable backroom Lounge of the Telephone Bar, serving fine vegetarian and carnivore fare, and all usual liquids.

Admission is free, but we pass the hat. All proceeds go to the readers. The series is curated by Martha King and Elinor Nauen, and offers prose readings usually on the first Thursday of the month, from September through June.

For more information or to be added to (or dropped from) the e-mail list, contact *[redacted] or [redacted]*

↑ Index

150. Alexander Jorgensen

STEEL PUDDING anthology gives voice to African-American life in Gary, Indiana at 3rd Saturday Coffeehouse Jan. 17th

Sun 11 Jan 2009

---

om: Diane Scott <[redacted]>
Subject: STEEL PUDDING anthology gives voice to African-American life in Gary, Indiana at 3rd Saturday Coffeehouse Jan. 17th
To: "Diane Scott" <[redacted]>
Date: Sunday, January 11, 2009, 9:06 PM

An Open Mic for Poets, Musicians, Storytellers & Other Performers!

3rd Saturday Coffeehouse:

An Open Mic at Unity Temple in Oak Park

Sponsored by

The Unity Temple Unitarian Universalist Congregation

Mark Your Calendar!

It's always the 3rd Saturday of the month

at Unity Temple,

875
Lake Street, in Downtown Oak Park

THIS MONTH'S FEATURE:

Saturday,
Jan. 17, 2009

Writers
from Gary, Indiana, reading from

STEEL
PUDDING anthology

Join us on Saturday, January 17th as we listen to the creative voices of writers from Gary, Indiana at 3rd Saturday Coffeehouse Open Mic Night. “Steel Pudding” anthology was created from a writing workshop led by well-known poet and teacher Sterling D. Plumpp, and sponsored by the Gary Historical and Cultural Society, founded by Dharathula H. “Dolly” Millender.

“Steel Pudding” presents stories and poems reflecting the diversity of the city of Gary, with contemporary urban, rural and African-American themes. Listen to stories of racial pride, love, racism, sharecropping, spiritual renewal and awakening, with Gary’s unique steel industry and history as a background. Writers reading their work include Naomi Millender, Isaac Preston III, Kposivi Clark, Maggie Dell McClain, Adlee Hodges, and Larry Collins, with GHCS founder Dolly Millender available to answer questions.

Join us at Unity Temple, 875 Lake Street (at Kenilworth), Oak Park. 7:30 sign up, 8 pm Open Mic, 9 pm featured performer. Open Mic is limited to 5 minutes. Charlie Rossiter host. We are acoustic--no equipment provided. $3-$5 donation. Wheelchair accessible. Info at [redacted].

_____

UPCOMING FEATURES:

Feb. 21 - poets Al DeGenova (publisher of AfterHours journal) & Jared Smith (trekking from the Colorado Rockies to bring poetry to his old stomping grounds)

Mar.
21 - singer/songwriter Carol Williams

April
18--Susan
Firer, poet laureate of Milwaukee (poetry month)

_____

DIRECTIONS:

From Chicago
take the I-290 exit at Austin, go north to Lake and west to

Kenilworth

From the West take the I-290 exit at Harlem Ave, go north to Lake and east to Kenilworth

With the el, exit the Green Line at Oak Park Ave, go north to Lake Ave;

west to Kenilworth

Parking--there's lots of street parking.

Also a village lot at Oak Park & North Blvd., and another at Lake Street & Forest.

Need more info: [redacted].

We hope you can join us, and please forward this note to interested others.

If
you would like to be taken off of our monthly email list, or are receiving multiple emails, please hit reply and let me know.

---

http://www.blackrobertjournal.blogspot.com

↑ Index

151. Catherine Daly
Fwd: [WOM-PO] CFP: UCLA indigenous connections
Sun 11 Jan 2009

Please spread widely, and thank you. dm

CALL FOR SUBMISSIONS:
"Spiraled Connections"
40 Years of Indigenous Journeys at UCLA

The American Indian Studies Center is seeking poetry submissions for a fortieth-anniversary anthology commem¬orating its forty years of publishing books by and about Native peoples. We envision this anthology as a collection of materials by Indigenous poets directly connected to UCLA in the past forty years and those they have mentored or influ¬enced. Our aim is to illustrate and celebrate the ways that Native people present at the core of the American Indian educational movement have radiated their innovation and empowerment out to the community in all directions. Submissions do not have to be education-oriented.

Deadline: February 1, 2009

WHO CAN SUBMIT: Indigenous poets (having origin in any of the original peoples of North America and who maintain cultural identification through tribal affiliation or community recognition) connected in some way to UCLA (alumni, former/current professor/undergraduate/graduate/staff, folks previously published in AICRJ or other American Indian Studies Center publications) and those they have mentored or influenced.

WHAT TO SUBMIT: Up to five poems (single spaced), not to exceed a total of ten typed pages. We are open to all poetic styles and forms. Poems in your Indigenous language will be considered but you must also provide English translation with your submission. What have we become in these past forty years of American Indian scholarship, education, community, intellectual, creative and academic adventure? Who have we become, who have we touched, how have we grown, transformed, helped each other, learned to negotiate the academy, our multiple roles and lives? How can we, as poets, express this Indigenous journey?

SUBMISSION GUIDELINES: Please include name, email, phone, address, and a brief bio along with your submis¬sions. While unpublished pieces are preferred, previously published material will be considered. If something has been previously published, please let us know where and when it was published, and whether you have the rights to your own material.

HOW TO SUBMIT: Inquiries can be directed to Deborah Miranda: [redacted]. Deadline: February 1, 2009. Please send submissions with an SASE for response to:

Deborah Miranda
English Department
Washington and Lee University
204 W. Washington St.
Lexington, VA 24450

ABOUT THE EDITOR: Deborah Miranda is an Esselen/Chumash poet and scholar, currently an associate professor of English at Washington and Lee University in Lexington, Virginia, where she teaches creative writing, literature, and composition. She has published two poetry collections, Indian Cartography and The Zen of La Llorona; projects forthcoming are Bad Indians: A Tribal Memoir, and Written on the Bark of Trees: Praise Poems.

Deborah A. Miranda
Associate Professor, English
Washington and Lee University
Lexington, VA 24450-2116

"In a time of destruction, create something. A poem. A parade. A community. A vow. A moral principal. One peaceful moment." -- Maxine Hong Kingston, _The Fifth Book of Peace_.

--
All best,
Catherine Daly
[redacted]

↑ Index

152. Jim Andrews
Microsoft Songsmith
Sun 11 Jan 2009

apologies: i have no control over the cheese slider:
http://research.microsoft.com/songsmith

sing into a microphone or play an instrument into it and this product of microsoft research apparently helps you create a song from it.

i haven't tried it out yet myself. just watched the video and read some propaganda.

to judge from the video, 'the future looks dreadful'. the actual music in the promo video truly is dreadful. just dreadful.

but the concept is kind of interesting.

but they should tone it down on the cheese slider.

or is it made of cheese? is it cheese all over it like ugly on an ape? or is it more a matter of what is easy? cheese is relatively easy, isn't it, which is part of what we object to in its cheesiness: it's predictable, easily automated style.

ja?

ps: i've linked to it at http://vispo.com/misc/ia.htm , which is my page of annotated links to works of interactive audio.

↑ Index

153. Amanda Earl
AngelHousePress Essay Series
Mon 12 Jan 2009

the first in a new series of essays written by contributors is up on Angelhousepress.com under Essays.

the essay was written by rob mclennan, whose poetry appears in the first issue of experiment-o. the essay concerns "house, a tiny memoir", a work in progress. AngelHousePress will be publishing selections from this collection in the near future.

enjoy!

Amanda
www.angelhousepress.com
www.experiment-o.com

↑ Index

154. Tim Peterson
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Mon 12 Jan 2009

Adam! Ruth! Two of my dearest friends...it makes me feel terrible to see you guys fighting like this! The Poetry Brothel is not worth getting this upset about. Let's all kick back in my living room with a mug of coco and listen to Gloria Steinheim records backwards. How about this evening?

Love, Tim

Date: Sat, 10 Jan 2009 23:49:49 -0500
From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

twisting my words!
so writing about objections to prostitution does nothing, huh--so words don't matter?
I think all those jobs are degrading.
I wd like to defend yr friends by getting them better jobs.
I am not criticizing these women.
Better working conditions wd be not having to succumb to male ideas of sexuality in our culture, such narrow constraints.

On 1/9/09 5:49 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:

> but you were the one crying shame! on the women of the Poetry Brothel! for > dressing like whores!
>
> (please note that I am NOT arguing that prostitution is not a sexist > institution. clearly it is. and i agree that it is part of a complex of > normative heterosexuality that does terrible violence to all women. But as > for the actual women who are living in actual slavery, i think complaining > about the symbolic degrading of womankind does nothing for them: it's like > trying to improve the safety of coal mines by complaining about climate > change.
>
> And if you're just using those women (who are very real, and many of them > living in absolutely horrific situations, as you rightly pointed out) as > symbols of Degraded Womankind, you are doing a disservice to them and also > to the many many women (some of whom must be subscribers to this list) who > work in other parts of the sex trade -- exotic dancers, high-end call-girls, > dominatrices, nude housekeepers, pornographic models, hooters waitresses, > etc. -- some of these people are my friends and i take it personally --

and > I think that their own struggles for better working conditions are not > unrelated to the struggle against slavery in other parts of their bosses' > businesses...
>
> -- but i'm sorry that i overreacted and became part of a litany of men (all > men! really! can it really be that there are no women here who work in
the
> sex trade??) who are all seemingly trying to justify the institution as an > institution. I am not trying to justify it, just trying to defend my > friends who work there from the harsh judgments of their elders...
>

↑ Index

155. Steve Halle

John Beer @ Seven Corners

Mon 12 Jan 2009

Start the week off right: check out new poems by John Beer at Seven Corners <http://www.sevencornerspoetry.blogspot.com/> (http://www.sevencornerspoetry.blogspot.com/).

Best,
Steve Halle
editor

↑ Index

156. Dan Wilcox

Third Thursday Poetry Night -- Nicole Karas, Open Mic

Mon 12 Jan 2009

---

the Poetry Motel Foundation
presents

Third Thursday Poetry Night

at
the Social Justice Center
33 Central Ave., Albany, NY

Thursday, January 15, 2009
7:00 sign up; 7:30 start

Featured Poet: Nicole Karas Nicole Karas has written poetry since she first laid her hands on a salt and pepper composition notebook in elementary school. She is excited about the Albany poetry scene and the people involved in it.

-- with open mic for community poets before & after the feature: $3.00 donation, suggested; more if you got it, less if you can't. Your hopeful host: Dan Wilcox.

(here's a tiny taste of Nicole's poetry as a teaser)

i am a delicious mess right now.
all visceral
and bone and gristle.
all hair and sashay and confusion.
blurry.
you can't catch me.
there i go.

NK 8/10/08

↑ Index

157. amy king

Want your poem to reach nearly two million people?

Mon 12 Jan 2009

Want your words to reach nearly two million people?

Goodreads and the ¡Poetry! group have partnered to create a contest in order to select a new poem each month for our newsletter. http://www.goodreads.com/group/show/233._POETRY_

1. Post your best poem (one poem per person) in this folder.

2. Goodreads and I will select five poems each month to be voted on by the Goodreads community.

3. ¡Poetry! group members will vote for the poem they like best (one vote per member) once the poll with the five finalists' poems are posted. The poem with the most votes will be published in the Goodreads' newsletter – distributed each month to nearly 2 million people!

Good luck & please post your best work!

Thanks,

Amy King
¡Poetry! Moderator

http://www.goodreads.com/group/show/233._POETRY_

_____

Recent work

http://www.writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/King.html

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

158. Kyle Schlesinger getting ON
Mon 12 Jan 2009

Thanks to all who came out for the ON launch at the Poetry Project last Monday. Copies sold out fast, and I should have announced that they are available at SPD @ http://spdbooks.org/details.asp?BookID˜128

ON: CONTEMPORARY PRACTICE is a compilation of twenty-one essays by poets about poets of their approximate generation. The editorial emphasis is on works that that investigate a poetics. Contributors include Taylor Brady on Yedda Morrison, CAConrad and Brenda Iijima on CAConrad and Brenda Iijima, Jen Hofer and Sawako Nakayasu on Jen Hofer and Sawako Nakayasu, Alan Gilbert on CJ/Rupture, Andrew Levy on Arakawa and Gins, Kyle Schlesinger on Emily McVarish, Tim Peterson on kari edwards, Rob Halpern on Taylor Brady, Andrew Rippeon on CJ Martin, Alli Warren and Suzanne Stein on Alli Warren and Suzanne Stein, Michael Cross on Thom Donovan, and more.

More @ http://oncontemporaries.wordpress.com/

Best as ever,

Kyle

↑ Index

159. cris cheek
gene robinson to give invocation at inauguration
Mon 12 Jan 2009

---

http://thinkprogress.org/2009/01/12/gene-robinson-inauguration/

↑ Index

160. Michael Kelleher

Literary Buffalo Newsletter 01.12.09-01.18.09

Mon 12 Jan 2009

LITERARY BUFFALO
01.12.09-01.18.09

FIRST ANNUAL JUST BUFFALO MEMBER POETRY READING AND CONTEST

Just Buffalo Literary Center is pleased to announce a new annual poetry reading and contest for members to be judged by R.D. Pohl, editor of the poetry page at the Buffalo News. Ë‡Winners will be announced at a special member's reading at CEPA Gallery during their member's exhibition on Saturday, March 14, 2009. Ë‡ All contest entrants will be given a chance to read their poems in person at this event. Ë‡Audience members will also be given the opportunity to choose an Audience Award for one of the poems. Audience Award and Jury Prize winners will each receive a $50 cash prize, a gift from Talking Leaves...Books, a certificate of recognition from Just Buffalo, & publication in Artvoice.

Contest is open to writers of poetry who are members in good standing at the time of submission. Ë‡Contestants may join Just Buffalo at the time of submission by visiting the Just Buffalo website (www.justbuffalo.org) or by sending a check along with their entry.

Guidelines:

1. Submit one poem in any form on any subject of no more than 5 pages in length and a separate cover page that includes name, address, telephone and email. Ë‡DO NOT PUT YOUR NAME ON THE POEMS THEMSELVES. Ë‡JUDGING IS BLIND. One poem per entrant, please.

2. Submit by email to: [redacted] or by mail to MEMBERS POETRY CONTEST, c/o Just Buffalo Literary Center, 617 Main St., Suit 202A, Buffalo, NY 14203.

3. Submissions will not be returned. Submissions by non-members or lapsed members will be rejected unless annual membership ($35) is paid in full before contest deadline.

4. DEADLINE: February 14.

5. Winners will be announced at the end of the Member reading on March 14, 2009.

EVENTS THIS WEEK

Visit the Literary Buffalo calendar at www.justbuffalo.org for more detailed info on these events. All events free and open to the pubic unless otherwise noted.

01.13.09

NOTE CHANGE OF VENUE FOR THIS EVENT

Just Buffalo/Talking Leaves...Books
Short Story Masters Literary Salon
Discussion of Alice Munro short stories, Pt. 3
Tuesday, January 13, 6:30 PM
SPOT COFFEE, CHIPPEWA AND DELAWARE

01.15.09

Just Buffalo/Small Press Poetry Series
Robin F. Brox & Chris Sylvester
Poetry Reading
Thursday, January 15, 7:00 PM
Rust Belt Books, 202 Allen St.

JUST BUFFALO MEMBER WRITER CRITIQUE GROUP

http://www.justbuffalo.org/docs/Writer_Critique_Group.pdf

UNSUBSCRIBE

If you would like to unsubscribe from this list, just say so and you will immediately be removed.

Michael Kelleher
Artistic Director
Just Buffalo Literary Center
Market Arcade
617 Main St., Ste. 202A
Buffalo, NY 14203
[redacted]
[redacted] (fax)
www.justbuffalo.org
[redacted]

↑ Index

161. Troy Camplin
Re: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry
Mon 12 Jan 2009

The spiritual and the holy are two very different things. One can be spiritual without being holy. One can also be religious without being holy, which is of course the entire point of the essay. An understanding of the world that unified the thought of Christianity, Buddhism, Taoism (I'm more than a bit of a Taoist myself), Islam, Hinduism, Shintoism, etc. would be an understanding of the world as holy. I thus seek to recover the word "holy" from the unholy ones who have highjacked the term.

I do agree with you that postmodernism is in fact in most ways post-romanticism. Frederick Turner suggests that the "post" of postmodern is shorthand for "postscript" -- as indeed I think it is in many ways. It is certainly anti-Enlightenment, and thus is in many ways Romantic, and even more so, Rousseauean. Indeed, the postmodernists are all disciples of Rousseau -- but so are the Marxists, the fascists, and other egalitarianist thinkers.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: John Cunningham <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Sunday, January 11, 2009 6:50:04 AM
Subject: Re: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry

Thank you, Troy, for this rather detailed overview on theology. There are a couple of points with which I take exception. Being a Buddhist/Taoist, I take exception to your use of the word 'holy'. I would much rather see the word 'spiritual' used as, in my mind, 'holy' is, in fact, a divisive word - something which, in opposition to, is one of the main themes of your expurgation. Another is your discussion of Christianity. Unfortunately, in all things verging on the spiritual, the original message of the originator is corrupted once it gets into the hands of man. This is true even of Buddhism where a religion was created where none was intended. The philosophy of Buddhism and Taoism is intended to act on an individual basis although the concept of the sangha may create confusion. However, when the sangha is considered as a spiritual body there to support the individual in their quest for nirvana (nirbbana), then the individual remains paramount. Finally, your use of the term 'postmodern'. If we accept Foucault's concept of the rupture and his adoption of the terms 'epoch' as areas in which new conceptions of old concepts has occurred, then 'modernism' is just an extension, the dying breath, of romanticism. Therefore, the correct term should be 'post-romantic'. Just some random thoughts. John Herbert Cunningham

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Troy Camplin
Sent: January-09-09 11:25 AM
To: [redacted]
Subject: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry

In English the words holy, whole, hale, and health are etymologically connected – Old English halig, hal, and hælth, respectively, which are all related to hal. Thus are they conceptually connected. To see the world as holy is to see the world as whole – it is to have the world "appear infinite and holy, whereas it now appears finite and corrupt" (William Blake, "The Marriage of Heaven and Hell"). The word holistic comes from the Greek holos, whole. Thus the holy is holistic – God is holy because He encompasses all. Perhaps one could even say that we can recognize the divine only when we come to see the world as a whole, when we see the universe as universal. When we can come

To see a World in a grain of sand,
And a Heaven in a wild flower,
Hold Infinity in the palm of your hand,
And Eternity in an hour. (William Blake, "Auguries of Innocence")

Health and hale is the same. To have health is to have wholeness. To be hale is to be healthy – whole and complete. To make healthy is to make whole again. One is healed through medication. But ideally, one would rather maintain one's health than have to withstand the ravages of medication (pharmaceutical comes from the Greek pharmakon, which means both poison and medicine – as it does today), though medication is necessary to stave off disease. This is the purpose of Plato's Pharmakon, to stave off disease. For disease is the opposite of health.

The Modern Era, which we are still in, though we may be at the end of it, began when Descartes split man in two – body and soul. It was a necessary division for the development of modern science (which Descartes all but admits to – the division is so the Church will tend to the soul, while the body is left alone, to be tended to by scientists such as Descartes), but it was certainly an unholy division (as all divisions are, by definition). Kant deepened this division. Hegel tried to mend it through philosophical synthesis. Marx tried to mend it by recommending the overthrow of half of the world – the world would then be wholly Proletarian. Nietzsche responded to Hegel by dividing the world up even more – for him, humans are not divided into body and soul, but are instead a series of masks. With postmodernism, the division is complete: men and women, multiculturalism, radical Cartesian individualism divide us up more and more. Any universality is denied. A necessary development – and not without its truth (I am aware of the irony of using the word truth, which comes from the Old English treowth, related to the word troth, from which we get the word betrothed, to speak of an idea that is more interested in divorce than betrothal). But it is precisely as unholy as one can get.

The deep divisions fostered by postmodernism came about because of a view that grand narratives, attempts to universalize, and seeing the world as holistic created the problems of the 20th Century. The Marxist grand narrative gave us the gulag of the Soviet Union, the massacres of the Khmer Rouge in Cambodia, and any number of other slaughters done by governments who had embraced Marxist philosophy. We looked back on history after the Holocaust, saw the grand narrative of Christianity had in the past itself promoted the killing of Jews – particularly in the Inquisition – and concluded that it too was dangerous. One could also mention The Terror of the French Revolution. What did Marxism, Medieval Christianity, and the French Revolution have in common? One thing was that they were all grand narratives. Thus, the logic goes, it must be grand narratives which are bad. And what do grand narratives do? They see the world as a whole, which must be encompassed by their ideology. To make the world a whole, it must be placed under their one ideology. Thus, holistic world views were seen as bad – thus were they, and holiness, rejected. The path to Heaven – whether that heaven was celestial or earthly – seemed to lead us straight into Hell. Perhaps in part the rejection of holding a holistic view came about because it is related to the holy, and the holy has been rejected. To the extent that wisdom is the ability to see the unity of the world – meaning wisdom is the ability to see the world as holy – wisdom was also rejected as impossible, perhaps even undesirable.

The error in this way of thinking derives from the error made in seeing Communism, Christianity, or the ideals of the French Revolution as interested in seeing the world as holistic. None of them saw the world as holistic, as holy – they instead wanted to make the world whole, under their particular umbrellas. They too fostered divisions – there were enemies who had to be either converted or killed in order that the world could be made holy. “For the cherub with his flaming sword is hereby commanded to leave his guard at tree of life; and when he does, the whole creation will be consumed and appear infinite and holy” (Blake “The Marriage of Heaven and Hell”). Now Blake here uses the word “appear.” None of them saw the world as holy. It had to be made so – through conflagration, if necessary. Postmodern thought, by dividing the world even more, does not help us to see the world as holy – quite the contrary. However, by insisting on equality among the various parts – among individuals, among cultures, among religions, among any number of groups of individuals – postmodern thought may ironically make it now possible to see the world as being, rather than needing to become, holy.

It may seem ironic to suggest that only by reaching the most severe of divisions – seeing the world as eminently unholy – that we can finally come to see that the world is in fact holy, but I am not being ironic. To see the world as holy is not to see everything in the world as equal in an egalitarian sense. There are hierarchies. To see the world as holy is to understand how everything fits into the world as a whole. It is to see the world as an immense organism, and to care for its health. An organism is made up of systems, organs, tissues, cells, organelles, and various biochemicals. For one group to want to envelop the entire world in one way of thinking, believing, viewing the world, would be the same as one cell wanting to envelop the entire organism in that one type of cell. We have a word for cells that want to do that: cancer. The postmodernists have mistaken viewing the actions of cancerous cells for seeing the whole organism. Cancer must be fought, not mistaken for the animal it is in. That is the only way one can have a healthy organism – and it is the only way to have a holy world.. Like a healthy organism, a holy world is complex. Like a healthy organism, a holy world has smoothly working parts in communication with each other through clear rules that proscribe what each part needs to do for the whole to work well. Like a healthy organism, this cannot come from any centralized authority – there is no one control cell in the body, and the brain must have the lungs just as much as the lungs must have the brain. A holy world is like a healthy organism.

In Negative Theology, one comes to know what God is by figuring out what God is not. Aristotle says that if you are not sure if something is good, try to figure out what is bad, and you can then deduce that what is good is its opposite. The following are unhealthy:

1. Overeating, including eating a high percentage of foods with low nutritional value, while remaining inactive (not exercising) 2. Either stagnation or change without continuity – both create instability 3. Stress and anxiety – which comes about from not realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, and can lead to anger at those very things 4. Hatred – aside from raising the blood pressure, it can cause one to act in ways that would be unhealthy for the object of our hatred 5. Cancer – already discussed 6. Excess – including the excess of moderation 7. Shackles – prevents sufficient movement, equating to lack of exercise 8. Pollution – it can lead to any number of diseases 9. An overly-clean environment – it can prevent our immune systems from developing properly, making us more susceptible to diseases, especially autoimmune diseases 10. Suicide – inherently and obviously unhealthy 11.. Isolation – loneliness can lead to depression, which depresses the immune system 12. Ignorance – either of the world or of oneself, as one cannot maintain one’s health if one is ignorant of what can harm it or improve it

This leads one to posit the following are healthy:

1. Exercise, with a diet proper to the amount of exercise and of high nutritional value
2. Change with continuity
3. Realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, thus reducing stress and anxiety
4. Love

5. Keeping the body in hierarchical harmony
6. Moderation in everything, including moderation – remembering that moderation is an extreme in the same way that life is an extreme state of organic chemistry
7. Freedom – remembering that freedom does not equate to a lack of rules, but is rather what is achieved through playing by the best rules
8. Cleanliness (which, as the saying goes, is next to Godliness, meaning it is holy)
9. A non-sanitized world – a world without dirt is a world that makes unhealthy organisms
10. Love of one's own life
11. Friends
12. Knowledge – including self-knowledge

One can make a similar list of what makes for a healthy mind: 1. Taking in healthy information – good art, music, literature, philosophy, the sciences, etc. – with sufficient exercise of the mind through thought, discussion, and writing 2. Change with continuity 3.. Realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, thus reducing stress and anxiety, which can negatively affect the mind as well as the body 4. Love 5. Having a variety of inputs – obsession with one thing alone is a kind of mental cancer 6. Moderation in everything, including moderation – moderation of reading, of rigorous thought, sexual thoughts, work, play, physical activity, etc. 7. Freedom of thought – we must not think in shackles, but with flexible rules 8. Cleanliness of thought – this does not necessarily mean what it has traditionally meant in the West, though it can certainly contain some elements; thinking about sex is in and of itself not unclean 9. Realization that we do not and cannot live in a sanitized world, as that stops thought and creativity 10. Love of thinking 11. Friends – as Aristotle says in Rhetoric, "a wide circle of friends, a virtuous circle of friends," and, I would add, a mentally stimulating circle of friends 12. Knowledge – including self knowledge – with the goal of wisdom

A holy world is one that parallels the healthy body and the healthy mind, and will have the above qualities, including moderation in everything, including moderation (i.e., it will be a just world), freedom (this is freedom from, not freedom to), love, friendship, and beauty. A holy world is a beautiful world, both having variety in unity, unity in variety, complexity, and fluid hierarchy that is self-similar regardless of scale. All of the parts, living in love and friendship (which does not exclude healthy competition, such as we find in sports and in free trade), living in a complex dynamic with each other, living as individuals in various communities, many of which overlap and are nested within other communities, must be self-similar to have a holy world.

In Greek, to kalon means the beautiful, but it can also mean the honorable or the noble – and kala can mean either things that are beautiful or things that are morally good. In the Rhetoric, Aristotle says that “Now kalon describes whatever, through being chosen for itself, is praiseworthy or whatever, through being good [agathon], is pleasant because it is good [agathon]. If this, then, is the kalon, then virtue is necessarily kalon; for it is praiseworthy because of being good [agathon]” (79). Elaine Scarry points out that in English too, there is a connection between beauty and the good (the just), when she points out that to say that something is fair is to say that it is either beautiful or that it is just. In Greek and in English, the beautiful and the good are connected. If a holy world is a beautiful world, it is a good and just world as well. As Heraclitus said, “For god all things are fair and just, but men have taken some things as unjust, others as just” (LXVIII). The key here is that we see the world itself as just – not the actions of each and every individual. The world is itself justified and cannot itself be unjust. This is consistent with the teachings of any religion that sees the world as having been created by God or the gods – how could a fair and just god create a world that was itself unjust? And if theistic religions are rejected, how can the world itself possibly be unjust? To say it is unjust is to give it anthropomorphic qualities. It is people who have taken some things as being just, others as unjust – but the world itself is self-justified. Those who do not see the world as just are those who do not see the world as holy – often they are the same people who think the only way the world can be justified is if the world is made holy through the transformation of it into a perfect mirror of themselves. But we have seen that a world made up of only one world view is a cancerous world – and the world, as a cancerous organism, will die. An organism cannot consist of one type of cell – that is the unhealthiest of organisms. And a world having only one world view is the unhealthiest of worlds. In the same way that a healthy body consists of a variety of cells that are variations of the same theme coded by identical DNA, a healthy world consists of a variety of peoples that are variations of the same themes coded for by our being human and sharing the same cultural universals.

Beauty is also related to health – as we can see in the beauty we find in nature. Healthy plants produce the most beautiful flowers. Healthy peacocks produce the largest, most symmetrical, most colorful feathers. Healthy gobies and other territorial reef fish have the brightest colors. All of this natural beauty is the advertisement of health to the opposite sex. The healthiest human bodies (neither overweight nor super model thin) are the most beautiful. Thus is there also a relationship between health, beauty, and sex. If beauty can thus be equated to health, we can see that beauty is again equated to the holy. And we can see too that sex in-and-of-itself is and cannot be unholy, as it is connected (but not equivalent) to beauty.

A holy world is a whole world. It is a healthy world. It is a good and just world. It is a complex world. It is a world of individuals in community. It is a beautiful world. But is it a possible world? I have already given the answer: the world is itself already holy. We just have to learn to see it as holy. That is how we will heal the world. And, as we do, we will become less and less likely to want or try to eliminate those who disagree with us – until we are all in agreement on this one issue, as all the cells in an organism are in agreement on the one issue that they must work together for the health of the whole, even as each performs its own function. Thus, the world will become more and more holy in our eyes. In works of tragedy, nomos (convention, human law, naming; from which we get the words nomad and nomenclature, and which is the changing and changeable aspect of the world) comes into conflict with physis (or nature; from which we get the word physics). That is the position we are now in. When we get nomos to map onto physis (Heraclitus calls this conjunction logos – which can be translated as saying, speech, discourse, word, account, explanation, reason, principle, collection, enumeration, ratio, proportion), we will see the world as it truly is: holy.

On the Holy

Where lies the holy in the modern world?
It lies in Blake's world in a grain of sand –
It lies, and lies like the truth, in patterns
Like self-organized rings of rocks barren
Arctic fields create. It lies in the branch
Of every tree and species, leafing out
From the known into the unknown. It lies
In every song, painting and rhythmic verse.
We have looked at every leaf and petal,
At the bark and at the wood, every cell
And strand of DNA is now known –
And we have forgotten that all of this
Was once a tree that gave us shade and filled
The air with delicate sweetness and held
The grains of sand against its roots to hold
The ground in place, even as that ground moves
And changes in tiny ways we refuse
To see. In this we can see the holy.
This is where it lies, now and forever,
On the edge of order and wild chaos,
Where the infinite holds in the finite,
Where we, ourselves holy, have always lived.

Troy Camplin

↑ Index

162. Kyle Schlesinger
TONIGHT @ THE POETRY PROJECT: Cyrus Console & Jessica Dessner
Mon 12 Jan 2009

Cyrus Console & Jessica Dessner
Poetry Project
Monday January 12th, 2009 @ 8:00

Cyrus Console is from Topeka, Kansas. His first book, Brief Under Water, is available from Burning Deck Press. He lives in Lawrence, Kansas.

Jessica Dessner is slowly making the transition from dancer/choreographer to poet/visual artist. Her poems have appeared or are forthcoming in La Petite Zine, Sal Mimeo, The Invisible Stitch, and H_NGM_N, and her chapbook, Wit's End with Bric-a-Brac, was published by Green Zone in 2006. She holds a BA in Dance from Barnard College and recently completed the New School's Poetry MFA program. Her drawings will be featured in the artwork for two upcoming record releases, the Welcome Wagon's Welcome to the Welcome Wagon, and Osso's Run Rabbit, Run, a string arrangement of Sufjan Stevens' Enjoy Your Rabbit.

The Poetry Project is located at St. Mark's Church-in-the-Bowery
131 East 10th Street at Second Avenue
New York City 10003
Trains: 6, F, N, R, and L.
[redacted]
www.poetryproject.com

Admission is $8, $7 for students/seniors and $5 for members (though now those who take out a membership at $95 or higher will get in FREE to all regular readings).

We are wheelchair accessible with assistance and advance notice. For more info call [redacted].

↑ Index

163. amy king
Stain of Poetry: A Reading Series -- January's Stars!
Mon 12 Jan 2009

COMING UP - Stain of Poetry: A Reading Series

January 30th @ 7 p.m. - Stain Bar - Williamsburg,
Brooklyn

Bill Berkson, Cindy Cruz, Aaron Fagan, Jennifer Fortin, Jean-Paul Pecqueur and Bill Rasmovicz

* Hosted by Amy King and Ana Bozicevic

~~~~

Bill Berkson was born in New York in 1939. A poet, critic, teacher, and sometime curator, he moved to Northern California in 1970 and during the next decade edited a series of little magazines and books under the Big Sky imprint. From 1984 to 2008 he was a professor of Liberal Arts at the San Francisco Art Institute. He is a corresponding editor for Art in America and has contributed reviews and essays to such other journals as Aperture, Artforum, Works on Paper and Modern Painters. His recent books of poetry include Gloria (in a deluxe limited edition with etchings by Alex Katz), Our Friends Will Pass Among You Silently, and Goods and Services. Other books include a collection of his criticism, The Sweet Singer of Modernism & Other Art Writings: 1985-2003; Sudden Address: Selected lectures 1981-2006; an epistolary collaboration with Bernadette Mayer entitled What's Your Idea of a Good Time?: Interviews & Letters 1977-1985. His Portrait and Dream: New & Selected Poems will appear form Coffee House Press in 2009. Berkson was the 2006 Distinguished Mellon Fellow at the Skowhegan School of Painting and Sculpture and received the 2008 Goldie for Literature from the San Francisco Bay Guardian. He now lives in New York and San Francisco.

~~~

Cynthia Cruz is the author of RUIN, published by Alice James Books in 2006. Her poems have been published or are forthcoming in the American Poetry Review, Paris Review, Boston Review, AGNI, FIELD, and others and are anthologized in "The Iowa Anthology of New American Poetries." She has received fellowships to YADDO and the MacDowell Colony. She lives in Greenpoint, Brooklyn and teaches at Sarah Lawrence College.

~~~

Aaron Fagan was born in Rochester, New York, in 1973. His poems have appeared in numerous magazines including The American Poetry Review, TriQuarterly, and The Yale Review. He is the author of Garage (Salt Publishing, 2007), a debut collection which the critic Harold Bloom described as "vivid and aesthetically disturbing work. His promise is considerable because his originality should prove to be decisive." A former Assistant Editor for Poetry, he is now a Copy Editor for Scientific American in New York City and lives in the Bronx.

~~~

Jennifer H. Fortin lives in Brooklyn. She works as an Assistant. In May 2008, she obtained an M.F.A. in Poetry from The New School. Her work has appeared in TYPO, GlitterPony, Left Facing Bird, The Goucher Quarterly, AbroadView magazine and Ducts; it is forthcoming in Court Green, Action, Yes and Copper Nickel. She was a Finalist for the Poetry Foundation's 2008 Ruth Lilly Fellowship and the recipient of an Honorable Mention in the 2008 Poets & Writers-sponsored Amy Awards. Fortin is happy to be able to say she is a Returned Peace Corps Volunteer (Bulgaria 2004-2006).

~~~

Jean-Paul Pecqueur's first book, The Case Against Happiness, was published by Alice James Books in 2006. New poems have recently appeared in
The Hat, Cranky, and Gulf
Coast. Jean-Paul
currently lives in Brooklyn, teaching writing
at the Pratt Institute.

~~~

Bill Rasmovicz has served as a literary excursion leader and workshop co-leader throughout Italy, Croatia, Slovenia, Switzerland
and Wales.
His work has appeared in Hotel Amerika, Nimrod, Third Coast and other magazines. His first book, "The World in Place of Itself" was published in 2007 by Alice James Books and was also the 2008 recipient of the New England Poetry Club's Sheila Margaret Motton Prize.

~~~

stain

766 grand street

brooklyn, ny 11211

(L train to Grand
Street,

1 block west)

718/[redacted]

open daily @ 5 p.m.

Hope to see you there!

Amy and Ana
~~~

http://stainofpoetry.wordpress.com/

_____

Recent work

http://www.writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/King.html

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

164. Sara Wintz
for all those new yorkers in the house...
Mon 12 Jan 2009

To top off the 2009, come join us this Saturday for an afternoon of poetry and performance. See details below.

---> Poetry and Performance <---

When: Saturday, January 17, 2009 2:00 PM to 3:30 PM

Where: P.S.1 Contemporary Art Center
22-25 Jackson Ave
Long Island City, Queens

Contemporary writers Steve Cannon, LaTasha N. Nevada Diggs, Melanie Maria Goodreaux, and Lois Elaine Griffith will delve deeper into Ismael Reed's concept of "NeoHooDoo" and spirituality in artistic practice with a poetry reading. Following the reading, artist Terry Adkins will perform with Arthur Flowers, Joie Lee, and Blanche Bruce as part of the Lone Wolf Recital Corps, a musically based performance collaborative with a rotating membership.

(*apologies for any cross-postings!)

↑ Index

165. Murat Nemet-Nejat
Re: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry
Mon 12 Jan 2009

Troy,

Isn't Rousseau in your worst hundred books in the world list? It is amazing how you made snide, thought-starved attacks through iconic references a second nature for yourself. In the negative sense you use the word post-modern, you are the most post-modern of every one here.

Ciao,

Murat

On Mon, Jan 12, 2009 at 11:32 AM, Troy Camplin <[redacted]>wrote:

> The spiritual and the holy are two very different things. One can be spiritual without being holy. One can also be religious without being holy, which is of course the entire point of the essay. An understanding of the world that unified the thought of Christianity, Buddhism, Taoism (I'm more than a bit of a Taoist myself), Islam, Hinduism, Shintoism, etc. would be an understanding of the world as holy. I thus seek to recover the word "holy" from the unholy ones who have highjacked the term.
>
> I do agree with you that postmodernism is in fact in most ways post-romanticism. Frederick Turner suggests that the "post" of postmodern is shorthand for "postscript" -- as indeed I think it is in many ways. It is certainly anti-Enlightenment, and thus is in many ways Romantic, and even more so, Rousseauean. Indeed, the postmodernists are all disciples of Rousseau -- but so are the Marxists, the fascists, and other egalitarianist thinkers.
>
> Troy Camplin
>
> _____
> From: John Cunningham <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Sunday, January 11, 2009 6:50:04 AM
> Subject: Re: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry
>
> Thank you, Troy, for this rather detailed overview on theology. There are a > couple of points with which I take exception.
> Being a Buddhist/Taoist, I take exception to your use of the word 'holy'. I would much rather see the word 'spiritual' used as, in my mind, 'holy' is, in fact, a divisive word - something which, in opposition to, is one of the main themes of your expurgation.
> Another is your discussion of Christianity. Unfortunately, in all things verging on the spiritual, the original message of the originator is corrupted once it gets into the hands of man. This is true even of Buddhism where a religion was created where none was intended. The philosophy of Buddhism and Taoism is intended to act on an individual basis although the concept of the sangha may create confusion. However, when the sangha is considered as a spiritual body there to support the individual in their quest for nirvana (nirbbana), then the individual remains paramount.
> Finally, your use of the term 'postmodern'. If we accept Foucault's concept > of the rupture and his adoption of the terms 'epoch' as areas in which new conceptions of old concepts has occurred, then 'modernism' is just an extension, the dying breath, of romanticism. Therefore, the correct term should be 'post-romantic'.

Just some random thoughts.
John Herbert Cunningham

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Troy Camplin
Sent: January-09-09 11:25 AM
To: [redacted]
Subject: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry

In English the words holy, whole, hale, and health are etymologically connected – Old English halig, hal, and hælth, respectively, which are all related to hal. Thus are they conceptually connected. To see the world as holy is to see the world as whole – it is to have the world "appear infinite and holy, whereas it now appears finite and corrupt" (William Blake, "The Marriage of Heaven and Hell"). The word holistic comes from the Greek holos, whole. Thus the holy is holistic – God is holy because He encompasses all. Perhaps one could even say that we can recognize the divine only when we come to see the world as a whole, when we see the universe as universal. When we can come

To see a World in a grain of sand,
And a Heaven in a wild flower,
Hold Infinity in the palm of your hand,
And Eternity in an hour. (William Blake, "Auguries of Innocence")

Health and hale is the same. To have health is to have wholeness. To be hale is to be healthy – whole and complete. To make healthy is to make whole again. One is healed through medication. But ideally, one would rather maintain one's health than have to withstand the ravages of medication (pharmaceutical comes from the Greek pharmakon, which means both poison and medicine – as it does today), though medication is necessary to stave off disease. This is the purpose of Plato's Pharmakon, to stave off disease. For disease is the opposite of health.

The Modern Era, which we are still in, though we may be at the end of it, began when Descartes split man in two – body and soul. It was a necessary division for the development of modern science (which Descartes all but admits to – the division is so the Church will tend to the soul, while the body is left alone, to be tended to by scientists such as Descartes), but it was certainly an unholy division (as all divisions are, by definition).

Kant deepened this division. Hegel tried to mend it through philosophical synthesis. Marx tried to mend it by recommending the overthrow of half of the world – the world would then be wholly Proletarian. Nietzsche responded to Hegel by dividing the world up even more – for him, humans are not divided into body and soul, but are instead a series of masks. With postmodernism, the division is complete: men and women, multiculturalism, radical Cartesian individualism divide us up more and more. Any universality is denied. A necessary development – and not without its truth (I am aware of the irony of using the word truth, which comes from the Old English treowth, related to the word troth, from which we get the word betrothed, to speak of an idea that is more interested in divorce than betrothal). But it is precisely as unholy as one can get.

The deep divisions fostered by postmodernism came about because of a view that grand narratives, attempts to universalize, and seeing the world as holistic created the problems of the 20th Century. The Marxist grand narrative gave us the gulag of the Soviet Union, the massacres of the Khmer Rouge in Cambodia, and any number of other slaughters done by governments who had embraced Marxist philosophy. We looked back on history after the Holocaust, saw the grand narrative of Christianity had in the past itself promoted the killing of Jews – particularly in the Inquisition – and concluded that it too was dangerous. One could also mention The Terror of the French Revolution. What did Marxism, Medieval Christianity, and the French Revolution have in common? One thing was that they were all grand narratives. Thus, the logic goes, it must be grand narratives which are bad. And what do grand narratives do? They see the world as a whole, which must be encompassed by their ideology. To make the world a whole, it must be placed under their one ideology. Thus, holistic world views were seen as bad – thus were they, and holiness, rejected. The path to Heaven – whether that heaven was celestial or earthly – seemed to lead us straight into Hell. Perhaps in part the rejection of holding a holistic view came about because it is related to the holy, and the holy has been rejected. To the extent that wisdom is the ability to see the unity of the world – meaning wisdom is the ability to see the world as holy – wisdom was also rejected as impossible, perhaps even undesirable.

The error in this way of thinking derives from the error made in seeing Communism, Christianity, or the ideals of the French Revolution as interested in seeing the world as holistic. None of them saw the world as holistic, as holy – they instead wanted to make the world whole, under particular umbrellas. They too fostered divisions – there were enemies who had to be either converted or killed in order that the world could be made holy. "For the cherub with his flaming sword is hereby commanded to leave his guard at tree of life; and when he does, the whole creation will be consumed and appear infinite and holy" (Blake "The Marriage of Heaven and Hell"). Now Blake here uses the word "appear." None of them saw the world as holy. It had to be made so – through conflagration, if necessary. Postmodern thought, by dividing the world even more, does not help us to see the world as holy – quite the contrary. However, by insisting on equality among the various parts – among individuals, among cultures, among religions, among any number of groups of individuals – postmodern thought may ironically make it now possible to see the world as being, rather than needing to become, holy.

their

It may seem ironic to suggest that only by reaching the most severe of divisions – seeing the world as eminently unholy – that we can finally come to see that the world is in fact holy, but I am not being ironic. To see the world as holy is not to see everything in the world as equal in an egalitarian sense. There are hierarchies. To see the world as holy is to understand how everything fits into the world as a whole. It is to see the world as an immense organism, and to care for its health. An organism is made up of systems, organs, tissues, cells, organelles, and various biochemicals. For one group to want to envelop the entire world in one way of thinking, believing, viewing the world, would be the same as one cell wanting to envelop the entire organism in that one type of cell. We have a word for cells that want to do that: cancer. The postmodernists have mistaken viewing the actions of cancerous cells for seeing the whole organism. Cancer must be fought, not mistaken for the animal it is in. That is the only way one can have a healthy organism – and it is the only way to have a holy world.. Like a healthy organism, a holy world is complex. Like a healthy organism, a holy world has smoothly working parts in communication with each other through clear rules that proscribe what each part needs to do for the whole to work well. Like a healthy organism, this cannot come from any centralized authority – there is no one control cell in the body, and the brain must have the lungs just as much as the lungs must have the brain. A holy world is like a healthy organism.

In Negative Theology, one comes to know what God is by figuring out what God is not. Aristotle says that if you are not sure if something is good, try to figure out what is bad, and you can then deduce that what is good is its opposite.

The following are unhealthy:

1. Overeating, including eating a high percentage of foods with low nutritional value, while remaining inactive (not exercising)
2. Either stagnation or change without continuity – both create instability
3. Stress and anxiety – which comes about from not realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, and can lead to anger at those very things
4. Hatred – aside from raising the blood pressure, it can cause one to act in ways that would be unhealthy for the object of our hatred
5. Cancer – already discussed
6. Excess – including the excess of moderation
7. Shackles – prevents sufficient movement, equating to lack of exercise
8. Pollution – it can lead to any number of diseases
9. An overly-clean environment – it can prevent our immune systems from developing properly, making us more susceptible to diseases, especially autoimmune diseases
10. Suicide – inherently and obviously unhealthy
11.. Isolation – loneliness can lead to depression, which depresses the immune system
12. Ignorance – either of the world or of oneself, as one cannot maintain one's health if one is ignorant of what can harm it or improve it

This leads one to posit the following are healthy:

1. Exercise, with a diet proper to the amount of exercise and of high nutritional value
2. Change with continuity
3. Realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, thus reducing stress and anxiety
4. Love
5. Keeping the body in hierarchical harmony
6. Moderation in everything, including moderation – remembering that moderation is an extreme in the same way that life is an extreme state of organic chemistry
7. Freedom – remembering that freedom does not equate to a lack of rules, but is rather what is achieved through playing by the best rules
8. Cleanliness (which, as the saying goes, is next to Godliness, meaning it is holy)
9. A non-sanitized world – a world without dirt is a world that makes unhealthy organisms
10. Love of one's own life
11. Friends
12. Knowledge – including self-knowledge

One can make a similar list of what makes for a healthy mind:
1. Taking in healthy information – good art, music, literature, philosophy, the sciences, etc. – with sufficient exercise of the mind through thought, discussion, and writing
2. Change with continuity
3.. Realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, thus reducing stress and anxiety, which can negatively affect the mind as well as the body
4. Love
5. Having a variety of inputs – obsession with one thing alone is a kind of mental cancer
6. Moderation in everything, including moderation – moderation of reading, of rigorous thought, sexual thoughts, work, play, physical activity, etc.
7. Freedom of thought – we must not think in shackles, but with flexible rules
8. Cleanliness of thought – this does not necessarily mean what it has traditionally meant in the West, though it can certainly contain some elements; thinking about sex is in and of itself not unclean
9. Realization that we do not and cannot live in a sanitized world, as that stops thought and creativity
10. Love of thinking
11. Friends – as Aristotle says in Rhetoric, "a wide circle of friends, a virtuous circle of friends," and, I would add, a mentally stimulating circle of friends
12. Knowledge – including self knowledge – with the goal of wisdom

A holy world is one that parallels the healthy body and the healthy mind, and will have the above qualities, including moderation in everything, including moderation (i.e., it will be a just world), freedom (this is freedom from, not freedom to), love, friendship, and beauty. A holy world is a beautiful world, both having variety in unity, unity in variety, complexity, and fluid hierarchy that is self-similar regardless of scale. All of the parts, living in love and friendship (which does not exclude healthy competition, such as we find in sports and in free trade), living in a complex dynamic with each other, living as individuals in various communities, many of which overlap and are nested within other communities, must be self-similar to have a holy world.

In Greek, to kalon means the beautiful, but it can also mean the honorable or the noble – and kala can mean either things that are beautiful or things that are morally good. In the Rhetoric, Aristotle says that "Now kalon describes whatever, through being chosen for itself, is praiseworthy or whatever, through being good [agathon], is pleasant because it is good [agathon]. If this, then, is the kalon, then virtue is necessarily kalon; for it is praiseworthy because of being good [agathon]" (79). Elaine Scarry points out that in English too, there is a connection between beauty and the good (the just), when she points out that to say that something is fair is to say that it is either beautiful or that it is just. In Greek and in English, the beautiful and the good are connected. If a holy world is a beautiful world, it is a good and just world as well. As Heraclitus said, "For god all things are fair and just, but men have taken some things as unjust, others as just" (LXVIII). The key here is that we see the world itself as just – not the actions of each and every individual. The world is itself justified and cannot itself be unjust. This is consistent with the teachings of any religion that sees the world as having been created by God or the gods – how could a fair and just god create a world that was itself unjust? And if theistic religions are rejected, how can the world itself possibly be unjust? To say it is unjust is to give it anthropomorphic qualities. It is people who have taken some things as being just, others as unjust – but the world itself is self-justified. Those who do not see the world as just are those who do not see the world as holy – often they are the same people who think the only way the world can be justified is if the world is made holy through the transformation of it into a perfect mirror of themselves. But we have seen that a world made up of only one world view is a cancerous world – and the world, as a cancerous organism, will die. An organism cannot consist of one type of cell – that is the unhealthiest of organisms. And a world having only one world view is the unhealthiest of worlds. In the same way that a healthy body consists of a variety of cells that are variations of the same theme coded by identical DNA, a healthy world consists of a variety of peoples that are variations of the same themes coded for by our being human and sharing the same cultural universals.

Beauty is also related to health – as we can see in the beauty we find in nature. Healthy plants produce the most beautiful flowers. Healthy peacocks produce the largest, most symmetrical, most colorful feathers. Healthy gobies and other territorial reef fish have the brightest colors. All of this natural beauty is the advertisement of health to the opposite sex. The healthiest human bodies (neither overweight nor super model thin) are the most beautiful. Thus is there also a relationship between health, beauty, and sex. If beauty can thus be equated to health, we can see that beauty is again equated to the holy. And we can see too that sex in-and-of-itself is and cannot be unholy, as it is connected (but not equivalent) to beauty.

A holy world is a whole world. It is a healthy world. It is a good and just world. It is a complex world. It is a world of individuals in community. It is a beautiful world. But is it a possible world? I have already given the answer: the world is itself already holy. We just have to learn to see it as holy. That is how we will heal the world. And, as we do, we will become less and less likely to want or try to eliminate those who disagree with us – until we are all in agreement on this one issue, as all the cells in an organism are in agreement on the one issue that they must work together for the health of the whole, even as each performs its own function. Thus, the world will become more and more holy in our eyes. In works of tragedy, nomos (convention, human law, naming; from which we get the words nomad and nomenclature, and which is the changing and changeable aspect of the world) comes into conflict with physis (or nature; from which we get the word physics). That is the position we are now in. When we get nomos to map onto physis (Heraclitus calls this conjunction logos – which can be translated as saying, speech, discourse, word, account, explanation, reason, principle, collection, enumeration, ratio, proportion), we will see the world as it truly is: holy.

On the Holy

Where lies the holy in the modern world?
It lies in Blake's world in a grain of sand –
It lies, and lies like the truth, in patterns
Like self-organized rings of rocks barren
Arctic fields create. It lies in the branch
Of every tree and species, leafing out
From the known into the unknown. It lies
In every song, painting and rhythmic verse.
We have looked at every leaf and petal,
At the bark and at the wood, every cell
And strand of DNA is now known –
And we have forgotten that all of this
Was once a tree that gave us shade and filled
The air with delicate sweetness and held
The grains of sand against its roots to hold
The ground in place, even as that ground moves
And changes in tiny ways we refuse
To see. In this we can see the holy.
This is where it lies, now and forever,
On the edge of order and wild chaos,
Where the infinite holds in the finite,
Where we, ourselves holy, have always lived.

Troy Camplin

↑ Index

166. Al Filreis
PoemTalk #13: Kathleen Fraser's "The Cars"
Mon 12 Jan 2009

Now releasing...

PoemTalk's thirteenth episode is a discussion of Kathleen Fraser's "The Cars" featuring C.A. Conrad, Kristen Gallagher, and Jessica Lowenthal.

1) At the Poetry Foundation audio & podcasts page:
http://www.poetryfoundation.org/journal/audioitem.html?id=685

2) At the PoemTalk blog:
http://www.poemtalk.org

3) In the iTunes Music Store: search for "PoemTalk" and subscribe.

Next up is Episode #14, on Wallace Stevens' "Not Ideas about the Thing But the Thing Itself" with Nada Gordon, Charles Bernstein and Lawrence Joseph.

- Al Filreis

P.S. Call (215) 746-POEM now and find out what's going on at the Writers House tonight, and have the option of hearing other features: my recommendation for an upcoming event; recording of a short poem performed at KWH; a short student audio project.

http://www.writing.upenn.edu/~afilreis

↑ Index

167. Mary Jo Malo
Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?
Mon 12 Jan 2009

Recently read Richard Louv's "Last Child In The Woods:Saving Our Children from Nature-Deficit Disorder" (2005,2008) and he references Wordsworth, and of course, Gary Snyder. And just this morning I found this:

http://www.guardian.co.uk/books/2008/dec/27/nick-laird-poetry-nature

Can anyone suggest poets, critiques, etc. re: non-traditional nature poetry?

Mary Jo Malo

--
http://thisshiningwound.blogspot.com/
http://apophisdeconstructingabsurdity.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

168. steve d. dalachinsky
Re: getting inauguerated
Mon 12 Jan 2009

Inauguration - Hip Hip Hooray! Poetry for America!

plus

3 cheers for you AND an OPEN MIC!
Tell us how your dreams about America can come true.

featured poets

Steve Dalachinsky, Eliot Katz, Big Mike, Tsaurah Litzky

Nancy Mercado, Yuko Otomo, Elizabeth Smith, Nathan Versace

Join us on January 19 @ 8 pm - 10 pm

for this Inaugural celebration share in this historic even and tell us your ideas for America

Hosted by Tsaurah Litzky

@ FusionArts Museum
57 Stanton St.
(between Forsythe & Eldridge Sts.) NYC 10002
[redacted]
www.fusionartsmuseum.org

↑ Index

169. Ruth Lepson
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Mon 12 Jan 2009

---

there is a sweetheart--Tim Peterson. thank you, esp as I'm too busy to continue this discussion.
love
ruth
wish we COULD.

On 1/12/09 8:27 AM, "Tim Peterson" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Adam! Ruth! Two of my dearest friends...it makes me feel terrible to see you guys fighting like this! The Poetry Brothel is not worth getting this upset about. Let's all kick back in my living room with a mug of coco and listen to Gloria Steinheim records backwards. How about this evening?

Love, Tim

Date: Sat, 10 Jan 2009 23:49:49 -0500
From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

twisting my words!
so writing about objections to prostitution does nothing, huh--so words don't matter?
I think all those jobs are degrading.
I wd like to defend yr friends by getting them better jobs.
I am not criticizing these women.
Better working conditions wd be not having to succumb to male ideas of sexuality in our culture, such narrow constraints.

On 1/9/09 5:49 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> wrote:

but you were the one crying shame! on the women of the Poetry Brothel! for dressing like whores!

(please note that I am NOT arguing that prostitution is not a sexist institution. clearly it is. and i agree that it is part of a complex of normative heterosexuality that does terrible violence to all women. But as for the actual women who are living in actual slavery, i think complaining about the symbolic degrading of womankind does nothing for them: it's like trying to improve the safety of coal mines by complaining about climate change.

And if you're just using those women (who are very real, and many of them living in absolutely horrific situations, as you rightly pointed out) as symbols of Degraded Womankind, you are doing a disservice to them and also to the many many women (some of whom must be subscribers to this list) who work in other parts of the sex trade -- exotic dancers, high-end call-girls, dominatrices, nude housekeepers, pornographic models, hooters waitresses, etc. -- some of these people are my friends and i take it personally -- and
I think that their own struggles for better working conditions are not unrelated to the struggle against slavery in other parts of their bosses' businesses...

-- but i'm sorry that i overreacted and became part of a litany of men (all men! really! can it really be that there are no women here who work in

> the > sex trade??) who are all seemingly trying to justify the institution as an institution. I am not trying to justify it, just trying to defend my friends who work there from the harsh judgments of their elders...

↑ Index

170. Ruth Lepson
Re: Adam
Mon 12 Jan 2009

---

your wife's breast & your rising manhood--great--but imagery of trashing women is something else.

On 1/11/09 3:35 AM, "David Seaman" <[redacted]> wrote:

> This remark is interesting and courageous, in this context. It has become dangerous to enter the dialogue. I have been surprised at how long this debate has gone on, and it begins to resemble one of those feuds that gets worse through responding rhetoric, further alienating the conversants. One of the dangers of the internet, we can speak too soon, and too rashly. (Been there, my Dutch friends.)
>
> Are we able to use any imagery at all? A holocaust of the mind, the poetry brothel, a genocide of vegetables, a lasagne of literature, a smoothie of symbolism. ³Epater les bourgeois!² Well, we seem to have done it.
>
> I think this discussion has gotten out of hand. I would love to use my wife¹s breasts and my rising manhood in poetic imagery, and do it without implicitly supporting sex slaves in Thailand. For me, all poetry is about creativity, and all creativity is about sex, and all sex is Š well, you get the idea.
>
> Davoid

↑ Index

171. Ruth Lepson
Re: Oppen quote - help!
Mon 12 Jan 2009

---

ask eliot weinberger--

On 1/11/09 9:05 AM, "Eric Hoffman" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Please help! I'm trying to locate the source of the following passage from one of Oppen's Daybooks or Papers, published in Sulfur, Conjunctions, Iowa Review,

> Germ, Jubilat or Ironwood? I don't think it's included in Cope's book . . .
>
> "Clarity for my sake. That I may understand my life."
>
> Thank you in advance!

↑ Index

172. Jason Quackenbush
Re: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry
Mon 12 Jan 2009

Troy,
I often disagree with you, but I can see a good deal of merit in your project here to reclaim the word holy.

The analytic philosopher in me (eminently modernist, don't you know) wants a bit more rigor here though.

to that end i would consider the following pairings with the word holy and holiness which I think maybe create some problems for what you're saying and that I think need answering. Don't misunderstand me, I think that there can be answers, I'm just curious about how the lines are drawn poetically and philosophically here.

first: holy vs. sacred

my own first among equals in the philosophical pantheon ludwig wittgenstein has counseled that in most cases the meaning of a word is it's use in a loanguage. To that end, we often use the word holy in the same circumstance that we might also use the word sacred. There is an overlap there just as there exists overlap between the unholy and the profane. But the terms are not coextensive and therefore not exact synonyms. I wonder what might be holy but not sacred and in where the distinction lies.

second: holiness vs holism there seems to be some blurring going on between the two words that I'm not sure i understand. are you saying that holism is by definition holy? how then do you account for competing views of holines? you touched on this a bit in what's below and yr comments on metanarrative, but I'd like to see a more explicit development of that thought, specifically given that the postmodern condition of skepticism toward metanarratives (holiness in your view) is itself holistic.

third: the holy vs the good

is all that is holy good? is all that is good holy? if so, why the different words and wahat do we make of the different qualities associated with each? holiness hasa connotation of unapproachability and beyond the merely human, whereas goodness is something that we can always seem ot find and appreciate. it is much like the aesthetic in this way.

On Jan 9, 2009, at 9:24 AM, Troy Camplin wrote:

> In English the words holy, whole, hale, and health are etymologically connected – Old English halig, hal, and hælth, respectively, which are all related to hal. Thus are they conceptually connected. To see the world as holy is to see the world as whole – it is to have the world "appear infinite and holy, whereas it now appears finite and corrupt" (William Blake, "The Marriage of Heaven and Hell"). The word holistic comes from the Greek holos, whole. Thus the holy is holistic – God is holy because He encompasses all. Perhaps one could even say that we can recognize the divine only when we come to see the world as a whole, when we see the universe as universal. When we can come
>
> To see a World in a grain of sand,
> And a Heaven in a wild flower,
> Hold Infinity in the palm of your hand,
> And Eternity in an hour. (William Blake, "Auguries of Innocence")
>
> Health and hale is the same. To have health is to have wholeness. To be hale is to be healthy – whole and complete. To make healthy is to make whole again. One is healed through medication. But ideally, one would rather maintain one's health than have to withstand the ravages of medication (pharmaceutical comes from the Greek pharmakon, which means both poison and medicine – as it does today), though medication is necessary to stave off disease. This is the purpose of Plato's Pharmakon, to stave off disease. For disease is the opposite of health.
>
> The Modern Era, which we are still in, though we may be at the end of it, began when Descartes split man in two – body and soul. It was a necessary division for the development of modern science (which Descartes all but admits to – the division is so the Church will tend to the soul, while the body is left alone, to be tended to by scientists such as Descartes), but it was certainly an unholy division (as all divisions are, by definition). Kant deepened this division. Hegel tried to mend it through philosophical synthesis. Marx tried to mend it by recommending the overthrow of half of the world – the world would then be wholly Proletarian. Nietzsche responded to Hegel by dividing the world up even more – for him, humans are not divided into body and soul, but are instead a series of masks. With postmodernism, the division is complete: men and women, multiculturalism, radical Cartesian individualism divide us up more and more. Any universality is > denied. A necessary development – and not without its truth (I am aware of the irony of using the word truth, which comes from the Old English treowth, related to the word troth, from which we get the word betrothed, to speak of an idea that is more interested in divorce than betrothal). But it is precisely as unholy as one can get.

The deep divisions fostered by postmodernism came about because of a view that grand narratives, attempts to universalize, and seeing the world as holistic created the problems of the 20th Century. The Marxist grand narrative gave us the gulag of the Soviet Union, the massacres of the Khmer Rouge in Cambodia, and any number of other slaughters done by governments who had embraced Marxist philosophy. We looked back on history after the Holocaust, saw the grand narrative of Christianity had in the past itself promoted the killing of Jews – particularly in the Inquisition – and concluded that it too was dangerous. One could also mention The Terror of the French Revolution. What did Marxism, Medieval Christianity, and the French Revolution have in common? One thing was that they were all grand narratives. Thus, the logic goes, it must be grand narratives which are bad. And what do grand narratives do? They see the world as a whole, which must be encompassed by their ideology. To make the world a whole, it must be placed under their one ideology. Thus, holistic world views were seen as bad – thus were they, and holiness, rejected. The path to Heaven – whether that heaven was celestial or earthly – seemed to lead us straight into Hell. Perhaps in part the rejection of holding a holistic view came about because it is related to the holy, and the holy has been rejected. To the extent that wisdom is the ability to see the unity of the world – meaning wisdom is the ability to see the world as holy – wisdom was also rejected as impossible, perhaps even undesirable.

The error in this way of thinking derives from the error made in seeing Communism, Christianity, or the ideals of the French Revolution as interested in seeing the world as holistic. None of them saw the world as holistic, as holy – they instead wanted to make the world whole, under their particular umbrellas. They too fostered divisions – there were enemies who had to be either converted or killed in order that the world could be made holy. "For the cherub with his flaming sword is hereby commanded to leave his guard at tree of life; and when he does, the whole creation will be consumed and appear infinite and holy" (Blake "The Marriage of Heaven and Hell"). Now Blake here uses the word "appear." None of them saw the world as holy. It had to be made so – through conflagration, if necessary. Postmodern thought, by dividing the world even more, does not help us to see the world as holy – quite the contrary. However, by insisting on equality among the various parts – among individuals, among cultures, among religions, among any number of groups of individuals – postmodern thought may ironically make it now possible to see the world as being, rather than needing to become, holy.

It may seem ironic to suggest that only by reaching the most severe of divisions – seeing the world as eminently unholy – that we can finally come to see that the world is in fact holy, but I am not being ironic. To see the world as holy is not to see everything in the world as equal in an egalitarian sense. There are hierarchies. To see the world as holy is to understand how everything fits into the world as a whole. It is to see the world as an immense organism, and to care for its health. An organism is made up of systems, organs, tissues, cells, organelles, and various biochemicals. For one group to want to envelop the entire world in one way of thinking, believing, viewing the world, would be the same as one cell wanting to envelop the entire organism in that one type of cell. We have a word for cells that want to do that: cancer. The postmodernists have mistaken viewing the actions of cancerous cells for seeing the whole organism. Cancer must be fought, not mistaken for the animal it is in. That is the only way one can have a healthy organism – and it is the only way to have a holy world.. Like a healthy organism, a holy world is complex. Like a healthy organism, a holy world has smoothly working parts in communication with each other through clear rules that proscribe what each part needs to do for the whole to work well. Like a healthy organism, this cannot come from any centralized authority – there is no one control cell in the body, and the brain must have the lungs just as much as the lungs must have the brain. A holy world is like a healthy organism.

In Negative Theology, one comes to know what God is by figuring out what God is not. Aristotle says that if you are not sure if something is good, try to figure out what is bad, and you can then deduce that what is good is its opposite.
The following are unhealthy:

1. Overeating, including eating a high percentage of foods with low nutritional value, while remaining inactive (not exercising)
2. Either stagnation or change without continuity – both create instability
3. Stress and anxiety – which comes about from not realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, and can lead to anger at those very things
4. Hatred – aside from raising the blood pressure, it can cause one to act in ways that would be unhealthy for the object of our hatred
5. Cancer – already discussed
6. Excess – including the excess of moderation
7. Shackles – prevents sufficient movement, equating to lack of exercise

8. Pollution – it can lead to any number of diseases
9. An overly-clean environment – it can prevent our immune systems from developing properly, making us more susceptible to diseases, especially autoimmune diseases
10. Suicide – inherently and obviously unhealthy
11. Isolation – loneliness can lead to depression, which depresses the immune system
12. Ignorance – either of the world or of oneself, as one cannot maintain one's health if one is ignorant of what can harm it or improve it

This leads one to posit the following are healthy:

1. Exercise, with a diet proper to the amount of exercise and of high nutritional value
2. Change with continuity
3. Realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, thus reducing stress and anxiety
4. Love
5. Keeping the body in hierarchical harmony
6. Moderation in everything, including moderation – remembering that moderation is an extreme in the same way that life is an extreme state of organic chemistry
7. Freedom – remembering that freedom does not equate to a lack of rules, but is rather what is achieved through playing by the best rules
8. Cleanliness (which, as the saying goes, is next to Godliness, meaning it is holy)
9. A non-sanitized world – a world without dirt is a world that makes unhealthy organisms
10. Love of one's own life
11. Friends
12. Knowledge – including self-knowledge

One can make a similar list of what makes for a healthy mind:
1. Taking in healthy information – good art, music, literature, philosophy, the sciences, etc. – with sufficient exercise of the mind through thought, discussion, and writing
2. Change with continuity
3.. Realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, thus reducing stress and anxiety, which can negatively affect the mind as well as the body
4. Love
5. Having a variety of inputs – obsession with one thing alone is a kind of mental cancer
6. Moderation in everything, including moderation – moderation of reading, of rigorous thought, sexual thoughts, work, play, physical activity, etc.

7. Freedom of thought – we must not think in shackles, but with flexible rules
8. Cleanliness of thought – this does not necessarily mean what it has traditionally meant in the West, though it can certainly contain some elements; thinking about sex is in and of itself not unclean
9. Realization that we do not and cannot live in a sanitized world, as that stops thought and creativity
10. Love of thinking
11. Friends – as Aristotle says in Rhetoric, "a wide circle of friends, a virtuous circle of friends," and, I would add, a mentally stimulating circle of friends
12. Knowledge – including self knowledge – with the goal of wisdom

A holy world is one that parallels the healthy body and the healthy mind, and will have the above qualities, including moderation in everything, including moderation (i.e., it will be a just world), freedom (this is freedom from, not freedom to), love, friendship, and beauty. A holy world is a beautiful world, both having variety in unity, unity in variety, complexity, and fluid hierarchy that is self-similar regardless of scale. All of the parts, living in love and friendship (which does not exclude healthy competition, such as we find in sports and in free trade), living in a complex dynamic with each other, living as individuals in various communities, many of which overlap and are nested within other communities, must be self-similar to have a holy world.

In Greek, to kalon means the beautiful, but it can also mean the honorable or the noble – and kala can mean either things that are beautiful or things that are morally good. In the Rhetoric, Aristotle says that "Now kalon describes whatever, through being chosen for itself, is praiseworthy or whatever, through being good [agathon], is pleasant because it is good [agathon]. If this, then, is the kalon, then virtue is necessarily kalon; for it is praiseworthy because of being good [agathon]" (79). Elaine Scarry points out that in English too, there is a connection between beauty and the good (the just), when she points out that to say that something is fair is to say that it is either beautiful or that it is just. In Greek and in English, the beautiful and the good are connected. If a holy world is a beautiful world, it is a good and just world as well. As Heraclitus said, "For god all things are fair and just, but men have taken some things as unjust, others as just" (LXVIII). The key here is that we see the world itself as just – not the actions of each and every individual. The world is itself justified and cannot itself be unjust. This is consistent with the teachings of any religion that sees the world as having been created by God or the gods – how could a fair and just god create a world that was itself unjust? And if theistic religions are rejected, how can the world itself possibly be unjust? To say it is unjust is to give it anthropomorphic qualities. It is people who have taken some things as being just, others as unjust – but the world itself is self-justified. Those who do not see the world as just are those who do not see the world as holy – often they are the same people who think the only way the world can be justified is if the world is made holy through the transformation of it into a perfect mirror of themselves. But we have seen that a world made up of only one world view is a cancerous world – and the world, as a cancerous organism, will die. An organism cannot consist of one type of cell – that is the unhealthiest of organisms. And a world having only one world view is the unhealthiest of worlds. In the same way that a healthy body consists of a variety of cells that are variations of the same theme coded by identical DNA, a healthy world consists of a variety of peoples that are variations of the same themes coded for by our being human and sharing the same cultural universals.

Beauty is also related to health – as we can see in the beauty we find in nature. Healthy plants produce the most beautiful flowers. Healthy peacocks produce the largest, most symmetrical, most colorful feathers. Healthy gobies and other territorial reef fish have the brightest colors. All of this natural beauty is the advertisement of health to the opposite sex. The healthiest human bodies (neither overweight nor super model thin) are the most beautiful. Thus is there also a relationship between health, beauty, and sex. If beauty can thus be equated to health, we can see that beauty is again equated to the holy. And we can see too that sex in-and-of-itself is and cannot be unholy, as it is connected (but not equivalent) to beauty.

A holy world is a whole world. It is a healthy world. It is a good and just world. It is a complex world. It is a world of individuals in community. It is a beautiful world. But is it a possible world? I have already given the answer: the world is itself already holy. We just have to learn to see it as holy. That is how we will heal the world. And, as we do, we will become less and less likely to want or try to eliminate those who disagree with us – until we are all in agreement on this one issue, as all the cells in an organism are in agreement on the one issue that they must work together for the health of the whole, even as each performs its own function. Thus, the world will become more and more holy in our eyes. In works of tragedy, nomos (convention, human law, naming; from which we get the words nomad and nomenclature, and which is the changing and changeable aspect of the world) comes into conflict with physis (or nature; from which we get the word physics). That is the position we are now in. When we get > nomos to map onto physis (Heraclitus calls this conjunction logos – > which can be translated as saying, speech, discourse, word, > account, explanation, reason, principle, collection, enumeration, > ratio, proportion), we will see the world as it truly is: holy.

>
> On the Holy
>
> Where lies the holy in the modern world?
> It lies in Blake's world in a grain of sand –
> It lies, and lies like the truth, in patterns
> Like self-organized rings of rocks barren
> Arctic fields create. It lies in the branch
> Of every tree and species, leafing out
> From the known into the unknown. It lies
> In every song, painting and rhythmic verse.
> We have looked at every leaf and petal,
> At the bark and at the wood, every cell
> And strand of DNA is now known –
> And we have forgotten that all of this
> Was once a tree that gave us shade and filled
> The air with delicate sweetness and held
> The grains of sand against its roots to hold
> The ground in place, even as that ground moves
> And changes in tiny ways we refuse
> To see. In this we can see the holy.
> This is where it lies, now and forever,
> On the edge of order and wild chaos,
> Where the infinite holds in the finite,
> Where we, ourselves holy, have always lived.
>
> Troy Camplin
>
> welcome.html

Jason Quackenbush
[redacted]

↑ Index

173. Troy Camplin
Re: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry
Mon 12 Jan 2009

Yes, Rousseau is high on my list of worst people ever. He is the father of Marx, the French Revolution, fascism, and every other evil egalitarianist ideology that's come along since him. Ideologically, I am post-Rousseauean, which does make me post-almost-everyone-here.

Troy Camplin

From: Murat Nemet-Nejat <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Monday, January 12, 2009 12:51:47 PM
Subject: Re: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry

Troy,

Isn't Rousseau in your worst hundred books in the world list? It is amazing how you made snide, thought-starved attacks through iconic references a second nature for yourself. In the negative sense you use the word post-modern, you are the most post-modern of every one here.

Ciao,

Murat

On Mon, Jan 12, 2009 at 11:32 AM, Troy Camplin <[redacted]>wrote:

> The spiritual and the holy are two very different things. One can be spiritual without being holy. One can also be religious without being holy, which is of course the entire point of the essay. An understanding of the world that unified the thought of Christianity, Buddhism, Taoism (I'm more than a bit of a Taoist myself), Islam, Hinduism, Shintoism, etc. would be an understanding of the world as holy. I thus seek to recover the word "holy" from the unholy ones who have highjacked the term.
>
> I do agree with you that postmodernism is in fact in most ways post-romanticism. Frederick Turner suggests that the "post" of postmodern is shorthand for "postscript" -- as indeed I think it is in many ways. It is certainly anti-Enlightenment, and thus is in many ways Romantic, and even more so, Rousseauean. Indeed, the postmodernists are all disciples of Rousseau -- but so are the Marxists, the fascists, and other egalitarianist thinkers.
>
> Troy Camplin
>
> ---
>
> From: John Cunningham <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Sunday, January 11, 2009 6:50:04 AM
> Subject: Re: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry
>
> Thank you, Troy, for this rather detailed overview on theology. There are a > couple of points with which I take exception.
> Being a Buddhist/Taoist, I take exception to your use of the word 'holy'. I would much rather see the word 'spiritual' used as, in my mind, 'holy' is, in fact, a divisive word - something which, in opposition to, is one of the main themes of your expurgation.

Another is your discussion of Christianity. Unfortunately, in all things verging on the spiritual, the original message of the originator is corrupted once it gets into the hands of man. This is true even of Buddhism where a religion was created where none was intended. The philosophy of Buddhism and Taoism is intended to act on an individual basis although the concept of the sangha may create confusion. However, when the sangha is considered as a spiritual body there to support the individual in their quest for nirvana (nirbbana), then the individual remains paramount.
Finally, your use of the term 'postmodern'. If we accept Foucault's concept of the rupture and his adoption of the terms 'epoch' as areas in which new conceptions of old concepts has occurred, then 'modernism' is just an extension, the dying breath, of romanticism. Therefore, the correct term should be 'post-romantic'.
Just some random thoughts.
John Herbert Cunningham

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Troy Camplin
Sent: January-09-09 11:25 AM
To: [redacted]
Subject: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry

In English the words holy, whole, hale, and health are etymologically connected – Old English halig, hal, and hælth, respectively, which are all related to hal. Thus are they conceptually connected. To see the world as holy is to see the world as whole – it is to have the world "appear infinite and holy, whereas it now appears finite and corrupt" (William Blake, "The Marriage of Heaven and Hell"). The word holistic comes from the Greek holos, whole. Thus the holy is holistic – God is holy because He encompasses all. Perhaps one could even say that we can recognize the divine only when we come to see the world as a whole, when we see the universe as universal. When we can come

To see a World in a grain of sand,
And a Heaven in a wild flower,
Hold Infinity in the palm of your hand,
And Eternity in an hour. (William Blake, "Auguries of Innocence")

Health and hale is the same. To have health is to have wholeness. To be hale is to be healthy – whole and complete. To make healthy is to make whole again. One is healed through medication.. But ideally, one would rather maintain one's health than have to withstand the ravages of medication (pharmaceutical comes from the Greek pharmakon, which means both poison and medicine – as it does today), though medication is necessary to stave off disease. This is the purpose of Plato's Pharmakon, to stave off disease. For disease is the opposite of health.

The Modern Era, which we are still in, though we may be at the end of it, began when Descartes split man in two – body and soul. It was a necessary division for the development of modern science (which Descartes all but admits to – the division is so the Church will tend to the soul, while the body is left alone, to be tended to by scientists such as Descartes), but it was certainly an unholy division (as all divisions are, by definition). Kant deepened this division. Hegel tried to mend it through philosophical synthesis. Marx tried to mend it by recommending the overthrow of half of the world – the world would then be wholly Proletarian. Nietzsche responded to Hegel by dividing the world up even more – for him, humans are not divided into body and soul, but are instead a series of masks. With postmodernism, the division is complete: men and women, multiculturalism, radical Cartesian individualism divide us up more and more. Any universality is denied. A necessary development – and not without its truth (I am aware of the irony of using the word truth, which comes from the Old English treowth, related to the word troth, from which we get the word betrothed, to speak of an idea that is more interested in divorce than betrothal). But it is precisely as unholy as one can get.

The deep divisions fostered by postmodernism came about because of a view that grand narratives, attempts to universalize, and seeing the world as holistic created the problems of the 20th Century. The Marxist grand narrative gave us the gulag of the Soviet Union, the massacres of the Khmer Rouge in Cambodia, and any number of other slaughters done by governments who had embraced Marxist philosophy. We looked back on history after the Holocaust, saw the grand narrative of Christianity had in the past itself promoted the killing of Jews – particularly in the Inquisition – and concluded that it too was dangerous. One could also mention The Terror of the French Revolution. What did Marxism, Medieval Christianity, and the French Revolution have in common? One thing was that they were all grand narratives. Thus, the logic goes, it must be grand narratives which are bad. And what do grand narratives do? They see the world as a whole, which must be encompassed by their ideology. To make the world a whole, it must be placed under their one ideology. Thus, holistic world views were seen as bad – thus were they, and holiness, rejected. The path to Heaven – whether that heaven was celestial or earthly – seemed to lead us straight into Hell. Perhaps in part the rejection of holding a holistic view came about because it is related to the holy, and the holy has been rejected. To the extent that wisdom is the ability to see the unity of the world – meaning wisdom is the ability to see the world as holy – wisdom was also rejected as impossible, perhaps even undesirable.

The error in this way of thinking derives from the error made in seeing Communism, Christianity, or the ideals of the French Revolution as interested in seeing the world as holistic. None of them saw the world as holistic, as holy – they instead wanted to make the world whole, under their particular umbrellas. They too fostered divisions – there were enemies who had to be either converted or killed in order that the world could be made holy. "For the cherub with his flaming sword is hereby commanded to leave his guard at tree of life; and when he does, the whole creation will be consumed and appear infinite and holy" (Blake "The Marriage of Heaven and Hell"). Now Blake here uses the word "appear." None of them saw the world as holy. It had to be made so – through conflagration, if necessary. Postmodern thought, by dividing the world even more, does not help us to see the world as holy – quite the contrary. However, by insisting on equality among the various parts – among individuals, among cultures, among religions, among any number of groups of individuals – postmodern thought may ironically make it now possible to see the world as being, rather than needing to become, holy.

It may seem ironic to suggest that only by reaching the most severe of divisions – seeing the world as eminently unholy – that we can finally come to see that the world is in fact holy, but I am not being ironic. To see the world as holy is not to see everything in the world as equal in an egalitarian sense. There are hierarchies. To see the world as holy is to understand how everything fits into the world as a whole. It is to see the world as an immense organism, and to care for its health. An organism is made up of systems, organs, tissues, cells, organelles, and various biochemicals. For one group to want to envelop the entire world in one way of thinking, believing, viewing the world, would be the same as one cell wanting to envelop the entire organism in that one type of cell. We have a word for cells that want to do that: cancer. The postmodernists have mistaken viewing the actions of cancerous cells for seeing the whole organism. Cancer must be fought, not mistaken for the animal it is in. That is the only way one can have a healthy organism – and it is the only way to have a holy world..

Like a healthy organism, a holy world is complex. Like a healthy organism, a holy world has smoothly working parts in communication with each other through clear rules that proscribe what each part needs to do for the whole to work well. Like a healthy organism, this cannot come from any centralized authority – there is no one control cell in the body, and the brain must have the lungs just as much as the lungs must have the brain.. A holy world is like a healthy organism.

In Negative Theology, one comes to know what God is by figuring out what God is not. Aristotle says that if you are not sure if something is good, try to figure out what is bad, and you can then deduce that what is good is its opposite.
The following are unhealthy:

1. Overeating, including eating a high percentage of foods with low nutritional value, while remaining inactive (not exercising)
2. Either stagnation or change without continuity – both create instability
3. Stress and anxiety – which comes about from not realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, and can lead to anger at those very things
4.. Hatred – aside from raising the blood pressure, it can cause one to act in ways that would be unhealthy for the object of our hatred
5. Cancer – already discussed
6. Excess – including the excess of moderation
7. Shackles – prevents sufficient movement, equating to lack of exercise
8. Pollution – it can lead to any number of diseases
9. An overly-clean environment – it can prevent our immune systems from developing properly, making us more susceptible to diseases, especially autoimmune diseases
10. Suicide – inherently and obviously unhealthy
11.. Isolation – loneliness can lead to depression, which depresses the immune system
12. Ignorance – either of the world or of oneself, as one cannot maintain one's health if one is ignorant of what can harm it or improve it

This leads one to posit the following are healthy:

1. Exercise, with a diet proper to the amount of exercise and of high nutritional value
2. Change with continuity
3. Realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, thus reducing stress and anxiety
4. Love

5. Keeping the body in hierarchical harmony
6. Moderation in everything, including moderation – remembering that moderation is an extreme in the same way that life is an extreme state of organic chemistry
7. Freedom – remembering that freedom does not equate to a lack of rules, but is rather what is achieved through playing by the best rules
8. Cleanliness (which, as the saying goes, is next to Godliness, meaning it is holy)
9. A non-sanitized world – a world without dirt is a world that makes unhealthy organisms
10. Love of one's own life
11. Friends
12. Knowledge – including self-knowledge

One can make a similar list of what makes for a healthy mind:
1. Taking in healthy information – good art, music, literature, philosophy, the sciences, etc. – with sufficient exercise of the mind through thought, discussion, and writing
2. Change with continuity
3.. Realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, thus reducing stress and anxiety, which can negatively affect the mind as well as the body
4. Love
5. Having a variety of inputs – obsession with one thing alone is a kind of mental cancer
6. Moderation in everything, including moderation – moderation of reading, of rigorous thought, sexual thoughts, work, play, physical activity, etc.
7. Freedom of thought – we must not think in shackles, but with flexible rules
8. Cleanliness of thought – this does not necessarily mean what it has traditionally meant in the West, though it can certainly contain some elements; thinking about sex is in and of itself not unclean
9. Realization that we do not and cannot live in a sanitized world, as that stops thought and creativity
10. Love of thinking
11. Friends – as Aristotle says in Rhetoric, "a wide circle of friends, a virtuous circle of friends," and, I would add, a mentally stimulating circle of friends
12. Knowledge – including self knowledge – with the goal of wisdom

A holy world is one that parallels the healthy body and the healthy mind, and will have the above qualities, including moderation in everything, including moderation (i.e., it will be a just world), freedom (this is freedom from, not freedom to), love, friendship, and beauty. A holy world is a beautiful world, both having variety in unity, unity in variety, complexity, and fluid hierarchy that is self-similar regardless of scale.

All of the parts, living in love and friendship (which does not exclude healthy competition, such as we find in sports and in free trade), living in a complex dynamic with each other, living as individuals in various communities, many of which overlap and are nested within other communities, must be self-similar to have a holy world.

In Greek, to kalon means the beautiful, but it can also mean the honorable or the noble – and kala can mean either things that are beautiful or things that are morally good. In the Rhetoric, Aristotle says that "Now kalon describes whatever, through being chosen for itself, is praiseworthy or whatever, through being good [agathon], is pleasant because it is good [agathon]. If this, then, is the kalon, then virtue is necessarily kalon; for it is praiseworthy because of being good [agathon]" (79). Elaine Scarry points out that in English too, there is a connection between beauty and the good (the just), when she points out that to say that something is fair is to say that it is either beautiful or that it is just. In Greek and in English, the beautiful and the good are connected. If a holy world is a beautiful world, it is a good and just world as well. As Heraclitus said, "For god all things are fair and just, but men have taken some things as unjust, others as just" (LXVIII). The key here is that we see the world itself as just – not the actions of each and every individual.. The world is itself justified and cannot itself be unjust. This is consistent with the teachings of any religion that sees the world as having been created by God or the gods – how could a fair and just god create a world that was itself unjust? And if theistic religions are rejected, how can the world itself possibly be unjust? To say it is unjust is to give it anthropomorphic qualities. It is people who have taken some things as being just, others as unjust – but the world itself is self-justified. Those who do not see the world as just are those who do not see the world as holy – often they are the same people who think the only way the world can be justified is if the world is made holy through the transformation of it into a perfect mirror of themselves. But we have seen that a world made up of only one world view is a cancerous world – and the world, as a cancerous organism, will die. An organism cannot consist of one type of cell – that is the unhealthiest of organisms. And a world having only one world view is the unhealthiest of worlds. In the same way that a healthy body consists of a variety of cells that are variations of the same theme coded by identical DNA, a healthy world consists of a variety of peoples that are variations of the same themes coded for by our being human and sharing the same cultural universals.

Beauty is also related to health – as we can see in the beauty we find in nature. Healthy plants produce the most beautiful flowers. Healthy peacocks produce the largest, most symmetrical, most colorful feathers. Healthy gobies and other territorial reef fish have the brightest colors. All of this natural beauty is the advertisement of health to the opposite sex. The healthiest human bodies (neither overweight nor super model thin) are the most beautiful. Thus is there also a relationship between health, beauty, and sex. If beauty can thus be equated to health, we can see that beauty is again equated to the holy. And we can see too that sex in-and-of-itself is and cannot be unholy, as it is connected (but not equivalent) to beauty.

A holy world is a whole world. It is a healthy world. It is a good and just world. It is a complex world. It is a world of individuals in community. It is a beautiful world. But is it a possible world? I have already given the answer: the world is itself already holy. We just have to learn to see it as holy. That is how we will heal the world. And, as we do, we will become less and less likely to want or try to eliminate those who disagree with us – until we are all in agreement on this one issue, as all the cells in an organism are in agreement on the one issue that they must work together for the health of the whole, even as each performs its own function. Thus, the world will become more and more holy in our eyes. In works of tragedy, nomos (convention, human law, naming; from which we get the words nomad and nomenclature, and which is the changing and changeable aspect of the world) comes into conflict with physis (or nature; from which we get the word physics). That is the position we are now in. When we get nomos to map onto physis (Heraclitus calls this conjunction logos – which can be translated as saying, speech, discourse, word, account, explanation, reason, principle, collection, enumeration, ratio, proportion), we will see the world as it truly is: holy.

On the Holy

Where lies the holy in the modern world?
It lies in Blake's world in a grain of sand –
It lies, and lies like the truth, in patterns
Like self-organized rings of rocks barren
Arctic fields create. It lies in the branch
Of every tree and species, leafing out
From the known into the unknown. It lies
In every song, painting and rhythmic verse.
We have looked at every leaf and petal,
At the bark and at the wood, every cell
And strand of DNA is now known –
And we have forgotten that all of this
Was once a tree that gave us shade and filled
The air with delicate sweetness and held
The grains of sand against its roots to hold

> The ground in place, even as that ground moves
> And changes in tiny ways we refuse
> To see. In this we can see the holy.
> This is where it lies, now and forever,
> On the edge of order and wild chaos,
> Where the infinite holds in the finite,
> Where we, ourselves holy, have always lived.
>
> Troy Camplin

↑ Index

174. peter ganick

place to send experimental words/texts.

Mon 12 Jan 2009

---

there's some new texts on peter ganick's literary blog: http://pganickz.livejournal.com click on the link to have a look and read.

send me some words/text.

send all mail to <[redacted]>

they'll be online within a few days.

↑ Index

175. Stephen Vincent

Stephen Vincent's "Haptics" - Braunstein-Quay Gallery, San Francisco

Mon 12 Jan 2009

If you are in the San Francisco Bay Area (or have friends here) I invite you to come to the opening for my show, "Haptics", at the Braunstein-Quay Gallery. 3 - 5, Saturday afternoon, at

↑ Index

176. Stephen Vincent

OOPs: Stephen Vincent's "Haptics" - Braunstein-Quay Gallery, San Francisco

Mon 12 Jan 2009

Anxieties of the young artist! Hit 'send' too soon. Please, again, read on! If you are in the San Francisco Bay Area (or have friends here) I invite you to come to the opening for my show, "Haptics", at the Braunstein-Quay Gallery. 3 - 5, Saturday afternoon, at 430 Clementina Street (Between 5th & 6th, parallel and in-between Howard and Folsom Streets). Show will be up through February 21.

For a jpeg of the Gallery Announcement as well scans of recent haptics, go to my blog: http://stephenvincent.net/blog/

Look forward to seeing you.

Stephen Vincent

↑ Index

177. CA Conrad

Kathleen Fraser's THE CARS....

Mon 12 Jan 2009

This was a fantastic experience, doing this not-so-close reading of THE CARS with Kristen, Jessica and Al. Below is the UPenn/PENNSOUND recording, sent out by Al Filreis.
CAConrad

Now releasing...

PoemTalk's thirteenth episode is a discussion of Kathleen Fraser's "The Cars" featuring CAConrad, Kristen Gallagher, and Jessica Lowenthal.

1) At the Poetry Foundation audio & podcasts page:
http://www.poetryfoundation.org/journal/audioitem.html?id=685

2) At the PoemTalk blog:
http://www.poemtalk.org

3) In the iTunes Music Store: search for "PoemTalk" and subscribe.

Next up is Episode #14, on Wallace Stevens' "Not Ideas about the Thing But the Thing Itself" with Nada Gordon, Charles Bernstein and Lawrence Joseph.

- Al Filreis

↑ Index

178. Laurie Schneider & Crag Hill

Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?

Mon 12 Jan 2009

I'd duggest James Galvin, esp. poems in Lethal Frequencies. Forrest Gander's work might fit, too.

Best, Crag Hill

----- Original Message -----
From: "Mary Jo Malo" <[redacted]>
To: <[redacted]>
Sent: Monday, January 12, 2009 11:48 AM
Subject: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?

> Recently read Richard Louv's "Last Child In The Woods:Saving Our Children from Nature-Deficit Disorder" (2005,2008) and he references Wordsworth, and of course, Gary Snyder. And just this morning I found this:
>
> http://www.guardian.co.uk/books/2008/dec/27/nick-laird-poetry-nature
>
> Can anyone suggest poets, critiques, etc. re: non-traditional nature poetry?
>
> Mary Jo Malo
>
> --
> http://thisshiningwound.blogspot.com/
> http://apophisdeconstructingabsurdity.blogspot.com/

No virus found in this incoming message.
Checked by AVG - http://www.avg.com
Version: 8.0.176 / Virus Database: 270.10.6/1889 - Release Date: 1/12/2009 8:18 PM

↑ Index

179. susan dunn-hensley

Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

Mon 12 Jan 2009

Ruth-

For what it's worth, Ruth. I think you raised some valid points.

Susan

--- On Mon, 1/12/09, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]> wrote:

From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
To: [redacted]
Date: Monday, January 12, 2009, 3:31 PM

there is a sweetheart--Tim Peterson. thank you, esp as I'm too busy to continue this discussion.
love
ruth
wish we COULD.

On 1/12/09 8:27 AM, "Tim Peterson" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Adam! Ruth! Two of my dearest friends...it makes me feel terrible to see you > guys fighting like this! The Poetry Brothel is not worth getting this upset > about. Let's all kick back in my living room with a mug of coco and listen > to Gloria Steinheim records backwards. How about this evening?
>
> Love, Tim
>
> Date: Sat, 10 Jan 2009 23:49:49 -0500
> From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>
> twisting my words!
> so writing about objections to prostitution does nothing, huh--so words > don't matter?
> I think all those jobs are degrading.
> I wd like to defend yr friends by getting them better jobs.
> I am not criticizing these women.
> Better working conditions wd be not having to succumb to male ideas of > sexuality in our culture, such narrow constraints.
>
>
>
> On 1/9/09 5:49 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]>
wrote:
>
>> but you were the one crying shame! on the women of the Poetry Brothel!

for >> dressing like whores!
>>
>> (please note that I am NOT arguing that prostitution is not a sexist >> institution. clearly it is. and i agree that it is part of a complex
of >> normative heterosexuality that does terrible violence to all women.
But
> as >> for the actual women who are living in actual slavery, i think complaining >> about the symbolic degrading of womankind does nothing for them:
it's like >> trying to improve the safety of coal mines by complaining about climate >> change.
>>
>> And if you're just using those women (who are very real, and many of them
>> living in absolutely horrific situations, as you rightly pointed out)
as >> symbols of Degraded Womankind, you are doing a disservice to them and also >> to the many many women (some of whom must be subscribers to this list)
who >> work in other parts of the sex trade -- exotic dancers, high-end
> call-girls,
>> dominatrices, nude housekeepers, pornographic models, hooters
waitresses,
>> etc. -- some of these people are my friends and i take it personally
--
> and >> I think that their own struggles for better working conditions are not >> unrelated to the struggle against slavery in other parts of their bosses'
>> businesses...
>>
>> -- but i'm sorry that i overreacted and became part of a litany of men
> (all >> men! really! can it really be that there are no women here who work
in

> the >> sex trade??) who are all seemingly trying to justify the institution
as an >> institution. I am not trying to justify it, just trying to defend my >> friends who work there from the harsh judgments of their elders...
>>
>
guidelines &

↑ Index

180. Dan Glass

Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?

Mon 12 Jan 2009

Juliana Spahr, for sure-- in some ways I think she's asking precisely this question in her poetry.

I talk a bit about the possibility of a radical nature poetry in my review of Ange Mlinko in the current Jacket---

http://jacketmagazine.com/36/r-mlinko-rb-thomas-glass.shtml

Best,,,

Dan

On Mon, Jan 12, 2009 at 7:14 PM, Laurie Schneider & Crag Hill <
[redacted]> wrote:

> I'd duggest James Galvin, esp. poems in Lethal Frequencies. Forrest Gander's work might fit, too.
>
> Best, Crag Hill
>
> ----- Original Message ----- From: "Mary Jo Malo" <[redacted]>
> To: <[redacted]>
> Sent: Monday, January 12, 2009 11:48 AM
> Subject: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?
>
> Recently read Richard Louv's "Last Child In The Woods:Saving Our Children from Nature-Deficit Disorder" (2005,2008) and he references Wordsworth, and of course, Gary Snyder. And just this morning I found this:
>
> http://www.guardian.co.uk/books/2008/dec/27/nick-laird-poetry-nature

> Can anyone suggest poets, critiques, etc. re: non-traditional nature poetry?
>
> Mary Jo Malo
>
> --
> http://thisshiningwound.blogspot.com/
> http://apophisdeconstructingabsurdity.blogspot.com/
>
> ---
>
> No virus found in this incoming message.
> Checked by AVG - http://www.avg.com
> Version: 8.0.176 / Virus Database: 270.10.6/1889 - Release Date: 1/12/2009 8:18 PM

↑ Index

181. Catherine Daly

Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?

Mon 12 Jan 2009

broaden it out to "eco poetics / poetry" & also to poets who merely have the natural world, landscape, plants, etc. as some of many subjects, and then find oh, about a million poets

--
All best,
Catherine Daly
[redacted]

↑ Index

182. Cara Benson

Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?

Mon 12 Jan 2009

spots in Brenda Hillman's work

_____

http://www.necessetics.com

http://www.necessetics.com/sousrature.html

_____
From: Dan Glass <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Monday, January 12, 2009 10:21:55 PM
Subject: Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?

Juliana Spahr, for sure-- in some ways I think she's asking precisely this question in her poetry.

I talk a bit about the possibility of a radical nature poetry in my review of Ange Mlinko in the current Jacket---

http://jacketmagazine.com/36/r-mlinko-rb-thomas-glass.shtml

Best,,,

Dan

On Mon, Jan 12, 2009 at 7:14 PM, Laurie Schneider & Crag Hill <[redacted]> wrote:

> I'd duggest James Galvin, esp. poems in Lethal Frequencies. Forrest Gander's work might fit, too.
>
> Best, Crag Hill
>
> ----- Original Message ----- From: "Mary Jo Malo" <[redacted]>
> To: <[redacted]>
> Sent: Monday, January 12, 2009 11:48 AM
> Subject: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?
>
> Recently read Richard Louv's "Last Child In The Woods:Saving Our Children from Nature-Deficit Disorder" (2005,2008) and he references Wordsworth, and of course, Gary Snyder. And just this morning I found this:
>
> http://www.guardian.co.uk/books/2008/dec/27/nick-laird-poetry-nature
>
> Can anyone suggest poets, critiques, etc. re: non-traditional nature poetry?
>
> Mary Jo Malo
>
> --
> http://thisshiningwound.blogspot.com/

> http://apophisdeconstructingabsurdity.blogspot.com/
>
> ---
>
> No virus found in this incoming message.
> Checked by AVG - http://www.avg.com
> Version: 8.0.176 / Virus Database: 270.10.6/1889 - Release Date: 1/12/2009 8:18 PM

↑ Index

183. Elizabeth Switaj

Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?

Mon 12 Jan 2009

This was, to a large extent, the subject I was working through in my Ypolita Press chapbook, The Broken Sanctuary: Nature Poems http://ypolitapress.blogspot.com/2007/03/forthcoming-imminently.html

Elizabeth Kate Switaj
www.elizabethkateswitaj.net

↑ Index

184. Mark Weiss

Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?

Mon 12 Jan 2009

A lot of us draw our imagery and more from the apparently non-human landscape, and it's where I'm happiest, but it's questionable if there really is a non-human landscape. The woodlands next to my apartment is usually described as "the last natural forest in Manhattan." It's certainly a forest, and it's been managed hardly at all for the past two centuries, but it contains plants that never would have coexisted without post-conquest human presence. That presence has become everywhere more intrusive, but one would have to go back very far to find a landscape not radically altered by humans. The Lenape who once inhabited my forest altered it by burning the undergrowth to improve hunting. The great "virgin" forest that once stretched to the Mississippi and beyond was managed as an enormous game park.

So I guess the first question might be, "what do you mean 'nature?'" We generally mean an uncultivated plant and animal community, and in some places a community in which we've allowed predators other than ourselves to survive. It's our forebearance that more or less preserves it, like a progressive zoo.

Mark

At 02:48 PM 1/12/2009, you wrote:
>Recently read Richard Louv's "Last Child In The Woods:Saving Our >Children from Nature-Deficit Disorder" (2005,2008) and he references >Wordsworth, and of course, Gary Snyder. And just this morning I found >this:
>
>http://www.guardian.co.uk/books/2008/dec/27/nick-laird-poetry-nature
>
>Can anyone suggest poets, critiques, etc. re: non-traditional nature poetry?
>
>Mary Jo Malo
>
>--
>http://thisshiningwound.blogspot.com/
>http://apophisdeconstructingabsurdity.blogspot.com/
>

↑ Index

185. jared schickling
Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Tue 13 Jan 2009

--_56126847-ee13-4d0e-bc8e-0eac77f1d200_

=20
I've been following the discussion only sporadically=2C so please forgive a= ny redundancy=2C but=2C the well-known "Effects of Prolonged Consumption
of= Pornography" and other studies suggest that in places where pornography is= legal and increasingly popular there is a corresponding decrease in the in= cidence of violent sexual crimes. As if the medium could allow for the saf= e channeling of certain repressed and thereby sinister desires. However=2C= many observers attribute said decreased incidence to a greater leniency in= attitudes towards sexual behavior and an inability=2C or unwillingness=2C = to interpret sex crimes as such. In this regard=2C where pornography is wi= dely consumed=2C we might note the evolution of more exotic and aggressive

=
forms of it (think anus=2C gangbang=2C shit in the mouth). =20 =20
Though pornography and prostitution aren't the same thing=2C perhaps the sa= me principle holds true. The more the thing is permitted=2C the more borin= g it gets=2C and so=2C the more deviant and illicit and forbidden its form = must take. Or in other terms=2C hunger (out of boredom) ensures the creati= on (and delivery) of new products. The more we're ok with prostitution=2C = the more we're ok with whatever treatment the prostitute receives=2C and th= e more novel treatments we'll surely find. Let the free market rule. Afte= r all they're just a muscle. =20 =20
Jared Schickling
=20 =20 =20
> Date: Tue=2C 13 Jan 2009 00:00:38 -0500> From: [redacted].=
EDU> Subject: POETICS Digest - 11 Jan 2009 to 12 Jan 2009 (#2009-10)> To:
P= [redacted]> > There are 41 messages totalling 4675 lines i= n this issue.> > Topics of the day:> > 1. Want your poem to reach nearly tw= o million people?> 2. Eyeless in Gaza> 3. Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Fact= ory (5)> 4. Adam (2)> 5. please post> 6. On Health=2C Holiness=2C Beauty
an= d Poetry (5)> 7. Oppen quote - help! (2)> 8. Prostitution in Sweden> 9. [am= [redacted]: AngelHousePress Essay Series=2C # 1]> 10. STEEL PUDDING= anthology gives voice to African-American life in Gary=2C> Indiana at 3rd = Saturday Coffeehouse Jan. 17th> 11. Fwd: [WOM-PO] CFP: UCLA indigenous conn= ections> 12. Microsoft Songsmith> 13. AngelHousePress Essay Series> 14.
Joh= n Beer @ Seven Corners> 15. Third Thursday Poetry Night -- Nicole Karas=2C
=
Open Mic> 16. Joan Silber & Mike DeCapite read NYC 2-5> 17. Stain of Poetry=
: A Reading Series -- January's Stars!> 18. getting ON> 19. gene robinson t= o give invocation at inauguration> 20. TONIGHT @ THE POETRY PROJECT:
Cyrus =
Console & Jessica Dessner> 21. Literary Buffalo Newsletter 01.12.09-01.18.0= 9> 22. for all those new yorkers in the house...> 23. PoemTalk #13: Kathlee= n Fraser's "The Cars"> 24. Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structura= l? (4)> 25. getting inauguerated> 26. OOPs: Stephen Vincent's "Haptics" - B= raunstein-Quay Gallery=2C San> Francisco> 27. Kathleen Fraser's THE CARS...=

.> 28. place to send experimental words/texts.> > =3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=
----------> > Date:=
 Mon=2C 12 Jan 2009 07:09:13 -0800> From: amy king <[redacted]>> = Subject: Want your poem to reach nearly two million people?> > Want your wo= rds to reach nearly two million people?=3D20> > Goodreads and the =3DA1Poet= ry! group have partnered to create a contest in or=3D> der to select a new = poem each month for our newsletter.=3D20> http://www.goodreads.com/group/sh= ow/233._POETRY_> > 1. Post your best poem (one poem per person) in this fol= der.> > 2. Goodreads and I will select five poems each month to be voted on= by the =3D> Goodreads community.> > 3. =3DA1Poetry! group members will vot= e for the poem they like best (one vote=3D> per member) once the poll with = the five finalists' poems are posted. The p=3D> oem with the most votes wil= l be published in the Goodreads=3D92 newsletter =3D> =3D96 distributed each= month to nearly 2 million people!> > Good luck & please post your best wor= k!> > Thanks=2C> > Amy King> =3DA1Poetry! Moderator=3D20> > > http://www.go= odreads.com/group/show/233._POETRY_> > > _____> > > > > > Recent work> > =
http://www.writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/King.html> > > > Amy's Alias> >
ht= tp://amyking.org/=3D0A=3D0A=3D0A > >
=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D=
3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D
3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D=
3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D 3D> The Poetics List=
-----> > Date: Sat=2C 10 Jan 2009 12:49:05 -0800> From: Stephen Vincent <st= [redacted]>> Subject: Re: Eyeless in Gaza> > It is no longer 'Eyele= ss in Gaza" - Israel's attempts to keep the media out=3D> of Gaza notwithst= anding=2C on the outside we have more than an absolutely aw=3D> ful 'Eyeful=

' now. Even from the standpoint of traditional Ghetto (Occupatio=3D> n) man= agement standards=2C the carnage of Palestinians=2C plus buildings=2C=3DA0 = in=3D> frastructure and homes is an absolute outrage and failure. In terms = of Amer=3D> ican racial history=2C Gaza in many ways so much echos Kansas C= ity=2C Watts=2C De=3D> troit and any number of other ghetto uprisings that = have been mercilessly c=3D> aused and the repressions of which have been me= rcilessly executed.=3DA0=3D20> > As Hitler & Company envisioned Jews as a p= ermanent threat to some concept o=3D> f German purity=2C progress=2C etc.= =2C what does the Israeli leadership=2C such as =3D> it is=2C seek to elimi= nate in Gaza! =3DA0=3D20> > Going back to the '60's in California=3DA0 I ca= n remember racist Governor Ron=3D> ald Regan & company hearing and magnifyi= ng the 'threat'=3DA0 of separatist an=3D> d armed Black militants.=3DA0 Ins= tead of figuring out ways to negotiate and d=3D> eal with the real issues i= nside ghetto communities=2C they responded in the=3D> =3DA0 same heavy hand= ed paranoid manner that Israel's right wing is respondin=3D> g=3DA0 to Hama= s - that is by demonizing and (now obviously)=3DA0 seeking their =3D> liqui= dation on all levels - institutional=2C cultural=2C etc. etc.=3DA0 As if th= i=3D> s kind of punishment has ever been successful - short run=2C maybe ye= s=2C but l=3D> ong term most always a form of national self-poisoning. (i.e=
.=2C witness the =3D> wonderful=2C self-destructing condition of the USA to= day!)=3D20> > & all with the final 'last days' support of support of Georg= e Bush and Dick=3D> Cheney - and all 'in our name'.=3DA0 =3DA0 Again.> > Wa= tch Israel withdraw from Gaza on the day before the Inauguration. Astonis= =3D> hing (or not)=3DA0 what garbage these people are dumping into Obama's = White H=3D> ouse the week before he moves in! Oy!> > Stephen Vincent>

http:= //stephenvincent.net/blog/> > > >
=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=
=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D
=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=
=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D=3D3D
> The Poetics List i=
---> > Date: Sun=2C 11 Jan 2009 00:16:02 -0500> From: Ruth Lepson
<ruthleps= [redacted]>> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory> > who's= judging men & women for trying to get each others' attention?> there are a= n infinite number of ways of doing that=2C I suppose. I myself used> to be = very good at it.> the best party I ever went to was given by a crazy gal do= ing> off-broadway--she brought her troupe to town & they brought their cost= umes &> put them all over the floor. every hour we had to change outfits. w= e cd> combine anything with anything. that was liberating.> > > On 1/8/09 1= 1:12 PM=2C "Mark Weiss" <[redacted]> wrote:> > > When we all we= ar golden slippers and are pure of heart things may be> > different. Til th= en even women get to enjoy whatever fantasy. Though> > I imagine some will
=
deconstruct their motives.> > > > Years ago I was invited to a party in the= Hamptons. Turns out it was> > a "lingerie and toga" party. Nobody told me= =2C so I wasn't dressed> > appropriately. It was a lot of young professiona= ls=2C dressed as the> > name suggests. It was very sad=2C not because of th= e indecorous> > clothes=2C but because it was otherwise crushingly decorous=
. Go figure.> > > > Young men and women are in the business of getting each= others'> > attention. Appears to be instinctual. Seems a shame to judge th= em for it.> > > > Mark> > > > At 10:08 PM 1/8/2009=2C Ruth Lepson
wrote:> >=
> but WHY something gets you off is the question.> >> > >> > >> On 1/8/09 6=
:37 PM=2C "Mark Weiss" <[redacted]> wrote:> >> > >>> I'm not su= re what you're objecting to=2C as you seem to be paraphrasing> >>> what I s= aid. In the best of all possible worlds there would probably> >>> be some v= oluntary prostitution=2C but I'd still wonder at the> >>> psychological cos= t to those who chose to make their living that way.> >>> Choosing to playac= t at prostitution=2C like the women in the poetry> >>> brothel=2C is simply= fantasy=2C and no more destructive=2C I'd think=2C than> >>> wearing a pir= ate costume. It's under the category of "whatever> >> gets you off."> >>> >= >>> Mark> >>> > >>> At 01:45 PM 1/8/2009=2C steve russell wrote:>

>>>> int= eresting distinction: Genet did a number with the fantasy realm.> >>>> But = what=2C exactly=2C do you mean=2C Mark=2C by the fantasy of> >>>> prostitut= ion? Phone sex? I suppose that's somewhat harmless. But> >>>> that ain't th= e real thing. When it's real=2C as in the sex trade=2C> >>>> we're talking = ugly/ugly/ugly.> >>>> > >>>> --- On Tue=2C 1/6/09=2C Mark Weiss
<[redacted]=
ARTHLINK.NET> wrote:> >>>> From: Mark Weiss <[redacted]>> >>>> =
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory> >>>> To: [redacted]=
V.BUFFALO.EDU> >>>> Date: Tuesday=2C January 6=2C 2009=2C 11:41
PM> >>>> > =
>>>> I think we need to make a distinction between prostitution and the>
>>=
>> fantasy of prostitution. Most prostitution is compelled or a response> >= >>> to desperation. Most fantasy prostitution=2C playing dress-up and the> = >>>> like=2C isn't.> >>>> > >>>> At 02:34 PM 1/6/2009=2C you wrote:>
>>>>> =
I saw reference in there to men and gigolos. I have a problem> >> with the = old> >>>>> school "sex degrades women" feminist argument. Is a the location= > >>>> of a> >>>>> brothel and the profession of prostitution always and inherently> >>>> degrading> >>>>> to women? I thought there were sexpositi= ve feminists who were working> >>>>> against that idea.> >>>>> >
=
>>>>> ----=
-Original Message-----> >>>>> From: steve russell [mailto:[redacted]=
O.COM]> >>>>> Sent: Sunday=2C December 21=2C 2008 5:49 PM> >>>>> Subject: R= e: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory> >>>>> > >>>>> this seems pretty li= ght hearted.> >>>>> I'm sorry to hear about the wicked (objects=2C et ceter=
a) capitalist.> >>>>> i suspect that the most die hard feminist could enjoy= her/himself.> >>>>> > >>>>> --- On Fri=2C 12/19/08=2C mIEKAL aND <qazingul=
[redacted]> wrote:> >>>>> From: mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>> >>>>= > Subject: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory> >>>>> To: [redacted]=
.BUFFALO.EDU> >>>>> Date: Friday=2C December 19=2C 2008=2C 4:15

PM> >>>>> >=
 >>>>> New York poetry brothel tempts with verse> >>>>> > >>>>>
Published: =
Friday December 19=2C 2008> >>>>> > >>>>> > >>
http://rawstory.com/news/afp=
/New_York_poetry_brothel_tempts_with_12192008.ht> >>>>> ml> >>>>> >
>>>>> T= he prostitute whispers=2C wets her lips and prepares to bare... her heart> = >>>>> with a> >>>>> poem.> >>>>> > >>>>> Welcome to New York's Poetry Broth=
el=2C where punters delve between the> >>>>> lines=2C not the sheets.>
>>>>=
> > >>>>> At a weekend session in a Manhattan night club called the Zipper
=
Factory> >>>> the> >>>>> look was bona fide bordello.> >>>>> > >>>>> Litera= ry ladies of the night flitted between intimate=2C candle-lit nooks=2C> >>>= > red> >>>>> lights and paintings of nudes.> >>>>> > >>>>> Some of the poet=
esses for sale sported retro-style garter belts> >> and frilly> >>>>> knick= ers. One swanned about in a top hat and feather boa.> >>>>> > >>>>> But tra= nsactions at the Poetry Brothel are of the mind=2C not the> >> body=2C and
=
a> >>>>> moment with the catalogue=2C replete with pictures and whimsical> = >>>> descriptions=2C> >>>>> reveals what's on offer.> >>>>> > >>>>> Page fo= ur boasts The Professor=2C swearing to have heard "the wail of> >>>> your>
=
>>>>> striving heart drifting over the spires of skyscrapers."> >>>>> >
>>>=
>> Harriett Van Os on page 10 promises to "tell you secrets she> >>>> doesn=
't> >>>>> know she knows." Cecille Ballroom tempts punters on page 13 claim= ing> >>>> she> >>>>> can "coax your drum."> >>>>> > >>>>> Gigolo poets are = available=2C not least Poetry Brothel co-founder Nicholas> >>>>> Adamski=2C= who goes by the name Tennessee Pink and tops tempestuous=2C dark> >>>>> lo= oks> >>>>> with an eye patch.> >>>>> > >>>>> "Poetry is what I love more th= an anything=2C" cooed The Madame=2C the> >>>>> sultry spirit behind the who= le idea.> >>>>> > >>>>> The Madame -- real name Stephanie Berger -- came dr= essed for the part in> >>>>> low-cut dress=2C elbow-length black gloves and= a peacock headdress.> >>>>> > >>>>> "I'd rather be in the bedroom hearing = poetry than listening to> >>>> some> >>>>> old man sitting on a chair on a = stage=2C" she explained by the light of> >>>> a> >>>>> guttering candle.> >=

>>> > >>>>> One-on-one encounters=2C for which "clients" pay three to five= > >>>> dollars> >>>>> in addition to a 15 dollar entry fee and one free rea= ding=2C took place> >>>>> upstairs.> >>>>> > >>>>> The "whores" read from t= heir own material=2C much of which is free> >>>>> verse=2C making for inten= se=2C sometimes baffling performances.> >>>>> > >>>>> But for those needing= a break=2C the Poetry Brothel laid on flamenco> >>>>> guitarists=2C> >>>>>= a fortune-teller=2C a blackjack table and a bar specializing in port and> = >>>>> whisky> >>>>> > >>>>> The young hedonists=2C most of them students=2C= appear to have struck a> >>>>> surprisingly successful formula.> >>>>> > >=
>>> "There just aren't that many poetry readings where poets show a> >>>> = lot of> >>>>> cleavage=2C" said The Professor=2C otherwise known as Jennife= r Michael> >>>> Hecht=2C> >>>>> aged 43 and a real life professor at Manhat= tan's New School.> >>>>> > >>>>> She teaches writing to many of the Brothel=
's regulars and is proud of> >>>> the> >>>>> result.> >>>>> > >>>>> "It's k= ind of like the Weimar Republic without the Nazis. At two> >>>> in> >>>>> t= he morning you have 20- or 30-year-olds lying all over the place reading> >= >>>> poetry=2C" she said.> >>>>> > >>>>> "The custom is to read poetry alon= e=2C but we know that from Homer> >>>> onward=2C> >>>>> people read it alou= d and in groups."> >>>>> > >>>>> By midnight the Zipper Factory was packed = and getting fuller -- and> >>>> rowdier.> >>>>> > >>>>> The fortune teller= =2C bedecked in red scarf and blue plumes=2C mumbled to> >>>>> someone> >>>= >> about "choppy waters." The flamenco duo strummed. The Madame=2C yet> >> another glass of port in hand=2C introduced poet "whores" in a> >>>> voi= ce> >>>>> suggesting she appreciated more than their literary charms.>

>>>=
>>>>=
> > >>>>> When Patricia Smith=2C a well-established poet=2C took the mike t= o declaim a> >>>>> long> >>>>> and rhythmical poem about love and making lo= ve=2C there were rock concert> >>>>> cheers> >>>>> from the crowd.>
>>>>> >=
 >>>>> "I always shudder when I pray=2C" Smith intoned in a mesmerizing>
>>=
>> voice=2C> >>>>> "so your name must be a prayer."> >>>>> > >>>>> Even for= these bohemians there's no escaping the economic crisis> >>>> sweeping>
>>=
>>> the country.> >>>>> > >>>>> One of the poets=2C 22-year-old Nina Cheng=
=2C was about to start a> >> job at Bear> >>>>> Stearns this year when the bank collapsed. Now she is writing a> >> play about> >>>>> the> >>>>> exper= ience and applying for a playwright's course at Yale.> >>>>> > >>>>> "I'd t= hought I'd do banking and get into the arts when I> >>>> retired> >>>>> -- not this early=2C" said Cheng=2C known at the Brothel as The Opium> >>>> Ea=
=
=
ter.> >>>>> > >>>>> Another poetry prostitute=2C 27-year-old Rachel

Herman-=
Gross=2C aka Simone=2C> >>>>> worried> >>>>> that crashing stock markets wi= ll pull the rug from under the arts scene.> >>>>> "It's going to be a lot h= arder. A lot of artists are sustained by> >>>>> grants from people with mon= ey."> >>>>> > >>>>> But one enthusiastic "client" said the ingenuity of the= Poetry> >>>>> Brothel proves there are ways to survive.> >>>>> > >>>>> "Mo= ney's always been scarce for artists and they're very> >>>>> resourceful pe= ople=2C" said Edmund Voyer=2C 54=2C a hefty man described as> >>>> an> >>>>= > "evangelist" on his business card and who came to the Zipper> >>>> Factor= y> >>>>> wearing a kilt.> >>>>> > >>>>> His drinking companion=2C Jennifer = Hoa=2C 27=2C agreed money and art> >> would always> >>>>> find ways to meet=
.> >>>>> > >>>>> "I've been a sell-out for years as a corporate lawyer=2C b= ut I come> >>>>> here=2C" she said. "I can't suppress my artistic side."> >=
>>>> > >>>>> The Madame promised that the Poetry Brothel welcomed all.> >>>=
>> > >>>>> "Many are young men with perhaps a secret interest in poems=2C" = she> >>>>> murmured. "Just look at the menu. Get a recommendation. Or say y= ou> >>>>> don't care. Say: 'I need poetry. I'm hungry.'"> >>>>> > >>>>> =3D= tics/welcome.html> >>>> > >>>>
=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=
=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D> >>>> The Poet=
=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D> >>>> The Poetics List =
=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D=3D

Date: Sun=2C 11 Jan 2009 00:41:31 -0500> From: Murat Nemet-Nejat
<[redacted]=
MAIL.COM>> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory> > Alice Notle=
y has a poem which starts with the protagonist saying she a woman> in a who= re house. I can not at this moment remember the title.> > Ciao=2C> >
Murat>=
 > > On Sat=2C Jan 10=2C 2009 at 11:49 PM=2C Ruth Lepson <[redacted]=
t.net>wrote:> > > twisting my words!> > so writing about objections to pros= titution does nothing=2C huh--so words> > don't matter?> > I think all thos= e jobs are degrading.> > I wd like to defend yr friends by getting them bet= ter jobs.> > I am not criticizing these women.> > Better working conditions=
 wd be not having to succumb to male ideas of> > sexuality in our culture= =2C such narrow constraints.> >> >> >> > On 1/9/09 5:49 PM=2C "Adam Tobin" =
<[redacted]> wrote:> >> > > but you were the one crying shame=
! on the women of the Poetry Brothel!> > for> > > dressing like whores!> > =
>> > > (please note that I am NOT arguing that prostitution is not a sexist=
> > > institution. clearly it is. and i agree that it is part of a complex = of> > > normative heterosexuality that does terrible violence to all women.=
 But> > as> > > for the actual women who are living in actual slavery=2C i = think> > complaining> > > about the symbolic degrading of womankind does no= thing for them: it's> > like> > > trying to improve the safety of coal mine= s by complaining about climate> > > change.> > >> > > And if you're just us= ing those women (who are very real=2C and many of them> > > living in absol= utely horrific situations=2C as you rightly pointed out) as> > > symbols of= Degraded Womankind=2C you are doing a disservice to them and> > also> >
> =
to the many many women (some of whom must be subscribers to this list)> > w= ho> > > work in other parts of the sex trade -- exotic dancers=2C high-end>= > call-girls=2C> > > dominatrices=2C nude housekeepers=2C pornographic mod= els=2C hooters waitresses=2C> > > etc. -- some of these people are my frien= ds and i take it personally --> > and> > > I think that their own struggles= for better working conditions are not> > > unrelated to the struggle again= st slavery in other parts of their bosses'> > > businesses...> > >> > > -- =
but i'm sorry that i overreacted and became part of a litany of men> > (all= > > > men! really! can it really be that there are no women here who work i= n> > the> > > sex trade??) who are all seemingly trying to justify the inst= itution as> > an> > > institution. I am not trying to justify it=2C just tr= ying to defend my> > > friends who work there from the harsh judgments of t= heir elders...> > >> > >> > >> > >> > >> > > -----Original Message-----> >

=
> From: Poetics List (UPenn=2C UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On= > > > Behalf Of Ruth Lepson> > > Sent: Thursday=2C January 08=2C 2009
10:11=
PM> > > To: [redacted]> > > Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel = at the Zipper Factory> > >> > > but I don't believe either considering it l= abor or shame on women is> > right.> > > in a free society women cd dress
a= ny way they wanted not just in ways> > > dictated by the society as sexy.> =
> >> > >> > > On 1/8/09 8:22 PM=2C "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]> = wrote:> > >> > >> I did overstate the case a bit -- only because i thought = your reaction> > >> against The Poetry Brothel was itself overstated. Of co= urse sex is> > >> different from sewing.> > >>> > >> And sewing is differen= t from mining=2C and mining is different from> > >> picking cotton=2C etc.
=
-- all of these industries have had -- and do> > >> have -- their own slave= ry problems. And all of them have different> > >> occupational hazards and = terrible working conditions that need to be> > >> addressed=2C and will onl= y be addressed if the workers can bargain> > >> collectively because the bo= sses are interested only in profits etc. etc.> > > etc.> > >>> > >> I propo= se that a major reason that slavery persists in the sex> > >> industry is t= hat the labor movement has utterly ignored those workers=2C> > >> largely b= ecause of the knee-jerk moralizing that is our culture's rote> > >> respons= e to any mention of sex-work. (and because it apparently takes> > >> an inv= olved argument to convince even well-meaning people that sex can> > >> be
c= onsidered work at> > >> all.)> > >>> > >> (I may be the old-fashioned one h= ere=2C calling for solidarity across> > >> different types of work. But tha= t old labor-movement ethic seems still> > >> useful to me -- whereas the ol= d> > "shame-on-the-women-who-dress-like-whores"> > >> ethic seems singularl=
y counterproductive.)> > >>> > >>> > >>> > >>> > >> -----Original Message--=
---> > >> From: Poetics List (UPenn=2C UB) [mailto:[redacted]=

↑ Index

186. Gerald Schwartz

Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?

Tue 13 Jan 2009

Ronald Johnson's The Shrubberies

Gerald S.

> Recently read Richard Louv's "Last Child In The Woods:Saving Our Children from Nature-Deficit Disorder" (2005,2008) and he references Wordsworth, and of course, Gary Snyder. And just this morning I found this:
>
> http://www.guardian.co.uk/books/2008/dec/27/nick-laird-poetry-nature
>
> Can anyone suggest poets, critiques, etc. re: non-traditional nature poetry?
>
> Mary Jo Malo
>
> --
> http://thisshiningwound.blogspot.com/
> http://apophisdeconstructingabsurdity.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

187. Sarah Sarai

Hubert Huncke tribute, after the fact, Patti Smith, David Lawton, Tatum

Tue 13 Jan 2009

Last Friday there was a Hubert Huncke tribute for his 94th birthday (if he were around to celebrate) at Bowery Electric in N.Y.C. Readers (of his work) included Thurston Moore from Sonic Youth (tall, rumpled, cool), Abel Ferrara (smart, not the best reader, but who cares -- a privilege to see him), Tatum O'Neill (funny and utterly beautiful but needs to go to more open mics and learn to shout over instead of at the people at the bar). And Patti Smith. She stuck her gum on the music stand. She owned the stage. She owned the house. She brought the house down, as did David Lawton (open mic poet; actor), co-organizer of the event. He was friends w/ Huncke and performed what I hope is the beginning of a one-man show. I know this is all after the fact and I almost didn't go. Lawton shamed me into going so I'm doing some thanking, here. I don't want the evening to almost pass away without notice and I don't want Lawton to almost not consider doing more.

Sarah Sarai
www.myspace.com/sarahsarai

↑ Index

188. CA Conrad coMpetition does

Tue 13 Jan 2009

Recently I've met a couple of young poets (yet again) who dropped out of poetry writing workshops because they were, in the words of one of these poets, "eaten alive."

The conversation isn't new. And it's not a conversation about workshops in particular, but competition in a bigger sense.

When is competition good, meaning productive, meaning THE THING which spurs poets into action in the best sense, in the sense of WANTING to write as well as they can.

And when is competition ugly, filled with envy and jealousy, reaching a surprising number of times in my observations to the most corrupt, wicked, disturbing places people can get to.

The conversation is tricky because I'm always trying to ask, investigate with others, WHERE IS THE line between competition when it's healthy, and rotten?

There's no doubt in my mind that these two young poets (the latest two that is, as I've been having this conversation for years now and I don't even remember how many times I've had it frankly) love, really LOVE poetry. We share that, we find when talking that we share that DRIVE, depositing ourselves in front of bookstore poetry sections, and libraries, and asking everyone we know who their favorite poets are, and titles, and never getting enough of this love. Never getting enough of it. And not just feeling sad when a bookstore like GOTHAM BOOKMART closes down but ANGRY!

We're so much alike, and we tell one another what we're most excited about NOW, and everyone's scratching notes for the library and bookstore. How we're NOT alike is that these two young poets are VERY vulnerable to attack. When they were said to be "eaten alive" I'm not surprised. And I'm sad, and wish they were MORE LIKE ME and laugh at the bastards and say, "OH YOU'RE JUST A HATER, YOU JEALOUS PIG!" Or, "Yeah well, THANKS, being attacked GETS ME UP IN THE MORNING TO MAKE YOU ANGRY!" It feeds me when someone attacks me, I LOVE it.

But of course a lot of people don't respond well when they're attacked, and this makes me sad. I've known poets WHOSE POEMS MADE ME HAPPY who stopped writing poems because of such attacks. In some cases the attacks were from their professors, and the other students, egged-on by the professors. A FEEDING FRENZY in such a way that makes me want to puke for poetry. It disgusts me this kind of behavior.

I'm not a professor, but I have conducted poetry workshops, and it's NOT HARD AT ALL in my opinion to keep the focus about everyone (including myself because I want to learn from THEM TOO!) investigating poetry together! My focus is about PROCESS, about the many weird ways to MAKE poetry happen, NOT ABOUT who is writing poems I think are good, or another person in the workshop thinks are good, or not.

This is NOT goody-two-shoe bullshit, I'm JUST NOT INTERESTED in telling someone whether I like their poems or not when I'm conducting workshops. And it's none of my business frankly. But to LOVE poetry, and read it, and create it, and have it in our lives, now THAT is something I get very excited about!

But what is that line? When is it crossed from productive and beautiful and everyone's excited and MAKING poetry, to that place of shit?

I'd rather see poems ABOUT that dark spot on the poetry map, than see it overwhelm another poet. And I mean overwhelm the poet who NEEDS to be vicious, and of course I mean the poet who gets beaten down.

This conversation cannot happen unless we talk about the bigger things around it, like, WHY IS EVERYONE NOT UNDERSTANDING EVERYONE IS CREATIVE WE ARE ALL CREATIVE THIS IS NOT UP FOR DEBATE. Or is it? I've had people tell me this is wrong, that everyone's NOT creative. But I disagree.

And the conversation needs to be about how the way poets act about scarcity and fear that there's not enough NOT ENOUGH magazines NOT ENOUGH awards or enough room at the reading series, not enough, is really, such an old story about us being animals.

And the conversation needs to be about how to protect ourselves if we can't withstand the attacks.

And the conversation needs to be about how people don't need to attack others because THERE IS ENOUGH.

And the conversation needs to be about how art and all our creative abilities have become part of a big system in the capital of art and poetry, and books, and writing programs and teaching and, and, and CONSUMPTION, and frankly how, more than ever there's more reasons than ever for us to feel like we're NOT working hard enough, NOT being good enough, NOT good enough, so many reasons to feel like shit.

It's a big conversation. But I feel I'm always having it. And it's one of the most important ones to have some days, especially when I meet young poets who have just been destroyed in workshops, made to feel worthless. The one poet started crying, and said, literally between sobs, "ALL I WANT TO DO IS WRITE POETRY!" It's really awful, I just want to hit whoever did this to this person, but of course that's not helpful.

The line crossed is hard to see because it's different for everyone, I think. Right? Sometimes I'm not sure I'm right about that, but it feels right, doesn't just feel like an answer I've come up with to forget thinking about it, because I really want to figure it out, if it can be figured out. There's too much at stake, at least it feels that way when I meet YET ANOTHER amazing young poet who becomes afraid of workshops and other poets and stops writing.

I've met so many amazing poets who stop, for so many reasons they stop. The most common reason though is that they get worn out from the struggle of dealing with many hungry egos. And their own hungry ego. It goes back to the discussion about why we're writing, and what has writing become in this world for us?

CAConrad
--
PhillySound: new poetry http://PhillySound.blogspot.com

THE BOOK OF FRANK by CAConrad http://CAConrad.blogspot.com

↑ Index

189. Eric Elshtain
New Beard of Bees Chapbook
Tue 13 Jan 2009

File under:

I bet I thought of that once but I never would have done it half as well...

http://www.beardofbees.com/agrani.html

Best,

Eric Elshtain
Editor
Beard of Bees Press
http://www.beardofbees.com

↑ Index

190. Troy Camplin
Re: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry
Tue 13 Jan 2009

Some excellent points here. Much to chew on. The first things that come to mind are the following:

First: holy encompasses more than does sacred. A person can be holy, but is a person sacred? Places can be either holy or sacred. This is a distinction (another person suggested "spiritual" -- which is another word that I should address in this same context) I should address. My project here was to make people think about the way the word is used, so it is contra Wittgenstein in the spirit of Wittgenstein, so to speak..

Second: I am arguing that, essentially, holiness and holism are the same, but that the holiness/holism I am arguing for is not exclusive or where one ideology dominates another. I agree with you that the pomo argument against grand narratives is itself holistic, despite their best efforts (as I pointed out once to a postmodernist, who didn't have an answer for my claim). However, they do attempt to dispose of the whole/holiness, and I think that is as dangerous as those who think holiness is cancer.

Third: good, bad, and evil can be understood as: knowledge of the good, and doing it; ignorance of the good; knowledge of the good, and working against it. I think, then, that to be good, you have to have knowledge, including knowledge of the whole -- and have the wisdom to do it. Wisdom and knowledge combined constitute beauty, and the beautiful is holy. These are a few things I need to make explicit and develop more.

Like I said, these are just a few quick thoughts. Your observations are spot-on, and will help me to develop these ideas much more. Thank you.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: Jason Quackenbush <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Monday, January 12, 2009 4:25:13 PM
Subject: Re: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry

Troy,
I often disagree with you, but I can see a good deal of merit in your project here to reclaim the word holy.

The analytic philosopher in me (eminently modernist, don't you know) wants a bit more rigor here though.

to that end i would consider the following pairings with the word holy and holiness which I think maybe create some problems for what you're saying and that I think need answering. Don't misunderstand me, I think that there can be answers, I'm just curious about how the lines are drawn poetically and philosophically here.

first: holy vs. sacred

my own first among equals in the philosophical pantheon ludwig wittgenstein has counseled that in most cases the meaning of a word is it's use in a loanguage. To that end, we often use the word holy in the same circumstance that we might also use the word sacred. There is an overlap there just as there exists overlap between the unholy and the profane. But the terms are not coextensive and therefore not exact synonyms. I wonder what might be holy but not sacred and in where the distinction lies.

second: holiness vs holism
there seems to be some blurring going on between the two words that I'm not sure i understand. are you saying that holism is by definition holy? how then do you account for competing views of holines? you touched on this a bit in what's below and yr comments on metanarrative, but I'd like to see a more explicit development of that thought, specifically given that the postmodern condition of skepticism toward metanarratives (holiness in your view) is itself holistic.

third: the holy vs the good

is all that is holy good? is all that is good holy? if so, why the different words and wahat do we make of the different qualities associated with each? holiness hasa connotation of unapproachability and beyond the merely human, whereas goodness is something that we can always seem ot find and appreciate. it is much like the aesthetic in this way.

On Jan 9, 2009, at 9:24 AM, Troy Camplin wrote:

> In English the words holy, whole, hale, and health are etymologically connected – Old English halig, hal, and hælth, respectively, which are all related to hal. Thus are they conceptually connected. To see the world as holy is to see the world as whole – it is to have the world "appear infinite and holy, whereas it now appears finite and corrupt" (William Blake, "The Marriage of Heaven and Hell"). The word holistic comes from the Greek holos, whole. Thus the holy is holistic – God is holy because He encompasses all. Perhaps one could even say that we can recognize the divine only when we come to see the world as a whole, when we see the universe as universal. When we can come
>
> To see a World in a grain of sand,
> And a Heaven in a wild flower,
> Hold Infinity in the palm of your hand,
> And Eternity in an hour. (William Blake, "Auguries of Innocence")
>
> Health and hale is the same. To have health is to have wholeness. To be hale is to be healthy – whole and complete. To make healthy is to make whole again. One is healed through medication. But ideally, one would rather maintain one's health than have to withstand the ravages of medication (pharmaceutical comes from the Greek pharmakon, which means both poison and medicine – as it does today), though medication is necessary to stave off disease. This is the purpose of Plato's Pharmakon, to stave off disease. For disease is the opposite of health.
>
> The Modern Era, which we are still in, though we may be at the end of it, began when Descartes split man in two – body and soul. It was a necessary division for the development of modern science (which Descartes all but admits to – the division is so the Church will tend to the soul, while the body is left alone, to be tended to by scientists such as Descartes), but it was certainly an unholy division (as all divisions are, by definition). Kant deepened this division. Hegel tried to mend it through philosophical synthesis. Marx tried to mend it by recommending the overthrow of half of the world – the world would then be wholly Proletarian. Nietzsche responded to Hegel by dividing the world up even more – for him, humans are not divided into body and soul, but are instead a series of masks. With postmodernism, the division is complete: men and women, multiculturalism, radical Cartesian individualism divide us up more and more. Any universality is denied. A necessary development – and not without its truth (I am aware of the irony of using the word truth, which comes from the Old English treowth, related to the word troth, from which we get the word betrothed, to speak of an idea that is more interested in divorce than betrothal). But it is precisely as unholy as one can get.

The deep divisions fostered by postmodernism came about because of a view that grand narratives, attempts to universalize, and seeing the world as holistic created the problems of the 20th Century. The Marxist grand narrative gave us the gulag of the Soviet Union, the massacres of the Khmer Rouge in Cambodia, and any number of other slaughters done by governments who had embraced Marxist philosophy. We looked back on history after the Holocaust, saw the grand narrative of Christianity had in the past itself promoted the killing of Jews – particularly in the Inquisition – and concluded that it too was dangerous. One could also mention The Terror of the French Revolution. What did Marxism, Medieval Christianity, and the French Revolution have in common? One thing was that they were all grand narratives. Thus, the logic goes, it must be grand narratives which are bad. And what do grand narratives do? They see the world as a whole, which must be encompassed by their ideology. To make the world a whole, it must be placed under their one ideology. Thus, holistic world views were seen as bad – thus were they, and holiness, rejected. The path to Heaven – whether that heaven was celestial or earthly – seemed to lead us straight into Hell. Perhaps in part the rejection of holding a holistic view came about because it is related to the holy, and the holy has been rejected. To the extent that wisdom is the ability to see the unity of the world – meaning wisdom is the ability to see the world as holy – wisdom was also rejected as impossible, perhaps even undesirable.

The error in this way of thinking derives from the error made in seeing Communism, Christianity, or the ideals of the French Revolution as interested in seeing the world as holistic. None of them saw the world as holistic, as holy – they instead wanted to make the world whole, under their particular umbrellas. They too fostered divisions – there were enemies who had to be either converted or killed in order that the world could be made holy. "For the cherub with his flaming sword is hereby commanded to leave his guard at tree of life; and when he does, the whole creation will be consumed and appear infinite and holy" (Blake "The Marriage of Heaven and Hell"). Now Blake here uses the word "appear." None of them saw the world as holy. It had to be made so – through conflagration, if necessary. Postmodern thought, by dividing the world even more, does not help us to see the world as holy – quite the contrary. However, by insisting on equality among the various parts – among individuals, among cultures, among religions, among any number of groups of individuals – postmodern thought may ironically make it now possible to see the world as being, rather than needing to become, holy.

It may seem ironic to suggest that only by reaching the most severe of divisions – seeing the world as eminently unholy – that we can finally come to see that the world is in fact holy, but I am not being ironic. To see the world as holy is not to see everything in the world as equal in an egalitarian sense. There are hierarchies. To see the world as holy is to understand how everything fits into the world as a whole. It is to see the world as an immense organism, and to care for its health. An organism is made up of systems, organs, tissues, cells, organelles, and various biochemicals. For one group to want to envelop the entire world in one way of thinking, believing, viewing the world, would be the same as one cell wanting to envelop the entire organism in that one type of cell. We have a word for cells that want to do that: cancer. The postmodernists have mistaken viewing the actions of cancerous cells for seeing the whole organism. Cancer must be fought, not mistaken for the animal it is in. That is the only way one can have a healthy organism – and it is the only way to have a holy world.. Like a healthy organism, a holy world is complex. Like a healthy organism, a holy world has smoothly working parts in communication with each other through clear rules that proscribe what each part needs to do for the whole to work well. Like a healthy organism, this cannot come from any centralized authority – there is no one control cell in the body, and the brain must have the lungs just as much as the lungs must have the brain. A holy world is like a healthy organism.

In Negative Theology, one comes to know what God is by figuring out what God is not. Aristotle says that if you are not sure if something is good, try to figure out what is bad, and you can then deduce that what is good is its opposite.
The following are unhealthy:

1. Overeating, including eating a high percentage of foods with low nutritional value, while remaining inactive (not exercising)
2. Either stagnation or change without continuity – both create instability
3. Stress and anxiety – which comes about from not realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, and can lead to anger at those very things
4. Hatred – aside from raising the blood pressure, it can cause one to act in ways that would be unhealthy for the object of our hatred
5. Cancer – already discussed
6. Excess – including the excess of moderation
7. Shackles – prevents sufficient movement, equating to lack of exercise
8. Pollution – it can lead to any number of diseases
9. An overly-clean environment – it can prevent our immune systems from developing properly, making us more susceptible to diseases, especially autoimmune diseases
10. Suicide – inherently and obviously unhealthy
11. Isolation – loneliness can lead to depression, which depresses the immune system
12. Ignorance – either of the world or of oneself, as one cannot maintain one's health if one is ignorant of what can harm it or improve it

This leads one to posit the following are healthy:

1. Exercise, with a diet proper to the amount of exercise and of high nutritional value
2. Change with continuity
3. Realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, thus reducing stress and anxiety
4. Love
5. Keeping the body in hierarchical harmony
6. Moderation in everything, including moderation – remembering that moderation is an extreme in the same way that life is an extreme state of organic chemistry
7. Freedom – remembering that freedom does not equate to a lack of rules, but is rather what is achieved through playing by the best rules
8. Cleanliness (which, as the saying goes, is next to Godliness, meaning it is holy)
9. A non-sanitized world – a world without dirt is a world that makes unhealthy organisms
10. Love of one's own life
11. Friends
12. Knowledge – including self-knowledge

One can make a similar list of what makes for a healthy mind:
1. Taking in healthy information – good art, music, literature, philosophy, the sciences, etc. – with sufficient exercise of the mind through thought, discussion, and writing
2. Change with continuity
3.. Realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, thus reducing stress and anxiety, which can negatively affect the mind as well as the body
4. Love
5. Having a variety of inputs – obsession with one thing alone is a kind of mental cancer
6. Moderation in everything, including moderation – moderation of reading, of rigorous thought, sexual thoughts, work, play, physical activity, etc.
7. Freedom of thought – we must not think in shackles, but with flexible rules
8. Cleanliness of thought – this does not necessarily mean what it has traditionally meant in the West, though it can certainly contain some elements; thinking about sex is in and of itself not unclean
9. Realization that we do not and cannot live in a sanitized world, as that stops thought and creativity
10. Love of thinking
11. Friends – as Aristotle says in Rhetoric, "a wide circle of friends, a virtuous circle of friends," and, I would add, a mentally stimulating circle of friends
12. Knowledge – including self knowledge – with the goal of wisdom

A holy world is one that parallels the healthy body and the healthy mind, and will have the above qualities, including moderation in everything, including moderation (i.e., it will be a just world), freedom (this is freedom from, not freedom to), love, friendship, and beauty. A holy world is a beautiful world, both having variety in unity, unity in variety, complexity, and fluid hierarchy that is self-similar regardless of scale. All of the parts, living in love and friendship (which does not exclude healthy competition, such as we find in sports and in free trade), living in a complex dynamic with each other, living as individuals in various communities, many of which overlap and are nested within other communities, must be self-similar to have a holy world.

In Greek, to kalon means the beautiful, but it can also mean the honorable or the noble – and kala can mean either things that are beautiful or things that are morally good. In the Rhetoric, Aristotle says that "Now kalon describes whatever, through being chosen for itself, is praiseworthy or whatever, through being good [agathon], is pleasant because it is good [agathon]. If this, then, is the kalon, then virtue is necessarily kalon; for it is praiseworthy because of being good [agathon]" (79). Elaine Scarry points out that in English too, there is a connection between beauty and the good (the just), when she points out that to say that something is fair is to say that it is either beautiful or that it is just. In Greek and in English, the beautiful and the good are connected. If a holy world is a beautiful world, it is a good and just world as well. As Heraclitus said, "For god all things are fair and just, but men have taken some things as unjust, others as just" (LXVIII). The key here is that we see the world itself as just – not the actions of each and every individual. The world is itself justified and cannot itself be unjust. This is consistent with the teachings of any religion that sees the world as having been created by God or the gods – how could a fair and just god create a world that was itself unjust? And if theistic religions are rejected, how can the world itself possibly be unjust? To say it is unjust is to give it anthropomorphic qualities. It is people who have taken some things as being just, others as unjust – but the world itself is self-justified. Those who do not see the world as just are those who do not see the world as holy – often they are the same people who think the only way the world can be justified is if the world is made holy through the transformation of it into a perfect mirror of themselves. But we have seen that a world made up of only one world view is a cancerous world – and the world, as a cancerous organism, will die. An organism cannot consist of one type of cell – that is the unhealthiest of organisms. And a world having only one world view is the unhealthiest of worlds. In the same way that a healthy body consists of a variety of cells that are variations of the same theme coded by identical DNA, a healthy world consists of a variety of peoples that are variations of the same themes coded for by our being human and sharing the same cultural universals.

Beauty is also related to health – as we can see in the beauty we find in nature. Healthy plants produce the most beautiful flowers. Healthy peacocks produce the largest, most symmetrical, most colorful feathers. Healthy gobies and other territorial reef fish have the brightest colors. All of this natural beauty is the advertisement of health to the opposite sex. The healthiest human bodies (neither overweight nor super model thin) are the most beautiful. Thus is there also a relationship between health, beauty, and sex. If beauty can thus be equated to health, we can see that beauty is again equated to the holy. And we can see too that sex in-and-of-itself is and cannot be unholy, as it is connected (but not equivalent) to beauty.

A holy world is a whole world. It is a healthy world. It is a good and just world. It is a complex world. It is a world of individuals in community. It is a beautiful world. But is it a possible world? I have already given the answer: the world is itself already holy. We just have to learn to see it as holy. That is how we will heal the world. And, as we do, we will become less and less likely to want or try to eliminate those who disagree with us – until we are all in agreement on this one issue, as all the cells in an organism are in agreement on the one issue that they must work together for the health of the whole, even as each performs its own function. Thus, the world will become more and more holy in our eyes. In works of tragedy, nomos (convention, human law, naming; from which we get the words nomad and nomenclature, and which is the changing and changeable aspect of the world) comes into conflict with physis (or nature; from which we get the word physics). That is the position we are now in. When we get nomos to map onto physis (Heraclitus calls this conjunction logos – which can be translated as saying, speech, discourse, word, account, explanation, reason, principle, collection, enumeration, ratio, proportion), we will see the world as it truly is: holy.

On the Holy

Where lies the holy in the modern world?
It lies in Blake's world in a grain of sand –
It lies, and lies like the truth, in patterns
Like self-organized rings of rocks barren
Arctic fields create. It lies in the branch
Of every tree and species, leafing out
From the known into the unknown. It lies
In every song, painting and rhythmic verse.
We have looked at every leaf and petal,
At the bark and at the wood, every cell
And strand of DNA is now known –
And we have forgotten that all of this
Was once a tree that gave us shade and filled
The air with delicate sweetness and held
The grains of sand against its roots to hold
The ground in place, even as that ground moves
And changes in tiny ways we refuse
To see. In this we can see the holy.
This is where it lies, now and forever,
On the edge of order and wild chaos,
Where the infinite holds in the finite,
Where we, ourselves holy, have always lived.

Troy Camplin

Jason Quackenbush

[redacted]

↑ Index

191. Jennifer Karmin
WEEK TWO: When Does It or You Begin?
Tue 13 Jan 2009

WHEN DOES IT OR YOU BEGIN? (MEMORY AS INNOVATION)
Festival of Writing, Performance, & Video

Curated by Amina Cain & Jennifer Karmin
at Links Hall
3435 N. Sheffield Avenue
Chicago, IL

WEEK TWO Collective Memory: Collaboration is Group Work featuring collaborative projects, translation, visual art & community organizing

FRIDAY, JANUARY 16 at 8pm
Patrick Durgin with Jen Hofer
John Keene with Christopher Stackhouse
Laurie Jo Reynolds with collaborators [Amy Partridge, Stephen F. Eisenman, Tamms Year Ten] video by Temporary Services talkback with Terri Kapsalis

SATURDAY, JANUARY 17 at 8pm
Tradeshow
Jen Hofer with Dolores Dorantes
John Keene with Christopher Stackhouse
Jennifer Karmin with collaborators
[Mars Caulton, Joel Craig, Lisa Fishman, Krista Franklin, Chris Glomski, Daniel Godston, Lily Robert-Foley]

SUNDAY, JANUARY 18 at 7pm
Tradeshow
Jen Hofer with Dolores Dorantes
Jennifer Karmin with collaborators
[Kathleen Duffy, Brandi Homan, A D Jameson, Lisa Janssen, Erika Mikkalo, Ira S. Murfin, Timothy Rey] video by Laurie Jo Reynolds

TICKETS $12
$10 students, seniors, & working artists/writers

FULL SCHEDULE ONLINE
http://www.linkshall.org/09-pp-jan.shtml

PERFORMANCE WORKSHOP
January 17 from 10am-4pm
with Karen Christopher and Bryan Saner, Goat Island Performance Group members
$70

INAUGURATION DAY PARTY
January 20 from 6-7:30pm
Anti Gravity Surprise book launch & panel discussion at the Chicago Cultural Center, 78 E. Washington
free

OPEN HOUSE COMMUNITY EVENT
January 22 from 7-9pm
hosted by poet Judith Goldman at her home in Andersonville $10, reservations & advance ticket purchase required

LINKS HALL BLOG
http://linkshallinsidethestudio.blogspot.com

CHICAGO TRIBUNE REVIEW
http://www.chicagotribune.com/features/lifestyle/chi-memory-dance-ovn-0112jan12,0,4178434.story

↑ Index

192. amy king
AWP Chicago Events?
Tue 13 Jan 2009

I've rec'd a few inquiries regarding off-site events taking place during AWP in Chicago.

If you have organized any, or are participating in them, can you please post them? I'll pass them along to the folks who asked but are not on this list. Others on list may want to know as well.

Thanks,

Amy

p.s. For that matter, if you'd also like to sell us on your panel or event, such convincing might be in order too...

_____

Recent work

http://www.writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/King.html

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

193. Mark Weiss
Re: [SPAM]Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Tue 13 Jan 2009

To extrapolate:

Since as it becomes easier to get laid for free the stuff a prostitute has to do to make a living gets weirder everybody should keep their legs crossed.

Did I get it right?

I'm ok with folks doing what they want to make a living, even if they only do it because they feel bad about themselves, and people buying their services, even if they only do it because they feel bad about themselves. Unless we legislate mental health (and assume that the motivations are always unhealthy) it's the best we're likely to do.

Coercion of any kind is another matter. Legalization makes it a lot easier to fight coercion (and incidentally to minimize the spread of disease).

I'd say the same for drug use, even though most people probably shouldn't put a spike in their arm.

Mark

At 12:39 AM 1/13/2009, you wrote:

> I've been following the discussion only sporadically, so please forgive any redundancy, but, the well-known "Effects of Prolonged Consumption of Pornography" and other studies suggest that in places where pornography is legal and increasingly popular there is a corresponding decrease in the incidence of violent sexual crimes. As if the medium could allow for the safe channeling of certain repressed and thereby sinister desires. However, many observers attribute said decreased incidence to a greater leniency in attitudes towards sexual behavior and an inability, or unwillingness, to interpret sex crimes as such. In this regard, where pornography is widely consumed, we might note the evolution of more exotic and aggressive forms of it (think anus, gangbang, shit in the mouth).
>
> Though pornography and prostitution aren't the same thing, perhaps the same principle holds true. The more the thing is permitted, the more boring it gets, and so, the more deviant and illicit and > forbidden its form must take. Or in other terms, hunger (out of boredom) ensures the creation (and delivery) of new products. The more we're ok with prostitution, the more we're ok with whatever treatment the prostitute receives, and the more novel treatments we'll surely find. Let the free market rule. After all they're just a muscle.

>
> Jared Schickling

↑ Index

194. Evan Munday

Re: AWP Chicago Off-site Event

Tue 13 Jan 2009

In response to Amy King's request:

CHICAGO LAUNCH FOR SINA QUEYRAS'S EXPRESSWAY

February 11- 14, the Association of Writers & Writing Programs comes to Chicago. The AWP Conference will bring some of North America's (and the world's) finest writers to the city.

During the festivities, Links Hall is hosting several literary events, among them, the launch of Sina Queyras's new poetry collection, Expressway. Expressway, inspired by the modes of the Romantic poets, explores the subject of modern transportation.

Sina Queyras, winner of a Lambda Award (for Lemon Hound), former organizer of the belladonna* series, and noted poetry blogger (lemonhound.blogspot.com), launches Expressway on Thursday, February 12, with the help of some friends. Reading with Queyras will be Vanessa Place (Dies: A Sentence), Adam Sol (Jeremiah, Ohio) and Kevin Connolly (Revolver).

We hope you'll join us. Please see below for event details and more information about Expressway and all the authors.

Chicago Launch of Sina Queyras's Expressway
with readings by Sina Queyras, Vanessa Place, Adam Sol and Kevin Connolly
Thursday, February 12
8:30 - 9:30 p.m.
Links Hall, 3435 N. Sheffield Avenue
Chicago, IL
$5 admission

http://www.linkshall.org/a-locate.shtml

About Expressway:

Echoing the pastoral and elegiac modes of the Romantic poets, whose reverence for nature never prevented them from addressing it with all ideas and sensibilities their times allowed, Sina Queyras's stunning new collection explores the infrastructures and means of modern mobility. Addressing the human project not so much as something imposed on nature but as an increasingly disturbing activity within it, Expressway exposes the paradox of modern movement and connection: we build more and more roads and highways (concrete and fibre optic), but rather than feeling more connected – to the natural, to each other – the more disenfranchised and anxious we seem to become. 'Cleanse the doors of perception,' Blake urged, and with that in mind, Queyras has written a bravely lyrical critique of our ethical and ecological imprint, a legacy easily blamed on corporations and commerce, but one we've allowed, through our tacit acquiescence, to overwhelm us. Every brush stroke, every bolt, and nut, every form and curve in our networks of oil and rubber, every thought and its material outcome – each decision can make or unmake us.

SINA QUEYRAS is the author of Lemon Hound, which won the Pat Lowther Award and a Lambda Award, as well as the poetry collections Slip and Teethmarks. She edited the anthology Open Field: 30 Contemporary Canadian Poets. She has taught creative writing at Rutgers and Haverford. A former curator of New York City's belladonna* reading series, Queyras currently lives in Montreal.

VANESSA PLACE is the author of Dies: A Sentence (Les Figues Press), and a chapbook, Figure from The Gates of Paradise (Woodland Editions). Other work has appeared in Northwest Review, Contemporary Literary Criticism, and Five Fingers Review.

ADAM SOL is the author of two collections of poetry, Jonah's Promise, which won Mid-List Press's First Series Award for Poetry, and Crowd of Sounds, which won the Trillium Award for Poetry. He is also the author of numerous essays and reviews, and teaches English at the Laurentian University at Georgian College Program.

KEVIN CONNOLLY is the author of Revolver (Anansi, 2008). Connolly's first collection of poems, Asphalt Cigar (Coach House, 1995), was nominated for the 1996 Gerald Lampert Award. His second collection, Happyland (ECW), was published to wide acclaim in 2002; and his most recent collection, drift (Anansi, 2005), won the Trillium Book Award for Poetry. He lives with his partner, Gil Adamson, in Toronto, and works as poetry editor for Coach House Books.

Yours,

Evan

Evan Munday
Publicist
Coach House Books
401 Huron St. (rear) on bpNichol Lane
Toronto ON, M5S 2G5
[redacted]

↑ Index

195. Robin Hamilton
Re: coMpetition does
Tue 13 Jan 2009

The Workshop system is damned from the start, regardless of what level you institute it.

It's Royal Academy Technique.

*Teach the dumbbunnies.

<sigh>

The UK (once) Group system was more closely modeled on the attelier method (it all goes back to the plastic arts, doesn't it?) and is more difficult to institutionlise, though it can be run easily inside even an academic context ...

The revolution will come when the last Workshop Moderator is hung from a sonnet by the guts of the final ... whatever.

Guy Debord

(Mind you, there'll be blood on the walls regardless of the strategy you adopt.)

----- Original Message -----
From: "CA Conrad" <[redacted]>
To: <[redacted]>
Sent: Tuesday, January 13, 2009 5:28 PM
Subject: coMpetition does

> Recently I've met a couple of young poets (yet again) who dropped out of poetry writing workshops because they were, in the words of one of these poets, "eaten alive."
>
> The conversation isn't new. And it's not a conversation about workshops in particular, but competition in a bigger sense.

↑ Index

196. AWAREing Press
Re: Eyeless in Gaza
Tue 13 Jan 2009

True, true. My point is that classic literature and verse should be held as sacrosanct. Journalism and these types of trivial newsposts are throw-away-- it seems that everywhere there is this new casual take on what's previously been considered sacred, and insistence upon dumb word play and misusing or not attributing phrases just to make a headline. This is what's aggravating to me. Anyway, thanks for the email. (And actually, it's probably not your subject line to begin with...)

A favorite Huxley quote: Journalism is a good field to get into, and then get out of.

James Beach, editor
AWAREing Press
---------- Original message from Stephen Vincent <[redacted]>: ----------

Huxley actually took the phrase from Milton's SAMSON AGONISTES. Google the phrase and it will take you to the line/verse.

Stephen Vincent

--- On Mon, 1/12/09, AWAREing Press <[redacted]> wrote:

From: AWAREing Press <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Eyeless in Gaza
To: [redacted]
Date: Monday, January 12, 2009, 3:05 PM

Stephen, this is in regards to your Subject Line title-- "Eyeless in Gaza". Yes, it's a clever quip. Yet where do you credit Aldous Huxley, or make mention of his amazing book of the same title? Huxley surely was not political in the traditional sense, and would probably be displeased with any bit of his creative genius being used to label a rant/opinion on current events, such as yours. Turning over in his grave...?

Back to the (mis)appropriation issue, it seems. Everywhere lazy editors and writers are reusing/misusing scholarly or popular phrases and titles with no regard for where these strings of words originated. It's pandemic in the new century. Is this madness, a part of the trade, a happenstance? What are we, as poets and poet-advocates, to do? Any thoughts on this topic are appreciated.

James Beach, editor
AWAREing Press

---------- Original message from Stephen Vincent <[redacted]>: ----------

It is no longer 'Eyeless in Gaza" - Israel's attempts to keep the media out of Gaza notwithstanding, on the outside we have more than an absolutely awful 'Eyeful' now. Even from the standpoint of traditional Ghetto (Occupation) management standards, the carnage of Palestinians, plus buildings, infrastructure and homes is an absolute outrage and failure. In terms of American racial history, Gaza in many ways so much echos Kansas City, Watts, Detroit and any number of other ghetto uprisings that have been mercilessly > caused and the repressions of which have been mercilessly executed.
> As Hitler & Company envisioned Jews as a permanent threat to some concept of German purity, progress, etc., what does the Israeli leadership, such as it is,
> seek to eliminate in Gaza!
> Going back to the '60's in California I can remember racist Governor Ronald Regan & company hearing and magnifying the 'threat' of separatist and armed Black militants. Instead of figuring out ways to negotiate and deal with the > real issues inside ghetto communities, they responded in the same heavy handed > paranoid manner that Israel's right wing is responding to Hamas - that is by > demonizing and (now obviously) seeking their liquidation on all levels - > institutional, cultural, etc. etc. As if this kind of punishment has ever been > successful - short run, maybe yes, but long term most always a form of national > self-poisoning. (i.e., witness the wonderful, self-destructing condition of the > USA today!)
>
> & all with the final 'last days' support of support of George Bush and Dick > Cheney - and all 'in our name'. Again.
>
> Watch Israel withdraw from Gaza on the day before the Inauguration. Astonishing > (or not) what garbage these people are dumping into Obama's White House the > week before he moves in! Oy!
>
> Stephen Vincent
> http://stephenvincent.net/blog/
>
>
>

↑ Index

197. Robin Hamilton
Re: coMpetition does
Tue 13 Jan 2009

By their fruits shall you know them ...

The Workshop Strategy resulted in MFAs and competitive chapbook publication (for a price) ...

The Group Strategy gave us Cambridge (UK) in the fifties, with Plath, Hughes, Redgrove, Wevill, then Belfast in the sixties, Glasgow in the late sixties with _Lanark_ and other things.

Bite it and see ...

The Wee M'Greegor

> Recently I've met a couple of young poets (yet again) who dropped out of poetry writing workshops because they were, in the words of one of these poets, "eaten alive."

↑ Index

198. Hilary Clark
Re: coMpetition does
Tue 13 Jan 2009

Thanks for this posting. Spot on.

H. Clark

CA Conrad wrote:

> Recently I've met a couple of young poets (yet again) who dropped out of poetry writing workshops because they were, in the words of one of these poets, "eaten alive."
>
> The conversation isn't new. And it's not a conversation about workshops in particular, but competition in a bigger sense.
>
> When is competition good, meaning productive, meaning THE THING which spurs poets into action in the best sense, in the sense of WANTING to write as well as they can.
>
> And when is competition ugly, filled with envy and jealousy, reaching a surprising number of times in my observations to the most corrupt, wicked, disturbing places people can get to.
>
> The conversation is tricky because I'm always trying to ask, investigate with others, WHERE IS THE line between competition when it's healthy, and rotten?

There's no doubt in my mind that these two young poets (the latest two that is, as I've been having this conversation for years now and I don't even remember how many times I've had it frankly) love, really LOVE poetry. We share that, we find when talking that we share that DRIVE, depositing ourselves in front of bookstore poetry sections, and libraries, and asking everyone we know who their favorite poets are, and titles, and never getting enough of this love. Never getting enough of it. And not just feeling sad when a bookstore like GOTHAM BOOKMART closes down but ANGRY!

We're so much alike, and we tell one another what we're most excited about NOW, and everyone's scratching notes for the library and bookstore. How we're NOT alike is that these two young poets are VERY vulnerable to attack. When they were said to be "eaten alive" I'm not surprised. And I'm sad, and wish they were MORE LIKE ME and laugh at the bastards and say, "OH YOU'RE JUST A HATER, YOU JEALOUS PIG!" Or, "Yeah well, THANKS, being attacked GETS ME UP IN THE MORNING TO MAKE YOU ANGRY!" It feeds me when someone attacks me, I LOVE it.

But of course a lot of people don't respond well when they're attacked, and this makes me sad. I've known poets WHOSE POEMS MADE ME HAPPY who stopped writing poems because of such attacks. In some cases the attacks were from their professors, and the other students, egged-on by the professors. A FEEDING FRENZY in such a way that makes me want to puke for poetry. It disgusts me this kind of behavior.

I'm not a professor, but I have conducted poetry workshops, and it's NOT HARD AT ALL in my opinion to keep the focus about everyone (including myself because I want to learn from THEM TOO!) investigating poetry together! My focus is about PROCESS, about the many weird ways to MAKE poetry happen, NOT ABOUT who is writing poems I think are good, or another person in the workshop thinks are good, or not.

This is NOT goody-two-shoe bullshit, I'm JUST NOT INTERESTED in telling someone whether I like their poems or not when I'm conducting workshops. And it's none of my business frankly. But to LOVE poetry, and read it, and create it, and have it in our lives, now THAT is something I get very excited about!

But what is that line? When is it crossed from productive and beautiful and everyone's excited and MAKING poetry, to that place of shit?

I'd rather see poems ABOUT that dark spot on the poetry map, than see it overwhelm another poet. And I mean overwhelm the poet who NEEDS to be vicious, and of course I mean the poet who gets beaten down.

This conversation cannot happen unless we talk about the bigger things around it, like, WHY IS EVERYONE NOT UNDERSTANDING EVERYONE IS CREATIVE WE ARE ALL CREATIVE THIS IS NOT UP FOR DEBATE. Or is it? I've had people tell me this is wrong, that everyone's NOT creative. But I disagree.

And the conversation needs to be about how the way poets act about scarcity and fear that there's not enough NOT ENOUGH magazines NOT ENOUGH awards or enough room at the reading series, not enough, is really, such an old story about us being animals.

And the conversation needs to be about how to protect ourselves if we can't withstand the attacks.

And the conversation needs to be about how people don't need to attack others because THERE IS ENOUGH.

And the conversation needs to be about how art and all our creative abilities have become part of a big system in the capital of art and poetry, and books, and writing programs and teaching and, and, and CONSUMPTION, and frankly how, more than ever there's more reasons than ever for us to feel like we're NOT working hard enough, NOT being good enough, NOT good enough, so many reasons to feel like shit.

It's a big conversation. But I feel I'm always having it. And it's one of the most important ones to have some days, especially when I meet young poets who have just been destroyed in workshops, made to feel worthless. The one poet started crying, and said, literally between sobs, "ALL I WANT TO DO IS WRITE POETRY!" It's really awful, I just want to hit whoever did this to this person, but of course that's not helpful.

The line crossed is hard to see because it's different for everyone, I think. Right? Sometimes I'm not sure I'm right about that, but it feels right, doesn't just feel like an answer I've come up with to forget thinking about it, because I really want to figure it out, if it can be figured out. There's too much at stake, at least it feels that way when I meet YET ANOTHER amazing young poet who becomes afraid of workshops and other poets and stops writing.

I've met so many amazing poets who stop, for so many reasons they stop. The most common reason though is that they get worn out from the struggle of dealing with many hungry egos. And their own hungry ego. It goes back to the discussion about why we're writing, and what has writing become in this world for us?

CAConrad

↑ Index

199. Larry O. Dean

AWP Offsite Event: Reading Bewteen the Lines

Tue 13 Jan 2009

Join emerging as well as established writers from across the US for this intimate reading scheduled to coincide during the annual AWP Conference.

Readers so far confirmed include:

Shaindel Beers
Jessica Berger
Emma Bolden
Bruce Covey
Jacque E. Day
Larry O. Dean
Lori Desrosiers
Chris Hildebrand
Amy King
Matt Markgraf
Pamela Johnson Parker
Brianna Pike
Davis Schneiderman
Karissa Knox Sorrell
Roger Stanley
Richard Thomas
Chet Weise
Scott Woodham
Szeznana Zabic

More TBA. Stay tuned, and please spread the word about this event!

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 12
8:00 PM
free!

BEAT KITCHEN (upstairs)
2100 W. BELMONT AVE.
[redacted]
http://beatkitchen.com/

Facebook event listing: http://www.facebook.com/event.php?eid=41039590678

↑ Index

200. Halvard Johnson

Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?

Tue 13 Jan 2009

Inger Christensen: Butterfly Valley: A Requiem.

Hal

"The true danger is when liberty is nibbled away, for expedients, and by parts."
--Edmund Burke

Halvard Johnson
==========
[redacted]
http://home.earthlink.net/~halvard/index.html
http://entropyandme.blogspot.com
http://imageswithoutwords.blogspot.com
http://www.hamiltonstone.org
http://home.earthlink.net/~halvard/vidalocabooks.html

On Jan 13, 2009, at 5:01 AM, Gerald Schwartz wrote:

> Ronald Johnson's The Shrubberies
>
> Gerald S.
>
> Recently read Richard Louv's "Last Child In The Woods:Saving Our Children from Nature-Deficit Disorder" (2005,2008) and he references Wordsworth, and of course, Gary Snyder. And just this morning I found this:
>
> http://www.guardian.co.uk/books/2008/dec/27/nick-laird-poetry-nature
>
> Can anyone suggest poets, critiques, etc. re: non-traditional nature poetry?
>
> Mary Jo Malo
>
> --
> http://thisshiningwound.blogspot.com/
> http://apophisdeconstructingabsurdity.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

201. steve russell

Re: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry

Tue 13 Jan 2009

Brilliant essay, Jan 9:Troy Camplin.

I take on faith that God is not apathetic. Perhaps this is why I'm so struck by Simone Weil, the greatest Christian gnostic of the 20th century. She died very young. & yes, her silence concerning the Holocaust is troubling. Had she lived longer, I suspect that she would not have remained silent.

Anyone who considers themselves Christian should be grateful that the writings of this gifted, Jewish (though not Jewish in the religious sense as she couldn't stomach the unflinching violence in the Old Testament) woman survived.

Simone did not survive an ugly, dark time.

--- On Tue, 1/13/09, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry
To: [redacted]
Date: Tuesday, January 13, 2009, 2:28 PM

Some excellent points here. Much to chew on. The first things that come to mind are the following:

First: holy encompasses more than does sacred. A person can be holy, but is a person sacred? Places can be either holy or sacred. This is a distinction (another person suggested "spiritual" -- which is another word that I should address in this same context) I should address. My project here was to make people think about the way the word is used, so it is contra Wittgenstein in the spirit of Wittgenstein, so to speak..

Second: I am arguing that, essentially, holiness and holism are the same, but that the holiness/holism I am arguing for is not exclusive or where one ideology dominates another. I agree with you that the pomo argument against grand narratives is itself holistic, despite their best efforts (as I pointed out once to a postmodernist, who didn't have an answer for my claim). However, they do attempt to dispose of the whole/holiness, and I think that is as dangerous as those who think holiness is cancer.

Third: good, bad, and evil can be understood as: knowledge of the good, and doing it; ignorance of the good; knowledge of the good, and working against it. I think, then, that to be good, you have to have knowledge, including knowledge of the whole -- and have the wisdom to do it. Wisdom and knowledge combined constitute beauty, and the beautiful is holy. These are a few things I need to make explicit and develop more.

Like I said, these are just a few quick thoughts. Your observations are spot-on, and will help me to develop these ideas much more. Thank you.

Troy Camplin

From: Jason Quackenbush <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Monday, January 12, 2009 4:25:13 PM
Subject: Re: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry

Troy,
I often disagree with you, but I can see a good deal of merit in your project here to reclaim the word holy.

The analytic philosopher in me (eminently modernist, don't you know) wants a bit more rigor here though.

to that end i would consider the following pairings with the word holy and holiness which I think maybe create some problems for what you're saying and that I think need answering. Don't misunderstand me, I think that there can be answers, I'm just curious about how the lines are drawn poetically and philosophically here.

first: holy vs. sacred

my own first among equals in the philosophical pantheon ludwig wittgenstein has counseled that in most cases the meaning of a word is it's use in a loanguage. To that end, we often use the word holy in the same circumstance that we might also use the word sacred. There is an overlap there just as there exists overlap between the unholy and the profane. But the terms are not coextensive and therefore not exact synonyms. I wonder what might be holy but not sacred and in where the distinction lies.

second: holiness vs holism there seems to be some blurring going on between the two words that I'm not sure i understand. are you saying that holism is by definition holy? how then do you account for competing views of holines? you touched on this a bit in what's below and yr comments on metanarrative, but I'd like to see a more explicit development of that thought, specifically given that the postmodern condition of skepticism toward metanarratives (holiness in your view) is itself holistic.

third: the holy vs the good

is all that is holy good? is all that is good holy? if so, why the different words and wahat do we make of the different qualities associated with each? holiness hasa connotation of unapproachability and beyond the merely human, whereas goodness is something that we can always seem ot find and appreciate. it is much like the aesthetic in this way.

On Jan 9, 2009, at 9:24 AM, Troy Camplin wrote:

> In English the words holy, whole, hale, and health are etymologically connected – Old English halig, hal, and hælth, respectively, which are all related to hal. Thus are they conceptually connected. To see the world as holy is to see the world as whole – it is to have the world “appear infinite and holy, whereas it now appears finite and corrupt” (William Blake, “The Marriage of Heaven and Hell”). The word holistic comes from the Greek holos, whole. Thus the holy is holistic – God is holy because He encompasses all. Perhaps one could even say that we can recognize the divine only when we come to see the world as a whole, when we see the universe as universal. When we can come
>
> To see a World in a grain of sand,
> And a Heaven in a wild flower,
> Hold Infinity in the palm of your hand,

> And Eternity in an hour. (William Blake, “Auguries of Innocence”)
>
> Health and hale is the same. To have health is to have wholeness. To be hale is to be healthy – whole and complete. To make healthy is to make whole again. One is healed through medication. But ideally, one would rather maintain one’s health than have to withstand the ravages of medication (pharmaceutical comes from the Greek pharmakon, which means both poison and medicine – as it does today), though medication is necessary to stave off disease. This is the purpose of Plato’s Pharmakon, to stave off disease. For disease is the opposite of health.
>
> The Modern Era, which we are still in, though we may be at the end of it, began when Descartes split man in two – body and soul. It was a necessary division for the development of modern science (which Descartes all but admits to – the division is so the Church will tend to the soul, while the body is left alone, to be tended to by scientists such as Descartes), but it was certainly an unholy division (as all divisions are, by definition). Kant deepened this division. Hegel tried to mend it through philosophical synthesis. Marx tried to mend it by recommending the overthrow of half of the world – the world would then be wholly Proletarian. Nietzsche responded to Hegel by dividing the world up even more – for him, humans are not divided into body and soul, but are instead a series of masks. With postmodernism, the division is complete: men and women, multiculturalism, radical Cartesian individualism divide us up more and more. Any universality is > denied. A necessary development – and not without its truth (I am aware of the irony of using the word truth, which comes from the Old English treowth, related to the word troth, from which we get the word betrothed, to speak of an idea that is more interested in divorce than betrothal). But it is precisely as unholy as one can get.
>
> The deep divisions fostered by postmodernism came about because of a view that grand narratives, attempts to universalize, and seeing the world as holistic created the problems of the 20th Century. The Marxist grand narrative gave us the gulag of the Soviet Union, the massacres of the Khmer Rouge in Cambodia, and any number of other slaughters done by governments who had embraced Marxist philosophy. We looked back on history after the Holocaust, saw the grand narrative of Christianity had in the past itself promoted the killing of Jews – particularly in the Inquisition – and concluded that it too was dangerous. One could also mention The Terror of the French Revolution. What

did Marxism, Medieval Christianity, and the French Revolution have in common? One thing was that they were all grand narratives. Thus, the logic goes, it must be grand narratives which are bad. And what do grand narratives do? They see the world as a whole, which must be > encompassed by their ideology. To make the world a whole, it must be placed under their one ideology. Thus, holistic world views were seen as bad – thus were they, and holiness, rejected. The path to Heaven – whether that heaven was celestial or earthly – seemed to lead us straight into Hell.
Perhaps in part the rejection of holding a holistic view came about because it is related to the holy, and the holy has been rejected. To the extent that wisdom is the ability to see the unity of the world – meaning wisdom is the ability to see the world as holy – wisdom was also rejected as impossible, perhaps even undesirable.
>
> The error in this way of thinking derives from the error made in seeing Communism, Christianity, or the ideals of the French Revolution as interested in seeing the world as holistic. None of them saw the world as holistic, as holy – they instead wanted to make the world whole, under their particular umbrellas. They too fostered divisions – there were enemies who had to be either converted or killed in order that the world could be made holy. “For the cherub with his flaming sword is hereby commanded to leave his guard at tree of life; and when he does, the whole creation will be consumed and appear infinite and holy” (Blake “The Marriage of Heaven and Hell”). Now Blake here uses the word “appear.” None of them saw the world as holy. It had to be made so – through conflagration, if necessary. Postmodern thought, by dividing the world even more, does not help us to see the world as holy – quite the contrary. However, by insisting on > equality among the various parts – among individuals, among cultures, among religions, among any number of groups of individuals – postmodern thought may ironically make it now possible to see the world as being, rather than needing to become, holy.
>
> It may seem ironic to suggest that only by reaching the most severe of divisions – seeing the world as eminently unholy – that we can finally come to see that the world is in fact holy, but I am not being ironic. To see the world as holy is not to see everything in the world as equal in an egalitarian sense. There are hierarchies. To see the world as holy is to understand how everything fits into the world as a whole. It is to see the world as an immense organism, and to care for its health. An organism is made up of systems, organs, tissues, cells, organelles, and various biochemicals. For one group to want to envelop the entire world in one way of thinking, believing, viewing the world, would be the same as one cell wanting to envelop the entire organism in that one type of cell. We have a word for cells that want to do that: cancer. The postmodernists have mistaken viewing the actions of cancerous cells for seeing the whole organism. Cancer must > be fought, not mistaken for the animal it is in. That is the only way one can have a healthy organism – and it is the only way to have a holy world..

Like a healthy organism, a holy world is complex. Like a healthy organism, a holy world has smoothly working parts in communication with each other through clear rules that proscribe what each part needs to do for the whole to work well. Like a healthy organism, this cannot come from any centralized authority – there is no one control cell in the body, and the brain must have the lungs just as much as the lungs must have the brain. A holy world is like a healthy organism.
>
> In Negative Theology, one comes to know what God is by figuring out what God is not. Aristotle says that if you are not sure if something is good, try to figure out what is bad, and you can then deduce that what is good is its opposite.
> The following are unhealthy:
>
> 1. Overeating, including eating a high percentage of foods with low nutritional value, while remaining inactive (not exercising)
> 2. Either stagnation or change without continuity – both create instability
> 3. Stress and anxiety – which comes about from not realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, and can lead to anger at those very things
> 4. Hatred – aside from raising the blood pressure, it can cause one to act in ways that would be unhealthy for the object of our hatred
> 5. Cancer – already discussed
> 6. Excess – including the excess of moderation
> 7. Shackles – prevents sufficient movement, equating to lack of exercise
> 8. Pollution – it can lead to any number of diseases
> 9. An overly-clean environment – it can prevent our immune systems from developing properly, making us more susceptible to diseases, especially autoimmune diseases

> 10. Suicide – inherently and obviously unhealthy
> 11. Isolation – loneliness can lead to depression, which depresses the immune system
> 12. Ignorance – either of the world or of oneself, as one cannot maintain one's health if one is ignorant of what can harm it or improve it
>
> This leads one to posit the following are healthy:
>
> 1. Exercise, with a diet proper to the amount of exercise and of high nutritional value
> 2. Change with continuity
> 3. Realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, thus reducing stress and anxiety
> 4. Love
> 5. Keeping the body in hierarchical harmony
> 6. Moderation in everything, including moderation – remembering that moderation is an extreme in the same way that life is an extreme state of organic chemistry
> 7. Freedom – remembering that freedom does not equate to a lack of rules, but is rather what is achieved through playing by the best rules
> 8. Cleanliness (which, as the saying goes, is next to Godliness, meaning it is holy)
> 9. A non-sanitized world – a world without dirt is a world that makes unhealthy organisms
> 10. Love of one's own life
> 11. Friends
> 12. Knowledge – including self-knowledge
>
> One can make a similar list of what makes for a healthy mind:
> 1. Taking in healthy information – good art, music, literature, philosophy, the sciences, etc. – with sufficient exercise of the mind through thought, discussion, and writing
> 2. Change with continuity
> 3.. Realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, thus reducing stress and anxiety, which can negatively affect the mind as well as the body
> 4. Love
> 5. Having a variety of inputs – obsession with one thing alone is a kind of mental cancer
> 6. Moderation in everything, including moderation – moderation of reading, of rigorous thought, sexual thoughts, work, play, physical activity, etc.

> 7. Freedom of thought – we must not think in shackles, but with flexible rules
> 8. Cleanliness of thought – this does not necessarily mean what it has traditionally meant in the West, though it can certainly contain some elements; thinking about sex is in and of itself not unclean
> 9. Realization that we do not and cannot live in a sanitized world, as that stops thought and creativity
> 10. Love of thinking
> 11. Friends – as Aristotle says in Rhetoric, "a wide circle of friends, a virtuous circle of friends," and, I would add, a mentally stimulating circle of friends
> 12. Knowledge – including self knowledge – with the goal of wisdom
>
> A holy world is one that parallels the healthy body and the healthy mind, and will have the above qualities, including moderation in everything, including moderation (i.e., it will be a just world), freedom (this is freedom from, not freedom to), love, friendship, and beauty. A holy world is a beautiful world, both having variety in unity, unity in variety, complexity, and fluid hierarchy that is self-similar regardless of scale. All of the parts, living in love and friendship (which does not exclude healthy competition, such as we find in sports and in free trade), living in a complex dynamic with each other, living as individuals in various communities, many of which overlap and are nested within other communities, must be self-similar to have a holy world.
>
> In Greek, to kalon means the beautiful, but it can also mean the honorable or the noble – and kala can mean either things that are beautiful or things that are morally good. In the Rhetoric, Aristotle says that "Now kalon describes whatever, through being chosen for itself, is praiseworthy or whatever, through being good [agathon], is pleasant because it is good [agathon]. If this, then, is the kalon, then virtue is necessarily kalon; for it is praiseworthy because of being good [agathon]" (79). Elaine Scarry points out that in English too, there is a connection between beauty and the good (the just), when she points out that to say that something is fair is to say that it is either beautiful or that it is just. In Greek and in English, the beautiful and the good are connected. If a holy world is a beautiful world, it is a good and just world as well. As Heraclitus said, "For god all things are fair and just, but men have taken some things as > unjust, others as just" (LXVIII). The key here is that we see the world itself as just – not the actions of each and every individual. The world is itself justified and cannot itself be unjust. This is consistent with the teachings of any religion that sees the world as having been created by God or the gods – how could a fair and just god create a world that was itself unjust? And if theistic religions are rejected, how can the world itself possibly be unjust? To say it is unjust is to give it anthropomorphic qualities. It is people who have taken some things as being just, others as unjust – but the world itself is self-justified. Those who do not see the world as just are those who do not see the world as holy – often they are the same people who think the only way the world can be justified is if the world is made holy through the transformation of it into a perfect mirror of themselves. But we have seen that a world made up of only one > world view is a cancerous world – and the world, as a cancerous organism, will die. An organism cannot consist of one type of cell – that is the unhealthiest of organisms. And a world having only one world view is the unhealthiest of worlds. In the same way that a healthy body consists of a variety of cells that are variations of the same theme coded by identical DNA, a healthy world consists of a variety of peoples that are variations of the same themes coded for by our being human and sharing the same cultural universals.

>
> Beauty is also related to health – as we can see in the beauty we find in nature. Healthy plants produce the most beautiful flowers. Healthy peacocks produce the largest, most symmetrical, most colorful feathers. Healthy gobies and other territorial reef fish have the brightest colors. All of this natural beauty is the advertisement of health to the opposite sex. The healthiest human bodies (neither overweight nor super model thin) are the most beautiful. Thus is there also a relationship between health, beauty, and sex. If beauty can thus be equated to health, we can see that beauty is again equated to the holy. And we can see too that sex in-and-of-itself is and cannot be unholy, as it is connected (but not equivalent) to beauty.
>
> A holy world is a whole world. It is a healthy world. It is a good and just world. It is a complex world. It is a world of individuals in community. It is a beautiful world. But is it a possible world? I have already given the answer: the world is itself already holy. We just have to learn to see it as holy. That is how we will heal the world. And, as we do, we will become less and less likely to want or try to eliminate those who disagree with us – until we are all in agreement on this one issue, as all the cells in an organism are in agreement on the one issue that they must work together for the health of the whole, even as each performs its own function. Thus, the world will become more and more holy in our eyes. In works of tragedy, nomos (convention, human law, naming; from which we get the words nomad and nomenclature, and which is the changing and changeable aspect of the world) comes into conflict with physis (or nature; from which we get the > word physics). That is the position we are now in. When we get nomos to map onto physis (Heraclitus calls this conjunction logos – which can be translated as saying, speech, discourse, word, account, explanation, reason, principle, collection, enumeration, ratio, proportion), we will see the world as it truly is: holy.

>
> On the Holy
>
> Where lies the holy in the modern world?
> It lies in Blake's world in a grain of sand –
> It lies, and lies like the truth, in patterns
> Like self-organized rings of rocks barren
> Arctic fields create. It lies in the branch
> Of every tree and species, leafing out
> From the known into the unknown. It lies
> In every song, painting and rhythmic verse.
> We have looked at every leaf and petal,
> At the bark and at the wood, every cell
> And strand of DNA is now known –
> And we have forgotten that all of this
> Was once a tree that gave us shade and filled
> The air with delicate sweetness and held
> The grains of sand against its roots to hold
> The ground in place, even as that ground moves
> And changes in tiny ways we refuse
> To see. In this we can see the holy.
> This is where it lies, now and forever,
> On the edge of order and wild chaos,
> Where the infinite holds in the finite,
> Where we, ourselves holy, have always lived.
>
> Troy Camplin
>

Jason Quackenbush
[redacted]

↑ Index

202. Layne Russell
Re: coMpetition does
Tue 13 Jan 2009

I wonder how many of our acclaimed poets of the past went to poetry workshops.

Layne

----- Original Message -----
From: CA Conrad
To: [redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, January 13, 2009 9:28 AM
Subject: coMpetition does

Recently I've met a couple of young poets (yet again) who dropped out of poetry writing workshops because they were, in the words of one of these poets, "eaten alive."

The conversation isn't new. And it's not a conversation about workshops in particular, but competition in a bigger sense.

When is competition good, meaning productive, meaning THE THING which spurs poets into action in the best sense, in the sense of WANTING to write as well as they can.

And when is competition ugly, filled with envy and jealousy, reaching a surprising number of times in my observations to the most corrupt, wicked, disturbing places people can get to.

The conversation is tricky because I'm always trying to ask, investigate with others, WHERE IS THE line between competition when it's healthy, and rotten?

↑ Index

203. Elizabeth Switaj
Re: Eyeless in Gaza
Tue 13 Jan 2009

On Tue, Jan 13, 2009 at 2:28 PM, AWAREing Press <[redacted]> wrote:

> True, true. My point is that classic literature and verse should be held as sacrosanct.

"So right you are", "James". "I set my copies" "of classic literature" "upon a marble shelf" "on my homemade altar" "and regularly" "sacrifice cows to them". "The blood of the throat" "I use to enclose them" "in a protective circle" "lest anyone interfere" "with their holy mission" "of being" "classic".

"Twenty days after winter solstice" "each year", "I engage in a ritual dance" "in which I" "smash and destroy" "scissors and paste pots". "Of course", "it is only symbolic of" "my desire to eradicate" "borrowings and theft" "from my Gods", "as the books themselves" "are more idol than avatar" "anyway, but aren't" "all the best" "rituals that way"?

"Elizabeth" "Kate" "Switaj"
"www.elizabethkateswitjaj.net"

↑ Index

204. Matt Henriksen
Cannibal Books 2009 Subscriptions
Tue 13 Jan 2009

We are currently selling subscriptions for $60, which includes all our 2009 publications.

Cannibal: Issue Four Narwhal
Sent Forth to Die in a Happy City by Keith Newton
Pardon Me, Madam by Marvyn Petrucci
Someone Else's Body by Claire Donato Identity by Kevin Holden
Untitled Wave by Carolyn Guinzio
Transparency by Patrick Morrissey
Autumn it gestures. by Thomas Hummel
The Nightmare Filled You with Scary by Shane Jones
"Search Party" by Frank Stanford (broadside, 2008)
& any other books we release in 2009

Visit: http://flesheatingpoems.blogspot.com

↑ Index

205. steve russell
Re: coMpetition does
Tue 13 Jan 2009

Well said, Conrad. I'm afraid I've also been guilty of destructive criticism, but fortunately I've grown up a little in the last decade.

--- On Tue, 1/13/09, CA Conrad <[redacted]> wrote:
From: CA Conrad <[redacted]>
Subject: coMpetition does
To: [redacted]
Date: Tuesday, January 13, 2009, 12:28 PM

Recently I've met a couple of young poets (yet again) who dropped out of poetry writing workshops because they were, in the words of one of these poets, "eaten alive."

The conversation isn't new. And it's not a conversation about workshops in particular, but competition in a bigger sense.

When is competition good, meaning productive, meaning THE THING which spurs poets into action in the best sense, in the sense of WANTING to write as well as they can.

And when is competition ugly, filled with envy and jealousy, reaching a surprising number of times in my observations to the most corrupt, wicked, disturbing places people can get to.

The conversation is tricky because I'm always trying to ask, investigate with others, WHERE IS THE line between competition when it's healthy, and rotten?

There's no doubt in my mind that these two young poets (the latest two that is, as I've been having this conversation for years now and I don't even remember how many times I've had it frankly) love, really LOVE poetry. We share that, we find when talking that we share that DRIVE, depositing ourselves in front of bookstore poetry sections, and libraries, and asking everyone we know who their favorite poets are, and titles, and never getting enough of this love. Never getting enough of it. And not just feeling sad when a bookstore like GOTHAM BOOKMART closes down but ANGRY!

We're so much alike, and we tell one another what we're most excited about NOW, and everyone's scratching notes for the library and bookstore. How we're NOT alike is that these two young poets are VERY vulnerable to attack. When they were said to be "eaten alive" I'm not surprised. And I'm sad, and wish they were MORE LIKE ME and laugh at the bastards and say, "OH YOU'RE JUST A HATER, YOU JEALOUS PIG!" Or, "Yeah well, THANKS, being attacked GETS ME UP IN THE MORNING TO MAKE YOU ANGRY!" It feeds me when someone attacks me, I LOVE it.

But of course a lot of people don't respond well when they're attacked, and this makes me sad. I've known poets WHOSE POEMS MADE ME HAPPY who stopped writing poems because of such attacks. In some cases the attacks were from their professors, and the other students, egged-on by the professors. A FEEDING FRENZY in such a way that makes me want to puke for poetry. It disgusts me this kind of behavior.

I'm not a professor, but I have conducted poetry workshops, and it's NOT HARD AT ALL in my opinion to keep the focus about everyone (including myself because I want to learn from THEM TOO!) investigating poetry together! My focus is about PROCESS, about the many weird ways to MAKE poetry happen,

NOT ABOUT who is writing poems I think are good, or another person in the workshop thinks are good, or not.

This is NOT goody-two-shoe bullshit, I'm JUST NOT INTERESTED in telling someone whether I like their poems or not when I'm conducting workshops. And it's none of my business frankly. But to LOVE poetry, and read it, and create it, and have it in our lives, now THAT is something I get very excited about!

But what is that line? When is it crossed from productive and beautiful and everyone's excited and MAKING poetry, to that place of shit?

I'd rather see poems ABOUT that dark spot on the poetry map, than see it overwhelm another poet. And I mean overwhelm the poet who NEEDS to be vicious, and of course I mean the poet who gets beaten down.

This conversation cannot happen unless we talk about the bigger things around it, like, WHY IS EVERYONE NOT UNDERSTANDING EVERYONE IS CREATIVE WE ARE ALL CREATIVE THIS IS NOT UP FOR DEBATE. Or is it? I've had people tell me this is wrong, that everyone's NOT creative. But I disagree.

And the conversation needs to be about how the way poets act about scarcity and fear that there's not enough NOT ENOUGH magazines NOT ENOUGH awards or enough room at the reading series, not enough, is really, such an old story about us being animals.

And the conversation needs to be about how to protect ourselves if we can't withstand the attacks.

And the conversation needs to be about how people don't need to attack others because THERE IS ENOUGH.

And the conversation needs to be about how art and all our creative abilities have become part of a big system in the capital of art and poetry, and books, and writing programs and teaching and, and, and CONSUMPTION, and frankly how, more than ever there's more reasons than ever for us to feel like we're NOT working hard enough, NOT being good enough, NOT good enough, so many reasons to feel like shit.

It's a big conversation. But I feel I'm always having it. And it's one of the most important ones to have some days, especially when I meet young poets who have just been destroyed in workshops, made to feel worthless. The one poet started crying, and said, literally between sobs, "ALL I WANT TO DO IS WRITE POETRY!" It's really awful, I just want to hit whoever did this to this person, but of course that's not helpful.

The line crossed is hard to see because it's different for everyone, I think. Right? Sometimes I'm not sure I'm right about that, but it feels right, doesn't just feel like an answer I've come up with to forget thinking about it, because I really want to figure it out, if it can be figured out. There's too much at stake, at least it feels that way when I meet YET ANOTHER amazing young poet who becomes afraid of workshops and other poets and stops writing.

I've met so many amazing poets who stop, for so many reasons they stop. The most common reason though is that they get worn out from the struggle of dealing with many hungry egos. And their own hungry ego. It goes back to the discussion about why we're writing, and what has writing become in this world for us?

CAConrad
--
PhillySound: new poetry http://PhillySound.blogspot.com

THE BOOK OF FRANK by CAConrad http://CAConrad.blogspot.com

↑ Index

206. Robert Dewhurst

Re: Hubert Huncke tribute, after the fact, Patti Smith, David Lawton, Tatum

Wed 14 Jan 2009

Thanks for this note, Sarah. I wish I could have been at this event, & just thought I would add John Wieners's own send-up to your list . . .

FOR HUNCKE by John Wieners

Knowing no other god than this:
the man who places on your mouth a kiss. Keep no mystery but his who whispers memory.

Though he lead you to the desert or over hills where famine flowers, like the locust he devours what he loves most.

Saving none for tomorrow, or dawn comes with empty arms, and he knows no way to feed himself, feeding off others, he has many, who find him, help him

you be one and dedicate your life and misery to the upkeep of this cheapskate you love so much no one else seems to bridge the gap

with their common habits and rude manners, his never were, a perfect gentleman who leaves no trace, but lingers through the room after he has gone, so I would follow anywhere, over desert or mountain, it's all the same if he's by my side.

The guide and wizard I would worship and obey, my guardian teacher, who knows how to stay alive on practically nothing in the city until help comes, usually from a stranger or youth.

Such I am or was who knew no better but all that I better forget now since I met you and fell into that pit of the past with no escape.

You knock on the door, and off I go with you into the night with not even a cent in my pockets, without caring where or when I get back

But if once you put your hand on my shoulders as David Rattray did last evening that would be enough, on the seventh night of the seventh moon, when Herd Boy

meets the Weaving Lady in heaven and wanders forever lost in arms until dawn when you come no more.

Sarah Sarai wrote:
> Last Friday there was a Hubert Huncke tribute for his 94th birthday (if he were around to > celebrate) at Bowery Electric in N.Y.C. Readers (of his work) included Thurston Moore > from Sonic Youth (tall, rumpled, cool), Abel Ferrara (smart, not the best reader, but who > cares -- a privilege to see him), Tatum O’Neill (funny and utterly beautiful but needs to > go to more open mics and learn to shout over instead of at the people at the bar). And > Patti Smith. She stuck her gum > on the music stand. She owned the stage. She owned the house. She brought the house > down,
>
>

> as did David Lawton (open mic poet; actor), co-organizer of the event. He was friends w/> Huncke and performed what I hope is the beginning of a one-man show. I know this is all
>
> after the fact and I almost didn't go. Lawton shamed me into going so I'm doing some > thanking, here. I don't want the evening to almost pass away without notice and I don't > want Lawton to almost not consider
>
> doing more.
>
>
>
>
>
> Sarah Sarai
> www.myspace.com/sarahsarai
>
>

↑ Index

207. steve d. dalachinsky

Re: coMpetition does

Wed 14 Jan 2009

---

here here CA i fully understand being one who has always avoided workshops and it probably shows

On Tue, 13 Jan 2009 12:28:19 -0500 CA Conrad <[redacted]>
writes:
> Recently I've met a couple of young poets (yet again) who dropped > out > of poetry writing workshops because they were, in the words of one
> of > these poets, "eaten alive."
>
> The conversation isn't new. And it's not a conversation about > workshops in particular, but competition in a bigger sense.
>
> When is competition good, meaning productive, meaning THE THING
> which

> spurs poets into action in the best sense, in the sense of WANTING
> to > write as well as they can.
>
> And when is competition ugly, filled with envy and jealousy, > reaching > a surprising number of times in my observations to the most
> corrupt,
> wicked, disturbing places people can get to.
>
> The conversation is tricky because I'm always trying to ask, > investigate with others, WHERE IS THE line between competition when > it's healthy, and rotten?
>
> There's no doubt in my mind that these two young poets (the latest > two
> that is, as I've been having this conversation for years now and I > don't even remember how many times I've had it frankly) love,
> really > LOVE poetry. We share that, we find when talking that we share
> that > DRIVE, depositing ourselves in front of bookstore poetry sections,
> and > libraries, and asking everyone we know who their favorite poets
> are,
> and titles, and never getting enough of this love. Never getting > enough of it. And not just feeling sad when a bookstore like
> GOTHAM
> BOOKMART closes down but ANGRY!
>
> We're so much alike, and we tell one another what we're most > excited > about NOW, and everyone's scratching notes for the library and > bookstore. How we're NOT alike is that these two young poets are > VERY
> vulnerable to attack. When they were said to be "eaten alive" I'm > not > surprised. And I'm sad, and wish they were MORE LIKE ME and laugh
> at
> the bastards and say, "OH YOU'RE JUST A HATER, YOU JEALOUS PIG!"
> Or,
> "Yeah well, THANKS, being attacked GETS ME UP IN THE MORNING TO

> MAKE
> YOU ANGRY!" It feeds me when someone attacks me, I LOVE it.
>
> But of course a lot of people don't respond well when they're > attacked, and this makes me sad. I've known poets WHOSE POEMS MADE
> ME
> HAPPY who stopped writing poems because of such attacks. In some > cases the attacks were from their professors, and the other > students, > egged-on by the professors. A FEEDING FRENZY in such a way that > makes > me want to puke for poetry. It disgusts me this kind of behavior.
>
> I'm not a professor, but I have conducted poetry workshops, and
> it's
> NOT HARD AT ALL in my opinion to keep the focus about everyone > (including myself because I want to learn from THEM TOO!) > investigating poetry together! My focus is about PROCESS, about
> the > many weird ways to MAKE poetry happen, NOT ABOUT who is writing
> poems
> I think are good, or another person in the workshop thinks are > good,
> or not.
>
> This is NOT goody-two-shoe bullshit, I'm JUST NOT INTERESTED in > telling someone whether I like their poems or not when I'm > conducting > workshops. And it's none of my business frankly. But to LOVE
> poetry,
> and read it, and create it, and have it in our lives, now THAT is > something I get very excited about!
>
> But what is that line? When is it crossed from productive and > beautiful and everyone's excited and MAKING poetry, to that place
> of > shit?
>
> I'd rather see poems ABOUT that dark spot on the poetry map, than > see > it overwhelm another poet. And I mean overwhelm the poet who NEEDS
> to > be vicious, and of course I mean the poet who gets beaten down.

>
> This conversation cannot happen unless we talk about the bigger > things
> around it, like, WHY IS EVERYONE NOT UNDERSTANDING EVERYONE IS
> CREATIVE WE ARE ALL CREATIVE THIS IS NOT UP FOR DEBATE. Or is it?
> I've had people tell me this is wrong, that everyone's NOT > creative.
> But I disagree.
>
> And the conversation needs to be about how the way poets act about > scarcity and fear that there's not enough NOT ENOUGH magazines NOT > ENOUGH awards or enough room at the reading series, not enough, is > really, such an old story about us being animals.
>
> And the conversation needs to be about how to protect ourselves if > we > can't withstand the attacks.
>
> And the conversation needs to be about how people don't need to > attack
> others because THERE IS ENOUGH.
>
> And the conversation needs to be about how art and all our creative > abilities have become part of a big system in the capital of art
> and
> poetry, and books, and writing programs and teaching and, and, and > CONSUMPTION, and frankly how, more than ever there's more reasons
> than > ever for us to feel like we're NOT working hard enough, NOT being > good > enough, NOT good enough, so many reasons to feel like shit.
>
> It's a big conversation. But I feel I'm always having it. And
> it's > one of the most important ones to have some days, especially when I > meet young poets who have just been destroyed in workshops, made to > feel worthless. The one poet started crying, and said, literally > between sobs, "ALL I WANT TO DO IS WRITE POETRY!" It's really
> awful,
> I just want to hit whoever did this to this person, but of course > that's not helpful.

>
> The line crossed is hard to see because it's different for everyone,
> I
> think. Right? Sometimes I'm not sure I'm right about that, but it > feels right, doesn't just feel like an answer I've come up with to > forget thinking about it, because I really want to figure it out,
> if > it can be figured out. There's too much at stake, at least it > feels > that way when I meet YET ANOTHER amazing young poet who becomes > afraid
> of workshops and other poets and stops writing.
>
> I've met so many amazing poets who stop, for so many reasons they > stop. The most common reason though is that they get worn out from > the struggle of dealing with many hungry egos. And their own
> hungry > ego. It goes back to the discussion about why we're writing, and > what > has writing become in this world for us?
>
> CAConrad
> --
> PhillySound: new poetry http://PhillySound.blogspot.com
>
> THE BOOK OF FRANK by CAConrad http://CAConrad.blogspot.com
>
>
>

↑ Index

208. steve d. dalachinsky

space available for meetings poetry events book parties small concerts holds 30-40 people non-profit needs money to survive

Wed 14 Jan 2009

Tribes Gallery run by the blind professor Steve Cannon needs your help
We are offering our space for events
contact Tribes at 285 E #rd Street NYC Space available for meetings and events at very reasonable rates. Call [redacted].

****

To find out more about Tribes, who we are and what we do, check out Tribes on Myspace/A Gathering of the Tribes; Youtube under HOWL, Native New Yorker, Amiri Baraka/Tribes; Facebook; Flickr: http:/www.flickr.com/photos/tribesgalleryphotos/; and www.dowpub.com. Tribes books and magazines are available on Tribes website www.tribes.org, Ebay.com, and Amazon.com. Tribes is a member of Chamber Music of America, Poets & Writers, Poets Society of America, and St. Marks Poetry Project.

↑ Index

209. David Kirschenbaum

NYC Tues./ Gilmore Boys Live, Lyrics By Me

Wed 14 Jan 2009

Please forward

Tues., Jan. 20, 8:00 p.m.
$5 suggested donation with a two-drink minimum

Sidewalk Café
94 Ave. A (at E. 6th St.)
East Village

In Concert

Gilmore Boys
http://www.myspace.com/casey http://www.myspace.com/thesewingcircle

“[Preston Spurlock and my] very specific and delightful side-project— we only write songs based on the Gilmore Girls, and the lyrics of said songs are only based on poems by David Kirschenbaum.” —Casey Holford

These songs come from my monthly poem writing projects, with this work spanning June 7, 2005 to May 1, 2007, 694 days and 687 poems, 28 of which referenced Gilmore Girls. I’ll be reading a few of those 28 poems, then Gilmore Boys will perform their songs of still others. Preston and Casey are great musicians, and they’ve done some pretty wonderful work turning these poems into songs, deciding what would be best as choruses and verses, making each piece fun and distinct.

This is all part of Casey’s monthlong of Tuesdays residency at the Sidewalk Café, ending on Jan. 27 with a performance by his band Outlines.

Plus

Toby Goodshank
http://www.myspace.com/tobygoodshank

A prolific performer, Moldy Peach Goodshank inhabits the stages of NYC solo and with bands Double Deuce (along with sister Angela Babyskin) and The Tri-Lambs (with Angela and her sister Crystal Babyskin). These projects have "Goodshank" written all over them, with his signature heart-felt pornographic tendencies lending the songs a sense of erotic wonder and innocence. If Anti-Folk has ever known a legend in the making, destined to have his records collected by the troubled teenagers of the future, it is Toby Goodshank.

Directions: F/V to 2nd Ave., L to 1st Ave.

For further information:
212-842-BOOG (2664), [redacted]

--
David A. Kirschenbaum, editor and publisher
Boog City
330 W. 28th St., Suite 6H
NY, NY 10001-4754
For event and publication information:
http://www.welcometoboogcity.com/
T: (212) 842-BOOG (2664)

↑ Index

210. Anny Ballardini
the Winter Anthology
Wed 14 Jan 2009

With my acknowledgments to all those who contributed, I invite you to read the collection of Winter poems on the Poets' Corner:

http://www.fieralingue.it/modules.php?name=Content&pa=list_pages_categories&cid=329

· Editorial: Anny Ballardini<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2744> · Martha King <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2745> · Hiram Larew <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2746> · James Cervantes<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2747> · Laura Kennelly<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2748> · Edward Mycue<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2749> · Alicia Ostriker<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2750> · Geof Huth <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2751> · Elizabeth Smither<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?

pa=printpage&pid=2752> · Daniel Zimmerman<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2753> · Barry Spacks<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?
pa=printpage&pid=2754> · Eve Rifkah
<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2757> · Gertrude Halstead<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2758> ·
Beverly Matherne<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?
pa=printpage&pid=2759> · Donna
Pecore<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2760> · Jeff Harrison<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2761> ·
Grace Cavalieri<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?
pa=printpage&pid=2762> · Diane Lockward<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2763> ·
Camille Martin<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?
pa=printpage&pid=2764> · Dennis Barone<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2765> ·
Alan Sondheim<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?
pa=printpage&pid=2766> · Alexander Dickow<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2767> ·
Douglas Clark<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2768>
· David Graham<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?
pa=printpage&pid=2769> · Bob Grumman
<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2770> · Eileen Tabios<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2771> ·
Sarah Menefee<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?
pa=printpage&pid=2772> · Pam Brown <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2773> * ·* Ray DiPalma <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2774> ·
Jerry McGuire<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2775> · Henry Reed <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?
pa=printpage&pid=2776> · Paolo
Ruffilli<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2777> ·
Allen Bramhall<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?
pa=printpage&pid=2778> · J.P. Dancing Bear<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2779> · Mark
Weiss <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2780> ·
Susan Rich <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2781> · Karl Young <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?
pa=printpage&pid=2782> · Ruth Fainlight<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2783> ·
Geoffrey Gatza<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?
pa=printpage&pid=2787> · Jim

Leftwich<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2788> · Alan Michael Parker<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2789> · Barbara Crooker<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2790> · Jerome Rothenberg<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2792> · Deborah Humphreys<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2793> · Paolo Dalponte<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2794> · Susan Edwards<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2795> · Jean Lamberty<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2796> · Ned Condini <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2797> · Jill Jones <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2798> · Lois Roma-Deeley<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2799> · Fan Ogilvie <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2800> · Peter Ciccariello<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2801> · Frank Parker<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2803> · Jon Corelis <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2804> · Tim Mayo <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2805> *· * Alan Halsey <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2812> * ·* Spencer Selby<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2814> · Márton Koppány<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2815> · Wendy Vardaman<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2816> · Dan Waber <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2817> * ·* Wendy Taylor Carlisle<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2818> · Evelyn Posamentier<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2819> · Sheila E. Murphy<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2820> · Ann Fisher-Wirth<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2822> · Bob Holman <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2823> · Berty Skuber<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2824> · Michael Peverett<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2825> · Obododimma Oha<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2828> · Richard Dillon<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2830> · Diane Kendig<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2831> · Jukka-Pekka

Kervinen<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2833> · Geraldine Monk<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2851> · William Allegrezza<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2853> · Séamas Cain <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2854>

I would also like to invite you to the Autumn Anthology that, after my update, received more submissions:

http://www.fieralingue.it/modules.php?name=Content&pa=list_pages_categories&cid=318

· Introduction by Anny Ballardini<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2567> · Dirk Vekemans<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2568> · Bobbi Lurie <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2569> · Anny Ballardini<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2570> · Obododimma Oha<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2571> · Jeff Harrison<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2572> · Cecil Touchon<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2573> · Halvard Johnson<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2574> · Jill McCabe Johnson<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2575> · Ann Neuser Lederer<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2576> · Barbara Crooker<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2577> · Christina Pacosz<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2578> · Penelope Schott<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2579> · Georgia Ann Banks-Martin<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2580> · Sandra Giedeman<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2581> · Joel Weishaus<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2582> · Pat Falk <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2583> · Tim Mayo <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2584> · Wendy Taylor Carlisle <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2585> · Wendy Vardaman<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2586> · Bill Morgan <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2587> · Eileen Tabios<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2588> · Sheila E. Murphy<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2589> · Alan Sondheim<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?

pa=printpage&pid=2590> · David Graham<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2591> · Tad Richards<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2592> · Bob Grumman <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2593> · Henry Gould <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2594> · Jukka-Pekka Kervinen<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2595> · Guido Catalano<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2596> · Ruth Fainlight<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2597> · Ann Fisher-Wirth<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2598> · Fan Ogilvie <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2599> · Larissa Shmailo<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2600> · Geof Huth <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2608> · Grace Cavalieri<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2609> · Mark Weiss <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2610> · Pam Brown <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2621> * ·* David Howard <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2622> · Edward Mycue<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2623> · Elizabeth Smither<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2625> · Elena Karina Byrne<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2626> · David-Baptiste Chirot<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2627> · Nico Vassilakis<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2631> · Allen Bramhall<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2632> · Dan Waber <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2633> * ·* Aaron Belz <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2635> * ·* Nicholas Piombino<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2636> · Joseph Duemer<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2645> · Daniel Zimmerman<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2646> · Geoffrey Gatza<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2647> · Jon Corelis <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2648> · Berty Skuber<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2649> · Peter Ciccariello<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2650> · Evelyn

Posamentier<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2657> · Sharon Dolin<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2658> · Mark Young <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2659> · Charles Martin<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2660> · Skip Fox <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2661> *· * Dianalee Velie<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2662> · William Allegrezza<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2663> · Karl Young <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2802> · Richard Dillon<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2813> · Dan Waber <http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2826> * ·* Geraldine Monk<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2852>

--
Anny Ballardini
http://annyballardini.blogspot.com/
http://www.fieralingue.it/modules.php?name=poetshome
http://www.moriapoetry.com/ebooks.html
I Tell You: One must still have chaos in one to give birth to a dancing star!

↑ Index

211. Alan Sondheim
blog article about The Accidental Artist
Wed 14 Jan 2009

(sent to me by Opensource Obscure, and thanks - Alan)

http://www.secondlifeupdate.com/virtual-world-experiences/top-5-works-of-art-in-second-life-pics-video-the-accidental-artist/ or http://bit.ly/Ne0N

↑ Index

212. mIEKAL aND Bailout
Wed 14 Jan 2009

(this piggybacks nicely on the brothel dissection...)

Grad Student Selling Virginity Flooded With Offers

http://cbs13.com/local/selling.virginity.tuition.2.815171.html

A Sacramento State grad trying to make money by auctioning off her virginity to help pay for her graduate studies is getting lots of offers...and not just for sex.

The 22-year-old who is using the pseudonym Natalie Dylan for safety reasons is going through a legal brothel in Nevada to sell her virginity. Dylan told CBS13 she's gotten an offer of $250,000. And now she's gotten an offer to do a photo spread for Penthouse magazine.

The auction is being handled by the Bunny Ranch in Carson City, Nevada with bids coming in through their website.

Dylan says she's already taken a polygraph test to prove her virginal status, and is also willing to undergo a medical exam.

"The main purpose of this is to finance a couple things in my life," Dylan told CBS13. "I think empowerment of women is picking yourself up and doing something on your own to better yourself."

So far, hundreds of offers have already come in including some from male virgins. Natalie says she won't give up her virginity to the highest bidder. She's also seeking other qualities from her first lover. "I'm looking for intelligence and an overall nice person," said Dylan.

Dylan says she ended up in a financial bind, because her stepfather allegedly used her college status to fraudulently apply for student loans, and then ran off with the money.

Dylan earned her bachelor's degree in women's studies from Sacramento State and plans to get her master's at the school beginning in January.

Many Sac State students say they're shocked to hear about their former classmate's plan, while others applaud her.

"She's just giving it to some random person. And I just think she should be giving it to someone special she loves," said one student on campus.

While another felt that selling her virginity for grad school "is a noble reason to get money."

As for Natalie, after claiming to hold on to her virginity for 22 years (although the Bunny Ranch website claims she is 21-years-old), she says she has a commodity not many people have to sell.

"When I was younger, I wanted 100% romance, possibly even wait for marriage. But as I grew up, reality kinda hit. And I think its a capitalistic society and I want to capitalize on this," explained Dylan.

↑ Index

213. Gary Sullivan
SEGUE WINTER-SPRING 2009
Wed 14 Jan 2009

SEGUE READING SERIES @ BOWERY POETRY CLUB
Winter / Spring 2009

Saturdays: 4:00 p.m. - 6:00 p.m. 308 BOWERY, just north of Houston $6 admission goes to support the readers

The Segue Reading Series is made possible by the support of The Segue Foundation. For more information, please visit seguefoundation.com, bowerypoetry.com, or call [redacted]. Curators: February-March by Nada Gordon & Gary Sullivan, April-May by Kristen Gallagher & Tim Peterson.

FEBRUARY

FEBRUARY 7 KENNETH GOLDSMITH and EDWIN TORRES
Kenneth Goldsmith is the author of ten books of poetry and founding editor of UbuWeb (ubu.com). He is the host of a weekly radio show on New York City's WFMU and teaches writing at The University of Pennsylvania. A book of critical essays, Uncreative Writing, is forthcoming from Columbia University Press. Edwin Torres is a NYC born lingualisualist currently on hiatus from the apple, living upstate. A NYFA recipient and 2006/7 Lower Manhattan Cultural Council Writer-in-Residence, he's been widely published and taught his Brainlingo workshop at numerous venues & universities. His books include, The PoPedology Of An Ambient Language (Atelos Books), The All-Union Day Of The Shock Worker (Roof Books), Onomalingua: noise songs and poems (Rattapallax e-book), and Please (Faux Press CD-Rom).

FEBRUARY 14 STEVE BENSON and STEPHANIE YOUNG
Steve Benson, formerly of the San Francisco Bay area, has lived in Downeast Maine since 1996. Transcripts of orally improvised performances appear in Blindspots (Whale Cloth, 1981), Reverse Order (Potes and Poets, 1989), Blue Book (The Figures/Roof, 1998) and Open Clothes (Atelos, 2005), along with written works. With nine other bay area language poets, he is preparing part 8 of The Grand Piano: An Experiment in Collective Autobiography (Mode A, 2006-present). Stephanie Young lives and works in Oakland. Her books of poetry are Picture Palace (in girum imus nocte et consumimur igni, 2008) and Telling the Future Off (Tougher Disguises, 2005). She edited Bay Poetics (Faux Press, 2006) and her most recent editorial project is Deep Oakland, deepoakland.org. She blogs so rarely at stephanieyoung.org/blog.

FEBRUARY 21 MELANIE NIELSON and SARA WINTZ
Melanie Nielson was born in Humboldt, Tennessee, grew up in Southern California, and lives in New York City. She edited Big Allis magazine for many years with Jessica Grim, and is the author of Civil Noir (Roof Books, 1991). Sara Wintz's writing has appeared in Ecopoetics, Cricket Online Review, Interrobang?!, and on Ceptuetics. She co-directs, with Cristiana Baik, :the press gang:, publisher of Intricate Systems, by Juliana Spahr and One Might, by Karen Volkman. She lives in Brooklyn and works at P.S.1 Contemporary Art Center.

FEBRUARY 28 JOHN GIORNO and BRIAN KIM STEFANS
John Giorno is the author of many books of poetry, which have been translated into several languages. Subduing Demons in America: The Selected Poems of John Giorno, 1962-2008, a career-spanning survey of his work, will be published by Counterpoint/Soft Skull in 2008. Brian Kim Stefans' most recent books are What is Said to the Poet Concerning Flowers (Factory School, 2006), Kluge: A Mediation, and other works (Roof, 2007) and Before Starting Over: Selected Writings and Interviews (Salt, 2006). He just moved to Los Angeles to take a position as professor of English and Digital Humanities at UCLA.

MARCH MARCH 7 JEROME SALA and RACHEL ZOLF
Jerome Sala has been described as an "honorable hysteric" by critic Peter Schjeldahl. His latest book is Look Slimmer Instantly from Soft Skull Press. Other books include cult classics such as Spaz Attack, I Am Not a Juvenile Delinquent and The Trip. Rachel Zolf's collections include Human Resources (Coach House, 2007), which won the 2008 Trillium Book Award for Poetry, Shoot and Weep (Nomados, 2008), and Masque (Mercury, 2004).

MARCH 14 CHARLES BERNSTEIN and ADEENA KARASICK
Charles Bernstein is the CFO of the Center for Avant-Garde Comedy and Stand-Up Poetry. His most recent book is Blind Witness: Three American Operas. Adeena Karasick is the 2008 winner of the MPS mobile award, poet media artist and author of six books of poetry and poetic theory. Forthcoming is Amuse Bouche Tasty Treats for the Mouth (Talonbooks, 2009). She teaches Film and Literature at CUNY.

MARCH 21 K. SILEM MOHAMMAD and LYTLE SHAW
K. Silem Mohammad is the author Breathalyzer (Edge Books, 2008), A Thousand Devils (Combo Books, 2004), and Deer Head Nation (Tougher Disguises, 2003). Abraham Lincoln, which he edits with Anne Boyer, is the single most significant poetry magazine in North America that always features a large cat and a rainbow on its front cover. Lytle Shaw's most recent books include The Chadwick Family Papers (a collaboration with Jimbo Blachly, Periscope, 2009) and Frank O'Hara: The Poetics of Coterie (University Of Iowa Press, 2006).

MARCH 28 JAMES SHERRY and CECILIA VICUÑA
James Sherry is the author of more than 10 books of poetry and prose. His most recent publication, Sorry: Environmental Poetics, is forthcoming from Factory School later this year. He is the editor/publisher of Roof Books and founder of The Segue Foundation. Cecilia Vicuña performs and exhibits her work widely in Europe, Latin America and the U.S. Templo e'Saliva / Spit Temple, a collection of her oral performances, edited by Rosa Alcalá, is forthcoming by Factory School Press.

APRIL

APRIL 4 RON SILLIMAN and LISA JARNOT
Ron Silliman has written and edited over 30 books to date. Silliman was the 2006 Poet Laureate of the Blogosphere, a 2003 Literary Fellow of the National Endowment for the Arts and was a 2002 Fellow of the Pennsylvania Arts Council as well as a Pew Fellow in the Arts in 1998. He lives in Chester County, Pennsylvania, with his wife and two sons. Lisa Jarnot is the author of four collections of poetry, including the recently published Night Scenes from Flood Editions. She lives in Queens and works as a landscape gardener.

APRIL 11 JENA OSMAN and TAN LIN
Jena Osman's books include An Essay in Asterisks (Roof) and The Character (Beacon). Her book The Network is forthcoming from Essay Press. She co-edits the ChainLinks book series with Juliana Spahr and teaches in the graduate Creative Writing program at Temple University. Tan Lin is a writer, artist, and critic. He has written Lotion Bullwhip Giraffe (Sun & Moon) and BlipSoak01 (Atelos). His visual and video work has been exhibited at the Yale Art Museum (New Haven), the Sophienholm (Copenhagen), and the Marianne Boesky Gallery (NYC).

APRIL 18 CHARLES ALEXANDER and AKILAH OLIVER
Charles Alexander is a Tucson-based poet, publisher, and book artist. He is the director and editor-in-chief of Chax Press. Alexander's recent books of poetry include Pushing Water: parts one through six (Standing Stones Press, 1998), near or random acts (Singing Horse Press, 2004), and Certain Slants (Junction Press, 2007). Akilah Oliver is the author of a new book A Toast in the House of Friends (Coffee House Press, 2008), and also the she said dialogues: flesh memory (Smokeproof/Erudite Fangs, 1999). She currently makes her home in Brooklyn, NY.

APRIL 25 POETRY AND ARCHITECTURE featuring VITO ACCONCI
An event featuring poets and architects presenting work that explores potential overlaps and collaborations between the two media. More information to come.

MAY

MAY 2 JULIAN BROLASKI and MAGDALENA ZURASWSKI
Julian T. Brolaski co-curated the the New Brutalism series in Oakland from 2003-2005 with Cynthia Sailers and the Holloway Poetry Series at UC Berkeley from 2004-2006. Brolaski is the author of several chapbooks including The Daily Usonian (Atticus/Finch 2004), Madame Bovary's Diary (Cy Press 2005), and Buck in a Corridor (flynpyntas 2008). Magdalena Zurawski was born in 1972 to Polish immigrants in New Jersey. Her first book, The Bruise, won the Ronald Sukenick Prize in2006, and was published by FC2 in 2008.

MAY 9 ERICA KAUFMAN and JOAN RETALLACK
erica kaufman is the author of several chapbooks including Civilization Day and several installations of Censory Impulse, her book-length poem, which was published by Factory School/Heretical Texts in January. She co-curates and co-edits Belladonna/Belladonna Books and lives in Brooklyn. Joan Retallack's most recent publication is her Gertrude Stein: Selections with an extensive introduction/discussion of Stein's work, brought out by University of California Press. She is the author of seven volumes of poetry including Errata 5uite, which won the Columbia Book Award chosen by Robert Creeley. A collection of Retallack's procedural poems is forthcoming from Roof Books.

MAY 16 NO READING

MAY 23 MEI-MEI BERSSENBRUGGE and JONATHAN SKINNER
Mei-mei Berssenbrugge was born in Beijing and grew up in Massachusetts. She is the author of numerous volumes of poetry, most recently I Love Artists: New and Selected Poems (University of California Press, 2006) and Concordance (Kelsey St. Press, 2006), a collaboration with Kiki Smith. Jonathan Skinner is a poet, translator and critic, as well as editor of the journal ecopoetics. Skinner completed his Ph.D. in English at SUNY Buffalo. In 2005, he published his first full-length poetry collection, Political Cactus Poems (Palm Press).

MAY 30 STACY SZYMASZEK and PATRICK DURGIN
Stacy Szymaszek is the author of Emptied of All Ships (Litmus Press, 2005). Recent chapbooks include Orizaba: A Voyage with Hart Crane (Faux Chaps, 2008) and from Hyperglossia (Hot Whiskey, 2008). Hyperglossia, the complete poem, is forthcoming from Litmus Press in early 2009. Patrick Durgin has collaborated with Jen Hofer since 1998 to produce The Route (Atelos, 2008). On his own, Durgin has published Imitation Poems (Atticus/Finch, 2007) and Color Music (Cuneiform Press, 2002).

THE SEGUE FOUNDATION
300 Bowery
New York, NY 10012

Windows Live™: Keep your life in sync.
http://windowslive.com/explore?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_allup_explore_012009

↑ Index

214. Ruth Lepson

Re: [SPAM]Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

Wed 14 Jan 2009

---

well, you're ok with it but are they ok with it? I mean, doesn't it hurt them? whether it's legal or not?

On 1/13/09 5:05 PM, "Mark Weiss" <[redacted]> wrote:

> To extrapolate:
>
> Since as it becomes easier to get laid for free the stuff a prostitute has to do to make a living gets weirder everybody should keep their legs crossed.
>
> Did I get it right?
>
> I'm ok with folks doing what they want to make a living, even if they only do it because they feel bad about themselves, and people buying their services, even if they only do it because they feel bad about themselves. Unless we legislate mental health (and assume that the motivations are always unhealthy) it's the best we're likely to do.
>
> Coercion of any kind is another matter. Legalization makes it a lot easier to fight coercion (and incidentally to minimize the spread of disease).
>
> I'd say the same for drug use, even though most people probably shouldn't put a spike in their arm.
>
> Mark
>
> At 12:39 AM 1/13/2009, you wrote:
>
> I've been following the discussion only sporadically, so please forgive any redundancy, but, the well-known "Effects of Prolonged Consumption of Pornography" and other studies suggest that in places where pornography is legal and increasingly popular there is a corresponding decrease in the incidence of violent sexual crimes. As if the medium could allow for the safe channeling of certain repressed and thereby sinister desires. However, many observers attribute said decreased incidence to a greater leniency in attitudes towards sexual behavior and an inability, or unwillingness, to interpret sex crimes as such. In this regard, where pornography is widely consumed, we might note the evolution of more exotic and aggressive forms of it (think anus, gangbang, shit in the mouth).

> Though pornography and prostitution aren't the same thing, perhaps the same principle holds true. The more the thing is permitted, the more boring it gets, and so, the more deviant and illicit and forbidden its form must take. Or in other terms, hunger (out of boredom) ensures the creation (and delivery) of new products. The more we're ok with prostitution, the more we're ok with whatever treatment the prostitute receives, and the more novel treatments we'll surely find. Let the free market rule. After all they're just a muscle.
>
> Jared Schickling

↑ Index

215. Maria Damon

Re: SEGUE WINTER-SPRING 2009

Wed 14 Jan 2009

---

wow this series looks so HOTTT!!!

Gary Sullivan wrote:
> SEGUE READING SERIES @ BOWERY POETRY CLUB
> Winter / Spring 2009
>
> Saturdays: 4:00 p.m. - 6:00 p.m. 308 BOWERY, just north of Houston $6 admission goes to support the readers
>
> The Segue Reading Series is made possible by the support of The Segue Foundation. For more information, please visit seguefoundation.com, bowerypoetry.com, or call [redacted]. Curators: February-March by Nada Gordon & Gary Sullivan, April-May by Kristen Gallagher & Tim Peterson.
>
> FEBRUARY
>
> FEBRUARY 7 KENNETH GOLDSMITH and EDWIN TORRES
> Kenneth Goldsmith is the author of ten books of poetry and founding editor of UbuWeb (ubu.com). He is the host of a weekly radio show on New York City's WFMU and teaches writing at The University of Pennsylvania. A book of critical essays, Uncreative Writing, is forthcoming from Columbia University Press. Edwin Torres is a NYC born lingualisualist currently on hiatus from the apple, living upstate. A NYFA recipient and 2006/7 Lower Manhattan Cultural Council Writer-in-Residence, he's been widely published and taught his Brainlingo workshop at numerous venues & universities. His books include, The PoPedology Of An Ambient Language (Atelos Books), The All-Union Day Of The Shock Worker (Roof Books), Onomalingua: noise songs and poems (Rattapallax e-book), and Please (Faux Press CD-Rom).

>
> FEBRUARY 14 STEVE BENSON and STEPHANIE YOUNG
> Steve Benson, formerly of the San Francisco Bay area, has lived in Downeast Maine since 1996. Transcripts of orally improvised performances appear in Blindspots (Whale Cloth, 1981), Reverse Order (Potes and Poets, 1989), Blue Book (The Figures/Roof, 1998) and Open Clothes (Atelos, 2005), along with written works. With nine other bay area language poets, he is preparing part 8 of The Grand Piano: An Experiment in Collective Autobiography (Mode A, 2006-present). Stephanie Young lives and works in Oakland. Her books of poetry are Picture Palace (in girum imus nocte et consumimur igni, 2008) and Telling the Future Off (Tougher Disguises, 2005). She edited Bay Poetics (Faux Press, 2006) and her most recent editorial project is Deep Oakland, deepoakland.org. She blogs so rarely at stephanieyoung.org/blog.
>
> FEBRUARY 21 MELANIE NIELSON and SARA WINTZ
> Melanie Nielson was born in Humboldt, Tennessee, grew up in Southern California, and lives in New York City. She edited Big Allis magazine for many years with Jessica Grim, and is the author of Civil Noir (Roof Books, 1991). Sara Wintz's writing has appeared in Ecopoetics, Cricket Online Review, Interrobang?!, and on Ceptuetics. She co-directs, with Cristiana Baik, :the press gang:, publisher of Intricate Systems, by Juliana Spahr and One Might, by Karen Volkman. She lives in Brooklyn and works at P.S.1 Contemporary Art Center.
>
> FEBRUARY 28 JOHN GIORNO and BRIAN KIM STEFANS
> John Giorno is the author of many books of poetry, which have been translated into several languages. Subduing Demons in America: The Selected Poems of John Giorno, 1962-2008, a career-spanning survey of his work, will be published by Counterpoint/Soft Skull in 2008. Brian Kim Stefans' most recent books are What is Said to the Poet Concerning Flowers (Factory School, 2006), Kluge: A Mediation, and other works (Roof, 2007) and Before Starting Over: Selected Writings and Interviews (Salt, 2006). He just moved to Los Angeles to take a position as professor of English and Digital Humanities at UCLA.
>
> MARCH MARCH 7 JEROME SALA and RACHEL ZOLF
> Jerome Sala has been described as an "honorable hysteric" by critic Peter Schjeldahl. His latest book is Look Slimmer Instantly from Soft Skull Press. Other books include cult classics such as Spaz Attack, I Am Not a Juvenile Delinquent and The Trip. Rachel Zolf's collections include Human Resources

(Coach House, 2007), which won the 2008 Trillium Book Award for Poetry, Shoot and Weep (Nomados, 2008), and Masque (Mercury, 2004).
>
> MARCH 14 CHARLES BERNSTEIN and ADEENA KARASICK
> Charles Bernstein is the CFO of the Center for Avant-Garde Comedy and Stand-Up Poetry. His most recent book is Blind Witness: Three American Operas. Adeena Karasick is the 2008 winner of the MPS mobile award, poet media artist and author of six books of poetry and poetic theory. Forthcoming is Amuse Bouche Tasty Treats for the Mouth (Talonbooks, 2009). She teaches Film and Literature at CUNY.
>
> MARCH 21 K. SILEM MOHAMMAD and LYTLE SHAW
> K. Silem Mohammad is the author Breathalyzer (Edge Books, 2008), A Thousand Devils (Combo Books, 2004), and Deer Head Nation (Tougher Disguises, 2003). Abraham Lincoln, which he edits with Anne Boyer, is the single most significant poetry magazine in North America that always features a large cat and a rainbow on its front cover. Lytle Shaw’s most recent books include The Chadwick Family Papers (a collaboration with Jimbo Blachly, Periscope, 2009) and Frank O'Hara: The Poetics of Coterie (University Of Iowa Press, 2006).
>
> MARCH 28 JAMES SHERRY and CECILIA VICUÑA
> James Sherry is the author of more than 10 books of poetry and prose. His most recent publication, Sorry: Environmental Poetics, is forthcoming from Factory School later this year. He is the editor/publisher of Roof Books and founder of The Segue Foundation. Cecilia Vicuña performs and exhibits her work widely in Europe, Latin America and the U.S. Templo e’Saliva / Spit Temple, a collection of her oral performances, edited by Rosa Alcalá, is forthcoming by Factory School Press.
>
> APRIL
>
> APRIL 4 RON SILLIMAN and LISA JARNOT
> Ron Silliman has written and edited over 30 books to date. Silliman was the 2006 Poet Laureate of the Blogosphere, a 2003 Literary Fellow of the National Endowment for the Arts and was a 2002 Fellow of the Pennsylvania Arts Council as well as a Pew Fellow in the Arts in 1998. He lives in Chester County, Pennsylvania, with his wife and two sons. Lisa Jarnot is the author of four collections of poetry, including the recently published Night Scenes from Flood Editions. She lives in Queens and works as a landscape gardener.
>
> APRIL 11 JENA OSMAN and TAN LIN

> Jena Osman’s books include An Essay in Asterisks (Roof) and The Character (Beacon). Her book The Network is forthcoming from Essay Press. She co-edits the ChainLinks book series with Juliana Spahr and teaches in the graduate Creative Writing program at Temple University. Tan Lin is a writer, artist, and critic. He has written Lotion Bullwhip Giraffe (Sun & Moon) and BlipSoak01 (Atelos). His visual and video work has been exhibited at the Yale Art Museum (New Haven), the Sophienholm (Copenhagen), and the Marianne Boesky Gallery (NYC).
>
> APRIL 18 CHARLES ALEXANDER and AKILAH OLIVER
> Charles Alexander is a Tucson-based poet, publisher, and book artist. He is the director and editor-in-chief of Chax Press. Alexander’s recent books of poetry include Pushing Water: parts one through six (Standing Stones Press, 1998), near or random acts (Singing Horse Press, 2004), and Certain Slants (Junction Press, 2007). Akilah Oliver is the author of a new book A Toast in the House of Friends (Coffee House Press, 2008), and also the she said dialogues: flesh memory (Smokeproof/Erudite Fangs, 1999). She currently makes her home in Brooklyn, NY.
>
> APRIL 25 POETRY AND ARCHITECTURE featuring VITO ACCONCI
> An event featuring poets and architects presenting work that explores potential overlaps and collaborations between the two media. More information to come.
>
> MAY
>
> MAY 2 JULIAN BROLASKI and MAGDALENA ZURASWSKI
> Julian T. Brolaski co-curated the the New Brutalism series in Oakland from 2003-2005 with Cynthia Sailers and the Holloway Poetry Series at UC Berkeley from 2004-2006. Brolaski is the author of several chapbooks including The Daily Usonian (Atticus/Finch 2004), Madame Bovary’s Diary (Cy Press 2005), and Buck in a Corridor (flynpyntas 2008). Magdalena Zurawski was born in 1972 to Polish immigrants in New Jersey. Her first book, The Bruise, won the Ronald Sukenick Prize in2006, and was published by FC2 in 2008.
>
> MAY 9 ERICA KAUFMAN and JOAN RETALLACK
> erica kaufman is the author of several chapbooks including Civilization Day and several installations of Censory Impulse, her book-length poem, which was published by Factory School/Heretical Texts in January. She co-curates and co-edits Belladonna/Belladonna Books and lives in Brooklyn. Joan Retallack’s most recent publication is her Gertrude Stein: Selections with an extensive introduction/discussion of Stein’s work, brought out by University of California Press. She is the author of seven volumes of poetry including Errata 5uite, which won the Columbia Book Award chosen by Robert Creeley. A collection of Retallack's procedural poems is forthcoming from Roof Books.

>
> MAY 16 NO READING
>
> MAY 23 MEI-MEI BERSSENBRUGGE and JONATHAN SKINNER
> Mei-mei Berssenbrugge was born in Beijing and grew up in Massachusetts. She is the author of numerous volumes of poetry, most recently I Love Artists: New and Selected Poems (University of California Press, 2006) and Concordance (Kelsey St. Press, 2006), a collaboration with Kiki Smith. Jonathan Skinner is a poet, translator and critic, as well as editor of the journal ecopoetics. Skinner completed his Ph.D. in English at SUNY Buffalo. In 2005, he published his first full-length poetry collection, Political Cactus Poems (Palm Press).
>
> MAY 30 STACY SZYMASZEK and PATRICK DURGIN
> Stacy Szymaszek is the author of Emptied of All Ships (Litmus Press, 2005). Recent chapbooks include Orizaba: A Voyage with Hart Crane (Faux Chaps, 2008) and from Hyperglossia (Hot Whiskey, 2008). Hyperglossia, the complete poem, is forthcoming from Litmus Press in early 2009. Patrick Durgin has collaborated with Jen Hofer since 1998 to produce The Route (Atelos, 2008). On his own, Durgin has published Imitation Poems (Atticus/Finch, 2007) and Color Music (Cuneiform Press, 2002).
>
> THE SEGUE FOUNDATION
> 300 Bowery
> New York, NY 10012
>
> _____
> Windows Live™: Keep your life in sync.
> http://windowslive.com/explore?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_allup_explore_012009
>

↑ Index

216. Maria Damon
Re: blog article about The Accidental Artist
Wed 14 Jan 2009

---

totally gorgeous. azure's voice and those vibrant jewel-like images in motion, wow!

Alan Sondheim wrote:
> (sent to me by Opensource Obscure, and thanks - Alan)
>
> http://www.secondlifeupdate.com/virtual-world-experiences/top-5-works-of-art-in-second-life-pics-video-the-accidental-artist/
>
> or http://bit.ly/Ne0N
>

↑ Index

217. Mark Weiss
Re: [SPAM]Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Wed 14 Jan 2009

Aren't you talking about motivation? If there were no coercion, would it be ok for people to choose to do things that might hurt them? What other potentially self-destructive things should we make illegal? Demolition derbies? Surfing? Skateboarding? Smoking? Drinking? MFA programs? Or if we limit the list to sexual behavior, which is apparently a separate category? one night stands? Sleeping with musicians? A list would be helpful.

Mark

At 08:55 AM 1/14/2009, you wrote:
>well, you're ok with it but are they ok with it? I mean, doesn't it hurt >them? whether it's legal or not?
>
>
>On 1/13/09 5:05 PM, "Mark Weiss" <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> > To extrapolate:
> >
> > Since as it becomes easier to get laid for free the stuff a > > prostitute has to do to make a living gets weirder everybody should > > keep their legs crossed.
> >
> > Did I get it right?
> >
> > I'm ok with folks doing what they want to make a living, even if they > > only do it because they feel bad about themselves, and people buying > > their services, even if they only do it because they feel bad about > > themselves. Unless we legislate mental health (and assume that the > > motivations are always unhealthy) it's the best we're likely to do.

> >
> > Coercion of any kind is another matter. Legalization makes it a lot > > easier to fight coercion (and incidentally to minimize the spread > of disease).
> >
> > I'd say the same for drug use, even though most people probably > > shouldn't put a spike in their arm.
> >
> > Mark
> >
> > At 12:39 AM 1/13/2009, you wrote:
> >
> >>
> >> I've been following the discussion only sporadically, so please > >> forgive any redundancy, but, the well-known "Effects of Prolonged > >> Consumption of Pornography" and other studies suggest that in places > >> where pornography is legal and increasingly popular there is a > >> corresponding decrease in the incidence of violent sexual > >> crimes. As if the medium could allow for the safe channeling of > >> certain repressed and thereby sinister desires. However, many > >> observers attribute said decreased incidence to a greater leniency > >> in attitudes towards sexual behavior and an inability, or > >> unwillingness, to interpret sex crimes as such. In this regard, > >> where pornography is widely consumed, we might note the evolution of > >> more exotic and aggressive forms of it (think anus, gangbang, shit > >> in the mouth).
> >>
> >> Though pornography and prostitution aren't the same thing, perhaps > >> the same principle holds true. The more the thing is permitted, the > >> more boring it gets, and so, the more deviant and illicit and > >> forbidden its form must take. Or in other terms, hunger (out of > >> boredom) ensures the creation (and delivery) of new products. The > >> more we're ok with prostitution, the more we're ok with whatever > >> treatment the prostitute receives, and the more novel treatments > >> we'll surely find. Let the free market rule. After all they're > >> just a muscle.
> >>
> >> Jared Schickling
> >>
> >
> guidelines &
>

↑ Index

218. Steve Tills
Subject: Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?
Wed 14 Jan 2009

Additional inquiry might include these questions:

Can post-modern/post-structural "poetry" handle Nature?

Isn't postmodern and post-structural, for better AND for worse, a subset of nature, including our species' frequently incommensurate and dysfunctional and human-centric, usually unverifiable and generally SELF-serving definitions of it?

Should pomers truly concerned with developing interesting, fun, serious, irreverent, heady, simple, useful, and smiling nature poetries prescribe for themselves the onus of having to appeal to so-called postmodern/post-structural exigencies, which are, after all, largely or at least ALSO cottage industry consumer products developed by the academia industries, NOT necessarily OBJECTS of real, concrete, substantial relevance to "nature" OR "poetry" in the first place, the second place, or the 3rd?

Also, seriously, cannot postmodern/post-structural play an honorable role in saving nature, without which we're not going to have ANY poetry, jobs in academia, or EPC forums, ultimately?

Blah blah...

Steve Tills

Civilization is the encouragement of differences.
-Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi (1869-1948)

P Please consider the environment before printing this email - be green, keep it on the screen

↑ Index

219. Mary Kasimor
Re: Bailout
Wed 14 Jan 2009

I wonder if we put too high a price on women's sexuality--I was of the generation that came of age during the late 60's, and we women were so damn glad to throw away our parents' prudishness about what "good girls do." I am sure that men were overjoyed, and as I write that I wonder why I suddenly feel "prickly" (I didn't mean that to be a play on words.) about men also feeling liberated. I suppose our views on sexuality are such a part of our culture that it is hard to separate culture from nature. Our intellects and talents are also part of the free market. Tthe other problem is that women are still seeing their world through men's perspectives--not always, but often. I think that is obvious.

Mary

--- On Wed, 1/14/09, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]> wrote:

From: mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
Subject: Bailout
To: [redacted]
Date: Wednesday, January 14, 2009, 7:40 AM

(this piggybacks nicely on the brothel dissection...)

Grad Student Selling Virginity Flooded With Offers

http://cbs13.com/local/selling.virginity.tuition.2.815171.html

A Sacramento State grad trying to make money by auctioning off her virginity to help pay for her graduate studies is getting lots of offers...and not just for sex.

The 22-year-old who is using the pseudonym Natalie Dylan for safety reasons is going through a legal brothel in Nevada to sell her virginity. Dylan told CBS13 she's gotten an offer of $250,000. And now she's gotten an offer to do a photo spread for Penthouse magazine.

The auction is being handled by the Bunny Ranch in Carson City, Nevada with bids coming in through their website.

Dylan says she's already taken a polygraph test to prove her virginal status, and is also willing to undergo a medical exam.

"The main purpose of this is to finance a couple things in my life," Dylan told CBS13. "I think empowerment of women is picking yourself up and doing something on your own to better yourself."

So far, hundreds of offers have already come in including some from male virgins. Natalie says she won't give up her virginity to the highest bidder. She's also seeking other qualities from her first lover. "I'm looking for intelligence and an overall nice person," said Dylan.

Dylan says she ended up in a financial bind, because her stepfather allegedly used her college status to fraudulently apply for student loans, and then ran off with the money.

Dylan earned her bachelor's degree in women's studies from Sacramento State and plans to get her master's at the school beginning in January.

Many Sac State students say they're shocked to hear about their former classmate's plan, while others applaud her.

"She's just giving it to some random person. And I just think she should be giving it to someone special she loves," said one student on campus.

While another felt that selling her virginity for grad school "is a noble reason to get money."

As for Natalie, after claiming to hold on to her virginity for 22 years (although the Bunny Ranch website claims she is 21-years-old), she says she has a commodity not many people have to sell.

"When I was younger, I wanted 100% romance, possibly even wait for marriage. But as I grew up, reality kinda hit. And I think its a capitalistic society and I want to capitalize on this," explained Dylan.

↑ Index

220. Séamas Cain
Papers of the poet Thomas Kinsella
Wed 14 Jan 2009

The Papers of the Irish poet Thomas Kinsella have gone to the MARBL Library at Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia, U.S.

For a detailed inventory of the Papers of Thomas Kinsella, go to http://irishliterature.library.emory.edu/content.php?id=kinsella774_1010913

Amazingly, the MARBL Library at Emory also holds the Papers of the Irish poets Seamus Heaney, Ciaran Carson, Peter Fallon/The Gallery Press Collection, Ted Hughes, Michael Longley, Derek Mahon, Medbh McGuckian, Charles Montieth, Paul Muldoon, Edna O'Brien, Desmond O'Grady, Frank Ormsby, Tom Paulin, and James Simmons as well as other more or less contemporary Irish poets. Most of these manuscript collections have been purchased by Emory.

For an index of Irish literary collections, mostly at the MARBL Library of Emory University, go to http://irishliterature.library.emory.edu/browse.php

Amazing! that the National Library of Ireland would not have acted more decisively to keep these manuscript collections (of literary and historic importance) in Ireland!

Or, is it not so amazing after all? given the back-of-the-hand treatment to most Irish authors in the past and present.

For information about the Irish Literary Collections Portal, go to http://irishliterature.library.emory.edu/

In 1985, in Duluth, Minnesota, I was privileged to introduce Thomas Kinsella at his reading before an audience of 400 people. I enjoyed several days of lengthy conversations with Kinsella. I learned quite a lot from him about the varieties of innovative and not-so-innovative approaches to contemporary poetry. Indeed, it is NOT Seamus Heaney but Thomas Kinsella that I see as the grand old man of contemporary Irish poetry!

At that time, on his visit in 1985, Kinsella was very interested to learn of Lady Augusta Gregory's reaction to the city of Duluth. In February of 1914, Lady Gregory came to Duluth to participate in the founding of the Little Theatre, a breakaway from the commercial theatre of that day. (Bernard Shaw was also involved in the founding of this Little Theatre.) As Lady Gregory arrived on the scene, the harbor and the western end of Lake Superior were filled with ice. And further east on the great lake, in motion, there were huge ice floes. Lady Gregory said she had never before seen "icebergs"! Throughout her time in Duluth, she kept talking about the "icebergs," and the "beauty" of the "icebergs"!

Regards, from the icebergs of Lake Superior,

Séamas Cain
http://alazanto.org/seamascain
http://seamascain.writernetwork.com
http://www.mnartists.org/Seamas_Cain

↑ Index

221. Mary Jo Malo
Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?
Wed 14 Jan 2009

Many thanks to all who have sent suggestions on/off list. Remembered a few of my own favorites: Lyn Lifshin and Geraldine Green. I was appalled with Richard Louv's opinion about the lack of nature found in modern "urban" poetry and needed some affirmation :)

Mary Jo Malo

--
http://thisshiningwound.blogspot.com/
http://apophisdeconstructingabsurdity.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

222. Ruth Lepson
Re: Bailout
Wed 14 Jan 2009

---

yes, ultimate capitalism, as it has been for so long--women as a main commodity.

On 1/14/09 8:40 AM, "mIEKAL aND" <[redacted]> wrote:

> (this piggybacks nicely on the brothel dissection...)
>
> Grad Student Selling Virginity Flooded With Offers
>
> http://cbs13.com/local/selling.virginity.tuition.2.815171.html
>
> A Sacramento State grad trying to make money by auctioning off her virginity to help pay for her graduate studies is getting lots of offers...and not just for sex.
>
> The 22-year-old who is using the pseudonym Natalie Dylan for safety reasons is going through a legal brothel in Nevada to sell her virginity. Dylan told CBS13 she's gotten an offer of $250,000. And now she's gotten an offer to do a photo spread for Penthouse magazine.
>
> The auction is being handled by the Bunny Ranch in Carson City, Nevada with bids coming in through their website.
>
> Dylan says she's already taken a polygraph test to prove her virginal status, and is also willing to undergo a medical exam.
>
> "The main purpose of this is to finance a couple things in my life," Dylan told CBS13. "I think empowerment of women is picking yourself up and doing something on your own to better yourself."
>
> So far, hundreds of offers have already come in including some from male virgins. Natalie says she won't give up her virginity to the highest bidder. She's also seeking other qualities from her first lover. "I'm looking for intelligence and an overall nice person," said Dylan.
>
> Dylan says she ended up in a financial bind, because her stepfather allegedly used her college status to fraudulently apply for student loans, and then ran off with the money.
>
> Dylan earned her bachelor's degree in women's studies from Sacramento State and plans to get her master's at the school beginning in January.

> Many Sac State students say they're shocked to hear about their former classmate's plan, while others applaud her.
>
> "She's just giving it to some random person. And I just think she should be giving it to someone special she loves," said one student on campus.
>
> While another felt that selling her virginity for grad school "is a noble reason to get money."
>
> As for Natalie, after claiming to hold on to her virginity for 22 years (although the Bunny Ranch website claims she is 21-years-old), she says she has a commodity not many people have to sell.
>
> "When I was younger, I wanted 100% romance, possibly even wait for marriage. But as I grew up, reality kinda hit. And I think its a capitalistic society and I want to capitalize on this," explained Dylan.

↑ Index

223. Troy Camplin

Re: [SPAM]Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

Wed 14 Jan 2009

In the end, who are you or I or anybody else to tell someone what they can and cannot do, to prevent people from hurting themselves (especially if it's our opinion that they are hurting themselves)? It seems pretty arrogant to tell adults what they can and cannot do with their own bodies and minds. We can quibble all day about whether or not prostitutes under legalized conditions are "hurt" by the job or not, but in the end, we don't know what a person likes or does not lie, is hurt by or is not hurt by, prefers or does not prefer precisely because we cannot be inside their heads, knowing any of those things. Faced with such overwhelming ignorance of such things about others, we should let people do what they want to do and be who they want to be so long as it doesn't involve force or threat of force. THis isn't to say that one should not be out there trying to create conditions where women don't have to choose prostitution, that one shouldn't be trying to change minds -- but it is to say that one should not be using either force or the threat of force to make people do what you want or make them accept what you think is best for them.

Troy Camplin

_____

From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]

Sent: Wednesday, January 14, 2009 7:55:53 AM
Subject: Re: [SPAM]Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

well, you're ok with it but are they ok with it? I mean, doesn't it hurt them? whether it's legal or not?

On 1/13/09 5:05 PM, "Mark Weiss" <[redacted]> wrote:

> To extrapolate:
>
> Since as it becomes easier to get laid for free the stuff a prostitute has to do to make a living gets weirder everybody should keep their legs crossed.
>
> Did I get it right?
>
> I'm ok with folks doing what they want to make a living, even if they only do it because they feel bad about themselves, and people buying their services, even if they only do it because they feel bad about themselves. Unless we legislate mental health (and assume that the motivations are always unhealthy) it's the best we're likely to do.
>
> Coercion of any kind is another matter. Legalization makes it a lot easier to fight coercion (and incidentally to minimize the spread of disease).
>
> I'd say the same for drug use, even though most people probably shouldn't put a spike in their arm.
>
> Mark
>
> At 12:39 AM 1/13/2009, you wrote:
>
> I've been following the discussion only sporadically, so please forgive any redundancy, but, the well-known "Effects of Prolonged Consumption of Pornography" and other studies suggest that in places where pornography is legal and increasingly popular there is a corresponding decrease in the incidence of violent sexual crimes. As if the medium could allow for the safe channeling of certain repressed and thereby sinister desires. However, many observers attribute said decreased incidence to a greater leniency in attitudes towards sexual behavior and an inability, or unwillingness, to interpret sex crimes as such. In this regard, where pornography is widely consumed, we might note the evolution of more exotic and aggressive forms of it (think anus, gangbang, shit in the mouth).
>
> Though pornography and prostitution aren't the same thing, perhaps the same principle holds true. The more the thing is permitted, the > more boring it gets, and so, the more deviant and illicit and forbidden its form must take. Or in other terms, hunger (out of boredom) ensures the creation (and delivery) of new products. The more we're ok with prostitution, the more we're ok with whatever treatment the prostitute receives, and the more novel treatments we'll surely find. Let the free market rule. After all they're just a muscle.

>
> Jared Schickling

↑ Index

224. Troy Camplin
Re: coMpetition does
Wed 14 Jan 2009

Being eaten alive in a workshop isn't a bad thing. If you can't stand criticism of your work, you won't improve much as an artist. This isn't to say that everything in a workshop is golden (it isn't), but you come out with many perspectives and, if you know what you're really hearing, you can figure out what's really wrong that needs work among the comments and criticisms. But CA is right, you do have to be careful to distinguish between those who wish to help you, and those who are envious and want to tear you down, to "get rid of the competition." Again, if you're paying attention, it does become pretty obvious before long. Be on the lookout for those who come up to you later and apologize for "being so rough" and/or who offer more suggestions or offer to look at it again after the revision. Those are the ones who want to help you. They will also more likely be the good poets. Nasty, antisocial, selfish people do not have the wisdom necessary to be great poets. Or even good or mediocre poets.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: steve d. dalachinsky <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, January 14, 2009 12:25:39 AM
Subject: Re: coMpetition does

here here CA i fully understand being one who has always avoided workshops and it probably shows

On Tue, 13 Jan 2009 12:28:19 -0500 CA Conrad <[redacted]>
writes:
> Recently I've met a couple of young poets (yet again) who dropped

> out
> of poetry writing workshops because they were, in the words of one
> of
> these poets, "eaten alive."
>
> The conversation isn't new. And it's not a conversation about > workshops in particular, but competition in a bigger sense.
>
> When is competition good, meaning productive, meaning THE THING
> which > spurs poets into action in the best sense, in the sense of WANTING
> to > write as well as they can.
>
> And when is competition ugly, filled with envy and jealousy,
> reaching > a surprising number of times in my observations to the most
> corrupt,
> wicked, disturbing places people can get to.
>
> The conversation is tricky because I'm always trying to ask,
> investigate with others, WHERE IS THE line between competition when
> it's healthy, and rotten?
>
> There's no doubt in my mind that these two young poets (the latest
> two
> that is, as I've been having this conversation for years now and I > don't even remember how many times I've had it frankly) love,
> really > LOVE poetry. We share that, we find when talking that we share
> that > DRIVE, depositing ourselves in front of bookstore poetry sections,
> and > libraries, and asking everyone we know who their favorite poets
> are,
> and titles, and never getting enough of this love. Never getting > enough of it. And not just feeling sad when a bookstore like
> GOTHAM
> BOOKMART closes down but ANGRY!
>
> We're so much alike, and we tell one another what we're most > excited

> about NOW, and everyone's scratching notes for the library and > bookstore. How we're NOT alike is that these two young poets are > VERY
> vulnerable to attack. When they were said to be "eaten alive" I'm > not > surprised. And I'm sad, and wish they were MORE LIKE ME and laugh
> at
> the bastards and say, "OH YOU'RE JUST A HATER, YOU JEALOUS PIG!"
> Or,
> "Yeah well, THANKS, being attacked GETS ME UP IN THE MORNING TO > MAKE
> YOU ANGRY!" It feeds me when someone attacks me, I LOVE it.
>
> But of course a lot of people don't respond well when they're > attacked, and this makes me sad. I've known poets WHOSE POEMS MADE
> ME
> HAPPY who stopped writing poems because of such attacks. In some > cases the attacks were from their professors, and the other > students,
> egged-on by the professors. A FEEDING FRENZY in such a way that > makes > me want to puke for poetry. It disgusts me this kind of behavior.
>
> I'm not a professor, but I have conducted poetry workshops, and
> it's
> NOT HARD AT ALL in my opinion to keep the focus about everyone > (including myself because I want to learn from THEM TOO!) > investigating poetry together! My focus is about PROCESS, about
> the > many weird ways to MAKE poetry happen, NOT ABOUT who is writing
> poems
> I think are good, or another person in the workshop thinks are > good,
> or not.
>
> This is NOT goody-two-shoe bullshit, I'm JUST NOT INTERESTED in > telling someone whether I like their poems or not when I'm > conducting > workshops. And it's none of my business frankly. But to LOVE
> poetry,
> and read it, and create it, and have it in our lives, now THAT is > something I get very excited about!

>
> But what is that line? When is it crossed from productive and > beautiful and everyone's excited and MAKING poetry, to that place
> of > shit?
>
> I'd rather see poems ABOUT that dark spot on the poetry map, than
> see > it overwhelm another poet. And I mean overwhelm the poet who NEEDS
> to > be vicious, and of course I mean the poet who gets beaten down.
>
> This conversation cannot happen unless we talk about the bigger > things
> around it, like, WHY IS EVERYONE NOT UNDERSTANDING EVERYONE IS
> CREATIVE WE ARE ALL CREATIVE THIS IS NOT UP FOR DEBATE. Or is it?
> I've had people tell me this is wrong, that everyone's NOT > creative.
> But I disagree.
>
> And the conversation needs to be about how the way poets act about
> scarcity and fear that there's not enough NOT ENOUGH magazines NOT > ENOUGH awards or enough room at the reading series, not enough, is > really, such an old story about us being animals.
>
> And the conversation needs to be about how to protect ourselves if > we > can't withstand the attacks.
>
> And the conversation needs to be about how people don't need to > attack
> others because THERE IS ENOUGH.
>
> And the conversation needs to be about how art and all our creative > abilities have become part of a big system in the capital of art
> and
> poetry, and books, and writing programs and teaching and, and, and > CONSUMPTION, and frankly how, more than ever there's more reasons
> than > ever for us to feel like we're NOT working hard enough, NOT being > good > enough, NOT good enough, so many reasons to feel like shit.

>
> It's a big conversation. But I feel I'm always having it. And
> it's
> one of the most important ones to have some days, especially when I
> meet young poets who have just been destroyed in workshops, made to > feel worthless. The one poet started crying, and said, literally > between sobs, "ALL I WANT TO DO IS WRITE POETRY!" It's really
> awful,
> I just want to hit whoever did this to this person, but of course
> that's not helpful.
>
> The line crossed is hard to see because it's different for everyone,
> I
> think. Right? Sometimes I'm not sure I'm right about that, but it > feels right, doesn't just feel like an answer I've come up with to > forget thinking about it, because I really want to figure it out,
> if > it can be figured out. There's too much at stake, at least it > feels > that way when I meet YET ANOTHER amazing young poet who becomes
> afraid
> of workshops and other poets and stops writing.
>
> I've met so many amazing poets who stop, for so many reasons they > stop. The most common reason though is that they get worn out from > the struggle of dealing with many hungry egos. And their own
> hungry
> ego. It goes back to the discussion about why we're writing, and > what
> has writing become in this world for us?
>
> CAConrad
> --
> PhillySound: new poetry http://PhillySound.blogspot.com
>
> THE BOOK OF FRANK by CAConrad http://CAConrad.blogspot.com
>
>
>

↑ Index

225. Thomas savage
Re: coMpetition does
Wed 14 Jan 2009

I think most of what you say here is wonderful. Personal attacks are definitely the line people should not cross in a poetry workshop. Constructive criticism is what poetry workshops are about and appreciation when something is really good. I start each workshop I teach by telling the students that we are all equals. I may or may not know a bit more about poetry than they do but, as human beings, we are all equals and that they are allowed to disagree with anything I say if they do so. I think this helps to neutralize not only the hierarchy of the class but also the odd sense of "empowerment" some people feel who have studied at many workshops and thus feel they have the right or the opportunity to make personal attacks. Of course, if a young poet feels his work is so perfect, so sacrosanct that no one should criticize it, then what is he or she doing in a workshop anyway. But it sounds like this is another issue from what you are talking about here. Regards, Tom Savage

--- On Wed, 1/14/09, steve d. dalachinsky <[redacted]> wrote:

From: steve d. dalachinsky <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: coMpetition does
To: [redacted]
Date: Wednesday, January 14, 2009, 1:25 AM

here here CA i fully understand being one who has always avoided workshops and it probably shows

On Tue, 13 Jan 2009 12:28:19 -0500 CA Conrad <[redacted]>
writes:
> Recently I've met a couple of young poets (yet again) who dropped > out
> of poetry writing workshops because they were, in the words of one
> of
> these poets, "eaten alive."
>
> The conversation isn't new. And it's not a conversation about > workshops in particular, but competition in a bigger sense.
>
> When is competition good, meaning productive, meaning THE THING
> which > spurs poets into action in the best sense, in the sense of WANTING
> to > write as well as they can.
>

> And when is competition ugly, filled with envy and jealousy,
> reaching > a surprising number of times in my observations to the most
> corrupt,
> wicked, disturbing places people can get to.
>
> The conversation is tricky because I'm always trying to ask,
> investigate with others, WHERE IS THE line between competition when
> it's healthy, and rotten?
>
> There's no doubt in my mind that these two young poets (the latest
> two
> that is, as I've been having this conversation for years now and I > don't even remember how many times I've had it frankly) love,
> really > LOVE poetry. We share that, we find when talking that we share
> that > DRIVE, depositing ourselves in front of bookstore poetry sections,
> and > libraries, and asking everyone we know who their favorite poets
> are,
> and titles, and never getting enough of this love. Never getting > enough of it. And not just feeling sad when a bookstore like
> GOTHAM
> BOOKMART closes down but ANGRY!
>
> We're so much alike, and we tell one another what we're most > excited
> about NOW, and everyone's scratching notes for the library and > bookstore. How we're NOT alike is that these two young poets are > VERY
> vulnerable to attack. When they were said to be "eaten alive"
I'm
> not > surprised. And I'm sad, and wish they were MORE LIKE ME and laugh
> at > the bastards and say, "OH YOU'RE JUST A HATER, YOU JEALOUS PIG!"
> Or,
> "Yeah well, THANKS, being attacked GETS ME UP IN THE MORNING TO > MAKE
> YOU ANGRY!" It feeds me when someone attacks me, I LOVE it.

>
> But of course a lot of people don't respond well when they're > attacked, and this makes me sad. I've known poets WHOSE POEMS MADE
> ME
> HAPPY who stopped writing poems because of such attacks. In some > cases the attacks were from their professors, and the other > students,
> egged-on by the professors. A FEEDING FRENZY in such a way that > makes > me want to puke for poetry. It disgusts me this kind of behavior.
>
> I'm not a professor, but I have conducted poetry workshops, and
> it's
> NOT HARD AT ALL in my opinion to keep the focus about everyone > (including myself because I want to learn from THEM TOO!) > investigating poetry together! My focus is about PROCESS, about
> the > many weird ways to MAKE poetry happen, NOT ABOUT who is writing
> poems
> I think are good, or another person in the workshop thinks are > good,
> or not.
>
> This is NOT goody-two-shoe bullshit, I'm JUST NOT INTERESTED in > telling someone whether I like their poems or not when I'm > conducting > workshops. And it's none of my business frankly. But to LOVE
> poetry,
> and read it, and create it, and have it in our lives, now THAT is > something I get very excited about!
>
> But what is that line? When is it crossed from productive and > beautiful and everyone's excited and MAKING poetry, to that place
> of > shit?
>
> I'd rather see poems ABOUT that dark spot on the poetry map, than
> see > it overwhelm another poet. And I mean overwhelm the poet who NEEDS
> to > be vicious, and of course I mean the poet who gets beaten down.
>

> This conversation cannot happen unless we talk about the bigger > things
> around it, like, WHY IS EVERYONE NOT UNDERSTANDING EVERYONE IS
> CREATIVE WE ARE ALL CREATIVE THIS IS NOT UP FOR DEBATE. Or is it?
> I've had people tell me this is wrong, that everyone's NOT > creative.
> But I disagree.
>
> And the conversation needs to be about how the way poets act about
> scarcity and fear that there's not enough NOT ENOUGH magazines NOT > ENOUGH awards or enough room at the reading series, not enough, is > really, such an old story about us being animals.
>
> And the conversation needs to be about how to protect ourselves if > we > can't withstand the attacks.
>
> And the conversation needs to be about how people don't need to > attack
> others because THERE IS ENOUGH.
>
> And the conversation needs to be about how art and all our creative > abilities have become part of a big system in the capital of art
> and
> poetry, and books, and writing programs and teaching and, and, and > CONSUMPTION, and frankly how, more than ever there's more reasons
> than > ever for us to feel like we're NOT working hard enough, NOT being > good > enough, NOT good enough, so many reasons to feel like shit.
>
> It's a big conversation. But I feel I'm always having it. And
> it's
> one of the most important ones to have some days, especially when I
> meet young poets who have just been destroyed in workshops, made to > feel worthless. The one poet started crying, and said, literally > between sobs, "ALL I WANT TO DO IS WRITE POETRY!" It's really
> awful,
> I just want to hit whoever did this to this person, but of course
> that's not helpful.
>

> The line crossed is hard to see because it's different for everyone,
> I > think. Right? Sometimes I'm not sure I'm right about that, but it
> feels right, doesn't just feel like an answer I've come up with to > forget thinking about it, because I really want to figure it out,
> if > it can be figured out. There's too much at stake, at least it > feels > that way when I meet YET ANOTHER amazing young poet who becomes
> afraid
> of workshops and other poets and stops writing.
>
> I've met so many amazing poets who stop, for so many reasons they > stop. The most common reason though is that they get worn out from > the struggle of dealing with many hungry egos. And their own
> hungry
> ego. It goes back to the discussion about why we're writing, and > what
> has writing become in this world for us?
>
> CAConrad
> --
> PhillySound: new poetry http://PhillySound.blogspot.com
>
> THE BOOK OF FRANK by CAConrad http://CAConrad.blogspot.com
>
>
>

↑ Index

226. steve d. dalachinsky

Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?

Wed 14 Jan 2009

---

hey MJ my stuff's full o nature sunsets and stuff even a flower or 2 clouds moon etc we live with it wherever we are

On Wed, 14 Jan 2009 10:52:45 -0600 Mary Jo Malo <[redacted]> writes:
> Many thanks to all who have sent suggestions on/off list. Remembered
> a > few of my own favorites: Lyn Lifshin and Geraldine Green. I was > appalled with Richard Louv's opinion about the lack of nature found

> in > modern "urban" poetry and needed some affirmation :)
>
> Mary Jo Malo
>
> --
> http://thisshiningwound.blogspot.com/
> http://apophisdeconstructingabsurdity.blogspot.com/
>
>
>

↑ Index

227. Alan Sondheim

Re: blog article about The Accidental Artist

Wed 14 Jan 2009

Thank you! The images are somewhat old I think - the 'matrix' is much more complex at the moment, perhaps less jewel-like. If anyone wants to follow the development of all of this, go to http://www.alansondheim.org and then click _twice_ on "Last Modified" - this brings the recent images/videos/ to the top of the directory (click once and the oldest files are at the top). For descriptions, click on the first .txt file - which at the moment is "py.txt" - the newest material is at the bottom.

That's about it and again thanks!

- Alan

| Alan Sondheim Mail archive: http://sondheim.rupamsunyata.org/
| To access the Odyssey exhibition The Accidental Artist:
| http://slurl.com/secondlife/Odyssey/48/12/22
| Webpage (directory) at http://www.alansondheim.org
| [redacted], [redacted], tel US [redacted]

On Wed, 14 Jan 2009, Maria Damon wrote:

> totally gorgeous. azure's voice and those vibrant jewel-like images in motion, wow!
>
> Alan Sondheim wrote:
> (sent to me by Opensource Obscure, and thanks - Alan)
>
> http://www.secondlifeupdate.com/virtual-world-experiences/top-5-works-of-art-in-second-life-pics-video-the-accidental-artist/

> or http://bit.ly/Ne0N

↑ Index

228. Troy Camplin
Re: Bailout
Wed 14 Jan 2009

I agree that there is a problem with women all too often seeing the world through men's perspectives. One of the flaws of the feminist movement in the U.S. was the acceptance of male virtues as the only virtues, meaning women should emulate men -- and that emulation was not just in the economy, but in sexuality as well. The truth is that there are manly/masculine virtues as well as womanly/feminine virtues (as well as human virtues) that are not better or worse than the other, but merely different and, typically, complementary. It benefits everyone, especially couples, when the two are in balance. I also have a suspicion that in the greatest artists, the two are balanced within the individual him-/herself.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: Mary Kasimor <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, January 14, 2009 9:17:51 AM
Subject: Re: Bailout

I wonder if we put too high a price on women's sexuality--I was of the generation that came of age during the late 60's, and we women were so damn glad to throw away our parents' prudishness about what "good girls do." I am sure that men were overjoyed, and as I write that I wonder why I suddenly feel "prickly" (I didn't mean that to be a play on words.) about men also feeling liberated. I suppose our views on sexuality are such a part of our culture that it is hard to separate culture from nature. Our intellects and talents are also part of the free market. Tthe other problem is that women are still seeing their world through men's perspectives--not always, but often. I think that is obvious.

Mary

--- On Wed, 1/14/09, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]> wrote:

From: mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
Subject: Bailout

To: [redacted]
Date: Wednesday, January 14, 2009, 7:40 AM

(this piggybacks nicely on the brothel dissection...)

Grad Student Selling Virginity Flooded With Offers

http://cbs13.com/local/selling.virginity.tuition.2.815171.html

A Sacramento State grad trying to make money by auctioning off her virginity to help pay for her graduate studies is getting lots of offers...and not just for sex.

The 22-year-old who is using the pseudonym Natalie Dylan for safety reasons is going through a legal brothel in Nevada to sell her virginity. Dylan told CBS13 she's gotten an offer of $250,000. And now she's gotten an offer to do a photo spread for Penthouse magazine.

The auction is being handled by the Bunny Ranch in Carson City, Nevada with bids coming in through their website.

Dylan says she's already taken a polygraph test to prove her virginal status, and is also willing to undergo a medical exam.

"The main purpose of this is to finance a couple things in my life," Dylan told CBS13. "I think empowerment of women is picking yourself up and doing something on your own to better yourself."

So far, hundreds of offers have already come in including some from male virgins. Natalie says she won't give up her virginity to the highest bidder. She's also seeking other qualities from her first lover. "I'm looking for intelligence and an overall nice person," said Dylan.

Dylan says she ended up in a financial bind, because her stepfather allegedly used her college status to fraudulently apply for student loans, and then ran off with the money.

Dylan earned her bachelor's degree in women's studies from Sacramento State and plans to get her master's at the school beginning in January.

Many Sac State students say they're shocked to hear about their former classmate's plan, while others applaud her.

"She's just giving it to some random person. And I just think she should be giving it to someone special she loves," said one student on campus.

While another felt that selling her virginity for grad school "is a noble reason to get money."

As for Natalie, after claiming to hold on to her virginity for 22 years (although the Bunny Ranch website claims she is 21-years-old), she says she has a commodity not many people have to sell.

"When I was younger, I wanted 100% romance, possibly even wait for marriage. But as I grew up, reality kinda hit. And I think its a capitalistic society and I want to capitalize on this," explained Dylan.

↑ Index

229. David-Baptiste Chirot
Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Wed 14 Jan 2009

Date: Tue, 13 Jan 2009 05:41:22 -0800
From: [redacted]
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

Actually I think that the Poetry Brothel may just be about what lengths people will go to "attract an audience"--and a paying one at that!--for their poems.

Isn't this like a "Reality Show" version of "Writer's/Poet's Market" in a way?

Or those "Mystery Dinners" where you get to participate in a melodramatic mystery story and eat fine food all at once? And maybe someone really will die! From all the rich fare, instead of only simulating a heart attack to surprise the unwitting into revealing themselves as dupes of expensive illusions.

And won't some disgruntled client leave muttering darkly how they've just been screwed by some really lame poetry cleverly concealed by artfully posed cleavage or the seductive flip of a gigolo's hair in the fake breezes wafted by hidden fans whose whirrings are lost amidst the banging of the bangles on the long beaded strings operating as "harem decor" doors?

"It's like Weimar without the Nazis," one of the jolly entrepreneurs purrs, blithely oblivious to the fascism eating away at the fabric of American society for a long time now.

If one considers the brothel from the point of view of poetry, isn't it just as it advertises itself to be: --a much more "entertaining" and "enticing" way of pimping one's works, because, after all , is that not what the "market place of ideas" and the hustling and foreclosing on "intellectual properties" is all about?

Isn't it all like the Bert Brecht poem Fritz Lang starts to quote to the sell-out self-prostituting writer played by Michel Piccoli in Godard's Le Mepris (Contempt)?--A poem to the effect that the poet is going down to the market (Hollywood) to sell his poetic wares, just as Socrates taught down by the market place, pimping his "intellectual properties" to the beautiful young men as long as possible, postponing to the last possible second the return not to Ithaca and Penelope, but to the mighty shrew Xanthippe, the Founding Dominatrix of Philosophy's Sado-Masochistic tendencies

In essaying to follow this thread through its labyrinth, it strikes me that despite the outrage at the objectification of women, prostitutes themselves remain locked in language of objectification to such an extent here that one wonders if they are altogether abstract beings, or categories, sub classifications-- rather than actual persons.

The neighborhood I live in is rife with prostitution. I'd say about 75% of the women over around 18 one speaks with at the bus stop or walking home at night or during any time of the day are prostitutes. The moment one goes out the door, they are waiting somewhere along the short block, close by, or hanging out at the bus stop, greeting potential customers as they step out onto the worn down Ghetto sidewalk, right by where the old covered waiting station used to be before being removed. That structure one day was gone, leaving only a concrete slab like a scab shoved into the side of a scraggly lawn being fixed up. The shelter had to go due to the vast teeming population of human traffickers, panhandlers, drunks, crackheads and hos who would sit there smoking on the bench sheltered from the weather or spend hours motionlessly propped against the grimy graffiti slashed glass on its crumpling frame, whispering in the voice that goes straight to the nervous system, with no need of an ear--"you straight?"

Since last mid-summer the new police chief has declared our area, known forever as "Crack Alley," to be his first order of business to clean up. It's not the most violent area in the city, but one of the most concentrated in terms of dope and prostitution. A lot of buildings next door all along our block are closed down and being cleaned up, as they were filled with crack hos and dope dealers, and a continual stream of events such as at the several days running big TV story on the news about a kidnapped baby from next door an incident like any other, squeezed in among some colorful shootings and knifing incidents, not to mention the day a man with an AK-47 used our building and the parking lot next to it for target practice, blowing off chunks of the roof and managing to get some mega bullets through air vents and hitting a resident here in the leg. The second the dude opened fire, one knew it was some different kind of weapon, and dove for the floor as bullets chipped off almost the entire the window ledge, bit hungrily away at the bricks just below it, before a quick spurt of sound sent a huge piece of the roof floating dreamily down past the window, like a very relaxed whale diving deep deep down in the otherwise pleasant evening. Al one knew was that what seemed like eons later there was a huge thud and the walls shook as the big piece of mortared concrete hit the ground.

Al this has gradually been tamed down and now fewer prostitutes hawk their wares along the sidewalks and at the bus stops, though the ones still here are the most persistent and bold ones. They can easily handle a cop with a patter so fast that it seems not to end, but simply to have generated a continuously playing loop of its own echoed messages--while Sistah beats her wings and takes flight, soaring over rooftops and vanishing into a vacant lot somewhere blocks away. Hey shugah-- lets have us party . . .c'mon now--ain't gonna bite it off-- One time a woman whom I had seen and talked to a number of times, came up in a raging blizzard and begged me to go around the building to the back steps and "suck you like heaven." She was so desperate she was down on her knees in the snow bank. It was below zero and almost no visibility--and she had on just a thin skirt and jacket--she had an "auntie" near by so got her there and gave her enough for a few rocks, one of the few times ii had money on me in awhile--

There are women out who are homeless and who knows where they go--some can't get into the shelters due to the dope--their families won't let them in for fear of being robbed--sometimes the police pick them up and put them in the jail so they wont die--Very few of the crack hos work for anyone but themselves--too erratic to work for a pimp--they are so desperate at times people will slip them a few bills--

Around three in the morning most nights--the Zombies emerge--drifting along as though only the air they lean against is holding them upright--moving slow and stumblingly like the Living Dead of George Romero's films. Some of these eerie figures begin emitting high keening sounds, extremely painful to hear--the voices of desperation cutting the air into shreds--people suddenly crumpling on the grass patches or falling down in a side walk gutter--In such bad shape they can't sell a thing to anyone--

It's excruciating to see and hear some nights those figures with the eerie phosphorescent death glows, auras of the grave and white powders and rocks--to look at these death bound ghosts and see oneself stumbling in the night---through dim jerky memories of another being one once was---somewhere in a war zone--miraculously surviving seizures and comas, blackouts, the disappearance for a time of any sense of life--a black inert presence has one seemingly wedged between life and death--one can't move--yes--there goes one now--a person suddenly transfixed before going through a spastic imitation of a Crucifixion of themselves--seizures--thrashings--

As the economy goes down the toilet, so do the places for help start to vanish, become ever fewer--and some hospitals actually will turn away people they think will never pay --no insurance, nothing--

The whole health care system is eugenics against the poor and "unneeded"--

How many dope fiends, how many prostitutes, runaways, impressed into service young women--wind up anonymously dead, the notations along the way of the repetitions of a serial killer--and then another one and another--how many dead women have you seen?--no ID and lying in the road late at night--flashlight lit as some cops try to make sense of a murder scene so bizarre the details cannot be released to the press? Or other scenes that one cannot get out of the mind--as well as ones one has only heard about--let alone lived through--

And yet none of these women were anonymous beings--many of them many people knew--remembered--loved--brought up--many around here one speaks with many times a week--

This is why much of this discussion to me is like an objectification of the very beings that the protests about objectification are being made in the name of.

My first memories of prostitutes was being offered a job in a fancy whorehouse that catered to an American clientele of the old school--Texas oil men, business men on the loose in Gay Paree--the woman who hired me was a sort of second in command Madame--i don't recall how i met here--but she needed a translator for a week while the regular one was on a vacation--so i spent day or night shifts translating back and forth, making introduction in the swank Western Saloon style room where introductions were exchanged and various other matters sorted out--I was 16 at the time and sleeping in streets and abandoned houses and cars, so some extra money and free meals was a great boost in the world for me--trhe Madame said, well, young man you can pass for 20--that's old enough--

The workers in the brothel were not allowed to go out with each other--as there were other men who worked there, cooking, cleaning, doing dishes and laundry--and doubling as bouncers and security guards if there was ever any problems at all--

The women were al in a union and once month the government inspectors came to check everyone for diseases, and make sure the place was as clean as possible, and the behaviour of everyone was in line. The idea being that legalized and unionized prostitution gives rights and protection to the prostitutes they otherwise do not have at all, as here in the land of the free.

When there was a time for our breaks, whoever was around would get together and go to a cafe or sit in the kitchen and drink bocks and coffee. Lots gossiping and card playing and showing about of pictures of children, fiancees, husbands, boy friends. Then back to work.

Since then I've known a lot of prostitutes as friends or neighbors and there is always different yet somewhat a same story involved.

People say "prostitute" like it is someone filthy and low--but look at the high class cal girls so called, who get politicians in trouble, or for that matter the movie stars who charge huge amounts for the fotos of their babies or their bikini clad frolics with some ex-lover.

And how much did the American public pay for the election--a billion dollars!!--How many people did the President sell himself to to get to the Oval Office--

How much of one's soul did one sell out for a step up the career ladder--or poem in a journal--or a name on the door like a Bigelow on the floor--

How much of life is not a form of prostitution,--though perhaps without the dangers and horrors the street level and sex slave trades, which buy up children for the uses of perverts with immense bankrolls-- or just tourists passing through on the way to see Junior's basketball game--

There is far more prostitution at every level than one would imagine, until one has seen how many things work, with the paying of cash for appearances,hiring someone to take along--and then--

And though people are angered --who is working to change things? In one of the five sections of Roberto Bolano's novel 2666--there are the relentlessly presented murders after murders with rapes and tortures recounted that happened the area just over the American border--al these are young girls who work also in the factories--not prostitutes at all--but suddenly swooped on and turned into a ritualized thing--a doll, an object to be taken apart and then covered back up, with the neat clean clothes paced over the cut and violated body--

Imagine the Black Dahlia multiplied bya thousand--and al based on true hapnings --

These murderers of anonymous and known and named women--are like the serial killer and anonymously butchered bodies found al over the USA--and al the battered women, the addicted women, the homeless the insane--

Years of sitting and talking,hanging out--and learning of these lives--is how one sees this not just as "objectification" in the sense of "the male gaze" but of society's gaze--which doesn't see a person, but only reads the label--"prostitute"--

So that objectification carries even into the critics of objectification, for they themselves are not seeing a person, but only a label, a category--

Or, at the Poetry Brothel, a Camp performance of something out of Cabaret--

What can one say other than that this is a disposable society and culture?-- The inner cities are pumped full of crack by the CIA to destroy communities, enslave people to addiction, destroy generations of men and women, break up families--one looks around and sees the holocaust unfolding daily-- and no one will do anything about it--there's way too much money involved, way too much to be milked out of Colombia and Afghanistan for the American ends of these hook ups--

Pumping Grade A US Certified killer heroin into the suburbs--the most kick ass and deadly heroin ever known to be in this country--killing scores of users young and old--(very rarely do old users overdose--and now they are by untold numbers--dropping like flies)

The unending Wars, straight out of Orwell's 1984--War on Poverty--War on Drugs--War on Terror--

Think of the trillions that have been pumped into he War Machine--into the genocide of Iraq--and the "Right War" President Obama has in mind for Afghanistan and parts of Pakistan--not to mention the immense funding that this country spends on Apartheid, while feeling so proud for electing a Black president--we support the most vicious Apartheid regime there has been--

What does that kind of hypocrisy tel one?

Right there its say it all--neither we nor our allies believe one whit in democracy and equality--what we embrace mightily and pump billions and trillions into is the establishment for eternity of Exceptionalism and Racial supremacy--

This is why i think that the "objectification" halts at the word itself and does not go further--into those unpredictable areas where "prostitutes" are no longer objects but actual persons--

At an American Indian group the other night people were saying with grief and shock and rage how horrified they were by the killing in Gaza--because for decades its a repeat of the land theft cultural destruction and genocide of the Indigenous peoples in America, now paid for and supplied by the mega mega tons overseas.

One man said--that's us they're killing all over again--why else does the US allow this to go on other than that they obviously must approve of it--killing and segregation, prison camps- hells on earth--the Trail of Tears--the Apartheid Walls --Sieges--and the same old double talk to make it be covered up=--to make it all look nice and pretty and hide the blood and muck away

in a way isn't that what the Poetry Brothel is al about--making the actual "selling of poems" and "poets performances" far more "attractive" and "exciting"--"stimulating"-- than the usual boring read before a boring backdrop in a boring room -- now instead of the dullness and no stimulation, no matter what the poems are like--who cares anyway!--a good time and eats and drinks will be had by all--

as they say in the restaurant business, its not what they eat that matters but how good you make it look for them --that really whets the appetite and seals the deal-- think of how many art and poetry movements after al started in cabarets and clubs, bars--cellars--Dada--Punk--the scenes from Fellini's Satyricon which he called a science fiction film set int he past of "futurist" Latin poets reciting, or that is, having their paid reciters recite--their verses and deadly clever epigrams which just be made into actual deaths in a new and novel and very clever fashion--

mush like the shaping of verses in an exquisitely honed new form, so are the creative variations and inventions which the poet executioner brings about, realized in aa action event performance from a Score of ingenious and fractal dice throwing chance operations-- which never abolish chance--

played upon the actual "backbone Flute" of Mayakovsky whose Russian Futurism has likewise landed in the past--ready and willing to compete with Marinetti's in the arenas--

of blood dust and glory--
--
 think though that sooner or later the next steps will be taken and the poetry and the brothel will be raised to ever higher scales and skills and so the REAL money can start to roll in!

meaning--no more amateurs!--and then the Real Pros will start to roll in--

buy the poet and have he or she give not only the poem but themselves to you!! and then autograph you!!
or a nice foto of the two of you in flagrante delecto!!

why do it for free anyway--
how tedious and unexciting!
it can be like the Visconti short film in which Romy Schneider discovers her husband is only really attracted to her when she makes him pay--

isn't that why we like our wars so much, because we have to pay and pay and pay for drugs and wars and poverty being spread far and wide by the massive spending on wars-- aren't these the ultimate Brothels--the porno of watching helpless peoples be bombed and starved tortured cut off from medications and food water and electricity in the winter cold--and phosphorous and cluster bombed to death by the hundreds and thousands-- isn't this what we really paid for-- the ultimate Snuff Films set in the vast desolation--

the annihilation of a people --

"until not one stone shall be left on another"
and what is next on the menu, what can possibly top this-- the "Right War?"--the torching of every single moving being in Afghanistan--of parts of Pakistan and then on to Iran--at last!!-- and since no media is allowed to record anything as it happens what great fun al national poets can have in suturing together the reams of Army footage and propaganda to produce the ultimate epic--

the Brothel to end al Brothels----where the Snuff films play to the tinkling of subdued piano music and someone is reading a very radical and innovative poem and after the audience has been softened up so to speak-- as is conjectured in the Bolano story from the heinous realities-- income the kidnapped and drugged runaways the over the hill hookers--the too addicted to function anymore--or simply the cutest little teenage girls and/or boys you have ever seen-- and right there in front of one, no longer a film--

but the Reality Show of Death--LIVE!!!

now ladies and gentlemen isn't that what we are really paying for-- admission to the ultimate Show!!

looking out the window here one can see it --the ultimate show--the death rattles and violent seizures--

the grip of crack on a ho's neck and her windpipe shutting down -- let's see what kind of verses can be made to accompany those sounds--

overdubbed or done LIVE
and right here and now before a video camera and mic

why not--
to watch oneself watch the death of another-- and then film that in turn until an endless hall of mirrors is made--of images of oneself watching another's death--murder-mutilation and violation----

the ultimate brothel poetry show-- as one's voice in the voice over is reciting the latest innovative style of radical poetry--
and-- a complete circuitry of onanism is accomplished--and recorded for the paying audience, the hottest thing going in the brothel charnal house of poetry in the land of a thousand dances of death--

the deaths individual and lonely and those public and many-- the gleaming drones and fighter jets their ways lit by illegal use of phosphorous illuminating the bursting into flames and blood of a family, an old woman-- walls blown asunder to reveal--nothing-- nothing had been there al along except--the skin of a long departed onion

pale and translucent in the light of the spreading infernos-- as bodies already burned through by phosphorous are ignited by the chemical mixtures happening at lightning speed and transforming the veins into writing green vines that choke and tear the skeletons apart and leave their grinning teeth lying their deaths heads in the last views of a rape and snuff scene that is superimposed and then faded out-- as the bodies burn and skeletons disintegrate and the ground itself is heaving, ion convulsions--

and then erupts and like Atlantis what is left of this place of the damned and doomed sinks forever out of sight extinguished caught live on camera snuffed out-- forever--

though to be sure many captive females have bee hsutled off, saved to spend their lives serving in the brothels and live death cinemas--

of the new order--

the ultimate "Ending"--
why not--as it has all been bought and paid for and might just be the most incredible new form of poems--
the real Apocalypse-- snuffing out a culture

while poets recite and sexual acts are performed ending in the Death of the--not the Author--but-- that non person hauled into be slaughtered while everyone is aroused-- this is the ultimate destination hinted at and part way accomplished in Bolano's Distant Star (Polaroids instead of moving pictures--) and realized in real life in Chile and turned into paragraphs in By Night in Chile-- and eerily starting to become realized in new ways still unfolding-- in the emergence of the new extreme experimental American poetry--

and there sitting before one the Manet images-of prostitutes -turning in to scenes from Goya--

. . . . . Hardly ever any more does one look out a window on one side of the building and see sexual transactions going on between the wall and the dumpsters. Or in the back of the building, in a an area the stairway that's now too lit up for the old action to continue. Sex is very cheap--a couple bucks, five, ten--enough to get the next couple rocks of crack or a four pack of malt liquor. A lot of the time people are high and just want to talk with you and have a cigarette and feel like they are carrying on a "normal conversation." And why not--just about everyone now and then would like to feel if even for the course of smoking a cigarette like a "normal person."

On Mon, Jan 12, 2009 at 7:14 PM, susan dunn-hensley <[redacted]> wrote:

Ruth-

For what it's worth, Ruth. I think you raised some valid points.

Susan

--- On Mon, 1/12/09, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]> wrote:

From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>

Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

To: [redacted]

Date: Monday, January 12, 2009, 3:31 PM

there is a sweetheart--Tim Peterson. thank you, esp as I'm too busy to continue this discussion.

love

ruth

wish we COULD.

On 1/12/09 8:27 AM, "Tim Peterson" <[redacted]>

wrote:

> Adam! Ruth! Two of my dearest friends...it makes me feel terrible to see

you > guys fighting like this! The Poetry Brothel is not worth getting this upset > about. Let's all kick back in my living room with a mug of coco and listen

> to Gloria Steinheim records backwards. How about this evening?
>
> Love, Tim
>
> Date: Sat, 10 Jan 2009 23:49:49 -0500
> From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>
> twisting my words!
> so writing about objections to prostitution does nothing, huh--so words don't matter?
> I think all those jobs are degrading.
> I wd like to defend yr friends by getting them better jobs.
> I am not criticizing these women.
> Better working conditions wd be not having to succumb to male ideas of sexuality in our culture, such narrow constraints.
>
> On 1/9/09 5:49 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]>

wrote:

> but you were the one crying shame! on the women of the Poetry Brothel!

for

> dressing like whores!

> (please note that I am NOT arguing that prostitution is not a sexist > institution. clearly it is. and i agree that it is part of a complex

of > normative heterosexuality that does terrible violence to all women.

But

> as
> for the actual women who are living in actual slavery, i think

complaining

> about the symbolic degrading of womankind does nothing for them:

it's like

> trying to improve the safety of coal mines by complaining about

climate > change.

>
> And if you're just using those women (who are very real, and many of them

> living in absolutely horrific situations, as you rightly pointed out)

as > symbols of Degraded Womankind, you are doing a disservice to them and

also > to the many many women (some of whom must be subscribers to this list)

who

> work in other parts of the sex trade -- exotic dancers, high-end
> call-girls,
> dominatrices, nude housekeepers, pornographic models, hooters

waitresses,

> etc. -- some of these people are my friends and i take it personally

--

> and
> I think that their own struggles for better working conditions are not > unrelated to the struggle against slavery in other parts of their bosses'

> businesses...
>
> -- but i'm sorry that i overreacted and became part of a litany of

men

> (all
>
> men! really! can it really be that there are no women here who work

in

> the
>
> sex trade??) who are all seemingly trying to justify the institution

as an > institution. I am not trying to justify it, just trying to defend my

>
> friends who work there from the harsh judgments of their elders...
>
> ==========

guidelines &

==========

==========

Windows Live™: Keep your life in sync.
http://windowslive.com/explore?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_allup_explore_012009

↑ Index

230. Martha Cinader Mims

L&BH Network Fresh Literary Content January 14, 2009

Wed 14 Jan 2009

L&BH Network Fresh Literary Content January 14, 2009

L&BH Network Arts News

Writers Wanted opportunities editor Friday, 07:28 PM Poets & Writers, Inc.â€™s Readings/Workshops program offers small grants for literary events in California. Applications are due a minimum of eight weeks in advance, so now is the perfect time to apply for spring events. We are especially interested in funding events taking place in Alpine, Colusa, Contra Costa, El Dorado, Glenn, Kings, Mariposa, Merced, Mono, San [...] Read moreâ€¦

Teen Poetry Slam @ JFK
yalifjfk
Thursday, 04:12 PM
Poetry Slam for Vallejo teens @ JFK. Read moreâ€¦

L&BH Network Mailing Lists [PCOPWC] Bay Area Poets Honoring the Legacy of Dr. Martin Luther King and a New Era with President Elect Barack Obama Kim McMillon L&BH Poetry Cafe Blog

BRIO TRIO dr. charles frederickson Today, 03:49 PM Obamagic wand conjuring presto chango Renewal of liberty fair-minded justice Universal What the Health insurance A-OK â€“ serving All Our Kids Politricks of betrayed starry-eyed stripes Abracadaver anti-war protests burying hatchet Axes of we-evil yielding to Negotiated search for peaceful harmony Legerdemain sleight of underhanded manipulation Bottom of stacked deck wheeler- dealers Gee- wizardry eco-greenback sawbucks in recession Burning [...] Read moreâ€¦

thatâ€™s the way life be Rain Today, 03:38 PM everybody answers to somebody i answer to me iâ€™m harder on myself than anybody else could be been in love ? yea, a time or two every felt heart break ? yep, how bout you everyone stands alone in lifeâ€™s pourin rain everyoneâ€™s got their own umbrella their own way to hide from pain iâ€™ve been on that shadowy highway lookin for someplace to rest iâ€™ve laughed when i felt like [...] Read moreâ€¦

Oakland, CA - 02/27 - HUMANIST HALL - USA - REGINALD J. LOCKETTâ€™S BACKYARD BOOGIE OF THE SPIRITS martha cinader mims Yesterday, 06:09 PM REGINALD J. LOCKETTâ€™S BACKYARD BOOGIE OF THE SPIRITS When 02/27 7:00pm - All Ages Where HUMANIST HALL (map) 390 27th Street Oakland, CA, USA 94612 Other InfoREGINALD J. LOCKETTâ€™S BACKYARD BOOGIE OF THE SPIRITS A POETIC MUSICAL TRIBUTE FOR AN OAKTOWN TREASURE featuring THE WORDWIND CHORUS (Q.R. Hand Jr, Brian Auerbach & Lewis Jordan) AL YOUNG (former CA State Poet Laureate) ANTHONY J. SMITH & ELIZA SHEFLER MARTHA CINADER & TONY MIMS AVOTCJA (Poet) & VAL SERRANT [...] Read moreâ€¦

Petaluma, CA - 01/29 - Petaluma Arts Center - USA - Poetic Symmetry martha cinader mims Yesterday, 05:26 PM Poetic Symmetry When 01/29 8:00pm - All Ages Where Petaluma Arts Center (map) 230 Lakeville Street Petaluma, CA, USA 94952 At the corner of Lakeville and East D Streets. Other InfoMartha and Tony Mims will be joined by Carltrent on percussion and Paul Neal on upright bass, for two sets from 8-10 pm, at this new venue in Petaluma. There is a $5 admission charge. Â« Back [...] Read moreâ€¦

A POSITIVE SPIRIT Dr. T. Ashok Chakravarthy Yesterday, 05:14 PM Yes, day by day, year after year While age peels layer after layer, The seasons of life lose their glitter Fearful, the spirit of life withers. The most treasured lifeâ€™s seasons Slowly sail into the memories ocean, Childhood and youth remain a passion Enticing with ever-new hopes, often. Frequent storms of pains and emotions Almost ravage to the brink of extinction, Somehow we crawl out [...] Read moreâ€¦

Nikki Purrs michael lee johnson Monday, 03:58 PM Soft nursing 5 solid minutes of purr paw peddling like a kayak competitor against ripples of my 60 year old river rib cageâˆ’ I feel like a nursing mother but Iâ€™m male and I have no nipples. Sometimes I feel afloat. Nikki is a little black skunk, kitten, suckles me for milk, or affection? But she is 8 years old a cat. Iâ€™m her substitute mother, afloat in a flower [...] Read moreâ€¦

NO HOLDS BARD 2009 RESOLUTIONS
dr. charles frederickson
Monday, 03:04 PM
20/20 VISION XVI. Phoenix ashes annulled in flames Firebirds rekindling myths stoking embers Scarlet plumage tickling storybook fancy Stragglers playing catch-up left behind Igor Stravinskyâ€™s Firebird Suite fantasia Magical glow twofold blessings curse Infernal dance bewitching princely captor Spell broken immortality beyond reach Dr. Charles Frederickson (www.poeartry-combo.com) & Saknarin Chinayote (www.poeartrygallery.th.gs) Co-editors of AvantGardeTimes.com Read moreâ€¦

Charley Plays a Tune michael lee johnson Friday, 06:42 PM Crippled with arthritis and Alzheimerâ€™s, in a dark rented room, Charley plays melancholic melodies on a dust filled harmonica he found abandoned on a playground of sand years ago by a handful of children playing on monkey bars. He now goes to the bathroom on occasion, relieving himself takes forever; he feeds the cat when he doesnâ€™t forget where the food is stashed at. He hears bedlam when he buys [...] Read moreâ€¦

20/20 Vision XVII
dr. charles frederickson
Friday, 03:49 PM
Who invented Euclidean geometry anyway Pretzel logic twisted into shape RR-Xing diminishing perspective tunnel vision Parallel line horizons eventually merge Ingenious designs persuading bent curves To straighten into linear planes

Triangle mounts reconfigured upscale pyramids Squishy spheres deflated helium balloons Dr. Charles Frederickson (www.poeartry-combo.com) & Saknarin Chinayote (www.poeartrygallery.th.gs) Co-editors of AvantGardeTimes.com Read moreâ€¦

Mother, Edith, at 98 michael lee johnson Thursday, 04:58 PM Edith, in this nursing home blinded with macular degeneration, I come to you with your blurry eyes, crystal sharp mind, your countenance of graceâˆ’ as yesterdayâ€™s winds I have chosen to consume you and take you away. â€œOh, where did Jesus disappear toâ€, she murmured, over and over again, in a low voice dripping words like a leaking faucet: â€œOh, there He is my Angel of the coming.â€ Read moreâ€¦

Martha Cinader Mims
Listen & Be Heard Network
[redacted]
http://www.listenandbeheard.net

Get Skype and call me for free.

↑ Index

231. Ruth Lepson
Re: [SPAM]Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
Wed 14 Jan 2009

---

who is telling them they can or can not do anything?

On 1/14/09 1:56 PM, "Troy Camplin" <[redacted]> wrote:

> In the end, who are you or I or anybody else to tell someone what they can and cannot do, to prevent people from hurting themselves (especially if it's our opinion that they are hurting themselves)? It seems pretty arrogant to tell adults what they can and cannot do with their own bodies and minds. We can quibble all day about whether or not prostitutes under legalized conditions are "hurt" by the job or not, but in the end, we don't know what a person likes or does not lie, is hurt by or is not hurt by, prefers or does not prefer precisely because we cannot be inside their heads, knowing any of those things. Faced with such overwhelming ignorance of such things about others, we should let people do what they want to do and be who they want to be so long as it doesn't involve force or threat of force. THis isn't to say that one should not be out there trying to create conditions where women don't have to choose prostitution, that one shouldn't be trying to change minds -- but it is to say that one should not be using either force or the threat of force to make people do what you want or make them accept what you think is best for them.

Troy Camplin

From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, January 14, 2009 7:55:53 AM
Subject: Re: [SPAM]Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

well, you're ok with it but are they ok with it? I mean, doesn't it hurt them? whether it's legal or not?

On 1/13/09 5:05 PM, "Mark Weiss" <[redacted]> wrote:

To extrapolate:

Since as it becomes easier to get laid for free the stuff a prostitute has to do to make a living gets weirder everybody should keep their legs crossed.

Did I get it right?

I'm ok with folks doing what they want to make a living, even if they only do it because they feel bad about themselves, and people buying their services, even if they only do it because they feel bad about themselves. Unless we legislate mental health (and assume that the motivations are always unhealthy) it's the best we're likely to do.

Coercion of any kind is another matter. Legalization makes it a lot easier to fight coercion (and incidentally to minimize the spread of disease).

I'd say the same for drug use, even though most people probably shouldn't put a spike in their arm.

Mark

At 12:39 AM 1/13/2009, you wrote:

I've been following the discussion only sporadically, so please forgive any redundancy, but, the well-known "Effects of Prolonged Consumption of Pornography" and other studies suggest that in places where pornography is legal and increasingly popular there is a corresponding decrease in the incidence of violent sexual crimes. As if the medium could allow for the safe channeling of > certain repressed and thereby sinister desires. However, many observers attribute said decreased incidence to a greater leniency in attitudes towards sexual behavior and an inability, or unwillingness, to interpret sex crimes as such. In this regard, where pornography is widely consumed, we might note the evolution of more exotic and aggressive forms of it (think anus, gangbang, shit in the mouth).

>
> Though pornography and prostitution aren't the same thing, perhaps the same principle holds true. The more the thing is permitted, the more boring it gets, and so, the more deviant and illicit and forbidden its form must take. Or in other terms, hunger (out of boredom) ensures the creation (and delivery) of new products. The more we're ok with prostitution, the more we're ok with whatever treatment the prostitute receives, and the more novel treatments we'll surely find. Let the free market rule. After all they're just a muscle.
>
> Jared Schickling

↑ Index

232. Ruth Lepson

Re: [SPAM]Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

Wed 14 Jan 2009

yes let's ban MFA programs and sleeping with poets.musicians are more fun.

On 1/14/09 9:54 AM, "Mark Weiss" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Aren't you talking about motivation? If there were no coercion, would it be ok for people to choose to do things that might hurt them? What other potentially self-destructive things should we make illegal? Demolition derbies? Surfing? Skateboarding? Smoking? Drinking? MFA programs? Or if we limit the list to sexual behavior, which is apparently a separate category? one night stands? Sleeping with musicians? A list would be helpful.
>
> Mark
>
> At 08:55 AM 1/14/2009, you wrote:
> well, you're ok with it but are they ok with it? I mean, doesn't it hurt them? whether it's legal or not?

On 1/13/09 5:05 PM, "Mark Weiss" <[redacted]> wrote:

To extrapolate:

Since as it becomes easier to get laid for free the stuff a prostitute has to do to make a living gets weirder everybody should keep their legs crossed.

Did I get it right?

I'm ok with folks doing what they want to make a living, even if they only do it because they feel bad about themselves, and people buying their services, even if they only do it because they feel bad about themselves. Unless we legislate mental health (and assume that the motivations are always unhealthy) it's the best we're likely to do.

Coercion of any kind is another matter. Legalization makes it a lot easier to fight coercion (and incidentally to minimize the spread of disease).

I'd say the same for drug use, even though most people probably shouldn't put a spike in their arm.

Mark

At 12:39 AM 1/13/2009, you wrote:

I've been following the discussion only sporadically, so please forgive any redundancy, but, the well-known "Effects of Prolonged Consumption of Pornography" and other studies suggest that in places where pornography is legal and increasingly popular there is a corresponding decrease in the incidence of violent sexual crimes. As if the medium could allow for the safe channeling of certain repressed and thereby sinister desires. However, many observers attribute said decreased incidence to a greater leniency in attitudes towards sexual behavior and an inability, or unwillingness, to interpret sex crimes as such. In this regard, where pornography is widely consumed, we might note the evolution of more exotic and aggressive forms of it (think anus, gangbang, shit in the mouth).

Though pornography and prostitution aren't the same thing, perhaps the same principle holds true. The more the thing is permitted, the more boring it gets, and so, the more deviant and illicit and forbidden its form must take. Or in other terms, hunger (out of boredom) ensures the creation (and delivery) of new products. The more we're ok with prostitution, the more we're ok with whatever > treatment the prostitute receives, and the more novel treatments we'll surely find. Let the free market rule. After all they're just a muscle.

>
> Jared Schickling
>
> guidelines &

↑ Index

233. Jena Osman

ChainLinks update

Wed 14 Jan 2009

Hi,

We're pleased to announce that the first three books in the ChainLinks series are now available through Small Press Distribution:

1) Intersection: Sidewalks and Public Space
eds. Marci Nelligan and Nicole Mauro with work by Jane Jacobs, Paul Madonna, Claire Potter, William Pope L., Mitchell Duneier, and Melissa Ngo
http://spdbooks.org/details.asp?BookID=1930068395
This book has been review in Jacket Magazine:
http://jacketmagazine.com/36/r-chainlinks-rb-alvergue.shtml
and you can hear an interview about the book with Marci Nelligan here:
http://madriveranthology.wordpress.com/2008/08/16/marci-nelligan-intersection/

2) Borders
eds. Susanne Christensen and Audun Lindholm with work by Ida Borjel, Matias Faldbakken, and Das Beckwerk
http://spdbooks.org/details.asp?BookID=9781930068384

3) Refuge/Refugee
ed. Jena Osman with work by Emily Abendroth, Bryan Finoki, Amze Emmons, and The Documentary Project
http://spdbooks.org/details.asp?BookID=9781930068414

Stay tuned for more books in the series, as well as a new and improved website for Chain Arts (www.chainarts.org).

Best,
Jena Osman and Juliana Spahr
ChainLinks Series Editors

↑ Index

234. Daniel Remein, Editor fashion
Wed 14 Jan 2009

Whiskey & Fox's most recent print issue (the last of our very tiny and hastily made editions), Vol. 2 No. 2, May 2008, "Fashion," is now available electronically. For free, of course, on our website at http://whiskeyandfox.blogspot.com . "Fashion" features work from Tomaž Šalamun, Thomas Kane, Kelly Ramsey, Sarah Bagley, Julie Granum, Robin Clarke, Sten Carlson, Emily Gropp, Daniel C. Remein, and Joshua Zelesnick.

Additionally, I do think a good deal of the POETICS community will be interested in this journal, its politics, its publications, etc--as readers and contributors. If you haven't yet made your way over there, give it a look around, http://whiskeyandfox.blogspot.com . There is still a current call for submissions for the next issue, "Doing Politics with Animals," our first all-electronic larger-scale production.

Cheers

Daniel C. Remein, Editor
[redacted]

↑ Index

235. Ryan Daley
Re: coMpetition does
Wed 14 Jan 2009

Agree with Troy on this one.

On Wed, Jan 14, 2009 at 4:04 PM, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:

> Being eaten alive in a workshop isn't a bad thing. If you can't stand criticism of your work, you won't improve much as an artist. This isn't to say that everything in a workshop is golden (it isn't), but you come out with many perspectives and, if you know what you're really hearing, you can figure out what's really wrong that needs work among the comments and criticisms. But CA is right, you do have to be careful to distinguish between those who wish to help you, and those who are envious and want to tear you down, to "get rid of the competition." Again, if you're paying attention, it does become pretty obvious before long. Be on the lookout for those who come up to you later and apologize for "being so rough" and/or who offer more suggestions or offer to look at it again after the revision.

Those are the ones who want to help you. They will also more likely be the good poets. Nasty, antisocial, selfish people do not have the wisdom necessary to be great poets. Or even good or mediocre poets.

Troy Camplin

From: steve d. dalachinsky <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, January 14, 2009 12:25:39 AM
Subject: Re: coMpetition does

here here CA i fully understand being one who has always avoided workshops and it probably shows

On Tue, 13 Jan 2009 12:28:19 -0500 CA Conrad <[redacted]>
writes:
Recently I've met a couple of young poets (yet again) who dropped out
of poetry writing workshops because they were, in the words of one
of
these poets, "eaten alive."

The conversation isn't new. And it's not a conversation about workshops in particular, but competition in a bigger sense.

When is competition good, meaning productive, meaning THE THING
which spurs poets into action in the best sense, in the sense of WANTING
to
write as well as they can.

And when is competition ugly, filled with envy and jealousy,
reaching a surprising number of times in my observations to the most
corrupt,
wicked, disturbing places people can get to.

The conversation is tricky because I'm always trying to ask,
investigate with others, WHERE IS THE line between competition when
it's healthy, and rotten?

There's no doubt in my mind that these two young poets (the latest
two

that is, as I've been having this conversation for years now and I don't even remember how many times I've had it frankly) love, really LOVE poetry. We share that, we find when talking that we share that DRIVE, depositing ourselves in front of bookstore poetry sections, and libraries, and asking everyone we know who their favorite poets are, and titles, and never getting enough of this love. Never getting enough of it. And not just feeling sad when a bookstore like GOTHAM BOOKMART closes down but ANGRY!

We're so much alike, and we tell one another what we're most excited about NOW, and everyone's scratching notes for the library and bookstore. How we're NOT alike is that these two young poets are VERY vulnerable to attack. When they were said to be "eaten alive" I'm not surprised. And I'm sad, and wish they were MORE LIKE ME and laugh at the bastards and say, "OH YOU'RE JUST A HATER, YOU JEALOUS PIG!" Or, "Yeah well, THANKS, being attacked GETS ME UP IN THE MORNING TO MAKE YOU ANGRY!" It feeds me when someone attacks me, I LOVE it.

But of course a lot of people don't respond well when they're attacked, and this makes me sad. I've known poets WHOSE POEMS MADE ME HAPPY who stopped writing poems because of such attacks. In some cases the attacks were from their professors, and the other students, egged-on by the professors. A FEEDING FRENZY in such a way that makes me want to puke for poetry. It disgusts me this kind of behavior.

I'm not a professor, but I have conducted poetry workshops, and it's NOT HARD AT ALL in my opinion to keep the focus about everyone (including myself because I want to learn from THEM TOO!) investigating poetry together! My focus is about PROCESS, about the many weird ways to MAKE poetry happen, NOT ABOUT who is writing poems I think are good, or another person in the workshop thinks are good,

or not.

This is NOT goody-two-shoe bullshit, I'm JUST NOT INTERESTED in telling someone whether I like their poems or not when I'm conducting workshops. And it's none of my business frankly. But to LOVE
poetry,
and read it, and create it, and have it in our lives, now THAT is something I get very excited about!

But what is that line? When is it crossed from productive and beautiful and everyone's excited and MAKING poetry, to that place
of
shit?

I'd rather see poems ABOUT that dark spot on the poetry map, than
see it overwhelm another poet. And I mean overwhelm the poet who NEEDS
to
be vicious, and of course I mean the poet who gets beaten down.

This conversation cannot happen unless we talk about the bigger things
around it, like, WHY IS EVERYONE NOT UNDERSTANDING EVERYONE IS
CREATIVE WE ARE ALL CREATIVE THIS IS NOT UP FOR DEBATE. Or is it?
I've had people tell me this is wrong, that everyone's NOT
creative.
But I disagree.

And the conversation needs to be about how the way poets act about
scarcity and fear that there's not enough NOT ENOUGH magazines NOT ENOUGH awards or enough room at the reading series, not enough, is really, such an old story about us being animals.

And the conversation needs to be about how to protect ourselves if
we
can't withstand the attacks.

And the conversation needs to be about how people don't need to attack
others because THERE IS ENOUGH.

And the conversation needs to be about how art and all our creative abilities have become part of a big system in the capital of art
and
poetry, and books, and writing programs and teaching and, and, and CONSUMPTION, and frankly how, more than ever there's more reasons

*than ever for us to feel like we're NOT working hard enough, NOT being
good
enough, NOT good enough, so many reasons to feel like shit.*

*It's a big conversation. But I feel I'm always having it. And
it's one of the most important ones to have some days, especially when I
meet young poets who have just been destroyed in workshops, made to feel worthless. The one poet started crying, and said, literally between sobs, "ALL I WANT TO DO IS WRITE POETRY!" It's really
awful,
I just want to hit whoever did this to this person, but of course
that's not helpful.*

*The line crossed is hard to see because it's different for everyone,
I think. Right? Sometimes I'm not sure I'm right about that, but it feels right, doesn't just feel like an answer I've come up with to forget thinking about it, because I really want to figure it out,
if it can be figured out. There's too much at stake, at least it feels that way when I meet YET ANOTHER amazing young poet who becomes afraid
of workshops and other poets and stops writing.*

*I've met so many amazing poets who stop, for so many reasons they stop. The most common reason though is that they get worn out from the struggle of dealing with many hungry egos. And their own
hungry
ego. It goes back to the discussion about why we're writing, and what has writing become in this world for us?*

*CAConrad
--
PhillySound: new poetry http://PhillySound.blogspot.com*

THE BOOK OF FRANK by CAConrad http://CAConrad.blogspot.com

↑ Index

236. Fluffy Singler
Re: coMpetition does
Wed 14 Jan 2009

Does it have to be about competition?

I teach theatre as well as having taught writing on occasion. The thing about theatre and performance is that you HAVE to make mistakes in front of other people in order to get better and so for me, it's important to create a laboratory environment where it's assumed that you'll make some "mistakes" and that some things will work better than other. Using the laboratory analogy, scientists don't assume that every experiment will produce expected or predictable results. That's the point--to try things and see how they work.

With peer review of any kind of work, that's what I try to focus on--what worked or didn't work and why, keeping in mind that peer review is still as much about developing the skills of the reviewer as the person being reviewed, whether grad or undergrad students. What elements drew your attention? Where were things unclear? And also to ask the performing (or writing) students what their own goals were so that the work can be evaluated in those terms. Maybe they're ok with some things being open-ended or unclear, for example. Maybe some of the things that disturb their peers structurally are intended to disturb or annoy. Maybe there's a legitimate goal there. Or, maybe the work is truly muddled or clichéd or maybe the work has all the elements it needs but still doesn't come together and needs a monkeywrench. The point of a workshop should be to help the artist get to clarity about what they've done, not even to critique or compare yourselves to one another.

I have a friend who does experimental writing and has a very hard time in workshops because her writing is so different than what many of the other students do. But it shouldn't be about personal taste, even though writing is definitely subjective.

There's something to be said for instructors setting a tone that encourages students to open their minds to other types of writing than their own, other types of writing than what they personally like or think is "good" and to consider that each writer may have his or her own objectives to what they write. Having some regular readings that encourage students to open up to other types of writing, as well as the writing assignments themselves, can also help with that. It seems to me that the instructor needs to keep a handle on all of that. But again, I don't see where it has to be a competition at all, personally.

-----Original Message-----
From: CA Conrad [mailto:[redacted]]

Sent: Tuesday, January 13, 2009 11:28 AM
Subject: coMpetition does

Recently I've met a couple of young poets (yet again) who dropped out of poetry writing workshops because they were, in the words of one of these poets, "eaten alive."

The conversation isn't new. And it's not a conversation about workshops in particular, but competition in a bigger sense.

When is competition good, meaning productive, meaning THE THING which spurs poets into action in the best sense, in the sense of WANTING to write as well as they can.

And when is competition ugly, filled with envy and jealousy, reaching a surprising number of times in my observations to the most corrupt, wicked, disturbing places people can get to.

The conversation is tricky because I'm always trying to ask, investigate with others, WHERE IS THE line between competition when it's healthy, and rotten?

There's no doubt in my mind that these two young poets (the latest two that is, as I've been having this conversation for years now and I don't even remember how many times I've had it frankly) love, really LOVE poetry. We share that, we find when talking that we share that DRIVE, depositing ourselves in front of bookstore poetry sections, and libraries, and asking everyone we know who their favorite poets are, and titles, and never getting enough of this love. Never getting enough of it. And not just feeling sad when a bookstore like GOTHAM BOOKMART closes down but ANGRY!

We're so much alike, and we tell one another what we're most excited about NOW, and everyone's scratching notes for the library and bookstore. How we're NOT alike is that these two young poets are VERY vulnerable to attack. When they were said to be "eaten alive" I'm not surprised. And I'm sad, and wish they were MORE LIKE ME and laugh at the bastards and say, "OH YOU'RE JUST A HATER, YOU JEALOUS PIG!" Or, "Yeah well, THANKS, being attacked GETS ME UP IN THE MORNING TO MAKE YOU ANGRY!" It feeds me when someone attacks me, I LOVE it.

But of course a lot of people don't respond well when they're attacked, and this makes me sad. I've known poets WHOSE POEMS MADE ME HAPPY who stopped writing poems because of such attacks. In some cases the attacks were from their professors, and the other students, egged-on by the professors. A FEEDING FRENZY in such a way that makes me want to puke for poetry. It disgusts me this kind of behavior.

I'm not a professor, but I have conducted poetry workshops, and it's NOT HARD AT ALL in my opinion to keep the focus about everyone (including myself because I want to learn from THEM TOO!) investigating poetry together! My focus is about PROCESS, about the many weird ways to MAKE poetry happen, NOT ABOUT who is writing poems I think are good, or another person in the workshop thinks are good, or not.

This is NOT goody-two-shoe bullshit, I'm JUST NOT INTERESTED in telling someone whether I like their poems or not when I'm conducting workshops. And it's none of my business frankly. But to LOVE poetry, and read it, and create it, and have it in our lives, now THAT is something I get very excited about!

But what is that line? When is it crossed from productive and beautiful and everyone's excited and MAKING poetry, to that place of shit?

I'd rather see poems ABOUT that dark spot on the poetry map, than see it overwhelm another poet. And I mean overwhelm the poet who NEEDS to be vicious, and of course I mean the poet who gets beaten down.

This conversation cannot happen unless we talk about the bigger things around it, like, WHY IS EVERYONE NOT UNDERSTANDING EVERYONE IS CREATIVE WE ARE ALL CREATIVE THIS IS NOT UP FOR DEBATE. Or is it? I've had people tell me this is wrong, that everyone's NOT creative. But I disagree.

And the conversation needs to be about how the way poets act about scarcity and fear that there's not enough NOT ENOUGH magazines NOT ENOUGH awards or enough room at the reading series, not enough, is really, such an old story about us being animals.

And the conversation needs to be about how to protect ourselves if we can't withstand the attacks.

And the conversation needs to be about how people don't need to attack others because THERE IS ENOUGH.

And the conversation needs to be about how art and all our creative abilities have become part of a big system in the capital of art and poetry, and books, and writing programs and teaching and, and, and CONSUMPTION, and frankly how, more than ever there's more reasons than ever for us to feel like we're NOT working hard enough, NOT being good enough, NOT good enough, so many reasons to feel like shit.

It's a big conversation. But I feel I'm always having it. And it's one of the most important ones to have some days, especially when I meet young poets who have just been destroyed in workshops, made to feel worthless. The one poet started crying, and said, literally between sobs, "ALL I WANT TO DO IS WRITE POETRY!" It's really awful, I just want to hit whoever did this to this person, but of course that's not helpful.

The line crossed is hard to see because it's different for everyone, I think. Right? Sometimes I'm not sure I'm right about that, but it feels right, doesn't just feel like an answer I've come up with to forget thinking about it, because I really want to figure it out, if it can be figured out. There's too much at stake, at least it feels that way when I meet YET ANOTHER amazing young poet who becomes afraid of workshops and other poets and stops writing.

I've met so many amazing poets who stop, for so many reasons they stop. The most common reason though is that they get worn out from the struggle of dealing with many hungry egos. And their own hungry ego. It goes back to the discussion about why we're writing, and what has writing become in this world for us?

CAConrad
--
PhillySound: new poetry http://PhillySound.blogspot.com

THE BOOK OF FRANK by CAConrad http://CAConrad.blogspot.com

↑ Index

237. Ryan Daley
Re: coMpetition does
Wed 14 Jan 2009

The problem with the workshop system is that you are you and not the writer. When you workshop someone else's work, you see it through your eyes. The most destructive crits come from those who fail to meet the work of others on its own terms...but to reduce this discussion to a simple binary, that "all workshops are bad," is absurd.

On Wed, Jan 14, 2009 at 11:50 PM, Ryan Daley <[redacted]> wrote:

> Agree with Troy on this one.
>
> On Wed, Jan 14, 2009 at 4:04 PM, Troy Camplin <[redacted]>wrote:
>
> Being eaten alive in a workshop isn't a bad thing. If you can't stand criticism of your work, you won't improve much as an artist. This isn't to say that everything in a workshop is golden (it isn't), but you come out with many perspectives and, if you know what you're really hearing, you can figure out what's really wrong that needs work among the comments and criticisms. But CA is right, you do have to be careful to distinguish between those who wish to help you, and those who are envious and want to tear you down, to "get rid of the competition." Again, if you're paying attention, it does become pretty obvious before long. Be on the lookout for those who come up to you later and apologize for "being so rough" and/or who offer more suggestions or offer to look at it again after the revision.

Those are the ones who want to help you. They will also more likely be the good poets. Nasty, antisocial, selfish people do not have the wisdom necessary to be great poets. Or even good or mediocre poets.

Troy Camplin

From: steve d. dalachinsky <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, January 14, 2009 12:25:39 AM
Subject: Re: coMpetition does

here here CA i fully understand being one who has always avoided workshops and it probably shows

On Tue, 13 Jan 2009 12:28:19 -0500 CA Conrad <[redacted]> writes:
Recently I've met a couple of young poets (yet again) who dropped out of poetry writing workshops because they were, in the words of one of these poets, "eaten alive."

The conversation isn't new. And it's not a conversation about workshops in particular, but competition in a bigger sense.

When is competition good, meaning productive, meaning THE THING which spurs poets into action in the best sense, in the sense of WANTING to write as well as they can.

And when is competition ugly, filled with envy and jealousy, reaching a surprising number of times in my observations to the most corrupt,
wicked, disturbing places people can get to.

The conversation is tricky because I'm always trying to ask, investigate with others, WHERE IS THE line between competition when it's healthy, and rotten?

*There's no doubt in my mind that these two young poets (the latest two that is, as I've been having this conversation for years now and I don't even remember how many times I've had it frankly) love, really LOVE poetry. We share that, we find when talking that we share that DRIVE, depositing ourselves in front of bookstore poetry sections, and libraries, and asking everyone we know who their favorite poets are,
and titles, and never getting enough of this love. Never getting enough of it. And not just feeling sad when a bookstore like GOTHAM
BOOKMART closes down but ANGRY!*

*We're so much alike, and we tell one another what we're most excited about NOW, and everyone's scratching notes for the library and bookstore. How we're NOT alike is that these two young poets are VERY vulnerable to attack. When they were said to be "eaten alive" I'm not surprised. And I'm sad, and wish they were MORE LIKE ME and laugh at the bastards and say, "OH YOU'RE JUST A HATER, YOU JEALOUS PIG!" Or,
"Yeah well, THANKS, being attacked GETS ME UP IN THE MORNING TO MAKE
YOU ANGRY!" It feeds me when someone attacks me, I LOVE it.*

But of course a lot of people don't respond well when they're attacked, and this makes me sad. I've known poets WHOSE POEMS MADE ME HAPPY who stopped writing poems because of such attacks. In some cases the attacks were from their professors, and the other students, egged-on by the professors. A FEEDING FRENZY in such a way that makes me want to puke for poetry. It disgusts me this kind of behavior.

*I'm not a professor, but I have conducted poetry workshops, and it's
NOT HARD AT ALL in my opinion to keep the focus about everyone
(including myself because I want to learn from THEM TOO!) investigating poetry together! My focus is about PROCESS, about the* many weird ways to MAKE poetry happen, NOT ABOUT who is writing poems

I think are good, or another person in the workshop thinks are good,
or not.

This is NOT goody-two-shoe bullshit, I'm JUST NOT INTERESTED in telling someone whether I like their poems or not when I'm conducting workshops. And it's none of my business frankly. But to LOVE poetry, and read it, and create it, and have it in our lives, now THAT is something I get very excited about!

But what is that line? When is it crossed from productive and beautiful and everyone's excited and MAKING poetry, to that place of shit?

I'd rather see poems ABOUT that dark spot on the poetry map, than see it overwhelm another poet. And I mean overwhelm the poet who NEEDS to be vicious, and of course I mean the poet who gets beaten down.

This conversation cannot happen unless we talk about the bigger things
around it, like, WHY IS EVERYONE NOT UNDERSTANDING EVERYONE IS
CREATIVE WE ARE ALL CREATIVE THIS IS NOT UP FOR DEBATE. Or is it?
I've had people tell me this is wrong, that everyone's NOT creative.
But I disagree.

And the conversation needs to be about how the way poets act about
scarcity and fear that there's not enough NOT ENOUGH magazines NOT ENOUGH awards or enough room at the reading series, not enough, is really, such an old story about us being animals.

And the conversation needs to be about how to protect ourselves if we can't withstand the attacks.

And the conversation needs to be about how people don't need to attack
others because THERE IS ENOUGH.

And the conversation needs to be about how art and all our creative abilities have become part of a big system in the capital of art

*and
poetry, and books, and writing programs and teaching and, and, and CONSUMPTION, and frankly how, more than ever there's more reasons
than ever for us to feel like we're NOT working hard enough, NOT being
good
enough, NOT good enough, so many reasons to feel like shit.*

*It's a big conversation. But I feel I'm always having it. And
it's one of the most important ones to have some days, especially when I
meet young poets who have just been destroyed in workshops, made to feel worthless. The one poet started crying, and said, literally between sobs, "ALL I WANT TO DO IS WRITE POETRY!" It's really
awful,
I just want to hit whoever did this to this person, but of course
that's not helpful.*

*The line crossed is hard to see because it's different for everyone,
I think. Right? Sometimes I'm not sure I'm right about that, but it feels right, doesn't just feel like an answer I've come up with to forget thinking about it, because I really want to figure it out,
if it can be figured out. There's too much at stake, at least it feels that way when I meet YET ANOTHER amazing young poet who becomes afraid
of workshops and other poets and stops writing.*

*I've met so many amazing poets who stop, for so many reasons they stop. The most common reason though is that they get worn out from the struggle of dealing with many hungry egos. And their own
hungry
ego. It goes back to the discussion about why we're writing, and what has writing become in this world for us?*

*CAConrad
--
PhillySound: new poetry http://PhillySound.blogspot.com*

THE BOOK OF FRANK by CAConrad http://CAConrad.blogspot.com

↑ Index

238. David Buuck

Reminder: Small Press Traffic's Poets Theater 09 starts this Friday!

Thu 15 Jan 2009

This Friday 1/16: POETS THEATER FEST, NIGHT ONE!
Please join us for a full night of theater, performance, and other delights, at the first night of our annual Poets Theater Fest fundraiser. Featuring:

WORLD PREMIERES OF:

"Elsa in Berlin" by Stan Apps (directed by David Brazil)

"Perverted Virtue" by Tetra Balestri (directed by Milenko Skoknic)

"Rabbit Butoh, Bunny Butoh" by Bhanu Kapil (directed by Erin Morrill)

"Trademark Girls" by Wendy Kramer (directed by the author)

plus: * three short plays by Daniil Kharms, trans. Matvei Yankelevich (directed by Brent Cunningham) * offstage performances by Lindsey Boldt, Ariel Goldberg, Brandon Brown, & Lara Durbeck * as well as a huge raffle, with artworks, signed broadsides and more, from a variety of poets, artists, and presses. * wine & refreshments will be served.

And: come back on the 23rd for longer plays by Leslie Scalapino, Raymond Pettibon, Vanessa Place & Olive Us, & again on the 30th for inter-media & video works by Linh Dinh, Heriberto YÃ©pez, Konrad Steiner, Henry Hills, Paolo Javier & Dennis Somera, Ariana Reines, Dillon Westbrook, Karla Milosevich, Cassie Riger & Amanda Davidson, Bill Luoma, Claudia Rankine, & more!

see you then & there!
Show starts promptly at 730pm. $10
Timken Hall, California College of the Arts
1111 8th St., San Francisco

sptraffic.org
smallpresstraffic.blogspot.com

↑ Index

239. Obododimma Oha
Re: Bailout
Thu 15 Jan 2009

No amount of money can purchase virginity. It is simply priceless. --Obododimma.

On Wed, Jan 14, 2009 at 2:40 PM, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]> wrote:

> (this piggybacks nicely on the brothel dissection...)
>
> Grad Student Selling Virginity Flooded With Offers
>
> http://cbs13.com/local/selling.virginity.tuition.2.815171.html
>
> A Sacramento State grad trying to make money by auctioning off her virginity to help pay for her graduate studies is getting lots of offers...and not just for sex.
>
> The 22-year-old who is using the pseudonym Natalie Dylan for safety reasons is going through a legal brothel in Nevada to sell her virginity. Dylan told CBS13 she's gotten an offer of $250,000. And now she's gotten an offer to do a photo spread for Penthouse magazine.
>
> The auction is being handled by the Bunny Ranch in Carson City, Nevada with bids coming in through their website.
>
> Dylan says she's already taken a polygraph test to prove her virginal status, and is also willing to undergo a medical exam.
>
> "The main purpose of this is to finance a couple things in my life," Dylan told CBS13. "I think empowerment of women is picking yourself up and doing something on your own to better yourself."
>
> So far, hundreds of offers have already come in including some from male virgins. Natalie says she won't give up her virginity to the highest bidder. She's also seeking other qualities from her first lover. "I'm looking for intelligence and an overall nice person," said Dylan.
>
> Dylan says she ended up in a financial bind, because her stepfather allegedly used her college status to fraudulently apply for student loans, and then ran off with the money.
>
> Dylan earned her bachelor's degree in women's studies from Sacramento State and plans to get her master's at the school beginning in January.
>
> Many Sac State students say they're shocked to hear about their former classmate's plan, while others applaud her.

> "She's just giving it to some random person. And I just think she should be giving it to someone special she loves," said one student on campus.
>
> While another felt that selling her virginity for grad school "is a noble reason to get money."
>
> As for Natalie, after claiming to hold on to her virginity for 22 years (although the Bunny Ranch website claims she is 21-years-old), she says she has a commodity not many people have to sell.
>
> "When I was younger, I wanted 100% romance, possibly even wait for marriage. But as I grew up, reality kinda hit. And I think its a capitalistic society and I want to capitalize on this," explained Dylan.

--
Obododimma Oha
Senior Lecturer in Stylistics & Semiotics
Dept. of English
University of Ibadan
Nigeria

&

Fellow, Centre for Peace & Conflict Studies
University of Ibadan

Phone: [redacted];
[redacted].

↑ Index

240. Jason Nelson strange new digital poetry
Thu 15 Jan 2009

New digital poetry from Jason Nelson

Title: I made this. You play this. We are enemies.
http://www.secrettechnology.com/madethis/enemy6.html

The game is a sequel to last year's "game, game, game and again game" which had over 5 million hits world wide.
http://www.secrettechnology.com/gamegame/gamegame.html

And of course any thoughts are more than appreciated.

↑ Index

241. David-Baptiste Chirot

About Poetry: Presidential Inauguration Poetry & "Where the He/art Pants" Election Anthology

Thu 15 Jan 2009

Along with About Poetry's selections and thoughts, also a reminder re Election Anthology "Where the He/art Pants" edited by Anny Ballardini and Obododimma-which is also about the inaugeration--

http://poetry.about.com/b/2009/01/15/poetry-and-the-presidential-inauguration.htm

From Bob Holman & Margery Snyder

Poetry came into the public eye numerous times during the 2008 U.S. Presidential election campaign, and the poetry world has been buzzing with excitement and bustling with suggestions since the election, especially as it became evident that poetry would have a role to play in next Tuesday's inauguration ceremony and celebration

Poetry and the Presidential Inauguration While we're all waiting for Elizabeth Alexander's inaugural poem, let's reread the few poems that have marked earlier Presidential inaugurations... and a sampling of "unofficial" poems written for Barack Obama's inauguration by poets around the country.... read more
· While the He/art Pants:<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2664>(Poetic Responses to the 2008 American Elections)
· Editorial: Obododimma Oha<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2665>
· Editorial: Anny Ballardini<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2666>

_____ Windows Live™ Hotmail®: Chat. Store. Share. Do more with mail. http://windowslive.com/howitworks?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_hm_justgotbetter_howitworks_012009

↑ Index

242. Troy Camplin

Re: [SPAM]Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

Thu 15 Jan 2009

The law and people who support the law, that's who.

Troy

From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, January 14, 2009 7:01:13 PM
Subject: Re: [SPAM]Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

who is telling them they can or can not do anything?

On 1/14/09 1:56 PM, "Troy Camplin" <[redacted]> wrote:

> In the end, who are you or I or anybody else to tell someone what they can and cannot do, to prevent people from hurting themselves (especially if it's our opinion that they are hurting themselves)? It seems pretty arrogant to tell adults what they can and cannot do with their own bodies and minds. We can quibble all day about whether or not prostitutes under legalized conditions are "hurt" by the job or not, but in the end, we don't know what a person likes or does not lie, is hurt by or is not hurt by, prefers or does not prefer precisely because we cannot be inside their heads, knowing any of those things. Faced with such overwhelming ignorance of such things about others, we should let people do what they want to do and be who they want to be so long as it doesn't involve force or threat of force. THis isn't to say that one should not be out there trying to create conditions where women don't have to choose prostitution, that one shouldn't be trying to change minds -- but it is to say that one should not be using either force or the threat of force to make people do what you want or make them accept what you think is best for them.
>
> Troy Camplin
>
> ---
>
> From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Wednesday, January 14, 2009 7:55:53 AM
> Subject: Re: [SPAM]Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>
> well, you're ok with it but are they ok with it? I mean, doesn't it hurt them? whether it's legal or not?
>
> On 1/13/09 5:05 PM, "Mark Weiss" <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> To extrapolate:
>
> Since as it becomes easier to get laid for free the stuff a prostitute has to do to make a living gets weirder everybody should keep their legs crossed.

Did I get it right?

I'm ok with folks doing what they want to make a living, even if they only do it because they feel bad about themselves, and people buying their services, even if they only do it because they feel bad about themselves. Unless we legislate mental health (and assume that the motivations are always unhealthy) it's the best we're likely to do.

Coercion of any kind is another matter. Legalization makes it a lot easier to fight coercion (and incidentally to minimize the spread of disease).

I'd say the same for drug use, even though most people probably shouldn't put a spike in their arm.

Mark

At 12:39 AM 1/13/2009, you wrote:

I've been following the discussion only sporadically, so please forgive any redundancy, but, the well-known "Effects of Prolonged Consumption of Pornography" and other studies suggest that in places where pornography is legal and increasingly popular there is a corresponding decrease in the incidence of violent sexual crimes. As if the medium could allow for the safe channeling of certain repressed and thereby sinister desires. However, many observers attribute said decreased incidence to a greater leniency in attitudes towards sexual behavior and an inability, or unwillingness, to interpret sex crimes as such. In this regard, where pornography is widely consumed, we might note the evolution of more exotic and aggressive forms of it (think anus, gangbang, shit in the mouth).

Though pornography and prostitution aren't the same thing, perhaps the same principle holds true. The more the thing is permitted, the more boring it gets, and so, the more deviant and illicit and forbidden its form must take. Or in other terms, hunger (out of boredom) ensures the creation (and delivery) of new products. The more we're ok with prostitution, the more we're ok with whatever treatment the prostitute receives, and the more novel treatments we'll surely find. Let the free market rule. After all they're just a muscle.

Jared Schickling

↑ Index

243. gabriel siegel
Re: coMpetition does
Thu 15 Jan 2009

Workshops are good things--

Whatever mediocrity writes, is what you shouldn't.

On Tue, Jan 13, 2009 at 12:28 PM, CA Conrad <[redacted]> wrote:
> Recently I've met a couple of young poets (yet again) who dropped out > of poetry writing workshops because they were, in the words of one of > these poets, "eaten alive."
>
> The conversation isn't new. And it's not a conversation about > workshops in particular, but competition in a bigger sense.
>
> When is competition good, meaning productive, meaning THE THING which > spurs poets into action in the best sense, in the sense of WANTING to > write as well as they can.
>
> And when is competition ugly, filled with envy and jealousy, reaching > a surprising number of times in my observations to the most corrupt, > wicked, disturbing places people can get to.
>
> The conversation is tricky because I'm always trying to ask,
> investigate with others, WHERE IS THE line between competition when
> it's healthy, and rotten?
>
> There's no doubt in my mind that these two young poets (the latest two > that is, as I've been having this conversation for years now and I > don't even remember how many times I've had it frankly) love, really > LOVE poetry. We share that, we find when talking that we share that > DRIVE, depositing ourselves in front of bookstore poetry sections, and > libraries, and asking everyone we know who their favorite poets are,
> and titles, and never getting enough of this love. Never getting > enough of it. And not just feeling sad when a bookstore like GOTHAM > BOOKMART closes down but ANGRY!
>
> We're so much alike, and we tell one another what we're most excited > about NOW, and everyone's scratching notes for the library and > bookstore. How we're NOT alike is that these two young poets are VERY > vulnerable to attack. When they were said to be "eaten alive" I'm not > surprised. And I'm sad, and wish they were MORE LIKE ME and laugh at > the bastards and say, "OH YOU'RE JUST A HATER, YOU JEALOUS PIG!" Or,

> "Yeah well, THANKS, being attacked GETS ME UP IN THE MORNING TO MAKE
> YOU ANGRY!" It feeds me when someone attacks me, I LOVE it.
>
> But of course a lot of people don't respond well when they're > attacked, and this makes me sad. I've known poets WHOSE POEMS MADE ME
> HAPPY who stopped writing poems because of such attacks. In some > cases the attacks were from their professors, and the other students, > egged-on by the professors. A FEEDING FRENZY in such a way that makes > me want to puke for poetry. It disgusts me this kind of behavior.
>
> I'm not a professor, but I have conducted poetry workshops, and it's
> NOT HARD AT ALL in my opinion to keep the focus about everyone
> (including myself because I want to learn from THEM TOO!) > investigating poetry together! My focus is about PROCESS, about the > many weird ways to MAKE poetry happen, NOT ABOUT who is writing poems
> I think are good, or another person in the workshop thinks are good,
> or not.
>
> This is NOT goody-two-shoe bullshit, I'm JUST NOT INTERESTED in > telling someone whether I like their poems or not when I'm conducting > workshops. And it's none of my business frankly. But to LOVE poetry, > and read it, and create it, and have it in our lives, now THAT is > something I get very excited about!
>
> But what is that line? When is it crossed from productive and > beautiful and everyone's excited and MAKING poetry, to that place of > shit?
>
> I'd rather see poems ABOUT that dark spot on the poetry map, than see > it overwhelm another poet. And I mean overwhelm the poet who NEEDS to > be vicious, and of course I mean the poet who gets beaten down.
>
> This conversation cannot happen unless we talk about the bigger things
> around it, like, WHY IS EVERYONE NOT UNDERSTANDING EVERYONE IS
> CREATIVE WE ARE ALL CREATIVE THIS IS NOT UP FOR DEBATE. Or is it?
> I've had people tell me this is wrong, that everyone's NOT creative.

> But I disagree.
>
> And the conversation needs to be about how the way poets act about
> scarcity and fear that there's not enough NOT ENOUGH magazines NOT > ENOUGH awards or enough room at the reading series, not enough, is > really, such an old story about us being animals.
>
> And the conversation needs to be about how to protect ourselves if we > can't withstand the attacks.
>
> And the conversation needs to be about how people don't need to attack
> others because THERE IS ENOUGH.
>
> And the conversation needs to be about how art and all our creative > abilities have become part of a big system in the capital of art and > poetry, and books, and writing programs and teaching and, and, and > CONSUMPTION, and frankly how, more than ever there's more reasons than > ever for us to feel like we're NOT working hard enough, NOT being good > enough, NOT good enough, so many reasons to feel like shit.
>
> It's a big conversation. But I feel I'm always having it. And it's > one of the most important ones to have some days, especially when I
> meet young poets who have just been destroyed in workshops, made to > feel worthless. The one poet started crying, and said, literally > between sobs, "ALL I WANT TO DO IS WRITE POETRY!" It's really awful,
> I just want to hit whoever did this to this person, but of course
> that's not helpful.
>
> The line crossed is hard to see because it's different for everyone, I > think. Right? Sometimes I'm not sure I'm right about that, but it > feels right, doesn't just feel like an answer I've come up with to > forget thinking about it, because I really want to figure it out, if > it can be figured out. There's too much at stake, at least it feels > that way when I meet YET ANOTHER amazing young poet who becomes
afraid
> of workshops and other poets and stops writing.
>
> I've met so many amazing poets who stop, for so many reasons they > stop. The most common reason though is that they get worn out from > the struggle of dealing with many hungry egos. And their own hungry > ego. It goes back to the discussion about why we're writing, and what > has writing become in this world for us?

>
> CAConrad
> --
> PhillySound: new poetry http://PhillySound.blogspot.com
>
> THE BOOK OF FRANK by CAConrad http://CAConrad.blogspot.com
>
>

↑ Index

244. Factory School

New Factory School Publications

Thu 15 Jan 2009

Now available from Factory School, Heretical Texts series:

Over Here, by Frank Sherlock (104 pages)
www.factoryschool.com/pubs/heretical/vol4/sherlock/

RIGHT NEW BIOLOGY, by kathryn l. pringle (80 pages)
www.factoryschool.com/pubs/heretical/vol4/pringle/

Slosh Models, by Brett Evans (88 pages)
www.factoryschool.com/pubs/heretical/vol4/evans/

Hegemonic Love Potion, by Jules Boykoff (104 pages)
www.factoryschool.com/pubs/heretical/vol4/boykoff/

Censory Impulse, by Erica Kaufman (94 pages) www.factoryschool.com/pubs/heretical/vol4/kaufman/

All books $15 paperback, $30 hardcover -- available now through Small Press Distribution (www.spdbooks.org).

VOLUME DISCOUNT: Get a complete paperback set of HT Vol. 4 for $50 (33.3% discount). Order direct from Factory School using PayPal (www.factoryschool.com/pubs/order.html). To order by check, please contact the editors. Factory School's discounted price includes shipping to the continental USA. Individuals only.

For more on the HT series, visit:
www.factoryschool.com/pubs/heretical/info.html

For general info, please write to editors at factoryschool.org

↑ Index

245. John Cunningham
name of French poet
Thu 15 Jan 2009

I'm trying to recall the name of the French poet who referred to his poems as "promes"?

John Herbert Cunningham

↑ Index

246. William James Austin trouble with Blackbox
Thu 15 Jan 2009

Hello everyone,

I am so very sorry for this major inconvenience. My computer died and took the Blackbox winter gallery submissions with it. I had similar trouble once before, but at that time I was able to repair the machine. This time, however, the old horse gave up, permanently.

With the holidays, gall bladder surgery, plus periodontal work, I have just now been able to replace the computer. May I ask those who submitted work to resubmit so that the winter gallery can become a reality?

Again, my sincerest apologies for this mess.

Best, Bill (William James Austin)

WilliamJamesAustin.com
KojaPress.com
SPDbooks.org
Amazon.com
BarnesandNoble.com

****
A Good Credit Score is 700 or
Above. See yours in just 2 easy steps!
(http://pr.atwola.com/promoclk/100000075x1215855013x1201028747/aol?redir=http://www.freecreditreport.com/pm/default.aspx?scf8072%26hmpgIDb%26bcdÞcemailfooterNO62)</HTML>

↑ Index

247. Diego Navarro
Re: Bailout
Thu 15 Jan 2009

If virginity is priceless, so is life itself. Should then all the material resources of society redirected to medical research? Arts- related are an gigantic waste, in that case.

Everything has a price.

On 15/01/2009, at 07:02, Obododimma Oha wrote:

> No amount of money can purchase virginity. It is simply priceless.
> -- Obododimma.
>
> On Wed, Jan 14, 2009 at 2:40 PM, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
> wrote:
>
> (this piggybacks nicely on the brothel dissection...)
>
> Grad Student Selling Virginity Flooded With Offers
>
> http://cbs13.com/local/selling.virginity.tuition.2.815171.html
>
> A Sacramento State grad trying to make money by auctioning off her
> virginity to help pay for her graduate studies is getting lots of > offers...and not just for sex.
>
> The 22-year-old who is using the pseudonym Natalie Dylan for safety
> reasons
> is going through a legal brothel in Nevada to sell her virginity.
> Dylan told > CBS13 she's gotten an offer of $250,000. And now she's gotten an > offer to > do a photo spread for Penthouse magazine.
>
> The auction is being handled by the Bunny Ranch in Carson City, > Nevada with > bids coming in through their website.
>
> Dylan says she's already taken a polygraph test to prove her virginal > status, and is also willing to undergo a medical exam.
>
> "The main purpose of this is to finance a couple things in my > life," Dylan
> told CBS13. "I think empowerment of women is picking yourself up > and doing > something on your own to better yourself."

*So far, hundreds of offers have already come in including some from male virgins. Natalie says she won't give up her virginity to the highest bidder. She's also seeking other qualities from her first lover.
"I'm
looking for intelligence and an overall nice person," said Dylan.*

*Dylan says she ended up in a financial bind, because her stepfather allegedly used her college status to fraudulently apply for student loans,
and then ran off with the money.*

Dylan earned her bachelor's degree in women's studies from Sacramento State and plans to get her master's at the school beginning in January.

Many Sac State students say they're shocked to hear about their former classmate's plan, while others applaud her.

"She's just giving it to some random person. And I just think she should be giving it to someone special she loves," said one student on campus.

While another felt that selling her virginity for grad school "is a noble reason to get money."

*As for Natalie, after claiming to hold on to her virginity for 22 years
(although the Bunny Ranch website claims she is 21-years-old), she says she has a commodity not many people have to sell.*

"When I was younger, I wanted 100% romance, possibly even wait for marriage. But as I grew up, reality kinda hit. And I think its a capitalistic society and I want to capitalize on this," explained Dylan.

guidelines

--
Obododimma Oha
Senior Lecturer in Stylistics & Semiotics

> Dept. of English
> University of Ibadan
> Nigeria
>
> &
>
> Fellow, Centre for Peace & Conflict Studies
> University of Ibadan
>
> Phone: [redacted];
> [redacted].

--
Diego Navarro
FGV Projetos
(21) 2559-5620

"Escrever não tem a ver com significados, mas com agrimensura e cartografia, inclusive de terras desconhecidas" (Deleuze & Guattari, "Mil Platôs")

↑ Index

248. Ruth Lepson
Re: Bailout
Thu 15 Jan 2009

---

not the fault of feminism but of the media.

On 1/14/09 4:21 PM, "Troy Camplin" <[redacted]> wrote:

> I agree that there is a problem with women all too often seeing the world through men's perspectives. One of the flaws of the feminist movement in the U.S. was the acceptance of male virtues as the only virtues, meaning women should emulate men -- and that emulation was not just in the economy, but in sexuality as well. The truth is that there are manly/masculine virtues as well as womanly/feminine virtues (as well as human virtues) that are not better or worse than the other, but merely different and, typically, complementary. It benefits everyone, especially couples, when the two are in balance. I also have a suspicion that in the greatest artists, the two are balanced within the individual him-/herself.
>
> Troy Camplin
>
> ---
> From: Mary Kasimor <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Wednesday, January 14, 2009 9:17:51 AM

Subject: Re: Bailout

I wonder if we put too high a price on women's sexuality--I was of the generation that came of age during the late 60's, and we women were so damn glad to throw away our parents' prudishness about what "good girls do." I am sure that men were overjoyed, and as I write that I wonder why I suddenly feel "prickly" (I didn't mean that to be a play on words.) about men also feeling liberated. I suppose our views on sexuality are such a part of our culture that it is hard to separate culture from nature. Our intellects and talents are also part of the free market. Tthe other problem is that women are still seeing their world through men's perspectives--not always, but often. I think that is obvious.

Mary

--- On Wed, 1/14/09, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]> wrote:

From: mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
Subject: Bailout
To: [redacted]
Date: Wednesday, January 14, 2009, 7:40 AM

(this piggybacks nicely on the brothel dissection...)

Grad Student Selling Virginity Flooded With Offers

http://cbs13.com/local/selling.virginity.tuition.2.815171.html

A Sacramento State grad trying to make money by auctioning off her virginity to help pay for her graduate studies is getting lots of offers...and not just for sex.

The 22-year-old who is using the pseudonym Natalie Dylan for safety reasons is going through a legal brothel in Nevada to sell her virginity. Dylan told CBS13 she's gotten an offer of $250,000. And now she's gotten an offer to do a photo spread for Penthouse magazine.

The auction is being handled by the Bunny Ranch in Carson City, Nevada with bids coming in through their website.

Dylan says she's already taken a polygraph test to prove her virginal status, and is also willing to undergo a medical exam.

> "The main purpose of this is to finance a couple things in my life," Dylan told CBS13. "I think empowerment of women is picking yourself up and doing something on your own to better yourself."
>
> So far, hundreds of offers have already come in including some from male virgins. Natalie says she won't give up her virginity to the highest bidder. She's also seeking other qualities from her first lover. "I'm looking for intelligence and an overall nice person," said Dylan.
>
> Dylan says she ended up in a financial bind, because her stepfather allegedly used her college status to fraudulently apply for student loans, and then ran off with the money.
>
> Dylan earned her bachelor's degree in women's studies from Sacramento State and plans to get her master's at the school beginning in January.
>
> Many Sac State students say they're shocked to hear about their former classmate's plan, while others applaud her.
>
> "She's just giving it to some random person. And I just think she should be giving it to someone special she loves," said one student on campus.
>
> While another felt that selling her virginity for grad school "is a noble reason to get money."
>
> As for Natalie, after claiming to hold on to her virginity for 22 years (although the Bunny Ranch website claims she is 21-years-old), she says she has a commodity not many people have to sell.
>
> "When I was younger, I wanted 100% romance, possibly even wait for marriage. But as I grew up, reality kinda hit. And I think its a capitalistic society and I want to capitalize on this," explained Dylan.

↑ Index

249. Ruth Lepson

Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

Thu 15 Jan 2009

---

thank you for what you wrote, David. you clearly feel things very deeply. and can sustain those feelings. my take on certain things is not the same as yours &

I don't want to get into a discussion of that but just want to say you write to make us care about other people or to realize the ways in which we don't. ruth

On 1/14/09 4:28 PM, "David-Baptiste Chirot" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Date: Tue, 13 Jan 2009 05:41:22 -0800
> From: [redacted]
> To: [redacted]
> Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory
>
> Actually I think that the Poetry Brothel may just be about what lengths people will go to "attract an audience"--and a paying one at that!--for their poems.
>
> Isn't this like a "Reality Show" version of "Writer's/Poet's Market" in a way?
>
> Or those "Mystery Dinners" where you get to participate in a melodramatic mystery story and eat fine food all at once? And maybe someone really will die! From all the rich fare, instead of only simulating a heart attack to surprise the unwitting into revealing themselves as dupes of expensive illusions.
>
> And won't some disgruntled client leave muttering darkly how they've just been screwed by some really lame poetry cleverly concealed by artfully posed cleavage or the seductive flip of a gigolo's hair in the fake breezes wafted by hidden fans whose whirrings are lost amidst the banging of the bangles on the long beaded strings operating as "harem decor" doors?
>
> "It's like Weimar without the Nazis," one of the jolly entrepreneurs purrs, blithely oblivious to the fascism eating away at the fabric of American society for a long time now.
>
> If one considers the brothel from the point of view of poetry, isn't it just as it advertises itself to be: --a much more "entertaining" and "enticing" way of pimping one's works, because, after all , is that not what the "market place of ideas" and the hustling and foreclosing on "intellectual properties" is all about?
>
> Isn't it all like the Bert Brecht poem Fritz Lang starts to quote to the sell-out self-prostituting writer played by Michel Piccoli in Godard's Le Mepris (Contempt)?--A poem to the effect that the poet is going down to the market (Hollywood) to sell his poetic wares, just as Socrates taught down by the market place, pimping his "intellectual properties" to the beautiful young men as long as possible, postponing to the last possible second the return not to Ithaca and Penelope, but to the mighty shrew Xanthippe, the Founding Dominatrix of Philosophy's Sado-Masochistic tendencies

In essaying to follow this thread through its labyrinth, it strikes me that despite the outrage at the objectification of women, prostitutes themselves remain locked in language of objectification to such an extent here that one wonders if they are altogether abstract beings, or categories, sub classifications-- rather than actual persons.

The neighborhood I live in is rife with prostitution. I'd say about 75% of the women over around 18 one speaks with at the bus stop or walking home at night or during any time of the day are prostitutes. The moment one goes out the door, they are waiting somewhere along the short block, close by, or hanging out at the bus stop, greeting potential customers as they step out onto the worn down Ghetto sidewalk, right by where the old covered waiting station used to be before being removed. That structure one day was gone, leaving only a concrete slab like a scab shoved into the side of a scraggly lawn being fixed up. The shelter had to go due to the vast teeming population of human traffickers, panhandlers, drunks, crackheads and hos who would sit there smoking on the bench sheltered from the weather or spend hours motionlessly propped against the grimy graffiti slashed glass on its crumpling frame, whispering in the voice that goes straight to the nervous system, with no need of an ear--"you straight?"

Since last mid-summer the new police chief has declared our area, known forever as "Crack Alley," to be his first order of business to clean up. It's not the most violent area in the city, but one of the most concentrated in terms of dope and prostitution. A lot of buildings next door all along our block are closed down and being cleaned up, as they were filled with crack hos and dope dealers, and a continual stream of events such as at the several days running big TV story on the news about a kidnapped baby from next door an incident like any other, squeezed in among some colorful shootings and knifing incidents, not to mention the day a man with an AK-47 used our building and the parking lot next to it for target practice, blowing off chunks of the roof and managing to get some mega bullets through air vents and hitting a resident here in the leg. The second the dude opened fire, one knew it was some different kind of weapon, and dove for the floor as bullets chipped off almost the entire the window ledge, bit hungrily away at the bricks just below it, before a quick spurt of sound sent a huge piece of the roof floating dreamily down past the window, like a very relaxed whale diving deep deep down in the otherwise pleasant evening. Al one knew was that what seemed like eons later there was a huge thud and the walls shook as the big piece of mortared concrete hit the ground.

Al this has gradually been tamed down and now fewer prostitutes hawk their wares along the sidewalks and at the bus stops, though the ones still here are the most persistent and bold ones. They can easily handle a cop with a patter so fast that it seems not to end, but simply to have generated a continuously playing loop of its own echoed messages--while Sistah beats her wings and takes flight, soaring over rooftops and vanishing into a vacant lot somewhere blocks away. Hey shugah-- lets have us party . . .c'mon now--ain't gonna bite it off-- One time a woman whom I had seen and talked to a number of times, came up in a raging blizzard and begged me to go around the building to the back steps and "suck you like heaven." She was so desperate she was down on her knees in the snow bank. It was below zero and almost no visibility--and she had on just a thin skirt and jacket--she had an "auntie" near by so got her there and gave her enough for a few rocks, one of the few times ii had money on me in awhile--

There are women out who are homeless and who knows where they go--some can't get into the shelters due to the dope--their families won't let them in for fear of being robbed--sometimes the police pick them up and put them in the jail so they wont die--Very few of the crack hos work for anyone but themselves--too erratic to work for a pimp--they are so desperate at times people will slip them a few bills--

Around three in the morning most nights--the Zombies emerge--drifting along as though only the air they lean against is holding them upright--moving slow and stumblingly like the Living Dead of George Romero's films. Some of these eerie figures begin emitting high keening sounds, extremely painful to hear--the voices of desperation cutting the air into shreds--people suddenly crumpling on the grass patches or falling down in a side walk gutter--In such bad shape they can't sell a thing to anyone--

It's excruciating to see and hear some nights those figures with the eerie phosphorescent death glows, auras of the grave and white powders and rocks--to look at these death bound ghosts and see oneself stumbling in the night---through dim jerky memories of another being one once was---somewhere in a war zone--miraculously surviving seizures and comas, blackouts, the disappearance for a time of any sense of life--a black inert presence has one seemingly wedged between life and death--one can't move--yes--there goes one now--a person suddenly transfixed before going through a spastic imitation of a Crucifixion of themselves--seizures--thrashings--

As the economy goes down the toilet, so do the places for help start to vanish, become ever fewer--and some hospitals actually will turn away people they think will never pay --no insurance, nothing--

The whole health care system is eugenics against the poor and "unneeded"--

How many dope fiends, how many prostitutes, runaways, impressed into service young women--wind up anonymously dead, the notations along the way of the repetitions of a serial killer--and then another one and another--how many dead women have you seen?--no ID and lying in the road late at night--flashlight lit as some cops try to make sense of a murder scene so bizarre the details cannot be released to the press? Or other scenes that one cannot get out of the mind--as well as ones one has only heard about--let alone lived through--

And yet none of these women were anonymous beings--many of them many people knew--remembered--loved--brought up--many around here one speaks with many times a week--

This is why much of this discussion to me is like an objectification of the very beings that the protests about objectification are being made in the name of.

My first memories of prostitutes was being offered a job in a fancy whorehouse that catered to an American clientele of the old school--Texas oil men, business men on the loose in Gay Paree--the woman who hired me was a sort of second in command Madame--i don't recall how i met here--but she needed a translator for a week while the regular one was on a vacation--so i spent day or night shifts translating back and forth, making introduction in the swank Western Saloon style room where introductions were exchanged and various other matters sorted out--I was 16 at the time and sleeping in streets and abandoned houses and cars, so some extra money and free meals was a great boost in the world for me--trhe Madame said, well, young man you can pass for 20--that's old enough--

The workers in the brothel were not allowed to go out with each other--as there were other men who worked there, cooking, cleaning, doing dishes and laundry--and doubling as bouncers and security guards if there was ever any problems at all--

The women were al in a union and once month the government inspectors came to check everyone for diseases, and make sure the place was as clean as possible, and the behaviour of everyone was in line. The idea being that legalized and unionized prostitution gives rights and protection to the prostitutes they otherwise do not have at all, as here in the land of the free.

When there was a time for our breaks, whoever was around would get together and go to a cafe or sit in the kitchen and drink bocks and coffee. Lots gossiping and card playing and showing about of pictures of children, fiancees, husbands, boy friends. Then back to work.

Since then I've known a lot of prostitutes as friends or neighbors and there is always different yet somewhat a same story involved.

People say "prostitute" like it is someone filthy and low--but look at the high class cal girls so called, who get politicians in trouble, or for that matter the movie stars who charge huge amounts for the fotos of their babies or their bikini clad frolics with some ex-lover.

And how much did the American public pay for the election--a billion dollars!!--How many people did the President sell himself to to get to the Oval Office--

How much of one's soul did one sell out for a step up the career ladder--or poem in a journal--or a name on the door like a Bigelow on the floor--

How much of life is not a form of prostitution,--though perhaps without the dangers and horrors the street level and sex slave trades, which buy up children for the uses of perverts with immense bankrolls-- or just tourists passing through on the way to see Junior's basketball game--

There is far more prostitution at every level than one would imagine, until one has seen how many things work, with the paying of cash for appearances,hiring someone to take along--and then--

And though people are angered --who is working to change things? In one of the five sections of Roberto Bolano's novel 2666--there are the relentlessly presented murders after murders with rapes and tortures recounted that happened the area just over the American border--al these are young girls who work also in the factories--not prostitutes at all--but suddenly swooped on and turned into a ritualized thing--a doll, an object to be taken apart and then covered back up, with the neat clean clothes paced over the cut and violated body--

Imagine the Black Dahlia multiplied bya thousand--and al based on true hapnings --

These murderers of anonymous and known and named women--are like the serial killer and anonymously butchered bodies found al over the USA--and al the battered women, the addicted women, the homeless the insane--

Years of sitting and talking,hanging out--and learning of these lives--is how one sees this not just as "objectification" in the sense of "the male gaze" but of society's gaze--which doesn't see a person, but only reads the label--"prostitute"--

So that objectification carries even into the critics of objectification, for they themselves are not seeing a person, but only a label, a category--

Or, at the Poetry Brothel, a Camp performance of something out of Cabaret--

What can one say other than that this is a disposable society and culture?--The inner cities are pumped full of crack by the CIA to destroy communities, enslave people to addiction, destroy generations of men and women, break up families--one looks around and sees the holocaust unfolding daily-- and no one will do anything about it--there's way too much money involved, way too much to be milked out of Colombia and Afghanistan for the American ends of these hook ups--

Pumping Grade A US Certified killer heroin into the suburbs--the most kick ass and deadly heroin ever known to be in this country--killing scores of users young and old--(very rarely do old users overdose--and now they are by untold numbers--dropping like flies)

The unending Wars, straight out of Orwell's 1984--War on Poverty--War on Drugs--War on Terror--

Think of the trillions that have been pumped into he War Machine--into the genocide of Iraq--and the "Right War" President Obama has in mind for Afghanistan and parts of Pakistan--not to mention the immense funding that this country spends on Apartheid, while feeling so proud for electing a Black president--we support the most vicious Apartheid regime there has been--

What does that kind of hypocrisy tel one?

Right there its say it all--neither we nor our allies believe one whit in democracy and equality--what we embrace mightily and pump billions and trillions into is the establishment for eternity of Exceptionalism and Racial supremacy--

This is why i think that the "objectification" halts at the word itself and does not go further--into those unpredictable areas where "prostitutes" are no longer objects but actual persons--

At an American Indian group the other night people were saying with grief and shock and rage how horrified they were by the killing in Gaza--because for decades its a repeat of the land theft cultural destruction and genocide of the Indigenous peoples in America, now paid for and supplied by the mega mega tons overseas.

One man said--that's us they're killing all over again--why else does the US allow this to go on other than that they obviously must approve of it--killing and segregation, prison camps- hells on earth--the Trail of Tears--the Apartheid Walls --Sieges--and the same old double talk to make it be covered up=--to make it all look nice and pretty and hide the blood and muck away

in a way isn't that what the Poetry Brothel is al about--making the actual "selling of poems" and "poets performances" far more "attractive" and "exciting"--"stimulating"-- than the usual boring read before a boring backdrop in a boring room -- now instead of the dullness and no stimulation, no matter what the poems are like--who cares anyway!--a good time and eats and drinks will be had by all--

as they say in the restaurant business, its not what they eat that matters but how good you make it look for them --that really whets the appetite and seals the deal--
think of how many art and poetry movements after al started in cabarets and clubs, bars--cellars--Dada--Punk--the scenes from Fellini's Satyricon which he called a science fiction film set int he past of "futurist" Latin poets reciting, or that is, having their paid reciters recite--their verses and deadly clever epigrams which just be made into actual deaths in a new and novel and very clever fashion--

mush like the shaping of verses in an exquisitely honed new form, so are the creative variations and inventions which the poet executioner brings about, realized in aa action event performance from
a Score of ingenious and fractal dice throwing chance operations-- which never abolish chance--

played upon the actual "backbone Flute" of Mayakovsky whose Russian Futurism has likewise landed in the past--ready and willing to compete with Marinetti's in the arenas--

of blood dust and glory--
--
think though that sooner or later the next steps will be taken and the poetry and the brothel will be raised to ever higher scales and skills and so the REAL money can start to roll in!

meaning--no more amateurs!--and then the Real Pros will start to roll in--

buy the poet and have he or she give not only the poem but themselves to you!! and then autograph you!!
or a nice foto of the two of you in flagrante delecto!!

why do it for free anyway--
how tedious and unexciting!
it can be like the Visconti short film in which Romy Schneider discovers her husband is only really attracted to her when she makes him pay--

isn't that why we like our wars so much, because we have to pay and pay and pay for drugs and wars and poverty being spread far and wide by the massive spending on wars--

aren't these the ultimate Brothels--the porno of watching helpless peoples be bombed and starved tortured cut off from medications and food water and electricity in the winter cold--and phosphorous and cluster bombed to death by the hundreds and thousands-- isn't this what we really paid for-- the ultimate Snuff Films set in the vast desolation--

the annihilation of a people --

"until not one stone shall be left on another"
and what is next on the menu, what can possibly top this-- the "Right War?"--the torching of every single moving being in Afghanistan--of parts of Pakistan and then on to Iran--at last!!-- and since no media is allowed to record anything as it happens what great fun al national poets can have in suturing together the reams of Army footage and propaganda to produce the ultimate epic-- the Brothel to end al Brothels----where the Snuff films play to the tinkling of subdued piano music and someone is reading a very radical and innovative

poem

and after the audience has been softened up so to speak-- as is conjectured in the Bolano story from the heinous realities-- income the kidnapped and drugged runaways the over the hill hookers--the too addicted to function anymore--or simply the cutest little teenage girls and/or boys you have ever seen--

and right there in front of one, no longer a film--

but the Reality Show of Death--LIVE!!!

now ladies and gentlemen isn't that what we are really paying for-- admission to the ultimate Show!!

looking out the window here one can see it --the ultimate show--the death rattles and violent seizures--

the grip of crack on a ho's neck and her windpipe shutting down --

let's see what kind of verses can be made to accompany those sounds--

overdubbed or done LIVE
and right here and now before a video camera and mic

why not--
to watch oneself watch the death of another-- and then film that in turn until an endless hall of mirrors is made--of images of oneself watching another's death--murder-mutilation and violation----

the ultimate brothel poetry show-- as one's voice in the voice over is reciting the latest innovative style of radical poetry--
and-- a complete circuitry of onanism is accomplished--and recorded for the paying audience, the hottest thing going in the brothel charnal house of poetry

in the land of a thousand dances of death--

the deaths individual and lonely and those public and many-- the gleaming drones and fighter jets their ways lit by illegal use of phosphorous illuminating the bursting into flames and blood of a family, an old woman--

walls blown asunder to reveal--nothing-- nothing had been there al along
except--the skin of a long departed onion
pale and translucent in the light of the spreading infernos-- as bodies already burned through by phosphorous are ignited by the chemical mixtures happening at lightning speed and transforming the veins into writing green vines that choke and tear the skeletons apart

and leave their grinning teeth lying their deaths heads in the last views of a rape and snuff scene that is superimposed and then faded out-- as the bodies burn and skeletons disintegrate and the ground itself is heaving, ion convulsions-- and then erupts and like Atlantis what is left of this place of the damned and doomed sinks forever out of sight extinguished caught live on camera snuffed out-- forever--

though to be sure many captive females have bee hsutled off, saved to spend their lives serving in the brothels and live death cinemas--

of the new order--

the ultimate "Ending"--
why not--as it has all been bought and paid for
and might just be the most incredible new form of poems--
the real Apocalypse-- snuffing out a culture

while poets recite and sexual acts are performed ending in the Death of the--not the Author--but-- that non person hauled into be slaughtered while everyone is aroused-- this is the ultimate destination hinted at and part way accomplished in Bolano's Distant Star (Polaroids instead of moving pictures--) and realized in real life in Chile and turned into paragraphs in By Night in Chile-- and eerily starting to become realized in new ways still unfolding-- in the emergence of the new extreme experimental American poetry--

and there sitting before one the Manet images-of prostitutes -turning in to scenes from Goya--

. . . . . Hardly ever any more does one look out a window on one side of the building and see sexual transactions going on between the wall and the dumpsters. Or in the back of the building, in a an area the stairway that's now too lit up for the old action to continue. Sex is very cheap--a couple bucks, five, ten--enough to get the next couple rocks of crack or a four pack of malt liquor. A lot of the time people are high and just want to talk with you and have a cigarette and feel like they are carrying on a "normal conversation." And why not--just about everyone now and then would like to feel if even for the course of smoking a cigarette like a "normal person."

On Mon, Jan 12, 2009 at 7:14 PM, susan dunn-hensley <[redacted]> wrote:

Ruth-

For what it's worth, Ruth. I think you raised some valid points.

Susan

--- On Mon, 1/12/09, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]> wrote:

From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>

Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

> To: [redacted]
>
> Date: Monday, January 12, 2009, 3:31 PM
>
> there is a sweetheart--Tim Peterson. thank you, esp as I'm too busy to
>
> continue this discussion.
>
> love
>
> ruth
>
> wish we COULD.
>
> On 1/12/09 8:27 AM, "Tim Peterson" <[redacted]>
>
> wrote:
>
> Adam! Ruth! Two of my dearest friends...it makes me feel terrible to see
>
> you
>
> guys fighting like this! The Poetry Brothel is not worth getting this
>
> upset
>
> about. Let's all kick back in my living room with a mug of coco and
>
> listen
>
> to Gloria Steinheim records backwards. How about this evening?
>
> Love, Tim
>
> Date: Sat, 10 Jan 2009 23:49:49 -0500

From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>

Subject: Re: Poetry Brothel at the Zipper Factory

twisting my words!

so writing about objections to prostitution does nothing, huh--so words

don't matter?

I think all those jobs are degrading.

I wd like to defend yr friends by getting them better jobs.

I am not criticizing these women.

Better working conditions wd be not having to succumb to male ideas of sexuality in our culture, such narrow constraints.

On 1/9/09 5:49 PM, "Adam Tobin" <[redacted]>

wrote:

but you were the one crying shame! on the women of the Poetry Brothel!

for

dressing like whores!

(please note that I am NOT arguing that prostitution is not a sexist institution. clearly it is. and i agree that it is part of a complex

of

normative heterosexuality that does terrible violence to all women.

But

as

for the actual women who are living in actual slavery, i think

complaining

about the symbolic degrading of womankind does nothing for them:

it's like

trying to improve the safety of coal mines by complaining about climate change.

And if you're just using those women (who are very real, and many of them

living in absolutely horrific situations, as you rightly pointed out)

as symbols of Degraded Womankind, you are doing a disservice to them and also to the many many women (some of whom must be subscribers to this list)

who

work in other parts of the sex trade -- exotic dancers, high-end

call-girls,

dominatrices, nude housekeepers, pornographic models, hooters

waitresses,

etc. -- some of these people are my friends and i take it personally

--

and

I think that their own struggles for better working conditions are not unrelated to the struggle against slavery in other parts of their bosses'

businesses...

-- but i'm sorry that i overreacted and became part of a litany of men

(all men! really! can it really be that there are no women here who work

in

the

sex trade??) who are all seemingly trying to justify the institution

as an institution. I am not trying to justify it, just trying to defend my friends who work there from the harsh judgments of their elders...

==========

guidelines &

==========

==========

_____
Windows Live: Keep your life in sync.
http://windowslive.com/explore?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_allup_explore_012009

↑ Index

250. Maria Damon
Re: Bailout
Thu 15 Jan 2009

---

but is it not also worthless?

Obododimma Oha wrote:
> No amount of money can purchase virginity. It is simply priceless.
> -- Obododimma.
>
> On Wed, Jan 14, 2009 at 2:40 PM, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]> wrote:
>
>
>> (this piggybacks nicely on the brothel dissection...)
>>
>>
>> Grad Student Selling Virginity Flooded With Offers
>>
>> http://cbs13.com/local/selling.virginity.tuition.2.815171.html
>>
>> A Sacramento State grad trying to make money by auctioning off her
>> virginity to help pay for her graduate studies is getting lots of >> offers...and not just for sex.

>>
>> The 22-year-old who is using the pseudonym Natalie Dylan for safety reasons >> is going through a legal brothel in Nevada to sell her virginity. Dylan told >> CBS13 she's gotten an offer of $250,000. And now she's gotten an offer to >> do a photo spread for Penthouse magazine.
>>
>> The auction is being handled by the Bunny Ranch in Carson City, Nevada with >> bids coming in through their website.
>>
>> Dylan says she's already taken a polygraph test to prove her virginal >> status, and is also willing to undergo a medical exam.
>>
>> "The main purpose of this is to finance a couple things in my life," Dylan >> told CBS13. "I think empowerment of women is picking yourself up and doing >> something on your own to better yourself."
>>
>> So far, hundreds of offers have already come in including some from male >> virgins. Natalie says she won't give up her virginity to the highest >> bidder. She's also seeking other qualities from her first lover. "I'm >> looking for intelligence and an overall nice person," said Dylan.
>>
>> Dylan says she ended up in a financial bind, because her stepfather >> allegedly used her college status to fraudulently apply for student loans,
>> and then ran off with the money.
>>
>> Dylan earned her bachelor's degree in women's studies from Sacramento State >> and plans to get her master's at the school beginning in January.
>>
>> Many Sac State students say they're shocked to hear about their former >> classmate's plan, while others applaud her.
>>
>> "She's just giving it to some random person. And I just think she should be >> giving it to someone special she loves," said one student on campus.
>>
>> While another felt that selling her virginity for grad school "is a noble >> reason to get money."
>>

>> As for Natalie, after claiming to hold on to her virginity for 22 years
>> (although the Bunny Ranch website claims she is 21-years-old), she says she >> has a commodity not many people have to sell.
>>
>> "When I was younger, I wanted 100% romance, possibly even wait for >> marriage. But as I grew up, reality kinda hit. And I think its a >> capitalistic society and I want to capitalize on this," explained Dylan.
>>
>>
>>
>
>
>
>

↑ Index

251. Paul Nelson

Hugo House Executive Director

Thu 15 Jan 2009

Richard Hugo House, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization located in Seattle, Washington, is seeking a full-time executive director. About Richard Hugo House The vision for Hugo House was conceived around a kitchen table by three smart women—an emblematic beginning for an organization that prides itself on creativity and intelligence without pretention. Eleven years later, the ethos hasn't changed—we present world-class literary programming within the well lived-in (some might say "funky") walls of a comfortable Victorian House. Our mission is to promote the literary arts as a vital part of our culture and community. We provide writers of all ages and backgrounds with the resources they need, connect audiences with the world of writing, and foster the creation of new work. At Hugo House we believe that the impulse to imagine and create is innate and powerful, and we are motivated by the overarching convictions that literature does matter, that ideas can change the world, and that nurturing writers is the most important work we can do. To this end we offer classes, residencies and events that reflect the broad interests of our community as well as the wide spectrum of forms and genres that exist in the literary arts. • Our classes are taught by well regarded professional writers and teachers, and cover the gamut from reading classes on the classics, to writing workshops on anything from ekphrasic poetry to spoken word to full-length memoirs. We also offer a number of vibrant programs for youth. • We are dedicated to promoting the careers of local writers through residencies that provide stipends, teaching opportunities and incentives to produce their own. We also offer granting programs such as The Writers Fund, which provides co-sponsorships to individuals and groups to produce their own events—anything from a book launch party to a staged reading of a new play in our Cabaret space. • Through events such as the Hugo Literary Series, we commission both local authors and those with national reputations, such as Tim O'Brien, Rick Moody, Marie Howe, Sherman Alexie and Pam Houston, to create original work; we offer local audiences the opportunity to interact with the writers through readings and classes. Like the building in which we are located, the Hugo House staff is unpretentious and a little eccentric. We take the work we do and the community we serve very seriously, but not ourselves. We are prone to strong coffee, irreverent humor and passionate opinions about everything, especially literature. We appreciate teamwork but don't relish hierarchy. We are good at our jobs and respect competence in others. We host amazing events and gatherings. We like to think this is the kind of place Richard Hugo would have come to. For additional information about the organization, please visit the Hugo House Web site: www.hugohouse.org. Executive Director Job Announcement Key Responsibilities Leadership I n collaboration with the staff and board, refine the vision and philosophies of the organization; D evelop and lead short- and long-term strategic and business planning efforts, with a focus on organizational sustainability; Encourage innovation and manage competing priorities; Serve as the primary spokesperson for the organization on local, regional, national, and international levels; Ensure that the organization has the human, financial and operational resources it needs to fulfill the mission; and n concert with key supporters, develop a long-term facility plan. Management Sustain a positive and productive work environment that attracts and retains top quality staff and volunteers; Hire, motivate, support and evaluate four direct reports (program director, development director, finance manager and facilities manager); Assume responsibility for budgeting, financial forecasting and fiscal oversight; n partnership with the finance manager, ensure that financial records are useful, accurate and up-to-date; Oversee human resources management, including the development of sound personnel policies and practices; and Ensure compliance with federal, state and local regulations. Fundraising n partnership with the development director, craft the overall fundraising strategy for the organization; Cultivate and maintain relationships with major donors, foundations and corporate sponsors; and Create opportunities to engage new donors/members and sustain existing supporters. Program n partnership with the program director, develop strategies for sustaining and growing effective programs; Explore new program development opportunities; and Ensure that ongoing programs are evaluated thoroughly. Board relations and development Provide board members with the information, tools and resources that will enable them to govern and support the organization in a meaningful way; n partnership with the board development committee, recruit and orient new board members; and Serve as the primary conduit between board members and other stakeholders (staff members, volunteers, supporters and those served by the organization). Qualifications A demonstrated passion for the arts and a love of literature; A proven ability to lead and mentor staff with integrity, enthusiasm and a commitment to results; A minimum of four years of progressively responsible management and supervisory experience; Strong communication, listening and relationship-building skills; A demonstrated ability to raise funds from a range of sources, most notably individual donors and foundations; A solid grasp of human resources and financial management practices and concepts; An understanding of marketing, outreach and communications concepts; An appreciation for collaborative decision-making processes coupled with the ability to be decisive when required; Knowledge of nonprofit board structures and principles of governance; The ability to work a flexible schedule to accommodate the organization's schedule of events; and

An appreciation for community-based organizations and the organization's relationship with the greater Seattle community.

Compensation
The salary for this position is dependent on qualifications and experience. Compensation includes medical and dental insurance and generous leave time.

To Apply

Please submit a cover letter, resume and contact information (phone and e-mail) for at least three professional references. Submit your materials electronically, in Microsoft Word or Adobe PDF format, to the Executive Director Search Committee, [redacted]. This position will remain open until filled.

If you have any questions
Please contact Cory Sbarbaro, interim executive director, at [redacted] or [redacted], ext. 102.

↑ Index

252. Kate Pringle

Book Release Party: Pringle and Boykoff at The Green Arcade in SF

Thu 15 Jan 2009

Who: kathryn l. pringle and Jules Boykoff

When: Thursday, 5 February at 8 p.m.

Where: The Green Arcade, 1680 Market Street, San Francisco [redacted]

Please join us on Thursday, 5 February at 8 p.m. to celebrate the release of two new books of poetry from Factory School:

RIGHT NEW BIOLOGY by kathryn l. pringle and Hegemonic Love Potion by Jules Boykoff

kathryn l. pringle is a graduate of the MFA program at San Francisco State University. Her book, RIGHT NEW BIOLOGY, is just out from Factory School/Heretical Text Series. She is the author of The Stills (Duration Press) and Temper & Felicity are Lovers (TAXT). Her poems can be read in The Denver Quarterly, Fence, 14 hills, 580 Split, and Sidebrow, among others. She is an editor at the literary magazine minor/american, and the co-founder of the minor american reading series in Durham, N.C., now funded by Duke University.

Jules Boykoff is the author of Hegemonic Love Potion (Factory School, 2009), The Slow Motion Underneath (with Jim Dine, Steidl Editions, 2008), and Once Upon a Neoliberal Rocket Badge (Edge Books, 2006). His political writing includes Landscapes of Dissent: Guerrilla Poetry & Public Space (co-authored with Kaia Sand) (Palm Press, 2008), Beyond Bullets: The Suppression of Dissent in the United States (AK Press, 2007), and The Suppression of Dissent: How the State and Mass Media Squelch USAmerican Social Movements (Routledge, 2006). Boykoff lives in Portland, Oregon.

For more info, see: www.thegreenarcade.com

http://kathrynlpringle.blogspot.com/

order my book:

http://www.spdbooks.org/root/pages/serp.asp?Title=&submit=Search&Author=pringle

READINGS:

1.24.09 DETAILS TBD @ the PINHOOK

Durham, NC

2.5.09 @ 4:30 w/ Jules Boykoff

@ The Poetry Center // San Francisco State University

San Francisco, CA

March Date Forthcoming David Foster Wallace party

Asheville, NC

5.2.09 Providence, RI

5.16.09 So-And-So Reading Series @ 8pm

Raleigh, NC

--- On Wed, 1/14/09, POETICS automatic digest system <[redacted]> wrote: From: POETICS automatic digest system <[redacted]> Subject: POETICS Digest - 13 Jan 2009 to 14 Jan 2009 (#2009-12) To: [redacted] Date: Wednesday, January 14, 2009, 9:00 PM

Being eaten alive in a workshop isn't a bad thing. If you can't stand criticism of your work, you won't improve much as an artist. This isn't to say that everything in a workshop is golden (it isn't), but you come out with many perspectives and, if you know what you're really hearing, you can figure out what's really wrong that needs work among the comments and criticisms. But CA is right, you do have to be careful to distinguish between those who wish to help you, and those who are envious and want to tear you down, to "get rid of the competition." Again, if you're paying attention, it does become pretty obvious before long. Be on the lookout for those who come up to you later and apologize for "being so rough" and/or who offer more suggestions or offer to look at it again after the revision. Those are the ones who want to help you. They will also more likely be the good poets. Nasty, antisocial, selfish people do not have the wisdom necessary to be great poets. Or even good or mediocre poets.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: steve d. dalachinsky <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, January 14, 2009 12:25:39 AM
Subject: Re: coMpetition does

here here CA i fully understand being one who has always avoided workshops and it probably shows

On Tue, 13 Jan 2009 12:28:19 -0500 CA Conrad <[redacted]>
writes:
> Recently I've met a couple of young poets (yet again) who dropped > out
> of poetry writing workshops because they were, in the words of one
> of
> these poets, "eaten alive."
>
> The conversation isn't new. And it's not a conversation about > workshops in particular, but competition in a bigger sense.
>
> When is competition good, meaning productive, meaning THE THING
> which

> spurs poets into action in the best sense, in the sense of WANTING
> to > write as well as they can.
>
> And when is competition ugly, filled with envy and jealousy,
> reaching > a surprising number of times in my observations to the most
> corrupt,
> wicked, disturbing places people can get to.
>
> The conversation is tricky because I'm always trying to ask,
> investigate with others, WHERE IS THE line between competition when
> it's healthy, and rotten?
>
> There's no doubt in my mind that these two young poets (the latest
> two
> that is, as I've been having this conversation for years now and I > don't even remember how many times I've had it frankly) love,
> really > LOVE poetry. We share that, we find when talking that we share
> that > DRIVE, depositing ourselves in front of bookstore poetry sections,
> and > libraries, and asking everyone we know who their favorite poets
> are,
> and titles, and never getting enough of this love. Never getting > enough of it. And not just feeling sad when a bookstore like
> GOTHAM
> BOOKMART closes down but ANGRY!
>
> We're so much alike, and we tell one another what we're most > excited
> about NOW, and everyone's scratching notes for the library and > bookstore. How we're NOT alike is that these two young poets are > VERY
> vulnerable to attack. When they were said to be "eaten alive"
I'm
> not > surprised. And I'm sad, and wish they were MORE LIKE ME and laugh
> at
> the bastards and say, "OH YOU'RE JUST A HATER, YOU JEALOUS PIG!"

> Or,
> "Yeah well, THANKS, being attacked GETS ME UP IN THE MORNING TO > MAKE
> YOU ANGRY!" It feeds me when someone attacks me, I LOVE it.
>
> But of course a lot of people don't respond well when they're > attacked, and this makes me sad. I've known poets WHOSE POEMS MADE
> ME
> HAPPY who stopped writing poems because of such attacks. In some > cases the attacks were from their professors, and the other > students,
> egged-on by the professors. A FEEDING FRENZY in such a way that > makes > me want to puke for poetry. It disgusts me this kind of behavior.
>
> I'm not a professor, but I have conducted poetry workshops, and
> it's
> NOT HARD AT ALL in my opinion to keep the focus about everyone > (including myself because I want to learn from THEM TOO!) > investigating poetry together! My focus is about PROCESS, about
> the > many weird ways to MAKE poetry happen, NOT ABOUT who is writing
> poems
> I think are good, or another person in the workshop thinks are > good,
> or not.
>
> This is NOT goody-two-shoe bullshit, I'm JUST NOT INTERESTED in > telling someone whether I like their poems or not when I'm > conducting > workshops. And it's none of my business frankly. But to LOVE
> poetry,
> and read it, and create it, and have it in our lives, now THAT is > something I get very excited about!
>
> But what is that line? When is it crossed from productive and > beautiful and everyone's excited and MAKING poetry, to that place
> of > shit?
>
> I'd rather see poems ABOUT that dark spot on the poetry map, than
> see > it overwhelm another poet. And I mean overwhelm the poet who NEEDS

> to > be vicious, and of course I mean the poet who gets beaten down.
>
> This conversation cannot happen unless we talk about the bigger > things
> around it, like, WHY IS EVERYONE NOT UNDERSTANDING EVERYONE IS
> CREATIVE WE ARE ALL CREATIVE THIS IS NOT UP FOR DEBATE. Or is it?
> I've had people tell me this is wrong, that everyone's NOT > creative.
> But I disagree.
>
> And the conversation needs to be about how the way poets act about
> scarcity and fear that there's not enough NOT ENOUGH magazines NOT > ENOUGH awards or enough room at the reading series, not enough, is > really, such an old story about us being animals.
>
> And the conversation needs to be about how to protect ourselves if > we > can't withstand the attacks.
>
> And the conversation needs to be about how people don't need to > attack
> others because THERE IS ENOUGH.
>
> And the conversation needs to be about how art and all our creative > abilities have become part of a big system in the capital of art
> and
> poetry, and books, and writing programs and teaching and, and, and > CONSUMPTION, and frankly how, more than ever there's more reasons
> than > ever for us to feel like we're NOT working hard enough, NOT being > good > enough, NOT good enough, so many reasons to feel like shit.
>
> It's a big conversation. But I feel I'm always having it. And
> it's
> one of the most important ones to have some days, especially when I
> meet young poets who have just been destroyed in workshops, made to > feel worthless. The one poet started crying, and said, literally > between sobs, "ALL I WANT TO DO IS WRITE POETRY!" It's really

> awful,
> I just want to hit whoever did this to this person, but of course
> that's not helpful.
>
> The line crossed is hard to see because it's different for everyone,
> I > think. Right? Sometimes I'm not sure I'm right about that, but it
> feels right, doesn't just feel like an answer I've come up with to > forget thinking about it, because I really want to figure it out,
> if > it can be figured out. There's too much at stake, at least it > feels > that way when I meet YET ANOTHER amazing young poet who becomes
> afraid
> of workshops and other poets and stops writing.
>
> I've met so many amazing poets who stop, for so many reasons they > stop. The most common reason though is that they get worn out from > the struggle of dealing with many hungry egos. And their own
> hungry
> ego. It goes back to the discussion about why we're writing, and > what
> has writing become in this world for us?
>
> CAConrad
> --
> PhillySound: new poetry http://PhillySound.blogspot.com
>
> THE BOOK OF FRANK by CAConrad http://CAConrad.blogspot.com
>
>
>

↑ Index

253. Séamas Cain

The literary blog of Peter Ganick

Thu 15 Jan 2009

_____

There are new texts on the literary blog of Peter Ganick ...

http://pganickz.livejournal.com/

... works by Dennis Barone, John M. Bennett, Andrew Burke, Jeff Harrison, Halvard Johnson, Jukka-Pekka Kervinen, Zachary Scott Lawrence, Jim Leftwich, Sheila E. Murphy, Lanny Quarles, Gerald Schwartz, Lawrence Upton, Peter Ganick himself, and Séamas Cain.

http://pganickz.livejournal.com/

With permafrost regards,

Séamas Cain
http://alazanto.org/seamascain
http://seamascain.writernetwork.com
http://www.mnartists.org/Seamas_Cain

_____

↑ Index

254. Mark Weiss
Re: Bailout
Thu 15 Jan 2009

Ah but not necessarily for the seller.

Mark

At 04:02 AM 1/15/2009, you wrote:
>No amount of money can purchase virginity. It is simply priceless.
>-- Obododimma.
>
>On Wed, Jan 14, 2009 at 2:40 PM, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> > (this piggybacks nicely on the brothel dissection...)
> >
> >
> > Grad Student Selling Virginity Flooded With Offers
> >
> > http://cbs13.com/local/selling.virginity.tuition.2.815171.html
> >
> > A Sacramento State grad trying to make money by auctioning off her
> > virginity to help pay for her graduate studies is getting lots of > > offers...and not just for sex.
> >
> > The 22-year-old who is using the pseudonym Natalie Dylan for safety reasons

> > is going through a legal brothel in Nevada to sell her virginity.
> Dylan told > > CBS13 she's gotten an offer of $250,000. And now she's gotten an offer to > > do a photo spread for Penthouse magazine.
> >
> > The auction is being handled by the Bunny Ranch in Carson City, Nevada with > > bids coming in through their website.
> >
> > Dylan says she's already taken a polygraph test to prove her virginal > > status, and is also willing to undergo a medical exam.
> >
> > "The main purpose of this is to finance a couple things in my life," Dylan > > told CBS13. "I think empowerment of women is picking yourself up and doing > > something on your own to better yourself."
> >
> > So far, hundreds of offers have already come in including some from male > > virgins. Natalie says she won't give up her virginity to the highest > > bidder. She's also seeking other qualities from her first lover. "I'm > > looking for intelligence and an overall nice person," said Dylan.
> >
> > Dylan says she ended up in a financial bind, because her stepfather > > allegedly used her college status to fraudulently apply for student loans,
> > and then ran off with the money.
> >
> > Dylan earned her bachelor's degree in women's studies from Sacramento State > > and plans to get her master's at the school beginning in January.
> >
> > Many Sac State students say they're shocked to hear about their former > > classmate's plan, while others applaud her.
> >
> > "She's just giving it to some random person. And I just think she should be > > giving it to someone special she loves," said one student on campus.
> >
> > While another felt that selling her virginity for grad school "is a noble > > reason to get money."
> >
> > As for Natalie, after claiming to hold on to her virginity for 22 years
> > (although the Bunny Ranch website claims she is 21-years-old), she says she > > has a commodity not many people have to sell.

> >
> > "When I was younger, I wanted 100% romance, possibly even wait for > > marriage. But as I grew up, reality kinda hit. And I think its a > > capitalistic society and I want to capitalize on this," explained Dylan.
> >
> >
>
>
>
>--
>Obododimma Oha
>Senior Lecturer in Stylistics & Semiotics
>Dept. of English
>University of Ibadan
>Nigeria
>
>&
>
>Fellow, Centre for Peace & Conflict Studies
>University of Ibadan
>
>Phone: [redacted];
> [redacted].
>

↑ Index

255. Tony Trigilio

Court Green and Fence: Off-Site AWP Reading (Feb. 12, 6:30 p.m.)

Thu 15 Jan 2009

COURT GREEN and FENCE
Off-Site Reading at AWP

Thursday, February 12, 2009
6:30pm - 9:00pm

Film Row Cinema, Columbia College Chicago
1104 S. Wabash (8th floor)

COURT GREEN 6 (Letters Dossier) and FENCE BOOKS celebrate their publication releases with a reading and reception in conjunction with the Association of Writers and Writing Programs (AWP) Conference. Contributors will read selections from COURT GREEN and FENCE. Readers include William Olsen, Sharon Dolin, Julie Carr, Carrie Etter, Charles Jensen, Elizabeth Robinson, Sasha Steensen, James Shea, Brian Young, and Rodrigo Toscano, among others. A reception follows the readings.

↑ Index

256. Jordan Stempleman
Re: name of French poet
Thu 15 Jan 2009

_____
Windows Live™: Keep your life in sync.
http://windowslive.com/explore?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_allup_explore_012009

↑ Index

257. Mary Jo Malo
Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?
Thu 15 Jan 2009

Yes, Steve, it's everywhere as others have also remarked. What puzzled me was this statement:

"Contemporary urban poets have moved away from Wordsworth and the Romantics, whose metaphors were shaped by sublime natural forces, whose rhythms were so often set by the cycles of nature. The newer language of art emanates from the human-built environment, from the streets, from computers. This urban or electronic expression of creativity speaks to and for modern ears and eyes, and it has its own rhythms and metaphors." (Last Child In The Woods...Richard Louv)

Experts in one field often feel qualified to make uninformed comments regarding other fields. It's obvious there are environments of poetry he's never dared to wander.

Mary Jo

--
http://thisshiningwound.blogspot.com/
http://apophisdeconstructingabsurdity.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

258. Halvard Johnson
Re: coMpetition does
Thu 15 Jan 2009

On Jan 15, 2009, at 10:17 AM, gabriel siegel wrote:

> Workshops are good things--
>
> Whatever mediocrity writes, is what you shouldn't.

Easy for you to say.

Hal

"I don't know what music is."
--Ludvig van Beethoven (who only wrote his best stuff)

Halvard Johnson
==========
[redacted]
http://home.earthlink.net/~halvard/index.html
http://entropyandme.blogspot.com
http://imageswithoutwords.blogspot.com
http://www.hamiltonstone.org
http://home.earthlink.net/~halvard/vidalocabooks.html

↑ Index

259. laura oliver
Re: name of French poet
Thu 15 Jan 2009

I'm wondering if it was Pierre Reverdy?

> Date: Thu, 15 Jan 2009 11:15:53 -0600
> From: [redacted]
> Subject: name of French poet
> To: [redacted]
>
> I'm trying to recall the name of the French poet who referred to his poems as "promes"?
>
> John Herbert Cunningham

_____ Windows Live™
Hotmail®: Chat. Store. Share. Do more with mail.

http://windowslive.com/howitworks?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_hm_justgotbetter_howitworks_012009

↑ Index

260. Charlotte Mandel
Re: name of French poet
Thu 15 Jan 2009

Would it be Francis Ponge?
Charlotte

On Jan 15, 2009, at 12:15 PM, John Cunningham wrote:

I'm trying to recall the name of the French poet who referred to his poems
as "promes"?

John Herbert Cunningham

↑ Index

261. Obododimma Oha
Re: Bailout
Thu 15 Jan 2009

Sometimes it is better to lock one's doors and throw away the keys, even when there's nothing of great value in the house.
-- Obododimma.

On Thu, Jan 15, 2009 at 8:09 PM, Maria Damon <[redacted]> wrote:

> but is it not also worthless?
>
> Obododimma Oha wrote:
>
> No amount of money can purchase virginity. It is simply priceless.
> -- Obododimma.
>
> On Wed, Jan 14, 2009 at 2:40 PM, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
> wrote:
>
> (this piggybacks nicely on the brothel dissection...)
>
> Grad Student Selling Virginity Flooded With Offers

http://cbs13.com/local/selling.virginity.tuition.2.815171.html

A Sacramento State grad trying to make money by auctioning off her virginity to help pay for her graduate studies is getting lots of offers...and not just for sex.

The 22-year-old who is using the pseudonym Natalie Dylan for safety reasons is going through a legal brothel in Nevada to sell her virginity. Dylan told CBS13 she's gotten an offer of $250,000. And now she's gotten an offer to do a photo spread for Penthouse magazine.

The auction is being handled by the Bunny Ranch in Carson City, Nevada with bids coming in through their website.

Dylan says she's already taken a polygraph test to prove her virginal status, and is also willing to undergo a medical exam.

"The main purpose of this is to finance a couple things in my life," Dylan told CBS13. "I think empowerment of women is picking yourself up and doing something on your own to better yourself."

So far, hundreds of offers have already come in including some from male virgins. Natalie says she won't give up her virginity to the highest bidder. She's also seeking other qualities from her first lover. "I'm looking for intelligence and an overall nice person," said Dylan.

Dylan says she ended up in a financial bind, because her stepfather allegedly used her college status to fraudulently apply for student loans, and then ran off with the money.

Dylan earned her bachelor's degree in women's studies from Sacramento State and plans to get her master's at the school beginning in January.

Many Sac State students say they're shocked to hear about their former classmate's plan, while others applaud her.

"She's just giving it to some random person. And I just think she should be giving it to someone special she loves," said one student on campus.

> While another felt that selling her virginity for grad school "is a noble reason to get money."
>
> As for Natalie, after claiming to hold on to her virginity for 22 years (although the Bunny Ranch website claims she is 21-years-old), she says she > has a commodity not many people have to sell.
>
> "When I was younger, I wanted 100% romance, possibly even wait for marriage. But as I grew up, reality kinda hit. And I think its a capitalistic society and I want to capitalize on this," explained Dylan.
>
> guidelines

--
Obododimma Oha
Senior Lecturer in Stylistics & Semiotics
Dept. of English
University of Ibadan
Nigeria

&

Fellow, Centre for Peace & Conflict Studies
University of Ibadan

Phone: [redacted];
[redacted].

↑ Index

262. joseph bradshaw
Spare Room Turns 100!
Thu 15 Jan 2009

Spare Room's 100th Reading

To celebrate seven years of presenting experimental writing in Portland, Spare Room organizers past and present (with friends) will read

100 Poems by 100 Poets from the Past 100 Years

Sunday, January 25

starting at 2:00 pm ending when we finish (6:00? 7:00?)

Free admission

Gallery Homeland
(at the Ford Building)

2505 SE 11th Avenue
Portland, OR 97214
www.galleryhomeland.org

www.flim.com/spareroom

From Helen Adam to Louis Zukofsky, from Futurism to Personism, from Hiroshima to Blackhawk Island, from Polish counts to Peruvian communists, from Dada to MoMA, from prisoners of war to secret agents, from the mimeograph to the blog . . . come hear a small but representative slice of the extraordinary range of poetries practiced in the past century!

Readers will include:

David Abel
Meredith Blankinship
Joseph Bradshaw
Alicia Cohen
Gale Czerski
Laura Feldman
Patrick Hartigan
Lindsay Hill
Maryrose Larkin
Sam Lohmann
Jesse Morse
Mark Owens & crew*
Chris Piuma
Dan Raphael
James Yeary

* sound poetry performers:

Leo & Anna Daedalus
Tony Christy
Linda Austin
Lisa Radon with Neville, Molly, & Oskar

and many more . . .

Reading poems by:

Helen Adam
Charles Amirkhanian
Guillaume Apollinaire
Hugo Ball
Ted Berrigan
Mei-mei Berssenbrugge
Robin Blaser
Nicole Brossard
Basil Bunting
Anne Carson
Constantine Cavafy
Joseph Ceravolo
Theresa Hak Kyung Cha
Inger Christiansen
Robert Creeley
Beverly Dahlen
Robert Desnos
H.D.
Francois Dufrene
Robert Duncan
Russell Edson
Jennifer Crystal Fang-Chien
Kevin Goodan
Linda Gregg
Bill Griffiths
Barbara Guest
Carla Harryman
Dick Higgins
Ake Hodell
Fanny Howe
Susan Howe
Philip Jenks
Karen Kelley
Aleksei Kruchenyk
Gerrit Lansing
Jackson Mac Low
Bernadette Mayer
Marianne Moore
Christian Morgenstern

Harryette Mullen
Susan Smith Nash
bp nichol
Lorine Niedecker
Alice Notley
Frank O"Hara
George Oppen
Michael Palmer
Bob Perelman
Dennis Phillips
Laura Riding
Joan Retallack
Gerhard Rühm
Diana Saenz
Frank Samperi
Aram Saroyan
Kurt Schwitters
David Shapiro
Charles Sharpe
Ron Silliman
Gustaf Sobin
Jack Spicer
Gertrude Stein
Wallace Stevens
Rhett Stuart
Cole Swenson
John Taggart
Nathaniel Tarn
Alberta Turner
César Vallejo
Lew Welch
Hannah Weiner
Jonathan Williams
William Carlos Williams
C.D. Wright
Araki Yasusada
Louis Zukofsky

and many more!

↑ Index

263. Obododimma Oha
Re: Bailout
Thu 15 Jan 2009

Certainly. The price of life is, perhaps, death. And the price of virginity is that you lack the experience. The price is not in dollars. -- Obododimma.

On Thu, Jan 15, 2009 at 7:29 PM, Diego Navarro <[redacted]>wrote:

> If virginity is priceless, so is life itself. Should then all the material resources of society redirected to medical research? Arts-related are an gigantic waste, in that case.
>
> Everything has a price.
>
> On 15/01/2009, at 07:02, Obododimma Oha wrote:
>
> No amount of money can purchase virginity. It is simply priceless.
> -- Obododimma.
>
> On Wed, Jan 14, 2009 at 2:40 PM, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
> wrote:
>
> (this piggybacks nicely on the brothel dissection...)
>
> Grad Student Selling Virginity Flooded With Offers
>
> http://cbs13.com/local/selling.virginity.tuition.2.815171.html
>
> A Sacramento State grad trying to make money by auctioning off her virginity to help pay for her graduate studies is getting lots of offers...and not just for sex.
>
> The 22-year-old who is using the pseudonym Natalie Dylan for safety reasons
> is going through a legal brothel in Nevada to sell her virginity. Dylan told > CBS13 she's gotten an offer of $250,000. And now she's gotten an offer to > do a photo spread for Penthouse magazine.
>
> The auction is being handled by the Bunny Ranch in Carson City, Nevada with
> bids coming in through their website.
>
> Dylan says she's already taken a polygraph test to prove her virginal status, and is also willing to undergo a medical exam.

"The main purpose of this is to finance a couple things in my life," Dylan told CBS13. "I think empowerment of women is picking yourself up and doing something on your own to better yourself."

So far, hundreds of offers have already come in including some from male virgins. Natalie says she won't give up her virginity to the highest bidder. She's also seeking other qualities from her first lover. "I'm looking for intelligence and an overall nice person," said Dylan.

*Dylan says she ended up in a financial bind, because her stepfather allegedly used her college status to fraudulently apply for student loans,
and then ran off with the money.*

*Dylan earned her bachelor's degree in women's studies from Sacramento State
and plans to get her master's at the school beginning in January.*

Many Sac State students say they're shocked to hear about their former classmate's plan, while others applaud her.

"She's just giving it to some random person. And I just think she should be giving it to someone special she loves," said one student on campus.

While another felt that selling her virginity for grad school "is a noble reason to get money."

As for Natalie, after claiming to hold on to her virginity for 22 years (although the Bunny Ranch website claims she is 21-years-old), she says she has a commodity not many people have to sell.

"When I was younger, I wanted 100% romance, possibly even wait for marriage. But as I grew up, reality kinda hit. And I think its a capitalistic society and I want to capitalize on this," explained Dylan.

guidelines

*--
Obododimma Oha
Senior Lecturer in Stylistics & Semiotics*

> Dept. of English
> University of Ibadan
> Nigeria
>
> &
>
> Fellow, Centre for Peace & Conflict Studies
> University of Ibadan
>
> Phone: [redacted];
> [redacted].
>
> --
> Diego Navarro
> FGV Projetos
> (21) 2559-5620
>
> "Escrever não tem a ver com significados, mas com agrimensura e cartografia, inclusive de terras desconhecidas" (Deleuze & Guattari, "Mil Platôs")

--
Obododimma Oha
Senior Lecturer in Stylistics & Semiotics
Dept. of English
University of Ibadan
Nigeria

&

Fellow, Centre for Peace & Conflict Studies
University of Ibadan

Phone: [redacted];
[redacted].

↑ Index

264. Jason Quackenbush
Re: Bailout
Thu 15 Jan 2009

I had a friend in high school who claimed to have paid someone to take his off of his hands. My understanding is that's not an uncommon practice, so why not the other way around?

On Jan 15, 2009, at 12:06 PM, Mark Weiss wrote:

> Ah but not necessarily for the seller.
>
> Mark
>
> At 04:02 AM 1/15/2009, you wrote:
> No amount of money can purchase virginity. It is simply priceless.
> -- Obododimma.
>
> On Wed, Jan 14, 2009 at 2:40 PM, mIEKAL aND
> <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> (this piggybacks nicely on the brothel dissection...)
>
> Grad Student Selling Virginity Flooded With Offers
>
> http://cbs13.com/local/selling.virginity.tuition.2.815171.html
>
> A Sacramento State grad trying to make money by auctioning off her virginity to help pay for her graduate studies is getting lots of offers...and not just for sex.
>
> The 22-year-old who is using the pseudonym Natalie Dylan for safety reasons
> is going through a legal brothel in Nevada to sell her virginity. Dylan told > CBS13 she's gotten an offer of $250,000. And now she's gotten an offer to > do a photo spread for Penthouse magazine.
>
> The auction is being handled by the Bunny Ranch in Carson City, Nevada with
> bids coming in through their website.
>
> Dylan says she's already taken a polygraph test to prove her virginal
> status, and is also willing to undergo a medical exam.
>
> "The main purpose of this is to finance a couple things in my life," Dylan

told CBS13. "I think empowerment of women is picking yourself up and doing
something on your own to better yourself."

So far, hundreds of offers have already come in including some from male virgins. Natalie says she won't give up her virginity to the highest bidder. She's also seeking other qualities from her first lover. "I'm
looking for intelligence and an overall nice person," said Dylan.

Dylan says she ended up in a financial bind, because her stepfather allegedly used her college status to fraudulently apply for student loans,
and then ran off with the money.

Dylan earned her bachelor's degree in women's studies from Sacramento State
and plans to get her master's at the school beginning in January.

Many Sac State students say they're shocked to hear about their former
classmate's plan, while others applaud her.

"She's just giving it to some random person. And I just think she should be giving it to someone special she loves," said one student on campus.

While another felt that selling her virginity for grad school
"is a noble
reason to get money."

As for Natalie, after claiming to hold on to her virginity for 22 years
(although the Bunny Ranch website claims she is 21-years-old), she says she has a commodity not many people have to sell.

"When I was younger, I wanted 100% romance, possibly even wait for marriage. But as I grew up, reality kinda hit. And I think its a capitalistic society and I want to capitalize on this,"
explained Dylan.

guidelines

> --
> Obododimma Oha
> Senior Lecturer in Stylistics & Semiotics
> Dept. of English
> University of Ibadan
> Nigeria
>
> &
>
> Fellow, Centre for Peace & Conflict Studies
> University of Ibadan
>
> Phone: [redacted];
> [redacted].
>
> welcome.html
>
> welcome.html

Jason Quackenbush
[redacted]

↑ Index

265. Tomas Weber
Re: name of French poet
Thu 15 Jan 2009

Francis Ponge

2009/1/15 laura oliver <[redacted]>:
> I'm wondering if it was Pierre Reverdy?
>
>> Date: Thu, 15 Jan 2009 11:15:53 -0600
>> From: [redacted]
>> Subject: name of French poet
>> To: [redacted]
>>
>> I'm trying to recall the name of the French poet who referred to his poems
>> as "promes"?
>>
>> John Herbert Cunningham
>>
>>

>
> _____
> Windows Live™ Hotmail(R): Chat. Store. Share. Do more with mail.
> http://windowslive.com/howitworks?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_hm_justgotbetter_howitworks_012009
>

↑ Index

266. Maria Damon
Re: Bailout
Thu 15 Jan 2009

---

what a great response!
but if one is inside the house, does it make one one's own prisoner?

Obododimma Oha wrote:
> Sometimes it is better to lock one's doors and throw away the keys, even > when there's nothing of great value in the house.
> -- Obododimma.
>
>
>
> On Thu, Jan 15, 2009 at 8:09 PM, Maria Damon <[redacted]> wrote:
>
>
>> but is it not also worthless?
>>
>>
>> Obododimma Oha wrote:
>>
>>
>>> No amount of money can purchase virginity. It is simply priceless.
>>> -- Obododimma.
>>>
>>> On Wed, Jan 14, 2009 at 2:40 PM, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
>>> wrote:
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>>> (this piggybacks nicely on the brothel dissection...)
>>>>
>>>>

>>>> Grad Student Selling Virginity Flooded With Offers
>>>>
>>>> http://cbs13.com/local/selling.virginity.tuition.2.815171.html
>>>>
>>>> A Sacramento State grad trying to make money by auctioning off her
>>>> virginity to help pay for her graduate studies is getting lots of >>>> offers...and not just for sex.
>>>>
>>>> The 22-year-old who is using the pseudonym Natalie Dylan for safety
>>>> reasons >>>> is going through a legal brothel in Nevada to sell her virginity. Dylan >>>> told >>>> CBS13 she's gotten an offer of $250,000. And now she's gotten an offer
>>>> to >>>> do a photo spread for Penthouse magazine.
>>>>
>>>> The auction is being handled by the Bunny Ranch in Carson City, Nevada
>>>> with >>>> bids coming in through their website.
>>>>
>>>> Dylan says she's already taken a polygraph test to prove her virginal >>>> status, and is also willing to undergo a medical exam.
>>>>
>>>> "The main purpose of this is to finance a couple things in my life," >>>> Dylan >>>> told CBS13. "I think empowerment of women is picking yourself up and >>>> doing >>>> something on your own to better yourself."
>>>>
>>>> So far, hundreds of offers have already come in including some from male >>>> virgins. Natalie says she won't give up her virginity to the highest >>>> bidder. She's also seeking other qualities from her first lover. "I'm >>>> looking for intelligence and an overall nice person," said Dylan.
>>>>
>>>> Dylan says she ended up in a financial bind, because her stepfather >>>> allegedly used her college status to fraudulently apply for student >>>> loans,
>>>> and then ran off with the money.
>>>>
>>>> Dylan earned her bachelor's degree in women's studies from

Sacramento
>>>> State
>>>> and plans to get her master's at the school beginning in January.
>>>>
>>>> Many Sac State students say they're shocked to hear about their former >>>> classmate's plan, while others applaud her.
>>>>
>>>> "She's just giving it to some random person. And I just think she should >>>> be >>>> giving it to someone special she loves," said one student on campus.
>>>>
>>>> While another felt that selling her virginity for grad school "is a noble >>>> reason to get money."
>>>>
>>>> As for Natalie, after claiming to hold on to her virginity for 22 years
>>>> (although the Bunny Ranch website claims she is 21-years-old), she says
>>>> she >>>> has a commodity not many people have to sell.
>>>>
>>>> "When I was younger, I wanted 100% romance, possibly even wait for >>>> marriage. But as I grew up, reality kinda hit. And I think its a >>>> capitalistic society and I want to capitalize on this," explained Dylan.
>>>>
>>>> guidelines
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>
>>
>
>
>
>

↑ Index

267. Stephen Ellis
Re: Bailout
Thu 15 Jan 2009

The more conscious you become - of anything - the larger the house gets to be. Of course, the first thing to go is, a way to find the door. It always gets more distant. And THAT is consciousness . . . that we're ALL "one's own prisoner." In one's own Self. It goes with the territory. If territory is what one's buying.

_____ Windows Live™ Hotmail®: Chat. Store. Share. Do more with mail. http://windowslive.com/howitworks?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_hm_justgotbetter_howitworks_012009

↑ Index

268. Eric Dickey
Re: name of French poet
Thu 15 Jan 2009

I think you mean proêmes by Francis Ponge, with a circumflex over the first e.

--- On Thu, 1/15/09, John Cunningham <[redacted]> wrote:
From: John Cunningham <[redacted]>
Subject: name of French poet
To: [redacted]
Date: Thursday, January 15, 2009, 9:15 AM

I'm trying to recall the name of the French poet who referred to his poems as "promes"?

John Herbert Cunningham

↑ Index

269. Christopher Leland Winks
Re: Bailout
Thu 15 Jan 2009

Let's consider Sappho:

Parthenia, parthenia,
poi me lipois' apoikhe?

Translated by Guy Davenport as:

Girlhood O girlhood
Lost of a sudden,
Where have you gone?

Mary Barnard translates "Parthenia" as "Maidenhead." This is probably a fragment of an epithalamium and there is a certain degree of chaffing going on here: how insubstantial, after all, is this "maidenhead"! Tne joking tone remains in the response of the bridegroom (both voices were probably enacted by Sappho's girl pupils, though bear in mind we know very little about Sappho):

Ouketi exo
pros se ouket'exo

Translated by Davenport as:

Nowhere, bride my darling
Nowhere near you

We're a long way from chastity belts (with thrown-away keys) and extolling of virginity!

----- Original Message -----
From: Maria Damon <[redacted]>
Date: Thursday, January 15, 2009 5:30 pm
Subject: Re: Bailout
To: [redacted]

> what a great response!
> but if one is inside the house, does it make one one's own prisoner?
>
> Obododimma Oha wrote:
> > Sometimes it is better to lock one's doors and throw away the keys, even > > when there's nothing of great value in the house.
> > -- Obododimma.
> >
> >
> >
> > On Thu, Jan 15, 2009 at 8:09 PM, Maria Damon <[redacted]> wrote:
> >
> >
> >> but is it not also worthless?
> >>
> >>
> >> Obododimma Oha wrote:
> >>
> >>
> >>> No amount of money can purchase virginity. It is simply priceless.
> >>> -- Obododimma.
> >>>
> >>> On Wed, Jan 14, 2009 at 2:40 PM, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
> >>> wrote:

> >>>
> >>>
> >>>
> >>>
> >>>> (this piggybacks nicely on the brothel dissection...)
> >>>>
> >>>>
> >>>> Grad Student Selling Virginity Flooded With Offers
> >>>>
> >>>> http://cbs13.com/local/selling.virginity.tuition.2.815171.html
> >>>>
> >>>> A Sacramento State grad trying to make money by auctioning off her
> >>>> virginity to help pay for her graduate studies is getting lots of > >>>> offers...and not just for sex.
> >>>>
> >>>> The 22-year-old who is using the pseudonym Natalie Dylan for safety
> >>>> reasons
> >>>> is going through a legal brothel in Nevada to sell her virginity. Dylan
> >>>> told > >>>> CBS13 she's gotten an offer of $250,000. And now she's gotten an offer
> >>>> to > >>>> do a photo spread for Penthouse magazine.
> >>>>
> >>>> The auction is being handled by the Bunny Ranch in Carson City, Nevada
> >>>> with > >>>> bids coming in through their website.
> >>>>
> >>>> Dylan says she's already taken a polygraph test to prove her virginal
> >>>> status, and is also willing to undergo a medical exam.
> >>>>
> >>>> "The main purpose of this is to finance a couple things in my life," > >>>> Dylan
> >>>> told CBS13. "I think empowerment of women is picking yourself up and > >>>> doing > >>>> something on your own to better yourself."
> >>>>
> >>>> So far, hundreds of offers have already come in including some
from male
> >>>> virgins. Natalie says she won't give up her virginity to the highest > >>>> bidder. She's also seeking other qualities from her first lover. "I'm > >>>> looking for intelligence and an overall nice person," said Dylan.
> >>>>
> >>>> Dylan says she ended up in a financial bind, because her stepfather

>>>> allegedly used her college status to fraudulently apply for student >>>> loans,
>>>> and then ran off with the money.
>>>>
>>>> Dylan earned her bachelor's degree in women's studies from Sacramento
>>>> State
>>>> and plans to get her master's at the school beginning in January.
>>>>
>>>> Many Sac State students say they're shocked to hear about their former >>>> classmate's plan, while others applaud her.
>>>>
>>>> "She's just giving it to some random person. And I just think she should >>>> be >>>> giving it to someone special she loves," said one student on campus.
>>>>
>>>> While another felt that selling her virginity for grad school
"is a noble
>>>> reason to get money."
>>>>
>>>> As for Natalie, after claiming to hold on to her virginity for 22 years
>>>> (although the Bunny Ranch website claims she is 21-years-old), she says
>>>> she >>>> has a commodity not many people have to sell.
>>>>
>>>> "When I was younger, I wanted 100% romance, possibly even wait for >>>> marriage. But as I grew up, reality kinda hit. And I think its
a >>>> capitalistic society and I want to capitalize on this,"
explained Dylan.
>>>>
>>>> ==========
>>>> guidelines
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>>
>> ==========
>>
>>
>

> >
> >
> >

↑ Index

270. Elizabeth Switaj
Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?
Thu 15 Jan 2009

On Thu, Jan 15, 2009 at 12:37 PM, Mary Jo Malo <[redacted]> wrote:

> Experts in one field often feel qualified to make uninformed comments regarding other fields. It's obvious there are environments of poetry he's never dared to wander.

Indeed, I think is especially pronounced with poetry. EVERYONE seems to think they are qualified to make comments on it--what's wrong with it, why they don't read it, etc.

Elizabeth Kate Switaj
www.elizabethkateswitaj.net

↑ Index

271. Robin Hamilton
Re: Bailout
Thu 15 Jan 2009

Oh blah Kafka.

R.

----- Original Message -----
From: "Stephen Ellis" <[redacted]>
To: <[redacted]>
Sent: Thursday, January 15, 2009 10:35 PM
Subject: Re: Bailout

The more conscious you become - of anything - the larger the house gets to be. Of course, the first thing to go is, a way to find the door. It always gets more distant. And THAT is consciousness . . . that we're ALL "one's own prisoner." In one's own Self. It goes with the territory. If territory is what one's buying.

> Date: Thu, 15 Jan 2009 16:27:53 -0600> From: [redacted]> Subject:
> Re: Bailout> To: [redacted]> > what a great response!>
> but if one is inside the house, does it make one one's own prisoner?> >

> Obododimma Oha wrote:> > Sometimes it is better to lock one's doors and > throw away the keys, even> > when there's nothing of great value in the > house.> > -- Obododimma.> >> >> >> > On Thu, Jan 15, 2009 at 8:09 PM, > Maria Damon <[redacted]> wrote:> >> > > >> but is it not also > worthless?> >>> >>> >> Obododimma Oha wrote:> >>> >> > >>> No amount of > money can purchase virginity. It is simply priceless.> >>> -- Obododimma.>
> >>>> >>> On Wed, Jan 14, 2009 at 2:40 PM, mIEKAL aND > <[redacted]>> >>> wrote:> >>>> >>>> >>>> >>> > >>>> (this > piggybacks nicely on the brothel dissection...)> >>>>> >>>>> >>>> Grad > Student Selling Virginity Flooded With Offers> >>>>> >>>>
> http://cbs13.com/local/selling.virginity.tuition.2.815171.html> >>>>> >>>>
> A Sacramento State grad trying to make money by auctioning off her> >>>>
> virginity to help pay for her graduate studies is getting lots of> >>>> > offers...and not just for sex.> >>>>> >>>> The 22-year-old who is using > the pseudonym Natalie Dylan for safety> >>>> reasons> >>>> is going > through a legal brothel in Nevada to sell her virginity. Dylan> >>>> told> > >>>> CBS13 she's gotten an offer of $250,000. And now she's gotten an > offer> >>>> to> >>>> do a photo spread for Penthouse magazine.> >>>>> >>>>
> The auction is being handled by the Bunny Ranch in Carson City, Nevada> > >>>> with> >>>> bids coming in through their website.> >>>>> >>>> Dylan > says she's already taken a polygraph test to prove her virginal> >>>> > status, and is also willing to undergo a medical exam.> >>>>> >>>> "The > main purpose of this is to finance a couple things in my life,"> >>>> > Dylan> >>>> told CBS13. "I think empowerment of women is picking yourself > up and> >>>> doing> >>>> something on your own to better yourself."> >>>>>
> >>>> So far, hundreds of offers have already come in including some from > male> >>>> virgins. Natalie says she won't give up her virginity to the > highest> >>>> bidder. She's also seeking other qualities from her first > lover. "I'm> >>>> looking for intelligence and an overall nice person," > said Dylan.> >>>>> >>>> Dylan says she ended up in a financial bind, > because her stepfather> >>>> allegedly used her college status to > fraudulently apply for student> >>>> loans,> >>>> and then ran off with > the money.> >>>>> >>>> Dylan earned her bachelor's degree in women's > studies from Sacramento> >>>> State> >>>> and plans to get her master's at > the school beginning in January.> >>>>> >>>> Many Sac State students say > they're shocked to hear about their former> >>>> classmate's plan, while > others applaud her.> >>>>> >>>> "She's just giving it to some random > person. And I just think she should> >>>> be> >>>> giving it to someone > special she loves," said one student on campus.> >>>>> >>>> While another > felt that selling her virginity for grad school "is a noble> >>>> reason > to get money."> >>>>> >>>> As for Natalie, after claiming to hold on to > her virginity for 22 years> >>>> (although the Bunny Ranch website claims > she is 21-years-old), she says> >>>> she> >>>> has a commodity not many > people have to sell.> >>>>> >>>> "When I was younger, I wanted 100% > romance, possibly even wait for> >>>> marriage. But as I grew up, reality > kinda hit. And I think its a> >>>> capitalistic society and I want to > capitalize on this," explained Dylan.> >>>>> >>>>

> >>>> >>>> >>> > >>
==========> >> The Poetics List

Windows Live™ Hotmail®: Chat. Store. Share. Do more with mail.
http://windowslive.com/howitworks?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_hm_justgotbetter_howitworks_012009

↑ Index

272. Poetry Project

Events and Workshops at The Poetry Project

Thu 15 Jan 2009

We have some good readings coming up at The Poetry Project and the church is nice and warm. We hope to see you here.

Also, the next round of workshops starts up in February‹ scroll down for info.

Friday, January 16, 10 PM
Michael Basinski & Justin Katko

Michael Basinski is the curator of The Poetry Collection at the State University of New York at Buffalo. He performs his work as a solo poet and in ensemble with BuffFluxus. Among his many books of poetry are Of Venus 93 (Little Scratch Pad); All My Eggs Are Broken (BlazeVox); Heka (Factory School); Strange Things Begin to Happen When a Meteor Crashes in the Arizona Desert (Burning Press); and AuXin (an Amphibole book, Amphibole is a vehicle of They Are Flying Planes). His poems have appeared in Dandelion, BoxKite, Antennae, Unbearables Magazine, Open Letter, Torgue, Leopold Bloom, Wooden Head Review, Basta, Kiosk, Explosive Magazine, Deluxe Rubber Chicken, First Offense, Terrible Work, Juxta, Kenning, Witz, Lungfull, Lvng, Generator, Tinfish, Curicule Patterns, Score, Unarmed, Rampike, First Intensity, House Organ, Ferrum Wheel, End Note, Ur Vox, Damn the Caesars, Pilot, 1913, Filling Station, Public Illumination, Words, They Are Flying Planes and in others. Justin Katko is a poet and publisher. He edits the small press Critical Documents, which specializes in contemporary poetry from the UK and the US. He is completing an MFA in Electronic Writing at Brown University.

Wednesday, January 21, 8 PM
Bob Perelman & Craig Watson

Bob Perelman is the author of numerous books of poetry, including Iflife, Ten to One, and, in collaboration with painter Francie Shaw, Playing Bodies; and two critical books, The Trouble with Genius and The Marginalization of Poetry. He teaches at the University of Pennsylvania. Craig Watson has been a theater manager, corporate executive, technical writer, volunteer fire fighter, strategic consultant and college instructor, among other vocations. Currently, he serves as an associate artistic director for a professional theater in Rhode Island. His eleven books of poetry began with Drawing A Blank (Singing Horse Press, 1980) and most recently include True News (Instance, 2002) and Secret Histories (Burning Deck, 2007). He lives on an island at the mouth of Narragansett Bay.

HAVING IT BOTH WAYS: THE PROSE POEM LARRY FAGIN TUESDAYS AT 7PM: 10 SESSIONS BEGIN FEBRUARY 10TH This is a workshop designed for writers of both poetry and short prose, who are interested in investigating the boundary between the two areas, or those who have discovered such boundaries to be less than trustworthy. We will study this indeterminate form - its subtle musical passages, its rhythms, its connections to narrative and vignette, and its recent incorporations of disjunction and collage. We will read (Baudelaire, Rimbaud, Stein, Max Jacob, Ponge, Ashbery, Bernadette Mayer, Lydia Davis, et al), exchange ideas (story, description, image, abstraction, the personal) and refine our writing with an eye toward publication. Weekly reading and writing assignments. Also, three individual consultations for each participant, throughout the ten weeks.

Larry Fagin is the author of 18 books, the most recent of which is Dig & Delve, a collaboration with the artist Trevor Winkfield.

"THIS MACHINE KILLS FASCISTS": WRITING POLITICAL POEMS SPARROW THURSDAYS AT 7PM: 10 SESSIONS BEGIN FEBRUARY 12TH A poem is a weapon; the question is which way to point it. In "This Machine Kills Fascists," we will study how the masters fought evil, and we'll teach the masters a few tricks of our own. It's time to change the world, one line at a time. (Incidentally, this workshop is open to Republicans and free-market economists.) We will examine the works of Langston Hughes, Yoko Ono, Woody Guthrie, Amiri Baraka, Sonia Sanchez, John Greenleaf Whittier, Mahmoud Darwish, and more. And we will write!

Sparrow, author of America: A Prophesy, professor and Presidential candidate, will lead this enclave.

THE FILMIC MUSE: WRITING MOVIE POEMS JEFFERY CONWAY FRIDAYS AT 7PM: 10 SESSIONS BEGIN FEBRUARY 13TH Whether you're a movieholic, or just have a few movies you love, transforming film into poetry is a great way to stretch and attenuate as a writer. The workshop includes weekly readings of Frank O'Hara, Edward Field, David Trinidad, Denise Duhamel, and Lynn Crosbie, among others, as well as weekly writing exercises and opportunities to discuss your work. Some of the approaches we'll try: persona poems as a way of inhabiting film; creating poems as scene-by-scene analysis or "poetic DVD commentary"; writing hybrid poems which incorporate biography, trivia, film criticism, and technical analysis.

Jeffery Conway's latest book is The Album That Changed My Life, a finalist for the Lambda Literary Award.

PHENOLOGY AND POETRY SUSIE TIMMONS SATURDAYS AT NOON: 10 SESSIONS BEGIN FEBRUARY 14TH Phenology the study of the sequence and timing of events in the life cycles of animals and plants as they respond to seasonal changes in environment is used by farmers and gardeners to know when to plant, when to expect certain pests etc.; for example, "Don't plant corn before oak leaves are the size of a squirrel's ear." We will use the practice of phenology in conjunction with a series of exercises as a departure for examining: the temporal scale of our work, the conundrum of cyclic change, the potential for physical discomfort as a source of inspiration. Meetings will consist of excursions (in close proximity to the Poetry Project) regardless of weather conditions, methodically observing precise changes in a preordained collection of sites as we go from the dead of winter into early spring. If you think looking at twigs is stupid, this workshop is not for you.

Susie Timmons is the author of Locked From the Outside (winner of the inaugural Ted Berrigan Award).

The workshop fee is $350, which includes a one year Sustaining Poetry Project membership and tuition for any and all spring and fall classes. Reservations are required due to limited class space, and payment must be received in advance. Caps on class sizes, if in effect, will be determined by workshop leaders. Please send payment and reservations to:

The Poetry Project, St. Mark's Church
Attn: Workshops

131 East 10th St.
NYC, NY 10003

For more information, or to pay by credit card, please call [redacted], or email: [redacted].

Become a Poetry Project Member! http://poetryproject.com/membership.php

Calendar: http://www.poetryproject.com/calendar.php

The Poetry Project is located at St. Mark's Church-in-the-Bowery
131 East 10th Street at Second Avenue
New York City 10003
Trains: 6, F, N, R, and L.
[redacted]
www.poetryproject.com

Admission is $8, $7 for students/seniors and $5 for members (though now those who take out a membership at $95 or higher will get in FREE to all regular readings).

We are wheelchair accessible with assistance and advance
notice. For more info call [redacted].

If you¹d like to be unsubscribed from this mailing list, please drop a line at [redacted].

↑ Index

273. AWAREing Press
Re: Eyeless in Gaza
Thu 15 Jan 2009

EKS, very funny. Where do we draw the line, as the saying goes. What's an adage, what's cliche, what's art, what's copyrighted, what's free? What's their point? Who said what? What's attributed to whom, and when and why? Did George chop down that cherry tree or was it a frame? Who invented letters, words? Who invented rock and roll? Music, art & lit are in this together. Copy-cats are everywhere. Only vampires and God know the origins and originators. Any way, I've decided that it's the sum of the whole that matters in any work (of art). Phrases borrowed and unattributed I guess are okay as long as the real or first writer isn't Poed. Though an IQ test score next to any author's byline might be a bright idea.

James Beach, editor
AWAREing Press
---------- Original message from Elizabeth Switaj <[redacted]>: ----------

> On Tue, Jan 13, 2009 at 2:28 PM, AWAREing Press wrote:
>
> True, true. My point is that classic literature and verse should be held as sacrosanct.
>
> "So right you are", "James". "I set my copies" "of classic literature" "upon a marble shelf" "on my homemade altar" "and regularly" "sacrifice cows to them". "The blood of the throat" "I use to enclose them" "in a protective circle" "lest anyone interfere" "with their holy mission" "of being" "classic".
>
> "Twenty days after winter solstice" "each year", "I engage in a ritual dance" "in which I" "smash and destroy" "scissors and paste pots". "Of course", "it is only symbolic of" "my desire to eradicate" "borrowings and theft" "from my Gods", "as the books themselves" "are more idol than avatar" "anyway, but aren't" "all the best" "rituals that way"?
>
> "Elizabeth" "Kate" "Switaj"
> "www.elizabethkateswitjaj.net"

↑ Index

274. Alan Sondheim

Check out installation in Second Life by DC Spensley (fwd)

Thu 15 Jan 2009

This message is in MIME format. The first part should be readable text, while the remaining parts are likely unreadable without MIME-aware tools.

--0-412167772-1232064075=:24121

This is really wonderful - I loved the kilometer-high drawing! - alan

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: DC Spensley <[redacted]>

Bio:

DanCoyote Antonelli:

The avatar DanCoyote was created as the proxy for David “DC” Spensley in the virtual world of Second Life. The name DanCoyote is derived from Cervantes’ Don Quixote and in honor of a coyote that Joseph Beuys lived with for a time at the René Block Gallery in New York during his 1974 action, “I like America and America Likes Me”.

DanCoyote’s costume is intended to be simple and low bandwidth, placing the emphasis on work outside of the avatar. Each detail of DanCoyote’s garb, however, has significance. Yellow and black are high visibility colors and also the official colors of the City of San Francisco. The gold bands on his arms and legs symbolize a release from the bonds of gravity and physicality. The wand in the left hand is called a “caduceus”, which refers to the transformational nature of the Greek god Hermes. Caduceus .03 is also a one of a kind virtual tool, custom programmed to project commands to metamorphosize objects and installations from a distance.

DC Spensley

An alumni of the San Francisco Art Institute, DC Spensley has lived and worked in Northern California since 1986. Spensley wears the hat of writer, director, cinematographer, composer, performance artist and most recently has appeared as the avatar DanCoyote Antonelli in the virtual reality simulation of Second Life. While most people jealously guard their pseudonymity inside this alternate reality, Spensley attempts parity in both worlds and has exhibited internationally at the ZeroOne/ISEA conference in 2006, the Dutch Electronic Arts Festival 2006 and Ars Electronica 2007.

About the work on exhibition at ARENA:

I call this grouping "Recent Retrospective" because it contains art from different bodies of my work done in the last three years as an artist in residence in the virtual world.

Most prominent is the nearly kilometer tall assembly entitled "Drawing". Drawing is neither a drawing or a sculpture, but is rather a conceptual tongue and cheek reference to both kinds of artifact that ironically cannot exist in simulated space. Drawing informs viewers about scale in the virtual world in a way unlike most constructions found in SL by negating the figurative context and pointing out the "avatar powers" of a viewer. This encourages a viewer to become more aware of their configuration options and invites the viewer realize a new level of proficiency in experiencing simulated space. The mute monoliths animate glacially, too slow for the eye to perceive and foreground a sense of the volume of space displaced by the work. Viewers take a chair conveyance available at the "Drawing" sign which carries them up to a vantage point high about the sim.

Also on display:

"Pixel Board", a binary feedback social sculpture. Viewers click squares on the smaller panel and this input appears as output on the larger display, which is then visible from a great distance. Pixel Board explores the social urge to leave graffiti, but in a one-bit, black and white icon format.

"Mutant Hossies". These three weird quasi-horse artworks are remediations of a classic sculptural form and displayed like bronze statues on marble platforms. They are a "mashup", or reworking of an original horse sculpture give away free by Second Life artist Nomasha Syaks. Mutant Hossies have embedded scripting that causes subtle animations to play that support the fanciful variation of horse depicted.

"Tomb Maze" Tomb Maze uses embedded reflexive scripting to create a tomb-like maze that people are encouraged to navigate their avatar through. The maze is possible. It does take some patience, so there is always the chance an impatient avatar might become trapped and need to find other means of escape!

"Very Silly Militude" is not what it seems. Very Silly Militude characterizes the quality of verissimilitude superficially. But when set to midnight, a viewer walking through will see light cast in unusual ways. The exterior layer of the work is a deliberate misdirection and while it appears to be about the movement of heavy objects in space, it is really about the way light is occluded by them.

Thanks for viewing!

David "DC" Spensley is DanCoyote in SL

Concurrent with the New Media Caucus panel Space: The New Frontier at the National CAA 2009, “@” is an exhibition that examines space and site.

With simultaneous locations in Los Angeles and Second Life (SL), “@”challenges artists to consider place & placelessness from within the context of networked culture.

The physical gallery space will be replicated within SL, featuring an actual window between the virtual and real worlds to observe and be observed.

The exhibition space will feature a floor-to-ceiling projection and a streaming video camera. This wall will serve as the interface between the Real Life (RL) in the gallery and its replication in Second Life.

The intent for “@” is to exploit the philosophically rich mirroring between RL and SL, as well as the paradoxical condition of being the observer and observed.

CALL FOR WORKS:

Three aspects to the show will be curated separately but are expected to connect conceptually:

1) installation in RL: a heterotopic space - "other space" or "alt space"– that contains the projection from SL and that can be modeled in SL. The artist is not responsible for creating the SL model.

2) video screenings: works concerning space and place vis-à-vis RL and SL. These works will be screened in an adjacent space in RL and streamed in SL

3) works based in SL that may cross RL boundaries. Objects and performances originating in SL that consider and make use of the synergistic interplay of RL/SL localities. Work may exist in either or both spaces.

Exhibition site: Southern California Institute of Architecture, Los Angeles, CA, and Seventh Eye in Second Life.

Installation will take place at the end of February

Formats:

- Works may be in any medium. (submissions must be web links)
- Physical works MAY be reproduced in the SL space.
- Please consider the exhibition context and propose new and existing works that fit this hybrid space.
- Links to high compression downloadable quicktime are recommended, suggested length is 3-5 minutes.
- The gallery is approximately 20' x 60' (detailed diagram available upon request)

Deadline: January 26

Please send proposals or documentation links to:
[redacted]
On Jan 15, 2009, at 11:12 AM, Alan Sondheim wrote:

> - This is amazing - please send me a description and I'll send it out to various lists etc. I particularly like the drawing which seems unique to me and the aesthetics are incredible. - thanks, Alan
>
> | Alan Sondheim Mail archive: http://sondheim.rupamsunyata.org/
> | To access the Odyssey exhibition The Accidental Artist:
> | http://slurl.com/secondlife/Odyssey/48/12/22
> | Webpage (directory) at http://www.alansondheim.org
> | [redacted], [redacted], tel US [redacted]

--0-412167772-1232064075=:24121--

↑ Index

275. steve russell
Re: Bailout
Thu 15 Jan 2009

Good for her. Natalie knows what she wants out of life. Better make the bucks the old fashion way than lose it at some drunken Frat party with an asshole, and that's what usually happens. Virginity has nothing to do with virtue.

--- On Thu, 1/15/09, Maria Damon <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Maria Damon <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Bailout
To: [redacted]
Date: Thursday, January 15, 2009, 5:27 PM

what a great response!
but if one is inside the house, does it make one one's own prisoner?

Obododimma Oha wrote:
> Sometimes it is better to lock one's doors and throw away the keys, even > when there's nothing of great value in the house.
> -- Obododimma.
>
>
>
> On Thu, Jan 15, 2009 at 8:09 PM, Maria Damon <[redacted]>
wrote:
>
>
>> but is it not also worthless?
>>
>>
>> Obododimma Oha wrote:
>>
>>
>>> No amount of money can purchase virginity. It is simply priceless.
>>> -- Obododimma.
>>>
>>> On Wed, Jan 14, 2009 at 2:40 PM, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
>>> wrote:
>>>

>>>
>>>
>>>
>>>> (this piggybacks nicely on the brothel dissection...)
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> Grad Student Selling Virginity Flooded With Offers
>>>>
>>>> http://cbs13.com/local/selling.virginity.tuition.2.815171.html
>>>>
>>>> A Sacramento State grad trying to make money by auctioning off her >>>> virginity to help pay for her graduate studies is getting lots
of
>>>> offers...and not just for sex.
>>>>
>>>> The 22-year-old who is using the pseudonym Natalie Dylan for safety
>>>> reasons
>>>> is going through a legal brothel in Nevada to sell her virginity. Dylan
>>>> told >>>> CBS13 she's gotten an offer of $250,000. And now she's gotten an offer
>>>> to >>>> do a photo spread for Penthouse magazine.
>>>>
>>>> The auction is being handled by the Bunny Ranch in Carson City, Nevada
>>>> with
>>>> bids coming in through their website.
>>>>
>>>> Dylan says she's already taken a polygraph test to prove her virginal
>>>> status, and is also willing to undergo a medical exam.
>>>>
>>>> "The main purpose of this is to finance a couple things in my life,"
>>>> Dylan
>>>> told CBS13. "I think empowerment of women is picking yourself up and >>>> doing

>>>> something on your own to better yourself."
>>>>
>>>> So far, hundreds of offers have already come in including some from male >>>> virgins. Natalie says she won't give up her virginity to the highest >>>> bidder. She's also seeking other qualities from her first lover. "I'm >>>> looking for intelligence and an overall nice person," said Dylan.
>>>>
>>>> Dylan says she ended up in a financial bind, because her stepfather >>>> allegedly used her college status to fraudulently apply for student >>>> loans,
>>>> and then ran off with the money.
>>>>
>>>> Dylan earned her bachelor's degree in women's studies from Sacramento
>>>> State
>>>> and plans to get her master's at the school beginning in January.
>>>>
>>>> Many Sac State students say they're shocked to hear about their former >>>> classmate's plan, while others applaud her.
>>>>
>>>> "She's just giving it to some random person. And I just think she should >>>> be >>>> giving it to someone special she loves," said one student on campus.
>>>>
>>>> While another felt that selling her virginity for grad school "is a noble >>>> reason to get money."
>>>>
>>>> As for Natalie, after claiming to hold on to her virginity for 22 years
>>>> (although the Bunny Ranch website claims she is 21-years-old), she says

>>>> she >>>> has a commodity not many people have to sell.
>>>>
>>>> "When I was younger, I wanted 100% romance, possibly even wait for >>>> marriage. But as I grew up, reality kinda hit. And I think its a >>>> capitalistic society and I want to capitalize on this,"
explained Dylan.
>>>>
Check
>>>> guidelines
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>>
guidelines
>>
>>
>
>
>
>

↑ Index

276. Gabrielle Welford
simone weil
Thu 15 Jan 2009

simone weil did, i think, write about hitler, seeing him more as the voice of what people really wanted in germany at that time than some kind of superman who could, alone, make terrible things happen. best, g

On Tue, 13 Jan 2009, steve russell wrote:

> Brilliant essay, Jan 9:Troy Camplin.
>
> I take on faith that God is not apathetic. Perhaps this is why I'm so struck by Simone Weil, the greatest Christian gnostic of the 20th century. She died very young. & yes, her silence concerning the Holocaust is troubling. Had she lived longer, I suspect that she would not have remained silent.

Anyone who considers themselves Christian should be grateful that the writings of this gifted, Jewish (though not Jewish in the religious sense as she couldn't stomach the unflinching violence in the Old Testament) woman survived.

Simone did not survive an ugly, dark time.

--- On Tue, 1/13/09, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry
To: [redacted]
Date: Tuesday, January 13, 2009, 2:28 PM

Some excellent points here. Much to chew on. The first things that come to mind are the following:

First: holy encompasses more than does sacred. A person can be holy, but is a person sacred? Places can be either holy or sacred. This is a distinction (another person suggested "spiritual" -- which is another word that I should address in this same context) I should address. My project here was to make people think about the way the word is used, so it is contra Wittgenstein in the spirit of Wittgenstein, so to speak..

Second: I am arguing that, essentially, holiness and holism are the same, but that the holiness/holism I am arguing for is not exclusive or where one ideology dominates another. I agree with you that the pomo argument against grand narratives is itself holistic, despite their best efforts (as I pointed out once to a postmodernist, who didn't have an answer for my claim). However, they do attempt to dispose of the whole/holiness, and I think that is as dangerous as those who think holiness is cancer.

Third: good, bad, and evil can be understood as: knowledge of the good, and doing it; ignorance of the good; knowledge of the good, and working against it. I think, then, that to be good, you have to have knowledge, including knowledge of the whole -- and have the wisdom to do it. Wisdom and knowledge combined constitute beauty, and the beautiful is holy. These are a few things I need to make explicit and develop more.

Like I said, these are just a few quick thoughts. Your observations are spot-on, and will help me to develop these ideas much more. Thank you.

Troy Camplin

From: Jason Quackenbush <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Monday, January 12, 2009 4:25:13 PM
Subject: Re: On Health, Holiness, Beauty and Poetry

Troy,
I often disagree with you, but I can see a good deal of merit in your project here to reclaim the word holy.

The analytic philosopher in me (eminently modernist, don't you know) wants a bit more rigor here though.

to that end i would consider the following pairings with the word holy and holiness which I think maybe create some problems for what you're saying and that I think need answering. Don't misunderstand me, I think that there can be answers, I'm just curious about how the lines are drawn poetically and philosophically here.

first: holy vs. sacred

my own first among equals in the philosophical pantheon ludwig wittgenstein has counseled that in most cases the meaning of a word is it's use in a loanguage. To that end, we often use the word holy in the same circumstance that we might also use the word sacred. There is an overlap there just as there exists overlap between the unholy and the profane. But the terms are not coextensive and therefore not exact synonyms. I wonder what might be holy but not sacred and in where the distinction lies.

second: holiness vs holism
there seems to be some blurring going on between the two words that I'm not sure i understand. are you saying that holism is by definition holy? how then do you account for competing views of holines? you touched on this a bit in what's below and yr comments on metanarrative, but I'd like to see a more explicit development of that thought, specifically given that the postmodern condition of skepticism toward metanarratives (holiness in your view) is itself holistic.

third: the holy vs the good

is all that is holy good? is all that is good holy? if so, why the different words and wahat do we make of the different qualities associated with each? holiness hasa connotation of unapproachability and beyond the merely human, whereas goodness is something that we can always seem ot find and appreciate. it is much like the aesthetic in this way.

On Jan 9, 2009, at 9:24 AM, Troy Camplin wrote:

In English the words holy, whole, hale, and health are etymologically connected – Old English halig, hal, and hælth, respectively, which are all related to hal. Thus are they conceptually connected. To see the world as holy is to see the world as whole – it is to have the world "appear infinite and holy, whereas it now appears finite and corrupt" (William Blake, "The Marriage of Heaven and Hell"). The word holistic comes from the Greek holos, whole. Thus the holy is holistic – God is holy because He encompasses all. Perhaps one could even say that we can recognize the divine only when we come to see the world as a whole, when we see the universe as universal. When we can come

To see a World in a grain of sand,
And a Heaven in a wild flower,
Hold Infinity in the palm of your hand,
And Eternity in an hour. (William Blake, "Auguries of Innocence")

Health and hale is the same. To have health is to have wholeness. To be hale is to be healthy – whole and complete. To make healthy is to make whole again. One is healed through medication. But ideally, one would rather maintain one's health than have to withstand the ravages of medication (pharmaceutical comes from the Greek pharmakon, which means both poison and medicine – as it does today), though medication is necessary to stave off disease. This is the purpose of Plato's Pharmakon, to stave off disease. For disease is the opposite of health.

The Modern Era, which we are still in, though we may be at the end of it, began when Descartes split man in two – body and soul. It was a necessary division for the development of modern science (which Descartes all but admits to – the division is so the Church will tend to the soul, while the body is left alone, to be tended to by scientists such as Descartes), but it was certainly an unholy division (as all divisions are, by definition). Kant deepened this division. Hegel tried to mend it through philosophical synthesis. Marx tried to mend it by recommending the overthrow of half of the world – the world would then be wholly Proletarian. Nietzsche responded to Hegel by dividing the world up even more – for him, humans are not divided into body and soul, but are instead a series of masks. With postmodernism, the division is complete: men and women, multiculturalism, radical Cartesian individualism divide us up more and more. Any universality is denied. A necessary development – and not without its truth (I am aware of the irony of using the word truth, which comes from the Old English treowth, related to the word troth, from which we get the word betrothed, to speak of an idea that is more interested in divorce than betrothal). But it is precisely as unholy as one can get.

The deep divisions fostered by postmodernism came about because of a view that grand narratives, attempts to universalize, and seeing the world as holistic created the problems of the 20th Century. The Marxist grand narrative gave us the gulag of the Soviet Union, the massacres of the Khmer Rouge in Cambodia, and any number of other slaughters done by governments who had embraced Marxist philosophy. We looked back on history after the Holocaust, saw the grand narrative of Christianity had in the past itself promoted the killing of Jews – particularly in the Inquisition – and concluded that it too was dangerous. One could also mention The Terror of the French Revolution. What did Marxism, Medieval Christianity, and the French Revolution have in common? One thing was that they were all grand narratives. Thus, the logic goes, it must be grand narratives which are bad. And what do grand narratives do? They see the world as a whole, which must be encompassed by their ideology. To make the world a whole, it must be placed under their one ideology. Thus, holistic world views were seen as bad – thus were they, and holiness, rejected. The path to Heaven – whether that heaven was celestial or earthly – seemed to lead us straight into Hell. Perhaps in part the rejection of holding a holistic view came about because it is related to the holy, and the holy has been rejected. To the extent that wisdom is the ability to see the unity of the world – meaning wisdom is the ability to see the world as holy – wisdom was also rejected as impossible, perhaps even undesirable.

The error in this way of thinking derives from the error made in seeing Communism, Christianity, or the ideals of the French Revolution as interested in seeing the world as holistic. None of them saw the world as holistic, as holy – they instead wanted to make the world whole, under their particular umbrellas. They too fostered divisions – there were enemies who had to be either converted or killed in order that the world could be made holy. "For the cherub with his flaming sword is hereby commanded to leave his guard at tree of life; and when he does, the whole creation will be consumed and appear infinite and holy" (Blake "The Marriage of Heaven and Hell"). Now Blake here uses the word "appear." None of them saw the world as holy. It had to be made so – through conflagration, if necessary. Postmodern thought, by dividing the world even more, does not help us to see the world as holy – quite the contrary. However, by insisting on equality among the various parts – among individuals, among cultures, among religions, among any number of groups of individuals – postmodern thought may ironically make it now possible to see the world as being, rather than needing to become, holy.

It may seem ironic to suggest that only by reaching the most severe of divisions – seeing the world as eminently unholy – that we can finally come to see that the world is in fact holy, but I am not being ironic. To see the world as holy is not to see everything in the world as equal in an egalitarian sense. There are hierarchies. To see the world as holy is to understand how everything fits into the world as a whole. It is to see the world as an immense organism, and to care for its health. An organism is made up of systems, organs, tissues, cells, organelles, and various biochemicals. For one group to want to envelop the entire world in one way of thinking, believing, viewing the world, would be the same as one cell wanting to envelop the entire organism in that one type of cell. We have a word for cells that want to do that: cancer. The postmodernists have mistaken viewing the actions of cancerous cells for seeing the whole organism. Cancer must be fought, not mistaken for the animal it is in. That is the only way one can have a healthy organism – and it is the only way to have a holy world.. Like a healthy organism, a holy world is complex. Like a healthy organism, a holy world has smoothly working parts in communication with each other through clear rules that proscribe what each part needs to do for the whole to work well. Like a healthy organism, this cannot come from any centralized authority – there is no one control cell in the body, and the brain must have the lungs just as much as the lungs must have the brain. A holy world is like a healthy organism.

In Negative Theology, one comes to know what God is by figuring out what God is not. Aristotle says that if you are not sure if something is good, try to figure out what is bad, and you can then deduce that what is good is its opposite.
The following are unhealthy:

1. Overeating, including eating a high percentage of foods with low nutritional value, while remaining inactive (not exercising)
2. Either stagnation or change without continuity – both create instability
3. Stress and anxiety – which comes about from not realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, and can lead to anger at those very things
4. Hatred – aside from raising the blood pressure, it can cause one to act in ways that would be unhealthy for the object of our hatred
5. Cancer – already discussed
6. Excess – including the excess of moderation
7. Shackles – prevents sufficient movement, equating to lack of exercise
8. Pollution – it can lead to any number of diseases
9. An overly-clean environment – it can prevent our immune systems from developing properly, making us more susceptible to diseases, especially autoimmune diseases
10. Suicide – inherently and obviously unhealthy
11. Isolation – loneliness can lead to depression, which depresses the immune system
12. Ignorance – either of the world or of oneself, as one cannot maintain one's health if one is ignorant of what can harm it or improve it

This leads one to posit the following are healthy:

1. Exercise, with a diet proper to the amount of exercise and of high nutritional value
2. Change with continuity
3. Realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, thus reducing stress and anxiety

4. Love
5. Keeping the body in hierarchical harmony
6. Moderation in everything, including moderation – remembering that moderation is an extreme in the same way that life is an extreme state of organic chemistry
7. Freedom – remembering that freedom does not equate to a lack of rules, but is rather what is achieved through playing by the best rules
8. Cleanliness (which, as the saying goes, is next to Godliness, meaning it is holy)
9. A non-sanitized world – a world without dirt is a world that makes unhealthy organisms
10. Love of one's own life
11. Friends
12. Knowledge – including self-knowledge

One can make a similar list of what makes for a healthy mind:
1. Taking in healthy information – good art, music, literature, philosophy, the sciences, etc. – with sufficient exercise of the mind through thought, discussion, and writing
2. Change with continuity
3.. Realizing that there are parts of the world that one cannot control, thus reducing stress and anxiety, which can negatively affect the mind as well as the body
4. Love
5. Having a variety of inputs – obsession with one thing alone is a kind of mental cancer
6. Moderation in everything, including moderation – moderation of reading, of rigorous thought, sexual thoughts, work, play, physical activity, etc.
7. Freedom of thought – we must not think in shackles, but with flexible rules
8. Cleanliness of thought – this does not necessarily mean what it has traditionally meant in the West, though it can certainly contain some elements; thinking about sex is in and of itself not unclean
9. Realization that we do not and cannot live in a sanitized world, as that stops thought and creativity
10. Love of thinking
11. Friends – as Aristotle says in Rhetoric, "a wide circle of friends, a virtuous circle of friends," and, I would add, a mentally stimulating circle of friends
12. Knowledge – including self knowledge – with the goal of wisdom

A holy world is one that parallels the healthy body and the healthy mind, and will have the above qualities, including moderation in everything, including moderation (i.e., it will be a just world), freedom (this is freedom from, not freedom to), love, friendship, and beauty. A holy world is a beautiful world, both having variety in unity, unity in variety, complexity, and fluid hierarchy that is self-similar regardless of scale. All of the parts, living in love and friendship (which does not exclude healthy competition, such as we find in sports and in free trade), living in a complex dynamic with each other, living as individuals in various communities, many of which overlap and are nested within other communities, must be self-similar to have a holy world.

In Greek, to kalon means the beautiful, but it can also mean the honorable or the noble – and kala can mean either things that are beautiful or things that are morally good. In the Rhetoric, Aristotle says that "Now kalon describes whatever, through being chosen for itself, is praiseworthy or whatever, through being good [agathon], is pleasant because it is good [agathon]. If this, then, is the kalon, then virtue is necessarily kalon; for it is praiseworthy because of being good [agathon]" (79). Elaine Scarry points out that in English too, there is a connection between beauty and the good (the just), when she points out that to say that something is fair is to say that it is either beautiful or that it is just. In Greek and in English, the beautiful and the good are connected. If a holy world is a beautiful world, it is a good and just world as well. As Heraclitus said, "For god all things are fair and just, but men have taken some things as unjust, others as just" (LXVIII). The key here is that we see the world itself as just – not the actions of each and every individual. The world is itself justified and cannot itself be unjust. This is consistent with the teachings of any religion that sees the world as having been created by God or the gods – how could a fair and just god create a world that was itself unjust? And if theistic religions are rejected, how can the world itself possibly be unjust? To say it is unjust is to give it anthropomorphic qualities. It is people who have taken some things as being just, others as unjust – but the world itself is self-justified. Those who do not see the world as just are those who do not see the world as holy – often they are the same people who think the only way the world can be justified is if the world is made holy through the transformation of it into a perfect mirror of themselves. But we have seen that a world made up of only one world view is a cancerous world – and the world, as a cancerous organism, will die. An organism cannot consist of one type of cell – that is the unhealthiest of organisms. And a world having only one world view is the unhealthiest of worlds. In the same way that a healthy body consists of a variety of cells that are variations of the same theme coded by identical DNA, a healthy world consists of a variety of peoples that are variations of the same themes coded for by our being human and sharing the same cultural universals.

Beauty is also related to health – as we can see in the beauty we find in nature. Healthy plants produce the most beautiful flowers. Healthy peacocks produce the largest, most symmetrical, most colorful feathers. Healthy gobies and other territorial reef fish have the brightest colors. All of this natural beauty is the advertisement of health to the opposite sex. The healthiest human bodies (neither overweight nor super model thin) are the most beautiful. Thus is there also a relationship between health, beauty, and sex. If beauty can thus be equated to health, we can see that beauty is again equated to the holy. And we can see too that sex in-and-of-itself is and cannot be unholy, as it is connected (but not equivalent) to beauty.

A holy world is a whole world. It is a healthy world. It is a good and just world. It is a complex world. It is a world of individuals in community. It is a beautiful world. But is it a possible world? I have already given the answer: the world is itself already holy. We just have to learn to see it as holy. That is how we will heal the world. And, as we do, we will become less and less likely to want or try to eliminate those who disagree with us – until we are all in agreement on this one issue, as all the cells in an organism are in agreement on the one issue that they must work together for the health of the whole, even as each performs its own function. Thus, the world will become more and more holy in our eyes. In works of tragedy, nomos (convention, human law, naming; from which we get the words nomad and nomenclature, and which is the changing and changeable aspect of the world) comes into conflict with physis (or nature; from which we get the word physics). That is the position we are now in. When we get nomos to map onto physis (Heraclitus calls this conjunction logos – which can be translated as saying, speech, discourse, word, account, explanation, reason, principle, collection, enumeration, ratio, proportion), we will see the world as it truly is: holy.

On the Holy

Where lies the holy in the modern world?
It lies in Blake's world in a grain of sand –
It lies, and lies like the truth, in patterns
Like self-organized rings of rocks barren
Arctic fields create. It lies in the branch
Of every tree and species, leafing out
From the known into the unknown. It lies
In every song, painting and rhythmic verse.
We have looked at every leaf and petal,
At the bark and at the wood, every cell
And strand of DNA is now known –
And we have forgotten that all of this
Was once a tree that gave us shade and filled
The air with delicate sweetness and held
The grains of sand against its roots to hold
The ground in place, even as that ground moves
And changes in tiny ways we refuse
To see. In this we can see the holy.
This is where it lies, now and forever,
On the edge of order and wild chaos,
Where the infinite holds in the finite,
Where we, ourselves holy, have always lived.

Troy Camplin

> Jason Quackenbush
> [redacted]

Gabrielle Welford, Ph.D. (support "Noho Hewa: The Wrongful Occupation of Hawai'i" by going to www.nohohewa.com and clicking on "donate")
blog:
www.greenwom.blogspot.com
books:
Too Many Deaths: Decolonizing Western Academic Research on Indigenous Cultures
http://www.theguildofwriters.com/books/shop.php?action=full&id=317
Dora
http://www.theguildofwriters.com/books/shop.php?action=full&id=378

No virus found in this incoming message.
Checked by AVG Free Edition.
Version: 7.1.412 / Virus Database: 268.18.4/705 - Release Date: 2/27/2007

↑ Index

277. Ruth Lepson
Re: About Poetry: Presidential Inauguration Poetry & "Where the He/art Pants" Election Anthology
Thu 15 Jan 2009

---

led to a fascinating chain

On 1/15/09 9:18 AM, "David-Baptiste Chirot" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Along with About Poetry's selections and thoughts, also a reminder re Election Anthology "Where the He/art Pants" edited by Anny Ballardini and Obododimma-which is also about the inaugeration--
>
> http://poetry.about.com/b/2009/01/15/poetry-and-the-presidential-inauguration.htm

From Bob Holman & Margery Snyder

*Poetry
came into the public eye numerous times during the 2008 U.S. Presidential election campaign, and the poetry world has been buzzing with excitement and bustling with suggestions since the election, especially as it became evident that poetry would have a role to play in next Tuesday's inauguration ceremony and celebration*

Poetry and the Presidential Inauguration While we're all waiting for Elizabeth Alexander's inaugural poem, let's reread the few poems that have marked earlier Presidential inaugurations... and a sampling of "unofficial" poems written for Barack Obama's inauguration by poets around the country.... read more
· While the He/art Pants:<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2664>(Poetic Responses to the 2008 American Elections)*
· Editorial: Obododimma Oha<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2665>*
· Editorial: Anny Ballardini<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2666>*

*Windows Live Hotmail®: Chat. Store. Share. Do more with mail.
http://windowslive.com/howitworks?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_hm_justgotbetter_howitworks_012009*

↑ Index

278. Morgan Schuldt
New from CUE Editions
Fri 16 Jan 2009

Let It Be Nearby (CUE Editions, 2008), Mark Horosky's debut collection of prose poems w/ cover(s) art by Amie Robinson is now available in a limited edition of 100 chapbooks.

LIBN is printed on 15 unbound 6 3/4" x 6 3/4 " chap-cards that have both a Side A and Side B. Chaps come in four different colors (red / mustard / blue / teal) and are slipped inside a 7" paper record sleeve. $10.

For pictures and ordering go to:

http://cueeditions.blogspot.com/

from Let It Be Nearby

Prose Poem Made From Spork Magazine’s Contributors’ Notes

He is not a little scrap of a guy with soft hands. His spelling has suffered tremendously. He believes that intelligence is a function of the exquisitely orchestrated interplay between all tissues of the body and the ephemera of constantly shifting environments. Tattoos of stars all over his body. Loves his grandmother, but will not use her name. His knuckles are healing. He can’t dance, but he is getting better with the trapeze and the rope. Cuts his hands repeatedly and still the box is not done. Over & over again, awakes staring at the inner part of his elbow. He still somewhat sniggers when someone says “finger lickin’ good.” His hair is sort of brownish, although in some photographs it seems yellow, like the color of his favorite pants. Swears all the time. He likes to keep very busy doing complicated things so he doesn’t have to do the things that come naturally. Not yet decided on a summer look, he is a professional human being, and when he isn’t shoeing pelicans, he wishes he was mildly telepathic, but is only in cases where people are thinking very simple things like Where’s my bike? He says only fools rush in, but he can’t help falling in love with you.

Windows Live™: Keep your life in sync.
http://windowslive.com/howitworks?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_allup_howitworks_012009

↑ Index

279. Lauren Russell
Re: Bailout
Fri 16 Jan 2009

What I have always found rather odd about the whole concept of virginity is that it is presented as a thing to be "saved" or "given," or in this case, "sold." Apart from the social issues raised by that usage, I just wonder, grammatically and idiomatically, how one can save or give or sell not having done something. I mean, I have never dropped acid, but if I were to drop acid with someone, I wouldn't say I had given that person my not-having-dropped-acid. Can any experience besides sex claim a word devoted just to not having done it?

Lauren

--- On Wed, 1/14/09, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]> wrote:

From: mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
Subject: Bailout
To: [redacted]
Date: Wednesday, January 14, 2009, 7:40 AM

(this piggybacks nicely on the brothel dissection...)

Grad Student Selling Virginity Flooded With Offers

http://cbs13.com/local/selling.virginity.tuition.2.815171.html

A Sacramento State grad trying to make money by auctioning off her virginity to help pay for her graduate studies is getting lots of offers...and not just for sex.

The 22-year-old who is using the pseudonym Natalie Dylan for safety reasons is going through a legal brothel in Nevada to sell her virginity. Dylan told CBS13 she's gotten an offer of $250,000. And now she's gotten an offer to do a photo spread for Penthouse magazine.

The auction is being handled by the Bunny Ranch in Carson City, Nevada with bids coming in through their website.

Dylan says she's already taken a polygraph test to prove her virginal status, and is also willing to undergo a medical exam.

"The main purpose of this is to finance a couple things in my life," Dylan told CBS13. "I think empowerment of women is picking yourself up and doing something on your own to better yourself."

So far, hundreds of offers have already come in including some from male virgins. Natalie says she won't give up her virginity to the highest bidder. She's also seeking other qualities from her first lover. "I'm looking for intelligence and an overall nice person," said Dylan.

Dylan says she ended up in a financial bind, because her stepfather allegedly used her college status to fraudulently apply for student loans, and then ran off with the money.

Dylan earned her bachelor's degree in women's studies from Sacramento State and plans to get her master's at the school beginning in January.

Many Sac State students say they're shocked to hear about their former classmate's plan, while others applaud her.

"She's just giving it to some random person. And I just think she should be giving it to someone special she loves," said one student on campus.

While another felt that selling her virginity for grad school "is a noble reason to get money."

As for Natalie, after claiming to hold on to her virginity for 22 years (although the Bunny Ranch website claims she is 21-years-old), she says she has a commodity not many people have to sell.

"When I was younger, I wanted 100% romance, possibly even wait for marriage. But as I grew up, reality kinda hit. And I think its a capitalistic society and I want to capitalize on this," explained Dylan.

↑ Index

280. Jim Andrews <terminal>
Fri 16 Jan 2009

Here's a collection of digital literature called <terminal> curated by Alan Bigelow:
http://terminalapsu.org/exhibitions/digitalliterature/projects.html

It includes work by me, Marvin Bell, Sommer Browning, Andy Campbell, J.R. Carpenter, Chris Joseph/Kate Pullinger, Tammy McGovern, Stuart Moulthrop, Alexander Mouton, Jason Nelson, Victoria Welby, and Jody Zellen.

"<terminal> is a space sponsored by the department of art and the center for the creative arts at austin peay state university to showcase and examine internet and new media art. the site is directed and maintained by barry jones, associate professor of art at austin peay state university."

There's an introduction to the exhibit by Alan at http://terminalapsu.org/exhibitions/digitalliterature

The exhibit is both online and offline. The offline exhibit launched this evening at <terminal> at Austin Peay State University in Tennessee.

My thanks to Alan and Barry Jones for putting this together.

ja
http://vispo.com

↑ Index

281. Matias Viegener
UNTITLED NEW YORK: SPECULATIONS ON THE EXPANDED FIELD OF WRITING
Fri 16 Jan 2009

UNTITLED NEW YORK: SPECULATIONS ON THE EXPANDED FIELD OF WRITING

Saturday, January 31st, 2009. Panels: 1:30pm & Readings 8:30 pm At CABINET, 300 Nevins St, Brooklyn, NY 11217 “Untitled New York ” is a day-long conversation about writing which in some manner exceeds the printed page. Organized by Matias Viegener and Christine Wertheim, it assembles a notable group of experimental writers to discuss the currently expanded and still-expanding field of writing that challenges assumptions about the nature of writing and the potentials of text. While we are familiar with visual artworks constituted as a set of instructions, secrets written by visitors in a book, or one artist erasing of another artist's work, what would be their equivalents in the literary world?

“Untitled” is a common title of contemporary art works and also refers to the incipient moment of a new text or idea; it was chosen to convey a sense of openness and process. A variety of writers and artists will discuss the use of language and words and/or their object status, the book and the letter, the question of the "emptiness" vs. the fullness of language as a poetic medium, the pictorial versus the narrative, the incorporation of extra-linguistic symbols and signs (maps, diagrams, formulas, etc.), the question of conceptual writing, and words off the page – performed, sited, projected, incanted, or invoked.

Among the participants is Kenny Goldsmith, an “uncreative” writer who labels himself the “most boring writer in the world” and writes books that include everything he said for a week (Soliloquy, 2001), every move his body made during a thirteen-hour period (Fidget, 1999), and a year of transcribed weather reports (The Weather, 2005). Working through an interpolation of the English tongue, Christine Wertheim (author of +|'me'S-pace, 2007) deploys a litteral poetics, in which words are not taken as arbitrary signs the writer may use as s/he sees fit, but as compounds with substance and structures and, literally, meanings of their own. The broken narrative of participant Shanxing Wang's Mad Science in Imperial City escapes and invades the political turbulence of Tiananmen through math, mechanics, music, film, and by dreams to create "a work of art-in-language" (Lyn Hejinian).

The event will begin with two panels. "Appropriation and Citation" will look at the many practices of appropriation so popular in the literary world in the last several years, asking questions about whose work and what material gets appropriated, cited or resurrected, who owns texts, and if there is a difference between appropriation and citation. The participants include Vanessa Place, Steven McCaffrey, Kenneth Goldsmith, and Julie Patton.

"Litterality," examines how writers use what we normally consider non-linguistic elements, such as symbols, diagrams, maps, or scores placed in the context of writing. We will also look at invented writing systems, and what it might mean to think about the book as an object rather than as a collection of words or sentences. Its participants include Christine Wertheim, Latasha Diggs, and Shanxing Wang.

In the evening, beginning at 8:30 there will be a reading of the participants' own work. "Untitled New York" is a reprise of "Untitled: Speculations on the Expanded Field of Writing," held in October 2008 at REDCAT in Los Angeles, organized by Matias Viegener and Christine Wertheim of the Writing Program at CalArts, and funded by The Annenberg Foundation.

↑ Index

282. Matias Viegener
WOIDS 'N AHT – 3 ARTISTS ON TEXT – Los Angeles, Sun Jan 25th, 2pm
Fri 16 Jan 2009

WOIDS 'N AHT:
SPECULATIONS ON THE EXPANDED FIELD OF WRITING

MOCA, SUN JAN 25th 2pm
250 S GRAND, LA CA 90012

WOIDS 'N AHT is a panel on the use of text in art or the relation between words and art with three artists whose work intimately involves writing and language. While the literary world has moved toward more conceptual and material uses of language and writing, artists have been working with and in language for close to fifty years. Topics may include the object status of the book and the letter, the question of the "emptiness" vs. the fullness of language as a medium, the pictorial vs. the narrative, the question of conceptual writing, and words off the page – performed, sited, projected, incanted, or invoked. Moderated by Juli

Carson and organized by Matias Viegener and Christine Wertheim of the CalArts MFA Writing Program.

WITH:
DAVID BUNN
CHARLES GAINES
& MARY KELLY

↑ Index

283. David Kirschenbaum
Advertise in Boog City 54 / Urban Folk 17
Fri 16 Jan 2009

Hi all,

We're hard at work here on Boog City 54, our first issue to feature the relaunch of everyone's favorite local music mag, Urban Folk, as it becomes a pullout in each Boog City under the helm of its editor, longtime Boog City Music Editor Jonathan Berger. To see back issues of Urban Folk visit:

http://www.scribd.com/people/documents/90816-urbanfolk

This is a quick note to see if you'd like to advertise and reach our readership. (Donations are also cool, way cool.)

We're going to be distributing 2,250 copies of the issue throughout the East Village and other parts of lower Manhattan; Williamsburg and Greenpoint, Brooklyn; and at Boog City events, including a publication party with readings from contributors.

Deadlines

—Tues. Jan. 27-Submit Ad
—Tues. Feb. 10-Distribute Paper

Take advantage of our indie discount ad rate. We are once again offering a 50% discount on our 1/8-page ads, cutting them from $80 to $40. The discount rate also applies to larger ads.

For our full rate card, please visit:

http://welcometoboogcity.com/boogpdfs/boog_city_ad_rates.pdf

Email [redacted] or call 212-842-BOOG (2664) for more information.

as ever,
David

--
David A. Kirschenbaum, editor and publisher

Boog City
330 W. 28th St., Suite 6H
NY, NY 10001-4754
For event and publication information:
http://welcometoboogcity.com/
T: (212) 842-BOOG (2664)

↑ Index

284. Obododimma Oha

Re: Bailout

Fri 16 Jan 2009

Certainly! And in many ways we imprison ourselves. Freeing myself from my own self-incarceration has been a major challenge for me. Sometimes I ask friends to help me -- to save me from myself. -- Obododimma.

_____
From: Maria Damon <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Thursday, January 15, 2009 11:27:53 PM
Subject: Re: Bailout

what a great response!
but if one is inside the house, does it make one one's own prisoner?

Obododimma Oha wrote:
> Sometimes it is better to lock one's doors and throw away the keys, even > when there's nothing of great value in the house.
> -- Obododimma.
>
>
>
> On Thu, Jan 15, 2009 at 8:09 PM, Maria Damon <[redacted]> wrote:
>
>
>> but is it not also worthless?
>>
>>
>> Obododimma Oha wrote:
>>
>>
>>> No amount of money can purchase virginity. It is simply priceless.
>>> -- Obododimma.
>>>

>>> On Wed, Jan 14, 2009 at 2:40 PM, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
>>> wrote:
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>>> (this piggybacks nicely on the brothel dissection...)
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> Grad Student Selling Virginity Flooded With Offers
>>>>
>>>> http://cbs13.com/local/selling.virginity.tuition.2.815171.html
>>>>
>>>> A Sacramento State grad trying to make money by auctioning off her
>>>> virginity to help pay for her graduate studies is getting lots of >>>> offers...and not just for sex.
>>>>
>>>> The 22-year-old who is using the pseudonym Natalie Dylan for safety
>>>> reasons
>>>> is going through a legal brothel in Nevada to sell her virginity. Dylan >>>> told >>>> CBS13 she's gotten an offer of $250,000. And now she's gotten an offer
>>>> to >>>> do a photo spread for Penthouse magazine.
>>>>
>>>> The auction is being handled by the Bunny Ranch in Carson City, Nevada
>>>> with >>>> bids coming in through their website.
>>>>
>>>> Dylan says she's already taken a polygraph test to prove her virginal >>>> status, and is also willing to undergo a medical exam.
>>>>
>>>> "The main purpose of this is to finance a couple things in my life," >>>> Dylan
>>>> told CBS13. "I think empowerment of women is picking yourself up and >>>> doing >>>> something on your own to better yourself."
>>>>
>>>> So far, hundreds of offers have already come in including some from male >>>> virgins. Natalie says she won't give up her virginity to the highest >>>> bidder. She's also seeking other qualities from her first lover. "I'm >>>> looking for intelligence and an overall nice person," said Dylan.

>>>>
>>>> Dylan says she ended up in a financial bind, because her stepfather >>>> allegedly used her college status to fraudulently apply for student >>>> loans,
>>>> and then ran off with the money.
>>>>
>>>> Dylan earned her bachelor's degree in women's studies from Sacramento
>>>> State
>>>> and plans to get her master's at the school beginning in January.
>>>>
>>>> Many Sac State students say they're shocked to hear about their former >>>> classmate's plan, while others applaud her.
>>>>
>>>> "She's just giving it to some random person. And I just think she should >>>> be >>>> giving it to someone special she loves," said one student on campus.
>>>>
>>>> While another felt that selling her virginity for grad school "is a noble >>>> reason to get money."
>>>>
>>>> As for Natalie, after claiming to hold on to her virginity for 22 years
>>>> (although the Bunny Ranch website claims she is 21-years-old), she says
>>>> she >>>> has a commodity not many people have to sell.
>>>>
>>>> "When I was younger, I wanted 100% romance, possibly even wait for >>>> marriage. But as I grew up, reality kinda hit. And I think its a >>>> capitalistic society and I want to capitalize on this," explained Dylan.
>>>>
>>>> guidelines
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>

>>
>
>
>
>

↑ Index

285. Obododimma Oha
Re: Bailout
Fri 16 Jan 2009

Great thoughts!
- -- Obododimma.

_____

Great thoughts!
- -- Obododimma.

_____
From: Stephen Ellis <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Thursday, January 15, 2009 11:35:43 PM
Subject: Re: Bailout

The more conscious you become - of anything - the larger the house gets to be. Of course, the first thing to go is, a way to find the door. It always gets more distant. And THAT is consciousness . . . that we're ALL "one's own prisoner." In one's own Self. It goes with the territory. If territory is what one's buying.

> Date: Thu, 15 Jan 2009 16:27:53 -0600> From: [redacted]> Subject: Re: Bailout> To: [redacted]> > what a great response!> but if one is inside the house, does it make one one's own prisoner?> > Obododimma Oha wrote:> > Sometimes it is better to lock one's doors and throw away the keys, even> > when there's nothing of great value in the house.> > -- Obododimma.> >> >> >> > On Thu, Jan 15, 2009 at 8:09 PM, Maria Damon <[redacted]> wrote:> >> > > >> but is it not also worthless?> >>> >>> >> Obododimma Oha wrote:> >>> >> > >>> No amount of money can purchase virginity. It is simply priceless.> >>> -- Obododimma.> >>>> >>> On Wed, Jan 14, 2009 at 2:40 PM, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>> >>> wrote:> >>>> >>>> >>>> >>> > >>>> (this piggybacks nicely on the brothel dissection...)> >>>>> >>>>> >>>> Grad Student Selling Virginity Flooded With Offers> >>>>> >>>> http://cbs13.com/local/selling.virginity.tuition.2.815171.html> >>>>> >>>> A Sacramento State grad trying to make money by auctioning off her> >>>> virginity to help pay for her graduate studies is getting lots of> >>>> offers...and not just for sex.> >>>>> >>>> The 22-year-old who is using the pseudonym Natalie Dylan for safety> >>>> reasons> >>>> is going through a legal brothel in Nevada to sell her virginity. Dylan> >>>> told> >>>> CBS13 she's gotten an offer of $250,000. And now she's gotten an offer> >>>> to> >>>> do a photo spread for Penthouse magazine.> >>>>> >>>> The auction is being handled by the Bunny Ranch in Carson City, Nevada> >>>> with> >>>> bids coming in through their website.> >>>>> >>>> Dylan says she's already taken a polygraph test to prove her virginal> >>>> status, and is also willing to undergo a medical exam.> >>>>> >>>> "The main purpose of this is to finance a couple things in my life,"> >>>> Dylan> >>>> told CBS13. "I think empowerment of women is picking yourself up and> >>>> doing> >>>> something on your own to better yourself."> >>>>> >>>> So far, hundreds of offers have already come in including some from male> >>>> virgins. Natalie says she won't give up her virginity to the highest> >>>> bidder. She's also seeking other qualities from her first lover. "I'm> >>>> looking for intelligence and an overall nice person," said Dylan.> >>>>> >>>> Dylan says she ended up in a financial bind, because her stepfather> >>>> allegedly used her college status to fraudulently apply for student> >>>> loans,> >>>> and then ran off with the money.> >>>>> >>>> Dylan earned her bachelor's degree in women's studies from Sacramento> >>>> State> >>>> and plans to get her master's at the school beginning in January.> >>>>> >>>> Many Sac State students say they're shocked to hear about their former> >>>> classmate's plan, while others applaud her.> >>>>> >>>> "She's just giving it to some random person. And I just think she should> >>>> be> >>>> giving it

---

Windows Live™ Hotmail®: Chat. Store. Share. Do more with mail.
http://windowslive.com/howitworks?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_hm_justgotbetter_howitworks_012009

↑ Index

286. Obododimma Oha
Re: Bailout
Fri 16 Jan 2009

At college, we (students) often theorized and performed experiments with losing and regaining virginity --

"virgin" = moral$B!^(Bfear$B!^(Bselfishnext
"disvirgin" = courage$B!^(Bsecret$B!^(Bloss-of-eden
"re-virgin" on alum-ed H2O(for gls) $B"a(B the art of dcption +.XOXOX

I listened to girls tell how they deceived their boy-friends with the alum theory! Alum saved many relationships....

---- Obododimma

_____
From: Christopher Leland Winks <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Thursday, January 15, 2009 11:41:40 PM
Subject: Re: Bailout

Let's consider Sappho:

Parthenia, parthenia,
poi me lipois' apoikhe?

Translated by Guy Davenport as:

Girlhood O girlhood
Lost of a sudden,
Where have you gone?

Mary Barnard translates "Parthenia" as "Maidenhead." This is probably a fragment of an epithalamium and there is a certain degree of chaffing going on here: how insubstantial, after all, is this "maidenhead"! Tne joking tone remains in the response of the bridegroom (both voices were probably enacted by Sappho's girl pupils, though bear in mind we know very little about Sappho):

Ouketi exo
pros se
ouket'exo

Translated by Davenport as:

Nowhere, bride my darling
Nowhere near you

We're a long way from chastity belts (with thrown-away keys) and extolling of virginity!

----- Original Message -----
From: Maria Damon <[redacted]>
Date: Thursday, January 15, 2009 5:30 pm
Subject: Re: Bailout
To: [redacted]

> what a great response!
> but if one is inside the house, does it make one one's own prisoner?
>
> Obododimma Oha wrote:

> Sometimes it is better to lock one's doors and throw away the keys, even > when there's nothing of great value in the house.
> -- Obododimma.
>
>
>
> On Thu, Jan 15, 2009 at 8:09 PM, Maria Damon <[redacted]> wrote:
>
>
>> but is it not also worthless?
>>
>>
>> Obododimma Oha wrote:
>>
>>
>>> No amount of money can purchase virginity. It is simply priceless.
>>> -- Obododimma.
>>>
>>> On Wed, Jan 14, 2009 at 2:40 PM, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
>>> wrote:
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>>> (this piggybacks nicely on the brothel dissection...)
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> Grad Student Selling Virginity Flooded With Offers
>>>>
>>>> http://cbs13.com/local/selling.virginity.tuition.2.815171.html
>>>>
>>>> A Sacramento State grad trying to make money by auctioning off her
>>>> virginity to help pay for her graduate studies is getting lots of >>>> offers...and not just for sex.
>>>>
>>>> The 22-year-old who is using the pseudonym Natalie Dylan for safety
>>>> reasons
>>>> is going through a legal brothel in Nevada to sell her virginity. Dylan >>>> told >>>> CBS13 she's gotten an offer of $250,000. And now she's gotten an offer
>>>> to >>>> do a photo spread for Penthouse magazine.
>>>>
>>>> The auction is being handled by the Bunny Ranch in Carson City, Nevada

> >>>> with
> >>>> bids coming in through their website.
> >>>>
> >>>> Dylan says she's already taken a polygraph test to prove her virginal
> >>>> status, and is also willing to undergo a medical exam.
> >>>>
> >>>> "The main purpose of this is to finance a couple things in my life,"
> >>>> Dylan
> >>>> told CBS13. "I think empowerment of women is picking yourself
> up and
> >>>> doing > >>>> something on your own to better yourself."
> >>>>
> >>>> So far, hundreds of offers have already come in including some
> from male
> >>>> virgins. Natalie says she won't give up her virginity to the highest > >>>> bidder. She's also seeking other qualities from her first
> lover. "I'm > >>>> looking for intelligence and an overall nice person," said Dylan.
> >>>>
> >>>> Dylan says she ended up in a financial bind, because her stepfather
> >>>> allegedly used her college status to fraudulently apply for student
> >>>> loans,
> >>>> and then ran off with the money.
> >>>>
> >>>> Dylan earned her bachelor's degree in women's studies from Sacramento
> >>>> State
> >>>> and plans to get her master's at the school beginning in January.
> >>>>
> >>>> Many Sac State students say they're shocked to hear about their
> former > >>>> classmate's plan, while others applaud her.
> >>>>
> >>>> "She's just giving it to some random person. And I just think
> she should
> >>>> be
> >>>> giving it to someone special she loves," said one student on campus.
> >>>>
> >>>> While another felt that selling her virginity for grad school
> "is a noble
> >>>> reason to get money."
> >>>>
> >>>> As for Natalie, after claiming to hold on to her virginity for > 22 years
> >>>> (although the Bunny Ranch website claims she is 21-years-old),
> she says
> >>>> she
> >>>> has a commodity not many people have to sell.

> >>>>
> >>>> "When I was younger, I wanted 100% romance, possibly even wait for > >>>> marriage. But as I grew up, reality kinda hit. And I think its
> a > >>>> capitalistic society and I want to capitalize on this,"
> explained Dylan.
> >>>>
> >>>> ==========
> >>>> guidelines
> >>>>
> >>>>
> >>>>
> >>>>
> >>>
> >>>
> >>>
> >>>
> >> ==========
> >>
> >>
> >
> >
> >
> >

↑ Index

287. Halvard Johnson
Re: Bailout
Fri 16 Jan 2009

Honest/honesty = not having lied, cheated, stolen etc.
Blind/blindness = not having seen
Mute/muteness = not having spoken
Etc.

Hal

"If you can't annoy somebody, what's the point in writing?"
--Kingsley Amis

Halvard Johnson
==========
[redacted]
http://home.earthlink.net/~halvard/index.html

http://entropyandme.blogspot.com
http://imageswithoutwords.blogspot.com
http://www.hamiltonstone.org
http://home.earthlink.net/~halvard/vidalocabooks.html

On Jan 15, 2009, at 11:29 PM, Lauren Russell wrote:

> Can any experience besides sex claim a word devoted just to not having done it?

↑ Index

288. Sarah Sarai
Re: Bailout
Fri 16 Jan 2009

Based on the quotations in the article I can't but imagine I'd be banging my head against a wall by the end of a conversation with Dylan: "'And I think its a capitalistic society and I want to capitalize on this,' explained Dylan." If this were for an undergrad degree I might be upset, might be--who knows--but my cynicism about graduate degree and grad programs in general inclines me towards a Let the Crime Fit the Crime or the Punishment Fit the Punishment perspective.

She's in Sacramento, right? No Casterbridge, that city, although Dylan might want to reread Hardy's novel (The Mayor of Casterbridge) and consider implications for tragedy. (Henchard sells his wife and daughter.)

↑ Index

289. David-Baptiste Chirot
American painter Andrew Wyeth dies at 91 - Yahoo! News
Fri 16 Jan 2009

American painter Andrew Wyeth dies at 91 - Yahoo! News
>
http://news.yahoo.com/s/ap/20090116/ap_on_en_ot/obit_andrew_wyeth
>
>
==========
_____ Windows Live™
Hotmail®: Chat. Store. Share. Do more with mail.
http://windowslive.com/explore?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_hm_justgotbetter_explore_012009

↑ Index

290. cris cheek

A Radically Inclusive Online Anthology of Responses to the Inauguration of the President-Elect Barack Obama

Fri 16 Jan 2009

We are looking for "correspondents" to perform throughout these historical moments

we are not expecting "proper" reporting, but passionate, off-the-cuff, provocative, oblique, creative, thick descriptive and off-the-wall contributions.

The links DO NOT GO LIVE until this SATURDAY 17th January!!!

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

PLEASE circulate this INVITATION to PARTICIPATE as widely as you possibly can and PLEASE apologize in advance and accept our apology for any cross-posting and multiple copies of this invitation that you receive.

A Radically Inclusive Online Anthology of Responses to the Inauguration of the President-Elect Barack Obama

Presenting a monument to tolerance and an experiment in radical democracy:

post _ moot will go LIVE on January 17th-21st 2009 - - - right through the Inauguration

Easy to take part!! Send ANY and ALL responses to this historic event (no matter what your point of view)

. . . in TEXT, POEM, PHOTO, SOUND-FILE, SPEECH, SONG, TWEET and SHORT VIDEO forms.

MAKE YOUR Contribution now!! Comment: - - : * www.postmoot.net * <http://www.postmoot.net/>

Email: [redacted]

Tweets: http://twitter.com/postmoot

Sound/photo/vid: [redacted]

This is an initiative of the post _ moot collective (cris cheek, william r. howe and cathy wagner)
in collaboration with Christian McLean

For All other information please Contact: [redacted]

↑ Index

291. Lauren Russell
Re: Bailout
Fri 16 Jan 2009

I don't know. Maybe this is a ridiculously fine point, but I see a distinction of tense. Blindness is not seeing (not being able to see), muteness is not speaking (not being able to speak), and they are therefore more akin to celibacy, not having sex, than to virginity, not having had sex.

Lauren

--- On Fri, 1/16/09, Halvard Johnson <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Halvard Johnson <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Bailout
To: [redacted]
Cc: [redacted]
Date: Friday, January 16, 2009, 10:00 AM

Honest/honesty = not having lied, cheated, stolen etc.
Blind/blindness = not having seen
Mute/muteness = not having spoken
Etc.

Hal

"If you can't annoy somebody, what's the point in writing?"
--Kingsley Amis

Halvard Johnson
==========
[redacted]
http://home.earthlink.net/~halvard/index.html
http://entropyandme.blogspot.com
http://imageswithoutwords.blogspot.com
http://www.hamiltonstone.org
http://home.earthlink.net/~halvard/vidalocabooks.html

On Jan 15, 2009, at 11:29 PM, Lauren Russell wrote:

> Can any experience besides sex claim a word devoted just to not having done it?

↑ Index

292. steve d. dalachinsky
Re: name of French poet
Fri 16 Jan 2009

---

my guess too ponge

On Thu, 15 Jan 2009 15:59:35 -0500 Charlotte Mandel
<[redacted]> writes:
> Would it be Francis Ponge?
> Charlotte
>
> On Jan 15, 2009, at 12:15 PM, John Cunningham wrote:
>
> I'm trying to recall the name of the French poet who referred to his
>
> poems
> as "promes"?
>
> John Herbert Cunningham
>
>
>
>
>

↑ Index

293. steve d. dalachinsky
Re: Can "nature" poetry be postmodern/post-structural?
Fri 16 Jan 2009

---

well we all opersate partially from our natural rhythms and those that are around us i don't think it's so much about moving away from but being encompassed by or attracted to etc i coukd go on for pages ...but seeing the sinlight on the kitchen chair speaks volumes...brrrrrrrrrrrrrrrr

On Thu, 15 Jan 2009 14:37:37 -0600 Mary Jo Malo <[redacted]>
writes:
> Yes, Steve, it's everywhere as others have also remarked. What > puzzled
> me was this statement:
>
> "Contemporary urban poets have moved away from Wordsworth and the > Romantics, whose metaphors were shaped by sublime natural forces, > whose rhythms were so often set by the cycles of nature. The newer > language of art emanates from the human-built environment, from the > streets, from computers. This urban or electronic expression of > creativity speaks to and for modern ears and eyes, and it has its > own

> rhythms and metaphors." (Last Child In The Woods...Richard Louv)
>
> Experts in one field often feel qualified to make uninformed > comments > regarding other fields. It's obvious there are environments of > poetry
> he's never dared to wander.
>
> Mary Jo
>
> --
> http://thisshiningwound.blogspot.com/
> http://apophisdeconstructingabsurdity.blogspot.com/
>
>
>

↑ Index

294. Geoffrey Gatza

Housecat Kung Fu: Strange Poems For Wild Children by Geoffrey Gatza

Fri 16 Jan 2009

==========

MERITAGE PRESS ANNOUNCEMENT

Housecat Kung Fu: Strange Poems For Wild Children
By Geoffrey Gatza
Release Date: 2009
ISBN: 978-0-9794119-6-0
Price: U.S. $16.00
For more info: www.meritagepress.com and [redacted]

Geoffrey Gatza's poetry for children has been one of the greatest secrets in contemporary poetry. Meritage Press is delighted to share this secret by releasing Gatza's inaugural book of poetry for children (of all ages): Housecat Kung Fu.

To celebrate Gatza's historic release, Meritage Press is pleased to announce a RELEASE SPECIAL. For orders received through February 28, 2009, the book will be available at a 25% discount for $12.00. There will be free shipping as well to U.S. residents (if you are based outside of the U.S., please email [redacted] for the logistics). You can order by sending a check made out to "Meritage Press" to

Eileen Tabios
Publisher, Meritage Press
256 North Fork Crystal Springs Rd.
St. Helena, CA 94574

Gatza is the author of seven other books of poetry; his Not So Fast Robespierre and Kenmore: Poem Unlimited are available from Menendez Publishing. He is also the editor and publisher of BlazeVOX [books]. Gatza lives in Kenmore, New York. More information about him is available at http://geoffreygatza.com <http://geoffreygatza.com/> and http://blazevox.org <http://blazevox.org/> .

Meritage Press is pleased to share an excerpt from one of the many delightful poems in Housecat Kung Fu -- this is from "Lorikeet Landing":

Last Wednesday I overheard a rainbow colored bird say wouldn't you bring to me a listening booth and a swimming tree

a comfy ocean chair and some sand from Waikiki

a wisdom tooth and a cup of crystal tea

a mystical flying mare and a large screen TV or maybe a common pea and a castle floating in air

Buy the book here at Amazon.com
Available now $16

ALSO NOW AVAILABLE

Kenmore: Poem Unlimited

The best actors in the world, either for tragedy, comedy, history, pastoral, pastoral-comical, historical-pastoral, tragical-historical, tragical-comical-historical-pastoral, scene individable, or poem unlimited

LORD POLONIUS, The Tragedy of Hamlet,
Prince of Denmark Act 2, Scene 2

In Geoffrey Gatza's latest collection he gives us his instructions for this book, "The way to/the other/Is found in/the not other." While not looking for the exact similar, he continues "fishing in the sewer gate" as he heads backwards and into his home town. But his home town, and the investigation, must include the poet's being brought up in Catholicism. In addition to the Bible, he uses other (there is that word again) canonical works of the West (the Ancient Greeks must have made quite an impression!). At times epic, at other times lyric, Gatza continues his fusion cuisine aesthetic while he feels "strange about it but I place / Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade / In the DVD player and smoke a pipe." So, pop some popcorn, get some smokes, and read about this movie cum poem.

‹Kevin Thurston

In this exhilarating investigation marking the overdetermined space of relation between the arbitrary character of language and the singular materiality of place, Gatza insists ³Kenmore may hold the key to our stabilityŠ.² Kenmore, he tells us, is an otherwise anonymous village in Eerie Country, NY on the outskirts of Buffalo‹a village that could be any and every village but is, in the materiality of its ordinariness, singularly unique. Like Kerouac's Lowell, O'Hara's New York or Olson's Gloucester, Gatza's Kenmore is an interminably unfolding geo-social space exhaustively filtered through the shifting textures of a kinetic imagination always in overdrive.

‹Richard Owens

Synopsis:

It is the way things change that brings the myth to Kenmore, the poet's hometown. This collection of poems is one work, divided. Blending two stories, the story of Gwion And The Wisdom Potion taken from the Mabinogi and the apocryphal apocalyptic text, The Book of Enoch. Through Devils, Giants and Dream Visions; A Magic Silver Fish of Wisdom, a witch and maple keys, the poet passes through life to a rebirth in the womb of a witch to a new life to a death that begins to look like life only to come back to find providence is truly suburbia.

Buy the book here
Available now $16

Kenmore: Poem Unlimited
By Geoffrey Gatza
Goss 183 Casa Menendez
110 Pages

ISBN is 1440463115
EAN-13 is 9781440463112

http://www.geoffreygatza.com/Kenmore/vol1.htm

--

Best, Geoffrey

Geoffrey Gatza
Editor & Publisher

BlazeVOX [books]
Publisher of weird little books

[redacted]
http://www.blazevox.org

http://www.blazevox.org
http://www.geoffreygatza.com/http://www.blazevox.org/blog

Not So Fast Robespierre by Geoffrey Gatza
http://www.lulu.com/content/1767006

NOW Available from Menendez Publishing

↑ Index

295. Michael Heller
New Book
Fri 16 Jan 2009

ESCHATON

by

MICHAEL HELLER

Talisman House, Publishers
ISBN 13: 978-1-58498-066-7, $14.95

Available from: SPD, Amazon.com, Greenfields (www.gfibooks.com) and good bookstores.

Like the Renaissance and Neo-classical poets who speculated on the Great Chain of Being and microcosm-macrocosm relationships, Heller communicates a vision of human life as related to natural processes of great intricacy and magnitude. He strains his mind and the reader to find the relationships between our experience and these processes in the material world, but the sense of magnificence is worth the strain. Parnassus: Poetry in Review

He’s a somewhat latter-day Jewish Yeats, full of terror and joy, trying to make some sense of the chaotic destructiveness of the 20th century in lyric poetry. It is a heroic if impossible task. The East Hampton Star

. . . a singular address to unknowingness. Confrontation

Mr. Heller’s book is intent on inquiry, full of rumination...filled with illumination. His is a questing intelligence, forever on the trail of the epistemological, the 'flimsy beatitudes of order’. The New York Times Book Review

Michael Heller is a poet, essayist and critic. His most recent collection of poetry is Exigent Futures: New and Selected Poems (2003). He is the author of two autobiographical works, Earth and Cave (2007) and Living Root: A Memoir (2001), and his critical books include Speaking the Estranged: Essays on the Work of George Oppen (2008), Uncertain Poetries: Essays on Poets, Poetry and Poetics (2006), and his prize-winning book on the Objectivist poets, Conviction's Net of Branches (1985). His collection of short fiction, Two Novellas, will be published in 2009.

Eschaton (new poems) Talisman House Publishers (2009) available at SPD, Greenfield Distribution (www.gfibooks.com), www. amazon.com and good bookstores. Speaking The Estranged: Essays on the Work of George Oppen (2008); Uncertain Poetries: Essays on Poets, Poetry and Poetics (2005) and Exigent Futures: New and Selected Poems (2003) available at www.saltpublishing.com, amazon.com and good bookstores. Survey of work at http://www.thing.net/~grist/ld/heller.htm Collaborations with the composer Ellen Fishman Johnson at http://www.efjcomposer.com/EFJ/Collaborations.html Recordings at http://writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/Heller.html

↑ Index

296. Anny Ballardini

Re: About Poetry: Presidential Inauguration Poetry & "Where the He/art Pants" Election Anthology

Fri 16 Jan 2009

Thank you to both: Ruth Lepson and David-Baptiste Chirot.
Have a nice evening, Anny

On Fri, Jan 16, 2009 at 3:12 AM, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]> wrote:

> led to a fascinating chain
>
> On 1/15/09 9:18 AM, "David-Baptiste Chirot" <[redacted]>
> wrote:
>
> Along with About Poetry's selections and thoughts, also a reminder re
> Election
> Anthology "Where the He/art Pants" edited by Anny Ballardini and > Obododimma-which is also about the inaugeration--
>
> http://poetry.about.com/b/2009/01/15/poetry-and-the-presidential-inauguration
> .
> htm
>
> From Bob Holman & Margery Snyder
>
> Poetry
> came into the public eye numerous times during the 2008 U.S.
> Presidential election campaign, and the poetry world has been buzzing > with excitement and bustling with suggestions since the election, > especially as it became evident that poetry would have a role to play
> in next Tuesday's inauguration ceremony and celebration

> Poetry and the Presidential Inauguration While we're all waiting for Elizabeth Alexander's inaugural poem, let's reread the few poems that have marked earlier Presidential inaugurations... and a sampling of "unofficial" poems written for Barack Obama's inauguration by poets around the country.... read more
> ·* While the He/art Pants:<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2664 (Poetic Responses to the 2008 American Elections)*
> ·* Editorial: Obododimma Oha<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2665>*
> ·* Editorial: Anny Ballardini<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2666>*
>
> ---
> Windows Live Hotmail(R): Chat. Store. Share. Do more with mail.
>
> http://windowslive.com/howitworks?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_hm_justgotbetter_howitworks_012009
> guidelines &

--
Anny Ballardini
http://annyballardini.blogspot.com/
http://www.fieralingue.it/modules.php?name=poetshome
http://www.moriapoetry.com/ebooks.html
I Tell You: One must still have chaos in one to give birth to a dancing star!

↑ Index

297. Peter Ciccariello
Stephen Vincent at the Braunstein/Quay Gallery
Fri 16 Jan 2009

In case you may have missed it, take a look at several of *Stephen Vincent's stunning Haptics<http://www.braunsteinquay.com/archive/access_vincent2008.html#> * exhibited at the Braunstein/Quay Gallery in San Francisco.

Best,

- Peter Ciccariello

↑ Index

298. steve russell
Re: Simone Weil
Fri 16 Jan 2009

I mentioned Simone Weil earlier, but forgot to add --

i think it was during the late 80's when books such as "The Dancing Woo Lee Masters" and "The Tao of Physics" came out. Suddenly, Eastern thought became very fashionable. I'm attracted to writers of extreme, obsessive vision. Simone certainly qualifies. Ditto Pascal. Still, it's hard not to be embarressed admitting an attraction to a writer who happens to be Christian as the tradition has been contaminated by so much dopey junk. Sad. But I refuse to throw away Augustine or Flannery O' Conner because of a few idiots.

↑ Index

299. Jim Andrews
e to a friend about a philosophy of computer art
Sat 17 Jan 2009

---

recently a prof at ubc wrote me asking permission to use some screenshots from my work. he's writing a book called 'a philosophy of computer art'. now, that's interesting to me. how would i write such a thing myself?

well, i'm not sure, but what i want to say in this e to you, mike, is that i would regard it as important in such a book to involve the theory of computation in some ways. could we say that the big picture of the theory of computation is about what can be done with/by computers and what can't?

it's richly ironic that the turing machine fell out of turing's main work of solving the Entscheidungsproblem. he was out to solve a math problem, mainly, not invent the computer. and the turing machine was invented to show that there are some tasks no machine can complete. not to do amazing things with the machine, but to show that there are some things no machine can do. the greatest machine ever invented was invented to show that there are some things no machine can ever do. that's poetic.

but we also see that it was invented to plumb the reaches of what is possible with machines.

what would this have to do with a philosophy of computer art? well, i would think that a philosophy of computer art should have a firm grasp on the theoretical nature and limits of computers. the poetics of computer art should include the theory of computation as one of the erm 'touchstones'.

but it and art are generally worlds apart.

there's so much fear about our relation to machines. similar to the reaction to darwin's ideas, in his day. just as people felt that it diminishes humanity to think all living things on earth descend from common forms, people feel that it diminishes humanity to think that there probably are no thought processes of which humans are capable and computers are not.

but just as we now see Darwinism in a different light--we don't feel diminished by it, but are opening our eyes to the wonders it helps reveal--about ourselves, our history, and all living things on the planet, and our shared history--so too, i imagine, over time, will we start to open our eyes to the mysteries and solutions that are raised in the idea that we are basically machines--amazing machines, but machines nonetheless.

poetry is partly about who and what we are. poetry that can deal suitably with the notion that we are machines is needed, just as art and other expressions that reveal the visions of darwinism was and still is needed. so that we might be both rational and fully human, see the beauty in what truly is.

ja

↑ Index

300. Alan Sondheim

these are good, great, i don't havemuch to say about them, they'll have to

Sat 17 Jan 2009

---

these are good, great, i don't havemuch to say about them, they'll have to carry their own weight, that's difficult perhaps for you to receive them in this mannewr, used, as you might be, to receivethem with explanation, description,at least theory, that's here somewhere, but there are so many now, it would be impossible, at least with this group, to do more than present them, hope you view at least a)few) - then draw your own conclusions, the reign of production is constant here, i'm just preparing these as a 'new batch' - you understand, at least with this batch, the primacy of the visual, notalways though, sometimes hardly at all - the theoretical takes over - but these have so many small or large themes, mpomments, concepts, what have you - so they might stand on their own, but replete, fecund, too much, too many, sdefuge sets in and then there's just one more image, the fnal image you'll see before you'r exhausted, and it's)that_ image that entrances you that you'll remember.. -

http://www.alansondheim.org/meditation1.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/meditation2.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/meditation3.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/meditation4.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/meditation5.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/meditation6.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/meditation7.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/meditation8.png

http://www.alansondheim.org/swing.mov
http://www.alansondheim.org/swing1.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/swing2.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/swing3.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/swing4.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/swing5.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/swing6.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/swing7.png

http://www.alansondheim.org/bifurcate1.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/bifurcate2.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/bifurcate3.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/bifurcate4.png

http://www.alansondheim.org/rain8.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/rain9.png

http://www.alansondheim.org/ruh1.jpg
http://www.alansondheim.org/ruh2.jpg
http://www.alansondheim.org/ruh3.jpg

↑ Index

301. David-Baptiste Chirot

Democracy Now! --Palestinian and American Indian perspectives on their dehumanization

Sat 17 Jan 2009

---

watch/listen go to:
http://www.democrac ynow.org/ 2009/1/16/ bloody_israeli_ assault_on_ gaza_enters

watch/listen go to:

http://www.democrac
ynow.org/ 2009/1/16/ bloody_israeli_ assault_on_ gaza_enters

Many books, articles, writings by myself , have noted similarities in the actions, rhetoric and over all goals which have been used against the American Indians and the Palestinians. If one is familiar with even a bit of the dehumanizing terms, names, lies, and justifications for things beyond unjust used regarding one of these peoples, then one will readily recognize it when turning to the other.

Today/night on Democracy Now! Three guests address what it is like on the silenced side of the Wall, the side of dehumanized existence.

President Clinton was known for his "friends of Bill," and perhaps President Obama has already added a new wrinkle, with the "former friends of Barack."

Khalid Rashidi is one of these "former friends" who was left out in the old while undergoing massive attacks fro Gov Palin, Sen McClain and the Fox Bellowers of Rightwing Righteousness. In the interview with Amy Goodman he speaks eloquently of the current events in Gaza and the role of the US there, via massive (many illegal under American Law) shipments of weapons, gigantic infusions of cash (8,000,000$ a day) and the full support of the US's politicians and media, despite a rising tide of protest among the American Jewish Community along with a great many other organizations.

Dr. Rashidi also points out the difficulty in the USA of presenting information regarding Gaza and Palestinian questions historically in the US media. As an example he points to the day's NY Times article on the bombing of UN headquarters in Gaza, which was packed with al the recently arrived deliveries of food and fuel for people who have been steadily starving over the course of the last two years, until almost complete starvation levels are being reached in the last months. Dr Rashidi points out the Times article takes up ten paragraphs given the justifications for this bombing, with the newspaper basically working as a conduit through which the IDF funnels its versions of events, despite their complete contradiction to the reports from International aid workers at the scene.

In a sense this media control creates another Wall behind which the Palestinians are hidden and cut of from the world, while Americans receive only a propagandistic and dehumanized view of Palestinians and their slaughter. If one goes through the history of reporting on American Indians, even to this day, the dehumanization is strongly present. The consequences of the dehumanization of persons are only all too well known, all over the world.

Dr Suleiman Baraka is interviewed also, a Palestinian Astrophysicist at Virginia Tech who tells of learning over the phone his mother and son have been critically injured when a one ton bomb was dropped on their house. This is one of the most moving interviews I have ever seen on War, all wars, and its effects on an entire extended family as it steadily loses its members.

With the pardon of Marc Rich back in the news due to the questioning of the nominee for Attorney general Mr. Eric Holder, Amy Goodwin interviews the writer Louise Erdrich for a perspective from one American Indian’s view (though is shared by all) of Clinton's pardoning a mega scumbag and fugitive from justice like Rich, while denying any clemency to Leonard Peltier, imprisoned now 35 years due to a rigged trial, for shooting FBI agents during an encounter with the AIM (American Indian Movement--for a number of years classified as a "terrorist" organization by the US Govt.)

Also two reports on a Palestinian Doctor who papers frequently on Israeli TV, learning of the deaths of his children form an Israeli bombing

January 16, 2009

Bloody Israeli Assault on Gaza Enters Fourth Week, Palestinian Death Toll Tops 1,100 Guest:

Rashid Khalidi, Edward Said Professor of Arab Studies at Columbia University. His forthcoming book is Sowing Crisis: The Cold War and American Hegemony in the Middle East. He joins us in the firehouse studio. It's Day 21 of Israel's assault on Gaza. Israeli warplanes attacked forty targets across Gaza overnight, as Israeli troops backed by tanks have pushed deep into the heart of Gaza City. Since Israel started its bombardment of Gaza, over 1,100 Palestinians have been killed and more than 5,200 wounded. At least 700 civilians are among the dead, including more than 350 children. We speak with Columbia University Professor Rashid Khalidi. [includes rush transcript]

Real Video Stream

Real Audio Stream

MP3 Download

More…

Guest:

Rashid Khalidi, Edward Said Professor of Arab Studies at Columbia University. His forthcoming book is Sowing Crisis: The Cold War and American Hegemony in the Middle East. He joins us in the firehouse studio.

to listen/watch go to:
http://www.democrac ynow.org/ 2009/1/16/ palestinian_ father_in_ us_recounts_ how

January 16, 2009

Palestinian Astrophysicist in US Recounts How His 11-Year-Old Son Died When Israeli Warplanes Bombed His Family's House

As the Palestinian death toll in Israel's assault on Gaza climbs above 1,100, we take a look behind the statistics. Suleiman Baraka is a Palestinian astrophysicist working at Virgnia Tech with NASA. His eleven-year- old son Ibrahim was killed in an Israeli air strike on his house. His wife and three other children are now homeless in Gaza, along with seventeen members of his family. In his first broadcast interview in the US, Suleiman Baraka tells his story. We also speak with Suleiman's brother, Sayed, who arrived at the house seconds after it was bombed. [includes rush transcript]

http://www.monstersandcritics.com/news/middleeast/features/ article_1453957.php/ Tragic_Palestinian_war_drama_unfolds_on_Israeli_tv__News_Feature__ Clock link to read full story

Tragic Palestinian war drama unfolds on Israeli tv (News Feature) Middle East Features

By Shabtai Gold
Jan 16, 2009, 18:55 GMT
Tel Aviv - A Palestinian doctor from Gaza who was a regular guest on Israeli television
Friday called a reporter who had interviewed him many times, screaming frantically that his house had just been bombed by the military.

'My girls, oh god, they've killed my girls,' cried Ezz al-Din Abu al-Aish, the doctor, as the Israeli reporter held his mobile phone to the microphone during a live broadcast. Abu al-Aish's home in Beit Lahiya, in the northern Gaza Strip, had just been hit by a shell, fired by Israeli soldiers.

The doctor works as a gynecologist at both hospitals in Gaza as well as the Tel Hashomer medical center in Israel and speaks fluent Hebrew, making him an ideal guest for the television. 'I hope anyone who can hear us, the military, the red cross, can get there,' the emotional reporter, Shlomi Eldar said, announcing the exact location of the doctor's home, hoping help would arrive quickly. Eldar then went off-camera to call his numerous contacts in Israel and try and get the family assistance. Medical teams have reported extreme limitations on their movement during the ongoing Israeli military campaign.

Three girls of the doctor's eight children died in the attack, two others were injured as was he, and they were taken to hospitals in Israel.
The doctor had become a mainstay on Channel 10, giving daily updates to Eldar and other reporters on the unfolding Israeli offensive in the Gaza Strip, and adding his own moderate political message.
Clock link to read rest of the story

> Palestinian doctor who gave war dispatches to Israeli TV reports 3 daughters' deaths:
>
> The Palestinian doctor provided Israeli TV viewers with regular updates on Gaza fighting's human toll. But Friday's report was different - with sobs he told how his three daughters and a niece were killed by an Israeli shell.
>
> http://tinyurl.com/9qrje9Sponsored Link:

Windows Live™: Keep your life in sync.
http://windowslive.com/explore?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_allup_explore_012009

↑ Index

302. Camille Martin

Camille Martin Salutes Obama on CKLN's "In Other Words"

Sat 17 Jan 2009

A Salute to Obama on His Inauguration:
Unlikely Sound Poets for an Unlikely President

Ryerson University's CKLN, 88.1 FM
Tuesday, January 20, 2:00 – 3:00 pm
Online listening: http://www.ckln.fm

As John Stewart put it so eloquently, the US is celebrating the election of its first Hawaiian president – and his middle name is Hussein! Holy broken barriers!

To celebrate Obama's inauguration on Tuesday, I will feature a set of unlikely sound poets – OK it's a bit of a stretch since I had planned this set before I realized that my show would coincide with the inauguration. But it seemed somehow fitting. So I lift my champagne glass to the breath of fresh air who is Obama while I air some unlikely candidates for the sound poetry rubric – a babbling baby, Yma Sumac (anyone remember her?), Oklahoma glossolalia, diddlers, a bird imitation or two, and Marie Osmond performing Hugo Ball's Karawane (yep).

To continue my symbolic salute to Obama, I'll do a set alternating between between Canadian and American sound poets to signify renewed friendship between the "z" and the "zed" tribes.

Bottoms up!

Camille Martin

↑ Index

303. Pierre Joris
New Nomadics Posts
Sat 17 Jan 2009

---

check out these new Nomadics posts here: http://pjoris.blogspot.com/

Douglas Oliver on Kindness
Rosa Luxemburg: 90 years ago
The pornography of horror (part2)
The pornography of horror
And There Lie the Bodies
Zinc Bar Reading
Inger Christensen (1935-2009)

& enjoy the cold (only 63 days left to spring...)

Pierre
==========
"Play what you don't know" -- Sun Ra
==========
Pierre Joris
244 Elm Street
Albany NY 12202-1310
h: [redacted]
c: [redacted]
o: 518 442 40 71
Euro cell: (011 33) 6 75 43 57 10
email: [redacted]

http://pierrejoris.com
blog:http://pjoris.blogspot.com/
==========
=

↑ Index

304. Stephen Vincent
Re: Eyeless in Gaza
Sat 17 Jan 2009

Can you imagine a land devastated, one without any remaining architecture? Can you imagine such a land composed and spoken entirely of sentences in a language so orderly, so lyric and so radiant that its refugees - though starving and otherwise defenseless - wander about (dancing, walking, loitering) without grief or resentment? “There are certain things impossible to take away,” these citizens will insist. “The construction of poetry, its edification is not only our bread and water. It is our architecture.”

To the contrary, many among us, no matter the poetry, no matter the sentences, the songs - as though again ‘Eyeless in Gaza’ - come to nothing in wordless, appalled silence.

As Israel destroys itself in horrific anger.

from "Homeless Blankets - A Winter Series" on the blog, photographs et al, at:
http://stephenvincent.net/blog/wp-admin/post.php?action=edit&post=704

↑ Index

305. Rob McLennan
newish on rob's clever blog
Sat 17 Jan 2009

-- from "missing persons" (fiction)
-- notes from a sad phoenician (poem)
-- house: a (tiny) memoir
-- Imaginary Haibun for Lea Graham
-- house: a (tiny) memoir
-- notes for a sad phoenician
-- Ours by Cole Swensen
-- house: a (tiny) memoir
-- The Withdrawl Method, stories by Pasha Malla
-- notes for a sad phoenician
-- Today is Kates 18th birthday

-- West Coast Line # 57 (42.1): Miki
-- Billy Little (1943-2009)
-- notes for a sad phoenician
-- my vocabulary did this to me: The Collected Poetry of Jack Spicer, eds. Peter Gizzi and Kevin Killian
-- Lea Graham, Jennifer Mulligan & rob mclennan reading
-- Asher Ghaffars Wasps in a Golden Dream Hum a Strange Music
-- Counterfeit by Christine Leclerc
-- Another Christmas in Old Glengarry
-- Robert Kroetsch's Excerpts from the Real World
-- Worth repeating: Ben Okri, Of Poets and Their Antagonists
-- Ongoing notes: late December, 2008 (Other Voices: Journal of the Literary and Visual Arts; L'Aviva by Nicole Brossard, translated by Anne-Marie Wheeler; Fred Wah's Dark Matter & Other Radicals)
-- What kind of city would you like to live in?
-- Blues and Bliss: The Poetry of George Elliott Clarke, ed. Jon Paul Fiorentino
-- Letters to Poets: Conversations about Poetics, Politics, and Community, eds. Jennifer Firestone & Dana Teen Lomax
-- Interview with Roger Farr, CUE Books (Capilano University Editions)
-- Ongoing notes: some magazines (FENCE, The Capilano Review)
-- cocktails, the chateau laurier, etcetera (lainna);
-- Katia Grubisic, What if red ran out www.robmclennan.blogspot.com

+ some other new things at the alberta, writing blog www.albertawriting.blogspot.com

+ some other new things at ottawa poetry newsletter, www.ottawapoetry.blogspot.com

+ some other new things at the Chaudiere Books blog, www.chaudierebooks.blogspot.com

-- writer/editor/publisher ...STANZAS mag, above/ground press & Chaudiere Books (www.chaudierebooks.com) ...coord.,SPAN-O + ottawa small press fair ...13th poetry coll'n - The Ottawa City Project ...novel - white www.abovegroundpress.blogspot.com * http://robmclennan.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

306. ALDON L NIELSEN
American Book Awards
Sat 17 Jan 2009

now on the Heatstrings blog -- photos and sound from the 2008 American Book Awards at Anna's Jazz Island in Berkeley -- <http://heatstrings.blogspot.com/>

<<

computation in some ways. could we say that the big picture of the theory of computation is about what can be done with/by computers and what can't?

it's richly ironic that the turing machine fell out of turing's main work of solving the Entscheidungsproblem. he was out to solve a math problem, mainly, not invent the computer. and the turing machine was invented to show that there are some tasks no machine can complete. not to do amazing things with the machine, but to show that there are some things no machine can do. the greatest machine ever invented was invented to show that there are some things no machine can ever do. that's poetic.

but we also see that it was invented to plumb the reaches of what is possible with machines.

what would this have to do with a philosophy of computer art? well, i would think that a philosophy of computer art should have a firm grasp on the theoretical nature and limits of computers. the poetics of computer art should include the theory of computation as one of the erm 'touchstones'.

but it and art are generally worlds apart.

there's so much fear about our relation to machines. similar to the reaction to darwin's ideas, in his day. just as people felt that it diminishes humanity to think all living things on earth descend from common forms, people feel that it diminishes humanity to think that there probably are no thought processes of which humans are capable and computers are not.

but just as we now see Darwinism in a different light--we don't feel diminished by it, but are opening our eyes to the wonders it helps reveal--about ourselves, our history, and all living things on the planet, and our shared history--so too, i imagine, over time, will we start to open our eyes to the mysteries and solutions that are raised in the idea > that we are basically machines--amazing machines, but machines nonetheless.

>
> poetry is partly about who and what we are. poetry that can deal suitably > with the notion that we are machines is needed, just as art and other expressions that reveal the visions of darwinism was and still is needed. so > that we might be both rational and fully human, see the beauty in what truly > is.
>
> ja
>
> welcome.html

Jason Quackenbush
[redacted]

↑ Index

308. Mark Weiss
Re: Simone Weil
Sat 17 Jan 2009

The argument about communism used to be that you couldn't blame it for the 100s of millions of deaths at the hands of Stalin or Mao, that wasn't really communism, which hasn't been tried yet. Some of the dopey junk of christianity includes inquisitions, religious wars, genocide. Maybe that wasn't really christianity. Of course, christianity begins with the claim that there's a sky god who to test our fidelity asks us to believe that he got a virgin pregnant and she had a kid who was also god.

On this was erected a great many beautiful, seductive things, and some extraordinarily complex thought in the enterprise of trying to rationalize that origin story. Is that what you mean dopey?

Me, I'm Jewish. Doesn't do much for me.

I know some of Weil's family, by the way. She seems to have embraced christianity and anorexia at the same time. They were secular Jews and didn't get it.

Mark

At 09:50 PM 1/16/2009, steve russell wrote:
>I mentioned Simone Weil earlier, but forgot to add --
>
>

>
>i think it was during the >late 80's when books such as "The Dancing Woo Lee Masters" and "The Tao >of Physics" came out. Suddenly, Eastern thought became very >fashionable. I'm attracted to writers of extreme, obsessive vision.
>Simone certainly qualifies. Ditto Pascal. Still, it's hard not to be >embarressed admitting an attraction to a writer who happens to be >Christian as the tradition has been contaminated by so much dopey junk.
>Sad. But I refuse to throw away Augustine or Flannery O' Conner because >of a few idiots.
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

↑ Index

309. mIEKAL aND

Fwd: Judith Hoffberg {RIP}

Sun 18 Jan 2009

Judith was a tireless networker of new art, visual poetry, mail art, performance & everything between. Raise your umbrella for Judith Hoffberg.

Begin forwarded message:

> From: { brad brace } <[redacted]>
> Date: January 18, 2009 8:59:09 AM CST
> Subject: [fluxlist] Judith Hoffberg {RIP}
> Reply-To: [redacted]
>
>
> Judith Hoffberg passed away peacefully on January 16, 2009
>
> Born May 19, 1934, Judith Hoffberg was a librarian, archivist, lecturer, a curator and art writer, and editor and publisher of Umbrella, a newsletter on artist's books, mail art, and Fluxus art. She received an M.A. in Italian Language and Literature in 1960 and an M.L.S. from the UCLA School of Library Service in June 1964.
>
> http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Judith_Hoffberg

> /:b

↑ Index

310. Gabriel Gudding

help me: blogging "The Best American Poetry"

Sun 18 Jan 2009

Any help with the below would be appreciated.

I was asked to be a guest blogger for the duration of this week at the BAP blog ("Best American Poetry"). Since the Scribner BAP series began in 1988, the formulation "best american poetry" has not-so-intentionally underscored the politics of aesthetic assessment, anthology making, nationalism in letters, and the cult of the virtuoso. Clearly BAP as a formulation can (and often has) been easily read as code that tacitly asks for a collective misrecognition of oral, visual, and concrete poetics, diaspora poetics, oppositional poetics, much ethnopoetics, race and racialized poetics, dysraphic poetics, and the sociology of assessment and symbolic economies in general.

I want to post a series of individual, signed, sentences/aphorisms/paragraphs by people from this list concerning the formulation "best american poetry" andor poetry/poetics in general. If you want to include text from others, please give a brief citation. No word limit.

The sooner the better (will post as I acquire them) -- but all please by Wednesday.

If you could email those to me ([redacted]) or post them here frontchannel, I'd appreciate it. I'll post them all to the blog. The only proviso for their blog: no personal attacks.

If you need a cue beyond the above, I'd ask you to reply to this formulation: "Best American Poetry: ?"

Thanks.

Gabe

↑ Index

311. Anny Ballardini

Re: Camille Martin Salutes Obama on CKLN's "In Other Words"

Sun 18 Jan 2009

And to your Show!

On Sat, Jan 17, 2009 at 4:56 PM, Camille Martin <[redacted]
> wrote:

> A Salute to Obama on His Inauguration:
> Unlikely Sound Poets for an Unlikely President
>
> Ryerson University's CKLN, 88.1 FM
> Tuesday, January 20, 2:00 – 3:00 pm
> Online listening: http://www.ckln.fm
>
> As John Stewart put it so eloquently, the US is celebrating the election of its first Hawaiian president – and his middle name is Hussein! Holy broken barriers!
>
> To celebrate Obama's inauguration on Tuesday, I will feature a set of unlikely sound poets – OK it's a bit of a stretch since I had planned this set before I realized that my show would coincide with the inauguration. But it seemed somehow fitting. So I lift my champagne glass to the breath of fresh air who is Obama while I air some unlikely candidates for the sound poetry rubric – a babbling baby, Yma Sumac (anyone remember her?), Oklahoma glossolalia, diddlers, a bird imitation or two, and Marie Osmond performing Hugo Ball's Karawane (yep).
>
> To continue my symbolic salute to Obama, I'll do a set alternating between between Canadian and American sound poets to signify renewed friendship between the "z" and the "zed" tribes.
>
> Bottoms up!
>
> Camille Martin

--
Anny Ballardini
http://annyballardini.blogspot.com/
http://www.fieralingue.it/modules.php?name=poetshome
http://www.moriapoetry.com/ebooks.html
I Tell You: One must still have chaos in one to give birth to a dancing star!

↑ Index

312. Doug Holder
David Godine and Print On Demand
Sun 18 Jan 2009

I was recently invited to a literary gathering at the St. Botolph Club in Boston. A lot of folks were there and I briefly chatted with David Godine Jr. of the famed small press David Godine, Inc... He told me that he now uses POD (Print-On-Demand) technology to produce some of his books, and thinks the quality has vastly improved and his authors love the product. I think an endorsement from David Godine says a lot to the prejudices that now exist among some in the literary world towards this technology.

↑ Index

313. Matt Henriksen
The Burning Chair Readings 2 1/2 nights @ AWP Chicago
Sun 18 Jan 2009

two nights of readings
in

The Burning Chair Readings present

two nights of readings
in Chicago
February 11 & 12,
2009

****

Wednesday, February 11, 6-9 pm
Narwhal& Projective Industries @ Sonotheque
1444 W. Chicago Ave.
Chicago, IL
sonotheque.net $5

featuring poets

Kazim Ali
Maureen Alsop
Sommer Browning
Thomas Hummel
Thibault Raoult
Jared White

& music from

DA SO DO DA
The Goddamn Shame

****

Thursday, February 12, 6-9 pm
Ahsahta
Press & Typo
@
The Empty Bottle
1035
N. Western Ave.
Chicago,
IL
emptybottle.com
FREE

Carrie Olivia Adams
Ben Doller
Kathleen Jesme
Forrest Gander
Matt Hart
Brenda Hillman
Alex Lemon
Barbara Maloutas
Rusty Morrison
G.E. Patterson
Marvyn Petrucci
Stephanie Strickland

****

And we'll be involved w/ these cool kids
Friday night:

Friday, February 13th, 7-9:30 pm
No Thousands: A Small Press Reading
Black Ocean, Cannibal Books, Forklift Ohio, Octopus Books, Rope-a-Dope
@ The Empty Bottle
1035
N. Western Ave.
Chicago,
IL

emptybottle.com
FREE

Johannes Göransson
Joshua Harmon
Claire Donato
Kevin Holden
Russell Dillon
Alexis Orgera
Dean Young
Eric Baus
Shane McCrae
Sampson Starkweather
Chris Tonelli

↑ Index

314. ALDON L NIELSEN
Inaugural Poem (never delivered)
Sun 18 Jan 2009

I don't know what Elizabeth Alexander will come up with for Tuesday, but this may be a good time for another look at this poem by Lorenzo Thomas. Â As always, Lorenzo was prescient. Â Here he foresees both "irrational exuberance" and that god-awful song, nearly resuced by Joan Osborne, "What if God was one of us?"

Inauguration
The land was there before usWas the land. Then thingsBegan happening fast. BecauseThe bombs us have always workSometimes it makes me thinkGod must be one of us. BecauseUs has saved the wold. Us gave itA particular set of regulationsbased on 1) undisputable acumen2) carnivorous fortunes, delicatelyReferred to here as "bull market"And (of course) other irrational factorsDeadly smoke thick over the icecaps,Our man in Saigon Lima Tokyo etc etc
<<

Aldon L. Nielsen
Kelly Professor of American Literature
The Pennsylvania State University
116 Burrowes
University Park, PA 16802-6200
[redacted]

↑ Index

315. Gabrielle Welford
Re: Bailout
Sun 18 Jan 2009

---

good point. mina loy would have said so....

On Thu, 15 Jan 2009, Maria Damon wrote:

> what a great response!
> but if one is inside the house, does it make one one's own prisoner?
>
> Obododimma Oha wrote:
> Sometimes it is better to lock one's doors and throw away the keys, even when there's nothing of great value in the house.
> -- Obododimma.
>
> On Thu, Jan 15, 2009 at 8:09 PM, Maria Damon <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> but is it not also worthless?
>
> Obododimma Oha wrote:
>
> No amount of money can purchase virginity. It is simply priceless.
> -- Obododimma.
>
> On Wed, Jan 14, 2009 at 2:40 PM, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> (this piggybacks nicely on the brothel dissection...)
>
> Grad Student Selling Virginity Flooded With Offers
> http://cbs13.com/local/selling.virginity.tuition.2.815171.html

↑ Index

316. David-Baptiste Chirot

Prostituiton and RE: Presidential Inauguration Poetry & "Where the He/art Pants" Election Anthology

Sun 18 Jan 2009

Many thanks to both you and Ruth for your kind comments, Anny. (i feel like we're in a tilt-a-whirl, with the "thanks yous"-going round & round--!)

I heard on the news in the background while i was counting my blessings on the bones of freezing fingers in the Dickensian room whilst spray painting garish flickering funeral pyres, visible despite the Wall and Walls of Silence, I heard reports that Prostitutes are being banned from the parade routes of the Inaugeration.

I posted two "faits diver-fate's divers" at my blogs for today re this, but my immediate thought was--

How sad that the prostitutes wil be deproved of seeing many of their best customers and intimate clients go passing by on the this historical day--

And how unfair!! That prostitutes, but not politicians, are banned forom the work place on such an august occaision!

http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com
http://cronacasouversivafeneon.blogspot.com

> Date: Fri, 16 Jan 2009 23:36:25 +0100
> From: [redacted]
> Subject: Re: About Poetry: Presidential Inauguration Poetry & "Where the He/art Pants" Election Anthology
> To: [redacted]
>
> Thank you to both: Ruth Lepson and David-Baptiste Chirot.
> Have a nice evening, Anny
>
> On Fri, Jan 16, 2009 at 3:12 AM, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> led to a fascinating chain
>
> On 1/15/09 9:18 AM, "David-Baptiste Chirot" <[redacted]>
> wrote:
>
> Along with About Poetry's selections and thoughts, also a reminder re Election
> Anthology "Where the He/art Pants" edited by Anny Ballardini and Obododimma-which is also about the inaugeration--

http://poetry.about.com/b/2009/01/15/poetry-and-the-presidential-inauguration.htm

From Bob Holman & Margery Snyder

Poetry came into the public eye numerous times during the 2008 U.S. Presidential election campaign, and the poetry world has been buzzing with excitement and bustling with suggestions since the election, especially as it became evident that poetry would have a role to play in next Tuesday's inauguration ceremony and celebration

Poetry and the Presidential Inauguration While we're all waiting for Elizabeth Alexander's inaugural poem, let's reread the few poems that have marked earlier Presidential inaugurations... and a sampling of "unofficial" poems written for Barack Obama's inauguration by poets around the country.... read more
· While the He/art Pants:<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2664 (Poetic Responses to the 2008 American Elections)*
· Editorial: Obododimma Oha<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2665>*
· Editorial: Anny Ballardini<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2666>*

> _____
> Windows Live Hotmail(R): Chat. Store. Share. Do more with mail.
>
> http://windowslive.com/howitworks?
> ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_hm_justgotbetter_howitw
> orks_012009
> guidelines &
>
> --
> Anny Ballardini
> http://annyballardini.blogspot.com/
> http://www.fieralingue.it/modules.php?name=poetshome
> http://www.moriapoetry.com/ebooks.html
> I Tell You: One must still have chaos in one to give birth to a dancing star!

_____ Windows Live™ Hotmail®: Chat. Store. Share. Do more with mail. http://windowslive.com/howitworks?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_hm_justgotbetter_howitworks_012009

↑ Index

317. Carol Novack

SAVE THE DATE: MAD HATTERS' REV WITH HARP & ALTAR at THE KGB BAR, FRIDAY, FEB. 13TH

Sun 18 Jan 2009

Harp & Altar Mad Hatters' Review

&

<http://www.harpandaltar.com/> mad hatters' review<http://www.madhattersreview.com>& harp & altar <http://www.harpandaltar.com> <http://www.madhattersreview.com/>

Present

Friday, February 13th, 2009 7-9PM

KGB Bar, 85 East 4th Street, N.Y.C.

Joshua Cohen is the author of four books, including the novels *Cadenza for the Schneidermann Violin Concerto *(Fugue State Press, 2007) and *A Heaven of Others *(Starcherone, 2007). Another novel, Graven Imaginings, is forthcoming from Dalkey Archive Press. Essays have appeared in The Forward, Nextbook, The Believer, and Harper's. North Vain, Bluff, from which the piece that appears in the current issue of Harp & Altar is excerpted, is the second book of a series entitled Two Great Russian Novels. He lives in Brooklyn.

Tim Horvath, whose fiction appears in the current issue of MHR, won the 2006 Raymond Carver Short Story Award and the '06 prize of the Society for the Study of the Short Story. His stories are out or forthcoming in Alimentum: The Literature of Food, Fiction, Web Conjunctions, SleepingFish, Sein und Werden, and elsewhere. He teaches a class for Grub Street Writers in Boston centered on the application of findings from brain science to writing and literature. His novella Circulation, called "a glittering narrative performance" by David Huddle, will be released as a short book by Sunnyoutside Press in March 2009. He is currently working on a novel in which one or more (it is unclear which) microscopic counter-novels fester in the interstices of the typeface and must be eradicated lest the infra-structure come crashing down.

*Joanna Howard *is the author of Frights of Fancy, a collection of short prose forthcoming from Boa Editions. Her work has appeared in Conjunctions, Chicago Review, Unsaid, Quarterly West, American Letters and Commentary, Fourteen Hills, Western Humanities Review, Salt Hill, Tarpaulin Sky and elsewhere. A chapbook In the Colorless Round, with artwork by novelist and artist Rikki Ducornet, is available from Noemi Press. Her "Seascape" appeared in Harp & Altar #2.

Mary Mackey, with poems forthcoming in MHR Issue 11, is a poet and novelist who lives in Berkeley, California. She is the author of five collections of poetry, including *Breaking The Fever *(Marsh Hawk Press); one experimental novella, Immersion; and fourteen novels, including *A Grand Passion *(Simon & Schuster), *The Year the Horses Came *(HarperCollins), The Notorious Mrs. Winston (Putnam/Berkley Books), and *The Widow's War *(Putnam/Berkley Books--in press for Fall 2009). Mackey's works have been translated into eleven foreign languages including Japanese, Hebrew, Greek, and Finnish. She has lectured at Harvard and the Smithsonian, is past president of the West Coast branch of PEN, a Fellow of the Virginia Center for the Creative Arts, and Professor Emeritus of English at California State University. A member of the Writers Guild of America, West, she wrote the screenplay for the award-winning feature film Silence. More information about her can be found at www.marymackey.com. and at www.marshhawkpress.org.

FREE

↑ Index

318. Hot Whiskey Press
Hecate Lochia by Hoa Nguyen (Hot Whiskey Press)
Sun 18 Jan 2009

—

↑ Index

319. cris cheek
This is your ticket to the Inauguration
Mon 19 Jan 2009

post _ moot is now LIVE at:

www.postmoot.net

it will stay live until midnight 21st January Hawaiia-Aleutian time.

Respond to the Inauguration of Barack Obama. The project is non-partisan. ALL p.o.v. are encouraged to send (pics, sounds, texts, tweets . . .) to:

[redacted]

Everything will be automatically uploaded to the live site.

You can also "direct" Tweet postmoot via Twitter.

We're looking forwards to YOUR participation

The post _ moot collective (cris cheek, William r. howe and cathy wagner)

↑ Index

320. David Buuck
This Friday 1/23: SPT's POETS THEATER FEST night 2!
Mon 19 Jan 2009

Please join us for night two of Small Press Traffic's annual Poets Theater Fest & fundraiser - this Friday Jan 23rd, at 730pm.

featuring:
Flow â€” Winged Crocodile
by Leslie Scalapino

Only the Money is Real by Raymond Pettibon directed by Kevin Killian

A Mummer's Play
by Vanessa Place
directed by Yedda Morrison

The News from Zimbabwe: a re-enactment conducted by David Buuck and come again the following Friday 1/30 for video & intermedia works by Linh Dinh, Ariana Reines, Heriberto YÃ©pez, Konrad Steiner, Henry Hills, Paolo Javier & Dennis Somera, Dillon Westbrook, Karla Milosevich, Cassie Riger & Amanda Davidson, Bill Luoma, Claudia Rankine, & more!

Small Press Traffic's Poets Theater 09, night 2
Friday Jan 23, 7pm.
$10 donation - refreshments will be served Timken Hall at CCA
1111 8th St
San Francisco

sptraffic.org
smallpresstraffic.blogspot.com

↑ Index

321. Ruth Lepson

Re: Prostituiton and RE: Presidential Inauguration Poetry & "Where the He/art Pants" Election Anthology

Mon 19 Jan 2009

---

exactly--thank you again...

On 1/18/09 6:12 PM, "David-Baptiste Chirot" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Many thanks to both you and Ruth for your kind comments, Anny.
> (i feel like we're in a tilt-a-whirl, with the "thanks yous"-going round & > round--!)
>
> I heard on the news in the background while i was counting my blessings on the > bones of freezing fingers in the Dickensian room whilst spray painting garish > flickering funeral pyres, visible despite the Wall and Walls of Silence, I > heard reports that Prostitutes are being banned from the parade routes of the > Inaugeration.
>
> I posted two "faits diver-fate's divers" at my blogs for today re this, but my > immediate thought was--
>

> How sad that the prostitutes wil be deproved of seeing many of their best > customers and intimate clients go passing by on the this historical day--
>
> And how unfair!! That prostitutes, but not politicians, are banned forom the > work place on such an august occaision!
>
> http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com
> http://cronacasouversivafeneon.blogspot.com
>
>
>> Date: Fri, 16 Jan 2009 23:36:25 +0100
>> From: [redacted]
>> Subject: Re: About Poetry: Presidential Inauguration Poetry & "Where the >> He/art Pants" Election Anthology
>> To: [redacted]
>>
>> Thank you to both: Ruth Lepson and David-Baptiste Chirot.
>> Have a nice evening, Anny
>>
>> On Fri, Jan 16, 2009 at 3:12 AM, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]> wrote:
>>
>>> led to a fascinating chain
>>>
>>>
>>> On 1/15/09 9:18 AM, "David-Baptiste Chirot" <[redacted]>
>>> wrote:
>>>
>>>> Along with About Poetry's selections and thoughts, also a reminder re
>>> Election
>>>> Anthology "Where the He/art Pants" edited by Anny Ballardini and >>>> Obododimma-which is also about the inaugeration--
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>
http://poetry.about.com/b/2009/01/15/poetry-and-the-presidentialinauguratio>>> n
>>> .
>>>> htm

>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> From Bob Holman & Margery Snyder
>>>>
>>>> Poetry
>>>> came into the public eye numerous times during the 2008 U.S.
>>>> Presidential election campaign, and the poetry world has been buzzing >>>> with excitement and bustling with suggestions since the election, >>>> especially as it became evident that poetry would have a role to play
>>>> in next Tuesday's inauguration ceremony and celebration
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> Poetry and the Presidential Inauguration While >>>> we're all waiting for Elizabeth Alexander's inaugural poem, let's >>>> reread the few poems that have marked earlier Presidential >>>> inaugurations... and a sampling of "unofficial" poems written for >>>> Barack Obama's inauguration by poets around the country.... read more >>>> · While the He/art
>>>> Pants:<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2664 >>>> (Poetic >>>> Responses to the 2008 American Elections)
>>>> · Editorial: Obododimma >>>> Oha<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2665>
>>>> · Editorial: Anny
>>>> Ballardini<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?
pa=printpage&pid=2666>
>>>>

>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> _____
>>>> Windows Live Hotmail(R): Chat. Store. Share. Do more with mail.
>>>>
>>> http://windowslive.com/howitworks?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_hm_justgotbetter_howi >>> tw
>>>> orks_012009
>>> guidelines &
>>>
>>>
>>
>>
>>
>> --
>> Anny Ballardini
>> http://annyballardini.blogspot.com/
>> http://www.fieralingue.it/modules.php?name=poetshome
>> http://www.moriapoetry.com/ebooks.html
>> I Tell You: One must still have chaos in one to give birth to a dancing >> star!
>>
>
> _____
> Windows Live Hotmail®: Chat. Store. Share. Do more with mail.
> http://windowslive.com/howitworks?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_hm_justgotbetter_howitw
> orks_012009

↑ Index

322. Jon Cotner
Transcription Issue
Mon 19 Jan 2009

"Interdisciplinary Transcriptions"

Edited by Jon Cotner and Andy Fitch

http://www.cipa.ulg.ac.be/intervalles4/contentsinter4.php poets / critics / anthropologists / visual artists / nudists

1000+ pages

↑ Index

323. Troy Camplin

Re: Prostituiton and RE: Presidential Inauguration Poetry & "Where the He/art Pants" Election Anthology

Mon 19 Jan 2009

If prostitutes are banned, how on earth can any of the politicians attend? All the politicians there for the inauguration would be banned form it.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: David-Baptiste Chirot <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Sunday, January 18, 2009 5:12:46 PM
Subject: Prostituiton and RE: Presidential Inauguration Poetry & "Where the He/art Pants" Election Anthology

Many thanks to both you and Ruth for your kind comments, Anny. (i feel like we're in a tilt-a-whirl, with the "thanks yous"-going round & round--!)

I heard on the news in the background while i was counting my blessings on the bones of freezing fingers in the Dickensian room whilst spray painting garish flickering funeral pyres, visible despite the Wall and Walls of Silence, I heard reports that Prostitutes are being banned from the parade routes of the Inaugeration.

I posted two "faits diver-fate's divers" at my blogs for today re this, but my immediate thought was--

How sad that the prostitutes wil be deproved of seeing many of their best customers and intimate clients go passing by on the this historical day--

And how unfair!! That prostitutes, but not politicians, are banned forom the work place on such an august occaision!

http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com
http://cronacasouversivafeneon.blogspot.com

> Date: Fri, 16 Jan 2009 23:36:25 +0100
> From: [redacted]
> Subject: Re: About Poetry: Presidential Inauguration Poetry & "Where the He/art Pants" Election Anthology
> To: [redacted]
>
> Thank you to both: Ruth Lepson and David-Baptiste Chirot.
> Have a nice evening, Anny

On Fri, Jan 16, 2009 at 3:12 AM, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]> wrote:

led to a fascinating chain

On 1/15/09 9:18 AM, "David-Baptiste Chirot" <[redacted]> wrote:

Along with About Poetry's selections and thoughts, also a reminder re Election
Anthology "Where the He/art Pants" edited by Anny Ballardini and Obododimma-which is also about the inaugeration--

http://poetry.about.com/b/2009/01/15/poetry-and-the-presidential-inauguration.htm

From Bob Holman & Margery Snyder

Poetry came into the public eye numerous times during the 2008 U.S. Presidential election campaign, and the poetry world has been buzzing with excitement and bustling with suggestions since the election, especially as it became evident that poetry would have a role to play in next Tuesday's inauguration ceremony and celebration

Poetry and the Presidential Inauguration While

> we're all waiting for Elizabeth Alexander's inaugural poem, let's reread the few poems that have marked earlier Presidential inaugurations... and a sampling of "unofficial" poems written for Barack Obama's inauguration by poets around the country..... read more
> ·* While the He/art Pants:<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2664 (Poetic Responses to the 2008 American Elections)*
> ·* Editorial: Obododimma Oha<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2665>*
> ·* Editorial: Anny Ballardini<http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2666>*
>
> _____
> Windows Live Hotmail(R): Chat. Store. Share. Do more with mail.
>
> http://windowslive.com/howitworks?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_hm_justgotbetter_howitworks_012009
> guidelines &
>
> --
> Anny Ballardini
> http://annyballardini.blogspot.com/
> http://www..fieralingue.it/modules.php?name=poetshome
> http://www.moriapoetry.com/ebooks.html
> I Tell You: One must still have chaos in one to give birth to a dancing star!

_____ Windows Live™ Hotmail®: Chat. Store. Share. Do more with mail. http://windowslive.com/howitworks?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_hm_justgotbetter_howitworks_012009

↑ Index

324. Roy Exley
Re: Simone Weil
Tue 20 Jan 2009

Hi Mark,

Shame about your twisted cynical remarks on christianity, as you must imagine, there are people of all persuasions out here and if we all started slagging off each others particular ideologies it would make for a rather sad website so let's get a bit more positive, creative and constructive, rather than destructive, surely thinking around poetry should include a good measure of creativity and excursons into the imagination - there doesn't seem to be much of either going on at the moment!

Roy Exley.

↑ Index

325. Jim Andrews
Re: e to a friend about a philosophy of computer art
Tue 20 Jan 2009

> it does seem threatening to humanity to think that the human mind is strictly mechanical loosely,

i'm not sure what you mean by "strictly mechanical loosely", jason.

i expect we might agree that whatever the mind is, it's to be distinguished from the brain. and i expect that we might also agree that the brain itself operates bio-mechanically. in other words, the brain is a machine, though it be organic, biological.

but just because the brain is a machine, though organic and biological, does not mean that the mind is limited to the same level of complexity as the mechanisms of the brain.

similarly, very similarly, software can be more complex in its architectural complexity than the machine it operates on, though the machine supports the operation of the software.

similarly, what we write can be of a higher order of complexity than the alphabet or the rules of grammar.

whatever else the mind may be, surely it is 'emergent' in the following sense, which i am using analogically, not literally. emergent behavior in software is behavior that the programmer has not explicitly programmed, but the emergent behavior emerges from what has been explicitly programmed. for instance, if software is written that allows it to re-write itself to meet various challenges, then we can see how the possibility exists of it eventually 'growing' and

'evolving' into a thing with behaviors that the programmer could never have anticipated.

in a sense, living things are the ultimate in the process of software evolution. there's evolution that happens on the physical level, and then there's evolution that happens on the level of mind or cognitive complexity in architectural, informational structure and process. and of course they're related--the mental is supported by the physical--but the complexity of the data structures and the architecture of the data processing is not simply physical in the same way that you usually can't understand a poem simply by looking at it. it has to be read and a whole imaginary world constructed via the reading that is in some sort of correspondence with physical worlds themselves but is in no way identical with those physical worlds.

> but i would caution anyone who thinks that the limitations on computability apply human minds to read hubert dreyfus's "what computers still can't do" very carefully as it is quite good on precisely the ways in which some human activities are differentiated from things that computers are capable of.

if there was a widely recognized argument that there are thought processes of which humans are capable but computers are not, it would be front-page news.

not today--for this is the very beautiful day, so long coming and admired around the globe--of the inauguration of Barack Obama--but the day after.

can you tell me what writings of hubert dreyfus you're thinking of? i don't know his writing.

ja

↑ Index

326. Michael Kelleher
Literary Buffalo Newsletter 01.19.09-01.25.09
Tue 20 Jan 2009

LITERARY BUFFALO
01.19.09-01.25.09

SPECIAL BABEL ANNOUNCEMENT:

WE ARE MOVING THE ISABEL ALLENDE READING ON APRIL 17 TO KLEINHANS MUSIC HALL!

INDIVIDUAL TICKETS ARE ON SALE NOW!

$100 PATRON LEVEL (Includes reserved seating area tickets plus admission to pre-event reception with Isabel Allende at Henry?s restaurant in Kleinhans)

$30 GENERAL ADMISSION (Includes general admission seating to event)

Visit www.justbuffalo.org or call [redacted] to order yours now.

SPECIAL RATES (PHONE ORDERS ONLY)

$25 GROUP RATE (per ticket for orders of three or more; must be order at the same time)

$20 CURRENT SUBSCRIBER RATE (current subscribers can purchase as many tickets as they like for this special rate)

$10 CLASSROOM RATE (teachers can purchase groups of ten or more tickets for students for this low student rate)

CALL [redacted] TO ORDER

IN-PERSON ONLY RATE (can be purchased at Just Buffalo or at the event only)

$10 STUDENT INDIVIDUAL RATE (for students with current, valid student I.D.)

EVENTS THIS WEEK

Visit the Literary Buffalo calendar at www.justbuffalo.org for more detailed info on these events. All events free and open to the pubic unless otherwise noted.

01.23.09

Poetics Plus Tyrone Williams
Poetry Reading
Friday, January 23, 8 PM
Rust Belt Books, 202 Allen St.

FIRST ANNUAL JUST BUFFALO MEMBER POETRY READING AND CONTEST

Just Buffalo Literary Center is pleased to announce a new annual poetry reading and contest for members to be judged by R.D. Pohl, editor of the poetry page at the Buffalo News. Ë‡Winners will be announced at a special members reading at CEPA Gallery during their members exhibition on Saturday, March 14, 2009. Ë‡ All contest entrants will be given a chance to read their poems in person at this event. Ë‡Audience members will also be given the opportunity to choose an Audience Award for one of the poems. Audience Award and Jury Prize winners will each receive a $50 cash prize, a gift from Talking Leaves...Books, a certificate of recognition from Just Buffalo, & publication in Artvoice.

Contest is open to writers of poetry who are members in good standing at the time of submission. Ë‡Contestants may join Just Buffalo at the time of submission by visiting the Just Buffalo website (www.justbuffalo.org) or by sending a check along with their entry.

Guidelines:

1. Submit one poem in any form on any subject of no more than 5 pages in length and a separate cover page that includes name, address, telephone and email. Ë‡DO NOT PUT YOUR NAME ON THE POEMS THEMSELVES. Ë‡JUDGING IS BLIND. One poem per entrant, please.

2. Ë‡ Submit by email to: [redacted] or by mail to MEMBERS POETRY CONTEST, c/o Just Buffalo Literary Center, 617 Main St., Suit 202A, Buffalo, NY 14203.

3. Submissions will not be returned. Submissions by non-members or lapsed members will be rejected unless annual membership ($35) is paid in full before contest deadline.

4. DEADLINE: February 14.

5. Winners will be announced at the end of the Member reading on March 14, 2009. _____

JUST BUFFALO MEMBER WRITER CRITIQUE GROUP

http://www.justbuffalo.org/docs/Writer_Critique_Group.pdf

_____

UNSUBSCRIBE

If you would like to unsubscribe from this list, just say so and you will immediately be removed.

_____

Michael Kelleher
Artistic Director
Just Buffalo Literary Center
Market Arcade
617 Main St., Ste. 202A
Buffalo, NY 14203
[redacted]
[redacted] (fax)
www.justbuffalo.org
[redacted]

↑ Index

327. Gerald Schwartz

Alexander's poem/ Lowery's Benediction

Tue 20 Jan 2009

Spiritual Life: Poetry and prayer: Parallels of invocationMuch the way that, say, Lorenzo Thomas' work was, I must say Rev. Dr. Joseph E. Lowery's Benediction was more poetry than Alexander delivered, proving in full that POETRY SPEAKS A UNIVERSAL LANGUAGE akin to prayer. The benediction, like authentic poetry, was an activity. It activated.

I am less concerned here, at the start, about what one prays -the creed of prayer-than that one begins an inner life of words, praying, or poetry, and that one finds a certain attitude of inner life. This can be found by at the very start of Lowery's work, of his saying focal words, using even secular prayers, including a poetics, even for those of us who have not found God, grace, a religion, or a church.

If his benediction was not petry, it is like poetry, like swimming--one has, sometime, to jump into the words or water and hope that something will be there. That something will hold one up. One has to learn the strokes, maybe, on dry land beforehand.

His prayer itself opened the dimension of the other, of the higher or the divine. Like an authentic poem, one prayer, is like one grain of sand on the beach-it starts the dialogue.

Alexander's poem, without its focus words, was poetry that cannot help a person in the direction that leads to prayer: that of wholeness, or healing, which is the secret realm of holiness.

Lowery's poem/prayer begins with the cultivation of an attitude, not just in stillness or some strange church, and this is where his poetry can help prayer: What is the magic word? You need not be a church person, an Muslim, a Jew, or a Christian to say this poem, or even a believer, but it can invoke the same attitude of reverence or relaxation response -that prayer awakes in a person.

Lowery evoked a poetry activating the memory, attitude, and perception, and it may be a good beginning or refresher for persons interested in eliciting the peace, power, and the active inner life of prayer. After all, prayer and poetry originally come from the same place, and much early poetry was sacred. Poetry, like prayer, accompanied ceremonies both at the temple and at the court. They were observances of the priest and king. They had the function of ritualizing, raising, and celebrating a sense of higher life. They were a training and discipline of inner attitude towards public and divine and even supernatural events. They were the developers of the culture.

Alexander failed to recapture some of these beginnings of us and the world through both poetry and prayer.

Poetry, from the Greek word poesis (to make), like prayer from the Sanskrit word pras or prcchati (for asking), often calls on unseen powers and addresses nature, the lover, time, or the West Wind as Thou. This is the mood of invocation. It is, philosophically and grammatically, the vocative relation: the poet calls out "0 Thou" to the universe. It is the grammatical case, the vocative, in inflected languages which calls out or invokes. This vocative relation-the grammar of calling out-is a personalizing, a connectedness with destiny, death, love and chance, shared by prayer and poetry alike. The vocative relation, or mood of invocation, is the calling out of the soul to life itself, be it the West Wind, Joy, the fountains and meadows, or love, or time, or even death.

Alexander's poem, though well-constructed, accomplished none of this.

Lowery, in his inner life, impersonated the world, and all poetry is a kind of prayer to the universe.

Lowery's prayer, can be memorized poems and repeated, revealing an inner landscape that can offset the evil, trouble, and turmoil of everyday life, the kind dished up for us by the past eight years of the previous failure of an administration.

Lowery's Benediction set the mood of invocation, waking up the inner dependence we have on beauty, truth, and goodness, and will go farther than Alexander's poem to help us actually create it. It put us between a prayer and a meditation. The attitude of the soul, the poem, enlivens the moment. This is the kind of waking up of the inner life that the vocative relation, whether addressed to God or no, can bring.

The Benediction more than the poem invoked meaning, which is indeed, the interface between prayer and meditation. In meaning we make an effort not just with the heart but also with the mind to awaken the sense of words so that as we repeat the formula or poem, we are discovering thought afresh.

Lowery's poem/prayer works, too, because he realizes the outward world changes. Days change. But the word Grace, constantly repeated, can measure all vicissitudes. It is the same with poems that we have internalized, making life ours in an inward song that no outer circumstances can change. This is that inward landscape of the relaxation response that can be such a great relief against stress, effecting even musculoskeletal, fight-or-flight, and psycho-immunological symptoms. Here Lowery addressed his love. The attitude of the poem is a prayer.

Alexander's poem failed to activate the inward life. It had no sense of what it means to build soul out of words, memory, repetition, and attitude. Absent was a kind of undertone, as if the mind were whispering to itself, to love, to destiny, to the universe. There was no inward speech, whether prayer or poem, between language and thought.

The Benediction poem was part prayer, part meditation. We can pray it, but we can also meditate it.

Right now, we need this kind of meditation to help us crawl our of our nightmare.

It is, on the whole, possible to meditate poetry and, as Re. Dr. Lowery did, to poeticize a meditation into a prayer.

Gerald Schwartz

↑ Index

328. laura hinton
Re: This is your ticket to the Inauguration
Tue 20 Jan 2009

What did you all think of Alexander's poem? Does anyone else write "their" Inaugural Poem? Here's mine written right after the event, which I watched here in France. -- Laura Hinton

Millions Witness a Profound Moment in Nation's History<http://www.nytimes.com/2009/01/21/us/politics/20web-inaug2.html?hp>--
New York Times headline just after Obama's inauguaration

I'm sitting on a real-marble floor in this small southern French town -- the food shops closed early or at half-mask as if a death but in honor of beer glasses full and CNN streaming live in bars open wide to neighborhood provencials

all of whom voted for Sarkozy
(before he married Carla Bruni)
so they can watch with pride
their own
first U.S. president who is black sworn in, president of my country hated here not just "since Reagan" (New York Times writes today)
but since I was a child and it was "Vietnam," and the people in the cafe
don't understand why
at 4 p.m. on the beach I should leave the sunshine, the ball game, the kissing dogs, my Coke Light half empty
to hurry home so quickly drive back through winding roads up altitudes filtered by January veils of water-mist mixed with smoke from burning underbrush -- ash to ash, they always burn
the old wood here, the dead wood these bright winter days -- while baous form little arks of illuminations

golden light top to top
and nothing else save the landscape's
evening greyness

but not to miss Rick Warren say his mea culpa before his God Aretha Franklin singing Say Can You See in her basso profundo hat Rev. Lowery rhyming "yellow can be mellow" and everyone watching Little Bush and Daddy Bush get on their helicopter wave bye bye and the whole world wondering -- if it ever can be right when a helicopter's half-hand

is seen out a window

four people, half white, half black, like souls
standing there, on the nation's backstairs freezing, waving bye-bye back

↑ Index

329. susan maurer
happy inauguration day
Tue 20 Jan 2009

I have been elated to see a new president and running about New York celebrating. Happy inauguration to all. New Yorkers should know that the cool independent bookstore McNallay Jackson now stocks my RAPTOR RHAPSODY. They have a darling display on a desk on the basement location and I hopwe this attracts some who will sneak read and maybe own the book. Here's hoping we have a new day. Susan Maurer _____ Windows Live™: Keep your life in sync. http://windowslive.com/howitworks?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_allup_howitworks_012009

↑ Index

330. Séamas Cain
The Western Writers' Centre
Tue 20 Jan 2009

_____

PETITION TO REINSTATE ARTS COUNCIL
FUNDING TO WESTERN WRITERS' CENTRE

The Arts Council of the Republic of Ireland have removed all funding from the Western Writers' Centre, Ionad Scríbhneoirí Chaitlín Maude.

http://www.twwc.ie/

The Centre has been in operation as the only Writers' Centre west of the Shannon for almost seven years and has provided workshops, readings, a website, and a newsletter, "The Word Tree."

They were the first to organise a writers' residence to a Galway hospital. They also run an annual festival, "The Forge at Gort."

Their commitment to the Irish language and Irish language writers has also been a foremost feature of their working policy.

The Arts Council grant of €10,000 enabled them to plan forward, to develop this Centre.

http://www.twwc.ie/

Please take the time to add your name to the petition calling for REINSTATEMENT of Arts Council Funding! You will find the petition at

http://www.ipetitions.com/petition/WESTERNWRITERS

For additional information, contact the WESTERN WRITERS' CENTRE at [redacted]

Best regards,

Séamas Cain
http://alazanto.org/seamascain
http://seamascain.writernetwork.com
http://www.mnartists.org/Seamas_Cain

_____

↑ Index

331. steve d. dalachinsky
Re: Alexander's poem/ Lowery's Benediction
Tue 20 Jan 2009

---

both truly sucked -

On Tue, 20 Jan 2009 14:29:28 -0500 Gerald Schwartz
<[redacted]> writes:
> Spiritual Life: Poetry and prayer: Parallels of invocationMuch the > way that, say, Lorenzo Thomas' work was, I must say Rev. Dr. Joseph > E. Lowery's Benediction was more poetry than Alexander delivered, > proving in full that POETRY SPEAKS A UNIVERSAL LANGUAGE akin to > prayer. The benediction, like authentic poetry, was an activity. It > activated.

>
> I am less concerned here, at the start, about what one prays -the > creed of prayer-than that one begins an inner life of words, > praying, or poetry, and that one finds a certain attitude of inner > life. This can be found by at the very start of Lowery's work, of > his saying focal words, using even secular prayers, including a > poetics, even for those of us who have not found God, grace, a > religion, or a church.
>
> If his benediction was not petry, it is like poetry, like > swimming--one has, sometime, to jump into the words or water and > hope that something will be there. That something will hold one up.
> One has to learn the strokes, maybe, on dry land beforehand.
>
> His prayer itself opened the dimension of the other, of the higher > or the divine. Like an authentic poem, one prayer, is like one grain > of sand on the beach-it starts the dialogue.
>
> Alexander's poem, without its focus words, was poetry that cannot > help a person in the direction that leads to prayer: that of > wholeness, or healing, which is the secret realm of holiness.
>
> Lowery's poem/prayer begins with the cultivation of an attitude, not > just in stillness or some strange church, and this is where his > poetry can help prayer: What is the magic word? You need not be a > church person, an Muslim, a Jew, or a Christian to say this poem, or > even a believer, but it can invoke the same attitude of reverence or > relaxation response -that prayer awakes in a person.
>
> Lowery evoked a poetry activating the memory, attitude, and > perception, and it may be a good beginning or refresher for persons > interested in eliciting the peace, power, and the active inner life > of prayer. After all, prayer and poetry originally come from the > same place, and much early poetry was sacred. Poetry, like prayer, > accompanied ceremonies both at the temple and at the court. They > were observances of the priest and king. They had the function of > ritualizing, raising, and celebrating a sense of higher life. They > were a training and discipline of inner attitude towards public and > divine and even supernatural events. They were the developers of the > culture.

>
> Alexander failed to recapture some of these beginnings of us and the > world through both poetry and prayer.
>
> Poetry, from the Greek word poesis (to make), like prayer from the > Sanskrit word pras or prcchati (for asking), often calls on unseen > powers and addresses nature, the lover, time, or the West Wind as > Thou. This is the mood of invocation. It is, philosophically and > grammatically, the vocative relation: the poet calls out "0 Thou" to > the universe. It is the grammatical case, the vocative, in inflected > languages which calls out or invokes. This vocative relation-the > grammar of calling out-is a personalizing, a connectedness with > destiny, death, love and chance, shared by prayer and poetry alike.
> The vocative relation, or mood of invocation, is the calling out of > the soul to life itself, be it the West Wind, Joy, the fountains and > meadows, or love, or time, or even death.
>
> Alexander's poem, though well-constructed, accomplished none of > this.
>
> Lowery, in his inner life, impersonated the world, and all poetry is > a kind of prayer to the universe.
>
> Lowery's prayer, can be memorized poems and repeated, revealing an > inner landscape that can offset the evil, trouble, and turmoil of > everyday life, the kind dished up for us by the past eight years of > the previous failure of an administration.
>
> Lowery's Benediction set the mood of invocation, waking up the inner > dependence we have on beauty, truth, and goodness, and will go > farther than Alexander's poem to help us actually create it. It put > us between a prayer and a meditation. The attitude of the soul, the > poem, enlivens the moment. This is the kind of waking up of the > inner life that the vocative relation, whether addressed to God or > no, can bring.
>
> The Benediction more than the poem invoked meaning, which is indeed, > the interface between prayer and meditation. In meaning we make an > effort not just with the heart but also with the mind to awaken the > sense of words so that as we repeat the formula or poem, we are > discovering thought afresh.

>
> Lowery's poem/prayer works, too, because he realizes the outward > world changes. Days change. But the word Grace, constantly repeated, > can measure all vicissitudes. It is the same with poems that we have > internalized, making life ours in an inward song that no outer > circumstances can change. This is that inward landscape of the > relaxation response that can be such a great relief against stress, > effecting even musculoskeletal, fight-or-flight, and > psycho-immunological symptoms. Here Lowery addressed his love. The > attitude of the poem is a prayer.
>
> Alexander's poem failed to activate the inward life. It had no sense > of what it means to build soul out of words, memory, repetition, and > attitude. Absent was a kind of undertone, as if the mind were > whispering to itself, to love, to destiny, to the universe. There > was no inward speech, whether prayer or poem, between language and > thought.
>
> The Benediction poem was part prayer, part meditation. We can pray > it, but we can also meditate it.
>
> Right now, we need this kind of meditation to help us crawl our of > our nightmare.
>
> It is, on the whole, possible to meditate poetry and, as Re. Dr.
> Lowery did, to poeticize a meditation into a prayer.
>
> Gerald Schwartz
>
>
>
>

↑ Index

332. Mark Weiss
Re: Simone Weil
Tue 20 Jan 2009

Thank you for making this personal.

I doubt very much that I've endangered any of the various churches, twisted cynic that I am. Should I also be positive, creative and constructive about other political ideologies, or are you just talking about religions? If so, what's beyond the pale? Let's hear it for mesoamerican human sacrifice.

Years ago I dated a woman who had escaped (her term) from the fundamentalist church in which she was raised. Her parents, who to all appearances loved her, told her repeatedly that they feared she would go to hell. My fate went without saying. One morning, in an excess of happiness, I was whistling Amazing Grace. "How can you whistle that terrible song?" she snarled. "Haven't you listened to the words? It says I'm a wretch." That's when I learned that you don't have to imagine a cross burning on the lawn to have been damaged by the faith.

What do you mean by creativity?

Mark

At 02:49 AM 1/20/2009, you wrote:
>Hi Mark,
>
>Shame about your twisted cynical remarks on christianity, as you must >imagine, there are people of all persuasions out here and if we all started >slagging off each others particular ideologies it would make for a rather >sad website so let's get a bit more positive, creative and constructive, >rather than destructive, surely thinking around poetry should include a good >measure of creativity and excursons into the imagination - there doesn't >seem to be much of either going on at the moment!
>
>Roy Exley.
>

↑ Index

333. Jason Quackenbush
Re: e to a friend about a philosophy of computer art
Tue 20 Jan 2009

---

with "strictly mechanical loosely," i am badly wording the idea that you went into greater depth on that the mind is mechanical as a consequence of the brain mechanims. I was quite tired, but i'm pretty sure that's waht i meant, although looking at it now, that's just a guess. On Jan 20, 2009, at 5:32 AM, Jim Andrews wrote:

> it does seem threatening to humanity to think that the human mind > is strictly mechanical loosely,

> i'm not sure what you mean by "strictly mechanical loosely", jason.
>
> i expect we might agree that whatever the mind is, it's to be distinguished from the brain. and i expect that we might also agree that the brain itself operates bio-mechanically. in other words, the brain is a machine, though it be organic, biological.
>
> but just because the brain is a machine, though organic and biological, does not mean that the mind is limited to the same level of complexity as the mechanisms of the brain.
>
> similarly, very similarly, software can be more complex in its architectural complexity than the machine it operates on, though the machine supports the operation of the software.

I get the analogy that yr making Jim, I just think it's flawed in that I don't think it's at all settled that the thinking mechanism of the brain works through the manipulation of explicit symbols, which is what software does. I think the brain/mind hardware/software analogy is a very tempting one, and it may in fact turn out to be good, but I don't like it because it leads down a path that I don't want to go down. I have a friend who is a doctor and neuroscientist and while she was in grad school and we talked about these issues, I watched her become even more of a hardcore scientific materialist as she has learned more about brain function, to the point that she's become a hard determinist and it's my understanding that most neuroscientists are in the same camp at this point. i can't accept that and as a result have tried to think very hard about where this all breaks down for me, and the idea of the mind as emergent from mechanical processes analogous to binary logic gates is where that breaking point is.

> similarly, what we write can be of a higher order of complexity than the alphabet or the rules of grammar.
>
> whatever else the mind may be, surely it is 'emergent' in the following sense, which i am using analogically, not literally. emergent behavior in software is behavior that the programmer has not explicitly programmed, but the emergent behavior emerges from what has been explicitly programmed. for instance, if software is written that allows it to re-write itself to meet various challenges, then we can see how the possibility exists of it eventually 'growing' and 'evolving' into a thing with behaviors that the programmer could never have anticipated.
>
> in a sense, living things are the ultimate in the process of software evolution. there's evolution that happens on the physical level, and then there's evolution that happens on the level of mind or cognitive complexity in architectural, informational structure and process. and of course they're related--the mental is supported > by the physical--but the complexity of the data structures and the architecture of the data processing is not simply physical in the same way that you usually can't understand a poem simply by looking at it. it has to be read and a whole imaginary world constructed via the reading that is in some sort of correspondence with physical worlds themselves but is in no way identical with those physical worlds.

>
> but i would caution anyone who thinks that the limitations on computability apply human minds to read hubert dreyfus's "what computers still can't do" very carefully as it is quite good on precisely the ways in which some human activities are differentiated from things that computers are capable of.
>
> if there was a widely recognized argument that there are thought processes of which humans are capable but computers are not, it would be front-page news.
>
> not today--for this is the very beautiful day, so long coming and admired around the globe--of the inauguration of Barack Obama--but the day after.
>
> can you tell me what writings of hubert dreyfus you're thinking of? i don't know his writing.

Dreyfus is one of the more vocal philosopher's who along with Searle and a few others have been highly critical of the computer science program generally called "strong AI" in the phil. of mind/comp sci/ cog sci literature. The book you should read is "What Computer's Still Can't Do." There's an abstract of the argument in it on the wikipedia entry for dreyfus, although I don't think it does it justice really. But that's most likely because Dreyfus is a Heidegger scholar AND an analytic philosopher, which means there's a lot of subtlety to his thinking that's easy to gloss over and misunderstand.

As for process that I am capable of but that I don't think computers are capable of, here's a short list:

reflecting on why i eat more greasy spoon chinese food than is probably healthy deciding that i don't like the way a pair of shoes looks on me and not wearing them anymore feeling moved by the poetry of ted berrigan knowing that I should do the dishes but choosing to play video games instead writing a line of poetry and deciding that it's garbage for some reason x and erasing it deciding to bluff in a game of poker because I think I've intuitively figured out a tell of one of the other players even though I don't know what that tell is catching my own reflection in a mirror and recognizing it as my self being reflected being concerned for the wellbeing of a friend feeling nervous about whether I'll be accepted by something I've applied for and so purposefully thinking about something unrelated as a distraction constructing arguments to support my intuition that computers aren't capable of the same sorts of thoughts as I am what all of this boils down to is to make the point that dreyfus makes much better than I'm capable of paraphrasing, part of human consciousness is the human encounter with the world as the being that recognizes its own being in the world. everything else arises from that, and that itself is not a thought so much as it is an experience. i don't know how you can make a computer experience it's own thisness through programming. i'm not even sure what that sort of program might look like, but it's not the kind of thing that i can see a way to implementing on any given turing machine of sufficient power, since it has more to do than just deal with discrete symbols signifying discrete facts.

↑ Index

334. Ismaelia al Sadiq
Re: Simone Weil
Tue 20 Jan 2009

Going to hell in a handbasket is probably more instructive than getting to heaven in an elevator. Positive, creative and constructive qualities are all in league with the devil. Small "d". Or at least Milton thought so. Probably also the Saracens in Jerusalem who were about to be optimized out of existence by positive, creative and constructive papal authority. Small "p". I wonder who we should ask about this to get the Last Word? How about barack? Small "b". In some languages, this means war. Which at least is impersonal. Unlike either religion or politics. Don't the verbs "to inaugurate" and "to defenestrate" come from the same IE root?

O, say that it ain't so, Joe.

Windows Live™: Keep your life in sync.
http://windowslive.com/explore?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_allup_explore_012009

↑ Index

335. Rodney Koeneke
Reading in Portland this SATURDAY, 1/24: ALLISON COBB & C.S. PEREZ
Wed 21 Jan 2009

The Tangent Reading Series presents:

SATURDAY, JAN. 24 at 7 PM
ALLISON COBB and CRAIG SANTOS PEREZ
Clinton Corner Cafe, 2633 SE 21st Avenue
Portland, OR
http://www.thetangentpress.org/readings.html

ALLISON COBB is the author of Born2 (Chax, 2004), a poetic meditation on her hometown of Los Alamos, New Mexico. She is currently at work on Green Wood, a long piece about the 500 acre Victorian cemetery across the street from her home in Brooklyn, New York. She moved from Brooklyn to Portland, Oregon this January.

CRAIG SANTOS PEREZ, a native Chamoru from the Pacific Island of Guahan (Guam), is a cofounder of Achiote Press and author of from unincorporated territory (Tinfish Press, 2008). His poetry, essays, reviews, and translations have appeared in New American Writing, Pleiades, The Denver Quarterly, The Colorado Review, and ZYZZYVA, among others.

↑ Index

336. David Kirschenbaum
NYC Tues./ Boog City presents Ahsahta Press and Jesse Schoen
Wed 21 Jan 2009

---

please forward

Boog City presents

d.a. levy lives: celebrating the renegade press

Ahsahta Press
(Boise, Idaho)

this Tues., Jan. 27, 6:00 p.m. sharp, free

ACA Galleries
529 W. 20th St., 5th Flr.
NYC

Event will be hosted by Ahsahta Press director and editor Janet Holmes

Featuring readings from

Paige Ackerson-Kiely
Susan Briante
Kate Greenstreet
Kath Jesme
Kristi Maxwell
Stephanie Strickland

with music from

Jesse Schoen

There will be wine, cheese, and crackers, too.

Curated and with an introduction by Boog City editor David Kirschenbaum

---

Ahsahta Press
http://ahsahtapress.boisestate.edu/

Ahsahta Press was founded in 1974 at Boise State University; in 2000, Janet Holmes was named director and editor. The press seeks out poetry with an innovative twist and the kind of attention to language that pushes beyond craft into art; it produces books whose design takes these high standards as well. The Sawtooth Poetry Prize, established in 2001, has gone to Aaron McCollough, Graham Foust, Noah Eli Gordon, Karla Kelsey, and Paige Ackerson-Kiely; Rusty Morrison, who received the sixth Sawtooth award, was recently also awarded the James Laughlin Prize from the Academy of American Poets; recent winner Barbara Maloutas is author of the Whole Marie, published this month. Rae Armantrout will judge the awards in 2009. The name "Ahsahta" comes from the Mandan word for a Rocky Mountain bighorn sheep, and was first recorded by the Lewis and Clark expedition in Idaho.

Performer Bios

Paige Ackerson-Kiely
http://rhubarbissusan.blogspot.com/2006/12/paige-ackerson-kiely-moment-as-roscoe.html

D.A. Powell selected Paige Ackerson-Kiely's book, In No One's Land, for the 2006 Sawtooth Poetry Prize. Ackerson-Kiely was also the 2006 winner of Poets & Writers Writer's Exchange contest. Her work has appeared in journals such as Ninth Letter, Pleiades, and Bellingham Review, among others. She lives in Vermont with her family and works at a wine store. Also she is 33. And a fair swimmer.

Susan Briante
http://ahsahtapress.boisestate.edu/books/briante/briante.htm

Susan Briante is the author of Pioneers in the Study of Motion. Recent poems have appeared in Court Green, Mandorla, and Ploughshares. She is translating the work of Uruguayan writer Marosa di Giorigio, as well as writing about industrial ruins and all sorts of abandoned buildings. Briante teaches at the University of Texas at Dallas, where she lives with the poet Farid Matuk.

Kate Greenstreet
http://kickingwind.com/083108.html

Ahsahta Press published Kate Greenstreet's first book, case sensitive. Her second, The Last 4 Things, will be out from Ahsahta in September 2009. This is why I hurt you, her most recent chapbook, is available from Lame House Press. New work is forthcoming in journals including jubilat, Court Green, Hotel Amerika, Practice, Saltgrass, and MAKE.

Kathleen Jesme
http://kathjesme.com

Kathleen Jesme is the author of The Plum-Stone Game, published by Ahsahta Press this January. She has written two previous collections of poetry: Motherhouse, winner of the Lena-Miles Wever Todd Poetry Prize, and Fire Eater. She lives in Minnesota.

Kristi Maxwell
http://ahsahtapress.boisestate.edu/books/maxwell/maxwell.htm

Kristi Maxwell lives and writes in Cincinnati, where she is pursing a Ph.D. in English. She is the author of two books of poems, Realm Sixty- four (Ahsahta Press) and the forthcoming Hush Sessions (Saturnalia Books), and also the chapbook Elsewhere & Wise (Dancing Girl Press). Her most recent awards include the Isabel & Mary Neff Fellowship and the Greta Wrolstad Scholarship for Young Poets to attend the Summer Literary Seminars in Russia. In her spare time, she practices kung fu with another poet.

Jesse Schoen
http://www.myspace.com/jesseschoen

Dystopian sci-fi, inept technicians, and the universe's tendency toward chaos inspire Jesse Schoen's songs. He lives in Chelsea.

Stephanie Strickland
http://www.stephaniestrickland.com/

Ahsahta Press published Stephanie Strickland's fifth book of poems, Zone : Zero (book + CD), last year. Her latest collaborative hypermedia work, slippingglimpse, was introduced in Paris and shown this year at the Zaoem poetry festival in Ghent. She teaches experimental poetry and e-lit at many colleges and universities, most recently the University of Utah, and is working on a book-length series of poems, "Huracan's Harp."

Directions:
C/E to 23rd St., 1/9 to 18th St.
Venue is bet. 10th and 11th avenues

Next event:

Tues. Feb. 24
Atelos Publishing Project (Berkeley, Calif.)
http://www.atelos.org

with readings from

Ted Greenwald * Jennifer Scappettone * Lytle Shaw
Edwin Torres * Rodrigo Toscano

and music from Lisle Ellis and Larry Ochs

--
David A. Kirschenbaum, editor and publisher
Boog City
330 W.28th St., Suite 6H
NY, NY 10001-4754
For event and publication information:
http://www.welcometoboogcity.com
T: (212) 842-BOOG (2664)

↑ Index

337. Jim Andrews
Re: e to a friend about a philosophy of computer art
Wed 21 Jan 2009

> I get the analogy that yr making Jim, I just think it's flawed in that I don't think it's at all settled that the thinking mechanism of the brain works through the manipulation of explicit symbols, which is what software does.

i think that's an interesting point, jason. let's explore it.

if we look in a computer, we won't find any zeros and ones. merely transistors that are charged (1) or not charged (0). also, if we compare the source code (which won't run) written by a human in, say, C++ with the compiled machine language version of the source code (which will run), we would see there is no one-to-one correspondence between the symbols in the source code and the binary symbols in the machine language version. the source code gets converted to machine language in the process of 'compilation', creating a file that will run, and this process converts the humanly authored file into a strange binary beast that can be fed to a central processor, which is really quite limited in its operations. this is code level stuff. but, still, the symbols are explicit.

computers have to be intelligable, nonetheless, to humans. there's weird code zipping around, but all in explicit symbols that have to be humanly intelligable. of course, the inner workings of the brain do not have to be humanly intelligable. or intelligable to any sentient being. but they do have to help the critter survive. there has to be some consistency and integrity to the way the brain deals with sense data. so it's hard to see how the brain might not code the egg foo yong in some sort of set of symbols that remain stable over time.

of course, we know that the body does indeed deal with codes of some kinds. dna, for instance. the ribozome reads the dna sequence in a c t g code much like a computer reads an input string. the ribozome is like a computer that we would very much like to understand the program for. the a c t g code does appear to be a set of explicit symbols. now, this doesn't mean that the brain operates this way also, but we understand that for information to be stored and processed in a consistent manner, explicit symbols are very useful.

do you have any ideas of how one might avoid explicit symbols?

by the way, i make the best chow mein on the planet.

ja
http://vispo.com

↑ Index

338. David-Baptiste Chirot

Re: Prostituiton and RE: Presidential Inauguration Poetry & "Where the He/art Pants" Election Anthology

Wed 21 Jan 2009

Troy--you ask:
"If prostitutes are banned, how on earth can any of the politicians attend? All the politicians there for the inauguration would be banned form it."
>
> Troy Camplin

that is exactly --nay, i should say--PREZACKLY--what i am saying-- after all, it took one billion dollars this time round to yield a President-- let alone the billions it took to elect the senators & congresspersons-- hence the "Betsy Ross" below--and her ideas for transparency-- here, from the post to poetics--

I posted two "faits diver-fate's divers" at my blogs for today re this, but my immediate thought was--

How sad that the prostitutes wil be deprived of seeing many of their best customers and intimate clients go passing by on the this historical day--

And how unfair!! That prostitutes, but not politicians, are banned from the work place on such an august occaision!

and here from the afore said "faits divers--fate's divers":

To prevent any embarrassing moments occurring during the Inauguration, prostitutes will be banned, sadly unable to see some top clients pass by. That the politicians are not banned may also fuel Discrimination in the Workplace charges being filed.

A fanatic for "transparency in government," Betsy Ross, 25, of Salem, MA, has been detained, charges pending. Ms Ross, it was discovered during a tipped-off raid, had been about to mass market her line of personalized racing jackets. one for each US Senator, and the President, Vice President and Cabinet. Each jacket bears the logos of the lobbies paying for that particular politician's influence . . .

perhaps when any politician speaks, there could be projected onto the wall they are speaking in front of all the lobbies they took money from and how much-- turn on the TV-- a Senate vote is on, a regular good old fashioned rhubarb is going down, and their Eminences are practically rutting with joy on their podiums, mad with lucre-lust as they each rise to the occaision--a bill to completely privatize all public heatlh care, including medicare and "get the government off the backs of our buddies-- the Big Time pill pushers"-- So loyal are several members of the august body that they have allowed--for many perks and paltry fees in the tens of thousands--to be used as "Living Advertisements" for the latest Pharmaceutical Products-- many of the Senators present are thus stone cold dope fiends, hooked on the latest high octane narcotics pushed by the Man--and not a few sprout deformities, extra limbs and eyes, warped "senses of humor" eerily akin to amphetemine psychosis, while others experience continually sounds as of a groaning coffin lid being opened--and others still suffer from vertiginous hallucinations-- yet through it all how unwavering their loyalty! as they line up with foaming mouths and clacking hooves to sign the latest bill, rubberstamp the newest motion and in al have themselves a grand old time until the dinner bell rings, and they rush like swine to their troughs, oinking and grunting with pure unadulterated glee as President Bill Clinton from a soap box stand at the the entrance to the dining room, is calling out gleefully--"sou--eee, sou--eee" watching in their concealed dining room with its cameras trained on the diners below--the little group of Billionaire Puppet Masters laugh and croon--as one gun totin' Old School Entrah-pren-ewer--shouts out from behind his oil drum sized beer can--"look at 'em --bless their little ole big hearts!--why it's like watchin through the peep holes at the best little old whorehouse in Texas--!" suddenly they have a medical emergency on their hands-- laughing too hard at his fellow diner's witticisms- Good ole "Cash Flow" Tomlinson has someheow managed to pop loose his IV--which "trickees UP" into his vast flabby capillary system--a continous "cash flow" to which he has become so addicted he nearly flatlines if the supply is cut off for even a few seconds-- and--though dangling dangerously nigh the valley of death, the Good ole Billionaire manages to croak out his favorite, signature, tune-- "the Green Green Cash of Home"-- the sentimental image of which before his fast fading eyes makes him feel that he still has a lot of livin and cash flowin to do--and, so, he swings like a saloon door back from the edges of the valley--bringin with him a new found gospel of greater ever greater cash flow, art Thou, O Lord of the Exchequer---- a vision which must be preached throughout the Globe--and all of it funded and paid for by the good ole gov't of the us of a--

---

Windows Live™: Keep your life in sync.
http://windowslive.com/explore?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t1_allup_explore_012009

↑ Index

339. steve russell
Re: Simone Weil
Wed 21 Jan 2009

Mark asked me what I meant by dopey junk.

I meant, for the most part, the used car salesmen disguised as ministers that flood the airwaves every week. The feel good mega churches that do little more than contribute to urban sprawl while offering their fast food brand of hope.

Too much audacity.
Little thought.

Of course, the sort of fundamental Church that Mark is referring to is something far more creepy.

& he's right about the sky God, the Virgin birth, et cetera. We can differentiate between mature Christianity -- Simone Weil, Pascal, Paul Tillich -- and silly, consumer salesmanship.

--- On Tue, 1/20/09, Mark Weiss <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Mark Weiss <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Simone Weil

To: [redacted]
Date: Tuesday, January 20, 2009, 5:55 PM

Thank you for making this personal.

I doubt very much that I've endangered any of the various churches, twisted cynic that I am. Should I also be positive, creative and constructive about other political ideologies, or are you just talking about religions? If so, what's beyond the pale? Let's hear it for mesoamerican human sacrifice.

Years ago I dated a woman who had escaped (her term) from the fundamentalist church in which she was raised. Her parents, who to all appearances loved her, told her repeatedly that they feared she would go to hell. My fate went without saying. One morning, in an excess of happiness, I was whistling Amazing Grace. "How can you whistle that terrible song?" she snarled. "Haven't you listened to the words? It says I'm a wretch." That's when I learned that you don't have to imagine a cross burning on the lawn to have been damaged by the faith.

What do you mean by creativity?

Mark

At 02:49 AM 1/20/2009, you wrote:
>Hi Mark,
>
>Shame about your twisted cynical remarks on christianity, as you must >imagine, there are people of all persuasions out here and if we all started >slagging off each others particular ideologies it would make for a rather >sad website so let's get a bit more positive, creative and constructive, >rather than destructive, surely thinking around poetry should include a
good >measure of creativity and excursons into the imagination - there
doesn't >seem to be much of either going on at the moment!
>
>Roy Exley.
>

↑ Index

340. steve russell
Re: Simone Weil
Wed 21 Jan 2009

begin with Weil.

she honed in to the core truth (if that's the correct word?) of Christianity. the cross, suffering.

still, i won't deny the pathology of that ethos.
torture.
it's grotesque.

& i've avoided mentioning the historical slander that Jewish people have had to deal with because of it. the crucifix is a Roman invention.

i was raised Catholic.
if i remember correctly, i was raised in a church called Roman Catholic.
i don't recall a vacant cross (Protestant),
i do, however, remember the crucified Christ.

Catholicism doesn't sanitize its origins.
but it hasn't been fully honest either.
i seem to recall something called original sin.
hmmm...

↑ Index

341. cris cheek
postmoot.net closes tonite
Wed 21 Jan 2009

midnite hawaii-aleutian time so, if u had anything for the "anthology" send it now

u can ofc comment on other posts (up until that time)

thanks to all who contributed subsequently we will be tidying the site up a bit and archiving with a view to possible further publication post _ moot collective

www.postmoot.net

↑ Index

342. laura hinton
Re: Alexander's poem/ Lowery's Benediction
Wed 21 Jan 2009

Here's my post-inaugural poem.
Laura Hinton

Millions Witness a Profound Moment in Nation's History<http://www.nytimes.com/2009/01/21/us/politics/20web-inaug2.html?hp>--
New York Times headline just after Obama's inauguaration

I'm sitting on a real-marble floor in this small southern French town -- the food shops closed early or at half-mask as if a death but in honor of beer glasses full and CNN streaming live in bars open wide to neighborhood provencials

all of whom voted for Sarkozy
(before he married Carla Bruni)
so they can watch with pride
their own
first U.S. president who is black sworn in, president of my country hated here not just "since Reagan" (New York Times writes today)
but since I was a child and it was "Vietnam," and the people in the cafe
don't understand why
at 4 p.m. on the beach I should leave the sunshine, the ball game, the kissing dogs, my Coke Light
half empty
to hurry home so quickly driving back through winding roads up altitudes filtered by January veils
of water-mist mixed
with smoke from burning underbrush -- ash to ash, they always burn
the old wood here, the dead wood
these bright winter days -- while baous form little arks of illuminations
golden light top to top
and nothing else save the landscape's
evening greyness

but there's no missing Rick Warren say his mea culpa before his God Aretha Franklin singing Say Can You See in her basso profundo hat Rev. Lowery rhyming "yellow can be mellow" and everyone watching Little Bush and Daddy Bush get on their helicopter wave bye bye

and the whole world wondering -- if it ever can be right
when a helicopter's half-hand
is seen out a window

four people, half white, half black, like souls
standing there, on the nation's backstairs
freezing, waving
bye-bye back

↑ Index

343. Thomas savage

Re: Alexander's poem/ Lowery's Benediction

Wed 21 Jan 2009

I liked Elizabeth Alexander's poem. Maybe it was not the greatest poetry but within the political context of an inauguration, it wasn't bad. I vaguely remember Maya Angelou's awful poem at one of Clinton's inaugurations (?). Alexander's poem was much better than that. Also, the second preacher to speak (Lowry?) did have some poetry in his speech, which was a pleasant surprise, somewhat making up for the fact that the first preacher was invited to speak at all, given his anti-Gay stance and fundraising activities. Regards, Tom Savage

--- On Tue, 1/20/09, steve d. dalachinsky <[redacted]> wrote:

From: steve d. dalachinsky <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Alexander's poem/ Lowery's Benediction
To: [redacted]
Date: Tuesday, January 20, 2009, 5:50 PM

both truly sucked -

On Tue, 20 Jan 2009 14:29:28 -0500 Gerald Schwartz
<[redacted]> writes:
> Spiritual Life: Poetry and prayer: Parallels of invocationMuch the > way that, say, Lorenzo Thomas' work was, I must say Rev. Dr. Joseph > E. Lowery's Benediction was more poetry than Alexander delivered, > proving in full that POETRY SPEAKS A UNIVERSAL LANGUAGE akin to > prayer. The benediction, like authentic poetry, was an activity. It > activated.
>
> I am less concerned here, at the start, about what one prays -the > creed of prayer-than that one begins an inner life of words, > praying, or poetry, and that one finds a certain attitude of inner > life. This can be found by at the very start of Lowery's work, of > his saying focal words, using even secular prayers, including a > poetics, even for those of us who have not found God, grace, a > religion, or a church.

>
> If his benediction was not petry, it is like poetry, like > swimming--one has, sometime, to jump into the words or water and > hope that something will be there. That something will hold one up.
> One has to learn the strokes, maybe, on dry land beforehand.
>
> His prayer itself opened the dimension of the other, of the higher > or the divine. Like an authentic poem, one prayer, is like one grain > of sand on the beach-it starts the dialogue.
>
> Alexander's poem, without its focus words, was poetry that cannot > help a person in the direction that leads to prayer: that of > wholeness, or healing, which is the secret realm of holiness.
>
> Lowery's poem/prayer begins with the cultivation of an attitude, not > just in stillness or some strange church, and this is where his > poetry can help prayer: What is the magic word? You need not be a > church person, an Muslim, a Jew, or a Christian to say this poem, or > even a believer, but it can invoke the same attitude of reverence or > relaxation response -that prayer awakes in a person.
>
> Lowery evoked a poetry activating the memory, attitude, and > perception, and it may be a good beginning or refresher for persons > interested in eliciting the peace, power, and the active inner life > of prayer. After all, prayer and poetry originally come from the > same place, and much early poetry was sacred. Poetry, like prayer, > accompanied ceremonies both at the temple and at the court. They > were observances of the priest and king. They had the function of > ritualizing, raising, and celebrating a sense of higher life. They > were a training and discipline of inner attitude towards public and > divine and even supernatural events. They were the developers of the > culture.
>
> Alexander failed to recapture some of these beginnings of us and the > world through both poetry and prayer.
>
> Poetry, from the Greek word poesis (to make), like prayer from the > Sanskrit word pras or prcchati (for asking), often calls on unseen

> powers and addresses nature, the lover, time, or the West Wind as > Thou. This is the mood of invocation. It is, philosophically and > grammatically, the vocative relation: the poet calls out "0 Thou" to
> the universe. It is the grammatical case, the vocative, in inflected > languages which calls out or invokes. This vocative relation-the > grammar of calling out-is a personalizing, a connectedness with > destiny, death, love and chance, shared by prayer and poetry alike.
> The vocative relation, or mood of invocation, is the calling out of > the soul to life itself, be it the West Wind, Joy, the fountains and > meadows, or love, or time, or even death.
>
> Alexander's poem, though well-constructed, accomplished none of > this.
>
> Lowery, in his inner life, impersonated the world, and all poetry is > a kind of prayer to the universe.
>
> Lowery's prayer, can be memorized poems and repeated, revealing an > inner landscape that can offset the evil, trouble, and turmoil of > everyday life, the kind dished up for us by the past eight years of > the previous failure of an administration.
>
> Lowery's Benediction set the mood of invocation, waking up the inner > dependence we have on beauty, truth, and goodness, and will go > farther than Alexander's poem to help us actually create it. It put > us between a prayer and a meditation. The attitude of the soul, the > poem, enlivens the moment. This is the kind of waking up of the > inner life that the vocative relation, whether addressed to God or > no, can bring.
>
> The Benediction more than the poem invoked meaning, which is indeed, > the interface between prayer and meditation. In meaning we make an > effort not just with the heart but also with the mind to awaken the > sense of words so that as we repeat the formula or poem, we are > discovering thought afresh.
>
> Lowery's poem/prayer works, too, because he realizes the outward > world changes. Days change. But the word Grace, constantly repeated, > can measure all vicissitudes. It is the same with poems that we have > internalized, making life ours in an inward song that no outer > circumstances can change. This is that inward landscape of the > relaxation response that can be such a great relief against stress, > effecting even musculoskeletal, fight-or-flight, and > psycho-immunological symptoms. Here Lowery addressed his love. The > attitude of the poem is a prayer.

>
> Alexander's poem failed to activate the inward life. It had no sense > of what it means to build soul out of words, memory, repetition, and > attitude. Absent was a kind of undertone, as if the mind were > whispering to itself, to love, to destiny, to the universe. There > was no inward speech, whether prayer or poem, between language and > thought.
>
> The Benediction poem was part prayer, part meditation. We can pray > it, but we can also meditate it.
>
> Right now, we need this kind of meditation to help us crawl our of > our nightmare.
>
> It is, on the whole, possible to meditate poetry and, as Re. Dr.
> Lowery did, to poeticize a meditation into a prayer.
>
> Gerald Schwartz
>
>
>
>

↑ Index

344. Skip Fox

Re: Alexander's poem/ Lowery's Benediction

Wed 21 Jan 2009

But to have sucked means to have given someone pleasure, doesn't it?

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of steve d. dalachinsky
Sent: Tuesday, January 20, 2009 4:51 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Alexander's poem/ Lowery's Benediction

both truly sucked -

↑ Index

345. Lindsay Wong
NEW BOOK: Virgil and the Mountain Cat
Wed 21 Jan 2009

Dear Poetics-L:

RE: http://listserv.acsu.buffalo.edu/archives/poetics.html

The University of California Press is pleased to announce the publication of:

Virgil and the Mountain Cat: Poems

David Lau teaches writing at the University of California, Santa Cruz, and Cabrillo College. His poems have appeared in Boston Review, New Orleans Review, Wildlife, and other magazines.

http://go.ucpress.edu/Lau

At once uncompromising and highly inventive, David Lau's poems are imbued with a musicality that lightens the dark undertones of spoliation and entropy. Many of the poems embody a nexus of interaction with historical events, films, modernist poetic texts, and works of art-but from this allusion and evocation, a multifarious voice emerges. In these pages, the electric linguistic experiment meets a new urban, postnatural poetics, one in which poetry is not just a play of signs and seemings but also a prismatic investigation of our contemporary order: "Hurry up before our factory leaves. / The first column of the Freedom Tower / traduces its ensorcellment in the facade." Here is a poetry both deeply lyrical and resistant, a poetry relentless in its invention and its stance against the apathy of convention and consumption.

Full information about the book, including the table of contents, is available online: http://go.ucpress.edu/Lau

--

____
Lindsay Wong

Electronic Marketing Coordinator
University of California Press
Phone: [redacted]
Email: [redacted]
Website: http://www.ucpress.edu
UC Press Blog: http://ucpress.typepad.com/ucpresslog/

↑ Index

346. Lindsay Wong
NEW BOOK: Sight Map
Wed 21 Jan 2009

Dear Poetics-L:

RE: http://listserv.acsu.buffalo.edu/archives/poetics.html

The University of California Press is pleased to announce the publication of:

Sight Map: Poems

Brian Teare is the author of the award-winning The Room Where I Was Born, as well as the forthcoming volume Pleasure and two chapbooks. He has received Stegner, National Endowment for the Arts, and MacDowell Colony poetry fellowships.

http://go.ucpress.edu/Teare

In Sight Map Brian Teare blends the speculative poetics of the San Francisco Renaissance with a postconfessional candor to embody the "open field" tradition of such poets as Robin Blaser and Robert Duncan. Teare provides us with poems that insist on the simultaneous physical embodiment of tactile pleasure-that which is found in the textures of thought and language-as well as the action of syntax. Partly informed by an ecological imagination that leads him back to Emerson and Thoreau, Teare's method and fragmented style are nevertheless up to the moment. Remarkable in its range, _Sight Map _serves at once as a cross-country travelogue, a pilgrim's gnostic progress, an improvised field guide, and a postmodern "pillowbook," recording the erotic conflation of lover and beloved, deity and doubter.

Full information about the book, including the table of contents, is available online: http://go.ucpress.edu/Teare

--

____
Lindsay Wong

Electronic Marketing Coordinator
University of California Press
Phone: [redacted]
Email: [redacted]
Website: http://www.ucpress.edu
UC Press Blog: http://ucpress.typepad.com/ucpresslog/

↑ Index

347. Lindsay Wong
NEW BOOK: Transcendental Studies
Wed 21 Jan 2009

Dear Poetics-L:

RE: http://listserv.acsu.buffalo.edu/archives/poetics.html

The University of California Press is pleased to announce the publication of:

Transcendental Studies: A Trilogy

Keith Waldrop, Brooke Russell Astor Professor of Humanities at Brown University, has published more than a dozen works each of original poetry and translations. His first book, A Windmill Near Calvary, was shortlisted for the 1968 National Book Award. Recent books include The Real Subject: Queries and Conjectures of Jacob Delafon, with Sample Poems, The House Seen from Nowhere, and a translation of The Flowers of Evil by Charles Baudelaire.

http://go.ucpress.edu/Waldrop

This compelling selection of recent work by internationally celebrated poet Keith Waldrop presents three related poem sequences-"Shipwreck in Haven," "Falling in Love through a Description," and "The Plummet of Vitruvius"-in a virtuosic poetic triptych. In these quasi-abstract, experimental lines, collaged words torn from their contexts take on new meanings. Waldrop, a longtime admirer of such artists as the French poet Raymond Queneau and the American painter Robert Motherwell, imposes a tonal override on purloined materials, yet the originals continue to show through. These powerful poems, at once metaphysical and personal, reconcile Waldrop's romantic tendencies with formal experimentation, uniting poetry and philosophy and revealing him as a transcendentalist for the new millennium.

Full information about the book, including the table of contents, is available online: http://go.ucpress.edu/Waldrop

--

____

Lindsay Wong

Electronic Marketing Coordinator
University of California Press
Phone: [redacted]
Email: [redacted]
Website: http://www.ucpress.edu
UC Press Blog: http://ucpress.typepad.com/ucpresslog/

↑ Index

348. Jennifer Karmin
WEEK THREE: When Does It or You Begin?
Wed 21 Jan 2009

WHEN DOES IT OR YOU BEGIN? (MEMORY AS INNOVATION)
Festival of Writing, Performance, & Video

Curated by Amina Cain & Jennifer Karmin
at Links Hall
3435 N. Sheffield Avenue
Chicago, IL

WEEK THREE
Memoryâ€™s Encounter: The Language of Position featuring experimental literature, creative lectures, and multimedia presentations

FRIDAY, JANUARY 23 at 8pm
Karen Christopher
Quraysh Ali Lansana with collaborators
[G Baker, Preston Poe, Craig Nakamoto, Shanta Nurullah]
Vanessa Place
Nathalie Stephens (NathanaÃ«l) video by Cecilia VicuÃ±a talkback with Ed Roberson

SATURDAY, JANUARY 24 at 8pm
Teresa Carmody with Vanessa Place Nathalie Stephens (NathanaÃ«l) with Christine Stewart video by Gaelen Hanson
video by Cecilia VicuÃ±a

SUNDAY, JANUARY 25 at 7pm
Teresa Carmody
Karen Christopher
Quraysh Ali Lansana with collaborators
[G Baker, Preston Poe, Craig Nakamoto, Shanta Nurullah]
Christine Stewart
video by Gaelen Hanson

TICKETS $12
$10 students, seniors, & working artists/writers

FULL SCHEDULE ONLINE
http://www.linkshall.org/09-pp-jan.shtml

COMMUNITY EVENT
Open House hosted by Laurie Jo Reynolds
Thursday, January 29 from 7-9pm in Logan Square $10, reservations and advance ticket purchase required

LINKS HALL BLOG
http://linkshallinsidethestudio.blogspot.com

↑ Index

349. steve d. dalachinsky
very special gig shiraishi also reads jan 28 at st marks and jan 30 at
Wed 21 Jan 2009

---

legendary Japanese poet Kazuko Shiraishi
the mother of Japanese Jazz and Beat poetry
will read her work with Oki Itaru on trumpet Saturday January 31 at 2pm at the Bowery Poetry club
guest readers will be Ira cohen and Steve Dalachinsky
admission is $6 - info email [redacted] or call [redacted]
or directly to the BPC

↑ Index

350. Dan Wilcox
Re: Alexander's poem/ Lowery's Benediction
Wed 21 Jan 2009

It's just two different things & not all poems are prayers to existing (or non-existing) deities -- one's not better than the other & there's no reason to compare. I'm glad Obama had a poet at his ceremony (unlike Bush) & wish he had upheld the Constitution & banned the clerics (unlike Bush).

↑ Index

351. Dan Wilcox
Re: Alexander's poem/ Lowery's Benediction
Wed 21 Jan 2009

---

http://blogs.timesunion.com/localarts/?p=1578

↑ Index

352. Carol Novack
Elizabeth Alexander's poem
Thu 22 Jan 2009

Here's what I posted on my blog on 1/21. If the link below to the N+1 article doesn't work, find it at http://carolnovack.blogspot.com. Inaugural Verse | n 1 <http://www.nplusonemag.com/inaugural-verse> The award-winning Elizabeth Alexander was a safe choice. Her poem was and had to be (ahem) accessible to the "masses." It was also totally unsurprising, shallow, cliche-ridden and uninspiring, exhibiting a dearth of delight in, and dexterity with the English language. At least she didn't mention God or our Lord, I think (I wasn't riveted to my sofa). I mean, practically everyone else did during and aft. Ho hum. Ho ho hum. Hum drum. Such a God-fearing country.

Well, so here's someone else's discussion of Ms. Alexander's "poetry."

Inaugural Verse | n 1 <http://www.nplusonemag.com/inaugural-verse>

____
http://www.fieralingue.it/corner.php?pa=printpage&pid=2687

↑ Index

353. Steve Halle
Holms Troelstrup @ Seven Corners
Thu 22 Jan 2009

I'm excited to announce five new poems by Holms Troelstrup at Seven Corners <http://www.sevencornerspoetry.blogspot.com/> (http://www.sevencornerspoetry.blogspot.com/). This is her first published work. Please take a few minutes to check out this emerging voice.

Best,
Steve Halle
Editor

↑ Index

354. Gerald Schwartz
Re: Alexander's poem, Dospassos, Marilyn Nelson...
Thu 22 Jan 2009

It's just two different things & not all poems are prayers to existing (or non-existing) deities
-- one's not better than the other & there's no reason to compare.

Since this is more (and oft times less) a language (langpo) list, and since her poem seemed to be as much concerned with language as it was with the interpersonal encounter and exchange, her DosPassos-like scope was very offset by attempts to pick and choose and weave so many plyable details.

If Alexander had followed through with her plan to use the praise song form, utilizing its full potential (all the tools in the box) of Rhythm, incantation and call-and-response-- which indeed her poem's title promised, it might have risen in potential.

Now, while I won't go as far s Steven D. to say her poem sucked, (no pun, but not much more than quickie of a blow-off in the back alley by the dumpster) I will stay to the closer reading, which finds much of her diction shop-worn ("gliitering edifices"").

I'm glad Obama had a poet at his ceremony (unlike Bush) & wish he had upheld the Constitution & banned the clerics (unlike Bush).

Interesting, perhaps even telling point you made here: How much lee-way was Alexander given with her charge? How much was she urged to bring it into alignment with Obama's speech? I'll bet there's a story there, since the work was abundnt with echoes of both tone and imagery. The movement of "walking" she used seemed spot on with Obama's regular use of the words "path", "the road", "the journey". Seems as though she chose the path of oratory, rather than the demanding road of poetry, making nothing new, never once discarding the off-the-shelf metaphor, or pushing it chimera-like to a new place.

List poems, and this was a list poem, are difficult to end in a satisfying way. Whitman did it. Andy Clausen did it. Ponge got it did in many of his prose poems. And while Alexander seemed to give it her best, what she seved up was stale. The ending fell into as much clutter as a two-year old's Jenga-looking playroom. We were waiting for a last line, a last phrase that had already left the building.

Yes, the occasional poem, like this one with its global audience, should still give us something new (as Marilyn Nelson did this week with her's), something unexpected, speaking its truth to power. If not for that, why bother? There are many better works in her body of work. I wish she had given the poeple some.

Good to see you on the list, Dan.

g. e.

↑ Index

355. Alan Sondheim

Alan Sondheim online Second Life opening in uqbar, media art culture e Rinascimento Virtuale (you can see it now)

Thu 22 Jan 2009

This message is in MIME format. The first part should be readable text, while the remaining parts are likely unreadable without MIME-aware tools.

--0-1957874677-1232643203=:17048

(please post)

Alan Sondheim

uqbar. media art culture e Rinascimento Virtuale Vi invitano all'apertura di /Invite you at the Opening of

Alan Sondheim aka Alan Dojoji

Friday, January 23 - Sunday, January 25, 2009
(10 PM CET - 01 PM SLT)
ARENA EX.IT slurl:
http://slurl.com/secondlife/Experience%20Italy%20NW/128/128/37
4 PM New York Time

Web
http://www.alansondheim.org http://sondheim.rupamsunyata.org/

Debris Field is composed of all the objects I have worked with for the past eight months in Odyssey; it's an archaeology of one site by another - an archaeology that constructs something new out of the ruins.

It's not ruins: It's compressed history. It's a history of compression, of textures, of objects, of mistakes, of failures, of errors, of misery, of language/sex/body, of avatar sheave-skin. It what happens when an insomniac gets hold of a virtual world.

Performance with Sandy Baldwin at opening Song and sound by Azure Carter

Architecture for a new year:

- shapes matter less than the comfort that coheres within them. - outside assume vagaries and opposition. - architectures as transitional objects. - living within the teddy-bear. - in the Second Life installation: dynamic micro-architectures of - deconstruction and enclosure. - no entrances, no exits: one appears, disappears. - what constitutes coming and going are virtual particles = people. - virtual to the extent that one passes through doors and walls: one passes through flats, nodes, and textures. nothing is comfortable when the transitional turns on you. - Second Life = transitional object = preparation for virtual life. - real life = virtual life; body = inscription; wryting = body; - uncanny = inscription; world = word; word = idiotic. - micro-architectures of the visible: setting up the camera image just so: harboring time of day, weather, height, distance from avatar or avatar viewpoint, location beneath the ground or water surface or clothing, location in collusion with sheave-skin, moment of capture = arrangement of objects in flight. - micro-architectures within objects in flight: buildings escaped from occupants, homes escaped from families, dwellings escaped from inhabitants, bodies escaped from inscription. - bodies escaped from inscription: debris of the body, abjection. - abjection in micro-architecture: no place to sit, no place to lie: an avatar never lies. no place to sleep: an avatar never sleeps; no place to declare: an avatar tells the truth. - coordinates, program, language, protocol, code, alphanumerics, binary oppositions: the truth of anything unforsaken in the saying of it. - micro-architectures: between code and architecture.

For Arena installation in Second Life:

1. Dropping those objects which have been taken - piled, flight: every-thing flees, there's always clear space.
2. Physical objects: non-phantom, but dropped, held in position, but whatever for?
3. Something tawdry, indigestible.
4. Flight to such a degree that they soon tunnel out of site (for most settings), head out of world - the site has to be _tended,_ constantly refurbished. Tended = a tendency to _disappear._
5. To work on _inpenetrable_ sound.
6. To work on transparent non-phantom objects: another position.
7. Intensities as things meld into one another - in the form of a debris field.
8. Debris field = Gaza-slaughter. (title?)
9. Particulation of objects.
10. Object rings with internal physical objects can't get out.
11. None of the above.
12. Try and reach 4098m with pile. (Got to 2327.)

How to view here and in the Odyssey show suggestions -

1. Try turning the glow off. Go to preferences, graphics, and uncheck basic shading, if it's on. Basic shading seems to use up more resources than anything else with the rendering engine. You can also set things like rendering distance; the lower the distance, the faster the loading.

2. Turn the video media button off. This on the lower right-hand corner of the screen. If you turn it on, the texture-mapping consumes a huge amount of resources. On the other hand, the audio for the parcel (the audio button) runs fairly lean.

3. If you find the space too cluttered to enter, try flying in.

4. If you find flying in too cluttered, fly higher, and drop in. There is a dome in the center of the space which you can enter.

5. Most objects on the ground level (and some beneath the ground, on the seafloor) will flee from you - what looks crowded from a distance might well clear out.

6. If it clears out, look up - you'll see all sorts of things above you.

7. Fly vertically to see the rest of the exhibition. If you can't fly as high as you want, click control-alt-d, which opens up an advanced menu. Open the menu and get rid of camera constraints. You can then move the camera at a great distance from your avatar body - your viewpoint moves independently, and you can move at least to the top of the exhibition, which is maybe a mile or so up, SL measurement.

8. If you get stuck anywhere, teleport back in.

9. Try moving inside the objects; the interior textures are often different from the exterior ones (this is almost always the case with the spheres).

10. You can push objects vertically into the sky by moving beneath them and flying; they flee upwards.

11. You can see the exhibition 'differently' by using the advanced menu, going to render, and then looking for info - clicking on any one of the info options will give you different viewpoints.

12. You can often sit on moving objects, which will whirl you around; if you sit on an object that moves vertically as a result of your proximity, you can ride it up. When you stand up again, you can fall down back into the space. The riding height seems to be around 4098 SL units, but unless you have a flight bracelet or feather, you probably won't go that high. (Gaz can go anywhere.)

13. Moving about on the ground level, keep the sound turned on (lower right), and you'll hear a variety of songs about SL and language. These mix with a number of looping sound modules embedded in the space.

14. Go to http://www.kippiefriedkin.com/resources/secondlife-viewer-cheatsheet.pdf for shortcuts for all sorts of rendering possibilities; most of these are also available in the menu or advanced menu.

15. If you've been moving around SL a lot, go to preferences, and empty your cache; this might speed things up. You'll have to restart SL again.

16. If you see a sign for teleporting, try it. Sometimes it will lead back to the ground level, sometimes to the seabed, sometimes to a skysphere. All of these locations have clickable objects which will take you else- where (or back to the same space but at a slightly different location). You might have to right-click on the object, then click on teleport - or you might just left click - it depends on the object.

17, Try different 'lenses' - click on control-8 to make the image wide- angle, control-9 to return to normal, control-0 for telephoto. Repeated clicks work as well - with control-8 you can create extreme distortions.

18, Try moving into 'small' spaces and look about. You can save snapshots of anything you see, on your hard drive.

19. That's about it. The general idea is to run lean, fly about, teleport back if you're stuck, play with the controls. The architecture is constantly changing and deconstructing itself Â– play. original exhibition

http://slurl.com/secondlife/Odyssey/48/12/22

--0-1957874677-1232643203=:17048--

↑ Index

356. Kyle Schlesinger
ON CALL
Thu 22 Jan 2009

ON: Contemporary Practice 2
[CALL FOR WORK]

The first issue of ON, a journal devoted to contemporary poetics, featured over twenty essays (and a few epistolary collaborations) focused on poets such as Taylor Brady, kari edwards, Brenda Iijima, CJ Martin, Emily McVarish, Yedda Morrison, Hoa Nguyen, Sawako Nakayasu, Julie Patton, Dana Ward, and Alli Warren. Our goal is to offer a survey of the field Œas it stands,¹ written by and for those Œwe¹ are reading and discussing, with the intention of bringing reflection to a discourse during a prodigious cultural moment. We hope you¹ll contribute to the second issue by engaging with the practice, poetry and poetics of one of your closest contemporaries.

Guidelines:

1. ON encourages contributors to investigate a ³practice,² rather than a solitary poem, chapbook, performance, review, art object, etc. 2. The subject should roughly be of your generation generation defined as you see fit. 3.

There are no strict limits on page count essays in ON 1 ranged from 1 to 18 pages. 4. Please feel free to share this solicitation with writers from your community and colleagues who may have escaped our attention. 5. Submissions should be single-spaced set in 10 pt. Palatino. For additional formatting requirements, please refer to the most recent Chicago Manual of Style. Please send either a hardcopy or PDF along with your word document. 6. We suggest that you check out the first issue if you haven¹t done so already. Copies are available from Small Press Distribution. 7. Please also include a 35-word bio.

Deadline for submissions is May 1, 2009. ON will be available in print and digital online formats. Please direct all submissions and questions to any of the addresses below, and thank you in advance for being ON.

Cordially,

Michael Cross <[redacted]>
Kyle Schlesinger <[redacted]>
Thom Donovan <[redacted]>

Distributed by Small Press Distribution: http://www.spdbooks.org/ More info available at: http://oncontemporaries.wordpress.com/

↑ Index

357. Alan Sondheim

[WDL] transmediale.09 online (fwd)

Thu 22 Jan 2009

---------- Forwarded message ----------
Date: Thu, 22 Jan 2009 12:57:42 -0700
From: John Hopkins <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Subject: [WDL] transmediale.09 online

Hei folks --

<<apologies for x-posting ;-)

for those of you who are not going to be in Berlin next week for transmediale.09, there is a robust streaming and IRC presence that I would cordially invite you to check out ::

Peering beyond the alarmist scenarios in the often contradictory global warming debate, transmediale.09 examines the artistic, cultural and societal consequences that the imminent collapse of the polar ice barrier may trigger. How will climate change induce global culture change?

As part of its online programme, Berlin's festival for art and digital culture transmediale.09 DEEP NORTH will offer a selected package of live video streams from the House of World Cultures in Berlin from 28 January to 1 February 2009. Our streaming programme is now online. For details of where and what we will stream please visit http://www.transmediale.de/en/transmediale09-streams-help-page-en

Dedicated transmediale IRC channels provide platforms for extended discussion leading up to and during the actual event, giving the remote community a powerful voice and a chance to engage with the sessions in Berlin. For details how to get involved (we're online now!) please visit http://www.transmediale.de/en/transmediale09-irc

Free feel to pass on this information to anyone you think might be interested in interacting with the festival, but cannot make it to Berlin - it is the next best thing to being there!

Cheers,
John
--
-
~~~
~~~

that all must be a part of and prohibits the government from prohibiting "the free exercise" of any religion you choose to follow. It sounds to me that you are trying to get Obama to violate his own civil rights in trying to make him prohibit himself from freely exercising his own religion.

On a side note, I wish he would uphold the Constitution, but I suspect that, like Bush, he will not. If he actually upheld the Constitution 99% of the federal government would have to be abolished.

Troy Camplin

From: Dan Wilcox <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, January 21, 2009 10:41:56 PM
Subject: Re: Alexander's poem/ Lowery's Benediction

It's just two different things & not all poems are prayers to existing (or non-existing) deities -- one's not better than the other & there's no reason to compare. I'm glad Obama had a poet at his ceremony (unlike Bush) & wish he had upheld the Constitution & banned the clerics (unlike Bush).

↑ Index

359. ALDON L NIELSEN

Re: Alexander's poem/ Lowery's Benediction

Thu 22 Jan 2009

The passage in our constitution that says Congress "shall make no law respecting an etablishment of religion" means much more than simply that the government cannot set up a state religion that all must be part of . . .Â But neither does it appear to prohibit the extending of invitations to clerics to say a few words at a public ceremony --Â Though I note that even while making room for "non-believers" in his remarks, Obama didn't invite any "openly atheistic" speakers to add a few words to the occasion. Â How 'bout a secular humanist benediction, huh? But what's with this long tradition of adding "so help me God" to the oath? -- the whole reason that the constitutionally prescribed oath, which Roberts mucked up, allows a president to "affirm" instead of "swear" is a recognition that some among us have objections of conscience to swearing oaths -- Take a look at the chain of Supreme Court decisions about whether Jehovah's Wintnesses can be compelled to recite the pledge of allegiance for one example of just how important this is --Â

On Thu, Jan 22, 2009 05:31 PM, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
>
The Constitution in no way "bans the clerics" from speaking at an >inauguration. The 1st Amendment prohibits the government from setting up a >state religion that all must be a part of and prohibits the government from >prohibiting "the free exercise" of any religion you choose to follow.

>It sounds to me that you are trying to get Obama to violate his own civil >rights in trying to make him prohibit himself from freely exercising his own >religion.
>
>On a side note, I wish he would uphold the Constitution, but I suspect that, >like Bush, he will not. If he actually upheld the Constitution 99% of the >federal government would have to be abolished.
>
>Troy Camplin
>
>
>
>_____
>From: Dan Wilcox <[redacted]>
>To: [redacted]
>Sent: Wednesday, January 21, 2009 10:41:56 PM
>Subject: Re: Alexander's poem/ Lowery's Benediction
>
>It's just two different things & not all poems are prayers to existing >(or non-existing) deities
>-- one's not better than the other & there's no reason to compare.
>I'm glad Obama had a poet at his ceremony (unlike Bush) & wish he >had upheld the >Constitution & banned the clerics (unlike Bush).
>
>
>
>
>

<<

The Pennsylvania State University
116 Burrowes
University Park, PA 16802-6200

[redacted]

↑ Index

360. steve russell
GUANTANAMO
Thu 22 Jan 2009

Obama has (promised) to close Gauntanamo.
is this an empty gesture?
torture is often outsourced...

how much transparency can we expect from the current administration?

Chelsea Green has introduced a new series called "Politics of the Living," a collection of hard-hitting works by major writers exposing the global governmental and corporate assualt on life.

www.chelseagreen.com

↑ Index

361. Mark Weiss
hello, I must be going
Thu 22 Jan 2009

Signing off from now til Feb. 10. For those who need to, I can be reached backchannel.

↑ Index

362. steve russell
Re: Alexander's poem, Dospassos, Marilyn Nelson...
Thu 22 Jan 2009

Philip Larkin had more than a few opportunities to read a poem during an official, stately occasion. He refused them.

--- On Thu, 1/22/09, Gerald Schwartz <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Gerald Schwartz <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Alexander's poem, Dospassos, Marilyn Nelson...
To: [redacted]
Date: Thursday, January 22, 2009, 9:00 AM

It's just two different things & not all poems are prayers to existing (or non-existing) deities
-- one's not better than the other & there's no reason to compare.

Since this is more (and oft times less) a language (langpo) list, and since her poem seemed to be as much concerned with language as it was with the interpersonal encounter and exchange, her DosPassos-like scope was very offset by attempts to pick and choose and weave so many plyable details.

If Alexander had followed through with her plan to use the praise song form, utilizing its full potential (all the tools in the box) of Rhythm, incantation and call-and-response-- which indeed her poem's title promised, it might have risen in potential.

Now, while I won't go as far s Steven D. to say her poem sucked, (no pun, but not much more than quickie of a blow-off in the back alley by the dumpster) I will stay to the closer reading, which finds much of her diction shop-worn ("gliitering edifices"").

I'm glad Obama had a poet at his ceremony (unlike Bush) & wish he had upheld the Constitution & banned the clerics (unlike Bush).

Interesting, perhaps even telling point you made here: How much lee-way was Alexander given with her charge? How much was she urged to bring it into alignment with Obama's speech? I'll bet there's a story there, since the work was abundnt with echoes of both tone and imagery. The movement of "walking" she used seemed spot on with Obama's regular use of the words "path", "the road", "the journey". Seems as though she chose the path of oratory, rather than the demanding road of poetry, making nothing new, never once discarding the off-the-shelf metaphor, or pushing it chimera-like to a new place.

List poems, and this was a list poem, are difficult to end in a satisfying way. Whitman did it. Andy Clausen did it. Ponge got it did in many of his prose poems. And while Alexander seemed to give it her best, what she seved up was stale. The ending fell into as much clutter as a two-year old's Jenga-looking playroom. We were waiting for a last line, a last phrase that had already left the building.

Yes, the occasional poem, like this one with its global audience, should still give us something new (as Marilyn Nelson did this week with her's), something unexpected, speaking its truth to power. If not for that, why bother? There are many better works in her body of work. I wish she had given the poeple some.

Good to see you on the list, Dan.

g. e.

↑ Index

363. Gerald Schwartz
Nelson's poem
Thu 22 Jan 2009

Marilyn Nelson's front page poem (which is taking a lot of heat (Hey, what does THAT say?), packs so much truth of our last eight years, as well as all that will be told with time:

www.courant.com/news/elections/hc-albarackpoem0120.artjan20,0,106471.story

There's no way that this would have been read on that day in front of the Dome, but it did make it into ink.

Gerald S.

↑ Index

364. ALDON L NIELSEN enough to make you swear
Thu 22 Jan 2009

---

post-script: Â Thursday one of the dorks at Fox News suggested that Obama might not really be President because he didn't have his hand on a Bible when they had the oath do-over at the White House --Â

<<

365. Louis Cabri
Re: Alexander's poem/ Lowery's Benediction
Fri 23 Jan 2009

Obama's was best, Lowery's an awesome second. Tied for third, Alexander's and Warren's, only because "the Saddelback" fascinated perversely for how he kind of sucked his flesh into himself so as to verbally present a humbled and puritanically burnished, exteriorized rhetoric (even while condescension continued dripping onto the face of many phrases, a nervous sweat of long e's and i's). Alexander's had CNN camera help, with frequent cuts, during her stately blank iambics, to the blanks of mall space emerging as crowds dispersed (something Jon Stewart joked about, at poetry's expense).

Lowery's! Coming in from the side somewhere, as he spoke. Aspirating syllables, so as to give necessary indirection to some of what wanted saying, one might even say a roughness and plainness to it all. Lowery! Was his rhyme a re-articulated patchwork of 60s song allusions (Donovan, etc), or that target too overdetermined?

↑ Index

366. steve d. dalachinsky
gig
Fri 23 Jan 2009

---

legendary Japanese poet Kazuko Shiraishi
the mother of Japanese Jazz and Beat poetry
will read her work with Oki Itaru on trumpet

Saturday January 31 at 2pm at the Bowery Poetry club
guest readers will be Ira cohen and Steve Dalachinsky
admission is $6 - info email [redacted] or call [redacted]
or directly to the BPC Cc: [redacted]
Date: Wed, 21 Feb 2007 12:04:16 -0500
Subject: 1 - sorry everyone a cancellation

↑ Index

367. Jordan Stempleman
Call for Applications: International Writing Program (University of Iowa)
Fri 23 Jan 2009

Life of Discovery
Call for Applications—Deadline February 20, 2009

In 2009, the International Writing Program (IWP), in cooperation with the Chinese Writers' Association, is commencing a pilot exchange project, the Life of Discovery (LOD), between writers and artists from the United States and from the minority ethnic communities in the western regions of the People's Republic of China. Five American and five Chinese writers and artists, all aged 25-40, will be invited to join two senior artists, one from each country, in a series of collaborative, bilingual projects, conducted first in Western China (over the course of sixteen days in mid-May, 2009) and continued and elaborated upon in the US (five to seven days at the end of September, 2009). Knowledge of Chinese is not required for American participants, nor English for Chinese participants.

LOD is sponsored through grant funds provided by the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs of the US State Department. These will cover all relevant expenses for the US participants: round-trip international travel to China and travel within China, domestic travel in the US, lodging, per diem for meals, work materials, visa costs, health insurance, translation and interpreting.

For more details on the exchange, the dates and proposed locations, go to http://iwp.uiowa.edu/projects/discovery/index.html

The IWP invites applications from · Early-career writers of fiction, poetry, drama, screenplays, literary translation, and/or non-fiction, who have at least one published (or contracted) volume. · Artists from other disciplines, including time-based media, music, dance, or the visual arts.

Applications will be judged on a number of criteria, including creative merit, interest in cross-cultural activity, and the ability to contribute to a diverse and long-term exchange with Chinese counterparts of minority status.

Applications may be hardcopy or electronic and should include: A1. Writing sample (no more than 15 pages; may be a photocopy or scan of published work); or A2. Portfolio of artwork. Digital portfolios should be readable on a PC. Limit time-based or web-based work to a total of 10 minutes. Provide concise instructions for viewing/listening to time-based or web-based work. These instructions are especially important for reviewing web-based material that the reviewers might otherwise browse randomly. No more than 10 minutes of material will be reviewed. Include a typed, numbered list that identifies each image or time-based piece by title, date, medium, size, and other appropriate information. Provide a self-addressed mailer and sufficient postage for return of all materials. B. Resumé C. Project proposal (300-600 words) D. Statement confirming ability to travel in remote and rural areas. The resumé should include any experience relevant to LOD (such as international travel or grants, volunteer work, other exchanges, etc.), in addition to artistic credentials and professional accomplishments.

The project proposal should describe, in concrete terms, a proposed collaboration between some or all of the participants in the 2009 LOD project. It should take into consideration all of the following: · Twelve writers and artists of different genres and disciplines will be present. · There will be a heavy reliance on interpreting and translation. · The periods spent face-to-face (10-12 days in China, 5-7 days in the US) will occur four months apart. That interval may also be included in your proposal. If you have participated in a similar collaborative effort in the past, we recommend including this in your proposal for illustrative purposes. While the IWP has experience in creative collaboration, we welcome new ideas.

Please send applications, by post or email, to

Tammy Petro
International Writing Program
Shambaugh House
430 N. Clinton
Iowa City, IA 52245
[redacted]

Windows Live™: Keep your life in sync. Check it out.
_____ Windows Live™: E-mail. Chat. Share. Get more ways to connect.
http://windowslive.com/explore?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t2_allup_explore_012009

↑ Index

368. John Cunningham
Oulipo & Christian Bok
Fri 23 Jan 2009

Can anyone advise of any other poetry books and poets besides Christian Bok's 'Eunoia' written in the manner of Oulipo?

John Herbert Cunningham

↑ Index

369. John Cunningham
Proemes
Fri 23 Jan 2009

Now that it has been established that Francis Ponge was the creator of proemes, what exactly is a proeme? How is it different from a prose poem?

John Herbert Cunningham

↑ Index

370. Andy Gricevich
Nonsense Company and Cannot Exist reading--NYC and Philly
Fri 23 Jan 2009

Hello, all!

On February 1st, the Nonsense Company (of which I comprise a third) will perform Great Hymn of Thanksgiving / Conversation Storm in Philadelphia, followed by a two-week run at NYC's Interborough Repertory Theater. We've been performing these pieces for a couple of years, and they're in the best shape they're likely to achieve before we retire them in the face of inevitable comments about the obsolescence of work about war and torture in the Obama era. In any case, here they are, with intricate group speech, dinner table percussion, precise acting and formally odd composition.

Also, on January 31st, the SEGUE foundation will host a launch reading for the fourth issue of Cannot Exist, the magazine I started editing last February. Lots of great poets will be there to read their work and talk about magazines, politics, culture, and so forth.

All the info follows. Hope you can make it to something!

cheers,

Andy G.

CANNOT EXIST launch reading
January 31st, 4-6 p.m.
Bowery Poetry Club
308 Bowery (just north of Houston)
$6

Cannot Exist #4: a politics of magazine culture Come join Eileen Myles, Rodrigo Toscano, Christina Strong, Laura Sims, Lawrence Griffin, Rick Burkhardt, Thom Donovan and others for Segue's launch of Cannot Exist #4, a magazine edited by Andy Gricevich of Madison, WI devoted to overlap between politics, philosophy, and poetry. Presentations and readings will be followed by an open conversation about the politics of magazine culture--how the small magazine can affect politics and establish a cultural commons.

http://segueseries.blogspot.com

GREAT HYMN OF THANKSGIVING / CONVERSATION STORM
February 1st, 8 p.m. (doors at 7:30)
The Rotunda
4014 Walnut St., Philadelphia
$5-15 suggested with special guests The Prince Myshkins
http://puppetuprising.org

February 3-15 (8 p.m./ Sundays at 3 p.m./no shows 2/9-10)
Interborough Repertory Theater
154 Christopher St. 3B, Manhattan
$15
tickets available through Theatermania:
http://www.theatermania.com/ticketing/index.cfm/show/150898

Great Hymn of Thanksgiving takes place at a dinner table, where the sounds of conversation have been replaced with fragmented news reports, scraps from the Army prayer manual, faux-Middle-Eastern folk tales, and disembodied cries of emergency.Â The sculpted sounds of the table itself -- scooting chairs, singing wineglasses, squeaking forks -- force this "conversation" into a confrontation with material reality.

In Conversation Storm, three friends from three sides of the political spectrum unwillingly argue their way through a ticking time bomb scenario, revising, dissecting, and even brutalizing their own positions in the process -- but time has either stopped or entered an ugly loop, and as the friends assign and reassign roles, the scenario begins to dissolve the boundaries between real and hypothetical, past and future, day and night.

Winner: "Best New Play," San Francisco Fringe 2007, and "Best of the Fest" New York FRIGID Festival 2008.

â€œAn avant-garde musical dinner party unlike anything youâ€™ve seen before, paired up with an escalating, yet non-linear, conversation about the "ticking time bomb" scenario that questions the ethics of torture in one of the most hysterically frightening works of theater this year.â€

Aaron Riccio, New Theater Corps NYC

â€œThrilling performances... spiked with intense shots of satire.Â Through precise delivery and the sheer force of their concept and subject material, [the Nonsense Company] captivate their audience even as they disorient it.â€

Ronni Reich, Backstage New York

â€œRemarkable.... exemplifies what indie/fringe theatre is supposed to be.... hilariously funny and awesomely tragic at the same time... Our eyes and ears remain open and aware despite the disorientation.Â [The Nonsense Company] prove themselves artists to be reckoned with in this, their New York debut. We need them to come back with more of their work.â€

Martin Denton, nytheatre.com

â€œ[Madison] rarely witnesses a company taking so many elaborately conceived risks on its own terms, or with such immediacy, as The Nonsense Company.Â Rick Burkhardt, Andy Gricevich, and Ryan Higgins create shows that expand the perspectives and materials of theater, twitching from one vantage point to another, from ghastly grandeur to snips of irony.â€

Scott Gordon, The Onion AV Club

â€œMoving, funny, and provocative... theater at its best.â€

Joey Seiler,â€¨ Austin 360

â€œStrange and compelling pieces.... introspective, recursive,â€¨highly charged.... stunningly choreographed into visual theaterâ€¨as well as an aural melange.â€

Dave Romm,â€¨Shockwave Radio, KFAI Minneapolis

http://www.nonsensecompany.com

↑ Index

371. George Bowering
Re: Oulipo & Christian Bok
Fri 23 Jan 2009

Yeah, Victor Coleman's America.

gb

On Jan 23, 2009, at 10:10 AM, John Cunningham wrote:

> Can anyone advise of any other poetry books and poets besides Christian > Bok's 'Eunoia' written in the manner of Oulipo?
>
> John Herbert Cunningham

> welcome.html

George Bowering, M.A.
Acclaimed for his modesty.

↑ Index

372. Ron Starr
Re: Oulipo & Christian Bok
Fri 23 Jan 2009

Ian Monk _Writings for the Oulipo_ and _Family Archaeology and Other Poems_, both from Make Now.

Philip Terry, _Oulipoems_, Ahadada Books.

Ron Starr _A Map by a Dim Lamp_, Ravenna Press.

Doug Nufer, _We Were Werewolves_, Make Now.

Catherine Daly, _To Delite and Instruct_, blue lion.

Cahterine Daly, _DaDaDa_, Salt.

Georges Perec, _Alphabets_, Galilee.

...among others. The Oulipo Compendium can provide pointers to other sources as, I'm sure, can others on this list.

-Ron Starr

> Can anyone advise of any other poetry books and poets besides Christian Bok's 'Eunoia' written in the manner of Oulipo?
>
> John Herbert Cunningham

↑ Index

373. Kyle Schlesinger
Re: Oulipo & Christian Bok
Fri 23 Jan 2009

Depends on a number of variables, but I think immediately of Craig Dworkin, Brian Kim Stefans and Darren Wershler-Henry as four (including Christian) contemporary writers who have, in various ways, elaborated on the Oulipo project in the 21st century.

Kyle

> From: John Cunningham <[redacted]>
> Reply-To: "Poetics List (UPenn, UB)" <[redacted]>

> Date: Fri, 23 Jan 2009 12:10:18 -0600
> To: <[redacted]>
> Subject: Oulipo & Christian Bok
>
> Can anyone advise of any other poetry books and poets besides Christian Bok's 'Eunoia' written in the manner of Oulipo?
>
> John Herbert Cunningham

↑ Index

374. Daniel Zimmerman

Re: enough to make you swear

Fri 23 Jan 2009

Perhaps more disturbing:

The Presidential Oath of Office prescribed by the Constitution reads: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the Office of President of the United States, and will to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States.â€ Chief Justice John Roberts flubbed it when administering the oath to Barack Obama by saying: â€œ"That I will execute the Office of President to the United States faithfully."

Roberts later administered the oath to Obama correctly.

If I had written â€œRoberts later correctly administered the oath to Obama,â€ I would have emphasized the correctness of administering the oath a second time, rather than the correctness of the order of the oathâ€™s words. In this case, word order changes the meaning. Syntactically, however, it makes no difference whether faithfully precedes execute or follows United States: both expressions mean the same thing. The real error lies in the substitution of to for of: one cannot â€œexecute to.â€ Still, everyone who knows the oath understood the significance of Obamaâ€™s taking it; the confusion involved a mere slip of the tongue, not an avalanche obliterating understanding.

The White House graciously maintained that Roberts performed the do-over "out of an abundance of caution." Presumably, such caution had prompted him to ask Obama, after administering the oath the first time, â€œSo help you God? â€â€”without waiting for the new President to volunteer the phrase himself. Whether the Presidentâ€™s "So help me Godâ€ represented his conviction or just a courtesy to an already embarrassed Chief Justice remains open to speculation, but seems largely irrelevant because it might involve a merely personal conviction.

It might prove more worthwhile to ask whether the Founding Fathers regarded the oath as a magical incantation which the President-elect must chant precisely in order for it to transubstantiate him from an ordinary Joe into the sort of anointed planetary demigod Obamaâ€™s predecessor seems to have considered himself. Certainly Washingtonâ€”who declined regal titles, and who presided over a fragile backwater among nationsâ€”would not have accorded the oath such abracadabric efficacy, even if he did say â€œSo help me Godâ€ after taking the oath (as only Washington Irving, some 65 years latter, averred).

Does the oath of office cast a spell? Must hierophant and initiate repeat its exact words in their exact order? Does the meaning of each word, then, matter at all? Suppose an imposter priest said the Mass in Latin without knowing a word of that language, but performed the ceremony precisely. Would that alone consecrate the Host? Or if an ordained pederast priest performed the Mass, would his sin, like the imposture of the bogus priest, nullify the sacramental nature of the consecration? The Churchâ€™s practice of reassigning such miscreants to other parishes where they continued to say Mass suggests otherwise. Would believers have failed to receive communion in such cases, despite the fervor of their faith? Would their faith compensate for their priestsâ€™ faithlessness? Would saying â€œI wed theeâ€ rather than â€œI thee wedâ€ nullify a marriage? Perhaps; perhaps notâ€”let theologians dispute.

The Constitution, however, remains a thoroughly secular documentâ€”however much various â€œstrict constructionistsâ€ act as if they seem to believe otherwise. Precisely those people would call for the exact phrasing of the oath, yet they profess allegiance to the intent of the Foundersâ€”something not always apparent in the text of the Constitution. The applied poetics of this situation remains perplexing.

~ Daniel Zimmerman

----- Original Message -----
From: "ALDON L NIELSEN" <[redacted]>
To: <[redacted]>
Sent: Thursday, January 22, 2009 11:18 PM
Subject: enough to make you swear > post-script: Thursday one of the dorks at Fox News suggested that Obama might > not really be President because he didn't have his hand on a Bible when they > had the oath do-over at the White House --

> *<<

376. Alan Sondheim
ESP-DISK I'm Playing at Zebulon this Sunday night -
Fri 23 Jan 2009

ESP-DISK LIVE @ ZEBULON

Sunday, January 25th

8 pm
OKKYUNG LEE, cello
NATE WOOLEY, trumpet

9 pm
ALAN SONDHEIM (ESP 1048, 1082), various with:
MYK FREEDMAN, steel guitar
AZURE CARTER, voice

10 pm
TOTEM> (ESP 4046):
BRUCE EISENBEIL, guitar
TOM BLANCARTE, bass
ANDREW DRURY, drums

Entire catalog on sale at the show
First 30 people get a FREE CD with card

Featuring DJ Whistle Punk

ZEBULON
258 Wythe Ave., Brooklyn, NY NO COVER
www.espdisk.com

↑ Index

377. Catherine Daly
Re: Oulipo & Christian Bok
Fri 23 Jan 2009

---

too many to list, really; throw a rock...

On Fri, Jan 23, 2009 at 10:10 AM, John Cunningham <[redacted]
> wrote:

> Can anyone advise of any other poetry books and poets besides Christian Bok's 'Eunoia' written in the manner of Oulipo?
>
> John Herbert Cunningham

--
All best,
Catherine Daly
[redacted]

↑ Index

378. Catherine Daly
Re: Call for Applications: International Writing Program (University of Iowa)
Fri 23 Jan 2009

I saw this on another list.

Who are the mysterious "senior writers"?

--
All best,
Catherine Daly
[redacted]

↑ Index

379. AWAREing Press
Re: Eyeless in Gaza
Sat 24 Jan 2009

Nice, Stephen. Esp. the last line, wherein "Israel" could be replaced by almost any noun pertaining to a living, sentient being squeezed in the vice of ire.Â

Not that anyone in this group would tweak a line of verse and claim ownership! That's like putting coins in a vending machine slot sans items and expecting a treat.

"As poetry destroys itself in horrific anger."--is, hypothetically, still attributed to...?

James Beach, ed.
AWAREing Press ---------- Original message from Stephen Vincent <[redacted]>: ----------

> Can you imagine a land devastated, one without any remaining architecture? Can you imagine such a land composed and spoken entirely of sentences in a language so orderly, so lyric and so radiant that its refugees - though starving and otherwise defenseless - wander about (dancing, walking, loitering) without grief or resentment? â€œThere are certain things impossible to take away,â€ these citizens will insist. â€œThe > construction of poetry, its edification is not only our bread and water. It is our architecture.â€

> Â
> To the contrary, many among us, no matter the poetry, no matter the sentences, the songs - as though again â€˜Eyeless in Gazaâ€™ -Â come to nothing in wordless, appalled silence.
> Â
> As Israel destroys itself in horrific anger.
> Â
> from "Homeless Blankets - A Winter Series" on the blog, photographs et al,Â at: http://stephenvincent.net/blog/wp-admin/post.php?action=edit&post=704

↑ Index

380. Kristin Dykstra
Mandorla reading - Chicago, 2/13
Sat 24 Jan 2009

You are invited to attend a reading in Chicago organized by _Mandorla: New Writing from the Americas / Nueva escritura de las Américas_

Friday, 13 February
Doors open at 8:30pm / Reading starts at 9
Free and open to the public

Chicago Cultural Center, 5th Floor Millennium Park Room
(78 E. Washington Street, by Michigan Ave)

Hosted by Kristin Dykstra & Roberto Tejada (emcee)

Featured Readers

Rosa Alcalá, Ray Bianchi, Susan Briante, Forrest Gander, Carmen Giménez Smith, Kent Johnson, Achy Obejas, Peter Ramos, & Rodrigo Toscano.

General information & a link to the Cultural Center's own website are posted at http://my.ilstu.edu/~kadykst/html/editorial/awp2008mandorlareading.htm

For more about Mandorla, please see our site at www.litline.org/Mandorla

--
Kristin Dykstra
www.ilstu.edu/~kadykst

---------- This message was sent using Illinois State University Webmail.

↑ Index

381. Pam Brown

Re: Oulipo & Christian Bok

Sat 24 Jan 2009

Hi John,
Well it's not very Bo(o)kian but ... there is always

100,000,000,000,000 Poems by Raymond Queneau

Pam

> Can anyone advise of any other poetry books and poets besides Christian Bok's 'Eunoia' written in the manner of Oulipo?
>
> John Herbert Cunningham

--

_____

blog : http://thedeletions.blogspot.com
website : http://pambrownbooks.blogspot.com/
associate editor : http://jacketmagazine.com/

_____

↑ Index

382. Alan Sondheim

NetBehaviour Digest, Vol 192, Issue 6 (fwd) - James Lovelock - see belw (fwd)

Sat 24 Jan 2009

| Alan Sondheim Mail archive: http://sondheim.rupamsunyata.org/
| To access the Odyssey exhibition The Accidental Artist:
| http://slurl.com/secondlife/Odyssey/48/12/22
| Webpage (directory) at http://www.alansondheim.org
| [redacted], [redacted], tel US [redacted]

---------- Forwarded message ----------
Date: Sat, 24 Jan 2009 08:43:07 -0500 (EST)
From: Alan Sondheim <[redacted]>
To: Cyb <[redacted]>, Wryting-L <[redacted]>, Cyberculture <[redacted]>
Subject: NetBehaviour Digest, Vol 192, Issue 6 (fwd) - James Lovelock - see belw

Message: 8
Date: Sat, 24 Jan 2009 01:15:55 +0000
From: info <[redacted]>
Subject: [NetBehaviour] James Lovelock and climate change.
To: NetBehaviour for networked distributed creativity
<[redacted]>

James Lovelock and climate change.

With his 90th birthday in July, a trip into space scheduled for later in the year and a new book out next month, 2009 promises to be an exciting time for James Lovelock. But the originator of the Gaia theory, which describes Earth as a self-regulating planet, has a stark view of the future of humanity. He tells Gaia Vince we have one last chance to save ourselves - and it has nothing to do with nuclear power

Your work on atmospheric chlorofluorocarbons led eventually to a global CFC ban that saved us from ozone-layer depletion. Do we have time to do a similar thing with carbon emissions to save ourselves from climate change?

Not a hope in hell. Most of the "green" stuff is verging on a gigantic scam. Carbon trading, with its huge government subsidies, is just what finance and industry wanted. It's not going to do a damn thing about climate change, but it'll make a lot of money for a lot of people and postpone the moment of reckoning. I am not against renewable energy, but to spoil all the decent countryside in the UK with wind farms is driving me mad. It's absolutely unnecessary, and it takes 2500 square kilometres to produce a gigawatt - that's an awful lot of countryside.

more...
http://www.newscientist.com/article/mg20126921.500-one-last-chance-to-save-mankind.html

↑ Index

383. Camille Martin
Re: Oulipo & Christian Bok
Sat 24 Jan 2009

Check out Alphabetical Africa by Walter Abish.

Camille Martin

_____
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [[redacted]] On Behalf Of John Cunningham [[redacted]] Sent: Friday, January 23, 2009 1:10 PM

To: [redacted]
Subject: Oulipo & Christian Bok

Can anyone advise of any other poetry books and poets besides Christian Bok's 'Eunoia' written in the manner of Oulipo?

John Herbert Cunningham

↑ Index

384. steve russell
unknown unknowns/unknown knowns/ Slavoj Zizek
Sat 24 Jan 2009

---

thank you David for the Gitmo/Gaza links.

Zizek offers some clarity in his essay "Rumsfeld's Unknown Known, or Iraq's Initiation Into Democratic Practice"

After citing Rumsfeld's "amateur philosophizing" Zizik adds a Fourth term: "unknown knowns."

"These are the disavowed beliefs, suppositions, and obscene practices we enact but don't allow ourselves to see, and which-via practices such as outsourcing-are becoming increasingly easy to ignore."

...soon, we encounter what Zizek calls the "innovative practice of sharing a dirty secret."

↑ Index

385. Gabriel Gudding
post-american writing
Sat 24 Jan 2009

---

http://thebestamericanpoetry.typepad.com/the_best_american_poetry/2009/01/the-varieties-of-postaesthetic-experience-ii-by-gabriel-gudding.html

↑ Index

386. Ruth Lepson
new book
Sat 24 Jan 2009

Hi, all,

Am happy to tell you I have a new book with blazeVOX.org both as an ebook and a POD book. It¹s called I Went Looking for You and should be available as soon as tonight.

If you¹re in the Boston area, please join me for a book party hosted by The Grolier Poetry Book Shop & held at The Democracy Center, 45 Mt. Auburn St., Cambridge, near Bow & Dewolf Sts. in Harvard Sq., on Monday, Feb. 16 from 2 to 5. The stellar jazz musicians I perform with will be playing and snacks will be provided.

Since that is Presidents¹ Day, if you are so inclined, join us in a toast to our first global president.

Sincerely,

Ruth Lepson

↑ Index

387. Doug Holder
From the Pais of New England: Interviews with Poets and Writers
Sat 24 Jan 2009

From the Paris of New England: Interviews with Poets and Writers (with Doug Holder)

Interviews with Pagan Kennedy, Tom Perrotta, Claire Messud, Steve Almond, Louisa Solano, Robert Creeley, and many more! Due out from the Ibbetson Street Press Feb. 2009 http://ibbetsonpress.com

A collection of my interviews that for the most part appeared in The Somerville News will be out from the Ibbetson Street Press next month. (Feb. 2009). Caitlin Jackson, an intern from the Connecticut College, edited the collection, and Steve Glines designed it. This will be Volume 1 ... I plan to to do a second volume in late 2009...if the good lord is willing and the creek don't rise...

--Doug Holder

From the introduction by Mike Basinski, PhD Curator of the Rare Book and Poetry Collection at University of Buffalo, NY.

Welcome to the Neighborhood

Within the realm of the poem are communities in which constellations of poets reside with their poems, and their journeys and influences, books, poetics and colleagues, and where they were born and where they work, and the color of their dogs, cats and washing machines. Of course, individual poets have individual lives and spheres. However, in order for their poetry to expansively thrive and develop, there must be a place for them to do so. There has to be a place for poets to be poets, which is to say people. I liken these locals to networks of waterways where the wandering flocks gather to honk in delight or where the frogs congregate to engage their necessary singing. Without these vast neighborhoods of mind there would be no poetry. For communities of creativity to form and function, we, the poets, need to know who we are. This book is the imagination's welcome wagon. Hello.

Below is the title and the list of interviews....

From the Paris of New England: Interviews with Poets and Writers

With Doug Holder

Special Thanks To:

Donald and Jamie Norton, Biil Tauro (The Somerville News) Wendy Blom (Somerville Community Access TV), Steve Gilnes (ISCS Press), Caitlin Jackson, Mike Basinki (Buffalo University Libraries).

Table of Contents

Eva Salzman.....7

Mike Basinski.....10

Errol Uys.....13

Lan Samantha Chang.....16

Louisa Solano.....18

Miriam Levine.....20

Mark Doty.....23

Claire Messud.....28

Lisa Beatman.....30

Martha Collins.....32

Dick Lourie.....35

Robert Creeley.....38

Afaa Michael Weaver.....40

Jack Powers.....42

Ed Sanders.....45

Tom Perrotta.....48

Diana Der-Hovanessian.....50

Luke Salisbury.....52

Sarah Hannah.....55

Hugh Fox.....57

Lo Galluccio.....60

Timothy Gager.....63

Gloria Mindock.....66

Marc Widershien.....67

Deborah M. Priestly.....71

Steve Almond.....73

Pagan Kennedy

Robert K.Johnson

Harris Gardner

Advertise with the Boston Area Small Press and Poetry Scene!
http://dougholder.blogspot.com
Doug Holder's website http://authorsden.com/douglasholder

Ibbetson Street Press http://ibbetsonpress.com
Ibbetson Street Press Online Bookstore http://www.lulu.com/ibbetsonpress

↑ Index

388. Ken Chen

AAWW - Lunar New Year countdown party TONIGHT!

Sun 25 Jan 2009

The Asian American Writers' Workshop
Sunday, January 25, 9PM-12AM

1st Annual Lunar New Years Countdown at our redesigned space!

Come to our 1st Annual Lunar New Year Countdown, and hear your favorite writers read and share your own work (or just your favorite thing you've read lately).

You'll get a chance to check out the new-and-improved Workshop's space--recently redecorated thanks to Parsons The New School of Design, Design Within Reach Annex, and Goil Amornvivat, the star of Bravo's Top Design and TLC's Trading Spaces. Goil will introduce thenew space to kick off the night.

Featuring Mei-Mei Berssenbrugge, Lisa Chen, Dustin Chinn, Annie Choi, Alvin Eng, Rigoberto Gonzalez, Nathalie Handal, Jennifer Hayashida, Cathy Park Hong, Wendy Lee, Ed Lin, Timothy Liu, Taij Kumarie Moteelall, Taiyo Na, Ed Park, Thad Rutkowski, Kelly Zen-Yie Tsai, Elijah Wong, Monica Youn & many more. Think of this less like a reading than a big old-fashioned party. We'll have free Singha beer beer and dumplings. Just drop in when it works for you.

@ The Workshop
16 West 32nd Street (btwn. Broadway & 5th Avenue)

10th Floor
New York City
www.aaww.org

$10 general/$5 members

↑ Index

389. Les Mots
Re: Oulipo & Christian Bok
Sun 25 Jan 2009

A good starting point is The Oulipo Compendium, published by MAKENOWPRESS: http://www.makenow.org/books.htm

Another great book of poetry in the vein of "Eunoia" is Sleeping with the Dictionary, by Harryette Mullen.

Good luck!

Brandon Barr

On Fri, Jan 23, 2009 at 1:10 PM, John Cunningham
<[redacted]>wrote:

> Can anyone advise of any other poetry books and poets besides Christian Bok's 'Eunoia' written in the manner of Oulipo?
>
> John Herbert Cunningham

↑ Index

390. CA Conrad
Ish Klein's AMAZING first book!
Sun 25 Jan 2009

Ish Klein's AMAZING first book of poems is NOW AVAILABLE!
/\\//\\\\////\\\\\\//////\\\\\\\\

Her book is called UNION! and can be seen here:
http://unionbook.blogspot.com/

This link has some amazing video of Ish reading that you won't want to miss!
CAConrad

PhillySound: new poetry http://PhillySound.blogspot.com

THE BOOK OF FRANK by CAConrad http://CAConrad.blogspot.com

↑ Index

391. David-Baptiste Chirot

from Aryanil Mukherjee: Telegraph India Article On Non-mainstream Experimental Writers

Sun 25 Jan 2009

From: Aryanil Mukherjee <[redacted]>

Today's Telegraph, India carries an interesting article on how experimental writers can find publishers to suit their needs.

The article covers, among other books, late night correspondence & chaturangik/SQUARES - my recent book of collaborative poetry with Pat Clifford.
http://www.telegraphindia.com/1090124/jsp/personaltt/story_10430774.jsp

_____
Windows Live™ Hotmail®...more than just e-mail.
http://windowslive.com/howitworks?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t2_hm_justgotbetter_howitworks_012009

↑ Index

392. Michael Tod Edgerton

VOX Presents Jen Tynes, Caroline Noble Whitbeck, and Michael Tod Edgerton

Sun 25 Jan 2009

The VOX Reading Series at the University of Georgia is pleased to present an evening of poetry with Jen Tynes, Caroline Noble Whitbeck, and Michael Tod Edgerton.

8pm Mon Feb 2, 2009 at Cine, 234 W. Hancock Ave., Athens, GA
http://athenscine.com/location.php

If you'll be in the Athens/Atlanta area, please consider coming!

Jen Tynes is the author of the books and chapbooks, Heron/Girlfriend (Coconut Books, 2008), See Also Electric Light (Dancing Girl Press, 2007), The Ohio System (with Erika Howsare, Octopus Books, 2006), and The End of Rude Handles (Red Morning Press, 2005). She edits horeseless press and horseless review.

Caroline Noble Whitbeck is the author of Our Classical Heritage: A Homing Device (chosen by Arielle Greenberg for the 2006 Switchback Books Gatewood Prize). Her poems have appeared in Cab/Net, Word For/Word, Elimae, Lumina, and elsewhere.

Michael Tod Edgerton's poems have won the Boston Review and Five Fingers Review contests and have appeared in such other journals as Chelsea, Denver Quarterly, New American Writing, New Orleans Review, and Skanky Possum.

The VOX Reading Series is sponsored by the University of Georgia Creative Writing Program. UGA CWP offers degree programs leading to the MFA and PhD. For more information, please visit http://www.english.uga.edu/creative/.

Check out our Facebook page for a listing of all upcoming readings.

Thanks,

Lara Glenum, Donna Stonecipher, and Michael Tod Edgerton
Curators, VOX Reading Series

↑ Index

393. Ryan Daley
Reading This Tuesday at Cornelia Street Cafe!
Sun 25 Jan 2009

Graduate Reading Night

at

Cornelia Street Café

Please join us on Tuesday, January 27th to hear:

*Ryan Daley—Brown University

Todd Dillard—Sarah Lawrence College

Austin LaGrone—New York University

Eleanor Paynter—Sarah Lawrence College

6:00 pm, $7 gets you one free drink

The Graduate Poetry Series, one of New York's longest-running, is held on the fourth Tuesday of every month. It was established to give students from NYC's graduate writing programs an opportunity to read their poetry in a safe, intimate and supportive environment.

If you are interested in participating, please submit a cover letter with contact information, name of your school/current semester and 5-7 pages of poetry electronically to [redacted] .

Cornelia Street Café

29 Cornelia Street

New York NY 10014 [redacted]
*www.corneliastreetcafe.com
* <http://www.corneliastreetcafe.com/>

↑ Index

394. mIEKAL aND Globish
Sun 25 Jan 2009

New lingua franca upsets French
Friday, 23 January 2009

http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/programmes/from_our_own_correspondent/7844192.stm

Monsieur Nerriere is a retired French businessman who one day in the course of his work made a fascinating observation.

In a meeting with colleagues from around the world, including an Englishman, a Korean and a Brazilian, he noticed that he and the other non-native English speakers were communicating in a form of English that was completely comprehensible to them, but which left the Englishman nonplussed.

He, Jean-Paul Nerriere, could talk to the Korean and the Brazilian in this neo-language, and they could understand each other perfectly.

But the Englishman was left out because his language was too subtle, too full of meaning that could not be grasped by the others.

In other words, Monsieur Nerriere concluded, a new form of English is developing around the world, used by people for whom it is their second language.

It may not be the most beautiful of tongues, but in this day and age he says it is indispensible. He calls the language Globish and urges everyone - above all the French - to learn it tout de suite.

In his book Don't Speak English, Parlez Globish, Monsieur Nerriere sets out the rules.

Globish has only 1,500 words and users must avoid humour, metaphor, abbreviation and anything else that can cause cross-cultural confusion.

They must speak slowly and in short sentences. Funnily enough, he holds up the late Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat as an excellent exponent.

Many in France consider Monsieur Nerriere a traitor for promoting the dreaded Anglais, but he insists he is not.

He says the French have to recognise that the language war is lost.

"We're just urinating on the ashes of the fire," he says. We should look on Globish not as a triumphant cultural vehicle for les Anglo- Saxons, but as a tool, he says: essential but purely utilitarian.

↑ Index

395. amy king
The Stain of Poetry: Berkson, Cruz, Fagan, Fortin, Pecqueur, and Rasmovicz!
Mon 26 Jan 2009

Dear Friends,

Below please find the full calendar of the Stain of Poetry readings this spring. We hope to see you this Friday, January 30th @ 7 p.m.!

Great big cheers,

Ana + Amy

 Stain of Poetry -- A Reading Series/Spring 2009 ***

http://stainofpoetry.wordpress.com

January 30

Bill Berkson, Cindy Cruz, Aaron Fagan, Jennifer Fortin, Jean-Paul Pecqueur, Bill Rasmovicz

February 27

Jason Gray, Tony Mancus, Deb Poe, Ric Royer, Mario Susko, Jessica Reed

March 27

Joel Chace, Elena Georgiou, Stuart Greenhouse, Cindy King, Christian Peet, Brett Price

April 24

Jennifer Burch, Heather Green, Chris Hosea, Sueyeun Juliette Lee, Daniel Lin, Barry Schwabsky

May 29

C. S. Carrier, Jennifer Firestone, Erica Kaufman, Matthew Klane, Maya Pindyck, Laura Sims

Hosted by Amy King and Ana Bo¾ièeviæ

http://stainofpoetry.wordpress.com

stain bar

766 grand street

brooklyn, ny 11211

(L train to Grand
Street,

1 block west)

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

396. Peter Ciccariello

Sorry - broken link -------I want to dissect your language, otherwise

Mon 26 Jan 2009

I want to dissect your language, otherwise<http://ciccariello.viewbook.com/dissect>

-Peter Ciccariello
http://invisiblenotes.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

397. Gabrielle Welford

Re: unknown unknowns/unknown knowns/ Slavoj Zizek

Mon 26 Jan 2009

---

an interesting jungian essay on this not allowing ourselves to see is "silenced knowings" by Helene Shulman Lorenz and Mary Watkins. best, g

On Sat, 24 Jan 2009, steve russell wrote:

> thank you David for the Gitmo/Gaza links.
>
> Zizek offers some clarity in his essay "Rumsfeld's Unknown Known, or > Iraq's Initiation Into Democratic Practice"
>
> After citing Rumsfeld's "amateur philosophizing" Zizik adds a Fourth > term: "unknown knowns."
>

> "These are the disavowed beliefs, suppositions, and obscene practices we > enact but don't allow ourselves to see, and which-via practices such as > outsourcing-are becoming increasingly easy to ignore."
>
> ...soon, we encounter what Zizek calls the "innovative practice of > sharing a dirty secret."
>
>
>
Gabrielle Welford, Ph.D. (support "Noho Hewa: The Wrongful Occupation of Hawai'i" by going to www.nohohewa.com and clicking on "donate")
blog:
www.greenwom.blogspot.com
books:
Too Many Deaths: Decolonizing Western Academic Research on Indigenous Cultures
http://www.theguildofwriters.com/books/shop.php?action=full&id=317
Dora
http://www.theguildofwriters.com/books/shop.php?action=full&id=378

No virus found in this incoming message.
Checked by AVG Free Edition.
Version: 7.1.412 / Virus Database: 268.18.4/705 - Release Date: 2/27/2007

↑ Index

398. Margaret Konkol

S M A L L P R E S S in the A R C H I V E Talk Series BUFFALO N. Y.

Mon 26 Jan 2009

Please join us today, this Monday, January 26th @ 2:30 p.m. for a talk by Ben Bedard:

"Germination: A Transatlantic Genealogy of the Little Magazine"

Ben Lyle Bedard grew up in Maine, and studied creative writing, first at the University of Maine at Farmington where he served as acting director of the cooperative poetry press, Alice James Books, and then at Mills College in Oakland, California where he received his MFA. He is currently working on his dissertation on the material representation of modern poetry at the University of Buffalo. His poetry has appeared in BlazeVOX, fhole, Damn the Caesars, Yellow Edenwald Field, ArtVoice and P-Queue. His material adaptation of the cuneiform tablets of the Ugaritic epic KRT appeared in the Fall/Winter 2005 issue of Ninth Letter. His reviews of poetry have appeared in ArtVoice, Jacket, and The Danforth Review. His first chapbook, published by Punch Press in 2008, is Implicit Lyrics.

****

Small Press in the Archive Lecture Series dedicates itself to the study of poetry outside the traditional literary historical plot. The lectures in this series draw on materials in The Poetry Collection, at SUNY Buffalo in order to explore community/discourse formations, the status of ephemera and the making of genre, the conditions of literary production, transatlantic cross-pollinations in and between specific magazines, the careers of poets, the role of book art, and how the little magazine functions in the making of the avant-garde.

↑ Index

399. Spineless Books
Re: Oulipo & Christian Bok
Mon 26 Jan 2009

Spineless Books offers 2002: A Palindrome Story in 2002 Words, by Nick Montfort and William Gillespie; Drawn Inward, by Mike Maguire; Table of Forms, by Dominique Fitzpatrick-O'Dinn; here/gone, by Karen Green.

↑ Index

400. Michael Kelleher
Literary Buffalo Newsletter 01.28.09-02.01.09
Mon 26 Jan 2009

LITERARY BUFFALO
01.26.09-02.01.09

EVENTS THIS WEEK

Visit the Literary Buffalo calendar at www.justbuffalo.org for more detailed info on these events. All events free and open to the pubic unless otherwise noted.

01.28.09

Rooftop Poetry Club
Baby, It's Cold Outside: A Winter-Themed Open Mic
Wednesday, January 28, 4:30 PM
Bring your winter themed poems. Hot chocolate will be served.
E. H. Butler Library
International Students Reading Area, 3rd Floor, SE Quadrant.
Buffalo State College | 1300 Elmwood Avenue

Talking Leaves...Books
N'tare Ali Gault
Book release: Sun Will Rise: Memoir of an Urban Family
Wednesday, January 28, 7:00 PM
Talking Leaves...Books, 3158 Main St.

02.01.09

Poetry at the Burchfield-Penney
Lisa Forrest, Peter Grieco, Charles Bachman
Poetry Reading
Sunday, February 1, 2 p.m.
Burchfield-Penney Art Center, 1300 Elmwood Ave

BABEL

ISABEL ALLENDE READING ON APRIL 17 MOVED TO KLEINHANS MUSIC HALL!

INDIVIDUAL TICKETS ARE ON SALE NOW!

$100 PATRON LEVEL (Includes reserved seating area tickets plus admission to pre-event reception with Isabel Allende at Henry's restaurant in Kleinhans) $30 GENERAL ADMISSION (Includes general admission seating to event)

Visit www.justbuffalo.org or call [redacted] to order yours now.

SPECIAL RATES (PHONE ORDERS ONLY)

$25 GROUP RATE (per ticket for orders of three or more; must order at the same time)

$20 CURRENT SUBSCRIBER RATE (current subscribers can purchase as many tickets as they like for this special rate)

$10 CLASSROOM RATE (teachers can purchase groups of ten or more tickets for students for this low student rate)

CALL [redacted] TO ORDER

IN-PERSON ONLY RATE (can be purchased at Just Buffalo or at the event only)

$10 STUDENT INDIVIDUAL RATE (for students with current, valid student I.D.)

FIRST ANNUAL JUST BUFFALO MEMBER POETRY READING AND CONTEST DEADLINE FEBRUARY 14: CLICK THE FOLLOWING LINK FOR GUIDELINES AND DETAILS:

http://www.justbuffalo.org/index.php?task=view&id=60&show=252

JUST BUFFALO MEMBER WRITER CRITIQUE GROUP

http://www.justbuffalo.org/docs/Writer_Critique_Group.pdf

UNSUBSCRIBE

If you would like to unsubscribe from this list, just say so and you will immediately be removed.

_____

Michael Kelleher
Artistic Director
Just Buffalo Literary Center
Market Arcade
617 Main St., Ste. 202A
Buffalo, NY 14203
[redacted]
[redacted] (fax)
www.justbuffalo.org
[redacted]

↑ Index

401. Catherine Daly
Re: Oulipo & Christian Bok
Mon 26 Jan 2009

---

elaborating, since the Mayer and Mayer / Bernstein exercises are so similar to OuLiPiian algorhythms (and many of them are), that more than Lee Ann Brown's Polyverse, most any Poetry Project workshop students from the 80s are OuLiPo-influenced

Goldsmith sez at Drunken Boat he considers OuLiPo to have been a "toolbox"

--
All best,
Catherine Daly
[redacted]

↑ Index

402. Joel Weishaus
Re: POETICS Digest - 23 Jan 2009 to 25 Jan 2009 (#2009-21)
Mon 26 Jan 2009

I thought someone would reply to Frank Rich's NYT column titled, "No Time for Poetry." Although I agree with most of what Mr. Rich says, the title he chose, and its premise, continues the misnomer among most Americans that poetry is about "flowery language" not fit for serious conversation. It's an old perception, especially in the US, and obviously continues to this day. Obama's speech aside, while first-rate musicians were chosen, a minor poet was chosen to perform for that momentous occasion. There are so many first-rate poets who could have been chosen! It seems that poetry is so little thought of that the decision was political, not aesthetic. And nothing says this better that the title of Frank Rich's column.

Best,
Joel

Joel Weishaus
Research Faculty
Department of English
Portland State University
Portland, OR
http://web.pdx.edu/~pdx00282

↑ Index

403. Paul Nelson
Jose Kozer in the NW
Mon 26 Jan 2009

The Northwest SPokenword LAB along with the Richard Hugo House, Poets & Writers, the Seattle Office of Arts and Cultural Affairs , Casa de Escritores (House of Writers) and the Washington Poets Association, is proud to announce a poetry workshop with Cuban expatriate poet José Kozer, 1-5P on Sunday, February 1, 2009, at the Richard Hugo House, 1634 11th Avenue, in Seattle.

Registration for the workshop is $100, and can be done on-line at: http://www.splab.org. Some scholarships are available. For more information, call [redacted]. Participants are to send no more than 2 pages of poetry, preferably when registering. Kozer is the feature at 7PM along with Red Sky’s regular open mic. Signup is 6:30.

Other events:

Spanish workshop Tuesday, February 3, from 7-10PM, in Seattle sponsored by Casa de Escritores. Suggested donation $50. This event is sponsored by 4Culture, the City of Seattle Neighborhood Programs, and House of Writers. School workshops/lectures in Mt. Vernon, Friday, February 6, sponsored by the Skagit River Poetry Festival. A reading will happen with Kurtis Lamkin in the Mount Vernon High School Auditorium from 7-9PM.

Doe
Bay workshop and reading on Orcas Island on Saturday,
February 7, during a weekend featuring Cuban pescatarian cuisine in the cafe and a 1-5PM workshop and 7PM reading, co-sponsored by the Orcas Island Writer's Festival and the Skagit River Poetry Festival. For reservations, contact Doe Bay at [redacted] or http://www.DoeBay.com.

Reading/Lecture, Monday, February 9
- 4:00PM-6:00PM at the LaRoux Room, Seattle University Student Center Book signing and reception to follow. Sam Green reads the work in English.

Jose's
visit to the NW is sponsored by Poets & Writers.
Seattleevents are co-sponsored by the Seattle Office of Arts and Cultural Affairs.

Workshop limited to 20 participants. The participant will present a poem, maximum two pages, to be read out loud by participant and then discussed by the entire group. Discussion should center on technical issues rather than value judgements on texts, and even though at times these are things difficult to separate, the idea is that as a group we would try to point out the elements of the text that do not work properly, its reasons, rather than indicating judgment on text.

José Kozer (b. Havana, 1940) is the son of parents who migrated to Cuba from Poland and Czechoslovakia in the 1920s, and the grandson of a founder of Adath Israel, Cuba’s first Ashkenazi synagogue. He left Cuba in 1960, received a BA from NYU in 1965, and taught for many years at Queens College of the City University of New York, retiring as a full professor in 1997. Author of over 15 collections of verse. His most recent, No buscanreflejarse(2002), a selection from past volumes, is the first poetry collection by a living Cuban exile to be published in Havana. Stet, a comprehensive selection of poems, appeared in a bilingual edition with translations by Mark Weiss from Junction Press in 2006.

Future Red Sky Reunions: A tribute to the late Irene Drennan, with Esther Helfgott, Priscilla Long, Denise Calvetti-Michaels, Anne Sweet and Diane Westergaard, on March 1 and Portland poets on April 5, including Dan Raphael and David Abel.

Conversation with Nicholas Mansito. translated by Mark Weiss

Four poems
Paul E. Nelson

Global Voices Radio
SPLAB!
American Sentences
Organic Poetry
Poetry Postcard Blog

Ilalqo, WA [redacted]

↑ Index

404. Rob McLennan

THE FIFTH ISSUE OF OTTAWATER IS HERE!

Mon 26 Jan 2009

The fifth issue features work by various residents current and former, including: Cameron Anstee, Michael Blouin, Stephen Brockwell, Monique Desnoyers, Amanda Earl, Jesse Ferguson, Warren Dean Fulton, Adrienne Ho, Sean Johnston, Ben Ladouceur, Lainna Lane, Marcus McCann, rob mclennan, Christine McNair, Colin Morton, Jennifer Mulligan, Wanda O'Connor, Pearl Pirie, K.I. Press, Roland Prevost, Monty Reid, Shane Rhodes, Suzannah Showler, Sandra Ridley, Mike Spry, Gillian Wallace, Zack Wells, Rob Winger and Rachel Zolf, as well as an interview with poet Nina Berkhout, and artwork by Dan Martelock, Beaston, Danny Hussey, Don Smith, Gail Bourgeois, Marc Adornato, Pedro Isztin, Stefan Grambart, Stefan Thompson and Steve Taylor.

The launch party for the fifth issue will be happening Thursday, January 29th, 2008 at the Ottawa Art Gallery (doors 7pm/readings 7:30) in the Arts Court Building, 2 Daly Avenue (at Nicholas), lovingly hosted by rob mclennan.

ottawater would like to thank designer Tanya Sprowl, Emily Falvey from the Ottawa Art Gallery, the ottawa international writers festival, and Randy Woods at non-linear creations for their continuing support.

Founded to celebrate the 150th anniversary of the City of Ottawa, Canada's glorious capital city, "ottawater," and its chemical formula/logo "O2(H2O)," is a poetry annual produced exclusively on-line, in both readable and printable pdf formats, and found at (http://www.ottawater.com). An anthology focusing on Ottawa poets and poetics, its first issue appeared in January 2005, 150 years after old Bytown became the City of Ottawa.

Long seen only as a town still echoing its origins as a backwater Victorian lumber town, and made up of bureaucrats and technocrats, and a more conservative poetics, "ottawater," edited by Ottawa-born writer, editor and publisher rob mclennan, exists to remind readers of what work is happening, and has been happening for years, despite government types insisting on repeating that the arts in Ottawa is about to begin. We say instead: we have always been here

-- writer/editor/publisher ...STANZAS mag, above/ground press & Chaudiere Books (www.chaudierebooks.com) ...coord.,SPAN-O + ottawa small press fair ...13th poetry coll'n - The Ottawa City Project ...novel - white www.abovegroundpress.blogspot.com * http://robmclennan.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

405. Murat Nemet-Nejat

Re: Globish

Mon 26 Jan 2009

We can look at this newly developing condition in a different way, not as creating a more primitive language 9only 1500 words and short sentences, etc.); but a language with its own emphases, which in time will create its own complexities.

Ciao,

Murat

On Sun, Jan 25, 2009 at 9:34 PM, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]> wrote:

> New lingua franca upsets French
> Friday, 23 January 2009
>
> http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/programmes/from_our_own_correspondent/7844192.stm
>
> Monsieur Nerriere is a retired French businessman who one day in the course of his work made a fascinating observation.
>
> In a meeting with colleagues from around the world, including an Englishman, a Korean and a Brazilian, he noticed that he and the other non-native English speakers were communicating in a form of English that was completely comprehensible to them, but which left the Englishman nonplussed.
>
> He, Jean-Paul Nerriere, could talk to the Korean and the Brazilian in this neo-language, and they could understand each other perfectly.
>
> But the Englishman was left out because his language was too subtle, too full of meaning that could not be grasped by the others.

> In other words, Monsieur Nerriere concluded, a new form of English is developing around the world, used by people for whom it is their second language.
>
> It may not be the most beautiful of tongues, but in this day and age he says it is indispensible. He calls the language Globish and urges everyone - above all the French - to learn it tout de suite.
>
> In his book Don't Speak English, Parlez Globish, Monsieur Nerriere sets out the rules.
>
> Globish has only 1,500 words and users must avoid humour, metaphor, abbreviation and anything else that can cause cross-cultural confusion.
>
> They must speak slowly and in short sentences. Funnily enough, he holds up the late Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat as an excellent exponent.
>
> Many in France consider Monsieur Nerriere a traitor for promoting the dreaded Anglais, but he insists he is not.
>
> He says the French have to recognise that the language war is lost.
>
> "We're just urinating on the ashes of the fire," he says. We should look on Globish not as a triumphant cultural vehicle for les Anglo-Saxons, but as a tool, he says: essential but purely utilitarian.

↑ Index

406. Jennifer Karmin
ART ACTIVISM in Chicago this week!
Mon 26 Jan 2009

ART ACTIVIST events this week
Chicago, Illinois

presented by
When Does It or You Begin? (Memory as Innovation)
Writing, Performance, & Video Festival curated by Amina Cain and Jennifer Karmin
http://www.linkshall.org/09-pp-jan.shtml

ASK ME! HOUSE PARTY
Thursday, January 29 from 7-9pm hosted by Laurie Jo Reynolds in Logan Square suggested donation $10 (pay what you can) reservations required, call [redacted]

Have you ever wondered how to improve your sleep hygiene, what it is like to be a flight attendant, or why there were marches for the right to be bellhops in Atlanta in 1930? If you are naturally inquisitive, this is the open house for you. We will have an ASK ME! party in which we take turns playing the expert. The area/s we ask you about can come from experience, employment, training, study, hobby, obsession or life circumstance. Or, just come to learn. Join us for the pleasures of food, drink, and live human interaction. Example topics from our household: insomnia (personal experience), civil rights testing (employment), Batman (study), understanding packrats (life circumstance), Tamms supermax prison (training), and the unofficial history of the Stone Mountain Confederate monument (obsession). Expect to eat delicious Tempeh Reubenettes! Co-sponsored by Laurie Jo Reynolds and Scott McFarland.

1968/2008
THE INHERITANCE OF POLITICS AND THE POLITICS OF INHERITANCE
Sunday, February 1 from 3-5pm
at the Japanese American Service Committee of Chicago 4427 North Clark Street
free

Readings and discussion with writers in celebration of the latest magazine release of AREA Chicago, a publication and event series dedicated to researching, supporting, and networking local social, political, and cultural movements. Featuring AREA #7 contributors: Ashley Weger, Michael Staudenmaier, Cathleen Schandelmeier, Samuel Barnett, Rebecca Zorach, Frank Edwards, and Daniel Tucker. Check out AREA #7 at http://areachicago.org/p/issues/7/ - all publication content is free online.

↑ Index

407. Jim Andrews
Re: Oulipo & Christian Bok
Mon 26 Jan 2009

---

to me, the most interesting and influential aspects of the oulipo are not particular constraints/forms, nor particular works written in those forms, but aspects at a higher level.

the oulipo grew out of a synthesis of bourbaki/mathematics/logic and literature. bourbaki was a collective of mathematicians who redefined the writing of mathematics. a very writerly group in that sense. their books influenced a generation of mathematicians who had to learn how to present their work in bourbaki-like style for the journals. bourbaki stressed the importance of writing to mathematics, brought it to a new level of concern in mathematics, as opposed to the naive approach where 'a proof is a proof independent of how it is presented'. for instance, bourbaki eschewed reliance on pictures. that's a bit much, to me--pictures are so useful in understanding math, even when the writing is good--but at the time I suppose it was an important thing to do, to develop writing. I'm a visual kind of a guy but I value good writing, also.

Another strong influence of Bourbaki on the Oulipo was the Bourbaki concern with the axiomatic method, the development of math from first principles. When you define a set of axioms, one may say one is defining a form. One may find models that satisfy those axioms. For instance, spherical geometry satisfies a certain set of non-euclidean axioms. Spherical geometry satisfies the form of those axioms. Spherical geometry is an instantiation of the class which is the set of non-Euclidean axioms. Spherical geometry is the object. The axioms are the class, the form.

Similarly, the constraint is the class, the form. The particular work written to the constraint is the object, the instantiation of the class/form.

The computer arose from the turing machine. There would have been computers without the Turing machine, but the Turing machine provides a mathematical framework for the theory of computation that aides the development of the computer like any really strong theory aides engineering. The Turing machine arose from the development of the foundations of mathematics. From the efforts of Leibniz, Frege, Boole, Cantor, Hilbert, Godel, Turing, and many others. As discussed in Martin Davis's brilliant book 'Engines of Logic' which I hope you finally get around to reading.

Now, it is that program, that development of the foundations of mathematics, which is the inspiration of Bourbaki. And so, in a sense, it is that same program which is a strong influence on the Oulipo.

And that program--again, as discussed by Martin Davis--is very much involved--you could even say is intensely engaged with--language. The development of the foundations of mathematics and the computer are intensely engaged in the development of the language of symbolic language and meditation on the general properties of language.

So that we begin to see a 'through-line' from Leibniz to contemporary digital poetry. With the development of the foundations of mathematics, mathematics begins to look into language itself as an object of study rather like particles are an object of study in physics, and so there begin to arise syntheses of mathematics and poetry that further that intense engagement with language.

Drawing together thought and feeling, the left and the right, the analytic and the associative, the representation and the abstraction.

ja
http://vispo.com

↑ Index

408. Gabrielle Welford
Re: Globish
Mon 26 Jan 2009

---

this is great, miekal! i've been looking at this for quite a while, because the "war" over pidgin in hawai'i has been so prominent (while i lived there, i met a businesswoman who said proudly that her company had not hired some young people because, though their english was good in the interviews, they spoke pidgin at lunch) and because i've been working for a grad student (now doctor) in linguistics from korea who's been looking a this same phenomenon. rather than expecting exact american or english english with the "right" accent, what's developing is a focus on being understood across cultures. it's really fascinating and exciting to me, who grew up in many different countries, surrounded by different languages. lucky me... g

Gabrielle Welford, Ph.D. (support "Noho Hewa: The Wrongful Occupation of Hawai'i" by going to www.nohohewa.com and clicking on "donate")
blog:
www.greenwom.blogspot.com
books:
Too Many Deaths: Decolonizing Western Academic Research on Indigenous Cultures
http://www.theguildofwriters.com/books/shop.php?action=full&id=317
Dora
http://www.theguildofwriters.com/books/shop.php?action=full&id=378

No virus found in this incoming message.
Checked by AVG Free Edition.
Version: 7.1.412 / Virus Database: 268.18.4/705 - Release Date: 2/27/2007

On Sun, 25 Jan 2009, mIEKAL aND wrote:

> New lingua franca upsets French
> Friday, 23 January 2009
>
> http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/programmes/from_our_own_correspondent/7844192.stm
>
> Monsieur Nerriere is a retired French businessman who one day in the course of his work made a fascinating observation.
>
> In a meeting with colleagues from around the world, including an Englishman, a Korean and a Brazilian, he noticed that he and the other non-native English speakers were communicating in a form of English that was completely comprehensible to them, but which left the > Englishman nonplussed.

>
> He, Jean-Paul Nerriere, could talk to the Korean and the Brazilian in this neo-language, and they could understand each other perfectly.
>
> But the Englishman was left out because his language was too subtle, too full of meaning that could not be grasped by the others.
>
> In other words, Monsieur Nerriere concluded, a new form of English is developing around the world, used by people for whom it is their second language.
>
> It may not be the most beautiful of tongues, but in this day and age he says it is indispensible. He calls the language Globish and urges everyone - above all the French - to learn it tout de suite.
>
> In his book Don't Speak English, Parlez Globish, Monsieur Nerriere sets out the rules.
>
> Globish has only 1,500 words and users must avoid humour, metaphor, abbreviation and anything else that can cause cross-cultural confusion.
>
> They must speak slowly and in short sentences. Funnily enough, he holds up the late Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat as an excellent exponent.
>
> Many in France consider Monsieur Nerriere a traitor for promoting the dreaded Anglais, but he insists he is not.
>
> He says the French have to recognise that the language war is lost.
>
> "We're just urinating on the ashes of the fire," he says. We should look on Globish not as a triumphant cultural vehicle for les Anglo-Saxons, but as a tool, he says: essential but purely utilitarian.

↑ Index

409. aaron tieger

ANXIETY CHANT by Aaron Tieger

Mon 26 Jan 2009

Skysill, a new UK press dedicated to promoting innovative poetry, is pleased to announce the publication of Aaron Tieger's ANXIETY CHANT.

Published in an edition of 200 copies, ANXIETY CHANT is available for £4 / $6 (including postage). Payment can be made via PayPal at http://skysillpress.blogspot.com/, or by contacting the editor at skysillpressATgmail.com.

A sample poem:

7/30/04

Caffeine leaves system leaving me empty as living rooms across this town and others empty of boxes and lives align in yellow trucks and yellow light coats the empty room and the last few boxes sit empty
in the last light of a living room.

*

Thanks for your support.

Sam Ward
Editor, Skysill Press

↑ Index

410. twshaner

Laynie Browne & Endi Hartigan Reading in Eugene

Mon 26 Jan 2009

This Saturday (1/31) at DIVA (Downtown Innitiative for the Visual Arts)

A New Reading Series hosts poets Laynie Browne and Endi Hartigan

Saturday, January 31
7:30 PM
DIVA
110 W. Broadway

Eugene, Oregon
[redacted]

Laynie Browne is the recipient of the 2007 National Poetry Series award and the author of five full-length poetry collections. Most recent are Drawing of a Swan Before Memory (2005, University of Georgia Press, winner of the Contemporary Poetry Series), and Mermaid's Purse (Spuytenduyvil, 2005). Forthcoming is Original Presence, from Shivistan Books (2006). Her other collections are Pollen Memory (2003, Tender Buttons), The Agency of Wind (Avec Books, 1999), and Rebecca Letters (Kelsey Street, 1996). She is also the author of Acts of Levitation, a novel (2002, Spuytenduyvil).

Endi Hartigan's work has appeared in the Northwest Review, The Antioch Review, Hubbub, Caveat Lector, and other magazines. She was co-founder and editor of Spectaculum, a magazine devoted to long poems, series, and lengthy selections of poetic works. Endi Bogue Hartigan’s book, One Sun Storm, was just released from the Center for Literary Publishing, and received the 2008 Colorado Prize for Poetry judged by Martha Ronk.

Upcoming readings:

Feb 21: K. Silem Mohammad & Rodney Koeneke
March 21: Betheny Ides & Joseph Bradshaw

↑ Index

411. Alan Sondheim
Zebulon set from last night
Mon 26 Jan 2009

Zebulon recording from last night

Here's a recording of the set Myk Freedman (lap steel), Azure Carter (voice), and I (acoustic electric, tamburitza, ukulele) did last night at Zebulon. The original recording was incredibly noisy - I did what I could to sweeten it with CoolEdit. I'm quite happy with the music. In order - all accompanied by Myk - 1 - w/ acoustic electric. This is the worst recorded - string buzz is much too noticable. Fast tempo. 2 - w/ Azure, melody and voice, and tamburitza - slow then jump rhythm 3 - w/ ukulele - this needed a contact mike - I was thinking of Henry Grimes' percussion along the way. 4 - w/ acoustic electric - high-speed quotes outside potential wells.

That's about it - enjoy - Alan http://www.alansondheim.org/zebulons.mp3

↑ Index

412. Stephen Vincent
Martin Puryear & The First 100 Days of President Obama
Mon 26 Jan 2009

"The First 100 Days of President Obama" is a new, current project on my blog, including haptic drawings & commentary, etc. The texts vary, but here is the start of yesterday's text - from "Obama: Day Five" to give a brief clue of some the range of interests:

This afternoon I went to a poets¢ panel at the San Francisco Museum of Art (Joinery: Poems on the occasion of Martin Puryear) . Subject: Martin Puryear, an African-American sculptor who works primarily in wood. (Go to the SFMOMA website, among others to see photographic samples of the work). The poets included:David Levi-Strauss (moderator & poet & critic), and poets, Norma Cole, Aaron Shurin, Susan Thackery, and Michael Palmer. All of whom spoke well about interpreting the work, some from the point of view of the ways in Puryear¢s practice of ¡joinery¢ mirrored various aspects of the making of their own poetry - in terms of collage, and/or the translation process of working or joining English to another language. Others spoke directly to the psychological experience of responding and incorporating the work in the process of both looking and ...

To continue go to: http://stephenvincent.net/blog/

Stephen Vincent

By the way, if you are visiting or living in San Francisco, my show, "Haptics" just opened at the Braunstein-Quay Gallery, 430 Clemintina Street, SF - 3 blocks South of Market, between 5th and 6th. Samples of the work are through out the blog, as well as on the Braunstein-Quay webstite. http://www.braunsteinquay.com/archive/access_vincent2008.html

↑ Index

413. George Bowering
Re: Globish
Mon 26 Jan 2009

The way this story was told 10 years ago was that while English is spreading all over the world, it is a thin English, with a very small vocabulary and fewer tenses, moods and voices than that used in, say, Britain.

gb

On Jan 26, 2009, at 2:05 PM, Gabrielle Welford wrote:

> this is great, miekal! i've been looking at this for quite a while, because the "war" over pidgin in hawai'i has been so prominent

*(while i lived there, i met a businesswoman who said proudly that her company had not hired some young people because, though their english was good in the interviews, they spoke pidgin at lunch) and because i've been working for a grad student (now doctor) in linguistics from korea who's been looking a
this same phenomenon. rather than expecting exact american or english english with the "right" accent, what's developing is a focus on being understood across cultures. it's really fascinating and exciting to me,
who grew up in many different countries, surrounded by different languages. lucky me... g*

*Gabrielle Welford, Ph.D. (support "Noho Hewa: The Wrongful
Occupation of Hawai'i" by going to www.nohohewa.com and clicking on "donate")
blog:
www.greenwom.blogspot.com
books:
_Too Many Deaths: Decolonizing Western Academic Research on Indigenous Cultures_
http://www.theguildofwriters.com/books/shop.php?action=full&id=317
Dora
http://www.theguildofwriters.com/books/shop.php?action=full&id=378*

*No virus found in this incoming message.
Checked by AVG Free Edition.
Version: 7.1.412 / Virus Database: 268.18.4/705 - Release Date:
2/27/2007*

On Sun, 25 Jan 2009, mIEKAL aND wrote:

*New lingua franca upsets French
Friday, 23 January 2009*

http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/programmes/from_our_own_correspondent/7844192.stm

Monsieur Nerriere is a retired French businessman who one day in the course of his work made a fascinating observation.

In a meeting with colleagues from around the world, including an Englishman, a Korean and a Brazilian, he noticed that he and the > other

> non-native English speakers were communicating in a form of English that was completely comprehensible to them, but which left the Englishman nonplussed.
>
> He, Jean-Paul Nerriere, could talk to the Korean and the Brazilian in this neo-language, and they could understand each other perfectly.
>
> But the Englishman was left out because his language was too subtle, too full of meaning that could not be grasped by the others.
>
> In other words, Monsieur Nerriere concluded, a new form of English is developing around the world, used by people for whom it is their second language.
>
> It may not be the most beautiful of tongues, but in this day and age he says it is indispensible. He calls the language Globish and urges everyone - above all the French - to learn it tout de suite.
>
> In his book Don't Speak English, Parlez Globish, Monsieur Nerriere sets out the rules.
>
> Globish has only 1,500 words and users must avoid humour, metaphor, abbreviation and anything else that can cause cross-cultural confusion.
>
> They must speak slowly and in short sentences. Funnily enough, he holds up the late Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat as an excellent exponent.
>
> Many in France consider Monsieur Nerriere a traitor for promoting the dreaded Anglais, but he insists he is not.
>
> He says the French have to recognise that the language war is lost.
>
> "We're just urinating on the ashes of the fire," he says. We should look on Globish not as a triumphant cultural vehicle for les Anglo-Saxons, but as a tool, he says: essential but purely utilitarian.
>
> welcome.html
>
> welcome.html

George Harry Bowering
Has not read Tolstoy.

↑ Index

414. mIEKAL aND
Re: Globish
Mon 26 Jan 2009

My partner is Romanian & English is her third language... Not that her English isn't far more sophisticated than Globish, but sometimes it feels like less words is more.

~m

On Jan 26, 2009, at 4:05 PM, Gabrielle Welford wrote:

> this is great, miekal! i've been looking at this for quite a while, > because the "war" over pidgin in hawai'i has been so prominent > (while i > lived there, i met a businesswoman who said proudly that her company > had > not hired some young people because, though their english was good
> in the
> interviews, they spoke pidgin at lunch) and because i've been > working for > a grad student (now doctor) in linguistics from korea who's been > looking a
> this same phenomenon. rather than expecting exact american or english > english with the "right" accent, what's developing is a focus on being > understood across cultures. it's really fascinating and exciting to
> me,
> who grew up in many different countries, surrounded by different > languages. lucky me... g
>
> Gabrielle Welford, Ph.D. (support "Noho Hewa: The Wrongful
> Occupation of > Hawai'i" by going to www.nohohewa.com and clicking on "donate")
> blog:
> www.greenwom.blogspot.com
> books:
> _Too Many Deaths: Decolonizing Western Academic Research on Indigenous > Cultures_
> http://www.theguildofwriters.com/books/shop.php?action=full&id=317
> _Dora_
> http://www.theguildofwriters.com/books/shop.php?action=full&id=378
>
> No virus found in this incoming message.
> Checked by AVG Free Edition.
> Version: 7.1.412 / Virus Database: 268.18.4/705 - Release Date:
> 2/27/2007
>
> On Sun, 25 Jan 2009, mIEKAL aND wrote:

New lingua franca upsets French
Friday, 23 January 2009

http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/programmes/from_our_own_correspondent/7844192.stm

Monsieur Nerriere is a retired French businessman who one day in the course of his work made a fascinating observation.

In a meeting with colleagues from around the world, including an Englishman, a Korean and a Brazilian, he noticed that he and the other non-native English speakers were communicating in a form of English that was completely comprehensible to them, but which left the Englishman nonplussed.

He, Jean-Paul Nerriere, could talk to the Korean and the Brazilian in this neo-language, and they could understand each other perfectly.

But the Englishman was left out because his language was too subtle, too full of meaning that could not be grasped by the others.

In other words, Monsieur Nerriere concluded, a new form of English is developing around the world, used by people for whom it is their second language.

It may not be the most beautiful of tongues, but in this day and age he says it is indispensible. He calls the language Globish and urges everyone - above all the French - to learn it tout de suite.

In his book Don't Speak English, Parlez Globish, Monsieur Nerriere sets out the rules.

Globish has only 1,500 words and users must avoid humour, metaphor, abbreviation and anything else that can cause cross-cultural confusion.

They must speak slowly and in short sentences. Funnily enough, he holds up the late Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat as an excellent exponent.

Many in France consider Monsieur Nerriere a traitor for promoting the dreaded Anglais, but he insists he is not.

He says the French have to recognise that the language war is lost.

"We're just urinating on the ashes of the fire," he says. We should > look on Globish not as a triumphant cultural vehicle for les Anglo-Saxons, but as a tool, he says: essential but purely utilitarian.

↑ Index

415. blacksox
Re: Zebulon set from last night
Mon 26 Jan 2009

Alan Thanks for this.
You are the American Fripp and your innovative technique is great to hear

Peace
Russ

↑ Index

416. David Buuck
This Friday 1/20: SPT's POETS THEATER INTERMEDIA NIGHT
Tue 27 Jan 2009

---

please forward widely---

POETS THEATER FEST CONTINUES WITH INTERMEDIA PROGRAM
Please join us Friday Jan 30th for the last night of PT09, with several inter-media works from local & national writers, artists, musicians, & filmmakers, along with our huge raffle & other festivities! Program includes:

Karla Milosevich: "My Past Life" & "29 Palms" (video)
two new videos by Bay Area arts legend & Poets Theater starlet!

Amanda Davidson & Cassie Riger: "A-Verbal" (video & performance) The Doctors Feelings present preliminary research on the emerging averbal condition. (see the preview at http://partedinthemiddle.com/averbal)

Paolo Javier: "FYEO" (text & images), performed by Dennis Somera live cross-cultural de(tour)nement & comix!

Linh Dinh: "A Smooth Life" (video)
The unconscious of online visual culture whispers its (per)verses into our ears.

Ariana Reines: "Your Mother & I" (audio & performance)
"Now son, you know we are not perverse individuals..."

Heriberto YÃ©pez: "Voice Exchange Rates" (video)
What happens when our machines begin to translate us back into the feedback loop.

Bill Luoma: "The Concept of Ass" (speech & video)
baseball bloopers meet diamond gem poetics...

Henry Hills: "Money" (film)
a classic cut-up featuring John Zorn, Abby Child, Bruce Andrews, Charles Bernstein, Sally Silvers, and dozens more....

Dillon Westbrook: "pan(Oa)ic(k)land" (video, text & live music) A multi-media investigation of Oakland & its hidden rhythms.

Claudia Rankine & John Lucas: "Provenance" (video essay)
On the head-butt heard 'round the world...

Konrad Steiner: "Suite for Face" (video & live music)
Improvising movie musicians pull the masks of actors into new affective directions.

Friday 1/30, 730 pm. $10 donation.
Timken Hall, CCA
1111 8th Street, San Francisco
smallpresstraffic.blogspot.com
sptraffic.org

↑ Index

417. Small Press Traffic
SPT: This Friday 1/30: Poets Theater Inter-Media Night!
Tue 27 Jan 2009

Please distribute widely. Please excuse any cross-postings. Please come!

POETS THEATER FEST CONTINUES WITH INTERMEDIA PROGRAM

Please join us Friday Jan 30th for the last night of PT09, with several inter-media works from local & national writers, artists, musicians, & filmmakers, along with our huge raffle & other festivities! Program includes:

Karla Milosevich: "My Past Life" & "29 Palms" (video)
two new videos by Bay Area arts legend & Poets Theater starlet!

Amanda Davidson & Cassie Riger: "A-Verbal" (video & performance) The Doctors Feelings present preliminary research on the emerging averbal condition. (see the preview at http://partedinthemiddle.com/averbal)

Paolo Javier: "FYEO" (text & images), performed by Dennis Somera live cross-cultural de(tour)nement & comix!

Linh Dinh: "A Smooth Life" (video)
The unconscious of online visual culture whispers its (per)verses into our ears.

Ariana Reines: "Your Mother & I" (audio & performance)
"Now son, you know we are not perverse individuals..."

Heriberto Yépez: "Voice Exchange Rates" (video)
What happens when our machines begin to translate us back into the feedback loop.

Bill Luoma: "The Concept of Ass" (speech & video)
baseball bloopers meet diamond gem poetics...

Henry Hills: "Money" (film)
a classic cut-up featuring John Zorn, Abby Child, Bruce Andrews, Charles Bernstein, Sally Silvers, and dozens more....

Dillon Westbrook: "pan(Oa)ic(k)land" (video, text & live music) A multi-media investigation of Oakland & its hidden rhythms.

Claudia Rankine & John Lucas: "Provenance" (video essay)
On the head-butt heard 'round the world...

Konrad Steiner: "Suite for Face" (video & live music)
Improvising movie musicians pull the masks of actors into new affective directions.

Friday 1/30, 730 pm. $10 donation.
Timken Hall, CCA
1111 8th Street, San Francisco

--
Samantha Giles
Executive Director
Small Press Traffic Literary Arts Center
sptraffic.org
smallpresstraffic.blogspot.com

↑ Index

418. steve russell
Re: Globish
Tue 27 Jan 2009

---

shame the French lost the language war.
they should penalize anyone using too many English words a barbarian tax.

one way to get back for FREEDOM FRIES
ugh, how many US speakers know more than American English????? me/2/guilty...

↑ Index

419. Aryanil Mukherjee
Book Review Updates @ Kaurab
Tue 27 Jan 2009

---

http://www.kaurab.com/english/

Three new book reviews, as part of the international book review series - BOOK OPENER - have just been released @ Kaurab Online's Translation Archive. This book review series is meant to emphasize creative, non-academic review of international poetry publications in English language. The current update covers -

We Are Here by Niels Hav (Book Thug)
- reviewed by Tyrone Williams

THE PINK by Kyle Schlesinger (Kenning Edition)
- reviewed by Pat Clifford

sexoPUROsexoVELOZ & Septiembre by Dolores Dorantes (Kenning Edition & Counterpath Press) - reviewed collaboratively in the two languages (Spanish & English) of the original book, by Subhro Bandopadhyay & Aryanil Mukherjee

We encourage feedback and request small presses from around the world to submit books on international poetry (written in or translated into English) to the Kaurab BOOK OPENER. And, sure, North American poetry is more than welcome. Please send books to -

Kaurab BOOK OPENER
Poetry Review Series
c/o
Dana Ward
Aryanil Mukherjee
7812 Meadowcreek Dr
Cincinnati, OH 45244

↑ Index

420. Nicholas Karavatos
CFP - "Translation in the New Millennium" - 2nd International Conference
Tue 27 Jan 2009

MTIxMjA4IA==

↑ Index

421. Troy Camplin
Re: Globish
Tue 27 Jan 2009

Good thing they lost it. Now maybe they can get back to writing great literature, which has stagnated since they French language council was created. This is where Leftist micromanagement of all the aspects of one's life will get you. You can't stagnate the language like that and expect literature to thrive.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: steve russell <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, January 27, 2009 1:47:09 AM
Subject: Re: Globish

shame the French lost the language war.
they should penalize anyone using too many English words a barbarian tax.

one way to get back for FREEDOM FRIES
ugh, how many US speakers know more than American English????? me/2/guilty...

↑ Index

422. Francesco Levato
"No Love for Love" - Poetry Center of Chicago Annual Benefit
Tue 27 Jan 2009

For those of you in Chicago I hope you can attend the Poetry Center¹s ³No Love for Love² annual benefit. Details are below.

The Poetry Center of Chicago Annual Benefit

"No Love For Love"

featuring Peter Sagal, host of NPR's
"Wait Wait... Don't Tell Me!"

Peter Sagal headlines an evening of romance, love, fidelity and similar afflictions. With performances by Rosie Forrest, Edward Thomas-Herrera, Robbie Q. Telfer and short film maker Steve Delahoyde. Hosted by Jonathan Messenger.

Monday, February 9, 2009 - 8:00pm
Victory Gardens/Biograph Theater

$20 admission. Tickets available at the Victory Gardens Box Office at [redacted] or online at www.victorygardens.org

VIP Reception

Hang out with Peter Sagal at our pre-show VIP reception.

6:00pm - 7:30pm

$150 admission. VIP ticket includes general admission to the event, drinks, hors d'oeuvres, a private book signing, and a chance to mingle with Peter.

Tickets for the VIP reception are available at the Poetry Center at [redacted] or online at www.poetrycenter.org/node/588.

ALL PROCEEDS BENEFIT THE POETRY CENTER OF CHICAGO

↑ Index

423. teersteeg
Inaugural poem--
Tue 27 Jan 2009

Don't know if this site's been posted but it has some very funny things on the inaugural poem:

http://blog.wfmu.org/freeform/2009/01/the-inaugural-poem-remix.html

regards, bruno cape cod

↑ Index

424. Francesco Levato
AWP Chicago - Poetry Center Events
Tue 27 Jan 2009

The Poetry Center of Chicago is hosting a number of off-site events this year at AWP from poetry in translation to a focus on Chicago poetics. Admission is free. For more information stop by our AWP booth or visit http://www.poetrycenter.org.

It would be great if you could attend.

Thanks,
Francesco Levato

AWP OFF-SITE EVENTS

***

POETRY IN TRANSLATION
Thursday, February 12, 2009 - 6:30pm
SAIC Ballroom, 112 S. Michigan Avenue, Chicago

Featuring readings by Donald Revell, Cole Swensen, Forrest Gander, Jen Hofer and Laura Solórzano, Johannes Goranssön, Maxine Chernoff, and Paul Hoover

***

CHICAGO POETICS
Friday, February 13, 2009 - 6:30pm
SAIC Ballroom, 112 S. Michigan Avenue, Chicago

Featuring readings by Kevin Koval, Simone Muench, Larry Sawyer, Ray Bianchi, Chris Glomski, Jennifer Scappettone, William Allegrezza, Melissa Severin and Jackie White

***

LOVE ON THE LINE: POEMS ABOUT LOVE
Saturday, February 14, 2009 - 6:30pm
Sullivan Galleries, 33 S. State St., 7th floor, Chicago

Featuring readings by Cynthia Atkins, Frank Bidart, Kurt Brown, A. Van Jordan, Paul Muldoon, Elise Paschen, and Robert Polito read from and discuss their work.

***

For more information please visit http://www.poetrycenter.org

↑ Index

425. William James Austin
Blackbox
Tue 27 Jan 2009

Hello everyone,

As some of you may know, Blackbox experienced recent and rather severe problems, especially with submissions that were lost in transmission. After several failed attempts to receive said submissions, I've decided to put together a short Fall Gallery and leave it at that. I had intended a much larger Fall/Winter combo, but Winter will now have to wait.

I've been informed that many computers are experiencing communication problems due to Mercury retrograde (or whatever that virus is named). Perhaps this is the source of my and others' difficulties.

A short Fall Gallery should be online now.

Best, Bill (William James Austin)

WilliamJamesAustin.com
KojaPress.com
SPDbooks.org
Amazon.com
BarnesandNoble.com

****
A Good Credit Score is 700 or
Above. See yours in just 2 easy steps!
(http://pr.atwola.com/promoclk/100000075x1215855013x1201028747/aol?redir=http://www.freecreditreport.com/pm/default.aspx?scf8072%26hmpgIDb%26bcdÞcemailfooterNO62)</HTML>

↑ Index

426. colin herd
Sound Poet from Brasil, Jamil Jorge
Tue 27 Jan 2009

Hello List. I wonder if anyone can help me: a friend asked me for information about a sound poet from Brasil, Jamil Jorge, and she has me pretty stumped. Of course, as ever when you're looking for something rare, there's a fabulous recording on Ubu, but I am writing this in the hope of finding some more information, biography, contact details, websites, publication/recording-info, whatever you may have basically.

Thank-you in advance for any information you may have.
Yours,
Colin.

↑ Index

427. Erik Anderson
FW: Bombay Gin 35.1 Just Released
Tue 27 Jan 2009

The Department of Writing and Poetics at Naropa University is pleased to announce the release of Bombay Gin 35.1:

This issue features new writing by Jena Osman, Rachel Levitsky, Ilya Kaminsky, Sara Veglahn, Raymond Federman, Miranda Mellis, Truong Tran, Julie Carr, Noelle Kocot, Sawako Nakayasu, Stacy Szymaszek, among many others, as well as a new design and cover by Jeff Clark. The issue also features a transcribed lecture by Peter Gizzi on "Jack Spicer & the Practice of Reading" (1998) from the Naropa Audio Archives. Individual copies ($12) and subscriptions can be purchased online at our website through Paypal, in the Writing and Poetics Department, and at bookstores throughout the country.

Bombay Gin, which publishes innovative poetry, prose, and hybrid texts as well as art, translations, and interviews, has enjoyed 35 years of publication by The Naropa Press in the Jack Kerouac School of Disembodied Poetics, co-founded by Allen Ginsberg and Anne Waldman, at Naropa University. Each issue includes a talk or lecture transcribed from the Naropa Audio Archives. Called "one of the three most important literary audio collections in America" by The New York Times, the Archives are comprised of six thousand hours of tapes documenting classes, performances, workshops, and lectures conducted at Naropa by many of the leading figures of the U.S. literary avant-garde. Check out the website for Bombay Gin at http://www.naropa.edu/bombaygin/index.cfm for submission guidelines and more.

↑ Index

428. peter ganick

yes ...

Tue 27 Jan 2009

---

multifarious things going on at http://pganickz.livejournal.com !check them and send something for consideration !
text in message window only ... no attachments ... thanks ! send to <[redacted]> ...
--
books by pg -- http://whiteskybooks.weebly.com literary blog -- http://pganickz.livejournal.com art www.flickr.com/photos/textimagepoetry/sets/music -- http://netnewmusic.ning.com as literary publisher -- http://bluelionbooks.info

"Move from zero."
--John Cage

↑ Index

429. Lil Norton

New Lil Norton Book, Comment Is Free Vol. 3

Tue 27 Jan 2009

Lil Norton is proud to present its newest book, Comment Is Free, Vol. 3

The third in a series of books on various subjects, all of it pulled from newspaper comment streams. The current volume, "Subjects," collages comments to articles on blogging and "oversharing," psychiatry for the superwealthy, the rights of apes, and the future of the book.

The present volume sells at cost for $5.98 from Lulu. Visit Lil' Norton's storefront today! <http://stores.lulu.com/lil_norton> (http://stores.lulu.com/lil_norton)

-Lawrence Giffin
http://lilnorton.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

430. Small Press Traffic

SPT: This Friday 1/30: Poets Theater Inter-Media Night!

Tue 27 Jan 2009

Please distribute widely. Please excuse any cross-postings. Please come!

POETS THEATER FEST CONTINUES WITH INTERMEDIA PROGRAM

Please join us Friday Jan 30th for the last night of PT09, with several inter-media works from local & national writers, artists, musicians, & filmmakers, along with our huge raffle & other festivities! Program includes:

Karla Milosevich: "My Past Life" & "29 Palms" (video)
two new videos by Bay Area arts legend & Poets Theater starlet!

Amanda Davidson & Cassie Riger: "A-Verbal" (video & performance) The Doctors Feelings present preliminary research on the emerging averbal condition. (see the preview at http://partedinthemiddle.com/averbal)

Paolo Javier: "FYEO" (text & images), performed by Dennis Somera live cross-cultural de(tour)nement & comix!

Linh Dinh: "A Smooth Life" (video)
The unconscious of online visual culture whispers its (per)verses into our ears.

Ariana Reines: "Your Mother & I" (audio & performance)
"Now son, you know we are not perverse individuals..."

Heriberto Yépez: "Voice Exchange Rates" (video)
What happens when our machines begin to translate us back into the feedback loop.

Bill Luoma: "The Concept of Ass" (speech & video)
baseball bloopers meet diamond gem poetics...

Henry Hills: "Money" (film)
a classic cut-up featuring John Zorn, Abby Child, Bruce Andrews, Charles Bernstein, Sally Silvers, and dozens more....

Dillon Westbrook: "pan(Oa)ic(k)land" (video, text & live music) A multi-media investigation of Oakland & its hidden rhythms.

Claudia Rankine & John Lucas: "Provenance" (video essay)
On the head-butt heard 'round the world...

Konrad Steiner: "Suite for Face" (video & live music)
Improvising movie musicians pull the masks of actors into new affective directions.

Friday 1/30, 730 pm. $10 donation.
Timken Hall, CCA
1111 8th Street, San Francisco

--
Samantha Giles
Executive Director
Small Press Traffic Literary Arts Center
sptraffic.org
smallpresstraffic.blogspot.com

↑ Index

431. steve russell
Globish
Wed 28 Jan 2009

---

what happened to Esperanto? & as Eiríkur Örn Norðdahlas pointed out, I like the idea of exposing language, rather than mastering it. Honing into any given vernacular. Sort of the way Venturi approached architecture. What's so bad about the mobile home? It's perfectly functional. Why can't it be beautiful?

It would be funny if someone tried to do with language what Bertrand Russell did with mathmatics. Not provide a proof, but devise something so rational, no 2 speakers could possibly misunderstand one another.

↑ Index

432. steve d. dalachinsky
Re: Richard Kostelanetz's SRAM/BLEDS at AC[Chapel]
Wed 28 Jan 2009

---

kazuko shiraishi ira cohen and myself dalachinsky with great trumpeter oki itaru at bowery po club sat jan 31 at 2 pm

On Wed, 17 Dec 2008 14:22:13 -0500 Holly Crawford <[redacted]>
writes:
> Installation of SCRAM/BLEDS from book of concrete poems by Richard

>
> Kostelanetz will adorn the walls > of AC [Chapel] 547 W. 27th St, 5th Floor
> New York City 10001
>
> The opening is Thursday December 18 from 6-8. The exhibition runs > through > Jan 17. The space is open Monday-Saturday 9-6 pm.
>
> And a poem by Dan Waber is written on our very large blackboard wall > this > month.
>
> More to come.
>
> -Holly Crawford
> [redacted]
> www.artcurrrents.org
>
>
>

↑ Index

433. Nate Pritts

spicer's poetry

Wed 28 Jan 2009

Just thought you might get a kick out of this -

my sophomore & junior Gifted English classes are writing papers on single poets & part of the assignment is to make a movie of one of the poems. I'm posting a bunch of them up on www.schooltube.com - just search for "Bolton" to see them all as they pop up.

Here's the direct link to one on Spicer's "A Red Wheelbarrow."

www.schooltube.com/video/20049/Jack-Spicer---Poetry
_____:: Nate Pritts :: http://www.correspondentbreeze.blogspot.com :: http://www.natepritts.com

_____
Windows Live™ Hotmail®:...more than just e-mail.
http://windowslive.com/explore?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t2_hm_justgotbetter_explore_012009

↑ Index

434. Stephen Vincent
Re: spicer's poetry
Wed 28 Jan 2009

The Spicer film is wonderful. Made me homesick for high school - when given that kind of permission to do something creative like this. Be perhaps interesting to see the poem done 'transgressively' - say, in black face, as a way to explore further the implications ('significances') of 'signs'. Just a thought.

If interested, "Ocean Beach", my piece up on the current Jacket #36 explores Spicer 's "No one listens to poetry" by going down to the beach - here in San Francisco - to make haptics and study the implications of poem in the context of an actual ocean.

Thanks again for 'the lead.'

Stephen Vincent
http://stephenvincent.net/blog/

--- On Wed, 1/28/09, Nate Pritts <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Nate Pritts <[redacted]>
Subject: spicer's poetry
To: [redacted]
Date: Wednesday, January 28, 2009, 6:11 AM

Just thought you might get a kick out of this -

my sophomore & junior Gifted English classes are writing papers on single poets & part of the assignment is to make a movie of one of the poems. I'm posting a bunch of them up on www.schooltube.com - just search for "Bolton" to see them all as they pop up.

Here's the direct link to one on Spicer's "A Red Wheelbarrow."

www.schooltube.com/video/20049/Jack-Spicer---Poetry
_____:: Nate Pritts :: http://www.correspondentbreeze.blogspot.com :: http://www.natepritts.com

_____
Windows Live™ Hotmail®:...more than just e-mail.
http://windowslive.com/explore?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t2_hm_justgotbetter_explore_012009

↑ Index

435. Troy Camplin
Globish
Wed 28 Jan 2009

Cantor already showed the limits of mathematical rationality, showing one could not rationally prove its foundations. Can't do it with math, you definitely can't do it with language.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: steve russell <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, January 28, 2009 12:25:58 AM
Subject: Globish

what happened to Esperanto? & as Eiríkur Örn Norðdahlas pointed out, I like the idea of exposing language, rather than mastering it. Honing into any given vernacular. Sort of the way Venturi approached architecture. What's so bad about the mobile home? It's perfectly functional. Why can't it be beautiful?

It would be funny if someone tried to do with language what Bertrand Russell did with mathmatics. Not provide a proof, but devise something so rational, no 2 speakers could possibly misunderstand one another.

↑ Index

436. Jerome Rothenberg
Milos Sovak
Wed 28 Jan 2009

On January 26, 2009 Milos Sovak died after a long illness. Our friendship had lasted over thirty years & gave me the opportunity to work with him on a series of translations, the most important a book of selected poems from the great Czech modernist Vitezslav Nezval & scattered poems from the late Russian Romantic Mikhail Lermontov. Our collaborations took place mainly in the sunlit garden of his home in Encinitas, California, & occasionally at his other home in Provence, close to Mazan & the chateau & theater of the Marquis de Sade. Milos was himself a gifted translator into Czech & the designer, typographer, & publisher of limited edition artists' books through his own Ettan Press in California. He was a good friend to many poets & artists, & most remarkably an important medical researcher & the inventor of an impressive range of devices in many fields. The felicities in our collaborations are largely of his doing.

Our translations from Nezval can be found in Antilyrik & Other Poems, published by Green Integer Press in 2001, and most of our translations from Lermontov appear in Poems for the Millennium, volume 3. Examples from both poets, along with the preceding note, have just been posted on my blog, poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com.

Jerome Rothenberg
1026 San Abella
Encinitas, CA 92024
[redacted]
jrothenberg at cox.net
http://writing.upenn.edu/epc/authors/rothenberg/ethnopoetics web site: http://ubu.com/ethno/
j.r. in spanish: http://writing.upenn.edu/epc/authors/rothenberg/esp/Blog at poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com

"If the work of another translates my dream, his work is mine."
F. Picabia

↑ Index

437. mIEKAL aND
Re: Globish
Wed 28 Jan 2009

Check out the Universal Language movement whose roots go back to the 1700s & has fostered dozens of attempts at such a beast.

One of my favorites is Alwato devised by Stephen Pearl Andrews, the founder of Modern Times, an early intentional community on Long Island.

~mIEKAL

On Wed, Jan 28, 2009 at 12:25 AM, steve russell <[redacted]> wrote:

> It would be funny if someone tried to do with language what Bertrand Russell did with mathmatics. Not provide a proof, but devise something so rational, no 2 speakers could possibly misunderstand one another.

↑ Index

438. Thomas savage
Re: spicer's poetry
Wed 28 Jan 2009

If you can get a hold of the old book of Spicer's poems called The Collected Books of Jack Spicer it includes a questionnaire that he and Robert Duncan made for a poetry workshop they taught together long, long ago. It might be interesting to give this questionnaire to your students. Regards, Tom Savage

--- On Wed, 1/28/09, Nate Pritts <[redacted]> wrote:

From: Nate Pritts <[redacted]>
Subject: spicer's poetry

To: [redacted]
Date: Wednesday, January 28, 2009, 9:11 AM

Just thought you might get a kick out of this -

my sophomore & junior Gifted English classes are writing papers on single poets & part of the assignment is to make a movie of one of the poems. I'm posting a bunch of them up on www.schooltube.com - just search for "Bolton" to see them all as they pop up.

Here's the direct link to one on Spicer's "A Red Wheelbarrow."

www.schooltube.com/video/20049/Jack-Spicer---Poetry
_____:: Nate Pritts :: http://www.correspondentbreeze.blogspot.com :: http://www.natepritts.com

_____
Windows Live™ Hotmail®:...more than just e-mail.
http://windowslive.com/explore?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t2_hm_justgotbetter_explore_012009

↑ Index

439. George Bowering
Re: Globish
Wed 28 Jan 2009

In what way is the French Academy leftish? I would have thought to call it rightish, as patriotic stuff generally is.

gb

On Jan 27, 2009, at 5:36 AM, Troy Camplin wrote:

> Good thing they lost it. Now maybe they can get back to writing great literature, which has stagnated since they French language council was created. This is where Leftist micromanagement of all the aspects of one's life will get you. You can't stagnate the language like that and expect literature to thrive.
>
> Troy Camplin
>
> _____
> From: steve russell <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Tuesday, January 27, 2009 1:47:09 AM

> Subject: Re: Globish
>
> shame the French lost the language war.
> they should penalize anyone using too many English words a > barbarian tax.
>
> one way to get back for FREEDOM FRIES
> ugh, how many US speakers know more than American English?????
> me/2/guilty...
>
> welcome.html
>
> welcome.html

Geo. Harry Bowering, M.A.
Fell down in Firenze

↑ Index

440. Jennifer Karmin
FINAL WEEK: When Does It or You Begin?
Wed 28 Jan 2009

WHEN DOES IT OR YOU BEGIN? (MEMORY AS INNOVATION)
Festival of Writing, Performance, & Video

Curated by Amina Cain & Jennifer Karmin
at Links Hall
3435 N. Sheffield Avenue
Chicago, IL

FINAL WEEK
Memoryâ€™s Place: Alternative Sites and Histories featuring documentary, sound work, performance art, and stories

FRIDAY, JANUARY 30 at 8pm
Tisa Bryant
Duriel Harris
video by Bryan & Jake Saner video by Chi Jang Yin
talkback with Tony Trigilio

SATURDAY, JANUARY 31 at 8pm
Tisa Bryant

Amina Cain with Rachel Tredon
ThickRoutes Performance Collage
video by Bryan & Jake Saner

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 1 at 7pm
Amina Cain with Rachel Tredon
Duriel Harris
ThickRoutes Performance Collage
video by Chi Jang Yin

TICKETS $12
$10 students, seniors, & working artists/writers

FULL SCHEDULE ONLINE
http://www.linkshall.org/09-pp-jan.shtml
(Note: Miranda Mellis has cancelled due to illness)

FESTIVAL CLOSING EVENT
1968/2008:
The Inheritance of Politics and The Politics of Inheritance
Sunday, February 1 from 3-5pm
at the Japanese American Service Committee of Chicago
4427 North Clark Street
free

Readings and discussion with writers in celebration of the latest magazine release of AREA Chicago, a publication and event series dedicated to researching, supporting, and networking local social, political, and cultural movements. Featuring AREA #7 contributors: Samuel Barnett, Frank Edwards, Cathleen Schandelmeier, Earl Silbar, Michael Staudenmaier, Daniel Tucker, Ashley Weger, Rebecca Zorach. Check out AREA #7, all publication content is free online. http://areachicago.org/p/issues/7/

↑ Index

441. Barrett Watten contact / Poetics Journal Guide and Archive
Wed 28 Jan 2009

Barrett Watten and I are in need of contact information for the following people (listed below), whose work we hope to include, with their permission, in a forthcoming two-part publication from Wesleyan University Press. The first part will be a volume titled A Guide to Poetics Journal: Writing in the Expanded Field,

1982–1998. It will include a number of key works excerpted from the pages of Poetics Journal (issues 1-10, 1982-1998) along with subsidiary materials intended to contextualize the works and direct attention to key issues and interrelationships among the texts. The second part will be the Poetics Journal Digital Archive, an online resource that will include the entirety of all ten issues of PJ. It will be available in a searchable and downloadable form to individual and institutional subscribers for scholarly and creative uses. If anyone can provide contact information, please send it to <mailto:[redacted]>[redacted]. Thank you. Lyn Mike Anderson, author of Vrille (State One, 1984) and former editor of Pessimistic Labor.

Bruce Campbell, critic, who taught at UC Riverside, and published frequently in Temblor
Paul A. Green/ U.K. poet
Paul Greenonce of 83b London Road, Peterborough, Cambridgeshire, UKis he still there?
Bernard Noël, French writer, born in 1930
Claire Phillipsa former student of Barrett Watten’s
Peter Seaton
Gavin SelerieBritish poet
Joey SimasAmerican poet and translator living in France

↑ Index

442. joseph bradshaw
Sprare Room Presents Laynie Brown & Jared Hayes 2/1, Portland
Wed 28 Jan 2009

Spare Room presents

Laynie Browne
Jared Hayes

Sunday, February 1
7:30 pm

Concordia Coffee House
2909 NE Alberta

$5.00 suggested donation

www.flim.com/spareroom
[redacted]

==========

Upcoming readings:

February 8: Andrew Joron / Andrew Zawacki

==========

Laynie Browne is the author of seven collections of poetry and one novel. Her most recent publications include The Scented Fox (Wave), Daily Sonnets (Counterpath) and Drawing of a Swan Before Memory (University of Georgia). She was for many years a member of the Subtext Collective in Seattle, and now is part of the POG reading series in Tucson. She is currently developing a new a poetry-in-the-schools program for K-5 schools, through the Poetry Center at the University of Arizona.

jared hayes lives in portland, oregon. he is publisher and co-editor of livestock editions. jared hayes believes in ghosts. his poetry can be found.

==========

from Radiolarian Atlas

Petalospyris arachnoides

Descending claw spider thrift Ten-legged trope
with triceratops leanings

Inside your yellow-chambered soirée is a bouncing reverie of a ballroom
O hidden balustrade, from whose aquamarine invitation was this divine gathering sung?

Laynie Browne

from night after night

mesostic transpsych(ot)ic iteration

this is the best leJos to do things. this is the very best ecerrAda to do things. this is the very best sIempre to do things exactly poeMa transparEncia now and excluSiva is the night acercAdo doing the night dEstino and this is the night illumiNan doing the night veZ at the night caJa and these are the night brAzos at the night imagIna and this is the night Mascara doing the night Escribe at the night Seno in the night rosAs and these are the night tormEnta doing the night muNdo to the night quiZa at the night refleJaba and these are the estrellA that are exactly night and these exactly night habIta are doing their Muerte which is night and carnE is the night poSa to oscuridAd at the night gravE which is night now and night now cuerNos is exactly night night now where atroZ is.

Jared Hayes

↑ Index

443. joseph bradshaw
Friday 1/30 Peaches & Bats #3 Release Party, Portland
Wed 28 Jan 2009

[sent on behalf of Jesse Morse & Sam Lohmann]

Peaches & Bats Release Party with readings by

David Abel
Joseph Bradshaw
Kaia Sand
Sam Lohmann

and long-tone music in just intonation by Warren Lee (harmonium), Ian Ackerman (violin), and Gabriel Will (viola).

Friday, January 30
7:00 pm

The Waypost
3120 N. Williams Avenue
http://www.thewaypost.com

Food, beer, wine, and espresso all available at The Waypost. Festivities underway at 7pm.

http://www.smorgreadingseries.blogspot.com

Peaches and Bats #3 features new work by: David Abel, Jennifer Bartlett, Joseph Bradshaw, Stephen Collis, Elaine Equi, Ming Holden, Rich Jensen, Stacey Levine, Lauren Likely, Will Owen, Kaia Sand, Brandon Shimoda, Luvsandorjin Ulziitugs (translated by Simon Wickham-Smith), What We Are Learning, and Deborah Woodard.

Peaches and Bats #3 is a hand-sewn zine with a letterpress cover and 72 pg. photocopied interior. It costs $5, and can be purchased in Portland at Powell's or Reading Frenzy; in Olympia at Orca Books or Dumpster Values; and in Seattle at Elliott Bay Books. Soon it will also be available at St. Mark's Bookstore in New York, and eventually, I hope, in other select corners of the world.

↑ Index

444. Eiríkur Örn Norðdahl

Re: Globish

Thu 29 Jan 2009

Steve Russell wrote:" Not provide a proof, but devise something so > rational, no 2 speakers could possibly misunderstand one another. "

Isn't this what Laura Riding intended with Rational Meaning? Something along those lines at least. She obviously never made it that far - renouncing poetry on her way and still language kept slipping from under her grasp.

--
www.norddahl.org
EirÃkur Ã–rn NorÃ°dahl
Fleminginkatu 9A 10
00530 Helsinki
Finland

↑ Index

445. David-Baptiste Chirot

NY Times: Washington Post's Book World Goes Out of Print as a Separate Section

Thu 29 Jan 2009

BOOKS

| January 29,2009

Washington Post's Book World Goes Out of Print as a Separate Section

By MOTOKO RICH

The
Washington Post has decided to shutter the print version of its Sunday stand-alone book review section and shift reviews to space inside two other sections of the paper.
http://www.nytimes.com/2009/01/29/books/29post.html?emc=eta1

_____ Windows Live™: E-mail. Chat. Share. Get more ways to connect.
http://windowslive.com/howitworks?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t2_allup_howitworks_012009

↑ Index

446. David-Baptiste Chirot

NY Times: Washington Post's Book World Goes Out of Print as a Separate Section

Thu 29 Jan 2009

BOOKS

| January 29,2009

Washington Post's Book World Goes Out of Print as a Separate Section

By MOTOKO RICH

The Washington Post has decided to shutter the print version of its Sunday stand-alone book review section and shift reviews to space inside two other sections of the paper.
http://www.nytimes.com/2009/01/29/books/29post.html?emc=eta1

_____
Windows Live™ Hotmail®:...more than just e-mail.
http://windowslive.com/explore?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t2_hm_justgotbetter_explore_012009

↑ Index

447. Bill Berkson

Berkson PORTRAIT AND DREAM at Cue Art Foundation, New York

Thu 29 Jan 2009

Bill Berkson
PORTRAIT AND DREAM: NEW & SELECTED POEMS
(Coffee House Press, 2009)
Book Signing & Brief Reading
Thursday, February 12 6-8 pm
Cue Art Foundation
511 West 25th Street (between 10th & 11th Aves.)
New York NY
FREE: Reservations Required
RSVP [redacted]
or email [redacted]

↑ Index

448. Séamas Cain

Attack against the COX18 cultural centre in Milan, Italy

Thu 29 Jan 2009

_____

I am forwarding to you a description by Marco Mancuso (with the journal "Digicult") of the attack in Milano, Italy, against the COX18 cultural centre, the Calusca City Lights bookshop, and the Primo Moroni Archive.

Marco asks that people sign the petition of support for COX18, etc.

For additional information, write to Marco at [redacted]

In solidarity,

Séamas Cain
http://alazanto.org/seamascain
http://seamascain.writernetwork.com
http://www.mnartists.org/Seamas_Cain

_____

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Redazione Digicult <[redacted]>
Date: Thu, Jan 29, 2009 at 4:57 AM
Subject: Call for International help against eviction of COX18 and all the other squatts and free social centers in Milan/Italy
To: [redacted]

Hello,

The past one, was a sad and angy week for people living in Milan/Italy. Milan's social and cultural life was stricken hard once again. At 7am on january the 22nd around 100 policemen entered the squatt COX18 (http://www.cox18.noblogs.org), which include in its premises the social center created more than 33 years ago, the Calusca City Light bookstore, founded in 1971, and the Primo Moroni Archive. Looking at the Expo2015 that will take place in Milan, the Municipality ask for legal possession of some buildings in town in order to sell them and earn money. The words of the Vice Mayor De Corato were clear: we want to close all the free social centers and squatts in Milan, after COX18 and Pergola Tribe, will be the turn of Cantiere and Torchiera (other 2 important places of free culture in town).

We at Digicult, supporting COX18 and all the squatts and social cultural centers in town, ask to all the people that belive in cultural freedom, in the importance of the existance of places of free voice and ideas, that are against repressive policies against free spaces, to follow and help us as much as you can internationally. Spread this call and the future ones and sign the Online Petition here: http://www.petitiononline.com/cox18/petition.html

---

At 7am on january the 22nd around 100 policemen entered the squatt COX18, which include in its premises the social center created more than 33 years ago, the Calusca City Light bookstore, founded in 1971, and the Primo Moroni Archive. The importance of this archive is stunning: it is, without any doubt, the most important treasure of memory, books, videos, registrations and a considerable portion of counterculture in Milan and in Italy. At the present moment the squatt is sealed and under seizure with all the materials inside, the books and the magazines of the bookstore and the archive included. The damage is unbelieveble!!!.

COX18 was a place where one could encounter people and ideas, where prices were accessible for all and where discrimination never took place. A place for concerts, workshops, screenings, presentations, meetings, art installations, crossing from different art-forms, many of those related to electronic and digital culture. The Milan town municipality is trying to turn the city into a huge commercial centre, destroying all forms of cultural alternatives and closing down all those spaces where cultural elaboration is not subject to a purely market-oriented vision. It's a processes that is still ging on from the last 15 years. We are not in for this. We won't abandon this city. We are going to stay here and fight for the right to have free social and cultural spaces destined to free forms of expression.

The morning of 22nd, a lot of people arrived in via Conchetta (the street in which COX18 lives) to defend the social center against the eviction, then from 4.00 pm in a spontaneous demonstration and call to everybody and to everything to converge at Palazzo Marino, Milano town hall, for a participated and determined demotration for Cox18 and against the evictions. After this demonstration, many other initiatives were organized in the days after, both on the Internet and on the Streets. There was a big response from intellectuals, people of culture, normal people from all ages. A big concert was organized in a big square in Ticinese disctrict (the same of COX18) and a big mobilitation was a great success on Saturday, January the 24th, against the eviction of the Cox18

At the moment there is a civil case to define the right of ownership of bulding and of the Archive: of course, many other cultural initiatives will be organized in the next days, many words will be written, many concerts will be organized in public spaces of the town, a big national mobilitation will be organized and the Internet will be our friend to spread the word of what is happening against Free Culture in Milan/Italy in this historical moment best and thanks to all Marco Mancuso / Digicult

Videos:

http://www.streamit.it/index.htm?v=1f5401a85672f89663ccc9801811eed2

http://new.c6.tv/component/library/?task=view&id=2772

http://milano.repubblica.it/multimedia/home/4476258

http://www.youreporter.it/view_video.php?viewkey=99d28729e0473f7a54e16e2ea4ee0178

http://www.youreporter.it/view_video.php?viewkey=53efdba22c4fc43bad923ceb27a1614f

---

LET'S TAKE BACK COX18, CALUSCA AND THE PRIMO MORONI ARCHIVE

At 7am on january the 22nd around 100 policemen entered the squatt COX18, which include in its premises the social center created more than 33 years ago, the Calusca City Light bookstore, founded in 1971, and the Primo Moroni Archive. In a matter of a few hours, the answer of the city was explicit, a number of comrades, friends and neighbourhoods, gathered in front of the squatt and the armoured police units to confront the unwelcomed guests.

It's clearly an illegal eviction which doesn't consider a legal action already going on since july 2008 between the city administration and the squatt COX18 with the sole purpose of taking legal possession of the building. Vice Mayor De Corato, one the main heads trying to suffocate whatever isn't uniformed, gives the responsibility of the action to head of the police and the regional administration. The DA affirm he wasn't informed of anything until the eviction was on. Not a real problem, cause all the protagonists agree on the fact that the economic value of the building shouldn't loose value. They're talking about money and economic interest as if this was a reasonable explanation for what is going on.

At the present moment. the squatt is sealed and under seizure with all the materials inside, the books and the magazines of the bookstore and the archive included. The COX18 squatt, the Calusca Bookstore and the Primo Moroni Archive represent an important piece of radical and workers' history; they testify the possibility to elude the principle of commercialization of things and thoughts.We're not alone, we got the company of others squats, places of free expression and exchange of ideas. Our survival is the survival of freedom of expression, thought and action; of the chance to master our own destiny and future, of any chance not to be judged and considered for what we can/want to spend.

It's pretty clear we don't consider this 'game' close, we recognize the ones refusing the homogeneity of monolithic thought guaranteed by the market and this pseudo democracy: they want us compatible, buyers and buyable, ordered and uniformed, we'll remain what we know we are: original, always ready to spread knowledge, not homogenous and critical to whatever is imposed as truth.

FACTS AND CONSIDERATION ABOUT THE EVICTION

It's not correct to read at warm the eviction of the Cox 18, historical social center of street Conchetta in Milan, besides center of the bookshop Calusca and the Primo Moroni's archives. Mobilization against the eviction is in progress, and the Cox eviction is not a closed fact. The eviction occures on January 22 after a question in Parliament against Milan social centers adressed, on January 21, to the Home Affair Minister Mr Maroni the notorious vice-mayor, and public safety alderman and parliamentary, Mr Riccardo De Corato.

Certainly this eviction as well as a value in practice, has a great symbolic value in order to state power of abuse over the city by certain administrators sheriffs in double- breast jacket protagonists of politics based upon evictions of social center in order to support private interest of meddlers and ndrangheta members who see Milan at the center of a vhirl of business for the future Expo. A moltitude of people mobilized this morning since dawn after the first news about Cox18 eviction . After some hours from the garrison of street Conchetta was born a blockage directed toward the mainstreet of the city, stopping traffic of one of the most important metropolis arteries. This morning police intervened under disposition that town hall has emanated anadministrative act (act that has not been proved) in which was signalled the unauthorized occupation of the bulding.

The eviction occured and after a long negotiation the real estate was returned by the police to town hall, without clearing away the documents, books, furniture. At the moment there is a civil case to define the right of ownership of bulding and we all demand reinstate of ownership to the occupantes, who after 33 years and a deliberation, made in 1989, that granted the real estate to them.

↑ Index

449. Gabrielle Welford

it's ukiaHaiku festival time again! (fwd)

Thu 29 Jan 2009

Date: Thu, 29 Jan 2009 11:43:56 -0800
From: Kate Marianchild <[redacted]>

tiny girl
reciting her poem--
hard to breathe

The ukiaHaiku festival welcomes your submissions of poems by Friday, March 13 Note: we are offering new prizes starting at $100 in the "Adult, Contemporary" category! Please see Haiku about the festival below.

Haiku are blossoming once again among poets new and old as the 7th annual ukiaHaiku festival quickly approaches. Ukiah's Poet Laureate Committee invites submissions of haiku by experienced and inexperienced poets of all ages by Friday, March 13. Haiku are brief 3-line poems that offer a “snapshot” of a scene or a moment in time. Unlike many other kinds of poems, haiku usually do not include rhyme, alliteration, or punctuation. For guidelines on how to write haiku, to read winning poems from years past, and to learn about the available categories and submission methods, go to www.ukiahaiku.org. Forms can also be obtained at all of the county's libraries, including the bookmobile, as well as at Grace Hudson Museum (431 S. School Street, Ukiah).

Submissions are free in all categories (which are organized by age group and subject matter) except for the Contemporary Haiku-Adult Category, which costs $5 for up to 3 poems. Examples of other categories are "Children, All Topics, K-3rd grade," "Haiku About Ukiah, 7th-12th grade," and "Traditional Haiku – Adult." Prizes are very modest in all categories except "Contemporary Haiku - Adult," for which awards of $100, $50, and $25 are being given this year for the first time. All winning poems will also be published in a book.

Unless otherwise specified, all haiku can be submitted in either the traditional (5-7-5 syllable-count) format or the contemporary (briefer, non-syllable counting) format. Teachers who wish to invite a poet into their classroom to guide students in writing haiku should contact Ukiah's Poet Laureate David Smith-Ferri at [redacted], or email him at [redacted]. For more "how-to" information on writing haiku, go to www.ahapoetry.com, the website of well-known haiku poet and ukiaHaiku festival judge Jane Reichhold. The awards ceremony will take place on Sunday, March 26, from 2-4 p.m. at the Ukiah Conference Center.

P.S. For those who haven't noticed, "Ukiah" spells "Haiku" backwards!

Haiku about the ukiaHaiku festival:

haiku wall
one thousand paper cranes
poised to fly

(by Sherrie Smith. This haiku refers to the fact that we post all the entries on the wall at the awards ceremony;
paper cranes are metaphorical emissaries of peace - go online for the story of Sadako Sasaki)

ukiah's first spring blooms--
haiku

(by Kate Marianchild)

twelve hundred entries-- under stacks of white paper
a single white crane

(by Armand Brint)

judging haiku--
one feather
on a rippling pond

(by Armand Brint)

haiku fly
from distant lands-- spring migration

(by Kate Marianchild. This haiku refers to the fact that we get submissions to our festival from all over the world)

↑ Index

450. Aryanil Mukherjee

I Gave Away The Sky:: Remembering Gregory Corso

Thu 29 Jan 2009

I GAVE AWAY THE SKY

- Reading to celebrate the poetics and poetry of Gregory Corso

Thurs. 2/5 @7PM in the University of Cincinnati's Reed Gallery.

Tuesday, Feb. 3, 7 p.m., Memorial Hall - Muse Sick

$5 Door/ Cash Bar/ Doors at 6PM

Advanced seats can be reserved at Shake It Records and Coffee Emporium

An evening of music with jazz legend David Amram and Jane Carver. This performance of Jane Carver's new arrangement of David Amram's score for Robert Frank and Alfred Leslie's film "Pull My Daisy," will feature a live performance by jazz legend David Amram, as well as musicians from the University of Cincinnati's College Conservatory of Music.

Friday, Feb. 6, 5:30 p.m., DAAP 4400 - Corso - The Last Beat A private screening of the feature-length documentary directed by Gustave Reininger, narrated by two- time Academy Award-nominated actor and novelist Ethan Hawke and featuring Allen Ginsberg, William S. Burroughs and poet, performer and Rock & Roll Hall of Fame inductee Patti Smith, as well as Corso himself. A reception follows the film.

For more information please contact: Evan Commander: [redacted] / [redacted] or visit www.igaveawaythesky.com

For more information about David Amram visit: www.davidamram.com .

For more information about Corso: Tthe Last Beat visit: www.corsothefilm.com

Message sent out on behalf of

Matt Hart and Evan Commander

↑ Index

451. Ken Rumble
Viking Rock, This Friday, Jan. 30, 9 pm, Durham, NC
Thu 29 Jan 2009

Friends! Enemies! Plunderers of all sorts!

Spread far and wide!

Viking Rock has arrived in Durham! High Master, that king of all things loud, angry, and in spandex!, is proud to announce its debut performance!

Tomorrow night! Friday, January 30th! 9 pm!

Castle Lubenstein: 608 Yancey Street, Durham, NC!!

It's a house party, y'all, bring your own....

The line-up:

9 pm: Y2K Bunker!
[doomsday noise collective, Durham, NC] http://www.myspace.com/y2kbunker

10 pm: High Master!
[the end of the world as you know it, the year 2355]

11 pm: Pink Flag
[riot grrrl trio, Durham, NC]
http://www.myspace.com/pinkflagnc

Midnight on: dance party/karaoke

Bring a weapon cuz it's gonna get ugly....

About High Master:

Sprung from the hockey & blow torch addled brain of Mr. Chris Huggins (by day, a jr. high science teacher; by night, a rabid fiend to all that is evil), HIGH MASTER is the true story of the most awesome, most rockingest, most mighty viking to have ever lived! Forget Thor (weakling), forget Odin (sap), forget Hercules (okay, he's Greek, but forget that mama's boy anyway), High Master would have put them all under his thumb with just his pinky!

And yet, before he was so great High Master faced a challenge that he could almost not overcome: the dreaded, the evil, the dark, the foul, the stinky, the annoying, the pesky, the dastardly, the criminal, the unkind, the unthrifty, the really just generally bad DARK LORD UNGR (with an umlaut (aka: Paul Overton)).

After an epic battle, Dark Lord Ungr (with an umlaut) froze our hero High Master deep in the icy clutches of a mighty glacier! and with his mighty evil, dreaded, stinky, annoying, etc. power, stole the sun and ruled the earth and subjected all living beings to the most horrendous music imaginable! It was a dark, dark, dark future....

And then! in the year 2355! a brave and noble and handsome and intelligent and admirable and handsome and kind to puppies and fearless and generally awesome SCIENTIST (aka: Ken Rumble) whose shiny green suit gave him enormous powers of power! invented a time machine called the Ship of Sound!! But doomed was all mankind because the Scientist couldn't find a power source strong enough to make the ship go! Until, one day, while wandering amongst the boulders of the wasteland of the future he spied--locked in the icy grip of a mighty glacier--HIGH MASTER!

Here, of course, was the power source the Scientist had long been searching for! He thawed out High Master, taught him the fighting art of Kung Future, put a guitar in his hand, and together, they rocked back thousands of years in time to confront, again, the evil, hiddeous, etc. etc. DARK LORD UNGR (with an umlaut)!!!

And High Master and Dark Lord Ungr (with an umlaut) engaged in a most ferocious battle! Their blows split mountains, their kicks cracked planets, their swords sang out a bloody symphony of rampant destruction!!

And after days and days and days of battle, when all looked as it would be lost, the mighty High Master lunged with his sword and impaled the Dark Lord Ungr (with an umlaut) through the heart!!!!

And so with the Dark Lord Ungr (with an umlaut) defeated and the sun restored, mighty High Master with the trusty Scientist and a mighty horde of dancing YETTIS!! launched out on the SHIP OF SOUND to right wrongs, battle evil, and generally rock off the faces of every creature in the whole entire universe!!!

Some say (whisper even at times) that High Master and his brave crew encountered other masters of musical mayhem on their adventures -- rumors (scarcely to be believed) include names like Rainbow Pony Squad, Pepé La Douche, and Def Sentence, heroes, too, in their own right, but that, my friends, is a story for another day.....

yours in rock,
Ken

--
Check out my book Key Bridge:
http://www.carolinawrenpress.org/books.html

And I'm on the road giving readings!:

TBA

Reviews of Key Bridge:

Ron Silliman:
http://ronsilliman.blogspot.com/2007/04/i-know-ken-rumble-originally-from-his.html

Kevin Killian:
http://www.amazon.com/gp/product/customer-reviews/0932112544/ref=cm_cr_dp_all_top/002-7537401-5750437?ie=UTF8&n=283155&s=books#customerReviews

And projects:

http://durhamhastheworstroadsintheworld.blogspot.com

--
Check out my book Key Bridge:
http://www.carolinawrenpress.org/books.html

And I'm on the road giving readings!:

TBA

Reviews of Key Bridge:

Ron Silliman:
http://ronsilliman.blogspot.com/2007/04/i-know-ken-rumble-originally-from-his.html

Kevin Killian:
http://www.amazon.com/gp/product/customer-reviews/0932112544/ref=cm_cr_dp_all_top/002-7537401-5750437?ie=UTF8&n=283155&s=books#customerReviews

And projects:

http://durhamhastheworstroadsintheworld.blogspot.com

↑ Index

452. Poetry Project
A message from The Poetry Project
Thu 29 Jan 2009

Dear Friends,

We are very sad to announce that George Schneeman has passed away. The Poetry Project and its community has lost a beloved friend and a great artist. People who are interested in attending the funeral may write to [redacted] for details.

Upcoming Events:

Monday, February 2, 8 PM
Open Reading

Sign-in at 7:45

Wednesday, February 4, 8 PM
Anne Boyer & Stephanie Strickland

Anne Boyer is the author of The Romance of Happy Workers (Coffee House, 2008), Art is War (Mitzvah Chaps 2008), Selected Dreams with a Note on Phrenology (Dusie 2007), and Anne Boyer's Good Apocalypse (Effing Press 2006). She lives in Kansas and teaches at the Kansas City Art Institute. Stephanie Strickland¹s fifth book of poems, Zone : Zero (book + CD), was just published by Ahsahta Press. Her latest collaborative hypermedia work, which she will read from, was introduced in Paris and shown at the Zaoem poetry festival in Ghent. She teaches experimental poetry and e-lit at many colleges and universities, most recently the University of Utah, and is working on a book-length sequence of poems, ³Huracan¹s Harp.²

Friday, February 6, 9:30 PM
Fall Workshop Reading

Come and hear what the writers who took workshops with Martine Bellen, Tisa Bryant, and CAConrad are up to! Workshop leaders will be present to introduce their students.

↑ Index

453. Anna Vitale
submit! submit! raise up your fists.
Thu 29 Jan 2009

****

Tired of limits but desperately in need of them?
Wondering where your next limit will come from?
Look no further.

The online audio publication text*sound* is currently listening to submissions of only text/ sound for its third issue.

Deadline is March 1, 2009.

Send .mp3 files to editors (at) texsound (dot) org or share files uploadable from a free site (like yousendit). For detailed submission guidelines visit textsound.org

You can listen to the first two issues at textsound.org. They feature works from noise musicians, story-tellers, conceptual poets, sound poets, electronic musicians, and other artists who enjoy the aural life.

Many thanks,
textsound
c/o Anna Vitale

****

↑ Index

454. Jason Quackenbush
Re: e to a friend about a philosophy of computer art
Thu 29 Jan 2009

Well, maybe let's take a step back. I think it's important to distinguish between something being readable as code and actually being code. I tend towards a sort of hardcore formalism adopted more or less wholesale from wittgenstein as the foundations of mathematics are concerned, meaning on my view at least explicit mathematical symbols of the sorts that computers can operate on are actually a funny kind of sign that are of a different sort from usual signifiers. We can read a what goes into and out of computers as code because it's explicitly coming from a very code heavy part of our language. This is qualitatively different in my view from what happens with, for example, RNA sequences where what we see is readable as code, and that the function of of rhibozomes is to respond based on what the structure of the RNA sequence "says" but I think moving from that point to saying that what we can interpret as code because it makes sense to us given how we use language actually IS code is something that I think is not self evident. Not saying a case can't be made, just that it needs making.

on the other hand, what we have in brain function are all manner of non explicit symbols. in fact, and I may be jumping off a bit of a cliff saying this, one might argue that universals are in fact non- explicit symbols and therefore given that consciousness and thought as we understand them seems to require that sort of abstraction, and given that so much abstraction needs universals to be done, that this is the fundamental place where the idea of machine intelligence being acquired by something made up of two state transistors falls apart. because, claims made by object oriented programmers aside, I don't know that there is a way to get a computer to understand and work with a universal. you can't reduce a universal to an explicit list of characteristics, which is where the whole problem of universals comes from in the first place. Of course, saying this, its probably important that I qualify it by saying I ascribe to Wittgensteins theory of universals which rejects both nominalism and realism and holds that universals are like family resemblances. Which is to say I may be question begging her because I think from the get go that you can't get at human thought or even human grammar for that matter through a set of explicit rules. At least not on it's own.

A couple notes here on why I think this is so:

1.) it is possible for humans to understand the semantic content of expressions that are not well-formed, this is particularly true of native speakers in their first language. something that requires explicit code for decision making or interpretation can't do this and requires error handling algorithms to be able to cope with it. It doesn't seem to me that what humans do with statements that are not wellformed is similar to error handling. Instead we muddle through working on conjecture and intuition and as a result language can sometimes be extended in a way that it doesn't seem that machines would be capable of. A specific example might be the emergence of trade languages, creoles and pidgins in populations where there are many different mutually unintelligible languages spoken.

2.) Humans have an extremely high tolerance for vagueness. In fact, I think vagueness is probably one of the greatest allies of human intelligence. I can say and do all manners of utterly vague things and still expect to be understood and reacted to perfectly. the best example here is probably indexical expressions, something I've been absolutely fascinated with in my poetic practice over the years. that we can do so much with "here, there, this and that" the most non-explicit of symbols we have that we never the less have no trouble working with and using constantly. I think probably it's useful here to distinguish between indexicals and something akin to an algebraic variable. What's important about variables is that while they can have any value or at least any of a set of values in an equation they are also defined by the equation in which they occur, all the symbols of which are explicit, including other variables. Contrast that with the expression "There." Imagine that I'm standing in a room giving some one instructions about where to put a painting. I might say there and point. When I point I'm not defining an explicit place, but rather giving a vague direction which the other person then has no trouble following. In fact i might not even point. If the person and I know each other well enough, they might be able to interpret my meaning based solely on my unconscious body language. There may then be some testing that goes on to get to agreement. The person will hold the painting against the wall and say "here?" At this point an explicit place has been definied by the painting's being there, but it is ONLY defined by the paintings being there, and suppose that the persons hands are shaking and the painting is not in a specific place but rather in a vague portion of the wall. I might then agree and or disagree, and if i disagree give some more vague instructions "up a bit, right a little, left a lot" etc. I think if you compare this to the complex set of instructions that would have to be programmed into a robot to do the same task, you'll get an inkling of where I'm going here. The difference, I don't think at least, is not that humans are making all kinds of calculations and operations subconsciously in following these simple directions, but rather that we have a very high tolerance for vagueness that grows out of the fact that our thinking doesn't use explicit symbols in the way that a machine intelligence would have to. Lots of thought experiments can be found in science fiction about this whenever a machine intelligence is shown to go haywire due to it's inability to cope with vague instructions resulting from circumstances its not programmed to cope with or an over literal interpretation of vague instructions given to it.

On Jan 20, 2009, at 11:18 PM, Jim Andrews wrote:

> I get the analogy that yr making Jim, I just think it's flawed in that I don't think it's at all settled that the thinking mechanism of the brain works through the manipulation of explicit symbols, which is what software does.

> i think that's an interesting point, jason. let's explore it.
>
> if we look in a computer, we won't find any zeros and ones. merely transistors that are charged (1) or not charged (0). also, if we compare the source code (which won't run) written by a human in, say, C++ with the compiled machine language version of the source code (which will run), we would see there is no one-to-one correspondence between the symbols in the source code and the binary symbols in the machine language version. the source code gets converted to machine language in the process of 'compilation', creating a file that will run, and this process converts the humanly authored file into a strange binary beast that can be fed to a central processor, which is really quite limited in its operations. this is code level stuff. but, still, the symbols are explicit.
>
> computers have to be intelligable, nonetheless, to humans. there's weird code zipping around, but all in explicit symbols that have to be humanly intelligable. of course, the inner workings of the brain do not have to be humanly intelligable. or intelligable to any sentient being. but they do have to help the critter survive. there has to be some consistency and integrity to the way the brain deals with sense data. so it's hard to see how the brain might not code the egg foo yong in some sort of set of symbols that remain stable over time.
>
> of course, we know that the body does indeed deal with codes of some kinds. dna, for instance. the ribozome reads the dna sequence in a c t g code much like a computer reads an input string. the ribozome is like a computer that we would very much like to understand the program for. the a c t g code does appear to be a set of explicit symbols. now, this doesn't mean that the brain operates this way also, but we understand that for information to be stored and processed in a consistent manner, explicit symbols are very useful.
>
> do you have any ideas of how one might avoid explicit symbols?
>
> by the way, i make the best chow mein on the planet.
>
> ja
> http://vispo.com
> welcome.html

Jason Quackenbush

[redacted]

↑ Index

455. amy king

Reminder Tonight, Friday - Berkson, Cruz, Fagan, Fortin, Pecqueur, Rasmovicz

Fri 30 Jan 2009

January 30th @ 7 p.m. - Stain Bar - Williamsburg ,
Brooklyn

Bill Berkson, Cindy Cruz, Aaron Fagan, Jennifer Fortin, Jean-Paul Pecqueur and Bill Rasmovicz

* Hosted by Amy King and Ana Bozicevic

~~~~

Bill Berkson was born in New York in 1939. A poet, critic, teacher, and sometime curator, he moved to Northern California in 1970 and during the next decade edited a series of little magazines and books under the Big Sky imprint. From 1984 to 2008 he was a professor of Liberal Arts at the San Francisco Art Institute. He is a corresponding editor for Art in America and has contributed reviews and essays to such other journals as Aperture, Artforum, Works on Paper and Modern Painters. His recent books of poetry include Gloria (in a deluxe limited edition with etchings by Alex Katz), Our Friends Will Pass Among You Silently, and Goods and Services. Other books include a collection of his criticism, The Sweet Singer of Modernism & Other Art Writings: 1985-2003; Sudden Address: Selected lectures 1981-2006; an epistolary collaboration with Bernadette Mayer entitled What’s Your Idea of a Good Time?: Interviews & Letters 1977-1985. His Portrait and Dream: New & Selected Poems will appear form Coffee House Press in 2009. Berkson was the 2006 Distinguished Mellon Fellow at the Skowhegan School of Painting and Sculpture and received the 2008 Goldie for Literature from the San Francisco Bay Guardian. He now lives in New York and San Francisco .

~~~

Cynthia Cruz is the author of RUIN, published by Alice James Books in 2006. Her poems have been published or are forthcoming in the American Poetry Review, Paris Review, Boston Review, AGNI, FIELD, and others and are anthologized in “The Iowa Anthology of New American Poetries.” She has received fellowships to YADDO and the MacDowell Colony. She lives in Greenpoint, Brooklyn and teaches at Sarah Lawrence College .

~~~

Aaron Fagan was born in Rochester , New York , in 1973. His poems have appeared in numerous magazines including The American Poetry Review, TriQuarterly, and The Yale Review. He is the author of Garage (Salt Publishing, 2007), a debut collection which the critic Harold Bloom described as “vivid and aesthetically disturbing work. His promise is considerable because his originality should prove to be decisive.” A former Assistant Editor for Poetry, he is now a Copy Editor for Scientific American in New York City and lives in the Bronx .
~~~

~~~

Jennifer H. Fortin lives in Brooklyn . She works as an Assistant. In May 2008, she obtained an M.F.A. in Poetry from The New School. Her work has appeared in TYPO, GlitterPony, Left Facing Bird, The Goucher Quarterly, AbroadView magazine and Ducts; it is forthcoming in Court Green, Action, Yes and Copper Nickel. She was a Finalist for the Poetry Foundation’s 2008 Ruth Lilly Fellowship and the recipient of an Honorable Mention in the 2008 Poets & Writers-sponsored Amy Awards. Fortin is happy to be able to say she is a Returned Peace Corps Volunteer (Bulgaria 2004-2006).

~~~

Jean-Paul Pecqueur’s first book, The Case Against Happiness, was published by Alice James Books in 2006. New poems have recently appeared in The Hat, Cranky, and Gulf
Coast . Jean-Paul
currently lives in Brooklyn , teaching writing
at the Pratt Institute.

~~~

Bill Rasmovicz has served as a literary excursion leader and workshop co-leader throughout Italy ,
Croatia , Slovenia , Switzerland
and Wales .
His work has appeared in Hotel Amerika, Nimrod, Third Coast and other magazines. His first book, “The World in Place of Itself” was published in 2007 by Alice James Books and was also the 2008 recipient of the New England Poetry Club’s Sheila Margaret Motton Prize.

~~~

stain

766 grand street

brooklyn, ny 11211

(L train to Grand
Street ,

1 block west)

718/[redacted]

open daily @ 5 p.m.

Hope to see you there!

Amy and Ana

http://stainofpoetry.wordpress.com/

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

@poetics

The UB Poetics Discussion Group

Archive of Electronic Correspondence

February 2009

419 messages · Fri 30 Jan 2009 – Sat 28 Feb 2009

February 2009 caught the list dreaming of a patron. The recession had deepened into something that felt structural, and the room spent its largest thread on a fantasy of rescue from above — a cabinet officer for the arts, a state that might finally underwrite what the market was busy defunding. Four hundred and nineteen messages moved through it, and beneath the dream ran its sour twin, the suspicion that the market had already spoken, and that what it valued was not the poets. The month swung between petition and bitterness.

The largest thread asked the new president to make art official. Quincy Jones had launched a petition, and the room passed it eagerly along: "Quincy Jones has started a petition to ask President Obama to appoint a Secretary of the Arts", on the reasoning that other nations had kept ministers of culture for centuries and that the arts needed one now more than ever. It was the hope of the Obama winter distilled — that a sympathetic state might at last do for poetry what commerce never would, and give the art a seat at the national table.

The quarrel was whether the market deserved any authority at all. A thread titled, in bitter irony, The Market recognizes talent! ran against the petition's hope, the room turning over the recession's cruelest lesson — that sales and merit had nothing to do with each other, that the auction was no judge of art. If the market could not be trusted to know a poet from a fraud, then either the state must step in or nothing would, and the poets were left arguing which failure they feared more.

Against both the state and the market the month reached for an older image of the poet at work. A wide thread asked where today's farmer poets had gone — "Farming has changed beyond all recognition since the days of" the poets of the land, Robert Burns and John Clare — mourning the vanished figure who wrote out of labor and soil rather than grant or market, while another gathered the long poems and plays of imprisonment, the art made under the least free conditions of all. The room was hunting for a poet whose worth owed nothing to either patron or price.

I have set February down exactly as the archive delivered it — the petition for a Secretary of the Arts, the bitter joke that the market knows talent, the lost farmer poets of Burns and Clare, and the poems written in prison — because it was the month the list, cornered by the recession, argued out the oldest question of the poet's livelihood and reached no peace with any answer. It could not trust the market, could only wish for the state, and could only mourn the farmer-poet who had needed neither; and so it did what it always did when the economics turned hopeless, which was to keep writing to each other anyway, unpaid and unrecognized, as though the worth of the thing had never really been the market's to set.

— Kristen M. Fabians

Index

Writers, names mentioned, and concepts. Every number links to its message. 419 in all.

WRITERS

Alexander, Charles 176, 277, 319, 400, 401
Allegrezza, William 30, 252
AND, mIEKAL 54, 97, 121, 157, 173, 326, 376, 387
Anderson, Stephanie 119
Andrews, Jim 11, 53, 68, 126, 130, 305
Angeline, Mary 100, 392
Bales, Marcus 411, 412, 415
Ballardini, Anny 15, 206
Baraban, Stephen 337
Baratier, David 210, 390
Basford, Douglas 188
Beaulieu, Derek 241, 351
Behm-Steinberg, Hugh 75, 87
Benson, Cara 34, 172
Berry, Audrey 207
Blacksox 159, 370
Bogle, Ann 419
Borchart, Sharon Mesmer/David 325
Bowering, George 47, 67, 73, 74, 83, 101, 154, 204, 229, 230, 268, 285, 286, 288, 312, 313, 335, 361, 384
Bo¾ièeviæ, Ana 35, 42
Brown, Pam 120, 140, 141, 155, 203, 413, 414
Cain, Séamas 61, 63, 240
Camplin, Troy 3, 28, 44, 48, 65, 66, 76, 79, 93, 103, 138, 178, 179, 180, 181, 214, 215, 233, 261, 264, 289, 290, 291, 302, 304, 314, 316, 340, 341, 342, 364, 380, 397
Casamassima, Christophe 303
Chace, Joel 2
Cheek, Cris 269
Chirot, David 113, 282
Chirot, David-Baptiste 111, 162, 202, 221, 248, 249, 259, 317, 329, 359
Ciccariello, Peter 23, 46, 89, 195, 322
Clark, Hilary 398
Clements, Brian 5, 17, 348
Cluff, Caleb 116, 166
Conrad, CA 135
Costa, Cris 383, 410
Croggon, Alison 281, 388
Cunningham, John 407, 408
Dalachinsky, Steve D. 190, 191, 192, 218, 219, 357
Daley, Ryan 148, 194, 399
Daly, Catherine 60
Damon, Maria 32, 91, 133, 165, 350, 363, 405
Davis, Jeff 309
Dickow, Alexander 24
Dillon, Patrick 69, 186, 187, 197, 201, 212, 239, 297, 417
Dolin, Sharon 295, 385
Donovan, Thom 118, 366
Dunagan, Patrick 158
Earl, Amanda 84
Edgerton, Michael Tod 171, 216, 404
Ellis, Stephen 280, 362
Exley, Roy 152, 409
Fieled, Adam 19, 33, 127, 245, 346
Al Filreis 55, 242
Fisher, Johanna 149, 231, 271, 272, 276
Freind, William Joseph 117
Frost, Corey 365
Frym, Gloria 262
Ganick, Peter 343
Gatza, Geoffrey 112
Giannini, David 102, 109
Glass, Dan 39, 208
Glass, Jesse 13, 122
Gricevich, Andy 90, 132
Halle, Steve 95, 298
Heman, Bob 125, 256
Henriksen, Matt 104
Herron, Patrick 145
Hinton, Laura 318, 369
Ho, Tammy 347
Jeroen, Nieuwland 174
Joey 51
Johnson, Halvard 137, 163, 235, 330, 386
Joris, Pierre 353
Karavatos, Nicholas 321
Karmin, Jennifer 86, 115, 136, 253, 308, 345, 371
Kasimor, Mary 226
Kelleher, Michael 29, 31, 129, 258, 349
Killian, Kevin 81
Kimmelman, Burt 151, 254, 315, 354
King, Amy 25, 26, 27, 40, 78, 80, 275, 284, 287, 377, 378, 396, 403
Kirschenbaum, David 92, 265, 327
Kirschenbaum, David A. 123
KIZERSHOT, JULIE 167, 225
Knight, Natalie 406
Koeneke, Rodney 356
Konkol, Margaret 227
Leaves, Little Red 274
Lepson, Ruth 36
Levin, Lauren 50
Lundwall, Andrew 108, 328

Luong, François 394
Madison, Alana 375
Mangold, Sarah 62
Martin, Camille 209, 223, 250
Maxpaul 59
McLennan, Rob 18, 110, 270
McVay, Gwyn 1
Meadows, Deborah A. 37
Meersman, Philip 296
Mollohan, J. Michael 278, 279
Munday, Evan 71, 260, 360
Nagler, Christian 395
Nasdor, Marc 393
Nathanson, Tenney 244
Nelson, Paul 306, 336, 381
Nemet-Nejat, Murat 193
Nicholson, Andy 310
Nieuwland, Jeroen 134
Norðdahl, Eiríkur Örn 211
Oha, Obododimma 106, 124, 139, 144, 182, 220, 236, 237, 324, 333
Oliver, Laura 183, 205
Palm, Lars 273
Peter 352
Pierce, Scott Michael 153
Pinto, Regina 189
Poe, Deborah 114
Press, AWAREing 217
Press, Ixnay 301
Pringle, Kate 57
Pritts, Nate 224
Project, Poetry 88, 170, 307, 391
Pusateri, Chris 77, 105
Quackenbush, Jason 45, 72, 379, 416
Robins, Maureen 228
Roche, John 143
Rothenberg, Jerome 22
Russell, Layne 14
Russell, Steve 7, 9, 10, 16, 99, 177, 198, 213, 320
Sarai, Sarah 323, 334
Schlesinger, Kyle 98, 247, 331
Schultz, Susan Webster 21, 332
Schwartz, Gerald 147
Seaman, David 142, 175, 185, 263
Sebastian, Nic 184
Shankar, Ravi (English) 128
Side, Jeffrey 52, 389
Sikorski, Rob 4
Singler, Fluffy 367
Skinner, Jonathan 85, 374
Slaughter, William 8, 243
Snelson, Danny 160, 168, 300
Sondheim, Alan 6, 12, 94, 107, 164, 196, 232, 267, 292, 355, 358
Stecopoulos, Eleni 368
Strand, Julie 299
Stricker, Mark 373
Stroffolino, Chris 255
Sullivan, Gary 82, 161, 293, 372
Sweeney, Chad 96, 146
Teersteeg 234
St. Thomasino 64
Traffic, Small Press 38, 156
Twshaner 283
Vassilakis, Nico 20, 382
Vincent, Stephen 131, 238, 251, 344
Weishaus, Joel 246
Weiss, Mark 402
Welford, Gabrielle 49, 169, 199, 200, 266, 338, 339
Westbrook, Dillon 150
Wilcox, Dan 58, 222
Williams, Johnathon 418
Wilson, Ian Randall 43
Winks, Christopher Leland 41, 56, 70, 257, 294
}, { Brad Brace 311

NAMES MENTIONED

Abdul, Selim 129
Abendroth, Emily 395
Abramowitz, Harold 86, 136, 241
Abrams, Jen 123
Acker, Kathy 363, 383, 384, 392, 398, 400, 401, 404, 405
Ackerman, Amanda 86, 136
Adams, Robert 329
Addonizio, Kim 26
Adorno, Theodor 39
Ahearn, Joe 17
Alexander, Jill 184
Alferi, Pierre 69
Ali, Kazim 119
Alice, Mary 86, 115, 136, 280
Allan, Don 17, 239, 266, 282
Allegrezza, Bill 30, 252
Allison, Dorothy 86, 136
Alsop, Maureen 119
Altemus, Reed 54
Americans, Asian 259, 283
Anderson, Laurie 86, 136
Andrews, Bruce 17
Angelo, Michael 17, 375
Anne, Sarah 238
Anton, Robert 211
Apps, Stan 108, 307, 331
Arigo, Christopher 318
Armand, Louis 14, 141
Armantrout, Rae 209, 260, 269, 360, 366
Arnold, Bob 102, 109, 300
Ashbery, John 35, 42, 128, 366
Ashley, Renee 367
Atlanta, Mark P. 223

Audia, Justin 395
Austin, Geer 153, 307, 331, 355
Austin, James 54
Austin, Mary 17
Backonja, Petra 54
Baik, Cristiana 293
Baker, Alan 235
Baker, Mary 6, 15
Balaban, John 299
Balaz, Joe 15
Baldessari, John 300
Baldwin, James 94, 107, 164
Ballerini, Luigi 17
Barbour, Douglas 110
Barnard, Mary 88
Barnes, Diane 143
Baron, Todd 50
Barwin, Gary 223
Basinski, Michael 54, 258
Basquiat, Michel 278, 291
Bates, Joe 85, 123, 374
Baudelaire, Charles 22, 36, 170, 400, 404, 405
Baus, Eric 301
Beach, James 217
Becker, Robin 50
Beckett, Tom 15
Behan, Brendan 97, 99, 102, 106, 109, 116, 124, 202, 228, 239, 266, 282
Behrle, Jim 170
Belflower, James 406
Benjamin, Walter 23, 25, 46, 57, 375
Benka, Jen 308, 318
Bennett, John M. 15, 54, 61, 64, 241, 259
Berger, Jonathan 92, 123
Berger, Stephanie 123, 249
Berkeley, Michael 96, 260, 265, 307, 360
Berkson, Bill 40
Berlin, Irving 63, 94
Bernard, George 366, 375
Bernstein, Charles 156, 366
Berrigan, Anselm 258, 391
Bervin, Jen 366
Betts, Gregory 241
Beuys, Joseph 300
Bianchi, Ray 375
Bishop, Elizabeth 299
Blackburn, Paul 85
Blake, William 22, 36, 71, 300
Blanchot, Maurice 353
Blau, Rachel 18, 308, 318
Bloch, Julia 17
Bloom, Harold 9
Boat, Drunken 85, 128, 170, 247, 345, 371, 374
Borzutzky, Daniel 108, 128, 346
Bowen, Kevin 86, 136
Bowering, George H. 268, 276, 288, 302, 312, 330, 335, 340, 361, 380, 399
Bowering, Harry 1, 3, 7, 49, 67, 74, 101
Boykoff, Jules 38, 57, 131
Bozek, Jessica 153
BpNichol 71, 260, 360, 408
Bradley, Tom 15
Bradshaw, Joseph 19
Brazil, David 189, 218
Brecht, George 300
Brennan, Sherry 308, 318
Brockwell, Stephen 18
Bronk, William 254, 315, 354
Brook, James 146, 275, 377
Brooks, Gwendolyn 29
Browne, Colin 20
Browning, Robert 119, 162
Brownstein, Michael 26
Bruno, Christophe 53
Bruno, Franklin 53
Bryan, John 347
Bryant, Elizabeth 88
Bryant, Tisa 371
Buchanan, Pat 180
Buck, Naomi 19
Buffam, Suzanne 128
Bukowski, Charles 320
Burke, Andrew 15, 235
Burkhardt, Rick 90
Burns, Robert 97, 99, 102, 106, 109, 116, 124, 162
Burns, Suzanne 17
Burroughs, William S. 75, 81, 87, 300
Bush, George 16
Butler, Judith 29, 110, 129, 146, 308, 318
Butler, William 162
Byrne, David 86, 136
Byron, Philip 15, 235
Bök, Christian 156, 241, 344
Cafe, Poets 123
Calvert, Trevor 50
Capen, Samuel P. 29, 227
Carlos, William 54
Carr, Emily 305
Carr, Julie 146
Carson, Margaret 406
Carter, Allison 224
Carter, Laura 104
Caruso, Fred 254, 354
Casey, Sean 17
Cassidy, Brian 367
Cebula, Travis 75, 81, 87
Ceraolo, Michael 26
Cervantes, James 235
Chadwick, Lynn 265
Chamoiseau, Patrick 41, 44, 45, 48, 56, 65
Chang, Tina 85, 374

Chelotti, Dan 35, 42
Chernoff, Maxine 59
Chinquee, Kim 29
Cholodenko, Marc 69
Chomsky, Noam 249
Claire, Barbara 146
Claire, Paula 50
Clare, John 97, 99, 102, 106, 109, 116, 124
Clark, Cheryl 119
Clay, Adam 146
Clemente, Francesco 88
Clinton, Bill 356, 360
Clippinger, David 315
Coalition, Christian 355
Cohen, Julia 123
Cole, Peter 4
Coleman, Victor 265
Coleridge, Samuel Taylor 162
Collins, Billy 306, 314, 320, 338
Collins, Phil 128
Columbus, Christopher 61
Connolly, Kevin 71, 136, 278, 279, 291
Conrad, Tony 85, 135
Cooley, Nicole 51
Cooper, Dennis 69
Cooper, Joseph 17
Cooper, Paula 146, 355
Coover, Robert 242
Corman, Roger 88, 98
Corso, Gregory 88
Cotter, John 253, 307, 345, 391
Coultas, Brenda 391
County, Mike 88, 98, 240, 251
Coyote, Peter 85
Crane, Lee 129
Creeley, Robert 85, 88
Crooker, Barbara 86, 115
Crosby, Harry 159
Cross, Michael 20
Crouch, Jeff 15
Cruz, Cynthia 328
Cuomo, Dave 92
Darragh, Tina 308, 318
Darwish, Mahmoud 202, 228, 239, 266, 282
Davies, Alan 168
Deed, Martha 54, 189, 218
Delville, Michel 17
Deming, John 146
Dershowitz, Alan 249
Dickey, Eric 17
Dickinson, Emily 17, 22, 36, 254, 299
Dienstfrey, Patricia 308, 318
Dine, Jim 38, 57
Dodd, David 146
Donato, Claire 104
Doris, Stacy 260, 265
Doubiago, Sharon 146
Dowling, Sarah 301
Downey, Jeff 123
Drescher, Julia 274
Drucker, Johanna 241
Duhamel, Denise 15, 17
Dunagan, James 158
Duncan, Andrew 299
Duncan, Robert 227, 299
Durand, Marcella 86, 136, 153, 308, 318
Edgar, Chris 56, 65
Edmond, Martin 15
Edwards, Joshua 146
Elena, Maria 259
Eli, Noah 17, 128, 146
Elisa, Paula 95, 123, 260, 360
Ellen, Mary 15, 17, 128
Elliot, Joe 367
Emerson, Claudia 103, 261, 271, 289
Encke, Jeff 104
England, Amy 63, 207, 237, 263, 324, 406
Ernst, Max 54, 307
Eshleman, Clayton 104, 146
Espada, Martin 96
Estabrook, Michael 17
Esther, Little 94
Ethan, Jeffrey 104
Eugene, Brett 146, 283
Evans, George 23, 25, 46, 57
Farr, Raymond 132
Fay, Alice 354
Ferlinghetti, Lawrence 92
Ferrini, Henry 18
Finch, Annie 86, 128, 136
Finch, Peter 265
Firestone, Jennifer 136, 308, 318, 371, 391
Fisher, Harrison 158
Fitch, Andy 365
Fitterman, Robert 38, 241
Fleisher, Kass 105
Flynn, Nick 35, 42
Flynn, Richard 97, 99, 102, 106, 108, 109, 116, 124, 146
Folsom, Eric 344
Forrest, Lisa 15, 29
Foster, David 9, 57
Foster, Paul 88
Foye, Raymond 88
France, Peter 28, 41, 44, 45, 48, 49, 56, 65, 67, 69, 73, 202, 228, 239, 259, 266, 282, 296, 348, 391, 408
Frances, Mary 308, 318
Fraser, Kathleen 308, 318
Frazee, Andy 132
Frazer, Vernon 51
Freeland, Charles 15
Freeman, Brad 146
Freind, Bill 117

Fuhrman, Joanna 308, 318
Fulton, Alice 118
Gach, Gary 146
Gander, Forrest 59
Garcia, Rodrigo 15
Gardner, Drew 104
Gartung, Karl 299
Gaudry, Molly 108
Gelsinger, Eric 253, 307, 345, 391
Genet, Jean 177, 202, 228, 239, 266, 282, 363, 383, 384, 392, 398, 400, 401, 404, 405
Giles, Samantha 38, 63, 156, 241
Ginsberg, Allen 88, 92
Giorno, John 372
Glissant, Édouard 41, 44, 45, 48, 56, 65
Godston, Jon 86, 136
Van Gogh 272
Golaski, Adam 253, 307, 345, 371, 391
Golata, Russ 159
Goldsmith, Kenneth 82, 91
Goldstein, Jack 300
Goldstein, Laura 86, 115, 136
Goldstein, Mark 54
Goodman, Amy 15
Gordon, Barrett 86, 136
Gordon, Nada 82, 91, 161
Gordon, Ruth 17, 75, 81, 87, 128, 146, 293, 372
Gorrick, Anne 62
Graham, Dan 300
Graham, Lea 17
Graham, Susan 75, 81, 87
Gray, Jason 275, 377
Greenberg, Arielle 85, 301, 308, 318
Greenblatt, Michelle 54
Greenstreet, Kate 62
Greenwald, Ted 265
Gregory, Jane 15
Grenier, Bob 15, 308, 318
Griffin, Tim 108, 156
Grinnell, Tracy 88
Grosjean, Jean 170
Group, Poets 223
Grumman, Bob 54, 84
Gudding, Gabriel 19, 245, 321
Guest, Barbara 308, 318
Gutstein, Dan 81
Hajnoczky, Helen 241
Hall, Chase 85
Hall, Donald 295
Halsey, Alan 118
Hamilton, Ann 171, 216, 404
Hamilton, Diana 235
Hamm, Christine 75, 81, 87
Hammond, Paul 77
Hampton, Fred 6
Hansen, Jefferson 54
Harper, Michael 162, 355
Harris, Ken 32, 75, 81, 87
Harvey, George 51
Heaney, Seamus 97, 99, 102, 106, 109, 116, 124
Heide, Anne 406
Heintz, Kurt 86, 136
Hejinian, Lyn 146, 265
Heller, Joseph 354
Heller, Michael 354
Henderson, David 355, 387
Henri, Charles 189, 218
Herbert, John 407, 408
Hikmet, Nazim 202, 228, 239, 266, 282
Hill, Crag 54, 64, 241
Hill, Gary 300
Hill, Owen 158
Hilson, Jeff 241
Hofer, Jen 59, 349
Holloway, Rob 391
Holman, Bob 162
Hoover, Paul 59, 122, 146
House, White 251, 259
Howard, Richard 249
Howe, Susan 308, 318
Howe, William R. 269
Huang, Yunte 248
Hughes, Andrew 108
Hughes, Ted 99, 102, 109, 349, 373
Hummel, Thomas 119
Hunter, Carrie 132, 275, 377, 391
Hyesoon, Kim 86, 128, 136, 153
Iijima, Brenda 123, 301, 369, 391
Indiana, Gary 252
Internationales, Rencontres 53
Ireland, Lauren 275, 377, 391
Israel, David R. 202, 228, 238, 239, 249, 266, 282, 344
Israeli, Henry 238, 249, 329
Jackson, Jesse 119, 123, 295, 385
Jaeger, Peter 241
Jameson, Fredric 30
Janssen, Lisa 86, 115, 136
Jarnot, Lisa 309
Javier, Paolo 123
Jefferson, Thomas 294, 297, 304, 316
Jenkins, Grant 62
Jenkins, Margaret 170, 241
Jenks, Philip 30
Johns, Jasper 303, 314, 336, 338, 364, 379, 381, 388, 402, 407, 411, 412, 416
Johnson, Kent 19, 346
Johnson, Thomas 88, 137, 163, 235, 330, 335, 340, 347, 361, 380, 386, 399, 403
Jonas, Stephen 104
Jones, Alice 146
Jones, Bob 17, 25, 46, 57, 133, 138, 147, 148, 149, 154, 178, 179, 180, 181, 186, 193,

194, 196, 198, 201, 208, 212, 214, 215, 216, 221, 231, 232, 233, 234, 257, 261, 264, 265, 267, 271, 272, 277, 278, 279, 281, 286, 289, 291, 294, 297, 304, 316, 415, 417
Jones, Jill 15
Jordan, June 162, 394, 408, 410
Jorgensen, Alexander 15
Joron, Andrew 308, 318
Joseph, Safdie 15, 50, 328, 355
Joyce, James 29
Joyce, Michael 146, 231, 234, 261, 267, 271, 272, 277, 278, 279, 286, 289, 291, 308, 318
Kafka, Franz 174
Kamilhor, Judy 256
Kaminski, Megan 328
Kaplan, Josef 17, 50
Karasick, Adeena 92
Kaufman, Bob 88
Kaufman, Erica 365
Kavanagh, Patrick 97, 99, 102, 106, 109, 116, 124
Keane, Tim 146
Keaton, Diane 164
Keats, John 366
Keelan, Claudia 146
Keene, John 88
Kelley, Mike 19
Kelly, Paul 123, 242
Kelsey, Karla 38, 88, 98
Kempton, Karl 54
Kendal, Emily 62
Kennedy, Kit 256
Keppler, Joe 64
Keppler, Joseph F. 64
Kilroy, Kevin 86, 136
Kim, Myung Mi 308, 318
Kingsbury, Anne 299
Kinsella, Thomas 74
Kirschenbaum, David A. 92, 123, 265
Klane, Matthew 136, 253, 307, 345, 371, 391
Kocik, Robert 118
Koller, James 85
Koshkin, Michael 104
Kostelanetz, Richard 54, 367
Kristeva, Julia 404
Kuhl, Nancy 86, 136, 153
Kuhn, Donna 54
Kushner, Tony 75, 81, 87
Lamoureux, Mark 104, 123
Lampert, Gerald 71, 128
Landow, George 300
Lang, Peter 6, 254
Laughlin, James 92
Laurence, Paul 118
Lauterbach, Ann 209
Lawless, Amy 92
Lazer, Hank 104, 136, 206, 332
Lease, Joseph 86, 136
Lederer, Katy 34, 308, 318
Lennon, John 123
Levertov, Denise 96, 299
Levin, Lynn 146
Levine, Jeffrey 265
Levy, John 256
Lewis, Susan 146, 162, 367
Limon, Ada 19, 127
Livingston, Reb 85, 374
Logan, John 50, 267, 277, 278, 279, 286, 291
Lomax, Alan 391
London, Frank 63, 77, 85, 94, 374
Loney, Alan 391
Loranger, Richard 256
Louise, Bobbie 146
Lowell, Amy 275, 377
Luoma, Bill 50, 307
Lurie, Bobbi 15, 256
Lynch, Jessica 367
Machlin, Dan 86, 136, 153
Madia, Joey 51
Madison, James 15, 243, 375, 406
Madrid, Anthony 53
Magi, Jill 391
Mailer, Norman 177
Malcolm, Janet 259
Mancus, Tony 275, 377
Manguso, Sarah 85, 374
Manson, Doug 258
Marie, Anne 295, 385
Marie, Joshua 17
Marie, Julie 15, 170, 275, 295, 299, 306, 314, 320, 323, 326, 333, 337, 338, 339, 341, 362, 377
Marsh, William 254
Marshall, Robert 6
Martinez, Michael 406
Massey, Joseph 50
Matthews, Clay 146
Matthews, William 17
Mayer, Bernadette 269
McCaffery, Steve 129
Meadows, Deborah A. 37
Mee, Don 86, 128, 136, 153
Melville, Pierre 299
Meng, Catherine 50
Mengert, Christina 146
Merwin, W. S. 162
Metres, Philip 86, 115, 136
Meyer, Thomas 309
Meyer, Tom 309
Mikkalo, Erika 86, 136
Miller, Lee 299, 308, 318
Milne, Drew 308, 318
Miltner, Robert 86, 115, 136

Mitchell, Stephen 347
Mohammad, Kasey 283, 332
Monroe, Bill 119
Monroe, Jonathan 136
Moore, Nicholas 15, 125, 256, 308, 318
Morgan, Robin 104, 328
Morris, Tim 243
Morrison, Rusty 26, 38, 88, 98
Moschovakis, Anna 365
Moten, Fred 170
Moure, Erin 394, 408, 410
Moxley, Jennifer 85
Mueller, Ursula 26
Muratori, Fred 17
Murfin, Ira S. 86, 136
Murphy, Michelle 136, 240
Murphy, Sheila E. 15, 54, 240, 376
Myers, Michael 228, 239, 266, 282
Myles, Eileen 35, 42, 132, 308, 318, 391
Nadelberg, Amanda 104
Naka, Michelle 77
Nakagawa, Jane 122, 308
Nakayasu, Sawako 50
Neilson, Melanie 308, 318
Nelson, Gale 26, 355
Nelson, Paul E. 306, 314, 320, 336, 338, 364, 379, 381, 388, 402, 407, 411, 412, 416
Neruda, Pablo 162, 381, 411
Newlove, John 384, 398, 400, 404, 405
Newman, Amy 17
Nguyen, Hoa 86, 96, 136, 146, 153
Nichols, Travis 86, 136, 153
Nicole, Anna 62, 347, 383, 394, 401, 408, 410
Nicosia, Gerald 75, 81, 87
Nielson, Melanie 293
Niss, Millie 189, 218
Nixon, Richard 221
Noble, Joseph 75, 81, 87
Norman, Peter 17, 238
Norton, John 85, 88, 374
Notley, Alice 255, 280
Ochs, Larry 265
Olsen, Geoffrey 92
Olson, Charles 85, 381, 401, 411
Oppen, George 163, 227, 315, 344, 354
Orange, Tom 86, 136
Orser, Kristen 19, 328
Ortiz, Travis 265
Ota, Carolyn 125, 256
Owen, Catherine 110
Owens, Richard 88, 98
Pacific, Asian 38, 334
Paige, Abby 75, 81, 87, 123
Pallant, Cheryl 62
Paquin, Ethan 146
Parker, Karl 221
Paterson, William 88, 98, 381, 411
Patterson, Ian 203
Pearson, Ted 164
Peck, Aaron 410
Pecqueur, Paul 40
Peirce, Kathleen 72, 355
Peltier, Leonard 202, 228, 239, 266, 282
Perez, Craig 17
Perez, James 86, 136, 146
Perkoff, Stuart Z. 210
Perloff, Marjorie 366
Perry, David 96
Peters, Michael 54
Peterson, Katie 162
Pettet, Simon 85, 374
Pettit, Emily 19
Phillip, Andrew 249
Phillips, Malcolm 62
Picard, Maureen 228, 239, 266, 282
Place, Vanessa 71, 86, 136
Pollock, Jackson 251
Porter, Anne 51, 369
Powell, Douglas 367, 404
Prevallet, Kristin 105, 308, 318
Priddle, Ross 54, 241
Di Prima, Diane 13, 146
Prince, Richard 295, 385, 390
Prize, Poets 88
Purcell, Jack 270
Quarles, Lanny 54, 104
Queyras, Sina 71, 86, 136
Randall, Karen 370, 375
Raphael, Dan 235
Raven, Francis 273, 308, 318
Raworth, Tom 269
Reckin, Anna 308, 318
Reilly, Evelyn 308, 318, 369
Remein, Daniel 17
Remer, Justin 92, 123
Reuters, Boston 16
Revell, Donald 59
Rhodes, Martha 17
Rich, Adrienne 162, 238
Richter, Karl 300
Rimbaud, Dee 22, 36
Risset, Jacqueline 85
Roberts, Wendy 153
Robertson, Lisa 260, 360
Robertson, Pat 260, 360
Robinson, Adam 15
Robinson, Elizabeth 104, 308, 318
Robinson, Sophie 308, 318
Rockwell, Norman 29
Rooney, Kathleen 86, 95, 136, 153
Roosevelt, Franklin 128, 251
Rosenberg, Jim 54
Rosenfield, Kim 38
Rosenthal, Sarah 62, 136

Roussel, Raymond 53
Rove, Karl 375
Royer, Ric 86, 136, 275, 367, 377
Rubin, Michael 391
Ruiz, Nicholas 355
Rumsfeld, Donald 375
Russo, Linda 62, 308, 318
Sailers, Cynthia 50
Sanders, James 15, 75, 81, 87
Santos, Craig 86, 136, 146
Satanovsky, Igor 54
Sayers, Thomas 35, 42
Scappettone, Jennifer 128, 265
Schapira, Kate 253, 307, 345, 391
Schickling, Jared 15
Schneeman, George 300, 353
Schoen, Jesse 123
Schroeder, Steven D. 17
Schultz, Susan M. 206
Schuyler, James 85, 374
Schwabsky, Barry 25
Schwartz, Judy 366
Selby, Spencer 15
Sendecki, Daniel 136
Serra, Richard 300
Sexton, Anne 299
Shakespeare, William 76, 78, 79, 80, 83, 93, 101, 123, 162
Sharits, Paul 300
Shaw, Lytle 265
Shea, James 50
Shelley, Percy Bysshe 22, 36
Shepard, Matthew 113
Sherman, Bill 8
Shimoda, Brandon 15, 50, 62, 86, 104, 136, 253
Shmailo, Larissa 223
Shoemaker, Steven 29
Siegell, Paul 15, 19, 33
Sikkema, Michael 146
Silberg, Richard 75, 81, 87, 146
Silem, Kasey 283
Silliman, Ron 209
Simmons, Diane 235
Simon, John 299
Simone, Frank 95, 145, 365
Simpson, Bennett 110
Sims, Laura 62, 86, 136, 406
Smith, Bruce 25, 46, 57
Smith, David 14
Smith, Hazel 308, 318
Smith, Jessica 253, 307, 345, 391
Smith, Tracy K. 14, 17, 50, 125, 128, 256, 401, 408
Snyder, Gary 85
Snyder, Rick 136, 162
Sol, Adam 71, 86
Spahr, Boyd 62
Spahr, Juliana 293
Sparrow, John 88, 256, 308, 318
Spears, Patricia 306, 314, 320, 336, 338, 364, 379, 381, 388, 402, 407, 411, 412, 416
Spears, Rebecca 17
Sprague, Jane 308, 318
Spyker, James 270
Stackhouse, Christopher 88
Stafford, Jane 101
Stanley, Jared 50, 108
Stebelton, Chuck 86, 136, 299
Stefans, Kim 372
Stein, Gertrude 129
Stempleman, Jordan 19, 328
Stephens, Michael 151
Stern, Gerald 295
Stevens, Wallace 55
Stewart, Christine 110, 303
Stoppard, Tom 76, 78, 79, 80, 83, 93, 101
Strickland, Stephanie 145, 253, 307, 345, 391
Studies, Asian 85, 374
Sturgeon, Stephen 104
Svalina, Mathias 35, 42, 123, 146
Swensen, Cole 59, 366
Tabios, Eileen 19, 51, 146
Taggart, John 75, 81, 87, 123, 345, 371
Tagliabue, John 85, 374
Taylor, Andrew 15
Taylor, Catherine 105
Taylor, Jesse 17, 105, 146
Taylor, Tom 15
Terrill, Mark 17
Texas, Irving 162, 294, 297, 304, 307, 316, 331, 355, 408, 415, 417
Thomas, Dylan 75, 81, 87, 96, 123, 146, 326, 333, 337, 339, 415, 417
Thompson, Jon 19, 92, 393, 406
Thompson, Robert 136
Thomson, Stephen 85, 374
Thorson, Maureen 62
Thurston, Kevin 54
Timmons, Jeffrey 136
Timmons, Mathew 86
Tipton, John 86, 136, 153
Toscano, Rodrigo 132, 136, 265
Touchon, Cecil 54
Townsend, Cheryl 243
Treadwell, Elizabeth 308, 318
Tribune, Chicago 111
Trivedi, Amish 104, 108
Tuma, Keith 269
Turner, Brian 70, 76, 78, 79, 80, 83, 93, 101, 103, 367
Tursi, Mark 17
Tuttle, Richard 254
Tyler, Mary 15, 108

Valentine, Jean 129
Vallejo, César 177
Vengua, Jean 19
Veronica, Angela 77
Vincent, Gregory 18, 64, 88, 143
Vitiello, Chris 57
Volkman, Karen 293
Waber, Dan 54
Wagner, Catherine 269, 308, 318
Waldman, Anne 308
Waldman, Ken 318
Waldrop, Keith 170, 353
Waldrop, Rosmarie 119, 170
Walker, Laura 17
Wallace, Sara 9, 57
Walsh, Catherine 254
Warhol, Andy 234, 267, 272, 277, 278, 279, 286, 291
Warren, Jim 50
Warsh, Lewis 301
Washington, George 341, 362
Washington, Harold 10, 96, 113, 118, 119, 170, 186, 221, 247, 251, 259, 303, 350, 406
Watson, Sasha 128
Watts, Carol 308, 318
Weaver, Rebecca 26
Weber, Charles 123
Weinfield, Henry 315
Weiser, Karen 391
Weiss, Irving 54
White, Jared 119
Whiting, John 256
Whiting, Nathan 125
Whitman, Walt 22, 36, 262, 275, 299, 310
Wieners, John 88
Wilkinson, Joshua 17
Williams, Tony 187, 367, 418
Williams, Tyrone 86, 136
Williams, William Carlos 128, 299, 381, 411
Willis, Elizabeth 35, 42
Willner, Evan 86, 136
Wilson, Keith 163
Winton, Laura 367
Wintz, Sara 293
Withers, Meg 86, 136
Wittgenstein, Ludwig 72
Wolach, David 62
Wordsworth, William 97, 99, 102, 106, 109, 116, 124
Wright, C. D. 188, 197
Wright, James 17, 128, 299, 345
Yau, John 391
Young, Karl 54, 299
Young, Mark 15, 206
Young, Stephanie 161
Zapruder, Matthew 128, 146
Zawacki, Andrew 146, 308, 318
Zolf, Rachel 156, 344
Zroback, Jeff 347
Zucker, Rachel 35, 42, 308, 318
Zurawski, Magdalena 85
Zweig, Janet 174

CONCEPTS

Activism and protest 79, 80, 83, 93, 96, 101, 105, 113, 121, 139, 142, 144, 157, 175, 176, 182, 185, 199, 200, 207, 236, 237, 263, 299, 324, 329, 390
Aesthetics 170, 251, 290, 296, 348, 391, 395
Afghanistan 299, 304
African American poetry 251, 316
Anthologies 36, 51, 54, 71, 77, 84, 85, 86, 90, 96, 102, 109, 115, 123, 136, 162, 253, 254, 265, 275, 280, 283, 299, 303, 307, 345, 354, 369, 371, 374, 377, 391, 393
Anti-Semitism 238
Appropriation 64, 123, 231, 234, 261, 267, 271, 272, 277, 278, 279, 286, 289, 291
Archives and libraries 29, 31, 38, 58, 61, 71, 105, 107, 129, 160, 162, 196, 206, 212, 214, 222, 227, 231, 232, 234, 238, 251, 254, 261, 267, 271, 272, 275, 277, 278, 279, 286, 289, 291, 299, 345, 350, 377, 391, 395
Autobiography 85, 96, 105, 161, 167, 169, 171, 172, 174, 177, 183, 205, 206, 213, 219, 225, 226, 228, 239, 266, 282, 325, 354, 374, 401
Avant-garde 22, 36, 77, 156, 160, 206, 227, 300
Beauty 265
Biography 162, 164, 252, 343
Black Mountain 88, 408
Blogs 6, 15, 18, 20, 21, 38, 39, 49, 51, 52, 57, 61, 67, 71, 89, 92, 95, 100, 104, 108, 110, 112, 118, 120, 127, 131, 132, 135, 137, 138, 140, 141, 147, 148, 149, 154, 155, 156, 161, 163, 174, 178, 179, 180, 181, 183, 186, 189, 193, 194, 195, 196, 198, 199, 201, 202, 205, 206, 208, 212, 214, 215, 216, 217, 218, 219, 221, 224, 226, 228, 231, 232, 233, 234, 235, 238, 239, 245, 246, 248, 249, 251, 253, 257, 261, 264, 266, 267, 270, 271, 272, 273, 274, 275, 277, 278, 279, 281, 282, 283, 286, 289, 290, 291, 292, 294, 296, 297, 298, 304, 306, 307, 309, 311, 314, 316, 319, 320, 321, 322, 328, 330, 335, 336, 338, 340, 343, 344, 345, 346, 347, 348, 352, 353, 359, 361, 364, 371, 375, 377, 379, 380, 381, 382, 386, 388, 395, 399, 402, 403, 407, 411, 412, 413, 415, 416, 417
Book announcements 2, 17, 21, 50, 51, 57, 82, 90, 91, 96, 104, 123, 128, 129, 192, 253, 260, 275, 295, 301, 345, 365, 369,

377, 385, 391, 406
Bookstores 2, 57, 295, 299, 367
Calls for submissions 39, 117, 252, 351, 418
Capitalism 39, 57, 198, 342, 395
Censorship 248, 365, 391
Cities 92, 122, 123, 178, 193, 194, 198, 208, 215, 216, 257, 264, 265, 275, 281, 294, 297, 304, 316, 345, 369, 377, 391, 415, 417
Collage and montage 77, 159
Conceptual writing 82, 91
Conferences and festivals 14, 16, 53, 63, 71, 123, 145, 151, 162, 265, 296, 348, 391
Copyright and permissions 113, 116, 124, 166, 191
Craft 278, 291
Creative writing pedagogy 14, 29, 77, 129, 202, 228, 239, 258, 266, 282, 349
Dada 53, 160
Difficulty 7, 94, 202, 228, 239, 266, 282, 355
Digital archives 35, 42, 82, 91, 160, 170, 206, 247, 300, 307, 331
Dreams 12, 180, 275, 289, 377
Ecology and ecopoetics 63, 71, 85, 97, 99, 102, 106, 109, 116, 124, 157, 176, 182, 185, 199, 200, 207, 236, 237, 263, 293, 308, 318, 324, 369, 374
Editing 31, 85, 88, 161, 170, 247, 252, 259, 350, 369
Ekphrasis 206, 345
Electronic poetry and hypertext 85, 86, 102, 109, 126, 136, 145, 170, 189, 218, 241, 247, 265, 343, 345, 358, 371
Elegy 71, 105
Empire and imperialism 210, 327, 390
Epic 260
Ethics 71, 369, 395
Experimental poetry 145, 345
Fascism 251
Feminism 238, 334, 369
Film 29, 52, 110, 123, 129, 159, 160, 162, 164, 173, 183, 202, 206, 214, 219, 220, 226, 228, 229, 231, 232, 234, 239, 260, 261, 266, 267, 271, 272, 277, 278, 279, 282, 286, 289, 291, 300, 328, 355, 360, 369
Flarf 283
Formalism 11, 70, 76, 78, 79, 80, 83, 93, 101, 332
Free speech 355
Free verse 263, 324
Futurism 353
Gender 344
Globalization 53, 94
Grants and funding 62, 85, 88, 128, 186, 196, 201, 212, 214, 221, 231, 232, 233, 234, 238, 251, 254, 261, 267, 271, 272, 275, 277, 278, 279, 286, 289, 291, 299, 303, 351, 354, 364, 374, 377, 379, 381, 388, 394, 402, 407, 408, 410, 411, 412, 414, 416
Haiku 14
Humour and satire 49, 53, 67, 270, 307
Ideology 178, 193, 194, 198, 201, 204, 208, 215, 216, 233, 257, 264, 281, 287, 294, 297, 304, 311, 316, 395, 415, 417
Improvisation 92, 161, 249, 265
Indigenous and Native poetics 49, 67, 199
Interviews 15, 18, 25, 46, 49, 57, 62, 67, 69, 77, 96, 111, 171, 216, 245, 259, 307, 308, 318, 325, 331, 365, 372, 404
Israel and Palestine 49, 67, 156, 202, 228, 238, 239, 249, 266, 282, 329, 344
Jewish poetics 202, 228, 239, 266, 282, 350
Language poetry 161, 408
Latino and Latin American poetry 251
Letters and correspondence 64, 249, 299
List moderation 51, 88, 96, 196, 212, 214, 231, 232, 234, 261, 267, 271, 272, 277, 278, 279, 286, 289, 291, 344
Little magazines 8, 17, 18, 50, 57, 85, 88, 92, 98, 117, 120, 132, 153, 227, 243, 252, 254, 265, 275, 283, 293, 299, 303, 345, 347, 351, 354, 367, 374, 377, 406, 413, 418
Lyric poetry 100, 123, 162, 202, 225, 228, 239, 266, 282
Marxism 39, 342, 395
Materiality of the text 360
Memory 11, 68, 72, 76, 78, 79, 80, 83, 93, 101, 299, 345, 376
MFA programs 29, 57, 88, 96, 128, 227, 262, 275, 295, 303, 310, 348, 373, 377, 391
Modernism 48, 262, 265, 310, 356, 408
Mourning and loss 105, 196, 212, 214, 231, 232, 234, 261, 267, 271, 272, 277, 278, 279, 286, 289, 291, 387, 401
Music and poetry 2, 13, 25, 29, 46, 57, 90, 92, 103, 111, 119, 123, 125, 127, 129, 143, 147, 160, 162, 163, 181, 192, 202, 212, 228, 239, 243, 256, 258, 265, 266, 267, 272, 277, 278, 279, 282, 286, 289, 291, 307, 331, 343, 346, 349, 376
Nationalism 248
Nature 11, 60, 68, 71, 72, 76, 78, 79, 80, 83, 93, 97, 99, 101, 102, 106, 109, 116, 124, 185, 207, 237, 263, 290, 292, 295, 296, 304, 324, 337, 348, 360, 391
Negativity and refusal 238, 249, 329
New Formalism 83, 93, 101
New York School 85, 374
Objectivism 354
Ontology 265, 275, 345, 377
Performance and the poetry reading 29, 34, 39, 51, 57, 58, 71, 82, 85, 91, 92, 110, 114, 129, 131, 158, 159, 161, 222, 258, 293, 295, 299, 307, 331, 344, 345, 349, 356, 369, 370, 372, 373, 374, 406
Phenomenology 107

Philosophy 11, 64, 72, 103, 141, 206, 360
Place and region 12, 84, 97, 99, 102, 106, 109, 116, 124, 251, 265, 391
Poet laureate 14, 206
Poetics 8, 17, 18, 51, 57, 68, 85, 92, 100, 116, 124, 129, 149, 161, 166, 179, 186, 191, 196, 201, 202, 212, 214, 217, 221, 227, 228, 231, 232, 233, 234, 239, 243, 254, 261, 265, 266, 267, 271, 272, 276, 277, 278, 279, 282, 283, 286, 288, 289, 291, 302, 312, 318, 330, 332, 335, 340, 348, 349, 354, 358, 361, 363, 369, 380, 381, 383, 384, 391, 392, 395, 398, 399, 400, 401, 404, 405, 406, 407, 408, 409, 411, 412, 416, 419
Politics and poetry 156, 416
Postmodernism 48, 408
Print vs. digital 2, 15, 21, 22, 36, 82, 85, 91, 96, 120, 128, 130, 135, 162, 170, 202, 206, 228, 239, 247, 260, 266, 273, 274, 282, 307, 331, 348, 391, 413
Prizes and awards 8, 28, 38, 41, 44, 45, 48, 53, 56, 65, 71, 85, 88, 92, 96, 128, 145, 156, 170, 227, 243, 265, 275, 295, 299, 303, 347, 354, 369, 374, 377, 391, 406
Prose poem 17, 227, 299
Prosody and meter 85
Psychoanalysis 410
Queer poetics 79, 80, 83, 93, 101, 355, 412, 416
Race and poetry 44, 56, 58, 65, 76, 78, 79, 80, 83, 93, 101, 123, 316, 416
Reading announcements 13, 32, 38, 58, 85, 88, 118, 143, 145, 156, 160, 254, 260, 270, 283, 299, 307, 354, 360, 365, 369, 374, 391, 393
Religion and the sacred 19, 76, 78, 79, 80, 83, 93, 101, 103, 156, 159, 202, 228, 239, 241, 266, 268, 276, 282, 288, 302, 312, 330, 335, 340, 344, 355, 361, 379, 380, 393, 395, 399, 412, 416
Representation 11, 68, 72, 299
Reviewing and criticism 5, 6, 10, 25, 46, 51, 57, 63, 64, 71, 77, 85, 88, 103, 111, 117, 120, 128, 141, 146, 206, 227, 233, 235, 259, 260, 262, 270, 275, 279, 293, 303, 310, 317, 345, 347, 354, 369, 371, 374, 377, 388, 393, 395, 402, 406, 407, 413, 414
Revision 299
Romanticism 162, 262, 310
School of Quietude 102, 109
Science 11, 57, 64, 72, 94, 173, 220
Semiotics 11, 124, 139, 144, 164, 175, 182, 200, 220, 236, 237, 263, 324, 333
Serial poem 150, 165, 166, 167, 168, 169, 171, 172, 174, 177, 183, 187, 188, 191, 197, 202, 205, 210, 213, 219, 225, 226, 228, 239, 266, 282, 369, 393
Small press publishing 18, 38, 71, 77, 86, 88, 92, 96, 110, 118, 119, 128, 136, 153, 156, 170, 184, 227, 243, 258, 265, 270, 275, 283, 295, 299, 303, 343, 344, 345, 356, 371, 377, 395, 406
Social media 92, 123, 248, 249, 296, 326, 333, 337, 339, 348, 355, 393
Software and code 11, 72, 164, 326, 333, 337, 339, 358
Sonnet 162, 185, 207, 237, 263, 324
Sound poetry 64, 189, 218, 223
Structuralism 160
Subjectivity 71, 88, 249, 260, 312, 330, 335, 340, 360, 361, 380, 399, 401, 410
Surrealism 94, 251
Terrorism 174, 259
The academy 4, 29, 37, 49, 57, 58, 61, 67, 70, 71, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 82, 83, 85, 88, 91, 93, 97, 98, 99, 101, 102, 106, 107, 109, 110, 116, 118, 124, 128, 139, 141, 144, 145, 162, 170, 174, 175, 182, 199, 200, 210, 220, 222, 223, 227, 236, 237, 238, 243, 249, 252, 254, 260, 263, 265, 275, 283, 295, 299, 303, 307, 321, 324, 329, 331, 333, 344, 345, 347, 348, 350, 354, 355, 356, 358, 369, 374, 377, 387, 391, 406
The body 11, 72, 128, 164, 235, 243, 376, 383, 401, 418
The canon 22, 36
The Holocaust 344, 350
The internet 6, 94, 117, 162, 205, 242, 248, 249, 309, 318, 326, 333, 337, 339
The Iraq war 16, 90, 304
The line 418
The listserv 6, 29, 31, 44, 51, 56, 65, 88, 129, 170, 210, 217, 255, 258, 280, 282, 306, 307, 314, 320, 338, 349, 351, 381, 390, 391, 410, 411
Theatre 77, 86, 90, 123, 136, 150, 165, 166, 167, 168, 169, 171, 172, 174, 177, 183, 187, 188, 191, 197, 202, 205, 213, 219, 225, 226, 228, 239, 265, 266, 282, 318, 367, 369, 406
Torture and Abu Ghraib 90, 174, 202, 228, 239, 259, 266, 282, 395
Translation 4, 11, 17, 51, 59, 85, 88, 128, 170, 175, 202, 211, 228, 239, 254, 260, 265, 266, 275, 282, 307, 309, 345, 350, 354, 360, 371, 372, 377, 393, 410
Vietnam 299, 329
Visual and concrete poetry 11, 54, 64, 68, 84, 121, 126, 130, 139, 142, 144, 157, 173, 175, 176, 182, 185, 189, 199, 200, 202, 207, 220, 228, 236, 237, 239, 263, 266, 282, 305, 324, 391
Visual art 11, 16, 25, 33, 38, 39, 50, 62, 64, 88, 98, 103, 113, 118, 123, 125, 131, 158, 160, 233, 251, 252, 254, 256, 260, 265,

277, 300, 354, 360, 369, 379, 391, 409, 412, 416
Voice 369
Women's writing 88, 308, 318

Contents

Every entry links to its message. 419 in all.

30 JAN 2009

1. Gwyn McVay — Re: Globish
2. Joel Chace — Re: new book
3. Troy Camplin — Re: Globish
4. Rob Sikorski — Duke University Reading--poet/translator Peter Cole, Tuesday, 2.03, 4 pm
5. Brian Clements — Re: Book Review Updates @ Kaurab
6. Alan Sondheim — (My review of Jon's Marshall's book among other things): RCCS:
7. steve russell — Re: Globish
8. William Slaughter — Notice: Mudlark
9. steve russell — mainstream musings
10. steve russell — Re: NY Times: Washington Post's Book World Goes Out of Print as a Separate …
11. Jim Andrews — Re: e to a friend about a philosophy of computer art
12. Alan Sondheim — Dreaming (apologies for so many posts today, won't happen again)

31 JAN 2009

13. Jesse Glass — Jesse Glass featured poet reading at poetryvlog.com
14. Layne Russell — Re: it's ukiaHaiku festival time again! (fwd)
15. Anny Ballardini — Issue twelve of Otoliths has just gone live
16. steve russell — Muntazer al-Zaidi/Waiting for Other Shoe to Drop

1 FEB 2009

17. Brian Clements — Sentence 6 Now Available (Posted Earlier with Incorrect Subject Line)
18. Rob McLennan — seventeen seconds: a journal of poetry and poetics
19. Adam Fieled — PFS Post Spring Season Line-Up!
20. Nico Vassilakis — Subtext Reading: Laynie Browne & Michael Cross: 1/4/09
21. Susan Webster Schultz — Tinfish Editor's blog
22. Jerome Rothenberg — announcement for Poems for the Millennium launch at Beyond Baroque
23. Peter Ciccariello — Fwd: The Fog is here

2 FEB 2009

24. Alexander Dickow — Globish
25. amy king — Fogged Clarity
26. amy king — Pirene's Fountain
27. amy king — Denver Syntax
28. Troy Camplin — Globish
29. Michael Kelleher — Literary Buffalo Newsletter 02.02.09-02.08.09
30. William Allegrezza — Series A this Wed.
31. Michael Kelleher — Corrections of Corrections
32. Maria Damon — [Fwd: Ewart Events at Velvet Friday 6th and Saturday 7th, 2009]
33. Adam Fieled — Three Philly Poets at the Highwire Gallery Friday!
34. Cara Benson — Millay Colony for the Arts Party at Bowery Poetry Club
35. Ana Bo¾ièeviæ — State of the Union audio: John Ashbery, Dan Chelotti, Thomas Sayers Ellis, …
36. Ruth Lepson — Re: announcement for Poems for the Millennium launch at Beyond Baroque
37. Deborah A. Meadows — strike ended at York University, forced back to work
38. Small Press Traffic — SPT PRESENTS: YEDDA MORRISON, KIM ROSENFIELD and KAIA SAND THIS FRIDA…
39. Dan Glass — Fwd: With + Stand 3 call for submissions
40. amy king — Not in NYC? Bill Berkson, Cindy Cruz, Aaron Fagan, Jennifer Fortin, Jean-Paul P…
41. Christopher Leland Winks — Re: Globish

42. Ana Bo¾ièeviæ — State of the Union audio: John Ashbery, Dan Chelotti, Thomas Sayers Ellis, …
43. Ian Randall Wilson — Book Trailer
44. Troy Camplin — Re: Globish
45. Jason Quackenbush — Re: Globish
46. Peter Ciccariello — FoggedClarity.com seeks exceptional fiction and poetry
47. George Bowering — Re: Globish
48. Troy Camplin — Re: Globish
49. Gabrielle Welford — Re: Globish

3 FEB 2009

50. lauren levin — Mrs. Maybe #2
51. joey — resending post not posted from www.newmystics.com (January update at www.newmystics.…
52. Jeffrey Side — William Wyler's 'Wuthering Heights'
53. Jim Andrews — Christophe Bruno: The Dadameter
54. mIEKAL aND — New from Xexoxial: ANTHOLOGY SPIDERTANGLE
55. Al Filreis — PoemTalk episode 14: Wallace Stevens
56. Christopher Leland Winks — Re: Globish
57. Kate Pringle — two readings in SF: pringle & Boykoff Feb 5th!
58. Dan Wilcox — Jay Rogoff to Read at Social Justice Center, 2/19
59. maxpaul — Offsite Translation Event at AWP
60. Catherine Daly — Re: what's code got to do with it
61. Séamas Cain — New poetry blog for John M. Bennett
62. Sarah Mangold — Announcing Bird Dog Issue 10
63. Séamas Cain — Transmediale.09 Deep North / in Berlin, Germany
64. St. Thomasino — Correspondance (a sketchbook) New Digital Art Eratio Editions
65. Troy Camplin — Re: Globish
66. Troy Camplin — Re: Globish

4 FEB 2009

67. George Bowering — Re: Globish
68. Jim Andrews — Re: what's code got to do with it
69. Patrick Dillon — Re: Globish
70. Christopher Leland Winks — Re: Globish
71. Evan Munday — Sina Queyras launches Expressway: Feb. 12, Chicago
72. Jason Quackenbush — Re: e to a friend about a philosophy of computer art
73. George Bowering — Re: Globish
74. George Bowering — Re: Globish
75. Hugh Behm-Steinberg — Eleven Eleven #6
76. Troy Camplin — Re: Globish
77. Chris Pusateri — IVY WRITERS PRESENT: CHAPELLE, PIERCE AND PUSATERI IN PARIS, THIS MONDAY 2…
78. amy king — Re: Globish
79. Troy Camplin — Re: Globish
80. amy king — Re: Globish
81. Kevin Killian — Re: Eleven Eleven #6
82. Gary Sullivan — GOLDSMITH + TORRES @ SEGUE | BPC | SAT FEB 7 | 4PM
83. George Bowering — Re: Globish
84. Amanda Earl — AngelHousePress Essay by Peter Ciccariello

5 FEB 2009

85. Jonathan Skinner — LANGUAGE ARTS LIVE at Bates College: JENNIFER MOXLEY and JAMES KOLLER (2…
86. Jennifer Karmin — Feb 12-14: AWP events at Links Hall
87. Hugh Behm-Steinberg — Re: Eleven Eleven #6
88. Poetry Project — Events at The Poetry Project February

89. Peter Ciccariello — this is not poetry II

6 FEB 2009

90. Andy Gricevich — Text-music and political theater in the West Village
91. Maria Damon — Re: GOLDSMITH + TORRES @ SEGUE | BPC | SAT FEB 7 | 4PM
92. David Kirschenbaum — Thurs: Boog Reader 3 Launch/Urban Folk Relaunch
93. Troy Camplin — Re: Globish
94. Alan Sondheim — Performance at Beam Me Up, Wednesday, February 11
95. Steve Halle — Kathleen Rooney and Elisa Gabbert @ Seven Corners
96. Chad Sweeney — Dear Friends: WritersCorps AWP Panel and Book Launch in Chicago, Sat. 12:00
97. mIEKAL aND — Where are today's farmer poets?
98. Kyle Schlesinger — Yedda Morrison & Richard Owens | Poetry Project | 02.09.09
99. steve russell — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
100. Angeline, Mary — Re: this is not poetry II

7 FEB 2009

101. George Bowering — Re: Globish
102. David Giannini — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
103. Troy Camplin — Emerson Institute
104. Matt Henriksen — Cannibal: Issue Four 105. Chris Pusateri — AWP Panel Discussion on Hybridity (Fleisher, Prevallet, Taylor, Mattawa, a…
106. Obododimma Oha — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
107. Alan Sondheim — need publisher, help, please reply backchannel

8 FEB 2009

108. Andrew Lundwall — scantily clad update
109. David Giannini — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
110. Rob McLennan — above/ground press ALBERTA SERIES, now on-line
111. David-Baptiste Chirot — RIP Lux Interior--videos, tributes, news links--"Goo Goo Muck"!!--
112. Geoffrey Gatza — 200 faits divers by the feneon collective [Unified Body]
113. David Chirot — "Them Changes" (Buddy Miles)-- Creator of iconic Obama 'Hope" poster arreste…
114. Deborah Poe — query reading series in new mexico (taos & santa fe)
115. Jennifer Karmin — Feb 13 - Come Together: Imagine Peace
116. Caleb Cluff — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
117. Freind, William Joseph — Call for submission: 322 Review
118. Thom Donovan — PEACE EVENTS presents: Dorothea Lasky and Filip Marinovich, Friday, February…
119. stephanie anderson — Announcing Another Limit by Linnea Ogden/AWP Reading Reminder
120. Pam Brown — Review Mary Kasimor for Jacket Magazine ?
121. mIEKAL aND — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?

9 FEB 2009

122. Jesse Glass — Ahadada/Blazevox Jet-Lag/Red-Eye Bruhaha at AWP
123. David A. Kirschenbaum — Boog City 54 Print and Online PDF Editions Available
124. Obododimma Oha — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
125. Bob Heman — 8th Big CLWN WR event - February 19, 7:00-10:00 at the SAFE-T-GALLERY in DUMBO
126. Jim Andrews — Article on digital poetry by Chris Funkhouser
127. Adam Fieled — PFS Post: Daniela Olszewska & Ada Limon
128. Shankar, Ravi (English) — AWP Reading on Wednesday, 2/11, 6:00 to 9:00 pm featuring DB, Act…
129. Michael Kelleher — Literary Buffalo Newsletter 02.09.09-02.15.09
130. Jim Andrews — online scholarly books from digitalhumanities.org
131. Stephen Vincent — New de Blog - The First 100 Days of Obama, haptics and commentary
132. Andy Gricevich — Cannot Exist no. 4 is out!

133. Maria Damon — Secretary of the Arts

10 FEB 2009

134. Jeroen Nieuwland — New poetry weblog
135. CA Conrad — DON'T BE A RECESSION SISSY!
136. Jennifer Karmin — Feb 12-14: AWP events at Links Hall (final schedule)
137. Halvard Johnson — Query
138. Troy Camplin — Re: Secretary of the Arts
139. Obododimma Oha — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
140. Pam Brown — Jacket has a reviewer for Silk String Arias.
141. Pam Brown — Another reviewer request from Jacket - Literary Theory this time
142. David Seaman — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
143. John Roche — Poetry and Jazz in Rochester

11 FEB 2009

144. Obododimma Oha — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
145. Patrick Herron — Stephanie Strickland @ Duke 19 Feb
146. Chad Sweeney — New Issue Parthenon West Review (At AWP)
147. Gerald Schwartz — Re: Secretary of the Arts
148. Ryan Daley — Re: Secretary of the Arts
149. Johanna Fisher — Re: Secretary of the Arts
150. Dillon Westbrook — Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
151. Kimmelman, Burt — Lodging for AWP Chicago
152. Roy Exley — Roy Exley - Re: New poetry weblog
153. Scott Michael Pierce — New Effing titles & Effing at AWP - Chicago
154. George Bowering — Re: Secretary of the Arts
155. Pam Brown — Thanks again everyone Jacket has a reviewer for Solicitations
156. Small Press Traffic — SPT PRESENTS: BOK and ZOLF FRIDAY 2/20!
157. mIEKAL aND — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
158. patrick dunagan — Dunagan, Fisher, & Hill reading in SF
159. blacksox — Poetic Colla'ge 3rd Wednesday's at Austins
160. Danny Snelson — UBUWEB: FLASH ARTIFACTS - Feb 19 at CRG Gallery - (And Poetry Project Readi…

12 FEB 2009

161. Gary Sullivan — BENSON | YOUNG @ SEGUE @ BPC | VALENTINES DAY
162. David-Baptiste Chirot — FW: About Poetry: Poems for President Lincoln/More Love Poems
163. Halvard Johnson — RIP Keith Wilson (1927-2009)
164. Alan Sondheim — Beam Me Up video from performance 2/11
165. Maria Damon — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
166. Caleb Cluff — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
167. JULIE KIZERSHOT — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
168. Danny Snelson — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
169. Gabrielle Welford — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
170. Poetry Project — Events at The Poetry Project February
171. Michael Tod Edgerton — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
172. Cara Benson — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
173. mIEKAL aND — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
174. nieuwland jeroen — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
175. David Seaman — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
176. Charles Alexander — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
177. steve russell — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
178. Troy Camplin — Re: Secretary of the Arts
179. Troy Camplin — Re: Secretary of the Arts
180. Troy Camplin — Re: Secretary of the Arts
181. Troy Camplin — Re: Secretary of the Arts

13 FEB 2009

182. Obododimma Oha — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
183. laura oliver — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
184. Nic Sebastian — new poetry publishing model
185. David Seaman — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
186. Patrick Dillon — Re: Secretary of the Arts
187. Patrick Dillon — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
188. Douglas Basford — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
189. Regina Pinto — Two years of poetic work...
190. steve d. dalachinsky — now up for viewing and listening
191. steve d. dalachinsky — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
192. steve d. dalachinsky — le gout du jazz
193. Murat Nemet-Nejat — Re: Secretary of the Arts
194. Ryan Daley — Re: Secretary of the Arts
195. Peter Ciccariello — The parsing
196. Alan Sondheim — Re: Secretary of the Arts
197. Patrick Dillon — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
198. steve russell — Re: Secretary of the Arts

14 FEB 2009

199. Gabrielle Welford — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
200. Gabrielle Welford — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
201. Patrick Dillon — Re: Secretary of the Arts
202. David-Baptiste Chirot — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
203. Pam Brown — Secretary of the Arts
204. George Bowering — Re: Secretary of the Arts
205. laura oliver — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
206. Anny Ballardini — Tooting my horn!
207. Audrey Berry — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
208. Dan Glass — Re: Secretary of the Arts
209. Camille Martin — need contact info
210. David Baratier — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
211. Eiríkur Örn Norðdahl — Icelandic poets in English
212. Patrick Dillon — Re: Secretary of the Arts
213. steve russell — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
214. Troy Camplin — Re: Secretary of the Arts
215. Troy Camplin — Re: Secretary of the Arts
216. Michael Tod Edgerton — Re: Secretary of the Arts
217. AWAREing Press — Re: The parsing
218. steve d. dalachinsky — Re: Two years of poetic work...
219. steve d. dalachinsky — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
220. Obododimma Oha — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
221. David-Baptiste Chirot — Re: Secretary of the Arts
222. Dan Wilcox — Third Thursday Poetry Night, 2/19 -- Jay Rogoff
223. Camille Martin — Camille Martin hosts In Other Words on CKLN
224. Nate Pritts — i like to punch people out
225. JULIE KIZERSHOT — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
226. Mary Kasimor — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
227. Margaret Konkol — University at BUFFALO / Siobhan Scarry: Tuesday February 17th SMALL PRESS...
228. Maureen Robins — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
229. George Bowering — Re: Secretary of the Arts
230. George Bowering — Re: Secretary of the Arts
231. Johanna Fisher — Re: Secretary of the Arts
232. Alan Sondheim — Re: Secretary of the Arts

15 FEB 2009

233. Troy Camplin — Re: Secretary of the Arts
234. teersteeg — Re: Secretary of the Arts
235. Halvard Johnson — Hamilton Stone Review, Issue 17, Winter 2009, Now Online!
236. Obododimma Oha — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
237. Obododimma Oha — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
238. Stephen Vincent — Adrienne Rich on Cultural/Academic Boycott of Israel
239. Patrick Dillon — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
240. Séamas Cain — Spelling the sounds of everything
241. derek beaulieu — new from No press: 26 ALPHABETS (FOR SOL LEWITT)
242. Al Filreis — Robert Coover live interactive video Feb 24 10:30 AM eastern time
243. William Slaughter — Notice: Mudlark

16 FEB 2009

244. Tenney Nathanson — BA or BFA in CW?
245. Adam Fieled — PFS Post: Gabriel Gudding, Waxing Hot!
246. Joel Weishaus — "The Gateless Gate"
247. Kyle Schlesinger — TONIGHT || DANNY SNELSON AND LANCE WAKELING || TONIGHT || DANNY SNELSON ...
248. David-Baptiste Chirot — At Reading in Beijing, Noted Writer Is Stabbed
249. David-Baptiste Chirot — Urgent Appeal from Hampshire College
250. Camille Martin — lines in search of author
251. Stephen Vincent — On that 'Stimulus' art funding
252. William Allegrezza — Call for submissions
253. Jennifer Karmin — Feb 27-28: NYC Flim Forum readings
254. Kimmelman, Burt — Kenny and Kimmelman at Seton Hall University, March 4th, 7 PM
255. Chris Stroffolino — Alice Notley poem questionaire

17 FEB 2009

256. Bob Heman — just a reminder!!! The 8th Big CLWN WR Event this Thursday at SAFE-T-GALLERY
257. Christopher Leland Winks — Re: Secretary of the Arts
258. Michael Kelleher — Literary Buffalo Newsletter 02.16.09-02.22.09
259. David-Baptiste Chirot — 2 CALLS TO MAKE TODAY: Stop Obama Govt "No Change" on Torture; Clos...
260. Evan Munday — Lisa Robertson unfurls her Magenta Soul Whip - March 7
261. Troy Camplin — Re: Secretary of the Arts
262. Gloria Frym — Re: BA or BFA in CW?
263. David Seaman — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
264. Troy Camplin — Re: Secretary of the Arts

18 FEB 2009

265. David Kirschenbaum — NYC Tues./Boog presents Atelos Publishing Project and Lisle Ellis and ...
266. Gabrielle Welford — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
267. Alan Sondheim — Re: Secretary of the Arts
268. George Bowering — Re: Secretary of the Arts
269. cris cheek — Re: BA or BFA in CW?
270. Rob McLennan — the ottawa small press book fair, spring 2009
271. Johanna Fisher — Re: Secretary of the Arts
272. Johanna Fisher — Re: Secretary of the Arts
273. Lars Palm — new from ungovernable press. Francis Raven
274. Little Red Leaves — New address for Dos Press
275. amy king — If you're this way ...
276. Johanna Fisher — Re: Secretary of the Arts
277. Charles Alexander — Re: Secretary of the Arts
278. J. Michael Mollohan — Re: Secretary of the Arts
279. J. Michael Mollohan — Re: Secretary of the Arts

280. Stephen Ellis — Re: Alice Notley poem questionaire
281. Alison Croggon — Re: Secretary of the Arts
282. David Chirot — Re: Long poems or plays on prison/imprisonment
283. twshaner — Rodney Koeneke & K. Silem Mohammad reading in Eugene
284. amy king — Final proof that maths and poetry have a special relationship
285. George Bowering — Re: Secretary of the Arts
286. George Bowering — Re: Secretary of the Arts
287. amy king — Re: Secretary of the Arts
288. George Bowering — Re: Secretary of the Arts
289. Troy Camplin — Re: Secretary of the Arts
290. Troy Camplin — Fw: Final proof that maths and poetry have a special relationship
291. Troy Camplin — Re: Secretary of the Arts

19 FEB 2009

292. Alan Sondheim — Azure Carter's blog: http://thedonkeyskin.blogspot.com
293. Gary Sullivan — NIELSON & WINTZ | SEGUE @ BPC | SAT FEB 21
294. Christopher Leland Winks — Re: Secretary of the Arts
295. Sharon Dolin — Poetry Reading in NYC Thursday, February 19th
296. Philip Meersman — Re: Fw: Final proof that maths and poetry have a special relationship
297. Patrick Dillon — Re: Secretary of the Arts
298. Steve Halle — Joanne Diaz @ Seven Corners
299. Julie Strand — Duncan/Levertov & The War Now February 28th @ Woodland Pattern-Milwaukee, WI
300. Danny Snelson — Tonight 7PM: U B U W E B - Film & Video: Flash Artifacts (Reminder)
301. ixnay press — the ixnay reader : volume four
302. Troy Camplin — Re: Secretary of the Arts
303. Christophe Casamassima — APPRENTICE HOUSE ANNUAL POETRY CHAPBOOK CONTEST
304. Troy Camplin — Re: Secretary of the Arts
305. Jim Andrews — video of a talk I gave in Vancouver
306. Paul Nelson — Re: The Market recognizes talent!
307. Poetry Project — Events at The Poetry Project February

20 FEB 2009

308. Jennifer Karmin — How2 - vol. 3 / #2
309. Jeff Davis — Thomas Meyer on the airwaves ... er, internet
310. Andy Nicholson — Re: BA or BFA in CW?
311. { brad brace } — Re: Secretary of Arts
312. George Bowering — Re: Secretary of the Arts
313. George Bowering — Re: Secretary of the Arts
314. Troy Camplin — Re: The Market recognizes talent!
315. Kimmelman, Burt — David Clippinger
316. Troy Camplin — Re: Secretary of the Arts
317. David-Baptiste Chirot — "On Poetry: The Geatness Game"--NY Times Sunday Book Review
318. laura hinton — Re: How2 - vol. 3 / #2
319. charles alexander — new on chaxblog
320. steve russell — Re: The Market recognizes talent!

21 FEB 2009

321. Nicholas Karavatos — Re: etymological derivations of "clitoris"
322. Peter Ciccariello — Monument to the myth of subject-object
323. Sarah Sarai — Re: The Market recognizes talent!
324. Obododimma Oha — Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
325. Sharon Mesmer/David Borchart — Query on behalf of a student
326. mIEKAL aND — Twitter's Evil Plot to Destroy the English Language
327. David Kirschenbaum — Roommate sought, Chelsea, NYC

22 FEB 2009

328. Andrew Lundwall — Scantily Clad's Newest Titles!
329. David-Baptiste Chirot — Write Yr. Support/NYCLAW denounces the NYU admin's attack on studen...
330. Halvard Johnson — Re: Secretary of the Arts
331. Kyle Schlesinger — STAN APPS and KAREEM ESTEFAN | POETRY PROJECT | MONDAY 02.23.09 8PM
332. Susan Webster Schultz — Multiformalisms: A Postmodern Poetics of Form
333. Obododimma Oha — Re: Twitter's Evil Plot to Destroy the English Language
334. Sarah Sarai — Re: The Market recognizes talent!
335. George Bowering — Re: Secretary of the Arts
336. Paul Nelson — Re: The Market recognizes talent!
337. Stephen Baraban — Terpy Twisty Twitter Twaddle
338. Gabrielle Welford — Re: The Market recognizes talent!
339. Gabrielle Welford — Re: Twitter's Evil Plot to Destroy the English Language
340. Troy Camplin — Re: Secretary of the Arts
341. Troy Camplin — Re: The Market recognizes talent!
342. Troy Camplin — Re: Secretary of the Arts
343. peter ganick — books and free downloads of writings of Peter Ganick
344. Stephen Vincent — Rachel Zolf, Israel, Bok et le blog
345. Jennifer Karmin — Feb 27: Flim Forum @ The Poetry Project

23 FEB 2009

346. Adam Fieled — PFS Post: Kent Johnson & Daniel Borzutzky
347. Tammy Ho — Cha: An Asian Literary Journal (Issue#6)
348. Brian Clements — Re: Fw: Final proof that maths and poetry have a special relationship
349. Michael Kelleher — Literary Buffalo Newsletter 02.23.09-03.01.09
350. Maria Damon — grad student internship...
351. derek beaulieu — Fw: Call for Submissions: STEPHEN HARPER a journal of the literary arts
352. Peter — she gone 2

24 FEB 2009

353. Pierre Joris — Recent Nomadics posts & SWITCH TO WordPress
354. Kimmelman, Burt — Heller and Kimmelman in Greenwich Village, March 11th at 6
355. Alan Sondheim — [intertheory] Fw: Open Letter on Academic Freedom (fwd)
356. Rodney Koeneke — Reading in Portland this SATURDAY, 2/28: ALLI WARREN, BRANDON BROWN & TOM ...
357. steve d. dalachinsky — gigs
358. Alan Sondheim — On e-poetry for an online seminar at De Montfort University 2/23
359. David-Baptiste Chirot — Joyeux Fetes! Mardi Gras--Laissez les bons temps rouler!!
360. Evan Munday — March 7: Lisa Robertson unleashes her Magenta Soul Whip
361. George Bowering — Re: Secretary of the Arts
362. Stephen Ellis — Re: The Market recognizes talent!
363. Maria Damon — poetics/poetry of the abject?
364. Troy Camplin — Re: The Market recognizes talent!
365. Corey Frost — New poetry at the Graduate Center, NYC.

25 FEB 2009

366. Thom Donovan — discounted tix for ARMANTROUT/SWENSEN reading in NYC
367. Fluffy Singler — KARAWANE #10 HOT OFF THE PRESSES
368. Eleni Stecopoulos — Great San Francisco sublet
369. laura hinton — Brooklyn Poetry Reading March 3
370. blacksox — Randy Cadman @ 1st Tuesdays in Apopka(THIS TUESDAY)

26 FEB 2009

371. Jennifer Karmin — Feb 28: Golaski, Karmin & Klane in Brooklyn
372. Gary Sullivan — GIORNO & STEFANS | SEGUE @ BPC | SAT FEB 28

373. Mark Stricker — nanomajority 6
374. Jonathan Skinner — Language Arts Live: Simon Pettet in Lewiston, Maine
375. Alana Madison — future of letters
376. mIEKAL aND — New from Xerox Sutra Editions — How to Spell the Sound of Everything
377. amy king — Tomorrow Night - If You Dare ...
378. amy king — On Greatness & Them That Do It -- On Orr Off
379. Jason Quackenbush — Re: The Market recognizes talent!
380. Troy Camplin — Re: Secretary of the Arts
381. Paul Nelson — Re: Gift Economy
382. Nico Vassilakis — Subtext Reading: LAURA MORIARTY & JW MARSHALL: 3/4/09
383. cris costa — Re: poetics/poetry of the abject?
384. George Bowering — Re: poetics/poetry of the abject?
385. Sharon Dolin — Reminder: McNally Jackson Reading Tonight
386. Halvard Johnson — Re: On Greatness & Them That Do It -- On Orr Of 387. mIEKAL aND — I, Who, We, Thou, Two, Three and Five
388. Alison Croggon — Re: The Market recognizes talent!
389. Jeffrey Side — The Argotist Online is going is going offline
390. David Baratier — vote for my poem on good reads?
391. Poetry Project — Events at The Poetry Project February/March
392. Angeline, Mary — Re: [BULK] poetics/poetry of the abject?
393. Marc Nasdor — Marc Nasdor & Murat Nemet-Nejat reading at Zinc Bar, Sunday, March 8

27 FEB 2009

394. François Luong — Re: The Market recognizes talent!
395. Christian Nagler — Emily Abendroth & Miranda Mellis / Real TIme Ethics investigation #1
396. amy king — Last Day to Vote for the Poem
397. Troy Camplin — Exceptionalism Among POets
398. Hilary Clark — Re: poetics/poetry of the abject?
399. Ryan Daley — Re: Secretary of the Arts
400. Charles Alexander — Re: poetics/poetry of the abject?
401. Charles Alexander — Re: poetics/poetry of the abject?
402. Mark Weiss — Re: The Market recognizes talent!
403. amy king — Re: On Greatness & Them That Do It -- On Orr Of 404. Michael Tod Edgerton — Re: poetics/poetry of the abject?
405. Maria Damon — Re: poetics/poetry of the abject?
406. Natalie Knight — ZINC BAR 3/15: Laura Sims, Natalie Knight, James Belflower
407. John Cunningham — Re: The Market recognizes talent!
408. John Cunningham — Re: The Market recognizes talent!
409. Roy Exley — Re: Poetics/Poetry of the Abject
410. cris costa — Re: The Market recognizes talent!
411. Marcus Bales — Re: Gift Economy
412. Marcus Bales — Re: The Market recognizes talent!
413. Pam Brown — calling a reviewer for jacket magazine

28 FEB 2009

414. Pam Brown — arts funding in oz
415. Marcus Bales — Re: Secretary of the Arts
416. Jason Quackenbush — Re: The Market recognizes talent!
417. Patrick Dillon — Re: Secretary of the Arts
418. Johnathon Williams — Call for submissions and recordings -- Linebreak
419. Ann Bogle — Re: poetics/poetry of the abject?

1. Gwyn McVay
Re: Globish
Fri 30 Jan 2009

George,

In what way is the French Academy either political or patriotic? I would have thought to call it prescriptivist, having watched their "ordinateur" vs. "computer" shenanigans over the years.

Gwyn

On Wed, Jan 28, 2009 at 2:20 PM, George Bowering <[redacted]> wrote:

> In what way is the French Academy leftish? I would have thought to call it rightish, > as patriotic stuff generally is.
>
> gb
>
> On Jan 27, 2009, at 5:36 AM, Troy Camplin wrote:
>
> Good thing they lost it. Now maybe they can get back to writing great literature, which has stagnated since they French language council was created. This is where Leftist micromanagement of all the aspects of one's life will get you. You can't stagnate the language like that and expect literature to thrive.
>
> Troy Camplin
>
> ---
> From: steve russell <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Tuesday, January 27, 2009 1:47:09 AM
> Subject: Re: Globish
>
> shame the French lost the language war.
> they should penalize anyone using too many English words a barbarian tax.
>
> one way to get back for FREEDOM FRIES
> ugh, how many US speakers know more than American English?????
> me/2/guilty...

> Geo. Harry Bowering, M.A.
> Fell down in Firenze

--
This novel isn't suitable for you. The story is romantic and terrifying. Too gloomy. You should read something delightful.
-- Stephen Chow in "Fight Back to School II"

↑ Index

2. Joel Chace
Re: new book
Fri 30 Jan 2009

Ruth:

Congratulations on the new book!

Tell me about your jazz colleagues. Did I ever mention to you that I am a jazz pianist?

Best,

Joel

On Sat, Jan 24, 2009 at 7:41 PM, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]> wrote:
> Hi, all,
>
> Am happy to tell you I have a new book with blazeVOX.org both as an ebook > and a POD book. It¹s called I Went Looking for You and should be available > as soon as tonight.
>
> If you¹re in the Boston area, please join me for a book party hosted by The > Grolier Poetry Book Shop & held at The Democracy Center, 45 Mt. Auburn St., > Cambridge, near Bow & Dewolf Sts. in Harvard Sq., on Monday, Feb. 16 from 2 > to 5. The stellar jazz musicians I perform with will be playing and snacks > will be provided.
>

> Since that is Presidents[1] Day, if you are so inclined, join us in a toast to > our first global president.
>
> Sincerely,
>
> Ruth Lepson
>
>

↑ Index

3. Troy Camplin

Re: Globish

Fri 30 Jan 2009

THis is one of those cases where it is difficult to distinguish Right from Left. The Left is big on micromanaging everyone's lives, the right tends toward conservatism and "preservation." In truth, the Language council is probably a perfect storm of Left and Right.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: George Bowering <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, January 28, 2009 1:20:43 PM
Subject: Re: Globish

In what way is the French Academy leftish? I would have thought to call it rightish, as patriotic stuff generally is.

gb

On Jan 27, 2009, at 5:36 AM, Troy Camplin wrote:

> Good thing they lost it. Now maybe they can get back to writing great literature, which has stagnated since they French language council was created. This is where Leftist micromanagement of all the aspects of one's life will get you. You can't stagnate the language like that and expect literature to thrive.
>
> Troy Camplin
>
> _____
> From: steve russell <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Tuesday, January 27, 2009 1:47:09 AM
> Subject: Re: Globish

> shame the French lost the language war.
> they should penalize anyone using too many English words a barbarian tax.
>
> one way to get back for FREEDOM FRIES
> ugh, how many US speakers know more than American English?????
> me/2/guilty...

Geo. Harry Bowering, M.A.
Fell down in Firenze

↑ Index

4. Rob Sikorski

Duke University Reading--poet/translator Peter Cole, Tuesday, 2.03, 4 pm

Fri 30 Jan 2009

—

↑ Index

5. Brian Clements

Re: Book Review Updates @ Kaurab

Fri 30 Jan 2009

—

↑ Index

6. Alan Sondheim

(My review of Jon's Marshall's book among other things): RCCS:

Fri 30 Jan 2009

---------- Forwarded message ----------
Date: Fri, 30 Jan 2009 09:00:34 -0800
From: David M Silver <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Subject: [Air-L] new reviews in cyberculture studies (february 2009)

Dear list members,

(nearly) each month, RCCS publishes a set of book reviews and author responses (http://rccs.usfca.edu/booklist.asp). books of the month for february 2009 are:

Double Click: Romance and Commitment Among Online Couples
Author: Andrea J. Baker
Publisher: Hampton Press, 2005
Review: M. Carmen Gomez-Galisteo
Author Response: Andrea J. Baker

Living on Cybermind: Categories, Communications, and Control
Author: Jonathan Paul Marshall
Publisher: Peter Lang, 2007
Review: Alan Sondheim
Author Response: Jonathan Paul Marshall

enjoy. there's more where that came from.

david silver
http://silverinsf.blogspot.com

The [redacted] mailing list is provided by the Association of Internet Researchers http://aoir.org Subscribe, change options or unsubscribe at:
http://listserv.aoir.org/listinfo.cgi/air-l-aoir.org

Join the Association of Internet Researchers:
http://www.aoir.org/

↑ Index

7. steve russell

Re: Globish

Fri 30 Jan 2009

I've always thought of them as being ultra conservative, upholding traditional standards, but blind towards innovation. But I'm thinking more in terms of the difficulty late 19th century painters had getting their work accepted: Cezanne and others.

--- On Wed, 1/28/09, George Bowering <[redacted]> wrote:
From: George Bowering <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Globish
To: [redacted]
Date: Wednesday, January 28, 2009, 2:20 PM

In what way is the French Academy leftish? I would have thought to call it rightish, as patriotic stuff generally is.

gb

On Jan 27, 2009, at 5:36 AM, Troy Camplin wrote:

> Good thing they lost it. Now maybe they can get back to writing great literature, which has stagnated since they French language council was created.
This is where Leftist micromanagement of all the aspects of one's life will get you. You can't stagnate the language like that and expect literature to thrive.
>
> Troy Camplin
>
>
>
> _____
> From: steve russell <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Tuesday, January 27, 2009 1:47:09 AM
> Subject: Re: Globish
>
> shame the French lost the language war.
> they should penalize anyone using too many English words a barbarian tax.
>
> one way to get back for FREEDOM FRIES
> ugh, how many US speakers know more than American English????? > me/2/guilty...
>
>
>
>
>
>

Geo. Harry Bowering, M.A.
Fell down in Firenze

↑ Index

8. William Slaughter
Notice: Mudlark
Fri 30 Jan 2009

New and On View: Mudlark Flash No. 48 (2009)

Sevenlings by Sherman Alexie

Sherman Alexie is the author of 21 books of poetry and prose, including THE ABSOLUTELY TRUE DIARY OF A PART-TIME INDIAN, the winner of the 2007 National Book Award for Young People's Literature, and FACE, a book of poetry from Hanging Loose Press. He lives with his family in Seattle.

For more information on Sherman please visit his official website at http://www.fallsapart.com. And for an account of the sevenling as a poetic form, its derivation and description, have a look at APJ, The American Poetry Journal, http://home.comcast.net/~jpdancingbear/apj_sevenling.html, edited by J.P. Dancing Bear.

Spread the word. Far and wide,

William Slaughter

MUDLARK
An Electronic Journal of Poetry & Poetics
Never in and never out of print...
E-mail: [redacted]
URL: http://www.unf.edu/mudlark

↑ Index

9. steve russell
mainstream musings
Fri 30 Jan 2009

---

anyone have any thoughts on Updike?
most of the marquee/mainstream writers are gone.

Harold Bloom, on Updike, wrote: a minor noveliest with a major style.

David Foster Wallace wondered if he had any unpublished thoughts.

My take:

He'll probably be remembered mostly for the Rabbit novels, a handful of stories, and possibly his light verse. Obviously a gifted, major talent. But he lacked an edge, a sense of the tragic. Often more style than vision. But the Rabbit novels ... exceptional.

↑ Index

10. steve russell

Re: NY Times: Washington Post's Book World Goes Out of Print as a Separate Section

Fri 30 Jan 2009

Depressing: I looked forward to Book World. Including the weekly Poets Corner. Mary Karr was the most recent editor.& although Karr isn't exactly a trail blazer as a poet, she did occasionally featured some decent poetry in her column.

--- On Thu, 1/29/09, David-Baptiste Chirot <[redacted]> wrote:
From: David-Baptiste Chirot <[redacted]>
Subject: NY Times: Washington Post's Book World Goes Out of Print as a Separate Section
To: [redacted]
Date: Thursday, January 29, 2009, 8:21 AM

BOOKS

| January 29,2009

Washington Post's Book World Goes Out of Print as a Separate Section

By MOTOKO RICH

The
Washington Post has decided to shutter the print version of its Sunday stand-alone book review section and shift reviews to space inside two other sections of the paper.
http://www.nytimes.com/2009/01/29/books/29post.html?emc=eta1

_____
Windows Live™ Hotmail®:...more than just e-mail.
http://windowslive.com/explore?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t2_hm_justgotbetter_explore_012009

↑ Index

11. Jim Andrews

Re: e to a friend about a philosophy of computer art

Fri 30 Jan 2009

> Well, maybe let's take a step back. I think it's important to distinguish between something being readable as code and actually being code.

What is 'code', then?

I tend towards a sort of hardcore formalism adopted more > or less wholesale from wittgenstein as the foundations of mathematics are > concerned, meaning on my view at least explicit mathematical symbols of > the sorts that computers can operate on are actually a funny kind of sign > that are of a different sort from usual signifiers. We can read a what > goes into and out of computers as code because it's explicitly coming > from a very code heavy part of our language. This is qualitatively > different in my view from what happens with, for example, RNA sequences > where what we see is readable as code, and that the function of of > rhibozomes is to respond based on what the structure of the RNA sequence > "says" but I think moving from that point to saying that what we can > interpret as code because it makes sense to us given how we use language > actually IS code is something that I think is not self evident. Not > saying a case can't be made, just that it needs making.

We note that DNA very successfully codifies and stores all the information required to copy/clone a living being. That's outlandishly remarkable. That's outstanding information architecture, to put it mildly.

Moreover, the format of your DNA is the same as mine. They can be compared to see if we are the same person, or the same sex, or both/neither have blue eyes and so on. That information is in the same place in your DNA and my DNA. Same format, but slightly different information for you and me.

I don't understand why you say we should not call such highly ordered, consistent-across-beings, readable/writable information 'code' or 'coded'. The body itself must be able to read this information to reproduce cells. We have the same reading devices. Just different stored info that is read.

If information is stored in such a way that different beings read the same information in the same way, interpret it in the same way, then the information is surely coded in a way that is reasonably described as code. We all enjoy the same mechanisms for reading and writing DNA. They may differ slightly in the way that dialects differ, perhaps, but human beings are remarkably similar in their overall form. As are creatures of any similar kind. The form in which their physical form is coded, in DNA, has to be consistently readable and consistently interpretable or the reproductive process would go off the rails very quickly and produce monsters or dead things. And of course it does sometimes, but not so often, thankfully.

Now, it may be that physical attributes are not so easily translatable into sequences of DNA. Because we grow. We aren't simply copies of our DNA but we grow over time and our attributes develop and change (though apparently our DNA changes hardly at all). But some attributes we retain from the cradle to the grave, and these are good bets to be explicitly coded in sequences of DNA.

DNA is like machine language whereas 'blue eyes' are like terms from a '4th generation language' where each term is supported by thousands of machine language instructions. When we code programs in Java or whatever, each instruction we write actually is supported by many underlying machine language operations.

Code is consistently readable/writable language. Readable/writable by different entities if they employ the same rules of interpreting the code.

> on the other hand, what we have in brain function are all manner of non explicit symbols. in fact, and I may be jumping off a bit of a cliff saying this, one might argue that universals are in fact non- explicit symbols and therefore given that consciousness and thought as we understand them seems to require that sort of abstraction, and given that so much abstraction needs universals to be done, that this is the fundamental place where the idea of machine intelligence being acquired by something made up of two state transistors falls apart.

What is a "universal"?

> because, claims made by object oriented programmers aside, I don't know that there is a way to get a computer to understand and work with a universal. you can't reduce a universal to an explicit list of characteristics, which is where the whole problem of universals comes from in the first place. Of course, saying this, its probably important that I qualify it by saying I ascribe to Wittgensteins theory of universals which rejects both nominalism and realism and holds that universals are like family resemblances. Which is to say I may be question begging her because I think from the get go that you can't get at human thought or even human grammar for that matter through a set of explicit rules. At least not on it's own.

I don't know what you mean by a "universal".

> A couple notes here on why I think this is so:
>
> 1.) it is possible for humans to understand the semantic content of expressions that are not well-formed, this is particularly true of native speakers in their first language. something that requires explicit code for decision making or interpretation can't do this and requires error handling algorithms to be able to cope with it.

So? Interpreting meaning in language is always a constructive process. Constructive in the sense of a building process. We build meaning. And natural language is usually ambiguous whether the utterances/strings are well-formed or not. So building meaning is always model-building that we are prepared to revise. And so it would have to be in computer algorithms that try to construct meaning.

Parsing syntax is usually simpler, but as you say we are more than capable of constructing meaningful, improperly formed grammatical statements. And so computer algorithms that try to construct meaning would have to have a couple of layers of syntax parsing. If the statement is not well-formed grammatically, then pass it to the routines that don't require well-formedness but guess and construct meaning anyway. By no means impossible.

> It doesn't seem to me that what humans do with statements that are not wellformed is similar to error handling. Instead we muddle through working on conjecture and intuition and as a result language can sometimes be extended in a way that it doesn't seem that machines would be capable of. A specific example might be the emergence of trade languages, creoles and pidgins in populations where there are many different mutually unintelligible languages spoken.

You might enjoy a computer science course normally offered in the third undergraduate year usually called something like 'the theory of computation' or 'languages and the theory of computation' or 'automata theory'. Computer science students normally hate it. Because it's very mathematically-oriented and, well, philosophically meditative. It is very like a math course, but a kind of mixture of number theory, formal logic, and graph theory. And it's a course where there's usually a lot of fascinating discussion about the limits of computation. Because, that's what the course is all about, the nature and limits of computation. After all, Turing invented the Turing machine to show that there are some tasks no machine will ever perform. Not that we can do any of these things either.

This course provides a rigorous way to approach questions about what machines can or cannot do.

Why wouldn't machines be able to "muddle through working on conjecture and intuition"? I don't think there's anything theoretically impossible about that at all.

> 2.) Humans have an extremely high tolerance for vagueness. In fact, I think vagueness is probably one of the greatest allies of human intelligence.

Yes, well, perhaps poetry is the art of being profoundly vague.

> I can say and do all manners of utterly vague things and still expect to be understood and reacted to perfectly.

It has its limits, doesn't it.

> the best example here is probably indexical expressions, something I've been absolutely fascinated with in my poetic practice over the years. that we can do so much with "here, there, this and that" the most non-explicit of symbols we have that we never the less have no trouble working with and using constantly. I think probably it's useful here to > distinguish between indexicals and something akin to an algebraic variable. What's important about variables is that while they can have any value or at least any of a set of values in an equation they are also defined by the equation in which they occur, all the symbols of which are explicit, including other variables. Contrast that with the expression "There." Imagine that I'm standing in a room giving some one instructions about where to put a painting. I might say there and point. When I point I'm not defining an explicit place, but rather giving a vague direction which the other person then has no trouble following. In fact i might not even point. If the person and I know each other well enough, they might be able to interpret my meaning based solely on my unconscious body language. There may then be some testing that goes on to get to agreement. The person will hold the painting against the wall and say "here?" At this point an explicit place has been definied by the painting's being there, but it is ONLY defined by the paintings being there, and suppose that the persons hands are shaking and the painting is not in a specific place but rather in a vague portion of the wall. I might then agree and or disagree, and if i disagree give some more vague instructions "up a bit, right a little, left a lot" etc. I think if you compare this to the complex set of instructions that would have to be programmed into a robot to do the same task, you'll get an inkling of where I'm going here. The difference, I don't think at least, is not that humans are making all kinds of calculations and operations subconsciously in following these simple directions, but rather that we have a very high tolerance for vagueness that grows out of the fact that our thinking doesn't use explicit symbols in the way that a machine intelligence would have to. Lots of thought experiments can be found in science fiction about this whenever a machine intelligence is shown to go haywire due to it's inability to cope with vague instructions resulting from circumstances its not programmed to cope with or an over literal interpretation of vague instructions given to it.

There are ways to avoid getting caught in infinite loops and that sort of thing, in programming. For instance, debuggers detect when programs are in infinite loops and let the programmer exit the code.

I don't think there's anything non-reproducable in how humans handle the pitfalls of infinite loops and such. Humans have their own problems with repetitive behavior, of course. Addictions, for instance. We have a hard time extricating ourselves from habits of mind and physical habits. But we can do so, not because we are not machines but because we are very sophisticated machines.

To return, though, to the issue of explicit symbols.

Computers code things in zeros and ones and in higher-level symbols. For instance in bytes of information. A byte being 8 bits of information. So we can have 256 explicit symbols of the form

00000000
00000001
00000010
00000011
00000100
00000101
.
.
.
One of these can mean 'a', another 'b', and so on.

Now how does the brain code information for our memories? Well we don't know. But I expect there will be some minimally representational code or language so that we can keep things straight over time.

Neural nets and similar information devices/architectures may provide some means for obviating the need for overly representational codings of memory, but I expect there will be some underlying substratum of representational, explicit code perhaps similar in form to how the body reads/writes DNA.

ja
http://vispo.com

↑ Index

12. Alan Sondheim

Dreaming (apologies for so many posts today, won't happen again)

Fri 30 Jan 2009

Dreaming (apologies for so many posts today, won't happen again)

Please visit Second Life Odyssey installation for numerous changes towards dreaming, set your environment time for midnight:
To access the Odyssey exhibition The Accidental Artist:
http://slurl.com/secondlife/Odyssey/48/12/22

Sleep study dreamer against starry Second Life sky, avatar dreaming avatar dream:
http://www.alansondheim.org/dreamer1.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/dreamer2.png
Interior sky-sphere tissue-organs with sleep study dreamer avatar dreaming avatar dream:
http://www.alansondheim.org/dreamer3.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/dreamer4.png
Four images of OpenSim landscape from below-within:
http://www.alansondheim.org/dreamer5.png

http://www.alansondheim.org/dreamer6.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/dreamer7.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/dreamer8.png
Lunar avatar warning disk in revised sleep study dreamer ground element installation at Odyssey:
http://www.alansondheim.org/dreamer9.png

↑ Index

13. Jesse Glass

Jesse Glass featured poet reading at poetryvlog.com

Sat 31 Jan 2009

Jesse Glass reads from three poems: "Asthma Song," "To Leo," and "To Diane di Prima From Japan." Happy to add that this reading earned a wow from Ron. Please check out www.poetryvlog.com for other fine poets. Jess

↑ Index

14. Layne Russell

Re: it's ukiaHaiku festival time again! (fwd)

Sat 31 Jan 2009

Gabrielle, I can post this to the haiku talk 2 group (through Yahoo groups, if anyone is interested).

Thanks,
Layne
----- Original Message -----
From: Gabrielle Welford
To: [redacted]
Sent: Thursday, January 29, 2009 11:51 AM
Subject: it's ukiaHaiku festival time again! (fwd)

Date: Thu, 29 Jan 2009 11:43:56 -0800
From: Kate Marianchild <[redacted]>

tiny girl
reciting her poem--
hard to breathe

The ukiaHaiku festival welcomes your submissions of poems by Friday, March 13 Note: we are offering new prizes starting at $100 in the "Adult, Contemporary" category! Please see Haiku about the festival below.

Haiku are blossoming once again among poets new and old as the 7th annual ukiaHaiku festival quickly approaches. Ukiah's Poet Laureate Committee invites submissions of haiku by experienced and inexperienced poets of all ages by Friday, March 13. Haiku are brief 3-line poems that offer a "snapshot" of a scene or a moment in time. Unlike many other kinds of poems, haiku usually do not include rhyme, alliteration, or punctuation. For guidelines on how to write haiku, to read winning poems from years past, and to learn about the available categories and submission methods, go to www.ukiahaiku.org. Forms can also be obtained at all of the county's libraries, including the bookmobile, as well as at Grace Hudson Museum (431 S. School Street, Ukiah).

Submissions are free in all categories (which are organized by age group and subject matter) except for the Contemporary Haiku-Adult Category, which costs $5 for up to 3 poems. Examples of other categories are "Children, All Topics, K-3rd grade," "Haiku About Ukiah, 7th-12th grade," and "Traditional Haiku - Adult." Prizes are very modest in all categories except "Contemporary Haiku - Adult," for which awards of $100, $50, and $25 are being given this year for the first time. All winning poems will also be published in a book.

Unless otherwise specified, all haiku can be submitted in either the traditional (5-7-5 syllable-count) format or the contemporary (briefer, non-syllable counting) format. Teachers who wish to invite a poet into their classroom to guide students in writing haiku should contact Ukiah's Poet Laureate David Smith-Ferri at [redacted], or email him at [redacted]. For more "how-to" information on writing haiku, go to www.ahapoetry.com, the website of well-known haiku poet and ukiaHaiku festival judge Jane Reichhold. The awards ceremony will take place on Sunday, March 26, from 2-4 p.m. at the Ukiah Conference Center.

P.S. For those who haven't noticed, "Ukiah" spells "Haiku" backwards!

Haiku about the ukiaHaiku festival:

haiku wall
one thousand paper cranes
poised to fly

(by Sherrie Smith. This haiku refers to the fact that we post all the entries on the wall at the awards ceremony;
paper cranes are metaphorical emissaries of peace - go online for the story of Sadako Sasaki)

ukiah's
first spring blooms--
haiku

(by Kate Marianchild)

twelve hundred entries-- under stacks of white paper
a single white crane

(by Armand Brint)

judging haiku--
one feather
on a rippling pond

(by Armand Brint)

haiku fly
from distant lands--
spring migration

(by Kate Marianchild. This haiku refers to the fact that we get submissions
to our festival from all over the world)

==========

↑ Index

15. Anny Ballardini

Issue twelve of Otoliths has just gone live

Sat 31 Jan 2009

--001636c5ac74a931210461cb87c4

February may be the shortest month, but that doesn't mean that *Otoliths*has to follow suit. Issue twelve <http://the-otolith.blogspot.com/>, the southern summer issue, has just gone live, & it's as large as ever, with its usual wide-ranging selection of prose, poetry & things visual.

Included in this issue are David-Baptiste Chirot, Denise Duhamel, Raymond Farr, J. S. Murnet, Tom Taylor, James Sanders, Martin Edmond, Kane X. Faucher, Andrew Taylor, Christopher Major, Forrest Roth, Cath Vidler, Angela Genusa, C.E. Chaffin, John Lowther, Mary Ellen Derwis, Joe Balaz, Mary Ellen Derwis & Joe Balaz, Maria Garcia Teutsch, Felino Soriano, Bobbi Lurie, Bill Drennan, Jeff Harrison, Sheila E. Murphy & John M. Bennett, Jukka-Pekka Kervinen & John M. Bennett, John M. Bennett & various collaborators, John M Bennett, Adam Robinson, Anny Ballardini, Michael Rothenberg, Jared Schickling & John Bloomberg-Rissman, Tom Beckett interviewing John Bloomberg-Rissman, John C. Goodman, Marcia Arrieta, Donald Dunbar, Eric Burke, Joseph Wood, Gregory Bem, George Moore, Brandon Shimoda, J. A. Tyler, sarah k bell, Ed Baker, Arpine Konyalian Grenier, Jill Jones, Geri Gale, Geof Huth, sean burn, Tim Gaze, Nicolette Westfall & Jeff Crouch, Paul Siegell, Daniel f Bradley, Stu Hatton, Dan Ruhrmanty, Philip Byron Oakes, Kristina Marie Darling, Katrinka Moore, Mary Kasimor, Charles Freeland, D.C.Porder, Jeremy P. Bushnell, Alana Madison, Michael Filimowicz, & Spencer Selby. The cover is by Alexander Jorgensen.

Enjoy!
Mark Young

http://the-otolith.blogspot.com

--
Anny Ballardini
http://annyballardini.blogspot.com/
http://www.fieralingue.it/modules.php?name=poetshome
http://www.moriapoetry.com/ebooks.html
I Tell You: One must still have chaos in one to give birth to a dancing star!

--001636c5ac74a931210461cb87c4

--001636c5ac74a931210461cb87c4--

↑ Index

16. steve russell
Muntazer al-Zaidi/Waiting for Other Shoe to Drop
Sat 31 Jan 2009

@ MoreWhat.Com

Shoe Sculpture Honors Iraqi Journalist

By VOA News

30 January 2009

Iraqis are paying tribute to the journalist who threw his shoes at then-President George Bush at a statue dedicated to the incident.

A large bronze sculpture of a shoe, accompanied by an ode to journalist Muntazer al-Zaidi, was unveiled Thursday in Tikrit.

Zaidi gained instant fame during a Baghdad news conference last month, throwing his shoes to express his anger at the U.S.-led invasion of his country. His act inspired thousands across the Middle East to carry shoes in rallies of solidarity.

He is currently in jail awaiting trial.

Tikrit is the hometown of former Iraqi President Saddam Hussein. After a Baghdad statue of Saddam was toppled in 2003, Iraqis displayed their disgust with him by hitting the sculpture with shoes and slippers.

Some information for this report was provided by AFP, AP and Reuters

Trackposted to Nuke¢s, The Virtuous Republic, Rosemary¢s Thoughts, third world county, Political Byline, Woman Honor Thyself, Wingless - Alastair Crooke on Gaza & Hamas - living in the twilight zone!, The World According to Carl, DragonLady¢s World, and Conservative Cat, thanks to Linkfest Haven Deluxe

↑ Index

17. Brian Clements

Sentence 6 Now Available (Posted Earlier with Incorrect Subject Line)

Sun 1 Feb 2009

Issue #6 of Sentence: a Journal of Prose Poetics is now available with:

a feature on The Prose Poem in Italy, introduced by Luigi Ballerini and curated by Ballerini with Gian Lombardo. It includes work by Mariano Baino (translated by Lombardo), Maurizio Cucchi (translated by Amy-Louise Pfeffer), Angelo Lumelli (translated by Maria Esposito Frank), Giampiero Neri (translated by Stephen Sartarelli), Tiziano Rossi (translated by Olivia E. Sears), and Leonardo Sinisgalli (translated by Brendan Hennessey) work by Nin Andrews, Alexios Antypas, Sally Ashton, Sanjukta Bandyopadhyay translated by Carolyne Wright with Paramita Banerjee, BJ Best, Jen Bills, Sean Mclain Brown, Suzanne Burns, Sean Casey, Joseph Cooper, Patrick Crerand, Thad DeVassie, Paul Dickey, Amy Dickinson, Ray DiPalma, Denise Duhamel, Alison Espach, Michael Estabrook, Ann Fisher-Wirth, Charles Fort, Jeannine Hall Gailey, Allan Gann, Christien Gholson, Lawrence Goeckel, Noah Eli Gordon, Mark Halperin, Michael Jauchen, Ken Jones, Norman Jope, Michaela Kahn, Janet Kaplan, Evelyn Lauer, Caroline Ledeboer, Daniel Liebert, Nancy Lord, Rupert Loydell, Valya Dudycz Lupescu, Sebastian Matthews, James Maughn, Michael Meyerhofer, Caroline Morrell, Fred Muratori, Amy Newman, Craig Perez, Deniz Perin, Shazea Quraishi, Daniel Remein, Pamela Rhodes, Siobhan Scarry, Steven D. Schroeder, Shawqi Abi Shaqra (translated by Tahseen al Khateeb), Brenda Sieczkowski, Mary Austin Speaker, Peter Stavropoulos, JeFF Stumpo, Ed Taylor, Dawn Tefft, Mark Terrill, Mark Tursi, Jon Veinberg, Liz Waldner, Laura Walker, JE Wei, Derek White, Kim Whitley, Joshua Marie Wilkinson, Stephanie Woolley-Larrea, Theodore Worozbyt, and Changming Yuan reviews by Joe Ahearn, Cara Benson, Julia Bloch, Michel Delville, Lea Graham, Farid Matuk, Ellen McGrath Smith, and Rebecca Spears,

an essay, “High and Low: Photographic Strategies in Paris Spleen” by Craig Medvecky

Subscriptions, individual copies, discounted back issues, and the full Firewheel Editions catalog are available from http://firewheel-editions.org, where you can purchase via PayPal or obtain info to order by check. Subscriptions and individual copies of #6 are also available at Amazon and EBSCO.

↑ Index

18. Rob McLennan

seventeen seconds: a journal of poetry and poetics

Sun 1 Feb 2009

---

edited by rob mclennan designed by Roland Prevost;

http://www.ottawater.com/seventeenseconds/

seventeen seconds: a journal of poetry and poetics comes out as the natural extension of the eight issues of Poetics.ca edited by rob mclennan and Stephen Brockwell. Highlighting the diversity of voice, style, practice and politic, seventeen seconds continues the resolve to provide a forum for dialogue on contemporary poetics, with a focus on Canadian writing. Over the past two decades, the amount of critical writing published in print literary journals on Canadian poetry, specifically, seems to have decreased dramatically, but slowly returned through a number of online journals. seventeen seconds simply wishes to help strengthen the dialogue and the ongoing conversation about writing through publishing new writing, and conversation about new writing. How else are we supposed to learn anything, unless we keep talking?

Feedback and submission queries are most welcome.az421 (at) freenet (dot) carleton (dot) ca

the first issue features:

Chain Home - by Gil McElroy

SEXING THE PRAIRIE; or, Why I Am/Not a Prairie Poet - by rob mclennan

Alchemists of the Human Experience: an Interview with Vincent Ferrini - interview by Michael O'Driscoll

Scored Space - by Betsy Warland

a case made in lowers: an interview with ryan fitzpatrick - by rob mclennan

Draft 91: Proverbs - by Rachel Blau DuPlessis

-- writer/editor/publisher ...STANZAS mag, above/ground press & Chaudiere Books (www.chaudierebooks.com) ...coord.,SPAN-O + ottawa small press fair ...13th poetry coll'n - The Ottawa City Project ...novel - white www.abovegroundpress.blogspot.com * http://robmclennan.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

19. Adam Fieled

PFS Post Spring Season Line-Up!

Sun 1 Feb 2009

Hello everyone,

PFS Post's spring season will begin next week, on Monday, February 9. This is a sneak preview of what's coming up, and what you will see every Monday for the next three months. I am very excited about this line-up and I hope you are too!

2/9-- Daniela Olszewska & Ada Limon

2/16-- Gabriel Gudding (Waxing Hot!)

2/23-- Kent Johnson & Daniel Borzurtzky

3/2-- Rufo Quintavalle & Eileen Tabios

3/9-- Andrew Lundwall & Christian Nicholas

3/16-- Naomi Buck Palagi & Emily Pettit

3/23-- Kristen Orser & Karri Kokko

3/30-- Cara Benson & harrykstammer

4/6-- Aidan Thompson & Chris McCabe

4/13-- Paul Siegell & Joseph Bradshaw

4/20-- Jason Bredle & Jean Vengua

4/27-- Kelley White & Jordan Stempleman (Waxing Hot!)

See y'all over at artrecess,
Adam

↑ Index

20. Nico Vassilakis

Subtext Reading: Laynie Browne & Michael Cross: 1/4/09

Sun 1 Feb 2009

---

for more information:

http://subtextreadingseries.blogspot.com/

thanks for your time, n

↑ Index

21. Susan Webster Schultz Tinfish Editor's blog
Sun 1 Feb 2009

Dear friends:

I have started a blog. Please have a look. So far, there are entries on Jules Boykoff's and Deborah Meadows's new books, Frank Rich's take on inaugural poetry, literary events in Hawai`i, and more.

http://tinfisheditor.blogspot.com/

If you go to AWP in Chicago, please stop by the Tinfish Press table at the book fair (and Achiote Press and Slack Buddha, our neighbors).

Also come to the TinFish Press and Slack Buddha readings:

http://www.linkshall.org/09-pp-feb.shtml#AWP

aloha, Susan

↑ Index

22. Jerome Rothenberg
announcement for Poems for the Millennium launch at Beyond Baroque Sun 1 Feb 2009

---

13 February, Friday - 7:30 PM
Poems for the Millennium Vol III: with editors JEROME ROTHENBERG & JEFFREY ROBINSON, featuring the Editors with WILL ALEXANDER, DAVID MATLIN, DOUGLAS MESSERLI, and SIMONE FORTI.

Come for a launch of the new Poems for the Millennium, Vol III: The UC Book of Romantic and Postromantic Poetry, edited by JEROME ROTHENBERG & JEFFREY ROBINSON. Like Volumes I and II, the new Poems for the Millennium sets forth, in a feast, the globally decentered, experimental, visionary, radical, and global elements of the 19th century and before that precede our multiple avant-gardes. The book features far more than canonical romantics and postromantics like Rimbaud, Blake, Goethe, Shelley, Hölderlin, Hugo, Pushkin, Whitman, Dickinson, and Baudelaire, with manifestoes and the work of lesser known experimenters like Dionysos Solomos, Cyprian Norwid, Sousandrade, Adah Isaacs Menken, Arno Holz, and Yosano Akiko, Shaker poems, ancient and tribal works, and varied written, visual, sound, and spoken experiments. Beyond Baroque is at 681 Venice Boulevard in Los Angeles, and the Millennium reading and launch, with copies of the book available, is free and open to the public.

↑ Index

23. Peter Ciccariello
Fwd: The Fog is here
Sun 1 Feb 2009

---

*Thought this might be of interest -

A remarkable first issue from Benjamin Evans
Executive Editor, Fogged Clarity

- Peter

*
---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Ben Evans <[redacted]>
Date: Sun, Feb 1, 2009 at 6:17 PM
Subject: The Fog is here

www.foggedclarity.com, spread the word

↑ Index

24. Alexander Dickow
Globish
Mon 2 Feb 2009

Troy,
French literature IS thriving.
The language legislation you refer to has been dead for years.
Best not to talk about things you don't know about.
Alex

↑ Index

25. amy king
Fogged Clarity
Mon 2 Feb 2009

From Ben Evans:

I am writing to you to announce the launch of our new arts review, Fogged Clarity. Our February (debut) issue is free and available at http://foggedclarity.com/. In it you will find new work from poets Bruce Smith, Amy King, and Barry Schwabsky, experimental photography by Kyle Jones and Ryan Daly, short fiction by Dmitri Gheorgheni, and much more. Fogged Clarity aims to transcend the conventions of the typical literary review by incorporating music, the visual arts, interviews, and political exposition. Our ambition is to form a community of artists whose interaction is not constrained by medium, but broadened by a collective love of expression. Our network is extensive, and our passion for ventilation intense. We sincerely hope you will join us as we embark on this journey.

I wish you the best,

Benjamin Evans

Editor, Fogged Clarity

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

26. amy king
Pirene's Fountain
Mon 2 Feb 2009

Pirene¢s Fountain

January 2009, Volume 2 : Issue 4

Kim Addonizio

Michelle Bitting

Lisel Mueller

Lisa Alvarado

David Nelson Bradsher

Anselm Brocki

Michael Brownstein

Roberta Burnett

Michael Ceraolo

Rusty Childers

Alison Croggon

Maggie Flanagan-Wilkie

Maria Mazziotti Gillan

Ami Kaye

Amy King

Oliver Lodge

Joanne Lowery

Aine MacAodha

Amy MacLennan

Steve Meador

Charles Morrison

Scott Owens

Doug Ramspeck

Maria Terrone

Lark Vernon

Julene Tripp Weaver

Sam Wilding

Jane Yolen

http://www.pirenesfountain.com/current_issue.html

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

27. amy king

Denver Syntax

Mon 2 Feb 2009

Denver Syntax -- Winter 2009

{l i t a n y f o r r e g i f t i n g}

{l i t a n y f o r t h e b e n e f i t s}

{l i t a n y f o r i n s o m n i a} reb livingston

{m i s s d i f a l c o}

{t i m e}

{u n l a c e d a n d u n t i e d}

puma perl

{b o o z i n g}

jim chandler

{3 2 f l a v o r s o f l o v e a n d d e a t h}

{w h e n y o u a r e c l o s e e n o u g h}

john dorsey

{s i m u l a t i o n s, o r f o r t u n e t a l l y i n g}

lisa gordon

{t h e b e s t}

barton smock

{c o l o r p h o t o g r a p h y}

{g o o d t i d i n g
s}

{q u i c k l y p a s s i n g}

luc simonic

{a d d i c t e d t o l i v i n g}

paul adrian mabelis

{e x c e r p t}

{d o w n}

{w i n t e r d a w n s t a l l}

matthew rounsville

{j u s t t o m i n d f u c k}

{t h e r e p r o d u c t i o n o f p r o f i l e s}

{t h e m a r b l e f a u n}

{t h e a n i m a l l a n g u a g e s}

amy king

{a s e r i e s o f p o e m s f o r r o b e r t b l y}

ron androla

http://www.denversyntax.com/issue16/poems/poems.html

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

28. Troy Camplin
Globish
Mon 2 Feb 2009

Never heard of
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Académie_française

Never heard of a defunct organization electing 6 new members within the last year.

And I have seen no evidence of French literature thriving. And giving the Nobel Prize to someone living in Albuquerque, NM after badmouthing American literature (which admittedly could use a little badmouthing) doesn't count. France has to import people from Czechoslovakia (now The Czech Republic) and Slovenia to have anyone worth mentioning who writes in French.

Troy Camplin

From: Alexander Dickow <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Monday, February 2, 2009 12:18:30 AM
Subject: Globish

Troy,
French literature IS thriving.
The language legislation you refer to has been dead for years.
Best not to talk about things you don't know about.
Alex

↑ Index

29. Michael Kelleher
Literary Buffalo Newsletter 02.02.09-02.08.09
Mon 2 Feb 2009

LITERARY BUFFALO
02.02.09-02.08.09

CORRECTION

On the Literary Buffalo Poster, the title of Mick Cochrane's new novel, "The Girl Who Three Butterflies," was incorrectly listed as "The Adult Who Threw Butterflies." Apologies for the confusion.

EVENTS THIS WEEK

Visit the Literary Buffalo calendar at www.justbuffalo.org for more detailed info on these events. All events free and open to the pubic unless otherwise noted.

02.02.09

The Poetry Collection
Closing Event for the Poetry Collection exhibit:
"James Joyce & His Literary Circles"
Monday, February 2, 3:30 PM
Poetry Collection, University at Buffalo, 420 Capen Hall

02.04.09

Rooftop Poetry Club at Buffalo State College
In Good Taste: Irene Sipos Workshop
Writing Workshop
Wednesday, February 4, 4:30 PM
E.H Butler Library, Int'l Student Area, 3rd Floor

Exhibit X Fiction
Kim Chinquee/Forrest Roth
Fiction Reading
Wednesday, February 4, 7:00 PM
Hallwalls Cinema, 341 Delaware Ave @ Tupper

Just Buffalo/Center for Inquiry Literary CafÇ
Rose Sally/Carol Southwood
Poetry Reading (8 open slots)
Wednesday, February 4, 7:30 PM
Center For Inquiry, 1310 Sweet Home Road, Amherst

Analytical Psychology Society of WNY
Linda Drajem, Barbara Q. Faust, Kathy Shoemaker
Reading from their book, InnerSessions
Wednesday, February 4, 7:30 PM
Analytical Psychology Society of WNY, 408 Franklin St, 02.05.09

The Write Thing at Medaille College
3 XXperimental Women Fiction Writers
Fiction Reading
Thursday, February 5, 7:00 PM
E.H Butler Library, Int'l Student Area, 3rd Floor

Just Buffalo/Buffalo State College/Albright-Knox et al
An Evening With Geraldine Brooks
Lecture
Thursday, February 5, 8:00 PM
Rockwell Hall, Buffalo State College, 1300 Elmwood Ave., $10 admission

02.07.09

Just Buffalo/Interdisciplinary Performance Series
Along This Way
Storytelling in the African Tradition
Saturday, February 7, 2:00 PM
Frank E. Merriweather Library, 1324 Jefferson Ave.

02.08.09

Talking Leaves...Books
Tom Waters
Reading/Signing

Sunday, February 8, 2:00 PM
Talking Leaves...Books, 951 Elmwood

BABEL

ISABEL ALLENDE READING ON APRIL 17 MOVED TO KLEINHANS MUSIC HALL!

INDIVIDUAL TICKETS ARE ON SALE NOW!

$100 PATRON LEVEL (Includes reserved seating area tickets plus admission to pre-event reception with Isabel Allende at Henry's restaurant in Kleinhans) $30 GENERAL ADMISSION (Includes general admission seating to event)

Visit www.justbuffalo.org or call [redacted] to order yours now.

SPECIAL RATES (PHONE ORDERS ONLY)

$25 GROUP RATE (per ticket for orders of three or more; must order at the same time)

$20 CURRENT SUBSCRIBER RATE (current subscribers can purchase as many tickets as they like for this special rate)

$10 CLASSROOM RATE (teachers can purchase groups of ten or more tickets for students for this low student rate)

CALL [redacted] TO ORDER

IN-PERSON ONLY RATE (can be purchased at Just Buffalo or at the event only)

$10 STUDENT INDIVIDUAL RATE (for students with current, valid student I.D.)

FIRST ANNUAL JUST BUFFALO MEMBER POETRY READING AND CONTEST DEADLINE FEBRUARY 14: CLICK THE FOLLOWING LINK FOR GUIDELINES AND DETAILS:

http://www.justbuffalo.org/index.php?task=view&id=60&show=252

UNSUBSCRIBE

If you would like to unsubscribe from this list, just say so and you will immediately be removed.

Michael Kelleher
Artistic Director
Just Buffalo Literary Center
Market Arcade

617 Main St., Ste. 202A
Buffalo, NY 14203
[redacted]
[redacted] (fax)
www.justbuffalo.org
[redacted]

↑ Index

30. William Allegrezza
Series A this Wed.
Mon 2 Feb 2009

Please come to the next Series A this Wednesday.

Feb 4, 7:00-8:00 p.m.
A.D. Jameson
Philip Jenks

At the Hyde Park Art Center.
5020 S. Cornell Avenue
Chicago, IL

BYOB.

For more information, visit http://www.moriapoetry.com/seriesa.html

Bill Allegrezza

↑ Index

31. Michael Kelleher
Corrections of Corrections
Mon 2 Feb 2009

LITERARY BUFFALO
02.02.09-02.08.09

CORRECTION OF CORRECTION

THE TITLE OF MICK'S BOOK IS "THE GIRL WHO THREW BUTTERFLIES" not "The Girl Who Three Butterflies."

Also, the Medaille event was listed at the wrong location. Here's the correct info.

The Write Thing at Medaille College
3 XXperimental Women Fiction Writers
Fiction Reading

Thursday, February 5, 7:00 PM
The Library at Huber Hall, Medaille College, 18 Agassiz Circle.

SORRY for my sloppy editing.

UNSUBSCRIBE

If you would like to unsubscribe from this list, just say so and you will immediately be removed.

_____
Michael Kelleher
Artistic Director
Just Buffalo Literary Center
Market Arcade
617 Main St., Ste. 202A
Buffalo, NY 14203
[redacted]
[redacted] (fax)
www.justbuffalo.org
[redacted]

↑ Index

32. Maria Damon
[Fwd: Ewart Events at Velvet Friday 6th and Saturday 7th, 2009]
Mon 2 Feb 2009

This is a multi-part message in MIME format.

for you chicagoans...

name="Ewart Events at Velvet Friday 6th and Saturday 7th, 2009.eml" filename*0="Ewart Events at Velvet Friday 6th and Saturday 7th, 2009.eml"

Delivered-To: [redacted]
by peridot.tc.umn.edu (Postfix) with ESMTP id 09D3F36C0
for <[redacted]>; Mon, 2 Feb 2009 10:31:19 -0600 (CST)
by mta-w2.tc.umn.edu (UMN smtpd) with ESMTP
for <[redacted]>; Mon, 2 Feb 2009 10:31:18 -0600 (CST)
by omr-m32.mx.aol.com (8.14.1/8.14.1) with ESMTP id n12GRtiJ016120;
Mon, 2 Feb 2009 11:27:55 -0500
by imo-m24.mx.aol.com (mail_out_v39.1.) id o.cce.4666cc52 (37554);
Mon, 2 Feb 2009 11:27:44 -0500 (EST)
Subject: Ewart Events at Velvet Friday 6th and Saturday 7th, 2009
Date: Mon, 02 Feb 2009 11:27:03 -0500
From: [redacted]
To: undisclosed-recipients:;

Ewart Events at Velvet Friday 6th and Saturday 7th, 2009
Please pass this information on.
Thanks!

Aarawak Productions and AACM
Presents:
Douglas R. Ewart and Inventions

New Goals-New Achievements

Mankwe Ndosi, Poet & Vocalist
Duriel Harris, Poet
Edward Wilkerson, Winds and Percussion
Mwata Bowden, Winds and Percussions
Darius Savage, Bass
Dushun Mosley, Drums
Douglas R. Ewart, Winds, Percussions and Voice
At
Velvet Lounge
67 East 22nd Street (Cermak Rd.)
Chicago, IL 60616
[redacted]
Friday 6th and Saturday 7th, 2009
9:30 PM
Admission $15.00
Students with ID $10.00

AACM: Power Stronger Than Itself!

----------010006000401070504070601--

↑ Index

33. Adam Fieled

Three Philly Poets at the Highwire Gallery Friday!

Mon 2 Feb 2009

This Friday: a First Friday reading in Philly, with three Philly poets:

Paul Siegell, Sarah Birl, Adam Fieled

at the Highwire Gallery, 2040 Frankford Avenue, Fishtown, Philly, 8:30 pm.

The theme: Love, Love, Love!

Be there or be square!

↑ Index

34. Cara Benson

Millay Colony for the Arts Party at Bowery Poetry Club

Mon 2 Feb 2009

The Millay Colony for the Arts is hosting a party for residents of the Colony at Bowery Poetry Club February 4 at 6:00 PM.

Readings and performance from Damian Van Denburgh, Jibade-Khalil Huffman, Katy Lederer, Peter Gil-Sheridan & Samita Sinha. Open mic follows. Drink specials and food.

Cost: Free for former residents and current applicants. All others $5.

Call [redacted] for more information.

Bowery Poetry Club
308 Bowery at Bleecker St., NYC

_____

http://www.necessetics.com

http://www.necessetics.com/sousrature.html

↑ Index

35. Ana Bo¾ièeviæ

State of the Union audio: John Ashbery, Dan Chelotti, Thomas Sayers Ellis, Nick Flynn and others

Mon 2 Feb 2009

Listen to John Ashbery, Dan Chelotti, Thomas Sayers Ellis, Nick Flynn, Caroline Knox, Eileen Myles, Mathias Svalina, Azareen Van der Vliet Oloomi, Rachel Zucker and Elizabeth Willis read in the amazing State of the Union reading of last October, the week of the 2008 Presidential election. The audio is now on Penn Sound: http://writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/State-of-the-Union.html. You can find some photos from the event here: http://www.flickr.com/photos/humanitiesgc/.

Enjoy!

Ana

--
http://centerforthehumanitiesgc.org
http://nightcommute.org
http://stainofpoetry.wordpress.com

↑ Index

36. Ruth Lepson

Re: announcement for Poems for the Millennium launch at Beyond Baroque

Mon 2 Feb 2009

I am doing an independent study with a student using this wonderful anthology. Congratulations.

On 2/1/09 7:03 PM, "Jerome Rothenberg" <[redacted]> wrote:

> 13 February, Friday - 7:30 PM
> Poems for the Millennium Vol III: with editors JEROME ROTHENBERG & JEFFREY ROBINSON, featuring the Editors with WILL ALEXANDER, DAVID MATLIN, DOUGLAS
> MESSERLI, and SIMONE FORTI.
>
> Come for a launch of the new Poems for the Millennium, Vol III: The UC Book of Romantic and Postromantic Poetry, edited by JEROME ROTHENBERG & JEFFREY ROBINSON. Like Volumes I and II, the new Poems for the Millennium sets forth, in a feast, the globally decentered, experimental, visionary, radical, and global elements of the 19th century and before that precede our multiple avant-gardes. The book features far more than canonical romantics and postromantics like Rimbaud, Blake, Goethe, Shelley, Hölderlin, Hugo, Pushkin, Whitman, Dickinson, and Baudelaire, with manifestoes and the work of lesser known experimenters like Dionysos Solomos, Cyprian Norwid, Sousandrade, Adah Isaacs Menken, Arno Holz, and Yosano Akiko, Shaker poems, ancient and tribal works, and varied written, visual, sound, and spoken experiments. Beyond Baroque is at 681 Venice Boulevard in Los Angeles, and the Millennium reading and launch, with copies of the book available, is free and open to the public.

↑ Index

37. Deborah A. Meadows

strike ended at York University, forced back to work

Mon 2 Feb 2009

From another faculty member, passing this on:

The story is at <http://www.cbc.ca/canada/story/2009/02/02/york-university.html?ref=rss>.

↑ Index

38. Small Press Traffic

SPT PRESENTS: YEDDA MORRISON, KIM ROSENFIELD and KAIA SAND THIS FRIDAY 2/6!

Mon 2 Feb 2009

We're sorry for any cross postings, but not for excitement about this upcoming reading! Please post widely and make sure to come!

Small Press Traffic Presents: Yedda Morrison, Kim Rosenfield, & Kaia Sand

Friday, February 6, 2009 at 7:30 p.m.
CCA- Timken Hall
1111 8th Street, San Francisco

Writer and visual artist Yedda Morrison was born and raised in the San Francisco Bay Area. Morrison's books include; Girl Scout Nation (Displaced Editions, 2008), My Pocket Park (Dusie Press, 2007), and Crop (Kelsey Street Press, 2003). Morrison has exhibited her work in the US and Canada and is currently represented by Republic Gallery in Vancouver, BC (republicgallery.com). She lives in Montreal.

Kim Rosenfield is a poet and psychotherapist. She is the author of three books of genre/blurring language; Good Morning--Midnight-- (Roof Books 2001), which won Small Press Traffic's Book of the Year award in 2002, Tràma (Krupskaya 2004), and re: evolution (Les Figues Press 2008). She lives in NYC with her husband, poet Robert Fitterman and their daughter, Coco.

Kaia Sand is the author of the poetry collection interval (Edge Books 2004), selected as a Small Press Traffic Book of the Year, and co-author with Jules Boykoff of Landscapes of Dissent: Guerrilla Poetry and Public Space. Dusie Press published her wee book, lotto, and Sand has participated in the dusie kollektiv for three years, making the chapbooks heart on a tripod and tiny arctic ice. Jim Dine created two artist book based on Sand's poems, lotto and tiny arctic ice. Remember to Wave, multi-media investigations of political histories lodged in Pacific Northwest of the United States, is forthcoming with Tinfish Press. The NAFTA, a chapbook of collages, is forthcoming with Duration Press e-chap series. Sand co-edits the Tangent Press.

--
Samantha Giles
Executive Director
Small Press Traffic Literary Arts Center
sptraffic.org
smallpresstraffic.blogspot.com

↑ Index

39. Dan Glass
Fwd: With + Stand 3 call for submissions
Mon 2 Feb 2009

please forward widely...

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: With + Stand <[redacted]>
Date: Mon, Feb 2, 2009 at 11:08 AM
Subject: With + Stand 3 call for submissions

"Critique does not simply liquidate the system." -Adorno, Negative Dialectics

With + Stand seeks submissions for its third iteration, the red issue. This issue will take shape over the next month and will be available at the With + Stand edition of the Canessa Gallery Reading Series in San Francisco on March 14th 2009. Please send submissions as a .doc to [redacted] by February 28th.

Docs should consist of a single face of a single 8.5 x 11" page, formatted to your liking, and responding to the following:

Recent crises in global capitalism have functioned, as crises often do, to reveal the historical contours of the present, providing new opportunities to read history against the grain and to unsettle established assumptions. This call for [poems/essays/manifestos] proposes that as our economies enter a period of potentially profound structural transformation, it is all the more necessary to examine the relationship between the economic mode of production and cultural and social forms in the period after WWII.

Special thanks to Berkeley's Interdisciplinary Marxist Working Group for lending their CFP.

http://withplusstand.blogspot.com

↑ Index

40. amy king
Not in NYC? Bill Berkson, Cindy Cruz, Aaron Fagan, Jennifer Fortin, Jean-Paul Pecqueur and Bill Rasmovicz
Mon 2 Feb 2009

Video of Friday's reading

You missed it? You're not in NY (and why should you be?) No problem! Bill Berkson, Cindy Cruz, Aaron Fagan, Jennifer Fortin, Jean-Paul Pecqueur and Bill Rasmovicz talking and shining in little boxes:

http://stainofpoetry.wordpress.com/video/xo!

Ana and Amy

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

41. Christopher Leland Winks
Re: Globish
Mon 2 Feb 2009

Look, Mr. Camplin, perhaps you do not realize that there are BLACK people writing excellent literature in French, but then again you don't seem to pay much mind to anyone non-white at all. But, for the sake of your enlightenment (another ghastly French term), the next time you are in the midst of a solitary walker's reverie (agh! the dreaded Rousseau rears his totalitarian head. May Ayn Rand absolve me!), consider the following writers who are still quite active:

Edouard Glissant, Patrick Chamoiseau, Lyonel Trouillot, Tierno Monenembo, Boubacar Boris Diop, Abdourahman Waberi, Patrick William Syad, Monchoachi, Maryse Conde, Gisele Pineau, Veronique Tadjo, Assia Djebar (a member of that awful French Academy), Franketienne, Dany Laferriere, Rachid Boudjedra, Abdellatif Laabi, Rene Depestre.

I could go on, but that's enough to get you started. Caveat: you might have to learn French -- oh, the humiliation! -- to read some of these writers. But spare us all the flip, snide provincial judgments and do your homework, Doctor, before you pronounce ex cathedra.

In the spirit of Bois Caiman!

----- Original Message -----
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Date: Monday, February 2, 2009 2:44 pm
Subject: Globish
To: [redacted]

> Never heard of
> http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Académie_française
>
> Never heard of a defunct organization electing 6 new members within the last year.
>
> And I have seen no evidence of French literature thriving. And giving the Nobel Prize to someone living in Albuquerque, NM after badmouthing

> American literature (which admittedly could use a little badmouthing) doesn't count. France has to import people from Czechoslovakia (now The Czech Republic) and Slovenia to have anyone worth mentioning who writes in French.
>
> Troy Camplin
>
> _____
> From: Alexander Dickow <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Monday, February 2, 2009 12:18:30 AM
> Subject: Globish
>
> Troy,
> French literature IS thriving.
> The language legislation you refer to has been dead for years.
> Best not to talk about things you don't know about.
> Alex

↑ Index

42. Ana Bo¾ièeviæ

State of the Union audio: John Ashbery, Dan Chelotti, Thomas Sayers Ellis, Nick Flynn and others

Mon 2 Feb 2009

Listen to John Ashbery, Dan Chelotti, Thomas Sayers Ellis, Nick Flynn, Caroline Knox, Eileen Myles, Mathias Svalina, Azareen Van der Vliet Oloomi, Rachel Zucker and Elizabeth Willis read in the amazing State of the Union reading of last October, the week of the 2008 Presidential election. The audio is now on Penn Sound: http://writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/State-of-the-Union.html

You can find some photos from the event here: http://www.flickr.com/photos/humanitiesgc/.

Enjoy!

Ana

--
http://centerforthehumanitiesgc.org
http://nightcommute.org
http://stainofpoetry.wordpress.com

↑ Index

43. Ian Randall Wilson Book Trailer
Mon 2 Feb 2009

Many thanks to list members who made suggested for the Why Do You Read book trailer that my publisher produced in support of my novella, Great Things Are Coming (www.hollyridgepress.com).? Here's the link:

http://www.youtube.com/watch?váfkKjJSlII

Ian Wilson

↑ Index

44. Troy Camplin
Re: Globish
Mon 2 Feb 2009

I do lov
I did say French and not Francophone. The two are different.

I do love how people expose their own racism by accusing others they don't even know of racism. Admittedly, the African writers on my self are mostly Anglophone, though: Makuchi (with whom I took postcolonial literature), Ama Ata Aidoo, Buchi Emecheta, and Chinua Achebe -- Mariama Ba being the exception. I'm a huge fan of Kawabata and Oe, who are Japanese -- and I've read enough Japanese Noh plays to have written a play of my own using Noh macrostructure.. Claude McKay's "Banana Bottom" is one of my favorite novels (ever heard of it? any idea who he is? without looking him up?). I've even managed to introduce my Mexican-American wife to several Hispanic writers she'd never heard of.

I do thank you for the list, though. I always welcome new names. As a natural classicist, there's no culture whose work I'm not interested in.

Troy Camplin, Ph.D.

From: Christopher Leland Winks <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]..BUFFALO.EDU
Sent: Monday, February 2, 2009 2:03:03 PM
Subject: Re: Globish

Look, Mr. Camplin, perhaps you do not realize that there are BLACK people writing excellent literature in French, but then again you don't seem to pay much mind to anyone non-white at all. But, for the sake of your enlightenment

(another ghastly French term), the next time you are in the midst of a solitary walker's reverie (agh! the dreaded Rousseau rears his totalitarian head. May Ayn Rand absolve me!), consider the following writers who are still quite active:

Edouard Glissant, Patrick Chamoiseau, Lyonel Trouillot, Tierno Monenembo, Boubacar Boris Diop, Abdourahman Waberi, Patrick William Syad, Monchoachi, Maryse Conde, Gisele Pineau, Veronique Tadjo, Assia Djebar (a member of that awful French Academy), Franketienne, Dany Laferriere, Rachid Boudjedra, Abdellatif Laabi, Rene Depestre.

I could go on, but that's enough to get you started. Caveat: you might have to learn French -- oh, the humiliation! -- to read some of these writers. But spare us all the flip, snide provincial judgments and do your homework, Doctor, before you pronounce ex cathedra.

In the spirit of Bois Caiman!

----- Original Message -----
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Date: Monday, February 2, 2009 2:44 pm
Subject: Globish
To: [redacted]

> Never heard of
> http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Académie_française
>
> Never heard of a defunct organization electing 6 new members within the last year.
>
> And I have seen no evidence of French literature thriving. And giving the Nobel Prize to someone living in Albuquerque, NM after badmouthing American literature (which admittedly could use a little badmouthing) doesn't count. France has to import people from Czechoslovakia (now The Czech Republic) and Slovenia to have anyone worth mentioning who writes in French.
>
> Troy Camplin
>
> _____
> From: Alexander Dickow <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Monday, February 2, 2009 12:18:30 AM
> Subject: Globish
>
> Troy,

> French literature IS thriving.
> The language legislation you refer to has been dead for years.
> Best not to talk about things you don't know about.
> Alex

↑ Index

45. Jason Quackenbush
Re: Globish
Mon 2 Feb 2009

Never mind some of the excellent work being done in former colonies, like the work of Patrick Chamoiseau. or even just white french writers like Michel Houellebecq.

the french language is clearly alive and well.

On Feb 2, 2009, at 12:03 PM, Christopher Leland Winks wrote:

> Look, Mr. Camplin, perhaps you do not realize that there are BLACK people writing excellent literature in French, but then again you don't seem to pay much mind to anyone non-white at all. But, for the sake of your enlightenment (another ghastly French term), the next time you are in the midst of a solitary walker's reverie (agh! the dreaded Rousseau rears his totalitarian head. May Ayn Rand absolve me!), consider the following writers who are still quite active:
>
> Edouard Glissant, Patrick Chamoiseau, Lyonel Trouillot, Tierno Monenembo, Boubacar Boris Diop, Abdourahman Waberi, Patrick William Syad, Monchoachi, Maryse Conde, Gisele Pineau, Veronique Tadjo, Assia Djebar (a member of that awful French Academy), Franketienne, Dany Laferriere, Rachid Boudjedra, Abdellatif Laabi, Rene Depestre.
>
> I could go on, but that's enough to get you started. Caveat: you might have to learn French -- oh, the humiliation! -- to read some of these writers. But spare us all the flip, snide provincial judgments and do your homework, Doctor, before you pronounce ex cathedra.
>
> In the spirit of Bois Caiman!
>
> ----- Original Message -----

> From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
> Date: Monday, February 2, 2009 2:44 pm
> Subject: Globish
> To: [redacted]
>
> Never heard of
> http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Académie_française
>
> Never heard of a defunct organization electing 6 new members within the last year.
>
> And I have seen no evidence of French literature thriving. And giving
> the Nobel Prize to someone living in Albuquerque, NM after badmouthing > American literature (which admittedly could use a little badmouthing) doesn't count. France has to import people from Czechoslovakia (now The Czech Republic) and Slovenia to have anyone worth mentioning who writes in French.
>
> Troy Camplin
>
> _____
> From: Alexander Dickow <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Monday, February 2, 2009 12:18:30 AM
> Subject: Globish
>
> Troy,
> French literature IS thriving.
> The language legislation you refer to has been dead for years.
> Best not to talk about things you don't know about.
> Alex
>
> welcome.html
>
> welcome.html
>
> welcome.html

Jason Quackenbush
[redacted]

↑ Index

46. Peter Ciccariello

FoggedClarity.com seeks exceptional fiction and poetry

Mon 2 Feb 2009

FoggedClarity.com seeks exceptional fiction and poetry

Arts Review Fogged Clarity is now accepting submissions for our March and April editions. Submissions should be sent to [redacted] . Our February (debut) issue is free and available at www.foggedclarity.com . In it you will find new work from poets Bruce Smith, Amy King, and Peter Ciccariello, experimental photography by Kyle Jones and Ryan Daly, short fiction by Dmitri Gheorgheni, and much more. *Fogged Clarity *aims to transcend the conventions of the typical literary review by incorporating music, the visual arts, interviews, and political exposition. Our ambition is to form a community of artists whose interaction is not constrained by medium, but broadened by a collective love of expression. Our network is extensive, and our passion for ventilation intense. We sincerely hope you will join us, and share the fruits of your own fogged clarity.

I wish you the best,

Benjamin Evans

Executive Editor, Fogged Clarity

↑ Index

47. George Bowering

Re: Globish

Mon 2 Feb 2009

On Feb 2, 2009, at 2:21 PM, Troy Camplin wrote:

> As a natural classicist, there's no culture whose work I'm not interested in.
>
> Troy Camplin, Ph.D.

That's a dangling modifier, Doc.

gb

↑ Index

48. Troy Camplin
Re: Globish
Mon 2 Feb 2009

Apparently you didn't read my comments on the Francophone vs. French literatures. I said the French haven't produced much of note. I'm not all that impressed by Houellebecq. If the novel is supposed to remind us of aspects of existence we have forgotten and continue to forget, Houellebecq isn't much of a novelist. His postmodern nihilism is old and tired and deserves to go the way of the dodo. Of course, that goes with all of postmodernism, which is doing nothing more than rehashing cliches anymore.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: Jason Quackenbush <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Monday, February 2, 2009 4:25:12 PM
Subject: Re: Globish

Never mind some of the excellent work being done in former colonies, like the work of Patrick Chamoiseau. or even just white french writers like Michel Houellebecq.

the french language is clearly alive and well.

On Feb 2, 2009, at 12:03 PM, Christopher Leland Winks wrote:

> Look, Mr. Camplin, perhaps you do not realize that there are BLACK people writing excellent literature in French, but then again you don't seem to pay much mind to anyone non-white at all. But, for the sake of your enlightenment (another ghastly French term), the next time you are in the midst of a solitary walker's reverie (agh! the dreaded Rousseau rears his totalitarian head. May Ayn Rand absolve me!), consider the following writers who are still quite active:
>
> Edouard Glissant, Patrick Chamoiseau, Lyonel Trouillot, Tierno Monenembo, Boubacar Boris Diop, Abdourahman Waberi, Patrick William Syad, Monchoachi, Maryse Conde, Gisele Pineau, Veronique Tadjo, Assia Djebar (a member of that awful French Academy), Franketienne, Dany Laferriere, Rachid Boudjedra, Abdellatif Laabi, Rene Depestre.
>
> I could go on, but that's enough to get you started. Caveat: you might have to learn French -- oh, the humiliation! -- to read some of these writers. But spare us all the flip, snide provincial judgments and do your homework, Doctor, before you pronounce ex cathedra.
>
> In the spirit of Bois Caiman!

----- Original Message -----
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Date: Monday, February 2, 2009 2:44 pm
Subject: Globish
To: [redacted]

Never heard of
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Académie_française

Never heard of a defunct organization electing 6 new members within the last year.

And I have seen no evidence of French literature thriving. And giving the Nobel Prize to someone living in Albuquerque, NM after badmouthing American literature (which admittedly could use a little badmouthing) doesn't count. France has to import people from Czechoslovakia (now The Czech Republic) and Slovenia to have anyone worth mentioning who writes in French.

Troy Camplin

From: Alexander Dickow <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Monday, February 2, 2009 12:18:30 AM
Subject: Globish

Troy,
French literature IS thriving.
The language legislation you refer to has been dead for years.
Best not to talk about things you don't know about.
Alex

Jason Quackenbush
[redacted]

↑ Index

49. Gabrielle Welford
Re: Globish
Mon 2 Feb 2009

:-) dangerous words! my experience is that they are englishes that bring in the local culture in all kinds of ways--with addition of local words and expressions, variations in grammar, different accents obviously, and what i would call a different heart. in some cases i think there are more things that can be said--or perhaps some british things could not be said, but some non-british things certainly could. and the things said in the non-e.g.-british english could not be said in british english because the hearts of the cultures/languages are different. there's that story about wittgenstein's "aha" moment watching a venetian gondolier make some gesture and realizing that meaning hangs on the lives lived around, in and with it, not on the word to thing tie he'd been looking for in the tractatus. all best, gabe

On Mon, 26 Jan 2009, George Bowering wrote:

> The way this story was told 10 years ago was that while English is spreading all over the world, it is a thin English, with a very small vocabulary and fewer tenses, moods and voices than that used in, say, Britain.
>
> gb
>
> On Jan 26, 2009, at 2:05 PM, Gabrielle Welford wrote:
>
> this is great, miekal! i've been looking at this for quite a while, because the "war" over pidgin in hawai'i has been so prominent (while i lived there, i met a businesswoman who said proudly that her company had not hired some young people because, though their english was good in the interviews, they spoke pidgin at lunch) and because i've been working for a grad student (now doctor) in linguistics from korea who's been looking a this same phenomenon. rather than expecting exact american or english english with the "right" accent, what's developing is a focus on being understood across cultures. it's really fascinating and exciting to me, who grew up in many different countries, surrounded by different languages. lucky me... g

*Gabrielle Welford, Ph.D. (support "Noho Hewa: The Wrongful Occupation of Hawai'i" by going to www.nohohewa.com and clicking on "donate")
blog:
www.greenwom.blogspot.com
books:
Too Many Deaths: Decolonizing Western Academic Research on Indigenous Cultures
http://www.theguildofwriters.com/books/shop.php?action=full&id=317
Dora
http://www.theguildofwriters.com/books/shop.php?action=full&id=378*

*No virus found in this incoming message.
Checked by AVG Free Edition.
Version: 7.1.412 / Virus Database: 268.18.4/705 - Release Date: 2/27/2007*

On Sun, 25 Jan 2009, mIEKAL aND wrote:

*New lingua franca upsets French
Friday, 23 January 2009*

http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/programmes/from_our_own_correspondent/7844192.stm

Monsieur Nerriere is a retired French businessman who one day in the course of his work made a fascinating observation.

In a meeting with colleagues from around the world, including an Englishman, a Korean and a Brazilian, he noticed that he and the other non-native English speakers were communicating in a form of English that was completely comprehensible to them, but which left the Englishman nonplussed.

He, Jean-Paul Nerriere, could talk to the Korean and the Brazilian in this neo-language, and they could understand each other perfectly.

But the Englishman was left out because his language was too subtle, too full of meaning that could not be grasped by the others.

In other words, Monsieur Nerriere concluded, a new form of English is developing around the world, used by people for whom it is their second language.

It may not be the most beautiful of tongues, but in this day and age he says it is indispensible. He calls the language Globish and urges > everyone - above all the French - to learn it tout de suite.

>
> In his book Don't Speak English, Parlez Globish, Monsieur Nerriere sets out the rules.
>
> Globish has only 1,500 words and users must avoid humour, metaphor, abbreviation and anything else that can cause cross-cultural confusion.
>
> They must speak slowly and in short sentences. Funnily enough, he holds up the late Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat as an excellent exponent.
>
> Many in France consider Monsieur Nerriere a traitor for promoting the dreaded Anglais, but he insists he is not.
>
> He says the French have to recognise that the language war is lost.
>
> "We're just urinating on the ashes of the fire," he says. We should look on Globish not as a triumphant cultural vehicle for les Anglo-Saxons, but as a tool, he says: essential but purely utilitarian.
>
> welcome.html
>
> welcome.html
>
> George Harry Bowering
> Has not read Tolstoy.

↑ Index

50. lauren levin

Mrs. Maybe #2

Tue 3 Feb 2009

Mrs Maybe #2 is now available.

It includes poems written by the following admirable dragons:

Bill Luoma, Alli Warren, Sawako Nakayasu, Catherine Meng, Elisabeth Beasley, James Shea, Logan Ryan Smith, Daniel Ostmann, Cynthia Sailers, Joseph Massey & Jess Mynes, Genevieve Kaplan, Erin Morrill, Brandon Shimoda, Andrew Kenower, Dorothea Lasky, Christopher DeWeese, Trevor Calvert, Claire Becker, Jessica Baron, Nathan Hoks and letters to Mrs. Maybe.

You can order copies of the magazine at mrs-maybe.com where we have a Paypal button in a workaday goldenrod.

Thanks, and

If you live in Chicago, or will be visiting the bo-piz, Please consider

Mrs.
Maybe #2 Launch Party & Reading
C-33 Gallery, Columbia College Chicago 33 E. Congress (First Floor)

Date & time: Friday, February 13th 4:00-6:00pm

Free

Lauren Levin, Catherine Meng, and Jared Stanley, Editors
--
Mrs. Maybe
"Stop seeing things and let the scene begin"
http://mrs-maybe.com

↑ Index

51. joey
resending post not posted from www.newmystics.com (January update at www.newmystics.com)
Tue 3 Feb 2009

Dear Poetics Listserv Moderator:

I submitted the following last Friday evening. I noticed that it was not posted as part of either of the last two updates.

I am re-submitting through my email of record as I realized that the email I originally sent it through does not meet the criteria for posting (being a member).

If the post was rejected for some other reason, I would respectfully request a brief explanation as to why, so I can either adjust future requests to better meet the criteria or no longer submit potential postings.

I have been a member of the Listserv for about three years now, although I have not posted in about a year.

Respectfully,

Joey Madia
Founding editor, www.newmystics.com

www.newmystics.com, a literary and arts site, is announcing its January update:

We have a very strong group of authors debuting this month and three authors adding to their Literature Pages.

ED BAKER shares with us Book 1 of his 6-book collection “Neighbors.” As you will see on Ed’s bio page, he has a long list of credits and accolades, and we are proud to have his work on the site.

We will be posting a new book a month until all six are on the site.

JEAN-MARIE AVRIL, who currently resides in the UK, offers “The Silver Girl: Essays on the Goddess,” which combines excellent scholarship with a strong, compelling Voice.

We will be debuting further installments in the next few months as well as other work Jean-Marie has written and translated.

Spoken word poet Rick Mai has sent us several poems, all of them raw and powerful pieces of one man’s all-out experience of life.

OLIVER AND CLAIRE SMITH, who first joined the New Mystics site as contributors in 2008, have shared more of their collaborative and individual poetic works with us.

TONYA MADIA has added a new poem as well.

Visit our Literature section for works by past contributors, including: Ric Carfagna, Mark Sonnenfeld, Steve Dalachinsky, Robert Pomerhn, Vernon Frazer, Eileen Tabios, Patrick Porter, and many more.

In March of this year, New Mystics will be debuting www.newmysticscommunity.com, an interactive multimedia site where our contributors and readers can share comments, videos, slide shows, blogs, literary and artistic works, and engage in discussion and collaboration. Thanks and kudos to Dan Cooley, our Director of Multimedia and Special Projects, who is spearheading the development, design, and launch of this latest aspect of New Mystics.

Our Founding Editor, Joey Madia, will have two of his poems in the forthcoming Letterhead Volume 2, a national anthology of poets published by Highest Hurdle Press.

You can read a review of the outstanding Letterhead Volume 1, along with recent reviews of the works of Jon Lipsky, Dr. Erel Shalit, Harvey Goldner, Jean Vengua, and Eileen Tabios (and many other reviews as well) at www.newmysticsreviews.blogspot.com Potential contributors should be sure to visit our Submissions page.

↑ Index

52. Jeffrey Side
William Wyler's 'Wuthering Heights'
Tue 3 Feb 2009

New blog post:
"Looking at the barrage of overrated and over-produced contemporary films it is easy to forget that film once aspired to be an art form. One such film is William Wylerâ€™s 1939 underrated version of Emily Bronteâ€™s novel Wuthering Heights which ..."
http://jeffreyside.tripod.com/

↑ Index

53. Jim Andrews
Christophe Bruno: The Dadameter
Tue 3 Feb 2009

Speaking of inspiring French artists, here's a new piece by Paris's Christophe Bruno. The announcement concerns his piece The Dadameter. You can see some of the piece itself at http://iterature.com/dadameter , but the announcement concerns a presentation in Paris by Christophe that happens Feb 5.

ja

Upgrade!Paris #20
Christophe Bruno
María Inés Rodríguez
Dominique Moulon

Thursday 5 Feb., Paris, 7pm
At Ecole Nationale Superieure des Beaux-Arts,
In the conferences room, 1st floor of Palais des études
14 rue Bonaparte, 75006 Paris
M° Saint-Germain des Pres

Christophe Bruno will present the Dadametre
With María Inés Rodríguez and Dominique Moulon

Global index of the decay of the aura of language, the Dadameter aims at measuring our distance to Dada. It was inspired by the work of the french writer Raymond Roussel. The project is a satire about the recent transmutation of language into a global market ruled by Google and uses the most up-to-date technologies of control to draw cartographies of language at large scale. Actually exhibited at the Jeu de Paume virtual space, second part of the Satellite Programmation (curator: María Inés Rodríguez).

http://www.jeudepaume.org Production: Rencontres Internationales Paris-Berlin-Madrid / Jeu de Paume

Christophe Bruno lives and works in Paris. He began his artistic activity in September 2001. His polymorphic work (installations, performances, conceptual pieces…) has a critical take on network phenomena and globalisation in the field of language and images. He was awarded a prize at the Madrid Contemporary Art Fair with the ARCO new media prize 2007, at the Prix Ars Electronica 2003 and the Piemonte Share Festival in 2007. http://www.christophebruno.com

María Inés Rodríguez is curator of the Jeu de Paume' Satellite Programmation.

Dominique Moulon writes on digital art and teaches new media. http://www.nouveauxmedias.net

Thanks to Moïra Marguin and Jany Lauga to host this session at the Ecole Nationale Supérieure des Beaux-Arts.
http://www.ensba.fr/agenda

- Infos and archives on: http://incident.net/theupgrade/ Upgrade!Paris sessions are organized by Incident.net. They are public, mounthly and itinerants. Artists, researchers, architects, theorists present during one hour their recent work. Supported by the French Ministere de la Culture et de la Communication.

↑ Index

54. mIEKAL aND
New from Xexoxial: ANTHOLOGY SPIDERTANGLE
Tue 3 Feb 2009

ANTHOLOGY SPIDERTANGLE

Visual poetry from members of the Spidertangle email group

http://xexoxial.org/is/anthology_spidertangle

2009, 8" x 10", 120 pgs, b+w $10.00 + postage.
ISBN 1-438258-18-6 ISBN-13 978-1-438258-18-8

1st edition printed in a numbered edition of 200.

Work by Brian Zimmer, KS Ernst, Grace Vadja, Derek White, Reed Altemus, PR Primeau, David Chikhladze, Matthew Stolte, John M Bennett, Irving Weiss, Geof Huth, Crag Hill, Carlos Luis, Dan Waber, Nico Vassilakis, Michael Peters, Ric Royer, Bob Grumman, Amira Hanafi, Donna Kuhn, David Baptiste Chirot, Joel Lipman, Lanny Quarles, Kevin Thurston, Ross Priddle, Petra Backonja, Reid Wood & Michelle Greenblatt, Karl Young, Karl Kempton,Marilyn R. Rosenberg,

Michael Basinski, Sheila Murphy, William James Austin, Jukka-Pekka Kervenin, Peter Ciccariello, C Mehrl Bennett, Maria Damon, endwar, Martha Deed, Laura Goldstein, Igor Satanovsky & Lenny Drozner, Camille Martin, Marton Koppany, mIEKAL aND, Richard Kostelanetz, Derek Beaulieu, Cecil Touchon, Marco Giovenale, Liaizon Wakest, Jefferson Hansen, CamillE Bacos

Edited by mIEKAL aND. Front cover & design by Liaizon Wakest. Endpapers by David Baptiste Chirot.

http://xexoxial.org

↑ Index

55. Al Filreis

PoemTalk episode 14: Wallace Stevens

Tue 3 Feb 2009

Today we're releasing PoemTalk #14, on Stevens' "Not Ideas about the Thing But the Thing Itself":

http://www.poemtalk.org

Al Filreis
http://www.writing.upenn.edu/~afilreis

↑ Index

56. Christopher Leland Winks

Re: Globish

Tue 3 Feb 2009

Except that many of the writers I have mentioned live in France -- so when is a Francophone writer a French writer and vice versa? And aren't we being a little sensitive all of a sudden with the "I know you are but what am I" approach to being called out for making sweeping pronouncements that show (not racism -- I didn't use that word and I don't throw it around) but, shall we say, a certain blindness? (You alluded to Milan Kundera in that posting so you might like to know that he has championed Chamoiseau and Depestre's work.) And yes, I know and love "Banana Bottom" and McKay's work in general, have taught it, and am even planning to write a comparative article on it and "The Life and Death of Sylvia" by Edgar Mittelholzer (ever heard of it? any idea who he is? without looking him up?).

From a classical naturalist to a natural classicist --

Chris

----- Original Message -----
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>

Date: Monday, February 2, 2009 9:47 pm
Subject: Re: Globish
To: [redacted]

> I do lov
> I did say French and not Francophone. The two are different.
>
> I do love how people expose their own racism by accusing others they don't even know of racism. Admittedly, the African writers on my self are mostly Anglophone, though: Makuchi (with whom I took postcolonial literature), Ama Ata Aidoo, Buchi Emecheta, and Chinua Achebe -- Mariama Ba being the exception. I'm a huge fan of Kawabata and Oe, who are Japanese -- and I've read enough Japanese Noh plays to have written a play of my own using Noh macrostructure.. Claude McKay's "Banana Bottom" is one of my favorite novels (ever heard of it? any idea who he is? without looking him up?). I've even managed to introduce my Mexican-American wife to several Hispanic writers she'd never heard of.
>
> I do thank you for the list, though. I always welcome new names. As a natural classicist, there's no culture whose work I'm not interested in.
>
> Troy Camplin, Ph.D.
>
> _____
> From: Christopher Leland Winks <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]..BUFFALO.EDU
> Sent: Monday, February 2, 2009 2:03:03 PM
> Subject: Re: Globish
>
> Look, Mr. Camplin, perhaps you do not realize that there are BLACK people writing excellent literature in French, but then again you don't seem to pay much mind to anyone non-white at all. But, for the sake of your enlightenment (another ghastly French term), the next time you are in the midst of a solitary walker's reverie (agh! the dreaded Rousseau rears his totalitarian head. May Ayn Rand absolve me!), consider the following writers who are still quite active:
>
> Edouard Glissant, Patrick Chamoiseau, Lyonel Trouillot, Tierno Monenembo, Boubacar Boris Diop, Abdourahman Waberi, Patrick William Syad, Monchoachi, Maryse Conde, Gisele Pineau, Veronique Tadjo, Assia Djebar (a member of that awful French Academy), Franketienne, Dany Laferriere, Rachid Boudjedra, Abdellatif Laabi, Rene Depestre.
>
> I could go on, but that's enough to get you started. Caveat: you might have to learn French -- oh, the humiliation! -- to read some of these writers. But spare us all the flip, snide provincial judgments and do your homework, Doctor, before you pronounce ex cathedra.

In the spirit of Bois Caiman!

----- Original Message -----
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Date: Monday, February 2, 2009 2:44 pm
Subject: Globish
To: [redacted]

> Never heard of
> http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Académie_française
>
>
> Never heard of a defunct organization electing 6 new members within > the last year.
>
> And I have seen no evidence of French literature thriving. And giving > the Nobel Prize to someone living in Albuquerque, NM after badmouthing > American literature (which admittedly could use a little badmouthing) > doesn't count. France has to import people from Czechoslovakia (now

> The Czech Republic) and Slovenia to have anyone worth mentioning who > writes in French.
>
> Troy Camplin
>
>
>
> _____
> From: Alexander Dickow <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Monday, February 2, 2009 12:18:30 AM
> Subject: Globish
>
> Troy,
> French literature IS thriving.
> The language legislation you refer to has been dead for years.

> Best not to talk about things you don't know about.
> Alex
>
> ==========
>
>
> ==========

>

↑ Index

57. Kate Pringle

two readings in SF: pringle & Boykoff Feb 5th!

Tue 3 Feb 2009

Thursday FEBRUARY 5

kathryn l. pringle

and JULES BOYKOFF

4:30 pm @ the Poetry Center

512 Humanities, SFSU, free

Both Jules Boykoff, who lives in Portland, and has focused his work on U.S. suppression of political dissent and innovative modes of resistance, and kathryn l. pringle, formerly of San Francisco and an SFSU alumnus in writing, and since moved to distant Durham, North Carolina, have new books out in the Heretical Texts series from Factory School . kathryn l. pringle is a graduate of the MFA program at San Francisco State University. Her book, RIGHT NEW BIOLOGY, is just out from Factory School/Heretical Text Series. She is the author of The Stills (Duration Press) and Temper & Felicity are Lovers (TAXT). Her poems can be read in The Denver Quarterly, Fence, 14 hills, 580 Split, and Sidebrow, among others. She is an editor at the literary magazine minor/american, and the co-founder of the minor american reading series in Durham, N.C., now funded by Duke University. Jules Boykoff is the author of Hegemonic Love Potion (Factory School, 2009), The Slow Motion Underneath (with Jim Dine, Steidl Editions, 2008), and Once Upon a Neoliberal Rocket Badge (Edge Books, 2006). His political writing includes Landscapes of Dissent: Guerrilla Poetry & Public Space (co-authored with Kaia Sand) (Palm Press, 2008), Beyond Bullets: The Suppression of Dissent in the United States (AK Press, 2007), and The Suppression of Dissent: How the State and Mass Media Squelch USAmerican Social Movements (Routledge, 2006). Boykoff lives in Portland, Oregon.

ALSO: Head downtown the same evening to San Francisco's terrific new bookstore/cultural destination The Green Arcade, located right at the nexus where Gough Street, Haight Street, and Market Street conjoin. Walk West on Market from Civic Center BART or Van Ness MUNI station.

Subject: Book Release Party: Pringle and Boykoff at The Green Arcade in SF

Who: kathryn l. pringle and Jules Boykoff

When: Thursday, 5 February at 8 p.m.

Where: The Green Arcade, 1680 Market Street, San Francisco

[redacted]

http://kathrynlpringle.blogspot.com/

order RIGHT NEW BIOLOGY:

http://www.spdbooks.org/Search/Default.aspx?AuthorName=pringle

READINGS:

TWO READINGS ON FEB 5 w/ Jules Boykoff!

4:30 @ The Poetry Center // San Francisco State University

San Francisco, CA

8pm @Green Arcade SF

March 7th David Foster Wallace party

Asheville, NC

April 8th : Tulsa OK

April 10th: Fayetteville, AR

5.2.09 w/ Dianne Timblin in Providence, RI

5.16.09 w/ Chris Vitiello & Jusin Marks So-And-So Reading Series @ 8pm

Raleigh, NC

--- On Mon, 2/2/09, POETICS automatic digest system <[redacted]> wrote: From: POETICS automatic digest system <[redacted]> Subject: POETICS Digest - 1 Feb 2009 to 2 Feb 2009 (#2009-27) To: [redacted] Date: Monday, February 2, 2009, 9:00 PM

FoggedClarity.com seeks exceptional fiction and poetry

Arts Review Fogged Clarity is now accepting submissions for our March and April editions. Submissions should be sent to [redacted] . Our February (debut) issue is free and available at www.foggedclarity.com . In it you will find new work from poets Bruce Smith, Amy King, and Peter Ciccariello, experimental photography by Kyle Jones and Ryan Daly, short fiction by Dmitri Gheorgheni, and much more. *Fogged Clarity *aims to transcend the conventions of the typical literary review by incorporating music, the visual arts, interviews, and political exposition. Our ambition is to form a community of artists whose interaction is not constrained by medium, but broadened by a collective love of expression. Our network is extensive, and our passion for ventilation intense. We sincerely hope you will join us, and share the fruits of your own fogged clarity.

I wish you the best,

Benjamin Evans

Executive Editor, Fogged Clarity

↑ Index

58. Dan Wilcox
Jay Rogoff to Read at Social Justice Center, 2/19
Tue 3 Feb 2009

Poet Jay Rogoff to read at the Social Justice Center
Thursday, February 19, 7:30PM

Saratoga Springs poet Jay Rogoff will read from his work at the Social Justice Center, 33 Central Ave., Albany on Thursday, February 19. Jay Rogoff is a lecturer in English at Skidmore College; his most recent poetry collection is The Long Fault (Louisiana State University Press, 2008).

A reading by a local or regional poet is held each Third Thursday at the Social Justice Center. The event includes an open mic for audience members to read. Sign-up starts at 7:00PM, with the reading beginning at 7:30. The host of the readings is Albany poet and photographer Dan Wilcox. The suggested donation is $3.00, which helps support this and other poetry programs of the Poetry Motel Foundation, and the work of the Social Justice Center. For more information about this event contact Dan Wilcox, [redacted]; e- mail: [redacted].

The Social Justice Center, founded in 1981, is a non-profit organization working for progressive social change through education, community building and collective action. The center advances the struggles against racism and for peace and justice. For further information about the SJC call [redacted].

↑ Index

59. maxpaul
Offsite Translation Event at AWP
Tue 3 Feb 2009

The Poetry Center of Chicago presents

Poetry in Translation
Thursday, Feb. 12 at 6:30 pm
SAIC Ballroom 112 S. Michigan Avenue

Donald Revell, Cole Swensen, Forrest Gander, Jen Hofer, Laura Solorzano, Johnaanes Goransson, Maxine Chernoff, and Paul Hoover read from their own poems and from translations.

Free and open to the public.

↑ Index

60. Catherine Daly
Re: what's code got to do with it
Tue 3 Feb 2009

I think two very specific uses of the word code sort of got mixed up in this conversation.

Computer codes are written in a computer language. Some by computer codes, but there really was a (human) first mover in some fashion for all these cases. While some new computer languages, people here tell me, are not based on numerals or letters or groovy pictures, most of the ubiquitous ones are. Especially scripting languages are filled with easy-to-read English commands. What are they made of? Text files, mostly, text files compiled and interpreted. What are they stored in? Libraries. Seems pretty readable, and not only by computers. Now, at some level, they are reduced to electrical impulses going through logic gates, or whatever, but so are digitally recorded (I typed "recoded" and like that too) songs and dumb movies.

The example of genetic code is a different use of the word code. For one thing, we understand and interpret what it is some of genetics does by describing it as "code." It is neato keen, but it is nature at its essence, not a bunch of symbols some humans dreamed.

After I return from the landfill, perhaps I will tackle the universal.

I also ask, what isn't an information architecture to one capable of interpretation or projection?

All best,
Catherine

↑ Index

61. Séamas Cain
New poetry blog for John M. Bennett
Tue 3 Feb 2009

You will find a new blog for the multilineal and multilingual poetry and other writings by John M. Bennett at ...

http://johnmbennettpoetry.blogspot.com/

For Mr. Bennett's literary web-site, go to ...

http://www.johnmbennett.net/

Bennett is the Curator of the Avant Writing Collection at the Ohio State University in Columbus.
For descriptive information about the Avant Writing Collection, go to ...

http://library.osu.edu/sites/rarebooks/avantwriting/

Best regards,

Séamas Cain
http://alazanto.org/seamascain
http://seamascain.writernetwork.com
http://www.mnartists.org/Seamas_Cain

↑ Index

62. Sarah Mangold
Announcing Bird Dog Issue 10
Tue 3 Feb 2009

Bird Dog is proud to announce the release of Issue Ten.

Featuring new work from C.S Carrier, Christopher DeWeese, Emily Kendal Frey, Anna Fulford, Anne Gorrick, Jac Jemc, Grant Jenkins & Cheryl Pallant, Meghan McNealy, Sara Michas-Martin, Nicole Pollentier, Sarah Rosenthal, Linda Russo, Andrew Sage, Brandon Shimoda, Maureen Thorson, Emily Toder, Laura Madeline Wiseman, and David Wolach. Plus an interview with Juliana Spahr from the forthcoming _A Community Writing Itself: Conversations with Vanguard Writers of the Bay Area_ edited by Sarah Rosenthal.

Hand-tipped images from three amazing Bay Area visual artists: Nate Cordero, Lauren DiCioccio, Vanessa Woods. And, fabulous cover art from New Mexico based artist Larry Bob Phillips.

Contributor and Subscriber copies are in the mail.

Subscriptions most welcome! Single Issue $10, Subscriptions $20/ 2- issues Paypal or Check:
www.birddogmagazine.com

Bird Dog in NYC
April 28, 2009, 6 PM

ACA Galleries
529 West 20th Street
5th FL
NYC, NY

Featuring Readings from:
Sandy Florian
Kate Greenstreet
Laura Sims

Hosted by Boog City's d.a. levy lives: celebrating the renegade press

Come say hello!

↑ Index

63. Séamas Cain
Transmediale.09 Deep North / in Berlin, Germany
Tue 3 Feb 2009

_____

You will find a critical review by Giles Askham of the Transmediale.09 Deep North Festival in Berlin, Germany. The Festival purports to construct an impression of the polar regions as a place that can be "imagined but never truly captured." In seeking to move beyond prevailing notions of catastrophic environmental change and to examine its broader cultural consequences, the Festival aims to adapt and explore creative technologies and point the way to political and artistic transformation and creative sustainability.

http://www.furtherfield.org/displayreview.php?review_id=334

This review is published by Furtherfield.org, coordinated by Marc Garrett and Ruth Catlow, and based in London, England.

Furtherfield.org believes that through creative and critical engagement with practices in art, poetry, and technology people are inspired and enabled to become active co-creators of their cultures and societies. Furtherfield.org provides platforms for creating, viewing, discussing and learning about experimental practices at the intersections of the arts, technology, and social change.

For additional information, go to ...

http://www.furtherfield.org/

Best regards,

Séamas Cain
http://alazanto.org/seamascain
http://seamascain.writernetwork.com
http://www.mnartists.org/Seamas_Cain

↑ Index

64. St. Thomasino

Correspondance (a sketchbook) New Digital Art Eratio Editions

Tue 3 Feb 2009

e·
E·ratio Editions is happy to announce the publication of Correspondance (a sketchbook) by Joseph F. Keppler.

Correspondance (a sketchbook) by Joseph F. Keppler. Digital art.

“What can I call this work? Neither painting nor critique yet informed by art, the following are sketches to me. Rather than executed on paper, they’re drawings designed using the pervasive computer. These graphics approach oeuvre subjectively, not as meticulous copies or art history illustrations, but as some poetic efforts. My laptop simply opens a new capacity for thinking about art and drawing it. As studies these are (a)musing tributes as well as appropriate(d) attributes.” —Joseph F. Keppler, from the introduction.

What the cognoscenti are saying about Correspondance (a sketchbook):

“Readability and meaning construction, as well as the relation between the visual and the literary, have been concerns of Joe’s for many years. In Correspondance we see Joe, who is also an astute critic on both literary and visual art, take an artist’s approach, a visual poet’s approach, a visual artist’s approach. Joe Keppler is very unusual in his deep engagement both with art history and the literary. He’s a poet, a visual poet, a sound poet, a sculptor of steel, a photographer, a painter, a polyartist. Not only in his practice but in his wide reading and viewing of contemporary and historical work. I don’t know anybody else as voracious as he is not only in his own artistic practice but in learning about art and philosophy. He is an incredibly learned man as well as an important poet and artist. He shows us what it now means to be literate.” —Jim Andrews Vispo-Langu(im)age “Correspondance is suffused with correspondence, bright exchanges between artist and subject, playful responses between form, light, color, and art history. Poet and sculptor, Joe Keppler brings both mediums to bear, poetry and sculpture, word and material, hand in hand. Keppler adds a third-dimension to the graceful dance (Joe the humble artist says, ‘bump’) through his lifelong study of painting and sculpture: allusions to significant works, quotations of style, and adaptations that bring old works to new life. In this series of sketches, poet, artist, and art will wheel you across the dance floors of the page.” —Crag Hill Poetry Scorecard

http://www.eratiopostmodernpoetry.com/eratioeditions.html

Also available from E·ratio Editions:

#5. Six Comets Are Coming by Gregory Vincent St. Thomasino. Volume I of the collected works including Go and Go Mirrored, with revised introductions, corrected text and restored original font.

#4. The Logoclasody Manifesto. Gregory Vincent St. Thomasino on logoclasody, logoclastics, eidetics and pannarrativity. Addenda include the Crash Course in Logoclastics, Concrete to Eidetic (on visual poetry) and On Mathematical Poetry.

#3. Waves by Márton Koppány. “These works are minimalist by design, but should we paraphrase the thought channeled therein, the effect would be encyclopedic, ranging through philosophy, psychology, politics, and the human emotions.”

#2. Mending My Black Sweater and other poems by Mary Ann Sullivan. Poems of making conscious, of acceptance and of self-remembering, and of personal responsibility.

#1. Gregory Vincent St. Thomasino joins John M. Bennett In the Bennett Tree. Collaborative poems, images, an introduction and a full- length critical essay pay homage to American poet John M. Bennett.

http://www.eratiopostmodernpoetry.com/eratioeditions.html

E·ratio Editions, a series of elegantly produced, quick loading e- chaps, is reading for poetry, innovative narrative prose, critical and theoretical essays, and digital art. Please see the Contact page for further guidelines and where to send. Query editor with sample.

taxis de pasa logos
e·

↑ Index

65. Troy Camplin
Re: Globish
Tue 3 Feb 2009

Well, how else am I to take "but then again you don't seem to pay much mind to anyone non-white at all"? I do typically know when I am being accused of something even when the actual words are not used, though I will take it on good faith that you had not in fact intended it that way. You should be aware that it was not much of a leap for me to assume you were accusing me of racism with a comment like that.

Francophone typically means someone outside of France and not of French descent who speaks French. Now, as for Mittelholzer, I do admit to being a little behind on my Caribbean fiction writers, having only read McKay, Earl Lovelace and Jamaica Kincaid. It is hard to get to everything in the fifteen years I've been pursuing literary studies and creative writing. There is indeed a lot of good work in French -- but most of it is going on outside of France. Primarily, I think, because they don't have a bunch of French academics hanging over them telling them their French isn't French enough. Thus, their French is freer and more open to creative use and investigation. The French should call home all their troops from their former colonies and send their creative writers there instead.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: Christopher Leland Winks <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, February 3, 2009 9:34:02 AM
Subject: Re: Globish

Except that many of the writers I have mentioned live in France -- so when is a Francophone writer a French writer and vice versa? And aren't we being a little sensitive all of a sudden with the "I know you are but what am I" approach to being called out for making sweeping pronouncements that show (not racism -- I didn't use that word and I don't throw it around) but, shall we say, a certain blindness? (You alluded to Milan Kundera in that posting so you might like to know that he has championed Chamoiseau and Depestre's work.) And yes, I know and love "Banana Bottom" and McKay's work in general, have taught it, and am even planning to write a comparative article on it and "The Life and Death of Sylvia" by Edgar Mittelholzer (ever heard of it? any idea who he is? without looking him up?).

From a classical naturalist to a natural classicist --

Chris

----- Original Message -----
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Date: Monday, February 2, 2009 9:47 pm
Subject: Re: Globish
To: [redacted]

> I do lov
> I did say French and not Francophone. The two are different.
>
> I do love how people expose their own racism by accusing others they don't even know of racism. Admittedly, the African writers on my self are mostly Anglophone, though: Makuchi (with whom I took postcolonial literature), Ama Ata Aidoo, Buchi Emecheta, and Chinua Achebe -- Mariama Ba being the exception. I'm a huge fan of Kawabata and Oe, who are Japanese -- and I've read enough Japanese Noh plays to have written a play of my own using Noh macrostructure.. Claude McKay's "Banana Bottom" is one of my favorite novels (ever heard of it? any idea who he is? without looking him up?). I've even managed to introduce my Mexican-American wife to several Hispanic writers she'd never heard of.
>
> I do thank you for the list, though. I always welcome new names. As a natural classicist, there's no culture whose work I'm not interested in.
>
> Troy Camplin, Ph.D.
>
> ---
> From: Christopher Leland Winks <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]..BUFFALO.EDU

Sent: Monday, February 2, 2009 2:03:03 PM
Subject: Re: Globish

Look, Mr. Camplin, perhaps you do not realize that there are BLACK people writing excellent literature in French, but then again you don't seem to pay much mind to anyone non-white at all. But, for the sake of your enlightenment (another ghastly French term), the next time you are in the midst of a solitary walker's reverie (agh! the dreaded Rousseau rears his totalitarian head. May Ayn Rand absolve me!), consider the following writers who are still quite active:

Edouard Glissant, Patrick Chamoiseau, Lyonel Trouillot, Tierno Monenembo, Boubacar Boris Diop, Abdourahman Waberi, Patrick William Syad, Monchoachi, Maryse Conde, Gisele Pineau, Veronique Tadjo, Assia Djebar (a member of that awful French Academy), Franketienne, Dany Laferriere, Rachid Boudjedra, Abdellatif Laabi, Rene Depestre.

I could go on, but that's enough to get you started. Caveat: you might have to learn French -- oh, the humiliation! -- to read some of these writers. But spare us all the flip, snide provincial judgments and do your homework, Doctor, before you pronounce ex cathedra.

In the spirit of Bois Caiman!

----- Original Message -----
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Date: Monday, February 2, 2009 2:44 pm
Subject: Globish
To: [redacted]

> Never heard of
> http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Académie_française
>
>
> Never heard of a defunct organization electing 6 new members within > the last year.
>
> And I have seen no evidence of French literature thriving. And giving > the Nobel Prize to someone living in Albuquerque, NM after badmouthing
> American literature (which admittedly could use a little badmouthing)
> doesn't count. France has to import people from Czechoslovakia (now

> > The Czech Republic) and Slovenia to have anyone worth mentioning who > > writes in French.
> >
> > Troy Camplin
> >
> >
> >
> > _____
> > From: Alexander Dickow <[redacted]>
> > To: [redacted]
> > Sent: Monday, February 2, 2009 12:18:30 AM
> > Subject: Globish
> >
> > Troy,
> > French literature IS thriving.
> > The language legislation you refer to has been dead for years.
> > Best not to talk about things you don't know about.
> > Alex
> >
> > ==========
> >
> >
> > ==========
>
> >

↑ Index

66. Troy Camplin

Re: Globish

Tue 3 Feb 2009

The English language is evolving the use of the postposition, which is present in many other languages.

And, to paraphrase Pinker, if you understood what I said, it was grammatical.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: George Bowering <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]

Sent: Monday, February 2, 2009 8:57:28 PM
Subject: Re: Globish

On Feb 2, 2009, at 2:21 PM, Troy Camplin wrote:

> As a natural classicist, there's no culture whose work I'm not interested in.
>
> Troy Camplin, Ph.D.

That's a dangling modifier, Doc.

gb

↑ Index

67. George Bowering
Re: Globish
Wed 4 Feb 2009

Well, I think that something like what you are saying does obtain, but I believe that you are speaking of places such as India, Jamaica, Uganda, the USA, places where English has been one of the official languages. Universities in those places teach in English, for example. But I was speaking, of course, of places to which English is spreading, as I said. I mean that the English spoken in businesses in Japan, clubs in Peru, cafes in Thailand, during drug deals in Bolivia and Viet Nam, etc.
Yes, the English language is being spoken by a lot more people in a lot more places. But I do not think that the barber who speaks English in the Dominican Republic is likely to use the past imperfect.
I dont think the cab driver in Beirut will argue with you about Keynes.
The way I heard it, as US pop products spread around the world so does the language that reaches its level. But boat rental English in the Maldives is not as complex as English even in a place like Indianapolis.

gb

On Feb 2, 2009, at 8:08 PM, Gabrielle Welford wrote:

:-) dangerous words! my experience is that they are englishes that bring in the local culture in all kinds of ways--with addition of local words and expressions, variations in grammar, different accents obviously, and what i would call a different heart. in some cases i think there are more things that can be said--or perhaps some british things could not be said, but some non-british things certainly could. and the things said in the non-e.g.-british english could not be said in british english because the hearts of the cultures/languages are different. there's that story about wittgenstein's "aha" moment watching a venetian gondolier make some gesture and realizing that meaning hangs on the lives lived around, in and with it, not on the word to thing tie he'd been looking for in the tractatus. all best, gabe

On Mon, 26 Jan 2009, George Bowering wrote:

The way this story was told 10 years ago was that while English is spreading all over the world, it is a thin English, with a very small vocabulary and fewer tenses, moods and voices than that used in, say, Britain.

gb

On Jan 26, 2009, at 2:05 PM, Gabrielle Welford wrote:

this is great, miekal! i've been looking at this for quite a while, because the "war" over pidgin in hawai'i has been so prominent (while i lived there, i met a businesswoman who said proudly that her company had not hired some young people because, though their english was good in the interviews, they spoke pidgin at lunch) and because i've been working for a grad student (now doctor) in linguistics from korea who's been looking a this same phenomenon. rather than expecting exact american or english english with the "right" accent, what's developing is a focus on

being understood across cultures. it's really fascinating and exciting
to me,
who grew up in many different countries, surrounded by different languages. lucky me... g

Gabrielle Welford, Ph.D. (support "Noho Hewa: The Wrongful
Occupation of Hawai'i" by going to www.nohohewa.com and clicking on "donate")
blog:
www.greenwom.blogspot.com
books:
_Too Many Deaths: Decolonizing Western Academic Research on Indigenous Cultures_
http://www.theguildofwriters.com/books/shop.php?action=full&id=317
_Dora_
http://www.theguildofwriters.com/books/shop.php?action=full&id=378

No virus found in this incoming message.
Checked by AVG Free Edition.
Version: 7.1.412 / Virus Database: 268.18.4/705 - Release Date:
2/27/2007

On Sun, 25 Jan 2009, mIEKAL aND wrote:

New lingua franca upsets French
Friday, 23 January 2009

http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/programmes/from_our_own_correspondent/
7844192.stm

Monsieur Nerriere is a retired French businessman who one day in
the course of his work made a fascinating observation.

In a meeting with colleagues from around the world, including an Englishman, a Korean and a Brazilian, he noticed that he and the other non-native English speakers were communicating in a form of English that was completely comprehensible to them, but which left the Englishman nonplussed.

He, Jean-Paul Nerriere, could talk to the Korean and the Brazilian in this neo-language, and they could understand each other perfectly.

But the Englishman was left out because his language was too subtle, too full of meaning that could not be grasped by the others.

In other words, Monsieur Nerriere concluded, a new form of English is developing around the world, used by people for whom it is their second language.

It may not be the most beautiful of tongues, but in this day and age he says it is indispensible. He calls the language Globish and urges everyone - above all the French - to learn it tout de suite.

In his book Don't Speak English, Parlez Globish, Monsieur Nerriere sets out the rules.

Globish has only 1,500 words and users must avoid humour, metaphor, abbreviation and anything else that can cause cross-cultural confusion.

They must speak slowly and in short sentences. Funnily enough, he holds up the late Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat as an excellent exponent.

Many in France consider Monsieur Nerriere a traitor for promoting the dreaded Anglais, but he insists he is not.

He says the French have to recognise that the language war is lost.

"We're just urinating on the ashes of the fire," he says. We should look on Globish not as a triumphant cultural vehicle for les Anglo-Saxons, but as a tool, he says: essential but purely utilitarian.

welcome.html

welcome.html

George Harry Bowering
Has not read Tolstoy.

welcome.html

> welcome.html

Giorgio Bowering, gent.
Just a visitor here.

↑ Index

68. Jim Andrews
Re: what's code got to do with it
Wed 4 Feb 2009

> The example of genetic code is a different use of the word code. For one thing, we understand and interpret what it is some of genetics does by describing it as "code." It is neato keen, but it is nature at its essence, > not a bunch of symbols some humans dreamed.

to back up a few steps. to me, poetry is distinguished by the intensity of its engagement with language, intensest who what where when why why not if then and yet. the issues of code and language in dna and how the brain stores and processes information--the mindless organic codes and languages in our bodies inscribed by the processes of evolution to store and process knowledge, experience, reactivity, and the history and structure of our physiology--are strongly contemporary not only in matters of language but concerning who and what we are. so of course these issues are 'naturals' for poetry and poetics.

and i can't help but think that the knowledge that we have cultivated over the last sixty years about information via computer science will be of great consequence in unravelling the structure of memory in the brain--by providing us a sense of how data can be structured.

in all of this, issues of code and language are prominent. the ability to form representations and store, retrieve, and process them implicitly involves the notion of code/language. regardless of whether the representations are stored in explicit symbols or however they are stored, retrieved, and processed. whatever the nature of the representation, if we form representations and store them, retrieve them, and process them, then they are functioning as explicit symbols do, in many ways, even if they are perhaps unlike them in others.

ja
http://vispo.com

↑ Index

69. Patrick Dillon
Re: Globish
Wed 4 Feb 2009

For those who actually are interested in French culture, and not just categorically dismissing an entire national literature a la Horace Engdahl, KCRW's bookworm has done a really good series over the last several months called "An American Bookworm in Paris." I imagine Bookworm is usually a little too middlebrow for this list, but I think you will find many of the interviews of great interest. The interviews include:

Camille de Toledo
Pierre Alféri
Emmanuel Carrère
Grégoire Bouillier
Olivier Cadiot
Marc Cholodenko
Dennis Cooper (sort of the reverse Le Clezio, an American who moved to France)

You can download all of these at the Bookworm website:
http://www.kcrw.com/etc/programs/bw

The last two episodes are up on the main page, and if you click on "older shows" you should be able to find the first three epsides on the next couple of pages. If you can't find them, let me know and I can post links.

On Mon, Feb 2, 2009 at 8:57 PM, George Bowering <[redacted]> wrote:

> On Feb 2, 2009, at 2:21 PM, Troy Camplin wrote:
>
> As a natural classicist, there's no culture whose work I'm not interested in.
>
> Troy Camplin, Ph.D.
>
> That's a dangling modifier, Doc.
>
> gb

↑ Index

70. Christopher Leland Winks
Re: Globish
Wed 4 Feb 2009

Even the notion of French academics "hanging over" people "telling them their French isn't French enough" is a vulgar caricature. Leopold Senghor was a member of the French Academy, and Assia Djebar presently is, and neither was/is an "academic" properly speaking, nor inclined to police the language (read their work). And no, my friend, your postings, with their strength-through-joy (or was that holiness-through-health?), free-market idolatry, extolling of the soporific Frederick Turner and the Few Normalism, I mean New Formalism (not he of the manifest destiny, though he might as well be), in fact have shown any indication of any interest at all in non-whites. I understand that this is only an example of the provincialism that besets North American letters as a whole, and as such is more a sin of omission than commission. All the writers you mention are worthy -- I hope you take Lovelace's humanism to heart.

And by the way, I think all troops everywhere should be demobilized and sent home. Everywhere. Disband all the armies.

↑ Index

71. Evan Munday
Sina Queyras launches Expressway: Feb. 12, Chicago
Wed 4 Feb 2009

Hello poetry fans,

Evan Munday from Coach House Books here, announcing a big poetry launch during the AWP that you may want to check out:

CHICAGO LAUNCH FOR SINA QUEYRAS'S EXPRESSWAY

During the AWP Conference festivities, Links Hall is hosting several literary events, among them, the launch of Sina Queyras's new poetry collection, Expressway. Expressway, inspired by the modes of the Romantic poets, explores the subject of modern transportation.

Sina Queyras, winner of a Lambda Award (for her previous book, Lemon Hound), former co-curator of the Belladonna series and noted poetry blogger (lemonhound.blogspot.com), launches Expressway on Thursday, February 12, with the help of some friends. Reading with Queyras will be Vanessa Place (Dies: A Sentence), Adam Sol (Jeremiah, Ohio) and Kevin Connolly (Revolver).

We hope you'll join us. Please see below for event details and more information about Expressway and all the authors. And check out the trailer for Expressway at http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Ui9Qw_RtWRk

Chicago Launch of Sina Queyras's Expressway
with readings by Sina Queyras, Vanessa Place, Adam Sol and Kevin Connolly
Thursday, February 12
8:30 - 9:30 p.m.
Links Hall, 3435 N. Sheffield Avenue
Chicago, IL
$5 admission

http://www.linkshall.org/a-locate.shtml
http://www.chbooks.com

About Expressway:

Echoing the pastoral and elegiac modes of the Romantic poets, whose reverence for nature never prevented them from addressing it with all ideas and sensibilities their times allowed, Sina Queyras’s stunning new collection explores the infrastructures and means of modern mobility. Addressing the human project not so much as something imposed on nature but as an increasingly disturbing activity within it, Expressway exposes the paradox of modern movement and connection: we build more and more roads and highways (concrete and fibre optic), but rather than feeling more connected – to the natural, to each other – the more disenfranchised and anxious we seem to become. 'Cleanse the doors of perception,' Blake urged, and with that in mind, Queyras has written a bravely lyrical critique of our ethical and ecological imprint, a legacy easily blamed on corporations and commerce, but one we’ve allowed, through our tacit acquiescence, to overwhelm us. Every brush stroke, every bolt, and nut, every form and curve in our networks of oil and rubber, every thought and its material outcome – each decision can make or unmake us.

SINA QUEYRAS is the author of Lemon Hound, which won the Pat Lowther Award and a Lambda Award, as well as the poetry collections Slip and Teethmarks. She edited the anthology Open Field: 30 Contemporary Canadian Poets. She has taught creative writing at Rutgers and Haverford. A former curator of New York City’s belladonna* reading series, Queyras currently lives in Montreal.

VANESSA PLACE is the author of Dies: A Sentence (Les Figues Press), and a chapbook, Figure from The Gates of Paradise (Woodland Editions). Other work has appeared in Northwest Review, Contemporary Literary Criticism, and Five Fingers Review.

ADAM SOL is the author of two collections of poetry, Jonah's Promise, which won Mid-List Press's First Series Award for Poetry, and Crowd of Sounds, which won the Trillium Award for Poetry. He is also the author of numerous essays and reviews, and teaches English at the Laurentian University at Georgian College Program.

KEVIN CONNOLLY is the author of Revolver (Anansi, 2008). Connolly's first collection of poems, Asphalt Cigar (Coach House, 1995), was nominated for the 1996 Gerald Lampert Award. His second collection, Happyland (ECW), was published to wide acclaim in 2002; and his most recent collection, drift (Anansi, 2005), won the Trillium Book Award for Poetry. He lives with his partner, Gil Adamson, in Toronto, and works as poetry editor for Coach House Books.

Yours,

Evan

Evan Munday
Publicist
Coach House Books
401 Huron St. (rear) on bpNichol Lane
Toronto ON, M5S 2G5
[redacted]

↑ Index

72. Jason Quackenbush
Re: e to a friend about a philosophy of computer art
Wed 4 Feb 2009

On Jan 30, 2009, at 5:18 PM, Jim Andrews wrote:

>> Well, maybe let's take a step back. I think it's important to >> distinguish between something being readable as code and actually >> being code.
>
> What is 'code', then?
snip
> DNA is like machine language whereas 'blue eyes' are like terms > from a '4th generation language' where each term is supported by > thousands of machine language instructions. When we code programs > in Java or whatever, each instruction we write actually is > supported by many underlying machine language operations.
>
> Code is consistently readable/writable language. Readable/writable > by different entities if they employ the same rules of interpreting > the code.

The distinction I want to make is between a natural phenomena which we can glean information from and something that is created specifically to be meaningful. Or to put it another way, I want to be very careful about the analogy you're making between a code built from a language, like assembly language or machine code, which describe specific explicit operations of a calculating machine, and the "genetic code" which can be extrapolated from the chemical components of DNA. The things seem to me to be similar, but have important differences. For example, DNA is like the fossil record or the geological column. It's the result of natural processes which can be examined, tests can be run on, and empirical facts can be associated with. A geologist can look at a cliff face and with a few tests and some knowledge of geology can learn something about the age of the cliff, the date that fossils formed, the composition of certain layers and how the cliff came to be where it was. DNA is analagous to this. A geneticist can look at a sequence of chemicals, mark the sequence of them, and can learn things about the creature the DNA comes from with some tests and some knowledge of genetics. That to me seems different from feeding a set of instructions into a computer telling it to make certain operations in order to produce a desired result. So while machine code and DNA "code" are analagous in some ways, they aren't analagous in others that in my view at least are much more important. They are analagous in that information can be got from them, but they are not analagous in either the nature or the purposefulness of that information. Since mathematics in my view, which is what machine code is limited to in it's operations along with some functions for storing and recalling pieces of coded data stored in memory, is merely a constructed language with certain limitations placed on it i think this is an important disinction. It's important because I don't think that it's obvious that mathematical operations plus memory equal all the functions necessary for the baseline operations of consciousness. More importantly, even if it is, I'm not sure that it's clear that that's how human minds work. the physical differnences between the electromagnetic functions of charge that happen at the base of microcomputing and the chemical functions at the root of the human brain aside, there are all kinds of things that happen in human function that at least do not appear to be quantizable in a way that would be necessary in order for mathematical operations to deal with. And if they are not, then I don't know how you get to using such function (sense perception probably being the most important of them) in a mathematical context. To be completely clear at the risk of seeming pedantic, while such a thing might be modeled mathematically, i think it should always be born in mind that model is not the thing it models and this is a reason to be skeptical of claims that the model can achieve all of the phenomena of the thing modeled. It may produce simulations of that thing, but the difference in kind is strong enough that I think it's a difficult thing to make arguments from analogy of this sort.

>
>> on the other hand, what we have in brain function are all manner >> of non explicit symbols. in fact, and I may be jumping off a bit >> of a cliff saying this, one might argue that universals are in >> fact non- explicit symbols and therefore given that consciousness >> and thought as we understand them seems to require that sort of >> abstraction, and given that so much abstraction needs universals >> to be done, that this is the fundamental place where the idea of >> machine intelligence being acquired by something made up of two >> state transistors falls apart.
>
> What is a "universal"?
wikipedia is surprisingly good on the topic: http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Universal_(metaphysics) > because, claims made by object oriented programmers aside, I don't know that there is a way to get a computer to understand and work with a universal. you can't reduce a universal to an explicit list of characteristics, which is where the whole problem of universals comes from in the first place. Of course, saying this, its probably important that I qualify it by saying I ascribe to Wittgensteins theory of universals which rejects both nominalism and realism and holds that universals are like family resemblances. Which is to say I may be question begging her because I think from the get go that you can't get at human thought or even human grammar for that matter through a set of explicit rules. At least not on it's own.

>
> I don't know what you mean by a "universal".
>
> A couple notes here on why I think this is so:
>
> 1.) it is possible for humans to understand the semantic content of expressions that are not well-formed, this is particularly true of native speakers in their first language. something that requires explicit code for decision making or interpretation can't do this and requires error handling algorithms to be able to cope with it.
>
> So? Interpreting meaning in language is always a constructive process. Constructive in the sense of a building process. We build meaning. And natural language is usually ambiguous whether the > utterances/strings are well-formed or not. So building meaning is always model-building that we are prepared to revise. And so it would have to be in computer algorithms that try to construct meaning.

>
> Parsing syntax is usually simpler, but as you say we are more than capable of constructing meaningful, improperly formed grammatical statements. And so computer algorithms that try to construct meaning would have to have a couple of layers of syntax parsing. If the statement is not well-formed grammatically, then pass it to the routines that don't require well-formedness but guess and construct meaning anyway. By no means impossible.

I guess my problem is that i don't see how computers do anything semantic at all. Without fully embracing the Chinese Room problem (i think yr familiar with that thought experiment, right? i seem to remember we've talked about it before), while a suitably complex parser might be able to find a way through a non well formed statement, the real problem for machine intelligence is not coping with such input but being able to produce it as an output in a meaningful way. I find things like Erica for example to be very impressive, but it's clear to me at least that there would be something mistaken about saying that Erica means what it says.

>> It doesn't seem to me that what humans do with statements that >> are not wellformed is similar to error handling. Instead we muddle >> through working on conjecture and intuition and as a result >> language can sometimes be extended in a way that it doesn't seem >> that machines would be capable of. A specific example might be >> the emergence of trade languages, creoles and pidgins in >> populations where there are many different mutually >> unintelligible languages spoken.
>
> You might enjoy a computer science course normally offered in the > third undergraduate year usually called something like 'the theory > of computation' or 'languages and the theory of computation' or > 'automata theory'. Computer science students normally hate it.
> Because it's very mathematically-oriented and, well, > philosophically meditative. It is very like a math course, but a > kind of mixture of number theory, formal logic, and graph theory.
> And it's a course where there's usually a lot of fascinating > discussion about the limits of computation. Because, that's what > the course is all about, the nature and limits of computation.
> After all, Turing invented the Turing machine to show that there > are some tasks no machine will ever perform. Not that we can do any > of these things either.
>

> This course provides a rigorous way to approach questions about > what machines can or cannot do.
>
> Why wouldn't machines be able to "muddle through working on > conjecture and intuition"? I don't think there's anything > theoretically impossible about that at all.
like Uncle ludwig i have some problems with Turing. Have you ever read the lectures on the foundations of mathematics? Turing attended a number of the lectures and he and Wittgenstein butted heads about the foundations of mathematics in very interesting ways. what's particularly interesting to me about turing is that computers are defined by computability, that is a computer is a thing that can do what computers can do. The word itself used to be used as a job description for certain mathematicians who did hard math sort of automatically for institutions that needed lots of heavy calculations done. Charles Peirce for example once did that sort of work for the united states geological survey department. But humans are different from computers in that we extend beyond the nature of program following. We can choose to ignore our programming if we wish. More to the point, I know for a fact that I, as a potential turing machine, am not vulnerable to the halting problem because I know that I can choose to halt because I am arbitrarily capable of choosing to by breaking the algorithm. So while it's true that people do form habits, we are also capable of breaking them. Just ask Bill W.

>> 2.) Humans have an extremely high tolerance for vagueness. In >> fact, I think vagueness is probably one of the greatest allies of >> human intelligence.
>
> Yes, well, perhaps poetry is the art of being profoundly vague.
>
>> I can say and do all manners of utterly vague things and still >> expect to be understood and reacted to perfectly.
>
> It has its limits, doesn't it.
Not really. In fact, it's precisely the absence of limits that makes it so interesting. There's an area where it works and an area where it doesn't, but the boundary between them, if anything can only be defined as asymptotic.
e > xtricating ourselves from habits of mind and physical habits. But > we can do so, not because we are not machines but because we are > very sophisticated machines.

>
> To return, though, to the issue of explicit symbols.
>
> Computers code things in zeros and ones and in higher-level > symbols. For instance in bytes of information. A byte being 8 bits > of information. So we can have 256 explicit symbols of the form > 00000000
> 00000001
> 00000010
> 00000011
> 00000100
> 00000101
> .
> .
> .
> One of these can mean 'a', another 'b', and so on.
>
> Now how does the brain code information for our memories? Well we > don't know. But I expect there will be some minimally > representational code or language so that we can keep things > straight over time.
>
> Neural nets and similar information devices/architectures may > provide some means for obviating the need for overly > representational codings of memory, but I expect there will be some > underlying substratum of representational, explicit code perhaps > similar in form to how the body reads/writes DNA.
>
This is where we disagree, and I think possibly fundamentally. I don't think that it's correct to call something that you can glean information from a code or a language simply because you can read it like a code or a language. language is a particular kind of activity that language users engage in. Moreover, it's worth noting that this works both ways. through empirical work, I think we have a reasonable expectation that at some point in the future we will be able to examine someone's brain and "read" memories from it by the state.
That's not true of all language. Take Linear A for example. Here we have an example of a written language that we KNOW is a written language. There was a time i the distant past when the Minoans on crete read and wrote that language. But without further clues from archaeology, which may or may not exist, we will probably never be able to learn how to read it despite the fact taht we know it is readable. Which is to say that it's clear that there's a disconnect between readability and language, and the argument I would like to make is that complex language response on it's own is not enough for rudimentary mind behavior. just because there is information stored in an explicit way, as all things that are physical are in some sense explicitly definable above the level of quantum mechanics, it doesn't mean that the way those things are USED are explicit in the human mind in the way that they are used by computers, that is, always as explicit symbols from top to bottom. The difference, if machine intelligence is possible, is in breaking from explicit symbol manipulation and the endless march of syntax to allow for the beginning of semantics to be emitted by the machine. Until you get to that point though, I don't think the analogy between minds and computers holds up and I'm unaware of any computer scientists who have been successful there.

Jason Quackenbush
[redacted]

↑ Index

73. George Bowering
Re: Globish
Wed 4 Feb 2009

On Feb 3, 2009, at 7:44 PM, Troy Camplin wrote:
>
>
> Francophone typically means someone outside of France and not of > French descent who speaks French.

That is not true in Canada.
We have quite a few French-speakers in Canada, and the word "francophone" usually refers to a person of French descent.
It generally refers to a person's first language.

LAC Bowering, George
Afraid of heights. Depths, too.

↑ Index

74. George Bowering
Re: Globish
Wed 4 Feb 2009

On Feb 3, 2009, at 7:47 PM, Troy Camplin wrote:

> The English language is evolving the use of the postposition, which is present in many other languages.
>
> And, to paraphrase Pinker, if you understood what I said, it was grammatical.
>
> Troy Camplin

I didn't.

GB
>
>
>
> _____
> From: George Bowering <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Monday, February 2, 2009 8:57:28 PM
> Subject: Re: Globish
>
> On Feb 2, 2009, at 2:21 PM, Troy Camplin wrote:
>
>> As a natural classicist, there's no culture whose work I'm not >> interested in.
>>
>> Troy Camplin, Ph.D.
>>
>>
>
> That's a dangling modifier, Doc.
>
> gb
>
> welcome.html
>
> welcome.html
>

George Harry Bowering
Younger than W.P. Kinsella

↑ Index

75. Hugh Behm-Steinberg
Eleven Eleven #6
Wed 4 Feb 2009

It's with great pleasure and joy that we announce the release of Eleven Eleven #6 -- our first web issue! Check us out at www.elevenelevenjournal.com.

Featuring poetry by Barry Dempster, Cara Benson, Carl Auerbach, Chris Arigo, Chris Pusateri, Christine Hamm, CM Burroughs, Craig Santos-Perez, Dan Gutstein, Francine J. Harris, James Sanders, Joseph Noble, Laynie Brown, LS Klatt, Oliver Abrahim Khan, Paige Taggart, Rauan Klassnik, Richard Silberg, Travis Cebula and Valerie Witte;

Fiction by Alain de Botton, Alison Doernberg, Dale Kushner, Ron Burch, Seana Graham and Ted Morrissey;

Plays by Elaine Romero and Gerald Nicosia;

and Art by Cheyanne Ramos, Diego Molina, Emily Huffman, Jason Hanasik and Gamaliel Rodriguez.

I especially want to thank the hard work of the Eleven Eleven staff: Thomas Rees, Junior Clemons, Lisa Gordon, Kevin Whiteley, and most especially Julie Littman, who spearheaded the building of our site.

We'll be reading for our summer print issue through March 1. Send work to:

Eleven Eleven
California College of the Arts
1111 Eighth St.
San Francisco, CA 94107

Best,

Hugh Behm-Steinberg
Faculty Editor
Eleven Eleven

↑ Index

76. Troy Camplin
Re: Globish
Wed 4 Feb 2009

You shouldn't be throwing around terms like "vulgar caricature" considering your own vulgar caricature of Frederick Turner. You might consider broadening your education to include his writing, especially "Natural Classicism," "The Culture of Hope" and "Natural Religion." His desire for a world community, including a world community of letters, is also mine. Turner's a natural classicist, meaning he writes the way he writes is based on the historical-cultural nature of poetry. For example, he has done research showing that poems around the world, throughout history, throughout cultures, regardless of language, are broken up into lines, and that those lines are 3-5 seconds lone -- the same length as our short term memory slot, and our auditory present. This is a common feature of poetry and songs. Excepting the postmodern poems dominant among educated elites.

As for my posting on health and the holy, it was a work that argued that we should have a truly inclusive world view. We should understand each other through both our differences and our commonalities. The postmodern emphasis on differences is deeply rooted in racism, sexism, etc. that have divided human beings for much too long. It is time we rejected such a divisive world view and learned to love each other for our commonalities as well as celebrate our differences. Both simultaneously. Unity in variety and variety in unity.

My own more recent work draws from Japanese Noh plays, ancient Greek tragedies (a truly foreign culture, if you truly understand it), and Kalidasa -- as well as Shakespeare and Tom Stoppard, among others.

I myself am a literary Francophile, and I criticize out of love for the literature. I don't detect the same motives from you.

Troy Camplin

From: Christopher Leland Winks <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, February 4, 2009 11:50:05 AM
Subject: Re: Globish

Even the notion of French academics "hanging over" people "telling them their French isn't French enough" is a vulgar caricature. Leopold Senghor was a member of the French Academy, and Assia Djebar presently is, and neither was/is an "academic" properly speaking, nor inclined to police the language (read their work). And no, my friend, your postings, with their strength-through-joy (or was that holiness-through-health?), free-market idolatry, extolling of the soporific Frederick Turner and the Few Normalism, I mean New Formalism (not he of the manifest destiny, though he might as well be), in fact have shown any indication of any interest at all in non-whites. I understand that this is only an example of the provincialism that besets North American letters as a whole, and as such is more a sin of omission than commission. All the writers you mention are worthy -- I hope you take Lovelace's humanism to heart.

And by the way, I think all troops everywhere should be demobilized and sent home. Everywhere. Disband all the armies.

↑ Index

77. Chris Pusateri

IVY WRITERS PRESENT: CHAPELLE, PIERCE AND PUSATERI IN PARIS, THIS MONDAY 2/09/09

Wed 4 Feb 2009

Marie-Louise Chapelle, Michelle Naka Pierce and Chris Pusateri

Read at

« Le Next »

17 rue Tiquetonne 75002 Paris

M° Etienne Marcel / RER Les Halles

on Monday, February 9, 2009 at 7:30pm

Bios:

Poet Marie-Louise Chapelle was born in 1974 and had her first publications appear in Jean Daive's review FIN. Her book Mettre (Theatre Typographique, 2006) offers an "experience in limits – the limits of senses, forms, practices, bodies and text". She is also the author of several artist books along with Emmanuelle Pidoux: Corps finis quelconques et fractions qui s'en déduisent par la méthode de l'approximation (1999), La fille avec laquelle j'allais à l'hôtel (2000), Plus-value (2001).

Michelle Naka Pierce is the author of Beloved Integer (2007) and TRI/VIA (2003), a collaboration with Veronica Corpuz. Her work has been anthologized in For the Time Being: The Bootstrap Book of Poetic Journals and Saints of Hysteria: A Half-Century of Collaborative American Poetry and her pedagogical interviews have appeared in Rain Taxi, Teachers and Writers, and Transformations. Excerpts from her new manuscript She, A Blueprint for InterSurface, with collage art by Sue Hammond West, have been published or are forthcoming in Trickhouse, Mandorla, Foursquare, Sous Rature, Bombay Gin, and elsewhere. She teaches avant-garde poetry and hybrid writing at Naropa University in the US and is currently on sabbatical and living in the UK.

Chris Pusateri is the author of two books of poetry, Anon (BlazeVOX, 2008) and Berserker Alphabetics (xPressed, 2003), and six chapbooks. His work has appeared in many publications, including American Letters & Commentary, Boston Review, Chicago Review, Jacket, Verse, and many others.

Excerpts from his new manuscript, Common Time, are forthcoming in Mandorla, Colorado Review, Eleven-Eleven, Fence,
Zoland Poetry, and Action, Yes. A librarian by profession, he lives in London.

_____ Windows Live™: E-mail. Chat. Share. Get more ways to connect.
http://windowslive.com/howitworks?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_t2_allup_howitworks_022009

↑ Index

78. amy king
Re: Globish
Wed 4 Feb 2009

Troy,

In your take on things, you are always the one who is misunderstood, noble, and well intentioned -- as opposed to everyone you respond to. You, who insist on labeling and characterizing everyone at every turn, "postmodern" being your most common accusation/insult. And the regular citing of your "Mexican American" "minority" wife as if she were the elixir against any possible racist sentiment you may have learned and be unaware of in your own ideas on life and literature... You refuse to even consider that possibility, consistently and adamantly, because everyone else is this label or that label you deem demeaning enough for them and elevating enough for yourself. You "criticize out of love"? Funny that. If yours is not one of the most divisive ways to go about discussion, I'll eat my shorts.

Be well,
Amy

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

--- On Wed, 2/4/09, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Globish
To: [redacted]
Date: Wednesday, February 4, 2009, 4:40 PM

You shouldn't be throwing around terms like "vulgar caricature" considering your own vulgar caricature of Frederick Turner. You might consider broadening your education to include his writing, especially "Natural Classicism," "The Culture of Hope" and "Natural Religion." His desire for a world community, including a world community of letters, is also mine. Turner's a natural classicist, meaning he writes the way he writes is based on the historical-cultural nature of poetry. For example, he has done research showing that poems around the world, throughout history, throughout cultures, regardless of language, are broken up into lines, and that those lines are 3-5 seconds lone -- the same length as our short term memory slot, and our auditory present. This is a common feature of poetry and songs. Excepting the postmodern poems dominant among educated elites.

As for my posting on health and the holy, it was a work that argued that we should have a truly inclusive world view. We should understand each other through both our differences and our commonalities. The postmodern emphasis on differences is deeply rooted in racism, sexism, etc. that have divided human beings for much too long. It is time we rejected such a divisive world view and learned to love each other for our commonalities as well as celebrate our differences. Both simultaneously. Unity in variety and variety in unity.

My own more recent work draws from Japanese Noh plays, ancient Greek tragedies (a truly foreign culture, if you truly understand it), and Kalidasa -- as well as Shakespeare and Tom Stoppard, among others.

I myself am a literary Francophile, and I criticize out of love for the literature. I don't detect the same motives from you.

Troy Camplin

From: Christopher Leland Winks <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, February 4, 2009 11:50:05 AM
Subject: Re: Globish

Even the notion of French academics "hanging over" people "telling them their French isn't French enough" is a vulgar caricature. Leopold Senghor was a member of the French Academy, and Assia Djebar presently is, and neither was/is an "academic" properly speaking, nor inclined to police the language (read their work). And no, my friend, your postings, with their strength-through-joy (or was that holiness-through-health?), free-market idolatry, extolling of the soporific Frederick Turner and the Few Normalism, I mean New Formalism (not he of the manifest destiny, though he might as well be), in fact have shown any indication of any interest at all in non-whites. I understand that this is only an example of the provincialism that besets North American letters as a whole, and as such is more a sin of omission than commission. All the writers you mention are worthy -- I hope you take Lovelace's humanism to heart.

And by the way, I think all troops everywhere should be demobilized and sent home. Everywhere. Disband all the armies.

↑ Index

79. Troy Camplin
Re: Globish
Wed 4 Feb 2009

I've never found you particularly pleasant in the way you argue.

But I wasn't even talking to you. You just decided to jump in to throw in your own divisive words. Those of us who were having this discussion have done quite fine without this noncontrabution. For example, I now have quite a reading list. No thanks to you or this post.

I nave noticed that despite the fact that you cannot give a single specific instance of my saying anything racist, you keep accusing me of it. All such accusations are are shortcuts to thinking and are designed to sidetrack arguments away from the issues. QUite frankly, your accusations remind me of those homophobes who think everyone else is gay and who openly, vociferously condemn homosexuals and perceived homosexuals every chance they get. Methinks you doth protest too much. Those who go around accusing everyone under the sun of racism are themselves the biggest racists, feel guilty about it, and, not wanting to feel guilty, project their feelings onto others, accusing those others of what they themselves are. SO please keep your racism and accusations of racism to yourself.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: amy king <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, February 4, 2009 3:52:19 PM
Subject: Re: Globish

Troy,

In your take on things, you are always the one who is misunderstood, noble, and well intentioned -- as opposed to everyone you respond to. You, who insist on labeling and characterizing everyone at every turn, "postmodern" being your most common accusation/insult. And the regular citing of your "Mexican American" "minority" wife as if she were the elixir against any possible racist sentiment you may have learned and be unaware of in your own ideas on life and literature... You refuse to even consider that possibility, consistently and adamantly, because everyone else is this label or that label you deem demeaning enough for them and elevating enough for yourself. You "criticize out of love"? Funny that. If yours is not one of the most divisive ways to go about discussion, I'll eat my shorts.

Be well,
Amy

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

--- On Wed, 2/4/09, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Globish
To: [redacted]
Date: Wednesday, February 4, 2009, 4:40 PM

You shouldn't be throwing around terms like "vulgar caricature" considering your own vulgar caricature of Frederick Turner. You might consider broadening your education to include his writing, especially "Natural Classicism," "The Culture of Hope" and "Natural Religion." His desire for a world community, including a world community of letters, is also mine. Turner's a natural classicist, meaning he writes the way he writes is based on the historical-cultural nature of poetry. For example, he has done research showing that poems around the world, throughout history, throughout cultures, regardless of language, are broken up into lines, and that those lines are 3-5 seconds lone -- the same length as our short term memory slot, and our auditory present. This is a common feature of poetry and songs. Excepting the postmodern poems dominant among educated elites.

As for my posting on health and the holy, it was a work that argued that we should have a truly inclusive world view. We should understand each other through both our differences and our commonalities. The postmodern emphasis on differences is deeply rooted in racism, sexism, etc. that have divided human beings for much too long. It is time we rejected such a divisive world view and learned to love each other for our commonalities as well as celebrate our differences. Both simultaneously. Unity in variety and variety in unity.

My own more recent work draws from Japanese Noh plays, ancient Greek tragedies (a truly foreign culture, if you truly understand it), and Kalidasa -- as well as Shakespeare and Tom Stoppard, among others.

I myself am a literary Francophile, and I criticize out of love for the literature. I don't detect the same motives from you.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: Christopher Leland Winks <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, February 4, 2009 11:50:05 AM
Subject: Re: Globish

Even the notion of French academics "hanging over" people "telling them their French isn't French enough" is a vulgar caricature. Leopold Senghor was a member of the French Academy, and Assia Djebar presently is, and neither was/is an "academic" properly speaking, nor inclined to police the language (read their work). And no, my friend, your postings, with their strength-through-joy (or was that holiness-through-health?), free-market idolatry, extolling of the soporific Frederick Turner and the Few Normalism, I mean New Formalism (not he of the manifest destiny, though he might as well be), in fact have shown any indication of any interest at all in non-whites. I understand that this is only an example of the provincialism that besets North American letters as a whole, and as such is more a sin of omission than commission. All the writers you mention are worthy -- I hope you take Lovelace's humanism to heart.

And by the way, I think all troops everywhere should be demobilized and sent home. Everywhere. Disband all the armies.

↑ Index

80. amy king
Re: Globish
Wed 4 Feb 2009

Troy,

Participating in "discussions" with you inevitably ends badly, devolving into you labeling the participants and name calling (where does that compulsion to label come from??) without you ever considering the possibility that you might-not-be-right-all-of-the-time -- gasp! Never a concession from you ...where's the "discussion" in that? "Troy's spin" is certainly to be avoided. Esp since your angry argumentative energy is endless.

And Troy, calling me a "racist" and a "homophobe" now: case in point.

Amy

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

--- On Wed, 2/4/09, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Globish
To: [redacted]
Date: Wednesday, February 4, 2009, 5:11 PM

I've never found you particularly pleasant in the way you argue.

But I wasn't even talking to you. You just decided to jump in to throw in your own divisive words. Those of us who were having this discussion have done quite fine without this noncontrabution. For example, I now have quite a reading list. No thanks to you or this post.

I nave noticed that despite the fact that you cannot give a single specific instance of my saying anything racist, you keep accusing me of it. All such accusations are are shortcuts to thinking and are designed to sidetrack arguments away from the issues. QUite frankly, your accusations remind me of those homophobes who think everyone else is gay and who openly, vociferously condemn homosexuals and perceived homosexuals every chance they get. Methinks you doth protest too much. Those who go around accusing everyone under the sun of racism are themselves the biggest racists, feel guilty about it, and, not wanting to feel guilty, project their feelings onto others, accusing those others of what they themselves are. SO please keep your racism and accusations of racism to yourself.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: amy king <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, February 4, 2009 3:52:19 PM
Subject: Re: Globish

Troy,

In your take on things, you are always the one who is misunderstood, noble, and well intentioned -- as opposed to everyone you respond to. You, who insist on labeling and characterizing everyone at every turn, "postmodern" being your most common accusation/insult. And the regular citing of your "Mexican American" "minority" wife as if she were the elixir against any possible racist sentiment you may have learned and be unaware of in your own ideas on life and literature... You refuse to even consider that possibility, consistently and adamantly, because everyone else is this label or that label you deem demeaning enough for them and elevating enough for yourself. You "criticize out of love"? Funny that. If yours is not one of the most divisive ways to go about discussion, I'll eat my shorts.

Be well,
Amy

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

--- On Wed, 2/4/09, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Globish
To: [redacted]
Date: Wednesday, February 4, 2009, 4:40 PM

You shouldn't be throwing around terms like "vulgar caricature" considering your own vulgar caricature of Frederick Turner. You might consider broadening your education to include his writing, especially "Natural Classicism," "The Culture of Hope" and "Natural Religion." His desire for a world community, including a world community of letters, is also mine. Turner's a natural classicist, meaning he writes the way he writes is based on the historical-cultural nature of poetry. For example, he has done research showing that poems around the world, throughout history, throughout cultures, regardless of language, are broken up into lines, and that those lines are 3-5 seconds lone -- the same length as our short term memory slot, and our auditory present. This is a common feature of poetry and songs. Excepting the postmodern poems dominant among educated elites.

As for my posting on health and the holy, it was a work that argued that we should have a truly inclusive world view. We should understand each other through both our differences and our commonalities. The postmodern emphasis on differences is deeply rooted in racism, sexism, etc. that have divided human beings for much too long. It is time we rejected such a divisive world view and learned to love each other for our commonalities as well as celebrate our differences. Both simultaneously. Unity in variety and variety in unity.

My own more recent work draws from Japanese Noh plays, ancient Greek tragedies (a truly foreign culture, if you truly understand it), and Kalidasa -- as well as Shakespeare and Tom Stoppard, among others.

I myself am a literary Francophile, and I criticize out of love for the literature. I don't detect the same motives from you.

Troy Camplin

From: Christopher Leland Winks <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, February 4, 2009 11:50:05 AM
Subject: Re: Globish

Even the notion of French academics "hanging over" people "telling them their French isn't French enough" is a vulgar caricature. Leopold Senghor was a member of the French Academy, and Assia Djebar presently is, and neither was/is an "academic" properly speaking, nor inclined to police the language (read their work). And no, my friend, your postings, with their strength-through-joy (or was that holiness-through-health?), free-market idolatry, extolling of the soporific Frederick Turner and the Few Normalism, I mean New Formalism (not he of the manifest destiny, though he might as well be), in fact have shown any indication of any interest at all in non-whites. I understand that this is only an example of the provincialism that besets North American letters as a whole, and as such is more a sin of omission than commission. All the writers you mention are worthy -- I hope you take Lovelace's humanism to heart.

And by the way, I think all troops everywhere should be demobilized and sent home. Everywhere. Disband all the armies.

↑ Index

81. Kevin Killian
Re: Eleven Eleven #6
Wed 4 Feb 2009

Congratulations Hugh,

What a wonderful job of work, and I know how hard you have slaved ti make it so good!!

> It's with great pleasure and joy that we announce the release of Eleven Eleven #6 -- our first web issue! Check us out at www.elevenelevenjournal.com.
>
> Featuring poetry by Barry Dempster, Cara Benson, Carl Auerbach, Chris Arigo, Chris Pusateri, Christine Hamm, CM Burroughs, Craig Santos-Perez, Dan Gutstein, Francine J. Harris, James Sanders, Joseph Noble, Laynie Brown, LS Klatt, Oliver Abrahim Khan, Paige Taggart, Rauan Klassnik, Richard Silberg, Travis Cebula and Valerie Witte;
>
> Fiction by Alain de Botton, Alison Doernberg, Dale Kushner, Ron Burch, Seana Graham and Ted Morrissey;

> Plays by Elaine Romero and Gerald Nicosia;
>
> and Art by Cheyanne Ramos, Diego Molina, Emily Huffman, Jason Hanasik and Gamaliel Rodriguez.
>
> I especially want to thank the hard work of the Eleven Eleven staff: Thomas Rees, Junior Clemons, Lisa Gordon, Kevin Whiteley, and most especially Julie Littman, who spearheaded the building of our site.
>
> We'll be reading for our summer print issue through March 1. Send work to:
>
> Eleven Eleven
> California College of the Arts
> 1111 Eighth St.
> San Francisco, CA 94107
>
> Best,
>
> Hugh Behm-Steinberg
> Faculty Editor
> Eleven Eleven

↑ Index

82. Gary Sullivan
GOLDSMITH + TORRES @ SEGUE | BPC | SAT FEB 7 | 4PM
Wed 4 Feb 2009

SEGUE READING SERIES @ BOWERY POETRY CLUB

presents

KENNETH GOLDSMITH and EDWIN TORRES

Saturday February 7
4:00 p.m. - 6:00 p.m.
308 BOWERY, just north of Houston
$6 admission goes to support the readers

Kenneth Goldsmith is the author of ten books of poetry and founding editor of UbuWeb (ubu.com). He is the host of a weekly radio show on New York City's WFMU and teaches writing at The University of Pennsylvania. A book of critical essays, Uncreative Writing, is forthcoming from Columbia University Press.

Edwin Torres is a NYC born lingualisualist currently on hiatus from the apple, living upstate. A NYFA recipient and 2006/7 Lower Manhattan Cultural Council Writer-in-Residence, he's been widely published and taught his Brainlingo workshop at numerous venues & universities. His books include, The PoPedology Of An Ambient Language (Atelos Books), The All-Union Day Of The Shock Worker (Roof Books), Onomalingua: noise songs and poems (Rattapallax e-book), and Please (Faux Press CD-Rom).

The Segue Reading Series is made possible by the support of The Segue Foundation. For more information, please visit seguefoundation.com, bowerypoetry.com, or call [redacted].

Curators: February-March by Nada Gordon & Gary Sullivan.

_____ Windows Live™: E-mail. Chat. Share. Get more ways to connect. http://windowslive.com/online/hotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_AE_Faster_022009

↑ Index

83. George Bowering
Re: Globish
Wed 4 Feb 2009

Why not try to be courteous?
Courtesy doesn't hurt.

gb

On Feb 4, 2009, at 2:11 PM, Troy Camplin wrote:

> I've never found you particularly pleasant in the way you argue.
>
> But I wasn't even talking to you. You just decided to jump in to throw in your own divisive words. Those of us who were having this discussion have done quite fine without this noncontrabution. For example, I now have quite a reading list. No thanks to you or this post.
>
> I nave noticed that despite the fact that you cannot give a single specific instance of my saying anything racist, you keep accusing me of it. All such accusations are are shortcuts to thinking and are designed to sidetrack arguments away from the issues. QUite frankly, your accusations remind me of those homophobes who think everyone else is gay and who openly, vociferously condemn homosexuals and perceived homosexuals every chance they get. Methinks you doth protest too much. Those who go around accusing everyone under the sun of racism are themselves the biggest racists, feel guilty about it, and, not wanting to feel guilty, project their feelings onto others, accusing those others of what they themselves are. SO please keep your racism and accusations of racism to yourself.

Troy Camplin

From: amy king <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, February 4, 2009 3:52:19 PM
Subject: Re: Globish

Troy,

*In your take on things, you are always the one who is misunderstood, noble, and well intentioned -- as opposed to everyone you respond to. You, who insist on labeling and characterizing everyone at every turn, "postmodern" being your most common accusation/insult. And the regular citing of your "Mexican American" "minority" wife as if she were the elixir against any possible racist sentiment you may have learned and be unaware of in your own ideas on life and literature... You refuse to even consider that possibility, consistently and adamantly, because everyone else is this label or that label you deem demeaning enough for them and elevating enough for yourself. You "criticize out of love"? Funny that. If yours is not one of the most divisive ways to go about discussion, I'll eat my shorts.*

Be well,
Amy

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

--- On Wed, 2/4/09, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Globish
To: [redacted]

Date: Wednesday, February 4, 2009, 4:40 PM

You shouldn't be throwing around terms like "vulgar caricature" considering your own vulgar caricature of Frederick Turner. You might consider broadening your education to include his writing, especially "Natural Classicism," "The Culture of Hope" and "Natural Religion." His desire for a world community, including a world community of letters, is also mine. Turner's a natural classicist, meaning he writes the way he writes is based on the historical-cultural nature of poetry. For example, he has done research showing that poems around the world, throughout history, throughout cultures, regardless of language, are broken up into lines, and that those lines are 3-5 seconds lone -- the same length as our short term memory slot, and our auditory present. This is a common feature of poetry and songs. Excepting the postmodern poems dominant among educated elites.

As for my posting on health and the holy, it was a work that argued that we should have a truly inclusive world view. We should understand each other through both our differences and our commonalities. The postmodern emphasis on differences is deeply rooted in racism, sexism, etc. that have divided human beings for much too long. It is time we rejected such a divisive world view and learned to love each other for our commonalities as well as celebrate our differences. Both simultaneously. Unity in variety and variety in unity.

My own more recent work draws from Japanese Noh plays, ancient Greek tragedies (a truly foreign culture, if you truly understand it), and Kalidasa -- as well as Shakespeare and Tom Stoppard, among others.

I myself am a literary Francophile, and I criticize out of love for the literature. I don't detect the same motives from you.

Troy Camplin

From: Christopher Leland Winks <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, February 4, 2009 11:50:05 AM
Subject: Re: Globish

Even the notion of French academics "hanging over" people "telling them their French isn't French enough" is a vulgar caricature. Leopold Senghor was a member of the French Academy, and Assia Djebar presently is, and neither was/is an "academic" properly speaking, nor inclined to police the language (read their work). And no, my friend, your postings, with their strength-through-joy (or was that holiness-through-health?), free-market idolatry, extolling of the soporific Frederick Turner and the Few Normalism, I mean New Formalism (not he of the manifest destiny, though he might as well be), in fact have shown any indication of any interest at all in non-whites. I understand that this is only an example of the provincialism that besets North American letters as a whole, and as such is more a sin of omission than commission. All the writers you mention are worthy -- I hope you take Lovelace's humanism to heart.

And by the way, I think all troops everywhere should be demobilized and sent home. Everywhere. Disband all the armies.

guidelines

guidelines

welcome.html

welcome.html

George Z. Bowering
Master of Arghs.

↑ Index

84. Amanda Earl

AngelHousePress Essay by Peter Ciccariello

Wed 4 Feb 2009

Peter Ciccariello provides us with the second in the AngelHousePress Essay Series with On "Prufrock 1919 scattered across landscape Var. II, 2006" previously published in Anthology of visiotextual pieces 2008, edited by Bob Grumman. Peter's visual poetry will appear in the November, 2009 issue of Experiment-O." Please visit www.angelhousepress.com and click on essays.

Amanda

Amanda Earl
AngelHousePress
www.angelhousepress.com
the angel is in the house

↑ Index

85. Jonathan Skinner

LANGUAGE ARTS LIVE at Bates College: JENNIFER MOXLEY and JAMES KOLLER (2/9)

Thu 5 Feb 2009

The BATES LANGUAGE ARTS LIVE series continues with:

James Koller
and Jennifer Moxley

who will read from and discuss their work at 7:30pm (SHARP!)

on Monday, February 9, 2009

in the Skelton Lounge of Chase Hall
at Bates College
Lewiston, Maine

This event is free and open to the public and has been made possible by generous sponsorship from the Environmental Studies Program, the Humanities Division, the Department of English, and the John Tagliabue Poetry Fund.

For more information, please contact Jonathan Skinner ([redacted]) or Eden Osucha ([redacted])

****

Jennifer Moxley was born in San Diego, California. With an M.F.A. from Brown University, she edited The Impercipient from 1992-1995 as well as the Impercipient Lecture Series, a monthly poetics pamphlet. Moxley is the author of Clampdown (Flood, 2009), The Middle Room (Subpress, 2008), The Line (Post-Apollo, 2007), Often Capital (Flood, 2005), The Sense Record and Other Poems (Edge, 2002), and Imagination Verses (Tender Buttons, 1996). She has translated two books by the French poet and scholar Jacqueline Risset: a book of essays titled Sleep¹s Powers (Ugly Duckling Presse, 2008), and a book of poems, The Translation Begins (Burning Deck, 1996). Her poem ³Behind the Orbits² was chosen by Robert Creeley for inclusion in The Best American Poetry 2002. She has been the poetry editor for The Baffler magazine since 1997 and a contributing editor of The Poker magazine since 2003. Of The Sense Record, Arielle Greenberg has written, ³At once edgy and archaic, Moxley uses traditional meter and Romantic imagery to inform poems that ask urgent questions about class and community in the contemporary world.² Moxley teaches poetry and poetics at the University of Maine, Orono. Reviews, essays and poetry can be accessed at her home page: <http://epc.buffalo.edu/authors/moxley/moxley-pub.html>

James Koller is the editor of Coyote's Journal, and the founder of Coyote Books‹one of the early publishers of major ³New American² poets such as Paul Blackburn, Ed Dorn, Robert Creeley, Charles Olson, and Gary Snyder. (See Andrew Schelling¹s essay on ³Post Coyote Poetry²: <http://www.longhousepoetry.com/andrewschelling.html>.) Originally from Illinois, Koller began editing Coyote's Journal in San Francisco and later moved with it to New Mexico, and then to Maine. Koller has authored twenty-seven collections of poetry (including Snows Gone By: New & Collected Poems 1964-2002) and four novels (including Like It Was, a memoir of 1960s life in northern California) and was a National Endowment for the Arts fellowship recipient in both 1968 and 1973. His press has published more than 43 titles, and Coyote¹s Journal has also included work from Europe and Asia. According to Peter Coyote: ³Koller straddled the world of the beats, and then the world of my family the Diggers. A tireless traveler, he has clocked years and countless miles on the road, keeping his eyes open and his nervous system sandpapered. His poems are spare, magical, dangerous, crackling with totem power. His stories are true. A man to be reckoned with.² Koller lives on Georgetown Island along the Maine coast. Coyote¹s Journal can be found online at: <http://www.coyotesjournal.com/>

--

Jonathan Skinner

Assistant Professor of Humanities

Environmental Studies ~ Bates College

*

THE FULL "LANGUAGE ARTS LIVE" CALENDAR

Language Arts Live Winter 2009 Reading Series
Bates College (Lewiston, Maine)

All readings are held in the Skelton Lounge at Chase Hall

Thursday, 29 January
7:00 pm
CA Conrad, Magdalena Zurawski

Zurawski¹s 2008 novel The Bruise is the winner of the Ronald Sukenick Prize for Innovative Fiction and her short fiction and poetry has appeared in EOAGH, American Poet, Talisman, The Poetry Project Newsletter and other magazines. Philadelphia-based poet CAConrad is the author Deviant Propulsion (2006), (Soma)tic Midge (2008) and The Book of Frank (2009).

Monday, 9 February
7:30 pm
James Koller, Jennifer Moxley

Moxley¹s poetry collections include Clampdown (2009), The Line (2007), Often Capital (2005) and The Sense Record (2002). She teaches poetry and poetics at the University of Maine, Orono. Poet, novelist, editor and publisher Koller has authored twenty-seven collections of poetry (including Snows Gone By: New & Collected Poems 1964-2002) and four novels, and has received two National Endowment for the Arts fellowships. He founded Coyote¹s Journal and Coyote Books in 1964, and lives on Georgetown Island along the Maine coast.

Thursday, 26 February
7:30 pm
Simon Pettet

English-born poet Simon Pettet has published Hearth (2008), More Winnowed Fragments (2007) and Selected Poems (1995). He is the author of two collaborations with photographer-filmmaker Rudy Burckhardt, Conversations About Everything and Talking Pictures, and the editor of the Selected Art Writings of the Pulitzer-prize-winning ³New York School² poet James Schuyler.

Thursday, 5 March
7:30 pm
Jeffrey Thomson

Thomson¹s poetry collections include Birdwatching in Wartime (2009), Renovation (2005) and Country of Lost Sons (2004). He is the recipient of a 2005 Literature Fellowship in Poetry from the National Endowment for the Arts and a 2008 Fellowship in the Literary Arts from the Maine Arts Commission. Thomson is Associate Professor of Creative Writing at the University of Maine at Farmington.

Monday, 9 March
4:15 pm
Ravi Shankar

Shankar is the poet-in-residence at Central Connecticut State University and the founding editor of the online journal of the arts, Drunken Boat. His books include Wanton Textiles (with Reb Livingston, 2006) and Instrumentality (2004). With poets Tina Chang and Nathalie Handal, Shankar co-edited the Norton anthology of contemporary Arab and Asian poetry, Language for A New Century.

Monday, 16 March
7:30 pm
Samantha Hunt

Samantha Hunt spent four years researching Nikola Tesla for her novel The Invention of Everything Else (2008). She is the author of the acclaimed first novel The Seas, and her short fiction has appeared in The New Yorker, in McSweeneys and on This American Life. Hunt recently received the first-ever "5 under 35" award from the National Book Foundation.

Thursday, 19 March
7:30 pm
Sarah Manguso

Manguso has authored a memoir, The Two Kinds of Decay (2008), a short story collection, Hard to Admit and Harder to Escape (2007), and two poetry collections, Siste Viator (2006) and The Captain Lands in Paradise (2002). Her writing and criticism have appeared in The Paris Review, The London Review of Books, McSweeney¹s, The New Republic, The Boston Review, and elsewhere. Her awards include a Pushcart Prize and the Rome Prize in Literature for 2007-2008. Manguso lives in Brooklyn where she teaches writing at the Pratt Institute.

All Events Free and Open to the Public. Sponsored by the Bates English Department, the Bates Environmental Studies Program, the Bates Asian Studies Program, the Bates Humanities Fund, Bates Outfront, and the John Tagliabue Poetry Fund.

For more information, contact Jonathan Skinner ([redacted]) or Eden Osucha ([redacted]) at Bates College

↑ Index

86. Jennifer Karmin

Feb 12-14: AWP events at Links Hall

Thu 5 Feb 2009

FEBRUARY 12, 13, 14
readings & presentations curated by Amina Cain, Laura Goldstein, Lisa Janssen & Jennifer Karmin

at LINKS HALL
3435 N. Sheffield Avenue
Chicago, IL

6:30-11:30PM
$5 each night
ongoing events / drop in anytime / last entry 10:30pm

PUBLIC TRANSPORT
CTA Red & Brown lines
7 minute walk from Belmont station (left out of station, right at light, walk 2.5 blocks, enter at Newport)
http://www.linkshall.org/a-locate.shtml

FEBRUARY 12: Make It New - Infrawriting/Infrastructure
@@@

Poe, Harold Abramowitz, Amanda Ackerman, Mathew Timmons, Matthew Klane.

10:30-11:30pm
Tag Team Reading with Teresa Carmody, Mairead Case, Annie Finch, Daniel Godston, Steve Halle, Lisa Janssen, Mario, Michael Marcinkowski, Timothy Rey, Chuck Stebelton. Audience participation! Open to all!

FEBRUARY 13: Friday Night in Chicago
@@@

87. Hugh Behm-Steinberg
Re: Eleven Eleven #6
Thu 5 Feb 2009

Oh, and we have one more poet in the issue: Carolyn Smart. Read up!

Hugh Behm-Steinberg

_____
From: Hugh Behm-Steinberg <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, February 4, 2009 1:39:09 PM
Subject: Eleven Eleven #6

It's with great pleasure and joy that we announce the release of Eleven Eleven #6 -- our first web issue! Check us out at www.elevenelevenjournal.com.

Featuring poetry by Barry Dempster, Cara Benson, Carl Auerbach, Chris Arigo, Chris Pusateri, Christine Hamm, CM Burroughs, Craig Santos-Perez, Dan Gutstein, Francine J. Harris, James Sanders, Joseph Noble, Laynie Brown, LS Klatt, Oliver Abrahim Khan, Paige Taggart, Rauan Klassnik, Richard Silberg, Travis Cebula and Valerie Witte;

Fiction by Alain de Botton, Alison Doernberg, Dale Kushner, Ron Burch, Seana Graham and Ted Morrissey;

Plays by Elaine Romero and Gerald Nicosia;

and Art by Cheyanne Ramos, Diego Molina, Emily Huffman, Jason Hanasik and Gamaliel Rodriguez.

I especially want to thank the hard work of the Eleven Eleven staff: Thomas Rees, Junior Clemons, Lisa Gordon, Kevin Whiteley, and most especially Julie Littman, who spearheaded the building of our site.

We'll be reading for our summer print issue through March 1. Send work to:

Eleven Eleven
California College of the Arts
1111 Eighth St.
San Francisco, CA 94107

Best,

Hugh Behm-Steinberg
Faculty Editor
Eleven Eleven

↑ Index

88. Poetry Project

Events at The Poetry Project February

Thu 5 Feb 2009

We have quite a few events coming up, including a special reading at The Noguchi Museum on Sunday. Also, there¹s still time to sign up for our Spring workshops!

Workshop information is here: http://www.poetryproject.com/workshops.php

Friday, February 6, 9:30 PM
Fall Workshop Reading

Come and hear what the writers who took workshops with Martine Bellen, Tisa Bryant, and CAConrad are up to! Workshop leaders will be present to introduce their students.

Sunday, February 8, 3 PM
Poetry in the Presence of Sculpture
The Noguchi Museum

The Poetry Project and The Noguchi Museum have teamed up to present ³Poetry in the Presence of Sculpture² in the main gallery of the Noguchi on Sunday, February 8th at 3PM. Poets Paul Foster Johnson, Christopher Stackhouse, and Cathy Park Hong will read original work written both directly in response to Noguchi and thematically in keeping with ideas of community and identity. Free with museum admission (ten dollars for adults, five for students and seniors).

The Noguchi Museum | Temporary Entrance: Vernon Boulevard btwn. 9th Street
and 33rd Road | Long Island City | NY | 11106
For directions please visit: http://www.noguchi.org/directions.html.²

ABOUT THE POETS: Cathy Park Hong's first book, Translating Mo'um, was published in 2002 by Hanging Loose Press. Her second collection, Dance Dance Revolution, was chosen for the Barnard Women Poets Prize and was published in 2007 by W.W. Norton. She is the recipient of a Fulbright Fellowship and a National Endowment for the Arts Fellowship. Christopher Stackhouse is the author of poetry collected in the chapbook Slip (Corollary Press, 2005), and co-author of Seismosis (1913 Press, 2006), a dialogic collaboration featuring Stackhouse's drawings and text by writer/professor John Keene. He holds an MFA in Writing/Interdisciplinary Studies from Bard College; is a Cave Canem Writers Fellow; and is a 2005 Fellow in Poetry, New York Foundation for the Arts. Paul Foster Johnson's first collection of poetry, Refrains/Unworkings, was recently published by Apostrophe Books. His work has appeared in GAM, PomPom, Fence, The Portable Boog Reader 2, Antennae, Bird Dog, and Octopus. With E. Tracy Grinnell, Johnson is the author of the chapbook Quadriga, published by g-o-n-g press in 2006. Johnson is also at editor at Litmus Press.

Monday, February 9, 8 PM
Richard Owens & Yedda Morrison

Born and raised in the San Francisco Bay Area, Montreal-based writer and visual artist Yedda Morrison joins us to celebrate the publication of Girl Scout Nation (Displaced Press, 2008). Her other books include; My Pocket Park (Dusie Press, 2007), and Crop (Kelsey Street Press, 2003). Morrison has exhibited her visual work in the United States and Canada, and is represented by Republic Gallery in Vancouver, BC. She is currently working on a mixed-media project entitled How Flora Became an Ornament. Richard Owens: Born Perth Amboy General Hospital, New Jersey in 1973. Dislocated at Sussex County Vocational Technical School and William Paterson College. US Army 1997 2001 (medic). Assigned three and a half years to post in Waegwan, south Korea, with intervening trips to Hong Kong, Thailand, Laos, Cambodia and brief jump to visit Cid Corman in Kyoto. Unemployment and odd industrial jobs. Further dislocated at Carmela Soprano's alma mater Montclair State University. Farmworker advocate in black dirt region of Orange County, New York. Presently relocating through the University at Buffalo. Poetry, essays and reviews variously published online and in little magazines. Editor: Punch Press and Damn the Caesars.

Wednesday, February 11, 8 PM
The Art of Collaboration: Francesco Clemente & Vincent Katz with Raymond Foye

In his varied and prolific career, painter Francesco Clemente has had strong ties to poets, collaborating with Gregory Corso, Robert Creeley, Allen Ginsberg, Rene Ricard and John Wieners. A new publication, Alcuni Telefonini, with watercolors by Clemente and poems by Vincent Katz (Granary Books, 2008) provides the occasion to look at Clemente's work with poets. A reading from the book by Katz will be followed by a discussion of collaboration, moderated by Raymond Foye. Francesco Clemente's works are found in many museum collections in Europe and the United States. He was the subject of a retrospective at the Guggenheim Museum in 1999-2000. Vincent Katz is a poet, critic, and translator. He has translated Sextus Propertius and organized an exhibition on Black Mountain College. He is the publisher of Vanitas magazine and Libellum books. Raymond Foye is an independent curator, writer and publisher. His editorial works include The Unknown Poe (City Lights, 1980), The Ancient Rain: Bob Kaufman Selected Poems 1956-1978 (New Directions, 1981) and two volumes of the works of John Wieners for Black Sparrow Press (1986 &1988). He has written on the work of Francesco Clemente for retrospective catalogues published by the Philadelphia Museum of Art (1990) and the Guggenheim Museum (1999).

Become a Poetry Project Member! http://poetryproject.com/membership.php

Calendar: http://www.poetryproject.com/calendar.php

The Poetry Project is located at St. Mark's Church-in-the-Bowery
131 East 10th Street at Second Avenue
New York City 10003
Trains: 6, F, N, R, and L.
[redacted]
www.poetryproject.com

Admission is $8, $7 for students/seniors and $5 for members (though now those who take out a membership at $95 or higher will get in FREE to all regular readings).

We are wheelchair accessible with assistance and advance
notice. For more info call [redacted].

If you¹d like to be unsubscribed from this mailing list, please drop a line at [redacted].

↑ Index

89. Peter Ciccariello
this is not poetry II
Thu 5 Feb 2009

---

this is not poetry II <http://ciccariello.viewbook.com/not#/1/>

- Peter Cicariello
http://invisiblenotes.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

90. Andy Gricevich
Text-music and political theater in the West Village
Fri 6 Feb 2009

Those among you who are New Yorkers and are interested in innovative text performance and/or formally odd political theater might be interested in seeing the performances my trio, the Nonsense Company, are doing in town over the next two weeks. We've been taking these pieces around for a couple of years now, and I think they're in really good shape.

"Great Hymn of Thanksgiving" (by Rick Burkhardt) is a meticulously scored piece for three speaking percussionists around a dinner table setup, centering on elaborate group speech techniques (switching speakers in mid-syllable, imitating channel-switching TVs at various distances, performing dinner table chitchat in the mode of hymns and news reports from Iraq in the mode of children's storytelling, rapid and long unisons) and precise percussion playing (on dishes, tuned glasses, the table itself, and supplementary autoharp, toy piano and steel drum). The piece interrogates language as our main environment, pulling it apart to show the functions that often operate in spite of its meanings. It's also, I think, very interesting music that focuses attention on tiny details and fragile noises (at least audience response has made it seem that way).

"Conversation Storm" (also by Burkhardt, and just published in the anthology "Plays and Playwrights 2009") is about arguing about torture: how do you engage in an argument on a topic whose status as subject to debate is already a betrayal? Is refusing to talk about it as much a brutalization of one's own position as it would be to enter into the argument on its distorted terms? It's also about role-playing and narration. Time is distorted, mixed up, truncated or stretched; the actors switch scenes in mid-word; characters lose track of their performers and float to reattach themselves to unsuspecting victims.

The performances take place at the IRT (Interborough Repertory Theater), 154 Christopher St., 3B, February 5-15. 8 p.m. W-Sat, 3 p.m. Sun. (no performances on Monday and Tuesday). Tickets are $15. For more info, visit http://www.nonsensecompany.com.

Hope some of you can make it!

all the best to you,

Andy Gricevich

↑ Index

91. Maria Damon

Re: GOLDSMITH + TORRES @ SEGUE | BPC | SAT FEB 7 | 4PM

Fri 6 Feb 2009

---

now this is gonna be one heckety-heck of a reading! wish i cd be there.

Gary Sullivan wrote:
> SEGUE READING SERIES @ BOWERY POETRY CLUB
>
> presents
>
> KENNETH GOLDSMITH and EDWIN TORRES

>
> Saturday February 7
> 4:00 p.m. - 6:00 p.m.
> 308 BOWERY, just north of Houston
> $6 admission goes to support the readers
>
> Kenneth Goldsmith is the author of ten books of poetry and founding editor of UbuWeb (ubu.com). He is the host of a weekly radio show on New York City's WFMU and teaches writing at The University of Pennsylvania. A book of critical essays, Uncreative Writing, is forthcoming from Columbia University Press.
>
> Edwin Torres is a NYC born lingualisualist currently on hiatus from the apple, living upstate. A NYFA recipient and 2006/7 Lower Manhattan Cultural Council Writer-in-Residence, he's been widely published and taught his Brainlingo workshop at numerous venues & universities. His books include, The PoPedology Of An Ambient Language (Atelos Books), The All-Union Day Of The Shock Worker (Roof Books), Onomalingua: noise songs and poems (Rattapallax e-book), and Please (Faux Press CD-Rom).
>
> The Segue Reading Series is made possible by the support of The Segue Foundation. For more information, please visit seguefoundation.com, bowerypoetry.com, or call [redacted].
>
> Curators: February-March by Nada Gordon & Gary Sullivan.
>
>
> _____
> Windows Live™: E-mail. Chat. Share. Get more ways to connect.
> http://windowslive.com/online/hotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_AE_Faster_022009
>

↑ Index

92. David Kirschenbaum

Thurs: Boog Reader 3 Launch/Urban Folk Relaunch

Fri 6 Feb 2009

Please forward

Boog City presents

Portable Boog Reader 3 Launch
&
Urban Folk Relaunch

this Thurs., Feb. 12, 7:30 p.m.
$5 suggested donation with a two-drink minimum

Sidewalk Café
94 Ave. A (at E. 6th St.)
East Village

WITH READINGS FROM PBR3 CONTRIBUTORS

Shafer Hall * Adeena Karasick

Jeff Laughlin * Amy Lawless

Geoffrey Olsen * Jeremy James Thompson

AND MUSICAL PERFORMANCES BY URBAN FOLK ACTS

Justin Remer * Joe Crow Ryan * Brian Speaker

Hosted and curated by Urban Folk editor Jonathan Berger and Boog City editor and publisher David Kirschenbaum

Directions: F/V to 2nd Ave., L to 1st Ave.

For further information:
212-842-BOOG (2664), [redacted]

PBR3 (BC53) features the work of 72 New York City poets. The online pdf is available at:

http://welcometoboogcity.com/boogpdfs/bc53.pbr3.pdf

Bios:

Boog City
http://www.welcometoboogcity.com/

Boog City is a New York City-based small press now in its 18th year and East Village community newspaper of the same name. It has also published 35 volumes of poetry and various magazines, featuring work by Allen Ginsberg and Lawrence Ferlinghetti among others, and theme issues on baseball, women's writing, and Louisville, Ky. It hosts and curates two regular performance series —d.a. levy lives: celebrating the renegade press, where each month a non-NYC small press and its writers and a musical act of their choosing is hosted at Chelsea's ACA Galleries; and Classic Albums Live, where up to 13 local musical acts perform a classic album live at venues including The Bowery Poetry Club, Cake Shop, CBGB's, and The Knitting Factory. Past albums have included Elvis Costello, My Aim is True; Nirvana, Nevermind; and Liz Phair, Exile in Guyville.

Urban Folk
http://www.myspace.com/urbanfolkzine

Urban Folk, the premier fanzine about the AntiFolk scene, has published sporadically since early 2005. Founded by Dave Cuomo, the print magazine has focused on covering acoustic music in urban climes, occasionally hosting evenings of music, and sometimes printing programs for acoustic festivals. It's a pretty good paper. This February, under the helm of its editor, longtime Boog City Music Editor Jonathan Berger, it becomes a pullout in each issue of Boog City.

Shafer Hall
http://shaferhall.blogspot.com/

Shafer Hall wishes you a mighty fine 2009.

Adeena Karasick
http://www.adeenakarasick.com/

Adeena Karasick is the winner of the MPS Mobile Award. Her sixth book, Amuse Bouche: Tasty Treats for the Mouth, is coming out this April from Talonbooks.

Jeff Laughlin
http://insigniaticcancer.blogspot.com/

Jeff Laughlin has covered his tractor in coriander and refused to farm. He invites you to embody absurdism, but will not encourage such behavior.

Amy Lawless
http://amylawless.blogspot.com/

Amy Lawless is originally from Boston and lives in Brooklyn. Black Maze Books published her first book, Noctis Licentia, last year.

Geoffrey Olsen
http://adishtowel.blogspot.com/

Geoffrey Olsen lives in Greenpoint. His first chapbook is End Notebook (Petrichord Press). He has work forthcoming in EOAGH, Try Magazine, and Asterisk.

Justin Remer
http://www.myspace.com/weemaykmovies http://elasticnonoband.com/

Justin Remer is a filmmaker (He directed Making Lovers & Dollars) and musician (As leader of the Elastic No-No Band, he made My 3 Addictions).

Joe Crow Ryan
http://www.myspace.com/joecrowryan

Joe Crow Ryan can be seen most hours of most days playing a variety of instruments at a variety of open mics or busking on the Metropolitan G- Train Platform. The two-dollar cover includes a free train ride.

Brian Speaker
http://brianspeaker.com/

Brian Speaker is in the midst of his self-imposed Song-a-Day writing/ recording/posting schedule. Some of them are real good. He plays weekly at the Sidewalk in the improvisation band Crabs on Banjo, records frequently at Speakersonic Studios, and is hard at work on his space rock opera The Mars Chronicles.

Jeremy James Thompson
http://www.autotypist.blogspot.com/

Jeremy James Thompson lives in Astoria, Queens. He blogs about movietelling, typography, and poetics.

--
David A. Kirschenbaum, editor and publisher
Boog City
330 W. 28th St., Suite 6H
NY, NY 10001-4754
For event and publication information:
http://www.welcometoboogcity.com/
T: (212) 842-BOOG (2664)

↑ Index

93. Troy Camplin
Re: Globish
Fri 6 Feb 2009

I agree. But courtesy works both ways.

Troy

_____
From: George Bowering <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, February 4, 2009 8:06:26 PM
Subject: Re: Globish

Why not try to be courteous?
Courtesy doesn't hurt.

gb

On Feb 4, 2009, at 2:11 PM, Troy Camplin wrote:

> I've never found you particularly pleasant in the way you argue.
>
> But I wasn't even talking to you. You just decided to jump in to throw in your own divisive words. Those of us who were having this discussion have done quite fine without this noncontrabution. For example, I now have quite a reading list. No thanks to you or this post.
>
> I nave noticed that despite the fact that you cannot give a single specific instance of my saying anything racist, you keep accusing me of it. All such accusations are are shortcuts to thinking and are designed to sidetrack arguments away from the issues. QUite frankly, your accusations remind me of those homophobes who think everyone else is gay and who openly, vociferously condemn homosexuals and perceived homosexuals every chance they get. Methinks you doth protest too much. Those who go around accusing everyone under the sun of racism are themselves the biggest racists, feel guilty about it, and, not wanting to feel guilty, project their feelings onto others, accusing those others of what they themselves are. SO please keep your racism and accusations of racism to yourself.
>
> Troy Camplin
>
> _____
> From: amy king <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Wednesday, February 4, 2009 3:52:19 PM
> Subject: Re: Globish
>
> Troy,
>
> *In your take on things, you are always the one who is misunderstood, noble, and well intentioned -- as opposed to everyone you respond to. You, who insist on labeling and characterizing everyone at every turn, "postmodern" being your most common accusation/insult. And the regular citing of your "Mexican American" "minority" wife as if she were the elixir against any possible racist sentiment you may have learned and be unaware of in your own ideas on life and literature... You refuse to even consider that possibility, consistently and adamantly, because everyone else is this label or that label you deem demeaning enough for them and elevating enough for yourself. You "criticize out of love"? Funny that. If yours is not one of the most divisive ways to go about discussion, I'll eat my shorts.*
>
> Be well,
> Amy
>
> _____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

--- On Wed, 2/4/09, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Globish
To: [redacted]
Date: Wednesday, February 4, 2009, 4:40 PM

You shouldn't be throwing around terms like "vulgar caricature" considering your own vulgar caricature of Frederick Turner. You might consider broadening your education to include his writing, especially "Natural Classicism," "The Culture of Hope" and "Natural Religion." His desire for a world community, including a world community of letters, is also mine. Turner's a natural classicist, meaning he writes the way he writes is based on the historical-cultural nature of poetry. For example, he has done research showing that poems around the world, throughout history, throughout cultures, regardless of language, are broken up into lines, and that those lines are 3-5 seconds lone -- the same length as our short term memory slot, and our auditory present. This is a common feature of poetry and songs. Excepting the postmodern poems dominant among educated elites.

As for my posting on health and the holy, it was a work that argued that we should have a truly inclusive world view. We should understand each other through both our differences and our commonalities. The postmodern emphasis on differences is deeply rooted in racism, sexism, etc. that have divided human beings for much too long. It is time we rejected such a divisive world view and learned to love each other for our commonalities as well as celebrate our differences. Both simultaneously. Unity in variety and variety in unity.

My own more recent work draws from Japanese Noh plays, ancient Greek tragedies (a truly foreign culture, if you truly understand it), and Kalidasa -- as well as Shakespeare and Tom Stoppard, among others.

I myself am a literary Francophile, and I criticize out of love for the literature. I don't detect the same motives from you.

Troy Camplin

From: Christopher Leland Winks <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, February 4, 2009 11:50:05 AM

> Subject: Re: Globish
>
> Even the notion of French academics "hanging over" people "telling them their French isn't French enough" is a vulgar caricature. Leopold Senghor was a member of the French Academy, and Assia Djebar presently is, and neither was/is an "academic" properly speaking, nor inclined to police the language (read their work). And no, my friend, your postings, with their strength-through-joy (or was that holiness-through-health?), free-market idolatry, extolling of the soporific Frederick Turner and the Few Normalism, I mean New Formalism (not he of the manifest destiny, though he might as well be), in fact have shown any indication of any interest at all in non-whites. I understand that this is only an example of the provincialism that besets North American letters as a whole, and as such is more a sin of omission than commission. All the writers you mention are worthy -- I hope you take Lovelace's humanism to heart.
>
> And by the way, I think all troops everywhere should be demobilized and sent home. Everywhere. Disband all the armies.

George Z. Bowering
Master of Arghs.

↑ Index

94. Alan Sondheim

Performance at Beam Me Up, Wednesday, February 11

Fri 6 Feb 2009

This message is in MIME format. The first part should be readable text, while the remaining parts are likely unreadable without MIME-aware tools.

--0-1838410342-1233923993=:15535

PROJECT LAUNCH / a work in progress 2009/10

b e a m - m e - up ONLINE ART MAGAZIN with art, field studies and essays about space.

http://www.beam-me.net

We invite you to THE NOWHERE DANCE

A performance at Alan Sondheim's Second Life exhibition "The Accidental Artist"

Alan Sondheim: "We'll teleport people into an installation which has been constructed over a period of eight months. It represents nothing of architecture, fantasy, or surrealism; it's a space unlike anything in the real world. It's difficult to move through, a field of alien processes which has a life of its own. Sandy Baldwin and I will dance through and around it - on the ground, in the air, and on the ocean floor. Part of the dance will be based on learning to move around; part will be based on adding to the clutter."

To access the performance site read more on:
http://www.beam-me.net/news

Date of the performance: Wednesday, Feb 11
USA West Coast Time: 8 AM / US East Coast Time: 11 AM Europe MEZ/CET: 5 PM / GB: 4 PM Asia: Mumbai, Bangalore: 9.30 PM / Shanghai, Beijing: 12 PM / Tokio: 1 AM

---

on the project b e a m - m e - up:

Our understanding of space is changing for generations. In the digital age we use terms like Cyberspace, Globalization and World Wide Web, even though we have hardly understood the old electro-spaces like power supply systems, telephone and broadcasting. By means of audio-visual transportation we conquer new spaces, which present themselves as both picture space and space of action, place of signs and of real presences.

With the online project beam me up we invite artists and authors from different countries to concern themselves with space concepts in the form of art contributions and essays.

Artists (realised and promised contributions)

Angela Bulloch, London / Abhishek Hazra, Bangalore / Samuel Herzog, Zürich / Hu Jie Ming, Shanghai / Esther Hunziker, Basel / jodi.org, Dordrecht / Knowbotic Research, Zürich / Agnes Meyer-Brandis, Köln / Alan Sondheim, New York / Monica Studer & Christoph van den Berg, Basel / Carlo Zanni, Milano / Li Zhen Hua, Beijing / More artist's contributions will be uploaded during the coming months.

Curators / Authors

Sarah Cook, Newcastle / Estee Oarsed, Bangalore / Stefan Riekeles, Les Jardins des Pilotes, Berlin / Annette Schindler, Basel / Zhang Lansheng, Shanghai / NN. USA / Reinhard Storz, xcult.org (project director) / The guest curators are designated to each invite two to three artists and authors.)

Other scientific authors: Martin Brauen, NY / Christina Vagt, Berlin

--0-1838410342-1233923993=:15535--

↑ Index

95. Steve Halle

Kathleen Rooney and Elisa Gabbert @ Seven Corners

Fri 6 Feb 2009

Read three new collaborative poems by Kathleen Rooney and *Elisa Gabbert*at Seven Corners <http://sevencornerspoetry.blogspot.com/> (http://sevencornerspoetry.blogspot.com/).

Also, please scroll down for two recent collaborations by *Simone Muench*and William Allegrezza.

Best,
Steve Halle
editor

↑ Index

96. Chad Sweeney

Dear Friends: WritersCorps AWP Panel and Book Launch in Chicago, Sat. 12:00

Fri 6 Feb 2009

Dear Friends,

Iâ€™d like to invite you to our panel/book launch at AWP in Chicago. I am moderating a reading and book release at AWP Saturday, Feb 14, at 12:00 noon at the Hilton Chicago, in the Boulevard Room, 2nd Floor. City Lights has just printed a new book, which I compiled and edited over the past four years, â€œDays I Moved Through Ordinary Sounds,â€ w/ foreword by Martin Espada. The book celebrates 15 years of WritersCorps, a Peace Corps for writers who lead poetry workshops in detention facilities, homeless shelters, inner-city schools and centers for newly arrived immigrants. The anthology features the poetry, fiction, plays and memoirs of 50 writers in WritersCorps. Panel performers are renowned writers and former WritersCorps teachers Jeffrey McDaniel, Hoa Nguyen, Thomas Centolella, Maiana Minahal and Elissa Perry (all bios below). And me, moderator and editor Chad Sweeney.

Book and WritersCorps at these links . . . bios below.
http://www.citylights.com/book/?GCOI=87286100369180
http://www.sfartscommission.org/WC/

What: AWP Panel: A Book Release for â€œDays I Moved Through Ordinary Sounds,â€ Celebrating 15 Years of WritersCorps
When: Saturday, February 14, 2009, 12:00 to 1:15 pm
Where: Hilton Chicago, Boulevard Room, 2nd Floor
720 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago, IL 60605

As President Obama calls for the creation of an Artists Corps, the experiences and stories of the writer-teachers in this anthology are more relevant now than ever. â€œDays I Moved Through Ordinary Soundsâ€ documents 15 years of an amazingly successful experiment: asking accomplished writers to teach creative writing workshops in juvenile detention facilities, homeless shelters, inner-city schools and centers for newly arrived immigrants. Follow these teaching artists on their journey into the halls and streets of Americaâ€™s diverse neighborhoods, as they enrich the lives and creativity of their studentsâ€”and find their own voices changed in the process. With a foreword by Martin Espada, and edited by Chad Sweeney, a former WritersCorps teacher, â€œDaysâ€ is a collection of memoir, poetry and prose from many of the talented people who formed the ranks of WritersCorps. Join us for a reading from â€œDaysâ€ and a discussion on writers in service in Americaâ€™s cities. Readers for the event include Jeffrey McDaniel, Thomas Centolella, Maiana Minahal, Hoa Nguyen and Elissa Perry.

I hope to see you there,
Chad

Jeffrey McDaniel is the author of four poetry books: The Endarkenment (U. of Pittsburgh Press), and from Manic D Press, The Splinter Factory, The Forgiveness Parade, and Alibi School. His work has appeared widely, including in The Best American Poetry 1994 and Ploughshares. He teaches creative writing at Sarah Lawrence College.

Maiana Minahal is the author of Legend of Sondaya (Civil Defense Press, 2009) and several chapbooks, and was a lecturer and director of Poetry for the People at U.C. Berkeley. She was born in Manila, raised in Los Angeles, and now lives in the San Francisco Bay Area.

Thomas Centolella is the author of three books of poetry, all from Copper Canyon Press: Terra Firma, Lights & Mysteries, and Views from Along the Middle Way. His awards include the American Book Award, the National Poetry Series (selected by Denise Levertov), the California Book Award and the Bay Area Book Reviewers Award.

Hoa Nguyen was born in Saigon in the Year of the Fire Horse and raised in Washington D.C. She is the author of several collections of poetry, including Kiss a Bomb Tattoo and Red Juice, both from Effing Press, and Hecate Lochia (Hot Whiskey Press). She co-edits Skanky Possum and has been anthologized in

New American Poets (Talisman), Not for Mothers Only (Fence Books) and Black Dog, Black Night: Contemporary Vietnamese Poetry (Milkweed).

Elissa G. Perry is a writer, performer and activist of African and Choctaw descent. She has published several stories, interviews and other writing in places such as Black Silk, I Do I Donâ€™t, Beyond Definition, Clamour, Girlfriend Number One and Sinister Wisdom.

↑ Index

97. mIEKAL aND
Where are today's farmer poets?
Fri 6 Feb 2009

(Apparently the author of this article is looking for some answers...)

Where are today's farmer poets?

Farming has changed beyond all recognition since the days of 'poets of the land' Robert Burns and John Clare

http://www.guardian.co.uk/books/booksblog/2009/feb/05/farmer-poets-robert-burns

The recent Burns night celebrations reminded me that Scotland's most famous son was actually a farmer who wrote his best work at night in his but'n'ben after a day's hard toil in the soil.

Burns wasn't the first agriculturist to put pen to paper, but he did set a standard in poetry for self-taught writers describing the landscape from an embedded perspective. There's a great distinction between these poets, who, because their survival depends on it, have a far more intimate relationship with the land, and those who describe it while looking at it from their firesides on the other side of the window. Chief among the latter are the (largely classically educated) Romantics, who, though drawing inspiration from the landscape, romanticised it in a way a farmer never would. (Wordsworth at least had the gumption to recognise this gulf between romance and reality in The Leech-Gatherer).

Of the former, perhaps the best-known example after Burns is John Clare, a farm-labourer by profession who, though patronised at various points in his life, had no choice but to keep returning to work the land. Clare's work, though celebrated for displaying an understanding of the metaphysical on a par with his more acclaimed academic contemporaries, captured the small details of farming life with a lack of sentimentality that would have been impossible had he spent his formative years at, say, Eton, rather than in the Northamptonshire fields. (Ironically, Clare found it hard to commune with many of his farming neighbours, who viewed him with suspicion, writing "they hardly dare talk in my company for fear I should mention them in my writings and I find more pleasure in wandering the fields than in musing among my silent neighbours who are insensible to everything but toiling and talking of it".)

Another fine example of a body of nature poetry that could only have been written by a man of the land is that of Patrick Kavanagh, who spent 20 years living the farming life – a life which informed his 1936 debut The Ploughman and Other Poems and indeed his more famous later works, The Great Hunger and his novel Tarry Flynn (and which later, incidentally, led Brendan Behan to dismiss him as a backwoods yokel).

Such writers were a far cry from the world of academia and the literary high society – closed-off worlds to most cow-milking, kale-growing, dung-shovelling poets of yesteryear (though more recently Seamus Heaney, whose father was a farmer and cattle-dealer, has made the leap).

All of which begs the question: who are the true British poets of the land today? Well, I don't actually know, but was hoping you might be able to tell me. With farming changed beyond all recognition since the crofting days of Robert Burns, is the best emerging agricultural-inspired poetry more likely to come from small-holdings and organic farms and the emerging conservation and ecology movements? Does the new poetry reflect our changing understanding of farming and the land around us? I'd welcome any recommendations.

↑ Index

98. Kyle Schlesinger

Yedda Morrison & Richard Owens | Poetry Project | 02.09.09

Fri 6 Feb 2009

Yedda Morrison & Richard Owens
Poetry Project
Monday, February 9, 2009 @ 8 PM

Born and raised in the San Francisco Bay Area, Montreal-based writer and visual artist Yedda Morrison joins us to celebrate the publication of Girl Scout Nation (Displaced Press, 2008). Her other books include My Pocket Park (Dusie Press, 2007) and Crop (Kelsey Street Press, 2003). Morrison has exhibited her visual work in the United States and Canada, and is represented by Republic Gallery in Vancouver, BC. She is currently working on a mixed-media project entitled How Flora Became an Ornament.

Richard Owens: Born Perth Amboy General Hospital, New Jersey in 1973. Dislocated at Sussex County Vocational Technical School and William Paterson College. US Army 1997 2001 (medic). Assigned three and a half years to post in Waegwan, south Korea, with intervening trips to Hong Kong, Thailand, Laos, Cambodia and brief jump to visit Cid Corman in Kyoto. Unemployment and odd industrial jobs. Further dislocated at Carmela Soprano's alma mater Montclair State University. Farmworker advocate in black dirt region of Orange County, New York. Presently relocating through the University at Buffalo. Poetry, essays and reviews variously published online and in little magazines. Editor: Punch Press and Damn the Caesars.

The Poetry Project is located at St. Mark's Church-in-the-Bowery
131 East 10th Street at Second Avenue
New York City 10003
Trains: 6, F, N, R, and L.
[redacted]
www.poetryproject.com

Admission is $8, $7 for students/seniors and $5 for members (though now those who take out a membership at $95 or higher will get in FREE to all regular readings).

We are wheelchair accessible with assistance and advance notice. For more info call [redacted].

↑ Index

99. steve russell

Re: Where are today's farmer poets?

Fri 6 Feb 2009

Ted Hughes was close to nature's natural brutality. He knew coal mining as well as D H Lawrence. Maybe not a farmer poet in the manner of Wendell Berry, but a hands dirty sort of poet, sophisticated without being dry and academic.

--- On Fri, 2/6/09, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]> wrote:
From: mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
Subject: Where are today's farmer poets?
To: [redacted]
Date: Friday, February 6, 2009, 12:14 PM

(Apparently the author of this article is looking for some answers...)

Where are today's farmer poets?

Farming has changed beyond all recognition since the days of 'poets of the land' Robert Burns and John Clare

http://www.guardian.co.uk/books/booksblog/2009/feb/05/farmer-poets-robert-burns

The recent Burns night celebrations reminded me that Scotland's most famous son was actually a farmer who wrote his best work at night in his but'n'ben after a day's hard toil in the soil.

Burns wasn't the first agriculturist to put pen to paper, but he did set a standard in poetry for self-taught writers describing the landscape from an embedded perspective. There's a great distinction between these poets, who, because their survival depends on it, have a far more intimate relationship with the land, and those who describe it while looking at it from their firesides on the other side of the window. Chief among the latter are the (largely classically educated) Romantics, who, though drawing inspiration from the landscape, romanticised it in a way a farmer never would. (Wordsworth at least had the gumption to recognise this gulf between romance and reality in The Leech-Gatherer).

Of the former, perhaps the best-known example after Burns is John Clare, a farm-labourer by profession who, though patronised at various points in his life, had no choice but to keep returning to work the land. Clare's work, though celebrated for displaying an understanding of the metaphysical on a par with his more acclaimed academic contemporaries, captured the small details of farming life with a lack of sentimentality that would have been impossible had he spent his formative years at, say, Eton, rather than in the Northamptonshire fields. (Ironically, Clare found it hard to commune with many of his farming neighbours, who viewed him with suspicion, writing "they hardly dare talk in my company for fear I should mention them in my writings and I find more pleasure in wandering the fields than in musing among my silent neighbours who are insensible to everything but toiling and talking of it".)

Another fine example of a body of nature poetry that could only have been written by a man of the land is that of Patrick Kavanagh, who spent 20 years living the farming life – a life which informed his 1936 debut The Ploughman and Other Poems and indeed his more famous later works, The Great Hunger and his novel Tarry Flynn (and which later, incidentally, led Brendan Behan to dismiss him as a backwoods yokel).

Such writers were a far cry from the world of academia and the literary high society – closed-off worlds to most cow-milking, kale-growing, dung-shovelling poets of yesteryear (though more recently Seamus Heaney, whose father was a farmer and cattle-dealer, has made the leap).

All of which begs the question: who are the true British poets of the land today? Well, I don't actually know, but was hoping you might be able to tell me. With farming changed beyond all recognition since the crofting days of Robert Burns, is the best emerging agricultural-inspired poetry more likely to come from small-holdings and organic farms and the emerging conservation and ecology movements? Does the new poetry reflect our changing understanding of farming and the land around us? I'd welcome any recommendations.

↑ Index

100. Angeline, Mary
Re: this is not poetry II
Fri 6 Feb 2009

Amazing work. Fluid. Lyric. Enchantingly Bewitching. Bravo & Thank you

_____

From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) on behalf of Peter Ciccariello Sent: Thu 2/5/2009 9:36 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: this is not poetry II

this is not poetry II <http://ciccariello.viewbook.com/not#/1/>

- Peter Cicariello
http://invisiblenotes.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

101. George Bowering
Re: Globish
Sat 7 Feb 2009

But it starts from one direction.

gb

On Feb 6, 2009, at 4:32 AM, Troy Camplin wrote:

> I agree. But courtesy works both ways.
>
> Troy
>
> _____
> From: George Bowering <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Wednesday, February 4, 2009 8:06:26 PM
> Subject: Re: Globish
>
> Why not try to be courteous?
> Courtesy doesn't hurt.
>
> gb

On Feb 4, 2009, at 2:11 PM, Troy Camplin wrote:

I've never found you particularly pleasant in the way you argue.

But I wasn't even talking to you. You just decided to jump in to throw in your own divisive words. Those of us who were having this discussion have done quite fine without this noncontrabution. For example, I now have quite a reading list. No thanks to you or this post.

I nave noticed that despite the fact that you cannot give a single specific instance of my saying anything racist, you keep accusing me of it. All such accusations are are shortcuts to thinking and are designed to sidetrack arguments away from the issues. QUite frankly, your accusations remind me of those homophobes who think everyone else is gay and who openly, vociferously condemn homosexuals and perceived homosexuals every chance they get. Methinks you doth protest too much. Those who go around accusing everyone under the sun of racism are themselves the biggest racists, feel guilty about it, and, not wanting to feel guilty, project their feelings onto others, accusing those others of what they themselves are. SO please keep your racism and accusations of racism to yourself.

Troy Camplin

From: amy king <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, February 4, 2009 3:52:19 PM
Subject: Re: Globish

Troy,

*In your take on things, you are always the one who is misunderstood, noble, and well intentioned -- as opposed to everyone you respond to. You, who insist on labeling and characterizing everyone at every turn, "postmodern" being your most common accusation/insult. And the regular citing of your "Mexican American" "minority" wife as if she were the elixir against any possible racist sentiment you may have learned and be unaware of in your own ideas on life and literature... You refuse to even consider that possibility, consistently and adamantly, because everyone else is this label or that label you deem demeaning enough for them and elevating enough for yourself. You*

"criticize out of love"? Funny that. If yours is not one of the most divisive ways to go about discussion, I'll eat my shorts.

Be well,
Amy

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

--- On Wed, 2/4/09, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Globish
To: [redacted]
Date: Wednesday, February 4, 2009, 4:40 PM

You shouldn't be throwing around terms like "vulgar caricature" considering your own vulgar caricature of Frederick Turner. You might consider broadening your education to include his writing, especially "Natural Classicism," "The Culture of Hope" and "Natural Religion." His desire for a world community, including a world community of letters, is also mine. Turner's a natural classicist, meaning he writes the way he writes is based on the historical-cultural nature of poetry. For example, he has done research showing that poems around the world, throughout history, throughout cultures, regardless of language, are broken up into lines, and that those lines are 3-5 seconds lone -- the same length as our short term memory slot, and our auditory present. This is a common feature of poetry and songs. Excepting the postmodern poems dominant among educated elites.

As for my posting on health and the holy, it was a work that argued that we should have a truly inclusive world view. We should understand each other through both our differences and our commonalities. The postmodern emphasis on differences is deeply rooted in racism, sexism, etc. that have divided human beings for much too long. It is time we rejected such a divisive world view and learned to love each other for our commonalities as well as celebrate our differences. Both simultaneously. Unity in variety and variety in unity.

My own more recent work draws from Japanese Noh plays, ancient Greek tragedies
(a truly foreign culture, if you truly understand it), and Kalidasa -- as well as Shakespeare and Tom Stoppard, among others.

I myself am a literary Francophile, and I criticize out of love for the literature. I don't detect the same motives from you.

Troy Camplin

From: Christopher Leland Winks <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, February 4, 2009 11:50:05 AM
Subject: Re: Globish

Even the notion of French academics "hanging over" people
"telling them their French isn't French enough" is a vulgar caricature. Leopold Senghor was a member of the French Academy, and Assia
Djebar presently is, and neither was/is an "academic" properly speaking, nor inclined to police the language (read their work).
And no, my friend, your postings, with their strength-through-joy (or was that holiness-through-health?), free-market idolatry, extolling of the soporific Frederick Turner and the Few Normalism, I mean New Formalism (not he of the manifest destiny, though he might as well be), in fact have shown any indication of any interest at all in non-whites. I understand that this is only an example of the provincialism that besets North American letters as a whole, and as such is more a sin of omission than commission. All the writers you mention are > worthy -- I hope you take Lovelace's humanism to heart.

>
> And by the way, I think all troops everywhere should be demobilized and sent > home. Everywhere. Disband all the armies.
>
> guidelines
>
> guidelines
>
> welcome.html
>
> welcome.html
>
> George Z. Bowering
> Master of Arghs.
>
> welcome.html
>
> welcome.html

G. Harry Bowering, OC
Never appreciated Jo Stafford.

↑ Index

102. David Giannini
Re: Where are today's farmer poets?
Sat 7 Feb 2009

Many of them are within the Origin anthology from Bob Arnold at his website for Longhouse Books, www.longhousepoetry.com, and in fact one can point to a neglected subculture of many poets who work or have worked the land and live with it, often laboring, etc. Not least of these poets is Arnold himself, carpenter and stone mason who is also Cid Corman's and Lorine Niedecker's literary executor, etc. Anti-academic, for sure, in fact the antidote in a time when quiet and so-called Quietude are merely mocked and disrespected by people who often live too high up in their noggins and praise the cerebral cortex as poetry--talk about "Nature Deficit Disorder"! And by the way, ever buy a book from Arnold's astonishing catalog of poetry, etc.? His prices are among the best anywhere. So is his service.

----- Original Message -----
From: "steve russell" <[redacted]>
To: <[redacted]>
Sent: Friday, February 06, 2009 10:11 PM
Subject: Re: Where are today's farmer poets?

Ted Hughes was close to nature's natural brutality. He knew coal mining as well as D H Lawrence. Maybe not a farmer poet in the manner of Wendell Berry, but a hands dirty sort of poet, sophisticated without being dry and academic.

--- On Fri, 2/6/09, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]> wrote:
From: mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
Subject: Where are today's farmer poets?
To: [redacted]
Date: Friday, February 6, 2009, 12:14 PM

(Apparently the author of this article is looking for some answers...)

Where are today's farmer poets?

Farming has changed beyond all recognition since the days of 'poets of the land' Robert Burns and John Clare

http://www.guardian.co.uk/books/booksblog/2009/feb/05/farmer-poets-robert-burns

The recent Burns night celebrations reminded me that Scotland's most famous son was actually a farmer who wrote his best work at night in his but'n'ben after a day's hard toil in the soil.

Burns wasn't the first agriculturist to put pen to paper, but he did set a standard in poetry for self-taught writers describing the landscape from an embedded perspective. There's a great distinction between these poets, who, because their survival depends on it, have a far more intimate relationship with the land, and those who describe it while looking at it from their firesides on the other side of the window. Chief among the latter are the (largely classically educated) Romantics, who, though drawing inspiration from the landscape, romanticised it in a way a farmer never would. (Wordsworth at least had the gumption to recognise this gulf between romance and reality in The Leech-Gatherer).

Of the former, perhaps the best-known example after Burns is John Clare, a farm-labourer by profession who, though patronised at various points in his life, had no choice but to keep returning to work the land. Clare's work, though celebrated for displaying an understanding of the metaphysical on a par with his more acclaimed academic contemporaries, captured the small details of farming life with a lack of sentimentality that would have been impossible had he spent his formative years at, say, Eton, rather than in the Northamptonshire fields. (Ironically, Clare found it hard to commune with many of his farming neighbours, who viewed him with suspicion, writing "they hardly dare talk in my company for fear I should mention them in my writings and I find more pleasure in wandering the fields than in musing among my silent neighbours who are insensible to everything but toiling and talking of it".)

Another fine example of a body of nature poetry that could only have been written by a man of the land is that of Patrick Kavanagh, who spent 20 years living the farming life – a life which informed his 1936 debut The Ploughman and Other Poems and indeed his more famous later works, The Great Hunger and his novel Tarry Flynn (and which later, incidentally, led Brendan Behan to dismiss him as a backwoods yokel).

Such writers were a far cry from the world of academia and the literary high society – closed-off worlds to most cow-milking, kale-growing, dung-shovelling poets of yesteryear (though more recently Seamus Heaney, whose father was a farmer and cattle-dealer, has made the leap).

All of which begs the question: who are the true British poets of the land today? Well, I don't actually know, but was hoping you might be able to tell me. With farming changed beyond all recognition since the crofting days of Robert Burns, is the best emerging agricultural-inspired poetry more likely to come from small-holdings and organic farms and the emerging conservation and ecology movements? Does the new poetry reflect our changing understanding of farming and the land around us? I'd welcome any recommendations.

↑ Index

103. Troy Camplin
Emerson Institute
Sat 7 Feb 2009

The Emerson Institute for Freedom and Culture is featuring new essays, poems, a play, and a review atwww.emersoninstitute.org

We are always welcoming new work in/on:

fiction
poetry visual art interdisciplinary scholarship culture and society plays & scripts songs & music philosophy & religion economics science book reviews

