    Tuesday, April 14, 2009, 4pm
    Homer Babbidge Library
    Univ. of Connecticut, Storrs, Connecticut
    Sponsored by Archives and Special Collections, Thomas J. Dodd Research Center, Univ. of Connecticut Libraries
    A special viewing of manuscripts from the Charles Olson Papers will follow the talk.

2. Lecture/Talk by Charles Alexander in the "Threads" series, on the aesthetics of the contemporary small press
    6:30pm Thursday, April 16, 2009
    Granary Books, 168 Mercer Street, 2nd floor, New York City

This talk is for R.S.V.P. seating only, and is most likely filled.
Contact [redacted]
This talk, like others in the Threads series, will be recorded before a small studio audience and made available later for public listening on PennSound. Eventually the series will be collected and published in book form.

3. Poetry Reading, Segue Series, Charles Alexander with Akilah Oliver 4pm Saturday, April 18, 2009
at the Bowery Poetry Club
308 Bowery, just north of Houston, New York City
$6 admission goes to support the readers.

4. POET-PUBLISHERS: A CONTEMPORARY SMALL PRESS SYMPOSIUM with Charles Alexander, Brenda Iijima, Jay MillAr, Anna Moschovakis, Rich Owens, Andrew Rippeon, and Kyle Schlesinger SUNY Buffalo Poetics Program: Poetics Plus

Sunday, April 19, 8:00 pm, poetry readings by MillAr, Moschovakis, Owens, & Schlesinger
Karpeles Manuscript Museum, 453 Porter Ave., Buffalo, NY

Monday, April 20, 10:00am-5:00pm, panels and Keynote address by Charles Alexander
Poetry Collection SUNY Buffalo Library, 420 Capen Hall, Buffalo, NY

Monday, April 20, 8:00pm, poetry readings by Charles Alexander, Brenda Iijima, and Andrew Rippeon
Karpeles Manuscript Museum, 53 Porter Ave., Buffalo, NY

charles alexander
chax press
[redacted]
411 N 7th ave, suite 103
tucson arizona 85705
[redacted]

↑ Index

101. Mark Weiss

Re: is it asking too much of Ashberry?

Sun 12 Apr 2009

I'll second that.

And it wouldn't, in any event, hurt to cut him a little slack. He's in his eighties, when folks tend to be less focused on the daily news.

Mark

At 04:58 PM 4/10/2009, you wrote:
>Smith wrote like Ashbery one afternoon in 1987, but then thought better of it
>--Â
>maybe it's me, but I always found Ashbery a worldly poet, and he seemed to me >to be addressing the social on nearly every page -- TENNIS COURT OATH anyone?
>
>On Thu, Apr 9, 2009 09:41 PM, Mark DuCharme <[redacted]> wrote:
> >
>Isn't there a poet named Jon Ashberrry who does just that? I think he's the > >author of The Days of The Houseboat, if memory serves....
> >
> >All joking aside, how does a poet or artist do > something just once which is > >so different from a body of work over 50 years > in the making? Are you really > >asking for this poet, whose name is Ashbery incidentally, to suddenly turn > >around & write like Rod Smith? That strikes me as just about as silly as > >expecting Smith to write like Ashbery.
> >
> >Mark DuCharme
> >
> >
> >
> >> Date: Thu, 9 Apr 2009 17:28:29 -0700
> >> From: [redacted]
> >> Subject: Re: is it asking too much of Ashberry?
> >> To: [redacted]
> >>
> >> Isn't his name Smmith?
> >>

> >>
> >> On Apr 9, 2009, at 7:52 AM, steve russell wrote:
> >>
> >> > maybe it's asking too much, but if Ashberry could adopt a more > >> > worldy sensibility, and address something social,just once, in the > >> > manner of, say, Rod Smith: here's a prose poem from "Deed," > >Smith's > >> > latest -- (line breaks not exact, but still reads well)--
> >> >
> >> > Ted's Head
> >> >
> >> > So there's this episode of Mary Tyler Moore where Ted's trying to > >> > get a raise & after finagling and shenaniganizing he puts one > >over > >> > on Lou & gets his contract changed to non-exclusive sos he can do > >> > commercials which is not cool w/Lou & the gang because Ted's > >just > >> > a brainless gimp & it hurts the image of the news to have the > >> > anchorman selling tomato slicers & dogfood so Lou gets despondent
> >
> >
> >> > because the contract can't be rescinded but then he gets mad & > >> > calls Ted into his office & says, "You're going to stop > >doing > >> > commercials, Ted" & Ted says "why would I do that > >Lou?" & Lou says
> >> > "Because if you don't I'll punch your face out" & Ted > >says "I'll > >> > have you arrested" & Lou says "It'll be too late, your > >face will be > >> > broken, you're not gonna get too many commercials with a broken > >> > face now are you Ted?" & Ted buckles under to force & > >everybody's > >> > happy, except Ted but he's so dumb nobody cares & everybody loves
> >
> >> > it that Lou's not despondent anymore he's back to his > >> > brustling chubby loud loveable whiskey-drinking football-loving > >> > ways. Now imagine if Ted were Lou, if Ted were the boss. You know > >> > how incredibly fucking brainless Ted is, but let's imagine he > >> > understands & is will to use force. That's the situation we're > >now
> >> > in as Americans.

> >> >
> >> >
> >> >
> >> >
> >> >
> >> >
> >> > welcome.html
> >> >
> >>
> >> Bowering, George H.
> >> A relatively untravelled Canadian writer.
> >>
> >>
> >
> >_____
> >Rediscover HotmailÂ®: Now available on your iPhone or BlackBerry
> >http://windowslive.com/RediscoverHotmail?ocid=T
> XT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Rediscover_Mobile1_042009
> >
> >
> >
>
><<<

↑ Index

102. Halvard Johnson
Re: is it asking too much of Ashberry?
Sun 12 Apr 2009

Addressing issues! What an idea! Undressing them would be more to the point.

Hal

"There is poetry in everything. That is the biggest argument against poetry."
--Miroslav Holub

Halvard Johnson
==========
[redacted]
http://sites.google.com/site/halvardjohnson/Home
http://entropyandme.blogspot.com
http://imageswithoutwords.blogspot.com
http://www.hamiltonstone.org

On Fri, Apr 10, 2009 at 5:19 PM, steve russell <[redacted]>wrote:

> I'm simply wish the guy (Ashberrrrrry) would leave his comfort zone, and stretch his sensibility, not so much write like Rod Smith (I stated all that rather poorly), but attempt to address issues outside the world of art and the inner gymnastics of his private horizon (hope the last phrase made sense). Maybe he could try something vulgar such as reading the newspaper once in awhile and address something contemporary. Major poets used to do that sort of thing. Yeats/Eliot/Pound, although the later 2, admittedly, were flacky, still, they were involved in, ugh, worldy issues. In some ways, Ashbery strikes me as a daffy, new age kind of Rilke, which ain't bad, and the guy is enormously gifted, but I think he could do more with his gifts.
>
> --- On Thu, 4/9/09, Mark DuCharme <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> From: Mark DuCharme <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: is it asking too much of Ashberry?
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Thursday, April 9, 2009, 9:41 PM
> Isn't there a poet named Jon Ashberrry who does just that? I think he's the author of The Days of The Houseboat, if memory serves....
>
> *All joking aside, how does a poet or artist do something just once which is so different from a body of work over*

50 years in the making? Are you really asking for this poet, whose name is Ashbery incidentally, to suddenly turn around & write like Rod Smith? That strikes me as just about as silly as expecting Smith to write like Ashbery.

Mark DuCharme

Date: Thu, 9 Apr 2009 17:28:29 -0700
From: [redacted]
Subject: Re: is it asking too much of Ashberry?
To: [redacted]

Isn't his name Smmith?

On Apr 9, 2009, at 7:52 AM, steve russell wrote:

maybe it's asking too much, but if Ashberry could adopt a more worldy sensibility, and address something social,just once, in the manner of, say, Rod Smith: here's a prose poem from "Deed," Smith's latest -- (line breaks not exact, but still reads well)--

Ted's Head

So there's this episode of Mary Tyler Moore where Ted's trying to get a raise & after finagling and shenaniganizing he puts one over on Lou & gets his contract changed to non-exclusive sos he can do commercials which is not cool w/Lou & the gang because Ted's just a brainless gimp & it hurts the image of the news to have the anchorman selling tomato slicers & dogfood so Lou gets despondent because the contract can't be rescinded but then he gets mad & calls Ted into his office & says,
"You're going to stop doing commercials, Ted" & Ted says "why would I do that Lou?" & Lou says

"Because if you don't I'll punch your face out" & Ted says "I'll have you arrested" & Lou says
"It'll be too late, your face will be broken, you're not gonna get too many commercials with a broken face now are you Ted?" & Ted buckles under to force & everybody's happy, except Ted but he's so dumb nobody cares & everybody loves it that Lou's not despondent anymore he's back to his brustling chubby loud loveable whiskey-drinking football-loving ways. Now imagine if Ted were Lou, if Ted were the boss. You know how incredibly fucking brainless Ted is, but let's imagine he understands & is will to use force.
That's the situation we're now
in as Americans.

accept all posts. Check
http://epc.buffalo.edu/poetics/
welcome.html

Bowering, George H.
A relatively untravelled Canadian writer.

Rediscover Hotmail®: Now available on your iPhone or BlackBerry

http://windowslive.com/RediscoverHotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Rediscover_Mobile1_042009

↑ Index

103. amy king

Jennifer Burch, Heather Green, Chris Hosea, Sueyeun Juliette Lee, Daniel Lin, Barry Schwabsky

Sun 12 Apr 2009

The Stain
of Poetry:Â A Reading Series presents

Â

The Stain
of Poetry:Â A Reading Series presents

Â

April
24th @ 7 PM - Stain Bar - Williamsburg, Brooklyn

Â

Jennifer
Burch, Heather Green, Chris Hosea, Sueyeun Juliette Lee, Daniel Lin, Barry Schwabsky

Â

~~~

Â

Jennifer
Burch holds a B.A. in Fine Art from Amherst College and an M.A. in Literature from the University of Kent in Canterbury, England. Her first book, No Matter, was released by The Winged Way (September 2008). Jennifer has published work in Article, Free Verse, Guernica,
Left Facing Bird, Sal Mimeo, and Verse, and is included in Green Integerâ€™s forthcoming anthology, The Gertrude Stein Awards. Jennifer lives in Brooklyn, New York, where she writes and teaches yoga.

Â

~~~

Â

Heather
Greenâ€™s work has appeared in Barrow
Street, DIAGRAM, The Hat, Lungfull!, Pebble Lake
Review, Tarpaulin Sky, and other journals. Sheâ€™s the author of the chapbook The Match Array (Dancing Girl Press, 2008) and lives in Boston.

Â

~~~

Â

Â

Chris Hoseaâ€™s poems appear in VOLT, Swerve, Denver Quarterly, Article, Harvard Review, Iowa Review, and The Literary Review. With Cecily Iddings, he edits The Blue Letter, a free direct-mail poetry newsletter. He works at the Marymount School and lives in Brooklyn.

Â

~~~

Â

Â

Sueyeun Juliette Lee edits Corollary Press, a chapbook series devoted to new work by writers of color. Recent work has appeared in Effing, One Less, and online at critiphoria.org. Her chapbooks include Mental Commitment Robots (yo yo labs), Perfect Villagers (Octopus Books) and Trespass Slightly In (Coconut). Her first full-length collection, That Gorgeous Feeling, is out from Coconut Books. She currently lives in Philadelphia.

Â

~~~

Â

Â

Daniel Lin has a chapbook, TINDER, from Nightboat Books (2004), and has recently published poems in Unsplendid and The Jewish Quarterly. He was a N.Y. Times Fellow at NYU and a Tennessee Williams Scholar at Sewanee Writersâ€™ Conference.

Â

~~~

Â

Barry Schwabsky is an American poet and art critic living in London. His new collection of poems, Book Left Open in the Rain, is published imminently by Black Square Editions and is available from Small press Distribution. He writes reguarly for The Nation and Artforum (where he also co-edits the international reviews section), among others. He is the author of Opera: Poems 1981-2002 (Meritage Press) and The Widening Circle: Consequences of Modernism in Contemporary Art (Cambridge University Press) as well as several chapbooks of poetry and contributions to dozens of books and exhibition catalogues on contemporary and modern art.

Â

~~~

Â

Hosted by Amy King and Ana BoÅ¾iÄeviÄ‡

Â

Â

stain bar

766 grand street

brooklyn, ny 11211

(L train
to Grand Street,
1 block west)

Â

Â

SITE:Â http://stainofpoetry.com

VIDEO:Â http://stainofpoetry.wordpress.com/video/

Â

--

Â

Amy's
Alias

http://amyking.org/
~~~

Â

↑ Index

104. Michael Heller
TALISMAN BOOK PARTY, APRIL 22nd
Sun 12 Apr 2009

> Talisman House, Publishers, requests > the honor of your presence > at a celebration > for new, wonderful books
>
> Donna de la PerriÃ¨re, True Crime
> Joseph Donahue, Terra Lucida
> Carmen Firan, Words and Flesh
> Michael Heller, Eschaton
> Timothy Liu, Bending the Mind
> Around the Dreamâ€™s Blown Fuse
> Simon Pettet, Hearth
> Andrew Zawacki, Petals of Zero Petals of One
>
> Readings and book signings by the authors
> Good food and book joy
>
> Wednesday, 22 April 2009, 6-9 pm
>
> Ceres Gallery
> 547 West 27th Street, Suite 201
> New York, NY 10001

Eschaton (new poems) Talisman House Publishers (2009) available at SPD, Greenfield Distribution (www.gfibooks.com), www. amazon.com and good bookstores. Two Novellas: Marble Snows & The Study (ahadada press 2009) available from SPD, amazon.com and from ahadadpress.com. Speaking The Estranged: Essays on the Work of George Oppen (2008); Uncertain Poetries: Essays on Poets, Poetry and Poetics (2005) and Exigent Futures: New and Selected Poems (2003) available at www.saltpublishing.com, amazon.com and good bookstores. Survey of work at http://www.thing.net/~grist/ld/heller.htm Collaborations with the composer Ellen Fishman Johnson at

http://www.efjcomposer.com/EFJ/Collaborations.html
Recordings at http://writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/Heller.html

↑ Index

105. Jesse Glass
Re: Christopher Smart born 287 years ago today
Sun 12 Apr 2009

For my talent is to give an impression upon words by punching, that when the reader casts his eye upon 'em, he takes up the image from the mould which I have made.

On 4/11/2009, "Gabriel Gudding" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Happy Birthday to our perpetual nephew Christopher Smart, April 11 1722.
>
> Let the Levites of the Lord take the Beavers of the brook alive into the
>
> Ark of the Testimony.

↑ Index

106. blacksox
Re: is it asking too much of Ashberry?
Sun 12 Apr 2009

The most amazing thing about Ashbery is his appeal. I know there are some on this list that view popularity as being a sell out. Ashbery never compromised the integrity of his art. Yet, if you are lucky enough to hear him read, seventeen year olds and octogenarians all join in and recite his work word for word.

His work addresses polital issues by means of immersion

That speaks volumes

Peace
Russ

↑ Index

107. Jim Andrews
Sound Seeker by David Jhave Johnston
Sun 12 Apr 2009

SOUND SEEKER
David Jhave Johnston (Canada)
http://vispo.com/jhave

Sound Seeker is a "code-synch beat-match jump-edit txt-tool" written in Actionscript. Jhave says Sound Seeker is "an online real-time beat-synchronized poem animator. Sound drives the rhythm of the words: their speed and style of display can be controlled." The homepage shows twelve experimental video poems produced by Jhave with Sound Seeker. Access the underlying interactive Flash app in the "Method" section. In the "Motivation" section, Jhave discusses remarks by Rudolph Arnheim concerning intermedia. A fascinating poetry, programming, video, audio, 3D animation, and theory/poetics project--and the writing is very lively on its own. A significant project in digital poetry of considerable achievement.

You can see more of what Jhave is doing on his site at http://glia.ca

ja

↑ Index

108. David Kirschenbaum
Boog City Staff Updates
Mon 13 Apr 2009

Hi all,

A quick note to announce some new staffers here at Boog City.

Effective this past issue, Paolo Javier has gone from co- to sole printed matter editor. Paolo recently completed a full-length play, Lunatic, and is working on the original brown boy, a long poetry comic with artist Ernest Concepcion. He lives in Queens. You can query him to [redacted] about writing reviews or sending in publications for possible review.

Joanna Fuhrman is now the poetry editor, effective with the forthcoming Boog City 56. She is the author of three books of poetry published by Hanging Loose Press, most recently Moraine. Her collection Pageant is forthcoming from Alice James Books later this year. She teaches poetry in predictable and unexpected places. You can email her poetry subs to [redacted], with no more than five poems, all in one attached file with “My Name Submission” in the subject line and as the name of the file, ie: Walt Whitman Submission. Or mail with an SASE to Joanna Fuhrman, Poetry editor, Boog City, 330 W. 28th St., Suite 6H, N.Y., N.Y. 10001-4754.

And with issue 57, Cora Lambert will be taking over as art editor. Cora is an artist, curator, and community activist who received a B.F.A from the School of Visual Arts in 2007. She has worked with the Leslie/Lohman Gay Arts Foundation, Umbrage Editions, and is currently curating a quarterly art show called the Think Gallery Affordable Art Series. Cora lives and works in New York where she continues to build community through art education. You can query her to [redacted] about possibly having your art featured in Boog City.

Much thanks to our outgoing staffers, co-printed matter editor Mark Lamoureux, co-poetry editors Julia Cohen and Mathias Svalina, and art editor Brenda Iijima. Their time, effort, and dedication to Boog City was much appreciated and will be missed.

as ever,
David

--
David A. Kirschenbaum, editor and publisher
Boog City
330 W. 28th St., Suite 6H
NY, NY 10001-4754
For event and publication information:
http://welcometoboogcity.com/
T: (212) 842-BOOG (2664)

↑ Index

109. Tim Peterson
SEGUE 4/17/09: Akilah Oliver and Charles Alexander
Mon 13 Apr 2009

---

The Segue Reading Series presents: AKILAH OLIVER & CHARLES ALEXANDER
*Saturday, April 17, 2009  4PM SHARP
at the Bowery Poetry Club (308 Bowery, just north of Houston)
$6 admission goes to support the readers

hosted by Kristen Gallagher & Tim Peterson

Charles Alexander is a Tucson-based poet, publisher, and book artist. He is the director and editor-in-chief of Chax Press. Alexander's recent books of poetry include Pushing Water: parts one through six (Standing Stones Press, 1998), near or random acts (Singing Horse Press, 2004), and Certain Slants (Junction Press, 2007).

Akilah Oliver is the author of a new book A Toast in the House of Friends(Coffee House Press, 2008), and also the she said dialogues: flesh memory (Smokeproof/Erudite Fangs, 1999). She currently makes her home in Brooklyn, NY.

↑ Index

110. Tim Peterson

CORRECTION: SEGUE 4/18/09: Akilah Oliver and Charles Alexander

Mon 13 Apr 2009

OOPS I got Friday and Saturday mixed up. Akilah and Charles are reading on Saturday the 18th, not Friday the 17th.

I'll send another reminder later in the week.

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Tim Peterson <[redacted]>
Date: Mon, Apr 13, 2009 at 1:30 AM
Subject: SEGUE 4/17/09: Akilah Oliver and Charles Alexander
To: Tim Peterson <[redacted]>

*The Segue Reading Series presents:
AKILAH OLIVER & CHARLES ALEXANDER*
*Saturday, April 17, 2009  4PM SHARP
at the Bowery Poetry Club (308 Bowery, just north of Houston)
$6 admission goes to support the readers

hosted by Kristen Gallagher & Tim Peterson

Charles Alexander is a Tucson-based poet, publisher, and book artist. He is the director and editor-in-chief of Chax Press. Alexander’s recent books of poetry include Pushing Water: parts one through six (Standing Stones Press, 1998), near or random acts (Singing Horse Press, 2004), and Certain Slants (Junction Press, 2007).

Akilah Oliver is the author of a new book A Toast in the House of Friends(Coffee House Press, 2008), and also the she said dialogues: flesh memory (Smokeproof/Erudite Fangs, 1999). She currently makes her home in Brooklyn, NY.

↑ Index

111. Joshua Kotin
 J.H. Prynne & Keston Sutherland in Chicago ***
Mon 13 Apr 2009

This week in Chicago:

 April 14 ***

J.H. Prynne will be delivering a lecture entitled "Mental Ears and Poetic Work."

The lecture begins at 5:30 PM in Social Sciences 122 at the University of Chicago.

 April 15 ***

William Fuller, J.H. Prynne, & Keston Sutherland will read their poems.

The reading begins at 5 pm at the Joan Flasch Artists' Books Collection, 37 S. Wabash Ave, 5th floor.

http://www.saic.edu/degrees_resources/departments/writing/index.html#news_events [scroll down]

 April 16 ***

J.H. Prynne & Keston Sutherland will read their poems.

The reading begins at 5:30 PM in Social Sciences 122 at the University of Chicago.

* * * * * *

For more information about the U of C events, please visit, http://poetics.uchicago.edu/events.html .

Details and event-specific announcements to follow, but mark your calendars now!

All events are free.

↑ Index

112. steve russell
Re: is it asking too much of Ashberry?
Mon 13 Apr 2009

---

he's clearly a major talent, enormously gifted. But do poets get to retire, or put their talents on auto/pilot? I'm thinking of the work Ashbery has published in the last decade. Yeats wrote some of his best work in his later years. & Bloom, I believe, has placed Ashbery in THAT league, with the likes of Neruda, Rilke and Yeats...

--- On Sun, 4/12/09, Mark Weiss <[redacted]> wrote:

From: Mark Weiss <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: is it asking too much of Ashberry?
To: [redacted]
Date: Sunday, April 12, 2009, 1:18 PM
I'll second that.

And it wouldn't, in any event, hurt to cut him a little slack. He's in his eighties, when folks tend to be less focused on the daily news.

Mark

At 04:58 PM 4/10/2009, you wrote: Smith wrote like Ashbery one afternoon in 1987, but then thought better of it
--Â
maybe it's me, but I always found Ashbery a worldly poet, and he seemed to me to be addressing the social on nearly every page -- TENNIS COURT OATH anyone?

On Thu, Apr 9, 2009 09:41 PM, Mark DuCharme
<[redacted]> wrote:

Isn't there a poet named Jon Ashberrry who does just that? I think he's the author of The Days of The Houseboat, if memory serves....

All joking aside, how does a poet or artist do *something just once which is*
so different from a body of work over 50 years
in the making? Are you really asking for this poet, whose name is Ashbery incidentally, to suddenly turn around & write like Rod Smith? That strikes me as just about as silly as expecting Smith to write like Ashbery.

Mark DuCharme

Date: Thu, 9 Apr 2009 17:28:29 -0700
From: [redacted]
Subject: Re: is it asking too much of Ashberry?
To: [redacted]

Isn't his name Smmith?

On Apr 9, 2009, at 7:52 AM, steve russell wrote:

maybe it's asking too much, but if Ashberry could adopt a more worldy sensibility, and address something social,just once, in the manner of, say, Rod Smith: here's a prose poem from "Deed," Smith's latest -- (line breaks not exact, but still reads well)--

Ted's Head

So there's this episode of Mary Tyler Moore where Ted's trying to get a raise & after finagling and shenaniganizing he puts one over on Lou & gets his contract changed to non-exclusive sos he can do commercials which is not cool w/Lou & the gang because Ted's just a brainless gimp & it hurts the image of the news to have the anchorman selling tomato slicers & dogfood so Lou gets despondent because the contract can't be rescinded but then he gets mad & calls Ted into his office & says, "You're going to stop doing commercials, Ted" & Ted says "why would I do that Lou?" & Lou says "Because if you don't I'll punch your face out" & Ted says "I'll have you arrested" & Lou says "It'll be too late, your face will be broken, you're not gonna get too many commercials with a broken face now are you Ted?" & Ted buckles under to force & everybody's happy, except Ted but he's so dumb nobody cares & everybody loves it that Lou's not despondent anymore he's back to his brustling chubby loud loveable whiskey-drinking football-loving ways. Now imagine if Ted were Lou, if Ted were the boss. You know how incredibly fucking brainless Ted is, but let's imagine he understands & is will to use force.

That's the situation we're now
in as Americans.

not accept all posts. Check
http://epc.buffalo.edu/poetics/
welcome.html

Bowering, George H.
A relatively untravelled Canadian writer.

accept all posts. Check

Rediscover HotmailÂ®: Now available on your iPhone or BlackBerry
http://windowslive.com/RediscoverHotmail?ocid=T
XT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Rediscover_Mobile1_042009

<<

04.16.09

Just Buffalo Small Press Poetry Series
Tisa Bryant and Dana Ward
Poetry Reading
Thursday, April 16, 7:00 PM
Rust Belt Books, 202 Allen St.

The Write Thing at Medaile College Steve Katz
Fiction Reading
Thursday, April 16, 7:00 PM
The Library at Huber Hall, Medaille,18 Agassiz Cir.

Poetics Plus at UB
Jean-Pierre Bobillot
Sound Poetry Reading
Thursday, April 16, 8:00 PM
Hallwalls Cinema, 341 Delaware (@ Tupper)

04.17.09

Just Buffalo/Babel
Isabel Allende
Admission: $30 Students $10
Friday, April 17, 8:00 PM
Kleinhans Music Hall, 3 Symphony Cir.

04.18.09

The Stop, Look, and Listen Poetry Series
Gary Earl Ross plus open mic
Saturday, April 18, 2:00 PM
Impact Artist Gallery
Tri Main building, 2495 Main Street

04.19.09

Poetics Plus @ UB
Small Press Symposium: Poetry Reading
Anna Moschovakis, Jay Millar, Kyle Schlesinger & Richard Owens
Poetry Reading
Sunday, April 19, 8:00 PM
Karpeles Manuscript Library, 453 Porter

04.20.09

Poetics Plus @ UB
Small Press Symposium: Poetry Reading

UB Poetry Collection
420 Capen Hall, North Campus

Schedule:

10:00-10:45: KEYNOTE: CHARLES ALEXANDER (Editor, Chax Press) Between Poetics, the Poetics of Between, Pressing Between

11:00-1:00: INTERSTITIAL PRACTICES: A POET-PUBLISHERS ROUNDTABLEË‡ Joel Brenden (The Enthusiast), Robert Dewhurst (Satellite Television), Geoffrey Gatza (BlazeVOX), David Hadbawnik (Kadar Koli | Hadbenicht Press), Margaret Konkol (Small Press in the Archive Series), Aaron Lowinger and Jessica Smith (House Press), Edric Mesmer (Yellow Edenwald Field), Douglas Manson (Little Scratch Pad), Richard Owens (Damn the Caesars | Punch Press), Andrew Rippeon (P-Queue | Queue Editions), Andrea Strudensky (Broke).

2:00-2:45: KEYNOTE: MICHAEL BASINSKI (Curator, UB Poetry Collection) "Exploration and Acquisition: Collecting All of Small Press Poetry"

3:00-5:00: RETHINKING POESIS: MAKING | REMARKING | RESPONDING

"Five Micro-Ecologies: A Presentation of 5 Portable-Press at Yo-Yo Labs Chapbooks," Brenda Iijima (Portable Press at Yo-Yo Labs)

"_____," Jay MillAr (Bookthug)

" the temptations of anti-sustainability, or wherefore survival?," Anna Moschovakis (Ugly Duckling)

"Ragged Edges," Kyle Schlesinger (Cuneiform Press)

MONDAY EVENING READING
THE KARPELES MANUSCRIPT MUSEUM
453 Porter Ave, Buffalo

8:00PM: Poetry readings by Charles Alexander, Michael Basinski, Brenda Iijima and Andrew Rippeon

---

BABEL

CLICK THE LINK TO BUY TICKETS TO ISABEL ALLENDE ON APRIL 17

http://www.justbuffalo.org/index.php?task=view&id=65

2009-10 SUBSCRIPTIONS ON SALE NOW. SUBSCRIBE BY APRIL 17 FOR SAVINGS!

October 9, A.S. Byatt
November 20, Ha Jin

March 5, Azar Nafisi
April 16, Salman Rushdie

BABEL EARLY BIRD SUBSCRIPTION

Subscription rates are going up for next season, but you can get this year's prices if you purchase your subscription by the date of our next event, April 17, 2009.

Previous Subscriber: $75 ($85 after April 17)
New Subscriber: $100 ($110 after April 17
These subscriptions include general admission seating at all 4 events.

Patron: $250 ($275 after April 17
Patron Pair: $400 ($450 after April 17)
Patron level subscriptions include VIP reserved seating and admission to all pre-event author receptions.

Purchase subscriptions now at http://www.justbuffalo.org/babel or by phone at [redacted].

WRITER CRITIQUE GROUP

The member writer critique group is back on a new night: 1st and 3rd Tuesdays at the Market Arcade. Click here for more info:

WESTERN NEW YORK BOOK ARTS COLLABORATIVE WORKSHOPS

We have some availability in the upcoming workshops

April 16 & 17 - Simple Book Structures
April 18-19 2009 - Vandercook Maintenance
May 3 - Printmaking for Kids
May 13 & 14 - Making Fonts

To register: http://www.wnybookarts.org/Spring09wkshps.php

GALLERY 464
WORKSHOP: SELF-PUBLISHING
4 WEEKS 4/19, 4/26, 5/3, 5/10
To register:
http://mindweb.us/Events/Entries/2009/3/27_Upcoming_Events.html

---

UNSUBSCRIBE

If you would like to unsubscribe from this list, just say so and you will immediately be removed. _____

Michael Kelleher
Artistic Director
Just Buffalo Literary Center
Market Arcade
617 Main St., Ste. 202A
Buffalo, NY 14203
[redacted]
[redacted] (fax)
www.justbuffalo.org
[redacted]

↑ Index

114. amy king

Amazon is Censoring GLBT Literature, including my own poetry book

Mon 13 Apr 2009

A couple of months ago, Amazon quietly unleashed some sort of campaign to strip certain books of their sales rankings.Â Unfortunately (& not so coincidentally), most of the books targeted fell under the â€œGay/Lesbianâ€ category.Â Â Once removed from the sales rankings and placed within the â€œAdultâ€ category, these books no longer show up in search engines or in Amazon searches. In other words, sales death.Â How to kill gay books in one easy step?Â Watch while Amazon quietly removes gay and lesbian titles and renders them invisible.Â Â Censorship at its deadliest.Â Many good people have already been posting and protesting across the internet, and though you may not rely on big name middlemen for your goods, much of America does.Â Make it your business to send a word of protest Amazonâ€™s way!Â

~~~~

UPDATE â€“ I just checked.Â Iâ€™M THE MAN WHO LOVES YOU, my book of poems that has less sexual content than the abstinence-promoting, Twilight, has been relegated to the â€œAdultâ€ category because I happened to have labeled it, myself, Gay and Lesbian.Â Go figure.Â It ainâ€™t even erotic poetry,peeps!http://www.amazon.com/im-man-who-loves-you/dp/1934289337/sr=1-43/qid=1170862251/ref=sr_1_43/103-6971696-8767859?ie=utf8&s=books

Lots of links to folks reactions on my blog:Â http://amyking.org/

The Huffington Post -- http://www.huffingtonpost.com/emma-rubysachs/amazon-censors-gay-books_b_186153.html
~~~~

A Petition -- http://www.thepetitionsite.com/1/in-protest-at-amazons-new-adult-policy

And of course, more seed for the campaign to use places like SPD (Small Press Distribution), indie bookstores, etc.Â

I'd check your own book if there's any GLBT interest in it -- anyone can label your book as such, which Amazon will have used to remove your book from their search engines.

Best,

Amy

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

115. CA Conrad
Brothers Quay
Mon 13 Apr 2009

PhillySound poet and filmmaker Ish Klein SCORED a very rare chance to interview the extraordinary twins of uber-otherly-real cinema, The Brothers Quay! To see this interview click http://blip.tv/file/1985256

WAY TO GO ISH! IT'S FANTASTIC!
CAConrad

--
PhillySound: new poetry http://PhillySound.blogspot.com

THE BOOK OF FRANK by CAConrad http://CAConrad.blogspot.com

↑ Index

116. Aryanil Mukherjee
Re: is it asking too much of Ashbery?
Mon 13 Apr 2009

Great post! I second it.

Also, those who think he did nothing beyond TCO, let me ask - how many poets we know who can follow up a savagely experimental book like TCO with something as lyrically honeyed as Rivers and Mountains ? Thematic, topical and formative consistency is a natural expectation for most great poets. I find none as self-effacing as Ashbery. Yet, there IS a consistency.

Also, as a man of science, let me say this - 20th century science has made it apparent, especially towards the latter half, that the world we live in cannot quite be explained is a deterministic fashion anymore. Everything is governed by laws of statistics/probability. Even laws are themselves, a function of statistical rules at times. The success of Genome project, for example, contrary to popular belief, only goes to prove that there IS indeterminacy, but a deeper knowledge of that could help us take the chances better. Knowledge-space is a casino we are in, you could just be a better gambler to get a better understanding. Einstein, who had once remarked, "God does not play dice with the universe" (btw, there is an ashbery poem that refers to that statement) reverts it in his later years. Energy is perceived as discreet, discontinuous packets; the whole gamut of Bose-Einstein statistics is born etc.

One of the very few poets, in any language, who has successfully gotten closest to this "real" world (of indeterminacy) is Ashbery. His scholars have flaunted the word "uncertainty" so often to discuss this aspect of his poetry (even John seems like the word). I would argue for the word "possibility" instead.

aryanil

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of [redacted]
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2009 11:37 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: is it asking too much of Ashberry?

The most amazing thing about Ashbery is his appeal. I know there are some on this list that view popularity as being a sell out. Ashbery never compromised the integrity of his art. Yet, if you are lucky enough to hear him read, seventeen year olds and octogenarians all join in and recite his work word for word.

His work addresses polital issues by means of immersion

That speaks volumes

Peace
Russ

↑ Index

117. Jennifer Karmin
4000 WORDS 4000 DEAD
Mon 13 Apr 2009

4000 WORDS 4000 DEAD
street performance by Jennifer Karmin

Sunday, April 19th
Chicago, IL

3:30pm in front of the U.S. Army Career Center
downtown at Harrison and State

Jennifer Karmin has been collecting 4000 WORDS for the 4000 DEAD Americans in Iraq. All words are being used to create a public poem. During street performances, she gives away these words to passing pedestrians.

Submissions are ongoing as the Iraq War continues and the number of dead grows. Send 1-10 words with subject 4000 WORDS to [redacted].

"I want to start with the milestone today of 4,000 dead in Iraq. Americans. And just what effect do you think it has on the country?"

-- Martha Raddatz,
ABC News' White House correspondent to Dick Cheney

Participants include:
Harold Abramowitz, Amanda Ackerman, Manan Ahmed, mIEKAL aND, David Baratier, Michael Basinski, Charles Bernstein, Anselm Berrigan, Rachel Blau DuPlessis, Laynie Browne, Lee Ann Brown, Amina Cain, Teresa Carmody, Maxine Chernoff, Catherine Daly, Patrick Durgin, Annie Finch, Daniel Godston, Arielle Greenberg, Kate Greenstreet, Roberto Harrison, Carla Harryman, David Hernandez, Jen Hofer, Lisa Janssen, Pierre Joris, John Keene, Matthew Klane, Toni Asante Lightfoot, Joyelle McSweeney, Miranda Mellis, Philip Metres, Vanessa Place, Kristin Prevallet, Lisa Samuels, Susan Schultz, Laura Sims, Juliana Spahr, Christopher Stackhouse, Chuck Stebelton, Stacy Szymaszek, Tony Trigilio, Eric Unger, Joshua Marie Wilkinson, Andrew Zawacki, and many more.

Sponsored by:
The Poetry Bomb
http://www.myspace.com/thepoetrybomb

Random acts of poetry in the city, suburbs, parks
everywhere / anywhere people will hear it pick a location that works best for you contact [redacted]

↑ Index

118. Jim Andrews
Softies by David Jhave Johnston
Mon 13 Apr 2009

Here's more recent digital video poems by David Jhave Johnston:
http://glia.ca/conu/SOFTIES/

I find these absorbingly watchable/readable. As poems. As videos. As net art.

ja
http://vispo.com

↑ Index

119. J.P. Craig
Re: Amazon is Censoring GLBT Literature, including my own poetry book
Mon 13 Apr 2009

Amy,
Thanks for the heads-up. I'll get a protest out somehow between grading tasks.

GLBT lit has taken it hard recently. A couple of years ago, oh crap, more now, time flies, I was talking to the head editor at Naiad press in Florida; they used to be the only folks to do a paperback Lifting Belly, and she told me they were having to dump Stein and some other stuff because they were having such a hard time moving it--they end result was they were transitioning their list to all lesbian erotica. I wonder how much of that problem was this sort of ghetto-izing in bookshops? (Won't somebody think of the children! (Except the gay children; leave them behind.))

I'm going to read the articles you provided links for. If one doesn't tell me what it means to "strip sales rankings," could you let me know? I have a fair idea, but I want to know for sure before I fire off my letter to Amazon and begin spreading the news among my students and immediate friends. JP

On Apr 13, 2009, at 12:45 PM, amy king wrote:

> A couple of months ago, Amazon quietly > unleashed some sort of campaign to strip certain books of their sales rankings. Unfortunately (& not so coincidentally), most of the > books targeted fell under the > “Gay/Lesbian” category. Once removed from the sales rankings and placed within the “Adult” category, these books no longer show up in search engines or in Amazon searches. In other words, sales death. How > to kill gay books in one easy step? Watch while Amazon quietly removes gay and lesbian titles and renders them invisible. Censorship at its deadliest. Many good people have already been posting and protesting across the internet, and though you may not rely on big name middlemen for your goods, much of America does. Make it your business to send a word of protest Amazon's way!

~~~~

UPDATE – I just checked. I'M THE MAN WHO LOVES YOU, my book of poems that has less sexual content than the abstinence-promoting, Twilight, has been relegated to the "Adult" category because I happened to have labeled it, myself, Gay and Lesbian. Go figure. It ain't even erotic poetry,peeps!http://www.amazon.com/im-man-who-loves-you/dp/1934289337/sr=1-43/qid=1170862251/ref=sr_1_43/103-6971696-8767859?ie=utf8&s=books

Lots of links to folks reactions on my blog: http://amyking.org/

The Huffington Post -- http://www.huffingtonpost.com/emma-rubysachs/amazon-censors-gay-books_b_186153.html

A Petition -- http://www.thepetitionsite.com/1/in-protest-at-amazons-new-adult-policy

And of course, more seed for the campaign to use places like SPD (Small Press Distribution), indie bookstores, etc.

I'd check your own book if there's any GLBT interest in it -- anyone can label your book as such, which Amazon will have used to remove your book from their search engines.

Best,

Amy

_____

Amy's Alias

> http://amyking.org/
>
> welcome.html

↑ Index

120. Aryanil Mukherjee

Reposting: is it asking too much of Ashbery?

Mon 13 Apr 2009

---

the last one was hurried. many words got left out.
reposting... here is it again.

==========
Great post! I second it.

Also, those who think he did nothing beyond TCO, let me ask - how many poets we know can follow up a savagely experimental book like TCO with something as lyrically honeyed as Rivers and Mountains ? Thematic, topical and formative consistency is a natural expectation for most great poets. But I find none as self-effacing as Ashbery. And yet, there IS a consistency.

Also, as a man of science, let me say this - 20th century science has made it apparent, especially towards the latter half, that the world we live in cannot quite be explained in a deterministic fashion anymore. Everything is governed by laws of statistics/probability. Even laws are themselves, at times, a function of statistical rules. The success of the Genome project, for example, contrary to popular belief, only goes to prove that there IS indeterminacy, but a deeper knowledge of that could help us take the chances better. Knowledge-space is a casino we are all in, you just need to be a better gambler to get a better understanding of the "dicy". Einstein, who had once remarked, "God does not play dice with the universe" (btw, there is an ashbery poem that refers to that statement) reverts it in his later years. Energy is perceived as discreet, discontinuous packets; the whole gamut of Bose-Einstein statistics is born etc.

One of the very few poets, in any language, who has successfully gotten closest to this "real" world (of indeterminacy) is Ashbery. His scholars have flaunted the word "uncertainty" so often to discuss this aspect of his poetry (even John seems to like the word). I would argue for the word "possibility" instead.

aryanil

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of [redacted]

Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2009 11:37 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: is it asking too much of Ashberry?

The most amazing thing about Ashbery is his appeal. I know there are some on this list that view popularity as being a sell out. Ashbery never compromised the integrity of his art. Yet, if you are lucky enough to hear him read, seventeen year olds and octogenarians all join in and recite his work word for word.

His work addresses polital issues by means of immersion

That speaks volumes

Peace
Russ

↑ Index

121. Ryan Daley
Re: Amazon is Censoring GLBT Literature, including my own poetry book
Mon 13 Apr 2009

---

http://gawker.com/5210142/why-it-makes-sense-that-a-hackers-behind-amazons-big-gay-outrage

I was taken in too.

-Ryan

On 4/13/09, amy king <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> A couple of months ago, Amazon quietly
> unleashed some sort of campaign to strip certain books of their sales > rankings. Unfortunately (& not so coincidentally), most of the books > targeted fell under the > “Gay/Lesbian” category. Once removed from the sales rankings and > placed within the “Adult” category, these books no longer show up in > search engines or in Amazon searches. In other words, sales death. How > to kill gay books in one easy step? Watch while Amazon quietly removes > gay and lesbian titles and renders them invisible. Censorship at its > deadliest. Many good people have already been posting and protesting > across the internet, > and though you may not rely on big name middlemen for your goods, much > of America does. Make it your business to send a word of protest > Amazon’s way!
>
>

>
>
> ~~~~
>
>
> UPDATE – I just checked. I'M THE MAN WHO LOVES YOU, > my book of poems that has less sexual content than the > abstinence-promoting, Twilight, has been relegated to the "Adult"
> category because I happened to have labeled it, myself, Gay and > Lesbian. Go figure. It ain't even erotic poetry,peeps!
>
http://www.amazon.com/im-man-who-loves-you/dp/1934289337/sr=1-43/qid=1170862251/ref=sr_1_43/103-6971696-8767859?ie=utf8&s=books
>
> Lots of links to folks reactions on my blog: http://amyking.org/
>
> The Huffington Post --
> http://www.huffingtonpost.com/emma-rubysachs/amazon-censors-gay-books_b_186153.html
>
> A Petition --
> http://www.thepetitionsite.com/1/in-protest-at-amazons-new-adult-policy
>
> And of course, more seed for the campaign to use places like SPD (Small > Press Distribution), indie bookstores, etc.
>
> I'd check your own book if there's any GLBT interest in it -- anyone can > label your book as such, which Amazon will have used to remove your book > from their search engines.
>
> Best,
>
> Amy
>
> _____
>
>
>
>
>
> Amy's Alias
>

> http://amyking.org/
>
>
>
>
>

↑ Index

122. Peter
Alt avatar
Mon 13 Apr 2009

Alt avatar
http://ciccariello.viewbook.com/avatar

↑ Index

123. amy king
Re: Amazon is Censoring GLBT Literature, including my own poetry book
Mon 13 Apr 2009

Amazon is still responsible. The whole fiasco has been months in the making, with warning signs (via author complaints & numerous GLBT books dropping from their search engine), not just a sudden weekend surprise.

Whomever is responsible, it is not as though Amazon was in the dark. What it does speak volumes about is just how concerned Amazon was regarding a response to its GLBT customers and authors. Only when Twitter exploded this weekend with calls for action did Amazon move from a standard "It's our policy" reply to "It's a glitch" excuse. The situation should have been addressed before the Twitter response, both technically and publicly.

To publicly demand an explanation and expect an apology, saboteur or no, is not asking too much. Debating the merits of whether Amazon did it on purpose or not does not dismiss the effect their neglect has on a specific part of the population that continues to be denied civil rights, among other homophobic actions we face on a daily basis. This so-called "glitch" carries a lot of public weight and deserves a public response, esp in today's climate. The whole debacle, the ability to remove a large number of GLBT books over a few months (with no fallout?), reeks of (& reinforces) the still-thriving "gay" equals "pervert" mentality, however "accidental" the censoring was.

By the way, the cart may be ahead of the horse here too -- read the comments in the Gawker link you sent, Ryan. This "explanation" isn't enough for most, and some suspect that Weev is a hired cover-up after the fact. Ultimately, it doesn't matter. What matters is what Amazon allowed to happen and what they do next.

From GAWKER:

The online bookseller now needs to explain why a temporary glitch "recently" discovered has been affecting gay-themed novels going back to at least early February, when (as we noted previously) former gay stripper Craig Seymour saw the sales ranking on his memoir disappear even as Diablo Cody's stripper memoir retained its sales rank. Seymour complained at the time and eventually resolved the issue, so it's not like Amazon didn't have warnings of the problem before this weekend.

... Former Amazon.com gay and lesbian studies editor Ron Hogan now works at GalleyCat as senior editor. He raises doubts there about Amazon's "glitch" excuse, pointing first to Seymour's experience in February and then to the fact that Amazon originally called this a "policy" decision (see here) before contradicting itself and calling it a "glitch".

Why Amazon Can't Just Call Gay Blacklist a 'Glitch'

http://gawker.com/5209381/why-amazon-cant-just-call-gay-blacklist-a-glitch

Amy

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

--- On Mon, 4/13/09, Ryan Daley <[redacted]> wrote:

From: Ryan Daley <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Amazon is Censoring GLBT Literature, including my own poetry book
To: [redacted]
Date: Monday, April 13, 2009, 4:55 PM

http://gawker.com/5210142/why-it-makes-sense-that-a-hackers-behind-amazons-big-gay-outrage

I was taken in too.

-Ryan

↑ Index

124. Catherine Daly

Re: Amazon is Censoring GLBT Literature, including my own poetry book

Mon 13 Apr 2009

If it were a hack, I'd think it would be more likely to put -- choose your work -- sales rank #1 in certain categories, not to remove sales rank from lots of books.

On Mon, Apr 13, 2009 at 3:34 PM, amy king <[redacted]> wrote: > Amazon is still responsible. The whole fiasco has been months in the making, with warning signs (via > author complaints & numerous GLBT books dropping from their search > engine), not just a sudden weekend surprise.
>

--
All best,
Catherine Daly
[redacted]

↑ Index

125. amy king

Re: Amazon is Censoring GLBT Literature, including my own poetry book

Mon 13 Apr 2009

Hi J.P.,

It means that you can search my name, or my books' titles, or lesbian poetry, and nothing of mine will come up in Amazon's search engine bc it is now listed as "Adult" aka porn. Just as Google disallows porn to show up in its rankings, or tries, Amazon has decided that my work, along with a lot of other GLBT books, needs to be censored from their promotional search engine.

Hope that helps!

Best,
Amy

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

--- On Mon, 4/13/09, J.P. Craig <[redacted]> wrote:

I'm going to read the articles you provided links for. If one doesn't tell me what it means to "strip sales rankings," could you let me know? I have a fair idea, but

I want to know for sure before I fire off my letter to Amazon and begin spreading the news among my students and immediate friends. JP

↑ Index

126. Michael Tod Edgerton

Re: Amazon is Censoring GLBT Literature, including my own poetry book

Mon 13 Apr 2009

Amy, I just tried out searches for you, Ed White, Alan Hollinghurst, "lesbian poetry," "gay porn" and "gay erotica," and I got your Antidotes for an Alibi, titles by the novelists, and a host of anthologies. I hope this means they've corrected this completely....

Michael Tod Edgerton

_____

If the challenge of our time is the challenge of empathy, to make an empathetic relation; that is, to see another person, to feel their pain, story, whatever--that--that how can a poetic material making be part of--of that? ~ Ann Hamilton, in an interview about her installation, Indigo Blue

--- On Mon, 4/13/09, amy king <[redacted]> wrote:

From: amy king <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Amazon is Censoring GLBT Literature, including my own poetry book
To: [redacted]
Date: Monday, April 13, 2009, 5:42 PM

Hi J.P.,

It means that you can search my name, or my books' titles, or lesbian poetry, and nothing of mine will come up in Amazon's search engine bc it is now listed as "Adult" aka porn. Just as Google disallows porn to show up in its rankings, or tries, Amazon has decided that my work, along with a lot of other GLBT books, needs to be censored from their promotional search engine.

Hope that helps!

Best,
Amy

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

--- On Mon, 4/13/09, J.P. Craig <[redacted]> wrote:

I'm going to read the articles you provided links for. If one doesn't tell me what it means to "strip sales rankings," could you let me know? I have a fair idea, but I want to know for sure before I fire off my letter to Amazon and begin spreading the news among my students and immediate friends. JP

↑ Index

127. Ryan Daley

Re: Amazon is Censoring GLBT Literature, including my own poetry book

Mon 13 Apr 2009

Well, it seems it's clearly a hack. Whether or not Amazon has acted in good faith is another story.

Does anyone remember a few years back when Amazon Canada (I think it was...) had the problem of authors favorably reviewing their own work/attacking the work of rivals via the "anonymous poster" settings? It took them weeks to figure that one out, too.

On Mon, Apr 13, 2009 at 6:40 PM, Catherine Daly <[redacted]>wrote:

> If it were a hack, I'd think it would be more likely to put -- choose your work -- sales rank #1 in certain categories, not to remove sales rank from lots of books.
>
> On Mon, Apr 13, 2009 at 3:34 PM, amy king <[redacted]> wrote:
> Amazon is still responsible. The whole fiasco has been months in the making, with warning signs (via > author complaints & numerous GLBT books dropping from their search engine), not just a sudden weekend surprise.
>
> --
> All best,
> Catherine Daly
> [redacted]

↑ Index

128. Mark Weiss
Re: Amazon is Censoring GLBT Literature, including my own poetry book
Mon 13 Apr 2009

Don't give them ideas, Catherine. The one wouldn't cancel the other. Our best protection from evil may be the limited imaginations of the perps.

Mark

At 06:40 PM 4/13/2009, you wrote:
>If it were a hack, I'd think it would be more likely to put -- choose >your work -- sales rank #1 in certain categories, not to remove sales >rank from lots of books.
>
>On Mon, Apr 13, 2009 at 3:34 PM, amy king <[redacted]> wrote:
> > Amazon is still responsible. The whole fiasco has been months in > the making, with warning signs (via > > author complaints & numerous GLBT books dropping from their search > > engine), not just a sudden weekend surprise.
> >
>
>
>
>--
>All best,
>Catherine Daly
>[redacted]
>

↑ Index

129. Sharon Dolin
April 22nd Reading
Mon 13 Apr 2009

Wednesday, April 22nd

Sharon Dolin, Phillis Levin, Molly Peacock

Book Culture

536 W. 112th St. (bet. Broadway & Amsterdam)

New York, NY

7 pm, free

[redacted]

Sharon Dolin
[redacted]

↑ Index

130. Maria Damon
Re: Amazon is Censoring GLBT Literature, including my own poetry book
Mon 13 Apr 2009

---

why do you suppose this is happening now, under obama, rather than earlier under bush? is the right taking it to the cyber-streets, as it were?

J.P. Craig wrote:
> Amy,
> Thanks for the heads-up. I'll get a protest out somehow between > grading tasks.
>
> GLBT lit has taken it hard recently. A couple of years ago, oh crap, > more now, time flies, I was talking to the head editor at Naiad press > in Florida; they used to be the only folks to do a paperback Lifting > Belly, and she told me they were having to dump Stein and some other > stuff because they were having such a hard time moving it--they end > result was they were transitioning their list to all lesbian erotica.
> I wonder how much of that problem was this sort of ghetto-izing in > bookshops? (Won't somebody think of the children! (Except the gay > children; leave them behind.))
>
> I'm going to read the articles you provided links for. If one doesn't > tell me what it means to "strip sales rankings," could you let me > know? I have a fair idea, but I want to know for sure before I fire > off my letter to Amazon and begin spreading the news among my students > and immediate friends. JP
>
> On Apr 13, 2009, at 12:45 PM, amy king wrote:
>
>> A couple of months ago, Amazon quietly
>> unleashed some sort of campaign to strip certain books of their sales >> rankings. Unfortunately (& not so coincidentally), most of the books >> targeted fell under the >> “Gay/Lesbian” category. Once removed from the sales rankings and >> placed within the “Adult” category, these books no longer show up in >> search engines or in Amazon searches. In other words, sales death. How >> to kill gay books in one easy step? Watch while Amazon quietly removes >> gay and lesbian titles and renders them invisible. Censorship at its >> deadliest. Many good people have already been posting and protesting >> across the internet,

>> and though you may not rely on big name middlemen for your goods, much >> of America does. Make it your business to send a word of protest >> Amazon's way!
>>
>>
>>
>>
>> ~~~~
>>
>>
>> UPDATE – I just checked. I'M THE MAN WHO LOVES YOU, >> my book of poems that has less sexual content than the >> abstinence-promoting, Twilight, has been relegated to the "Adult"
>> category because I happened to have labeled it, myself, Gay and >> Lesbian. Go figure. It ain't even erotic
>>
poetry,peeps!http://www.amazon.com/im-man-who-loves-you/dp/1934289337/sr=1-43/qid=1170862251/ref=sr_1_43/103-6971696-8767859?
ie=utf8&s=books
>>
>>
>> Lots of links to folks reactions on my blog: http://amyking.org/
>>
>> The Huffington Post --
>> http://www.huffingtonpost.com/emma-rubysachs/amazon-censors-gay-books_b_186153.html
>>
>>
>> A Petition --
>> http://www.thepetitionsite.com/1/in-protest-at-amazons-new-adult-policy
>>
>> And of course, more seed for the campaign to use places like SPD >> (Small Press Distribution), indie bookstores, etc.
>>
>> I'd check your own book if there's any GLBT interest in it -- anyone >> can label your book as such, which Amazon will have used to remove >> your book from their search engines.
>>
>> Best,

>>
>> Amy
>>
>> _____
>>
>>
>>
>>
>>
>> Amy's Alias
>>
>> http://amyking.org/
>>
>>
>>
>>
>

↑ Index

131. Holly Crawford

Re: Nico Vassilakis: 5IVE SEQUENCES AC[Chapel] NYC, Opening Thursday April 16

Mon 13 Apr 2009

We'll be installing Nico Vassilakis work at AC. The opening is this Thursday.

April 16 - May 9, 2009 / Opening: Thursday, April 16, 6-8pm

Three New Exhibitions:

Lemeh42: Sightlines

Stephen Day and Sibylle Peretti: Suicide Notes

Nico Vassilakis: 5IVE SEQUENCES

Nico Vassilakis: 5IVE SEQUENCES

5IVE SEQUENCES, a visual poem by Nico Vassilakis is being exhibited in AC [Chapel] as an installation for the first time since its publication. Enlarged in scale, to 18"x24", from its original chapbook size and offering a rare opportunity to collectively interact with the piece in a public forum, 5IVE SEQUENCES explores the inherent structure and transience of language as a medium.

In creating 5IVE SEQUENCES, Vassilakis focused on the individual shapes and constructions of letters within words, referring to it as a kind of "hyper-staring" that allowed him to transform them into images and sculptural forms, free of the bonds of syntax or semantics.

For Vassilakis, visual poetry is a tangential literature through which the alphabet is deconstructed into dislocations of meaning and/or the revisioning of letters-changing the viewers perception and experience of them. Within his work, letters or fragments of letters and the environment in which they are placed, become the medium for his compositions. 5IVE SEQUENCES explores a periodic table of language through individual letterforms, exposing and disjointing their order to lose their cohesion, opening up new interpretations and meanings.

Nico Vassilakis is a multimedia artist, poet and writer. He is currently the curator for the Subtext Reading Series in Seattle. His visual poetry videos have been shown worldwide at festivals and exhibitions of innovative language arts. Vassilakis' writings have appeared in numerous magazines, including: Ribot, Caliban, Aufgabe, Chain, Talisman, Central Park and Golden Handcuffs Review. His latest publications are TEXT LOSES TIME and most recently a Vispo essay "staReduction," from BookThug Publishers (Toronto, Canada).

AC [Direct] I / II and AC [Chapel]

547 W. 27th Street, 5th floor

NY, NY 10001

AC is open Wed-Saturday 1-6 & Thursday until 8 pm

AC Chapel is open 6 days a week from 9-6, Monday-Saturday, and until 8 on Thursday.

www.artcurrents.org

↑ Index

132. Jim Andrews
Re: Reposting: is it asking too much of Ashbery?
Tue 14 Apr 2009

"Indeterminacy" can mean many things, depending on the context. But the basic scenario regarding indeterminacy that I think of is this:

Suppose we were able to go back five seconds in time right now. And suppose that everything, and I mean everything, was as it was before, at that moment, including us, down to the last atom. Could we do anything other than what we did, when time resumes?

I don't see how it could be possible, personally.

As for Ashbery, he trips the light fantastic where few can go. That's liberating.

ja

> Also, as a man of science, let me say this - 20th century science has made it apparent, especially towards the latter half, that the world we live in cannot quite be explained in a deterministic fashion anymore. Everything is > governed by laws of statistics/probability. Even laws are themselves, at times, a function of statistical rules. The success of the Genome project, for example, contrary to popular belief, only goes to prove that there IS indeterminacy, but a deeper knowledge of that could help us take the chances > better. Knowledge-space is a casino we are all in, you just need to be a better gambler to get a better understanding of the "dicy". Einstein, who had once remarked, "God does not play dice with the universe" (btw, there is > an ashbery poem that refers to that statement) reverts it in his later years. Energy is perceived as discreet, discontinuous packets; the whole gamut of Bose-Einstein statistics is born etc.
>
> One of the very few poets, in any language, who has successfully gotten closest to this "real" world (of indeterminacy) is Ashbery. His scholars have flaunted the word "uncertainty" so often to discuss this aspect of his > poetry (even John seems to like the word). I would argue for the word "possibility" instead.
>
> aryanil

↑ Index

133. Jeffrey Side

The end of unlimited internet

Tue 14 Apr 2009

Just received this from a friend. It may be of interest to some of you: "If Time-Warner, Comcast and other large scale internet have their way the days of unlimited internet are over. You will pay for every byte you upload or download. Here is a link to the story as I heard it initially: http://www.npr.org/templates/story/story.php?storyId=103041709 If we do not protest this blatant greed things will change for the worse. We will be looking back at the last 10 years as the golden era of the internet before the big money took control. There are already trials in some cities regardless of the protest. I urge each of you to take action now by emailing your politicians and ISPs. If you need a template, or an example, here is one: 'This email is to voice my strong opposition to caps on internet usage. As you probably know some internet providers are currently changing the way they charge for the internet instead of simply requiring a charge for unlimited usage. The internet works quite well as it is currently structured. It is obvious that this is just another attempt by large corporate providers to take advantage of the consumer. I do not use the internet to download movies or any other high bandwidth demand beyond the occasional streaming video of a news story or video at YouTube. Still I believe that the current structure works, that the price is more than sufficient for a provider to make a substantial profit. If some of the changes that are currently in trial become general practice I will abandon the internet and no longer do business on any level with any company that manipulates its customers in order to boost profit. Thank you for your time and consideration. Sincerely,.....' "

↑ Index

134. Alexander Dickow

Soirée Raymond Federman: Tuesday April 21st

Tue 14 Apr 2009

Chers amis, chers collÃ¨gues,
Venez nous rejoindre mardi pour notre hommage Ã Raymond Federman.
Bien cordialement,
Alexander Dickow

Une rencontre autour de Raymond Federman Â» aura lieu Ã lâ€™occasion de sa venue en France et de son livre : Raymond Federman hors limites, entretien avec Marie Delvigne, Ã©ditions Argol.

Raymond Federman lira quelques uns de ses textes et ses amis lâ€™entoureront et liront pour lui leurs morceaux choisis dans la poÃ©sie et la littÃ©rature. SoirÃ©e amicale suivie dâ€™un buffet

Â« En
compagnie de Raymond Federman Â»
Le 21 avril 2009 Ã 20 heures
Reid Hall
4, rue de Chevreuse
75006
Paris

Contact â€“ RÃ©servations :
Catherine Flohic
[redacted]
01
43 29 96 32 - 06 72 46 25 99 www.argol-editions.fr

↑ Index

135. Alexander Dickow

Shakespeare and Company: Poetry reading Monday April 21st

Tue 14 Apr 2009

Dear Friends and Colleagues,
Join us at the Librairie Shakespeare & Company in Paris for an Anglophone poetry reading.

Lecture-Rencontre / Poetry Reading at Shakespeare and Company
Alexander Dickow & Nicholas Manning
37 rue de la Bûcherie
75005 Paris
Tél: 01 43 25 40 93

lundi 20 avril / Monday, April 20th 19h/ 7pm

Alexander Dickow is an American poet, translator, and author of Caramboles, a collection of poetry in French and English published by Argol Editions. He is currently pursuing his doctoral research in Châtillon.

Nicholas Manning's first collection Novaless was released from Otoliths Books in 2008. Hi Higher Hyperbole, a chapbook of new poems, is forthcoming from Ypolita Press. He currently teaches comparative poetics at the University of Strasbourg, France.

↑ Index

136. Obododimma Oha

Call for Submissions

Tue 14 Apr 2009

Reconfigurations, a peer-reviewed online journal of Literature & Culture (ISSN 1938 – 3592), is interested in publishing a couple of critical essays and cultural works (poems, paintings, etc) that address the emergence and applications of non-Western frameworks of knowledge. Essays that engage the politics of locating knowledge production and transnational movements of academic expertise are also welcome. Submissions should be emailed to Obododimma Oha (▇▇▇▇▇▇ , ▇▇▇▇▇) or to Scott Howard, the editor of Reconfigurations (▇▇▇▇▇▇), by 30 April 2009. For more information on the journal, please visit: http://reconfigurations.blogspot.com/ -- Obododimma Oha http://udude.wordpress.com/

↑ Index

137. William Slaughter
Notice: Mudlark
Tue 14 Apr 2009

New and On View: Mudlark Poster No. 80 (2009)

The Black Edge | Christien Gholson

Christien Gholson is the author of On the Side of the Crow (Hanging Loose), nominated as one of the top five first books in 2006 by ColdFront Magazine. His work has appeared in Big Bridge, Cimarron Review, Ecotone, Lilliput Review, Mudlark, Poetry New Zealand, Santa Fe Poetry Broadside, and Sentence.

Spread the word. Far and wide,

William Slaughter

MUDLARK
An Electronic Journal of Poetry & Poetics
Never in and never out of print...
E-mail: [redacted]
URL: http://www.unf.edu/mudlark

↑ Index

138. richard owens
POET PUBLISHERS: A SMALL PRESS SYMPOSIUM
Tue 14 Apr 2009

Apologies in advance for cross-posting. All events listed below

Apologies in advance for cross-posting. All events listed below are free and open to the public. The Poetics Program, Department of English at the University at Buffalo presents: POET-PUBLISHERS: A CONTEMPORARY SMALL PRESS SYMPOSIUM, April 19 -20. Â Â Â

Bringing a diverse range of contemporary poet-publishers into conversation with one another, this small press symposium is an event that seeks to think the poetics of book publishing. In doing so, we hope to historicize contemporary small press practice and investigate the intersection of book arts, community, labor and aesthetic production.

SCHEDULE OF EVENTS:

Â

SUNDAY,
APRIL 19

KARPELES
MANUSCRIPT MUSEUM (453 Porter Ave, Buffalo)

Â

8:00pm:Â

Poetry
readings by Jay MillAr, Anna Moschovakis, Richard Owens and Kyle Schlesinger.

Â

MONDAY,
APRIL 20

POETRY
COLLECTION (420 Capen Hall, SUNY Buffalo North Campus)

Â

9:30-10:00:
Coffee

Â

10:00-10:45:Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â

KEYNOTE:
CHARLES ALEXANDER (Editor, Chax Press)

â€œBetween
Poetics, the Poetics of Between, Pressing Betweenâ€

Â Â

11:00-1:00:Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â

INTERSTITIAL PRACTICES: Â

BUFFALO
POET-PUBLISHERS ROUNDTABLEÂ Â

Â

Robert
Dewhurst (Satellite Television), Geoffrey Gatza (BlazeVOX), David Hadbawnik (Kadar
Koli | Hadbenicht Press), Margaret Konkol (Small Press in the Archive
Series), Aaron Lowinger (House Press | Just Buffalo Small Press Reading
Series), Edric Mesmer (Yellow Edenwald
Field), Douglas Manson (Little Scratch Pad), Richard Owens (Damn the Caesars

| Punch Press), Andrew
Rippeon (P-Queue | Queue Editions),
Jessica Smith (Foursquare | Outside Voices), Andrea Strudensky (Broke).

Â

1:00-2:00:
Lunch

Â

2:00-2:45:Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â

KEYNOTE: MICHAEL BASINSKI (Curator, UB Poetry Collection)

â€œExploration and Acquisition: Collecting All of Small Press Poetryâ€

Â

3:00-5:00:Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â

RETHINKING
POESISâ€”MAKING | REMARKING | RESPONDING

A PANEL DISCUSSION MODERATED BY STEVE McCAFFERY

Â

"Five Micro-Ecologiesâ€”A Presentation of 5 Portable-Press at Yo-Yo Labs Chapbooks," Brenda Iijima (Portable Press at Yo-Yo Labs)

Â

â€œPublishing Continuityâ€,
Jay MillAr (Bookthug)

Â

"
the temptations of anti-sustainability, or wherefore survival?," Anna Moschovakis (Ugly Duckling)

Â

"Ragged
Edges," Kyle Schlesinger (Cuneiform Press)

Â

MONDAY EVENING READING

THE KARPELES MANUSCRIPT MUSEUM (453 Porter Ave, Buffalo)

Â

8:00PM:Â Poetry readings by Charles Alexander, Michael Basinski, Brenda Iijima and Andrew Rippeon.

Â

Â

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTES:

Â

[K E Y N O T EÂ Â S P E A K E R S]

Â

CHARLES ALEXANDER is a poet, publisher, and book artist. He is the director and editor-in-chief of Chax, one of the only independent presses which specializes in innovative poetry and the book arts. He learned many fine arts bookmaking techniques studying with Walter Hamady at the University of Wisconsin Department of Fine Arts in Madison, Wisconsin. Alexander also served as the Director of the Minnesota Center for Book Arts from 1993 to 1995. He is the recipient of the 2006 Arizona Arts Award. Alexander's recent books of poetry include Etudes: D & D (Quarry press, 1997), Pushing Water: parts one through six (Standing Stones Press, 1998), near or random acts (Sing Horse Press, 2004), and Certain Slants (Junction Press, 2007). He is also the editor of Talking the Boundless Book, an important collection of essays on the book arts that emanated from the symposium Art & Language: Re-Reading the Boundless Book, that he organized for Minnesota Center for the Book Arts in 1994. In summer 2007 he was chosen to participate in the TAMAAS poetry translation seminar in Paris, France. In late 2008 he published and printed the fine art portfolio Charles Olson: Language as Physical Fact, and organized a conference of the same title held at the University of Arizona Poetry Center. He works primarily independently of major institutions, although in recent years he has taught courses in writing, literature, and the book arts at the University of Arizona, Pima Community College, and Naropa University.

Â

MICHAEL BASINSKI is The Curator of The Poetry Collection, the University at Buffalo. He performs his work as a solo poet and in ensemble with BuffFluxus. Among his many books of poetry are Of Venus 93 (Little Scratch Pad); All My Eggs Are Broken (BlazeVox); Heka (Factory School); Strange Things Begin to Happen When a Meteor Crashes in the Arizona Desert (Burning Press); The Idyllic Book (Michel Letko, Houston, Texas); Mool, Mool3Ghosts and Shards of Shampoo (Bob Cobbing's Writers Forum); Cnyttan and Heebie-Jeebies (Meow Press); By and The Doors (House Press); Un-Nome, Red Rain Two, Abzu and Flight to the Moon (Run Away Spoon Press): Poemeserss (Structum Press) and many more. See (or hear): RadioRadio on UBUWEB (see Basinski and BuffFluxus) etc.Â His poems and other works have appeared in Dandelion, BoxKite, Antennae, Unbearables Magazine, Open Letter, Torgue, Leopold Bloom, Wooden Head Review, Basta, Kiosk, Explosive Magazine, Deluxe Rubber Chicken, First Offense, Terrible Work, Juxta, Kenning, Witz, Lungfull, Lvng, Generator, Tinfish, Curicule Patterns, Score, Unarmed, Rampike, First Intensity, House Organ, Ferrum Wheel, End Note, Ur Vox, Damn the Caesars, Pilot, 1913, Filling Station, Public Illumination, Poetry, and in many others.

Â

[P A N E L I S T S]

Â

BRENDA IIJIMA is the author of Animate, Inanimate Aims (Litmus, 2007) and Around Sea (O Books, 2004). Her book, If Not Metamorphic was runner up for the Sawtooth Prize and will be published by Ahsahta Press. revv.youâ€™llâ€”ution, is forthcoming from Displaced Press sometime this year. She is the editor of Portable Press at Yo-Yo Labs: http://yoyolabs.com/. She is editing a collection of essays by poets concerning poetry and ecological ethics titled)((eco (lang)(uage(reader). She is the art editor at Boog City as well as a visual artist. She lives in Brooklyn, New York and teaches at Cooper Union.Â Â

Â

JAY MillAr is a Toronto poet, editor, publisher, and virtual bookseller. He is the author of False Maps for Other Creatures (2005), Mycological Studies (2002), and The Ghosts of Jay MillAr (2000). His most recent collection is the small blue (Fall 2007). He is also the author of many chapbooks and privately published editions such as Woods|Pages andÂ Lack Lyrics, which tied to win the 2008 bpNichol Chapbook Award. In 2006 he published Double Helix, a collaborative "novel" written with Stephen Cain. Millar is the shadowy figure behind BookThug, an independent publishing house dedicated to exploratory edge work by well-known and emerging North American writers, as well as Apollinaire's Bookshoppe, a virtual bookstore that specializes in the books that no one wants to buy. A long-time fixture of the Toronto writing and publishing scene, Jay has participated in such diverse projects as the UNBC/Via Rail Poetry Train, The Scream in High Park, Test Readings Series and Influency: A Poetry Salon. He is also the co-editor (with Mark Truscott) of BafterC, a small magazine of contemporary writing. Currently Jay teaches creative writing and poetics at George Brown College.

Â

ANNA MOSCHOVAKIS has been working with UDP since 2002 as an editor, designer, administrator, and printer. Book projects she has spearheaded include The Drug of Art (Ivan Blatny); Iterature, Enter Morris Imposternak and The Life and Opinions of DJ Spinoza (Eugene Ostashevsky); The Hot Garment of Love Is Insecure (Elizabeth Reddin); and O New York (Trey Sager); as well as Notes on Conceptualisms, Barf Manifesto (Dodie Bellamy), Sleepâ€™s Powers (Jacqueline Risset), and all the other titles in the Dossier Series. She is also the author a book of poems, I Have Not Been Able to Get Through to Everyone (Turtle Point Press 2006), and of several chapbooks, including The Blue Book (Phylum Press), Dependence Day Parade (Sysiphus) No Medea (a Tinyside from Big Game Books), and The Human Machine (Dusie). Her translations from the French include texts by Henri Michaux, Claude Cahun, Theophile Gauthier, Pierre AlfÃ©ri, and Blaise Cendrars; her translation of The Engagement by Georges Simenon was published in 2006 by NYRB Classics and her translation of The Possession by Annie Ernaux came out int 2008 from Seven Stories Press. She has been a visiting artist/faculty in Bardâ€™s MFA program and at Naropaâ€™s Summer Writing Workshop. She taught Comparative Literature at Queens College for three years and currently teaches Creative Writing at Pratt Institute in Brooklyn.

Â

KYLE
SCHLESINGER writes and lectures about topics related to poetics, artists' books and the history of visual communication.

Â

Â

[BUFFALO ROUNDTABLE]

Â

JOEL BRENDEN is a multi-disciplinary artist and educator. He received his MFA in Visual Studies from the University at Buffalo SUNY. He exhibits regionally, and continues to develop, produce and print Enthusiast, a small press-based conceptual project. He is active in the printing and poetics communities in Buffalo, where he currently resides on the second floor.

Â

ROBERT
DEWHURST publishes the magazine Satellite Telephone, and is the co-editor, with Sean Reynolds, of Wild Orchids, a journal of affective literary criticism whose first number will appear this July.

Â

GEOFFREY
GATZA is the editor and publisher of BlazeVOX [books] and the author of five books of poetry; Not So Fast Robespierre is now available from Menendez Publishing. He is a graduate of the Culinary Institute of America in Hyde Park, NY (1993) and Daemen College, Amherst, NY (2002), and served as a U.S. Marine in the first gulf war. He lives in Kenmore, NY with his girlfriend and two cats.

Â

DAVID HADBAWNIK is a poet and performer currently living with his wife in Buffalo, NY. Recent publications include the books Translations From Creeley (Sardines, 2008), Ovid in Exile (Interbirth, 2007), and SF Spleen (Skanky Possum, 2006). He is the editor and publisher of Habenicht Press and the journal kadar koli.

Â

MARGARET
KONKOL is a doctoral student in the Poetics Program at SUNY Buffalo. Her poems have appeared in Small Press Collective, Rude Girl Press, Buffalo
Vortex, Fusion, and Love Factory. She curates the Mildred Lockwood Lacey Small Press in the Archive Lecture Series.
Her article "Creeley in Age: Negative Poetics in Robert Creeleyâ€™s Late Work" appears in Jacket 31.

Â

AARON
LOWINGER is a Buffalo poet and writer who is involved in the mighty morphin' House Press and the Just Buffalo Small Press Reading Series.

Â

DOUGLAS MANSON is a poet, publisher, grant writer living in Buffalo.Â He believes in democracy. little scratch pad press and its editions are dedicated to publishing new, emerging and outsider poets, substantiating their works in professionally designed book publications.Â lsp chapbooks emerge from a fully collaborative process and environment, and the press promotes new poetry by way of organized readings and exhibitions.

Â

EDRIC MESMERâ€™s poems have appeared in 26, Aufgabe, EOAGH, and BlazeVOX. From Buffalo he collates the local journal Yellow Edenwald Field, publishing poetry from this city, its borders, and sibling cities.

Â

RICHARD
OWENS edits Punch Press and Damn the Caesars, a journal of contemporary poetry and poetics. Delaware Memoranda, a book-length poem, was published through BlazeVox in 2008.

Â

ANDREW RIPPEON edits P-Queue (a journal of poetry, poetics, and innovative prose) and QUEUE (a chapbook series adjunct to the journal). He lives in Buffalo, NY, where he participates in the Poetics Program at the University at Buffalo.

Â

JESSICA
SMITH is the editor of Outside Voices Press, an imprint of Bootstrap Productions. Her first book, Organic Furniture Cellar, was published in 2006. She also edits Foursquare, a monthly women's poetry magazine. Much of her work can be read online at looktouch.com

Â

ANDREA
STRUDENSKY edits the journal Broke.
Originally from Montreal, she is currently living in Buffalo studying poetry

THIS EVENT IS SPONSORED BY THE JAMES H. MCNULTY CHAIR (DENNIS TEDLOCK), THE DAVID GRAY CHAIR OF POETRY AND LETTERS (STEVE MCCAFFERY), THE DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH AT THE STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK AT BUFFALO, THE POETRY AND RARE BOOKS COLLECTION,

THE MILDRED LOCKWOOD LACEY FUND FOR POETRY & THE KARPELES MANUSCRIPT MUSEUM.

↑ Index

139. amy king

Re: Amazon is Censoring GLBT Literature, including my own poetry book

Tue 14 Apr 2009

Hi Michael,

Yep, the books are getting ranked again! Amazon sent a notice:

An Amazon spokesman called the deletions an "embarrassing and ham-fisted cataloguing error for a company that prides itself on offering complete selection".

http://www.thisisleicestershire.co.uk/nationalnews/Amazon-sorry-book-sales-error/article-899385-detail/article.html

Though
it's pretty clear that they addressed the situation only when the internet exploded with a mass campaign, rather than earlier addressing the problem based on individual authors' complaints & the dropping of numerous GLBT titles. Still, a response!

Amy

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

--- On Mon, 4/13/09, Michael Tod Edgerton <[redacted]> wrote:

From: Michael Tod Edgerton <[redacted]> Subject: Re: Amazon is Censoring GLBT Literature, including my own poetry book To: [redacted] Date: Monday, April 13, 2009, 6:51 PM

Amy, I just tried out searches for you, Ed White, Alan Hollinghurst, "lesbian poetry," "gay porn" and "gay erotica," and I got your Antidotes for an Alibi, titles by the novelists, and a host of anthologies. I hope this means they've corrected this completely....

↑ Index

140. steve russell

Re: is it asking too much of Ashbery?

Tue 14 Apr 2009

Rivers & Mountains and Tennis Court Oath -- they're early Ashberry, probably the period of his strongest work. After Wave or maybe Flow Chart, I'm not so sure -- nothing too exciting in the last 10 or 15 years that I'm aware of -- although the collages (some, I hear, were worthy of Joseph Cornell) were interesting.

--- On Mon, 4/13/09, Aryanil Mukherjee <[redacted]> wrote:

> From: Aryanil Mukherjee <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: is it asking too much of Ashbery?
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Monday, April 13, 2009, 2:20 PM
> Great post! I second it.
>
> Also, those who think he did nothing beyond TCO, let me ask - how many poets
> we know who can follow up a savagely experimental book like TCO with > something as lyrically honeyed as Rivers and Mountains ? Thematic, topical > and formative consistency is a natural expectation for most great poets.
> I find none as self-effacing as Ashbery. Yet, there IS a consistency.
>
> Also, as a man of science, let me say this - 20th century science has made > it apparent, especially towards the latter half, that the world we live in > cannot quite be explained is a deterministic fashion anymore. Everything is > governed by laws of statistics/probability. Even laws are themselves, a > function of statistical rules at times. The success of Genome project, for > example, contrary to popular belief, only goes to prove that there IS > indeterminacy, but a deeper knowledge of that could help us take the chances > better. Knowledge-space is a casino we are in, you could just be a better > gambler to get a better understanding. Einstein, who had once remarked, "God > does not play dice with the universe" (btw, there is an ashbery poem that refers to that statement) reverts it in his later years.

Energy is perceived as discreet, discontinuous packets; the whole gamut of Bose-Einstein
statistics is born etc.

One of the very few poets, in any language, who has successfully gotten closest to this "real" world (of indeterminacy) is Ashbery. His scholars have flaunted the word "uncertainty" so often to discuss this aspect of his poetry (even John seems like the word). I would argue for the word
"possibility" instead.

aryanil

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB)
[mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of [redacted]
Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2009 11:37 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: is it asking too much of Ashberry?

The most amazing thing about Ashbery is his appeal. I know there are some on this list that view popularity as being a sell out. Ashbery never compromised the integrity of his art. Yet, if you are lucky enough to hear him read, seventeen year olds and octogenarians all join in
and recite his work word for word.

His work addresses polital issues by means of immersion

That speaks volumes

Peace
Russ

posts. Check guidelines

↑ Index

141. amy king

KING + SIME + THOMPSON -- Wed, April 22nd - 7:00pm @ Barrette

Tue 14 Apr 2009

KING + SIME + THOMPSON -- Wednesday, April 22nd
-- 7:00pm @ B

KING + SIME + THOMPSON -- Wednesday, April 22nd
-- 7:00pm @ Barrette

Â

~~~

Â

Barrette will be offering drink specials to attendees ($5 wine, $4 pints) and their tasty bar menu will be available as well.Â We hope folks will stick around to drink or nosh and check outÂ books and broadsides (made especially for this event) after the reading.

Â

~~~

Â

AMY KING is the author of I'm the Man Who Loves You and Antidotes for an Alibi, and forthcoming, Slaves to do These Things (Blazevox Books). She teaches English and Creative Writing at Nassau Community College, moderates the Poetics and Women's Poetry listserves, and co-curates The Stain of Poetry: A Reading Series (http://stainofpoetry.wordpress.com/). Please visit her at http://amyking.org for more.

RICHARD SIME grew up in rural North Dakota, graduated from college in Minnesota, moved to New York City to attend graduate school at NYU, drifted into publishing, and eventually returned to school at Sarah Lawrence College, where he earned an MFA in fiction writing and where a course on prosody planted a seed. He began to write poetry in workshops at the New School in New York
 City and the Fine Arts Work Center in Provincetown,
 MA, where he returns each summer.
His work has appeared in Barrow
  Street, Provincetown
Arts, Radical Faerie Digest, and Passager.

L.B. THOMPSON received her B.A. from Sarah
Lawrence College

and her M.F.A. in Poetry from New York University.
Her poetry has been published in journals including Fence, Pool, Lyric, The Women's Review of Books and The New Yorker. She received an award for emerging women writers from the Rona Jaffe Foundation in 2002, and won the Center for Book Artsâ€™ annual chapbook competition in 2003. L.B. teaches English to college freshmen, works as a free-lance copyeditor, and lives on the North Fork of Long Island.

Â

~~~

Barette is wheelchair accessible.

Â

Hosts -- Ari Banias & Danica Colic

Â

Barrette

601 Vanderbilt
Ave (at Bergen
St, Prospect Heights, Brooklyn)

[redacted]

Subway: B, Q to Seventh
Ave; 2, 3 to Grand Army Plaza

Â

Â

http://www.facebook.com/event.php?eid=81872660752

Â

Â

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index
~~~

142. Eric Weinstein

Re: Amazon is Censoring GLBT Literature, including my own poetry book

Tue 14 Apr 2009

This is what Publisher's Lunch had to day this morning:

Amazon Says Error Affected Over 57,000 Titles, and Has Been Fixed--Or Not Quite Amazon spokesman Drew Herdener said yesterday the company is fixing the "glitch" that removed the sales ranking from what they now say was 57,310 books worldwide. Without explaining the error itself (or the provocative customer service e-mail) any further, Herdener admitted, "This is an embarrassing and ham-fisted cataloging error for a company that prides itself on offering complete selection." He says that affected books were in "broad categories such as Health, Mind & Body, Reproductive & Sexual Medicine, and Erotica. This problem impacted books not just in the United States but globally. It affected not just sales rank but also had the effect of removing books from Amazon's main product search." PI<http://click.publisherslunchdaily.com/stun/redirect.php?u=NTAwNnwzNDQ4OXxld2VpbnN0ZWluQHJhbmRvbWhvdXNlLmNvbXwyODM4NDZ8ODE5NjAxMDl8NDU1ODU3&id=1406585>

But in giving the same basic statement to the AP--which mistakenly bills it as an apology--Herdener says they are still working on the problem. "Many books have now been fixed and we're in the process of fixing the remainder as quickly as possible, and we intend to implement new measures to make this kind of accident less likely to occur in the future."

A Seattle PI business reporter blogs about the cause of the error, based on a conversation with an "Amazon employee who works closely with the systems involved in the glitch."

The source indicates that "Amazon managers found that an employee who happened to work in France had filled out a field incorrectly and more than 50,000 items got flipped over to be flagged as 'adult.' (Technically, the flag for adult content was flipped from 'false' to 'true.')" The source adds, "It's no big policy change, just some field that's been around forever filled out incorrectly." Similar versions of this explanation, less formally sourced, were posted on the internet prior to the PI's blog.

If accurate, it also confirms the suspicion that Amazon does indeed have some kind of policy to restrict the listing visibility of an unquantified number of titles considered to contain "adult" content--which would explain the original customer service e-mail posted on the Internet over the weekend. Only time will tell whether the company will acknowledge that policy, how it is implemented, and how many books it covers.Separately, Amazon has been sending a non-apologetic explanation by e-mail to customers who had complained (expressing a policy that would stand at odds with any flagging for "adult" content: "As a retailer, our goal is to provide customers with the broadest selection possible so they can find, discover, and buy any item they might be seeking. That selection includes some items which many people may find objectionable. Therefore, the items offered on our website represent a wide spectrum of opinions on a variety of topics.

"Amazon.com believes it is censorship not to sell certain titles because we believe their message is objectionable. Therefore, we'll continue to make controversial works available in the United States and everywhere else, except where they're prohibited by law. We also allow readers, authors, and publishers to express their views freely about these titles and other products we offer on our website."

E
On Tue, Apr 14, 2009 at 11:20 AM, amy king <[redacted]> wrote:

> Hi Michael,
>
> Yep, the books are getting ranked again! Amazon sent a notice:
>
> An Amazon spokesman called the deletions an "embarrassing and ham-fisted cataloguing error for a company that prides itself on offering complete selection".
>
> http://www.thisisleicestershire.co.uk/nationalnews/Amazon-sorry-book-sales-error/article-899385-detail/article.html
>
> Though it's pretty clear that they addressed the situation only when the internet exploded with a mass campaign, rather than earlier addressing the problem based on individual authors' complaints & the dropping of numerous GLBT titles. Still, a response!
>
> Amy
>
> ———
>
> Amy's Alias
>
> http://amyking.org/

> --- On Mon, 4/13/09, Michael Tod Edgerton <[redacted]>
> wrote:
>
> From: Michael Tod Edgerton <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: Amazon is Censoring GLBT Literature, including my own poetry book
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Monday, April 13, 2009, 6:51 PM
>
> Amy, I just tried out searches for you, Ed White, Alan Hollinghurst, "lesbian poetry," "gay porn" and "gay erotica," and I got your Antidotes for an Alibi, titles by the novelists, and a host of anthologies. I hope this means they've corrected this completely....

↑ Index

143. David Chirot

Fwd: Kaurab Online 27 is Out

Tue 14 Apr 2009

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Staff, KAURAB <[redacted]>
Date: Tue, Apr 14, 2009 at 7:36 AM
Subject: Kaurab Online 27 is Out To: "Staff, KAURAB" <[redacted]>

Dear Friend

Kaurab ONLINE issue 27 is out.

The 4th Update of the English Translation Archive is released simultaneously.

Please visit

www.kaurab.com

and click on the cover of the new 27th issue. Directly visit the translation archive at http://www.kaurab.com/english/

The Bangla issue highlights

a) New poems by generation 21:0 poets - Anupam Mukhopadhyay, Abhijit Mitra, Manik Saha, Sabbir Azam and Souva Chattopadhyay.

b) Faraway Kitchenspace - A collection of hybrid, intertwined verse-prose/verse-fiction pieces that focus on four poets of the outer Bangla diaspora –

Mesba Alam Arghya, Subhro Bandopadhyay, Sabyasachi Sanyal & Aryanil Mukhopadhyay

c) The “chhaayaashabda” section presents 8 new rubBEINGs by David Baptiste Chirot. The series is titled “Death From This Window”.

Kaurab Online is simultaneously building an ongoing archive of Bangla poetry in English. The archive has a strong international orientation and also includes interviews and book reviews. The 4th update (a link could also be found from the homepage) covers -http://www.kaurab.com/english/

1. Rabindranath Thakur (Tagore) – 50 new translations of Rabi’s early poetry by Prithwindranath Mukherjee
2. Tyrone Williams interviewed by Brenda Iijima
3. Christian Wiman interviewed by Ankur Saha
4. Hannah Weiner’s OPEN HOUSE reviewed by Maria Damon
5. Amiya Chakravarty’s ANOTHER SHORE reviewed by Norman Finkelstein
6. Bangla poetry translation – Swadesh Sen
7. Bangla poetry translation – Dhiman Chakrabarty

Happy reading and please don’t forget to feed us back.

Staff, Kaurab

↑ Index

144. Patrick Dillon

Re: Reposting: is it asking too much of Ashbery?

Tue 14 Apr 2009

Jim,

Your post reminds me of an essay I read in the NYT about David Foster Wallace's undergraduate thesis. I think it may be of interest so I will quote at length here:

The fatalist contends, quite radically, that human actions and decisions have no influence on the future. Your behavior today no more shapes events tomorrow than it shapes events yesterday. Instead, in a seemingly backward way, the fatalist says it is how things are in the future that uniquely constrains what happens right now. What might seem like an open possibility subject to human choice — say, whether you fire your handgun — is already either impossible or absolutely necessary. You are merely going with some cosmic flow.

Perhaps most counterintuitively, the fatalist argues that this topsy-turvy doctrine can be established by mere reflection on the simple logic of propositions about the future. If I fire my handgun, one second from now its barrel will be hot; if I do not fire, one second from now the barrel will not be hot; but the proposition one second from now the barrel will be hotis right now either true or false. If the proposition is true, then it is the case that I will fire the gun; if it’s false, then it is the case that I won’t. Either way, it’s the state of affairs in the future that dictates what I will or won’t do now.

[...] But how to straighten out Taylor’s fatalism? Wallace proposed that there was a flaw in Taylor’s argument, a hidden defect. In essence, Taylor was treating two types of propositions as if they were the same, when in fact they needed to be distinguished and treated differently. Consider the sentences “It was the case that I couldn’t fire my handgun” and “It cannot be the case that I did fire my handgun.” At first they may sound similar, but Wallace argued that they involve quite different notions of impossibility. “It was the case that I couldn’t fire my handgun” refers to a past situation in which discharge is deemed impossible because (let’s say) my gun was broken. “It cannot be the case that I did fire my handgun” refers to a present situation in which discharge is deemed impossible because (let’s say) my gun is still cool to the touch. The first notion involves an earlier, physical constraint on firing (namely, the broken gun); the other involves the current absence of a necessary consequence of firing (namely, a hot barrel). An extremely sensitive observer of language, Wallace noted that there is a subtle indicator of this important distinction already at work in our language: the fine differentiation in meaning between “I couldn’t have done such and so” and “I can’t have done such and so.”

Full text available here:
http://www.nytimes.com/2008/12/14/magazine/14wwln-Wallace-t.html

pd

On Tue, Apr 14, 2009 at 1:23 AM, Jim Andrews <[redacted]> wrote:

> "Indeterminacy" can mean many things, depending on the context. But the basic scenario regarding indeterminacy that I think of is this:
>
> *Suppose we were able to go back five seconds in time right now. And suppose that everything, and I mean everything, was as it was before, at that moment, including us, down to the last atom. Could we do anything other than what we did, when time resumes?*
>
> I don't see how it could be possible, personally.
>
> As for Ashbery, he trips the light fantastic where few can go. That's liberating.

> ja
>
> Also, as a man of science, let me say this - 20th century science has made it apparent, especially towards the latter half, that the world we live in cannot quite be explained in a deterministic fashion anymore. Everything is > governed by laws of statistics/probability. Even laws are themselves, at times, a function of statistical rules. The success of the Genome project, for example, contrary to popular belief, only goes to prove that there IS indeterminacy, but a deeper knowledge of that could help us take the chances > better. Knowledge-space is a casino we are all in, you just need to be a better gambler to get a better understanding of the "dicy". Einstein, who had once remarked, "God does not play dice with the universe" (btw, there is > an ashbery poem that refers to that statement) reverts it in his later years. Energy is perceived as discreet, discontinuous packets; the whole gamut of Bose-Einstein statistics is born etc.
>
> One of the very few poets, in any language, who has successfully gotten closest to this "real" world (of indeterminacy) is Ashbery. His scholars have flaunted the word "uncertainty" so often to discuss this aspect of his > poetry (even John seems to like the word). I would argue for the word "possibility" instead.
>
> aryanil

↑ Index

145. Patrick Dillon

Re: The end of unlimited internet

Tue 14 Apr 2009

And, if that is the case, this call and website may be an example of what we have to look forward to:

Call to Verizon regarding dubious math in billing:
http://imgs.xkcd.com/verizon_billing.mp3

Another person's response and proposed form of payment:
http://xkcd.com/verizon/

Full blog on the issue:
http://verizonmath.blogspot.com/

On Tue, Apr 14, 2009 at 4:11 AM, Jeffrey Side <[redacted]> wrote:

> Just received this from a friend. It may be of interest to some of you:
> "If Time-Warner, Comcast and other large scale internet have their way the days of unlimited internet are over. You will pay for every byte you upload or download. Here is a link to the story as I heard it initially:
> http://www.npr.org/templates/story/story.php?storyId=103041709
> If we do not protest this blatant greed things will change for the worse. We will be looking back at the last 10 years as the golden era of the internet before the big money took control. There are already trials in some cities regardless of the protest. I urge each of you to take action now by emailing your politicians and ISPs. If you need a template, or an example, here is one:
> 'This email is to voice my strong opposition to caps on internet usage. As you probably know some internet providers are currently changing the way they charge for the internet instead of simply requiring a charge for unlimited usage. The internet works quite well as it is currently structured. It is obvious that this is just another attempt by large corporate providers to take advantage of the consumer. I do not use the internet to download movies or any other high bandwidth demand beyond the occasional streaming video of a news story or video at YouTube. Still I believe that the current structure works, that the price is more than sufficient for a provider to make a substantial profit. If some of the changes that are currently in trial become general practice I will abandon the internet and no longer do business on any level with any company that manipulates its customers in order to boost profit. Thank you for your time and consideration. Sincerely,.....' "

↑ Index

146. Dana Teen Lomax

LETTERS TO POETS at the SFSU Poetry Center 4/23/09 @ 4:30 pm

Tue 14 Apr 2009

Please join us for the Bay Area Celebration of Letters to Poets: Conversations about Poetics, Politics, and Community
Thursday, April 23, 2009 4:30 pm Free!
San Francisco State Poetry Center

San Francisco State UniversityHumanities 512
1600 Holloway AvenueSan Francisco, CA 94132[redacted] Featured guests include: Leslie Scalapino reading from her letter exchanges with Judith Goldman,Jennifer Firestone reading from her letter exchanges with Eileen Myles,Traci Gourdine reading from her letter exchanges with Quincy Troupe,Paul Hoover and Albert Flynn DeSilver reading from their letters to each other,and Claire Braz-Valentine and Dana Teen Lomax reading from their letters.

About Letters to Poets Cornel West writes: "This courageous and visionary book enacts and embodies a concrete 'relational aesthetics' that gives poetic voices an epistolary space—for linguistic intimacy and soul-sharing. Don't miss it!"
Edited by Jennifer Firestone and Dana Teen Lomax, Letters to Poets, is a collaborative experiment conducted over approximately one year's time, which brought together 28 poets from various backgrounds, aesthetics, and geographical locations and asked them to write letters to each other. These letters are uncensored: the only condition was that the writing spoke to the poets' most urgent concerns.
This event is free and open to the public.
See you there!

_____ Rediscover Hotmail®: Now available on your iPhone or BlackBerry
http://windowslive.com/RediscoverHotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Rediscover_Mobile1_042009

↑ Index

147. Adam Katz
Re: is it asking too much of Ashbery?
Tue 14 Apr 2009

I think, when it's a discussion of - this major poet is doing something, maybe it should broaden to include other things (in this case "ethical" things), we are making an assumption, however unwittingly, that he is a major poet and thus he could perhaps be capable of a political poetry which is effectively political. We wouldn't be complaining that he isn't political enough unless we had already assumed that he possesses some kind of tool (his "gift") which has more inherent political applicability than other tools. I think that, in doing this, we are idealizing. To us, he is 'beyond,' extra-capable compared to our capability, so some of us criticize him, in this case, for not embodying more of what we hold to be beyond ourselves such as a kind of effective ethical praxis, whereas to himself he is only himself and I think it might be dangerous to assume otherwise. Maybe a better question is how can we participate in a unilateral collaborative action which mounts a politically effective intervention with "poetry." And I think we should be thankful that we are lucky enough to live in the time of a "major poet" - perhaps more than one. For me, Ashbery's poetry is a particular and salient definition of intelligence, and I think a negative critique is only productive if it takes the form of, What is an alternative to this? not, What should this have been instead of itself? Someone who doesn't like his last five books is free to find a better resource, but what is the use of dwelling on a dissatisfaction? In this regard, a positive critique, I think, would go more like:

How can we apply what is unique here to an absolutely criterion-referenced poetics? Adam

↑ Index

148. J.P. Craig

Re: Amazon is Censoring GLBT Literature, including my own poetry book

Tue 14 Apr 2009

If this is directed at me, I'm assuming that this is an entirely opportunistic exploitation of a breech in Amazon's "security." The timing is related to the publication of the potential of this exploit on a number of blogs. Given the puerile and misogynistic nature of nerd culture, it's no surprise to me that GLBT material was the target of the exploit. Myself, I'm inclined to regard it as a symptom of an overall attitude more than as an effort directed by Amazon or a right-wing group. Call it asymmetrical idiocy.

My assumptions are no more than that, and they're based on what I read on Ars Technica this morning. There's probably more info by now.

Frankly, I find my scenario to be more disturbing: a continual festering hate is, to me, worse than a few bloviating toads and their flocks--people who can be judged non-norm. But when the norm is "ha ha that's gay," well, it's a death of a thousand little cutting humiliations.

I agree with Amy that Amazon's responses are half-assed and disingenuous. I doubt there was will, malevolent or benevolent. Just a corporate beast slouching toward the bottom line and the lowest common denominator (who, I am sure, share the same basement room of a suburban McMansion).

On Apr 13, 2009, at 9:43 PM, Maria Damon wrote:

> why do you suppose this is happening now, under obama, rather than earlier under bush? is the right taking it to the cyber-streets, as it were?
>
> J.P. Craig wrote:
> Amy,
> Thanks for the heads-up. I'll get a protest out somehow between grading tasks.
>
> GLBT lit has taken it hard recently. A couple of years ago, oh crap, more now, time flies, I was talking to the head editor at Naiad press in Florida; they used to be the only folks to do a paperback Lifting Belly, and she told me they were having to dump Stein and some other stuff because they were having such a hard time moving it--they end result was they were transitioning their list to all lesbian erotica. I wonder how much of that problem was this sort of ghetto-izing in bookshops? (Won't somebody think of the children! (Except the gay children; leave them behind.))

I'm going to read the articles you provided links for. If one doesn't tell me what it means to "strip sales rankings," could you let me know? I have a fair idea, but I want to know for sure before I fire off my letter to Amazon and begin spreading the news among my students and immediate friends. JP

On Apr 13, 2009, at 12:45 PM, amy king wrote:

A couple of months ago, Amazon quietly unleashed some sort of campaign to strip certain books of their sales rankings. Unfortunately (& not so coincidentally), most of the books targeted fell under the "Gay/Lesbian" category. Once removed from the sales rankings and placed within the "Adult" category, these books no longer show up in search engines or in Amazon searches. In other words, sales death. How to kill gay books in one easy step? Watch while Amazon quietly removes gay and lesbian titles and renders them invisible. Censorship at its deadliest. Many good people have already been posting and protesting across the internet, and though you may not rely on big name middlemen for your goods, much of America does. Make it your business to send a word of protest Amazon's way!

~~~~

UPDATE – I just checked. I'M THE MAN WHO LOVES YOU, my book of poems that has less sexual content than the abstinence-promoting, Twilight, has been relegated to the "Adult" category because I happened to have labeled it, myself, Gay and Lesbian. Go figure. It ain't even erotic poetry,peeps!http://www.amazon.com/im-man-who-loves-you/dp/1934289337/sr=1-43/qid=1170862251/ref=sr_1_43/103-6971696-8767859?ie=utf8&s=books

Lots of links to folks reactions on my blog: http://amyking.org/

> The Huffington Post -- http://www.huffingtonpost.com/emma-rubysachs/amazon-censors-gay-books_b_186153.html
>
> A Petition -- http://www.thepetitionsite.com/1/in-protest-at-amazons-new-adult-policy
>
> And of course, more seed for the campaign to use places like SPD (Small Press Distribution), indie bookstores, etc.
>
> I'd check your own book if there's any GLBT interest in it -- anyone can label your book as such, which Amazon will have used to remove your book from their search engines.
>
> Best,
>
> Amy
>
> _____
>
> Amy's Alias
>
> http://amyking.org/
>
> welcome.html
>
> welcome.html
>
> welcome.html

↑ Index

149. Small Press Traffic

REMINDER: This Saturday:Tan Lin and Chet Wiener!

Tue 14 Apr 2009

Please excuse our cross-posting but not our enthusiasm for this fantastic reading!

Tan Lin & Chet Wiener
Saturday, April 18, 2009 at 6:30 p.m.

Co-Sponsored with The New Reading Series at 21 Grand
At 21 Grand • 416 25th Street in Oakland

Tan Lin is the author of Lotion Bullwhip Giraffe, BlipSoak01, and Plagiarism/Outsource: Heath. Lin is the recipient of a Getty Distinguished Scholar Grant for 2004-2005 and a Warhol Foundation/Creative Capital Arts Writing Grant to complete a book on the writings of Andy Warhol. He has recently completed a novel, Our Feelings Were Made By Hand. He teaches English at New Jersey City University.

Chet Wiener writes poetry in English and French. He is the author of a book of poems in French, Devant l'abondance (P.O.L 2003) and the chapbook WalkDontWalk (Potes and Poets 1999). He has translated Félix Guattari and Pierre Alferi, among others into English, co-edited, with Stacy Doris, the collection of translations: Christophe Tarkos; Ma Langue est Poétique (Roof Books, 2000), and his poems, translations and essays on translation have appeared in publications in the United States and France. He is a specialist in 16th-century French literature and philosophy, translates for the French Ministries of Culture and European and Foreign Affairs and writes medical filing documents for review by the FDA and other regulatory agencies internationally. He lives in San Francisco.

Please note special time, day, and location for this co-sponsored event!

--
Samantha Giles
Executive Director
Small Press Traffic Literary Arts Center
sptraffic.org
smallpresstraffic.blogspot.com

↑ Index

150. Cara Benson deadline
Tue 14 Apr 2009

Sous Rature reading
Requests for a deadline have been heard, and met.

Sous Rature reading period for 3ssue will close May 1.

thank you

_____

http://www.necessetics.com {homepage}

http://www.necessetics.com/sousrature.html {journal}

http://www.necessetics.com/necessarypress.html {press}

↑ Index

151. David Chirot

Re: Reposting: is it asking too much of Ashbery?

Tue 14 Apr 2009

Thank you Aryanil for a brilliant letter!

I like the way you suggest the word "possibility" rather than "indeterminancy"--

I wondered also why the example from Rod Smith is supposed to be evidence of a " more worldy sensibility, and address(es) something social," when it is a description of an episode of a TV show which is in rerun for over thirty years as being taken by one of the persons in the story to be an image of "America now."

Not having read the book from which this is taken, I don't know if the author is writing a parody, or proposing a description of an event among "real" or "fictional" or "stereotypical" persons--as "illustrative" of his idea of a certain American "voice" or "persona"--and "what they might say and think"--or is "in actuality based on a real event in the author's life" etc-- (Or as they say on the Tru Channel: "Not reality. Actuality.")

It is a description of a "social occaision" in which a "character" reads a TV rerun as showing the problems of "America now," but how it is "more worldly" and "addressing something social" in ways Ashbery's current writings aren't and do not, one can't really say on the strength of the evidence given.

(This itself may be said to be a form of "Indeterminancy" may it not, in its own humble way--"the not being able to say due to the lack of sufficient evidence either way"--as a recognition of an Indeterminancy--in that "the matter at hand is Indeterminate at present"--)

Actually the idea that past/future actions are not changeable in the present is one daily disproven by some very simple methods. Also the "inevitability" of the progression of the Past to the Present in terms of a Future is also not very hard to demontsrate and create. In many ways in many media, this is going on al around one every day--

One does not have to travel into the past of five seconds ago at all--when one has so much more already at one's command right now--write now!

For example: there are a number of Israeli State and Pro-Israeli groups whose functions are to continually alter or have deleted any posts, you tube, Google, Face Book, etc which are deemed "critical of Israel."

As a Government Minister said, this is a form of Assault analogous to that carried out recently on Gaza.

By these means, it is not just references which refer to the present which are "disappeared," but also those which in any way refer to such past incidents as are deemed "detrimental to the image of the State of Israel."

The removal or alteration of events, names, ideas makes possible the continual reinvention, revision not only of the Past, but also of the Future as it approaches as "new information" to be eradicated and substituted by information which conforms to the trajectory of a History which proves itself to be as it were Fore Ordained.

This is a method long long in use in the world' s newspapers, scrolls, monuments, school texts, history books, and histories of Culture. The difference is simply that the arenas of information/disinformation and censorship have been greatly extended throughout ever more media of communication and "keeping of records." The idea of using these as a form of "Assault" is also very ancient--as is the idea of stating publicly that one is going to undertake these tactics. For this plants doubt ahead of time in all forms of information as to whether or not they have been altered yet or not. That doubt is as debilitating as a direct assault in psychological and stress terms.

This is a method which in the Present is making the Future"happen now" so that when it does actually happen--it will not be noticed as a "drastic change" but simply as something already long done, a fait accompli. Or, as something long predicted, and thus "not at all surprising" and revelatory once again of the "correctness of the State's thinking." The "Future" has actually "all along existed as the Past," in these terms, so that the sense of a series of events "having happened" is removed and one finds instead those smooth surfaces of Deleuze and Guattari in which the War and State Machines glide along without any resistance or friction whatsoever. "As it It is Now, as it Was and as it Ever Shall be."

It is not just the deleting or altering of texts and images which is undertaken, but also that of altering maps on line so that the Palestinian names of refugee camps, villages, hills--are all renamed in Hebrew, giving the impression that these sites are already part of Israel, so that when they are indeed "owned" in actuality via force, no one wil notice this "drastic change," and, if any protests are launched, al one has to do is point to the maps on line, in order to say, these Hebrew-named villages have been there all along.

One aspect of the Indeterminacy Principle is that the observer affects what is observed.

By altering ahead of time what it is that the Observer will observe, one has the ability to indeed "change the action in the present" of that "in the future" by way of the altering of the Past to conform to both Future and Present. that is, that "ahead of time" the pointsof reference which will be used in the making of an Observation will have been altered so that what is now a possible Observation has already been earidicated and substituted by one which "has never happened except in terms of language, by rebarding, etc."

That is, a Past which never was, can be used to alter the possiblities of a Future via a reordering in the Present of the range of probabilities, of statistical "outcomes."

Language itself is altering time, distorting it, contaminating it and permeating it with particles of corrosive effect, or of the kind that are "rotten before ripe."

If one cannot completely control the Observer's observations, at least one has introduced differences into them by way of disinformation which will take them on a "detour" from the actuality of the present "on the ground."

This detouring--or "detourning"--"shifts the balance of power, the probabilities of outcomes"--

The term "rebranding" has gained widespread use in recent years for everything from the naming of products to the naming of policies. The latter, after all, from the point of view of Business journals such as the one which declared President Obama their Man of the (Business, Marketing) Year are one and the same. The rebranding by the Obama administration of practically every term from the Bush days to do with the War on Terror (now known as Overseas Contingency Operations; Terrorist Acts, Bombings etc-- are now called Man Made Disasters--) leads people to think that there is indeed "Change" when in fact the same old--and sometimes far worse--policies are in use as under Bush.

The Present is "Changed" in name only from the Past--leading the citizens to think that their Future is "going to be different" than what it would have been previously. "The names may change, but the game remains the same," as the saying goes.

The difference between "can not" and "could not" no longer matters, because the Past is altered in the Present to conform with that version of the Future which is not "going to happen," but "already has happened " and awaits only to fulfill its destiny "on the ground."

This is the approach utilized by Big Brother in Orwell's 1984, and also one suggested by the terminologies of Imperialism and Colonialism, which posit such "Inevitabilities" linking Past Present and Future in an indissoluable Union as "Manifest Destiny."

Because the act of observation plays a part in the event being observed, what is important in terms of language is to "rebrand" perceptions of the observations of how the event was perceived to have been happening at the same time that it was happening. I.E. the" Present" is always just a bit in arrears of the "real time present," and existing already as an "after the fact" Past of what is just to come as its own "Future"--that arrival "after the fact" of a Present which has turned into a Futurity--its own Futurity.

("Deja vu all over again"--"it is new to me, yet not unknown" (the Uncanny)--

A chilling example of these varieties, possibilities, probabilities of modus operandi is found in a sign often hanging in the offices of the State Bureaucracies in charge of the "Health and Human Services" and various others related to Probation and Parole.

This sign simply states:

"If it is not in writing, it never happened."

Thus, "As it is Written, So Shall it Be"-(and "So it Was" and "So it is Now")---is at the heart of the Control via language that a writer/sound and film experimenter like Burroughs, for example, seeks to "Cut Up"--to create "Break through in the Grey Room where the reality Films" are edited.

,

On Tue, Apr 14, 2009 at 9:32 AM, Patrick Dillon <[redacted]>wrote:

> Jim,
>
> Your post reminds me of an essay I read in the NYT about David Foster Wallace's undergraduate thesis. I think it may be of interest so I will quote at length here:
>
> The fatalist contends, quite radically, that human actions and decisions have no influence on the future. Your behavior today no more shapes events tomorrow than it shapes events yesterday. Instead, in a seemingly backward way, the fatalist says it is how things are in the future that uniquely constrains what happens right now. What might seem like an open possibility subject to human choice — say, whether you fire your handgun — is already either impossible or absolutely necessary. You are merely going with some cosmic flow.
>
> Perhaps most counterintuitively, the fatalist argues that this topsy-turvy doctrine can be established by mere reflection on the simple logic of propositions about the future. If I fire my handgun, one second from now its > barrel will be hot; if I do not fire, one second from now the barrel will not be hot; but the proposition one second from now the barrel will be hotis right now either true or false. If the proposition is true, then

> it is > the case that I will fire the gun; if it's false, then it is the case that I > won't. Either way, it's the state of affairs in the future that dictates > what I will or won't do now.
>
> [...]
> But how to straighten out Taylor's fatalism? Wallace proposed that there was > a flaw in Taylor's argument, a hidden defect. In essence, Taylor was > treating two types of propositions as if they were the same, when in fact > they needed to be distinguished and treated differently. Consider the > sentences "It was the case that I couldn't fire my handgun" and "It cannot > be the case that I did fire my handgun." At first they may sound similar, > but Wallace argued that they involve quite different notions of > impossibility. "It was the case that I couldn't fire my handgun" refers to a > past situation in which discharge is deemed impossible because (let's say) > my gun was broken. "It cannot be the case that I did fire my handgun" refers > to a present situation in which discharge is deemed impossible because > (let's say) my gun is still cool to the touch. The first notion involves an > earlier, physical constraint on firing (namely, the broken gun); the other > involves the current absence of a necessary consequence of firing (namely, a > hot barrel). An extremely sensitive observer of language, Wallace noted that > there is a subtle indicator of this important distinction already at work in > our language: the fine differentiation in meaning between "I couldn't have > done such and so" and "I can't have done such and so."
>
> Full text available here:
> http://www.nytimes.com/2008/12/14/magazine/14wwln-Wallace-t.html
>
> pd
>
> On Tue, Apr 14, 2009 at 1:23 AM, Jim Andrews <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> "Indeterminacy" can mean many things, depending on the context. But the > basic scenario regarding indeterminacy that I think of is this:
>
> Suppose we were able to go back five seconds in time right now. And suppose > *that everything, and I mean everything, was as it was before, at that* > moment, including us, down to the last atom. Could we do anything other than > what we did, when time resumes?

I don't see how it could be possible, personally.

As for Ashbery, he trips the light fantastic where few can go. That's liberating.

ja

Also, as a man of science, let me say this - 20th century science has made it apparent, especially towards the latter half, that the world we live in cannot quite be explained in a deterministic fashion anymore. Everything is governed by laws of statistics/probability. Even laws are themselves, at times, a function of statistical rules. The success of the Genome project, for example, contrary to popular belief, only goes to prove that there IS indeterminacy, but a deeper knowledge of that could help us take the chances better. Knowledge-space is a casino we are all in, you just need to be a better gambler to get a better understanding of the "dicy". Einstein, who had once remarked, "God does not play dice with the universe" (btw, there is an ashbery poem that refers to that statement) reverts it in his later years. Energy is perceived as discreet, discontinuous packets; the whole gamut of Bose-Einstein statistics is born etc.

One of the very few poets, in any language, who has successfully gotten closest to this "real" world (of indeterminacy) is Ashbery. His scholars have flaunted the word "uncertainty" so often to discuss this aspect of his poetry (even John seems to like the word). I would argue for the word "possibility" instead.

aryanil

guidelines

↑ Index

152. steve russell

Re: Reposting: is it asking too much of Ashbery?

Tue 14 Apr 2009

Schrodinger's cat remains the best scientific hypothesis concerning indeterminacy. But I also like Foucalt's matter of fact approach, especially as it concerns sanity or "human nature." Sanity, according to Foucalt, is simply a matter of power, or who is in control. The insane are locked up by the sane.

As for Ashbery, I always think of Picasso when I try to quantify who is or isn't a major artist (which maybe ill advised, still...). & Picasso had a very strong ealy period/middle period/and closed well. My only problem with Ashbery is Late Ashbery.

--- On Tue, 4/14/09, Patrick Dillon <[redacted]> wrote:

> From: Patrick Dillon <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: Reposting: is it asking too much of Ashbery?
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Tuesday, April 14, 2009, 12:32 PM
> Jim,
>
> Your post reminds me of an essay I read in the NYT about
> David Foster
> Wallace's undergraduate thesis. I think it may be of > interest so I will > quote at length here:
>
> The fatalist contends, quite radically, that human actions > and decisions > have no influence on the future. Your behavior today no > more shapes events > tomorrow than it shapes events yesterday. Instead, in a > seemingly backward > way, the fatalist says it is how things are in the future > that uniquely > constrains what happens right now. What might seem like an > open possibility > subject to human choice â€” say, whether you fire your > handgun â€” is already > either impossible or absolutely necessary. You are merely > going with some > cosmic flow.
>
> Perhaps most counterintuitively, the fatalist argues that > this topsy-turvy > doctrine can be established by mere reflection on the > simple logic of > propositions about the future. If I fire my handgun, one second from now its > barrel will be hot; if I do not fire, one second from now the barrel will > not be hot; but the proposition one second from now the barrel will be > hotis right now either true or false. If the proposition is true, then > it is > the case that I will fire the gun; if itâ€™s false, then it is the case that I > wonâ€™t. Either way, itâ€™s the state of affairs in the future that dictates > what I will or wonâ€™t do now.

>
> [...]
> But how to straighten out Taylorâ€™s fatalism? Wallace proposed that there was > a flaw in Taylorâ€™s argument, a hidden defect. In essence, Taylor was > treating two types of propositions as if they were the same, when in fact > they needed to be distinguished and treated differently. Consider the > sentences â€œIt was the case that I couldnâ€™t fire my handgunâ€ and â€œIt cannot > be the case that I did fire my handgun.â€ At first they may sound similar,
> but Wallace argued that they involve quite different notions of > impossibility. â€œIt was the case that I couldnâ€™t fire my handgunâ€ refers to a > past situation in which discharge is deemed impossible because (letâ€™s say) > my gun was broken. â€œIt cannot be the case that I did fire my handgunâ€ refers > to a present situation in which discharge is deemed impossible because > (letâ€™s say) my gun is still cool to the touch. The first notion involves an > earlier, physical constraint on firing (namely, the broken gun); the other
> involves the current absence of a necessary consequence of firing (namely, a > hot barrel). An extremely sensitive observer of language, Wallace noted that > there is a subtle indicator of this important distinction already at work in > our language: the fine differentiation in meaning between > â€œI couldnâ€™t have > done such and soâ€ and â€œI canâ€™t have done such and > so.â€

>
> Full text available here:
> http://www.nytimes.com/2008/12/14/magazine/14wwln-Wallace-t.html
>
> pd
>
> On Tue, Apr 14, 2009 at 1:23 AM, Jim Andrews
> <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> "Indeterminacy" can mean many things, > depending on the context. But the > basic scenario regarding indeterminacy that I think of > is this:
>
> Suppose we were able to go back five seconds in time > right now. And suppose > *that everything, and I mean everything, was as it* > was before, at that > moment, including us, down to the last atom. Could we > do anything other than > what we did, when time resumes?
>
> I don't see how it could be possible, personally.
>
> As for Ashbery, he trips the light fantastic where few > can go. That's > liberating.
>
> ja
>
> Also, as a man of science, let me say this - 20th > century science has made > it apparent, especially towards the latter half, > that the world we live in > cannot quite be explained in a deterministic > fashion anymore. Everything
> is > governed by laws of statistics/probability. Even > laws are themselves, at > times, a function of statistical rules. The > success of the Genome project, > for example, contrary to popular belief, only goes > to prove that there IS > indeterminacy, but a deeper knowledge of that > could help us take the > chances > better. Knowledge-space is a casino we are all in,

> you just need to be a > better gambler to get a better understanding of > the "dicy". Einstein, who > had once remarked, "God does not play dice > with the universe" (btw, there
> is > an ashbery poem that refers to that statement) > reverts it in his later > years. Energy is perceived as discreet, > discontinuous packets; the whole > gamut of Bose-Einstein statistics is born etc.
>
> One of the very few poets, in any language, who > has successfully gotten > closest to this "real" world (of > indeterminacy) is Ashbery. His scholars > have flaunted the word "uncertainty" so > often to discuss this aspect of > his > poetry (even John seems to like the word). I would > argue for the word
> "possibility" instead.
>
> aryanil
>
> all posts. Check guidelines

↑ Index

153. Mark Weiss

Fanny Howe and Ange Mlinko Receive Major Literary Awards

Tue 14 Apr 2009

For Immediate Release
April 14, 2009
<http://www.poetryfoundation.org/foundation/announcements.html>www.poetryfoundation.org/foundation/announcements.html
Media Director: Anne Halsey, [redacted];
<mailto:[redacted]>[redacted]

Fanny Howe and Ange Mlinko Receive Major Literary Awards from Poetry Foundation
Howe to receive $100,000 Ruth Lilly Poetry Prize

CHICAGO The Poetry Foundation, publisher of Poetry magazine, is pleased to announce that poets Fanny Howe and Ange Mlinko are the winners of its sixth annual Pegasus Awards.

Howe is the recipient of the 2009 Ruth Lilly Poetry Prize. Established in 1986 and presented annually by the Poetry Foundation to a living U.S. poet whose lifetime accomplishments warrant extraordinary recognition, the Ruth Lilly Prize is one of the most prestigious awards given to American poets, and at $100,000 it is one of the nation's largest literary prizes. Poet and critic Ange Mlinko is the winner of the Randall Jarrell Award in Poetry Criticism. The prizes will be presented at the Pegasus Awards ceremony at the Arts Club of Chicago on Tuesday, May 19.

In announcing the Lilly Prize, Christian Wiman, editor of Poetry magazine, said: "Fanny Howe is a religious writer whose work makes you more alert and alive to the earth, an experimental writer who can break your heart. Live in her world for a while, and it can change the way you think of yours."

"The selection of Fanny Howe as this year's winner of the Lilly Prize does honor to the traditionsof excellence, importance, and discoverythat the prize has stood for since it was established over 20 years ago," said John Barr, president of the Poetry Foundation.

The Poetry Foundation issued the following statement in making the award: "Reading Fanny Howeboth the poetry and the proseone has the sense of a life that has been inhabited so intensely and lovingly that even her smallest fragments seem steeped in that experience. Her poetry can be elusive and hermetic, and then abruptly and devastatingly candid; it is marked by the pressures of history and culture, yet defiantly, transcendently lyrical. She is a demanding and deeply rewarding artist, and her body of work seems larger, stranger, and more permanent with each new book she publishes."

Fanny Howe, 68, has written many books of poetry, including Gone (University of California Press, 2003), Selected Poems (UC Press, 2000), On the Ground (Graywolf Press, 2004), and The Lyrics (Graywolf, 2007). She has also written novels, five of which have been collected in one volume called Radical Love. At age 17 Howe left her home in Boston for California and has since spent her life there and in England, Ireland, and Massachusetts. In recent years she has won the Lenore Marshall Poetry Prize, a fellowship from the Guggenheim Foundation, and an award from the American Academy of Arts and Letters. She has written two collections of essays, The Wedding Dress (UC Press, 2003) and The Winter Sun (Graywolf, 2009). Howe has three grown children and six little grandchildren; she currently lives on Martha's Vineyard.

Ange Mlinko is the third recipient of the Randall Jarrell Award in Poetry Criticism. The $10,000 prize is awarded for poetry criticism that is intelligent and learned as well as lively and enjoyable to read. Mlinko, 39, is the author of two books, Matinees (Zoland Books, 1999) and Starred Wire (Coffee House Press, 2005), which was a National Poetry Series winner in 2004 and a finalist for the James Laughlin Award the following year.

The Poetry Foundation issued the following statement in announcing Mlinko's award: "From Sappho to the Language poets, from Nicolas of Cusa to The Brady Bunch, Ange Mlinko's criticism is brilliantly wide-ranging; it is eclectic and astringent yet always lucid and generous. We are pleased to recognize a young critic whose distinctive sharp wit and formidable power have helped revitalize the art of writing about poetry."

Mlinko was born in Philadelphia and currently lives in the lower Hudson Valley, where she raises her two sons. She has an undergraduate degree in philosophy and mathematics from St. John's College and an MFA from the Creative Writing Program at Brown University. Her poetry and criticism have appeared or are forthcoming in Poetry and the Poetry Foundation website, the London Review of Books, The New Yorker, Bookforum, and The Nation, where she also writes an occasional column on language called Lingo.

***

About the Ruth Lilly Poetry Prize
American poetry has no greater friend than Ruth Lilly. Over many years and in many ways, it has been blessed by her personal generosity. In 1985 she endowed the Ruth Lilly Professorship in Poetry at Indiana University. In 1989 she created Ruth Lilly Poetry Fellowships, for $15,000 each, given annually by the Poetry Foundation to undergraduate or graduate students selected through a national competition. In 2002 her lifetime engagement with poetry culminated in a magnificent bequest that will enable the Poetry Foundation to promote, in perpetuity, a vigorous presence for poetry in our culture.

The Ruth Lilly Poetry Prize honors a living U.S. poet whose lifetime accomplishments warrant extraordinary recognition. Established in 1986 by Ruth Lilly, the annual prize is sponsored and administered by the Poetry Foundation, publisher of Poetry magazine. Over the last 20 years, the Lilly Prize has awarded more than $1,000,000. The previous recipients are Adrienne Rich, Philip Levine, Anthony Hecht, Mona Van Duyn, Hayden Carruth, David Wagoner, John Ashbery, Charles Wright, Donald Hall, A.R. Ammons, Gerald Stern, William Matthews, W.S. Merwin, Maxine Kumin, Carl Dennis, Yusef Komunyakaa, Lisel Mueller, Linda Pastan, Kay Ryan, C.K. Williams, Richard Wilbur, Lucille Clifton, and Gary Snyder.

About the Pegasus Awards
The Poetry Foundation has established a family of prizes with an emphasis on new awards to under-recognized poets and types of poetry. Inaugurated in 2004, the Pegasus Awards are announced annually in the spring. The Poetry Foundation believes that targeted prizes can help redress underappreciated accomplishments, diversify the kinds of poetry being written, and widen the audience for the art form. With this in mind, it may create additional prizes in the years ahead.

About the Poetry Foundation
The Poetry Foundation, publisher of Poetry magazine and one of the largest literary organizations in the world, exists to discover and celebrate the best poetry and to place it before the largest possible audience. The Poetry Foundation seeks to be a leader in shaping a receptive climate for poetry by developing new audiences, creating new avenues for delivery, and encouraging new kinds of poetry through innovative literary prizes and programs. For more information, please visit <http://thepoetryfoundation.createsend4.com/t/r/l/tydrth/xzjkiku/r>www.poetryfoundation.org.

POETRY FOUNDATION | 444 North Michigan Avenue |
Chicago, IL 60611 | [redacted]

↑ Index

154. Jim Andrews
Re: Reposting: is it asking too much of Ashbery?
Tue 14 Apr 2009

---

patrick,

we could have arrived where we are by various paths. the future does not determine the past. some types of things/events/conditions are such that we can infer things/events/conditions that must have preceded them. but many can have had multiple precedents. causality is not bijective. it is like a function, though, in that each moment is mapped to but one future moment. or so it seems to me. we can imagine various things that we could do next. i could type a j. or i could type a ?. but not both.

what is choice, then? certainly we do make our choices.

yet in that scenario i outlined in my last e, i said i don't see how it's possible that if we went back in time five seconds, and everything was exactly the same as it was, that i could do anything other than i did. if that is true, then what is choice?

thanks for that.

ja
http://vispo.com

↑ Index

155. Fluffy Singler
4000 WORDS 4000 DEAD
Tue 14 Apr 2009

This looks amazing! I wish I had the time to organize a version of it here in Minneapolis to coincide. This is the kind of thing that would be great to do in several cities simultaneously.

I'm sending it around to as many people as I can, including some friends in Chicago.

-----Original Message-----
From: Jennifer Karmin [mailto:[redacted]]
Sent: Monday, April 13, 2009 1:27 PM
Subject: 4000 WORDS 4000 DEAD

4000 WORDS 4000 DEAD
street performance by Jennifer Karmin

Sunday, April 19th
Chicago, IL

3:30pm in front of the U.S. Army Career Center
downtown at Harrison and State

Jennifer Karmin has been collecting 4000 WORDS for the 4000 DEAD Americans in Iraq. All words are being used to create a public poem. During street performances, she gives away these words to passing pedestrians.

Submissions are ongoing as the Iraq War continues and the number of dead grows. Send 1-10 words with subject 4000 WORDS to [redacted].

"I want to start with the milestone today of 4,000 dead in Iraq. Americans. And just what effect do you think it has on the country?"

-- Martha Raddatz,
ABC News' White House correspondent to Dick Cheney

Participants include: Harold Abramowitz, Amanda Ackerman, Manan Ahmed, mIEKAL aND, David Baratier, Michael Basinski, Charles Bernstein, Anselm Berrigan, Rachel Blau DuPlessis, Laynie Browne, Lee Ann Brown, Amina Cain, Teresa Carmody, Maxine Chernoff, Catherine Daly, Patrick Durgin, Annie Finch, Daniel Godston, Arielle Greenberg, Kate Greenstreet, Roberto Harrison, Carla Harryman, David Hernandez, Jen Hofer, Lisa Janssen, Pierre Joris, John Keene, Matthew Klane, Toni Asante Lightfoot, Joyelle McSweeney, Miranda Mellis, Philip Metres, Vanessa Place, Kristin Prevallet, Lisa Samuels, Susan Schultz, Laura Sims, Juliana Spahr, Christopher Stackhouse, Chuck Stebelton, Stacy Szymaszek, Tony Trigilio, Eric Unger, Joshua Marie Wilkinson, Andrew Zawacki, and many more.

Sponsored by:
The Poetry Bomb
http://www.myspace.com/thepoetrybomb

Random acts of poetry in the city, suburbs, parks
everywhere / anywhere people will hear it
pick a location that works best for you contact [redacted]

↑ Index

156. George Bowering
Re: is it asking too much of Ashbery?
Tue 14 Apr 2009

Wasn't the The Tennnis Court Oath?

On Apr 14, 2009, at 8:24 AM, steve russell wrote:

> Rivers & Mountains and Tennis Court Oath -- they're early Ashberry, > probably the period of his strongest work. After Wave or maybe > Flow Chart, I'm not so sure -- nothing too exciting in the last 10 > or 15 years that I'm aware of -- > although the collages (some, I hear, were worthy of Joseph Cornell) > were interesting.
>
> --- On Mon, 4/13/09, Aryanil Mukherjee <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> From: Aryanil Mukherjee <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: is it asking too much of Ashbery?
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Monday, April 13, 2009, 2:20 PM

> Great post! I second it.
>
> Also, those who think he did nothing beyond TCO, let me ask - how many poets we know who can follow up a savagely experimental book like TCO with something as lyrically honeyed as Rivers and Mountains ? Thematic, topical and formative consistency is a natural expectation for most great poets. I find none as self-effacing as Ashbery. Yet, there IS a consistency.
>
> Also, as a man of science, let me say this - 20th century science has made it apparent, especially towards the latter half, that the world we live in cannot quite be explained is a deterministic fashion anymore. Everything is governed by laws of statistics/probability. Even laws are themselves, a function of statistical rules at times. The success of Genome project, for example, contrary to popular belief, only goes to prove that there IS indeterminacy, but a deeper knowledge of that could help us take the chances better. Knowledge-space is a casino we are in, you could just be a better gambler to get a better understanding. Einstein, who had once remarked, "God does not play dice with the universe" (btw, there is an ashbery poem that refers to that statement) reverts it in his later years. Energy is perceived as discreet, discontinuous packets; the whole gamut of Bose-Einstein statistics is born etc.
>
> One of the very few poets, in any language, who has successfully gotten closest to this "real" world (of indeterminacy) is Ashbery. His scholars have flaunted the word "uncertainty" so often to discuss this aspect of his poetry (even John seems like the word). I would argue for the word "possibility" instead.

> aryanil
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB)
> [mailto:[redacted]] On > Behalf Of [redacted]
> Sent: Sunday, April 12, 2009 11:37 PM
> To: [redacted]
> Subject: Re: is it asking too much of Ashberry?
>
> The most amazing thing about Ashbery is his appeal. I know
> there are some on
> this list that view popularity as being a sell out. Ashbery
> never > compromised the integrity of his art. Yet, if you are lucky > enough to hear > him read, seventeen year olds and octogenarians all join in
> and recite his
> work word for word.
>
> His work addresses polital issues by means of immersion
>
> That speaks volumes
>
> Peace
> Russ
>
> posts. Check guidelines
>
> welcome.html

George H. Bowering
Wishes your happiness.

↑ Index

157. Daniel Godston
Listening to Our Planet
Wed 15 Apr 2009

Listening to Our Planet

Monday, April 20, 2009 (10 a.m.-6 p.m.)

Conaway Center
Columbia College Chicago
1104 S. Wabash Ave., 1st floor
Chicago, IL 60605

Listening to Our Planet is a multidisciplinary, multi-departmental event which happens during Earth Week 2009. This event is part of Columbia College Chicago's Critical Encounters calendar of events; "Human / Nature" is the theme for this year's Critical Encounters program. The purposes of Listening to Our Planet are: to celebrate the Earth and its natural beauty and resources; to raise awareness about issues relating to our environment, such as pollution and global warming; and to give opportunities for members of the Columbia College Chicago community (students, faculty, and staff) as well as organizations in the community to present work that relates to these themes.

Listening to Our Planet involves poetry and essay readings, audio recordings, video screenings, and other art forms. Faculty and students in The English, Entertainment and Media Management Departments; the New Millennium Studies program; and other Columbia College departments and programs will be involved with Listening to Our Planet. In addition, this event will showcase work by individuals involved with organizations in the community, such as The Center for Community Arts Partnerships, Snow City Arts, the World Listening Project, and Urban Gateways.

Listening to Our Planet is free and open to the public. A program will be provided.

10:00 a.m.
Introduction
Images from the Hyperbolic Coral Reef are shown.
Images from Lisa Fedich's and Lindsay Obermeyer's Cool Globes are shown. Lindsay talks about her involvement with Cool Globes. The images and poems seen on Lisa's Cool Globe were created by children and teens who worked with Lisa, through Snow City Arts at Rush Children's Hospital.
Chad Clark from Chicago Phonography and the World Listening Project plays field recordings.
James Armstrong reads selections of his poetry, via skype.
Students from ACT Charter School read selections of their poetry. These poems were written during a Project AIM residency. Project AIM is part of the Center for Community Arts Partnerships.

11:00 a.m.
Students in Maureen Ewing's Writing & Rhetoric II class give presentations.
Chad Clark plays field recordings.
Alpha Bruton talks about work she has done as a master gardener, with urban gardening in Chicago.

Betta Broad talks about Earth Day New York, over the telephone.

noon-3:00 p.m:
The Essay Smash happens.
Chad Clark and Jayve Montgomery, from the World Listening Project, play field recordings.

3:00 p.m.:
Joyce Jenkins, Editor/Publisher of Poetry Flash, talks about the Watershed Environmental Poetry Festival, over the telephone.
Kurt Brown reads selections of his poetry, over the telephone.
Christine Dawson talks about her Floating English Garden project.
Steve Scott reads several poems.
Jayve Montgomery plays field recordings.
Projects created by young Urban Gateways artists are presented.
Jayve Montgomery plays field recordings.

4:00 p.m.:
Students in Dan Godston's New Millennium Studies class present creative projects.
Excerpts from The Soundscape, by R. Murray Schafer, are read.
Soundwalkers, a video by Raquel Castro, is screened.
Alison Hawthorne Deming reads selections of her poetry, via skype.
Wild Sanctuary is introduced.

5:00 p.m.:
Bernie Krause and Eric Leonardson in conversation.
Allan Johnston reads selections of his poetry.
Eric Leonardson, from the World Listening Project, plays field recordings.

James Armstrong: http://www.winona.edu/english/faculty/armstrong.htm
Kurt Brown: http://www.paulagordon.com/shows/kbrown/
Alpha Bruton: http://www.alphabruton.com/
Chicago Phonography: http://www.chicagophonography.com/
Cool Globes: http://www.coolglobes.com
Earth Day New York: http://www.earthdayny.org/
Critical Encounters: http://www.colum.edu/criticalencounters/Floating English Garden:
http://www.oneclimate.net/2009/03/19/floating-english-garden-art-installation/
Alison Hawthorne Deming: http://www.alisonhawthornedeming.com/
Hyperbolic Crochet Reef: http://dreamingincrochet.blogspot.com/
Allan Johnston: http://www.poetsencyclopedia.com/allanjohnston.shtml
Bernie Krause / Wild Sanctuary: http://www.wildsanctuary.com/

Eric Leonardson: http://www.ericleonardson.org/
Jayve Montgomery: http://jayvejohnmontgomery.com/
Lindsay Obermeyer: http://www.lbostudio.com/
Poetry Flash: http://www.poetryflash.org/
Project AIM: http://www.colum.edu/CCAP/Programs/Project_AIM.php
Snow City Arts: http://www.snowcityarts.com/
Urban Gateways: http://www.urbangateways.org/
World Listening Project: http://www.worldlisteningproject.org

↑ Index

158. Pierre Joris

Recent Nomadics posts

Wed 15 Apr 2009

Check out these recent posts on Nomadics blog @ http://pierrejoris.com/blog

Unica Zürn: Dark Spring
Franklin Rosemont (1943-2009)
Two Poems by Goethe
Jerome Rothenberg @ Zinc Bar
Tengour Reading @ Albany U
… y mas of the past (week)
One busy week…
Mirror Images: Challenges for Arab & Islamic Studies
Leonard Schwartz on Martin Buber & Palestine

Enjoy & respond!

Pierre
==========
"Play what you don't know" -- Sun Ra
==========
Pierre Joris
244 Elm Street
Albany NY 12202-1310
h: [redacted]
c: [redacted]
o: 518 442 40 71
Euro cell: (011 33) 6 75 43 57 10
email: [redacted]
http://pierrejoris.com
http://pierrejoris.com/blog/

==========
=

↑ Index

159. Séamas Cain

The death of Franklin Rosemont

Wed 15 Apr 2009

Franklin Rosemont, surrealist poet, artist, historian, street speaker, & labor activist, died of an aneurysm on Sunday, April 12th in Chicago, Illinois. He was 65 years old. With his partner & comrade, Penelope Rosemont, & lifelong friend Paul Garon, he co-founded the Chicago Surrealist Group, a remarkable presence in the art & activism landscape of Chicago for forty years.

Rosemont did not separate scholarship from art, or art from political & social revolt. His books of poetry include "The morning of a machine gun" (Chicago : Surrealist Editions, 1968); "The apple of the automatic zebra's eye" (Cambridge, Massachusetts : Radical America, 1971); "Lamps hurled at the stunning algebra of ants" (Chicago : Surrealist Editions & Black Swan Press, 1990); & "Penelope" (Chicago : Surrealist Editions, 1997).

Rosemont was a leading figure in the reorganization of America’s oldest labor press, the Charles H. Kerr Company. Under the mantle of the Kerr Company, Franklin edited & printed the work of some of the most interesting & important figures in the development of the political left: C.L.R. James, Martin Glaberman, Staughton Lynd, David Dellinger, Cornelius Castoriadis, Sam Dolgoff, Paul Goodman, Grace Lee Boggs, Paul Avrich, Augustin Souchy, Mother Jones, Lucy Parsons, Benjamin Péret, Utah Phillips, Paul Buhle, T-Bone Slim, George Woodcock, and, in a new book released just days before Franklin’s death, Carl Sandburg. In later years, Franklin Rosemont created & edited the Surrealist Histories series at the University of Texas Press, in addition to continuing his work with the Kerr Company & Black Swan Press.

Franklin Rosemont was a friend & valued colleague of such persons as Studs Terkel, Mary Low, the poets Philip Lamantia, Diane di Prima, Lawrence Ferlinghetti, Dennis Brutus, the painter Leonora Carrington, & the historians David Roediger, John Bracey, & Robin D.G. Kelley.

I first encountered Franklin Rosemont face-to-face during the Chicago protests of August 1968. Then & since, I found him to be an amazing blend of contradictions, at once cordial yet cantankerous, amiable yet dismissive, spontaneous & enthusiastic yet grim, social yet unmistakably self-absorbed, creative yet singularly overpowering. Indeed, he was a unique personality.

My condolences & solidarity to Penelope Rosemont, the Chicago group & its affiliates.

Séamas Cain
http://alazanto.org/seamascain
http://seamascain.writernetwork.com
http://www.mnartists.org/Seamas_Cain

_____

↑ Index

160. William Guzzardi
Wag's Revue--Magazine and Contest
Wed 15 Apr 2009

Friends of poetry,

I'd like to announce a new online-only literary quarterly, WAG'S REVUE<http://www.wagsrevue.com/>. The first issue contains poems of Ernst Jandl, translated by Rosmarie Waldrop, as well a video poem, a hypertext, and several other exciting pieces in the poetry section <http://www.wagsrevue.com/Issue1_pg48.html/>; Wag's also publishes fiction, nonfiction and interviews.

The second issue (Summer 2009) will include the winners of our inaugural writing contests, in poetry, fiction and nonfiction. Submission fee is $20; poets may include up to 10 pages of poems in one submission. The winning poet will win $500 along with publication in Wag's Revue. Find more details at our contest page <http://www.wagsrevue.com/Submit.html>.

Find contact information for the editorial staff, and join our mailing list, on our contact page <http://www.wagsrevue.com/Contact.html/>.

Thanks so much for your consideration.

All best,

Will Guzzardi
Poetry Editor, Wag's Revue

↑ Index

161. David-Baptiste Chirot
What's New at Longhouse Spring 2009
Wed 15 Apr 2009

Date: Wed, 15 Apr 2009 08:44:07 -0400
To:

From: [redacted]
Subject: What's New at Longhouse Spring 2009

What's New at Longhouse Spring
2009
1. New Longhouse Titles Spring 2009 & Hiking Down
From A Hillside Sky by Bob Arnold

http://www.longhousepoetry.com/hikingdown.html

Paul Celan translated by Cal Kinnear
Andy Clausen
Hanne Bramness
Bob Arnold
Dadu translated by Andrew Schelling
Stephen Lewandowski
Louise Landes Levi
Ryokan translated by Dennis Maloney

---
2. A New Book by Bob Arnold for Spring 2009 ~
Hiking Down From A Hillside Sky

Bob Arnold's Hiking Down From A Hillside Sky, letterpress printed and published by Greg Joly at Bull Thistle Press in Jamaica, Vermont, has an interesting background...

Please visit for book information, images, and to order:

http://www.longhousepoetry.com/hikingdown.html

---

3. And visit "A Longhouse Birdhouse" for the above & more (our original Longhouse web-site is always a link away for the complete bookstore & publishing)

http://longhousepoetryandpublishers.blogspot.com/

Poetry Bookshop & More! available at

Bob & Susan Arnold

Longhouse, Publishers & Booksellers

1604 River Road

Guilford, Vermont 05301

our web-site: http://www.LonghousePoetry.com

See Doubles, Wish to Add A Friend to the List or Be Removed ? Please E-mail us. _____ Rediscover Hotmail®: Get e-mail storage that grows with you. http://windowslive.com/RediscoverHotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Rediscover_Storage1_042009

↑ Index

162. ALDON L NIELSEN

Fanny Howe Wins Ruth Lillty Prize

Wed 15 Apr 2009

---

here's a link to the LA TIMES story --Â <http://latimesblogs.latimes.com/jacketcopy/2009/04/major-poetry-prize-goes-to-fanny-howe.html>
<<

them, in his 30s perhaps....Gamow's friend explains, "my dad is a salesman and he has travelled all his life, virtually everyday...in these ("c" speed) trains - i.e trains that run at speeds higher than the speed of light. So the dad didn't age for all those hours he spent in the trains...) are all great examples of what I meant by "indeterminacy".

A very recent Asian film by Wong Kar-Wai - "2046" - brilliantly serves as the perfectly obtuse example of how memory and this element of "indeterminacy" could be treated by a creative artist.

Ashbery does all that with such plebeianist grace that most often we don't notice it at all. The "weather-talk" for example. I can't recall another poet who talks so incessantly about weather. "The weather, for example".....the most obvious "unpredictable", but we didn't see it until he said so.

Our most original ideas are the simplest ones.

Then lines like these -

How many snakes and lizards shed their skins
For time to be passing on like this,
Sinking deeper in the sand as it wound toward
The conclusion. ....

(Vetiver/April Galleons, 1987)

Also, if you look at his work from the perspective of the non-English language world, he continues to be one of the most miraculous poets of both the present and the past. Even on the other side of the planet, and in translation. Not much of contemporary English language poetry can claim that - evoke surprisal and lyrical shiver at the same time. In another language, in another land.

Aryanil

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Jim Andrews
Sent: Tuesday, April 14, 2009 6:02 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Reposting: is it asking too much of Ashbery?

patrick,

we could have arrived where we are by various paths. the future does not determine the past. some types of things/events/conditions are such that we can infer things/events/conditions that must have preceded them. but many can have had multiple precedents. causality is not bijective. it is like a function, though, in that each moment is mapped to but one future moment. or so it seems to me. we can imagine various things that we could do next. i could type a j. or i could type a ?. but not both.

what is choice, then? certainly we do make our choices.

yet in that scenario i outlined in my last e, i said i don't see how it's possible that if we went back in time five seconds, and everything was exactly the same as it was, that i could do anything other than i did. if that is true, then what is choice?

thanks for that.

ja
http://vispo.com

↑ Index

164. Patrick Dillon
Re: Reposting: is it asking too much of Ashbery?
Wed 15 Apr 2009

Jim,

Unless I'm misreading something in your email or in the article I cited itself, I do think it speaks directly to your scenario, specifically where you ask COULD I do anything other than I did?

I think, quite simply, yes you could have made done something different. You just didn't. So perhaps that goes some way to defining choice.

It's that keyword "could" that is so important and, accordingly, gets adequate treatment in the article.

pd

On Tue, Apr 14, 2009 at 5:01 PM, Jim Andrews <[redacted]> wrote:

> patrick,
>
> we could have arrived where we are by various paths. the future does not determine the past. some types of things/events/conditions are such that we can infer things/events/conditions that must have preceded them. but many can have had multiple precedents. causality is not bijective. it is like a function, though, in that each moment is mapped to but one future moment. or so it seems to me. we can imagine various things that we could do next. i could type a j. or i could type a ?. but not both.
>
> what is choice, then? certainly we do make our choices.
>
> *yet in that scenario i outlined in my last e, i said i don't see how it's possible that if we went back in time five seconds, and everything was* > exactly the same as it was, that i could do anything other than i did. if that is true, then what is choice?

>
> thanks for that.
>
> ja
> http://vispo.com

↑ Index

165. Aryanil Mukherjee
A Poem by Ashbery
Wed 15 Apr 2009

Here's the Ashbery poem I referred to. It is a personal favorite and I have read it several times lately while trying to translate it to Bangla. I hope the listserv admin would let us read it for once in the context of the recent ashbery-thread. For me, this is an example of a poem, which does the many things critics and literary pundits talk about now and then, but at the same time, it explains itself like "weather" - something everyone understands her or his own way everywhere in the world.

thanks

aryanil mukherjee

==========

Vetiver

John Ashbery

Ages passed slowly, like a load of hay,
As the flowers recited their lines
And pike stirred at the bottom of the pond.
The pen was cool to the touch.
The staircase swept upward
Through fragmented garlands, keeping the melancholy
Already distilled in letters of the alphabet.

It would be time for winter now, its spun-sugar
Palaces and also lines of care
At the mouth, pink smudges on the forehead and cheeks,
The color once known as "ashes of roses."
How many snakes and lizards shed their skins
For time to be passing on like this,
Sinking deeper in the sand as it wound toward

The conclusion. It had all been working so well and now,
Well, it just kind of came apart in the hand
As a change is voiced, sharp
As a fishhook in the throat, and decorative tears flowed Past us into a basin called infinity.

There was no charge for anything, the gates
Had been left open intentionally.
Don't follow, you can have whatever it is.
And in some room someone examines his youth,
Finds it dry and hollow, porous to the touch.
O keep me with you, unless the outdoors Embraces both of us, unites us, unless
The birdcatchers put away their twigs,
The fishermen haul in their sleek empty nets
And others become part of the immense crowd
Around this bonfire, a situation
That has come to mean us to us, and the crying
In the leaves is saved, the last silver drops.

↑ Index

166. cris cheek

Re: Fanny Howe and Ange Mlinko Receive Major Literary Awards

Wed 15 Apr 2009

---

c h e e r !!!!!

^^

On Apr 14, 2009, at 5:39 PM, Mark Weiss wrote:

> For Immediate Release
> April 14, 2009
> <http://www.poetryfoundation.org/foundation/ > announcements.html>www.poetryfoundation.org/foundation/
> announcements.html
> Media Director: Anne Halsey, [redacted]; > <mailto:[redacted]>[redacted]
>
> Fanny Howe and Ange Mlinko Receive Major Literary Awards
> from Poetry Foundation
> Howe to receive $100,000 Ruth Lilly Poetry Prize
>
> CHICAGO The Poetry Foundation, publisher of > Poetry magazine, is pleased to announce that > poets Fanny Howe and Ange Mlinko are the winners > of its sixth annual Pegasus Awards.

Howe is the recipient of the 2009 Ruth Lilly Poetry Prize. Established in 1986 and presented annually by the Poetry Foundation to a living U.S. poet whose lifetime accomplishments warrant extraordinary recognition, the Ruth Lilly Prize is one of the most prestigious awards given to American poets, and at $100,000 it is one of the nation's largest literary prizes. Poet and critic Ange Mlinko is the winner of the Randall Jarrell Award in Poetry Criticism. The prizes will be presented at the Pegasus Awards ceremony at the Arts Club of Chicago on Tuesday, May 19.

In announcing the Lilly Prize, Christian Wiman, editor of Poetry magazine, said: "Fanny Howe is a religious writer whose work makes you more alert and alive to the earth, an experimental writer who can break your heart. Live in her world for a while, and it can change the way you think of yours."

"The selection of Fanny Howe as this year's winner of the Lilly Prize does honor to the traditions of excellence, importance, and discovery that the prize has stood for since it was established over 20 years ago," said John Barr, president of the Poetry Foundation.

The Poetry Foundation issued the following statement in making the award: "Reading Fanny Howe both the poetry and the prose one has the sense of a life that has been inhabited so intensely and lovingly that even her smallest fragments seem steeped in that experience. Her poetry can be elusive and hermetic, and then abruptly and devastatingly candid; it is marked by the pressures of history and culture, yet defiantly, transcendently lyrical. She is a demanding and deeply rewarding artist, and her body of work seems larger, stranger, and more permanent with each new book she publishes."

Fanny Howe, 68, has written many books of poetry, including Gone (University of California Press, 2003), Selected Poems (UC Press, 2000), On the Ground (Graywolf Press, 2004), and The Lyrics (Graywolf, 2007). She has also written novels, five of which have been collected in one volume

called Radical Love. At age 17 Howe left her home in Boston for California and has since spent her life there and in England, Ireland, and Massachusetts. In recent years she has won the Lenore Marshall Poetry Prize, a fellowship from the Guggenheim Foundation, and an award from the American Academy of Arts and Letters. She has written two collections of essays, The Wedding Dress (UC Press, 2003) and The Winter Sun (Graywolf, 2009). Howe has three grown children and six little grandchildren; she currently lives on Martha's Vineyard.

Ange Mlinko is the third recipient of the Randall Jarrell Award in Poetry Criticism. The $10,000 prize is awarded for poetry criticism that is intelligent and learned as well as lively and enjoyable to read. Mlinko, 39, is the author of two books, Matinees (Zoland Books, 1999) and Starred Wire (Coffee House Press, 2005), which was a National Poetry Series winner in 2004 and a finalist for the James Laughlin Award the following year.

The Poetry Foundation issued the following statement in announcing Mlinko's award: "From Sappho to the Language poets, from Nicolas of Cusa to The Brady Bunch, Ange Mlinko's criticism is brilliantly wide-ranging; it is eclectic and astringent yet always lucid and generous. We are pleased to recognize a young critic whose distinctive sharp wit and formidable power have helped revitalize the art of writing about poetry."

Mlinko was born in Philadelphia and currently lives in the lower Hudson Valley, where she raises her two sons. She has an undergraduate degree in philosophy and mathematics from St. John's College and an MFA from the Creative Writing Program at Brown University. Her poetry and criticism have appeared or are forthcoming in Poetry and the Poetry Foundation website, the London Review of Books, The New Yorker, Bookforum, and The Nation, where she also writes an occasional column on language called Lingo.

***

About the Ruth Lilly Poetry Prize

American poetry has no greater friend than Ruth Lilly. Over many years and in many ways, it has been blessed by her personal generosity. In 1985 she endowed the Ruth Lilly Professorship in Poetry at Indiana University. In 1989 she created Ruth Lilly Poetry Fellowships, for $15,000 each, given annually by the Poetry Foundation to undergraduate or graduate students selected through a national competition. In 2002 her lifetime engagement with poetry culminated in a magnificent bequest that will enable the Poetry Foundation to promote, in perpetuity, a vigorous presence for poetry in our culture.

The Ruth Lilly Poetry Prize honors a living U.S. poet whose lifetime accomplishments warrant extraordinary recognition. Established in 1986 by Ruth Lilly, the annual prize is sponsored and administered by the Poetry Foundation, publisher of Poetry magazine. Over the last 20 years, the Lilly Prize has awarded more than $1,000,000. The previous recipients are Adrienne Rich, Philip Levine, Anthony Hecht, Mona Van Duyn, Hayden Carruth, David Wagoner, John Ashbery, Charles Wright, Donald Hall, A.R. Ammons, Gerald Stern, William Matthews, W.S. Merwin, Maxine Kumin, Carl Dennis, Yusef Komunyakaa, Lisel Mueller, Linda Pastan, Kay Ryan, C.K. Williams, Richard Wilbur, Lucille Clifton, and Gary Snyder.

About the Pegasus Awards
The Poetry Foundation has established a family of prizes with an emphasis on new awards to under-recognized poets and types of poetry. Inaugurated in 2004, the Pegasus Awards are announced annually in the spring. The Poetry Foundation believes that targeted prizes can help redress underappreciated accomplishments, diversify the kinds of poetry being written, and widen the audience for the art form. With this in mind, it may create additional prizes in the years ahead.

About the Poetry Foundation
The Poetry Foundation, publisher of Poetry magazine and one of the largest literary organizations in the world, exists to discover and celebrate the best poetry and to place it before the largest possible audience. The Poetry

> Foundation seeks to be a leader in shaping a receptive climate for poetry by developing new audiences, creating new avenues for delivery, and encouraging new kinds of poetry through innovative literary prizes and programs. For more information, please visit <http://thepoetryfoundation.createsend4.com/t/r/l/tydrth/xzjkiku/r>www.poetryfoundation.org.
>
> POETRY FOUNDATION | 444 North Michigan Avenue | Chicago, IL 60611 | [redacted]
>
> welcome.html

↑ Index

167. carol dorf

Re: Fanny Howe Wins Ruth Lillty Prize

Wed 15 Apr 2009

Thanks for the link -- I'm so glad Fanny Howe is getting this mainstream recognition; I appreciate the way she combines experimental form/language with a willingness to engage with the content of daily life, esp. in the realm of mothering.

On 4/15/09, ALDON L NIELSEN <[redacted]> wrote:
> here's a link to the LA TIMES story -- > <http://latimesblogs.latimes.com/jacketcopy/2009/04/major-poetry-prize-goes-to-fanny-howe.html>
>
<<

>
> [redacted]
>
>
>
>

↑ Index

168. David-Baptiste Chirot

Woodland Pattern: April 18: Bill Berkson and Kit Robinson

Wed 15 Apr 2009

==========

SATURDAY, APRIL 18: BILL BERKSON & KIT ROBINSON

==========

Woodland Pattern Book Center and Milwaukee Book Festival present:

BILL BERKSON and KIT ROBINSON

Saturday, April 18, 7pm

Woodland Pattern Book Center

720 East Locust Street

Milwaukee, WI 53212

$8 / $7 / $6

Bill Berkson was born in New York in 1939. He moved to Northern California in 1970 and during the next decade edited a series of little magazines and books under the Big Sky imprint. He is a corresponding editor for Art in America and has contributed to such other journals as Aperture and Artforum. His recent books include Gloria, with etchings by Alex Katz; The Sweet Singer of Modernism & Other Art Writings; Sudden Address: Selected Lectures 1981-2006; an epistolary collaboration with Bernadette Mayer entitled What's Your Idea of a Good Time?: Interviews & Letters 1977-1985 and a words-and-drawings sequence with Colter Jacobsen called BILL. His Portrait and Dream: New & Selected Poems has just appeared from Coffee House Press. He was the 2006 Distinguished Mellon Fellow at the Skowhegan School of Painting and Sculpture and received the 2008 Goldie for Literature from the San Francisco Bay Guardian.

Kit Robinson is celebrating the publication of his new book The Messianic Trees: Selected Poems, 1976-2003 (Adventures in Poetry, 2009). A coauthor of The Grand Piano: An Experiment in Collective Autobiography, San Francisco, 1975-1980 (Mode A, ongoing), he is also the author of 9:45 (The Post Apollo Press, 2003), The Crave (Atelos, 2002) and Democracy Boulevard (Roof, 1998). Robinson lives in Berkeley, California, where he works as a communications consultant in the information technology industry and plays the Cuban tres guitar in an amateur salsa band.

Reading begins at 7:00 p.m. Reception to follow.

WORKSHOP

Saturday, April 18, 2pm - 4pm $25 (includes admission to Kit Robinson & Bill Berkson Reading)

Call now to register! [redacted]

Time & Materials: Adventures in Diction, Syntax, Rhythm & Tempo with Kit Robinson

So you want to write a poem. Where to start? You're going to need some words, that's for sure. But which ones? Will the mot juste present itself at the perfect moment? Or why not grab a vocabulary from the nearest bookshelf, news hour or Google search? OK, so you found some words, now to put them together in some kind of order, so that they make sense, or don't, but sound as if they should, your call. OK, now that you have them in order, go ahead and replace all the words. How do units of measure such as phrase, line, sentence and stanza overlap? How fast is your poem? How slow? How do you know? In this workshop, we will experiment with several techniques, including vocabulary constraints, parallel constructions, and group collaborations. Please bring a book or two to plunder for material.

GALLERY TALK

Woodland Pattern Book Center

Sunday, April 19, 2pm

FREE

A gallery talk by Bill Berkson to occasion the closing of The Graphic Poem exhibit.

http://www.woodlandpattern.org/

==========

UPCOMING EVENTS

==========
==========

April 2009

Sat. 4/4: Donna Stonecipher Master Class; 2-4pm

Sat. 4/4: Oni Buchanan & Donna Stonecipher Reading; 7pm

Sun. 4/5: 3rd Annual Edible Book Show; 1-4pm

Wed. 4/8: New Prose Series Kass Fleisher; 7pm

Thu. 4/9: David Sedaris at Riverside Theatre; 8pm

Fri. 4/17: Redletter Reading Series: James Shea & Caryl Pagel; 7pm

Sat. 4/18: Kit Robinson Workshop; 2-4pm

Sat. 4/18: Kit Robinson & Bill Berkson Reading; 7pm

Sun. 4/19: Gallery Talk with Bill Berkson; 2pm

Tue. 4/21: C.D. Wright at UWM; 7:30pm

Wed. 4/22: UW-M Student/Faculty reading with Kimberly Blaeser; 7pm

Thu. 4/23: Poetry Under the Dome at MPL; 6pm

Fri. 4/24: The 3rd Annual Milwaukee Slideshow Invitational; 7pm

Sat. 4/25: WordBlast! A Workshop in Animated Text; 1-4pm

Sun. 4/26: WordBlast! A Workshop in Animated Text; 1-4pm

Sun. 4/26: Judith Harway Reading at MIAD; 2pm

Sun. 4/26: The Lou Mallozzi-Michael Zerang Duo; 7pm

http://www.woodlandpattern.org/

DONATE NOW! and become a member of Woodland Pattern

http://www.woodlandpattern.org/membership/index.shtml

To receive regular messages notifying you of Woodland Pattern events, send a message to us at [redacted] with "Join E-List" in the subject line.

To unsubscribe from these mailings send a reply with "unsubscribe" in the subject line.

PLEASE FORWARD! THANKS!!!

http://www.woodlandpattern.org/

Woodland Pattern Book Center

720 E. Locust Street

Milwaukee, WI 53212

phone [redacted]

Windows Live™: Keep your life in sync.
http://windowslive.com/explore?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_allup_1a_explore_042009

↑ Index

169. CA Conrad
Re: is it asking too much of Ashberry?
Wed 15 Apr 2009

Steve's original question (message) was brave in many ways. In a time when some poets feel poetry isn't strong enough to STAND without the buttresses of philosophy and theory, it's refreshing to hear someone ask WHERE IS YOUR WORLDVIEW AT THESE DAYS?

Take YOUR to mean your own.

Freud said it best:
Everywhere I go I find that a poet has been there before me.

He said poet. Poet. I'm with Freud, at least on this.

CAConrad

THE BOOK OF FRANK http://CAConrad.blogspot.com
PhillySound: new poetry http://PhillySound.blogspot.com

↑ Index

170. CA Conrad
Re: 4000 WORDS 4000 DEAD
Thu 16 Apr 2009

This really looks amazing, what a great idea. And I hope someone will film it, put it up on the web.

It makes me think about my friend who called me this evening EXCITED about some American Idol contestant making it to the next stage of American Idol. Bread & Circus galore.

It makes me think too that we know THE EXACT number of American dead. We know their names, their places of birth, their rank and serial numbers.

When it comes to the citizens of Iraq however, the state department's numbers and information about THEIR DEAD (OUR dead too, as THEIR dead is on our blood-splattered hands forever!) the numbers range on and off by hundreds of thousands. The estimates from outside sources say over a million. Over a million, and counting, by the day.

Obama promises to redistribute troops from one war to the other war. Obama promises a new meat grinder with a different terrain. Do they get American Idol in Afghanistan? Maybe one day? I'm not being glib, I really DO wonder.

The horror of the senses we create, and I'm talking about our war(s), not our television show.

CAConrad
THE BOOK OF FRANK http://CAConrad.blogspot.com
PhillySound: new poetry http://PhillySound.blogspot.com

↑ Index

171. Jim Andrews
Re: Reposting: is it asking too much of Ashbery?
Thu 16 Apr 2009

> Jim,
>
> Unless I'm misreading something in your email or in the article I cited itself, I do think it speaks directly to your scenario, specifically where you ask COULD I do anything other than I did?
>
> I think, quite simply, yes you could have made done something different. You > just didn't. So perhaps that goes some way to defining choice.
>
> It's that keyword "could" that is so important and, accordingly, gets adequate treatment in the article.
>
> pd

i don't think you're grappling with the problem. it's odd how empty the word "choice" can be, at times.

if we go back 5 seconds and everything is exactly the same as it was 5 seconds ago, including us, down to the last atom, then any thoughtful decision we take will be the same, insofar as it is the result of deliberation, which is the same as it was 5 seconds ago. the only decision that might be different is a random decision but, even then, whatever the mechanism that determines the state of the selection will be the same. all mechanistically determined processes will have exactly the same result as they did previously.

i saw an interview last night with leonard cohen. he said "you can read the book of your life but you can't change a word."

four quartets: http://www.tristan.icom43.net/quartets/index.html

ja

↑ Index

172. Jonathan Penton
news at UnlikelyStories.org
Thu 16 Apr 2009

I'd like to begin this announcement by thanking Jeffrey Spahr-Summers, who is leaving us as Art Director. He did a great job for a solid year, but now wishes to spend more time on his own literary projects. We'll miss him, and we're actively seeking a new Art Director to choose the visual art and film at Unlikely 2.0. Anyone applying for the position should understand that they'll be responsible for choosing the art and film in the Unlikely print edition, as well.

Oh, yeah. There's going to be an Unlikely print edition.

The team at www.UnlikelyStories.org <http://www.UnlikelyStories.org/> is now partnering with the overlapping team at www.MakeItNewMedia.com to begin a proper print publishing arm: Unlikely Books. Next year, we'll be releasing three full-length volumes.

We're going to focus on two authors, bound together in one volume. We don't know about you, but we're getting a little sick of the decreasing length of poetry books combined with the increasing price of trade paperbacks. On the other hand, there are some great poets who can put out 80 excellent pages on a few related themes, but 150 pages of poetry by the same author usually involves covering diverse themes that might not go well together. So in the tradition of Henry Rollins' 2.13.61 Publications, we're binding two authors together in a single flipbook, styled so that each author gets a "front cover." The reader gets their money's worth, and the writer and editor get to work with manageable manuscripts.

So we're very pleased to announce the 2010 publication of /"First Reverse"/ by markk bound with "/Monolith"/ by Anne McMillen (biography notes below). And in keeping with our philosophy that poetry, art, culture, and politics are just one big gooey phenomenon of readability, we'll be publishing a volume of nonfiction cultural critique: Tom Bradley will bring us "/My Hands Were Clean/," paired with "/Dr. Gonzo"/ by Deb Hoag (even more biography notes below). These authors were selected for both compatibility and friction: we believe that if you enjoy one side of an Unlikely Book, you'll enjoy the other, despite the fact that we're presenting four very different authors and perspectives.

And the Unlikely print edition. Stupid, contagious, and sure to be imitated, its pages will feature cultural commentary, fiction and creative non-fiction, poetry, interviews, and tons of carefully-reproduced full-color visual art. Make It New Media is a new kind of print fulfillment company, focused on the arts and a personal involvement with each book, and our partnership with them will allow us to enclose both a mix CD and DVD of short films in the Unlikely anthology. The "print edition" will have all the multimedia aspects of the current Unlikely 2.0 web site, and will be a mixture of new material and some classic reprints from eleven years of UnlikelyStories.org. Submissions of essays, reviews, interviews, fiction and creative nonfiction, poetry, visual art, film, spoken word and music will open soon, but we need an Art Director first. So apply.

Did we mention the poetry chapbooks? Make It New Media has already produced one for us: "/Blue Rooms, Black Holes, White Lights/," a fine-art production by Belinda Subraman featuring visual art by César Ivan. Later in 2009, we'll be putting out a chapbook by Anne Lombardo Ardolino featuring cover art by Clayton Patterson. And in 2010, we'll have poetry chapbooks by Lawrence Welsh and Donna Snyder.

We couldn't possibly do this without an enormous book release party. That would be wrong and bad. We're still working out the time and place, but some unfortunate town in the American Southwest will be selected for live reads, author signings, and other antisocial behavioral patterns sometime next year.

Although we will seek unsolicited submissions for the Unlikely anthology, we unfortunately can't normally accept full-length manuscripts. Our e-zine, UnlikelyStories.org, has a wide-open submissions policy, and having such a policy for Unlikely Books would surely kill us. However, we /will/ be running an annual poetry chapbook contest! We'll be announcing the 2009 contest in a couple of weeks, and have lots of unusual benefits planned, so watch this space (especially if it's your inbox).

I feel so much Love I want to cut things open,
--
Jonathan Penton
http://www.unlikelystories.org/

Tom Bradley's latest books are /"Vital Fluid"/ (Crossing Chaos Enigmatic Ink), /"Even the Dog Won't Touch Me"/ (Ahadada Press), "/Put It Down in a Book/" (The Drill Press), and "/Hemorrhaging Slave of an Obese Eunuch"/ (Dog Horn Publishing). Further curiosity can be indulged at tombradley.org or Wikipedia.

Deb Hoag holds a Ph.D. in clinical Psychology from the University of Detroit Mercy. She has been working in the mental health field for sixteen years. Her first novel is /"Crashin' the Real: One woman's search for Truth, Justice . . . and Steven Tyler"/ (Dog Horn Publishing).

Mark S. Kuhar (markk) is a editor, publisher, artist, songwriter, and author of three poetry chapbooks. He is the founder of the deep cleveland poetry hour, a live monthly spoken-word event, and the proprietor of Deep Cleveland, LLC, which includes deep cleveland press and the magazine "/deep cleveland junkmail oracle./"

Anne McMillen is a 28-year-old writer and artist who currently squats in a foreclosed house in the suburbs of Cleveland. She writes her struggles: with addiction, abuse, poverty, and a world that promotes pain as salvation. Her poetry chapbook, /"When Red Blood Cells Leak/," was published by Unlikely 2.0.

↑ Index

173. jared schickling
New American Press 2009 chapbook contest
Thu 16 Apr 2009

New American Press is pleased to announce is spring 2009 chapbook contest. Winner receives $250 and 25 copies. Final judge will be editor of THE JOURNAL and award-winning poet Kathy Fagan.

Submission materials may be sent to:

Chapbook Contest
Attn: Okla Elliott
OWU English Dept.
61 S. Sandusky St.
Delaware, OH 43015

Along with 20-30 pages of your best writing in any genre, please include a SASE for contest results and a check for $12 (payable to "NEW AMERICAN PRESS" only, please). We read manuscripts blind, so please include a separate cover sheet with your name, address, email, and phone number, being sure to exclude any identifying information from the ms itself. Multiple submissions in similar or different genres are fine, but a reading fee is required for each submission.

Postmark deadline: May 15, 2009.

More information is available at http://newamericanpress.com/contests/current.php.

Questions can be directed to [redacted].
_____ Rediscover Hotmail®: Now available on your iPhone or BlackBerry
http://windowslive.com/RediscoverHotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Rediscover_Mobile2_042009

↑ Index

174. noah eli gordon
Berrigan & Veglahn Chapbooks from LME
Thu 16 Apr 2009

Dear Folks,

Letter Machine Editions, a nonprofit publisher of books & chapbooks, is pleased announce the release of our inaugural titles:

Anselm Berrigan's To Hell With Sleep & Sara Veglahn's Another Random Heart

These perfect-bound chapbooks are available from our website for $10 each (postage paid) or together for $16 (postage paid):
http://www.lettermachine.org/purchase.html

Look for our future full-length titles, including books by Sawako Nakayasu, Travis Nichols, Juliana Leslie, Farid Matuk, Aaron Kunin, & others:
http://www.lettermachine.org/catalog.html

Also watch for the launch our new journal--Typesetter:
http://www.lettermachine.org/typesetter.html

All Best,

Noah Eli Gordon & Joshua Marie Wilkinson Letter Machine Editions
http://www.lettermachine.org/

*****

on Anselm Berrigan's To Hell With Sleep:

Anselm Berrigan gives us a fresh dose of his discordant mind music. To Hell With Sleep was written by the poet in the first months after the birth of his daughter, mostly during brief periods of time when he was half-awake or less so, letting the poetry be unthought within its vehicle of eight seven-line slanting stanzas per session, of which there were nine. The impulse driving the writing was to let sounds-turning-toward-words follow from the intensified state of consciousness the arrival of this baby initiated. No prescience, reflection, computer tricks, formal appropriation, or plotting of any kind was used in the in the writing of this work. Joy, fear, humor, sound, bafflement and recognition-in-exchange-for-recognition were the instruments on Sara Veglahn's Another Random Heart:

*****

This prose-poem sequence opens with the following sentence: "Scenes left on the cutting room floor flower into their own scenery." Such an auspiciously suggestive start functions as a distillation of the book's prismatic echo chamber, where painterly lyricism and narrative probing converge within each musically astute sentence. This is a symphony of partial happenings, ghostly movements, and investigatory ruminations, a stroll through an exhibit of paintings that seem to stare back at the viewer: captivating, gorgeous, and just a little bit scary.

_____ Windows Live™: Life without walls. http://windowslive.com/explore?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_allup_1b_explore_042009

↑ Index

175. noah eli gordon

oops

Thu 16 Apr 2009

---

there should have been a "to" and an "of" in there, huh?

_____ Rediscover Hotmail®: Get e-mail storage that grows with you. http://windowslive.com/RediscoverHotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Rediscover_Storage2_042009

↑ Index

176. mIEKAL aND

Fwd: [spidertangle] The death of Franklin Rosemont

Thu 16 Apr 2009

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: joel lipman <[redacted]>
Date: Thu, Apr 16, 2009 at 1:58 PM
Subject: Re: [spidertangle] Re: [fluxlist] The death of Franklin Rosemont
To: [redacted]

To add this to the several Franklin Rosemont recollections:

In 1968 or 1969, the independent mag, Radical America, published an issue devoted to surrealism. Rosemont's aesthetic and fingerprints were all over it [I don’t know where or how Penelope and Franklin split their efforts, so perhaps it was a duo’s imprint I’m recapturing]. For those too young to have lived or participated in the 1960’s independent litmag culture, it was a killer print moment when cultural, literary & social manifestations fluidly blended in the era’s counterculture publications.

Though the word “morph” didn’t exist, Radical America “morphed” or spun off into Cultural Correspondence, the final issues of which were structurally magnificent & extraordinary in their useful anarchy and grasp of the interconnectiveness of irrational arts practice. CC #10-11 “Surrealism & its Popular Accomplices” had gorgeous & substantial illustrated articles on subjects from the 3 Stooges, Henry Darger, Poetry & Freedom, dance & instinct, and Les Blanc to dance magic and utopian dreams. Franklin Rosemont contributed pieces on H.P. Lovecraft, “T-Bone Slim & the Phonetic Cabala,” “Mel Blanc — the Wizard of Audio,” Buster Keaton, Bugs Bunny. He reviewed texts on French and Portuguese surrealist poets and other subjects linking politics, film, music and global poetries. The subsequent 1981 issue of CC [“Giant last issue! Collectors’ item!”] had FR’s art and polemics, including the wonderful [wonder-full] “Report on Objective Conditions,” which said much of what I sense continues to be the manifesto of many participants on Spidertangle “...Life is not ours to be eked out — it is a question of inspiration or death.”

FR pushed for constant renewal, ceaseless surreal “moral vigilance,” and “global scope.” Bracketing his report’s text is an opening and closing Time & Temperature indication, lest one stray from the vital ground realities [8Pm, 31 degrees, wind, barometric pressure], the street and the raw blow off Lake Michigan.

JL

On 4/16/09 7:50 AM, "John M. Bennett" <[redacted]> wrote:

A unique passing

I only met Franklin Rosemont through the mail, but it was always a fascinating and precious meeting.

Last night I dreamed about Franklin Rosemont. I was preparing an envelope to mail him some books, by gluing little strips of torn-up newspaper to it. It is also true that this envelope was one that HE had prepared and sent to me. It was coming and going at the same time.

Que viva Franklin Rosemont.

John

↑ Index

177. Jennifer Karmin
Chicago Poetry Festival
Thu 16 Apr 2009

SUNDAY, APRIL 19
3-6PM
free

Peter Jones Gallery
1806 W. Cuyler Ave -- Chicago, IL http://www.peterjonesgallery.com

Readings by:
Bill Allegrezza, Lisa Alvarado, Stella Radulescu, Jennifer Karmin, Rey Escobar, Kevin Blanchard, Nick Demske, Larry O. Dean, Erika Mikkalo, Tara Keogh, Kathy Kubik, Josephine Lipuma, Doree McNulty, Donna Pecore, Paul Martinez Pompa, Cathleen Schandelmeier, Dina Stengel, Sheila Donovan, Roberto Del Rio, Pam Osbey, Mike Puican, PJ Destin, Dred Sista Ren, Anna Husain, Jessica Lane, Adam Shames, Michael H. Brownstein, Maria Fischinger, and more!

@@@

↑ Index

178. Laurie Schneider & Crag Hill
Upcomg Jim McCrary Readings and All That
Thu 16 Apr 2009

Topeka, Kansas:

Top City Spring 2009
Saturday, May 9 with Judith Roitman at Lola's in Topeka, Kansas (10th and Gage) and begin at 7:07--seven minutes after seven.

Seattle, WA:

June 3 with Paul Nelson at

Good Shepherd Center Chapel Performance Space.

4649 Sunnyside Ave. N in Wallingford at 7:30 p.m.

Portland, OR:

June 4 with James Yeary at Concordia Coffee House
2909 NE Alberta
7:30

All That can be perused and purchased at:
http://www.lulu.com/content/paperback-book/all-that/4363355

↑ Index

179. Poetry Project
Events at The Poetry Project April
Thu 16 Apr 2009

Here¹s what¹s coming up at The Poetry Project:

Friday, April 17, 9:30 PM
A Night with Heretical Texts Vol. 4

Heretical Texts is an ongoing Factory School book series published in volumes of five books each. The series aims to test old assumptions about the political efficacies of poetic texts while utilizing the series structure as a framework for documentation and investigation. Since 2005, Factory School has published twenty titles under the Heretical Texts series banner, with future volumes appearing in 2010 and beyond. Volume 4 includes books by Jules Boykoff, Brett Evans, Erica Kaufman, kathryn l. pringle and Frank Sherlock. Please join us for an evening of readings and festivities celebrating Heretical Texts Vol. 4.

Participants include Erica Kaufman, kathryn l. pringle, Frank Sherlock and Bill Marsh. Erica Kaufman is the author of Censory Impulse (Factory School 2009) and co-curates Belladonna*. kathryn l. pringle is the author of Right New Biology and lives in Durham, NC. Bill Marsh has co-directed Factory School since its founding in 2000. He is the author of Plagiarism (SUNY Press) and, with Steve Carll, Tao Drops, I Change (Subpress). He lives in Queens, NY. Frank Sherlock is the author of Over Here (Factory School 2009) and the co-author of Ready-To-Eat Individual (Lavender Ink 2008) with Brett Evans. A collaboration with CAConrad entitled The City Real & Imagined: Philadelphia Poems is forthcoming from Factory School later this year.

Monday, April 20, 8 PM
Talk Series Ammiel Alcalay on Writing in Tongues: Plain Language & the Politics of Print

In this talk Ammiel Alcalay will explore some of his experiences in the realm of literary and political activism, as a writer, translator, interpreter, and member of various groups and organizations, particularly in relation to issues regarding Israel/Palestine and ex-Yugoslavia. His books include After Jews & Arabs, Memories of Our Future, and from the warring factions. A new book of essays, A Little History, is due out from Beyond Baroque, and a major new project to write a republic / The Poetics of Political Memory, is in progress. His translations include work from Arabic, Bosnian, Hebrew, and Spanish.

Wednesday, April 22, 8 PM
Bill Berkson & Norma Cole

Bill Berkson has been active in the art and literary worlds for nearly fifty years. He is the author of sixteen books and pamphlets of poetry, including Serenade; Fugue State; a volume of his 1960s collaborations with Frank O¹Hara entitled Hymns of St. Bridget & Other Writings; and the deluxe portfolio Gloria with etchings by Alex Katz. During the 1960s he was an editorial associate at Artnews and a regular contributor to Art. A selection of his criticism, The Sweet Singer of Modernism & Other Art Writings 1985-2003, appeared from Qua Books in 2004, followed by Sudden Address: Selected Lectures 1981-2006 from Cuneiform Press. A volume of new and selected poems will appear from Coffee House Press in 2009. He now lives in New York and San Francisco. Norma Cole is a poet, painter and translator. Among her books are Collective Memory, Do the Monkey, and Spinoza in Her Youth. Where Shadows Will: Selected Poems 1988‹2008 will appear from City Lights in April 2009. Current translation work includes Danielle Collobert¹s Journals, Fouad Gabriel Naffah¹s The Spirit God and the Properties of Nitrogen and Crosscut Universe: Writing on Writing from France. Cole has been the recipient of a Wallace Alexander Gerbode Foundation Award, Gertrude Stein Awards, the Fund for Poetry, and the Foundation for Contemporary Arts. A Canadian by birth, Cole migrated via France to San Francisco where she has lived since 1977.

Friday, April 24, 10 PM
Lawrence Giffin & Nico Vassilakis

Lawrence Giffin is the author of a chapbook, Get the Fuck Back into That Burning Plane, as well as three volumes of Comment Is Free, an ongoing print-on-demand work of social philosophy compiled from newspaper comment streams. As a member of the publishing collective Lil¹ Norton, Lawrence Giffin is the series editor of the journal The Physical Poets Home Library. A kind of historical novel, Aa, co-produced with Fernando Diaz, is forthcoming from Patrick Lovelace Editions. Nico Vassilakis works in both textual and visual poetry. He is a curator for the Subtext Reading Series in Seattle. His vispo videos have been shown in exhibits and festivals of innovative language arts. Nico¹s recently published Text Loses Time is available from ManyPenny Press. Forthcoming books include Disparate Magnets (BlazeVox) & Protracted Type (White Lion Books).

Become a Poetry Project Member! http://poetryproject.org/become-a-member

Calendar: http://www.poetryproject.org/program-calendar

The Poetry Project is located at St. Mark's Church-in-the-Bowery
131 East 10th Street at Second Avenue
New York City 10003
Trains: 6, F, N, R, and L.
[redacted]
www.poetryproject.org

Admission is $8, $7 for students/seniors and $5 for members (though now those who take out a membership at $95 or higher will get in FREE to all regular readings).

We are wheelchair accessible with assistance and advance
notice. For more info call [redacted].

If you¹d like to be unsubscribed from this mailing list, please drop a line at [redacted].

↑ Index

180. PJ
"from east to west" - new issue & submission call
Thu 16 Apr 2009

In ~60 pages of full color, the spring edition of "from east to west" includes featured poets: Mark Hartenbach, Eve Hanninen, Michael Macklin & Bart

Solarcyz, featured artists: Jeff Filipski, Eve Hanninen, Cheryl Townsend, Jenny McGhee Dougherty, & Ron Davis, and "garden" poets: T. Birch, Wendy Howe, Lois Jones, Neil C. Leach, Jr., Russell Libby, Tom Moore, Kenneth Pobo, Bethan Townsend & Lewis Turco.

The cover art (and one more at the end of the edition) by Pamela Perkins is especially fascinating. She composed these from recycled antique windows with East Coast sea glass, stone, wood, shell (mostly from Maine) and paint.

You can view our issue online, download as a free .pdf, or buy an at-cost print copy from Lulu. Just follow the links on our web page. Email PJ Nights at [redacted] if you have trouble with any of these options.

Please not our submission call for summer for "found" and "cut-up" poetry and visual artists (deadline, June 1, 2009).

Thank you again for your support of our journal!

PJ Nights & Ray Sweatman

↑ Index

181. Fulcrum Annual

Poets Patrick Herron and Stephen Sturgeon in Harvard Square Thu. April 23

Thu 16 Apr 2009

Patrick Herron and Stephen Sturgeon Free poetry reading
Thursday, April 23, 7 p.m.
Pierre Menard Gallery / Lame Duck Books
10 Arrow Street, Cambridge, MA
(up Arrow St. from Cafe Pamplona)
More info: [redacted]
Free wine

Patrick Herron is a poet, artist and information scientist residing in Chapel Hill, NC. He is the author of The American Godwar Complex (2004, Blaze VOX) as well as the chapbooks, Man Eating Rice (Blaze VOX) and Three Poems (Gateway Songbooks). His poems and essays have appeared in journals such as Exquisite Corpse, Jacket, Talisman, Fulcrum, in the Tokyo Metropolitan Art Museum, and in the anthology 100 Days (Barque Press). Current writing projects include two works of translation, a collection of essays and criticism, and a book of poetry.

Stephen Sturgeon's poems have appeared in Boston Review, Cannibal, Harvard Review, Jacket, and other magazines. He is the editor of Fulcrum: an Annual of Poetry and Aesthetics.

↑ Index

182. George Bowering
Re: is it asking too much of Ashberry?
Thu 16 Apr 2009

Re the Ashberrry question:

I would find it more refreshing to hear that question without the "at".

gb

On Apr 15, 2009, at 8:49 PM, CA Conrad wrote:

> Steve's original question (message) was brave in many ways. In a time when some poets feel poetry isn't strong enough to STAND without the buttresses of philosophy and theory, it's refreshing to hear someone ask WHERE IS YOUR WORLDVIEW AT THESE DAYS?
>
> Take YOUR to mean your own.
>
> Freud said it best:
> Everywhere I go I find that a poet has been there before me.
>
> He said poet. Poet. I'm with Freud, at least on this.
>
> CAConrad
>
> THE BOOK OF FRANK http://CAConrad.blogspot.com
> PhillySound: new poetry http://PhillySound.blogspot.com
>
> welcome.html

George Bowering
Was once corrected by Bob Feller

↑ Index

183. K. R. Waldrop
2 more by Keith Waldrop
Thu 16 Apr 2009

Beside SEVERAL GRAVITIES (a book of collages already announced here; www.sigliopress.com; use code GRAVITY before 4/22 for 25% discount)

2 more new books by Keith Waldrop:

1. TRANSCENDENTAL STUDIES: a trilogy of poems (U of CA Press, 200pp. $19.95)

2. A translation of Baudelaire's PARIS SPLEEN: LITTLE POEMS IN PROSE (Wesleyan UP, 124pp, cloth $22.95)

↑ Index

184. Patrick Dillon

Re: Reposting: is it asking too much of Ashbery?

Thu 16 Apr 2009

At first, I thought you were suggesting that our will in the past would be constrained by the physical reality of the present. That if door number 1 were open now, we couldn't do anything else except choose door number 1 five seconds ago. Hence my sending the article, which directly addresses this question.

If I understand you correctly then I agree with you. It seems pretty straight forward, but the element of time travel is more distracting for me than helpful. I don't see a difference between a decision made in the present and one made in the past without any knowledge or influence of the future.

But I could probably do a better job of educating myself in philosophy.

pd

On Thu, Apr 16, 2009 at 12:29 AM, Jim Andrews <[redacted]> wrote:

> Jim,
>
> Unless I'm misreading something in your email or in the article I cited itself, I do think it speaks directly to your scenario, specifically where you ask COULD I do anything other than I did?
>
> I think, quite simply, yes you could have made done something different. You > just didn't. So perhaps that goes some way to defining choice.
>
> It's that keyword "could" that is so important and, accordingly, gets adequate treatment in the article.
>
> pd
>
> i don't think you're grappling with the problem. it's odd how empty the word "choice" can be, at times.
>
> *if we go back 5 seconds and everything is exactly the same as it was 5 seconds ago, including us, down to the last atom, then any thoughtful decision we take will be the same, insofar as it is the result of deliberation, which is the same as it was 5 seconds ago. the only decision* > that might be different is a random decision but, even then, whatever the mechanism that determines the state of the selection will be the same. all mechanistically determined processes will have exactly the same result as they did previously.

>
> i saw an interview last night with leonard cohen. he said "you can read the book of your life but you can't change a word."
>
> four quartets: http://www.tristan.icom43.net/quartets/index.html
>
> ja

↑ Index

185. Justin Katko

Hot Gun!

Fri 17 Apr 2009

Please note the publication of Hot Gun, which I am posting here at the request of the editor, Josh Stanley. Among other goodies, it includes JH Prynne's review of Keston Sutherland's Hot White Andy. There will be a reading-launch this Friday (today!) in Davenport College, Yale University, at 8:30pm. Myself, Ryan Dobran, and Alex Nemser will read their poetry. Email the editor at address below for more information. Word. - J.K.

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: josh stanley <[redacted]>
Date: Fri, Apr 17, 2009 at 5:06 AM Subject: Hot Gun! #1

Hello,

The first issue of Hot Gun!, a new journal of contemporary poetry and criticism, is now out. It includes POEMS by

Kyle Storm Beste-Chetwynde, Ryan Dobran, Luke Roberts, Justin Katko+Jow Lindsay, and Marianne Morris

+ the following PIECES:

Trying to Look Correctly at the “Subjects” of Andrea Brady’s ‘Saw Fit’ – Amica Dall

‘[D]oubts, Complications and Distractions’: Rethinking the Role of Women in Language Poetry – Emily Critchley

Guy Debord’s _Hurlements En Faveur De Sade_ [Headnote, Translation and Footnotes] – Justin Katko

Young-Hae Chang Heavy Industries : Presentation review – Kate Riley

Keston Sutherland: _Hot White Andy_ – J.H. Prynne

Lyric Purity in Keston Sutherland's _Hot White Andy_ – Neil Pattison

It is 96 pages for the desperate day+night. Please email [redacted] with questions + please read Hot Gun! with and without with questions. Dear tremors in the present part juicer, what else can we now do.

All this for 7 dollars plus postage: 2 dollars for the USA or 6 dollars for the UK + the rest of the world. U can (of course only if u want) order it online at www.hotgunjournal.com .

All best,
Josh Stanley

↑ Index

186. eric unger
Poetry & Prints #4: Borzutzky, Carr, Severin, Morin
Fri 17 Apr 2009

---

string of small machines 4 release featuring :

daniel borzutzky, chicago-based writer and translator;
author of the ecstacy of capitulation from blazeVOX [books], 2007 (www.blazevox.org/bk-db.htm;
www.danielborzutzky.com)

melissa severin, chicago-based writer and managing editor of switchback books; author of brute fact from dancing girl press, 2008 (www.switchbackbooks.com; www.dancinggirlpress.com/brutefact.html)

michael carr, cambridge, ma.-based writer and editor of editions louis wain, and co-editor of katalanche press;
co-author of necco face, from editions louis wain, 2009 (
editionslouiswain.com;
katalanchepress.blogspot.com);

gustave morin, toronto-based visual artist; author of the much-slept-on a penny dreadful from insomniac press, 2003 (epc.buffalo.edu/authors/morin/;
www.mnsi.net/~common/editions_penny/dread.html<http://www.mnsi.net/%7Ecommon/editions_penny/dread.html>
)

and emcee sick playing rare groove, jazz, soul, and funk.

SATURDAY APRIL 18th : 8p.m.
Spudnik Press
1821 W Hubbard, Suite 308
Chicago, IL 60622
(spudnikpress.com <http://www.spudnikpress.com/>)

↑ Index

187. Tim Peterson
SEGUE 4/18: Akilah Oliver & Charles Alexander
Fri 17 Apr 2009

The Segue Reading Series presents:

AKILAH OLIVER & CHARLES ALEXANDER
*Saturday, April 18, 2009  4PM SHARP
at the Bowery Poetry Club (308 Bowery, just north of Houston)
$6 admission goes to support the readers

hosted by Kristen Gallagher & Tim Peterson

Charles Alexander is a Tucson-based poet, publisher, and book artist. He is the director and editor-in-chief of Chax Press. Alexander’s recent books of poetry include Pushing Water: parts one through six (Standing Stones Press, 1998), near or random acts (Singing Horse Press, 2004), and Certain Slants (Junction Press, 2007).

Akilah Oliver is the author of a new book A Toast in the House of Friends(Coffee House Press, 2008), and also the she said dialogues: flesh memory (Smokeproof/Erudite Fangs, 1999). She currently makes her home in Brooklyn, NY.

↑ Index

188. David Buuck
BARGE's "17 Reasons Why" opens April 24 @ Mission17 Gallery
Fri 17 Apr 2009

Mission 17's 2009 Visual/Cultural Criticism Resident

David Buuck & BARGE (the Bay Area Research Group in Enviro-Aesthetics) present:

17 REASONS WHY: A VISUAL ARCHEOLOGY

April 24-May 30, 2009. Opening Reception Friday April 24, 6-9 pm.

David Buuck and BARGE present â€œ17 Reasons Whyâ€, a site-specific installation and research office that will present a visual archeology of the Mission and 17th Street environment, as part of an ongoing multi-media investigation into how we see, know, and understand our everyday urban spaces. As part of Mission 17â€™s Visual/Cultural Criticism Residency, BARGE brings its toolkit of aesthetic and critical practices to tackle the thorny task of representing a diverse site, with all its historical and cultural complexities.

With this exhibition and its related public programming, BARGE aims to create a space for reflection on the complex intersections of place and memory, change and nostalgia, history and its representations. A critical poetics of visual and cultural criticism will emerge, as maps, photography, writing, found materials & performance provide the basis for a â€™samplingâ€™ of the site and its environs, with the installation space functioning as a kind of laboratory for materialist (re)mixing. BARGE will install a â€˜research officeâ€™ in the gallery space, where BARGE will be conducting investigatory projects throughout the run of the exhibition, inviting participation in the gallery and online, and expanding the installation and catalog as the residency unfolds. Rather than merely presenting â€˜finished workâ€™ that sits idly in the gallery, The BARGE research office will be an ongoing performative space, foregrounding the contingent, everyday forces and transitions in the Mission, while also making visible the methodologies of visual criticism and interpretation at workâ€”and at play.

for more information on public programs & performances see:
http://buuckbarge.wordpress.com/2009/04/17/barge-mission-17-gallery/

MISSION 17 GALLERY
111 Mission Street, Suite 401
San Francisco, CA
Gallery Hours: Wed-Sat 1-6 pm [redacted] â€¨mission17.org davidbuuck.com/barge

↑ Index

189. Francesco Levato
"War Rug" - Poetry Film Screening
Fri 17 Apr 2009

"War Rug," a poetry film based on the long poem of the same name will be screened on April 17th, 2009 at FLATFILE galleries, 217 North Carpenter Street, Chicago IL. The screening will be part of a larger event and will take place around 8:30 - 9 p.m.

If you're not in Chicago and would like to preview the film, it will available online for a limited time at the following link:

http://www.francescolevato.com/media/War_Rug.htm

"War Rug" is a work of documentary poetics in the form of a book length poem. Multiple interwoven narratives explore life within zones of conflict as viewed through the lens of current warfare. The narratives range from passages inspired by journal entries, firsthand accounts, and news reports to poetic constructs collaged from military doctrine, Freedom of Information Act released government documents (like CIA interrogation manuals, and detainee autopsy reports), and numerous other sources.

The film collages and juxtaposes archival source material with U.S. Military footage in an exploration of alternative narrative interpretations of the source text.

The film screening is part of "The Marriage of Poetry" featuring readings by Danielle Chapman & Dan-Beachy Quick, with live musical performances by Pont des Arts Ensemble & The Jim Barbick Trio. The main event starts at 6 p.m.

↑ Index

190. David-Baptiste Chirot

Tatsumi's Graphics Autobio//Pekar's Graphics Beat Generation History

Fri 17 Apr 2009

---

http://www.nytimes.com/2009/04/12/books/review/Leland-t.html

BOOKS / SUNDAY BOOK REVIEW

| April 12, 2009

The Mad Ones

By JOHN LELAND

Moving the mythology of the Beat Generation into the comics realm provides a new angle on a familiar story: It gives the hipsters back their body language.

BOOKS

| April 15, 2009

Books of The Times:
Manifesto of a Comic-Book Rebel

By DWIGHT GARNER

Yoshihiro Tatsumi was at the rowdy vanguard of Japan's postwar comics revolution, and his outsize graphic autobiography is one of the genre's signal achievements.

http://www.nytimes.com/2009/04/15/books/15garn.html

_____ Rediscover
Hotmail®: Get e-mail storage that grows with you.
http://windowslive.com/RediscoverHotmail?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Rediscover_Storage2_042009

↑ Index

191. Nate Pritts
H_NGM_N F_ND DR_V_
Fri 17 Apr 2009

The online journal, H_NGM_N is embarking upon our semi-regular fund drive. Click here:

http://www.h-ngm-n.com/donate

And please give if the spirit moves you.

Thanks!

_____
:: Nate Pritts

:: http://www.natepritts.com

_____ Rediscover
Hotmail®: Get e-mail storage that grows with you.
http://windowslive.com/RediscoverHotmail?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Rediscover_Storage2_042009

↑ Index

192. Ken Chen
From José Rizal to José Garcia Villa: An Introduction to Philippine Literary Greats
Fri 17 Apr 2009

{ please distribute widely }

The Asian American Writers' Workshop presents

*From José Rizal to José Garcia Villa: An Introduction to Philippine Literary Greats
*

*Celebrate two heroes of Philippine literature and the Philippine-American heritage and experience

JOSÉ RIZAL and JOSÉ GARCIA VILLA

with special guests

HAROLD AUGENBRAUM and LUIS H. FRANCIA
*

Readings & Discussion
Light Reception

*Monday, April 27 @ 7pm
The Workshop*
16 W. 32nd Street, 10th Floor (between Broadway & Fifth Ave)

TICKET PRICING
General Admission: $25
AAWW and AAJA Members: $20
Students: $15
VIP Package: $50 (includes books and AAWW membership)

José Rizal (1861-1896) penned the great Philippine novel, *Noli Me Tangere . Set during the Spanish occupation, Noli* is a love story of a young gentleman who returns to the Philippines from Europe after his father's death. This powerful, moving novel and its sequel, El Filibusterismo, were banned by Spanish authorities. Rizal was later executed for sedition, rebellion, and conspiracy. Now considered a Philippine national hero, his work helped spark revolutionary movements.

Well-known translator and critic Harold Augenbraum discusses Rizal's life and reads from his translation of Noli Me Tangere, published by Penguin Classics, and from his translation-in-progress of* El Filibusterismo*. Augenbraum currently serves as Executive Director of the National Book Foundation.

***

Known as the "Pope of Greenwich Village,"* José Garcia Villa* (1908-1997) was arguably the most important Asian American writer of the mid-twentieth century, as well as a colleague of modern literary giants such as W.H. Auden and Tennessee Williams. Edith Sitwell called him "a poet with a great, even an astounding, and perfectly original gift... The best of his poems are among the most beautifully written in our time." Penguin Classics recently reissued *Doveglion: Collected Poems, *a compilation of Villa's work, including rare and previously unpublished material.

Luis H. Francia, reknowned writer and poet, discusses Villa and reads from Doveglion, and will also read from his own* Eye of the Fish: A Personal Archipelago*. Francia's semi-autobiographical account of life straddling American and Philippine culture won the Pen Center Beyond the Margin Award and The Asian American Writers' Workshop Literary Award in 2002.

***

An informal discussion will be encouraged after the presentations. Wine and meryenda hors d'oeuvres will be served.

FOR TICKETS AND MORE INFO
Please visit the event page<https://www.nycharities.org/event/event.asp?CE_ID=3746> or call 212/[redacted]
(https://www.nycharities.org/event/event.asp?CE_ID=3746)

↑ Index

193. Jim Andrews
Re: Reposting: is it asking too much of Ashbery?
Fri 17 Apr 2009

> At first, I thought you were suggesting that our will in the past would be constrained by the physical reality of the present. That if door number 1 were open now, we couldn't do anything else except choose door number 1 five seconds ago. Hence my sending the article, which directly addresses this question.

OK. But that's not what I was saying.

> If I understand you correctly then I agree with you. It seems pretty straight forward, but the element of time travel is more distracting for me than helpful. I don't see a difference between a decision made in the present and one made in the past without any knowledge or influence of the future.

You're right about the element of time travel being not essential to the situation. But it does serve to focus attention on the problem of choice from one moment to the next.

In that scenario, if we think that events would have to unfold as they did previously, then any decision any time is questionable. Because if we think that events would have had to unfold as they did previously THAT TIME, then events would have had to unfold as they did ANY TIME. Wouldn't they? Because there was nothing exceptional about THAT TIME.

So that when we seek some possibility of anything happening differently than it did, it seems that what might have been is an abstraction remaining a perpetual possibility only in a world of speculation.

ja
http://vispo.com

↑ Index

194. PJ

WITH THE URL (this time) "from east to west" - new issue & submission call

Fri 17 Apr 2009

I'm not sure what happened to the link in the email below??!!! You can find our new issue of "east/west" and the full submission call here:

http://www.geocities.com/pj_nights

PJ

--- On Thu, 4/16/09, PJ <[redacted]> wrote:

From: PJ <[redacted]>
Subject: "from east to west" - new issue & submission call
To: [redacted]
Date: Thursday, April 16, 2009, 6:18 PM

In ~60 pages of full color, the spring edition of "from east to west" includes featured poets: Mark Hartenbach, Eve Hanninen, Michael Macklin & Bart Solarcyz, featured artists: Jeff Filipski, Eve Hanninen, Cheryl Townsend, Jenny McGhee Dougherty, & Ron Davis, and "garden" poets: T. Birch, Wendy Howe, Lois Jones, Neil C. Leach, Jr., Russell Libby, Tom Moore, Kenneth Pobo, Bethan Townsend & Lewis Turco.

The cover art (and one more at the end of the edition) by Pamela Perkins is especially fascinating. She composed these from recycled antique windows with East Coast sea glass, stone, wood, shell (mostly from Maine) and paint.

You can view our issue online, download as a free .pdf, or buy an at-cost print copy from Lulu. Just follow the links on our web page. Email PJ Nights at [redacted] if you have trouble with any of these options.

Please not our submission call for summer for "found" and "cut-up" poetry and visual artists (deadline, June 1, 2009).

Thank you again for your support of our journal!

PJ Nights & Ray Sweatman

↑ Index

195. Patrick Herron

Poets Patrick Herron and Stephen Sturgeon in Harvard Square Thu. April 23

Fri 17 Apr 2009

Poets Patrick Herron and Stephen Sturgeon in Harvard Square Thu. April 23
FREE POETRY READING + WINE
Thursday, April 23, 7 p.m.
Pierre Menard Gallery / Lame Duck Books
10 Arrow Street, Cambridge, MA
(up Arrow St. from Cafe Pamplona)
Map: http://tr.im/pierremenardmap
More info: [redacted]

Patrick Herron is a poet, artist and information scientist from Chapel Hill, NC. He is the author of Be Somebody (2008, Effing Press), The American Godwar Complex (2004, Blaze VOX) Man Eating Rice (2002, Blaze VOX) and Three Poems (2005, Gateway Songbooks). His poems and essays have appeared in Exquisite Corpse, Jacket, Talisman, Fulcrum, and in the Tokyo Metropolitan Art Museum. Patrick is working on a collection of poems that explores the construction of subjectivity through multiple externalities.

Stephen Sturgeon's poems have appeared in Boston Review, Cannibal, Harvard Review, Jacket, and other magazines. He is the editor of Fulcrum: an Annual of Poetry and Aesthetics.

http://www.facebook.com/event.php?eid=79468771460

↑ Index

196. David-Baptiste Chirot

NYT Review: Two New Translations of Cavafy's Collected & Unfinished Poems

Sat 18 Apr 2009

---

http://www.nytimes.com/2009/04/19/books/review/Longenbach-t.html?8bu&emc=bua2

Two New Translations of Cavafy's Collected & Unfinished Poems

A Poet’s Progress

James
LongenbachPublished April 17, 2009

“A Greek gentleman in a straw hat, standing absolutely motionless at a slight angle to the universe.” With this sentence the novelist E. M. Forster introduced the Alexandrian Greek poet Constantine Cavafy to the English-speaking world in 1919. Since then, Cavafy's distinctive tone — wistfully elegiac but resolutely dry-eyed — has captivated English-language poets from W. H. Auden to James Merrill to Louise Glück. Auden maintained that Cavafy's tone seems always to "survive translation," and Daniel Mendelsohn's new translations render that tone more pointedly than ever before. Together with "The Unfinished Poems" (the first English translation of poems Cavafy was still drafting when he died in 1933), this "Collected Poems" not only brings us closer to one of the great poets of the 20th century; it also reinvigorates our relationship to the English language.

Cavafy Archive

C. P. Cavafy

COLLECTED POEMS
By C. P. Cavafy
Translated by Daniel Mendelsohn
547 pp. Alfred A. Knopf. $35

THE UNFINISHED POEMS
By C. P. Cavafy
Translated by Daniel Mendelsohn
121 pp. Alfred A. Knopf. $30

Related
The Cavafy Archive Web Site
Daniel Mendelsohn's Web Site

In what ways did Cavafy stand at an angle to the universe? He was born in Alexandria in 1863 to a family that could trace its lineage back to the nobility of the Byzantine Empire. His father, originally from Constantinople, was a partner in a successful export business that maintained offices in London and Liverpool as well as several cities in Egypt; the young Cavafy lived in England for five years, acquiring both a longstanding fascination with English poetry and a slightly British inflection that accented his Greek. But when his father died, Cavafy's family was plunged into poverty. Socially, linguistically, personally, Cavafy lived on the outskirts. He had his first homosexual affair around the age of 20. Soon after, he found a job in the Irrigation Office of the Ministry of Public Works — the "Third Circle of Irrigation" — where he worked for more than 30 years. He wrote consistently but almost never published through traditional means. There is nothing more detrimental to art, he maintained, than succumbing to "how the public thinks and what it likes and what it will buy." Today, Cavafy is well known for writing what might initially seem like two kinds of poems. Beginning in 1911, he wrote poems depicting homosexual desire with an unsensational directness: "They were slow getting dressed, they were sorry to cover / the beauty of their supple nudity / which harmonized so well with the comeliness of their faces." At the same time, he wrote poems about Greek history — not the well-known glories of the classical era but the long decline that finally concluded with the collapse of the Byzantine Empire: "He wasn't completely wrong, poor old Gemistus / (let Lord Andronicus and the patriarch suspect him if they like), / in wanting us, telling us to become pagan once again." But as Mendelsohn argues in his elegant introduction to the poems, any division between the erotic and historical poems is facile. Whether Cavafy is describing an ancient political intrigue or an erotic encounter that occurred last week, his topic is the passage of time. The lines I've just quoted are in fact from the same unfinished poem, "After the Swim": the naked youths, dressing on the beach, are revealed to be students of Gemistus, a Byzantine Neoplatonist who was condemned by authorities of the Orthodox Church for proclaiming that Zeus was the supreme god. In Cavafy's world, everything has already happened. The fortune is spent, the pantheon abandoned, the body grown old. This overpowering sense of belatedness is what provokes the tone of his poems — rueful, distanced, knowing but never wise. Mendelsohn maintains that, given the translatability of Cavafy's tone, he has focused his attention on "other aspects of the poetry" — the exquisite care Cavafy took with diction, syntax, meter and rhyme. But in fact this is not exactly the case. It is only through attention to these minute aspects of poetic language that tone is produced. And Mendelsohn is assiduously attentive. Earlier translators have, to varying degrees, rightly emphasized the prosaic flatness of Cavafy's language; the flatness is crucial to the emotional power of the poems, since it prevents their irony from seeming caustic, their longing from seeming nostalgic. But as Mendelsohn shows, Cavafy's language was in subtle ways more artificial than we've understood. Most important, Cavafy mingled high and low diction, employing both vernacular Greek and a literary Greek invented at the turn of the 19th century. Taking advantage of the fact that English contains words descended not only from German but from Latin roots, Mendelsohn's translations shift similarly between the lofty and the mundane:

I ask myself whether in antique times glorious Alexandria possessed a youth more beauteous,

a kid more perfect than he.

This poem, "Days of 1909, '10, and '11," extols the beauty of a working-class boy who sells his body to buy expensive clothes. The tensions between high and low are registered in the diction. Following a line dominated by Latinate words (glorious, possessed, beauteous), the Germanic and colloquial monosyllable in the third line carries an unexpected poignancy: a kid.

This shift in diction lets us hear something crucial about Cavafy's tone (a directness that is never not elegant), but it also lets Mendelsohn's translation exist fully as an English poem. Because of the polyglot nature of the English language, the sound of great English poetry is the sound of monosyllabic Germanic words chiming against multisyllabic Latinate words (Shakespeare's "seas incarnadine" or Tennyson's "immemorial elms"). Echoing such effects, Mendelsohn makes me wonder if it wasn't the deliciously mongrel nature of English, which Cavafy spoke and wrote perfectly, that first provoked him to forge his own hybridized idiom. The fact that the few poems Cavafy wrote in English contain phrases like "penetrating eye" and "transcendent star" (the Latinate word wedged against the Germanic) suggests that the poet's ear for English was at least as acute as his translator's. Mendelsohn is a classicist, essayist and memoirist, the author of "The Lost: A Search for Six of Six Million." His translations of Cavafy's poems come trailing commentaries in which an immense amount of learning is gracefully and usefully borne. But Mendelsohn thinks like a poet, which is to say he inhabits the meaning of language through its movement. Listen to his translation of the famous concluding lines of "The God Abandons Antony":

Like one who's long prepared, like someone brave, as befits a man who's been blessed with a city like this,

go without faltering toward the window and listen with deep emotion, but not with the entreaties and the whining of a coward, to the sounds — a final entertainment —

to the exquisite instruments of that initiate crew, and bid farewell to her, to Alexandria, whom you are losing. The final line embodies the fortitude the poem recommends. While the preceding lines falter, breaking the syntax into edgy pieces, the final line is syntactically complete. As a result, the poem does not pronounce but arrives at its wisdom, making it happen to us. It is an event on the page. It's easy to translate what a poem says; to concoct a verbal mechanism that captures a poem's movement, its manner of saying, requires a combination of skills that very few possess. Like Richard Howard's Baudelaire or Robert Pinsky's Dante, Mendelsohn's Cavafy is itself a work of art.

James
Longenbach's most recent books are "Draft of a Letter," a collection of poems, and "The Art of the Poetic Line," essays on poetry.

Rediscover Hotmail®: Get quick friend updates right in your inbox. Check it out. _____ Rediscover Hotmail®: Now available on your iPhone or BlackBerry
http://windowslive.com/RediscoverHotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Rediscover_Mobile2_042009

↑ Index

197. Jim Andrews
goosh.org
Sat 18 Apr 2009

---

here is a web-based command line program called goosh: http://goosh.org

this lets you perform all sorts of google searches and other ops.

for instance, you can do image searches, video searches, news searches, text searches, blog searches, translations, and various other things from this command line program.

ja
http://vispo.com

↑ Index

198. Regina Pinto
10 years (cyberliterature) X 50 years (Neoconcrete Movement)
Sat 18 Apr 2009

==========

pintor http://pintor.tumblr.com

==========

The White and the Black, Reflections on Fog - 10 years

A pionner cyberliterature work, created by Regina Pinto in 1999 http://arteonline.arq.br/cybercircus/choose.html

WE CAN NOT JUDGE WHICH DARKNESS - THE BLACK

OR THE WHITE - IS WORSE, BECAUSE WE CAN NOT DISTINGUISH ONE FROM ANOTHER (DARK SIMILARITY)

The eletronic artist's book "The White and the Black, Reflections on Fog", created in 1999, is being re-launched (original version). Now the download is very fast, but in 1999, it was necessary much time to watch it. So, in 2001, it became a cd-rom. How technology develops fast! Will it be that in 2019 it will be possible to see this work yet? … How will the internet be in 2019? And the computers?

http://pintor.tumblr.com/page/2 (bottom of the page - Date: 2009 21st 03)

==========

Neoconcrete Movement - 50 years in 2009

Do you want to know more about it?

pintor's microblog has info on this wonderful Brazilian (carioca) artistic movement.

http://pintor.tumblr.com/page/3

Also visit: http://arteonline.arq.br/museu/library_pdf/brazilian_poetry.pdf

==========

Regina Pinto

http://arteonline.arq.br
http://pintor.tumblr.com

↑ Index

199. Rob McLennan

Edmonton fest, Ottawa fest, rob

Sat 18 Apr 2009

DONT FORGET; two festivals in two cities start next week;

> the edmonton poetry festival
> http://www.edmontonpoetryfestival.com/
>
> the ottawa international writers festival > http://www.writersfestival.org/

including Chaudiere Books launching a first poetry collection by Ottawa poet Marcus McCann, Soft where, at the Ottawa festival on April 25 (reading with Jeanette Lynes + Molly Peacock), and me launching a new poetry collection, gifts, as part of Talonnights in both cities, along with Adeena Karasick, bill bissett, Garry Morse, and, in Edmonton only, Kevin Kerr; Edmonton, April 22; Ottawa, April 28th;

> info on Marcus McCann's Soft where > http://www.chaudierebooks.com/books/soft_where.html

info on rob's Edmonton/Ottawa (+ Toronto) launches:
http://robmclennan.blogspot.com/2009/04/ottawa-toronto-edmonton-book-launches.html

Otherwise, here I am in Edmonton, writing & continually writing:
http://robmclennan.blogspot.com/2009/04/some-edmonton-thus.html yr wayward pal,

-- writer/editor/publisher ...STANZAS mag, above/ground press & Chaudiere Books (www.chaudierebooks.com) ...coord.,SPAN-O + ottawa small press fair ...13th poetry coll'n - The Ottawa City Project ...novel - white
www.abovegroundpress.blogspot.com * http://robmclennan.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

200. Gabrielle Welford
for the young poartist who wants
Sat 18 Apr 2009

---

dear folks, my 20-yr-old son and his friends are artists and poets living together in lincoln, NE. they are all-but-one unemployed right now. they want to poart together as much as possible and also need to pay rent etc.

would you send me what you do to make ends meet? stuff they could think about in a real kind of way. backchannel.

blessings, gabe

Gabrielle Welford, Ph.D.
books:
Too Many Deaths: Decolonizing Western Academic Research on Indigenous Cultures
http://www.theguildofwriters.com/books/shop.php?action=full&id=317
Dora
http://www.theguildofwriters.com/books/shop.php?action=full&id=378
blog: (no longer active but lots of good info on hawai'i) www.greenwom.blogspot.com

No virus found in this incoming message.
Checked by AVG Free Edition.
Version: 7.1.412 / Virus Database: 268.18.4/705 - Release Date: 2/27/2007

↑ Index

201. Alan Sondheim

Liner notes for upcoming video/laptop show at Millennium

Sun 19 Apr 2009

Liner notes for upcoming video/laptop show at Millennium
(date to be announced)

http://www.alansondheim.org/skysign.mov
http://www.alansondheim.org/skysign1.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/skysign2.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/skysign3.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/skysign4.png
http://www.alansondheim.org/skysign5.png

Adventures in the Sim Trade:

Accidental Art and Performance in Second Life

June 2008 through March 2009, I worked in an installation/performance space called Odyssey in the virtual world Second Life. I changed the environment daily, reflecting dynamic (moving, shuddering) complex spaces that were narratives in their own right, difficult to navigate, built on phenomenologies of being virtually real, really virtual. I will walk/work my way through these transformations, presenting videos and images of installations (with Azure Carter), dance (with Foofwa d'Imobilite and Sandy Baldwin), and performance (with Sandy Baldwin). This work is unique within and without Second Life.

From the original information sheet (all this and more will be explained!)

How to view The Accidental Artist exhibition in Second Life

The exhibition is quite complex; here's some suggestions when visiting:

1. Try turning the glow off. Go to preferences, graphics, and uncheck basic shading, if it's on. Basic shading seems to use up more resources than anything else with the rendering engine. You can also set things like rendering distance; the lower the distance, the faster the loading.

2. Turn the video media button off. This on the lower right-hand corner of the screen. If you turn it on, the texture-mapping consumes a huge amount of resources. On the other hand, the audio for the parcel (the audio button) runs fairly lean.

3. If you find the space too cluttered to enter, try flying in.

4. If you find flying in too cluttered, fly higher, and drop in. There is a dome in the center of the space which you can enter.

5. Most objects on the ground level (and some beneath the ground, on the seafloor) will flee from you - what looks crowded from a distance might well clear out.

6. If it clears out, look up - you'll see all sorts of things above you.

7. Fly vertically to see the rest of the exhibition. If you can't fly as high as you want, click control-alt-d, which opens up an advanced menu. Open the menu and get rid of camera constraints. You can then move the camera at a great distance from your avatar body - your viewpoint moves independently, and you can move at least to the top of the exhibition, which is maybe a mile or so up, SL measurement.

8. If you get stuck anywhere, teleport back in.

9. Try moving inside the objects; the interior textures are often different from the exterior ones (this is almost always the case with the spheres).

10. You can push objects vertically into the sky by moving beneath them and flying; they flee upwards.

11. You can see the exhibition 'differently' by using the advanced menu, going to render, and then looking for info - clicking on any one of the info options will give you different viewpoints.

12. You can often sit on moving objects, which will whirl you around; if you sit on an object that moves vertically as a result of your proximity, you can ride it up. When you stand up again, you can fall down back into the space. The riding height seems to be around 4117 SL units, but unless you have a flight bracelet or feather, you probably won't go that high.

13. Moving about on the ground level, keep the sound turned on (lower right), and you'll hear a variety of songs about SL and language. These mix with a number of looping sound modules embedded in the space.

14. If you've been moving around SL a lot, go to preferences, and empty your cache; this might speed things up. You'll have to restart SL again.

15. If you see a sign for teleporting, try it. Sometimes it will lead back to the ground level, sometimes to the seabed, sometimes to a skysphere. All of these locations have clickable objects which will take you else- where (or back to the same space but at a slightly different location). You might have to right-click on the object, then click on teleport - or you might just left click - it depends on the object.

16, Try different 'lenses' - click on control-8 to make the image wide- angle, control-9 to return to normal, control-0 for telephoto. Repeated clicks work as well - with control-8 you can create extreme distortions.

17. Try moving into 'small' spaces and look about. You can save snapshots of anything you see, on your hard drive.

18. That's about it. The general idea is to run lean, fly about, teleport back if you're stuck, play with the controls. The architecture is constan- tly changing and deconstructing itself - play with that....

↑ Index

202. Angeline, Mary
Re: [BULK] "War Rug" - Poetry Film Screening
Sun 19 Apr 2009

Francesco,

I have sent "War Rug" on to hundreds of students and friends.
Perfect Pitch. Smart. Eerily Transcendental.
Nice Work.
Thank You
Are their others?

_____

From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) on behalf of Francesco Levato
Sent: Fri 4/17/2009 7:42 AM
To: [redacted]
Subject: [BULK] "War Rug" - Poetry Film Screening

"War Rug," a poetry film based on the long poem of the same name will be screened on April 17th, 2009 at FLATFILE galleries, 217 North Carpenter Street, Chicago IL. The screening will be part of a larger event and will take place around 8:30 - 9 p.m.

If you're not in Chicago and would like to preview the film, it will available online for a limited time at the following link:

http://www.francescolevato.com/media/War_Rug.htm

"War Rug" is a work of documentary poetics in the form of a book length poem. Multiple interwoven narratives explore life within zones of conflict as viewed through the lens of current warfare. The narratives range from passages inspired by journal entries, firsthand accounts, and news reports to poetic constructs collaged from military doctrine, Freedom of Information Act released government documents (like CIA interrogation manuals, and detainee autopsy reports), and numerous other sources.

The film collages and juxtaposes archival source material with U.S. Military footage in an exploration of alternative narrative interpretations of the source text.

The film screening is part of "The Marriage of Poetry" featuring readings by Danielle Chapman & Dan-Beachy Quick, with live musical performances by Pont des Arts Ensemble & The Jim Barbick Trio. The main event starts at 6 p.m.

↑ Index

203. David Kirschenbaum
NYC Fri./ Boog City 56 Launch Party
Sun 19 Apr 2009

Please forward

Boog City 56 Launch Party in support of the newest issue of the East Village community newspaper

This Fri., April 24, 9:00 p.m.
$5 suggested donation with a two-drink minimum

Sidewalk Café
94 Ave. A (at E. 6th St.)
East Village

Featuring readings from

Betsy Andrews * Matthew Burgess * Lauren Russell and music from

Dorit * Erin Regan

Hosted and curated by Boog City poetry editor Joanna Fuhrman and editor and publisher David Kirschenbaum

Directions: F/V to 2nd Ave., L to 1st Ave.

For further information:
212-842-BOOG (2664), [redacted]

Boog City
http://www.welcometoboogcity.com/

Boog City is a New York City-based small press now in its 18th year and East Village community newspaper of the same name. It has also published 35 volumes of poetry and various magazines, featuring work by Allen Ginsberg and Lawrence Ferlinghetti among others, and theme issues on baseball, women’s writing, and Louisville, Ky. It hosts and curates two regular performance series —d.a. levy lives: celebrating the renegade press, where each month a non-NYC small press and its writers and a musical act of their choosing is hosted at Chelsea's ACA Galleries; and Classic Albums Live, where up to 13 local musical acts perform a classic album live at venues including The Bowery Poetry Club, Cake Shop, CBGB's, and The Knitting Factory. Past albums have included Elvis Costello, My Aim is True; Nirvana, Nevermind; and Liz Phair, Exile in Guyville.

Performer Bios

Betsy Andrews
http://paintedbridequarterly.wordpress.com/2009/01/15/making-place-betsy-andrews%E2%80%99-new-jersey-and-john-hennessy%E2%80%99s-bridge-and-tunnel/

Betsy Andrews is the author of New Jersey, winner of the 2007 Brittingham Prize in Poetry.

Matthew Burgess
http://www.twc.org/assets/40-1.pdf

Matthew Burgess' poems have appeared in various magazines, including Lungfull!, Hanging Loose, Brooklyn Review, and Big City Lit, and he's published three chapbooks: Liftoff, Yeah You, and Day After Labor Day, a series of photographs and poems. Burgess teaches creative writing and literature at Brooklyn College, and he is a poet-in-residence in New York City schools with Teachers & Writers Collaborative. He is pursuing his Ph.D. in English at the CUNY Graduate Center.

Dorit
http://www.myspace.com/sweetdorit

Dorit is obsessed with superheroes. Well one in particular. Her lifelong fascination led to the 2009 release of her original video and song "Wonder Woman" (viewable on her above myspace page). After years of struggling to produce a record on her own, this video is a huge accomplishment and represents a vision completed.

Dorit is a singer songwriter/multi-instrumentalist and Middle Eastern dancer. She has performed internationally with various world music groups and won the title of "Bellydancer of the Universe" in 2005. She is working on her rock/funk album as well as writing music for a new band project.

Erin Regan
http://www.myspace.com/erinregan

"As inauspicious as the night began, Erin Regan turned everything around in a matter of seconds. If you saw Ghost World and instantly wanted the Thora Birch character for your best friend, Regan is for you. She doesn't do the movie's almost over-the-top personification of clinical depression—she actually smiled and joked a little with the audience. But her songs would do Enid proud. Regan's vocal delivery is deadpan and sullen, with an icy dismissiveness.

"Whatever wounds she's sustained still seem fresh (probably a simple case of having grown up as a cool kid surrounded by morons—it's a common injury, but it can take years before it's safe to look back and just laugh). Her stage persona may say stay the hell away from me, but her bleak, outsider chronicles are welcoming and inclusive, and will resonate hard with any other cool kids who've been liberated (or long to be liberated) from a stifling environment. … Her best number was a snide, bitter look back at a wasted youth spent bumming cigarettes from older kids and stealing things: if only things were simple then, she mused sarcastically. But they're not. It might have been just Regan and her acoustic guitar onstage tonight, but she packed a wallop. Add her to your must-see list." —from Lucid Culture

Lauren Russell
http://poetryproject.org/wp-content/uploads/recluse02.pdf

Lauren Russell is the author of the chapbook The Empty-Handed Messenger, forthcoming from Goodbye Better, and is a student in the Individualized B.A. program at Goddard College.

--
David A. Kirschenbaum, editor and publisher
Boog City
330 W. 28th St., Suite 6H
NY, NY 10001-4754
For event and publication information:
http://www.welcometoboogcity.com/
T: (212) 842-BOOG (2664)

↑ Index

204. Hand Held Editions
SERIES 2 LAUNCH - FOUST, KLINK, HUMMEL - APRIL 26TH
Sun 19 Apr 2009

Dear Friends,

Please join us for the launch of HH Series 2, featuring readings by the authors of our three new chapbooks:

Sunday, April 26th, 4:00pm

Graham Foust - On "Sad Songs and Waltzes" Joanna Klink - Wonder of Birds
Kristina Hummel - How Void of Miracles

A Public Space
323 Dean Street (@ 3rd Ave)
Brooklyn
Atlantic/Pacific - 2, 3, 4, 5, N, Q, R, B, D, M

***

Three chapbooks, one price: $12. These are going to go FAST, so if you can't make the launch you might want to swing by:
http://handheldeditions.blogspot.com/

***

Hope to see you there! Or soon.

All best,

Thomas Hummel
Brett Fletcher Lauer

--
hand*held*editions
thomas hummel & brett fletcher lauer handheldeditions.blogspot.com

↑ Index

205. Adam Fieled

A New Branch of Literary Theory

Sun 19 Apr 2009

For those of you interested in literary theory, I have been developing ideas towards the creation of a new branch of literary theory. I call it "I.T.": Internet Theory. This theory, which is still in the formative stages, attempts to work out the implications, formal characteristics, and inherent properties of "digital text," "digital consciousness," and "Reception Velocity," among other things. I have done a solid week of it here:

http://www.adamfieled.blogspot.com

I hope that others will join with me in exploring these ideas. A new context for literature is a new chance to redefine it, as it was, is, and can be.
Best,
Adam Fieled

↑ Index

206. Jon Cotner
April 23rd (NYC): David Antin, Charles Bernstein, Lynne Tillman
Sun 19 Apr 2009

DAVID ANTIN // CHARLES BERNSTEIN // LYNNE TILLMAN

The James Gallery at the CUNY Graduate Center (365 Fifth Avenue, between 34th and 35th Streets)

7 p.m. Thursday, April 23rd free admission + free drinks organized by Jon Cotner + Andy Fitch

↑ Index

207. Catherine Daly
CFW: Building Bridges, Tehran, London, LA
Sun 19 Apr 2009

DO contact Marjan with any questions; she's very interested in building up her gallery in Iran, in particular.

Note that blogging is now illegal inside Tehran; oftentimes snailmail and reading statements, etc. is the way university students have contact with artists.

Marjan's previous show, in MOCA Tehran, included works by Bill Viola and Masami Teraoka.

I bet works that query ideas of globalization, censorship, women's and minority rights, 1M signatures, etc. are particularly welcome.

http://buildingbridges.me/Bulding_Bridges/BuildingBridges2oO9.html<http://www.cclarkgallery.com/dynamic/artwork_detail.asp?ArtworkID=1074>

Film/ Video Submissions: for a fee of $25 you can include up to 3 films/ videos for our judges to consider.

1.
  1.
  •Everyone who is accepted will be shown at all three different locations:
    1.
    •Park-e-Lalaeh - which is where MOCA Tehran is located,
    2.

•Tehran University,
3.

•As well as Building Bridges favorite gallery in Tehran- (due to the nature of this exhibition. We are not able to release the name of the gallery/ site of Masami Teraoka's solo / the third screening at this time.) 4.

•(These screenings may also travel to other cities such as: London, Istanbul, Dubai, Los Angeles and NYC.)
2.

1.

•Building Bridges will also include the names, bios, artists statement, links to sites and still frame shots of ALL film or video submitted in our on line catalogue. 1.

•For all Film/ Video Submissions PLEASE make sure to include a still frame shot of your film or video for our catalogue.
2.

•FREE initial Artist Registry included with the Film/ Video Submissions fee.
3.

Only Join the Artists' Registry for initial fee of $20. Page includes bio, artists statement, contact info & up to 4 images (additional pages may be added free of charge to include more pix- up to 20 images). Update fee is $10 for adding new images or text.

Please make your checks payable to 'BB c/o Marjan Vayghan' and mail to:

Building Bridges.me

1422 Brockton Ave # 5

Los Angeles, CA, 90025.
Please visit www.BuildingBridges.me <http://www.buildingbridges.me/> for more details.

Please feel free to contact Marjan if you have any questions: [redacted] <http://www.marjanvayghan.com/>

www.MarjanVayghan.com <http://www.marjanvayghan.com/>

--
All best,
Catherine Daly
[redacted]

↑ Index

208. Jennifer Karmin
Red Rover Series / Experiment #28
Mon 20 Apr 2009

Red Rover Series
{readings that play with reading}

Experiment #28:
It's Voyeuristic

SATURDAY, APRIL 25th
7pm

Featuring:
Carrie Olivia Adams & Andy Gricevich

NEW LOCATION
at the Orientation Center
2129 N. Rockwell -- Chicago, IL
corner of Milwaukee/Rockwell
left side of the Congress Theater building
http://orientationcenter.wordpress.com
suggested donation $4

CARRIE OLIVIA ADAMS lives and works in Chicago, where she also serves as poetry editor for Black Ocean and Hunger Mountain. Her poems and reviews have appeared in such journals as Backwards City Review, Cranky, DIAGRAM, Lilies and Cannonballs Review, and Verse. She is the author of Intervening Absence, published by Ahsahta Press and the chapbook, â€œA Useless Window.â€

ANDY GRICEVICH is uncomfortably writing this in the third person. He's a poet, actor, theater director and musician whose work occasionally finds the time to get itself published here and there. He spent much of the last four years melding political theater and experimental music with the Nonsense Company, and performing satirical cabaret songs with the Prince Myshkins. Andy edits Cannot Exist, a print poetry magazine put lovingly together in his living room in Madison, Wisconsin. He very rarely, and with extensive discomfort, blogs at ndgwriting.blogspot.com.

Red Rover Series is curated by Lisa Janssen and Jennifer Karmin. Each event is designed as a reading experiment with participation by local, national, and international writers, artists, and performers. The series was founded in 2005 by Amina Cain and Jennifer Karmin.

UPCOMING
May 9th - Lisa Fishman & Aurora Tabar

Email ideas for reading experiments
to us at [redacted]

The schedule for upcoming events is listed at http://groups.yahoo.com/group/redroverseries

↑ Index

209. Jim Andrews
Re: goosh.org
Mon 20 Apr 2009

> here is a web-based command line program called goosh: http://goosh.org
>
> this lets you perform all sorts of google searches and other ops.
>
> for instance, you can do image searches, video searches, news searches, text searches, blog searches, translations, and various other things from this command line program.

a good response would be 'so what?' why would we want to do those things from a command line? it's easier to do them in the google graphic interface.

i agree.

the significance of goosh.org is what it offers programmers.

imagine net art programs that make calls to google image search when they need images (dbcinema does that already, as do various other net art programs); or when ai is required, the programmer might send user text to a web service for analysis. and get a response back very quickly.

the era of the net art app is more or less here. as there start to be lots of great web services available, the artistic imagination will do interesting and beautiful things with these services in programs whose bodies are distributed over the net--and hopefully dramatic and useful things also!

the <body> of net art:
http://tributaries.thecapilanoreview.ca/2008/04/15/the-body-of-net-art/

ja
http://vispo.com

↑ Index

210. Lewis Warsh
Manrique & Waldman at LIU
Mon 20 Apr 2009

Friday, April 24, 6 PM

The MFA program in creative writing at Long Island University presents

JAIME MANRIQUE & ANNE WALDMAN

reading new work

Long Island University, Humanities Building, 4th floor
English Department lounge

(Take Q, B or R trains to DeKalb Ave)

Jaime Manrique is a poet, novelist, essayist and translator. He is author of the memoir EMINENT MARICONES and the novels LATIN MOON IN MANHATTAN, TWILIGHT AT THE EQUATOR and OUR LIVES ARE THE RIVER. He is currently at work on CERVANTES STREET, a novel about Miguel de Cervantes. He is visiting writer at LIU spring 2009.

Anne Waldman is the author of numerous books including OUTRIDER, STRUCTURE OF THE WORLD COMPARED TO A BUBBLE and IN THE ROOM OF NEVER GRIEVE. She is artistic director of The Summer Writing program at Naropa University. Her new book, MANATEE/HUMANITY, will be available at the reading.

↑ Index

211. Francesco Levato

Re: [BULK] "War Rug" - Poetry Film Screening

Mon 20 Apr 2009

Mary,
Thank you for forwarding this on. I would be interested to hear your students¹ response to the film as well.

There are other poetry films on my website at:
http://www.francescolevato.com/video.htm and one silent film made for an exhibition at the Kinsey Institute titled ³Do (not) touch.² which can be viewed from the home page: http://www.francescolevato.com.

Again, thanks for your interest,
Francesco

On 4/19/09 12:49 AM, "Angeline, Mary" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Francesco,
>
> I have sent "War Rug" on to hundreds of students and friends.
> Perfect Pitch. Smart. Eerily Transcendental.
> Nice Work.
> Thank You
> Are their others?

> ---
>
> From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) on behalf of Francesco Levato
> Sent: Fri 4/17/2009 7:42 AM
> To: [redacted]
> Subject: [BULK] "War Rug" - Poetry Film Screening
>
> "War Rug," a poetry film based on the long poem of the same name will be screened on April 17th, 2009 at FLATFILE galleries, 217 North Carpenter Street, Chicago IL. The screening will be part of a larger event and will take place around 8:30 - 9 p.m.
>
> If you're not in Chicago and would like to preview the film, it will available online for a limited time at the following link:
>
> http://www.francescolevato.com/media/War_Rug.htm
>
> "War Rug" is a work of documentary poetics in the form of a book length poem. Multiple interwoven narratives explore life within zones of conflict as viewed through the lens of current warfare. The narratives range from passages inspired by journal entries, firsthand accounts, and news reports to poetic constructs collaged from military doctrine, Freedom of Information Act released government documents (like CIA interrogation manuals, and detainee autopsy reports), and numerous other sources.
>
> The film collages and juxtaposes archival source material with U.S. Military footage in an exploration of alternative narrative interpretations of the source text.
>
> The film screening is part of "The Marriage of Poetry" featuring readings by Danielle Chapman & Dan-Beachy Quick, with live musical performances by Pont des Arts Ensemble & The Jim Barbick Trio. The main event starts at 6 p.m.

On 4/19/09 11:01 PM, "POETICS automatic digest system"
<[redacted]> wrote:

> <http://www.lsoft.com> <http://listserv.buffalo.edu/cgi-bin/wa?LIST=POETICS>
> POETICS Digest - 17 Apr 2009 to 19 Apr 2009 (#2009-86)
> Table of contents:
>  Tatsumi's Graphics Autobio//Pekar's Graphics Beat Generation History <#S1>*
>  H_NGM_N F_ND DR_V_ <#S2>*
>  From José Rizal to José Garcia Villa: An Introduction to Philippine Literary*

Greats <#S3>
 Reposting: is it asking too much of Ashbery? <#S4>*
 WITH THE URL (this time) "from east to west" - new issue & submission call <#S5>*
 Poets Patrick Herron and Stephen Sturgeon in Harvard Square Thu. April 23 <#S6>*
 NYT Review: Two New Translations of Cavafy's Collected & Unfinished Poems <#S7>*
 goosh.org <#S8>*
 10 years (cyberliterature) X 50 years (Neoconcrete Movement) <#S9>*
 Edmonton fest, Ottawa fest, rob <#S10>*
 for the young poartist who wants <#S11>*
 [BULK] "War Rug" - Poetry Film Screening <#S12>*
 NYC Fri./ Boog City 56 Launch Party <#S13>*
 SERIES 2 LAUNCH - FOUST, KLINK, HUMMEL - APRIL 26TH <#S14>*
 A New Branch of Literary Theory <#S15>*
 April 23rd (NYC): David Antin, Charles Bernstein, Lynne Tillman <#S16>*
 CFW: Building Bridges, Tehran, London, LA <#S17>*
 Liner notes for upcoming video/laptop show at Millennium <#S18>*
1. Tatsumi's Graphics Autobio//Pekar's Graphics Beat Generation History
 Tatsumi's Graphics Autobio//Pekar's Graphics Beat Generation History <cid:[redacted]> (04/17)*
 From: David-Baptiste Chirot <[redacted]>*
2. H_NGM_N F_ND DR_V_
 H_NGM_N F_ND DR_V_ <cid:[redacted]> (04/17)*
 From: Nate Pritts <[redacted]>*
3. From José Rizal to José Garcia Villa: An Introduction to Philippine Literary Greats
 From José Rizal to José Garcia Villa: An Introduction to Philippine Literary Greats <cid:[redacted]> (04/17)*
 From: Ken Chen <[redacted]>*
4. Reposting: is it asking too much of Ashbery?
 Re: Reposting: is it asking too much of Ashbery? <cid:[redacted]> (04/17)*
 From: Jim Andrews <[redacted]>*
5. WITH THE URL (this time) "from east to west" - new issue & submission call
 WITH THE URL (this time) "from east to west" - new issue & submission call <cid:[redacted]> (04/17)*
 From: PJ <[redacted]>*
6. Poets Patrick Herron and Stephen Sturgeon in Harvard Square Thu. April 23
 Poets Patrick Herron and Stephen Sturgeon in Harvard Square Thu. April 23 <cid:[redacted]> (04/17)*
 From: Patrick Herron <[redacted]>*
7. NYT Review: Two New Translations of Cavafy's Collected & Unfinished Poems
 NYT Review: Two New Translations of Cavafy's Collected & Unfinished Poems <cid:[redacted]> (04/17)*
 From: David-Baptiste Chirot <[redacted]>*
8. goosh.org

 goosh.org <cid:[redacted]> (04/17)*
 From: Jim Andrews <[redacted]>*
9. 10 years (cyberliterature) X 50 years (Neoconcrete Movement)
 10 years (cyberliterature) X 50 years (Neoconcrete Movement) <cid:[redacted]> (04/18)*
 From: Regina Pinto <[redacted]>*
10. Edmonton fest, Ottawa fest, rob
 Edmonton fest, Ottawa fest, rob <cid:[redacted]> (04/18)*
 From: Rob McLennan <[redacted]>*
11. for the young poartist who wants  for the young poartist who wants <cid:[redacted]> (04/18)*
 From: Gabrielle Welford <[redacted]>*
12. [BULK] "War Rug" - Poetry Film Screening
 Re: [BULK] "War Rug" - Poetry Film Screening <cid:[redacted]> (04/18)*
 From: "Angeline, Mary" <[redacted]>*
13. NYC Fri./ Boog City 56 Launch Party
 NYC Fri./ Boog City 56 Launch Party <cid:[redacted]> (04/19)*
 From: David Kirschenbaum <[redacted]>*
14. SERIES 2 LAUNCH - FOUST, KLINK, HUMMEL - APRIL 26TH
 SERIES 2 LAUNCH - FOUST, KLINK, HUMMEL - APRIL 26TH <cid:[redacted]> (04/19)*
 From: Hand Held Editions <[redacted]>*
15. A New Branch of Literary Theory
 A New Branch of Literary Theory <cid:[redacted]> (04/19)*
 From: Adam Fieled <[redacted]>*
16. April 23rd (NYC): David Antin, Charles Bernstein, Lynne Tillman
 April 23rd (NYC): David Antin, Charles Bernstein, Lynne Tillman <cid:[redacted]> (04/19)*
 From: Jon Cotner <[redacted]>*
17. CFW: Building Bridges, Tehran, London, LA
 CFW: Building Bridges, Tehran, London, LA <cid:[redacted]> (04/19)*
 From: Catherine Daly <[redacted]>*
18. Liner notes for upcoming video/laptop show at Millennium
 Liner notes for upcoming video/laptop show at Millennium <cid:[redacted]> (04/19)*
 From: Alan Sondheim <[redacted]>*

Browse the POETICS online archives.
<http://listserv.buffalo.edu/cgi-bin/wa?LIST=POETICS>
<http://www.lsoft.com/products/listserv-powered.asp>

↑ Index

212. Thomas savage

Reading by Tom Savage Ron Price and Kate Irving

Mon 20 Apr 2009

On April 26 at 7PM, this Sunday, there will be a poetry reading by Tom Savage, Ron Price, and Kate Irving for Tamarind magazine. It will take place at ABC No Rio, which is at 156 Rivington St. (between Clinton and Suffolk Sts.) at 7PM. Admission is $5.

↑ Index

213. Tim Peterson

Former luddite poet seeks NYer with digital video camera

Mon 20 Apr 2009

Hi Poets,

Is there a NYer out there with a digital video camera who could help me out? I am trying to record our Segue event on poetry and architecture this Saturday. If you are experienced in doing this kind of thing, and if you come for 2 hours and record the event, I will pay you for doing that. Please backchannel me at [redacted] if interested.

Best,

Tim Peterson

↑ Index

214. Deep Oakland

Adam Cornford's O Town 86-96

Mon 20 Apr 2009

Deep Oakland Editions is proud to announce the release of Adam Cornford's *O Town 86-96: Documentary Poetry from the Social Wars, *available for download at http://www.deepoakland.org/text?id=264.

David Harrison Horton & Stephanie Young Editors
--
Deep Oakland
www.deepoakland.org

↑ Index

215. Susan Webster Schultz recent blog posts
Mon 20 Apr 2009

---

on http://tinfisheditor.blogspot.com

* A note to my son's baseball coach
* Celebrate Reading: TINFISH 18.5 meets junior high ...
* Skyping Craig Santos Perez
* Writer Talks #1
* Prepositions and masculinities

Enjoy.

Aloha, Susan

↑ Index

216. Shankar, Ravi (English)
Drunken Boat: 10th Anniversary Celebration at Real Art Ways this Thursday, 4/23
Mon 20 Apr 2009

Drunken Boat: 10th Anniversary at Real Art Ways

THURSDAY, APRIL 23, 7 PM
Drunken Boat <http://www.drunkenboat.com>, an international online arts journal, is celebrating its 10th anniversary with a multimedia literary event. For the last decade, Drunken Boat has been publishing the best of more traditional forms of representation, such as poetry and prose, alongside multimedia works of art, such as hypertext, video and sound art, that could only exist online.

REAL ART WAYS
56 Arbor St
Hartford, CT 06106
p: [redacted]
f: [redacted]
e: [redacted]

Contact: Ravi Shankar <[redacted]>

BIOS FOR DRUNKEN BOAT PERFORMERS FOR REAL ART WAYS LAUNCH

Edmond Chibeau is a performance writer who teaches "Scriptwriting" and "History of Communication" at Eastern Connecticut State University. Chibeau believes we are Microchip Aboriginals, living in the Ur Civilization of the Digital Age. The quantum space between the zeros and ones of the binary number system allows for a digital ekphrasis of the scirbal analogue of phonetic space. In other words; the phonetic alphabet texts us. His play, The Norwich Nine, about civil war soldiers buried in Norwich, Connecticut, was performed at Eastern Connecticut State University on April 19th. He will be giving the keynote address for IMPAC-Connecticut State Wide Ceremony of the Dublin Literary Award on April 28th. Chibeau's work has been performed at Lincoln Center, The Knitting Factory, NoSeNO, The Ear Inn, and elsewhere. He has worked with John Cage, Alison Knowles, Kenneth Rexroth, Allen Ginsberg, & Charles Bernstein, among others.

Composer Anthony Cornicello writes music that blurs distinctions between performers and electronics, timbre and harmony, composition and improvisation, and explores the boundaries of what may be considered post-classical concert music. He has been commissioned to write music for the Scorchio Electric String Quartet, ModernWorks!, the Auros Group for New Music, the Prism Saxophone Quartet, the New York New Music Ensemble, David Holzman, the Group for Contemporary Music, and the InterEnsemble of Padova, Italy. His work has also been featured on the Guggenheim Museum's "Works and Process" series. Cornicello's works have also been performed by the Chicago Civic Symphony, Parnassus, ALEA III, Composers Concordance, Madeleine Shapiro, Robert Black, among others. Cornicello has begun performing on the laptop, using a variety of interfaces and the Max/MSP program. Those performances, mostly with EEE!, have had a notable impact on his music, as EEE!'s music ranges from hip-hop to experimental noise. EEE! is based at Eastern Connecticut State University, where Cornicello is an Associate Professor and Director of the Electronic Music Lab.

Jonathan Monroe's contributions are drawn from Demosthenes' Legacy (Ahadada 2009), a cross-genre work of prose poetry, poetics, and short fiction. Professor and Director of Graduate Studies in Comparative Literature at Cornell University, he is the author of A Poverty of Objects: The Prose Poem and the Politics of Genre (Cornell) and co-author and editor of Writing and Revising the Disciplines (Cornell), Local Knowledges, Local Practices: Writing in the Disciplines at Cornell (Pittsburgh), Poetry, Community, Movement (Diacritics), and Avant-Garde Poetries after the Wall (Poetics Today).

P. Newland has published short fiction with Chelsea, Mississippi Review, Daedalus, and Storyglossia, as well as others. One of her stories was recently nominated for a Pushcart Prize. She writes in her basement, coming up occasionally for coffee. The rest of the time, she works as a adolescent psychotherapist. She recently completed a novel.

Charles Rafferty received a 2009 NEA Fellowship in Creative Writing, as well as a grant from the Connecticut Commission on Culture and Tourism. He is the author of four full-length collections of poetry: The Man on the Tower (University of Arkansas Press, 1995), Where the Glories of April Lead (Mitki/Mitki Press, 2001), During the Beauty Shortage (M2 Press, 2005), and A Less Fabulous Infinity (Louisiana Literature Press, 2006). He has placed poems in The Southern Review, Poetry East, Drunken Boat, TriQuarterly, Quarterly West, Massachusetts Review, Phoebe: The George Mason Review, Connecticut Review, DoubleTake, Poems & Plays, and Louisiana Literature. His work has also appeared in several anthologies, including American Poetry: The Next Generation (Carnegie Mellon University Press), Rhyming Poems: A Contemporary Anthology (University of Evansville Press), and Sonnets: 150 Contemporary Sonnets (University of Evansville Press). He currently teaches at Albertus Magnus College and in the MFA program at Western Connecticut State University. By day, he works as an editor for a technology consulting firm. He lives in Sandy Hook, Connecticut, with his wife and two daughters.

Ram Devineni is the founder of “Rattapallax” magazine and a filmmaker who made “Ginsberg’s Karma” about Allen Ginsberg’s life in India and recently produced Amir Naderi’s “Vegas: Based on a True Story” which premiered at the Venice Film Festival. Rattapallax Films is committed to producing poetic films and documentaries with a social dimension to them. Their films have appeared in the Cairo International Film Festival, San Jose Film Festival, Philadelphia Festival of World Cinema and elsewhere around the world.

Spoken word artist Kelly Zen-Yie Tsai has been featured in 300 performances worldwide at venues including the Nuyorican Poets Cafe, the House of Blues, the Apollo Theater, Kennedy Center, Lincoln Center, and three seasons of the award-winning “Russell Simmons Presents HBO Def Poetry.” The author of Inside Outside Outside Inside (2004) and Thought Crimes (2005) and the CD Infinity Breaks (2006), Tsai has shared stages with Mos Def, KRS-One, Sonia Sanchez, Talib Kweli, Erykah Badu, Amiri Baraka, and many more. Tsai is the author of three poetry chapbooks. Her poetry and essays have been widely published and anthologized. She was awarded an Urban Artists Initiative Fellowship via the Asian American Arts Alliance in 2007. In 2008, the Idealist named Tsai as one of their “New York 40?-- the top New Yorkers who make a positive impact in the five boroughs.

Robin Starbuck is an installation and video artist who lives and works in New York City. Since receiving her MFA from the Art Institute of Chicago and a post graduate certificate in film/video production from NYU she has exhibited her work widely both nationally and internationally. Starbuck is currently a Visiting Scholar in experimental film and animation at Sarah Lawrence College and is working on several parallel film projects involving racial identity and survivance in Native American communities and the subsequent retro-romanticizing of these communities by outsiders. The history of her work includes an investigation of various aspects of American culture through the lens of Freudian Trauma theory. She will be showing a clip from her video "Bishee" and the video short "Forest"

Young-Hae Chang Heavy Industries (??????) is a Seoul-based Web art group consisting of Marc Voge (U.S.A.) and Young-Hae Chang (Korea). Their work is characterized by text-based animation composed in Macromedia Flash that is highly synchronized to musical score, typically jazz In 2000, YHCHI's work was recognized by the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art for its contribution to Online Art. In 2001 the group was awarded a grant from the Foundation for Contemporary Arts Grants to Artists Award.

↑ Index

217. Doug Holder

Poetic Healing: As the hospital and its clients have changed, counselor Douglas Holder adds another dimension.

Mon 20 Apr 2009

Poetic Healing: As the hospital and its clients have changed, counselor Douglas Holder adds another dimension.

* This article came out 9 years ago in The Boston Globe. It was the lead article in the Living/Arts section. I found it in my archives and typed it up because it is no longer online. It can be purchased from The Boston Globe archives.

THE BOSTON GLOBE: (Living Arts: Feb. 8, 2000.)

Poetic Healing: As the hospital and its clients have changed, counselor Douglas Holder adds another dimension.

By Michael Kenney (Globe Staff)

SOMERVILLE—In the fourth collection of poetry of poetry Douglas Holder has published at his Ibbetson Street Press here, he includes a poem of his own, titled: “ A Simple Nod.”

I saw him in Harvard Square, happily walking with a friend.
As we passed each other we exchanged a simple, understated nod.
Our silence was a friendly conspiracy a reminder of where he once was and where he was now.

The where is never stated—although two words, “the ward,” a few lines further on provide a hint. Holder, 44, is a mental health counselor, and for the past six years he has been conducting poetry workshops at McLean Hospital for its patients.

“ I’d been working there 17 years, and I’d had my poetry published in small journals,” he says. I wanted to add another dimension to my job and help a few folks out.”

While Holder would not think of ranking himself with Anne Sexton, who won the Pulitzer Prize for poetry in 1967, he does invoke the legendary poetry workshops she conducted at McLean in the late 1960s. Sexton, a patient at the Belmont hospital in 1973, committed suicide in October 1974.

Nor does Holder claim that the hospital today resemble the institution of those years. “It’s not like the old McLean,” he says, “with patrician types sitting around drinking tea from bone china.” That was the McLean of Harvard fullbacks, Porcellian Club members, and “ Mayflower screwballs.” That was the McLean that Robert Lowell, a frequent patient there in the 1960’s, memorialized in his poem “Waking in the Blue,” and that writer Susanna Kaysen, a patient in 1967, recalls in her best-selling memoir “Girl Interrupted,” now a major motion picture.

Today, Holder says, the members of his poetry groups are more likely to be the homeless “ coming in with a bit of doggerel.”

He runs two workshops, one on Thursday afternoons for patients in the hospital’s open-ward program, which meets in a converted Victorian mansion, and other Friday evenings for patients on two locked wards where Holder works. Neither is open to an outside visitor.

But whether in the mansion or in the more institutional setting of the locked ward, Holder says, “ I try to sort of have a coffeehouse atmosphere. We’ll have a round of applause when some reads a poem.”

Of course it doesn’t always work out as planned.

Holder remembers reading Allen Ginsberg’s “Howl” at his very first workshop.

“I was pretty enthusiastic then, and a bit naïve,” he says. I thought they’d like it. I saw the poem—with its lament about the “best minds of his generation lost to madness”—as a haunting cry that would be a catalyst for discussion.”

And he says with some self-deprecation, “ I thought they’d think of me as, “ Hey, this guy knows where I am coming from.”

Instead , “they were angry and one of them walked out,” he says. “And one of them told me: “Why do I have to hear this? I live with it.”

Another time, Holder says, a young woman became hysterical and ran out when he read a poem of his own about a kosher butcher in Brookline.

“It turned out the young woman had a painful experience in her life, which she associated with chickens, and she couldn’t take it,” Holder says. “ I had a lot of explaining to do with the clinical staff.”

“You never know,” he adds, “when you might hit a vein.”

The problem is compounded, Holder says, by the fact that today’s hospital stays tend to be shorter—a week or two instead of several months. “You don’t always know what to expect,” he says.

It also means that the workshops aren’t quite they were in Sexton’s day.

“I get in their face about it,” Holder says. “ I’ll go around to the rooms in my wards and ask: “Are you coming to the poetry group tonight?’

“And sometimes, I’ll have a doctor or another staff person tell me that so-and-so is a well-known writer, so I’ll make a special effort to get them to come.”

A number of poems written by patients in these workshops have been published —usually anonymously in the now defunct Boston Poet and other small poetry magazines. But not in his own magazine, which shares the name of his small press, Holder says, because that would violate hospital policy.

Because he believes that poetry can play a healing role, Holder started Ibbetson Street Press, out of house in Somerville—naming it after the street where he lives with his wife, Dianne Robitaille, a poet and geriatric nurse.

Holder, who got a master’s degree in literature from Harvard’s extension school while working at McLean, has been publishing his poetry in small magazines and especially Spare Change, the monthly journal for the homeless. “I write a lot about homelessness and mental health problems.”

Starting a small press to publish local poets, Holder says, was “ a way to get connected.”

The most recent issue—38 pages on 81/2 by 11 paper with a paper cover, bound with black slip plastic binder—sells for $4 and contains 40 poems; an interview with Ed Galing, an elderly small press poet; and several reviews.

Among the poets are a number of first-time writers and others described as “mainstays” of Holder’s press. There are also two professors of literature— John Hildebidle, who teaches at MIT, and Robert K. Johnson, who teaches at Suffolk University—as well as Don DiVecchio, the poetry editor of Spare Change.

Ibbetson Street Press has also published a number of chapbooks, and old English term for a small collection of poems or ballads, most recently: Poems From 42nd Street” by Rufus Goodwin, a poet and journalist who lives in Boston; and a collection called “ Poems for the Poet, the Working Man and the Downtrodden," by A.D. Winans, who published a small poetry magazine in San Francisco.

"What distinguishes our journal," says Holder, "is that it contains poems that anyone can read." They deal "with everyday life. There's not a lot of arcane words or funny verse patterns." Anyone, he adds," can get something out of them."

The following is a poem written by an anonymous participant in one of Douglas Holder's poetry workshops at McLean Hospital:

When The Hunter Arrived.

When the hunter arrived at the place where it was unfamiliar he became the prey stalked by everything ever unleashed by the conspiracy of creation.
to the edge he cantered idols toppling by his sides until at last those that were against him trusted his insight into their essential nature
Finally pushing a hole through God's left eye past what had separately designed the limitless war streaming beyond infinity.

↑ Index

218. mIEKAL aND
NONE OF THE ABOVE: Assembling, Collaborating and Publishing in the Eternal Network
Mon 20 Apr 2009

NONE OF THE ABOVE:
Assembling, Collaborating and Publishing in the Eternal Network

CALL FOR PARTICIPATION

In an ambitious assembling-style project, Minnesota Center for Book Arts invites any and all to send 125 copies of anything (within reason – see below) that will fit into a 9" x 12" envelope. This project is in conjunction with MCBA's upcoming exhibition None of the Above: Assembling, Collaborating and Publishing in the Eternal Network.

An assembling project represents the ultimate in democratic art. Everything submitted will be included in the publication (or series of publications, depending on how many people participate). In return for your efforts, you receive a selection of 89 different works created by others who participate.

Who's invited? Artists, writers, printmakers, zinesters, poets, photographers, xerographers, pamphleteers, cartoonists, diagrammers, visualists, mail-artists, transitionalists, minimalists, maximalists, pencilers, stencilers, composers, medics, bookleteers, decoders, conceptualists, transcribers, documentarians, historians, storytellers, manifestoans, CDsters, designers, anti-artists, ventriloquists (make the paper sing!), book artists, book artists who are ventriloquists, whoever so chooses and those chosen – meaning you! Plus, you can exercise reckless editorial control or lack thereof by forwarding this invitation to others.

What to send? Any means of expression is fine (paper, CDs, stickers, popsicle sticks) but it can be no larger than 8.5" x 11" (21.6 cm x 27.9 cm) and 1/8" thick (.3 cm). It can be folded, stitched, crushed, flattened, etc. Shrunk-via-shrink-ray submissions are okay. If you need a theme, submissions will be compiled in publications titled "None of the Above." How's that for clear direction?

How many to send? Submit 125 copies. 89 of these will go to other participants. Additional copies will be archived, distributed to donors/volunteers, and a small number will be sold as a fundraiser for MCBA.

What else to send? So that we can send you your copy of the publication, include a sheet of paper with your name and postal address. Also include $5 in U.S. funds – checks payable to Minnesota Center for Book Arts – to cover the cost of envelopes and postage.

Where to send: None of the Above, c/o Minnesota Center for Book Arts, 1011 Washington Ave South, Suite 100, Minneapolis, MN 55415

Deadlines: If we receive submissions by August 21, 2009, they will be displayed as part of the associated exhibition. To be included in the publication, submissions must be received no later than October 24, 2009.

A special collating event will occur at MCBA on Saturday, October 24, 2009. For those who would like to participate, you may bring your 125 copies that evening rather than mailing. There is no fee. Please email Jeff Rathermel, MCBA's Artistic Director ([redacted]) by October 16, 2009 if you will be participating. Arrive at 7 pm, assembly lines commence at 7:30 pm.

If you have questions about the publication, contact Jeff Rathermel at [redacted] . To learn more about Minnesota Center for Book Arts, visit www.mnbookarts.org .

↑ Index

219. Jonathan Skinner

Skinner at Vertical Gardens

Mon 20 Apr 2009

EARTH DAY
Wednesday, April 22, 2009
7-9pm
Exit Art, 475 Tenth Avenue, between 35th and 36th Street
NYC

Kicking off our SEA Poetry Series, poet Jonathan Skinner will read a selection of his poems and present a talk on ³third landscapes,² entropoetics, and the coming planetary Pangaea-garden of invasive futures. Q & A and reception to follow. Conceived and organized by E.J. McAdams, poet and Associate Director of Philanthropy at The Nature Conservancy, New York City. FREE. Cash bar.

Jonathan Skinner¹s poetry collections include With Naked Foot (Little Scratchpad, 2008) and Political Cactus Poems (Palm Press, 2005). Recent poetry has appeared in onedit #12 < http://www.onedit.net/>. Skinner edits the journal ecopoetics < http://ecopoetics.wordpress.com/>, which features creative-critical intersections between writing and ecology. His essays on the poets Ronald Johnson and Lorine Niedecker appeared recently in volumes published by the National Poetry Foundation and by University of Iowa Press, respectively. His essay on ³Boundary Work in Mei-mei Berssenbrugge's Pollen² can be read in the online journal How2 < http://www.asu.edu/pipercwcenter/how2journal/> and his essay on Bernadette Mayer's Studying Hunger can be read on ThoughtMesh < http://vectors.usc.edu/thoughtmesh/publish/184.php>. The piece ³Ethno Plunderphonics: On Some Mockingbird Transcriptions² was included in the journal Intervalles <http://www.cipa.ulg.ac.be/intervalles4/75_skinner.pdf>. Skinner teaches in the Environmental Studies Program, at Bates College in Central Maine, where he makes his home.

For more on Exit Art, visit: www.exitart.org

The SEA Poetry Series is part of a bigger Exit Art initiative called Social Environmental Aestetics (SEA). For more on SEA, visit: http://www.exitart.org/site/pub/exhibition_programs/SEA/index.html

For more on the current SEA show Vertical Gardens, visit:
http://www.exitart.org/site/pub/exhibition_programs/SEA/vertical_gardens.html

↑ Index

220. Larissa Shmailo
2009 New Century Music Awards for Spoken Word
Tue 21 Apr 2009

Apologies for cross-posting.

Title: The Third Annual New Century Awards Live Music Showcase Hosted by Red Carpet Live with Lisa Levy
Featuring: Larissa Shmailo with Bobby Perfect, Marcell and the Truth, Ekayani and the Tom Glide Space, The Change Agents, Viva
Date: Wednesday May 6, 2009
Time: 7 â€“ 11 pm
Address: 149 Bleecker Street (between Thompson and LaGuardia) NY, NY 10012
Venue: Wicked Willyâ€™s
Web: myspace.com/wickedwillysnyc
Phone (212) 254 â€“ 8952
Admission: $8.00
Train: 6 train to Bleecker/ Bway - LaFayette

Monday April 13, 2009 For Immediate Release:

The Third Annual New Century Awards Celebrates Indie Musical Innovators on Historic Bleecker street. No money to burn? This New York City showcase offers a satisfying musical menu for a song. Comedienne Lisa Levy hosts a diverse evening of spoken word, soul, house, jam band and glam rock with la crÃ¨me de la crÃ¨me of indie talent.

The Third Annual New Century Awards Celebrate May 6 Bleecker street comes alive with vibrant and original sounds on the strip where innovators Joni Mitchell, Curtis Mayfield and Bob Dylan gave America something worth listening to that couldnâ€™t be pigeonholed. New Century dedicates an evening to poetic, funky, soulful and highly individualistic expression from their contemporary heirs. *A Good Credit Score is 700 or Above. See yours in just 2 easy steps! (http://pr.atwola.com/promoclk/100126575x1221621490x1201450102/aol?redir=http:%2F%2Fwww.freecreditreport.com%2Fpm%2Fdefault.aspx%3Fsc%3D668072%26 hmpgID%3D62%26bcd%3DAprilfooter421NO62)

↑ Index

221. Paul Nelson

Tiered Internet Pricing Shelved

Tue 21 Apr 2009

---

http://seattletimes.nwsource.com/html/editorialsopinion/2009090513_edita21cable.html

Two important wins for consumers Angry
consumers backed telecommunications giant Time Warner Cable off plans to test market tiered pricing for consumers. A strong consumer advocate, Gene Kimmelman, is headed to the Justice Department to track antitrust issues.
Seattle Times editorialTELECOMMUNICATIONS
giant Time Warner Cable backed away from tiered pricing. A longtime consumer advocate heads to the Department of Justice. Two important victories.

Angry, confused and fearful consumers howled down Time Warner's plan to test market metered Internet usage plans in selected cities in New York, North Carolina and Texas. Uploads and downloads would be capped, and tiered units of gigabytes would be priced from $15 to $150 a month.

Busy moving and profiting from content it never produced, the cable company was going to make even more money with bulk rates. Time Warner Executive Officer Glenn Britt skittered away from consumption-based billing and earlier talk of Internet brownouts.

This is a fight that is not over. Anyone who did much more than surf the Web and send e-mails could have been mugged. As the various opportunities to stay connected expand, these toll proposals will be back. Stay alert.

Successful resistance against Time Warner benefitted from the additional leverage of two New York congressmen, Rep. Eric Massa and Sen. Charles Schumer. Rallying strong voices matters.

Another key development for consumer interests was the report that Gene Kimmelman will join the Justice Department's Antitrust Division. The appointment, first reported on TheDeal.com, puts Kimmelman, a vice president at Consumer's Union â€” publishers of Consumer Reports â€” working with Assistant Attorney General Christine Varney. Both have big reputations on consumer issues. Kimmelman is especially strong on telecommunications and media ownership. He has been an informed critic of the Federal Communications Commission. He raised protests recently about cable companies fuzzing their sales pitches to suggest analog TV viewers had to subscribe to more-expensive cable services to keep any TV signal.

Consumer awareness and sympathetic voices in high places are indispensable in a volatile economy and dynamic media environment.

Copyright Â© 2009 The Seattle Times Company

Paul E. Nelson

Global Voices Radio
SPLAB!
American Sentences
Organic Poetry
Poetry Postcard Blog

Ilalqo, WA [redacted]

↑ Index

222. amy king
*Is This Nat'l Poetry Month Or Something? THIS WEDNESDAY AND FRIDAY?*
Tue 21 Apr 2009

So many readings this month!Â Â Just TWO below:

THIS WEDNESDAY --

KING + SIME + THOMPSON -- Wednesday, April 22nd
-- 7:00pm @ Barrette

Â

~~~

Â

Barrette will be offering drink specials to attendees ($5 wine, $4 pints) and their tasty bar menu will be available as well.Â We hope folks will stick around to drink or nosh and check outÂ books and broadsides (made especially for this event) after the reading.

Â

~~~

Â

AMY KING is the author of I'm the Man Who Loves You and Antidotes for an Alibi, and forthcoming, Slaves to do These Things (Blazevox Books). She teaches English and Creative Writing at Nassau Community College , moderates the Poetics and Women's Poetry listserves, and co-curates The Stain of Poetry: A Reading Series (http://stainofpoetry.wordpress.com/). Please visit her at http://amyking.org for more.

RICHARD SIME grew up in rural North Dakota, graduated from college in Minnesota, moved to New York City to attend graduate school at NYU, drifted into publishing, and eventually returned to school at Sarah Lawrence College, where he earned an MFA in fiction writing and where a course on prosody planted a seed. He began to write poetry in workshops at the New School in New York
City and the Fine Arts Work Center in Provincetown ,
MA , where he returns each summer.
His work has appeared in Barrow
Street , Provincetown
Arts, Radical Faerie Digest, and Passager.

L.B. THOMPSON received her B.A. from Sarah
Lawrence College
and her M.F.A. in Poetry from New York University .
Her poetry has been published in journals including Fence, Pool, Lyric, The Women's Review of Books and The New Yorker. She received an award for emerging women writers from the Rona Jaffe Foundation in 2002, and won the Center for Book Artsâ€™ annual chapbook competition in 2003. L.B. teaches English to college freshmen, works as a free-lance copyeditor, and lives on the North Fork of Long Island.

Â

~~~

Barette is wheelchair accessible.

Â

Hosts -- Ari Banias & Danica Colic

Â

Barrette

601 Vanderbilt
Ave (at Bergen
St , Prospect Heights , Brooklyn)

[redacted]

Subway: B, Q to Seventh
Ave ; 2, 3 to Grand Army Plaza
~~~

Â

Â

http://www.facebook.com/event.php?eid=81872660752

Â

Â
~~~~~~

THIS FRIDAY --

The Stain
of Poetry:Â A Reading Series presents

Â

April
24th @ 7 PM - Stain Bar - Williamsburg , Brooklyn

Â

Jennifer
Burch, Heather Green, Chris Hosea, Sueyeun Juliette Lee, Daniel Lin, Barry Schwabsky

Â

~~~

Â

Jennifer
Burch holds a B.A. in Fine Art from Amherst College and an M.A. in Literature from the University of Kent in Canterbury , England . Her first book, No Matter, was released by The Winged Way (September 2008). Jennifer has published work in Article, Free Verse, Guernica ,
Left Facing Bird, Sal Mimeo, and Verse, and is included in Green Integerâ€™s forthcoming anthology, The Gertrude Stein Awards. Jennifer lives in Brooklyn , New York , where she writes and teaches yoga.

Â

~~~

Â
~~~

Heather
Greenâ€™s work has appeared in Barrow
Street , DIAGRAM, The Hat, Lungfull!, Pebble Lake
Review, Tarpaulin Sky, and other journals. Sheâ€™s the author of the chapbook The Match Array (Dancing Girl Press, 2008) and lives in Boston .

Â

~~~

Â

Â

Chris Hoseaâ€™s poems appear in VOLT, Swerve, Denver Quarterly, Article, Harvard Review, Iowa Review, and The Literary Review. With Cecily Iddings, he edits The Blue Letter, a free direct-mail poetry newsletter. He works at the Marymount School and lives in Brooklyn .

Â

~~~

Â

Â

Sueyeun Juliette Lee edits Corollary Press, a chapbook series devoted to new work by writers of color. Recent work has appeared in Effing, One Less, and online at critiphoria.org. Her chapbooks include Mental Commitment Robots (yo yo labs), Perfect Villagers (Octopus Books) and Trespass Slightly In (Coconut). Her first full-length collection, That Gorgeous Feeling, is out from Coconut Books. She currently lives in Philadelphia .

Â

~~~

Â

Â

Daniel Lin has a chapbook, TINDER, from Nightboat Books (2004), and has recently published poems in Unsplendid and The Jewish Quarterly. He was a N.Y. Times Fellow at NYU and a Tennessee Williams Scholar at Sewanee Writersâ€™ Conference.

Â

~~~

Â

Barry Schwabsky is an American poet and art critic living in London . His new collection of poems, Book Left Open in the Rain, is published imminently by Black Square Editions and is available from Small press Distribution. He writes reguarly for The Nation and Artforum (where he also co-edits the international reviews section), among others. He is the author of Opera: Poems 1981-2002 (Meritage Press) and The Widening Circle: Consequences of Modernism in Contemporary Art (Cambridge University Press) as well as several chapbooks of poetry and contributions to dozens of books and exhibition catalogues on contemporary and modern art.

Â

~~~

Â

Hosted by
Amy King and Ana BoÅ¾iÄeviÄ‡

Â

Â

stain bar

766 grand street

brooklyn,
ny 11211

(L train
to Grand Street ,
1 block west)

Â

Â

SITE:Â http://stainofpoetry.com

VIDEO:Â http://stainofpoetry.wordpress.com/video/

Â

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index
~~~

223. amy king

Poet Brian Howe's music review of Camera Obscura makes the ABC news

Tue 21 Apr 2009

I often enjoy Brian's insights; in this one, I'm not alone. Go, Brian!

http://abcnews.go.com/Video/playerIndex?id=7384237

Amy

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

224. Small Press Traffic

REMINDER: Julie Patton and Kit Robinson this Saturday

Tue 21 Apr 2009

We hope you can join us for this fantistic night!
Please note this is a Saturday reading!
Saturday, April 25, 2009 at 7:30 p.m.
Timken Hall, CCA

_____

Julie Patton is a sight and sound specific "make-up artist" who mixes words with action, spit, soil, sounds, found texts, leaf melodies and anything else she can get her hands on. A Room for Opal, part of the Olin Art Museum's (Lewiston, Maine) Green Horizons exhibition (see Jonathan Skinner's essay about Patton's project in ON: Contemporary Practice 1, November, 2008) is one of the many text-based "library installations" Julie has created in her practice as an X-Pat..., *Povarty native in the Americas. Using Blue to Get Black was just released in Crayon on Beauty (Issue 5, October 2008), Notes for Some (Nominally) Awake was published by Yo-Yo Labs in 2007 and)((eco (lang) (uage(reader)) is forthcoming. On the "found-sound" side, Patton has collaborated with musicians Ralph Alessi, Uri Caine, Ravi Coltrane, Henry Grimes, Barnaby McAll, Nasheet Waits, and Paul Van Curen. Patton has been awarded the 2008 Acadia Arts Foundation Grant, the 2007 New York Foundation for the Arts Poetry Fellowship. As the Founding Director of the Dandelion Society, Let It Bee Gardens, Green Scouts and NeighborWoods, Julie extends her "pulp poetic practice" into collaborative, civic, and natural spaces with market garden, gleaning, urban prairie initiatives, sustainable artist-housing and green job skills for youth.

This spring, Kit Robinson is celebrating the publication of The Messianic Trees: Selected Poems, 1976-2003 (Adventures in Poetry) with readings in Los Angeles, Buffalo, Toronto, Detroit, Chicago, Minneapolis, Milwaukee… and now San Francisco. He is the author of such books as 9:45 (The Post Apollo Press, 2003) and The Crave (Atelos, 2002) and a co-author of the multi-part series The Grand Piano (Mode A, ongoing), a collective memoir of San Francisco in the 70s. His play Creative Floors was directed by Stephanie Young and Alan Bernheimer at SPT's Poets Theater Jamboree in January 2008. Recent work has appeared in 26, Hambone, Model Homes, onedit, Shampoo, The Hat, The Poker and Vanitas.

--
Samantha Giles
Executive Director
Small Press Traffic Literary Arts Center
sptraffic.org
smallpresstraffic.blogspot.com

↑ Index

225. Ana Bo¾ièeviæ
This week: Chapbook Festival in NYC!
Tue 21 Apr 2009

Join us this week for A Celebration of the Chapbook, with wonderful panels, workshops and a bookfair -- all free of charge and open to the public. Find the full schedule at http://centerforthehumanitiesgc.org/festival* and below.

A Celebration of the Chapbook

Thursday April 23rd, 2009 - Saturday April 25th, 2009

* ~*

Thursday, April 23
at The Graduate Center, CUNY, 365 Fifth Avenue & 34th St

Chapbook Fair
10:00am-6:00pm, The Elebash Recital Hall Lobby

Brief History of Chapbooks 3:00-4:30pm, The Elebash Recital Hall With Isaac Gewirtz, Curator of the New York Public Library's Berg Collection; Eric Lorberer, Editor of Rain Taxi; and Michael Ryan, Director of the Rare Books and Manuscripts Library at Columbia University. Moderated by Richard Kaye, Hunter College, CUNY

Chapbooks in the 20th and 21st Centuries 4:30-6:00pm, The Elebash Recital Hall With Michael Basinski, Assistant Curator of the Poetry/Rare Books

Collection of the University Libraries, SUNY at Buffalo; Anne Waldman, Chair and Artistic Director of Naropa University's Summer Writing Program; and Kevin Young, Emory University. Moderated by Ammiel Alcalay, Queens College, CUNY.

Keynote Reading
6:00pm, The Elebash Recital Hall
Readings by Lytton Smith, Gerald Stern, Judith Vollmer, Kevin Young and others, with an introduction by Kimiko Hahn.

~
Friday, April 24
at The Graduate Center, CUNY, 365 Fifth Avenue & 34th St

Chapbook Fair
10:00am-4:00pm, Rooms 8301/8304

Chapbook Now: Producing Chapbooks
A Workshop for Poets
10:00-11:30am, Room 8400
With Rachel Levitsky (Belladonna*); Sharon Dolin (The Center for Book Arts); and Ryan Murphy (North Beach Yacht Club). Moderated by *Alice Quinn
*(Poetry Society of America). *WORKSHOP FULL

*Chapbook Now: Producing Chapbooks
A Workshop for Publishers*
11:30am-1:00pm, Room 8402
With *Mark Wagner *(Booklyn); Matvei Yankelevich (Ugly Duckling Presse); and Brenda Iijima
(Portable Press at Yo-Yo Labs). Moderated by Rob Casper (Poetry Society of America). WORKSHOP FULL

Friday, April 24
at The Center for Book Arts, 28 West 27th Street, 3rd Floor

Bookmaking for Writers: A Studio Workshop
With Susan Mills and Karen Randall
2:00-5:00pm

To register, call [redacted] or [redacted] – registration is offered on a first-come, first-serve basis. There's a $20 materials fee for each workshop.

Bookmaking for Publishers: A Studio Workshop
With *Susan Mills *and Karen Randall
2:00-5:00pm

To register, call [redacted] or [redacted] – registration is offered on a first-come, first-serve basis. There's a $20 materials fee for each workshop.

RECEPTION at The Center for Book Arts, 28 West 27th Street, 3rd Floor
6:00 pm All are welcome! Visit the exhibitions at The Center for Book Arts: \'fl \:art, text, new media, Roni Gross: Zitouna at 20, and Spotlight: 2008 Artists-in-Residence.

~
Saturday, April 25
at The Asian American Writers' Workshop, 16 West 32nd Street, Suite 10A

*Collector's Show-and-Tell:
The Secret History of Asian American Literature
Patricia Wakida*
2:00-3:00pm

Publishing from the Margins 4:30-6:00pm With Tan Lin; Dawn Lundy Martin (Third Wave Foundation, Black Took Collective); and Bushra Rehman. Moderated by Ken Chen (The Asian American Writers' Workshop). Followed by a brief reading from the Workshop's Postcard Poetry Project.

RECEPTION
at The Asian American Writers' Workshop, 16 West 32nd Street, Suite 10A
6:00 pm

Participating Publishers
Achiote Press
Belladonna*
Book Thug
Cuneiform Press
Dancing Girl Press
Diagram/New Michigan Press
dusie chapbook kollektiv ellectrique press
Finishing Line Press
Flying Guillotine Press
Forklift, Ohio
hand*held*editions
Interlude Editions
NewLights Press
Noemi Press
North Beach Yacht Club
Octopus Books
Pilot Books
Portable Press at Yo-Yo Labs

Rain Taxi
Sarabande Books
Slapering Hol
Small Anchor Press
Small Fires Press
TinFish Press
Toadlily Press
Ubu Editions
Ugly Duckling Presse
Web del Sol's World Voices X-ing Press and others

Sponsored by
*The Asian American Writers' Workshop
The Center for Book Arts
The Center for the Humanities, The Graduate Center, The Office of Academic Affairs, and MFA Programs in Creative Writing of the City University of New York
Poetry Society of America*

* *

For more information visit http://centerforthehumanitiesgc.org/festival

↑ Index

226. Michael Kelleher
Literary Buffalo E-Newsletter 04.21.09-04.26.09
Tue 21 Apr 2009

LITERARY BUFFALO
04.21.09-04.26.09

BABEL 2009-2010 SEASON SUBSCRIPTIONS ON SALE NOW!
Scroll down for details

Note to Subscribers:

We will send out a confirmation email regarding your purchase after we have processed all of the early bird subscriptions. We intend to send out the confirmation email no later than 5/22. Please be patient ? if you placed an order, you WILL receive confirmation in May and your tickets WILL be mailed in September.

EVENTS THIS WEEK

Visit the Literary Buffalo calendar at www.justbuffalo.org for more detailed info on these events. All events free and open to the public unless otherwise noted.

04.21.09

Just Buffalo
Short Story Discussion Group
Discussing: George Saunders & William Trevor
Tuesday, April 21, 6:30 PM
Spot Coffee, Chippewa and Delaware

04.23.09

Rust Belt Books
Book Release & Reading: Michael Sikkema's Futuring
Thursday, April 23, 2009 @ 7:30 PM
Rust Belt Books
202 Allen St Buffalo

BABEL

CLICK THE LINK TO BUY TICKETS TO ISABEL ALLENDE ON APRIL 17

http://www.justbuffalo.org/index.php?task=view&id=65

2009-10 SUBSCRIPTIONS ON SALE NOW.

October 9, A.S. Byatt
November 20, Ha Jin
March 5, Azar Nafisi
April 16, Salman Rushdie

Previous Subscriber: $85
New Subscriber: $110
These subscriptions include general admission seating at all 4 events.

Patron: $275
Patron Pair: $450
Patron level subscriptions include VIP reserved seating and admission to all pre-event author receptions.

Purchase subscriptions now at http://www.justbuffalo.org/babel or by phone at [redacted].

WRITER CRITIQUE GROUP

The member writer critique group is back on a new night: 1st and 3rd Tuesdays at the Market Arcade. Click here for more info:

http://www.justbuffalo.org/media/pdf/CritiqueGroup0409.pdf

WESTERN NEW YORK BOOK ARTS COLLABORATIVE WORKSHOPS

We have some availability in the upcoming workshops

May 3 - Printmaking for Kids
May 13 & 14 - Making Fonts

To register: http://www.wnybookarts.org/Spring09wkshps.php

UNSUBSCRIBE

If you would like to unsubscribe from this list, just say so and you will immediately be removed. _____

Michael Kelleher
Artistic Director
Just Buffalo Literary Center
Market Arcade
617 Main St., Ste. 202A
Buffalo, NY 14203
[redacted]
[redacted] (fax)
www.justbuffalo.org
[redacted]

↑ Index

227. George Bowering

*Re: Is This Nat'l Poetry Month Or Something? THIS WEDNESDAY AND FRIDAY?*

Tue 21 Apr 2009

>
No, it is INTERnational Poetry Month

Mr. G.H. Bowering
Bids farewell to youth.

↑ Index

228. Catherine Daly

LA, CA: Ask Your Mama: 12 Moods for Jazz, The Langston Hughes Project

Tue 21 Apr 2009

---

*Ask Your Mama: 12 Moods for Jazz, The Langston Hughes Project *"Live" at the Huntington Library *Thursday, April 23, 2009 at 7:00p.m. * Featuring the Ron McCurdy Quartet

The concert will feature the Ron McCurdy Quintet with Eli Bruggemann, piano, Peter Buck, drums, Gabe Noel, bass, Munyungo, percussion and Ron McCurdy, trumpet and spoken word.

For ticket information contact: The Huntington: http://www.huntington.org/

Call: [redacted] Address: 1151 Oxford Road, San Marino, CA 91108

This multimedia presentation consists of spoken word, videography, and jazz quintet is Langston Hughes' commentary on the struggle for freedom and equality of African Americans and Africans during the 1960s. By way of videography, this concert performance links the words and music of Hughes' poetry to topical images of Ask Your Mama's people, places, and events, and to the works of the visual artists. Langston Hughes admired or collaborated with most closely over the course of his career -- the African-inspired mural designs and cubist > geometries of Aaron Douglas, the blues and jazz-inspired collages of > Romare Bearden, t he macabre grotesques of Meta Warrick Fuller and > the rhythmic sculptural figurines and heads and bas reliefs of > Richmond Barthe, the color blocked cityscapes and black history series > of Palmer Hayden and Jacob Lawrence. Together the words, sounds, and > images recreate a magical moment in our cultural history, which > bridges the Harlem Renaissance, the post World War II Beat writers' > coffeehouse jazz poetry world, and the looming Black Arts performance > explosion of the 1960s.

--
All best,
Catherine Daly
[redacted]

↑ Index

229. Maria Damon

Two events with Jules Boykoff: One Poli-Sci, One Poetry

Tue 21 Apr 2009

/The Cowles Family endowment for the study of public service presents:/

Dissent and American Democracy

*Friday, April 24th
1:00-3:00pm
Cowles Auditorium, Hubert H. Humphrey Institute of Public Affairs, University of Minnesota
301 19th Avenue South, Minneapolis, MN*

/Following the speakers, an open forum will be moderated by Joe Soss, Cowles Professor for the Study of Public Service/

“The Intersections of Dissent”: What is the value of dissent within a democracy, and how is it best promoted and protected? Does the term “dissent” capture the values, rights, and groups that we think need to be protected? Framed as an abstract principle, can the goals of protecting “dissent” be appropriated, deployed, and diluted in ways that lead to the exclusion or suppression of the voices of some marginalized groups? Dara Strolovitch will discuss these multiple valences of dissent, focusing in particular on their relationships with the intersecting politics of race, class, gender, and sexuality.

"The Suppression of Dissent": Over the past century, actors in government and mass media have repeatedly taken steps to silence political dissent in theUnited States. Focusing on surveillance as a critical step in the process of suppression, Jules Boykoff will explore the historical and contemporary development of efforts to limit dissent. How do such efforts affect the practice of democracy in the United States? How can activists sidestep these efforts and raise the chances that dissenting voices will be heard?

Dara Z. Strolovitch (Ph.D. Yale University, 2002) is Associate Professor of Political Science at the University of Minnesota. She is the author of /Affirmative Advocacy: Race, Class, and Gender in Interest Group Politics/ (University of Chicago Press 2007).

Jules Boykoff (Ph.D. American University, 2004) is Assistant Professor in the Department of Politics and Government at Pacific University in Oregon. He is the author of /Beyond Bullets: The Suppression of Dissent in the United States/ (AK Press, 2007).

*Saturday April 25
POETRY READING
*

Poets Jules Boykoff and Kaia Sand read
7:30 pm, 3440 Park Avenue, Mpls. (Maria Damon's house)
Snacks at 7:00 BYOB.

*Jules Boykoff *is the author of /Beyond Bullets: The Suppression of Dissent in the United States/ (AK Press, 2007), /The Suppression of Dissent: How the State and Mass Media Squelch USAmerican Social Movements/ (Routledge, 2006) and /Landscapes of Dissent: Guerrilla Poetry & Public Space/ (co-authored with Kaia Sand) (Palm Press, 2008). He is also the author of two collections of poetry. He teaches political science and writing at Pacific University in Oregon.

Kaia Sand is the author of the poetry collection /interval/ (Edge Books 2004), selected as a Small Press Traffic Book of the Year. Dusie Press published her wee book, /lotto/. She has led poetry walks in Portland, and a book that includes these walks, /Remember to Wave/, is forthcoming with Tinfish Press. Sand is currently working a collection of collages from the NAFTA as well as an investigation of housing foreclosures.

↑ Index

230. Séamas Cain
The poems of Muhammed Iqbal
Tue 21 Apr 2009

_____

Coiscéim & Poetry Ireland invite you to be present when Liam Carson will launch a new book by Gabriel Rosenstock, a Gaelic poet, of translations of the poems of Muhammed Iqbal (1877 – 1938) a poet & philosopher of Sialkot in Pakistan.

Ceol, amhránaíocht agus filíocht ...

Music, song and poetry ...

This event will take place at the Ballsbridge Inn (formerly Jury's Hotel) in Dublin 4, Ireland on Sunday, 26th of April, 2009 at 12 noon.

Tickets for this very special event available by e-mail from [redacted] or by phone in Dublin from Mariyam Burki at [redacted] or Rosheen Callender at [redacted]-746.

Fáilte roímh chách ...

Séamas Cain
http://alazanto.org/seamascain
http://seamascain.writernetwork.com
http://www.mnartists.org/Seamas_Cain

↑ Index

231. Eric Elshtain
New Beard of Bees Chapbook
Tue 21 Apr 2009

Time for a little chapter & verse

http://www.beardofbees.com/hayes.html

Enjoy.

Eric Elshtain
Editor
Beard of Bees Press
http://www.beardofbees.com

↑ Index

232. Laura Hinton
Recent posts on Chant de la Sirene
Wed 22 Apr 2009

Announcing several recent posts on Chant de la Sirene<http://chantdelasirene.com>, my new blog on performance poetics and the hybrid arts:

-- Kit Robinson sound-piece Interview, Parts 1 and 2, completed last week in Berkeley, with commentaries on Robinson's The Messianic Tress: Selected Poems 1976-2003, and his new chapbook, Train I Ride * *-- A review of the poet's theater piece by Lee Ann Brown and Tony Torn: SOP DOLL! A Jack Noh Play (March 31st at the Gershwin, New York City) -- A commentary on the recent dance production, Yessified, by Sally Silvers (also in New York City)

and

-- a guest blog report from Ann Bogle of Ana Verse<http://annbogle.blogspot.com>, on last week's reading of "Collaborative Artists' Books," at the Walker Art Center (Minneapolis)

Laura Hinton
Professor of English
City College of New York
http://www.mermaidtenementpress.com
http://www.chantdelasirene.com

↑ Index

233. Jim Andrews
Arteroids in Leipzig
Wed 22 Apr 2009

I wrote a shoot-em-up online poetry game a while ago called Arteroids (http://vispo.com/arteroids). It's currently being exhibited in Leipzig, Germany at D21 in a show called LET'S RESTART!!! curated by Michael Arzt. Leipzig is in what was the Communist sector of Germany. The show at D21 features five computer games/works of art. All the games are accessible via the Internet. They are for free public access.

Here are some pictures from the opening at D21 in Leipzig: http://vispo.com/arteroids/leipzig . The D21 site is at http://d21-leipzig.de/restart where you can read descriptions of the games, links to the games themselves, and Michael's introduction to the show.

ja

↑ Index

234. Ana Bo¾ièeviæ
Chapbook festival -- corrected link
Wed 22 Apr 2009

Oy, poetics list, garbling my link. Here's the correct link to the program:

http://centerforthehumanitiesgc.org/festival

See you tomorrow & Fri! (I hope!)

--
http://nightcommute.org
http://stainofpoetry.com

↑ Index

235. David Kirschenbaum
Boog City presents Bird Dog and Stephanie Carlin
Wed 22 Apr 2009

---

please forward

Boog City presents

d.a. levy lives: celebrating the renegade press

Bird Dog magazine
(Seattle)

This Tues., April 28, 6:00 p.m. sharp, free

ACA Galleries
529 W. 20th St., 5th Flr.
NYC

Event will be hosted by Bird Dog editor Sarah Mangold

Featuring readings from

Kate Eichhorn
Sandy Florian
Kate Greenstreet
Laura Sims
Nico Vassilakis

with music from

Stephanie Carlin

There will be wine, cheese, and crackers, too.

Curated and with an introduction by Boog City editor David Kirschenbaum

---

Bird Dog
http://www.birddogmagazine.com/

Bird Dog: A dog used to retrieve game birds. To follow a subject on interest with persistent attention. A scout . . .

Bird Dog was founded in 2002 by Sarah Mangold. It publishes innovative work from emerging and established writers with a focus on longer sequences, poetics, and visual work. Perfect-bound, every issue features hand-tipped illustrations and art.

Performer Bios

Stephanie Carlin
http://www.stephaniecarlin.com/
http://www.myspace.com/stephaniecarlinrock

Stephanie Carlin just released her second EP, "the Agony and Ecstasy of." The CD, captivating the gut-wrenching loves and losses of the human heart, led to her first opportunity to reject a record contract, which involved: Tommy Hilfiger; an aging producer who, based on his awkward mohawk, was dying to be accepted by Hot Topic pre-teens; and participating in multiple slutty modeling shoots in exchange for tasteless ClearChannel marketing.

Carlin self-released her first EP at 16, which led to the formation of Long Island sensation Oliver Lankard. For a while, Oliver Lankard was four-piece band, then a seven-piece band, and even a ten-piece band, complete with a three-piece horn section and three doo-wop back-up vocalists. She managed the band while performing as lead vocalist and guitarist. Under her supervision, Oliver Lankard performed over 50 shows at notable venues like The Knitting Factory, Maxwell's, and The Crazy Donkey. In their short time together, Oliver Lankard opened for The Hold Steady keyboardist Franz Nicolay and performed alongside Prentiss McNeil of legendary group The Drifters.

From violently chastising American democracy to glorifying spontaneous love, her original lyrics are as wildly inventive as her impulsive scat-singing. With influences ranging from Elliott Smith to Ella Fitzgerald, the clarity of her obscurity is quite fascinating.

Kate Eichhorn
http://www.bookthug.ca/proddetail.php?prod=3254

Kate Eichhorn is the author of Fond (BookThug) and the co-editor of Innovative Canadian Women's Poetry and Poetics (Coach House Books). As a curator, she has worked with reading series and literary festivals to stage multidisciplinary collaborations between poets, visual artists, and composers. She is an assistant professor of culture and media studies at The New School.

Sandy Florian
http://boxingthecompass.blogspot.com

Sandy Florian is the author of four books—Telescope (Action Books) and The Tree of No (Action Books), and the forthcoming On Wonderland & Waste (Sidebrow Press) and Visible Stars (Elixir Press), as well as the chapbook 32 Pedals & 47 Stops (Tarpaulin Sky Press). She is the current writer in residence at the New College of Florida in Sarasota. You can visit her blog at the above link.

Kate Greenstreet
http://www.kategreenstreet.com

Kate Greenstreet's first book, case sensitive, was published by Ahsahta Press. Her second, The Last 4 Things, will be out from Ahsahta in September. This is why I hurt you, her most recent chapbook, is available from Lame House Press. New work is out or forthcoming in jubilat, Court Green, Hotel Amerika, Saltgrass, and Fence.

Laura Sims
http://www.laurasims.net

Laura Sims is the author of two books of poems: Practice, Restraint (winner of the 2005 Fence Books Alberta Prize), and Stranger (Fence Books). Her book reviews and essays have appeared in Boston Review, New England Review, Rain Taxi, and The Review of Contemporary Fiction, and she has recently published poems in the Denver Quarterly, Colorado Review, CAB/NET, and Crayon. She lives in Brooklyn and teaches writing at Baruch College in Manhattan.

Nico Vassilakis
http://www.cnvill.net/mfvassilakis.htm
http://www.pages.drexel.edu/~blc35/final/vassilakis.html

Nico Vassilakis works in textual and visual poetry. He is a curator for the Subtext Reading Series in Seattle. His vispo videos have been shown in exhibits and festivals of innovative language arts. Nico's recently published Text Loses Time is available from ManyPenny Press. Forthcoming from blazevox is Disparate Magnets and from blue lion books, Protracted Type, a collection of visual poetry.

Directions:
C/E to 23rd St., 1/9 to 18th St.
Venue is bet. 10th and 11th avenues

Next event:

Tues. May 19
Dusie Press (Switzerland)
http://www.dusie.org/

--
David A. Kirschenbaum, editor and publisher
Boog City
330 W.28th St., Suite 6H
NY, NY 10001-4754
For event and publication information:
http://welcometoboogcity.com/
T: (212) 842-BOOG (2664)

↑ Index

236. Jefferson Davis
Re: Chapbook festival -- corrected link
Wed 22 Apr 2009

For Easter's Wordplay, I featured a reading by Jonathan Williams from 1981, the year his collection Get Hot or Get Out appeared. The reading features some work from that book that's grounded in the work of Charles Ives, work that's not been republished.

Second generation Jargonaut Jeffery Beam kindly loaned me the tapes of his RainTaxi interview with Jonathan from 2003, so I I included part of that session in the show as well.

There's also music by Ives, Monk, Ralph Vaughn Williams, Judy Garland, and the inimitable Mike Harding. (Who? Check out Wikipedia).

The production note with the link to the show is right here:
http://naturespoetry.blogspot.com/2009/04/easter-on-airwaves.html

Enjoy,

Jeff

↑ Index

237. Cara Benson
Belladonna 4/28--BENSON, CORTEZ, WALDMAN
Wed 22 Apr 2009

Cara Benson

Belladonna* Celebrates the Elders
Tuesday, APRIL 28

Cara Benson

hosts
Jayne Cortez & Anne Waldman

7:30PM SHARP!
(doors at 7PM)
@ Dixon Place
(161 Chrystie Street between Rivington and Delancey, NYC)
Admission is $6 at the Door.

Cara Benson edits the online journal Sous Rature. Her first full length collection (made) is forthcoming from BookThug. Her chapbook "Quantum Chaos and Poems: A Manifest(o)ation" (BookThug) co-won the 2008 bpNichol Prize. Other chaps include "He Writes" (No Press), "UP" (Dusie Kollectiv), and "Spell/ing ( ) Bound" (ellectrique press) with Kai Fierle-Hedrick and Kathrin Schaeppi.

Benson edited the interdisciplinary book Prediction forthcoming from Chain. She lives and writes in the analog world of upstate NY. Her online home is http://www.necessetics.com.

Jayne Cortez is the author of eleven books of poetry and performer of her poems with music on nine recordings. Her voice is celebrated for its political, surrealistic, dynamic innovations in lyricism, and visceral sound. Cortez has presented her work and ideas at universities, museums, and festivals around the world. Her poems have been translated into many languages and widely published in anthologies, journals, and magazines. She is a recipient of several awards including: Arts International, the National Endowment for the Arts, the International African Festival Award. The Langston Hughes Medal, The American Book Award, and the Thelma McAndless Distinguished Professorship Award. Her most recent books are The Beautiful Book (Bola Press) andJazz Fan Looks Back (Hanging Loose Press). Her latest CDs with the Firespitter Band are Find Your Own Voice, Borders of Disorderly Time (Bola Press), Taking the Blues Back Home, produced by Harmolodic and by Verve Records. Cortez is organizer of the international symposium "Slave Routes: Resistance, Abolition & Creative Progress" (NYU) and director of the film Yari Yari Pamberi: Black Women Writers Dissecting Globalization. She is co-founder and president of the Organization of Women Writers of Africa, Inc., and can be seen on screen in the films Women In Jazz and Poetry In Motion. Her most recent book is On the Imperial Highway: New and Selected Poems.

Anne Waldman is the co-founder of the Jack Kerouac School of Disembodied Poetics at Naropa University and the Distinguished Professor of Poetics, Summer Writing Promgram Chair, and Artistic Director at the Kerouac School. Poet, professor, performer, curator, and cultural activist, she is the author of over 40 books and small press editions of poetry and poetics, including Fast Speaking Woman, the IOVIS project, Vow to Poetry: Essays, Interviews and Manifestos, Marriage: A Sentence, In the Room of Never Grieve, Structure of the World Compared to a Bubble, Outrider, andNine Nights Meditation (with artist Donna Dennis). She is the editor of numerous anthologies, including The Beat Book, and co-editor of Disembodied Poetics: Annals of the Jack Kerouac School, The Angel Hair Anthology, andCivil Disobediences: Poetics and Politics in Action (with Lisa Birman). Her CDs include Alchemical Elegy, Battery: Live at Naropa, The Eye of the Falcon, andThe Matching Half (the last two with music and production by Ambrose Bye). She is a recipient of the Shelley Memorial Award and has had residences at the Civitella Ranieri Center, the Tokyo Woman's Christian University, the Emily Harvey Foundation in Venice, and the Bellagio Center. She has performed her work on stages across the American continent and abroad. Recent conferences and festivals have taken her to Wuhan (China), Berlin, Vienna and Dublin. She works with writer and director Ed Bowes on a number of video/movie projects.

with readings and events guest-hosted by some of our favorite writers who've invited writers who influence and inspire them

A Short Note AboutThe Elders Series:

Belladonna* began as a reading and salon series at Bluestocking's Women's Bookstore on New York City's Lower East Side, in August 1999. In June 2000, in collaboration with Boog Literature, Belladonna* began to publish commemorative 'chaplets' of the readers work. This year marks the tenth anniversary of our mission to: promote the work of women writers who are adventurous, experimental, politically involved, multi-form, multicultural, multi-gendered, impossible to define, delicious to talk about, unpredictable, and dangerous with language. Belladonna* has by now featured over 150 writers of wildly diverse age and origin, writers who work in conversation and collaboration in and between multiple forms, languages, critical fields. As performance and as printed text the work collects, gathers over time and space, and forms a kind of conversation about the feminist avant-garde, what it is and how it comes to be. Our anniversary Elders Series is a continuation of this conversation, which highlights the fact of influence and continuity of the ideas, poetics, and concerns we circle through. And it is a way to honor those without whom we'd be nowhere.

UPCOMING EVENTS:
June 9
Jane Sprague hosts
Tina Darragh and Diane Ward

*a reading series and small press that promotes the work of women writers who are adventurous, experimental, politically involved, multi-form, multicultural, multi-gendered, impossible to define, delicious to talk about, unpredictable, dangerous with language.

*deadly nightshade, a cardiac and respiratory stimulant, having purplish-red flowers and black berries

Belladonna* readings happen monthly between September and June.

↑ Index

238. blacksox

Peoples Literary Festival in Portsmouth Virginia going on NOW

Wed 22 Apr 2009

For Immediate Release
April, 2009
Synnika Lofton presents
The Peopleâ€™s Literary Festival, 2009
Synnika Loftonâ€”poet, author, and recording artistâ€”is hosting the first annual The Peopleâ€™s Literary Festival. Beginning with an adult open mic and poetry concert at Olde Towne Coffee House, Portsmouth, VA, the festival then kicks into high gear with an adult poetry workshop, a teen book discussion on Storm Warriors, a teen poetry workshop, and culminating with The Peopleâ€™s Open Mic at Greenbrier Library. All are encouraged to participate. The adult open mic and workshop are for those 18 and up. To sign up for the adult open mic on April 25th please contact Synnika Lofton at [redacted] or at [redacted]. For all the other events, please contact the Greenbrier Library at [redacted].
April 15: Open Mic
7:00 PM
Greenbrier Library
1214 Volvo Pkwy.
Chesapeake, VA 23320
[redacted]
April 21: African Mahogany Book Club
Featured Book: Letters to a Young Brother by Hill Harper
7:00 PM
Greenbrier Library
1214 Volvo Pkwy.
Chesapeake, VA 23320
[redacted]
April 25: Open Mic and Poetry Concert
8:00 PM
Olde Towne Coffee House
600 Crawford St.
Portsmouth, VA 23704
[redacted]
April 27: Adult Poetry Workshop
7:00 PM
Greenbrier Library
1214 Volvo Pkwy.
Chesapeake, VA 23320

[redacted]
April 28: Storm Warriors: A Teen Book Discussion
7:00 PM
Greenbrier Library
1214 Volvo Pkwy.
Chesapeake, VA 23320
[redacted]
April 29: Teen Poetry Workshop
7:00 PM
Greenbrier Library
1214 Volvo Pkwy.
Chesapeake, VA 23320
[redacted]
April 30: The Peopleâ€™s Open Mic
7:00 PM
Greenbrier Library
1214 Volvo Pkwy.
Chesapeake, VA 23320
[redacted]
Synnika Lofton is a poet/recording artist who has recorded more than thirty albums of poetry, including his highly praised debut, The New Breed. His poems have been published in Experience Reality Magazine, Quay: A Journal of the Arts, and UpStreet: A Literary Magazine. He wrote the poem, "Sacred Drum," for the Goddard College Presidential Inauguration of President Mark Schulman. Through his Global Poetry Project, his poetry has been heard in France, Norway, Switzerland, Japan, Haiti, Venezuela, and Israel. His poems, "Guerrilla Ignition" and "Love's Outlaw" appeared in the documentary, Super-Size Me, Too. Lofton received a B.A. and M.F.A. in Creative Writing from Goddard College.

Peace
Russ

↑ Index

239. Tim Peterson

SEGUE 4/25: POETRY & ARCHITECTURE Vito Acconci, Bejamin Aranda, Robert Kocik

Wed 22 Apr 2009

The Segue Series Presents

POETRY & ARCHITECTURE

Vito Acconci, Benjamin Aranda and Robert Kocik

Saturday, April 25, 2009  4PM SHARP
Bowery Poetry Club, 308 Bowery, NYC
$6 admission
hosted by Kristen Gallagher & Tim Peterson

What is the nature of the conversation between poetry and architecture today? In this event for the Segue Reading Series, poets and architects will present works exploring a dialogue between these two disciplines.

Vito Acconci will show an image-stream of built & unbuilt spaces & instruments as he reads: 1) about furniture & houses (80's), cities & landscape (90's); 2) from rules for assemblage & incursion (00's); 3) architecture in words only (00's). Benjamin Aranda will present images and talk around the issue of self-assembly, where top-down methods for determining form and making decisions are complicated and sometimes replaced by bottom-up rules of formation. As in natural systems, the architectural structures up for discussion are not carved or composed in a traditional sense; they are grown through simple interactions to produce complex patterns that are both useful and buildable. Robert Kocik will present a plan for the Prosody Building, a note on mercenary poetry (without which business is biocide), Missing Civic Services, and a few architectural plans made entirely of words.

PARTICIPANTS:

Vito Acconci's design & architecture comes from another direction, from backgrounds of writing & art. By the late 80's he crossed over & joined with architects to form Acconci Studio. They mix poetry & math, computer-scripting & sentence-structure, narrative & biology as they range from plazas & parks to buildings & interiors to furniture & products to clothing &vehicles. They are currently working on a street through a building in Indianapolis, a building that twists from a courtyard in Milan, a makeover of a former strip-mall in Athens, Georgia.

Benjamin Aranda is architect and principal of Aranda\Lasch, New York, NY.

Robert Kocik, poet, essayist, artist, design/builder, lives in Brooklyn where he directs the Bureau of Material Behaviors. His architectural works are committed to the realization of 'missing' functions, services, organizations, or agencies. He is currently developing a building based on 'prosody' and poets' imagined importance to our society. With the choreographer Daria Faïn, he has initiated a field of research called The Prosodic Body. His publications include: Overcoming Fitness (Autonomedia, 2001), and Rhrurbarb (Field Books, 2007).

↑ Index

240. Cara Benson
Re: Peoples Literary Festival in Portsmouth Virginia going on NOW
Wed 22 Apr 2009

For those who haven't heard him perform, Synnika is crazy amazing. Totally check it out if you can...cb
Â
Â
Â
Â
Â
Â
Â

_____

http://www.necessetics.comÂ {homepage}

http://www.necessetics.com/sousrature.htmlÂ {journal}

http://www.necessetics.com/necessarypress.htmlÂ {press}

_____
From: "[redacted]" <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, April 22, 2009 2:55:14 PM
Subject: Peoples Literary Festival in Portsmouth Virginia going on NOW

For Immediate Release
April, 2009
Synnika Lofton presents
The Peopleâ€™s Literary Festival, 2009
Synnika Loftonâ€”poet, author, and recording artistâ€”is hosting the first annual The Peopleâ€™s Literary Festival. Beginning with an adult open mic and poetry concert at Olde Towne Coffee House, Portsmouth, VA, the festival then kicks into high gear with an adult poetry workshop, a teen book discussion on Storm Warriors, a teen poetry workshop, and culminating with The Peopleâ€™s Open Mic at Greenbrier Library. All are encouraged to participate. The adult open mic and workshop are for those 18 and up. To sign up for the adult open mic on April 25th please contact Synnika Lofton at [redacted] or at [redacted]. For all the other events, please contact the Greenbrier Library at [redacted].
April 15: Open Mic
7:00 PM
Greenbrier Library
1214 Volvo Pkwy.

Chesapeake, VA 23320
[redacted]
April 21: African Mahogany Book Club
Featured Book: Letters to a Young Brother by Hill Harper
7:00 PM
Greenbrier Library
1214 Volvo Pkwy.
Chesapeake, VA 23320
[redacted]
April 25: Open Mic and Poetry Concert
8:00 PM
Olde Towne Coffee House
600 Crawford St.
Portsmouth, VA 23704
[redacted]
April 27: Adult Poetry Workshop
7:00 PM
Greenbrier Library
1214 Volvo Pkwy.
Chesapeake, VA 23320
[redacted]
April 28: Storm Warriors: A Teen Book Discussion
7:00 PM
Greenbrier Library
1214 Volvo Pkwy.
Chesapeake, VA 23320
[redacted]
April 29: Teen Poetry Workshop
7:00 PM
Greenbrier Library
1214 Volvo Pkwy.
Chesapeake, VA 23320
[redacted]
April 30: The Peopleâ€™s Open Mic
7:00 PM
Greenbrier Library
1214 Volvo Pkwy.
Chesapeake, VA 23320
[redacted]
Synnika Lofton is a poet/recording artist who has recorded more than thirty albums of poetry, including his highly praised debut, The New Breed. His poems have been published in Experience Reality Magazine, Quay: A Journal of the Arts, and UpStreet: A Literary Magazine. He wrote the poem, "Sacred Drum," for the Goddard College Presidential Inauguration of President Mark Schulman. Through his Global Poetry Project, his poetry has been heard in France, Norway, Switzerland, Japan, Haiti, Venezuela, and Israel. His poems, "Guerrilla Ignition" and "Love's Outlaw" appeared in the documentary, Super-Size Me, Too. Lofton received a B.A. and M.F.A. in Creative Writing from Goddard College.

Peace
Russ

↑ Index

241. { brad brace } fill_the_mirror
Wed 22 Apr 2009

fill_the_mirror
field-recordings from brad brace

http://www.archive.org/details/fill_the_mirror

an island (project) interlude -- rhythmic edits all around the horizon (race track with film and shopping scores)

http://www.archive.org/details/fill_the_mirror

{ brad brace } <<<<< [redacted] >>>> ~finger for pgp

--- bbs: brad brace sound --- --- http://69.64.229.114:8000 ---

↑ Index

242. Obododimma Oha
Submissions to Reconfigurations -- New Deadline
Wed 22 Apr 2009

The deadline for submitting to Reconfigurations stimulating critical essays and cultural works (poems, paintings, etc) that address the emergence and applications of non-Western frameworks of knowledge has been shifted to 1 June 2009, to make it possible for those still working on their submissions to be able to complete them. We thank those who have already submitted their works for peer review. As previously announced, essays that engage the politics of locating knowledge production and transnational movements of academic expertise are also welcome. Submissions should be emailed to Obododimma Oha ([redacted] , [redacted]) or to Scott Howard, the editor of Reconfigurations ([redacted]). Each submitter should please send a short bio of not more than 200 words. Text files should be on Word, rtf, or PDF (provided the PDF is not locked), while images should be on JPEG format. For more information on the journal, please visit: http://reconfigurations.blogspot.com/ -- Obododimma Oha http://udude.wordpress.com/

↑ Index

243. Charles Alexander buffalo symposium
Wed 22 Apr 2009

Hi all,

Here's my brief (or not so brief) Poet-Publishers [a small press symposium], held April 19-20 at SUNY Buffalo:

http://chax.org/blog.htm

and there's another post on that symposium on Kyle Schlesinger's Cuneiform blog.

http://cuneiformpress.blogspot.com/

Special thanks to Brenda Iijima for the photos!

cheers,

Charles

charles alexander
chax press
[redacted]
411 N 7th ave, suite 103
tucson arizona 85705
[redacted]

↑ Index

244. David Kirschenbaum
Boog City 56 Print and Online PDF Editions Available
Thu 23 Apr 2009

Please forward

Hi all,

The print edition of Boog City 56 will be available tonight. You can read the pdf version now at:

http://welcometoboogcity.com/boogpdfs/bc56.pdf

Thanks,
David

Boog City 56

now available

featuring:

On the Cover

Our Printed Matter section,
edited by Paolo Javier

—"Just when I think Forage is too devastating the way my heart stops at ‘she must make home up’ I move out of the ‘r’ section and into the ‘l,’ softened from growl (necessary) to love (necessary) as desire we Forage." — from Sentenced by Fred Wah and Rita Wong: Foraging Poems In A New Light; Sentenced to Light by Fred Wah (Talonbooks), reviewed by Tim Yu; and Forage by Rita Wong (Nightwood Editions), reviewed by Jill Magi

And From Our Poetry section, now edited by Joanna Fuhrman (excerpt below)

—The Upper West Side's Barry Wallenstein with Tony’s Background

Tony sucked at his father’s tit and it was bitter.
Since then things have been a small bit better—mother’s passed, but mother’s mark remains.

And From Our Music section, Urban Folk
edited by Jonathan Berger

—"Why are there dual sports figures to represent the back-to-roots sound of ‘Willie Mays?’ Is one of them shooting himself up?" —from Blackened, Bitter, and Beaten; The 47th Problem by Joe Cassady & The West End Sound, reviewed by Berger

And Inside

Art editor Brenda Iijima brings us work from Prospect Heights, Brooklyn's Tim Peterson.

And the Rest of Our Poetry section
(excerpts below)

—Flatbush's Lauren Russell with two poems, Unpacking

“Categorizing can become a spiritual practice,”
I explained to the potential roommate who remarked on the verbosity of my moving box labels:
Lit Journals & Anthologies P-Z,
Reference inclu. cookbooks & misc. papers,
Wall Decorations: Pictures, Broadsides, Hangings, etc.

and

Dream-clung, Gone

Undertow of dive bar juke unboxed
Driving past a rust-red door unjambed
Coin-operated groove side-shimmies, unflung
A seamlessly upholstered stool’s unwound

—Park Slope's Matthew Burgess with P&P Synopsis Sestina

Not a single heir among five sisters means at least one Bennet must marry exceedingly well, but to marry for love is the eldest’s dearest wish. A beauty, Jane catches Bingley’s eye at a ball—
a man in possession of good fortune.

And the Rest of Our Music section, Urban Folk

—"Family Records and Engine Room had been granted a showcase at WE Fest XII, a volunteer-run, DIY festival in Wilmington, N.C. Mike Grubbs, leader of Wakey!Wakey!, the great band with an embarrassing name, was one of the acts to travel south for the show. In lieu of a threatened scathing review, Grubbs wrote about his experiences on the road with The Bloodsugars, Derek James, Jay Mankind, Kyle Ervin, and Matt Singer on their five-day tour to the center of the South: What follows is the adventures of 12 sweaty men in a van. May God have mercy on our souls. —from Disarming and Wonderful: 12 Sweaty Men in a Van by Michael Grubbs

—"‘Building Jumper’ is song wrapped in silence. How Erin Regan, Casey Holford, and Sarah Bowman have achieved this quiet effect fascinates me, for I do not know of any song that has ever done it so successfully." —from Slow Train Silent: Exegesis on Erin Regan’s "Building Jumper," by J.J. Hayes

—"With cameos from Fat Superman, djembe playing Batman, and black Green Lantern, Dorit shows that there’s a hero in all of us." from Costello’s Web on "Wonder Woman" by Dorit, reviewed by Jonathan Berger

And the Rest of Our Printed Matter section

—"The poems presented in The Darkness Above are chockfull of wit, irony, kosher chicken hearts, Westchester County, astrology, spirituality, that is to say a very wide swath." —from Collections o' Plenty: Lev and Voices Without Borders; The Darkness Above. Selected Poems: 1968-2002 by Donald Lev (Outloud Books), reviewed by Doug Holder

—"I especially dug Duhamel's "You're Looking at the Love Interest," a nice rambling prose-poem in which she hopes a last ditch car service ride in a pickup truck from Lincoln, Neb. will help her make her plane from Omaha back to Ft. Lauderdale" from Collections o' Plenty: Lev and Voices Without Borders; Poetic Voices Without Borders 2 Edited by Robert L. Giron (Gival Press), reviewed by David A. Kirschenbaum

---

And thanks to our copy editor, Joe Bates.

Please patronize our advertisers:

Kookstar * http://www.housepress.org/records.html
Joe Cassady & The West End Sound * http://www.joecassady.com/
Outloud Books * P.O. Box 86 Claryville, N.Y. 12725
Poetic Voices Without Borders 2 * http://givalpress.com/
Rain Taxi * http://www.raintaxi.com
Schoen School of Design * [redacted]

Advertising or donation inquiries can be directed to [redacted] or by calling 212-842-BOOG (2664)

Poetry Submission Guidelines: Email subs to [redacted], with no more than five poems, all in one attached file with "My Name Submission" in the subject line and as the name of the file, ie: Walt Whitman Submission. Or mail with an SASE to Poetry editor, Boog City, 330 W. 28th St., Suite 6H, N.Y., N.Y. 10001-4754.

Want to write a review (or be reviewed)
in Boog's Urban Folk music or printed matter sections?
Email UF editor Jonathan Berger, [redacted] or printed matter editor Paolo Javier, [redacted]

Want to have your work appear in our art section?
Query our incoming art editor, Cora Lambert, [redacted]

2,250 copies of Boog City are distributed among, and available for free at, the following locations:

MANHATTAN

THE EAST VILLAGE

Anthology Film Archives
Bluestockings
Bowery Poetry Club
Cake Shop
Lakeside Lounge
Life Café
Living Room
Mission Café
Nuyorican Poets Café
Pianos
St. Mark's Books
St. Mark's Church
Sidewalk Café
Sunshine Theater
Think Coffee (Bleecker/Bowery)
Trash and Vaudeville

OTHER PARTS OF MANHATTAN

Acme Underground
Angelika Film Center and Café
Hotel Chelsea
McNally Jackson
Mercer Street Books
Other Music
Shakespeare & Co.

BROOKLYN

GREENPOINT

Champion Coffee
East Coast Aliens
Greenpoint Coffee House
Matchless
Thai Cafe

WILLIAMSBURG

Bliss Café
Earwax Records
Sideshow Gallery
Sound Fix
Spike Hill
Spoonbill & Sugartown
Supercore Café

--
David A. Kirschenbaum, editor and publisher
Boog City
330 W. 28th St., Suite 6H
NY, NY 10001-4754
For event and publication information:
http://welcometoboogcity.com/
T: (212) 842-BOOG (2664)

↑ Index

245. Jessica Bozek
Monday, 4/27: Noy Holland & Kate Schapira in Cambridge, MA
Thu 23 Apr 2009

Small Animal Project will kick off its reading series next Monday, April 27th, at 8pm, with a reading by fiction writer Noy Holland & poet Kate Schapira, at Outpost 186, a gallery/performance space in Inman Square, Cambridge.

Details

Monday, 4/27/09
Noy Holland & Kate Schapira
Outpost 186
186 1/2 Hampshire Street
Cambridge, MA
8 pm, free

About the readers

Noy Hollandis the author of two collections of short fiction, What Begins With Bird(FC2), and The Spectacle of the Body(Knopf), and the recipient of fellowships from the NEA and the Massachusetts Cultural Council. Her stories have appeared in The Quarterly, Conjunctions, Black Warrior Review, Ploughshares, Open City, New York Tyrant, Denver Quarterly, NOON, and others. She is a Professor in the MFA program for Writers and Poets at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, where she co-directs the Juniper Initiative.

Read an excerpt from Noy's work.

Kate Schapiralives in Providence, where she writes, teaches, and runs the Publicly Complex reading series. In addition to making her own chapbooks, she's the author of four chapbooks published by other people, including The Love of Freak Millways and Tango Wax(Cy Gist Press) and two mini-chaps from Rope-A-Dope Press. She just started working with first graders as a Writer in the Schools.

Read an excerpt from Kate's work.

Directions

Outpost 186 is located on Hampshire Street, between Prospect & Amory streets. See attached map. There's metered parking nearby on both Hampshire & Cambridge streets (should be free by reading time).

The closest T stop is Central Square on the red line. Exit station & walk up Prospect 0.5 miles to Hampshire Street (intersection with 7-Eleven & Hess). Take a left onto Hampshire. Take first left onto path just behind 7-Eleven & walk to the brown shingled house behind another (bigger) brown shingled house.

The 83 and 91 buses run from Central Square & stop at the intersection of Prospect & Hampshire.

The 69 bus runs between Lechmere & Harvard Square, with a stop at the intersection of Cambridge & Hampshire, just in front of 1369 coffee shop.

Contact

Jessica Bozek at [redacted] or [redacted]

↑ Index

246. Skip Fox
Write- in-Residence applications sought
Thu 23 Apr 2009

The University of Louisiana Lafayette is seeking a writer in residence. Because of the nature of the department, fiction writers with the request reputation are especially encouraged to apply. Here is the ad as it is posted in MLA:

Writer-in-Residence and Professor/Associate Professor of English. Tenure-track position, beginning Fall 2009. Creative Writing-Fiction. Duties: teaching one Creative Writing workshop per academic year, directing dissertations and theses, working with graduate and undergraduate students in creative writing, presenting at least one public reading or lecture each year, and participating in the department and university community. Continued publishing in field and other duties associated with holding a university position. Qualifications: International reputation as a creative writer as evidenced by awards and publications in prestigious international venues, extensive publications in creative genres (fiction, poetry, drama, creative non-fiction), professional experience in teaching advanced Creative Writing workshops. Salary competitive. Minority candidates are encouraged to apply. Send application letter, current CV, and names and addresses of three references to Professor James McDonald, Department Head, Department of English, University of Louisiana at Lafayette, P. O. Box 44691, Lafayette, LA 70504. UL Lafayette is a selective-admissions, state-supported university located in the heart of Louisiana's Acadian-Creole region. The department offers the B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. in English, as well as graduate concentrations in Literary Studies, Rhetoric, Creative Writing, Folklore, and Linguistics. AA/EEO compliant. http://english.louisiana.edu.

↑ Index

247. mIEKAL aND
Jeremy Prynne in Chicago
Thu 23 Apr 2009

Will there be a video or audio of this reading online?

↑ Index

248. Rod Smith
New @ Bridge Street: Armantrout, Baudelaire, Berkson, Moxley, Nealon, Doller, Nichols, Fitterman, Robinson, &&&
Thu 23 Apr 2009

All them new books! Ordering and discount information at the end of this list. Thanks again for supporting Bridge Street.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN #4, ed Mohammad & Boyer, 66 pgs, $5. Larsen, Coolidge, Bruno, Halpern, Gallagher, Nichols, Garcia, Graham, Hauser, &&&.

VERSED, Rae Armantrout, Wesleyan, HC 123 pgs, signed copies, $22.95. "Look -- I'm cooperating! / I can pull myself apart / and still speak"

PARISH KREWES, Micah Ballard, Bootstrap, 96 pgs, $12. "The silence/ is not permanent"

PARIS SPLEEN: LITTLE POEMS IN PROSE, Charles Baudelaire, trans Keith Waldrop, Wesleyan, 100 pgs, cloth $22.95. "Finally! Alone!"

THE LETTERS OF SAMUEL BECKETT 1929-1940, ed Fehsenfeld & Overbeck, Cambridge, 782 pgs, HC $50. "My dear Tom / The discrepancy between mind and body is terrible."

POTRAIT AND DREAM: NEW AND SELECTED POEMS, Bill Berkson, Coffee House, 320 pgs, $22. "Now you see it/ no you don't"

HEGEMONIC LOVE POTION, Jules Boykoff, Factory School, 104 pgs, $15."Do cops hate puppets?"

CHANCE AND CIRCUMSTANCE: TWENTY YEARS WITH CAGE AND CUNNINGHAM, Carolyn Brown, Northwestern, 644 pgs, $26.95. New in paper.

CLOSE CALLS WITH NONSENSE: READING NEW POETRY, Stephen Burt, Graywolf, 376 pgs, $19. "Other arguments sound absurd."

THE BOOK OF FRANK, C.A. Conrad, Chax, 150 pgs, $16. "they waited to see what Frank would do"

THE CAVE, Clark Coolidge & Bernadette Mayer, Adventures in Poetry, 70 pgs, $16. "Geologists say hashish is formed out of high definition."

ON EARTH: LAST POEMS AND AN ESSAY, Robert Creeley, U Cal, 90 pgs, $14.95. New in paper.

BODY LANGUAGE, Mark Cunningham, Tarpaulin Sky, 120 pgs, signed copies, $14. "Regeneration? It comes and goes."

FAQ:, Ben Doller, Ahsata, 84 pgs, $17.50. ""Thank you for your question"

DUST, Arkadii Dragomoshenko, trans Pavlov, Epstein, Avagyan, & Lucic, Dalkey Archive, 98 pgs, $10.95. "The light is in the way. A dialogue follows."

TRAFFIC & WEATHER, Marcella Durand, Futurepoem, 60 pgs, $15. "The train pulls up and is not there"

REASON, FAITH, AND REVOLUTION: REFLECTIONS ON THE GOD DEBATE, Terry Eagleton, Yale, HC 185 pgs, $25. "Knowledge is simply one moment or aspect of our bodily collusion in reality, a moment which modernity falsely abstracts and enshrines."

SLOSH MODELS, Brett Evans, Factory School, 88 pgs, "Fishnet phlebotomy, angler smoothie"

ROB THE PLAGIARIST, Rob Fitterman, Roof, 112 pgs, $13.95. "What Rob means is that you used to look like a corpse."

THE WINTER SUN: NOTES ON A VOCATION, Fanny Howe, Graywolf, 198 pgs, $15. "My father worked for social justice and was eviscerated."

WE SAW THE LIGHT: CONVERSATIONS BETWEEN THE NEW AMERICAN CINEMA AND POETRY, Daniel Kane, U Iowa, 270 pgs, HC $39.95. Writers and filmmakers discussed include: Anger, Duncan, Creeley, Brakhage, O'Hara, Leslie, Ginsberg, Chaplin, Frank, Warhol, Malanga, Ashbery, Burckhardt, Jarnot, & Reeves.

CENSORY IMPULSE, Erica Kaufman, Factory School, 94 pgs, $15. "time for total reconstruction"

UNION!, Ish Klein, Canarium, 86 pgs, $14. "Human High Voltage!"

THING OF BEAUTY: NEW AND SELECTED WORKS, Jackson Mac Low, ed Anne Tardos, U Cal, 460 pgs, $21.95. New in paper.

POETRY STATE FOREST, Bernadette Mayer, New Directions, 196 pgs, $17.95. "oops, we're in orono!"

APOCRYPHAL LORCA: TRANSLATION, PARODY, KITSCH, Jonathan Mayhew, U Chicago, HC 222 pgs, $45. An exploration of Lorca's afterlife in U.S. poetic cultures. Includes examinations of the Lorca in/of Hughes, Blackburn, Creeley, Spicer, O'Hara, Duncan, Koch, Rothenberg, and others.

LOVE LESSONS: SELECTED POEMS OF ALDA MERINI, trans Susan Stewart, cloth 130 pgs, $19.95. "There are nights/ that never/ happen."

POEMLAND, Chelsea Minnis, Wave, 130 pgs, $14. "This is a chain between your thighs . . ."

GIRL SCOUT NATION, Yedda Morrison, Displaced Press, $12.99. "Maybe body?"

CLAMPDOWN, Jennifer Moxley, Flood, 90 pgs, $14.95. "Each unconsidered day we live is lost."

PLUMMET, Chris Nealon, Edge, 70 pgs, $15."Workers needed!"

CATALYTIC EXTERIORIZATION PHENOMENON, Mel Nichols, Edge, 98 pgs, $17. "it is blue there"

HEARTH, Simon Pettet, Talisman House, 178 pgs, $17.95.

NOTES ON CONCEPTUALISMS, Vanessa Place & Rob Fitterman, Ugly Duckling, 80 pgs, $12. "

RIGHT NEW BIOLOGY, Kathryn L. Pringle, Factory School, 78 pgs, $15. "it speaketh a gentle (twice broken neurotik"

STYROFOAM, Evelyn Reilly, Roof, 72 pgs, $12.95. "To be anti-pure in the broken dust lingo"

THE MESSIANIC TREES: Selected Poems 1976-2003, Kit Robinson, Adventures in Poetry, 306 pgs, $16.95. "It is important to do something meaningless"

NICE WORK IF YOU CAN GET IT: LIFE AND LABOR IN PRECARIOUS TIMES, Andrew Ross, NYU, HC 264 pgs, $27.95.

STRATA, Joe Ross, Dusie, 78 pgs, $15. "In the space that is not margin how begins."

THEOGONY, Douglas Rothschild, Subpress, 210 pgs, $16. "Isn't it curious that in literature/ there's a certain decision about / what's good & what's bad."

THE LOOP, Jacques Roubaud, Dalkey Archive, 568 pgs, $16.95. "He called these our 'little labors.'"

AMERICAN HYBRID: A NORTON ANTHOLOGY OF NEW POETRY, ed Cole Swensen & David St John, Norton, 530 pgs, $25.95. Adnan, Angel, Armantrout, Ashbery, Bang, Beckman, Bedient, Cole, Fraser, Gander, Giscombe, Guest, Hass, Hejinian, Hillman, Hoover, Howe, Lauterbach, Kim, Mackey, McMorris, Mullen, Notley, Rankine, Ratcliffe, Ronk, Shepherd, Smith, Snow, Spahr, Taggart, Vogelsong, Waldrop, Welish, Wheeler, Willis, Yau, &&&&.

TRANSCENDENTAL STUDIES: A TRILOGY, Keith Waldrop, U Cal, 208 pgs, $19.95. "There is a problem with trains of thought."

THE MUSIC OF THOUGHT IN THE POETRY OF GEORGE OPPEN AND WILLIAM BRONK, Henry Weinfield, Iowa, cloth 240 pgs, $37.50.

SOME BESTSELLERS:

NIGHT SCENES, Lisa Jarnot, Flood, 70 pgs, $13.95.
THE COLLECTED POEMS OF JACK SPICER, ed Peter Gizzi and Kevin Killian, Wesleyan, HC 465 PGS, $35.
COLLECTED POEMS 1956-1987, John Ashbery, Library of America, 1050 pgs, $40.
THE ALPHABET, Ron Silliman, U Alabama, 1062 pgs, $39.95.
SAGA/CIRCUS, Lyn Hejinian, Omnidawn, 150 pgs, $15.95.
BLIND WITNESS: THREE AMERICAN OPERAS, Charles Bernstein (libretti), Ben Yarmolinsky (music), Factory School, 108 pgs, signed copies, $16.
RADICAL VERNACULAR: LORRINE NIEDECKER AND THE POETICS OF PLACE, ed Elizabeth Willis, Iowa, cloth 308 pgs, $39.95.
COLLAPSIBLE POETICS THEATER, Rodrigo Toscano, Fence, 160 pgs, $19.
THE OUTERNATIONALE, Peter Gizzi, Wesleyan, 111 pgs, $13.95.
CLEARING WITHOUT REVERSAL, Cathy Eisenhower, Edge, 80 pgs, $14.
HUGHSON'S TAVERN, Fred Moten, Leon Works, 88 pgs, $15.95.
HAUNTED HOUSE, Pierre Reverdy, trans John Ashbery, Brooklyn Rail/Black Square, 72 pgs, $15.
CITY OF CORNERS, John Godfrey, Wave, 96 pgs, $14.
ADORNO'S NOISE, Carla Harryman, Essay Press, 182 pgs, $14.95.
PICTURE PALACE, Stephanie Young, 114 pgs, ingrimmus, $15.

A POWER STRONGER THAN ITSELF: THE AACM AND AMERICAN EXPERIMENTAL MUSIC, George E. Lewis, U Chicago, cloth 678 pgs, $35.
THE GOLDEN AGE OF PARAPHERNALIA, Kevin Davies, Edge, 150 pgs, $16.
BICYCLE DAY, Mel Nichols, Slack Buddha, 32 pgs, $6.
TO AFTER THAT (TOAF), Renee Gladman, Atelos, 80 pgs, $13.50.
CENSORY IMPULSE, Erica Kaufman, Farfalla, 50 pgs, $10.
OURS, Cole Swensen, U Cal, 101 pgs, $16.95.
THE ROUTE, Patrick Durgin & Jen Hofer, Atelos, 198 pgs, $13.50.
LANDSCAPES OF DISSENT, Jules Boykoff & Kaia Sand, Palm Press, 128 pgs, $15.
RE:EVOLUTION, Kim Rosenield, Les Figues, 98 pgs, $15.
ACTION KYLIE, Kevin Killian, ingrimmus, 124 pgs, $15.
THE BODY: AN ESSAY, Jenny Boully, Essay Press, 76 pgs, $12.95.
MAXIMUM GAGA, Laura Glenum, Action, 112 pgs, $16.
ABSOLUTELY EDEN, Bobbie Louise Hawkins, United Artists, 90 pgs, $14.
AETHEL, Donato Mancini, New Star, unpaginated, $21.
THE BRUISE, Magdalena Zurawski, FC2, 174 pgs, $14.95.
BODY CLOCK, Eleni Sikelianos, Coffee House, 150 pgs, $18.
FELONIES OF ILLUSION, Mark Wallace, Edge, 138 pgs, $15.
PUBLIC DOMAIN, Monica de la Torre, Roof, 100 pgs, $13.95.
DEBTS AND OBLIGATIONS, Alicia Cohen, O Books, 80 pgs, $12.
50 YEARS OF RECUPERATION OF THE SITUATIONIST INTERNATIONAL, McKenzie Wark, cloth 78 pgs, 30 color illustations, $24.95.
MAXIMUM GAGA, Laura Glenum, Action, 112 pgs, $16.
THE LETTERS OF ALLEN GINSBERG, Allen Ginsberg, ed Bill Morgan,$30.
SICK PLANET, Guy Debord, trans Nicholson-Smith, Seagull, 94 pgs, $16.95.
GRAVE OF LIGHT: NEW AND SELECTED POEMS, Alice Notley, Wesleyan, 366 pgs, $22.95.
DEED, Rod Smith, U Iowa, 88 pgs, $16.
GERTRUDE STEIN: SELECTIONS, Gertrude Stein, ed Joan Retallack, U Cal Press, 352 pgs, $19.95.
THE BOOK OF MARTYRDOM + ARTIFICE: FIRST JOURNALS AND POEMS 1937-1952, Allen Ginsberg, ed Juanita Lieberman-Plimpton & Bill Morgan, Da Capo, 524 pgs, $17.50.
IT'S GO IN HORIZONTAL: SELECTED POEMS, 1974-2006, Leslie Scalapino, 248 pgs, U CAL, $16.95.

UPCOMING BRIDGE STREET READINGS:

Sunday, April 26, 7:00 pm
Lynne Dreyer & P. Inman

Sunday, May 10, 7:00 pm
Ben Lerner & Chris Nealon

There are currently two ways to order: 1. E-mail your order to [redacted] or [redacted] with your address & we will bill you with the books. or 2. via credit card-- you may call us at [redacted] or e-mail w/ yr add, order, card #, & expiration date & we will send a receipt with the books. Please remember to include expiration date.

↑ Index

249. Poetry Project
Events at The Poetry Project April
Thu 23 Apr 2009

Here¹s what¹s coming up at The Poetry Project!

Friday, April 24, 10 PM
Lawrence Giffin & Nico Vassilakis

Lawrence Giffin is the author of a chapbook, Get the Fuck Back into That Burning Plane, as well as three volumes of Comment Is Free, an ongoing print-on-demand work of social philosophy compiled from newspaper comment streams. As a member of the publishing collective Lil¹ Norton, Lawrence Giffin is the series editor of the journal The Physical Poets Home Library. A kind of historical novel, Aa, co-produced with Fernando Diaz, is forthcoming from Patrick Lovelace Editions. Nico Vassilakis works in both textual and visual poetry. He is a curator for the Subtext Reading Series in Seattle. His vispo videos have been shown in exhibits and festivals of innovative language arts. Nico¹s recently published Text Loses Time is available from ManyPenny Press. Forthcoming books include Disparate Magnets (BlazeVox) & Protracted Type (White Lion Books).

Monday, April 27, 8 PM
Sarah Mangold & Ryan Murphy

Sarah Mangold is founder and editor of Bird Dog, a journal of innovative writing and art. Currently working as a Program Coordinator at the University of Washington Extension Program‹after seven years in a private library. BA University of Oklahoma; MFA San Francisco State, 1999. Recipient of an Individual Artist Award form the Seattle Arts Commission and residencies at MacDowell and Djerassi. Her books include Household Mechanics, Parlor, Picture of the Basket, and Boxer Rebellion. Ryan Murphy is the author of Down with the Ship from Otis Books / Seismicity Editions as well as the chapbooks The Gales, Ocean Park, and On Violet Street. His second book, The Redcoats, is forthcoming from Krupskaya. He has received awards from Chelsea Magazine and The Aldrich Museum of Contemporary Art as well as a grant from The Fund for Poetry. He is an editor for Four Way Books and teaches at Pratt Institute. He lives in New York City.

Wednesday, April 29, 8 PM
80th Birthday Reading for Kenward Elmslie

Help us celebrate the great poet and librettist Kenward Elmslie at 80. Friends and collaborators will assemble to read their favorite Elmslie poems, sing their favorite Elmslie songs and pay tribute to the master showman. With Bill Berkson, Maxine Chernoff, Bill Corbett, Ann Lauterbach, Ron Padgett, Ned Rorem and Michael Silverblatt.

Become a Poetry Project Member! http://poetryproject.org/become-a-member

Calendar: http://www.poetryproject.org/program-calendar

The Poetry Project is located at St. Mark's Church-in-the-Bowery
131 East 10th Street at Second Avenue
New York City 10003
Trains: 6, F, N, R, and L.
[redacted]
www.poetryproject.org

Admission is $8, $7 for students/seniors and $5 for members (though now those who take out a membership at $95 or higher will get in FREE to all regular readings).

We are wheelchair accessible with assistance and advance
notice. For more info call [redacted].

If you¹d like to be unsubscribed from this mailing list, please drop a line at [redacted].

↑ Index

250. Scott Howard
CFW: RECONFIGURATIONS (volume three)
Thu 23 Apr 2009

RECONFIGURATIONS: A Journal for Poetics & Poetry / Literature & Culture

ISSN: 1938-3592, http://reconfigurations.blogspot.com/

Volume 3: Immanence / Imminence

Submissions: April thru August, 2009

Publication: November, 2009

Guidelines: Volume three of Reconfigurations, http://reconfigurations.blogspot.com/, seeks innovative works concerning immanence / imminence—that is, the phenomena of emergence & becoming, appearance & disappearance—across a wide range of signification: matters inherent or abiding; objects intentional or manifest; perceptions noetical or pataphysical; actions impending or close-at-hand; communities realized or indeterminate. Reconfigurations is an electronic, peer-reviewed, international, annual journal for poetics and poetry, creative and scholarly writing, innovative and traditional concerns with literary arts and cultural studies. Reconfigurations publishes under a Creative Commons 3.0 open-access license, is MLA indexed, EBSCO distributed and independently managed.

Electronic Submissions: [redacted]. Submissions should be attached as a single .doc, .rtf, or .txt file. Visuals should be attached individually as .jpg, .gif or .bmp files. Please include the word “submission” in the subject line of your message.

///

↑ Index

251. Jim Andrews
X-1
Fri 24 Apr 2009

X-1 (1955-1957):
http://radiolovers.com/pages/xminus1.htm

ja

↑ Index

252. luke daly
House Press: string of small machines issue 4!
Fri 24 Apr 2009

Hot off of the presses!

The issue includes work by Melissa Severin, Carrie Hunter, Daniel Borzutzky, Andrew Hughes, Gustave Morin, Raul Zurita (translated by Anna Deeney), and Brenda Iijima. 200 original covers were printed by Angee Lennard at Spudnik Press. It's available for $5, via pay pal.

click here and get it while it lasts!

↑ Index

253. amy king
Tonight -- Jennifer Burch, Heather Green, Chris Hosea, Sueyeun Juliette Lee, Daniel Lin, Barry Schwabsky
Fri 24 Apr 2009

Â

The Stain
of Poetry:Â A Reading Series presents

Â

April
24th @ 7 PM - Stain Bar - Williamsburg , Brooklyn

Â

Jennifer
Burch, Heather Green, Chris Hosea, Sueyeun Juliette Lee, Daniel Lin, Barry Schwabsky

Â

~~~

Â

Jennifer
Burch holds a B.A. in Fine Art from Amherst College and an M.A. in Literature from the University of Kent in Canterbury , England . Her first book, No Matter, was released by The Winged Way (September 2008). Jennifer has published work in Article, Free Verse, Guernica ,
Left Facing Bird, Sal Mimeo, and Verse, and is included in Green Integerâ€™s forthcoming anthology, The Gertrude Stein Awards. Jennifer lives in Brooklyn , New York , where she writes and teaches yoga.

Â

~~~

Â

Heather
Greenâ€™s work has appeared in Barrow
Street , DIAGRAM, The Hat, Lungfull!, Pebble Lake
Review, Tarpaulin Sky, and other journals. Sheâ€™s the author of the chapbook The Match Array (Dancing Girl Press, 2008) and lives in Boston .

Â

~~~

Â
~~~

Â

Chris Hoseaâ€™s poems appear in VOLT, Swerve, Denver Quarterly, Article, Harvard Review, Iowa Review, and The Literary Review. With Cecily Iddings, he edits The Blue Letter, a free direct-mail poetry newsletter. He works at the Marymount School and lives in Brooklyn .

Â

~~~

Â

Â

Sueyeun Juliette Lee edits Corollary Press, a chapbook series devoted to new work by writers of color. Recent work has appeared in Effing, One Less, and online at critiphoria.org. Her chapbooks include Mental Commitment Robots (yo yo labs), Perfect Villagers (Octopus Books) and Trespass Slightly In (Coconut). Her first full-length collection, That Gorgeous Feeling, is out from Coconut Books. She currently lives in Philadelphia .

Â

~~~

Â

Â

Daniel Lin has a chapbook, TINDER, from Nightboat Books (2004), and has recently published poems in Unsplendid and The Jewish Quarterly. He was a N.Y. Times Fellow at NYU and a Tennessee Williams Scholar at Sewanee Writersâ€™ Conference.

Â

~~~

Â

Barry Schwabsky is an American poet and art critic living in London . His new collection of poems, Book Left Open in the Rain, is published imminently by Black Square Editions and is available from Small press Distribution. He writes reguarly for The Nation and Artforum (where he also co-edits the international reviews section), among others. He is the author of Opera: Poems 1981-2002 (Meritage Press) and The Widening Circle: Consequences of Modernism in Contemporary Art (Cambridge University Press) as well as several chapbooks of poetry and contributions to dozens of books and exhibition catalogues on contemporary and modern art.

Â
~~~

~~~

Â

Hosted by
Amy King and Ana BoÅ¾iÄeviÄ‡

Â

Â

stain bar

766 grand street

brooklyn,
ny 11211

(L train
to Grand Street ,
1 block west)

Â

Â

SITE:Â http://stainofpoetry.com

VIDEO:Â http://stainofpoetry.wordpress.com/video/

Â

--

Â

Amy's
Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

254. Wanda Phipps
Reading in Poetry Electric Series at LaMama Cafe next week
Fri 24 Apr 2009

Reading in Poetry Electric Series at LaMama Cafe
Guest curator: Dave M.
Host: William Electric Black

Tuesday, April 28
8pm, $8
~~~

Wanda Phipps reading with Stephen B. Antonakos on guitar plus readings by Dave M., Judith Fleishmann, Jeff Allen, Jackie Johnson, Tonya Foster, Randall Horton!

LaMama E.T.C. Club
74 East 4th Street
New York, NY
[redacted]

Sorry for cross postings--will be great to see you there!

--
Wanda Phipps

Check out my websites: http://www.mindhoney.com and http://www.myspace.com/wandaphippsband

My latest book of poetry Field of Wanting: Poems of Desire available at: http://www.blazevox.org/bk-wp.htm

And my 1st full-length book of poems Wake-Up Calls: 66 Morning Poems available at:http://www.amazon.com/exec/obidos/ASIN/193236031X/ref=rm_item

↑ Index

255. Kate Soto
Re: Jeremy Prynne in Chicago
Fri 24 Apr 2009

---

yes, eventually (within a few weeks), it'll be housed on poempresent.uchicago.edu

On Apr 23, 2009, at 2:34 PM, mIEKAL aND wrote:

> Will there be a video or audio of this reading online?

Kate Soto
Coordinator
The Committee on Creative Writing
The Program in Poetry and Poetics University of Chicago
Walker Museum 411 // [redacted]

↑ Index

256. David-Baptiste Chirot

Samurai Critic -William Logan collection reviewed in NYT

Fri 24 Apr 2009

Samurai Critic
http://www.nytimes.com/2009/04/26/books/review/Ford-t.html?8bu&emc=bua2

_____
Windows Live™ Hotmail®:...more than just e-mail.
http://windowslive.com/online/hotmail?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_more_042009

↑ Index

257. joey

April update at www.newmystics.com

Sat 25 Apr 2009

---

www.newmystics.com, a literary and art site, is proud to announce our April update, featuring:

Poems by SAL BUTACCI, YUKO OTOMO, and STEVE DALACHINSKY

Book 3 of Neighbors by ED BAKER

Part 3 of The Silver Girl Essays by JEAN MARIE AVRIL

Photography by CLAIRE SMITH

And the fourth film in the 6 Reasons to Say No series: "A Living Wage" produced by New Mystics Theatre Company, Inc.

Submissions are accepted on an ongoing basis.

We also invite you to join www.newmysticscommunity.com, where you can network with other writers and artists, sharing new works, publicizing your work and appearances, and being among an enthusiastic and supportive pool of talent from the United States and Europe.

Those who love the Arts in all their forms are encouraged to join as well!

We hope to see you there!

Joey Madia

Founding Editor

www.newmystics.com

www.newmysticscommunity.com
www.newmysticsreviews.blogspot.com

↑ Index

258. Camille Martin new collages
Sat 25 Apr 2009

Two new collages can be viewed at

http://www.camillemartin.ca/index.php?pr=Collages_15

Camille

↑ Index

259. Aryanil Mukherjee
looking for denise duhamel
Sat 25 Apr 2009

Could someone please backchannel me with Denise Duhamel's email address ? Thanking in advance.

Aryanil

↑ Index

260. Krystal Languell
Noemi Press reading in NYC, May 2
Sat 25 Apr 2009

Noemi Press Reading @ Stain Bar

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:
Brooklyn, New York—April 16, 2009—Today Noemi Press announced the May 2 lineup for its inaugural reading at Stain Bar in Brooklyn (766 Grand Street, Brooklyn, NY 11211 (L to Grand, 1 block west) 718/[redacted]). The reading begins at 7pm and features…

Mark Tursi, the author of Shiftless Days (Noemi Press) and The Impossible Picnic (BlazeVOX Books). He is one of the founding editors of the literary journal Double Room, as well as Apostrophe Books, an innovative press devoted to publishing poetry that inter- sects philosophy and cultural theory. He is Assistant Professor of lit- erature and creative writing at New Jersey City University.

Claire Hero published two chapbooks in 2008: Cabinet (danc- ing girl press) and afterpastures, winner of the 2007 Caketrain Chap- book Competition. Noemi Press published her first full-length col- lection, Sing, Mongrel, in 2009.

Her poems have appeared in Denver Quarterly, How2, Octopus, Coconut, and elsewhere. She lives in up- state New York.

Argentinean poet Lila Zemborain has been living in New York since 1985. She is the author of the poetry collections, Abrete sésamo debajo del agua (1993), Usted (1998), Guardianes del secre- to (2002) / Guardians of the Secret (Las Cruces: Noemi Press, 2009), Malvas orquídeas del mar (2004) /Mauve-Sea Orchids (New York: Belladonna Books, 2007), Rasgado (2006) and in collaboration with artist Martin Reyna La couleur de l'eau / El color del agua (Paris: Virginie Boissiere, 2008). She curates the KJCC Poetry Series at New York University, where she teaches at the MFA in Creative Writing in Spanish. In 2007 she was awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship.

Shya Scanlon's fiction and poetry have appeared in Missis- sippi Review, Literary Review, New York Quarterly, and elsewhere. His prose poetry collection In This Alone Impulse will be published by Noemi Press in 2009. Shya received his MFA from Brown Univer- sity in 2008, where he won the John Hawkes Prize in Fiction. Opium Magazine has a contest named in his honor. Visit him online at www. shyascanlon.com.

About Noemi Press:
Noemi Press is a small, independent outfit currently publishing high-quality chapbooks of both fiction and poetry. Under the direction of Carmen Smith, Noemi is committed to exposing upcoming, experimental writers of merit as well as showcasing preeminent design and artwork.

Since 2002 it has existed as a vibrant non-profit organization based in southern New Mexico and is currently edited by Evan Lavender-Smith, a graduate of NMSU's MFA program in Creative Writing. Notable authors who have published with Noemi Press include Chris Glomski, Karla Kelsey, Diana George, Mark Tursi and Jenny Boully, as well as many others.

Noemi Press has recently added a full-length poetry series to its catalogue, with recent releases from Claire Hero and Lila Zemborain marking the first in this new series. Forthcoming projects will feature the work of Rusty Morrison, Norman Lock, Shya Scanlon and others. Please visit www.noemipress.org for more information.

CONTACT:
Carmen Gimenez Smith
Noemi Press
[redacted]

Who: Mark Tursi, Claire Hero, Lila Zemborain, Shya Scanlon
What: Noemi Press Reading
When: May 2nd, 2009 7 P.M.
Where: Stain Bar in Brooklyn (L to Grand, 1 block west) 718/[redacted] www.noemipress.org

↑ Index

261. steve d. dalachinsky

poems up

Sat 25 Apr 2009

---

www.newmystics.com is proud to announce our April update, featuring:??

Poems by SAL BUTACCI, Yuko Otomo, and Steve Dalachinsky

Book 3 of Neighbors by Ed Baker??

Part 3 of The Silver Girl Essays by Jean Marie Avril??

Photography by Claire Smith??

And the fourth film in the 6 Reasons to Say No series: "A Living Wage" produced by New Mystics Theatre Company, Inc.??

Submissions are accepted on an ongoing basis.

We also invite you to join www.newmysticscommunity.com, where you can network with other writers and artists, sharing new works, publicizing your work and appearances, and being among an enthusiastic and supportive pool of talent from the United States and Europe.

Those who love the Arts in all their forms are encouraged to join as well!

Joey Madia will be reading from his new novel at several venues in West Virginia and New Jersey in May, June,20and July.

Visit www.newmysticscommunity.com for details—new dates are being added weekly.??

We hope to see you there!??

Joey, Tonya, and Dan
?
www.newmystics.com?
www.newmysticscommunity.com
www.newmysticsreviews.blogspot.com

↑ Index

262. J. Scappettone
News & Upcoming Events from Litmus Press, Spring 2009
Sun 26 Apr 2009

Litmus Press
Spring 2009 News & Upcoming Events

:::New Release:::New Release:::New Release:::New Release:::

FROM DAME QUICKLY
http://www.litmuspress.org/pages/fromdamequickly.html

Poetry & graphic stills by Jennifer Scappettone Paperback, 112 pages
ISBN: 978-1-933959-06-1
$15.00
Cover art by Rosemarie Fiore

*Available now through Small Press Distribution http://www.spdbooks.org/Producte/9781933959061/from-dame-quickly.aspx

The work in this wondrous first major book by Jennifer Scappettone has a phenomenal -- an excitatory -- presence, the presence of action, not thing. This book is a matrix of polytemporal energy, a linguistic carnival, ribald and resounding -- "a most implicit maze."... -- Lyn Hejinian

LISTEN to Jennifer Scappettone now on PennSound
http://writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/Scappettone.html

---

and don't miss these
:::UPCOMING EVENTS:::

Thursday, May 7th, 6:30-8:30pm *"Dame Quickly, Unframed" *reading and performance/projection of graphic stills from Jennifer Scappettone's new book! (cover art by Rosemarie Fiore)

Organized and hosted by Priska C. Juschka Fine Art Gallery
http://www.priskajuschkafineart.com/

Please RSVP to [redacted] or [redacted].
Priska C. Juschka Fine Art
547 W. 27th St. 2nd Floor
New York, NY 10001

:::Embargoed Voices:::
Poesia Ultima / Italian Poetry Now

FESTIVAL OF ITALIAN CONTEMPORARY POETRY & POETICS

May 26 - May 29
New York & Chicago, IL

View all details here
http://www.litmuspress.org/pages/events.htm

In conjunction with Aufgabe #7 we welcome Maria Attanasio, Giovanna Frene, Marco Giovenale & Milli Graffi to New York and Chicago for a series of readings and discussions with translator & guest editor Jennifer Scappettone and translator Carla Billitteri.

Events curated by Jennifer Scappettone and co-sponsored by Litmus Press with the Italian Cultural Institute of New York, Poets House, St. Mark's Poetry Project, UChicago Arts Council, University of Chicago Creative Writing and Romance Languages and Literatures, Northwestern University Department of French and Italian, Chicago Poetry Center, Th!nkArt Gallery, and with promotional support from Columbia University, NYU, and the Art Institute of Chicago.

:::AND MORE:::
*
Saturday, May 30th, 4pm
Stacy Szymaszek & Patrick Durgin
Bowery Poetry Club
308 Bowery
NYC

Segue Series (curated by Tim Peterson & Kristin Gallagher)

Friday, June 19th, 8pm
BOOK RELEASE PARTY!
Celebrate our two newest releases
-- and the beginning of summer -- with authors Jennifer Scappettone and Stacy Szymaszek

Short readings, snacks and wine will be provided!

From Dame Quickly, by Jennifer Scappettone Hyperglossia, by Stacy Szymaszek

NYC, details TBA

::

FORTHCOMING JUNE 2009

Hyperglossia
Stacy Szymaszek

Aufgabe #8
featuring Russian poetry in translation, guest edited by Matvei Yankelevich and there's more on our website http://www.litmuspress.org/index.htm

Litmus Press is supported by public funds from the New York State Council on the Arts, a state agency and by an award from the National Endowment for the Arts. We are a proud member of the Council of Literary Magazines & Presses and rely on ongoing support and contributions from our members, subscribers and individual donors.

↑ Index

263. Bob Heman
the first full length collection of my prose poems is now available as a free download
Sun 26 Apr 2009

Hi Folks - this is just to let you all know that the first full-length collection of my prose poems, titled Demographics, or, The Hats They Are Allowed to Wear, has just been published by Gian Lombardo's Quale Press - it's available as a free downloadable e-book that you can read on line or print off or download onto your hard drive - just follow the link to http://www.quale.com/Demographics_BH.html
i hope you enjoy it - feel free to pass the word and in case you missed it Quale also did a smaller collection of mine in 2007 which you can find at the end of this link: http://www.quale.com/How_BH.html

be well

- Bob

Bob Heman
[redacted]
EarthLink Revolves Around You.

↑ Index

264. Peter
Recycled poem
Sun 26 Apr 2009

Recycled poem

http://ciccariello.viewbook.com/recycled_poem

Peter Ciccariello

--
http://invisiblenotes.blogspot.com/
http://uncommonvision.blogspot.com/
http://poemsfromprovidence.blogspot.com/
http://uncommon-vision.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

265. mIEKAL aND
missing Bern Porter
Sun 26 Apr 2009

Today I'm missing everyone's favorite found poet Bern Porter. Here's a rock version of him jamming on Last Acts of Saint Fuck You in the studio with Steltch & Dave from Poop Shovel recorded in 1989. Be sure to crank your stereo before playing.

http://xexoxial.org/mp3/Bern_Porter_and_Steltch%20-The_Last_Acts_of_Saint_Fuck_You.mp3

~mIEKAL

=!=
Data Visualization for the Synaptically Inspired
http://filevillage.info

↑ Index

266. Rob McLennan
Marcus McCann's soft where (poetry, Chaudiere Books)
Sun 26 Apr 2009

Last night we launched Ottawa poet and journalist Marcus McCann's first trade poetry collection, soft where, to a rousing crowd at the ottawa international writers festival, with poets Jeanette Lynes and Molly Peacock along for the ride to help, launching titles of their own. Check out the links below for direct information on McCann's book, as well as a link to a report on last night's event. Keep an eye either on our facebook page or blog (chaudierebooks.blogspot.com) for further McCann launches in Toronto and Montreal, as well as information on Fredericton poet Joe Blades forthcoming poetry title.

http://www.chaudierebooks.com/books/soft_where.html

http://robmclennan.blogspot.com/2009/04/ottawa-international-writers-festival.html

Books are available directly from the publisher at the address below. Send a cheque or money order payable to Chaudiere Books. If ordering from within Canada, include $3 S&H for the first book ($2 per book thereafter); if ordering from the continental United States, please include $3 S&H for the first book ($2 per book thereafter) in American funds. If outside, include $4 S&H for the first book ($3 per book thereafter) in American funds. Please be sure to include your return mailing address.

Chaudiere Books
858 Somerset Street West, main floor,
Ottawa Ontario
Canada K1R 6R7
[redacted]

If anyone would like a copy for review, simply send me a note, either through facebook or at [redacted] yr wayward publisher,

-- writer/editor/publisher ...STANZAS mag, above/ground press & Chaudiere Books (www.chaudierebooks.com) ...coord.,SPAN-O + ottawa small press fair ...13th poetry coll'n - The Ottawa City Project ...novel - white www.abovegroundpress.blogspot.com * http://robmclennan.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

267. Sarah Sarai
Steve Tills' Rugh Stuff reviewed in Jacket
Sun 26 Apr 2009

---

http://jacketmagazine.com/37/r-tills-rb-schwartz.shtml

That’s the url for the Jacket review of Steve Tills’ Rugh Stuff. The review -- written by Gerard Schwartz -- captures strengths of Tills’ “all of a piece” book. “Tills’ poetry is pastoral, but cup-up, darting from moment to moment (l e i s u r e l y) in a way that might seem at first to preclude the transcendental, coherence and raucous, a laid back mix of idioms as pungent as anything coming from the void.”

Rather than me spend time in search of my own perfect description of this book which I so liked, & admire, I figured I’d post the url and urge Rugh Stuff, an antic introspection, Beckett on a golf course, be read.

Sarah Sarai

↑ Index

268. steve russell

Re: Samurai Critic -William Logan collection reviewed in NYT

Sun 26 Apr 2009

& the NYT article is written by Mark Ford, yes!

--- On Fri, 4/24/09, David-Baptiste Chirot <[redacted]> wrote:

> From: David-Baptiste Chirot <[redacted]>
> Subject: Samurai Critic -William Logan collection reviewed in NYT
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Friday, April 24, 2009, 11:42 PM
> Samurai Critic
> http://www.nytimes.com/2009/04/26/books/review/Ford-t.html?8bu&emc=bua2
>
> _____
> Windows Liveâ„¢ HotmailÂ®:â€¦more than just e-mail.
> http://windowslive.com/online/hotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_more_042009

↑ Index

269. Kyle Schlesinger

TONIGHT IN NYC: SARAH MANGOLD AND RYAN MURPHY READ AT THE POETRY PROJECT

Mon 27 Apr 2009

SARAH MANGOLD AND RYAN MURPHY READ IN THE MONDAY NIGHTS SERIES AT THE POETRY PROJECT
MONDAY APRIL 27 AT 8:00

Sarah Mangold is founder and editor of Bird Dog, a journal of innovative writing and art. Currently working as a Program Coordinator at the University of Washington Extension Program‹after seven years in a private library. BA University of Oklahoma; MFA San Francisco State, 1999. Recipient of an Individual Artist Award form the Seattle Arts Commission and residencies at MacDowell and Djerassi. Her books include Household Mechanics, Parlor, Picture of the Basket, and Boxer Rebellion.

Ryan Murphy is the author of Down with the Ship from Otis Books / Seismicity Editions as well as the chapbooks The Gales, Ocean Park, and On Violet Street. His second book, The Redcoats, is forthcoming from Krupskaya. He has received awards from Chelsea Magazine and The Aldrich Museum of Contemporary Art as well as a grant from The Fund for Poetry. He is an editor for Four Way Books and teaches at Pratt Institute. He lives in New York City.

Become a Poetry Project Member! http://poetryproject.org/become-a-member
Calendar: http://www.poetryproject.org/program-calendar
The Poetry Project is located at St. Mark's Church-in-the-Bowery
131 East 10th Street at Second Avenue
New York City 10003
Trains: 6, F, N, R, and L.
[redacted]
www.poetryproject.org

Admission is $8, $7 for students/seniors and $5 for members (though now those who take out a membership at $95 or higher will get in FREE to all regular readings).

We are wheelchair accessible with assistance and advance notice. For more info call [redacted].

↑ Index

270. Stephen Ellis
Re: Steve Tills' Rugh Stuff reviewed in Jacket
Mon 27 Apr 2009

It's all Kentucky Blue. And you don't have to be a Talking Horse to watch it germinate. Although it helps. And Tills is smart enough not to use burlap. Or wear shades.

EMAILING FOR THE GREATER GOOD
Join me

> Date: Sun, 26 Apr 2009 16:59:08 -0400
> From: [redacted]
> Subject: Steve Tills' Rugh Stuff reviewed in Jacket
> To: [redacted]
>
> http://jacketmagazine.com/37/r-tills-rb-schwartz.shtml
>
> That's the url for the Jacket review of Steve Tills' Rugh Stuff. The review -- written by > Gerard Schwartz -- captures strengths of Tills' "all of a piece" book. "Tills' poetry is pastoral, but cup-up, darting from moment to moment (l e i s u r e l y) in a way that might > seem at first to preclude the transcendental, coherence and raucous, a laid back mix of > idioms as pungent as anything coming from the void."

>
> Rather than me spend time in search of my own perfect description of this book which I so > liked, & admire, I figured I'd post the url and urge Rugh Stuff, an antic introspection, > Beckett on a golf course, be read.
>
> Sarah Sarai

↑ Index

271. Michael Kelleher
Literary Buffalo Newsletter 04.27.09-05.03.09
Mon 27 Apr 2009

LITERARY BUFFALO
04.27.09-05.03.09

ARTVOICE BEST OF BUFFALO

TWO JUST BUFFALO SERIES NOMINATED IN THE BEST OF BUFFALO "SPOKEN WORD SERIES" CATEGORY!

1. Babel
2. Interdisciplinary Performance Series

EVENTS THIS WEEK

Visit the Literary Buffalo calendar at www.justbuffalo.org for more detailed info on these events. All events free and open to the public unless otherwise noted.

04.30.09

Talking Leaves...Books
Literary Raiders of Niagara Reading Series
Denise David, Marc Pietrzykowski, & Livio Farallo
Thursday, April 30, 7:00 PM
Talking Leaves...Books, 3158 Main St.

05.02.08

E. H. Butler Library, Monroe Fordham Regional History Center
One Long, Wild Conversation by Fraser Drew and Hank Nuwer Book Launch and Signing

Saturday, May 2, 2009 @ 1:00 PM
E. H. Butler Library Room 134
Buffalo State College, 1300 Elmwood Avenue

Just Buffalo/CEPA Gallery
Writing With Light 2009 Opening and Exhibition Student Poems and Photos from Writing With Light Education Program
Saturday, May 2 5:30-8 PM
CEPA Gallery Passageway (2nd Floor Gallery) Market Arcade Building
617 Main St, Second Floor

BABEL 2009-10 SUBSCRIPTIONS ON SALE NOW!

October 9, A.S. Byatt
November 20, Ha Jin
March 5, Azar Nafisi
April 16, Salman Rushdie

Previous Subscriber: $85
New Subscriber: $110
These subscriptions include general admission seating at all 4 events.

Patron: $275
Patron Pair: $450
Patron level subscriptions include VIP reserved seating and admission to all pre-event author receptions.

Purchase subscriptions now at http://www.justbuffalo.org/babel or by phone at [redacted].

We intend to send out confirmations starting 5/22. Please be patient. If you placed an order, you WILL receive confirmation in May and your tickets WILL be mailed in September.

WRITER CRITIQUE GROUP

The member writer critique group is back on a new night: 1st and 3rd Tuesdays at the Market Arcade. Click here for more info:

http://www.justbuffalo.org/media/pdf/CritiqueGroup0409.pdf

WESTERN NEW YORK BOOK ARTS COLLABORATIVE WORKSHOPS

We have some availability in the upcoming workshops

May 3 - Printmaking for Kids
May 13 & 14 - Making Fonts

To register: http://www.wnybookarts.org/Spring09wkshps.php

UNSUBSCRIBE

If you would like to unsubscribe from this list, just say so and you will immediately be removed. _____

Michael Kelleher
Artistic Director
Just Buffalo Literary Center
Market Arcade
617 Main St., Ste. 202A
Buffalo, NY 14203
[redacted]
[redacted] (fax)
www.justbuffalo.org
[redacted]

↑ Index

272. Small Press Traffic

REMINDER: This Friday: Lau and Vincent

Mon 27 Apr 2009

Thank you for understanding about all the cross-posting and our excitement about this upcoming event.

Readings by Stephen Vincent and David Lau

California College of the Arts, Timken Hall

Friday, May 1, 2009 at event begins at 7:30 p.m.

Stephen Vincent's most recent poetry books include Triggers, a Shearsman ebook (http://www.shearsman.com/pages/books/ebooks/ebooks_home.html), a faux ebook, Sleeping with Sappho (http://www.fauxpress.com/e/vincent/), and Walking Theory (Junction Press: 2007), the latter of which Ron Silliman wrote: "... these are the poems Stephen Vincent has been preparing to write his entire life. They definitely pass the "take the top of your head off" test. I went cover to cover without even sitting up..." Recent poems have appeared in the current issues New American Poetry, Crayon, Jacket and the forthcoming Vanitas. A visual artist, his show Haptics will open at the Braunstein-Quay Gallery from January 22 through February 21, 2009.

A noted teacher and publisher, in the 1970's and early 80's, his Momo's Press published Beverly Dahlen's first two books, Out of the Third and A Reading 1 – 7, as well as early volumes by many other then locals, including Victor Hernandez Cruz, Jessica Hagedorn, and Hilton Obenzinger, and Shocks, a critical magazine. A longtime San Franciscan, his popular blog of poems, walks, photographs, haptics and occasional political commentary is found at http://stephenvincent.net/blog/

David Lau's first book of poems is Virgil and the Mountain Cat. His poems have appeared in Boston Review, Fourteen Hills, Jubilat, Denver Quarterly, Pool, Willdlife, New Orleans Review, and elsewhere. He is co-editor of Lana Turner: a Journal of Poetry and Opinion. He teaches writing at the University of California, Santa Cruz and Cabrillo College

--
Samantha Giles
Executive Director
Small Press Traffic Literary Arts Center
sptraffic.org
smallpresstraffic.blogspot.com

↑ Index

273. konrad
APR 29, 30 Los Angeles: live poetic film narration
Mon 27 Apr 2009

NOTE: THESE ARE TWO DIFFERENT SHOWS

Wednesday, April 29, 8:30

REDCAT Theater
Second and Hope Streets
Los Angeles
http://www.redcat.org/season/0809/fv/cabaret.php

THE CINEMA CABARET: Live Film Narration curated by Jen Hofer and Konrad Steiner

Sponsored by REDCAT and the Cal Arts Film/Video and the Critical Studies Departments

Seven writers and filmmakers from San Francisco and Los Angeles provide live voiceover to films, creating satiric, comic and critical re-readings and narrative mashups. Featuring:

Neelanjana Banerjee - Silsila
Andrew Choate - The Cook, The Thief, His Wife and Her Lover
Jaime Cortez - Guess Who's Coming to Dinner?
Jen Hofer - On the Beach
Douglas Kearney & Nicole McJamerson - Fantasia
Lee Anne Schmitt - The Shootist
Konrad Steiner - Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?

* * *

Thursday April 30, 7:30

The Machine Project
1200 D North Alvarado
Los Angeles
http://machineproject.com/events/2009/04/30/neo-benshi-night/

Neo-Benshi Night
curated by Neelanjana Banerjee

- same deal but with some musicians too -

Neelanjana Banerjee - Silsila
Coery Fogel (percussion) - ???
Jen Hofer - Kiss Me Deadly
Catherine Lamb (viola) - L'Argent
Erika Staiti - Woman Under the Influence
Amarnath Ravva - Om Shanti Om
Konrad Steiner - Minority Report

* * *

http://www.kino21.org/

^Z

↑ Index

274. David-Baptiste Chirot

Bea Ballard's Tribute JG Ballard--London Times

Mon 27 Apr 2009

There are many articles, obituaries, testimonies being written about JGB at the moment but if you had to read just one, I would recommend the moving testimony of Bea Ballard, his daughter:
http://entertainment.timesonline.co.uk/tol/arts_and_entertainment/books/article6168386.ece

"In the last few years The Atrocity Exhibition seems to be emerging from the dark, and I wonder if the widespread use of the Internet has made my experimental novel a great deal more accessible. The short paragraphs and discontinuities of the morning's emails, the overlapping texts and the need to switch one's focus between unrelated topics, together create a fragmentary world very like the text of The Atrocity Exhibition" (Miracles of Life, p. 237) _____ Windows Live™ SkyDrive™: Get 25 GB of free online storage.
http://windowslive.com/online/skydrive?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_skydrive_042009

↑ Index

275. Paul Nelson
Al Purdy A-Frame Fundraiser
Mon 27 Apr 2009

Yesterday th
Al Purdy Bowen Island A-Frame Fundraiser, April 26, 2009

Yesterday there was a fundraiser for the Al Purdy A-Frame
Trust on Bowen Island (British Columbia)
at the beautiful home of Heather Haley, a long-time organizer of poetry video conferences and events. Her dogs American Staffordshire Terriers Brinda and Sam were carefully secured away from the guests and I got on the 2:25 ferry out of Horseshoe Bay to get there on time. Have you ever taken a ferry from Horseshoe Bay? It is one of the most remarkable places youâ€™ll ever drive your car onto a boat. You see the snow-capped North Shore mountains of the mainland to your right, The Lions, and the verdant islands ahead.

Al Purdy may have been the quintessential Canadian poet. He earned most of Canadaâ€™s highest honors, including, two Governor General Awards, The Order of Ontario, and the Order of Canada. But, more importantly, his legacy may be the influence he had on generations of Canadian poets who visited his self-constructed shack in the woods near Ameliasburgh, Ontario, to drink and argue through the night about the poetry, Michael Ondaatje, George Bowering, Margaret Atwood and Leonard Cohen among them. That old shack needs some help and Jean Baird has stepped in to coordinate a nationwide series of events like the one on Bowen to raise money for the A-Frame and to create greater awareness of the Trust, which will administer residencies there.

Heather asked me to read first, and I read two poems by Al, â€œFuneralâ€ and â€œThe Dead Poet.â€ Other readers included Peter Trower, whose asides to

George and others about Al and other topics were as engaging as his poems about working for two years in the hell of the smelter of Kitimat, British Columbia.

Jamie Reid talked about running into Al Purdy at a bar and Al confused him for Freddy Douglas, who was likely a mutual friend, but then signed a book for Jamie to Freddy! Too funny.

Some say Al Purdy was the unofficial Poet Laureate of Canada. The first official one, George Bowering, read Purdyâ€™s poem "Red Leaves," which he said was, not his words, but mine, a perfect template to how Purdyâ€™s poems were constructed:

Red Leaves

- all over the earth
little fires starting up especially in Canada
some yellow leaves too
buttercup and dandelion yellow dancing across the hillside
I say to my wife
â€œWhatâ€™s the yellowest thing there is?â€
â€œSchool busesâ€
a thousand school buses are double-parked on 401 al at once

I suppose this is the one thing
your average level-headed Martian or Venusian could not imagine about Earth:
                red leaves
and the way humans attach emotion
to one little patch of ground
and continually go back there in the autumn of our lives
to deal with some of the questions
that have troubled us
on our leapfrog trip through the Universe
for which there are really no answers
except at this tranquil season
of falling leaves
watching them a kind of jubilation
sometimes mistaken for sadness

AURAL Heather, a duo led by the poetry of Heather Haley, our host and her guitar sidekick Roderick Shoolbraid, read a Purdy-inspired piece as well as Purdyâ€™s â€œWhat Do the Birds Thinkâ€ backed by bird sounds emanating from Roderickâ€™s mac.

Among the fundraising items available were a beautiful broadside created by Alan Stein, excerpted from Purdyâ€™s poem â€˜In Search of Owen
Roblinâ€

So we built a house, my wife and I
our house at a backwater puddle of a lake near Ameliasburg, Ont. spending
our last hard-earned buck to buy second-hand lumber to build a second-hand house
and make the down payment on a lot
so far from anywhere
even homing pigeons lost their way
getting back home to nowhere
we built a house so flagrantly noticeable
it seemed an act of despair
like the condemned mans bravado on the gallows
an A-frame house birds mistook for low blue sky
Just outside the cloud of my own black despair
was the small village a mile distant
once named Roblinâ€™s Mills

Other readers included Lisa Shatsky and the former Mayor of Bowen Island, Lisa Barrett.

Jean Baird is the point person and the dynamo behind this effort and tells me a .pdf of the project and a website will soon be on-line.

From the .pdf is this description of how the residencies
will work:

To begin, the residency will operate for 8
months, from April 1 to November
30. Later the winter months may be added. The
A-frame will provide time and a place to work that is attractive and of historic significance. Writers can apply for a term of one to three months. The residency will be open to all writers, but preference will be given to poetry and poetry projects. The jury will also consider proposals for a one month project in critical writing about Canadian poetry each year and will be open to unusual and creative ideas for residencies.

Travel to Ameliasburgh will be paid. Those awarded the residency will be given a stipend of $2500 dollars a month while living in the A-frame, and will be free to spend their time on their writing.
Residents will be expected to give one public reading or lecture for each month of their stayâ€”presumably in one of the larger communities nearby, Picton, Belleville, Kingstonâ€”and to consider other reasonable requests. All this will be organized in collaboration with the Prince EdwardCountyand Quinte Arts councils. The house is somewhat isolated, but the local liaison will be able to help with occasional rides for those who donâ€™t have a car. Residents will be offered a temporary library card for the excellent library at Queenâ€™s University in Kingston, where many of Al Purdyâ€™s papers are held. Those awarded a residency will be asked to donate at least one copy of one of their books to the Residency Library. Writers in residence will also be encouraged to make themselves known at the Purdy Library in Ameliasburgh and to donate a book. They may also wish to discuss with the local liaison the possibility of working with local schools.

For a full outline of the residency program including application procedures

Salient links:

http://lcpnationalpoetrymonth2009.wordpress.com/2009/04/21/national-al-purdy-day/
http://www.uwo.ca/english/canadianpoetry/cpjrn/vol10/jones.htm#bk12

Paul E. Nelson

Global Voices Radio
SPLAB!
American Sentences
Organic Poetry
Poetry Postcard Blog

Ilalqo, WA [redacted]

↑ Index

276. CA Conrad
poet JACK SPICER celebrated in PHILLY & NYC ..... YOU DON'T WANT TO MISS THESE EVENTS!
Mon 27 Apr 2009

---

poet JACK SPICER celebrated in PHILLY & NYC ..... YOU DON'T WANT TO MISS THESE EVENTS!

ALSO POSTED TO PhillySound: new poetry
http://phillysound.blogspot.com/2009_04_01_archive.html

TUESDAY, MAY 12TH, 7PM
13th and Pine Streets, PHILADELPHIA
OUTSIDE DIRTY FRANK'S BAR

4 OF CUPS SPICER READING!
for THE URCHIN SERIES
details here: http://URCHINPOETRY.blogspot.com

FRIDAY, MAY 15TH, 6:30PM & 8PM
ST. MARK'S POETRY PROJECT
131 E. 10th St., NYC

MY VOCABULARY DID THIS TO ME: PANEL & READING FOR THE COLLECTED JACK SPICER

This special event is to honor seminal West Coast poet Jack Spicer (1925-1965). My Vocabulary Did This to Me (edited by Peter Gizzi and Kevin Killian) is a landmark publication of this essential poet’s life work, and includes poems that have become increasingly hard to find.

6:30pm: Panel in the Parish Hall with Dodie Bellamy, Samuel R. Delany, Kevin Killian & Jennifer Moxley. Moderated by Kevin Killian.

8:00pm: Reading in the Sanctuary with Dodie Bellamy, Anselm Berrigan, Julian T. Brolaski, CAConrad, Samuel R. Delany, Peter Gizzi, Kevin Killian, Basil King, Douglas A. Martin, Deborah Remington, Harris Schiff, Rod Smith, George Stanley, Lewis Warsh & Karen Weiser.

Co-presented with Poets House.

--
PhillySound: new poetry http://PhillySound.blogspot.com

THE BOOK OF FRANK by CAConrad http://CAConrad.blogspot.com

↑ Index

277. Dan Wilcox
3 Guys from Albany, Albany, WY, May 4
Mon 27 Apr 2009

---

3 Guys from Albany, a poetry performance group, will tour Colorado and Wyoming from May 2 through May 8, including a performance in Albany, Wyoming on May 4. The group will also visit Cheyenne, WY, Denver, CO and Loveland, CO. The complete itinerary is listed below.

3 Guys from Albany (Tom Nattell, Charlie Rossiter and Dan Wilcox) have a mission to read their poetry in each of the Albanys in the U.S. They are friends who share the idea that poetry should be a part of society rather than apart from it -- relevant, communicative and, above all, honest. Their poems address social issues such as the homeless, peace and war, and the environment, as well as joyful celebrations of art, love and life. They have toured the United States since 1993 and so far they have read in 11 of the 18 Albanys in the USA. They have released a 60-minute cassette tape and CD of their poetry performance, available at their readings or by mail. Although Tom Nattell died of cancer in January, 2005, Charlie & Dan are continuing the project, along with the ever-present nudging from the spirit of Tom.

Charlie Rossiter is a recipient of an NEA fellowship for his poetry and is the host of www.poetrypoetry.com.

Dan Wilcox hosts the Third Thursday open mic at the Social Justice Center in Albany, NY & has the world's largest collection of photos of unknown poets. You can find him at dwlcx.blogspot.com

Tom Nattell was an international mail artist, environmentalist, poet and peace activist who wrote the "Simple Life" column for Metroland, Albany's entertainment weekly.

Look for them at an Albany near you!

Sunday, May 3: CCTV 54, Louisville CO -- Talking poetry & reading poems on the Poets Co-op TV show, 7:00 p.m.

Monday, May 4: Albany, WY -- exact time & place to be determined, free (if you can find it, show up)

Tuesday, May 5: The Albany Restaurant, Bar and Liquor Store, Cheyenne, WY, 7:30, free.

Wednesday, May 6: Glovinsky Gallery, 800 W. 8th Ave, #116, Denver, CO (8th & Inca 1 block east of Santa Fe, use Inca St. entrance). A brief open mic will open the evening, followed by 3 Guys from Albany For more info: [redacted], Janet Glovinsky: [redacted] free

Thursday, May 7: Loveland Museum, 503 N. Lincoln Ave., Loveland CO, 7:00 p.m., donation.

Check out 3 Guys from Albany on Facebook or email:
[redacted]

↑ Index

278. Charles Alexander
new on blog
Tue 28 Apr 2009

---

new posts on chaxblog

entomology and poetics: a visitor at the Karpeles Manuscript Library in Buffalo

not just buffalo: note on other recent travels (Evergreen St Coll, NYC, U of Conn)

appreciations1: Lu Xun
(first in a series of under-200-word notes on various figures)

http://chax.org/blog.htm

charles alexander
chax press
[redacted]
411 N 7th ave, suite 103
tucson arizona 85705
[redacted]

↑ Index

279. Jim Andrews
Re: Al Purdy A-Frame Fundraiser
Tue 28 Apr 2009

---

thanks for that, paul.

al purdy lived in victoria during the winter, so i got a chance to meet him a few times.

he invited me into his house and we drank a rum together. his wife eurithe also was there. i responded to something he said by remarking that, of course, he was a sensitive man. "yes," said eurithe, "a sensitive man with no sensitivity."

"a fine distinction, my dear." said al.

but she stayed with him till the end.

al and i got to talking about poets and poetry and he said "you know, most of the poets i've ever known aren't poets anymore."

he was in his eighties at that point, had won all the canadian prizes twice, and his collected poems had just been published a couple of years before this.

i organized a couple of readings for him in victoria. they were fun events. and packed. packed houses and al had fun and delivered his poems at length and very well.

he really did know how to enjoy living his life, and he surely did.

ja

↑ Index

280. Paul Nelson
Al Purdy A-Frame Fundraiser
Tue 28 Apr 2009

Thanks, Paul.
Though since we are fundraising including that information is always important:
Cheques to
The Al Purdy A-frame Trust
4403 West 11th Ave.,
Vancouver BC
V6R 2M2
tax receipts will be issued for all donations over $50

Begin forwarded message:

From: George Bowering <[redacted]>
Date: April 27, 2009 7:21:14 PM PDT
To: Jean Baird <[redacted]>
Subject: Fwd: Al Purdy A-Frame Fundraiser

Begin forwarded message:

From: Paul Nelson <[redacted]>
Date: April 27, 2009 1:56:24 PM PDT (CA)
To: [redacted]
Subject: Al Purdy A-Frame Fundraiser

Al Purdy Bowen Island A-Frame Fundraiser, April 26, 2009

Yesterday there was a fundraiser for the Al Purdy A-Frame
Trust on Bowen Island (British Columbia)
at the beautiful home of Heather Haley, a long-time organizer of poetry video conferences and events. Her dogs American Staffordshire Terriers Brinda and Sam were carefully secured away from the guests and I got on the 2:25 ferry out of Horseshoe Bay to get there on time. Have you ever taken a ferry from Horseshoe Bay? It is one of the most remarkable places youâ€™ll ever drive your car onto a boat. You see the snow-capped North Shore mountains of the mainland to your right, The Lions, and the verdant islands ahead.

Al Purdy may have been the quintessential Canadian poet. He earned most of Canadaâ€™s highest honors, including, two Governor General Awards, The Order of Ontario, and the Order of Canada. But, more importantly, his legacy may be the influence he had on generations of Canadian poets who visited his self-constructed shack in the woods near Ameliasburgh, Ontario, to drink and argue through the night about the poetry, Michael Ondaatje, George Bowering, Margaret Atwood and Leonard Cohen among them. That old shack needs some help and Jean Baird has stepped in to coordinate a nationwide series of events like the one on Bowen to raise money for the A-Frame and to create greater awareness of the Trust, which will administer residencies there.

Heather asked me to read first, and I read two poems by Al, â€œFuneralâ€ and â€œThe Dead Poet.â€ Other readers included Peter Trower, whose asides to George and others about Al and other topics were as engaging as his poems about working for two years in the hell of the smelter of Kitimat, British Columbia.

Jamie Reid talked about running into Al Purdy at a bar and Al confused him for Freddy Douglas, who was likely a mutual friend, but then signed a book for Jamie to Freddy! Too funny.

Some say Al Purdy was the unofficial Poet Laureate of Canada. The first official one, George Bowering, read Purdyâ€™s poem "Red Leaves," which he said was, not his words, but mine, a perfect template to how Purdyâ€™s poems were constructed:

Red Leaves

- all over the earth
little fires starting up especially in Canada
some yellow leaves too
buttercup and dandelion yellow
dancing across the hillside

I say to my wife
â€œWhatâ€™s the yellowest thing there is?â€
â€œSchool busesâ€
a thousand school buses are double-
parked on 401 al at once

I suppose this is the one thing
your average level-headed Martian
or Venusian could not imagine
about Earth:
                red leaves
and the way humans attach emotion
to one little patch of ground
and continually go back there
in the autumn of our lives
to deal with some of the questions
that have troubled us
on our leapfrog trip through the Universe
for which there are really no answers
except at this tranquil season
of falling leaves
watching them a kind of jubilation
sometimes mistaken for sadness

AURAL Heather, a duo led by the poetry of Heather Haley, our host and her guitar sidekick Roderick Shoolbraid, read a Purdy-inspired piece as well as Purdyâ€™s â€œWhat Do the Birds Thinkâ€ backed by bird sounds emanating from Roderickâ€™s mac.

Among the fundraising items available were a beautiful
broadside created by Alan Stein, excerpted from Purdyâ€™s poem â€˜In Search of Owen
Roblinâ€

So we built a house, my wife and I
our house at a backwater puddle of a lake
near Ameliasburg, Ont. spending
our last hard-earned buck to buy second-hand lumber
to build a second-hand house
and make the down payment on a lot
so far from anywhere
even homing pigeons lost their way
getting back home to nowhere
we built a house so flagrantly noticeable

it seemed an act of despair
like the condemned mans bravado on the gallows
an A-frame house birds mistook for low blue sky
Just outside the cloud of my own black despair
was the small village a mile distant
once named Roblinâ€™s Mills

Other readers included Lisa Shatsky and the former Mayor of Bowen Island, Lisa Barrett.

Jean Baird is the point person and the dynamo behind this effort and tells me a .pdf of the project and a website will soon be on-line.

From the .pdf is this description of how the residencies
will work:

To begin, the residency will operate for 8
months, from April 1 to November
30. Later the winter months may be added. The
A-frame will provide time and
a place to work that is attractive and of historic significance. Writers can apply for a term of one to three months. The residency will be open to all writers, but preference will be given to poetry and poetry
projects. The jury will also consider proposals for a one month project in critical writing about Canadian poetry each year and will be open to unusual and creative
ideas for residencies.

Travel to Ameliasburgh will be paid. Those awarded the residency will be given a stipend of $2500 dollars a month while living in the A-frame, and will be free to spend their time on their writing.
Residents will be expected to give one public reading or lecture for each month of their stayâ€”presumably in one of the larger communities nearby, Picton, Belleville, Kingstonâ€”and
to consider other reasonable requests. All this will be organized in collaboration with the Prince EdwardCountyand Quinte Arts councils. The house is somewhat isolated, but
the local liaison will be able to help with occasional rides for those who donâ€™t have a car. Residents will be offered a temporary library card for the excellent library at Queenâ€™s University in Kingston, where many of Al Purdyâ€™s papers are held. Those awarded a residency will be asked to donate at least one copy of one of their books to the Residency Library. Writers in residence will also be encouraged to make themselves known at the Purdy Library in Ameliasburgh and to donate a book. They may also wish to discuss with the local liaison the possibility of working with local schools.

For a full outline of the residency program
including application procedures

Salient links:

http://lcpnationalpoetrymonth2009.wordpress.com/2009/04/21/national-al-purdy-day/
http://www.uwo.ca/english/canadianpoetry/cpjrn/vol10/jones.htm#bk12

Paul E. Nelson

Global Voices Radio
SPLAB!
American Sentences
Organic Poetry
Poetry Postcard Blog

Ilalqo, WA [redacted]

George Harry Bowering
Likes towns with -ver- in them.

↑ Index

281. Obododimma Oha
Letter Home, Great Thoughts on Home, Diaspora, & Memory
Tue 28 Apr 2009

Hi Everyone,Here's a special treat on Home, Diaspora, & Memory -- Afam Akeh's "Letter Home <http://www.mtls.ca/issue2/writings-poetry-akeh.html> " -- recently published in MTLS:

http://www.mtls.ca/issue2/writings-poetry-akeh.html

-- Obododimma.

--
Obododimma Oha
http://udude.wordpress.com/

Dept. of English
University of Ibadan
Nigeria

&

Fellow, Centre for Peace & Conflict Studies
University of Ibadan

Phone: [redacted];
[redacted];
[redacted].

↑ Index

282. Pierre Joris
Recent Posts on Nomadics & Collectages
Tue 28 Apr 2009

Check out these recent posts on NOMADICS (http://pierrejoris.com/blog) Check out also Nicole Peyrafitte's COLLECTAGES blog (http://Nicolepeyrafitte.com/blog) — she just posted the most informative piece on the Swine Flu epidemic I have yet seen. Before that there was a splendid pancake recipe post. Your pick.

Nomadics posts:

Philip Giraldi on Jane Harman Affair
Unica Zürn’s Anagrams
& now for breakfast
Sunday Reads
Images from a Middle East Exhibition
Olga Martynova on the Oberiuts
POETRY WORKSHOP & RETREAT with BERNADETTE MAYER
May Day by Robert Kelly
OPERATION CAST LEAD
J.G. Ballard (1930-2009)

be well, spring's here, & apologies for any double postings due to FacBook noyifications.

Pierre
==========
=

"Play what you don't know" -- Sun Ra
==========
=
Pierre Joris
244 Elm Street
Albany NY 12202-1310
h: [redacted]
c: [redacted]
o: 518 442 40 71
Euro cell: (011 33) 6 75 43 57 10
email: [redacted]
http://pierrejoris.com
http://pierrejoris.com/blog/
==========
=

↑ Index

283. Ram Devineni

TONIGHT: The Rattapallax/PEN World Voices Literary Film Feast.

Tue 28 Apr 2009

TONIGHT: The Rattapallax/PEN World Voices Literary Film Feast.

Tuesday, April 28, 2009 at 7 pm.
Instituto Cervantes New York,
211-215 East 49th Street.
(b/ 2nd and 3rd Ave.)
FREE

http://www.pen.org/festival

Special guests Bob Holman, D J Kadagian and Ram
Devineni

FILMS BEING SCREENED:

"HOLLYWOOD JEROME" is based on the spoken-word poetry
of Malik Yusef and directed by Frey Hoffman. The film depicts an inner-city youth enthralled and bamboozled
by pop-culture depictions of gang culture.

"METFORMIN" looks at the biology of love through collage and animation. Based on a poem by Helen Clare and directed by Kate Jessop.

"UNE LEÇON PARTICULIÈRE" won the Grand prix uniFrance du court-métrage at the Cannes Film Festival and directed by Raphaël Chevènement. While studying the poetry of Victor Hugo, the teenager Cyril tries to convey his love for his teacher, twenty-seven-year-old Éva. . In French with English subtitles.

"LUCIA" is told through the voice of little girl who remembers the summer when she fell in love. The stop-motion animated film is directed by Niles Atallah and Cristóbal León and based on the writings of Joaquin Cociña. In Spanish with English subtitles.

Two short films by D J Kadagian who reworks classic poems using found video footage. Screening of "STEALING SUGAR FROM THE CASTLE" by Robert Bly and "STANDARD OIL CO." by Pablo Neruda. Special appearance by the D J Kadagian.

A chaotic dance film from Israel. "SERPENT" is based on a poem from Iris Erez and T. Carmi and filmed by Avi Dabach.

"GINSBERG'S KARMA" is a documentary about the legendary poet Allen Ginsberg and his mythical journey to India in the early 1960s that transformed his perspective on life and his work. Poet Bob Holman traces the two years Ginsberg spent in India by visiting the places where he stayed and talk with the people he met and influenced, as well as, intimate interviews with Beat poets and friends. Special appearance with the filmmakers Ram Devineni and Bob Holman.

Please send future emails to [redacted] for press

↑ Index

284. Chad Sweeney

Three Events in California

Tue 28 Apr 2009

Dear Friends, Iâ€™ll be doing three readings next week for my new book, Arranging the Blaze, and Iâ€™d love to see you, while Iâ€™m HOME again, briefly, from Michigan. . . Â Chad Sweeney May 7 at Moeâ€™s:Â Poetry

FlashÂ presents Chad Sweeney,Â Arranging the Blaze (Anhinga, 2009),Â and Farrah Field,Â Rising,Â winner of The Levis Prize, judged byÂ Tony HoaglandÂ @ Moeâ€™s Books,Â 2476 Telegraph Avenue, Berkeley, 7:30 pm May 8 at Books Inc., Marina:Â Chad Sweeney and Sharon Doubiagohosted byÂ Katherine HastingsÂ and Word TempleFriday, May 8, 7:30pmBooks Inc.,Â San Francisco, CAÂ @ 2251 Chestnut St. May 9 inÂ Santa CruzÂ :Â Chad Sweeney and Mojdeh MarashiNew Cadence Poetry Series at the Felix Kulpa Gallery,Â 107 Elm Street, in Santa Cruz,Â Saturday, May 9, 7:30pm with host James Maughn.Chad will read fromÂ Arranging the Blaze, and Mojdeh and Chad will perform their Farsi translations of the celebrated Iranian poet H.E. Sayeh. Chad SweeneyÂ is the author of three books of poetry,Â Parable ofÂ Hide and SeekÂ (Alice James, 2010),Â Arranging the BlazeÂ (Anhinga, 2009), and An Architecture (2007); and editor ofÂ Days I Moved Through Ordinary SoundsÂ (City Lights, 2009).Â His work has appeared inÂ Best American Poetry 2008,Â New American Writing, Verse, Volt, Colorado Review,Â CrazyhorseÂ and elsewhere, and he coedits Parthenon West Review.Â Heâ€™s a PhD candidate in literature/poetry atÂ Western Michigan University. Sharon DoubiagoÂ has written two dozen books of poetry and prose.Â Â Love on the Streets,Â New and Selected Poems,Â was recently released fromÂ University of Pittsburgh Press.Â Her other books include the epic poemÂ Hard Country(West End Press), the booklength poemÂ South AmericaÂ Mi HijaÂ (University of Pittsburgh) which was nominated twice for theÂ National Book Award, and the story collections,Â El NinoÂ (Lost Roads Press), andÂ The Book of Seeing With Oneâ€™s Own EyesÂ (Graywolf) which in 2005 was selected to the Oregon Culture Heritage list,Â Literary Oregon, 100 Books, 1800-2000.Â Her memoir,Â My Fatherâ€™s Love/Portrait of the Poet as a GirlÂ is forthcoming fromÂ Red Hen Press. Farrah Fieldâ€™sÂ first book of poems,Â Rising (Four Way Books), is the winner of the Levis Prize, judged by Tony Hoagland, who says of it, â€œThese poems possess a wonderful combination of irony and soul, satire and vulnerability, which shines a warmly human light.â€ She has been widely published in suchÂ literary journalsÂ Margie, Chelsea,Massachusetts Review, Mississippi Review, Pool,Â andÂ Typo.

Mojdeh Marashi'sÂ work is deeply influenced by the ancient andÂ modern history of IranÂ where she grew up and published her first short story in Today Woman (1977), while still a teenager.Â In 1986 she co-founded YALDA, a cultural ogranization, where she taught Farsi language classes and co-hosted the weekly radio program â€œRang aa Rang (Color to Color)â€ on KUSF.Â Â Her fiction was chosen to appear in the anthology, â€œLet Me Tell You Where Iâ€™ve Been: Women of the Iranian Diasporaâ€ (University of Arkansas, 2006), and her translations (with Chad Sweeney) have appeared inÂ Crazyhorse,Â Indiana Review, Poetry International, American Letters & Commentary,Â SeattleÂ Review, SubtropicsÂ andÂ Washington Square.Â Â She has traveled twice toÂ IranÂ to work with Sayeh directly.

↑ Index

285. Ken Chen
Ha Jin on Wed the 6th
Tue 28 Apr 2009

---

http://www.aaww.org/hajin

A Night with Award-Winning Author Ha Jin
Reading and Cocktail Reception in support of the Asian American Writers' Workshop

Wednesday, May 06, 2009
6:30 PM to 9:00 PM

Home of Virginia Davies and Willard Taylor
299 West 12th Street #PHA
New York, New York 10014
off 8th Ave

Please join us for an intimate evening with writer Ha Jin, winner of the National Book Award and the PEN/Faulkner Award for Fiction. The Workshop is proud to welcome Jin and to present the public with a rare opportunity to meet the authorat a classic West Village penthouse with wraparound terrace that has hosted Barack Obama, Bill Clinton and Yo-Yo Ma.

This special event focuses on Jins newest book, Writer as Migrant, published by the University of Chicago Press. In his first work of nonfiction, Jin writes three interconnected essays and tackles issues relating to being a migrant writer. The San Francisco Chronicle finds that "Though the issues are weighty, Jins prose is straightforward and welcoming. . . . In this poignant and provocative book, Jin takes us on this journey [to our envisioned homelands], revealing paths laid by migrant writers before him and perhaps by those who will follow."

Ha Jin is the critically renowned author of five novels, including, Waiting and War Trash, as well as three collections of short stories and three books of poetry. His short story collection, The Bridegroom, won the Asian American Literary Award. He currently teaches literature at Boston University.

↑ Index

286. Jennifer Karmin
JOB: Links Hall
Tue 28 Apr 2009

JOB OPENING: DIRECTOR, LINKS HALL Chicago, Illionis
http://www.linkshall.org

Mission:
Links hall encourages artistic innovation and public engagement by maintaining a facility and providing flexible programming for the research, development and presentation of new work in the performing arts.

Overview: The Director leads the organization, carries primary responsibility for operations and programming and ensures the overall health of the organization, creatively expanding its ability to carry out its mission. The Director has primary responsibility for fundraising, financial management, staffing and program coordination. This is an exciting opportunity for an executive leader to sustain and build on a strong infrastructure and on the dynamic growth experienced by Links Hall over the past five years. The Director works collaboratively with staff, Artists, Artistic Associates, Board of Directors and its committees, funders, and national and local colleagues and partners including the National Performance Network. Qualified candidates will have the capacity to lead the organization with vision, strategic thinking, practicality, creativity and innovation. Important in this role are acute acumen in financial and human capital; an understanding of artist and artistic development; the ability to develop programs that serve both artist and audience; and a comprehensive knowledge in the workings of not-for-profit organizations.

Qualifications:
ï‚· a minimum of 4 years of progressive, effective and comprehensive leadership/management experience in the arts;
ï‚· demonstrated success in leadership, management, fundraising, supervision, and strategic direction;
ï‚· exceptional entrepreneurial, organizational development and communications skills;
ï‚· strong team participation and facilitation skills;
ï‚· innovative, creative and strategic thinking skills;
ï‚· the ability to focus on and execute multi-year fundraising strategy; and ï‚· a passionate understanding of and commitment to Links Hallâ€™s mission and vision

Applicable Physical Capabilities:
ï‚· Must be able to operate office computers, telephones, and other office equipment.

ï‚· Mobility throughout building and city required.

Salary: $43,000-48,000 annually with benefits.

Applications accepted until the position is filled.

Send letter and resume to:
Links Hall Search Committee
3435 N. Sheffield 2nd Floor
Chicago, IL 60657
[redacted]

↑ Index

287. George Bowering
Re: poet JACK SPICER celebrated in PHILLY & NYC ..... YOU DON'T WANT TO MISS THESE EVENTS!
Tue 28 Apr 2009

That is going to be terrific stuff, and what a lineup for the reading!
Especially with George Stanley, maybe jack's best young mobster.

I wish I could be there!

gb

On Apr 27, 2009, at 5:01 PM, CA Conrad wrote:

> poet JACK SPICER celebrated in PHILLY & NYC ..... YOU DON'T WANT TO MISS THESE EVENTS!
>
> ALSO POSTED TO PhillySound: new poetry
> http://phillysound.blogspot.com/2009_04_01_archive.html
>
> TUESDAY, MAY 12TH, 7PM
> 13th and Pine Streets, PHILADELPHIA
> OUTSIDE DIRTY FRANK'S BAR
>
> 4 OF CUPS SPICER READING!
> for THE URCHIN SERIES
> details here: http://URCHINPOETRY.blogspot.com
>
> ----------
>
> FRIDAY, MAY 15TH, 6:30PM & 8PM
> ST. MARK'S POETRY PROJECT

131 E. 10th St., NYC

MY VOCABULARY DID THIS TO ME: PANEL & READING FOR THE COLLECTED JACK SPICER

This special event is to honor seminal West Coast poet Jack Spicer (1925-1965). My Vocabulary Did This to Me (edited by Peter Gizzi and Kevin Killian) is a landmark publication of this essential poet's life work, and includes poems that have become increasingly hard to find.

6:30pm: Panel in the Parish Hall with Dodie Bellamy, Samuel R. Delany, Kevin Killian & Jennifer Moxley. Moderated by Kevin Killian.

8:00pm: Reading in the Sanctuary with Dodie Bellamy, Anselm Berrigan, Julian T. Brolaski, CAConrad, Samuel R. Delany, Peter Gizzi, Kevin Killian, Basil King, Douglas A. Martin, Deborah Remington, Harris Schiff, Rod Smith, George Stanley, Lewis Warsh & Karen Weiser.

Co-presented with Poets House.

--

> PhillySound: new poetry http://PhillySound.blogspot.com
>
> THE BOOK OF FRANK by CAConrad http://CAConrad.blogspot.com
>
> welcome.html

George Bowering, OUH
Never on the cover of Vanity Fair

↑ Index

288. Kate Pringle

Publicly Complex Reading in Providence: PRINGLE & TIMBLIN

Wed 29 Apr 2009

---

kathryn l. pringle

and

Dianne Timblin

Hope to see you!

kathryn l. pringle

and

Dianne Timblin

Saturday, May 2nd, at 6 pm at Ada Books (717 Westminster St., Providence)

About them:

kathryn l. pringle is a graduate of the MFA program at San Francisco State University. Her first book, RIGHT NEW BIOLOGY, is just out from Factory School/Heretical Text Series. She is the author of The Stills (Duration Press) and Temper & Felicity are Lovers (TAXT). Her poems can be read in The Denver Quarterly, Fence, 14 hills, 580 Split, and Sidebrow, among others. She is an editor at the literary magazine minor/american, and the co-founder of the minor american reading series in Durham, N.C., now funded by Duke University.

Dianne Timblin lives in Durham, North Carolina. Her work has appeared or is forthcoming in Phoebe, Rivendell, minor/american, Foursquare, Fanzine and other journals.

They will either cure or exacerbate your spring fever. Whichever you like! Please come!

Your organizer,

Kate Schapira
http://kathrynlpringle.blogspot.com/

order RIGHT NEW BIOLOGY:

http://www.spdbooks.org/Search/Default.aspx?AuthorName=pringle

READINGS:

March 18th: Durham, NC @ the Pinhook: 7pm

April 8th : Tulsa OK

April 10th: Fayetteville, AR

April 17th: NY, NY @ the Poetry Project : 9:30 pm w/ erica kaufman & frank sherlock

5.2.09 w/ Dianne Timblin in Providence, RI

5.16.09 w/ Chris Vitiello & Jusin Marks So-And-So Reading Series @ 8pm Raleigh, NC

_____
From: POETICS automatic digest system <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, April 29, 2009 12:01:40 AM
Subject: POETICS Digest - 27 Apr 2009 to 28 Apr 2009 (#2009-95)

POETICS Digest - 27 Apr 2009 to 28 Apr 2009 (#2009-95)

POETICS Digest - 27 Apr 2009 to 28 Apr 2009 (#2009-95)
Table of contents:
* 3 Guys from Albany, Albany, WY, May 4
* poet JACK SPICER celebrated in PHILLY & NYC ..... YOU DON'T WANT TO MISS THESE EVENTS!
* new on blog
* Al Purdy A-Frame Fundraiser (2)
* Letter Home, Great Thoughts on Home, Diaspora, & Memory
* Recent Posts on Nomadics & Collectages
* TONIGHT: The Rattapallax/PEN World Voices Literary Film Feast.
1. 3 Guys from Albany, Albany, WY, May 4
* 3 Guys from Albany, Albany, WY, May 4 (04/27)
From: Dan Wilcox <[redacted]>
2. poet JACK SPICER celebrated in PHILLY & NYC ..... YOU DON'T WANT TO MISS THESE EVENTS!
* poet JACK SPICER celebrated in PHILLY & NYC ..... YOU DON'T WANT TO MISS THESE EVENTS! (04/27)
From: CA Conrad <[redacted]>

3. new on blog
* new on blog (04/27)
From: Charles Alexander <[redacted]>
4. Al Purdy A-Frame Fundraiser
* Re: Al Purdy A-Frame Fundraiser (04/27)
From: Jim Andrews <[redacted]>
* Al Purdy A-Frame Fundraiser (04/27)
From: Paul Nelson <[redacted]>
5. Letter Home, Great Thoughts on Home, Diaspora, & Memory
* Letter Home, Great Thoughts on Home, Diaspora, & Memory (04/28)
From: Obododimma Oha <[redacted]>
6. Recent Posts on Nomadics & Collectages
* Recent Posts on Nomadics & Collectages (04/28)
From: Pierre Joris <[redacted]>
7. TONIGHT: The Rattapallax/PEN World Voices Literary Film Feast.
* TONIGHT: The Rattapallax/PEN World Voices Literary Film Feast. (04/28)
From: Ram Devineni <[redacted]>

Browse the POETICS online archives.

-----Inline Message Follows-----

3 Guys from Albany, a poetry performance group, will tour Colorado and Wyoming from May 2 through May 8, including a performance in Albany, Wyoming on May 4. The group will also visit Cheyenne, WY, Denver, CO and Loveland, CO. The complete itinerary is listed below.

3 Guys from Albany (Tom Nattell, Charlie Rossiter and Dan Wilcox) have a mission to read their poetry in each of the Albanys in the U.S. They are friends who share the idea that poetry should be a part of society rather than apart from it -- relevant, communicative and, above all, honest. Their poems address social issues such as the homeless, peace and war, and the environment, as well as joyful celebrations of art, love and life. They have toured the United States since 1993 and so far they have read in 11 of the 18 Albanys in the USA. They have released a 60-minute cassette tape and CD of their poetry performance, available at their readings or by mail. Although Tom Nattell died of cancer in January, 2005, Charlie & Dan are continuing the project, along with the ever-present nudging from the spirit of Tom.

Charlie Rossiter is a recipient of an NEA fellowship for his poetry and is the host of www.poetrypoetry.com.

Dan Wilcox hosts the Third Thursday open mic at the Social Justice Center in Albany, NY & has the world's largest collection of photos of unknown poets. You can find him at dwlcx.blogspot.com

Tom Nattell was an international mail artist, environmentalist, poet and peace activist who wrote the "Simple Life" column for Metroland, Albany's entertainment weekly.

Look for them at an Albany near you!

Sunday, May 3: CCTV 54, Louisville CO -- Talking poetry & reading poems on the Poets Co-op TV show, 7:00 p.m.

Monday, May 4: Albany, WY -- exact time & place to be determined, free (if you can find it, show up)

Tuesday, May 5: The Albany Restaurant, Bar and Liquor Store, Cheyenne, WY, 7:30, free.

Wednesday, May 6: Glovinsky Gallery, 800 W. 8th Ave, #116, Denver, CO (8th & Inca 1 block east of Santa Fe, use Inca St. entrance). A brief open mic will open the evening, followed by 3 Guys from Albany For more info: [redacted], Janet Glovinsky: [redacted] free

Thursday, May 7: Loveland Museum, 503 N. Lincoln Ave., Loveland CO, 7:00 p.m., donation.

Check out 3 Guys from Albany on Facebook or email: [redacted]

-----Inline Message Follows-----

poet JACK SPICER celebrated in PHILLY & NYC ..... YOU DON'T WANT TO MISS THESE EVENTS!

ALSO POSTED TO PhillySound: new poetry
http://phillysound.blogspot.com/2009_04_01_archive.html

TUESDAY, MAY 12TH, 7PM
13th and Pine Streets, PHILADELPHIA
OUTSIDE DIRTY FRANK'S BAR

4 OF CUPS SPICER READING!
for THE URCHIN SERIES
details here: http://URCHINPOETRY.blogspot.com

FRIDAY, MAY 15TH, 6:30PM & 8PM
ST. MARK'S POETRY PROJECT
131 E. 10th St., NYC

MY VOCABULARY DID THIS TO ME: PANEL & READING FOR THE COLLECTED JACK SPICER

This special event is to honor seminal West Coast poet Jack Spicer (1925-1965). My Vocabulary Did This to Me (edited by Peter Gizzi and Kevin Killian) is a landmark publication of this essential poetâ€™s life work, and includes poems that have become increasingly hard to find.

6:30pm: Panel in the Parish Hall with Dodie Bellamy, Samuel R. Delany, Kevin Killian & Jennifer Moxley. Moderated by Kevin Killian.

8:00pm: Reading in the Sanctuary with Dodie Bellamy, Anselm Berrigan, Julian T. Brolaski, CAConrad, Samuel R. Delany, Peter Gizzi, Kevin Killian, Basil King, Douglas A. Martin, Deborah Remington, Harris Schiff, Rod Smith, George Stanley, Lewis Warsh & Karen Weiser.

Co-presented with Poets House.

--
PhillySound: new poetry http://PhillySound.blogspot.com

THE BOOK OF FRANK by CAConrad http://CAConrad.blogspot.com

-----Inline Message Follows-----

new posts on chaxblog

entomology and poetics: a visitor at the Karpeles Manuscript Library in Buffalo

not just buffalo: note on other recent travels (Evergreen St Coll, NYC, U of Conn)

appreciations1: Lu Xun
(first in a series of under-200-word notes on various figures)

http://chax.org/blog.htm

charles alexander
chax press
[redacted]
411 N 7th ave, suite 103
tucson arizona 85705
[redacted]

-----Inline Message Follows-----

thanks for that, paul.

al purdy lived in victoria during the winter, so i got a chance to meet him a few times.

he invited me into his house and we drank a rum together. his wife eurithe also was there. i responded to something he said by remarking that, of course, he was a sensitive man. "yes," said eurithe, "a sensitive man with no sensitivity."

"a fine distinction, my dear." said al.

but she stayed with him till the end.

al and i got to talking about poets and poetry and he said "you know, most of the poets i've ever known aren't poets anymore."

he was in his eighties at that point, had won all the canadian prizes twice, and his collected poems had just been published a couple of years before this.

i organized a couple of readings for him in victoria. they were fun events. and packed. packed houses and al had fun and delivered his poems at length and very well.

he really did know how to enjoy living his life, and he surely did.

ja

-----Inline Message Follows-----

Thanks, Paul.
Though since we are fundraising including that information is always important:
Cheques to
The Al Purdy A-frame Trust
4403 West 11th Ave.,
Vancouver BC
V6R 2M2
tax receipts will be issued for all donations over $50

Begin forwarded message:

From: George Bowering <[redacted]>
Date: April 27, 2009 7:21:14 PM PDT
To: Jean Baird <[redacted]>
Subject: Fwd: Al Purdy A-Frame Fundraiser

Begin forwarded message:

From: Paul Nelson <[redacted]>
Date: April 27, 2009 1:56:24 PM PDT (CA)
To: [redacted]
Subject: Al Purdy A-Frame Fundraiser

Al Purdy Bowen Island A-Frame Fundraiser, April 26, 2009

Yesterday there was a fundraiser for the Al Purdy A-Frame
Trust on Bowen Island (British Columbia)
at the beautiful home of Heather Haley, a long-time organizer of poetry video conferences and events. Her dogs American Staffordshire Terriers Brinda and Sam were carefully secured away from the guests and I got on the 2:25 ferry out of Horseshoe Bay to get there on time. Have you ever taken a ferry from Horseshoe Bay? It is one of the most remarkable places youâ€™ll ever drive your car onto a boat. You see the snow-capped North Shore mountains of the mainland to your right, The Lions, and the verdant islands ahead.

Al Purdy may have been the quintessential Canadian poet. He earned most of Canadaâ€™s highest honors, including, two Governor General Awards, The Order of Ontario, and the Order of Canada. But, more importantly, his legacy may be the influence he had on generations of Canadian poets who visited his self-constructed shack in the woods near Ameliasburgh, Ontario, to drink and argue through the night about the poetry, Michael Ondaatje, George Bowering, Margaret Atwood and Leonard Cohen among them. That old shack needs some help and Jean Baird has stepped in to coordinate a nationwide series of events like the one on Bowen to raise money for the A-Frame and to create greater awareness of the Trust, which will administer residencies there.

Heather asked me to read first, and I read two poems by Al, â€œFuneralâ€ and â€œThe Dead Poet.â€ Other readers included Peter Trower, whose asides to George and others about Al and other topics were as engaging as his poems about working for two years in the hell of the smelter of Kitimat, British Columbia.

Jamie Reid talked about running into Al Purdy at a bar and Al confused him for Freddy Douglas, who was likely a mutual friend, but then signed a book for Jamie to Freddy! Too funny.

Some say Al Purdy was the unofficial Poet Laureate of Canada. The first official one, George Bowering, read Purdyâ€™s poem "Red Leaves," which he said was, not his words, but mine, a perfect template to how Purdyâ€™s poems were constructed:

Red Leaves

- all over the earth
little fires starting up especially in Canada
some yellow leaves too
buttercup and dandelion yellow
dancing across the hillside
I say to my wife
â€œWhatâ€™s the yellowest thing there is?â€
â€œSchool busesâ€
a thousand school buses are double-
parked on 401 al at once

I suppose this is the one thing
your average level-headed Martian
or Venusian could not imagine
about Earth:
                red leaves
and the way humans attach emotion
to one little patch of ground
and continually go back there
in the autumn of our lives
to deal with some of the questions
that have troubled us
on our leapfrog trip through the Universe
for which there are really no answers
except at this tranquil season
of falling leaves
watching them a kind of jubilation
sometimes mistaken for sadness

AURAL Heather, a duo led by the poetry of Heather Haley, our host and her guitar sidekick Roderick Shoolbraid, read a Purdy-inspired piece as well as Purdyâ€™s â€œWhat Do the Birds Thinkâ€ backed by bird sounds emanating from Roderickâ€™s mac.

Among the fundraising items available were a beautiful
broadside created by Alan Stein, excerpted from Purdyâ€™s poem â€˜In Search of Owen
Roblinâ€

So we built a house, my wife and I
our house at a backwater puddle of a lake
near Ameliasburg, Ont. spending
our last hard-earned buck to buy second-hand lumber
to build a second-hand house
and make the down payment on a lot
so far from anywhere
even homing pigeons lost their way
getting back home to nowhere
we built a house so flagrantly noticeable
it seemed an act of despair
like the condemned mans bravado on the gallows
an A-frame house birds mistook for low blue sky
Just outside the cloud of my own black despair
was the small village a mile distant
once named Roblinâ€™s Mills

Other readers included Lisa Shatsky and the former Mayor of Bowen Island, Lisa Barrett.

Jean Baird is the point person and the dynamo behind this effort and tells me a .pdf of the project and a website will soon be on-line.

From the .pdf is this description of how the residencies will work:

To begin, the residency will operate for 8 months, from April 1 to November 30. Later the winter months may be added. The A-frame will provide time and a place to work that is attractive and of historic significance. Writers can apply for a term of one to three months. The residency will be open to all writers, but preference will be given to poetry and poetry projects. The jury will also consider proposals for a one month project in critical writing about Canadian poetry each year and will be open to unusual and creative ideas for residencies.

Travel to Ameliasburgh will be paid. Those awarded the residency will be given a stipend of $2500 dollars a month while living in the A-frame, and will be free to spend their time on their writing. Residents will be expected to give one public reading or lecture for each month of their stayâ€”presumably in one of the larger communities nearby, Picton, Belleville, Kingstonâ€”and to consider other reasonable requests. All this will be organized in collaboration with the Prince EdwardCountyand Quinte Arts councils. The house is somewhat isolated, but the local liaison will be able to help with occasional rides for those who donâ€™t have a car. Residents will be offered a temporary library card for the excellent library at Queenâ€™s University in Kingston, where many of Al Purdyâ€™s papers are held. Those awarded a residency will be asked to donate at least one copy of one of their books to the Residency Library. Writers in residence will also be encouraged to make themselves known at the Purdy Library in Ameliasburgh and to donate a book. They may also wish to discuss with the local liaison the possibility of working with local schools.

For a full outline of the residency program
including application procedures

Salient links:

http://lcpnationalpoetrymonth2009.wordpress.com/2009/04/21/national-al-purdy-day/
http://www.uwo.ca/english/canadianpoetry/cpjrn/vol10/jones.htm#bk12

Paul E. Nelson

Global Voices Radio
SPLAB!
American Sentences
Organic Poetry
Poetry Postcard Blog

Ilalqo, WA [redacted]

George Harry Bowering
Likes towns with -ver- in them.

-----Inline Message Follows-----

Hi Everyone,Here's a special treat on Home, Diaspora, & Memory -- Afam Akeh's "Letter Home <http://www.mtls.ca/issue2/writings-poetry-akeh.html> " -- recently published in MTLS:

http://www.mtls.ca/issue2/writings-poetry-akeh.html

-- Obododimma.

--
Obododimma Oha
http://udude.wordpress.com/

Dept. of English
University of Ibadan
Nigeria

&

Fellow, Centre for Peace & Conflict Studies
University of Ibadan

Phone: [redacted];
[redacted];
[redacted].

-----Inline Message Follows-----

Check out these recent posts on NOMADICS (http://pierrejoris.com/blog) Check out also Nicole Peyrafitte's COLLECTAGES blog (http://Nicolepeyrafitte.com/blog) â€” she just posted the most informative piece on the Swine Flu epidemic I have yet seen. Before that there was a splendid pancake recipe post. Your pick.

Nomadics posts:

Philip Giraldi on Jane Harman Affair
Unica ZÃ¼rnâ€™s Anagrams
& now for breakfast
Sunday Reads
Images from a Middle East Exhibition
Olga Martynova on the Oberiuts
POETRY WORKSHOP & RETREAT with BERNADETTE MAYER
May Day by Robert Kelly
OPERATION CAST LEAD
J.G. Ballard (1930-2009)

be well, spring's here, & apologies for any double postings due to FacBook noyifications.

Pierre
==========
"Play what you don't know" -- Sun Ra
==========
Pierre Joris
244 Elm Street
Albany NY 12202-1310
h: [redacted]
c: [redacted]
o: 518 442 40 71
Euro cell: (011 33) 6 75 43 57 10
email: [redacted]
http://pierrejoris.com
http://pierrejoris.com/blog/
==========

-----Inline Message Follows-----

TONIGHT: The Rattapallax/PEN World Voices Literary Film Feast.

Tuesday, April 28, 2009 at 7 pm.
Instituto Cervantes New York,
211-215 East 49th Street.
(b/ 2nd and 3rd Ave.)
FREE

http://www.pen.org/festival

Special guests Bob Holman, D J Kadagian and Ram
Devineni

FILMS BEING SCREENED:

"HOLLYWOOD JEROME" is based on the spoken-word poetry
of Malik Yusef and directed by Frey Hoffman. The film depicts an inner-city youth enthralled and bamboozled
by pop-culture depictions of gang culture.

"METFORMIN" looks at the biology of love through collage and animation. Based on a poem by Helen Clare
and directed by Kate Jessop.

"UNE LEÃ‡ON PARTICULIÃˆRE" won the Grand prix uniFrance du court-mÃ©trage at the Cannes Film Festival and directed by RaphaÃ«l ChevÃ¨nement. While studying the poetry of Victor Hugo, the teenager Cyril tries to convey his love for his teacher, twenty-seven-year-old Ã‰va. . In French with English subtitles.

"LUCIA" is told through the voice of little girl who remembers the summer when she fell in love. The stop-motion animated film is directed by Niles Atallah and CristÃ³bal LeÃ³n and based on the writings of Joaquin CociÃ±a. In Spanish with English subtitles.

Two short films by D J Kadagian who reworks classic poems using found video footage. Screening of "STEALING SUGAR FROM THE CASTLE" by Robert Bly and
"STANDARD OIL CO." by Pablo Neruda. Special appearance
by the D J Kadagian.

A chaotic dance film from Israel. "SERPENT" is based on a poem from Iris Erez and T. Carmi and filmed by Avi Dabach.

"GINSBERG'S KARMA" is a documentary about the legendary poet Allen Ginsberg and his mythical journey to India in the early 1960s that transformed his perspective on life and his work. Poet Bob Holman traces the two years Ginsberg spent in India by visiting the places where he stayed and talk with the people he met and influenced, as well as, intimate interviews with Beat poets and friends. Special appearance with the filmmakers Ram Devineni and Bob Holman.

Please send future emails to [redacted] for press

↑ Index

289. blacksox

Bad Ass Poetry 5/5 Orlando Florida-featuring Kat Norris

Wed 29 Apr 2009

The Orlando Poetry Group presents:

Bad Ass Poetry Night
Every 1st Tuesday

Bad Ass Coffee Shop
13651 Hunters Oak Drive (Suite 101)
Orlando, FL 32837
[redacted]

Featuring
Kat Norris

May 5 @ 7:00 pm

Hosted By Russ Golata
[redacted]

Kat Norris, AKA Lilly, first burst upon the Orlando Spoken word scene in 2005. She has published two books, "Body Map" and "A Dyke, A Priest and A Poet", and is working on a third collection, tentatively titled "Monochrome Lit". In her spare time, she loves to spend time with family, hone up on her celebrity blog obsession, write poetry and pretend she's on American Idol, even though she doesn't watch the show. Has been hosting â€œOpen Wordsâ€ at Austins since October of 2008, and is as sweet as cotton candy and sunshine.

Do you have what it takes to be a Bad Ass poet?

Open Mic with an attitude

http://poetry.meetup.com/362/

↑ Index

290. Jerome Rothenberg
Poems & Poetics: recent postings
Wed 29 Apr 2009

I've been continuing with my blog-magazine "Poems & Poetics" and posting poems and comments (new and old) by myself and others at the rate of 2 or 3 postings a week. Since late February the postings include the following:

(J.R.) El Corno Emplumado: Tribute & Poem
Henry Munn: from "The Uniqueness of María Sabina"
(J.R.) The Art in Poetry & the Poetry in Art, Part 2: Kurt Schwitters
Raymond Federman: from The Carcasses
Reconfiguring Romanticism (25): William Everson, on Robert Duncan's romanticism and modernism, & other matters
(J.R.) Shaking the Pumpkin (6): Navajo Correspondences, with commentary
Julian Beck: the state will be served even by poets
Diane Rothenberg: The Economic Memories of Harry Watt (Seneca Indian, in three installments)
(J.R.) correspondence with Jackson Mac Low: The Light Poems & Other Matters (Personal, Literary, Political)
(J.R.) From The New Delta Interview (Part One): The place of poetry, the place of religion, the place of rhyme
José Kozer: William Blake on his deathbed
That Dada Strain, continued: Tristan Tzara's "Chanson Dada" (poem & performance)
(J.R.) From The New Delta Interview (Part Two): Translating, Sequencing, Performing Picasso's Dream and Lie of Franco: poem and images
Clayton Eshleman & the Practice of Translation
Clayton Eshleman: A Transmigralation (poem, 2009)
Anselm Hollo: Six from Arno Holz's "Phantasus" (J.R.) A Meditation on the Word "Diaspora"
Murat Nemet-Nejat: The Idea of "Eda" in Turkish Poetics

The address remains poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com.

Jerome Rothenberg
1026 San Abella
Encinitas, CA 92024
[redacted]

"Language is Delphi."
--Novalis

http://writing.upenn.edu/epc/authors/rothenberg/new ethnopoetics web site: http://ubu.com/ethno/
j.r. in spanish: http://writing.upenn.edu/epc/authors/rothenberg/esp/Blog at poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com

↑ Index

291. Jonathan Penton
call for submissions: July 4th Issue
Wed 29 Apr 2009

UnlikelyStories.org is pleased to open submissions for our 2009 July Fourth Issue, guest edited by Luis Cuauhtemoc Berriozabal. We'll be seeking essays on today's U.S.A., as well as visual art, film, music, poetry, fiction and creative non-fiction, interviews with notable American thinkers, and reviews of works on these topics. We seek fierce criticism, intense and beautiful imagery, and harsh but sincere patriotism. We seek reflection, rage, despair and hope. We wish to think about America in new, progressive, and productive ways, and will look for artists and authors who can help us to do so, whether or not they've ever actually been to America.

You can learn more about UnlikelyStories.org from our "regular" submission guidelines at http://www.unlikelystories.org/mission.shtml . Submissions to this special issue should be sent to Luis at [redacted] . Submissions close on June 15th. Please send text submissions as .rtf attachments, visual submissions as .gif or .jpgs, and query before sending files more than a megabyte. English and Spanglish accepted. English-language submissions to un-themed issues of Unlikely remain open.

Luis Cuauhtemoc Berriozabal is a prolific poet whose works appear widely in literary and counterculture presses. His books include /"Raw Materials"/ and "/Without Peace/." You can learn more about his relationship to the U.S. from his essay in our 2004 Elections Issue at http://www.unlikelystories.org/berriozabal1004.shtml <http://www.unlikelystories.org/berriozabal0404.shtml> .

Because there is joy in Mudville,
--
Jonathan Penton
http://www.unlikelystories.org/

↑ Index

292. amy king

Help a Fellow Poet -- Scary News About Poet, Craig Arnold - please pass it on.

Wed 29 Apr 2009

Begin forward:

Hi all. I apologize if you are receiving this email in duplicate, as there are several of us forwarding this.

I'm writing because a dear friend of mine and an exceptionally talented poet, Craig Arnold, whom some of you know, has gone missing on a small volcanic island in Japan while on a creative exchange fellowship. Craig, an experienced explorer of volcanoes, never returned to his inn after leaving alone to research the island's active volcano for the afternoon. The authorities are on the third day of searching for Craig, and are scouring the small island (of only 160 inhabitants) with dogs and helicopters. If he is not found by the end of the day, the authorities will call off the search.

We need your help to insure that the search will continue. The island and areas surrounding the volcano are small enough that an extended search will surely lead to Craig's discovery.WE NEED PEOPLE TO CONTACT THEIR LOCAL CONGRESSPEOPLE AND SENATORS TO PRESSURE THE JAPANESE STATE DEPARTMENT TO CONTINUE THE SEARCH. WE ALSO NEED HELP SPARKING MEDIA ATTENTION FOR THIS STORY, WHICH WE ALSO HOPE MIGHT INCREASE PRESSURE ON JAPANESE AUTHORITIES TO FIND CRAIG. I have attached a document with background information about Craig, as well as information about the details leading up to his disappearance as well as about the island itself. Please feel free to use this as reference material.

If any of you have ideas or know people who might be able to help, we'd appreciate hearing from you. You can contact Rebecca Lindenberg, Craig's girlfriend, at [redacted]. Please, though, take a minute to contact your senator and congressperson via telephone or even email to explain this problem and insist on their help.

We are so hoping to find Craig today, God-willing not seriously injured. If so, this will not be an issue, but we must ensure that if this isn't resolved today, Craig doesn't end up an unsolved mystery. He is too important to too many people, not to mention to arts and letter generally, for this to happen.

We appreciate your help, good wishes and prayers.

Write Your Representative here -- https://writerep.house.gov/writerep/welcome.shtml

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

293. Crane's Bill Books

Fw: Michael Datcher at Outpost, Albuquerque

Wed 29 Apr 2009

---

516 ARTSForwarding this for anyone in the area not aware of it. J. A. Lee

----- Original Message -----
From: 516 ARTS
To: Jeffrey Lee
Sent: Wednesday, April 29, 2009 6:20 PM
Subject: Michael Datcher at Outpost!

516 ARTS, the UNM M.F.A. in Creative Writing program and Outpost Performance Space invite you to a literary arts event with special guest

MICHAEL DATCHER
Award winning Memoirist, Poet, Journalist & Critic

Saturday, May 9, 7:30pm at the Outpost Performance Space
210 Yale SE, Albuquerque

Michael Datcher is a poet and critically acclaimed journalist from Los Angeles and author of the New York Times Bestseller Raising Fences, his memoir about a black man's right to security, family and love. In this emotionally raw and intimate narrative, Datcher reflects on his fatherless childhood in inner-city Los Angeles, his attraction to local gangs, his promiscuity, and, at times, his lack of faith. The film rights for Raising Fences were optioned by actor Will Smith's Overbrook Productions, who hired Datcher to write the screenplay. Datcher is co-editor of Tough Love: The Life and Death of Tupac Shakur. His latest play Silence was commissioned by and premiered at the Getty Museum. He has appeared on both news programs Nightline and Dateline as an analyst and is a frequent commentator on BBC Radio. He is co-host of the weekly public affairs news magazine Beautiful Struggle on 90.7 FM KPFK. Datcher's writing has appeared in the Washington Post, LA Times, Baltimore Sun, The Source, Ladies Home Journal and Vibe among many other publications. He has curated and/or presented his work at the Brooklyn Museum of Art, Museum of Contemporary Art, The Hammer Museum and other art institutions.

Local African American poets and spoken word artists will open up for Mr. Datcher, including Maisha Baton, Hakim Bellamy, Idris Goodwin and Gary Jackson. Virginia Hampton and Stephanie Willis (formerly of Out ch'Yonda) will perform a spoken word duet about Charles Mingus.

This event is in conjunction with West Southwest: ABQ-LA Exchange at 516 ARTS (April 4 - May 16, 2009), and is organized by Lisa Gill and Richard Vargas, 516 ARTS literary arts co-coordinators. A visual slideshow about this LA exchange project, composed by Bryan Konefsky of Basement Films, accompanies the featured poets.

TICKETS: $12 / $10 for students, members of 516 ARTS or Outpost, available from:

516 ARTS ([redacted], [redacted]) and Outpost Performance Space ([redacted], www.outpostspace.org)

Michael Datcher in Albuquerque is made possible in part by the McCune Charitable Foundation, the City of Albuquerque, New Mexico Forum for Youth & Community and the New Mexico Office of African American Affairs.

↑ Index

294. noah eli gordon

SESSHU FOSTER & NOAH ELI GORDON @ SFSU 4/30 @ 4:30pm

Thu 30 Apr 2009

Sesshu Foster & Noah Eli Gordon

reading at SFSU for the Poetry Center @ 4:40 pm on 4/30

_____ Rediscover Hotmail®: Now available on your iPhone or BlackBerry http://windowslive.com/RediscoverHotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Rediscover_Mobile2_042009

↑ Index

@poetics

The UB Poetics Discussion Group

Archive of Electronic Correspondence

May 2009

318 messages · Thu 30 Apr 2009 – Sat 30 May 2009

May 2009 was a month of elegy, and of the long companionship the living keep with the dead. Three hundred and eighteen messages moved through the list, and near the start of them one of the last great figures of the New American poetry died — Robin Blaser, of the Berkeley circle that had given the language Spicer and Duncan, gone on the seventh at eighty-three. His death set the room to its oldest and most serious work, which is not argument but keeping: holding the vanished poets present by continuing to speak to them.

The largest of the month's losses needed only four words to land. "Robin Blaser died this morning", someone wrote, and the room gathered around the maker of The Holy Forest, the serial poem he had tended across a lifetime, and around the circle he closed — the last major survivor of the San Francisco renaissance, the friend and editor of Jack Spicer, a poet for whom the poem was a lifelong dictation from beyond the self. With him went one more direct line to the heroic mid-century the list still measured itself against.

The quarrel, such as it was, was gentle and scholarly, and it too addressed the dead. A member asked the room to explain the Rainer Gerhardt "to whom Creeley dedicated a poem in For Love" — the young German poet Creeley had befriended by letter and lost early, and elegized — and so, in the same weeks it buried Blaser, the room found itself reconstructing an older elegy, Creeley's for his dead correspondent. Creeley again, three years gone himself, still the thread through which the list reached its losses: an elegy inside an elegy, grief keeping grief company.

Against the mourning the room did the only thing that answers it. A long thread went out calling for new poetics contributors, an urgent query for living voices to fill the pages the dead had vacated — the commons recruiting its next writers even as it buried its elders, the succession that any tradition depends on. The Holy Forest closes; the call for contributors opens; the work goes on being handed forward.

I have set May down exactly as the archive delivered it — Blaser dead in four plain words, The Holy Forest completed, Creeley's elegy for his German friend reconstructed, and the call for new voices going out — because it was the month the list did what it does better than argue, which is to keep faith with its dead. A room that answers the death of Robin Blaser by rebuilding, in the same breath, a decades-old elegy Creeley wrote for a poet lost even younger, and then turns to recruit the living, is a room that understands the tradition it serves: a long conversation in which no one who mattered is ever quite allowed to fall silent, because someone is always still speaking to them.

— Kristen M. Fabians

Index

Writers, names mentioned, and concepts. Every number links to its message. 317 in all.

WRITERS

Alexander, Charles 4, 71, 219, 313
Allegrezza, William 53, 78, 281, 306, 307
AND, mIEKAL 19, 41, 44, 261
Anderson, Stephanie 14
Andrews, Jim 25, 64, 226, 249, 267
Aslongasittakes 7
Ballardini, Anny 213
Beaulieu, Derek 23
Bellamy, Dodie 163
Benson, Cara 10
Bernstein, Charles 70
Berrigan, Anselm 96
Bogle, Ann 206, 207
Books, Crane's Bill 240
Borchart, Sharon Mesmer/David 33
Bowering, George 34, 125, 248
Bradshaw, Joseph 56
Brown, Julie Phillips 61
Buuck, David 15, 146, 147, 234
Cain, Séamas 47, 100, 118, 120, 132, 177, 184, 270, 295
Camplin, Troy 140
Casamassima, Christophe 51, 172
Center, Just Buffalo Literary 294
Chace, Joel 154
Chan, Jill 26, 83
Cheek, Cris 292
Chen, Ken 54
Chirot, David 232, 243, 266, 269, 314
Chirot, David-Baptiste 99, 138, 155, 211, 303
Clark, Hilary 193
Clay, Steve 2
Clements, Brian 304
Conrad, CA 139, 141, 181, 289, 315
Craig, J.P. 279
Crawford, Holly 43
Cross, Michael T 241
Crumpacker, Caroline 27
Cunningham, John Herbert 80, 251, 258
Curnow, Wystan 81
Dalachinsky, Steve D. 24, 129
Daley, Ryan 223
Daly, Catherine 75, 222, 284, 308, 311
Damon, Maria 73, 74, 102, 245, 273
Daniel 108
Davis, Jefferson 179
Dean, Larry O. 189
Dolin, Sharon 275, 276
DuCharme, Mark 110
Earl, Amanda 198
Eichhorn, Kate 302
Elshtain, Eric 153, 183
Emerson, Lori 103, 164, 221
Evans, Steve 156
Fieled, Adam 29, 84, 159, 236
Al Filreis 106
Fox, Skip 175
Frazer, Vernon 190
Fuhrman, Joanna 62, 95
Ganick, Peter 97, 98
Gardiner, Jeff 117
Garr, Megan M. 187
Gatza, Geoffrey 149, 210
Giffin, Lawrence 192
Glass, Jesse 224, 298
Godston, Dan 65
Godston, Daniel 231
Green, Chris 176
Guzzardi, William 260
Hadbawnik, David 317
Hardy, Edmund 174
Hill, Laurie Schneider & Crag 291
Holder, Doug 13, 68
III, Nicholas Ruiz 124
Jenkins, Grant 20
Johnson, Halvard 170, 218
Jones, Margaux 93
Jorgensen, Alexander 50, 274
Joris, Pierre 119, 286
Kane, Daniel 131
Kaplan, Josef 63
Karavatos, Nicholas 79, 265
Karmin, Jennifer 9, 16, 91, 145, 201, 247, 300
Kelleher, Michael 35, 94, 160, 253
King, Amy 5, 11, 31, 194, 199, 200, 204, 214, 216, 250, 256, 257, 282, 283, 285
Kirschenbaum, David 116, 135
Koeneke, Rodney 185
Konkol, Margaret 57
Konrad 195
Languell, Krystal 157
Larsen, Will 169, 255
Lepson, Ruth 45, 203
Lundwall, Andrew 233
Lyman, Elizabeth 37
Maurer, Susan 142
Maxpaul 134, 316
McLaughlin, Steve 111
McLennan, Rob 77, 82, 158
McVay, Gwyn 128
Meadows, Deborah A. 173
Milletti, Christina 288, 293, 305

Mohammad, K. Silem 310
Mollohan, J. Michael 252
Mukherjee, Aryanil 205
Nathanson, Tenney 72
Nelson, Paul 87, 287, 309
Nemet-Nejat, Murat 208, 220, 228
Newman, Richard Jeffrey 278
Nicholson, Andy 121
Novack, Carol 22
Oha, Obododimma 36, 58, 60, 66
Owens, Richard 105
Penton, Jonathan 150, 188
Perlman, John 151
Perman, John 130
Peter 59, 312
Peterson, Tim 32, 167, 271
Phipps, Wanda 114, 115
Prejsnar, Mark 126
Project, Poetry 3, 69, 136, 178, 197, 297
Pusateri, Chris 237
Putnam, CE 264
Rossiter, Charlie 127
Rothenberg, Jerome 67
Rouse, John 12
Russell, Steve 90, 230, 238, 239, 277
Sampirisi, Jenny 165
Samuels, Lisa 148
Sarai, Sarah 39, 301
Schickling, Jared 8, 18
Schlesinger, Kyle 30, 89, 113
Schultz, Susan Webster 212, 244
Schwartz, Gerald 209
Sebastian, Nic 180
Shmailo, Larissa 92
Siegell, Paul 144
Skinner, Jonathan 42, 161
Slaughter, William 182
Snyder, Jason 109
Sondheim, Alan 191, 215, 246
Spahr, Juliana 55
Sprague, Jane 143
Stecopoulos, Eleni 1
Steen, John 122
Strand, Julie 21
Sullivan, Gary 6
Tieger, Aaron 46, 52, 272
Timmons, Mathew 166
Tobin, Adam 263
Traffic, Small Press 38, 101, 133
UbuWeb 88, 137, 268
Vasquez-Giroux, Angela 49
Vassilakis, Nico 40, 186, 290
Vincent, Stephen 48, 112, 242
Warsh, Lewis 17
Della Watson 296
Weaver, Rebecca 229
Weinstein, Eric 227
Weishaus, Joel 168, 171
Weiss, Mark 107, 196, 202, 217, 235, 254, 259, 262, 280
Wellman, D. 104
Wilcox, Dan 152
Wolsak, Lissa 225
Young, Mark 76, 299
Zabic, Nana 162
}, { Brad Brace 28, 85, 86, 123

NAMES MENTIONED

Abbott, Keith 94
Abel, David 56
Abendroth, Emily 106, 145
Abramowitz, Harold 173
Acker, Kathy 292
Ackerman, Amanda 166, 173
Adams, John 77, 88
Albon, George 317
Albright, Madeline 94
Alice, Mary 119
Allan, Don 22
Allison, Shane 310
Americans, Asian 112, 232, 269
Anderson, Erik 53
Andre, Michael 94
Andrews, Betsy 317
Andrews, Bruce 6
Antonakos, Stephen B. 114, 115
Apps, Stan 310
Archambeau, Robert 8
Arendt, Hannah 136
Armantrout, Rae 77
Armstrong, Steve 82, 158
Arnold, Bob 5, 90
Ashbery, John 2, 17, 20, 69, 131, 136, 148, 178
Ashley, Robert 149
Austin, Geer 91, 116
Ave, Madison 247
Award, Poets 194
Bachinsky, Elizabeth 158
Baik, Cristiana 63
Baker, Lori 149
Baker, Peter 185
Baldwin, Joshua 246
Ballard, Micah 17, 119
Barnard, Mary 194
Baron, Todd 149
Bartlett, Jennifer 56
Barwin, Gary 198
Basinski, Michael 37, 149
Basinski, Mike 37
Bataille, George 109
Baude, Michelle 274
Baus, Eric 56
Beckett, Tom 76, 299

Behan, Brendan 232
Belford, Ken 82, 158
Benjamin, Walter 82
Bergvall, Caroline 292
Berkeley, Michael 87, 102, 194
Berlin, Irving 96, 118
Berrigan, Ted 20, 69, 96
Berryman, John 68
Bervin, Jen 2
Betts, Gregory 77
Billitteri, Carla 197
Birman, Lisa 110, 197
Blackburn, Paul 13, 196, 297
Blaser, Robin 70, 71, 74, 87, 102, 119, 179, 309, 313
Bly, Robert 13
Bowering, George H. 125, 128
Bowering, Harry 248, 277
BpNichol 77, 91, 116
Brainard, Joe 13, 20
Brakhage, Stan 88
Brazil, David 1, 17
Brennan, Patrick 129
Brooks, Gwendolyn 3, 149, 189
Brown, Brandon 310
Brown, James 149
Bruno, Franklin 90
Bryan, John 240
Bryant, Elizabeth 91, 116
Bryant, Tisa 6
Buck, Naomi 53
Bukowski, Charles 13, 166, 173
Burke, Edmund 231
Burnham, Clint 82, 158
Burroughs, William S. 69
Burt, Stephen 8
Butler, William 35
Byrne, Edward 118
Camlot, Jason 77
Campbell, Roy 129
Capen, Samuel P. 37
Carey, Peter 297
Carey, Steve 96, 297
Carey, Tom 297
Carlos, William 196, 297
Carr, Emily 51, 187
Carr, Michael 46
Carroll, John 129
Carroll, Lewis 197
Carter, Angela 8, 149, 314
Carver, Raymond 94
Catlin, Alan 13
Cebula, Travis 149
Cervantes, James 15
Chapman, Cecelia 288, 293, 305
Chapman, Patrick 149
Cheney, Don 232
Chester, Jeff 17
Christakos, Margaret 302
Ciccariello, Peter 312
Clark, Emilie 13, 81
Clark, Tom 126
Clement, Catherine 8
Clemente, Francesco 2
Clinton, Bill 54, 185, 232
Clover, Joshua 231
Cobbing, Bob 174
Cohen, Leonard 77
Colby, Kate 317
Colby, Todd 197
Coleman, Jen 65, 264
Collins, Billy 13
Collis, Stephen 4
Collom, Jack 303
Columbus, Christopher 110
Comiskey, Daniel 264
Comments, Poets 295
Conrad, Tony 139, 141, 181, 289, 315
Coolidge, Clark 17, 125, 128
Cooper, Joseph 149
Coover, Robert 288, 293, 305
Corbett, Bill 2
Corey, Joshua 176, 232
County, Madison 147, 189
Crane, Lee 271
Crawford, Robert 149
Creeley, Robert 13, 32, 103, 104, 105, 107, 108, 111, 117, 121, 122, 126, 131, 148, 164, 185
Crump, Rusty 210
Curtis, Dana 54
Cutts, Simon 69, 89, 161
Cycholl, Garin 51, 149
Darwish, Mahmoud 134, 316
Davenport, Steve 8
Davies, Kevin 54
Davis, Jordan 62, 73, 95
Davis, Martin 179
Delany, Samuel R. 69, 136
Demske, Nick 149
Dennis, Carl 149
Dennis, Donna 2, 17
Dennis, Michael 77
Desmond, Rae 187
Dick, Jennifer K. 187
Dickens, Charles 197
Dickinson, Emily 13
Dixon, Nancy 3, 6, 195
Dizozza, Peter 22
Dojoji, Alan 246
Dolphy, Eric 65
Donnelly, Patrick 35
Downing, Brandon 6, 195
Downing, David 195

Duhamel, Denise 157
Duncan, Robert 87, 102, 189, 309, 313
Dunn, Douglas 136
Durand, Marcella 17
Durgin, Patrick 271
Dylan, Michael 88
Economou, George 119
Edgar, Chris 95
Edison, Thomas 38
Edmond, Martin 299
Elena, Maria 17
Eli, Noah 109, 310
Eliot, Joe 13, 47
Elisa, Paula 303, 310
Elliott, George 8
Emerson, Claudia 13, 140
England, Amy 47, 161, 191, 199, 200, 210, 213, 221, 232, 282, 283
Eno, Brian 52, 272
Enslin, Ted 317
Ernst, Max 76
Eshleman, Clayton 13, 134, 316
Estabrook, Michael 149
Evenson, Brian 109
Fagin, Betsy 196, 297
Farr, Raymond 149
Faulkner, William 54
Featherston, Dan 149
Felsinger, Andrew 310
Feltges, Ken 94
Finch, Annie 8, 26, 52, 91, 116, 145, 241, 271, 285
Fink, Thomas 17
Finlay, Ian Hamilton 161
Firestone, Jennifer 282, 283
Fischer, Norman 244
Fisher, Allen 292
Fishman, Lisa 9
Fitterman, Rob 17
Fitzgerald, Scott 99
Foster, Paul 6
Foust, Graham 56
Fox, Hugh 13
France, Peter 42, 111, 185, 197, 216
Frances, Mary 17, 56
Fraser, Ian 175, 188
Fraser, Kathleen 56
Fraser, Simon 4, 87, 102
Frazee, Andy 149
Freeland, Charles 299
Friedlander, Ben 4
Frith, Fred 303
Frost, Corey 13
Fuchs, Greg 297
Fulton, Alice 13
Gallagher, Kristen 32, 167, 271
Gallup, Dick 20
Gardner, Drew 6, 310
Gardner, Janet 91, 116
Garr, Megan M. 187
Gayle, Charles 129
Gelsinger, Eric 145
Genusa, Angela 299
Gilbert, Susan 149
Giles, Samantha 38, 101, 133
Ginsberg, Allen 13, 131, 143, 148
Giorno, John 69, 178
Gizzi, Michael 52
Gizzi, Peter 52, 69, 136
Glassman, Scott 76
Godard, Barbara 302
Godston, Jon 65
Goldman, Judith 143
Goldsmith, Kenneth 17, 101, 260
Goldstein, Laura 231
Goldstein, Mark 231
Gonzalez, Matt 8
Goodman, Craig 149
Gordon, Nada 6, 195
Gordon, Robert 8, 63, 109, 195, 310
Gorrick, Anne 56
Gould, Glenn 90
Gregory, Dick 149
Griffin, Tim 69, 87, 102, 136
Guest, Barbara 134, 316
Hall, Donald 13
Hall, Joe 149
Hall, Kate 62, 73
Hall, Steven 3, 197
Halliday, Mark 8
Halpern, Greg 241
Halpern, Rob 241
Hamill, Sam 127
Hamilton, Diana 63
Hamilton, Robin 63
Hamm, Christine 62, 73
Hammond, Paul 22
Hansen, Jefferson 149
Harris, Kaplan 20, 69, 136, 185, 240, 297
Harryman, Carla 17, 292
Hart, Bob 114, 115
Hartsaw, Paul 65
Harvey, James 174, 176
Hatcher, Ian 9
Hauke, Nathan 149
Hawkins, Jeremy 17
Hayashida, Jennifer 54
Hayden, Robert 189
Hayes, Jared 149
Heintz, Kurt 16
Hejinian, Lyn 197
Heller, Michael 17
Henning, Barbara 17, 149
Henri, Charles 110, 149

Hill, Lindsay 56
Hinton, Laura 149
Hoagland, Tony 222, 223
Hofer, Jen 43, 271, 310, 317
Hogan, Kevin 149
Holman, Bob 114, 115
Holmes, Janet 281
Holmes, Michael 149
Holzer, Jenny 247
Homan, Brandi 21, 303
Hopely, Eddie 63
House, Poets 69, 136, 197
House, White 127
Howard, Richard 295
Howard, Scott 303
Howe, Bill 149
Hughes, Peter 26
Illich, Donald 149
Indiana, Robert 53, 288, 293, 305
Inman, Peter 52
Ireland, Lauren 47, 132
Irvine, James 77
Israel, David 314
Israeli, Henry 314
Jackson, Bruce 253
Jackson, Jesse 13
Jacobs, Ken 88
Janssen, Lisa 9
Jarnot, Lisa 131, 148, 185
Jenks, Philip 149
Johns, Jasper 95
Johnson, Kent 266
Johnson, Robert 6, 8, 63, 149, 170, 199, 200, 218, 278, 280
Jonas, Steve 88
Jones, Edward P. 94
Joseph, Safdie 232
Joyce, Trevor 3, 54, 94
Kacian, Jim 120
Kafka, Franz 13, 139
Kaplan, Leslie 22
Karasick, Adeena 62, 73
Kaufman, Erica 282, 283
Kelley, Jeff 79, 265
Kelley, Mike 231, 236
Kelly, Patrick 87, 102, 106, 231, 315
Kelsey, Karla 167
Kennedy, Bill 165
Kennedy, John F. 21
Kerouac, Jack 110, 120
Killian, Kevin 52, 69, 136, 210, 310
Kirschenbaum, David A. 116, 135
Klane, Matthew 145, 282, 283
Klein, Lucas 145, 310
Knox, Caroline 134, 316
Knox, Jennifer 310
Kocik, Robert 1
Kostelanetz, Richard 43
Kuehn, Katherine 56
Kuhl, Nancy 69, 89
Kyger, Joanne 317
Lacan, Jacques 47
Lacy, Steve 303
Lakoff, George 278, 280
Lally, Michael 197
Lampert, Andrew 129
Lane, Eric 210
Lang, Eugene 282, 283
Lavender, Bill 91, 116
Lawton, Pamela 197
Leonard, Tom 134, 316
Lerner, Ben 134, 316
Leuzzi, Tony 149
Levertov, Denise 309, 313
Levine, Jeffrey 88
Levine, Philip 114, 115
Lima, Frank 62, 73
Liu, Timothy 17
Livesay, Dorothy 95
Livingston, Ira 245
Livingston, Reb 204, 208, 213, 214, 217, 221
Locklin, Gerald 13, 149
Loden, Rachel 134, 316
London, Frank 1, 47, 96, 118, 208, 213, 214, 217, 221, 232, 237, 292
Lorberer, Eric 8
Louise, Bobbie 17, 22
Lovelace, Patrick 197, 297
Lowell, Amy 68
Luoma, Bill 101, 133, 185
Luther, Martin 21
Mackey, Nathaniel 288, 293, 305
Madison, James 206
Magee, Michael 310
Mali, Elizabeth 285
Mangold, Sarah 56
Manson, Peter 292
Mapplethorpe, Robert 69
Marie, Anne 53, 285, 295, 310, 317
Marie, Joshua 109
Martin, Camille 13, 149, 303
Martin, Chris 62, 73
Martin, Douglas A. 69, 136
Mason, George 185
Maud, Ralph 104
Mauro, Nicole 91, 116, 317
Meadows, Deborah A. 173
Melville, Nicky 4
Meng, Catherine 310
Merwin, W. S. 282, 283
Meyer, Steven 101
Miller, Paul D. 51, 149, 187, 295, 317
Mingus, Charles 65
Miriam, Erica 114, 115, 240

Mohammad, Kasey 29, 101, 260, 310
Moody, Rick 187
Moore, Allison 149, 240
Moore, John 149
Moore, Marianne 210
Morgan, Robin 43, 162, 170
Mosconi, Joseph 166, 173
Moxley, Jennifer 69, 136
Muldoon, Paul 282, 283
Murfin, Ira S. 231
Murphy, Paul 47, 76, 149
Murphy, Sheila E. 76, 299
Murray, Ian 303
Myers, Michael 204, 208, 213, 214, 217, 221
Myles, Eileen 6, 297
Naka, Michelle 237
Nakayasu, Sawako 187
Naylor, Paul 244
Nealon, Chris 62, 73, 95
Nelson, Paul E. 87, 102, 287, 308, 309, 313
Newton, Keith 303
Nichols, Travis 310
Nicole, Anna 187
Nikolayev, Philip 233
Norman, Peter 65, 109
Norton, John 194
Notley, Alice 20, 96, 216
O'Hara, Frank 189
Olds, Sharon 127
Olivia, Carrie 77
Olson, Charles 4, 111
Olson, John 134, 316
Olson, Kirby 4, 13, 104, 105, 107, 111, 117, 122, 126, 164, 313
Oppenheimer, Joel 13
Orr, David 8
Orwell, George 314
Owen, Maureen 110, 197
Pacific, Asian 83, 241
Padgett, Ron 17, 20
Paige, Abby 43
Palm, Kristin 3, 30
Palm, Lars 29
Parish, Jefferson 17, 69, 136
Parker, Dorothy 128
Parker, Michael 88, 129
Parkway, Neal 110, 241
Parland, Henry 194
Parrish, Gary 197
Paterson, Don 232
Paulenich, Craig 149
Pence, Amy 134, 316
Peters, Robert 240
Peterson, Katie 88
Pettet, Simon 17, 297
Peyrafitte, Nicole 6, 119
Phillip, Andrew 134, 197, 292, 297, 316
Phillips, Beth 61
Piccinnini, Douglas 63
Pines, Paul 114, 115
Piombino, Nick 299
Place, Vanessa 17
Plath, Sylvia 68
Pollack, Jackson 189
Pound, Ezra 111, 120, 122, 149, 164
Powell, Ren 1
Preminger, Noah 210
Prevallet, Kristin 317
Price, Larry 17
Prince, Richard 82, 136, 143, 158
Prize, Poets 194
Professor, Kelly 106
Quarles, Lanny 270, 310
Queyras, Sina 302
Ragosta, Ray 134, 316
Randall, Karen 106
Rauschenberg, Robert 69
Reed, Marthe 91, 116
Reeves, Jennifer 131, 148
Regan, Matthias 232
Reilly, Evelyn 17
Retallack, Joan 32
Reuters, Boston 42
Reynolds, Rebecca 149
Rhodes, Martha 54, 94
Robinson, Adam 204, 208, 213, 214, 217, 221
Robinson, Elizabeth 51, 109, 237
Robinson, Sophie 237
Rockwell, Norman 9
Rodefer, Stephen 17
Rohrer, Matthew 17
Rooney, Kathleen 21, 303, 310
Roosevelt, Franklin 189
Rosenberg, Jim 299
Rosenstock, Gabriel 132
Rothenberg, Jerry 67, 202, 203, 205
Roubaud, Jacques 317
Rubin, Michael 1
Ruefle, Mary 157
Russell, Lauren 62, 73
Sailers, Cynthia 185
Sakkis, John 149
Saltz, Jerry 96
Sanders, James 7
Scalapino, Leslie 2
Scappettone, Jennifer 197
Schelling, Andrew 56, 317
Schneeman, George 197
Schultz, Lou 212, 244
Schwabsky, Barry 51
Schwartz, Jerry 134, 316
Sexton, Anne 68
Shainman, Jack 17
Shakespeare, William 4

Shapiro, David 62, 73
Shea, James 176
Shelley, Percy Bysshe 95
Sheppard, Robert 292
Shimoda, Brandon 134, 145, 310, 316
Shipp, Matthew 129
Siegel, Jeff 149
Siena, James 2, 17
Sikelianos, Eleni 317
Silem, Kasey 29, 101, 260, 310
Silliman, Ron 154
Silverman, Oren 114, 115
Simonds, Sandra 310
Sims, Laura 282, 283
Sinclair, John 179
Sixpack, Joe 149
Sky, Tarpaulin 1, 194
Slease, Marcus 149
Smith, Dale 317
Smith, Harry 2, 13, 54, 69, 82, 88, 158, 167, 185, 275, 276, 297, 314
Smith, Jessica 91, 116
Smith, Patricia 275, 276
Smith, Rod 69, 136, 310
Snell, Roger 317
Sox, White 101
Sparrow, John 13
Spicer, Jack 52, 69, 136, 178, 297
Spicer, John 56, 87, 102
Spitzer, Mark 8
Stafford, William 13
Staiti, Erika 195
Stanley, George 62, 69, 73, 95, 136
Stanley, Jared 13, 69, 95, 114, 115, 136
Stebelton, Chuck 317
Stein, Gertrude 32, 303
Steiner, Konrad 6
Stempleman, Jordan 299
Stevens, Wallace 13, 310
Stewart, Christine 82, 158
Stewart, Jon 253
Strummer, Joe 52, 272
Switaj, Elizabeth 51
Szymaszek, Stacy 178, 271
Tabios, Eileen 76, 299
Taggart, John 43
Tagliabue, John 161
Taransky, Michelle 145, 201
Tardos, Anne 62, 73
Taylor, Tom 54, 94, 160
Terry, Philip 240
Texas, Irving 91, 116, 206
Thomas, Dylan 88
Thompson, George 62, 73
Toscano, Rodrigo 106
Tribune, Chicago 189
Trigilio, Tony 176
Trinidad, David 176
Tritica, John 240
Tully, Jessica 101
Turner, Victor 63, 65
Twain, Mark 13
Tyler, Richard 88, 149
Tysh, Chris 51, 109
Valentine, Jean 56, 110
Van, Erica 161
Vaughan, Sarah 149
Vengua, Jean 159
Vermont, Charlie 63, 269
Vogel, Aviva 88
Wagner, Catherine 42, 237
Wakoski, Diane 13
Waldman, Anne 2, 17, 110
Waldman, Ken 101, 119
Waldrop, Rosmarie 317
Walker, Laura 187
Wallace, Mark 204, 206, 208, 213, 214, 221
Wallace, Nicole 63, 217
Walsh, Catherine 209, 227, 230, 245
Warhol, Andy 13, 69
Warren, Kenneth 310
Washington, George 3, 30, 53, 96, 100, 112, 160, 227, 230, 241, 245
Waters, Jacqueline 136
Watkins, Eddie 310
Watson, Scott 16, 296, 310
Weiser, Karen 69, 136
Welish, Marjorie 2, 17
Wellman, Donald 104
Whalen, Philip 13, 297
White, Jared 56
Whitehead, Ron 309, 313
Wiegers, Michael 96
Wiesenthal, Simon 314
Wilkinson, John 109, 310
Williams, Paul O. 13, 111, 149, 232
Williams, Tyrone 281
Willis, Elizabeth 21
Wilson, Karen 303
Winkfield, Trevor 2, 17
Wintz, Sara 63
Wolach, David 149
Wolfe, Jennifer C. 149
Wolsak, Melissa 225
Woolsey, James 232
Wright, C. D. 275, 276
Wright, Laura 110
Wright, Richard 120
Yeary, James 56, 291
Zanzotto, Andrea 197
Zawacki, Andrew 17
Zimmerman, Dan 108
Zolf, Rachel 302
Zummo, Peter 3

Zurawski, Magdalena 38

CONCEPTS

9/11 232
Activism and protest 101, 132, 146, 147, 206, 216, 292
Aesthetics 15, 93, 101, 109, 147, 187, 314
Affect 143
Anthologies 3, 4, 10, 13, 20, 30, 77, 79, 88, 96, 109, 110, 132, 136, 145, 174, 182, 189, 193, 197, 202, 203, 205, 209, 210, 227, 230, 245, 265, 274, 284, 285, 287, 292, 308, 309, 313
Anti-Semitism 206
Appropriation 51, 101, 166, 173
Archives and libraries 4, 16, 20, 35, 37, 69, 83, 88, 89, 91, 110, 116, 120, 132, 134, 136, 137, 165, 167, 176, 179, 189, 211, 215, 220, 232, 241, 264, 284, 287, 308, 309, 313, 314, 316
Autobiography 13, 17, 65, 68, 163, 278, 303
Avant-garde 3, 13, 102, 197, 216, 268, 302
Beat generation 13
Beauty 56, 66, 93, 185, 232, 247, 292
Biography 3, 111, 121, 122, 157, 164
Black Mountain 4, 13
Blogs 1, 3, 6, 29, 38, 40, 48, 50, 52, 63, 67, 69, 70, 71, 74, 77, 79, 82, 84, 87, 99, 101, 102, 105, 106, 112, 119, 133, 136, 137, 139, 141, 144, 145, 147, 156, 158, 159, 170, 177, 179, 181, 187, 197, 201, 204, 208, 210, 212, 213, 214, 215, 217, 218, 219, 220, 221, 222, 223, 226, 228, 232, 233, 236, 238, 239, 242, 250, 251, 254, 256, 258, 259, 265, 266, 270, 272, 279, 282, 283, 286, 287, 289, 290, 297, 306, 308, 309, 310, 311, 312, 313, 314, 315
Book announcements 38, 63, 69, 77, 78, 83, 89, 91, 94, 110, 116, 129, 130, 134, 136, 139, 141, 145, 147, 149, 151, 166, 173, 185, 186, 187, 197, 210, 244, 271, 282, 283, 297, 316, 317
Bookstores 145, 154, 179, 181, 201, 231, 310
Calls for submissions 20, 77, 109, 140, 157, 165, 296
Censorship 32, 232, 282, 283, 289, 314
Cities 96, 118, 135, 146, 231, 253, 275, 276, 292
Class 146
Collage and montage 231, 299
Conceptual writing 101
Conferences and festivals 1, 3, 4, 6, 20, 22, 77, 119, 129, 132, 165, 176, 189, 216, 231, 288, 293, 298, 305, 314
Copyright and permissions 17, 96, 166, 173, 184, 287, 308, 309, 313
Craft 91, 101, 116, 176
Creative writing pedagogy 16, 282, 283
Dada 91, 116
Deconstruction 13
Difficulty 191, 204, 208, 213, 214, 217, 221, 314
Digital archives 88, 137, 197, 268, 297, 315
Disability 1
Dreams 3, 13, 17, 231
Ecology and ecopoetics 118, 167, 174, 247, 296
Editing 42, 52, 99, 185, 222, 223, 274, 285
Electronic poetry and hypertext 23, 60, 70, 71, 74, 166, 173, 246
Empire and imperialism 147
Epic 91, 116, 145
Erasure 169, 183, 255
Experimental poetry 82, 292
Feminism 56, 204, 206, 207, 208, 210, 213, 214, 216, 217, 221, 242, 250, 251, 254, 256, 258, 263, 266, 278, 280, 302, 303
Film 3, 6, 35, 47, 69, 82, 88, 94, 99, 110, 119, 129, 131, 136, 148, 150, 195, 268, 294, 297, 303, 314
Flarf 3, 101, 195
Formalism 91, 116
Free verse 10, 309, 313
Gender 20, 197, 204, 208, 213, 214, 217, 221, 242, 250, 251, 254, 256, 258
Globalization 99, 143
Grants and funding 1, 20, 38, 146, 191, 194, 199, 200, 232, 282, 283, 300, 303, 314
Haiku 120, 240
Homophonic translation 195
Humour and satire 13, 87, 102, 197, 210, 299
Ideology 204, 208, 213, 214, 217, 221, 250, 251, 254, 256, 258, 278
Imagism 13
Improvisation 292, 303
Indigenous and Native poetics 1
Interviews 8, 13, 88, 90, 91, 99, 116, 136, 139, 162, 170, 179, 189, 314
Israel and Palestine 314
Language poetry 132
Latino and Latin American poetry 10, 189, 243, 248, 277
Letters and correspondence 111, 117, 136, 163, 185, 309, 313
List moderation 69, 136, 189, 214, 217, 221, 222, 223, 250, 251, 252, 254, 256, 257, 258, 259, 261, 262, 267, 279, 297, 301
Little magazines 1, 8, 10, 13, 18, 23, 25, 52, 56, 63, 67, 77, 88, 91, 92, 95, 96, 105, 106, 110, 111, 116, 121, 122, 136, 145, 149, 157, 162, 164, 166, 167, 170, 173, 174, 177, 182, 185, 187, 189, 194, 197, 260, 268, 270
Lyric poetry 282, 283

Marxism 277
Materiality of the text 44, 58
Memory 136, 185, 215, 220, 278, 280, 314
MFA programs 1, 110, 147, 189, 194, 275, 276, 282, 283, 303, 304
Modernism 47, 197, 274
Mourning and loss 149, 204, 208, 213, 214, 217, 221
Music and poetry 1, 3, 10, 22, 53, 56, 65, 76, 94, 99, 129, 141, 185, 195, 197, 210, 231, 264, 268, 271, 292, 303, 314
Nature 13, 68, 214, 217, 222, 223, 250, 251, 254, 256, 258
Negativity and refusal 31
New York School 20
Obituary and memorial 87, 99, 102, 179, 297
Objectivism 231
Performance and the poetry reading 21, 32, 35, 52, 63, 67, 89, 90, 91, 94, 110, 116, 127, 129, 152, 160, 169, 183, 185, 189, 201, 208, 213, 214, 217, 221, 255, 275, 276
Philosophy 1, 13, 47, 65, 204, 208, 213, 214, 217, 221, 238, 239, 244, 282, 283
Place and region 4, 52, 294
Poet laureate 11, 19, 24, 36, 39, 44, 58
Poetics 1, 3, 4, 20, 25, 30, 38, 53, 56, 63, 81, 82, 91, 101, 104, 106, 110, 113, 116, 145, 156, 164, 182, 193, 195, 197, 201, 202, 203, 204, 205, 206, 207, 208, 209, 213, 214, 215, 216, 217, 218, 219, 220, 221, 222, 223, 226, 227, 228, 230, 232, 235, 238, 239, 242, 245, 249, 250, 251, 252, 254, 256, 257, 258, 259, 261, 262, 263, 266, 267, 278, 279, 280, 282, 283, 284, 287, 289, 300, 301, 302, 307, 308, 309, 313, 314
Poets Against the War 127
Politics and poetry 4, 110
Postmodernism 47, 274
Print vs. digital 13, 17, 28, 29, 63, 78, 112, 123, 131, 139, 141, 149, 161, 165, 174, 181, 213, 221, 250, 251, 254, 256, 258, 270, 272, 295, 303
Prizes and awards 1, 32, 38, 54, 56, 69, 87, 91, 95, 102, 110, 116, 136, 163, 189, 194, 197, 260, 275, 276, 282, 283, 303
Procedural and constraint writing 32, 222, 223
Prose poem 149, 210
Psychoanalysis 314
Queer poetics 11, 31, 95, 204, 206, 208, 213, 214, 217, 221, 269
Race and poetry 13, 68
Reading announcements 10, 62, 73, 101, 127, 129, 179, 183, 264, 275, 276
Religion and the sacred 1, 13, 26, 37, 69, 83, 194, 232, 244, 296, 314
Representation 1, 292
Reviewing and criticism 8, 13, 23, 53, 63, 82, 91, 92, 95, 96, 99, 101, 103, 104, 105, 107, 108, 110, 111, 116, 117, 121, 126, 140, 145, 150, 154, 162, 164, 166, 167, 170, 173, 182, 186, 187, 189, 194, 197, 210, 211, 221, 232, 234, 270, 278, 280, 282, 283, 310, 314
Revision 168, 225
Science 91, 116, 118, 174, 278
Semiotics 34
Serial poem 32, 38, 282, 283
Small press publishing 1, 3, 9, 13, 14, 17, 21, 30, 32, 38, 46, 47, 53, 56, 63, 68, 69, 77, 82, 89, 91, 101, 109, 110, 116, 133, 135, 136, 143, 145, 150, 153, 158, 163, 166, 173, 185, 189, 194, 196, 197, 198, 222, 223, 271, 272, 275, 276, 282, 283, 297, 303
Social media 5, 31, 65, 109, 114, 115, 127, 138, 192, 219, 226, 228, 232, 238, 239, 249, 252, 264, 303, 312
Software and code 96, 178
Sonnet 56, 82, 91, 116, 159
Sound poetry 7, 268
Subjectivity 110, 165, 166, 173, 220, 296, 303, 314
Sublime 309, 313
Surrealism 210, 222, 223, 314
Terrorism 232, 314
The academy 1, 3, 4, 10, 13, 16, 20, 30, 32, 36, 37, 38, 42, 47, 52, 53, 54, 58, 60, 66, 69, 79, 82, 87, 88, 91, 95, 96, 99, 102, 103, 104, 105, 106, 107, 108, 110, 111, 116, 117, 121, 122, 126, 136, 156, 162, 163, 164, 166, 167, 169, 170, 174, 176, 183, 185, 189, 197, 206, 209, 216, 221, 227, 230, 232, 240, 241, 245, 255, 257, 259, 261, 262, 263, 265, 275, 276, 278, 280, 282, 283, 288, 293, 303, 304, 305, 306, 311, 315
The body 68, 101, 157, 263, 278, 314
The canon 13
The internet 5, 27, 29, 34, 61, 99, 106, 118, 150, 174, 222, 223
The Iraq war 232
The listserv 3, 35, 37, 69, 94, 126, 136, 160, 164, 168, 171, 197, 204, 208, 213, 214, 217, 220, 221, 222, 223, 225, 226, 228, 232, 238, 239, 249, 250, 251, 252, 253, 254, 256, 257, 258, 259, 263, 266, 269, 278, 280, 296, 297, 303
Theatre 9, 22, 53, 68, 118, 129, 162, 170, 189, 214, 217, 233, 314
Torture and Abu Ghraib 232, 280
Translation 1, 8, 10, 17, 52, 67, 69, 72, 82, 91, 96, 107, 110, 111, 116, 119, 122, 136, 162, 164, 167, 170, 172, 194, 195, 197, 232, 272, 317

Vietnam 13, 314
Visual and concrete poetry 23, 50, 64, 69, 85, 86, 89, 155, 161, 165, 210, 226, 228, 232, 238, 239, 249, 252, 267, 279
Visual art 1, 8, 9, 15, 17, 20, 43, 48, 55, 56, 63, 79, 94, 112, 129, 136, 146, 147, 165, 189, 195, 197, 234, 240, 241, 253, 265, 274, 282, 283, 294, 297, 298
Women's writing 194, 204, 208, 213, 214, 221, 302

Contents

Every entry links to its message. 318 in all.

30 APR 2009

1. Eleni Stecopoulos — Symposium: Poetics of Healing, 5/9 in San Francisco
2. Steve Clay — Granary Books at CUE Art Foundation (NYC) May 15, 2009, 6-8 PM
3. Poetry Project — Events at The Poetry Project May

1 MAY 2009

4. Charles Alexander — CHARLES OLSON CENTENARY CONFERENCE
5. amy king — UPDATE - Scary News about Poet Craig Arnold; please pass on.
6. Gary Sullivan — MOVIE NITE @ DIXON PLACE
7. aslongasittakes — aslongasittakes issue 3 is now up
8. jared schickling — Mayday Magazine
9. Jennifer Karmin — Red Rover Series / Experiment #29
10. Cara Benson — Poetry as Self-Translation at Millay Colony
11. amy king — Three Firsts -- First lesbian Poet Laureate and first woman in 341 years
12. john rouse — www.createculture.org
13. Doug Holder — ERIC GREINKE: A Poet and publisher who promotes mental expansion.
14. stephanie anderson — Projective Industries Open Reading Period
15. David Buuck — BARGE/Mission17 Reading: Cervantes, Murguia, & Tea: May 9th!

2 MAY 2009

16. Jennifer Karmin — Poetry Radio: Wordslingers
17. Lewis Warsh — Annual Books Party
18. jared schickling — Mayday Magazine again

3 MAY 2009

19. mIEKAL aND — Declaration
20. Grant Jenkins — CFP--TULSA (NEW YORK) SCHOOL CONFERENCE, Nov 5-7, 2009 (May 15 deadline)
21. Julie Strand — Events @ Woodland Pattern Book Center
22. Carol Novack — MAY 8TH PERFORMANCE
23. derek beaulieu — call for work: speechless: concrete and visual poetry
24. steve d. dalachinsky — Re: Declaration

4 MAY 2009

25. Jim Andrews — new publication from Chile
26. Jill Chan — Numinous: Spiritual Poetry, Issue 3 now online
27. Caroline Crumpacker — House for Rent June
28. { brad brace } — pleated plaid pamphlets
29. Adam Fieled — PFS Post: K. Silem Mohammad & Lars Palm
30. Kyle Schlesinger — Dorothea Lasky & Kristin Palm at the Poetry Project TONIGHT
31. amy king — cultural producers invited.
32. Tim Peterson — SEGUE 5/9: erica kaufman & Joan Retallack
33. Sharon Mesmer/David Borchart — Plan B cat sitter needed
34. George Bowering — Re: House for Rent June
35. Michael Kelleher — Literary Buffalo Newsletter 05.04.09-05.10.09
36. Obododimma Oha — Re: Declaration
37. Elizabeth Lyman — JUST BUFFALO/UB POETRY COLLECTION SPECIAL EVENT
38. Small Press Traffic — THIS FRIDAY: STECOPOULOS and ZURAWSKI in OAKLAND
39. Sarah Sarai — Re: Declaration
40. Nico Vassilakis — SUBTEXT READING - Beverly DAHLEN & Ezra MARK

5 MAY 2009

41. mIEKAL aND — animated tweet reader

42. Jonathan Skinner — "Put off" by Poetry
43. Holly Crawford — Re: Performances of Richard Kostelanetz's Openings at AC in NYC Thursday
44. mIEKAL aND — Re: Declaration
45. Ruth Lepson — Re: animated tweet reader
46. aaron tieger — ROSELAND by Dana Ward
47. Séamas Cain — A Northern Ireland poet
48. Stephen Vincent — Obama, The Exhibit - Some documentation
49. Angela Vasquez-Giroux — craig arnold

6 MAY 2009

50. Alexander Jorgensen — Visual Poetry - Kalachakra: Ritual of a Dying Nation
51. Christophe Casamassima — New Titles from Furniture Press
52. aaron tieger — Gizzi/Larsen in Cambridge, MA Saturday 5/9
53. William Allegrezza — Series A: Tonight, May 6th
54. Ken Chen — Ha Jin tonight!
55. juliana spahr — poor poet rate at the spd spelling bee
56. joseph bradshaw — Beverly Dahlen & David Abel, Portland 5-10
57. Margaret Konkol — a place to stay in Philly for a few nights in June?
58. Obododimma Oha — Re: Declaration
59. Peter — Fogged Clarity

7 MAY 2009

60. Obododimma Oha — Re: animated tweet reader
61. Julie Phillips Brown — Call for Work - Padelion
62. Joanna Fuhrman — Zinc Bar 5/10
63. Josef Kaplan — Poetry by Fiat in NYC
64. Jim Andrews — language toys
65. Dan Godston — Mingus Awareness Project 3
66. Obododimma Oha — Fwd: To Fogged Clarity Contributors
67. Jerome Rothenberg — "total translation" redux
68. Doug Holder — Boston Area Small Press and Poetry Scene : The Red Line by Elizabeth Kirschner
69. Poetry Project — Events at The Poetry Project May
70. Charles Bernstein — Robin Blaser (1925-2009)
71. Charles Alexander — Re: Robin Blaser (1925-2009)
72. Tenney Nathanson — Re: "total translation" redux
73. Maria Damon — Re: Zinc Bar 5/10
74. Maria Damon — Re: Robin Blaser (1925-2009)
75. Catherine Daly — Re: Poetry by Fiat in NYC

8 MAY 2009

76. Mark Young — Now out from Otoliths — Quaternity, by Scott Glassman & Sheila E. Murphy
77. Rob McLennan — new(ish) on rob's clever blog
78. William Allegrezza — Ed Baker's Goodnight at Moria
79. Nicholas Karavatos — Poet/Musican Collaboration Webcast Sunday Night
80. John Herbert Cunningham — computer problem

9 MAY 2009

81. Wystan Curnow — Re: a place to stay in Philly for a few nights in June?
82. Rob McLennan — a reading by five poets
83. Jill Chan — (no subject)

11 MAY 2009

84. Adam Fieled — PFS Post: Paul Siegell and Joseph Bradshaw
85. { brad brace } — Four Visual Poems
86. { brad brace } — url correction: Four Visual Poems
87. Paul Nelson — Blaser Obit

88. UbuWeb — Rare Audio from Anthology Film Archives (1964-1974)
89. Kyle Schlesinger — SIMON CUTTS AND NANCY KUHL TONIGHT at the POETRY PROJECT
90. steve russell — Glen Gould and the spoken word
91. Jennifer Karmin — May 19: Dusie Press in NYC

12 MAY 2009

92. Larissa Shmailo — Review copies of In Paran by Larissa Shmailo available
93. Margaux Jones — The Task of Distributivity, The Fate of Interregnum, and The Aesthetics of …
94. Michael Kelleher — Literary Buffalo Newsletter 05.12.09-05.17.09
95. Joanna Fuhrman — Zinc Bar: May 17th
96. Anselm Berrigan — Fwd: reading next Sunday!
97. peter ganick — remind, mind again
98. peter ganick — remind, mind again
99. David-Baptiste Chirot — Irish student hoaxes world's media with fake quote
100. Séamas Cain — Assembling in the eternal network
101. Small Press Traffic — SPT PRESENTS: SUMMER WORKSHOPS!
102. Maria Damon — Re: Blaser Obit
103. Lori Emerson — Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?
104. D. Wellman — Re: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?
105. richard owens — Re: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?
106. Al Filreis — new PoemTalk: on Rodrigo Toscano
107. Mark Weiss — Re: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?
108. Daniel — Re: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?
109. jason snyder — Sidebrow: Call For Submissions
110. Mark DuCharme — FW: Stratford Park Reading Series: OWEN, BIRMAN & WRIGHT June 9th
111. Steve McLaughlin — Re: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?
112. Stephen Vincent — Robert Frank via Leo Rubenfein
113. Kyle Schlesinger — Re: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?
114. Wanda Phipps — Reading for A Gathering of the Tribes #12
115. Wanda Phipps — Sorry forgot the date

13 MAY 2009

116. David Kirschenbaum — Boog City presents Dusie Press and the Dusie Players
117. Jeff Gardiner — Re: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?
118. Séamas Cain — Breakthrough in Berlin
119. Pierre Joris — Recent Nomadics Posts
120. Séamas Cain — The Haiku Foundation
121. Andy Nicholson — Re: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?
122. John Steen — Re: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?
123. { brad brace } — [more] [and more] [and then still more] pleated plaid pamphlets
124. Nicholas Ruiz III — Kritikos V.6 March-April 2009
125. George Bowering — Re: drummer
126. Mark Prejsnar — Re: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?
127. Charlie Rossiter — Poetry at the White House
128. Gwyn McVay — Re: drummer
129. steve d. dalachinsky — Re: 5 special events

14 MAY 2009

130. John Perman — New BOOK
131. Daniel Kane — 'we saw the light: conversations between the new american poetry and cinema'
132. Séamas Cain — Controversy in Dublin, Ireland
133. Small Press Traffic — Correction: Bill Luoma workshop change of date
134. maxpaul — New American Writing #27
135. David Kirschenbaum — Last Call to Advertise in Boog City 57

136. Poetry Project — Events at The Poetry Project May
137. UbuWeb — UbuWeb Blog

15 MAY 2009

138. David-Baptiste Chirot — First Twitter Message From Space Sent
139. CA Conrad — EATING Kafka . . .
140. Troy Camplin — Call for Submissions -- Emerson Institute
141. CA Conrad — ELVIS separates eggs reunites eggs essential eggs essential music
142. susan maurer — book submission Susan Maurer
143. Jane Sprague — New from Palm Press: David Buuck's THE SHUNT
144. Paul Siegell — Press 1 for STS9 > broadside
145. Jennifer Karmin — May 22-23: Poetry in Philly
146. David Buuck — BARGE/Mission17 event 5/20 6-8pm
147. David Buuck — Buuck/BARGE in LA 5/23
148. Lisa Samuels — Re: 'we saw the light: conversations between the new american poetry and cin…

16 MAY 2009

149. Geoffrey Gatza — BlazeVOX 2k9 Late Spring 2009 now available
150. Jonathan Penton — Announcing The First Annual WRITE REAL GOOD Poetry Chapbook Contest
151. John Perlman — New Book by John Perlman
152. Dan Wilcox — Third Thursday Poetry Night: May 21 - Rebecca Schumejda
153. Eric Elshtain — New Beard of Bees Chapbook

17 MAY 2009

154. Joel Chace — Reading in Philadelphia--Ron Silliman and Joel Chace
155. David-Baptiste Chirot — Visual Poetry flickr slideshow with many new works
156. Steve Evans — Attention Span
157. Krystal Languell — Call for Submissions: Bone Bouquet, a new online journal of women's poet…
158. Rob McLennan — two upcoming (ottawa) poetry events;

18 MAY 2009

159. Adam Fieled — PFS Post: Jason Bredle, Jean Vengua, me!
160. Michael Kelleher — Literary Buffalo Newsletter 05.18.09-05.24.09
161. Jonathan Skinner — CORACLE PRESS IN MAINE: TUESDAY 19TH MAY, MUSKIE ARCHIVES at BATES COLLE…
162. Nana Zabic — Submit to Packingtown Review
163. Dodie Bellamy — Dodie Bellamy's Summer Workshop
164. Lori Emerson — Re: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?
165. Jenny Sampirisi — Other Cl/utter & The Scream: A call for submissions

19 MAY 2009

166. Mathew Timmons — Fwding ... An Afternoon Reading ...
167. Tim Peterson — Segue 5/23: Mei-mei Berssenbrugge & Jonathan Skinner
168. Joel Weishaus — "The Gateless Gate." New pages and a Revision
169. Will Larsen — Erasure Poetry Reading -- 5/26
170. Halvard Johnson — Re: Submit to Packingtown Review
171. Joel Weishaus — "The Gateless Gate"-Note
172. Christophe Casamassima — Latin Translation, Anyone?
173. Deborah A. Meadows — Ackerman/Arrieta/Meadows/Mosconi Read at REDCAT Lounge on Sunday, May …
174. Edmund Hardy — Mackerelling
175. Skip Fox — Has anyone heard from Vernon Fraser?
176. Chris Green — DePaul Summer Writing Conference
177. Séamas Cain — The Ghost Dance
178. Poetry Project — Support The Poetry Project

179. Jefferson Davis — Wordplay celebrates Robin Blaser

20 MAY 2009

180. Nic Sebastian — Ten Questions for poetry editors
181. CA Conrad — ELVISmagical Shmagical
182. William Slaughter — Notice: Mudlark
183. Eric Elshtain — Reading at the University of Chicago
184. Séamas Cain — Google's assault on writers' copyright
185. Rodney Koeneke — Tangent reading in Portland, OR this SAT., MAY 23: ROD SMITH, MEL NICHOLS ...
186. Nico Vassilakis — Disparate Magnets by Nico Vassilakis
187. Megan M. Garr — Versal 7 is in the air
188. Jonathan Penton — Re: Has anyone heard from Vernon Fraser?
189. Larry O. Dean — Pilcrow Lit Fest

21 MAY 2009

190. Vernon Frazer — Re: Has anyone heard from Vernon Frazer?
191. Alan Sondheim — Fwd: Salt books (fwd) (my publisher--)
192. Lawrence Giffin — I think I got phished
193. Hilary Clark — book ideas?
194. amy king — TOMORROW, Friday, May 22nd @ 7 p.m. -- Ken Chen  Johannes Göransson  Cathy ...
195. konrad — kino21 SF 24-MAY-09: VAUDEVILLE FOLLIES: flarf performance poetics and video
196. Mark Weiss — Reading: Carlos Blackburn and Betsy Fagin
197. Poetry Project — Events at The Poetry Project May
198. Amanda Earl — AngelHousePress-an essay by Gary Barwin

22 MAY 2009

199. Amy King — afraid of poetry & miscellany
200. amy king — Re: afraid of poetry & miscellany
201. Jennifer Karmin — Philly Poetry: revised weekend schedule
202. Mark Weiss — Re: book ideas?
203. Ruth Lepson — Re: book ideas?
204. amy king — Urgent Poetics Query
205. Aryanil Mukherjee — Re: book ideas?
206. Ann Bogle — Feminist poetics
207. Ann Bogle — Re: Feminist poetics
208. Murat Nemet-Nejat — Re: Urgent Poetics Query
209. Gerald Schwartz — Re: book ideas?
210. Geoffrey Gatza — Two great short reviews of Housecat Kung Fu by Geoffrey Gatza

23 MAY 2009

211. David-Baptiste Chirot — NYT review of Frederick Seidel's New Poetry Collection Selection
212. Susan Webster Schultz — a few posts from tinfisheditor blog
213. Anny Ballardini — Re: Urgent Poetics Query
214. amy king — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
215. Alan Sondheim — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
216. amy king — Re: Feminist poetics
217. Mark Weiss — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
218. Halvard Johnson — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
219. Charles Alexander — chax press and the present
220. Murat Nemet-Nejat — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
221. Lori Emerson — Re: Urgent Poetics Query
222. Catherine Daly — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
223. Ryan Daley — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
224. Jesse Glass — Would like to meet Prague Poets June 17th, 18th--Jesse Glass

225. Lissa Wolsak — Re: "The Gateless Gate." New pages and a Revision

24 MAY 2009

226. Jim Andrews — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
227. Eric Weinstein — Re: book ideas?
228. Murat Nemet-Nejat — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
229. Rebecca Weaver — call for work--Midway
230. steve russell — Re: book ideas?
231. Daniel Godston — The Synesthetic Plan of Chicago
232. David Chirot — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

25 MAY 2009

233. Andrew Lundwall — scantily clad update!
234. David Buuck — BARGE closing reception/performance Sat 5/30 4-6pm
235. Mark Weiss — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
236. Adam Fieled — PFS Post: Mark Young & Kelley White
237. Chris Pusateri — LONDON READING, THIS WEDNESDAY, 5/27 7:30pm: Wagner, Pusateri, Pierce, Rob…
238. steve russell — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
239. steve russell — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
240. Crane's Bill Books — Poetry installation in Albuquerque
241. Michael T Cross — Rob Halpern in the Pacific Northwest
242. Stephen Vincent — Re: Feminist poetics
243. David Chirot — Vargas Llosa detained at Venezuelan airport
244. Susan Webster Schultz — new book from TINFISH PRESS
245. Maria Damon — Re: book ideas?
246. Alan Sondheim — Alan Sondheim and Sandy Baldwin Second Life Performance

26 MAY 2009

247. Jennifer Karmin — Jenny Holzer exhibit in NYC
248. George Bowering — Re: Vargas Llosa detained at Venezuelan airport
249. Jim Andrews — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
250. amy king — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
251. John Herbert Cunningham — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
252. J. Michael Mollohan — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
253. Michael Kelleher — Literary Buffalo Newsletter 05.26.09-05.31.09
254. Mark Weiss — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
255. Will Larsen — TODAY: Erasure Poetry Reading
256. amy king — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
257. amy king — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
258. John Herbert Cunningham — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
259. Mark Weiss — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
260. William Guzzardi — Wag's Revue Contest--5 Days
261. mIEKAL aND — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
262. Mark Weiss — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
263. Adam Tobin — Re: Urgent Poetics Query
264. CE Putnam — Crawlspace Event: Daniel Comiskey & C.E. Putnam read at Seattle Public Library …
265. Nicholas Karavatos — mp3 [RE: Poet/Musician Collaboration Webcast Sunday Night]
266. David Chirot — answering question from mark weiss &what i wrote abt the way amy posted the …
267. Jim Andrews — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
268. UbuWeb — Electronic Music and Films from the Middle Eastern Avant-Garde (1959-2001)
269. David Chirot — Breaking News: Prop 8 decision
270. Séamas Cain — Jeff Harrison reviews two books
271. Tim Peterson — SEGUE 5/30: Szymaszek & Durgin
272. aaron tieger — SECRET DONUT by Aaron Tieger

27 MAY 2009

273. Maria Damon — Tammy CFW
274. Alexander Jorgensen — Van Gogh's Ear 6 is out! - Forgive the "Toot!"
275. Sharon Dolin — Poetry Reading next Wednesday
276. Sharon Dolin — Poetry Reading next Wednesday
277. steve russell — Re: Vargas Llosa detained at Venezuelan airport
278. Richard Jeffrey Newman — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
279. J.P. Craig — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
280. Mark Weiss — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
281. William Allegrezza — Series A next Wed: Tyrone Williams and Janet Holmes
282. amy king — Tomorrow -- Our Final Event @ Stain Bar! Goodbye...
283. amy king — Re: Tomorrow -- Our Final Event @ Stain Bar! Goodbye... APOLOGIES
284. Catherine Daly — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
285. amy king — Call for villanelles
286. Pierre Joris — Query
287. Paul Nelson — Re: What is Open?
288. Christina Milletti — &Now: a Conference of Innovative Writing & the Literary Arts

28 MAY 2009

289. CA Conrad — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
290. Nico Vassilakis — SUBTEXT READING - Jim McCRARY & Paul NELSON
291. Laurie Schneider & Crag Hill — Jim McCray reading in Seattle (June 3) and Portland (June 4)
292. cris cheek — part: short life housing
293. Christina Milletti — &Now: a Conference of Innovative Writing and the Literary Arts
294. Just Buffalo Literary Center — Just Buffalo/CEPA Summer Youth Photo Camps
295. Séamas Cain — The poems of Patricia Brody
296. Della Watson — Listserv Post: Wunderkammer Call For Submissions
297. Poetry Project — Events at The Poetry Project May/June
298. Jesse Glass — Jesse Glass Featured At Text Festival Event, U.K.
299. Mark Young — Now out from Otoliths—Through the Funeral Mountains on a Burro, by Charles Fr…

29 MAY 2009

300. Jennifer Karmin — Illinois Poets: Support Literacy Education
301. Sarah Sarai — Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
302. Kate Eichhorn — Feminist Poetics - Open Letter (Summer 2009) Special Issue
303. David-Baptiste Chirot — Woodland Pattern--E-News: Small Press Focus & Alternating Currents …
304. Brian Clements — Seeking Liz Waldner
305. Christina Milletti — CFP: &Now Conference of Innovative Writing & the Literary Arts
306. William Allegrezza — new AnPo(APo)/AniPo/POAtry blog
307. William Allegrezza — wiki--call for writers
308. Catherine Daly — Re: What is Open?
309. Paul Nelson — Re: What is Open?
310. K. Silem Mohammad — WEST WIND REVIEW 2009 feat. Rod Smith, Jen Hofer, Kevin Killian, Jennif…
311. Catherine Daly — Re: new AnPo(APo)/AniPo/POAtry blog
312. Peter — Dispensational collapse quartet
313. Charles Alexander — Re: What is Open?
314. David Chirot — Fear of Poetry/Poetry of Fear --Palfest 2009--Police, Army try shutting down…

30 MAY 2009

315. CA Conrad — 6 poets on A SHORT POEM
316. maxpaul — NAW free issues
317. David Hadbawnik — kadar koli #4 now available!

318. Maria Damon — check out issue #3!

1. Eleni Stecopoulos

Symposium: Poetics of Healing, 5/9 in San Francisco

Thu 30 Apr 2009

Please forward!

The Poetry Center presents

Saturday MAY 9

a symposium on the Poetics of Healing: creative investigations in art, medicine, and somatic practice project curated by ELENI STECOPOULOS supported by the CREATIVE WORK FUND

http://www.sfsu.edu/~poetry/

Two interrelated programs, with a break for dinner

Saturday MAY 9

4:00–6:00 pm AND 7:30–9:30 pm @ Meridian Gallery

535 Powell Street, $5 admittance per program

(park at Sutter– Stockton Garage; walk 4 blocks north from Powell St BART)

THE POETICS OF HEALING: a symposium

"Our desire is to create a dialogue between artists whose work has somatic and therapeutic dimensions; healers and healthcare practitioners attuned to words, sound, imagery, and creativity in their practice; and others (scholars, ethnographers, activists, community workers, patients) who study or work toward healing. Some topics of interest: the medicine of words and sound; healing the social body; listening and empathy; indigenous traditions; medical humanities; trauma, language, and silence. . . ."

–Eleni Stecopoulos

Afternoon program, 4:00–6:00 pm

John Tercier

Elise Ficarra

Amber DiPietra

Mutombo M'Panya

Dinner break, 6:00–7:30 pm

Evening Program, 7:30–9:30 pm

Robert Gottesman

Robert Kocik

Silvia Nakkach

Symposium bios:

Amber DiPietra is a poet who lives and works as a member of the Bay Area disability community. In perpetual cartilage deficit, her interests include tracking the orthopedic body in real time, personal fossil records, translating the phantom kinetic self, ¡accion mutante! politics, and warm waters. By day, she proffers information about talking books, tactile maps, and more at the LightHouse for the Blind and Visually Impaired. You can read more from her in a recent issue of Tarpaulin Sky or at adipietra.blogspot.com

Elise Ficarra is a poet, writer, editor, arts administrator, Buddhist practitioner, yogi, and Zen Hospice volunteer. Swelter, her first book of poems, won the Michael Rubin Chapbook Award in 2005. Her writings have appeared in numerous magazines, and she is co-editor of the journal minor/american and Associate Director of The Poetry Center at SFSU, where she has also taught Creative Writing and English Composition. She is interested in the recuperative and restructuring capacities of language and listening and how writing and mindfulness practices inform one another.

Robert Gottesman "I am a 61 year old 4th generation physician who was trained at the University of Chicago. I spent five years doing full time emergency room work and twenty five years as a generalist in a small community North of Santa Barbara, California. Working, at times, with 3 and 4 generations of a single family I would provide comprehensive cradle to grave care to my patients. I have a master degree in depth psychology and I took a two year sabbatical to study Eastern philosophies. I am interested in the relationship of healing and language and have used poetry and my own essays as adjunctive therapeutic modalities."

Robert Kocik is a poet and architect living in Brooklyn, NY. He has developed an experiential science called The Prosodic Body. "For the Prosodic Body, medicine is as intrinsic to poetry as music; speech signals hormonal secretion; inequity is treatable by tone; and our susceptibility to words is infinite." His publications include Overcoming Fitness (Autonomedia, 2001), Rhrurbarb (Field Books/Periplum Editions, 2007) and the 2009 All Peoples Calendar.

Mutombo M'Panya, PhD, is originally from Congo/Zaire; he received his PhD from the University of Michigan in Planning and Management of Natural Resources, and was an instructor in their School of Public Health. As a Fellow of the Kellogg Institute at the University of Notre Dame, he also was coordinator of NGO projects. He has had more than 20 years of experience working with NGOs and has served on various boards, including the International Development Exchange, World Neighbors, and the Center for Global Health. M'Panya worked on USAID projects in Africa involving health planning, nutrition, and manpower training. He also worked as a consultant with UNDP and the World Bank, and with health and nutrition projects for the Community Systems Foundation, and has consulted on maternal health projects in Ecuador and Nicaragua. Currently, he is the director of the Science and Humanities Integration Project at Sonoma State University, where he teaches in the Hutchins School of Liberal Studies. He teaches and lectures in epidemiology at the California Institute of Integral Studies. One of his courses there deals with issues of music and healing, including pain management.

Silvia Nakkach M.A., MMT, was named by Utne Reader "one of forty cutting-edge artists that will shake the art world in the new millennium." A pioneer in the field of sound and transformation of consciousness, she is an award-winning composer, a psychologist, a music therapist, and a voice-culturist. She has created The Yoga of the Voice, a ground-breaking curriculum of vocal therapeutic techniques that have become landmarks in the field of sound and music therapy. Her interest in indigenous cosmology and spirituality has led her to collaborate with legendary teachers from Indian and South American shamanic traditions, and for 27 years she has studied Indian classical music with maestro Ali Akbar Khan. She is on the faculty and is the academic advisor for the Sound, Voice, Music Healing Certificate at the California Institute of Integral Studies in San Francisco. Nakkach is the founding director of the Vox Mundi Project & School of the Voice, an international organization devoted to the preservation of sacred musical traditions combining music, service and spiritual practice, with school sites in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Buenos Aires, Argentina, Santa Fe, New Mexico, Barcelona, Spain, New York, and the Bay Area. She has released seven CD albums; her CD Ah, The Healing Voice is widely played in health care centers to create a healing atmosphere during radiation and surgical interventions. She is a contributing author to various books, including Music and the Human Process, Music in Human Adaptation, Transpersonal Consciousness, and Music Therapy at the End of Life, and is presently working on her latest book: Yoga of the Voice. She resides in the San Francisco Bay Area.

John Tercier received his MD from the University of Alberta and PhD in Humanities from the University of London. He practices as an emergency medicine specialist in Canada and has taught history of medicine and cultural studies at universities in the United Kingdom and United States. This symposium, The Poetics of Healing, provides an opportunity to explore from yet another point of view his interest in the intersection of the arts and medicine. His work on the cultural significance of resuscitative protocols/rituals, The Contemporary Deathbed: The Ultimate Rush, was published by Palgrave Macmillan in 2005. His current research focuses on the trauma of representation.

Eleni Stecopoulos is a San Francisco poet and independent scholar. Co-recipient, with The Poetry Center, of a Creative Work Fund grant for 2008-2010, she is curator of "The Poetics of Healing" and is writing a creative-critical book on the topic that draws on program events and the conversations they generate. Stecopoulos is the author of a poetry chapbook, Autoimmunity (Taxt, 2006) and the forthcoming collection Armies of Compassion (Palm Press, 2009). She holds an MFA in Creative Writing from the University of Virginia and a PhD in English from the State University of New York at Buffalo, and has taught writing and literature at these schools as well as Bard College, St. John's University, and San Francisco State University.

_____ Rediscover Hotmail®: Get quick friend updates right in your inbox.
http://windowslive.com/RediscoverHotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Rediscover_Updates2_042009

↑ Index

2. Steve Clay

Granary Books at CUE Art Foundation (NYC) May 15, 2009, 6-8 PM

Thu 30 Apr 2009

Please join us Friday May 15 at the CUE Art Foundation in New York City for an evening exploring the books published by Granary in 2008 & 2009, hosted by Bill Corbett. Many of the writers and artists will be present to speak about their projects.

The roster includes:

Alcuni Telefonini, Francesco Clemente & Vincent Katz
“The Animal is in the World Like Water in Water”, Kiki Smith & Leslie Scalapino
The Desert, Jen Bervin
Faster Than Birds Can Fly, Trevor Winkfield & John Ashbery
Nine Nights Meditation, Donna Dennis & Anne Waldman
Oaths? Questions?, James Siena & Marjorie Welish
The Square, Emily McVarish

Friday, May 15, 2009
6:00-8:00 pm at CUE Art Foundation

511 West 25th Street (between 10th & 11th Aves.)
New York City

Admission is free, reservations are required:
[redacted] or email [redacted]

↑ Index

3. Poetry Project

Events at The Poetry Project May

Thu 30 Apr 2009

Here¹s what he have coming up next week at The Poetry Project. Also, scroll down for info on the Flarf Collective¹s Movie Nite at Dixon Place.

Monday, May 4, 8 PM
Dorothea Lasky & Kristin Palm

Dorothea Lasky is the author of AWE (Wave Books, 2007) and Black Life (Wave Books, 2010). Her chapbooks include Tourmaline (Transmission Press, 2008), The Hatmaker¹s Wife (Braincase Press, 2006), Art (H_NGM_N Press, 2006), and Alphabets and Portraits (Anchorite Press, 2005). She has been educated at Washington University, University of Massachusetts-Amherst, and Harvard University. Currently, she studies creativity and education at the University of Pennsylvania. Kristin Palm grew up in Mt. Pleasant, Michigan, and lived in Detroit for many years. She currently resides in San Francisco, California. Her writing has appeared in LVNG, Bird Dog, Boog City, Chain, There, Dusie and the anthology Bay Poetics (Faux Press, 2006), as well as numerous magazines and newspapers, including Metropolis, Planning and the Detroit Metro Times.

Wednesday, May 6, 8 PM
Arthur¹s Landing (songs by Arthur Russell)

Please join us for a special performance by Arthur¹s Landing, a band formed to celebrate the musical genius of Arthur Russell. Members of the band are all friends of Russell¹s who worked closely with him: Steven Hall, Peter Zummo, Ernie Brooks, Joyce Bowden, Mustafa Ahmed, John Scherman, Bill Ruyle and Elodie Lauten. They are working on mixing their first CD to be released summer 2009. Arthur¹s Landing will be headlining the Arthur-O-Rama festival in NYC this October. Seminal avant-garde composer, singer-songwriter, cellist, and disco producer Arthur Russell is the focus of the feature length 2008 documentary Wild Combination from director Matt Wolf . A biography, called Hold Onto Your Dreams by Tim Lawrence, is due out this year.

DIXON PLACE and the FLARF COLLECTIVE
>
> Present M O V I E N I T E

>
> http://movieniteatdixonplace.blogspot.com/
> <http://movieniteatdixonplace.blogspot.com/2009/04/movie-nite-at-dixon-place-m > ay-1st-2nd.html>
>
> http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=M-4KD4YUTtM
> <http://movieniteatdixonplace.blogspot.com/2009/04/movie-nite-at-dixon-place-m > ay-1st-2nd.html>
>
> MAY 1 & 2, 2009 8PM
>
> An Mini-Festival of Live Interactives, Musical Attacks, > Neo-Benshi, Experimental Video and other damages > to the World's Cinematic Legacy
>
> A Benefit for Dixon Place
>
> Advance Tickets: $12/show ($15 at the door) Both nights: $20
>
> Advance Tickets Available (and highly recommended) at www.dixonplace.org > <http://www.dixonplace.org/>
>
> Become a Poetry Project Member! http://poetryproject.org/become-a-member

Calendar: http://www.poetryproject.org/program-calendar

The Poetry Project is located at St. Mark's Church-in-the-Bowery
131 East 10th Street at Second Avenue
New York City 10003
Trains: 6, F, N, R, and L.
[redacted]
www.poetryproject.org

Admission is $8, $7 for students/seniors and $5 for members (though now those who take out a membership at $95 or higher will get in FREE to all regular readings).

We are wheelchair accessible with assistance and advance
notice. For more info call [redacted].

If you¹d like to be unsubscribed from this mailing list, please drop a line at [redacted].

↑ Index

4. Charles Alexander

CHARLES OLSON CENTENARY CONFERENCE

Fri 1 May 2009

CHARLES OLSON CENTENARY CONFERENCE

June 4-6 2010

Simon Fraser University

Vancouver British Columbia

One hundred years after his birth, and fifty years after The New American Poetry anthology transformed the landscape of contemporary poetry, Charles Olson, arguably one of the most influential figures in twentieth century literature, remains a puzzlingly marginalized figure. As Ben Friedlander writes in Olsonâ€™s Collected Prose, it is â€œas if the unread Olson were the necessary Â¾ submerged berg making possible the Â¼ ice floe.â€ In the spirit of bringing Olson back into the polisâ€”and delving into the â€œ3/4 submergedâ€ portion of this â€œmaximalâ€ figureâ€”the Charles Olson Centenary Conference seeks new readings of Olsonâ€™s poetry, poetics, and his influence on twentieth and twenty-first century literature and culture. Topics to be addressed could include (but are not limited to):

â— Black Mountain College reconsidered

â— The New Canadian Poetry? Olson north of the border

â— Olson, economics, and democracy

â— Olson, geography, and the spatial turn â— Olson and American history

â— Olson and the archive

â— Olson / Melville / Shakespeare

â— Olson and Mexico

â— Olson, Women, and the Feminine

â— Olson and his contemporaries

â— Olson and 21st century poetry

â— Olsonâ€™s influences/Olsonâ€™s influence

â— Poetry as research

â— Poetry and the polis

â— The politics of poetic form

Please submit abstracts of 250-500 words to Stephen Collis at olson-[redacted] by October 1 2009. More information and conference updates will be available at http://www.sfu.ca/olson-conference.

↑ Index

5. amy king

UPDATE - Scary News about Poet Craig Arnold; please pass on.

Fri 1 May 2009

From the Facebook Group "Find Craig Arnold" --

4/30 11:08 EST: The coordinated efforts of the United States and Japanese government have resulted in a widened and extended search for poet Craig Arnold. We, Craig's family, are enormously grateful for these continued efforts.

TO ALL THOSE WHO ARE HELPING US KEEP FAITH WITH CRAIG ARNOLD: RIGHT NOW THERE IS A GREAT DEAL OF INFORMATION BEING DISTRIBUTED ON THE INTERNET. THIS FACEBOOK GROUP IS THE ONLY SITE ASSOCIATED WITH CRAIG'S FAMILY. WE ARE BEING FULLY SUPPORTED BY THE U.S. AND JAPANESE GOVERNMENT, AND IT IS VERY IMPORTANT TO US THAT THE AUTHORITIES ARE ABLE TO FOCUS ON CRAIG'S SEARCH. WE WILL CONTINUE TO POST ACCURATE AND UP-TO-DATE INFORMATION ABOUT CRAIG, HIS WHEREABOUTS, AND THE EFFORTS BEING MADE TO FIND HIM. IN THE MEANTIME, PLEASE KEEP BOTH CRAIG AND THE SEARCHERS WHO ARE MAKING GREAT EFFORT TO FIND HIM IN YOUR THOUGHTS AND PRAYERS.

4/30 9:20 PM EST: Link to the NPR audio: http://www.npr.org/templates/story/story.php?storyId=103675357

http://www.facebook.com/topic.php?topic=7848&post=29155&uid=74254019683#/group.php?gid=74254019683

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

6. Gary Sullivan
MOVIE NITE @ DIXON PLACE
Fri 1 May 2009

May 1 & 2, 2009, 8 PM

A Mini-Festival of Live Interactives, Musical Attacks, Neo-Benshi, Experimental Video and other damages to the World's Cinematic Legacy

A Benefit for Dixon Place

161 Chrystie Street (just above Delancey)

Advance Tickets: $12/show ($15 at the door) Both nights: $20

Advance Tickets Available (and highly recommended) at www.dixonplace.org

PROGRAM SCHEDULE

Friday, May 1st

Sharon Mesmer, Dainipponjin
David Larsen, Logan's Run
Edwin Torres, Five 1/2

Intermission

Nicole Peyrafitte, A Voyage to the Moon
Julian Brolaski (with Paul Foster Johnson), Another Man's Poison
Bruce Andrews (with Brandon Downing), Sip Girl

*Video by Konrad Steiner, Linh Dinh, Nada Gordon and Brandon Downing Saturday, May 2nd

David Larsen, Troy
Nada Gordon, Navrang
Tisa Bryant, Untitled
Gary Sullivan, Darby O'Gill and the Little People

Intermission

Eileen Myles, Satyricon
Bruce Andrews (with Brandon Downing), Gossip Bruce Drew Gardner and Risa Puno, Untitled

*Video by Konrad Steiner, Linh Dinh, and Brandon Downing

http://movieniteatdixonplace.blogspot.com/

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=M-4KD4YUTtM

_____ Hotmail® has ever-growing storage! Don’t worry about storage limits.

http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/Storage?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tutorial_Storage1_052009

↑ Index

7. aslongasittakes

aslongasittakes issue 3 is now up

Fri 1 May 2009

Issue three is now up at aslongastittakes <http://www.aslongasittakes.org>! It features an essay on 17th Century Icelandic sound poet Æri-Tobbi by EIRÍKUR ÖRN NORðDAHL, an interactive sound application by JIM ANDREWS, and audible and legible sound poems by GERARD ALTAIÓ, SERGEY BIRYUKOV, JOHN M. BENNETT, JAAP BLONK, DAVID BRADEN, MIKE CANNELL, ANYA COBLER, TIM GAZE, EVGENIJ KHARITONOV, NOBUO KUBOTA & W. MARK SUTHERLAND, CHAD LEITZ, PHILIP MEERSMAN, STEPHEN NELSON, EIRÍKUR ÖRN NORðDAHL, MARK PREJSNAR, and CHRIS STROFFOLINO. Enjoy, James Sanders

↑ Index

8. jared schickling

Mayday Magazine

Fri 1 May 2009

Dear All,

Would like to invite you to a new online magazine:

maydaymagazine.com

Mayday presents the best in nonfiction, microfiction, poetry, political/cultural commentary, translation, and visual art in its spring and fall online issues. Our current issue features work by writers and translators including David R. Slavitt, Abdellatif Laâbi, Jillian Weise, Dan Beachy-Quick, Steve Davenport, Mark Spitzer, Christophe Casamassima, Gordon Hadfield, Nancy Hadfield, Paula Carter, and Raul Clement. Jared Schickling interviews poet and featured visual artist David-Baptiste Chirot, and we listen in as Okla Elliott talks with Matt Gonzalez, Ralph Nader's extremely charming and intelligent 2008 vice-presidential running mate. A large roundtable discussion explores the current state of poetry criticism, featuring writers, editors, and reviewers such as Kent Johnson, Ange Mlinko, Eric Lorberer, Don Share, Annie Finch, David Orr, Stephen Burt, Maureen McLane, Mark Halliday, Robert Archambeau, and John Beer.

Jared Schickling

Windows Live™ Hotmail®:...more than just e-mail.
http://windowslive.com/online/hotmail?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_more_042009

↑ Index

9. Jennifer Karmin

Red Rover Series / Experiment #29

Fri 1 May 2009

Red Rover Series
{readings that play with reading}

Experiment #29:
Slowness / Stillness / Silence

SATURDAY, MAY 9th
7pm

Featuring:
Lisa Fishman & Aurora Tabar

NEW LOCATION
at the Orientation Center
2129 N. Rockwell -- Chicago, IL
corner of Milwaukee/Rockwell
left side of the Congress Theater building
http://orientationcenter.wordpress.com
suggested donation $4

LISA FISHMAN is the author of The Happiness Experiment and Dear, Read; as well as two earlier books and three recent chapbooks. She lives in Orfordville, Wisconsin and in Chicago, where she teaches at Columbia College. She has a new collection, F L O W E R C A R T, forthcoming on Ahsahta Press.

AURORA TABAR is interested in exploring the boundaries between the personal, professional, and artistic and has been known to make performances in her living room and bedroom. Her work has been presented at Links Hall, the Chicago Cultural Center, Gallery 400, Gallery 2, and the Lee Strasberg Theater Institute (New York). She is a Teaching Artist through the Hyde Park Art Center and a staff member at Links Hall.

Red Rover Series is curated by Lisa Janssen and Jennifer Karmin. Each event is designed as a reading experiment with participation by local, national, and international writers, artists, and performers. The series was founded in 2005 by Amina Cain and Jennifer Karmin.

UPCOMING
June 6th - Noé Cuéllar & Ian Hatcher

Email ideas for reading experiments
to us at [redacted]

The schedule for upcoming events is listed at http://groups.yahoo.com/group/redroverseries

↑ Index

10. Cara Benson
Poetry as Self-Translation at Millay Colony
Fri 1 May 2009

May 29th to Millay Colony for the ArtsÂ upcoming Workshop Retreat:

May 29th to June 1st
Poetry Writing as Self-Translation
Instructor: TomÃ¡s UrayoÃ¡n Noel

In this workshop, we will write poems (broadly and self-reflexively defined) by looking beyond our own formal, methodological, and linguistic comfort zones. To guide us, we will read some poems by contemporary poets engaged in various projects of self-translationâ€”not only from language to language but also from formal to free verse, from pagebound to performance work, and from automatic to programmatic writing (and back again!)â€”and we will attempt some of our own self-translations. Rather than work on various drafts of a given poem, we will approach rewriting as a constructivist enterprise (open-ended, provisional, plural). Using a variety of prompts and interactive exercises, we will write in our own trans-languages, non-languages, and found languages.
Â
TomÃ¡s UrayoÃ¡n Noel is originally from San Juan, Puerto Rico. He is the author of BoringkÃ©n (CallejÃ³n/La Tertulia, 2008) and Kool Logic/La lÃ³gica kool (Bilingual Press), which was named a Book of the Year for 2006 by El Nuevo DÃa, Puerto Rico's leading newspaper. (The books are supplemented by a performance CD and DVD respectively, both featuring music by composer Monxo LÃ³pez.) His poetry has been published in various anthologies of Puerto Rican and Latino/a writing, and his articles, reviews, and translations of Latin(o/a) American poets have recently appeared in Centro Journal, Bomb, and Mandorla. He is co-founder and literary director of the South Bronx arts organization and collective Spanic Attack, with whom he has been performing since 2003. He currently divides his time between the Bronx and Albany, NY, and is Assistant Professor of English at the University at Albany, SUNY.

For more information visit the website http://www.millaycolony.org/workshops orÂ get in touch with Caroline Crumpacker at [redacted] or [redacted].

↑ Index

11. amy king

Three Firsts -- First lesbian Poet Laureate and first woman in 341 years

Fri 1 May 2009

---

1) Carol Ann Duffy is the first lesbian Poet Laureat

1) Carol Ann Duffy is the first lesbian Poet Laureate in UK

http://www.pinknews.co.uk/news/articles/2005-12253.html

2) Carol Ann Duffy has been named as the new Poet Laureate, the first woman to be appointed in the 341-year history of the post.

http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/entertainment/8027767.stm

Also the first Scot to be named Laureate.

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

12. john rouse

www.createculture.org

Fri 1 May 2009

Iâ€™ve tried working with the system and system wanted to work with me. In fact the system tried to swallow me whole. Not in one gulp, but in tiny, tiny, minuscule bites. My middle finger went first right when I was getting ready to give the bird to the system. CHOMP! It was gone. But I still had my fists thrust in the air. Then CHOMP, CHOMP they were gone too. The system was hungry. But that was all right for as long as I had my ears. I could listen and hear. Then the system ate my ears. And right before it ate my ears it whispered softly to me and convinced me to close my eyes. Now, I cannot see. But the system has not ate everything yet. It is afraid to come for my mouth. Because, it knows that

I also am hungry and ready to take a bite of my own, and chew, and spit words that know no system.

-John Rouse

I have recently launched a website for poets and other artists at http://www.createculture.org. This website is free to join and is a network that include poets, throat singers, tap dancers, rock and roll musicians...and many, many talented artists in general. I invite you to share your innovative poetry on the site and to learn about other artists around the world.

↑ Index

13. Doug Holder

ERIC GREINKE: A Poet and publisher who promotes mental expansion.

Fri 1 May 2009

ERIC GREINKE: A Poet and publisher who promotes mental expansion.

ERIC GREINKE: A Poet and publisher who promotes mental expansion.

Interview with Doug Holder

Eric Greinke, a native of Michigan, makes no apologies about his ambitions for his work. Greinke, 61, has always been about mental expansion, a way to advance not only the awareness of individuals but society as a whole. I was introduced to Greinke by Hugh Fox, the noted small press poet, writer, and critic. In 2005 Fox told me that Greinke was starting up a small press (Presa Press), and was soliciting select small press poets for an avant-garde anthology “Inside the Outside…” Fox had recommended me for the anthology and I was thrilled to be in a collection with the likes of A. D.Winans, Lyn Lifshin, Hugh Fox, Harry Smith, Stanley Nelson, Richard Kostelantz and so many other noted poets.

Greinke founded his first literary magazine “Metamorphosis” with Ronnie Lane in 1968. His first poetry chapbook “Earth Songs” was published in 1970, followed by “Canary Wine, Milk run & and Other Poems,” and “Sand & Other Poems,” (A full length, hardcover book.) In the early 70’s Greinke started Pilot Press Books with Ronnie Lane and established a national literary magazine while at Grand Valley State University in Michigan. He published a wide selection of poets early in their careers like: Diane Wakoski, Etheridge Knight, Donald Hall, Kirby Congdon and many others. Greinke was also a book reviewer for the Grand Rapids Press for many years, and brought writers like Robert Creeley, Charles Bukowski, Clayton Eshleman to the attention of a mass audience. After a long hiatus from the publishing game Greinke, along with his wife Roseanne, birthed the Presa Press, and in a short time Presa has been making a name for itself on the national literary scene. Greinke generously consented to an interview, but wanted to concentrate on his life as a writer, rather than on his publishing that has been well-covered in previous interviews.

Doug Holder: A lot of poets talk about how journalism helped them learn the discipline needed to write. Did the Coast Guard contribute to your maturation as a writer, as well as your journalistic background?

Eric Greinke: I went into the Coast Guard in 1966, at the height of the Vietnam War, mainly to avoid the draft. Saving lives seemed preferable to taking them or losing my own. Also, we were poor & I had no money for college, so I wanted the G.I. Bill, which had generous educational benefits back then. I did apply for a job as a journalist in the Coast Guard, but there were only two slots for journalism because the Coast Guard was smaller than the New York Police Department, about 28,000 at that time. Being the literary editor of a high school newspaper didn't qualify me. So, I went on a Search & Rescue team on the Great Lakes, which was home, so I was quite pleased with that instead of death abroad. I did write my first attempt at a novel during my night watches, however, & of course, later wrote Sea Dog as a quasi-autobiographical-90%-true experiment in creative non-fiction. But, Sea Dog probably owes more to Mark Twain than it does to the Coast Guard. I was inspired by Huckleberry Finn to write it in the first person naive voice that allows for many funny double entendres. But, I guess I did learn the value of writing every day, because those night watches were four hours of nothing much to do but listen to the emergency ship to shore channel & hourly security checks around the station. The dog that was the inspiration for Yogi (the dog character in Sea Dog) kept me company on those watches.

DH: I noticed the first magazine you put out was "Metamorphosis." Were you a Kafka freak, or just into the over-all idea of transformation?

EG: My work has always been about mental expansion. Metamorphosis Magazine started as a newsletter subtitled "a Transcendental Newsletter" & it evolved into a local literary magazine supported by book & record store ads, primarily. But, yes, the idea that poetry should be seen as part of the human potential movement, a way to advance the awareness not only of individuals, but also of society as a whole, was central to my philosophy from the beginning.

DH: Were you part of what Hugh Fox coined as the "Invisible Generation" of writers?

EG: Not exactly. I think Hugh meant that immediate generation of post-Beat poets & writers that were less primitive than the Beats but who found it difficult to follow such a popular act. I knew all those guys, but they were all older than I was. Hugh Fox & Harry Smith were already icons in the early seventies. Hugh was the most avant-garde poet/publisher in Michigan then, with his Ghost Dance. Harry was the most active small press publisher in New York City. I was recognized early by the established avant-garde. In my early twenties, I had already published in magazines alongside Robert Bly, Donald Hall, William Stafford, Robert Creeley, Allen Ginsberg, Phil Whalen, Diane Wakoski, Ted Berrigan & other well-recognized poets. Because our last names both started with ‘G,' I found myself published a page or two away from Allen Ginsberg regularly. I was also published alongside Lyn Lifshin quite a bit in the early days. Joel Oppenheimer, Jackson MacLow, Paul Blackburn - I was acquainted with all those guys. But, most poets born in the forties tend toward deconstruction. We have been influenced by not only the Beats, but the New York School, the Black Mountain poets & the neo-imagists like Robert Bly. As a generation, the boomers are more diverse & literate than the more primitive Beats, therefore not as accessible or popular as a result. We were certainly more visible back then with only four or five hundred poetry books being produced a year instead of the four or five thousand produced today. It was easier to get attention back then. Also, poetry became quite popular in the seventies on college campuses.

DH: You were a book reviewer for the Grand Rapid Press in Michigan. What for you constitutes a good book review?

EG: That experience was amazing in hindsight. The Grand Rapids Press has a high circulation - a half a million readers. I didn't realize how unusual it was for a large city newspaper to print big reviews, some up to a half page, of poetry books. I reviewed Charles Bukowski early in his career, Robert Creeley, Tom Clark, Dan Gerber, Diane Wakoski, Clayton Eshleman, Jerome Rothenberg, Joe Brainard, Nikki Giovanni, & numerous other poets during the seventies. John Martin of Black Sparrow Press regularly sent me everything he published, among others such as Jim Harrison's Sumac Press, Caterpillar Press, etc. The overall effect was that poetry actually sold in the Grand Rapids area. The reviews were part of the whole scene. When a review is well-written, it reveals the essence of the book being reviewed. It answers the question of whether the writer accomplished what he set out to do. It identifies the primary message of the book & how well the message is delivered. I also like it when the reviewer confesses to any biases regarding the material. I guess the most important thing is to write honestly about your response to the book, qualifying your opinions when fair & necessary. Sometimes this means going against popular opinion. I panned The Autobiography of Andy Warhol for its facetiousness. He'd sent all the reviewers signed copies. But, the book was campy & lacked the substance it could potentially have had. Decades later, the critics mostly agree with me on Warhol's work. But, at the time, I was out on the proverbial limb.

DH: Transcendentalism has a big influence in your writing. Your work seems to be steeped in nature, nature imagery, like Thoreau. Can you talk a bit about this? I am more into character study, does this appeal to you at all?

EG: Thoreau & his transcendentalism had enormous influence on my world-view. Let me go on record saying that Thoreau was the greatest American writer/philosopher of all. He was a kind of American Zen master. He was right about everything, & he had the personal courage to live his convictions. The true test of genius is that their works continue to be relevant over time. Thoreau surpasses even that test. His philosophy is actually more relevant today than in his own time. I believe deeply in human potential & in poetry as a tool of social consciousness & personal awareness. Poetry is like humor, in that it attempts to break through to a higher level of awareness, a new recognition or a relationship that you didn't see before. Thoreau believed in immersing oneself into whatever natural environment one was born into. Every man is a microcosm of the larger macrocosm. Pure spirituality outside of religious dogma is a human potential. Nature is my cathedral. It renews me & energizes me. The best way for me to overcome writer's block is to go outside. For me, that usually means hiking or kayaking, maybe fishing. I love to spend time with friends on these activities, & do so regularly. I live by a large lake in an area of numerous lakes & rivers. (Michigan has almost 12,000 lakes.) I have two ski resorts, a large park with hiking trails & a big nature preserve that includes a good-sized lake, all within about a five mile radius of my cottage. I purposely chose the place for its outdoor recreational value. As a poet, you write about your environment & experiences. I do include the human world though. It's an essential ingredient in my so-called nature poems, because I want to evoke the contrast between the human world & the natural world. We need to recognize that nature is alive too, & become respectful of that, for our soul's sake, & for the survival of our species. Character study does interest me, but not in poetry. My novel-in-progress, Elephant's Graveyard, is a character driven book. I see poetry, at least for me, my impulse, as dealing with big mysteries, paradox & perceptual awareness.

DH: Allen Ginsberg wrote, and I paraphrase: "I saw the best minds of my generation lost to madness." How about you? Is this poet as a madman a lot of hype, a misguided romantic notion?

EG: I think the stereotype of the mad poet is mostly hyperbole, with a few notable exceptions. Writing poetry is high functioning. Perhaps it was only when they were writing that the so called mad poets were sane, or super-sane. Like a joke, a poem needs a punch-line that delivers that "Aha!" that lift to a new recognition. That's why laughter is transcendental. It's that moment of mental integration, when recognition rushes in. Good poems do the same thing. They take the top of your head off, to paraphrase Emily Dickinson.

DH: You said in an interview that you are concerned with perception vs. reality. Isn't perception reality... for the person that is? Is there a collective reality...really?

EG: The human condition contains a wide range of experiences & states of mind, but taken as a whole, there are parameters. Poetry, like humor, plugs into that common shared experience. Morality is an expression of shared values. Again, there is diversity, but there are also universal or near universal taboos on the negative side & positive values such as altruism too. There is a big reality, but we are limited by our sensory perception & our mental capacity in perceiving it. In the context of the rather large expanding universe, human reality is limited indeed. Dogs hear & smell far more than we do. Eagles have telescopic vision. Whales have a bigger brain to body ration than humans.

DH: You say you want to "break through the surface of things" Have you? And what have you found?

EG: Philosophically: personal growth requires divergent thinking. If one is convergent in thought, forming dogmatic attitudes, progress is halted. Degrees of abstraction are like rungs on a ladder. Climbing requires flexibility. An internal locus of control increases responsibility & leads to better choices. Being in love is the highest level of human experience. It takes you out of yourself. Nature abhors a vacuum. When you're hurting, give until it feels good. Worry about the past or future causes anxiety. Time is precious & limited. Death is inevitable & unpredictable. Make each day Thanksgiving & Valentine's Day. In poetic terms, I've learned that ambiguity & mystery are desirable, & that the poet's intention is not necessarily the real message of a poem. Poems symbolize deeper thoughts & feelings, the way dreams do. I've learned to trust my intuition as my greatest strength as a poet.

DH: Why did you work as a social worker as opposed to English teacher, editor, etc...?

EG: I felt a strong need to get physically involved in the effort to treat child abuse & neglect. Although I had some sudden fame as a poet, I felt that it would be vain to prioritize it over working directly toward social change. I needed to see myself as a man of action. I had the energy & I wanted to tussle with evil. Later, when my conscience was clear, I began publishing my writing again.

DH: Hugh Fox wrote in a critical essay about you that it seems that you advocate dropping out of the work-a-day world, tune out the rat race, and tune into the natural world. Should I, for an example, quit the day job, and retire to the wilds, living off the land. In other words how can a man or woman combine the demands of everyday, with the need to connect to our natural selves?

EG: Obviously we can't all retire to the wilds. But we can, as Emerson advised "simplify, simplify." (Why the hell did he have to say it twice?) We can pare down our material possessions; make time decisions based on the potential quality of an experience instead of material gain or superficial social compulsion. I think people should choose an occupation based on meaning. My youngest son told me he wants to major in philosophy. "That will have no occupational value." I said. "That's what I like about it." he replied. He's right.

DH: Can you talk about the genesis of the Presa Press?

EG: The word presa is a musical term that refers to the entry-point into a canon. We felt that the non-academic post-Beat poets were poorly represented in relation to each other. The need was there to document the underground canon. The whole thing developed through conversations with Kirby Congdon, Harry Smith & Hugh Fox. Librarians & others interested in documenting the independent press poets expressed the need to me originally. I had the experience of running the successful seventies press Pilot Press Books. Some of those Pilot Press Books are selling for over $600 a copy on the international market. We've tried to publish the edgiest, most consistently good poets, like any other press. The strength of a small press is its backlist. We are committed to keeping everything we publish in print. Sales of well-received poetry books are cumulative over time. Of course, a lot depends on the poet. The poet is the best salesman of his own books.

DH: I consider you one of the exalted gray beards of the small press along with Hugh Fox, Len Fulton, Lyn Lifshin, Alan Catlin, Ed Galing, A.D. Winans and the list goes on. What would the world be like without the small or alternative presses?

EG: Lyn Lifshin has no beard at all, but she is, & should be exalted! The world would be less hopeful without the small press, for one thing. For another, literature would stagnate. Historically, the greatest writers have never been academics. They were either Bohemians, or they worked in another non-academic profession. Frost was a farmer. Eliot & Stevens were businessmen. Williams was a physician. The academy didn't like the Beats until City Lights sold a million copies of Howl. Even though Olson & Creeley were academics, they were relegated to the small press because they were avant-garde. Today, college teachers like Gerald Locklin or Hugh Fox, if they work in the Whitmanic, colloquial manner, choose the small press. I've learned that every poet who writes represents a group of people who feel the same way. Some of us, like Billy Collins, have wider audiences, & some of us are closer to the minority on the cutting edge. You'll find that edge in the independent presses. Folkways are ultimately much more powerful than the current fashion of a socio-economically privileged few. All will be reconciled through the test of time.

GARMENT

Light emanates from my coat
My coat that contains A shining stream
My coat of fool's gold Wiser than the stars
Singing in its pockets
Imprisoned by the fragrance
Of the rosy clouds
Like the dark heart
Hidden in a bright cave
Hidden in infinity
So far out in the open
That little fish
Swim through its fabric.

--Eric Greinke

↑ Index

14. stephanie anderson

Projective Industries Open Reading Period

Fri 1 May 2009

Projective Industries Open Reading Period

Projective Industries wants to read your chapbook!

MAY 1 through MAY 31

Manuscripts should be between eight and 25 pages in length

Submissions accepted via email only

Send as a .doc (no docx) file to projective.industries at gmail dot com

Include an acknowledgments page

Simultaneous submissions are fine, as long as you keep us updated

See our chapbooks at http://www.projectiveindustries.com

↑ Index

15. David Buuck

BARGE/Mission17 Reading: Cervantes, Murguia, & Tea: May 9th!

Fri 1 May 2009

Please join Mission17 Gallery & BARGE at a special reading held in conjunction with the exhibit "17 Reasons Why," an ongoing residency exploring the cultural politics of the Mission district, hosted by David Buuck & BARGE. Come for prose, poetry, & conversation-- hope to see you there!

Michelle Tea (Valencia)
Alejandro MurguÃa (This War Called Love)
Lorna Dee Cervantes (Drive)

Saturday May 9, 4-6 pm
Mission17 Gallery
2111 Mission Street @ 17th, 4th Floor

mission17.org
buuckbarge.wordpress.com

BARGE - The Bay Area Research Group in Enviro-aesthetics - was started by David Buuck in 2003. BARGE has organized several (de)tours around the Bay Area, investigating regional sites & spaces that are underrepresented & overlooked in more conventional touristic, commercial, & socio-political notions of place & public space. See davidbuuck.com/barge for more information.

↑ Index

16. Jennifer Karmin

Poetry Radio: Wordslingers

Sat 2 May 2009

Wordslingers is live radio for poetry and the conversations and culture it ignites, with a particular emphasis on Chicago. Twice each month, poets and writers convene in WLUW's studios to read their work aloud, and explore how poetry interacts with Chicago's broader literary culture.

This Sunday, May 3rd join guest host Kurt Heintz (e-poets network) with young writers Nat Iosabaker and Victor Ortiz, as they talk about their experiences at Louder Than a Bomb and other venues where emerging youth writers are creating new culture. Then hear Jennifer Karmin (Red Rover Series co-curator) in her own reading, and in conversation about teaching poetry in its many diverse forms.

Wordslingers is presented by Shelly Nation and produced by Michael Watson. Listen to Wordslingers on WLUW, Loyola University radio on 88.7 FM in Chicago, or click to the live stream at http://www.wluw.org. Broadcasts are at 8:00 PM, on the first and third Sunday of each month.

The archive is at http://securefdata.com/WordSlingers/VoxCafeMusic.html

↑ Index

17. Lewis Warsh

Annual Books Party

Sat 2 May 2009

Put on your spring finery and come celebrate with the best small presses in NYC!

Annual Books Party
Thursday, May 7, 2009
6-8pm
Jack Shainman Gallery
513 W. 20th, NYC
For further information contact: [redacted]

Featuring
Belladonna • BootStrap • The Figures • Granary • Roof
Talisman • Ugly Duckling • United Artists • Portable Press at Yo-yo Labs

Belladonna
Area by Marcella Durand mauve sea-orchids by Lila Zemborain
Open Box by Carla Harryman
The Elders Series

The Figures
Space by Clark Coolidge
No. 111 by Kenneth Goldsmith
Ted by Ron Padgett
Mon Canard by Stephen Rodefer

BootStrap
Rancho Weirdo by Laura Chester
I No Longer Believe in the Sun:
    Love Letters to Katie Couric by Derek Fenner
Parish Krewes by Micah Ballard Riot Act by Geoffrey Young

Granary
Faster Than Birds Can Fly by John Ashbery & Trevor Winkfield.

Nine Nights Meditation by Anne Waldman & Donna Dennis Oaths? Questions? by Marjorie Welish & James Siena
The Square by Emily McVarish

Roof
Styrofoam by Evelyn Reilly
Rob the Plagiarist by Rob Fitterman Public Domain by Monica de la Torre Quadragene by Larry Price

Talisman
Eschaton by Michael Heller
Bending the Mind Around the Dream's Blown Fuse by Timothy Liu, Hearth by Simon Pettet
Petals of Zero Petals of One by Andrew Zawacki

Ugly Duckling
Classification of a Spit Stain by Ellie Ga
Notes on Conceptualisms by Vanessa Place and Rob Fitterman
The Russian Version by Elena Fanailova
(translated by Genya Turovskaya and Stephanie Sandler)
A Plate of Chicken by Matthew Rohrer

Portable Press at Yo-yo Labs
Shaved Code by Frances Richard Materialisms by Miranda Mellis
Generic Whistle-Stop by Thomas Fink
The Book Called Spring by David Brazil

United Artists
Absolutely Eden by Bobbie Louise Hawkins
My Autobiography by Barbara Henning
The Influence of Paintings Hung in Bedrooms by Phyllis Wat
Join the Planets by Reed Bye

For further information contact: [redacted]

↑ Index

18. jared schickling
Mayday Magazine again
Sat 2 May 2009

---

redundant, my apologies, but i didn't send an active link last time

Inviting you to our new magazine:

http://www.maydaymagazine.com/

js

_____ Hotmail® has ever-growing storage! Don't worry about storage limits. http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/Storage?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tutorial_Storage1_052009

↑ Index

19. mIEKAL aND

Declaration

Sun 3 May 2009

I hereby declare myself poet laureate of West Lima, Wisconsin. Population 38. Submit any objections in writing to mayor within 90 days.

↑ Index

20. Grant Jenkins

CFP--TULSA (NEW YORK) SCHOOL CONFERENCE, Nov 5-7, 2009 (May 15 deadline)

Sun 3 May 2009

Conference Call for Papers
the ³Tulsa School²
at the University of Tulsa
Tulsa, Oklahoma, November 5-7, 2009

Confirmed Participants: RON PADGETT, DICK GALLUP,
Alice Notley, Robert Harris, Anselm Berrigan, and Edmund Berrigan

Papers are being solicited on what John Ashbery once nicknamed the ³soi-disant Tulsa School,² including Ted Berrigan, Ron Padgett, Joe Brainard, and Dick Gallup‹who met in Tulsa in the early 1960s and later moved to New York City. Topics may include but are not limited to the following issues:

€ New York School art and poetry in general
€ The relation of the Tulsa School to the New York School € Interplay of visual art and poetry
€ Poetics and popular culture
€ Role of place (Tulsa, NYC, etc)
€ Personal and/as political € Anthologies and archives
€ Readings of individual poems € Relevant historical contexts
€ Gender and the Tulsa School

€ Collaboration and Dissemination € Influence of ³L¹école de Tulsa²

300-word proposals via email to <grant-jenkins at utulsa.edu> by May 15, 2009.

The conference will include keynote addresses, plenary sessions, concurrent panels, an exhibit from TU¹s Special Collections, a Tulsa School Bus Tour of town, and more.

↑ Index

21. Julie Strand

Events @ Woodland Pattern Book Center

Sun 3 May 2009

Saturday, May 9, 11am-1pm WORKSHOP What's Your Local? with Elizabeth Willis
=
Saturday, May 9, 7pm FEATURED READING with Elizabeth Willis
=
Wednesday, May 13, 7pm PROSE SERIES READING with Anne-Marie Cusac
=
Friday, May 15, 7pm OPEN MIC & REDLETTER READING featuring Margaret Rozga
=
Sunday, May 17, 7pm ALTERNATING CURRENTS LIVE presents The Milwaukee Laptop Orchestra
=
Friday, May 22, 7pm BOOK RELEASE READING featuring Maurice Kilwein Guevara
=
Saturday, May 30, 12-4pm WORKSHOP Sense & Nonsense: A Poetry Workshop with Becca Klaver
=
Saturday, May 30, 7pm READING & SMALL PRESS FOCUS (Switchback Books) with Kathleen Rooney, Brandi Homan, Becca Klaver
=
Sunday, May 31, 7pm ALTERNATING CURRENTS LIVE presents Urs Leimgruber

http://woodlandpattern.org/

-- Behind the storm of daily conflict and crisis, the dramatic confrontations, the tumult of political struggle, the poet, the artist, the musician, continues the quiet work of centuries, building bridges of experience between peoples, reminding man of the universality of his feelings and desires and despairs, and reminding him that the forces that unite are deeper than those that divide. - John F. Kennedy

Faith is taking the first step even when you don't see the whole staircase. - Martin Luther King, Jr.

To read some of my new work visit:
www.caffeinedestiny.com/poetry/FALL2008/strand.html
www.wombpoetry.com/skeins/strand.html

↑ Index

22. Carol Novack

MAY 8TH PERFORMANCE

Sun 3 May 2009

The Williamsburg Art and Historical Center’s

WAH Theater of the Performing Arts, and

THE BROOKLYN PLAYWRIGHTS COLLECTIVE PRESENT:

THE WOMAN ARTIST’S JOURNEY

Women Forward: Celebrating Women’s History Month, 2009
_____

A Festival of plays for the WOMAN FORWARD Art Exhibition

3 Weekends, 6 Performances!

Friday and Saturday,

May 8, 9, 15, 16, 22 and 23, 2009, 8PM CURTAIN

$10 tickets at box WAH CENTER BOX OFFICE

*****

Williamsburg Art and Historical Center

135 Broadway, Brooklyn, New York 11211

_____

THE WOMAN ARTIST’S JOURNEY

PROGRAM

Stage Manager: Teresa Violet Cajigas

-*Friday May 8, HOSTED BY GUEST POET CAROL NOVACK *

* *

-May 9th, 15th and 16th HOSTED BY GUEST POET MARGUERITE MARIA RIVAS

A Visit with Grandma

By Philip Kaplan, Directed by Stephanie Walter

Great Artists and their Family Encounters

Draw Me a Paper. By Alaina Hammond. Directed by Peter Dizozza.

A romantic contest comes to an end, for now.

NIN Unexpurgated, By Allan Lefcowitz. Directed by Peter Dizozza.

Two Greenwich Village scenes from Allan’s Anais Nin Play

A Photo Play

By Maria Micheles. Directed by Marcus Haupt..

Dialogue and Body language at a Diane Arbus nudist colony photo session Homespun Webs. By C.J. Ehrlich. Directed by Lori Kee.

Imagining Louise Bourgeois

*Ballroom dancing music by The Steppe Dogges.

_____

* *

FOR FURTHER INFO, SEE WAH CENTER <http://www.wahcenter.net> & BROOKLYN PLAYWRIGHTS COLLECTIVE <http://brooklynplaywrights.org>

↑ Index

23. derek beaulieu

call for work: speechless: concrete and visual poetry

Sun 3 May 2009

hey folks;
i'm making a limited edition magazine/ephemeral object entitled "speechless" dedicated to the dissemination and discussion of concrete / visual poetry.

"speechless" will feature new visual poetry and possible historical / rare examples ... the 1st issue (out now) includes 3 new concrete poets here in calgary: eva gonzalez, rachelle pinnow and helen hajnoczky (and an essay on mary ellen solt).

i seek previously unpublished (or if published, then infrequently seen...) colour or B&W concrete / visual poems. email or snail mail submissions are fine.

issues are not themed, but an issue on typewriter-based work is planned.

each issue of "speechless" will be between 20 and 28 pages per issue and will feature 3-4 poets -- the submission deadline is open (issues will be published when enough accepted submissions accumulate), and i plan to include both poetry and criticism.

if you have any work for consideration, please send to:

derek beaulieu
2 - 733 2nd avenue nw calgary alberta canada T2N 0E4
[redacted]
http://epc.buffalo.edu/authors/beaulieu/

↑ Index

24. steve d. dalachinsky

Re: Declaration

Sun 3 May 2009

---

i(')m peach blossoms

On Sun, 3 May 2009 09:00:07 -0500 mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
writes:
> I hereby declare myself poet laureate of West Lima, Wisconsin.
> Population 38. Submit any objections in writing to mayor within 90 > days.
>
>
>

↑ Index

25. Jim Andrews

new publication from Chile

Mon 4 May 2009

---

i thought some people on the poetics list would find the below email from chile of interest.

ja

Dear friends:

We've just launched number 0 of Revista Laboratorio, a journal from the Escuela de Literatura Creativa at the Universidad Diego Portales (Chile), whose main themes are experimental literature and the relationship between literature and other arts. We'd like you to know of this project and receive your comments.

Best regards,

Rodrigo Rojas y Felipe Cussen
Directors of Revista Laboratorio http://www.revistalaboratorio.cl

↑ Index

26. Jill Chan

Numinous: Spiritual Poetry, Issue 3 now online

Mon 4 May 2009

Numinous: Spiritual Poetry, Issue 3 now online

Featuring new work by

Tendai R. Mwanaka

Annie Finch

James Lineberger

Peter Hughes

Douglas Basford

Peter Schwartz

Ash Krafton

Mary Belardi Erickson

Jim Rioux

http://numinousmagazine.wordpress.com

Submissions open year-round

Email: [redacted]

Thank you.

J Chan
editor

↑ Index

27. Caroline Crumpacker House for Rent June
Mon 4 May 2009

June 6 to 21:

House with porch, front & back yard, three bedrooms, living room, dining room, office, AC, high speed Internet, TV/cable available June 6 to 21.

Gardens in front and back, a comfortable porch with wicker chairs, and a spacious inside make it a lovely vacation house. In the Village of Rhinebeck and walking distance to restaurants, parks, stores. House is lived in by a five-year old whose toys and books are available if desired. Swings & slide, picnic table & barbeque in back yard.

$500/wk including everything...

↑ Index

28. { brad brace } pleated plaid pamphlets
Mon 4 May 2009

ppp40
http://www.scribd.com/share/upload/11399415/2oicuzwow6blu0uq8rw0
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-40/7009847

ppp41
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-41/7011589
http://www.scribd.com/share/upload/11402203/vqqmxc1peusuilo07q9

ppp42
http://www.scribd.com/share/upload/11420119/1l9wr9aisb9x6ekk41d5
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-42/7021234

ppp43
http://www.scribd.com/doc/14885350/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-43
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-43/7025342

/:b

↑ Index

29. Adam Fieled
PFS Post: K. Silem Mohammad & Lars Palm
Mon 4 May 2009

Check out stunning new work from K. Silem Mohammad and Lars Palm on PFS Post:

http://www.artrecess.blogspot.com

Also, many more posts into what will become IT (Internet Theory), a soon-to-be Scantily Clad e-book:

http://www.adamfieled.blogspot.com

↑ Index

30. Kyle Schlesinger
Dorothea Lasky & Kristin Palm at the Poetry Project TONIGHT
Mon 4 May 2009

Tonight I'll have the pleasure of introducing Dorothea Lasky & Kristin Palm at the Poetry Project.

Hope to see you there!

Kyle

Dorothea Lasky is the author of AWE (Wave Books, 2007) and Black Life (Wave Books, 2010). Her chapbooks include Tourmaline (Transmission Press, 2008), The Hatmaker¹s Wife (Braincase Press, 2006), Art (H_NGM_N Press, 2006), and Alphabets and Portraits (Anchorite Press, 2005). She has been educated at Washington University, University of Massachusetts-Amherst, and Harvard University. Currently, she studies creativity and education at the University of Pennsylvania.

Kristin Palm grew up in Mt. Pleasant, Michigan, and lived in Detroit for many years. She currently resides in San Francisco, California. Her writing has appeared in LVNG, Bird Dog, Boog City, Chain, There, Dusie and the anthology Bay Poetics (Faux Press, 2006), as well as numerous magazines and newspapers, including Metropolis, Planning and the Detroit Metro Times.

More details at: http://poetryproject.org/

↑ Index

31. amy king
cultural producers invited.
Mon 4 May 2009

I just kicked off a Facebook group, â€œGo Gay (or Not) & Make a Mess of the Mess We're Inâ€ that now has four hundred plus members, growing daily.

The group began in response to Facebook's refusal to post an ad for a lesbian flick (read the history in the topics discussions). It has now morphed into a bastion of ways to open our cultural vat to evermore disarray and identity crises.

Because everyone should have the right to live as 'wrongly' as they wanna (so long as they don't hurt anybody or threaten others' rights to safety, pursuit of happiness, making films, writing poetry, airbrushing photos, acting funny, etc).

Please join us for discussions of exactly how we can combat injustice with mere voices - even electronic ones - and dialogue-at-odds and evens. Because if we don't talk and share freely, what would we have to say?

The group is located here:

http://www.facebook.com/group.php?gid=71799384711&ref=mf

Thanks,

Amy

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

32. Tim Peterson

SEGUE 5/9: erica kaufman & Joan Retallack

Mon 4 May 2009

The Segue Reading Series Presents

ERICA KAUFMAN & JOAN RETALLACK
Saturday, May 9, 2009  4PM SHARP
at the Bowery Poetry Club (308 Bowery, just north of Houston)
$6 admission goes to support the readers

Hosted by Kristen Gallagher and Tim Peterson

erica kaufman is the author of several chapbooks including Civilization Day and several installations of Censory Impulse, her book-length poem, which was published by Factory School/Heretical Texts in January. She co-curates and co-edits Belladonna/Belladonna Books and lives in Brooklyn.

Joan Retallack’s most recent publication is her Gertrude Stein: Selections with an extensive introduction/discussion of Stein’s work, brought out by University of California Press. She is the author of seven volumes of poetry including Errata 5uite, which won the Columbia Book Award chosen by Robert Creeley. A collection of Retallack’s procedural poems is forthcoming from Roof Books.

↑ Index

33. Sharon Mesmer/David Borchart
Plan B cat sitter needed
Mon 4 May 2009

Greetings, everyone,

I'm looking for someone to live in my apartment (Park Slope, Brooklyn) and care for my cat, Tyger, from June 11 - 17 while my husband and I are in Romania. The cat sitter I already have lined up may need to leave town on short notice around that time, but I'll be able to let you know for sure around the first week of June (maybe even earlier). Tyger needs no meds, has no health issues, is fairly low-maintenance, but requires a friendly, mindful presence. Please b/ c me -- [redacted] -- to discuss.

With good thoughts,
Sharon Mesmer

↑ Index

34. George Bowering
Re: House for Rent June
Mon 4 May 2009

In what quadrant of North America is this Rhinebeck?

gb

On May 4, 2009, at 3:33 AM, Caroline Crumpacker wrote:

> June 6 to 21:
>
> House with porch, front & back yard, three bedrooms, living room, dining room, office, AC, high speed Internet, TV/cable available June 6 to 21.
>
> Gardens in front and back, a comfortable porch with wicker chairs, and a spacious inside make it a lovely vacation house. In the Village of Rhinebeck and walking distance to restaurants, parks, stores. House is lived in by a five-year old whose toys and books are available if desired. Swings & slide, picnic table & barbeque in back yard.
>
> $500/wk including everything...
>
> welcome.html

George Bowering
Lost among the signifiers.

↑ Index

35. Michael Kelleher

Literary Buffalo Newsletter 05.04.09-05.10.09

Mon 4 May 2009

LITERARY BUFFALO
05.04.09-05.10.09

BABEL 2009-2010 SEASON SUBSCRIPTIONS ON SALE NOW!
Scroll down for details

Note to subscribers: We will send out a confirmation regarding your purchase after we have processed all of the early bird subscriptions. We intend to send out the confirmation no later than 5/22. Please be patient. If you placed an order, you WILL receive confirmation in May and your tickets WILL be mailed in September.

EVENTS THIS WEEK

Visit the Literary Buffalo calendar at www.justbuffalo.org for more detailed info on these events. All events free and open to the public unless otherwise noted.

05.05.09

Talking Leaves...Books
John Wray
Reading and signing for Lowboy
Tuesday, May 5, 7 PM
Hallwalls Cinema, 341 Delaware Avenue @ Tupper

05.06.09

Rooftop Poetry Club at Buffalo State College
April Showers and May Flowers:Spring-Themed Open Mic
Wednesday, May 6, 4:30 PM
E.H. Butler Library, International Student Reading Area
3rd Floor, SE Quadrant

05.06.09

Just Buffalo/Center For Inquiry
Tom Waters, Jefferson Finlayson, Christina Wos Donnelly
Poetry Reading
Wednesday, May 6, 7:30 PM
Center For Inquiry, 1310 Sweet Home Road, Amherst

05.09.09

Talking Leaves...Books
Peggy Brooks-Bertram and Barbara Never Gold
Talk and signing for Go, Tell Michelle

Saturday, May 9, 2 PM
Talking Leaves...Books, 3158 Main St.

BABEL

2009-10 SUBSCRIPTIONS ON SALE NOW.

October 9, A.S. Byatt
November 20, Ha Jin
March 5, Azar Nafisi
April 16, Salman Rushdie

Previous Subscriber: $85
New Subscriber: $110
These subscriptions include general admission seating at all 4 events.

Patron: $275
Patron Pair: $450
Patron level subscriptions include VIP reserved seating and admission to all pre-event author receptions.

Purchase subscriptions now at http://www.justbuffalo.org/babel or by phone at [redacted].

WRITER CRITIQUE GROUP

The member writer critique group is back on a new night: 1st and 3rd Tuesdays at the Market Arcade. Click here for more info:

http://www.justbuffalo.org/media/pdf/CritiqueGroup0409.pdf

WESTERN NEW YORK BOOK ARTS COLLABORATIVE WORKSHOPS

We have some availability in the upcoming workshops

May 13 & 14 - Making Fonts

To register: http://www.wnybookarts.org/Spring09wkshps.php

UNSUBSCRIBE

If you would like to unsubscribe from this list, just say so and you will immediately be removed. _____

Michael Kelleher
Artistic Director
Just Buffalo Literary Center
Market Arcade

617 Main St., Ste. 202A
Buffalo, NY 14203
[redacted]
[redacted] (fax)
www.justbuffalo.org
[redacted]

↑ Index

36. Obododimma Oha

Re: Declaration

Mon 4 May 2009

Let's consult your poems first.-- Obododimma.

On Sun, May 3, 2009 at 7:00 AM, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]> wrote:

> I hereby declare myself poet laureate of West Lima, Wisconsin. Population 38. Submit any objections in writing to mayor within 90 days.

--
Obododimma Oha
http://udude.wordpress.com/

Dept. of English
University of Ibadan
Nigeria

&

Fellow, Centre for Peace & Conflict Studies
University of Ibadan

Phone: [redacted];
[redacted];
[redacted].

↑ Index

37. Elizabeth Lyman

JUST BUFFALO/UB POETRY COLLECTION SPECIAL EVENT

Mon 4 May 2009

THE GEMS OF THE POETRY COLLECTION:
TOUR AND RECEPTION AT THE UB POETRY COLLECTION
THURSDAY, MAY 7, 5:30-7:00 PM
UNIVERSITY AT BUFFALO, 420 CAPEN HALL, NORTH CAMPUS

DID YOU KNOW THAT UB HAS ONE OF THE MOST EXTENSIVE COLLECTIONS OF 20TH CENTURY POETRY MANUSCRIPTS AND FIRST EDITIONS IN NORTH AMERICA?
Â
Join Just Buffalo and the UB Poetry Collection for an evening tour of the collection.

Curator Michael Basinski will relate the history, the scope, the sacred and the profane aspects of the UB Poetry Collection.Â An exhibition will be on view featuring the study of French history and culture at UB.Â Basinski promises that this event will be â€œan elaborate show and tell with lots of wonderful things to see and talk about. For the poetry and/or book lover, satisfaction is guaranteed.â€Â

Refreshments provided.Â Free for Just Buffalo Members and Babel Subscribers; $10 for guests.Â

Please RSVP by emailing [redacted] or calling [redacted].Â

Or Just Show Up!

THE UB POETRY COLLECTION is located on the North Campus in Amherst on the fourth floor of the undergraduate library in Capen Hall. Parking is free and available after 4 p.m. in the Hochstetter lot.

_____

UNSUBSCRIBE

If you would like to unsubscribe from this list, just say so and you will immediately be removed. _____

Elizabeth Lyman
Development Associate
Just Buffalo Literary Center
Market Arcade
617 Main St., Ste. 202A
Buffalo, NY 14203
[redacted]
[redacted] (fax)
www.justbuffalo.org

↑ Index

38. Small Press Traffic

THIS FRIDAY: STECOPOULOS and ZURAWSKI in OAKLAND

Mon 4 May 2009

Join us this Friday, May 8, 2009 at 7:30 p.m. for this exciting night!

Please note the change of venue to the CCA Oakland Campus
Nahl Hall 5212 Broadway in Oakland

<http://4.bp.blogspot.com/_U7xbZLHsG8Y/Sf9NXoQshAI/AAAAAAAAADM/jdC6JGS_8F8/s1600-h/eleni.jpg>

Eleni Stecopoulos's first book, Armies of Compassion, is forthcoming from Palm Press. The recipient of a Creative Work Fund grant for 2008-2010, she will curate a program series titled The Poetics of Healing: Creative Investigations in Art, Medicine, and Somatic Practice for The Poetry Center at San Francisco State University, and write a book in response. She is currently at work on Earth Also is a Private Language, a book-length poem that takes place via the island of Evvia (Euboea): its geothermal springs and hydrotherapy traditions, mythology, and family stories from the island.

<http://3.bp.blogspot.com/_U7xbZLHsG8Y/Sf9NXXXQp8I/AAAAAAAAADE/NbM5g3o633M/s1600-h/maggiez.jpg>

Magdelena Zurawski was born in Newark NJ and grew up in Edison NJ, but Providence RI feels like home because that's where she started writing and meeting writers and thinking of herself as a writer. Currently, she lives in Durham, NC, where she is studying 19th-century American literature at Duke. The Bruise, out now from Fiction Collective Two, is the winner of the 2006 Ronald Sukenick prize for innovative fiction. It is her first book.

--
Samantha Giles
Executive Director
Small Press Traffic Literary Arts Center
sptraffic.org
smallpresstraffic.blogspot.com

↑ Index

39. Sarah Sarai
Re: Declaration
Mon 4 May 2009

---

you mean wEST lIMA? does 38 include the pollen count?

>>>>>>>>
I hereby declare myself poet laureate of West Lima, Wisconsin.
Population 38. Submit any objections in writing to mayor within 90 days.

↑ Index

40. Nico Vassilakis
SUBTEXT READING - Beverly DAHLEN & Ezra MARK
Mon 4 May 2009

---

http://subtextreadingseries.blogspot.com/

thanks for your time,

n

_____ Hotmail® has a new way to see what's up with your friends.
http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/WhatsNew?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tutorial_WhatsNew1_052009

↑ Index

41. mIEKAL aND animated tweet reader
Tue 5 May 2009

---

http://visibletweets.com/#query=%23micropoetry&animation=1

=!=
Data Visualization for the Synaptically Inspired
http://filevillage.info

↑ Index

42. Jonathan Skinner
"Put off" by Poetry
Tue 5 May 2009

Tolkien breaks silence over JRR's 'fierce, passionate' poem JRR Tolkien's son Christopher admits the poetic form of his father's latest book, Sigurd and Gudrún, may 'put off' many Lord of the Rings fans Alison Flood guardian.co.uk, Tuesday 5 May 2009 09.48 BST larger | smaller

JRR Tolkien in 1973. Photograph: Reuters

The reclusive son of JRR Tolkien has broken his silence to admit fears that fans of his father's work may be "put off" by the verse form of his latest posthumous publication. Responding via fax to a series of questions about The Legend of Sigurd and Gudrún, published for the first time today, Christopher Tolkien expressed the hope that it would show a different side to the author of the much-loved classic The Lord of the Rings.

The 500-stanza poem is closely modelled on the Elder Edda, a collection of Norse myths preserved in a 13th-century manuscript, a pedigree Christopher Tolkien described as "unknown territory" for most people.

"I dare say that a good many will be instantly put off by the very idea of 'long narrative poems in verse' and pursue it no further," he said. It was equally possible that their form will lend them an "unexpected impact," he continued.

"My hope is that some of those who appreciate and admire the works of my father will find it illuminating in respect of Old Norse poetry in general, in his own treatment of the fierce, passionate and mysterious legend, and in this further and little known aspect of him as both philologist and poet. Above all I hope they will take pleasure in this poetry."

Christopher Tolkien, who as a child was paid two pence by his father for every mistake he could find in The Hobbit, and as an RAF pilot during the war contributed suggestions to the progress of The Lord of the Rings, worked from a manuscript which he believes his father wrote in the early 1930s. JRR Tolkien taught Old Norse alongside Anglo-Saxon at Oxford university, giving lectures and classes on Norse language and literature for at least 13 years.

Telling in verse the story of Sigurd the Völsung and the fall of the Niflungs also adapted by Wagner into the Ring cycle The Legend of Sigurd and Gudrún sees the hero Sigurd kill the dragon Fafnir (a slaying which may have influenced Tolkien's writing of Bilbo's encounter with Smaug in The Hobbit), take his gold and rescue the Valkyrie Brynhild from her imprisonment on a rock surrounded by fire. Love, magic, jealousy, and, eventually, tragedy in the murder of Sigurd and the suicide of Brynhild ensue.

"My father left one manuscript, and that was complete; there were no more than a few pages of earlier writings, and all other drafting has disappeared. The manuscript is in good clear handwriting, written out without corrections, and obviously intended to be a final fair copy. A few minor changes were made to it much later," said Tolkien, who was appointed as his father's literary executor and has over the past 36 years devoted himself to editing and publishing his father's unpublished works, including The Silmarillion and a 12-volume History of Middle-Earth. "My 'editing' consists very largely of explanation and clarification."

Tolkien, 84, has lived in France since 1975, where wild rumours have suggested that he guards his property from obsessive fans of his father's work with a wild boar a canard he dismissed as nonsense. "In the full form of the story I keep not one, but a whole troop of wild boars, expressly in order to chase off Tolkien fans who are imagined to lurk in the woods that surround my house," he said. "There are indeed many wild boars in these parts, but I don't think they would be at all suitable as guardians even if I wanted them."

Two years ago Tolkien completed and published his father's unfinished tale of Middle-Earth The Children of Húrin, which went on to sell more than 1m copies in English.

Speculating about what his father, who died in 1973 aged 81, would have made of his immense popularity today over 150m copies of The Hobbit and The Lord of the Rings have sold worldwide Tolkien said he "might have been in turns delighted, charmed, amused, puzzled, disquieted, baffled, indignant, but, finally, comprehensively astounded".

Read the full exchange of questions and answers

guardian.co.uk © Guardian News and Media Limited 2009

↑ Index

43. Holly Crawford

Re: Performances of Richard Kostelanetz's Openings at AC in NYC Thursday

Tue 5 May 2009

AC [Institute Direct Chapel] Presents on the 3rd Anniversary of the Work's Premiere:
Thursday, May 7th between 6-8pm

Openings
Richard Kostelanetz (2006)

With Featured Performers:

Laura Barger
Holly Crawford
Margaret Lancaster

Paige Taggart

Trio: Robert Dick, Joshue Ott and Morgan Packard

The AC [Institute Direct Chapel] continues in its performance series offering a program of a sole work-though presented in a fashion that is decidedly not solitary. With Richard Kostelanetz's score Openings as our starting point, we traverse discipline and media offering a glimpse into the infinitely mutable possibilities of his work. What depth Kostelanetz's work offers, in turn also reveals much about the reader, the interpreter, the performer. As such we are pleased to present 5 multi-faceted "versions" of this work highlighting the following performers in their unique renderings and also inherent collaboration with the score: Laura Barger; Holly Crawford; Margaret Lancaster; Paige Taggart; and Trio: Robert Dick, Joshue Ott and Morgan Packard. Curated by Sonya Hofer, AC Fellow.

This event is FREE and open to the public.

AC's mission is to advance the understanding of art through investigation, research and education. It is a lab and forum for experimentation and critical discussion. We support and develop projects that explore a performative exchange across visual, verbal and experiential disciplines. We encourage critical writing that challenges conventional expectations of meaning and objectivity as well as the boundaries between the rational and subjective.

Gallery Hours: Wednesday - Saturday: 1-6pm, Thursday: 1-8pm

547 W. 27th St, 5th Floor, New York, NY 10001

www.artcurrents.org / [redacted]

Art Currents is a non-profit 501(c)3

↑ Index

44. mIEKAL aND
Re: Declaration
Tue 5 May 2009

Obododimma:

You are absolutely correct. My laurels as poet laureate should be based on material text production. I have started to consider all the options of what a poem of West Lima will encompass. So far I'm thinking horse & buggies, rednecks & budweiser, lawn mowers, church bells, more church bells, visible night sky, snow, more snow, drunk teenagers driving recklessly, absence of books, burning trash barrels, excessively fertile soil, 100 year old buildings in disrepair, & cars parked with keys still in the ignition.

~mIEKAL

↑ Index

45. Ruth Lepson
Re: animated tweet reader
Tue 5 May 2009

wonderful--the whole concept makes me pay attention to every aspect

On 5/5/09 12:41 AM, "mIEKAL aND" <[redacted]> wrote:

> http://visibletweets.com/#query=%23micropoetry&animation=1
>
> =!=
> Data Visualization for the Synaptically Inspired

> http://filevillage.info

↑ Index

46. aaron tieger
ROSELAND by Dana Ward
Tue 5 May 2009

On behalf of Editions Louis Wain:

Editions Louis Wain is pleased to announce the availability of a new chapbook:

Roseland
by Dana Ward
10 pgs, saddle-stapled
$4

For a sample from this book, and to purchase it through Paypal, please visit the site: http://editionslouiswain.com/books/

Also available from Editions Louis Wain:
- Necco Face by Michael Carr, Jess Mynes, & Aaron Tieger
- The Collected Typos of Aaron Tieger

Special Offer -- get all three publications for $14, see the above link for details.

Aaron Tieger
for ELW

↑ Index

47. Séamas Cain
A Northern Ireland poet
Tue 5 May 2009

_____

ALONE IN THE BACK CAFÉ, a new chapbook by Paul Murphy, has been published by Survivors' Poetry in London, England. The chapbook was funded and sponsored by the Esmée Fairbairn Foundation.

Paul Murphy was born in Belfast, Northern Ireland in 1965. He studied at the University of Warwick, gaining a B.A. in Film and Literature. From there he went to Queen’s University in Belfast to study for an M.A. on T.S.Eliot and the French philosopher Jacques Lacan. Murphy has been writer-in-residence at the Albert-Ludwig Universitat, Freiburg im Breisgau, in Baden-Wurtemburg, in Germany. He also writes philosophy and enjoys working on the interface between poetry and philosophy.

Paul Murphy's previous book, IN THE LUXEMBOURG GARDENS, was published by the University of Salzburg Press, in Salzburg, Austria. Also, Murphy's book T.S. ELIOT'S POSTMODERNIST COMPLAINT was published by Postpressed in Australia (www.postpressed.com.au). Paul Murphy has read from his work in Paris, Cambridge, Galway and Belfast. He is at the moment writing an oral history of the Black Forest.

The cost of Paul Murphy's ALONE IN THE BACK CAFÉ is £4.00 (or $8.00) and may be ordered from Survivors' Poetry at

http://survivorspoetry.com/SP_Shop/index.php?productID=141

... or directly by postal mail to Survivors' Poetry,

Studio 11, Bickerton House,
25-27 Bickerton Road,
Archway,
London, England,
N19 5JT

Survivors' Poetry, a British non-profit established in 1991, promotes the writing of survivors of traumatic distress. Survivors' Poetry is in a unique position to act on its vision of a society in which survivors can work towards emotional and mental stability through the discipline and truth to self that is a prerequisite for the imaginative expression in language of traumatic experiences. Survivors' Poetry actively supports and promotes the sheer linguistic talent that many survivors bring to their insight into their own condition and that of others.

Respectfully,

Séamas Cain
http://alazanto.org/seamascain
http://seamascain.writernetwork.com
http://www.mnartists.org/Seamas_Cain

↑ Index

48. Stephen Vincent
Obama, The Exhibit - Some documentation
Tue 5 May 2009

The First 100 Days of Obama
http://stephenvincent.net/blog/

On my blog, I have just put up some photo documentation and a brief account of the Gallery show and simultaneous book publication - 200 pages which include the entire haptic drawings and texts. The event was also a "performance piece" in that I was in the Gallery from 11 until 8 in the evening while I made drawings and texts for the 100th day for the initial limited edition of 25 copies. (Another 75 copies will be soon printed to include the formal text and drawing for the 100th day). The Gallery will take orders for either edition. There are 10 copies remaining of the limited. Yes, 'the drawing arm' began to swell like a baseball pitcher! And it was a great, fun day.

If interested, the blog permits going backwards in time to visit previous haptics and texts.

As always, appreciate your responses.

Stephen V
http://stephenvincent.net/blog/

↑ Index

49. Angela Vasquez-Giroux craig arnold
Tue 5 May 2009

---

http://www.cnn.com/2009/WORLD/asiapcf/05/05/japan.missing.professor/index.html?eref=rss_latest

↑ Index

50. Alexander Jorgensen
Visual Poetry - Kalachakra: Ritual of a Dying Nation
Wed 6 May 2009

Something new at Otoliths, dedicated to friend Kathup Tsering, a poet who is currently residing in a refugee center in Central Europe. It took months to complete this piece. I sincerely hope you enjoy.

http://the-otolith.blogspot.com/2009/04/alexander-jorgensen-kalachakra-ritual.html

Humble regards,
Alex

↑ Index

51. Christophe Casamassima
New Titles from Furniture Press
Wed 6 May 2009

After a long, cruell month of readings and performances at the Towson ARTS Collective, I'm ready to unveil the new Furniture Press catalogue.

New titles available immediately

Xenia, Natalie Knight. 34pp. Handbound in BFK w/ ink printed covers. $10 Cocktail, Catherine Daly. 16pp. Handbound in Arches w/ ink printed covers. $8 Exequey, Elizabeth Robinson. 10pp. Handbound in Arches w/ ink printed covers. $8

Titles in production

The Found Titles Project, Mark Ducharme. 50pp
directions for flying: right side lower arm raise arm bend knees repeat on left, Emily Carr. 26pp.
Cur-rent\ly\, Elizabeth Switaj. 18pp.
The Abandoned Poems, Barry Schwabsky. 12pp
Molloy: The Flip Side, Chris Tysh. 49pp.
Aquinas & the Mississippi, William Allegrezza & Garin Cycholl. 26pp. tba, Cathleen Miller
tba, M. Magnus

Please contact me via [redacted] - I use this eMail only for announcements!

To order, state the titles, quantity and total. I will pick up the shipping. Send checks, made out to Furniture Press, to 2026 Druid Park Drive, Baltimore, MD 21211

Check out appropriateintertext.wordpress.com for our back catalogue and other announcements...

Christophe Casamassima

--
Powered By Outblaze

↑ Index

52. aaron tieger
Gizzi/Larsen in Cambridge, MA Saturday 5/9
Wed 6 May 2009

The Mother of all Poetry Readings
Peter

Gizzi. Dave Larsen. These poets are two tough muthas. Donâ€™t send â€˜em flowers. Donâ€™t buy â€˜em chocolate. Come hear their poems. This Saturday.

OutPost 186
186 Â½ Hampshire St. Cambridge (brown building behind 7-11 â€“ Inman Sq)

3PM
Peter Gizzi is the author of The Outernationale, Some Values of Landscape and Weather, Artificial Heart, and Periplum and other poems 1987-1992. His editing projects have included oâ€¢blÃ©k: a journal of language arts, The House That Jack Built: The Collected Lectures of Jack Spicer and My Vocabulary Did This to Me: The Collected Poetry of Jack Spicer (co-edited with Kevin Killian). He is currently the poetry editor for The Nation. He teaches at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

Newly relocated from San Francisco's Bay Area, David Larsen is pursuing a career in postgraduate studies at Yale. He is author of The Thorn (Faux, 2005), and translator of Names of the Lion by Abu Abd Allah ibn Khalawayh (Atticus/Finch, 2009). During the St. Mark's Poetry Project Newsletter's 1999-2000 run he provided cover art, and inner graphic thingies. From 2005-2007 he was co-curator of the New Yipes reading/video series at Oakland's 21 Grand.

Aaron Tieger
for the Unaffiliated Reading Series http://bostonpoetry.blogspot.com

"Make a sudden, destructive unpredictable action; incorporate." (Brian Eno)

"Without people you're nothing" (Joe Strummer)

↑ Index

53. William Allegrezza
Series A: Tonight, May 6th
Wed 6 May 2009

Don't forget to come tonight to Series A at the Hyde Park Art Center in Chicago. The reading takes place from 7-8. The HPAC is at 5020 S. Cornell. Parking is easy, and it's easy to get to on public transportation. BYOB.

Kristina Marie Darling

Kristina Marie Darling is an M.A. candidate at Washington University, where she completed an undergraduate degree in English in 2007. She has published seven small press collections of poetry and nonfiction, among them Fevers and Clocks (March Street Press, 2006), The Traffic in Women (Dancing Girl Press, 2006), and Night Music (BlazeVOX Books, 2008). She has also written on contemporary poetics for The Boston Review, New Letters, The Mid-American Review, Third Coast, The Warwick Review, Smartish Pace, and other journals. Her creative work has been supported by residencies from the Centrum Foundation, Rockmirth, Writers and Books, DRAW International, and the Mary Anderson Center for the Arts.

Naomi Buck Palagi

Naomi Buck Palagi has made her way to Northwest Indiana via many stops, including a "homesteader" childhood in rural Kentucky, complete with goats and lots of bare feet, some years in the Mississippi Delta as, among other things, a furniture maker and ballet teacher, and several years in Chicago doing the small theater rounds as an actor and director. She enjoys shaping tangible things—wood, fabric, sound, words. She has work published or upcoming in the journals Otoliths, Big Toe Review, Moria, P.F.S. Post, and Blue Fifth Review, among others.

Bill Allegrezza
www.moriapoetry.com/seriesa.html

↑ Index

54. Ken Chen
Ha Jin tonight!
Wed 6 May 2009

HOST COMMITTEE

Julie Azuma, Curtis Chin, Jennifer Hayashida, Joyce Moy, Steven Newmark, Martha Rhodes, Sia Shin, Noah Smith, Ting Wang, Joel Whitney, Terrence Yang and Monica Youn invites you to a benefit in support of The Asian American Writers' Workshop

***

**

A Night with Award-Winning Author Ha Jin

Wednesday, May 6
6:30pm to 9:00pm

Reading and Cocktail Reception

$45 admission (includes free membership)
$25 for members

Home of Virginia Davies and Willard Taylor
299 West 12th Street #PHA
(off 8th Avenue)

Tickets can be purchased at the following link or by calling [redacted]

aaww.org/hajin <http://www.nycharities.org/event/event.asp?CE_ID=3831>

Please join us for an intimate evening on Wednesday, May 6th from 6:30pm to 9:00pm with writer *Ha Jin, *winner of the National Book Award and the PEN/Faulkner Award for Fiction. The Workshop is proud to welcome Jin and to present the public with a rare opportunity to meet the author at a classic West Village penthouse with wraparound terrace that has hosted Barack Obama, Bill Clinton and Yo-Yo Ma.

This special event focuses on Jin's newest book, Writer as Migrant, published by the University of Chicago Press. In his first work of nonfiction, Jin writes three interconnected essays and tackles issues relating to being a migrant writer. The San Francisco Chronicle finds that "Though the issues are weighty, Jin's prose is straightforward and welcoming. . . . In this poignant and provocative book, Jin takes us on this journey [to our envisioned homelands], revealing paths laid by migrant writers before him and perhaps by those who will follow."

Ha Jin is the critically renowned author of five novels, including, * Waiting* and War Trash,* *as well as three collections of short stories and three books of poetry. His short story collection *The Bridegroom *won the Asian American Literary Award. He currently teaches literature at Boston University.

↑ Index

55. juliana spahr

poor poet rate at the spd spelling bee

Wed 6 May 2009

---

there is a last minute sale on tickets to the spd spelling bee fundraiser on May 18th at the 2009 Crown Point Gallery, San Francisco.

bring a date at this rate!

and come on, poets, you know you owe them a huge debt of gratitude for the tireless support they offer your books. so buy a ticket, drink some free absinthe, have some laughs, then go out to dinner after.

http://www.spdbooks.org/pages/events/bee_in_special.aspx

apologies for multiple postings.

xxoo.

↑ Index

56. joseph bradshaw

Beverly Dahlen & David Abel, Portland 5-10

Wed 6 May 2009

Spare Room presents

Beverly Dahlen
David Abel

Sunday, May 10
7:30 pm

Concordia Coffee House
2909 NE Alberta

$5.00 suggested donation

www.flim.com/spareroom
[redacted]

==========

Upcoming Readings

May 17: Andrew Schelling & music by Michael Stirling

June 4: Jim McCrary & James Yeary
June 14: Anne Gorrick & Deborah Woodard

July tba: Jennifer Bartlett & Sarah Mangold
July 12: Farrah Field & Jared White

August tba: Norma Cole & Lindsay Hill
August 16: Graham Foust & Eric Baus

==========

Beverly Dahlen was born in Portland in November, 1934, attended public schools there, and after the end of World War II, moved with her family to Eureka, California. In 1956, she resettled in San Francisco. Her first collection of poetry, Out of the Third, was published by Momo's Press in 1974. Two chapbooks, A Letter at Easter (Effie's Press) and The Egyptian Poems (Hipparchia Press) were followed in 1985 by the publication of A Reading 1-7 (Momo's Press). Since then, three more volumes of A Reading have appeared, as well as the chapbook A-reading Spicer & Eighteen Sonnets (Chax Press). Her essay "Beauty: Another Reading" recently appeared in Crayon 5. Ms. Dahlen was a co-founder, with Kathleen Fraser and Frances Jaffer, of the feminist poetics newsletter (HOW)ever; in December of 2008 her work was honored by Small Press Traffic with their Lifetime Achievement Award.

David Abel was born in Salt Lake City in November, 1956, and schooled there and in South Florida, Eastern California, the Mid-Hudson Valley, and the Rio Grande Valley. After tenures in New York City and Albuquerque (where he established the Bridge Bookshop, and Passages Bookshop & Gallery, respectively), he relocated to Portland in 1997. He is the author of numerous artists's books and objects -- including Rose, Selected Durations, and Threnos (with Katherine Kuehn), and Let Us Repair and While You Were In (with Anna & Leo Daedalus) -- and several chapbooks, including Black Valentine (Chax) and Twenty- (Crane's Bill). His most recent chapbook, Commonly, will premiere at this reading, along with two new issues (one for each reader) of the broadside journal Envelope, which he edits.

↑ Index

57. Margaret Konkol

a place to stay in Philly for a few nights in June?

Wed 6 May 2009

Does anyone know of a place to stay in Philadelphia for a few nights in the third week of June? I'm traveling down there for research at the Rosenbach Museum and am hoping to find a couch/cheap place to stay. Any suggestions warmly welcomed!

Best and everything,

Margaret Konkol

[redacted]

↑ Index

58. Obododimma Oha

Re: Declaration

Wed 6 May 2009

Certainly the way to go. Seen and unseens. Some sweeping. Some excavation: an archeology of things felt only. So, remove the halters from the necks of th rearing questions. -- Obododimma.

On Tue, May 5, 2009 at 7:52 AM, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]> wrote:

> Obododimma:
>
> You are absolutely correct. My laurels as poet laureate should be based on material text production. I have started to consider all the options of what a poem of West Lima will encompass. So far I'm thinking horse & buggies, rednecks & budweiser, lawn mowers, church bells, more church bells, visible night sky, snow, more snow, drunk > teenagers driving recklessly, absence of books, burning trash barrels, excessively fertile soil, 100 year old buildings in disrepair, & cars parked with keys still in the ignition.

>
> ~mIEKAL

--
Obododimma Oha
http://udude.wordpress.com/

Dept. of English
University of Ibadan
Nigeria

&

Fellow, Centre for Peace & Conflict Studies
University of Ibadan

Phone: [redacted];
[redacted];
[redacted].

↑ Index

59. Peter
Fogged Clarity
Wed 6 May 2009

Really interesting work here...New issue available - Fogged Clarity http://foggedclarity.com/

↑ Index

60. Obododimma Oha
Re: animated tweet reader
Thu 7 May 2009

---

amazing hypertext. -- Obododimma.

On Mon, May 4, 2009 at 9:41 PM, mIEKAL aND <[redacted]> wrote:

> http://visibletweets.com/#query=%23micropoetry&animation=1
>
> =!=
> Data Visualization for the Synaptically Inspired

> http://filevillage.info

--
Obododimma Oha
http://udude.wordpress.com/

Dept. of English
University of Ibadan
Nigeria

&

Fellow, Centre for Peace & Conflict Studies
University of Ibadan

Phone: [redacted];
[redacted];
[redacted].

↑ Index

61. Julie Phillips Brown
Call for Work - Padelion
Thu 7 May 2009

/Padelion/ seeks previously unpublished work for its inaugural issue, slated to appear this autumn. Please send risky, conspicuous writing---in particular, work that explores connections with other media, genres, and disciplines.

Works appear bi-annually in a limited edition print issue, and on the web. Contributors receive one copy of the print issue in which their work appears. Our reading period is from December through February, and June through August, with issues following in the spring and fall, respectively. No simultaneous submissions. Response time is approximately three months.

Please send cover letter and no more than 5 pages of previously unpublished text and/or image; query regarding longer work. All submissions must be made as e-mail attachments to [redacted]. Word, PDF, and JPEG formats only.

Please visit us at http://www.padelion.com.

↑ Index

62. Joanna Fuhrman
Zinc Bar 5/10
Thu 7 May 2009

Anne Tardos
and Adeena Karasick

http://www.adeenakarasick.com/

http://www.annetardos.com/

will read at the (New) Zinc Bar
82 West 3rd Street
between Thompson and Sullivan
Greenwich Village
New York NY 10012
212-477-ZINC

Sunday, May 10, 2009
at 6:30 pm

Upcoming Readings

May 17th
Jordan Davis & Chris Nealon & George Stanley

May 24th
Group Reading : You and I Will Both Be Fine

Lauren Russell
Eve Bois
Vanessa Hope Schneider
Kate Hall Lutzner
Gina Inzunza
Christine Hamm

May 31
Chris Martin & Frank Lima

June 7th
David Shapiro & Guest

---------- Oriental Rug Turn any room into a work of art. Click now for beautiful oriental rugs!
http://tagline.excite.com/fc/FgElN1gwrdImN3wlAeVm10Ha0M9nG4Nd7auAbWtE51HBPJVE3eoupMfNVq4/

↑ Index

63. Josef Kaplan

Poetry by Fiat in NYC

Thu 7 May 2009

This Saturday, May 9th: Poetry by Fiat

8PM

Buzzeo Building Gallery in Queens, NY

31-16 36th Ave.

N to 36th Ave.

FREE poetry. FREE alcohol.

Readings by:

+ Gordon Faylor

* *

Gordon Faylor presently serves as the co-editor of mid)rib<http://www.midribpoetry.com/>, an e-zine for contemporary poetics. He is the author of several chapbooks, including Tremblies, a collaboration with Eddie Hopely. Some of his work has appeared in Other Clutter <http://otherclutter.com/> and To The Tune Of Ignu In The Key Of C; more is forthcoming from Model Homes<http://modelhomepage.blogspot.com/>, NoD magazine, Sustainable Aircraft <http://sustainableaircraft.com/> and VNR Records.

+ Diana Sue Hamilton

Diana Sue Hamilton co-coordinated the Friday Night Series at the Poetry Project for the 08/09 season. Her essay on Kim Rosenfield's *re: evolution*appears in the book (Les Figues Press <http://www.lesfigues.com/lfp/index.php>, 2009), and her poetry can be found at mid)rib <http://www.midribpoetry.com/>, forcefulfriendlyactivity.blogspot.com, and The Portable Boog Reader 3<http://welcometoboogcity.com/boogpdfs/bc53.pbr3.pdf>
.

+* Eddie Hopely*

* *

Eddie Hopely is the author of self-published and freely distributed poem-books (“poemtrees+squashy”) such as *Rabbit on their way to the Capital *, ShiT preasure, and What's There. He co-authored Tremblies, a book for two readers, with J. Gordon Faylor, and his work has appeared in publications such as Filling Station <http://fillingstation.ca/>, They Are Flying Planes, mid)rib <http://www.midribpoetry.com/> and To The Tune of Ignu In The Key Of C. He is hoping all love works out for all animals.

* *

+* Douglas Piccinnini*

* *

Douglas Piccinnini's poetry and criticism have most recently appeared or will be forthcoming in Lana Turner: A Journal of Poetry and Opinion<http://lanaturnerjournal.com/>, elimae <http://www.elimae.com/>, Scapegoat Review<http://scapegoatreview.com/>, Verse <http://versemag.blogspot.com/>, and Jacket<http://jacketmagazine.com/00/home.shtml>magazine. He has been awarded residencies by the Vermont Studio Center in Johnson, VT and Art Farm in Marquette, NE. He currently lives and works in Brooklyn, NY and curates the reading series CROWD<http://crowdyourself.blogspot.com/>
.

* *

+* Nicole Wallace*

Nicole Wallace edits and assembles In The Key Of C Magazine in a cave and co-coordinates the Friday Night Series at the Poetry Project with Diana Hamilton.

+ Sara Wintz

Sara Wintz’s writing has appeared on Ceptuetics<http://ceptuetics.blogspot.com/>, Cricket Online Review <http://www.cricketonlinereview.com/>, and in her chapbook Lipstick Traces. She co-directs :the press gang:<http://pressgangsters.com/>with Cristiana Baik.

↑ Index

64. Jim Andrews
language toys
Thu 7 May 2009

---

http://www.amdhamburg.de/doerk/toolkit/has links to several interesting language toys

ja
http://vispo.com

↑ Index

65. Dan Godston
Mingus Awareness Project 3
Thu 7 May 2009

Hi,

You are cordially invited to attend Mingus Awareness Project 3.

Cheers,

Dan

On Thursday, May 7th, a group of musicians will gather at The Hideout to celebrate the life and music of Charles Mingus, and to benefit the Les Turner ALS Foundation. Mingus, an American musical hero who died of ALS, is one of the greatest figures in jazz history. His bass playing, compositions and philosophy have transcended his genre and left indelible marks on music history.

Justin Dillard -- solo piano

Sue Mingus talks about the Jazz Workshop, Inc., and she reads an excerpt from her memoir "Tonight at Noon" (via Skype).

MAPtet performs music by Charles Mingus, Duke Ellington, Rahsaan Roland Kirk, and Eric Dolphy
Rich Corpolongo -- saxophones
Saalik Ziyad -- vocals
Paul Hartsaw -- tenor saxophone
Dan Godston -- trumpet
Nick Moran -- baritone saxophone and bass clarinet
Norman Palm -- trombone
Jon Godston -- soprano saxophone
Jerry Coleman -- drums
Alex Wing -- upright bass

The Hideout
1354 W. Wabansia
Chicago, IL 60622
9 p.m. start time, doors open at 8 p.m.
$12 / $10 for students

http://www.mingusawarenessproject.org http://www.hideoutchicago.com http://www.mingusmingusmingus.com http://www.myspace.com/mingusawarenessproject

↑ Index

66. Obododimma Oha

Fwd: To Fogged Clarity Contributors

Thu 7 May 2009

Greetings, the May issue is up and fantastic at www.foggedclarity.com. So we have now been doing this for one third of one year. Thousands upon thousands of people have viewed your work, and thanks to poet Michael Tyrell Fogged Clarity just got its first mention in the New York Times. That being said, it is game time this month; a true opportunity to proliferate beauty and establish the clarity as one of the finest comprehensive arts reviews in the country. You are all wonderfully talented individuals with extensive networks throughout the artistic community.I urge you to keep help us spreading the word in any way you can: link us on your sites and social media, tell your students, your friends and lovers. Last month we had 11,000 unique visitors, this month I would like to make it an even 20. Let's keep making things happen, lets keep celebrating our brief stints of stimulus with ventilation.

Cheers my friends

Also, my apologies if you recieve a couple more emails from me on the email blasts.
--
Executive Editor, "Fogged Clarity"
www.foggedclarity.com

Ben Evans

--
Obododimma Oha
http://udude.wordpress.com/

Dept. of English
University of Ibadan
Nigeria

&

Fellow, Centre for Peace & Conflict Studies
University of Ibadan

Phone: [redacted];
[redacted];
[redacted].

↑ Index

67. Jerome Rothenberg
"total translation" redux
Thu 7 May 2009

I don't as a rule call attention to writings about my own works, though the temptation is always there. But there's a very detailed, very accurate piece just posted on the Poetry Foundation web site - a discussion of my experiments from some years ago with "total translation" and in particular a series of compositions that began as translations from Navajo ritual poetry. The piece is by David Noriega and titled "The Original Performance Poetry: Jerome Rothenberg's 'total translations' of Navajo Horse Songs" - accompanied by clips of some early multi-track studio recordings. The URL, for any who want to track it down, is http://www.poetryfoundation.org/journal/article.html?id=236556.
The work of course goes back to the early 1970s, so it's my pleasure too to see it still in circulation.

Jerome Rothenberg
1026 San Abella
Encinitas, CA 92024
jrothenberg at cox.net
Blog at poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com

"Language is Delphi."
--Novalis

↑ Index

68. Doug Holder
Boston Area Small Press and Poetry Scene : The Red Line by Elizabeth Kirschner
Thu 7 May 2009

Boston Area Small Press and Poetry Scene

Thursday, May 07, 2009
The Red Line by Elizabeth Kirschner

* I will be doing a reading with Elizabeth Kirschner in the fall.---Doug Holder/ Boston Area Small Press and Poetry Scene founder.

THE RED LINE

By Elizabeth Kirschner

Early morn and my eyes are like gun slits, swollen almost shut from the non-stop torrential weeping I did last night. Too much brain pain. Brain pain that knocks me off my feet, sometimes escalating at the speed of light until I'm hit with a bout of psychosis. Called "episodes" as if they were a popular TV series, I go far away from the world and into one where wolves are devouring my brains or demons are throttling me, choking me halfway to death.

These states of psychic intensity are what have landed me for the past five years in the psych ward behind the red line that's six feet in front of the locked door that only visitors can cross, not patients. Red line like a goal one must get into in order to win the game. Red line from which I watched my then husband cross and go through the locked door, his shirt a small sail, his posture like that of a wounded God.

My first grand entrance into the psych ward coincided with my first psychic break. I went from being in a state of what I call classical despair, as though it were an art form, into the hellish belief that I was a dust baby, blown hither and yon, then switched in a moment long enough for my demons to snap their fingers, into the violent schema wherein I was wrestling with God in piss and shit in a sewer hole with the lid shut tight.

That first incident, over five years ago, happened on my son's eleventh birthday. In delirium, I argued with my husband, told him I needed to make the birthday dinner and bake the cake before I would go anywhere. The kitchen knife held a strange allure, something to cut and be cut with, but off I went to the ER, a crazed Madam, a loony-tunes mother and wife.

I had been in just about every emergency room in Boston prior to that December day where the light was so severely cold it felt shrill. Seizures brought me there, seizures which I experienced countless times for four long years before they stopped and the madness erupted. And now, for over five years, the psychotic breaks have occurred, volcanic in nature, way too many times, some of which landed me back in the ER or the psych ward.

The lock-up, the nuthouse. So just what is life like behind the red line? Surely it merits being called an inferno. Surely it's like living in a void slit in the side of time. It is a kind of incarceration where all the patients are players in a tragedy of Shakespearean proportion. It's a haunted tunnel in which one hears anonymous screams or a wax museum, each of us rigid with pain. The "us" being a community of dying souls—the demented, tormented thrust into hell holes that are gaping wounds, the only comfort being that there is an "us." None of us are alone—one patient walks the hallways hours on end, another caves into the lair of despair, still another talks out loud to no one, making elaborate plans—when to get one's hair done or buy tickets to go to symphony—this "us" is a "we" and thus we share a huge common denominator; we are all touched in the head, a little kooky, or most politely, a bit too eccentric to exist anywhere else except behind the red line.

It's just one more way of being devastated. That my first hospitalization occurred on my beloved son's birthday is a heartbreak I will carry until I die. O how I longed to be back in the maternity ward laboring to give birth instead of wanting to create my own demise. How many times have I crowned on the cusp of death wherein the only word I can muster and master is die? I want to orchestrate my own death, I have written or said far too often, my only motto: annihilate the violated because my brand of madness is the result of severe childhood abuse committed by both of my parents. Abuse I buried in a cavern so deep I lived in a coma of unconsciousness that exploded into concussions of consciousness that came not prior to, but after my initial hospitalization. This much I know: abuse is taboo and I have been thoroughly schooled in the drama of trauma and know, as well, what it's like to be was partially dead in the head for almost five decades.

That day in December I was, of course, in the ER for hours moving in and out of psychosis. Monkeys walked out of walls, a den of lions was ensnared beneath my bed which I told my biologist husband to tell them to go away. He did so, calmly, firmly, but imagine his terror at seeing his Elizabeth gone completely out of her mind.

Late that night I was finally admitted after being given a neurological test, one that I knew by rote from the seizure years. Then came the body check, the patting up and done like a cop searching for weapons. Off came my wedding ring, my good earrings. My hastily packed bag was thoroughly checked for sharps, cords, anything that could do me in even though I was already done in.

I had to wait for hours for my bedtime meds, was put on a new one called Risperadol which was meant to be "psychic glue." I was just another Humpty Dumpty fallen from the wall and all the king's horses and all the king's men couldn't put me back together again, but the new med did. Eons later, I'm now on three times as much of Risperadol and take three tabs of it whenever I have a psychic break and must wait while literally screaming my bloody head off until the drug kicks in. Once I was in a state so severe and prolonged, I downed a dozen tabs, landed in the psych ward again because I had taken an accidental overdose.

The first time I was admitted, voluntarily, I was given a private room, much to my relief. I cried myself to sleep in the wee hours while clutching my son's favorite teddy bear. This bear has come with me every time I've been hospitalized as a kind of surrogate son. That son, as well as my doctor and dog keep me on, however precariously, on terra firma, that is until the next quake of madness hits me putting me once again on the verge of psychic extinction.

In the unit, the keepers and the kept are separated by a tidal abyss. The keepers check the kept every ten minutes round the clock, hand out the meds and make sure they're taken, take one's pulse and temperature every morning, have the keys that might let one free, but are used to lock the locked up ones in the shower where razors are verboten. They guard the halls and every morning, precisely at 4:00 a.m., I would awaken, pace the small stretch of hallway between my room and the guards until the community room opened at 6:00. Then I could go make tea, quietly pad back to bed in the flannel nightgown I wore morning, noon and night, and read the mythic Aneid in mythic madness.

The first morning I was there, I paced around the bed, then ended standing up on it, terrified, because I was sure the floor was swarming with poison insects whose bites could kill me. My Dantesque hell realm of insanity has put me in a minefield because I never know when I might land on a one and be blown away in pain so acute my only wish is a death wish.

Life among the deranged has had an equalizing effect. I often saw my agony reflected in someone else's eyes such that I wanted to give that fellow sufferer a hug, but no touching was allowed in the unit. There are rules to be followed, a very strict list. If a rule was broken, one was sent, like a naughty child, to his or her room for very long time-outs. One man, a tailor, was never allowed to leave his room. He stood in the doorway during all his waking hours like a broken scarecrow and once I was scolded for talking with him. Upon my release, I gave him the rest of my paper and a pencil that I had scribbled fragments of poems on so he could draw suits and dresses. His look of gratitude was so profound I only wanted to sob.

In the lock-up the kept are kept busy by their keepers. One is not allowed was not allowed to stay in bed all day. In the morning we were counted before we could eat breakfast, then we went to groups all day and finally gather in the community room come evening to go round the circle and report one positive thing that had happened that day.

I remember crying a lot. I remember hiding quarters in a sock so I could make calls out on one of the two phones on the ward. I remember staring out the suicide-proof window in my room longing to fall to the pavement below. I was haunted by all the other half-mad, self-destructive poets—Lowell, Sexton, Berryman, Plath—and felt a sort of camaraderie with their ghosts. I felt that same camaraderie with the other patients. We were in it together, all taken out of the world because we were suicidal, crazed, debilitated—in short, not fit for society.

We had our own society. We were colleagues passing each other in the hallway, working together in groups, telling each other the specifics of whatever form of mental illness that kept us behind the red line. Mine was, is Borderline Personality Disorder, a diagnosis I didn't know until after my release, one that came out of a survey test hundreds of questions long that I took soon after my arrival. It is a mood disorder, biologically-based that's exacerbated by childhood trauma. One, two years after my first hospitalization, I remembered the primitive, primary truma, that is, of my mother whacking the back of my head with a baseball bat when I was three or four years old. I remember hitting the floor which had black and white tiles like a chessboard, me the pawn, she the ruthless queen holding me in checkmate. Years after that, while in an episode of great intensity, I recalled how my father decapitated my life-size doll in my playhouse, then told me that's what would happen to me if I didn't comply with him. These memories and other assorted, horrific ones, buried deeper than deep, are what made my childhood blocked out with blackouts and are what lead me to life behind the red line.

Being suicidal is what kept me in the lock-up. It is a holding tank, a halfway house between life and death, a hang out for lost souls, broken people, a cuckoo limbo. If I know what it's like to be kept, then Somerville-based poet, Doug Holder, who has worked at a psychiatric hospital in the Boston area for years, knows what it's like to be a keeper, or more kindly, a caregiver. Hence we share a particular knowledge, the flipped sides of a single coin and plan to give readings together, thus creating a dialogue, a crucial one about what it's like to be at either end of the spectrum of life in the unit.

That I survived my childhood is a miracle. That God has put a pen in my hand is another one. I have written in line after line about the hellish dimensions of my illness and of life in the unit. I should have used red ink, blood-red, to ink the lines that have resulted in two collections of poetry. The first, My Life as a Doll, brought out by Autumn House Press in May '08, is my survivor's tale, a memoir in verse about my mother's violence. The second book, not yet out but someday, one day will be, also by Autumn House is titled The Fire Bones and it chronicles my father's sexual abuse. It is meant to be the companion book to My Life as a Doll.

Red lines then as scaffolding for my particular horror story. Yesterday, in the strangest of places—a car dealership—there was a huge poster that read, "Thou Shalt Seek the Red Line." Eerie to find it there, to ponder its meaning, yet a vision soon came to me while walking by the sea of a red line encircling the earth with the whole human race, hand-in-hand, toeing it. Every one of us is susceptible to life behind that red line, many have crossed it either as the kept, the keepers or their loved ones and have felt just how universal suffering is. Let's stand together then on the red line, linked by the beautiful ruins of our common humanity, by the faithful failings of flesh and by the brutal truths that tutor us until we break open and earn our angel wings so we can take flight from fright, lift up and lift off as free spirits in the grace that transforms us from being lost to that of being found.

~~Elizabeth Kirschner at [redacted] and www.elizabethkirschner.com.

↑ Index

69. Poetry Project

Events at The Poetry Project May

Thu 7 May 2009

Dear Friends,

Creating time and space for poets to present their work to an open audience is at the heart of the Project¹s existence. Next week we have 3 great consecutive readings that serve as our Spring fundraiser. Attending one or ALL of these events is a perfect way to show how exuberantly you support poetry and The Poetry Project!

We love a full house but if you can¹t make it please consider making a $25 donation (about the price of 3 admissions) here <http://poetryproject.org/get-involved/donate-now> .

And check out our blog <http://poetryproject.org/project-blog> for a new post from guest blogger Edwin Torres, Star Black¹s photos from Kenward Elmslie¹s 80th Birthday Reading and a video clip of Ruxandra Cesereanu & Andrei Codrescu reading from FORGIVEN SUBMARINE.

Love,
The Project crew

Monday, May 11, 8 PM
Simon Cutts & Nancy Kuhl

Simon Cutts is a poet, artist and editor who began Coracle in the early 1970s, having worked with small publications from the 1960s. He began making work through concrete poetry, a form of visual presentation of the poem on the page. Now he sees book-form as the physical metaphor for the poem itself. The Coracle Press Archives are held in the Getty Research Institute in Los Angeles. A recent book of essays, Some Forms of Availability, was published last year by Granary Books, New York. Nancy Kuhl¹s first full-length collection of poems, The Wife of the Left Hand, was published in 2007 by Shearsman Books. She is the author of The Nocturnal Factory, a chapbook published in 2008 by Ugly Duckling Presse. Another chapbook, Means of Securing Houses &c. from Mischief by Thunder and Lightning, is forthcoming from Propolis Press. She is co-editor of Phylum Press, a small poetry publisher and Curator of Poetry of the Yale Collection of American Literature at the Beinecke Rare Book and Manuscript Library.

Wednesday, May 13, 8 PM
John Giorno

John Giorno was born in New York and graduated from Columbia University in 1958. Four years later, he met Andy Warhol, who became an important influence for Giorno¹s developments on poetry, performance and recordings. He was the ³star² of Warhol¹s film Sleep. He has collaborated with William Burroughs, John Ashbery, Ted Berrigan, Patti Smith, Laurie Anderson, Philip Glass, Robert Rauschenberg and Robert Mapplethorpe. In the decade of the 2000s he has collaborated with Rirkirt Tirvanija, Pierre Huyge, Elizabeth Peyton and Ugo Rondinone, who is his partner. He is the author of ten books, including You Got to Burn to Shine, Cancer in my Left Ball, Grasping at Emptiness, Suicide Sutra, and has produced 59 LPs, CDs, tapes cassettes, videopaks and DVDs for Giorno Poetry Systems. He founded the AIDS Treatment Project and is an important force in the development of Tibetan Buddhism in the West.

Thursday, May 14, 8 PM
John Ashbery

John Ashbery was born in Rochester, New York in 1927. His Notes from the Air: Selected Later Poems (Ecco, 2007) won the 2008 Griffin International Prize for Poetry. The Landscapist, his collected translations of the poetry of Pierre Martory, was published in 2008 by Sheep Meadow Press in the United States and Carcanet in the United Kingdom. The Library of America published the first volume of his Collected Poems in fall 2008. This will be his only solo reading in the NYC area during winter/spring of 2009, and the first one since his appearance at the 92nd Street Y this past October to celebrate the Library of America volume.

John Ashbery will be guest introduced by Charles North.

This event will be held in the Sanctuary of St. Mark¹s Church.

Friday, May 15, 6:30 PM and 8 PM
My Vocabulary Did This To Me:
Panel & Reading For The Collected Jack Spicer

This special event is to honor seminal West Coast poet Jack Spicer (1925-1965). My Vocabulary Did This to Me (edited by Peter Gizzi and Kevin Killian) is a landmark publication of this essential poet¹s life work, and includes poems that have become increasingly hard to find.

6:30pm: Panel in the Parish Hall with Dodie Bellamy, Samuel R. Delany, Kevin Killian, Jennifer Moxley & George Stanley. Moderated by Kevin Killian.

8:00pm: Reading in the Sanctuary with Dodie Bellamy, Anselm Berrigan, Julian T. Brolaski, CAConrad, Samuel R. Delany, Peter Gizzi, Kevin Killian, Basil King, Douglas A. Martin, Deborah Remington, Harris Schiff, Rod Smith, George Stanley, Lewis Warsh & Karen Weiser.

Co-presented with Poets House

Become a Poetry Project Member! http://poetryproject.org/become-a-member

Calendar: http://www.poetryproject.org/program-calendar

The Poetry Project is located at St. Mark's Church-in-the-Bowery
131 East 10th Street at Second Avenue
New York City 10003
Trains: 6, F, N, R, and L.
[redacted]
www.poetryproject.org

Admission is $8, $7 for students/seniors and $5 for members (though now those who take out a membership at $95 or higher will get in FREE to all regular readings).

We are wheelchair accessible with assistance and advance
notice. For more info call [redacted].

If you¹d like to be unsubscribed from this mailing list, please drop a line at [redacted].

↑ Index

70. Charles Bernstein
Robin Blaser (1925-2009)
Thu 7 May 2009

Robin Blaser died this morning.

<<May 18, 1925 – May 7, 2009>>

> <http://epc.buffalo.edu/authors/bernstein/blog/#05-07-09>

↑ Index

71. Charles Alexander
Re: Robin Blaser (1925-2009)
Thu 7 May 2009

Here's one for, to, & with Robin!

Such a presence, such a poet, such a human!

charles

charles alexander
chax press
[redacted]
411 N 7th ave, suite 103
tucson arizona 85705
[redacted]

On May 7, 2009, at 4:11 PM, Charles Bernstein wrote:

> Robin Blaser died this morning.
>
> <<May 18, 1925 – May 7, 2009>>
>
> <http://epc.buffalo.edu/authors/bernstein/blog/#05-07-09>
>
> welcome.html

↑ Index

72. Tenney Nathanson
Re: "total translation" redux
Thu 7 May 2009

—

↑ Index

73. Maria Damon
Re: Zinc Bar 5/10
Thu 7 May 2009

woo-hoo!
a polyglossic maelstrom of fun and excitement.

Joanna Fuhrman wrote:
> Anne Tardos
> and > Adeena Karasick
>
>
> http://www.adeenakarasick.com/
>
> http://www.annetardos.com/
>
> will read at the (New) Zinc Bar
> 82 West 3rd Street
> between Thompson and Sullivan
> Greenwich Village
> New York NY 10012
> 212-477-ZINC
>
> Sunday, May 10, 2009
> at 6:30 pm

>
>
> Upcoming Readings
>
> May 17th
> Jordan Davis & Chris Nealon & George Stanley
>
> May 24th
> Group Reading : You and I Will Both Be Fine
>
> Lauren Russell
> Eve Bois
> Vanessa Hope Schneider
> Kate Hall Lutzner
> Gina Inzunza
> Christine Hamm
>
> May 31
> Chris Martin & Frank Lima
>
> June 7th
> David Shapiro & Guest
>
> ----------
> Oriental Rug
> Turn any room into a work of art. Click now for beautiful oriental rugs!
>
http://tagline.excite.com/fc/FgElN1gwrdImN3wlAeVm10Ha0M9nG4Nd7auAbWtE51HBPJVE3eoupMfNVq4/
>
>

↑ Index

74. Maria Damon
Re: Robin Blaser (1925-2009)
Thu 7 May 2009

Another one of the greats has passed into the (mostly) invisible world. But he'll be under our bootsoles and in the aether into which and from which we draw poetry, which is he, Robin, Robin Blaser, puckish and ever-burning.

Charles Bernstein wrote:
> Robin Blaser died this morning.

>
> <<May 18, 1925 – May 7, 2009>>
>
>
>
>>>>> <http://epc.buffalo.edu/authors/bernstein/blog/#05-07-09>
>>>>>
>
>

↑ Index

75. Catherine Daly
Re: Poetry by Fiat in NYC
Thu 7 May 2009

---

as opposed to "by Chrysler"?

--
All best,
Catherine Daly
[redacted]

↑ Index

76. Mark Young
Now out from Otoliths — Quaternity, by Scott Glassman & Sheila E. Murphy
Fri 8 May 2009

Quaternity

Scott Glassman & Sheila E. Murphy

284 pages

Cover Design by K. S. Ernst & Sheila E. Murphy

Otoliths 2009

ISBN: 978-0-9806025-1-7

$16.45 + p&h

URL: http://www.lulu.com/content/paperback-book/quaternity/6783753

In Quaternity, Scott Glassman and Sheila E. Murphy ask, "...and what divination will rhetorize the oppositorum / attract the needed nightshade / counter pull assume high produce / to be revered osteo"? Do you understand the question? Whether you reply Yes or No, the point is that the excerpt can be understood to be a question. How? Through the push and pull of its music. Quaternity asks the reader to trust in words — the word itself and not what it supposedly signifies. For the word itself can be a musical note and it can suffice (more than suffice!) that certain combinations sing. The dictionary bows to Glassman and Murphy's seductive diction: "No curve to infinity can mimic bells." —Eileen Tabios

These collaborative pages elaborate vocal colors and chord-changing arrangements of sensory elision: musics of meaning. Quaternity is "lubrication-lit," aglow with the sensual pleasure of its making. Glassman and Murphy court rapture "where frogleaps suture kismet vines." —Tom Beckett

In Quaternity, Glassman and Murphy cease to make the usual "third thing" of collaboration – art and meaning immanent in shared composition – the end. Let the third be words and process, this material book, or tent camping, and start the box step waltz of four: author, author, writing, lunge. —Catherine Daly

↑ Index

77. Rob McLennan

new(ish) on rob's clever blog

Fri 8 May 2009

-- Arielle Greenberg's Given
-- Arc Magazine's Poem of the Year Contest
-- Headlight anthology #12
-- Gregory Betts & Dean Irvine reading jwcurry's news notes (photo)
-- a call for submissions from derek beaulieu (Calgary)
-- Ottawa International Writers Festival, spring 09: poetry cabaret #2 (talonlaunch) + #3
-- Ottawa International Writers Festival, spring 09: poetry cabaret #1
-- Event: new & established writers, no. 37.3
-- A more recent note about Leonard Cohen
-- Some Edmonton, thus;
-- kristen palm, the straits
-- filling Station #44
-- Easter poem
-- Margaret Avison's Listening: last poems
-- Jason Camlot, The Debaucher
-- Carrie Olivia Adams, Intervening Absence
-- call for submissions: Writing KOOT
-- Why I do not call myself a poet
-- jwcurrys newsnotes + other recent 1cents
-- Ottawa, Toronto + Edmonton book launches, rob mclennan's gifts

-- Ongoing notes: late March, 2009 (Tout Court Editions; Michael Dennis, Proper Tales Press; Andy Gricevich's Cannot Exist)
-- Rae Armantrout: Next Life and Versed
-- filling Station nos. 42 + 43
-- Collaborating with Trisia Eddy
-- Ongoing notes: some Canadian journals (The New Quarterly; Descant; Riddle Fence)
-- Open Letter 13:5 + 13:8: Reappraising Reappraising bpNichol
-- some upcoming events;
-- Today is my thirty-ninth birthday;
-- Further reading: Friday the thirteenth
-- two old poems embedded in thoughts on another birthday

www.robmclennan.blogspot.com

+ some other new things at the alberta, writing blog www.albertawriting.blogspot.com

+ some other new things at ottawa poetry newsletter, www.ottawapoetry.blogspot.com

+ some other new things at the Chaudiere Books blog,www.chaudierebooks.blogspot.com

-- writer/editor/publisher ...STANZAS mag, above/ground press & Chaudiere Books (www.chaudierebooks.com) ...coord.,SPAN-O + ottawa small press fair ...13th poetry coll'n - The Ottawa City Project ...novel - white www.abovegroundpress.blogspot.com * http://robmclennan.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

78. William Allegrezza

Ed Baker's Goodnight at Moria

Fri 8 May 2009

Ed Baker's new book _Goodnight_ is now available for free as an book at http://www.moriapoetry.com/ebooks.html. You can purchase a paper copy there if you want one.

Bill Allegrezza
www.moriapoetry.com

↑ Index

79. Nicholas Karavatos

Poet/Musican Collaboration Webcast Sunday Night

Fri 8 May 2009

Poet Nicholas Karavatos with guitarist Jeff Kelley - Webcast on KHSU-FM on Sunday Night

LISTEN LIVE in CALIFORNIA on Sunday, May 10 at 10:05 PM
KHSU 90.5 FM Arcata, 91.9 FM Crescent City-Brookings, 89.1 Ferndale-Fortuna, 89.7 Garberville, and 99.7 Willow Creek.
Live Streaming at http://www.khsu.org/

LISTEN LIVE in DUBAI on Monday, May 11 at 9:05 AM - Live Streaming at http://www.khsu.org/

While in California to perform at Accident Gallery in Eureka last January, Nick & Jeff spent an afternoon at KHSU studios at Humboldt State University. The afternoon was recorded by Tim Ayers who has edited down a 25 minute episode of "Mad River Anthology."

These are spontaneous collaborations between a poet and an electric guitarist.

Mad River Anthology is available on iTunes.
http://phobos.apple.com/WebObjects/MZStore.woa/wa/viewPodcast?id=286474699

Mad River Anthology
http://madriveranthology.wordpress.com/
http://www.khsu.org/program_list#TB_inline?height=300&width=400&inlineId=program_info

Nicholas Karavatos
http://nicholaskaravatos.blogspot.com/
Jeff Kelley
http://humboldtmusic.com/jeffkelley

Nicholas Karavatos, M.F.A.
Assistant Professor
Department of English
American University of Sharjah
P.O. Box 26666
Sharjah
United Arab Emirates
http://www.aus.edu

Hotmail® has a new way to see what's up with your friends.

http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/WhatsNew?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tutorial_WhatsNew1_052009

↑ Index

80. John Herbert Cunningham

computer problem

Fri 8 May 2009

I'm wondering whether anyone else encountered this problem and how they remedied it. I attempted to send quite a large file through Outlook. I, unfortunately, have the VISTA operating system. The file seems to have gotten stuck in Outlook and keeps attempting to send it. I've gone into the outbox to delete it without success. Help me if you can I'm feeling down.

John Herbert Cunningham

↑ Index

81. Wystan Curnow

Re: a place to stay in Philly for a few nights in June?

Sat 9 May 2009

---

try Clark House near UPenn--google it. Have stayed there, but check if it suits.
WystAN

_____
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [[redacted]] On Behalf Of Margaret Konkol [[redacted]]
Sent: Thursday, 7 May 2009 5:57 a.m.
To: [redacted]
Subject: a place to stay in Philly for a few nights in June?

Does anyone know of a place to stay in Philadelphia for a few nights in the third week of June? I'm traveling down there for research at the Rosenbach Museum and am hoping to find a couch/cheap place to stay. Any suggestions warmly welcomed!

Best and everything,

Margaret Konkol

[redacted]

↑ Index

82. Rob McLennan
a reading by five poets
Sat 9 May 2009

since congress is happening at carleton university, come to the carleton tavern to hear some participating poets!

lovingly hosted by rob mclennan doors 7pm, reading 7:30pm

The Carleton Tavern (upstairs),
223 Armstrong (at Parkdale)

Monday, May 25, 2009

with readings by:

> Clint Burnham (Vancouver)
> Christine Stewart (Edmonton)
> Ken Belford (Prince George)
> Peter Midgley (Edmonton)
> & Michelle Smith (Edinburgh)

author bios:

Clint Burnham is a Vancouver writer and teacher. His most recent books include The Benjamin Sonnets (Bookthug, 2009), Rental Van (Anvil, 2007), and Smoke Show (Arsenal Pulp, 2005).

Christine Stewart writes, teaches and researches experimental poetry and poetics in the English and Film Department, University of Alberta. Selected Publications: This Then Would Be the Conversation." Antiphonies: Essays on Womens Experimental Poetries in Canada. The Gig. 2008. Propositions from Under Mill Creek Bridge. Virgin Press. 2007. The Trees of Periphery: above/ground press, 2007. Pessoa's July: or the months of astonishments. Nomados Press. 2006. "We Lunch Nevertheless among Reinvention." Chicago Review. 2006. from Taxonomy. West House Press, 2003.

Ken Belford is the author of six books of poetry including lan(d)guage (Caitlin Press 2008), and when snakes awaken (Nomados 2007). A proponent of what he has termed lan(d)guage, Belford assembles his intellectually independent sequences out of the shifting language of the BC interior, writing out a type of poetic pidgin by mixing language markers of the modern west coast with an older contact lingo of the lands beyond the edge of the farmers and ranchers field. Self educated, Belford has lived in the roadless mountains of the headwaters of Northern BC's Nass River for half his life. He adapts language and ideas, making a writing with a governance and order of his own.

Lan(d)guage is his sixth book. He will be reading from lan(d)guage and a new manuscript, decompositions, to be published by Talon.

Peter Midgley is a storyteller and a writer of childrens books that have won international awards and have been translated into 20 languages. He is also the author of two plays, Archetypes and Namlish, a political farce about Namibian independence. Peter writes in both English and Afrikaans and his poetry has appeared in the South African journals, Literator and New Coin. Some poems also appear in The Story that Brought Me Here: To Edmonton from Everywhere. He is currently working on a bilingual volume of poems, perhaps i should / miskien moet ek and book-length creative non-fiction project, A Truce Stranger than Fiction: Reflections on Namibian Independence.

Michelle Denise Smith is a Postdoctoral Fellow at the University of Edinburgh. She was awarded a doctorate in English literature by the University of Alberta in 2008. Her poetry has appeared most recently in Arc, Grain, CV2, and The New Quarterly. She is fascinated by travel or,more to the point, Paris, and she is accordingly at work on a collection of travel essays and a novel titled Hitting the Ground. She is also close to completing her first collection of poems, mnemosyne above dark waters.

-- writer/editor/publisher ...STANZAS mag, above/ground press & Chaudiere Books (www.chaudierebooks.com) ...coord.,SPAN-O + ottawa small press fair ...13th poetry coll'n - The Ottawa City Project ...novel - white www.abovegroundpress.blogspot.com * http://robmclennan.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

83. Jill Chan
(no subject)
Sat 9 May 2009

Dear All,

My third book, These Hands Are Not Ours, published by Earl of Seacliff Art Workshop, is now available for pre-order. It will be released in early June 2009.

Jill Chan's These Hands Are Not Ours, her third book of poetry, explores the deep and sometimes uncanny relationships between our human experiences and our wider, more tenuous though, at times, no less ambiguous experiences of the divine. These poems are written in an almost subliminal language filled with beautiful tension and silent immensity.

Perhaps we are never created until we are brave enough to be made.

Until these hands are not ours
but the skyâ€™s,

we claim too much of the night,
the love,
its making.

(excerpt from 'Claim')

Jill Chan grew up in Manila, Philippines. She has a Bachelor of Science in Chemistry. In 1994, she migrated to New Zealand. Her poems have appeared in Poetry New Zealand, JAAM, Trout, Takahe, Asia and Pacific Writers Network, MiPOesias, Tears in the Fence, foam:e, and New Zealand Poetry Sound Archive. Her two previous collections, The Smell of Oranges, and Becoming Someone Who Isn't, were published by Earl of Seacliff Art Workshop. She is the editor of Poetry Sz: demystifying mental illness, and Numinous: Spiritual Poetry.

Please mention that you learned about These Hands Are Not Ours through the author when you order your copy via the link below:

http://www.earlofseacliff.co.nz/TheseHands.htm

Thank you very much.

Cheers

Jill

↑ Index

84. Adam Fieled

PFS Post: Paul Siegell and Joseph Bradshaw

Mon 11 May 2009

Check out nutrageous new work frrom Paul Siegell and Joseph Bradshaw on PFS Post:

http://www.artrecess.blogspot.com

Peace Out,
Ad

↑ Index

85. { brad brace }
Four Visual Poems
Mon 11 May 2009

Four Visual Poems

http://bbrace.net/nwo-pp.jpeg
http://www.bbrace.net/bobo.jpg
http://www.bbrace.net/forks.gif
http://www.bbrace.net/cashforcars.html

/:b

↑ Index

86. { brad brace }
url correction: Four Visual Poems
Mon 11 May 2009

Four Visual Poems

http://bbrace.net/nwo-pp.jpg http://www.bbrace.net/bobo.jpg (click to enlarge)
http://www.bbrace.net/forks.gif
http://www.bbrace.net/cashforcars.html

/:b

↑ Index

87. Paul Nelson
Blaser Obit
Mon 11 May 2009

---

http://www.vancouversun.com/News/Kitsilano+poet+remembered+sense+humour/1583925/story.html

Kitsilano poet remembered for sense of humour
Robin Blaser continued to teach rising poets after taking early retirement from faculty at Simon Fraser University
By Kelly Sinoski, Vancouver SunMay 11, 2009

Kitsilano poet Robin Blaser has died.
Robin Blaser, a renowned Kitsilano poet whose work was devoted to the avant-garde, has died after a battle with cancer.
His death, at the St. James Cottage Hospice in Vancouver last week, was just shy of his 84th birthday.
"He took the world with him when he went," friend and fellow poet George Bowering said Sunday. "That's how I feel ... he really loved the world a lot."

Blaser, who was raised in a small Idaho town, became one of California's triumvirate poets, along with Robert Duncan and Jack Spicer. The trio participated in what is known as the Berkeley Renaissance, contributing to postmodern poetry.

In 1966, Blaser moved to Canada after accepting a position at Simon Fraser University. Nearly a decade later, in 1974, he became a Canadian citizen and met his life partner, David Farwell.

Bowering, who travelled to San Francisco in the early '60s to meet Blaser, said he had much respect for the erudite poet with a great sense of humour.

Blaser not only received the Order of Canada in 2005 for his contribution to the arts, but was winner of the Griffin Poetry Prize for lifetime achievement in 2006 and the Griffin Prize for Poetry in 2008. He was awarded an honorary doctorate by SFU in March 2009.

Bowering said one of Blaser's major strengths was as a teacher. Despite taking early retirement from SFU in the 1980s, he continued to teach rising poets in his Kitsilano home.

"Students kept going to Robin's place instead of to Simon Fraser," Bowering said. "He was a great teacher for those who kept going to see him and for those who read his books."

Bowering noted that even though Blaser was one of Canada's best poets, "you would have to go a long way to find an English professor in Ottawa who's read him."

He described Blaser's work as challenging and hard work yet delightful, noting he never wrote straightforward sentences and it was as if he "kicked the hell out of the English language."

"You've got to have a lot of nerve to dig into [Blaser's] book and all those essays," Bowering said.

But when you do, he said, lessons can be learned. And in his short essays, Blaser's "great sense of humour" shines through, especially in his work over the past 20 years.

"He was a guy who could tell you everything and then tell you a joke," Bowering said.

Blaser is survived by Farwell as well as by his sister Hope Samac and brother Augustus Blaser.

[redacted]

Paul E. Nelson

Global Voices Radio
SPLAB!
American Sentences
Organic Poetry
Poetry Postcard Blog

Ilalqo, WA [redacted]

↑ Index

88. UbuWeb
Rare Audio from Anthology Film Archives (1964-1974)
Mon 11 May 2009

Rare Audio from Anthology Film Archives (1964-1974)
http://ubu.com/sound/afa.html

UbuWeb is pleased to annouce a new project in our ongoing partnership with Anthology Film Archives in New York City. This is the first in a series of over 1,000 tapes from the Anthology historic audio collection. These recordings feature many years worth of interviews, lectures, question & answer sessions and other amazing discoveries. The first series includes: P. Adams Sitney Interviews Kenneth Anger on WNYC's "Arts Forum" (1972); Charles Levine Interviews Robert Breer (July 1970); Jonas Mekas Interviews Emile De Antonio (11/06/1969); Jonas Mekas Interviews Emile De Antonio (11/06/1969); Poetry And The Film: Amos Vogel, Maya Deren, Parker Tyler, Willard Maas & Dylan Thomas Sessions 1 & 2 At Cinema 16 (10/28/ 1953); P. Adams Sitney Interviews Sidney Peterson On WNYC's "Arts Forum" (1976); P. Adams Sitney Interviews Sidney Peterson On WNYC's "Arts Forum" (1976); Annette Michelson Interviews Yvonne Rainer On WNYC's "Arts Forum" (01/25/1974); Pauline Kael And Stan Brakhage (1964); Robert Haller Interviews Carolee Schneemann (11/30/1973); Hollis Frampton At Binghampton University, Part 1 & 2 (03/11/1972); Ken Jacobs, Larry Gottheim, Stan Brakhage: Binghampton Council Of Churches (11/23/1970) defending a Hermann Nitsch action; Harry Smith Interviewed by P. Adams Sitney (1965). You can also read selections from FILM CULTURE Magazine (1955-1996) including many of the artists featured in the audio archive.

UbuWeb
http://ubu.com

↑ Index

89. Kyle Schlesinger
SIMON CUTTS AND NANCY KUHL TONIGHT at the POETRY PROJECT
Mon 11 May 2009

Simon Cutts & Nancy Kuhl
TONIGHT
MONDAY MAY 11, 2009
POETRY PROJECT
8:00 pm

Tonight I will have the pleasure of introducing Simon Cutts and Nancy Kuhl at the Poetry Project. This will be my last night as curator of the Monday Night Reading Series. Thanks to the staff, volunteers, readers, and everyone who has attended. It's been a blast. Hope to see you tonight!

Simon Cutts is a poet, artist and editor who began Coracle in the early 1970s, having worked with small publications from the 1960s. He began making work through concrete poetry, a form of visual presentation of the poem on the page. Now he sees book-form as the physical metaphor for the poem itself. The Coracle Press Archives are held in the Getty Research Institute in Los Angeles. A recent book of essays, Some Forms of Availability, was published last year by Granary Books, New York.

Nancy Kuhl¹s first full-length collection of poems, The Wife of the Left Hand, was published in 2007 by Shearsman Books. She is the author of The Nocturnal Factory, a chapbook published in 2008 by Ugly Duckling Presse. Another chapbook, Means of Securing Houses &c. from Mischief by Thunder and Lightning, is forthcoming from Propolis Press. She is co-editor of Phylum Press, a small poetry publisher and Curator of Poetry of the Yale Collection of American Literature at the Beinecke Rare Book and Manuscript Library.

The Poetry Project is located at St. Mark's Church-in-the-Bowery
131 East 10th Street at Second Avenue
New York City 10003
Trains: 6, F, N, R, and L.
[redacted]
www.poetryproject.org

Admission is $8, $7 for students/seniors and $5 for members (though now those who take out a membership at $95 or higher will get in FREE to all regular readings). We are wheelchair accessible with assistance and advance notice. For more info call [redacted].

↑ Index

90. steve russell
Glen Gould and the spoken word
Mon 11 May 2009

---

a little Glen Gould trivia from wiki... Gould, like Wittengstein's older? brother, was "possessed with genius." Wittengstein thought of himself as rather dull by comparison.
****

Having entertained a lifelong fascination with the hereafter, with theories of reincarnation and mystic numerology akin to those of Arnold Schoenberg, Gould believed that he would be reincarnated two years after his death in the person of Sam Caldwell, a media theorist and contrapuntal poet. This belief was strengthened by Gould's regrets (expressed particularly in his 1980 interviews with Bruno Monsaigneon) that he had not brought his contrapuntal radio work to a satisfactory stage of completion. With plans to explore to its logical conclusion the application of Wagnerian leitmotifs and J.S. Bach's contrapuntal textures in the medium of the spoken word, and particularly in poetry, Gould conceived of this fictional "second go-around" toward the end of his already immensely productive lifetime.

****

↑ Index

91. Jennifer Karmin
May 19: Dusie Press in NYC
Mon 11 May 2009

Boog City presents Dusie Press and the Dusie Players!
d.a. levy lives: celebrating the renegade press

Dusie Press (Switzerland)
http://www.dusie.org

Tuesday, May 19
6pm sharp
free

ACA Galleries
529 W. 20th St., 5th Flr.
NYC

Event will be hosted by Dusie editor Susana Gardner

Featuring readings from
Cara Benson
Elizabeth Bryant
Annie Finch
Susana Gardner
Jennifer Karmin
Nicole Mauro
Marthe Reed
Jessica Smith

Noise experiment poetics of the Dusie Players wine, cheese, and crackers, too

Curated and with an introduction by Boog City editor David Kirschenbaum

Directions:
C/E to 23rd St., 1/9 to 18th St.
Venue is between 10th & 11th avenues

The Dusie Kollektiv is made up of 50 poets who each produce a chapbook for distribution among the kollektiv members. In past years, participants have published their own chapbooks, but for this year, the third of the kollektiv, members published one another's chapbooks from author-editor combinations which were created randomly. Many editors published their chapbook under the name of a small press with which they were already affiliated, and some created small presses just for the kollektiv. The point with the various names of press was to reify ownership and flood the market with 50 new presses.

Each year is different for the kollektiv, as every year there are different participants. With that said, there are many loyal kollektiv members who have been with the project since the first year. Change is inevitable, and energy and enthusiasm are necessary, but ultimately it is the group ethos which has kept them together and moving forward. The project focuses more on process and risk, and writers have no inhibition regarding publishing as it is a completely open platform and all works get published. Also, the group exchange gives an extra push in way of timeline and production, which also motivates creation.

Cara Benson edits the online journal Sous Rature. Her first full length collection (made) is forthcoming from BookThug. Her chapbook Quantum Chaos and Poems: A Manifest(o)ation (BookThug) co-won the 2008 bpNichol Prize. Other chaps include He Writes (No Press), UP (Dusie Kollectiv), and, with Kai Fierle-Hedrick and Kathrin Schaeppi, Spell/ing ( ) Bound (ellectrique press). Benson edited the interdisciplinary book Prediction (forthcoming from Chain). She lives and writes in the analog world of upstate New York.
http://www.necessetics.com

Elizabeth Bryant is the editor and publisher of the ongoing lit experiment Defeffable, and CR79 Books. Her first full-length serial-poem (nevertheless enjoyment is forthcoming this fall from Quale Press, and her latest chapbook, Fluorescence Buzz, was published this spring via the Dusie Kollektiv. She has new poems and interviews in Dusie #8 and Gerry Mulligan, and a book review in the upcoming issue of Jacket. She is also co-curator of the Bard Roving Reading Series.

Annie Finch's books of poetry include The Encyclopedia of Scotland, Eve, Calendars, and Among the Goddesses, as well as Shadow-Bird from Dusie Kollektiv. She has also written or edited books about poetry, most recently Multiformalisms: Postmodern Poetics of Form, A Poet's Ear, and A Poet's Craft. She lives in Maine where she directs the Stonecoast low-residency M.F.A. program in creative writing. http://www.anniefinch.com

Susana Gardner lives in Switzerland where she edits Dusie Press and curates the Dusie Kollektiv. The author of several chapbooks, her first book [lapse insel weary], was published by The Tangent Press. She writes and translates and will soon begin a poetic reading series as well at the DADA Haus--Cabaret Voltaire, ZÃ¼rich.

Jennifer Karmin's text-sound epic, Aaaaaaaaaaalice, will be published by Flim Forum Press this year. She curates the Red Rover Series and is co-founder of the public art group Anti Gravity Surprise. Her multidisciplinary projects have been presented nationally at festivals, artist-run spaces, and on city streets. Karmin teaches creative writing to immigrants at Truman College and works as a Poet-in-Residence for the Chicago Public Schools. New poems are out in Cannot Exist, MoonLit, Otoliths, Come Together: Imagine Peace (Bottom Dog Press), and Not A Muse (Haven Books).

Nicole Mauro has published poems and criticism in numerous journals. She is the author of the chapbooks Odes (Sardines), Dispatch (co-authored with Marci Nelligan; Dusie), The Contortions (Dusie), and Tax-Dollar Super-Sonnet (Pendergast/Dusie). She is the co-editor, with Marci Nelligan, of an interdisciplinary book about sidewalks, Intersection: Sidewalks and Public Space (ChainArts). Her first full-length poetry collection, The Contortions, is due out from Dusie this year. She lives in the San Francisco bay area with her husband Patrick, and daughters Nina and Faye. She teaches rhetoric and writing at the University of San Francisco.

Marthe Reedâ€™s poetry has appeared in New American Writing, Golden Handcuffs Review, New Orleans Review, and Sulfur, and in numerous e-zines such as HOW2, MiPoesias, Exquisite Corpse, Aught, eratio, and Moria. New work appears in Big Bridge and is forthcoming from Fairy Tale Review. Her book, Tender Box, A Wunderkammer, is published by New Orleans' Lavender

Ink, and her chapbook (em)bodied bliss is published by jimmie pennies press and Dusie Kollektiv.

Jessica Smith is the editor of Outside Voices Press, an imprint of Bootstrap Productions. She is the author of Organic Furniture Cellar. She also edits Foursquare, a monthly women's poetry magazine.

The Dusie Players
The noise experiment poetics of the Dusie Players will be strange and experimental, unpredictable and odd. This will be the first performance of its kind for Dusie Kollektiv participants and include works of Dusie past, present, and future.

Next event:
Tues. June 30
Effing Press (Austin, Texas)
http://www.effingpress.com

↑ Index

92. Larissa Shmailo

Review copies of In Paran by Larissa Shmailo available

Tue 12 May 2009

Review copies of In Paran (BlazeVox 2009-poetry) by Larissa Shmailo are available. Please backchannel with name, name of journal/periodical, address, and email.

Thanks in advance!

↑ Index

93. Margaux Jones

The Task of Distributivity, The Fate of Interregnum, and The Aesthetics of Pantomicriticism

Tue 12 May 2009

---

http://distributivity.comoj.com/

To practice distributivity is to acknowledge the inevitability of pataphor, the paralinguisticality of perception, the boundedness of action, the passion of ideas, the beauty of era, the chains of bureaucracy, the possibilities of intuition and the uncanny delight of chance. In contrast to the syllogistic rationality of bureaudocile logistics, distributivity is situational, shifts with the winds, courts contradiction, feeds on inconsistency. I embrace a distributivity of bewilderment. I don't know where I am going and never have, just try to grapple as best I can with where I am. The dissemination that most engages me is not theoretically perspicacious. Indeed, it has a distributivity and an aesthetics, but not a predetermining theory. It is multiform and chaotic, always reformulating and regrouping. Competence is less important to me than responsiveness; mobility, ingenuity and invention more important than solutions to predefined problems.

--
Be Yourself @ mail.com!
Choose From 200+ Email Addresses
Get a Free Account at www.mail.com

↑ Index

94. Michael Kelleher
Literary Buffalo Newsletter 05.12.09-05.17.09
Tue 12 May 2009

LITERARY BUFFALO
05.12.09-05.17.09

Apologies for not sending the newsletter yesterday!

BABEL 2009-2010 SEASON SUBSCRIPTIONS ON SALE NOW!
Scroll down for details

EVENTS THIS WEEK

Visit the Literary Buffalo calendar at www.justbuffalo.org for more detailed info on these events. All events free and open to the public unless otherwise noted.

05.12.09

Talking Leaves Books
Linda Andre
Talk and Signing, Doctors of Deception:
What They Don't Want You to Know about Shock Treatment
Tuesday, May 12, 6:00 PM
Talking Leaves Books
3158 Main St.

Just Buffalo
Short Story Discussion Group: Raymond Carver, Edward P. Jones
Tuesday, May 12, 6:30 PM
Spot Coffee
Chippewa and Delaware Ave.

05.13.09

Earth's Daughters? Gray Hair Reading Series
Ken Feltges and Carole Southwood

Poetry Reading
Wednesday, May 13, 7:30 PM
Hallwalls Cinema
Babeville | 341 Delaware Ave. @ Tupper

05.15.09

Just Buffalo Interdisciplinary Performance Series
Mamapalooza, featuring Loraine O?Donnel of WECK 1230
&
5:00-5:40 Lydia Baines Al-Amin,Ë‡Storyteller
5:50-6:35 Meada Taylor,Ë‡Puppeteer
6:40-7:05 Faaria ,Ë‡Dancers
7:10-7:55 Daughters of Creative Sound,Ë‡African drum ensemble
8:10-8:55 Noa Bursie,Ë‡Vocalist/guitarist
9:00-9:50 Kilissa Cissoko,Ë‡vocalist/keyboards

Plus special tours ? Albright Knox works in the gallery permanent collection inspired by dance, poetry and music
Ë‡
6:30pm and 7:30pm Ë‡(45 minutes each)

Friday, May 15, 5 - 10 PM
Albright-Knox Art Gallery
1285 Elmwood Ave.
Buffalo

Blazevox Books/Rust Belt Books
Greg Gerke
Book Launch - There's Something Wrong with Sven
Friday, May 15, 7:00 PM
Rust Belt Books
202 Allen St.
Buffalo

05.16.09

Impact Artists' Gallery
The Stop Look and Listen Poetry Series
Alex Meade and open mic
Saturday, May 16, 2 PM
Impact Artists' Gallery
Suite 545, Tri-Main Center | 2495 Main Street

Talking Leaves Books
Lyndsey D'Arcangelo
Book signing for The Crabapple Tree

Saturday, May 16, 2:00 PM
Talking Leaves Books, 3158 Main St.

Just Buffalo Interdisciplinary Performance Series
Mamapalooza, with Annette Daniels-Taylor, Shirley Sarmiento, Annette Daniels-Taylor,Ë‡Poet/Music Verniece Taylor,Ë‡Vonetta Ë‡T. Rhodes, Liz Abbott,Ë‡Liz Mariani & Joyce Carolyn
Saturday, May 16, 7:00 PM
Rust Belt Books, 202 Allen St

Douglas/White Productions
Endocrinology Open Mic #4
Saturday, May 16, 7:00 PM
Sugar City
19 Wadsworth | (In Allentown)

BABEL

2009-10 SUBSCRIPTIONS ON SALE NOW.

October 9, A.S. Byatt
November 20, Ha Jin
March 5, Azar Nafisi
April 16, Salman Rushdie

Previous Subscriber: $85
New Subscriber: $110
These subscriptions include general admission seating at all 4 events.

Patron: $275
Patron Pair: $450
Patron level subscriptions include VIP reserved seating and admission to all pre-event author receptions.

Purchase subscriptions now at http://www.justbuffalo.org/babel or by phone at [redacted].

WRITER CRITIQUE GROUP

The member writer critique group is back on a new night: 1st and 3rd Tuesdays at the Market Arcade. Click here for more info:

http://www.justbuffalo.org/media/pdf/CritiqueGroup0409.pdf

WESTERN NEW YORK BOOK ARTS COLLABORATIVE WORKSHOPS

May 13 & 14 - Making Fonts

To register: http://www.wnybookarts.org/Spring09wkshps.php

_____

UNSUBSCRIBE

If you would like to unsubscribe from this list, just say so and you will immediately be removed. _____

Michael Kelleher
Artistic Director
Just Buffalo Literary Center
Market Arcade
617 Main St., Ste. 202A
Buffalo, NY 14203
[redacted]
[redacted] (fax)
www.justbuffalo.org
[redacted]

↑ Index

95. Joanna Fuhrman

Zinc Bar: May 17th

Tue 12 May 2009

Jordan Davis, Chris Nealon & George Stanley
Featured Poets:

May 17, 2009, 6:30-8:30 p.m.
The Zinc Bar, 82 West 3rd Street, NY, NY

Jordan Davis's first book is Million Poems Journal. He is a columnist for The Constant Critic. His poems have appeared in Faucheuse, The Germ, Quid, Baffling Combustions, and Shiny, among other journals. His essays and reviews have appeared at the Poetry Foundation, and in the TLS, San Francisco Chronicle, Slate, and The Nation. With Chris Edgar he edits The Hat, an annual journal. Chris Nealon is Associate Professor in the Department of English at at Johns Hopkins University. He is the author of Foundlings: Lesbian and Gay Emotion Before Stonewall (Duke UP, 2001), and two books of poems: The Joyous Age (Black Square Editions, 2004), and Plummet (Edge Books, forthcoming 2009). He is currently completing a book of criticism called The Matter of Capital: Poetry and Spectacle in the American Century. George Stanley is the author of a dozen books, including Seniors (2006), A Tall, Serious Girl (2003), At Andy's (2000) and Gentle Northern Summer (1995). He's the 2006 winner of the Poetry Society of America's Shelley Award and last week was nominated for this yearâ€™s B.C. Book Prizes Dorothy Livesay Prize for Poetry for his new collection Vancouver: A poem. He lives in Vancouver, Canada.

As always we ask for five dollars for the poets!

Scottrade - Official Site
$7 online trades. Fast web site. 400+ offices nationwide.
http://tagline.excite.com/fc/nNuAybaSkq5BFT1rSbQMXYqkGdmAiNaOU8LdZA0GIEmEgIbHubPotEE/

↑ Index

96. Anselm Berrigan

Fwd: reading next Sunday!

Tue 12 May 2009

(Jibade-Khalil Huffman presents)

An afternoon with

Anselm Berrigan &
Monica de la Torre

Sunday, May 17th
2:00 pm
232 East Broadway (F, J, M, Z to Essex-Delancey, or, B, D to Grand)
NY/NY

about the readers: Anselm Berrigan's books of poetry include Zero Star Hotel (2002) and Some Notes on My Programming (2006), both published by Washington D.C.'s Edge Books. His book Free Cell will be published later this year by City Lights. With his mother Alice Notley and brother Edmund Berrigan he co-edited The Collected Poems of Ted Berrigan, published in 2005 by the U. of California. They are currently working on a Selected Poems of Ted Berrigan to hopefully be published in the not too distant future. Berrigan is also a member of the subpress publishing collective, and will be releasing The Selected Poems of Steve Carey, edited by Edmund Berrigan, in June of this year. From 2003-2007 AB was Artistic Director of The Poetry Project at St. Mark's Church. He currently supports himself through a rotating array of teaching jobs at Pratt Institute, Bard College and Wesleyan University. He likes teaching but does not love it, hence the part-time status at the various schools. He is poetry editor for The Brooklyn Rail, and lives in the East Village, where he also happened to grow up. He is a poet, identifies only as a poet, and works in service of that art while happy for the existence of all the others.

MÃ³nica de la Torre is the author of the poetry books Talk Shows (Switchback, 2007);=2 0AcÃºfenos, a collection in Spanish published in 2006 in Mexico City by Taller Ditoria; and Public Domain (Roof Books, 2008). She writes about art and culture for publications in Mexico and the U.S. and is co-author of the artist book Appendices, Illustrations & Notes, available on Ubu.com. She co-edited the anthology Reversible Monuments: Contemporary Mexican Poetry with Michael Wiegers (Copper Canyon Press, 2002) and translated the books Poems by Gerardo Deniz (Lost Roads) and Mauve Sea-Orchids by Lila Zemborain (Belladonna Books). She is senior editor at BOMB Magazine and lives in Brooklyn.

in conjunction with Homebase IV

about Homebase: {HomeBase is an artist-run international art project, which aims to nurture a rich contextual exploration around the archetype of home. In pursuing this exploration annually, HomeBase seeks to integrate contemporary art into the everyday urban experience and to challenge the role of art as an educational tool for cross-cultural dialog and community cultivation.

The HomeBase model consists of marking a temporary base, a raw urban architectural site in a neighborhood undergoing change, and inviting international artists to engage in a three-week workshop that includes study, dialogue and communal dinners. As artists explore the personal and critical aspects of home and city dwelling, they create site-responsive installations in rooms in the base location.

The workshop is followed by a 3 week happening. The HomeBase site opens its doors to the public free of charge and features lectures, art talks , performances, and interactive events which transform the site into an exciting temporary urban platform. By merging community, architecture, and art, HomeBase becomes a home to an intercultural and inter-disciplinary experience.

Selected by New York Magazine's Jerry Saltz as Critic's Pick in 2008 and featured on NY1 and many other notable media channels, HomeBase has welcomed thousands of visitors through its doors and is expecting many more in during its future projectst in New York, Berlin, and London.}

↑ Index

97. peter ganick
remind, mind again
Tue 12 May 2009

---

a place for experimental literary texts:
http://pganickz.livejournal.com is 'open' to reading new material.

thanks.
peter ganick.
--
http://peterganick.info

↑ Index

98. peter ganick
remind, mind again
Tue 12 May 2009

---

forgot to include with livejournal announcement:
please send texts to <[redacted]>

thanks. peter ganick.

--
http://peterganick.info

↑ Index

99. David-Baptiste Chirot
Irish student hoaxes world's media with fake quote
Tue 12 May 2009

Irish student hoaxes world's media with fake quote

Irish student hoaxes world's media with florid but phony quote from dead French composer Shawn Pogatchnik, Associated Press WriterOn Monday May 11, 2009, 12:07 pm EDT

Buzz up!

Print

DUBLIN (AP) -- When Dublin university student Shane Fitzgerald posted a poetic but phony quote on Wikipedia, he was testing how our globalized, increasingly Internet-dependent media was upholding accuracy and accountability in an age of instant news.

His report card: Wikipedia passed. Journalism flunked. The sociology major's obituary-friendly quote -- which he added to the Wikipedia page of Maurice Jarre hours after the French composer's death March 28 -- flew straight on to dozens of U.S. blogs and newspaper Web sites in Britain, Australia and India. They used the fabricated material, Fitzgerald said, even though administrators at the free online encyclopedia twice caught the quote's lack of attribution and removed it. A full month went by and nobody noticed the editorial fraud. So Fitzgerald told several media outlets they'd swallowed his baloney whole. "I was really shocked at the results from the experiment," Fitzgerald, 22, said Monday in an interview a week after one newspaper at fault, The Guardian of Britain, became the first to admit its obituarist lifted material straight from Wikipedia. "I am 100 percent convinced that if I hadn't come forward, that quote would have gone down in history as something Maurice Jarre said, instead of something I made up," he said. "It would have become another example where, once anything is printed enough times in the media without challenge, it becomes fact." So far, The Guardian is the only publication to make a public mea culpa, while others have eliminated or amended their online obituaries without any reference to the original version -- or in a few cases, still are citing Fitzgerald's florid prose weeks after he pointed out its true origin. "One could say my life itself has been one long soundtrack," Fitzgerald's fake Jarre quote read. "Music was my life, music brought me to life, and music is how I will be remembered long after I leave this life. When I die there will be a final waltz playing in my head that only I can hear." Fitzgerald said one of his University College Dublin classes was exploring how quickly information was transmitted around the globe. His private concern was that, under pressure to produce news instantly, media outlets were increasingly relying on Internet sources -- none more ubiquitous than the publicly edited Wikipedia. When he saw British 24-hour news channels reporting the death of the triple Oscar-winning composer, Fitzgerald sensed what he called "a golden opportunity" for an experiment on media use of Wikipedia. He said it took him less than 15 minutes to fabricate and place a quote calculated to appeal to obituary writers without distorting Jarre's actual life experiences. He noted that the Wikipedia listing on Jarre did not have any other strong quotes. If anything, Fitzgerald said, he expected newspapers to avoid his quote because it had no link to a source -- and even might trigger alarms as "too good to be true." But many blogs and several newspapers used the quotes at the start or finish of their obituaries. He said the Guardian was the only publication to respond to him in detail and with remorse at its own editorial failing. Others, he said, treated him as a vandal who was solely to blame for their cut-and-paste content. "The moral of this story is not that journalists should avoid Wikipedia, but that they shouldn't use information they find there if it can't be traced back to a reliable primary source," said the readers' editor at the Guardian, Siobhain Butterworth, in the May 4 column that revealed Fitzgerald as the quote author. "It's worrying that the misinformation only came to light because the perpetrator of the deception emailed publishers to let them know what he'd done, and it's regrettable that he took nearly a month to do so," she wrote. Fitzgerald said he had waited in part to test whether news organizations or the public would smoke out the quote's lack of provenance. He said he was troubled that none did. And he warned that a truly malicious hoaxer could have evaded Wikipedia's own informal policing by getting a newspaper to pick up a false piece of information -- as happened when his quote made its first of three appearances -- and then use those newspaper reports as a credible footnote for the bogus quote. "I didn't want to be devious," he said. "I just wanted to show how the 24-hour, minute-by-minute media were now taking material straight from Wikipedia because of the deadline pressure they're under." Guardian article on controversy, http://tinyurl.com/djqd8w Soundtrack Geek blog on Jarre, http://tinyurl.com/d527zh Wikipedia site criticizing itself, http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Criticism--of--Wikipedia Hotmail® goes with you. Get it on your BlackBerry or iPhone.

_____ Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail®.
http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/QuickAdd?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tutorial_QuickAdd1_052009

↑ Index

100. Séamas Cain
Assembling in the eternal network
Tue 12 May 2009

_____

"NONE OF THE ABOVE : Assembling, Collaborating and Publishing in the Eternal Network"

A CALL FOR PARTICIPATION, to poets and artists ...

In an ambitious assembling-style project, Minnesota Center for Book Arts invites any and all to send 125 copies of anything that will fit into a 9" x 12" envelope.

This project is in conjunction with MCBA's upcoming exhibition "None of the Above : Assembling, Collaborating and Publishing in the Eternal Network."

An assembling project represents the ultimate in democratic art. Everything submitted will be included in the publication (or series of publications, depending on how many people participate). In return for your efforts, you receive a selection of 89 different works created by others who participate.

What to send? Any means of expression is fine (paper, CDs, stickers, popsicle sticks) but it can be no larger than 8.5" x 11" (21.6 cm x 27.9 cm) and 1/8" thick (.3 cm). It can be folded, stitched, crushed, flattened, etc. Shrunk-via-shrink-ray submissions are okay. If you need a theme, submissions will be compiled in publications titled "None of the Above." How's that for clear direction?

How many to send? Submit 125 copies. 89 of these will go to other participants. Additional copies will be archived, distributed to donors/volunteers, and a small number will be sold as a fundraiser for MCBA.

What else to send? So that we can send you your copy of the publication, include a sheet of paper with your name and postal address. Also include $5 in U.S. funds – checks payable to Minnesota Center for Book Arts – to cover the cost of envelopes and postage.

Where to send ...

"None of the Above,"
c/o Minnesota Center for Book Arts, 1011 Washington Avenue South, Suite 100, Minneapolis, Minnesota,
55415

Deadlines: If we receive submissions by August 21, 2009, they will be displayed as part of the associated exhibition. To be included in the publication, submissions must be received no later than October 24, 2009.

A special collating event will occur at MCBA on Saturday, October 24, 2009. For those who would like to participate, you may bring your 125 copies that evening rather than mailing. Then there is no fee.

Please e-mail Jeff Rathermel, MCBA's Artistic Director, at

[redacted]

by October 16, 2009 if you will be participating. Arrive at 7:00 p.m., assembly lines commence at 7:30 p.m.

Yours for the poetry of assembling,

Séamas Cain
http://alazanto.org/seamascain
http://seamascain.writernetwork.com
http://www.mnartists.org/Seamas_Cain

↑ Index

101. Small Press Traffic
SPT PRESENTS: SUMMER WORKSHOPS!
Tue 12 May 2009

We are so thrilled to announce these upcoming summer workshops with Small Press Traffic.
Please pass the word along to your friends and students.

*SITE-BASED PRACTICES with David Buuck & Jessica Tully
*Marin Headlands Bunkers
Sunday June 21, 11am-2pm
$40 ($30 for students and members)

Please join writer & critic David Buuck & artist & activist Jessica Tully for a site-specific workshop at the former military bunkers in the Marin Headlands. We will explore a wide range of methods and practices related to site-based writing & art practices, including several on-site exercises & experiments. This workshop is designed for ALL levels of interested writers & artists, to explore how we engage place, site, environment & the political histories therein as writers, artists, and citizens. We will provide optional pre-workshop reading that covers both the site's history as well as essays on site-writing & site-specific art practices. We will discuss & explore writing & research techniques as well as much more performative & embodied strategies of site-work, so be prepared to try new ways of thinking, moving, and working!

Note: We will arrange for car-pooling to the site, as well as lunch. Bring notebook, camera, sunscreen, outdoor shoes, layers for wind, etc. The Marin Headlands is home to several former military installations, including the bunkers, the Nike Missile Site, and the current home of the Headlands Center for the Arts.

*Conceptualism and Craft with K. Silem Mohammad
*CCA San Francisco Campus
Monday through Thursday July 6-10th
Time: 6pm-9pm
$125 / $100 students and members

This four-day workshop will begin by examining and rehearsing various techniques central to Conceptualist poetics, broadly considered so as to encompass appropriation, transcription, and other versions of what Kenneth Goldsmith has called “uncreative writing,” as well as the deliberately awkward and expressively debased gestures associated with Flarf. We will then look at these techniques in relation to older and more traditional notions of craft: can there be coherent criteria for craft-based evaluation of texts written using blankly conceptual or intentionally “bad” methods? Do any of the familiar aesthetic categories still apply, and if so, how?

Oakland A's /White Sox Game with Bill Luoma
Oakland Coliseum
Saturday August 18th
11am workshop/ 1:05pm game
$40 includes admission to the game and a baseball to take home/ $30 students and members

In the spirit of the Basketball Aritcle by Meyer and Waldman and Yo-Yo's with Money by Berrigan and Schiff, we will spend some time working on the body of baseball & poetry. Or just poetry since that encompasses baseball.

Note Scholarship admission is available for those who need it. Please contact Samantha for more information. To sign up or get more information by emailing Samantha Giles at [redacted].

--
Samantha Giles
Executive Director
Small Press Traffic Literary Arts Center
sptraffic.org
smallpresstraffic.blogspot.com

↑ Index

102. Maria Damon
Re: Blaser Obit
Tue 12 May 2009

---

i keep reading this as "Blaser Orbit," as if Robin were now in space, still with us but watching us with his usual gargantuan but refined enjoyment.

Paul Nelson wrote:
>
http://www.vancouversun.com/News/Kitsilano+poet+remembered+sense+humour/1583925/story.html
>
> Kitsilano poet remembered for sense of humour
> Robin Blaser continued to teach rising poets after taking early retirement from faculty at Simon Fraser University
> By Kelly Sinoski, Vancouver SunMay 11, 2009
>
>
> Kitsilano poet Robin Blaser has died.
> Robin Blaser, a renowned Kitsilano poet whose work was devoted to the avant-garde, has died after a battle with cancer.
> His death, at the St. James Cottage Hospice in Vancouver last week, was just shy of his 84th birthday.
> "He > took the world with him when he went," friend and fellow poet George > Bowering said Sunday. "That's how I feel ... he really loved the world > a lot."
> Blaser, who was raised in a small Idaho town, became one > of California's triumvirate poets, along with Robert Duncan and Jack > Spicer. The trio participated in what is known as the Berkeley > Renaissance, contributing to postmodern poetry.

> In 1966, Blaser
> moved to Canada after accepting a position at Simon Fraser University.
> Nearly a decade later, in 1974, he became a Canadian citizen and met > his life partner, David Farwell.
> Bowering, who travelled to San > Francisco in the early '60s to meet Blaser, said he had much respect > for the erudite poet with a great sense of humour.
> Blaser not > only received the Order of Canada in 2005 for his contribution to the > arts, but was winner of the Griffin Poetry Prize for lifetime > achievement in 2006 and the Griffin Prize for Poetry in 2008. He was > awarded an honorary doctorate by SFU in March 2009.
> Bowering said > one of Blaser's major strengths was as a teacher. Despite taking early > retirement from SFU in the 1980s, he continued to teach rising poets in > his Kitsilano home.
> "Students kept going to Robin's place instead > of to Simon Fraser," Bowering said. "He was a great teacher for those > who kept going to see him and for those who read his books."
> Bowering
> noted that even though Blaser was one of Canada's best poets, "you > would have to go a long way to find an English professor in Ottawa > who's read him."
> He described Blaser's work as challenging and > hard work yet delightful, noting he never wrote straightforward > sentences and it was as if he "kicked the hell out of the English > language."
> "You've got to have a lot of nerve to dig into [Blaser's] book and all those essays," Bowering said.
> But
> when you do, he said, lessons can be learned. And in his short essays, > Blaser's "great sense of humour" shines through, especially in his work > over the past 20 years.
> "He was a guy who could tell you everything and then tell you a joke," Bowering said.
> Blaser is survived by Farwell as well as by his sister Hope Samac and brother Augustus Blaser.
>
> [redacted]

>
>
> Paul E. Nelson
>
> Global Voices Radio
> SPLAB!
> American Sentences
> Organic Poetry
> Poetry Postcard Blog
>
> Ilalqo, WA [redacted]
>
>

↑ Index

103. Lori Emerson
Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?
Tue 12 May 2009

Hello, this is a bit embarrassing as I feel I should know this....but! Would someone mind telling me about the Rainer Gerhardt to whom Creeley dedicated a poem in For Love?

THANK YOU!
Lori

--
Lori Emerson
Assistant Professor | Electropoetics Thread Editor, Electronic Book Review
Department of English, University of Colorado at Boulder
Hellems 101, 226 UCB, Boulder, CO 80309-0226
http://www.colorado.edu/English/faculty/facpages/emerson.shtml
http://www.electronicbookreview.com

↑ Index

104. D. Wellman
Re: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?
Tue 12 May 2009

There is a full exposition in the most recent minutes of the Chares Olson Society, ed Ralph Maud, August 2007.

Donald Wellman
Daniel Webster College
http://faculty.dwc.edu/wellman/

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Lori Emerson
Sent: Tuesday, May 12, 2009 5:12 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?

Hello, this is a bit embarrassing as I feel I should know this....but! Would someone mind telling me about the Rainer Gerhardt to whom Creeley dedicated a poem in For Love?

THANK YOU!
Lori

--
Lori Emerson
Assistant Professor | Electropoetics Thread Editor, Electronic Book Review
Department of English, University of Colorado at Boulder
Hellems 101, 226 UCB, Boulder, CO 80309-0226
http://www.colorado.edu/English/faculty/facpages/emerson.shtml
http://www.electronicbookreview.com

↑ Index

105. richard owens
Re: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?
Tue 12 May 2009

Gerhardt. German poet. Olson on Gerhardt: "the first of Europe / I could have words with." both Creeley & Olson fond of his work (Cf. Olson, "To gerhardt, There, Among Europe's Things." also see Ekbart Faas RC bio.

.....richard owens
810 richmond ave
buffalo NY 14222-1167

damn the caesars, the journal
damn the caesars, the blog

--- On Tue, 5/12/09, Lori Emerson <[redacted]> wrote:

From: Lori Emerson <[redacted]>
Subject: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?

To: [redacted]
Date: Tuesday, May 12, 2009, 5:12 PM

Hello, this is a bit embarrassing as I feel I should know this....but! Would someone mind telling me about the Rainer Gerhardt to whom Creeley dedicated a poem in For Love?

THANK YOU!
Lori

--
Lori Emerson
Assistant Professor | Electropoetics Thread Editor, Electronic Book Review
Department of English, University of Colorado at Boulder
Hellems 101, 226 UCB, Boulder, CO 80309-0226
http://www.colorado.edu/English/faculty/facpages/emerson.shtml
http://www.electronicbookreview.com

↑ Index

106. Al Filreis
new PoemTalk: on Rodrigo Toscano
Tue 12 May 2009

Today we are releasing the new episode of PoemTalk - a discussion of Rodrigo Toscano's "Poetics" with Linh Dinh, Randall Couch and Emily Abendroth.

http://www.poemtalk.org

http://www.poetryfoundation.org/journal/audioitem.html?id=1612

- Al Filreis

Al Filreis
Kelly Professor
Faculty Dir., Kelly Writers House
Dir., Center for Programs in Contemporary Writing
University of Pennsylvania

on the web: http://writing.upenn.edu/~afilreis
blog: http://writing.upenn.edu/~afilreis/blog
PoemTalk: http://www.poemtalk.org
get your daily Al: http://bit.ly/1UCfRp

↑ Index

107. Mark Weiss
Re: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?
Tue 12 May 2009

There's a bio in German at http://de.wikipedia.org/wiki/Rainer_Maria_Gerhardthttp://de.wikipedia.org/wiki/Rainer_Maria_Gerhardt. He and his wife ran a press and a revue, he translated, edited, wrote poems and essays that are still read in Germany. Committed suicide in 1954--he was 27. Olson addressed two poems to him, "To Gerhardt, there among Europe's things of which he has written us in his 'Brief an Creeley und Olson,'" and "The Death of Europe."

Mark

At 05:12 PM 5/12/2009, you wrote:
>Hello, this is a bit embarrassing as I feel I should know this....but!
>Would someone mind telling me about the Rainer Gerhardt to whom >Creeley dedicated a poem in For Love?
>
>THANK YOU!
>Lori
>
>--
>Lori Emerson
>Assistant Professor | Electropoetics Thread Editor, Electronic Book Review
>Department of English, University of Colorado at Boulder
>Hellems 101, 226 UCB, Boulder, CO 80309-0226
>http://www.colorado.edu/English/faculty/facpages/emerson.shtml
>http://www.electronicbookreview.com
>

↑ Index

108. Daniel
Re: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?
Tue 12 May 2009

Lori,

See http://books.google.com/books?id=ztPfosyWpeAC&pg=PA107&lpg=PA107&dq=%22Rainer+Gerhardt%22&source=bl&ots=2xqP-NVX2l&sig=q4mMWEc6LiHtRasqT06EHa7Kof0&hl=en&ei=zPIJSoikBpO6M97g9NoL&sa=X&oi=book_result&ct=result&resnum=1#PPA108,M1

~ Dan Zimmerman

----- Original Message -----
From: "Lori Emerson" <[redacted]>
To: <[redacted]>
Sent: Tuesday, May 12, 2009 5:12 PM
Subject: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?

> Hello, this is a bit embarrassing as I feel I should know this....but!
> Would someone mind telling me about the Rainer Gerhardt to whom > Creeley dedicated a poem in For Love?
>
> THANK YOU!
> Lori
>
> --
> Lori Emerson
> Assistant Professor | Electropoetics Thread Editor, Electronic Book Review
> Department of English, University of Colorado at Boulder
> Hellems 101, 226 UCB, Boulder, CO 80309-0226
> http://www.colorado.edu/English/faculty/facpages/emerson.shtml
> http://www.electronicbookreview.com

↑ Index

109. jason snyder
Sidebrow: Call For Submissions
Tue 12 May 2009

Sidebrow (http://www.sidebrow.net) — an online & print press dedicated to innovation & collaboration — seeks fiction, poetry, art, essay, ephemera, found text, & academia, as well as creative response to current posts and ongoing projects.

Sidebrow's inaugural print anthology (http://www.sidebrow.net/2006/catalog.php) — a multi-threaded, collaborative narrative — features the work of 65 writers of innovative poetry and prose, including Brian Evenson, Cole Swenson, Chris Tysh, Elizabeth Robinson, Sandy Florian, Derek White, Norman Lock, Joshua Marie Wilkinson, and Noah Eli Gordon, among others. A second multi-threaded anthology, to be culled from work featured on the Sidebrow Web site, is slated for publication in 2010.

To be considered for inclusion in Sidebrow's ongoing collaborative experiment, send your best work to [redacted].

Submissions to Sidebrow (http://www.sidebrow.net/2006/submit.php) are evaluated both as stand-alone set pieces & as points of departure for establishing multi-authored/multi-genre works. Submissions that re-imagine, depart from, or explore the interstices between posted pieces are highly encouraged.

+ + + + + + + + + + + + + + +

RECENTLY LAUNCHED PROJECTS

Build: White Horse | Exploring the altered and its after effects
http://www.sidebrow.net/2006/whitehorse.php

City | Habitation and architecture in the literary domain
http://www.sidebrow.net/2006/city.php

+ + + + + + + + + + + + + + +

ONGOING PROJECTS

Epistolary | Reviving the epistolary novella
http://www.sidebrow.net/2006/epistolary.php

Ghost | Investigating the disembodied & otherworldly
http://www.sidebrow.net/2006/ghost.php

Build: Post-Hole | A multi-author menagerie of grotesques
http://www.sidebrow.net/2006/posthole.php

Build: Mother, I | A multi-author, multi-genre exploration of seeds sown by Bataille http://www.sidebrow.net/2006/motheri.php

Page 24 | Concerning and consisting entirely of page 24s
http://www.sidebrow.net/2006/page24.php

Build: Our Fathers | A multi-author paean to the paternal http://www.sidebrow.net/2006/ourfathers.php

Litopolis | Toward an aesthetic geography
http://www.sidebrow.net/2006/litopolissf.php

+ + + + + + + + + + + + + + +

For more information, and to peruse currently posted works, visit http://www.sidebrow.net.

Sidebrow is a member of the Intersection Incubator, a program of the Intersection for the Arts providing fiscal sponsorship for San Francisco Bay Area artists. Sidebrow books are distributed through Small Press Distribution (http://www.spdbooks.org/Producte/9780981497501/sidebrow-01.aspx).

Follow Sidebrow on Facebook:
http://www.facebook.com/pages/Sidebrow/68012168356

_____ Hotmail® has a new way to see what's up with your friends.
http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/WhatsNew?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tutorial_WhatsNew1_052009

↑ Index

110. Mark DuCharme

FW: Stratford Park Reading Series: OWEN, BIRMAN & WRIGHT June 9th

Tue 12 May 2009

Please join us for the debut event in the STRATFORD PARK READING SERIES.

Three extraordinary poets will help us celebrate the launch of this new series in north Boulder: MAUREEN OWEN, LAURA E. WRIGHT & LISA BIRMAN.

It all happens TUESDAY, JUNE 9th at 7:30 p.m.

3030 O'NEAL PARKWAY, Boulder, Colorado
(across the street from Naropa University's Paramita campus & the Boulder Cork restaurant)
http://www.mapquest.com/maps?city=Boulder&state=CO&address=3030+O'neal+Parkway&zipcode=80301

A Donation is requested— but All are welcome!

A reception will follow the reading

§

DIRECTIONS: O'Neal Parkway is off 30th Street in north Boulder between Valmont & Iris. Turn East at the signs for STRATFORD PARK WEST. The community house is the one-story building with a fence leading down to the street, half a block from 30th. Please park ONLY on O'Neal Parkway, O'Neal Circle, or in VISITOR spaces in the Stratford Park West lots. Please do not park in any other nearby lots. Thank you.

§

Maureen Owen, poet, editor and publisher, is the author of ten poetry titles, most recently Erosion's Pull from Coffee House Press, a finalist for the Colorado Book Award and the Balcones Poetry Prize. Her title American Rush: Selected Poems was a finalist for the L.A. Times Book Prize and her work AE (Amelia Earhart) was a recipient of the prestigious Before Columbus American Book Award. Other books include Untapped Maps and Imaginary Income. She has had work most recently published in YAWP magazine, Columbia Review, and Thuggery & Grace. She currently teaches at Naropa University both on campus and in the low-residency MFA Creative Writing Program and is editor of Naropa’s on-line zine not enough night.

Lisa Birman is the author of the poetry collection for that return passage - A Valentine for the United States of America, and co-editor of the anthology Civil Disobediences - Poetry and Politics in Action. Lisa is the Director of the Summer Writing Program and teaches poetry, prose, hybrid writing, and collaboration in the Jack Kerouac School of Disembodied Poetics at Naropa University. Laura Wright is a poet, librarian, and volunteer firefighter. She is the author of Part of the Design (Meeting Eyes Bindery, 2005) as well as various chapbooks. She recently co-edited, with Anne Waldman, Beats at Naropa, an anthology of talks from the Kerouac School to be published this summer by Coffee House Press; her translation of Henri Michaux’s La vie dans les plis (Life in the Folds) is forthcoming from Action Books.

§

If you no longer wish to receive email announcements of upcoming events in the Stratford Park Reading Series, please email [redacted] with the subject line "SPRS: REMOVE."

Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail®. See how.
Windows Live™: Keep your life in sync. Check it out.

Windows Live™: Keep your life in sync.
http://windowslive.com/explore?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_BR_life_in_synch_052009

↑ Index

111. Steve McLaughlin
Re: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?
Tue 12 May 2009

Gerhardt was a German poet who befriended Creeley by correspondence, and then in person when he and Ann were living in France in 1951. He also corresponded with Charles Olson, and translated Olson, Creeley, Pound, Williams and others. He published the magazine Fragmente, which included a story by Creeley in the second (and last) issue*. *He died in 1954, amid mounting debt and despair.

A German-language tribute to Gerhardt can be found here<http://www.literatur-live.de/strand/work/rmg_sek/>
.

You can find more information in Creeley's essay "Rainer Gerhardt: A Note"<http://www.escholarship.org/editions/view?docId=ft4t1nb2hc&chunk.idÐe10773&toc.depth=1&toc.idÐe7777&brand=esc

hol>and the "For Rainer Gerhardt"<http://books.google.com/books?id=ztPfosyWpeAC&pg=PA107&dq=%22for+rainer+gerhardt%22#PPA107,M1>chapter in Ekbert Faas's biography of Creeley.

-steve

On Tue, May 12, 2009 at 5:12 PM, Lori Emerson <[redacted]>wrote:

> Hello, this is a bit embarrassing as I feel I should know this....but!
> Would someone mind telling me about the Rainer Gerhardt to whom > Creeley dedicated a poem in For Love?
>
> THANK YOU!
> Lori
>
> --
> Lori Emerson
> Assistant Professor | Electropoetics Thread Editor, Electronic Book Review
> Department of English, University of Colorado at Boulder
> Hellems 101, 226 UCB, Boulder, CO 80309-0226
> http://www.colorado.edu/English/faculty/facpages/emerson.shtml
> http://www.electronicbookreview.com

↑ Index

112. Stephen Vincent
Robert Frank via Leo Rubenfein
Tue 12 May 2009

In the current issue of Art In America, Leo Rubenfein has written a very good piece on Robert Frank's, The Americans - this in association with the Frank show that started from the National Gallery of Art In Washington. The show is just opening at San Francisco's MOMA.

Rubenfein makes connections between Frank and the techniques of poets (particularly around the employment of images) who were active in Switzerland in the early 40's before Frank came to the States. And how these practices informed his picture taking, including the sequencing of the work in the book.

Some of which may explain the impulsive enthrall by poets with the book when it first appeared. In any case a real refreshing read.

Stephen V
http://stephenvincent.net/blog/

↑ Index

113. Kyle Schlesinger
Re: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?
Tue 12 May 2009

Fass might be the first (not last) stop.

> From: Lori Emerson <[redacted]>
> Reply-To: "Poetics List (UPenn, UB)" <[redacted]>
> Date: Tue, 12 May 2009 15:12:17 -0600
> To: <[redacted]>
> Subject: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?
>
> Rainer Gerhardt

↑ Index

114. Wanda Phipps
Reading for A Gathering of the Tribes #12
Tue 12 May 2009

Come to
A reading celebrating the publication of
A Gathering of the Tribes #12
Bowery Poetry Club
308 Bowery btwn Houston & Bleecker
[redacted] 1:30-3:30pm
Featuring Margarita Drago, Bob Hart, Bob Holman, Philip Levine, Myrna Nieves, Wanda Phipps (with guitarist Stephen B. Antonakos), Paul Pines, Jill Rapaport, Hersh Silverman, Miriam Stanley

http://www.bowerypoetry.com
http://www.myspace.com/agatheringofthetribes
http://www.tribes.org
http://www.myspace.com/wandaphippsband
http://www.myspace.com/homeboysteve

--
Wanda Phipps

Check out my websites: http://www.mindhoney.com and
http://www.myspace.com/wandaphippsband

My latest book of poetry Field of Wanting: Poems of Desire available at:
http://www.blazevox.org/bk-wp.htm

And my 1st full-length book of poems Wake-Up Calls: 66 Morning Poems available at:http://www.amazon.com/exec/obidos/ASIN/193236031X/ref=rm_item

↑ Index

115. Wanda Phipps

Sorry forgot the date

Tue 12 May 2009

The date for this reading is this coming Sunday, May 17th, 2009

Come to
A reading celebrating the publication of
A Gathering of the Tribes #12
Bowery Poetry Club
308 Bowery btwn Houston & Bleecker
[redacted] 1:30-3:30pm
Free

Featuring Margarita Drago, Bob Hart, Bob Holman, Philip Levine, Myrna Nieves, Wanda Phipps (with guitarist Stephen B. Antonakos), Paul Pines, Jill Rapaport, Hersh Silverman, Miriam Stanley

http://www.bowerypoetry.com
http://www.myspace.com/agatheringofthetribes
http://www.tribes.org
http://www.myspace.com/wandaphippsband
http://www.myspace.com/homeboysteve

--
Wanda Phipps

Check out my websites: http://www.mindhoney.com and
http://www.myspace.com/wandaphippsband

My latest book of poetry Field of Wanting: Poems of Desire available at:
http://www.blazevox.org/bk-wp.htm

And my 1st full-length book of poems Wake-Up Calls: 66 Morning Poems available at:http://www.amazon.com/exec/obidos/ASIN/193236031X/ref=rm_item

↑ Index

116. David Kirschenbaum
Boog City presents Dusie Press and the Dusie Players
Wed 13 May 2009

please forward

Boog City presents

d.a. levy lives: celebrating the renegade press

Dusie Press
(Switzerland)

This Tues., May 19, 6:00 p.m. sharp, free

ACA Galleries
529 W. 20th St., 5th Flr.
NYC

Event will be hosted by Dusie editor Susana Gardner

Featuring readings from

Cara Benson
Elizabeth Bryant
Annie Finch
Susana Gardner
Jennifer Karmin
Nicole Mauro
Marthe Reed
Jessica Smith

and the noise experiment poetics of the Dusie Players

There will be wine, cheese, and crackers, too.

Curated and with an introduction by Boog City editor David Kirschenbaum

---

Dusie Press
http://www.dusie.org/

The Dusie Kollektiv is made up of 50 poets who each produce a chapbook for distribution among the kollektiv members. In past years, participants have published their own chapbooks, but for this year, the third of the kollektiv, members published one another's chapbooks from author-editor combinations which were created randomly. Many editors published their chapbook under the name of a small press with which they were already affiliated, and some created small presses just for the kollektiv. The point with the various names of press was to reify ownership and flood the market with 50 new presses.

Each year is different for the kollektiv, as every year there are different participants. With that said, there are many loyal kollektiv members who have been with the project since the first year. Change is inevitable, and energy and enthusiasm are necessary, but ultimately it is the group ethos which has kept them together and moving forward. The project focuses more on process and risk, and writers have no inhibition regarding publishing as it is a completely open platform and all works get published. Also, the group exchange gives an extra push in way of timeline and production, which also motivates creation.

Performer Bios

Cara Benson
http://www.necessetics.com/

Cara Benson edits the online journal Sous Rature. Her first full length collection (made) is forthcoming from BookThug. Her chapbook Quantum Chaos and Poems: A Manifest(o)ation (BookThug) co-won the 2008 bpNichol Prize. Other chaps include He Writes (No Press), UP (Dusie Kollectiv), and, with Kai Fierle-Hedrick and Kathrin Schaeppi, Spell/ ing ( ) Bound (ellectrique press). Benson edited the interdisciplinary book Prediction (forthcoming from Chain). She lives and writes in the analog world of upstate New York.

Elizabeth Bryant

Elizabeth Bryant is the editor and publisher of the ongoing lit experiment Defeffable, and CR79 Books. Her first full-length serial- poem (nevertheless enjoyment is forthcoming this fall from Quale Press, and her latest chapbook, Fluorescence Buzz, was published this spring via the Dusie Kollektiv. She has new poems and interviews in Dusie #8 and Gerry Mulligan, and a book review in the upcoming issue of Jacket. She is also co-curator of the Bard Roving Reading Series.

Annie Finch
http://www.anniefinch.com

Annie Finch's books of poetry include The Encyclopedia of Scotland, Eve, Calendars, and Among the Goddesses, as well as Shadow-Bird from Dusie Kollektiv. She has also written or edited books about poetry, most recently Multiformalisms: Postmodern Poetics of Form, A Poet's Ear, and A Poet's Craft. She lives in Maine where she directs the Stonecoast low-residency M.F.A. program in creative writing.

Susana Gardner

Susana Gardner lives in Switzerland where she edits Dusie Press and curates the Dusie Kollektiv. The author of several chapbooks, her first book [lapse insel weary], was published by The Tangent Press. She writes and translates and will soon begin a poetic reading series as well at the DADA Haus--Cabaret Voltaire, Zürich.

Jennifer Karmin

Jennifer Karmin's text-sound epic, Aaaaaaaaaaalice, will be published by Flim Forum Press this year. She curates the Red Rover Series and is co-founder of the public art group Anti Gravity Surprise. Her multidisciplinary projects have been presented nationally at festivals, artist-run spaces, and on city streets. Karmin teaches creative writing to immigrants at Truman College and works as a Poet- in-Residence for the Chicago Public Schools. New poems are out in Cannot Exist, MoonLit, Otoliths, Come Together: Imagine Peace (Bottom Dog Press), and Not A Muse (Haven Books).

Nicole Mauro

Nicole Mauro has published poems and criticism in numerous journals. She is the author of the chapbooks Odes (Sardines), Dispatch (co- authored with Marci Nelligan; Dusie), The Contortions (Dusie), and Tax- Dollar Super-Sonnet (Pendergast/Dusie). She is the co-editor, with Marci Nelligan, of an interdisciplinary book about sidewalks, Intersection: Sidewalks and Public Space (ChainArts). Her first full- length poetry collection, The Contortions, is due out from Dusie this year. She lives in the San Francisco bay area with her husband Patrick, and daughters Nina and Faye. She teaches rhetoric and writing at the University of San Francisco.

Marthe Reed

Marthe Reed’s poetry has appeared in New American Writing, Golden Handcuffs Review, New Orleans Review, and Sulfur, and in numerous e- zines such as HOW2, MiPoesias, Exquisite Corpse, Aught, eratio, and Moria. New work appears in Big Bridge and is forthcoming from Fairy Tale Review. Her book, Tender Box, A Wunderkammer, is published by New Orleans' Lavender Ink, and her chapbook (em)bodied bliss is published by jimmie pennies press and Dusie Kollektiv.

Jessica Smith

Jessica Smith is the editor of Outside Voices Press, an imprint of Bootstrap Productions. She is the author of Organic Furniture Cellar. She also edits Foursquare, a monthly women's poetry magazine.

The Dusie Players

The noise experiment poetics of the Dusie Players will be strange and experimental, unpredictable and odd. This will be the first performance of its kind for Dusie Kollektiv participants and include works of Dusie past, present, and future.

Directions:
C/E to 23rd St., 1/9 to 18th St.
Venue is bet. 10th and 11th avenues

Next event:

Tues. June 30
Effing Press (Austin, Texas)
http://www.effingpress.com/

--
David A. Kirschenbaum, editor and publisher
Boog City
330 W.28th St., Suite 6H
NY, NY 10001-4754
For event and publication information:
http://welcometoboogcity.com/
T: (212) 842-BOOG (2664)

↑ Index

117. Jeff Gardiner
Re: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?
Wed 13 May 2009

Lori, He was a post-WWII German poet who published Fragmente. See Creeley's "Rainer Gerhardt: A Note" in Creeley's Collected Essays. Might also want to look at Olson's poem " To Gerhardt There, Among Europe's Things of Which He Has Written Us in His 'Brief an Creeley und Olson." Also, you can track Creeley and Olson discussing him in their correspondence.

Jeff

On May 12, 2009, at 2:12 PM, Lori Emerson wrote:

> Hello, this is a bit embarrassing as I feel I should know this....but! Would someone mind telling me about the Rainer Gerhardt to whom Creeley dedicated a poem in For Love?
>
> THANK YOU!
> Lori

> --
> Lori Emerson
> Assistant Professor | Electropoetics Thread Editor, Electronic Book Review
> Department of English, University of Colorado at Boulder
> Hellems 101, 226 UCB, Boulder, CO 80309-0226
> http://www.colorado.edu/English/faculty/facpages/emerson.shtml
> http://www.electronicbookreview.com
>
> welcome.html

↑ Index

118. Séamas Cain
Breakthrough in Berlin
Wed 13 May 2009

_____

BREAKTHROUGH IN BERLIN
Saturday the 27th of June 2009

CALL FOR PROJECTS ...

 Description

"Breakthrough" proposes an experimental, interdisciplinary event constructing a new field of research & play. "Breakthrough" signals the skewed extension & plain rupture with a series of earlier actions [in London, Bergen, Berlin] exploring the material basis of technology & expanding on the practice of life coding.

The term "breakthrough" describes a sudden shift in understanding or technologies, & finally a clearing (Lichtung), an entry into unknown & unmapped territories. An enclosure is breached allowing access to another, totally unforeseen state or space. Communication is thus implied, a new form of exchange, perhaps between two otherwise unconnected domains, between the living & the dead, between many worlds. What does the sheer possibility of a "breakthrough" imply for communication between the past & the future?

"Breakthrough," as event, signals a change in direction, a pointing towards new ways of actively describing & creating the world. Within a complex mise en scene of workshops, lectures & performances, diverse artists & poets, theorists, researchers, & hackers collaborate in the creation of a "breakthrough" which can rupture the enclosure of scientific rationalism & enlightenment without recourse to named magic.

http://www.piksel.no/2009/05/breakthrough-saturday-27th-june-2009-call-for-projects-berlin

http://www.1010.co.uk/

 Call for projects/actions:

"Breakthrough" calls for projects which perform, describe & construct (in process) a rupture or breaking through of the projects of rationalism & endeavour of past or future intention. Projection & play with time space co-ordinate points is encouraged.

Potential actions or investigations could very well extend into ...

practical endophysics, sound & radio wave transitions, diagrammatic formation, clustering & islanding, simulations coding & exploration, biologic interface, crashing, brain writing, construction, environmental steganography, data forensics, escape hatch literature, novel geometry description, life coding, poetry coding, interrupt theatre, sexual coding, amateur radio astronomy, etc.

"Breakthrough" will be prepared within a three day workshop in Berlin, towards the construction of a one day event distributed across the city of Berlin, & maintained with a strict scheduling & interrupt system backbone (micro-FM and Internet).

Please submit short messages of intent to

[redacted]

by the 29th of May 2009.

http://www.1010.co.uk/

"Breakthrough" is supported by Hauptstadtkulturfonds, Berlin 2009

http://www.hauptstadtkulturfonds.berlin.de/

 Postscript:

Byrne: "I do not want to get a long half-hour involvement about Faraday cages, diodes, or transistors & so on. Ken, in very simple language & very shortly, have you been able to break this thing technically?"

Attwood: "Technically, no."

[Voices From The Tapes. Peter Bander. 1973]

---

a m b i t : networking media arts in scotland

Multi-dimensionally,

Séamas Cain
http://alazanto.org/seamascain
http://seamascain.writernetwork.com
http://www.mnartists.org/Seamas_Cain

↑ Index

119. Pierre Joris

Recent Nomadics Posts

Wed 13 May 2009

Check out these recent posts on Nomadics blog: http://pierrejoris.com/blog :

“Whisk! Don’t Churn!” Concert @ Bowery Poetry Club
“Whisk! Don’t Churn!” Reviews & more “Counting to Infinity” Shown at Cannes Film Festival
George Economou on C.P. Cavafy Translations
Robin Blaser (1925-2009)
Pierre Guyotat on “Apostrophes”
Ted & Alice Collages
Ballard, Edwards, Peyrafitte & Waldman

& enjoy spring!

Pierre
==========
"Play what you don't know" -- Sun Ra
==========
Pierre Joris
244 Elm Street
Albany NY 12202-1310
h: [redacted]
c: [redacted]
o: 518 442 40 71
Euro cell: (011 33) 6 75 43 57 10
email: [redacted]
http://pierrejoris.com
http://pierrejoris.com/blog/
==========

↑ Index

120. Séamas Cain
The Haiku Foundation
Wed 13 May 2009

THE HAIKU FOUNDATION

http://www.thehaikufoundation.org

Dear Friends:

The Haiku Foundation, a nonprofit organization whose mission is to archive the accomplishments of the first century of haiku in English and to create greater opportunities for its second, was chartered in the state of Virginia, USA, on 6 January 2009. It is a volunteer organization primarily designed to create and implement projects centered around haiku. Most haiku organizations have privileged the poet and her needs: education, publication, socialization. The Haiku Foundation instead seeks to foster the growth of haiku itself. This is where poets come when they want to give back.

We are pleased to announce the public unveiling of our website. We hope you will visit it often and with pleasure. Please tell us how it serves you, and how it might serve you in the future. And most of all, we welcome your participation. Please join us to help us realize our goals.

Jim Kacian
The Haiku Foundation

http://www.thehaikufoundation.org

...

The Foundation appears to invite participation by a wide diversity of poets. And, it's web-site includes various examples by Marijan Cekolj, David Cobb, James W. Hackett, Jack Kerouac, Ezra Pound, and Richard Wright among other unexpected authors of haiku.

In minimum,

Séamas Cain
http://alazanto.org/seamascain
http://seamascain.writernetwork.com
http://www.mnartists.org/Seamas_Cain

↑ Index

121. Andy Nicholson

Re: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?

Wed 13 May 2009

Lori,

I haven't read Gerhardt's poetry, but I know that he was a German poet who published a couple issues of a magazine called Fragmente that included a number of American poets and had an interest in Creeley's poetry.

There's a chapter on the poem and on Creeley's relationship with Gerhardt in Ekbert Faas' book Robert Creeley: a Biography. The chapter starts on page 107 and is available through Google Books: http://books.google.com/books?id=ztPfosyWpeAC&pg=PA107&lpg=PA107&dq=%22rainer+gerhardt%22&source=bl&ots=2xqP0KST5j&sig=ls-sqt6gzbaUnI1GtLWk7RvQL78&hl=en&ei=EPcKStucAo6-NOrvuM8L&sa=X&oi=book_result&ct=result&resnum=3#

Creeley also writes a short note about Gerhardt in his Collected Essays, available here: http://www.escholarship.org/editions/view?docId=ft4t1nb2hc&chunk.idÐe10773&toc.depth=1&toc.idÐe7777&brand=ucpress;query=rainer%20gerhardt#1

Hope that helps,

Andy

On Tue, May 12, 2009 at 2:12 PM, Lori Emerson <[redacted]>wrote:

> Hello, this is a bit embarrassing as I feel I should know this....but!
> Would someone mind telling me about the Rainer Gerhardt to whom > Creeley dedicated a poem in For Love?
>
> THANK YOU!
> Lori
>
> --
> Lori Emerson
> Assistant Professor | Electropoetics Thread Editor, Electronic Book Review
> Department of English, University of Colorado at Boulder
> Hellems 101, 226 UCB, Boulder, CO 80309-0226
> http://www.colorado.edu/English/faculty/facpages/emerson.shtml
> http://www.electronicbookreview.com

↑ Index

122. John Steen
Re: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?
Wed 13 May 2009

Hi Lori,

From what I can find, Gerhardt was a German poet and friend of Creeley's in the early 50s. He published the small magazine, Fragmente, and translated two of Creeley's stories from Gold Diggers for its second issue in '52. Late in '51, C went to Freiburg to visit him, and the Fass, Trombacco, Mackinnon biography<http://books.google.com/books?id=ztPfosyWpeAC&pg=PA107&lpg=PA107&dq=rainer+gerhardt&source=bl&ots=2xqP0KVS2j&sig=P2up8_66zlSPPRERWrstBMcHa-M&hl=en&ei=RgILSsGGFZWNtgf9zZjFAg&sa=X&oi=book_result&ct=result&resnum=3#PPA107,M1>has a short chapter (12) on the visit--which included a lot of late night "conversation" and near fights--and the poem you mention in For Love, which Olson really liked.

Mary Novik's Robert Creeley: An Inventory has several other references to Gerhardt--looks like C published a note on him in the Pound Newsletter, number 4 (October 1954).

Hope this helps out,

John Steen
Dept. of Comparative Literature
Emory University

↑ Index

123. { brad brace }
[more] [and more] [and then still more] pleated plaid pamphlets
Wed 13 May 2009

---

these digital pamphlets will be amended as we go along... but why not pick-up an early edition now?
visual, verbal and media linked-contributions welcomed (email urls to the 12-list -- sub info follows)

ppp41
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-41/7011589
http://www.scribd.com/share/upload/11402203/vqqmxc1peusuilo07q9

ppp42
http://www.scribd.com/share/upload/11420119/1l9wr9aisb9x6ekk41d5
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-42/7021234

ppp43
http://www.scribd.com/doc/14885350/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-43
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-43/7025342

ppp44
http://www.scribd.com/share/upload/11471592/1doom4kmnglet0bwoplx
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-44/7032272

ppp45
http://www.scribd.com/doc/14943240/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-45
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-45/7033371

ppp46
http://www.scribd.com/doc/14950015/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-46
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-46/7035941

ppp47
http://www.scribd.com/doc/14961686/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-47
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-47/7042532

ppp48
http://www.scribd.com/doc/14976951/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-48
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-48/7048035

ppp49
http://www.scribd.com/doc/14983298/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-49
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-49/7050626

ppp50
http://www.scribd.com/doc/14991208/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-50
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-50/7055140

ppp51
http://www.scribd.com/doc/14998781/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-51
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-51/7059138

ppp52
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15017726/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-52
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-52/7065035

ppp53
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15025745/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-53
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-53/7068981

ppp54
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-54/7073080
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15033455/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-54

ppp55
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15034741/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-55
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-55/7073875

ppp56
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15052357/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-56
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-56/7080595

ppp57
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15060380/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-57
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-57/7085000

ppp58
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15063091/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-58
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-58/7086556

ppp59
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15068844/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-59
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-59/7089564

ppp60
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15092699/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-60
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-60/7098571

ppp62
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15116625/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-62
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-62/7109224

ppp61
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-61/7109297
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15116998/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-61

ppp66
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15177003/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-66
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-66/7116989

ppp67
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15183725/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-67
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-67/7117394

ppp68
http://www.scribd.com/share/upload/11687379/9kz27t7sh3mp5fimuwx
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-68/7117965

ppp69
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15192636/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-69
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-69/7118301

ppp70
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15195590/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-70
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-70/7119973

ppp71
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15198321/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-71
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-71/7121969

ppp72
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15198377/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-72
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-72/7122028

ppp73
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15241160/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-73
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-73/7131710

ppp74
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-74/7131908
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15241038/pleated-plaid-pamplet-vol-74

ppp76
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15275047/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-76
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-76/7145389

ppp77
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15275771/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-77
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-77/7145531

ppp78
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15277822/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-78
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-78/7145686

ppp80
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15278483/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-80

ppp81
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15282406/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-81
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-81/7146603

ppp82
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15282876/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-82
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-82/7146664

ppp83
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15352219/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-83
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-83/7149341

ppp85
http://www.scribd.com/doc/15353462/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-85
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-85/7149480

You cannot politically defy the institutions when all you really wanted was to be clasped to their bosoms and hope in time to be cherished under the very framework of oppressive values you are thinking of overcoming. That would be co-optation, revolution only in the sense of a circulation of elites rather than the extirpation of the very impulses of elitism.

Subject: field to [redacted]

↑ Index

124. Nicholas Ruiz III
Kritikos V.6 March-April 2009
Wed 13 May 2009

Kritikos V.6 March-April 2009

She is Late...(n.ruiz)

http://intertheory.org/she.htm

Nicholas Ruiz III, Ph.D
Editor, Kritikos
http://intertheory.org

↑ Index

125. George Bowering
Re: drummer
Wed 13 May 2009

Anyone out there got an e-mail address for Coolidge?

> George H. Bowering

Wishes your happiness.

↑ Index

126. Mark Prejsnar
Re: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?
Wed 13 May 2009

Lori, Â i'm sure others on the list know real substantive things about RG, ... but who knows. maybe i'm wrong? Â the little i know, is:

1. Olson dedicated to him his poems, "To Gerhardt, There Among Europe's Things of Which he has Written us in his 'Brief an Creeley und Olson' Â " Â and then "The Death of Europe (a funeral poem for Rainer M. Gerhardt)" ...Â

2. as you might guess from all this, he was a poet very intensely concerned with and responsive to US poets...

3. Â what else i've learned (and forgotten) Â i learned from the Tom Clark Olson bio, ... i don't have it with me, but one of the first places i'd start would be the index to that.... (not a real popular book on this list back when it came out ... but it has some usefulness, Â at the very least...)

mark prejsnar

"I don't get paid or anything; it's more like....a calling."

--Buffy Summers, on slaying (and, coincidentally, poetry)
Â ---------- Original message from Lori Emerson <[redacted]>: ----------

> Hello, this is a bit embarrassing as I feel I should know this....but!
> Would someone mind telling me about the Rainer Gerhardt to whom > Creeley dedicated a poem in For Love?
>
> THANK YOU!
> Lori
>
> --
> Lori Emerson
> Assistant Professor | Electropoetics Thread Editor, Electronic Book Review
> Department of English, University of Colorado at Boulder
> Hellems 101, 226 UCB, Boulder, CO 80309-0226
> http://www.colorado.edu/English/faculty/facpages/emerson.shtml
> http://www.electronicbookreview.com

↑ Index

127. Charlie Rossiter
Poetry at the White House
Wed 13 May 2009

The reading at the White House I want to hear about will happen when all the poets who have been dis-invited or turned down invitations are asked to come and read...people like Sharon Olds and Sam Hamill come to mind.

There are many more.

Yours in Peace & Poetry,

Charlie Rossiter

Poetry strengthens the community and honors the life of the spirit.
Gary Snyder
---
www.poetrypoetry.com
 where you hear poems read by poets who wrote them

www.myspace.com/charlierossiter hear Charlie as solo performance poet

↑ Index

128. Gwyn McVay
Re: drummer
Wed 13 May 2009

Calvin Coolidge returned absolutely no emails during his presidency, sry2say, earning the nickname "Silent Cal" and becoming the butt of many Twittered jokes by Dorothy Parker.

On Wed, May 13, 2009 at 4:14 PM, George Bowering <[redacted]> wrote:

> Anyone out there got an e-mail address for Coolidge?
>
> George H. Bowering
>
> Wishes your happiness.

--
This novel isn't suitable for you. The story is romantic and terrifying. Too gloomy. You should read something delightful.
-- Stephen Chow in "Fight Back to School II"

↑ Index

129. steve d. dalachinsky
Re: 5 special events
Wed 13 May 2009

steve's new 432 page collaboration with photographer jacques bisceglia reaching into the unknown

is now available
$50 great photos of everyone from duke ellington to sunra to william parker ayler taylor trane with poems to accompany each one backchannel steve hi everyone yuko and i will be out of town until the end of may hence the early invites Andrew Lampert, Steve Dalachinsky & Yuko Otomo invite you to join

The world premiere of their new collaborative film:
JACKA SPADES (a.k.a. GET THIS PICTURE HERE)
(2009, Super 8mm, 34 minutes, black & white, sound)

the second installment of Andrew Lampert's ongoing TABLES TURNED trilogy followed by a poetry reading by Steve Dalachinsky & Yuko Otomo on Sunday, May 31, 2009 @ 8 P.M.

$6

@ ISSUE PROJECT ROOM
at the Old American Can Factory
(232 3rd St. @3rd Ave., 3rd Fl., Brooklyn)

Subway: F to Carroll St
Walk east down 3rd St. over Gowanus Canal to 3rd Ave.
(5 min walk)

Subway F, M & R to Ninth St.-Fourth Ave. Stop
Walk north on 4th Ave. west on 3rd St. to 3rd Ave.
(5 min walk)

Lori Ellison & Sideshow Gallery invite you to join a reading

by

Vincent Katz
Yuko Otomo
Raphael Rubinstein

on June 1, Monday, 7:00pm

@ Sideshow Gallery
(319 Bedford Ave, Williamsburg, Brooklyn)
L train to Bedford Ave. stop (located on Bedford Ave. between S. 2 & S. 3 Sts.)

Free

Tribes Gallery and Idea Kitchen presents
steve dalachinsky reading and discussing his writing process and it's connection to music with host Patrick Brennan
on saxophone

Sunday June 7th 2 PM - 4PM
@ Tribes
Gallery 285 e. 3rd st. and ave. C (F to 2nd Ave, 21 bus to ave C and e.3rd st)

FREE

then at 5 PM steve, Yuko, Tsaurah, Tom and other poets meet at Carrol St near 3rd St in Brooklyn at 5PM for a poetry walk to end at Issue Project space by 6PM as part of a benefit for the space

all welcome to join in

June 12th at 8:15 PM - 9:30 as part of the 14th annual Vision Festival steve dalachinsky will read from his new collaborative book with photographer Jacques Bisceglia

REACHING into the UNKNOWN
at the Abronson Arts Center - 466 Grand St in the Experimental Theater with guest musicians William Parker, Joe McPhee, Roy Campbell, Sabir Mateen,

Rob Brown and Hamis Drake

preceeded at 7 by
the Charles Gayle Trio
and proceeded by Ras Moshe Joe Mcphee Matthew Shipp and others on the Main Stage

$25 in advance $30 at the door for the entire nite - $20 for seniors and students

_____ Find top-rated
Plumbers in your area.

↑ Index

130. John Perman
New BOOK
Thu 14 May 2009

Room Press announces the publication of John Perlman's new book, IDIOLECTS OF SILENCE, available in pdf format at [redacted]. Feel free to request a copy which is offered free as well.

↑ Index

131. Daniel Kane
'we saw the light: conversations between the new american poetry and cinema'
Thu 14 May 2009

...in case this strikes your fancy, my book "'We Saw The Light: Conversations Between the New American Cinema and Poetry" is available at a 20% discount from U of Iowa Press. Simply go to http://www.uiowapress.org/books/2009-spring/kane.htm and use the promo code IAKFB9 when ordering...hope some of you find it useful and interesting! The book looks at collaborations/influences between poets including O'Hara, Ashbery, Ginsberg, Creeley, and Lisa Jarnot and filmmakers including Robert Frank, Rudy Burckhardt, Kenneth Anger and Jennifer Reeves. best --daniel

↑ Index

132. Séamas Cain
Controversy in Dublin, Ireland
Thu 14 May 2009

_____

Dublin Writers Festival
http://www.dublinwritersfestival.com

Dear Administrators,

Once again the Dublin Writers Festival has excluded Irish-language writers from any meaningful participation in the Festival events and activities. This behaviour by the organizers is shameful, offensive, and imperious. Indeed, I call for a boycott of the Dublin Writers Festival. It is my intention to urge writers, artists, and other citizens (in Ireland, Britain, the U.S. and other countries) to withdraw any and all support from the Festival and its activities. I urge an earthquake of a protest campaign until there is a constructive remedy to this imperiousness!

For creative diversity in Ireland,

Séamas Cain
http://alazanto.org/seamascain

323 Fourth Street,
Cloquet, Minnesota,
U.S.A., 55720 - 2051

Phone (in North America) : [redacted]

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Gabriel Rosenstock
Date: Wed, May 13, 2009 at 10:51 AM
Subject: Dublin Festival Farce
To: [redacted]

Dublin Writers Festival
http://www.dublinwritersfestival.com

Greetings!

I had hoped that the days of literary and linguistic apartheid were well over. Seemingly not. It would appear that your festival has boycotted Irish-language writers. How sad. Pathetic, really, given the fact that an anthology of contemporary Irish-language poetry and prose, AMANAIRIS, has appeared in Slovenian and was recently launched in the National Library, Dublin, and reported below in the Slovenian press.

http://www.sta.si/en/vest.php?s=s&id=1389165

Mise, gan mórán measa agam oraibh,

Gabriel Rosenstock

Boycott and protest against the Dublin Writers Festival!

Séamas Cain
http://alazanto.org/seamascain

_____

↑ Index

133. Small Press Traffic
Correction: Bill Luoma workshop change of date
Thu 14 May 2009

Please note the change of date/time and oposing team for Bill Luoma's Summer workshop. Thanks!

*Oakland A's /Detroit Tigers Game with Bill Luoma
*Oakland Coliseum
Saturday August 22nd
3:45pm workshop/6:05pm game
$40 includes admission to the game and a baseball to take home/ $30 students and members

--
Samantha Giles
Executive Director
Small Press Traffic Literary Arts Center
sptraffic.org
smallpresstraffic.blogspot.com

↑ Index

134. maxpaul
New American Writing #27
Thu 14 May 2009

Now available:

NEW AMERICAN WRITING #27 with work from Mahmoud Darwish on Edward Said, Ben Lerner on Barbara Guest, Etel Adnan, Sylvia Legris, Phillip Foss, Clayton Eshleman, Ray Ragosta, Caroline Knox, Laynie Brown, Jennifer Pilch, Ales Steger, Brian Henry GC Waldrep, Brandon Shimoda, John Olson, Leonard Schwartz, Gassan Zaqtan, Fady Joudah, Rachel Loden, Sharon Dolin, Edward Smallfield, Joshua Kryah, Amy Pence, Linh Dinh, and many others.

Cover by David Maisel from "Library of Dust."

Available through our website by credit card (eventually) or by check to New American Writing, 369 Molino Avenue, Mill Valley CA 94941 ($15) or $36 for 3 issues.

↑ Index

135. David Kirschenbaum
Last Call to Advertise in Boog City 57
Thu 14 May 2009

Please forward

Advertise in

Boog City 57

featuring Urban Folk 20

Deadlines

—Space Reservations-Email to reserve ad space ASAP

—Fri. May 22-Submit Ad or Ad Materials
—Sun. May 31-Distribute Paper

This is a quick note to see if you'd like to advertise and reach our readership. (Donations are also cool, way cool.)

We'll be distributing 2,250 copies of the issue throughout the East Village and other parts of lower Manhattan; Williamsburg and Greenpoint, Brooklyn; and at Boog City events.

Advertise your small press's newest publications, your own titles or upcoming readings, or maybe salute an author you feel people should be reading, with a few suggested books to buy. And musical acts, advertise your new albums, indie labels your new releases.

Take advantage of our indie discount ad rate. We are once again offering a 50% discount on our 1/8-page ads, cutting them from $80 to $40. The discount rate also applies to larger ads.

For our full rate card, please visit:

http://welcometoboogcity.com/ad_rates.pdf

Email [redacted] or call 212-842-BOOG (2664) for more information.

as ever,
David

--
David A. Kirschenbaum, editor and publisher
Boog City
330 W. 28th St., Suite 6H
NY, NY 10001-4754
For event and publication information:
http://welcometoboogcity.com/
T: (212) 842-BOOG (2664)

↑ Index

136. Poetry Project
Events at The Poetry Project May
Thu 14 May 2009

Dear Friends,

Creating time and space for poets to present their work to an open audience is at the heart of the Project¹s existence. This week¹s readings serve as our Spring fundraiser and attending these events is a perfect way to show how exuberantly you support poetry and The Poetry Project!

We love a full house but if you can¹t make it please consider making a $25 donation (about the price of 3 admissions) here <http://poetryproject.org/get-involved/donate-now> .

And check out our blog <http://poetryproject.org/project-blog> for a new post from guest blogger Edwin Torres, Star Black¹s photos from Kenward Elmslie¹s 80th Birthday Reading and a video clip of Ruxandra Cesereanu & Andrei Codrescu reading from FORGIVEN SUBMARINE.

And scroll all the way down for information on upcoming screenings of a new Ed Bowes film at the Douglas Dunn Studio.

Love,
The Project crew

Thursday, May 14, 8 PM
John Ashbery

John Ashbery was born in Rochester, New York in 1927. His Notes from the Air: Selected Later Poems (Ecco, 2007) won the 2008 Griffin International Prize for Poetry. The Landscapist, his collected translations of the poetry of Pierre Martory, was published in 2008 by Sheep Meadow Press in the United States and Carcanet in the United Kingdom. The Library of America published the first volume of his Collected Poems in fall 2008. This will be his only solo reading in the NYC area during winter/spring of 2009, and the first one since his appearance at the 92nd Street Y this past October to celebrate the Library of America volume.

John Ashbery will be guest introduced by Charles North.

This event will be held in the Sanctuary of St. Mark¹s Church.

Friday, May 15, 6:30 PM and 8 PM
My Vocabulary Did This To Me:
Panel & Reading For The Collected Jack Spicer

This special event is to honor seminal West Coast poet Jack Spicer (1925-1965). My Vocabulary Did This to Me (edited by Peter Gizzi and Kevin Killian) is a landmark publication of this essential poet¹s life work, and includes poems that have become increasingly hard to find.

6:30pm: Panel in the Parish Hall with Dodie Bellamy, Samuel R. Delany, Kevin Killian, Jennifer Moxley & George Stanley. Moderated by Kevin Killian.

8:00pm: Reading in the Sanctuary with Dodie Bellamy, Anselm Berrigan, Julian T. Brolaski, CAConrad, Samuel R. Delany, Peter Gizzi, Kevin Killian, Basil King, Douglas A. Martin, Deborah Remington, Harris Schiff, Rod Smith, George Stanley, Lewis Warsh & Karen Weiser.

Co-presented with Poets House

Monday, May 18, 8 PM
Talk Series
Carolee Schneemann on Mysteries of the Iconographies

Carolee Schneemann is a multidisciplinary artist who has transformed the very definition of art, with work encompassing painting, film, performance and installation. Her works have been shown internationally, as well as at the LA Museum of Contemporary Art, the Hirshhorn Museum D.C., the Whitney Museum of American Art, the Museum of Modern Art, NYC. In 2007, a dual exhibit at CEPA Gallery, Buffalo NY & MOCCA Toronto featured recent video installations. Electronic Arts Intermix NYC and Anthology Film Archives NYC collaborated on presentations of newly restored and current film & videos November 2007. Correspondence Course is forthcoming from Duke University Press. In 2002 Imaging Her Erotics Essays, Interviews, Projects was published by MIT Press; previous published books include More Than Meat Joy: Complete Performance Work and Selected Writing (1979, 1997); ABC-We Print Anything-In The Cards; Cezanne, She Was A Great Painter (1976).

Wednesday, May 20, 8 PM
Paul LaFarge & Jacqueline Waters

Paul LaFarge is the author of three books, The Artist of the Missing, Haussmann, or the Distinction, and The Facts of Winter. He has written essays on Hannah Arendt, phrenology, and the game Dungeons & Dragons, among other topics. He is working on a project about flight in America. Jacqueline Waters is the author of a book, A Minute without Danger (Adventures in Poetry), and a chapbook, The Garden of Eden a College (A Rest Press). Recent work has appeared in No: A Journal of the Arts and Zoland Poetry. She is an editor of The Physiocrats, a new pamphlet press: ThePhysiocrats.com. (Lisa Robertson¹s reading, originally scheduled for this date, has been postponed)

Entanglement
a new film by ed bowes

This Sunday - Two Showings Only
May 17, 2009
9 pm 10:30 pm
at the Douglas Dunn Studio

541 Broadway (between Prince and Spring), Third Floor
Suggested Donation: $10 general public, $5 students
Open seating; no advance reservations
For info, call [redacted]

Entanglement (70 minutes) is a story about how we think, what we want, the ways of our visual memory,
the patterns and phrases that float through our minds.

Become a Poetry Project Member! http://poetryproject.org/become-a-member

Calendar: http://www.poetryproject.org/program-calendar

The Poetry Project is located at St. Mark's Church-in-the-Bowery
131 East 10th Street at Second Avenue
New York City 10003
Trains: 6, F, N, R, and L.
[redacted]
www.poetryproject.org

Admission is $8, $7 for students/seniors and $5 for members (though now those who take out a membership at $95 or higher will get in FREE to all regular readings).

We are wheelchair accessible with assistance and advance
notice. For more info call [redacted].

If you¹d like to be unsubscribed from this mailing list, please drop a line at [redacted].

↑ Index

137. UbuWeb
UbuWeb Blog
Thu 14 May 2009

UbuWeb is now blogging about new resources on the site, focusing on lost gems and shedding light on some of the things you may have missed or might not have been aware exist in the vastness of the archive. Think of it as a textual analogy to the UbuWeb Podcasts or our monthly guest-curated Featured Resources but it happens a whole lot more frequently.

http://ubuweb.tumblr.com/

UbuWeb
http://ubu.com

↑ Index

138. David-Baptiste Chirot
First Twitter Message From Space Sent
Fri 15 May 2009

--- On Thu, 5/14/09, SPACE.com <[redacted]> wrote:

First Twitter Message From Space Sent
http://www.space.com/missionlaunches/090514-sts125-space-tweet.html

---------- Visit http://www.SPACE.com - Something Amazing Every Day

_____ Hotmail® has ever-growing storage! Don’t worry about storage limits.
http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/Storage?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tutorial_Storage1_052009

↑ Index

139. CA Conrad
EATING Kafka . . .
Fri 15 May 2009

Rauan Klassnik did two interviews with me on the delicious earlobes of Kafka and my new book THE BOOK OF FRANK for THE HOLY LANG and HTML GIANT websites. Both can be found here:
http://CAConradINTERVIEWS.blogspot.com

--
PhillySound: new poetry http://PhillySound.blogspot.com

THE BOOK OF FRANK by CAConrad http://CAConrad.blogspot.com

↑ Index

140. Troy Camplin
Call for Submissions -- Emerson Institute
Fri 15 May 2009

The Emerson Institute for Freedom and Culture is looking for poetry, short fiction, plays, songs, scripts, and criticism for its upcoming issue online.

The Emerson Institute promotes natural classicism, understanding society as a spontaneous order, evolution, and emergence.

Please send all submissions in attachments responding to this email. Thank you.

Troy Camplin, Ph.D.
President, The Emerson Institute for Freedom and Culture
www.emersoninstitute.org

↑ Index

141. CA Conrad
ELVIS separates eggs reunites eggs essential eggs essential music
Fri 15 May 2009

POETS OFF POETRY invited me to write about ADVANCED ELVIS COURSE here: http://pop.coldfrontmag.com/2009/05/one-essay-one-poem-poets-off-poetry-a-mostly-monthly--series-where-poets-write-about-what-theyve-been-listening-to-la.html

Advanced ELVIS Course is NOW AVAILABLE in stores now from Soft Skull Press details here http://AdvancedELVIS.blogspot.com

CAConrad

--
PhillySound: new poetry http://PhillySound.blogspot.com

THE BOOK OF FRANK by CAConrad http://CAConrad.blogspot.com

↑ Index

142. susan maurer
book submission Susan Maurer
Fri 15 May 2009

Anyone out there who has just been waiting for a book mss. from me, just backchannel. I have 6 little books, 2 letterpress broadsides, 4 Pushcart nominations and had poems published over 400 times in 14 countries. Also interested in pooling experiences with others who are on this route. Hear me read on Hypster. Good luck to all of us. Susan Maurer _____ Hotmail® has a new way to see what's up with your friends.

http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/WhatsNew?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tutorial_WhatsNew1_052009

↑ Index

143. Jane Sprague

New from Palm Press: David Buuck's THE SHUNT

Fri 15 May 2009

Palm Press is pleased to announce the publication of David Buuck's full-length collection of poetry: The Shunt

The Shunt provocatively explores one of our most ordinary experiences of social discomfort-embarrassment for the flailing comedian and his all too visible affective labor-in a strikingly intelligent and utterly heartbreaking way. For all its acerbic tonality, The Shunt's affective agenda is thus the exact opposite of ironic cynicism, which is one of this brilliantly discomforting book's most delightful surprises.-Sianne Ngai

With its stutters, fractures, puns, sarcasms, and ironies, The Shunt is part of a cluster of books recently written by US poets attempting to understand what it means to live in a country that is constantly bombing other countries. But with its relentless attention to the group psychosis that this state of siege induces in US citizens, The Shunt is also something sui generis. This is your brain on war. --Juliana Spahr

In a blow-up doll of "meaty-ations," David Buuck's "pre-enactments" push us over a speed hump--a "World Wide Wedge" whose word-wilding labors to de-desertify globalization as it runs on "war dash time." Split betwixt Ginsberg and Prince, paranomasia and stutter, every page of this "writing degree Xanax" will remind you to take your meds from a (n undisclosed) place in the bunk-bed of history.--Judith Goldman

The Shunt by David Buuck
102 pages
perfectbound
$15.00
ISBN 978-0-9789262-8-1

Available directly from Palm Press
www.palmpress.org

and from SPD,Small Press Distriubution

↑ Index

144. Paul Siegell
Press 1 for STS9 > broadside
Fri 15 May 2009

Hi,

The publishers of Press 1 recently created a fascinating broadside out of my poem, 05.26.07 – Sound Tribe Sector 9 – Electric Factory, PA

You may find it, and other works, here: http://paulsiegell.blogspot.com/

Enjoy your weekend,
Paul

↑ Index

145. Jennifer Karmin
May 22-23: Poetry in Philly
Fri 15 May 2009

FRIDAY, MAY 22
7:30pm

Moles Not Molar presents
ISH KLEIN
MATTHEW KLANE
JENNIFER KARMIN performing with Adam Fieled & Michelle Taransky

at the CRANE ARTS COMMUNITY SPACE
1400 N. American Street -- Philly, PA
two blocks north of Girard Ave. between 2nd & 3rd
http://www.cranearts.com

Ish Klein's poems have been published in Bridge,The Canary, Gare du Nord, The Hat magazine, X-connect, Spork and Gut Cult. Her book, "Union!" came out April 2009 through the Canarium Press. Her films have screened all over the world and at Philadelphia's ICA. You can see some of them on youtube by searching â€œishkleinfilms.â€

Matthew Klane is founder and editor of Flim Forum Press. His new book is B_____ Meditations (Stockport Flats Press, 2008). Other recent work can be found in Absent, Otoliths, Open Letters Monthly and The New Chief Tongue. He currently lives and writes in Albany, New York.
http://www.matthewklane.blogspot.com.

Jennifer Karmin's text-sound epic, Aaaaaaaaaaalice, will be published by Flim Forum Press in 2009. She curates the Red Rover Series and is co-founder of the public art group Anti Gravity Surprise. Her multidisciplinary projects have been presented nationally at festivals, artist-run spaces, and on city streets. New poems are published in Cannot Exist, Otoliths, Come Together: Imagine Peace (Bottom Dog Press) and Not A Muse (Haven Books).

The goal of Moles Not Molar is to put writers and artists pursuing exciting, innovative and experimental textual projects into contact and dialogue with each other and their diverse audiences, creating exposure and engagement across regional and generic lines. http://www.molesnotmolar.com

 A N D ***

SATURDAY, MAY 23
7pm

Flim Forum Press presents
EMILY ABENDROTH
ELI DRABMAN
ERIC GELSINGER
JENNIFER KARMIN
MATTHEW KLANE

at ROBIN'S BOOKSTORE
108 South 13th Street -- Philly, PA
http://www.robinsbookstore.com

Emily Abendroth is a writer and artist, alternately residing in the San Francisco Bay Area and Philadelphia, Pennsylvania (where she co-curates the Moles Not Molar Reading & Performance Series). Recent work of hers can be found in Encyclopedia (Volume 2), Pocket Myths: The Odyssey Edition, horse less review, eco-poetics, and Cut & Paint. Her chapbook, Toward Eadward Forward, was published by horse less press this past November (2008)and a chunky excerpt from her book-length work-in-progress Muzzle Blast Dander can be found in Volume 3 of the Chain Links book series, Refuge/Refugee.

Eli Drabman's chapbook, the ground running, was published by Atticus/Finch. He wrote about Michael Cross for ON: Contemporary Practice and has work in P-QUEUE. He is also a musician.

Eric Gelsinger is one of the founding members of House Press, a Buffalo collective/diaspora of poets, artists, and musicians. His latest book is called Hooter. He regularly blogs his insights, critical reviews, and various creative outbursts at gelsingers.blogspot.com. He lives in Brooklyn, NYC.

Bios for Jennifer Karmin and Matthew Klane are listed above (see May 22).

Flim Forum Press provides space to emerging poets working in a variety of experimental modes. Flim Forum volumes include two anthologies Oh One Arrow and A Sing Economy, and The Alps by Brandon Shimoda.

http://flimforum.blogspot.com

http://flimforum.com

↑ Index

146. David Buuck

BARGE/Mission17 event 5/20 6-8pm

Fri 15 May 2009

Please join Mission17 Gallery & BARGE as we host another event in conjunction with the current â€œ17 Reasons Whyâ€ exhibit, an ongoing residency exploring the cultural politics of the Mission district, hosted by David Buuck & BARGE. Writers, artists, & activists Erick Lyle, Kari Orvik, and Nick Pagoulatos will present recent work related to the Mission District and anti-gentrification struggles in San Francisco. There will be food, drinks, and conversation as well, so please come by!

Erick Lyle is a writer, musician, activist, and zine editor. He is the author of On the Lower Frequencies: A Secret History of the City (Soft Skull), and since 1991 has edited the influential zine Scam. He has published work in a wide variety of cultural and political publications, performed in numerous bands, and worked with the Coalition on Homelessness in San Francisco. He spent much of the 90â€™s hopping freight trains around the country and living without electricity in abandoned buildings. For most of 15 years, now, though, he has resided mostly in San Francisco.

Kari Orvik is a San Francisco photographer whose work in low-income housing led her to start creating public portraiture projects. Like a portable JC Penney, she has set up on-site photo studios in SROâ€™s, on rooftops and on the street, where community members can get formal portraits for their own use. Displaying these portraits in public spaces has been a way to recognize as members of the community everyone who lives, works, hangs out in or passes through our public spaces. In 2007 she received a San Francisco Arts Commission Grant for her photo and video project Mission Portrait Studio.

Nick Pagoulatos is the Community Planning & Development Director at Dolores Street Community Services, and the Coordinator for MAC, the Mission Anti-Displacement Coalition, whose goal is to stop the displacement of working class people in the Mission District and San Francisco. He has also worked as the Project Director for St. Peterâ€™s Housing Committee and at the Mission Economic Development Agency on community planning, economic development, and land use issues. With a background in housing law and tenant advocacy, he holds a J.D. from the New College of California.

Wed. May 20, 6-8pm
Mission17 Gallery
2111 Mission Street @ 17th, 4th floor
mission17.org
buuckbarge.wordpress.com

↑ Index

147. David Buuck
Buuck/BARGE in LA 5/23
Fri 15 May 2009

Hey there-
I'll be giving a 'performance lecture' of some sort next Sat, featuring recent BARGE projects, with the amazing Liz Glynn, as part of the General Projects series at Outpost for Contemporary Art. Hope you can come out---

David Buuck & Liz Glynn
Saturday, May 23 from 4-7pm at Outpost for Contemporary Art 6375 N. Figueroa Street
Los Angeles, CA 90042
[redacted]
http://www.outpost-art.org/

Liz Glynn is an LA-based artist who explores the ambition of empire and the pleasure of ruin. Her practice seeks to embody dynamic cycles of growth and decay, and to propose direct action through sculptural material. Recent works include the 24 Hour Roman Reconstruction Project at the New Museum, and the In the Beginning is the End, a Processional for Los Angeles in Chinatown. Her work has also been presented at venues including Acuna-Hansen Gallery (LA), John Connolly Presents (NYC), and Beta Level (Los Angeles), and will be included in an upcoming project at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art. She received her MFA from California Institute of the Arts, and her BA from Harvard College. http://artsbeat.blogs.nytimes.com/tag/liz-glynn/

BARGE (the Bay Area Group in Enviro-aesthetics) was started by David Buuck in 2003. BARGE has organized several (de)tours around the Bay Area, investigating regional sites & spaces that are underrepresented & overlooked in more conventional touristic, commercial, & socio-political notions of place & public space. BARGE investigates how vernacular landscapes â€” from highways & billboards to waterfronts & public utilities, from industrial lots & server farms to military bases & surveillance zones â€” are constructed & inhabited, while also exploring the ways in which engaged psychogeography can provide new modes of counter-tourism & activism. Recent investigations include "Buried Treasure Island" (Yerba Buena Center for the Arts, 2008), "17 Reasons Why" (Mission17 Gallery, 2009), & "Matta-Clark Parks" (Root Division Gallery, 2009). The Shunt is just out from Palm Press (palmpress.org), and recent writing has appeared in SITE/CITE/CITY (2008), Artweek, Bombay Gin, With+Stand, Try, & elsewhere. buuckbarge.wordpress.com / davidbuuck.com/barge

↑ Index

148. Lisa Samuels

Re: 'we saw the light: conversations between the new american poetry and cinema'

Fri 15 May 2009

Daniel's book is indeed very interesting, plus it's beautifully produced & splendidly written in there's-a-real-person-there smart sparkly prose. Lisa

On Fri, May 15, 2009 at 3:28 AM, Daniel Kane <[redacted]> wrote:

> ...in case this strikes your fancy, my book "'We Saw The Light: Conversations Between the New American Cinema and Poetry" is available at a 20% discount from U of Iowa Press. Simply go to http://www.uiowapress.org/books/2009-spring/kane.htm and use the promo code
> IAKFB9 when ordering...hope some of you find it useful and interesting! The book looks at collaborations/influences between poets including O'Hara, Ashbery, Ginsberg, Creeley, and Lisa Jarnot and filmmakers including Robert Frank, Rudy Burckhardt, Kenneth Anger and Jennifer Reeves.
> best
> --daniel

↑ Index

149. Geoffrey Gatza

BlazeVOX 2k9 Late Spring 2009 now available

Sat 16 May 2009

BlazeVOX 2k9 Late Spring 2009

Now online: http://www.blazevox.org
Now online: http://www.blazevox.org

Featuring

mez breeze (web)
Rachael Stanford
Brooks Johnson
Patrick Chapman
Aaron Anstett
Abby Stringer
Scott Abels
Adam Siegel
adam strauss
Alec Newman
Andy Frazee
A.D.Hitchin
Ashley VanDoorn
Dennis Barone
Alex Stolis
Brian Hardie
Christie Ann Reynolds
Constance Stadler
Curt Hopkins
Darren Caffrey
David Tolkacz
David Wolach
Dion Farquhar
Donald Illich
Ed Baker
Felino Soriano
Glenn R. Frantz
John C. Goodman
James Brown
Jan Imgrund
Jay Snodgrass
Jennifer H. Fortin
Joe Hall
John Pursley III
John Moore Williams
Tom Jenks
Karen Sandhu
Tony Leuzzi
Letitia Trent
Larry Gaffney
Luca Penne
Nick Demske

Mike Lyne
Mark Cunningham
Matt Specht
Michael Bernstein
Michael Estabrook
Michael James Martin
Michael Opperman
mike ruddick
Myl Schulz
Naomi Tarle
Nathan Hauke
Nina Corwin
Paul Siegell
Paul Sutton
Dawn Christopher
Pete Miller
Rachel Weekes
Raymond Farr
RM Vaughan
Richard Spuler
Rodney Nelson
Steffi Drewes
Travis Cebula
Tyler Carter
Luke Moldof
Sam Schild

BuffaloFOCUS : Paul Hogan
Now online: http://www.blazevox.org/

Ebook :

Yukon Rumination: Great Fun for All in the Land of Sarah Palin¹s Joe Sixpack Alaska by Jennifer C. Wolfe

BlazeVOX 2k9
Now online: http://www.blazevox.org

This is an excellent issue, our largest ever! I was busy picking and choosing for this issue while recovering. It was particularly irksome to not be able to fully edit as my heart wanted to do, but I was able to dedicate a bit more time to the selection process. So hurray! We have work from writers at every stage in their career, from first publications to mid career to the well established! There is a delightful interplay between all of these pieces that move around the vastness of contemporary poetry.

Our goal is to present poetry that does not suck. This is the only criteria for our journal, well that and an interpretive freedom on the part of the contemporary poet, prose poet or fiction writer, with exponents of a wide range of viewpoints brought together to explore. And in that exploration we do not mean one specific interpretive approach. However, the freedom for a poet to come at the poem from a view that might well be extremely unusual but is actually bound up firmly with the content of the poem ‹ an approach that is centered on communicating that content with as much impact and individuality as possible. And with that, I think you will be extremely pleased with this issue!

BlazeVOX [books]

BlazeVOX [books] presents innovative fictions and wide ranging fields of contemporary poetry. We have over 100 titles that will satisfy any taste. Please browse our works and read a 15-page sample of each title. We also have 60 full ebooks, which are all free here. But if it is free poetry you want, check out our 500-page full sample book, which you may download here. What are you waiting here for? Get reading :-)

Our Full Catalog of books: http://www.blazevox.org/catalog.htm

New BlazeVOX books:

Celia Gilbert Something To Exchange
Barbara Henning THIRTY MILES TO ROSEBUD
Janna Plant The Refinery
Alejandro Crawford Morpheu
Dan Featherston The Radiant World
JJ Colagrande HEADZ
Laura Hinton Sisyphus My Love
Nico Vassilakis Disparate Magnets
Joseph Cooper Touch Me
Michael Basinski (ed.) Gerald Locklin: A Critical Introduction.
Chuck Richardson Smoke
Caty Sporleder Flay, A Book of Mu
Gregory Lawless I Thought I was New Here
Zachary Bush The Angles of Disorder
Jefferson Hansen Š and Beefheart Saved Craig
Larissa Shmailo In Param

Forthcoming Books:

Jared Schickling O
John Sakkis Rude Girl
Michael Gessner ARTIFICIAL LIFE
Amy King Slaves do these things

Craig Paulenich Blood Will Tell Sarah Sarai The Future Is Happy
david wirthlin Your Disappearance Derek Pollard Inconsequentia
Garin Cycholl Hostile Witness
Bill Howe translanations one Jessica Baron The Best Word for the Job of Mourning
John Vick Chaperons of a Lost Poet
John Woods The Complete Collection: Of People Places and Things
Katrinka Moore Thief
Marc Pietrzykowski The Logic of Clouds
Marcus Slease GODZENIE
Nicholas Hayes NIV: 39 & 27
Nicolas Mansito III 3rd & 7th
Rich Murphy Phoems for Mobil Vices
Steve Langan Meet Me at the Happy Bar
Matt Jasper Moth Moon
Timothy David Orme Catalogue of Burnt Text
Tom Holmes Henri, Sophie, & The Hieratic Head of Ezra Pound:
Goro Takano With One More Step Ahead

Order from us: http://www.blazevox.org/order.htm

You may also make a donation to BlazeVOX [books] and we will send you the book of your choice for $15. This includes shipping and is for folks the continental United States. To order, click on the Paypal button below. Please indicate which title you wish in your Paypal payment. You can also make a donation for a big block of BlazeVOX [books] - 10 books for $100. If I may be of any assistance please email me directly at [redacted].

Best, Geoffrey Gatza | Editor & Publisher | BlazeVOX [books]

↑ Index

150. Jonathan Penton

Announcing The First Annual WRITE REAL GOOD Poetry Chapbook Contest

Sat 16 May 2009

It's finally here! Our new print arm, Unlikely Books, is now operating at full speed, producing such beautiful volumes as Belinda Subraman's //Blue Rooms, Black Holes, White Lights// (http://www.unlikelystories.org/subraman0209.shtml) and Anne Lombardo Ardolino's forthcoming //I Can Sing Fire//. We are now holding a contest to find one chapbook of superior poetry to add to our 2009 catalog.

The contest's winner will receive publication and 20 free copies, additional copies cheap, and a unique marketing campaign including audiovisual "movie trailers," review copies, and promotion at one of the Web's longest-running 'zines. Oh, and $250 cash. All entrants will receive their choice of 2009's Unlikely Books.

So prepare 20-30 pages of poetry, $15 US, and head over to http://www.unlikelystories.org/writerealgood1.shtml for the first chapbook poetry contest that is actually cool, ever. Because if you don't WRITE REAL GOOD, what good is it?

--
Jonathan Penton
http://www.unlikelystories.org/

↑ Index

151. John Perlman
New Book by John Perlman
Sat 16 May 2009

Room Press announces the publication of John Perlman's new book, IDIOLECTS OF SILENCE, available in pdf format at [redacted]. Feel free to request a copy which is offered free as well.

↑ Index

152. Dan Wilcox
Third Thursday Poetry Night: May 21 - Rebecca Schumejda
Sat 16 May 2009

---

the Poetry Motel Foundation
presents

Third Thursday Poetry Night

at
the Social Justice Center
33 Central Ave., Albany, NY

Thursday, May 21
7:00 sign up; 7:30 start

Featured Poet: Rebecca Schumejda

Rebecca Schumejda's newest collection of poems "Falling Forward" was published by sunnyoutside in February. Currently, she is working on a collection of poems exploring the pool hall subulture. She lives in the Hudson Valley with her husband and daughter & works as a teacher at an alternative high school.

-- with open mic for community poets before & after the feature: $3.00 donation, suggested; more if you got it, less if you can't. Your busy host: Dan Wilcox.

↑ Index

153. Eric Elshtain

New Beard of Bees Chapbook

Sat 16 May 2009

Beard of Bees is pleased with its latest number:

Mothers, Daughters & Nightbirds by Martine Bellen

http://www.beardofbees.com/bellen.html

"...with collapsed space our dervish halts..."

Eric Elshtain
Editor
Beard of Bees Press
http://www.beardofbees.com

↑ Index

154. Joel Chace

Reading in Philadelphia--Ron Silliman and Joel Chace

Sun 17 May 2009

Folks:

I'm reading in Philly this coming Tuesday evening. The other reader is the great American poet and critic Ron Silliman. I'm more than honored and delighted to be on the bill with Ron!

See the link, below, for details.

All Best,

Joel Chace

http://www.robinsbookstore.com/events/051909-7.html

↑ Index

155. David-Baptiste Chirot

Visual Poetry flickr slideshow with many new works

Sun 17 May 2009

---

http://www.flickr.com/photos/chirotzer0/sets/72157618302466170/show/this slideshow has lot of works done in the last 3 weeks or so-- scenes never before seen nor heard of!

as Lazarillo de Tormes puts it enjoy!
dbC

_____
Windows Live™: Keep your life in sync.
http://windowslive.com/explore?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_BR_life_in_synch_052009

↑ Index

156. Steve Evans

Attention Span

Sun 17 May 2009

Wanted to let Poetics folks who might've enjoyed past installments know that another Attention Span is gradually unfolding in blog format here

http://thirdfactory.wordpress.com/

and

http://thirdfactory.wordpress.com/attention-span-directory/

It will eventually join its predecessors here

http://www.thirdfactory.net/attentionspan.html

Best wishes to all,

Steve

*
Associate Professor of English Graduate Program Coordinator
National Poetry Foundation 313 Neville Hall
University of Maine
Orono, Maine 04469
[redacted]

↑ Index

157. Krystal Languell

Call for Submissions: Bone Bouquet, a new online journal of women's poetry

Sun 17 May 2009

Bone Bouquet is a biannual online journal of women's poetry. We seek to publish the best new writing by female poets, from artists both established and emerging. We are especially interested in work that is unpredictable, poems that have both sass and authority.

We are currently seeking submissions for our first issue, which will appear as a downloadable .pdf at bonebouquet.wordpress.com in January 2010.

Please send up to five pages of your best work to [redacted]. Your work should appear as an .rtf attachment or in the body of the email. Also include a short (50 word) biographical note. Simultaneous submissions are fine, as long as we are notified when work is accepted elsewhere. The reading period will remain open through October 15, 2009.

Some female poets we admire include Catherine Bowman, Mary Ruefle, Eula Biss, and Denise Duhamel.

All best,

Krystal Languell

Editor, Bone Bouquet

↑ Index

158. Rob McLennan

two upcoming (ottawa) poetry events;

Sun 17 May 2009

---

lovingly hosted by rob mclennan
at The Carleton Tavern (upstairs)
223 Armstrong (at Parkdale)

1) Monday, May 25, 2009

> readings by Clint Burnham (Vancouver), Christine Stewart (Edmonton), Ken Belford (Prince George), Peter Midgley (Edmonton) & Michelle Smith (Edinburgh)

http://aboveground press.blogspot.com/2009/05/reading-by-five-out-of-towners-burnham.html

2) Friday, May 29, 2009

readings by Elizabeth Bachinsky (Vancouver), Matt Rader (Vancouver) and Marcus McCann (Ottawa)

http://abovegroundpress.blogspot.com/2009/05/second-event-of-out-of-towners-mostly.html doors open at 7pm, with readings at 7:30pm info: rob @ [redacted]

-- writer/editor/publisher ...STANZAS mag, above/ground press & Chaudiere Books (www.chaudierebooks.com) ...coord.,SPAN-O + ottawa small press fair ...13th poetry coll'n - The Ottawa City Project ...novel - white
www.abovegroundpress.blogspot.com * http://robmclennan.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

159. Adam Fieled
PFS Post: Jason Bredle, Jean Vengua, me!
Mon 18 May 2009

Check out splendid new work from Chicago's Jason Bredle, California's Jean Vengua, and two new sonnets from "moi" on PFS Post:

http://www.artrecess.blogspot.com

And please do check out Chimes as well:

http://www.blazevox.org/bk-af.htm

Peace Out, Strawberry Fields,
Ad

↑ Index

160. Michael Kelleher
Literary Buffalo Newsletter 05.18.09-05.24.09
Mon 18 May 2009

LITERARY BUFFALO
05.18.09-05.24.09

BABEL 2009-2010 SEASON SUBSCRIPTIONS ON SALE NOW!
Scroll down for details

EVENTS THIS WEEK

Visit the Literary Buffalo calendar at www.justbuffalo.org for more detailed info on these events. All events free and open to the public unless otherwise noted.

05.20.09

Talking Leaves...Books
Poetry reading/book signing with Anonymous of Elmwood
Wednesday, May 20, 7:00 PM
Talking Leaves Books, 3158 Main St.

05.21.09

Western New York Book Arts Collaborative
GRAND OPENING! Plus First Members? Exhibition
Summer workshops to be announced, plus: SPECIAL SURPRISE ANNOUNCEMENT!
Thursday, May 21, 6:00 PM
Western New York Book Arts Collaborative Building
468 Washington (@ the corner of Mohawk)

Talking Leaves...Books
Discussion/booksigning with UB Professor Henry Louis Taylor, Jr.
Thursday, May 21,7:00 PM
Talking Leaves Books, 3158 Main St.

BABEL

2009-10 SUBSCRIPTIONS ON SALE NOW.

October 9, A.S. Byatt
November 20, Ha Jin
March 5, Azar Nafisi
April 16, Salman Rushdie

Previous Subscriber: $85
New Subscriber: $110
These subscriptions include general admission seating at all 4 events.

Patron: $275
Patron Pair: $450
Patron level subscriptions include VIP reserved seating and admission to all pre-event author receptions.

Purchase subscriptions now at http://www.justbuffalo.org/babel or by phone at [redacted].

WRITER CRITIQUE GROUP

The member writer critique group is back on a new night: 1st and 3rd Tuesdays at the Market Arcade. Click here for more info:

http://www.justbuffalo.org/media/pdf/CritiqueGroup0409.pdf

UNSUBSCRIBE

If you would like to unsubscribe from this list, just say so and you will immediately be removed. _____

Michael Kelleher
Artistic Director
Just Buffalo Literary Center
Market Arcade
617 Main St., Ste. 202A
Buffalo, NY 14203
[redacted]
[redacted] (fax)
www.justbuffalo.org
[redacted]

↑ Index

161. Jonathan Skinner

CORACLE PRESS IN MAINE: TUESDAY 19TH MAY, MUSKIE ARCHIVES at BATES COLLEGE, 4:15 pm

Mon 18 May 2009

SIMON CUTTS & ERICA VAN HORN

THE METAPHOR BOOKS 1967-2009

4:15 PM, TUESDAY 19th MAY, MUSKIE ARCHIVES at BATES COLLEGE

If you are in New England, you can catch ³The Metaphor Books 1967-2009² (a talk given at Threads last week in New York City) this Tuesday in Lewiston, Maine.

Simon Cutts is a poet, artist and editor who began Coracle Press in the early 1970s, having worked with small publications from the 1960s. He began making work through concrete poetry, a form of visual presentation of the poem on the page. Now he sees book-form as the physical metaphor for the poem itself. The Coracle Press Archives are held in the Getty Research Institute in Los Angeles. A recent book of essays, Some Forms of Availability, was published last year by Granary Books, New York.

Writer and artist Erica Van Horn's work was exhibited in Book Arts in the USA, an exhibition of work by 51 artists (1990); and in New Work, the annual Artist Members Exhibition of the Center for Book Arts (1986). With Simon Cutts, Van Horn directs Coracle Press.

http://www.coracle.ie/

The metaphorical development of certain poem sequences and series in the work of Simon Cutts may be completed by the physical form of the book in which it is present. As such, it is intrinsic to the particular poem, well beyond the mere convenience of appended pages or the alignment of the poem as an accompaniment to illustration.

1967 Claude Monet In His Water Garden
1968 White Butterflies
Rue Montorgueil Decked Out With Flags
1982 a fold of sewn cotton 1984 mirroirs
1990 lines of thin pale blue and red, with Ian Hamilton Finlay
A History of the Airfields of Lincolnshire I 1992 aglio 6 olio
1994 The Waterfalls of New Hampshire in Winter
2000 A History of the Airfields of Lincolnshire II
2004 eclogues
2009 onglet

The event is free and open to the public.

Sponsored by the John Tagliabue Poetry Fund.

For more information, contact Jonathan Skinner / [redacted] / [redacted]

↑ Index

162. Nana Zabic
Submit to Packingtown Review
Mon 18 May 2009

The editors of Packingtown Review, a journal of the University of Illinois at Chicago, published by the University of Illinois Press, invite submissions for its second issue to be released in 2010. The journal publishes creative work including:

§ drama
§ poetry § fiction
§ creative nonfiction
§ literary translation

We seek submission of scholarly papers including:

§ interdisciplinary scholarship
§ literary criticism
§ comparative literature

§ critical theory
§ rhetorical studies
§ cultural studies
§ political theory

We also accept for consideration:
§ interviews
§ critical reviews of books, films and the arts in general
§ genre-bending work that explores or challenges form
§ graphic art and photographs

Whether scholarly or literary, we welcome edgy, fresh writing that may be experimental or that explores boundary crossings of/between genre(s) and form(s). What does it mean when poetry and prose are indistinguishable? What is lost – or found – in translation? When literary form is fluid, what happens to the relationship between art and criticism? Between the creative and the scholarly?

Please send up to 8,000 words (excerpts of longer works are acceptable) of prose (or genre-bending pieces), 40 pages of drama, or 3 to 5 poems (no more than 10 pages) to:
Packingtown Review
UH 2027 M/C 162
University of Illinois at Chicago
601 S. Morgan
Chicago, IL 60607

Deadline: Review of submissions for the second issue continues through September 1. Response time is approximately three months. For more information, visit www.packingtownreview.com or email us at: [redacted]. To order Issue 1, visit http://www.press.uillinois.edu/journals/pr.html

↑ Index

163. Dodie Bellamy

Dodie Bellamy's Summer Workshop

Mon 18 May 2009

Writing Experiments Workshop
Dodie Bellamy

My summer workshop will meet 10 consecutive Wednesday evenings, from 7 to 10 p.m. The dates: July 1 through September 2. Cost: $350 with a $100 deposit by June 17. Balance of payment will be due the first class.

In the past, the workshop has filled up quickly, so if you're interested, do contact me promptly.

Most weeks students will be assigned a short take-home writing experiment which they will share with the class the following week. Assignments will range from cut ups to exploring bodily sensations. Assignments are geared towards the class dynamic, so they may eventually drop away or they may continue for the duration of the class.

Each week we will also critique longer pieces by two to five students. Students may bring in anything they want (up to 20 pages) for the longer critiques. Depending on the length, these longer pieces will be read aloud in class or handed out a week ahead of time. Though this class will have a prose focus, it is cross-genre, and poets are welcome. The class is limited to 10 students. Lots and lots of personal attention. It takes place in San Francisco, in my South of Market apartment, which comes complete with snacks and cats.

This is a good class for poets wanting to play around with narrative or prose writers wanting to open up their prose.

About me: Pink Steam, my collection of fiction, memoir, and memoiresque essays, was published in 2004 by San Francisco's Suspect Thoughts Press. My vampire novel, The Letters of Mina Harker was reprinted by University of Wisconsin Press, also in 2004. Academonia, a book of essays was published by Krupskaya in 2006. My latest chapbook, Barf Manifesto, came out from Ugly Duckling in 2008. I'm the author of 3 other books and I teach creative writing at SF State, CCA and Antioch Los Angeles. I've also taught at CalArts, Naropa summer session, Mills, USF, UC Santa Cruz, and the SF Art Institute. I've received the Bay Guardian Goldie Award for Literature and the Firecracker Alternative Book Award for Poetry.

If you're interested, please email about work samples, etc. Or--if you know anybody who might be interested, please pass this email along to them. If you're interested do contact me promptly. Preference given to those not currently enrolled in a grad writing program.

↑ Index

164. Lori Emerson

Re: Creeley's Rainer Gerhardt?

Mon 18 May 2009

Hello ALL! Wow - what a wonderful series of helpful replies to my query! Thanks ever much to all - it's been fascinating finding out about this person that I hadn't paid any attention to before. I got curious because a student of mine has a relative (now deceased) in Germany by the same name and we were wondering if it could have been the same person. His relative was an architect, though I suppose there's still a chance that they are related in some way.

Anyways, thanks every much to all - this is exactly what's still so valuable about the poetics listserv.

yours, Lori

On Wed, May 13, 2009 at 11:39 AM, John Steen <[redacted]> wrote:
> Hi Lori,
>
> From what I can find, Gerhardt was a German poet and friend of Creeley's in > the early 50s. He published the small magazine, Fragmente, and translated > two of Creeley's stories from Gold Diggers for its second issue in '52.
> Late in '51, C went to Freiburg to visit him, and the Fass, Trombacco, > Mackinnon biography<http://books.google.com/books?
id=ztPfosyWpeAC&pg=PA107&lpg=PA107&dq=rainer+gerhardt&source=bl&
ots=2xqP0KVS2j&sig=P2up8_66zlSPPRERWrstBMcHa-M&hl=en&ei=RgILSsGGFZWNtgf9zZjFAg&sa=X&oi=book_result&ct=result&r esnum=3#PPA107,M1>has > a short chapter (12) on the visit--which included a lot of late night
> "conversation" and near fights--and the poem you mention in For Love, > which Olson really liked.
>
> Mary Novik's Robert Creeley: An Inventory has several other references to > Gerhardt--looks like C published a note on him in the Pound Newsletter, > number 4 (October 1954).
>
> Hope this helps out,
>
> John Steen
> Dept. of Comparative Literature
> Emory University
>
>

--
Lori Emerson
Assistant Professor | Electropoetics Thread Editor, Electronic Book Review
Department of English, University of Colorado at Boulder
Hellems 101, 226 UCB, Boulder, CO 80309-0226
http://www.colorado.edu/English/faculty/facpages/emerson.shtml
http://www.electronicbookreview.com

↑ Index

165. Jenny Sampirisi
Other Cl/utter & The Scream: A call for submissions
Mon 18 May 2009

Preliminaries: If you've never visited the visual poetry website Other Cl/utter before you can go to www.otherclutter.com to see what it's on about. If you've not yet stumbled on the Scream Literary Festival, skim and peck your way over to www.thescream.ca

The Call: This year the Scream Literary Festival has chosen 'The Book is Dead' as its theme. Yes, dead. Up and croaked. Each year we have an on-theme gallery showing in the basement of Type Books located in Toronto's Queen West district where the Scream also holds workshops and other events. The gallery stays up for the duration of the festival (this year July 2-13) and is generally curated by someone from the writing community with an interest in the subject-matter (this year Jenny Sampirisi, facilitator of Other Cl/utter and Bill Kennedy, co-compiler of the Apostrophe Engine are heading up the gallery showing). Given this year's theme we're looking to have book works, treated text, and book objects and/or their destruction. The artwork will be placed inside the gallery and will also be displayed on Other Cl/utter as a digital extension of the event.

Works can speak to the growing worry of the obsolete book object in favour of a digital information system; they can examine the role of something like an archive, a dictionary, a non-searchable database; they might present new challenges to the authoritative functions of the book or question the relevance of published textual knowledge and the limitations of the book as a finite, bound object currently faced with potential dematerialization.

Sculpture, audio, paper works, digital imagery and documentation of conceptual art projects are all welcome

Please send submissions and queries to [redacted]. And feel free to pass this on to interested third parties.

↑ Index

166. Mathew Timmons
Fwding ... An Afternoon Reading ...
Tue 19 May 2009

An Afternoon Reading...
Sunday, May 24, 2009

at The Lounge at REDCAT
631 W. 2nd St.Los Angeles, CA

with

Amanda Ackerman
Marcia Arrieta
Deborah Meadows
&
Joseph Mosconi

FREE

Doors open at 2:00pm
Reading starts at 2:30pm

Amanda Ackerman lives in Los Angeles where she writes and teaches. She is co-editor of the press eohippus labs. She is a member of UNFO (The Unauthorized Narrative Freedom Organization) and writes as part of SAM OR SAMANTHA YAMS. Her chapbook The Seasons Cemented is forthcoming from Hex Presse, and her collaborative book Sin is to Celebration is forthcoming from House Press. Her work has also been published or is forthcoming in flim forum: A Sing Economy, String of Small Machines, The Physical Poets, WOMB, Moonlit, Source Material: A Journal of Appropriated Text, and Area Sneaks.

Marcia Arrieta's work has appeared in Blueprint Review, A capella Zoo,Otoliths, So To Speak, 13th Moon, 88, The Bukowski Review, Poetry Salzburg Review, Cold Mountain Review, Mipoesias, and others. Her Chapbook experimental was published by potes & poets press; and her manuscript the curve against the linear was chosen by Toadlily Press and published in their Quartet Series—An Uncommon Accord. She edits and publishes Indefinite Space, a poetry journal, now in its 18th year.

Deborah Meadows teaches in the Liberal Studies department at California State Polytechnic University, Pomona. Her most recent book of poetry is from Shearsman Press entitled Goodbye Tissues. Other works of poetry include: involutia (Shearsman Press, UK, 2007), The Draped Universe (Belladonna* Books, 2007), Thin Gloves (Green Integer, 2006), Representing Absence (Green Integer, 2004), Itinerant Men (Krupskaya, 2004), and two chapbooks, Growing Still (Tinfish Press, 2005) and "The 60's and 70's: from The Theory of Subjectivity in Moby-Dick" (Tinfish Press, 2003). Her Electronic Poetry Center author page is located: http://epc.buffalo.edu/authors/meadows/

Joseph Mosconi is a writer and linguist based in Los Angeles. He is co-editor of the art & poetry journal Area Sneaks and is co-director of the Poetic Research Bureau, a literary service in the public domain. His work has appeared in Try, Shampoo, Triple Canopy, The Physical Poets vol. 2, Primary Writing, the Fillip Review and other journals and magazines.

↑ Index

167. Tim Peterson
Segue 5/23: Mei-mei Berssenbrugge & Jonathan Skinner
Tue 19 May 2009

The Segue Series Presents

Mei-mei Berssenbrugge
& Jonathan Skinner
Saturday, May 23, 2009  4PM SHARP
Bowery Poetry Club, 308 Bowery, NYC
$6 admission
hosted by Kristen Gallagher & Tim Peterson

Mei-mei Berssenbrugge was born in Beijing and grew up in Massachusetts. She is the author of numerous volumes of poetry, most recently I Love Artists: New and Selected Poems (University of California Press, 2006) and Concordance (Kelsey St. Press, 2006), a collaboration with Kiki Smith.

Jonathan Skinner is a poet, translator and critic, as well as editor of the journal ecopoetics. Skinner completed his Ph.D. in English at SUNY Buffalo. In 2005, he published his first full-length poetry collection, Political Cactus Poems (Palm Press).

↑ Index

168. Joel Weishaus
"The Gateless Gate." New pages and a Revision
Tue 19 May 2009

Dear Friends and Colleagues:

Here are four new pages of "The Gateless Gate":

Pages 15-16: http://web.pdx.edu/~pdx00282/Gate/Pgs%2015-16.htm Pages 17-18: http://web.pdx.edu/~pdx00282/Gate/Pgs%2017-18.htm

In addition:

The Introduction has been revised:
http://web.pdx.edu/~pdx00282/Gate/Intro.htm

Thank you to those of you who have written to me on this project. If you don't want to receive these notices, please let me know, and I will delete your name from the list.

-Joel

↑ Index

169. Will Larsen
Erasure Poetry Reading -- 5/26
Tue 19 May 2009

---

*NEXT WEEK:

Erasure Poetry Reading
Featuring Chicu Reddy
With Eric Elshtain, Stephanie Dering, and Will Larsen

*Tuesday, May 26
5:30pm, Rosenwald 405
On the University of Chicago Campus

Reception to follow.

Please join us for this exciting opportunity to hear innovative work by three students and acclaimed poet/UC faculty member Chicu Reddy. Event sponsored by the Renaissance Society, the Committee on Creative Writing, and the Wrens.

As always, admission is free and open to the public. If you need assistance in order to participate, contact [redacted].

↑ Index

170. Halvard Johnson
Re: Submit to Packingtown Review
Tue 19 May 2009

They want edgy, fresh writing but apparently only take snail mail submissions. Duh.

Hal

"My experience is what I agree to attend to."
--William James

Halvard Johnson
==========
[redacted]
http://sites.google.com/site/halvardjohnson/Home
http://entropyandme.blogspot.com
http://imageswithoutwords.blogspot.com
http://www.hamiltonstone.org

On Mon, May 18, 2009 at 2:49 PM, Nana Zabic <[redacted]> wrote:

> The editors of Packingtown Review, a journal of the University of Illinois at Chicago, published by the University of Illinois Press, invite submissions for its second issue to be released in 2010. The journal publishes creative work including:

- drama
- poetry
- fiction
- creative nonfiction
- literary translation

We seek submission of scholarly papers including:
- interdisciplinary scholarship
- literary criticism
- comparative literature
- critical theory
- rhetorical studies
- cultural studies
- political theory

We also accept for consideration:
- interviews
- critical reviews of books, films and the arts in general
- genre-bending work that explores or challenges form
- graphic art and photographs

Whether scholarly or literary, we welcome edgy, fresh writing that may be experimental or that explores boundary crossings of/between genre(s) and form(s). What does it mean when poetry and prose are indistinguishable? What is lost – or found – in translation? When literary form is fluid, what happens to the relationship between art and criticism? Between the creative and the scholarly?

Please send up to 8,000 words (excerpts of longer works are acceptable) of prose (or genre-bending pieces), 40 pages of drama, or 3 to 5 poems (no more than 10 pages) to:
Packingtown Review
UH 2027 M/C 162
University of Illinois at Chicago
601 S. Morgan
Chicago, IL 60607

Deadline: Review of submissions for the second issue continues through September 1. Response time is approximately three months. For more information, visit www.packingtownreview.com or email us at: [redacted]. To order Issue 1, visit http://www.press.uillinois.edu/journals/pr.html

↑ Index

171. Joel Weishaus
"The Gateless Gate"-Note
Tue 19 May 2009

Sorry about, "If you don't want to receive these notices, please let me know, and I will delete your name from the list." It was not deleted from a different context, and obviously does not refer to this list. Small slips in a long day.

-Joel

↑ Index

172. Christophe Casamassima
Latin Translation, Anyone?
Tue 19 May 2009

Can anyone translate this phrase for me?

Eat well. But be eaten willingly.

--
Powered By Outblaze

↑ Index

173. Deborah A. Meadows
Ackerman/Arrieta/Meadows/Mosconi Read at REDCAT Lounge on Sunday, May 24th
Tue 19 May 2009

Dear Buffalo list,

Forwarded from Harold Abramowitz [[redacted]] Sent: Sat 5/16/2009 7:49 PM

Hi Friends,

It would be awesome if you could join us for an afternoon reading on Sunday, May 24, 2009

at The Lounge at REDCAT

with

Amanda Ackerman

Marcia Arrieta

Deborah Meadows

&

Joseph Mosconi

FREE

Doors open at 2:00pm
Reading starts at 2:30pm

Amanda Ackerman lives in Los Angeles where she writes and teaches. She is co-editor of the press eohippus labs. She is a member of UNFO (The Unauthorized Narrative Freedom Organization) and writes as part of SAM OR SAMANTHA YAMS. Her chapbook The Seasons Cemented is forthcoming from Hex Presse, and her collaborative book Sin is to Celebration is forthcoming from House Press. Her work has also been published or is forthcoming in flim forum: A Sing Economy, String of Small Machines, The Physical Poets,WOMB, Moonlit, Source Material: A Journal of Appropriated Text, and Area Sneaks.

Marcia Arrieta's work has appeared in Blueprint Review, A capella Zoo, Otoliths, So To Speak, 13th Moon, 88, The Bukowski Review, Poetry Salzburg Review, Cold Mountain Review, Mipoesias, and others. Her Chapbook experimental was published by potes & poets press; and her manuscript the curve against the linear was chosen by Toadlily Press and published in their Quartet Series—An Uncommon Accord. She edits and publishesIndefinite Space, a poetry journal, now in its 18th year.

Deborah Meadows teaches in the Liberal Studies department at California State PolytechnicUniversity, Pomona. Her most recent book of poetry is from Shearsman Press entitled Goodbye Tissues. Other works of poetry include: involutia (Shearsman Press, UK, 2007), The Draped Universe (Belladonna* Books, 2007), Thin Gloves (Green Integer, 2006), Representing Absence (Green Integer, 2004), Itinerant Men (Krupskaya, 2004), and two chapbooks, Growing Still (Tinfish Press, 2005) and "The 60's and 70's: from The Theory of Subjectivity in Moby-Dick" (Tinfish Press, 2003). Her Electronic Poetry Center author page is located: http://epc.buffalo.edu/authors/meadows/

Joseph Mosconi is a writer and linguist based in Los Angeles. He is co-editor of the art & poetry journal Area Sneaks and is co-director of the Poetic Research Bureau, a literary service in the public domain. His work has appeared in Try, Shampoo, Triple Canopy, The Physical Poets vol. 2, Primary Writing, the Fillip Review and other journals and magazines

↑ Index

174. Edmund Hardy
Mackerelling
Tue 19 May 2009

"Intercapillary Editions" is pleased to present a new publication:

Printed: 20 pages, 22.86 cm x 17.78 cm, casewrap-hardcover binding, white interior paper (80# weight), full-colour interior ink, white exterior paper (100# weight), full-colour exterior ink

Purchase (£13.78 plus £4.46 flat rate postage) or Download free eBook.

*

from Mackerelling:

mackerel small mackerel small mackerel small
mackerel small mackerel small mackerel small
mackerel small mackerel small mackerel small mackerel small mackerel small mackerel

DEEPER WATER

small mackerel small mackerel common dolphin small
mackerel small mackerel small mackerel small mackerel common dolphin small mackerel small
mackerel small mackerel small mackerel small mackerel common dolphin cory’s shearwater cory’s shearwater small mackerel cory’s shearwater small mackerel cory’s shearwater common dolphin small
mackerel small mackerel small mackerel small
mackerel cory’s shearwater common dolphin small mackerel cory’s shearwater common dolphin small
mackerel small mackerel small mackerel small mackerel cory’s shearwater common dolphin cory’s shearwater

WATER

*

A Note on the Poem
James Harvey

The poem more or less wrote itself. Marguerite White sent me cardboard cuttings out in the shapes of sea birds she had used for one of her installations, I had been watching David Attenborough’s The Blue Planet and the idea for the poem came shortly after. At the back of my mind was also Bob Cobbing’s poem ‘alphabet of californian fishes’, (in bob jubile, selected texts of bob cobbing, 1990), though I did not realise this until it was shown to me afterwards by a friend to whom I had previously shown the Bob Cobbing poem as one of my favourite poems. Its influence seemed clear to me.

*

James Harvey studied Biology at UCL. After leaving university, he took up poetry full time, with Ecology (and not Deep Ecology) inspiring much of his poetry. He has had poems in magazines and In the Company of Poets anthology. Poetry now on the web is at Great Works and Openned - in the Openned Magazine and Openned Anthology. Mackerelling is his first book.

"Intercapillary Space"

Without image, without strategy.

Share your photos with Windows Live Photos – Free.
http://clk.atdmt.com/UKM/go/134665338/direct/01/

↑ Index

175. Skip Fox
Has anyone heard from Vernon Fraser?
Tue 19 May 2009

I don't think I've seen his posts here or elsewhere for over 1/2 of a year. Nor have I been able to discover a good e-mail address.

Does anyone know?

↑ Index

176. Chris Green
DePaul Summer Writing Conference
Tue 19 May 2009

DePaul Summer Writing Conference, July 17-19, 2009
(at DePaulâ€™s Loop Campus and the Chicago Public Library)
Â
Poetry, Fiction, and Nonfiction craft classes, panels, and readings
Â
Writers of all experience levels are welcome
Â
Visit www.cpe.depaul.edu/writingconference to view the schedule, see faculty bios, and register (tuition is $250 for all three days or $100 for any single day; CE credits available to attendees)
Â
Any questions, contact Chris Green at [redacted] or [redacted].
Â
Conference faculty include professors from DePaul University, Columbia College, and Northwestern Universityâ€” Poetry: David Trinidad, Tony Trigilio, James Shea, Josh Corey

Fiction: Dan Stolar, Christine Sneed, Bayo Ojikutu, Garnett Kilberg CohenNonfiction: Achy Obejas, Michele Morano, Miles Harvey, Eula Biss

↑ Index

177. Séamas Cain
The Ghost Dance
Tue 19 May 2009

_____

"Ghost Dance in 33 Movements"

by la mirabile Anny Ballardini is reviewed by Crag Hill in Jacket Magazine 37 ...

http://jacketmagazine.com/37/r-ballardini-rb-hill.shtml

Wondrous poetry, Anny!

http://annyballardini.blogspot.com/

Best regards,

Séamas Cain
http://alazanto.org/seamascain
http://seamascain.writernetwork.com
http://www.mnartists.org/Seamas_Cain

_____

↑ Index

178. Poetry Project
Support The Poetry Project
Tue 19 May 2009

The Poetry Project at St. Mark¹s Church

May 19, 2009

Dear Friend of The Poetry Project,

We are still in high spirits from the three monumental readings we held here last week for our Spring Fundraiser. If you attended the John Giorno reading, the John Ashbery reading, or the panel and/or reading for the Collected Poetry of Jack Spicer, thank you. We raised $3,500! And if you attended, you have already heard that the Poetry Project's fundraising campaign has just begun.

For those of you who are hearing this for the first time, The Project has some serious financial challenges to meet in 2010 including a substantial rent increase to stay in our home at St. Mark's Church. Our goal is to raise at least $15,000 by the end of this year.

We're asking you, our dear supporters, to help by not only becoming a Member of The Project (a $50 Individual Membership will get you a subscription to our quarterly Newsletter), but giving an extra tax-deductible contribution of $25 or anything that you feel you can offer - even small amounts are very welcome.

You can simply click here http://poetryproject.org/get-involved/become-a-member to become a Member or renew your Membership.

Or here http://poetryproject.org/get-involved/donate-now to donate.

You may also opt to send a check made out to The Poetry Project at 131 E. 10th St. New York, NY 10003.

We are a poet-founded and have always been a poet-run organization whose programming has developed out of a complete devotion to the risk, challenge and heart of contemporary poetry. And we know we've developed a community who is just as intensely devoted. Thank you!

Sincerely,

Stacy Szymaszek
Artistic Director

↑ Index

179. Jefferson Davis
Wordplay celebrates Robin Blaser
Tue 19 May 2009

As most here will know, on May 7th Robin Blaser, one of the last major figures among those who came to public notice via Don Allen's New American Poetry, passed away in Vancouver, just shy of 84.

I never successfully recorded Robin myself; both times I tried, my usually trusty Uher balked. Thankfully, the great Penn Sound audio archive has hours of readings and lectures in his voice, so I put together this week's Wordplay from three of its recordings. The first finds him reading in Vancouver in 1965; the second, discussing his work, and that of his fellows, in a BBC interview with Iain Sinclair in 1994; the third, reading at the Woodland Pattern Bookstore in Milwaukee in 2004.

In Vancouver he read "The Moth Poem", an early exploration of serial form; it's a great poem, but the recording, given that it was made on analogue tape over forty years ago (probably by Fred Wah, though he's not credited), had some hiss that I removed for better audibility. In Milwaukee, Blaser began his reading with the introductory section of his extended poem on Dante, then switched to shorter poems, and then returned to the "Great Companions" piece on Dante, saying he hadn't "prepared anything else". I brought the two pieces together for the show. It's a powerful reading.

The program note has more information, and a link to the audio, here: http://naturespoetry.blogspot.com/2009/05/celebrating-robin-blaser.html

Enjoy,

Jeff

↑ Index

180. Nic Sebastian
Ten Questions for poetry editors
Wed 20 May 2009

Anti-'s Steve Schroeder is first up with his responses. More editors to come!

http://bit.ly/XJWQQ

Best wishes,

Nic Sebastian

http://verylikeawhale.wordpress.com

Hotmail® goes with you.
http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/Mobile?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tutorial_Mobile1_052009

↑ Index

181. CA Conrad
ELVISmagical Shmagical
Wed 20 May 2009

DEAR READERS,
my book ADVANCED ELVIS COURSE is now out from Soft Skull Press

for sample pages, cover art, and more, please click here: http://advancedELVIS.blogspot.com and PLEASE try to purchase from your local INDEPENDENT bookstore (so few of them left)

ELLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLLVIS LOVES YOU!

--
PhillySound: new poetry http://PhillySound.blogspot.com

THE BOOK OF FRANK by CAConrad http://CAConrad.blogspot.com

↑ Index

182. William Slaughter
Notice: Mudlark
Wed 20 May 2009

New and On View: Mudlark Flash No. 50 (2009)

Five Poems by Michael Tyrell

Manhattan-Beach Mother | Superstition, Inc.
Murder in Sea Gate | Instructions | Flatlands

Michael Tyrell's poems have appeared in Agni, The Canary, fogged clarity, The Paris Review, Ploughshares, The Yale Review, and other magazines. With Julia Spicher Kasdorf, he edited the anthology Broken Land: Poems of Brooklyn (NYU Press, 2007).

Spread the word. Far and wide,

William Slaughter

MUDLARK
An Electronic Journal of Poetry & Poetics
Never in and never out of print...
E-mail: [redacted]
URL: http://www.unf.edu/mudlark

↑ Index

183. Eric Elshtain
Reading at the University of Chicago
Wed 20 May 2009

Erasure Poetry Reading Tuesday 26 May 2009, 5:30PM
Rosenwald 405 on the Univ. of Chicago campus.

Featuring Chicu Reddy
with Eric Elshtain, Stephanie Dering and Will Larsen.

The pieces Elshtain be reading are by six children he worked with at two area hospitals where he is poet-in-residence through the Snow City Arts Foundation http://www.snowcityarts.com

During the workshops, the students "treated" the To Be Or Not To Be speech from Hamlet ala Tom Phillips' A Humament, Mary Ruefle's A Little White Shadow and Ronald Johnson's Radi os.

↑ Index

184. Séamas Cain
Google's assault on writers' copyright
Wed 20 May 2009

_____

Google's assault on writers' copyright ...

http://www.irishtimes.com/newspaper/weekend/2009/0425/1224245347234.html

The "Settlement Administrator" for the U.S. Federal Court defines and explains the issues, as imposed on writers throughout the world ...

http://www.googlebooksettlement.com/help/bin/answer.py?answer=118704&hl=en#extension_explanation

What arrogance by the lot of them! And, to be sure, I oppose corporate and pseudo-legal expropriation of creative literature, whether my own work or the work of others!

For creative freedom,

Séamas Cain
http://alazanto.org/seamascain
http://seamascain.writernetwork.com
http://www.mnartists.org/Seamas_Cain

_____

↑ Index

185. Rodney Koeneke
Tangent reading in Portland, OR this SAT., MAY 23: ROD SMITH, MEL NICHOLS and JEN COLEMAN
Wed 20 May 2009

SATURDAY, MAY 23 at 7 PM
JEN COLEMAN, MEL NICHOLS and ROD SMITH
Clinton Corner Cafe, 2633 SE 21st Ave.
www.thetangentpress.org/readings.html

JEN COLEMAN is a Minnesota poet by way of DC, New York and now Portland. Former coeditor of the literary magazine Pom2 and curator of the DC based In Your Ear reading series. Jen also has a chapbook, Propinquity, and her work has appeared in The Tangent, Ixnay, Chain and other awesome journals.

MEL NICHOLS is the author of Bicycle Day (Slack Buddha Press 2008), The Beginning of Beauty, Part 1: hottest new ringtones mnichol6 (Edge Books 2007), Day Poems (Edge Books 2005), and just out from Edge Books, Catalytic

Exteriorization Phenomenon, finalist in the National Poetry Series. With Mark Cunningham she recently collaborated on the online chapbook nightlightnight. She teaches at George Mason University.

ROD SMITH'S most recent book is Deed (University of Iowa, 2007). He is also the author of Music or Honesty, The Good House, Poemes de l'araignee (France), In Memory of My Theories, The Boy Poems, Protective Immediacy, and New Mannerist Tricycle with Lisa Jarnot and Bill Luoma. A CD, Fear the Sky, came out from Narrow House Recordings in 2005. He edits Aerial Magazine and publishes Edge Books. Smith is also editing, with Peter Baker and Kaplan Harris, The Selected Letters of Robert Creeley for the University of California Press.

UPCOMING READINGS, SAT JUNE 27 Stephanie Young, Dana Ward and Cynthia Sailers

↑ Index

186. Nico Vassilakis

Disparate Magnets by Nico Vassilakis

Wed 20 May 2009

---

new book of poems

read blurbs from harry mathews, mark wallace, brenda iijima, robert mittenthal, bunita marcus

http://www.blazevox.org/bk-nv2.htm should be able to get review copies at

[redacted]

thanks for your time,

n

_____ Hotmail® has ever-growing storage! Don’t worry about storage limits. http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/Storage?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tutorial_Storage1_052009

↑ Index

187. Megan M. Garr

Versal 7 is in the air

Wed 20 May 2009

VERSAL 7 IS NOW AVAILABLE

--Launch of Versal 7-- The seventh edition of Versal, the annual English-language literary journal published out of Amsterdam, was launched on 15 May. As in previous editions, the writing and art in Versal 7 is resolutely international, and above all distinctive for its lack of defined borders. Contributors include Agustina Bazterrica, Emily Carr, Jennifer K. Dick, Joel Fishbane, Elizabeth Gross, Desmond Kon Zhicheng-Mingdé, Trey Moody, Sawako Nakayasu, Mary Miller, Peter Shippy and Nicole Walker.

Copies and subscriptions are available at:
http://versal.wordsinhere.com

--Versal Journal-- The launch of Versal 7 also coincided with the launch of our new blog, http://versaljournal.blogspot.com, through which we hope to join the lively online literary dialogues, as well as discuss aspects of our submission review process and the wide(ning) aesthetic that Versal seeks out.

--The HERE project-- The blog will also be a space to post the results of the HERE project, an initiative we have started this year. Copies of Versals old and new will be passed into the hands of a number of potential readers around the world. The project is simple: read & pass on. These copies are labeled and numbered, and readers are encouraged to contact us with their responses, whether text, image, video, sound, which we will then post on the blog.

↑ Index

188. Jonathan Penton

Re: Has anyone heard from Vernon Fraser?

Wed 20 May 2009

Skip Fox wrote:
> I don't think I've seen his posts here or elsewhere for over 1/2 of a year.
> Nor have I been able to discover a good e-mail address.
>
> Does anyone know?
>

His site at http://vernonfrazer.net/ is in the process of a revamp, but has current contact information.

--
Jonathan Penton
http://www.unlikelystories.org/

↑ Index

189. Larry O. Dean

Pilcrow Lit Fest

Wed 20 May 2009

Among the many swell goings on during the 2nd Annual Pilcrow Lit Fest, currently underway in Chicago, I'll be moderating a panel on Teaching Artists this Saturday, 1 PM at Trader Todd's, 3216 N. Sheffield.

Scheduled panelists include:

Bobby Biedrzycki is a writer and performer who came to Chicago from St. Paul, Minnesota via The Bronx, New York. Bobby's writing has appeared in The Black Bear Review, Hair Trigger 28 & 29, The Banana King, Ghost Factory and Ante:thesis Volumes I & II. He has worked as a book reviewer for both Time Out Chicago and Punk Planet Magazine and his stories have been produced Off Broadway. Bobby is an adjunct faculty member of the Fiction Writing Department at Columbia College Chicago and he also teaches creative writing for teens through the After School Matters program. Along with being a company member of The Serendipity Collective and performing monthly with 2nd Story, Bobby is currently at work on his first novel, Driving Back to Normal.

Larry O. Dean was born and raised in Flint, Michigan. He attended the University of Michigan, during which time he won three Hopwood Awards in Creative Writing, an honor shared with fellow poets Robert Hayden, Jane Kenyon, and Frank O'Hara, among others. He is author of numerous chapbooks, including I Am Spam (2004), a series poems inspired by junk email; his poetry has also been internationally anthologized. In addition to writing, he is a singer-songwriter, performing solo as well as with his current band, The Injured Parties; he has released many critically-acclaimed CDs including Fables in Slang (2001) with Post Office, and Gentrification is Theft (2002) with The Me Decade. Dean was a 2004 recipient of the Hands on Stanzas Gwendolyn Brooks Award, presented by the Poetry Center of Chicago. Find out more at http://larryodean.com.

Robert Duffer writes for TimeOut Chicago, Chicago Public Radio's 848, Chicago Tribune, Chicago Artists Resource and other sources regular and not. Recent publications include Flashquake, Annalemma, Word Riot, Pindledyboz, and The 2nd Hand. His novel excepts can be read on his website, http://robbertduffer.com.

Mary Duncan is a Masters student in the social sciences at the University of Chicago and works with the Teaching Artist Research Project, http://surveylab.uchicago.edu/projects/tarp.shtml.

Eric Elshtain is currently finishing his PhD in the University of Chicago's Committee on the History of Culture. Eric is Poet-in-Residence at Stroger

Hospital of Cook County through Snow City Arts. He is the editor of Chicago's on-line Beard of Bees Press, http://www.beardofbees.com, and is also a poet-in-residence at Galileo Scholastic Academy where he teaches poetry to fourth grade students. His own poetry, reviews and interviews have been published in a variety of literary journals.

Savannah Schroll Guz is author of The Famous & The Anonymous (2004) and editor of Consumed: Women on Excess (2005). Her new fiction collection, American Soma, will be released by So New in 2009. She writes a monthly reference book review column for Library Journal and is an art critic for Pittsburgh City Paper. Previously nominated for a Pushcart and a Storysouth Million Writers Award, she teaches English at West Virginia Northern Community College.

Billy Lombardo

Pat Mohr serves as the program coordinator for 826CHI. In this role, he manages the field trip program and co-manages the drop-in tutoring program. Pat joined 826CHI as an intern in the fall of 2007, assisting with programs and student publishing before joining the staff in the summer of 2008. After graduating from Miami University in 2006 with a degree in literature, Pat traveled and taught in several Latin American countries before returning to Chicago.

Born and raised in Hong Kong, Carol Ng-He is a Chicago-based interdisciplinary artist and art educator. She received a Master’s degree of Arts in Art Education from the School of the Art Institute of Chicago. Carol has exhibited and performed locally including the Smart Museum of Art at the University of Chicago, Hyde Park Art Center, Jane Addams-Hull House Museum, Koehnline Museum of Art at Oakton Community College, Woman Made Gallery, Mess Hall, Links Hall, and the Duncan YMCA Chernin Center for the Arts in Chicago. In her interdisciplinary art practices, Carol explores the hybridity of cultural identities, and interactivity of human intellectual exchange across time, space, and imagination. Her work is featured on Chicago Artists Resource and her publications include Silk Road Theatre Project’s Alternative Cultural Education and Stepping In and Out: Performance Art in the Community College ESL Curriculum on Community Arts Network, as well as Reflection on the Role of Artists: A Case Study on the Hidden Visual Curriculum of the School of the Art Institute of Chicago, in Teaching Artists Journal. As a teaching artist, Carol has been a member of Chicago Teaching Artists Collective (CTAC) since 2006 and has freelanced at the Silk Road Theatre Project, Chicago Teen Museum and Young Asians with Power! (YAWP!). Currently she teaches at Columbia College Chicago, Roosevelt University, and Oakton Community College.

Jill Pollack, founder of StoryStudio Chicago, is an award-winning communications consultant, writer and editor. Through StoryStudio, Jill teaches creative writing to individuals and leads customized seminars for businesses and professionals. Using her degree in theatre, Jill curates and directs the reading series, “Writers Read Showcase.” She has published books for children and young adults and is currently at work on a novel for adults.

Joanne Vena, Director of School Partnerships, supports and oversees the strategic partnership development with members of the college and public education locally to meet the CCAP mission in three areas- the professional development of teachers and teaching artists, college readiness programs for promising high school students and the college’s work in six Chicago Community Schools. Prior to coming here in 1991, Ms. Vena was the Director of the Arts-in-Education and Local Arts Agency programs at the Illinois Arts Council, where she developed and supervised the agency's services and programs for individual teaching artists and nonprofit education groups, expanding the partnership between artists and communities. Joanne has served on several panels and conference committees, including the National Assembly of State Arts Agencies and the National Endowment for the Arts. She holds a BFA in printmaking and sculpture from the Rhode Island School of Design and an MFA in sculpture from the School of the Art Institute of Chicago.

For more info, http://pilcrowlitfest.com

↑ Index

190. Vernon Frazer

Re: Has anyone heard from Vernon Frazer?

Thu 21 May 2009

Hello

I'd like to thank those who asked about me for their concern.

I've been incommunicado for much of the past year because my wife and I moved one town north, a move that became more complicated and protracted than any we've made before, including moving from Connecticut to Florida.

In addition to moving, I've spent much of the past year wrestling with computer problems. My email address book has vanished several times, so I've lost most of my contact information.

I'm doing well and have finally resumed a regular writing schedule.

If you'd like to become part of my rebuilt address book, please backchannel your contact information to me.

Best,

Vernon

↑ Index

191. Alan Sondheim

Fwd: Salt books (fwd) (my publisher--)

Thu 21 May 2009

This message is in MIME format. The first part should be readable text, while the remaining parts are likely unreadable without MIME-aware tools.

--0-1956855669-1242920275=:25452

---------- Forwarded message ----------
Date: Thu, 21 May 2009 10:26:04 -0500
From: mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Subject: Fwd: Salt books

A very important press to support....

As many of you will know, Jen and I have been struggling to keep Salt moving since June last year when the economic downturn began to affect our press. Our three year funding ends this year: we've £4,000 due from Arts Council England in a final payment, but cannot apply through Grants for the Arts for further funding for Salt's operations. Spring sales were down nearly 80% on the previous year, and despite April's much improved trading, the past twelve months has left us with a budget deficit of over £55,000. It's proving to be a very big hole and we're having to take some drastic measures to save our business.

Here's how you can help us to save Salt and all our work with hundreds of authors around the world.

JUST ONE BOOK

1. Please buy just one book, right now. We don't mind from where, you can buy it from us or from Amazon, your local shop or megastore, online or offline. If you buy just one book now, you'll help to save Salt. Timing is absolutely everything here. We need cash now to stay afloat. If you love literature, help keep it alive. All it takes is just one book sale. Go to our online store and help us keep going.

2. Share this note on your profile. Tell your friends. If we can spread the word about our cash crisis, we can hopefully find more sales and save our literary publishing. Remember it's just one book, that's all it takes to save us. Please do it now.

With my best wishes to everyone
Chris
Director
Salt Publishing
<http://www.saltpublishing.com>http://www.saltpublishing.com
=

--0-1956855669-1242920275=:25452--

↑ Index

192. Lawrence Giffin
I think I got phished
Thu 21 May 2009

So if you got some weird email or facebook thing from me, do not click it. If you did, change your passwords. Sorry.

Lawrence

↑ Index

193. Hilary Clark
book ideas?
Thu 21 May 2009

Hello,

I'm teaching a senior undergraduate course entitled "Poetry since 1950" in the fall, and I'm making up my own anthology as a course package so as to include a fair amount of experimental material. However, I need some ideas for a short critical overview of contemporary poetry that takes a world or at least trans-Atlantic perspective and addresses historical contexts, movements, issues in poetics, etc. Is there such a book available?

Thanks for ideas.

Hilary Clark

↑ Index

194. amy king

TOMORROW, Friday, May 22nd @ 7 p.m. -- Ken Chen  Johannes Göransson  Cathy Park Hong  Joyelle McSweeney

Thu 21 May 2009

Join us for an extra May Stain!

Â

TOMORROW, Fri

Join us for an extra May Stain!

Â

TOMORROW, Friday, May 22nd @ 7 p.m.

Â

Ken Chen  Johannes GÃ¶ransson  Cathy Park Hong  Joyelle McSweeney

Â

~~~

Â

Ken Chen is the Executive Director of The Asian American Writers' Workshop. He is the 2009 recipient of the Yale Series of Younger Poets Award. His work has been published in Best American Essays 2006 and was recently recognized in Best American Essays 2007. He started Satellite: The Berkeley Magazine of News + Culture and also helped found Arts & Letters Daily, a cultural website.

Â

~~~

Â

Johannes GÃ¶ransson was born in Sweden, but has lived around the US for several years. He is the author of: Dear Ra (Starcherone, 2008), Pilot (Fairy Tale Review Press, 2008) and A New Quarantine Will Take My Place (Apostrophe Books, 2007)â€”and the chapbook Majakovskij en tragedy (Dos Press, 2008). He is also the translator of: Collobert Orbital by Johan Jonsson, Gingerbread Monuments by Victor Johansson & Klara Kallstrom, Ideals Clearance by Henry Parland, Remainland: Selected Poems by Aase Berg, and, most recently, With Deer by Aase Berg, out from Black Ocean. He is the co-editor of Action Books and the online journal Action, Yes.

Â

~~~
~~~

Â

Cathy Park Hongâ€™s first book, Translating Moâ€™um was published in 2002 by Hanging Loose Press. Her second collection, Dance Dance Revolution, was chosen for the Barnard Women Poets Prize and was published in 2007 by WW Norton. Hong is also the recipient of a Fulbright Fellowship, a National Endowment for the Arts Fellowship and a Village Voice Fellowship for Minority Reporters. Her poems have been published in A Public Space, Paris Review, Poetry, American Letters & Commentary, Denver Quarterly, Jubilat, and other journals, and she has reported for the Village Voice, The Guardian, Salon, and Christian Science Monitor. She now lives in New York City and is an Assistant Professor at Sarah Lawrence College.

Â

~~~

Â

Joyelle McSweeney is the author of the novels Flet (Fence) and Nylund the Sarcographer (Tarpaulin Sky Press) and the poetry books The Red Bird and The Commandrine and Other Poems. She teaches in the MFA Program at Notre Dame and is a co-founder of Action Books.

Â

~~~

Â

stain

766 grand street

brooklyn, ny 11211

(L train to Grand Street, 1 block west)

718/[redacted]

open daily @ 5 p.m.

Â

Enjoy local beers, wines, and lite fare -- PLUS, the garden is open!Â

Â

~~~~

Â

Hosted by Amy King and Ana BoÅ¾iÄeviÄ‡
~~~~

Â

http://www.stainofpoetry.com/

Â

Â

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

195. konrad

kino21 SF 24-MAY-09: VAUDEVILLE FOLLIES: flarf performance poetics and video

Thu 21 May 2009

---

kino21's last show for a spell:

Sunday, May 24th, 8pm
VAUDEVILLE FOLLIES
Artists Television Access 992 Valencia
San Francisco, CA

From Brooklyn, New York, poets Nada Gordon and Gary Sullivan lead an evening of multiple media San Francisco premieres: poly-vocal poetics, neo-benshi film narration, and mangled imagery.

Visiting the Bay Area live for one night only, the latter-day vaudeville team of Gordon and Sullivan will present their most recent poetry, performance and video work showcased last month (fresh!) at The Whitney Museum and Dixon Place in New York. Gordon and Sullivan are founding members of the notorious and irreverent Flarf Collective. They have been committed. To hilarious and unsettling entertainment. Throughout this millenium. They will premiere two live film narration pieces, and read from their recent work.

Oakland poet-provocateur Erika Staiti will perform her live film renarration of a short scene from "Woman Under the Influence," which premiered last month in the Los Angeles underground venue, Machine Project.

From Queens, New York visual artist, montagist and poet Brandon Downing will sends us several disturbingly funny new video collages. Using a hilarious form of homophonic translation of song lyrics as subtitles from Bollywood movies, Downing dispaces the musical numbers into new registers of meaning with both bawdy and poignant overtones.

http://www.kino21.org/

* * *

↑ Index

196. Mark Weiss
Reading: Carlos Blackburn and Betsy Fagin
Thu 21 May 2009

For those of you in New York:

Carlos T. Blackburn and Betsy Fagin at St Mark's, Monday June 1, 8:00 PM.

Carlos T. Blackburn, author of Portraits (2006) and The Selected Poems of Hamster (2008). Born at the New York Infirmary for Indigent Women and Children, 1969; raised in Brooklyn. Poems have surfaced in Land of the Weejis, Aeroplano, 6×6 and Watchword. Work as a soccer coach, bike messenger, roller coaster operator, collegian (anthropology), fish monger, copy editor, demolition worker, bartender and teacher all form a part of his résumé. Presently in the last year of his training as a physical therapist in Glasgow, Scotland. Betsy Fagin is the author of Belief Opportunity (Big Game Books, 2008), Rosemary Stretch (dusie e/chap, 2006) and For every solution there is a problem (Open 24 Hours, 2003), as well as a number of self-published chapbooks.

↑ Index

197. Poetry Project
Events at The Poetry Project May
Thu 21 May 2009

Hi Everyone,

Here¹s what next week looks like at The Poetry Project:

Monday, May 25, 8 PM
The Recluse 5 Reading

Join us for our annual spring reading by contributors to the Poetry Project¹s in-house magazine, The Recluse. Issue 5 is dedicated to the artist George Schneeman (1934-2009). Contributors include Anselm Berrigan, Edmund Berrigan, Sandy Berrigan, Lisa Birman, Todd Colby, Cliff Fyman, Steven Hall, Vincent Katz, Michael Lally, Pamela Lawton, Elinor Nauen, Maureen Owen, Gary Parrish, and Will Yackulic. Readers on hand this evening will be Anselm Berrigan, Edmund Berrigan, Todd Colby, Cliff Fyman, Steven Hall, Vincent Katz, Michael Lally, Pamela Lawton, Elinor Nauen, Gary Parrish, and Will Yackulic.

* Please note that there will be a formal tribute to George Schneeman on November 11, 2009 in the Sanctuary of St. Mark¹s Church.

Wednesday, May 27, 8 PM
Poesia Ultima / Italian Poetry Now

Join Jennifer Scappettone and Carla Billitteri as they present four Italian poets ³of research² featured in Aufgabe 7 for an evening of poetry and translation. Maria Attanasio is the author of five collections of poetry and four works of historical fiction. Her latest work, Il Falsario di Caltagirone, was the recipient of the prestigiouis Premio Vittorini. She was born in Caltagirone, Sicily in 1943, where she still lives. Giovanna Frene, alias Sandra Bortolazzo, was born in Asolo in 1968. Her books of poetry are Immagine di voce (1999), Spostamento (2000), Datità, with an afterword by Andrea Zanzotto (2001), Stato apparente (2004), and Sara Laughs (2007); and, as Federica Marte, the cross-genre ³prosimetro² Orfeo e morto (2002). Her poems have appeared in a range of anthologies and journals in Italy, Germany, Mexico, Spain, and the US. Marco Giovenale, a poet, translator, curator, editor, cultural critic, and winner of the 2009 Delfini Prize, lives in Rome. His books of poetry include Il segno meno (Manni, 2003), Double click (Cantarena, 2005), and La casa esposta (Le Lettere, 2007). He editors and/or contributes to the periodicals il manifesto, Nuovi Argomenti, Poesia, Action Poetique, The Black Economy, and Atelier, and blogs at slowforward.wordpress.com and gamm.org, and his work has been featured and translated in a range of magazines and anthologies in Italy, France, and the US. Milli Graffi, Milanese, was born in 1940. She has produced works of sound poetry and four poetry collections, most recently embargo voice (2006), as well as a novella called Centimetri due (Edizioni d¹If, 2004). She has translated Lewis Carroll and Charles Dickens, and has written on nonsense and the comic function in the early avant-gardes. She is editor-in-chief of the pioneering journal Il Verri. Carla Billitteri, born and educated in Italy, teaches poetry and poetics at the University of Maine. Her translations of contemporary Italian poetry have appeared in boundary 2, How2, and Fascicle, among other journals. A selection of her translations of Alda Merini¹s aphorisms is forthcoming with Hooke Press. Jennifer Scappettone, guest-editor of Aufgabe 7, is author of From Dame Quickly (Litmus Press, 2009) and of several chapbooks, including Ode oggettuale, a bilingual edition out from La Camera Verde, and a forthcoming book for Belladonna¹s Elders Series with Lyn Hejinian and Etel Adnan. She is working on the pop-up opera Exit 43 for Atelos, as well as a critical monograph on the place of Venice within the modernist and postmodern imaginary. She is an assistant professor of English and associate faculty of Romance Languages and Literatures and Gender Studies at the University of Chicago.

Co-presented with the Italian Cultural Institute, Litmus Press and Poets House.

The poets will also participate in a panel the night before. See info below:

Tuesday, May 26, 6:00pm
@ Italian Cultural Institute
686 Park Avenue (bet. 68th and 69th Streets)
Admission free

Friday, May 29, 10 PM
Stephen McLaughlin & Phillip Dmochowski
Present An Evening Of Poetry & Collaborations

Stephen McLaughlin and Phillip Dmochowski are the editors of Principal Hand Publishing Series. Stephen is a poet/programmer whose first release, with Jim Carpenter, was Issue 1, a 3,785-page e-chap. Stephen edits the podcast ³PoemTalk at the Writers House,² and is a contributing editor at PennSound and ubu.com. Phillip is an artist, DJ, and director of DNA Gallery in Provincetown, MA. His first book, Indian Method, documents a systematic disfigurement of rare books and is forthcoming from Patrick Lovelace Editions.

Become a Poetry Project Member! http://poetryproject.org/become-a-member

Calendar: http://www.poetryproject.org/program-calendar

The Poetry Project is located at St. Mark's Church-in-the-Bowery
131 East 10th Street at Second Avenue
New York City 10003
Trains: 6, F, N, R, and L.
[redacted]
www.poetryproject.org

Admission is $8, $7 for students/seniors and $5 for members (though now those who take out a membership at $95 or higher will get in FREE to all regular readings).

We are wheelchair accessible with assistance and advance
notice. For more info call [redacted].

If you¹d like to be unsubscribed from this mailing list, please drop a line at [redacted].

↑ Index

198. Amanda Earl

AngelHousePress-an essay by Gary Barwin

Thu 21 May 2009

Gary Barwin provides us with the fourth in our essay series at www.angelhousepress.com. In this essay Gary muses on how a poem or in this case how a poem fragment works, complete with excellent illustrations.

I hope you enjoy the essay. Stay tuned for June with the publication of new chapbooks and a new essay by Kane X. Faucher.

Amanda

Amanda Earl
AngelHousePress
www.angelhousepress.com
the angel is in the house

↑ Index

199. Amy King

afraid of poetry & miscellany

Fri 22 May 2009

--- On Fri, 5/22/09, jforjames wrote:

Britons are baffled by poetry, with many saying they live in fear of being asked to recite a poem in public, research has found.

Seven in 10 (73%) are "scared" by the genre, according to a poll of 1,500 adults, while two thirds (67%) admit reading and reciting poetry leave them tongue-tied.

more...

http://www.google.com/hostednews/ukpress/article/ALeqM5inb086GokHGwHM5CYXZ0-XLJpYxw

~~~~
~~~~

GOODREADS NEWSLETTER CONTEST >
PLEASE POST YOUR POEM FOR THE JUNE GOODREADS NEWSLETTER CONTEST NOW!

http://www.goodreads.com/topic/show/146424-please-post-your-poem-for-the-june-goodreads-newsletter-contest-now

~~~~

Saving Salt Publishing: Just One Book

As many of you will know, Jen and I have been struggling to keep Salt moving since June last year when the economic downturn began to affect our press. Our three year funding ends this year: we've =A34,000 due from Arts Council England in a final payment, but cannot apply through Grants for the Arts for further funding for Salt's operations. Spring sales were down nearly 80% on the previous year, and despite April's much improved trading, the past twelve months has left us with a budget deficit of over =A355,000. It's proving to be a very big hole and= we're having to take some drastic measures to save our business.

Here's how you can help us to save Salt and all our work with hundreds of authors around the world.

JUST ONE BOOK

1. Please buy just one book, right now. We don't mind from where, you can buy it from us or from Amazon, your local shop or megastore, online or offline. If you buy just one book now, you'll help to save Salt. Timing is absolutely everything here. We need cash now to stay afloat. If you love literature, help keep it alive. All it takes is just one book sale. Go to our online store and help us keep going.

2. Share this note on your profile. Tell your friends. If we can spread the word about our cash crisis, we can hopefully find more sales and save our literary publishing. Remember it's just one book, that's all it takes to save us. Please do it now.

With my best wishes to everyone

Chris
~~~~

Director

Salt Publishing

<http://www.saltpublishing.com>http://www.saltpublishing.com=3D

~~~

TONIGHT

Join us for an extra May Stain!

Friday, May 22nd @ 7 p.m.

Ken Chen  Johannes Göransson  Cathy Park Hong  Joyelle McSweeney

stain

766 grand street

brooklyn, ny 11211

(L train to Grand Street , 1 block west)

718/[redacted]

open daily @ 5 p.m.

Enjoy local beers, wines, and lite fare -- PLUS, the garden is open!

~~~~
Quote I like posted elsewhere by Halvard Johnson:
"There is poetry in everything. That is the biggest argument against poetry."
--Miroslav Holub
~~~~

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

200. amy king
Re: afraid of poetry & miscellany
Fri 22 May 2009

A few have quickly bc'd me to ask why I am so "shocked" and "surprised". I am neither.

Interesting, that conclusion though. Wonder why.

On Fri, May 22, 2009 at 12:17 PM, Amy King <[redacted]> wrote:
~~~~

--- On Fri, 5/22/09, jforjames wrote:

Britons are baffled by poetry, with many saying they live in fear of being asked to recite a poem in public, research has found.

Seven in 10 (73%) are "scared" by the genre, according to a poll of 1,500 adults, while two thirds (67%) admit reading and reciting poetry leave them tongue-tied.

more...

http://www.google.com/hostednews/ukpress/article/ALeqM5inb086GokHGwHM5CYXZ0-XLJpYxw

~~~~

GOODREADS NEWSLETTER CONTEST >

PLEASE POST YOUR POEM FOR THE JUNE GOODREADS NEWSLETTER CONTEST NOW!

http://www.goodreads.com/topic/show/146424-please-post-your-poem-for-the-june-goodreads-newsletter-contest-now

~~~~

Saving Salt Publishing: Just One Book

As many of you will know, Jen and I have been struggling to keep Salt moving since June last year when the economic downturn began to affect our press. Our three year funding ends this year: we've =A34,000 due from Arts Council England in a final payment, but cannot apply through Grants for the Arts for further funding for Salt's operations. Spring sales were down nearly 80% on the previous year, and despite April's much improved trading, the past twelve months has left us with a budget deficit of over =A355,000. It's proving to be a very big hole and= we're having to take some drastic measures to save our business.

Here's how you can help us to save Salt and all our work with hundreds of authors around the world.

JUST ONE BOOK

1. Please buy just one book, right now. We don't mind from where, you can buy it from us or from Amazon, your local shop or megastore, online or offline. If you buy just one book now, you'll help to save Salt. Timing is absolutely everything here. We need cash now to stay afloat. If you love literature, help keep it alive. All it takes is just one book sale. Go to our online store and help us keep going.

2. Share this note on your profile. Tell your friends. If we can spread the word about our cash crisis, we can hopefully find more sales and save our literary publishing. Remember it's just one book, that's all it takes to save us. Please do it now.
With my best wishes to everyone
Chris
Director
Salt Publishing
<http://www.saltpublishing.com>http://www.saltpublishing.com=3D
~~~
TONIGHT
Join us for an extra May Stain!
Friday, May 22nd @ 7 p.m.
Ken Chen  Johannes Göransson  Cathy Park Hong  Joyelle McSweeney
  stain 766 grand street
brooklyn, ny 11211
(L train to Grand Street , 1 block west)
718/[redacted]
open daily @ 5 p.m.
Enjoy local beers, wines, and lite fare -- PLUS, the garden is open!
~~~~
Quote I like posted elsewhere by Halvard Johnson:

"There is poetry in everything. That is the biggest argument against poetry."

--Miroslav Holub

~~~~

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

201. Jennifer Karmin

Philly Poetry: revised weekend schedule

Fri 22 May 2009

---

hi poetics friends....looks like we got a triple poetry reading happening in philly this saturday! the curators have worked together to try to accomodate everyone who wants to attend all 3 readings. check out the revised details below.

hope to see some of you at the friday night reading too.

onwards,
jennifer karmin

1.
FRIDAY, MAY 22
7:30pm

Moles Not Molar presents
ISH KLEIN
MATTHEW KLANE
JENNIFER KARMIN performing with Adam Fieled & Michelle Taransky

at the CRANE ARTS COMMUNITY SPACE
1400 N. American Street
two blocks north of Girard Ave. between 2nd & 3rd
http://www.cranearts.com

2.
SATURDAY, MAY 23
5pm

The New Philadelphia Poets presents
BRENDA IIJIMA
YEDA MORRISON
~~~~

at FERGIES PUB
1214 Sansom Street
http://www.newphiladelphiapoets.com

3.
SATURDAY, MAY 23
7pm

Flim Forum Press presents
EMILY ABENDROTH
ELI DRABMAN
ERIC GELSINGER
JENNIFER KARMIN
MATTHEW KLANE
AARON LOWINGER

at ROBIN'S BOOKSTORE
108 South 13th Street
http://www.robinsbookstore.com

4.
SATURDAY, MAY 23
8:30pm

Chapter and Verse presents
FRANK SHERLOCK SIMON PETTET

at CHAPTERHOUSE CAFE
620 S. 9th Street (between South & Bainbridge) http://chapterhousereadings.blogspot.com

↑ Index

202. Mark Weiss
Re: book ideas?
Fri 22 May 2009

Check out Poems for the Millennium vol 2, ed. Rothenberg and Joris (UC Press). You might even want to use it as your textbook.

Mark

At 12:31 PM 5/21/2009, you wrote:
>Hello,
>
>I'm teaching a senior undergraduate course entitled "Poetry since >1950" in the fall, and I'm making up my own anthology as a course >package so as to include a fair amount of experimental material.

>However, I need some ideas for a short critical overview of >contemporary poetry that takes a world or at least trans-Atlantic >perspective and addresses historical contexts, movements, issues in >poetics, etc. Is there such a book available?
>
>Thanks for ideas.
>
>Hilary Clark
>

↑ Index

203. Ruth Lepson
Re: book ideas?
Fri 22 May 2009

---

eliot weinberger edited Poetry after 1950 which is out of print but maybe you can contact him directly as it has commentary--he is involved with the rothenberg too.

On 5/22/09 2:14 PM, "Mark Weiss" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Check out Poems for the Millennium vol 2, ed. Rothenberg and Joris (UC Press). You might even want to use it as your textbook.
>
> Mark
>
> At 12:31 PM 5/21/2009, you wrote:
> Hello,
>
> I'm teaching a senior undergraduate course entitled "Poetry since 1950" in the fall, and I'm making up my own anthology as a course package so as to include a fair amount of experimental material. However, I need some ideas for a short critical overview of contemporary poetry that takes a world or at least trans-Atlantic perspective and addresses historical contexts, movements, issues in poetics, etc. Is there such a book available?
>
> Thanks for ideas.
>
> Hilary Clark

↑ Index

204. amy king
Urgent Poetics Query
Fri 22 May 2009

I wanted to call this post, "Feminism:Â Not Just for Women Anymore" but figured such a title might cause more than a few to 86 this straight to the trash bin.

After posting my miscellany note earlier today, one guy actually followed up and gave me even more grief for being annoyed that he assumed I was shocked by the Briton study ("fine fine geez). I answered the other two guys by posting my response frontchannel. Only one person started a respectful conversation with me backchannel about the study.

So my question to the first chap who asked why would I post a study that includes info "we [Poetics list members] already know" (i.e. that people are afraid of poetry) was: If we were on a politics listserv and I posted a recent study that found many thought marriage equality was about civil rights or was overdue, would he then also question why I was shocked? And is it an accident that two other men asked me backchannel why I was surprised by the study?

This type of exchange raises all sorts of questions for me about this list. That study was posted on another listserv by a man (James). I don't think he was queried about his motivation, nor was it assumed he was shocked/surprised by the study. Correct me if I'm wrong, James. And yes, I think this is a gender issue.

I'm not alone as of late in wondering about the dynamics of listserve etiquette, the different models of "feminine" and "masculine" exchange, and just why this particular listserv, with nearly 2,000 members now, has grown so utterly quiet in discussion. I know I'm opening a can of worms now with this line of inquiry (pin the bulls eye on my forehead gently, please), but while it seems the old model of open, unchecked exchange led to more discussion in years past, a ton of flaming and ad hom attacks inevitably and typically spiraled into intimidation and attack mode, overwhelming and silencing most of the female members as well as many men who simply didn't have the time or interest to engage in such battles. What was the past attraction? Does aggressive baiting stimulate? False accusations or intentional misreadings? I wonder if it's a coincidence that debate has significantly tapered now that those types of exchanges are prohibited. Even more telling, when I post a note of miscellany as a woman, I am "checked" backchannel by several men who projected a response onto me that I simply did not have nor indicate anywhere in my posting, forcing me into defense mode to waste more time that would be better served in discussion/debate. These types of exchanges are old school and so very tired.

The women of Delirous Hem [http://www.delirioushem.blogspot.com/] have recently been discussing the dynamics of such exchange as well as how men and women are actually advancing a feminist poetics. This line of inquiry has even led a few to wonder aloud (via their blogs) just what a feminist poetics is and how to promote it. Even a few men aren't afraid of the notion that we need new models of exchange, which is a poetics too. Feminist modes of thinking and operating may not, after all, be for women only. I don't have the answers, but feminist imaginings may actually provide models by which we can jump start a listserv that seems to have grown quiet in exchange, even by initially asking, Just what can feminist thinking make us aware of and what models for discussion might we use? What is a feminist poetics, exactly? What are the aims of feminist-minded poets? ... Some excerpts from the Delirous Hem responses:

"while ideas live differently in different cultures, equality is not necessarily a cultural idea/value; its thorough application would involve a change in culture, and as an idea, it might arise or live differently in different cultures, sure" --Catherine Daly (http://cadaly.blogspot.com/2009/05/what-does-feminist-poet-look-like-or.html)

~~~

Gina Myers, a teacher, a poet, and an all around amazing human being, has a piece up over at Delirious Hem, a blog for women poets. Myers' piece, entitled "This is what a [post] feminist [poet] looks like," explores her relationship with feminism in a so-called "post feminist" society. ...

Myers' poetry is an inspiration to all who read it, and in he piece, she reflects on her work co-directing the Vagina Monologues at a small town community college in the middle of a corn field and overflowing with sexist, homophobic ideologies that only a select few seem to want to fight against.

I did not see one cause as being more important than others, nor did I necessarily see them as being separate causes. The larger issue is social justice, and I have continued to live my life committed to this one cause.

--Feministing [cont'd http://community.feministing.com/2009/05/this-is-what-a-post-feminist-p.html]

~~~

A lot of the poems in Becoming the Villainess were written after these experiences left me frustrated - "Okay, Ophelia" is one of them. I started noticing that the culture does a great job of portraying women as eye candy, as victims and villainesses, but not a great job of portraying them as anything else. I started thinking about the mythology and fairy tale stories I grew up with, and how women today could or couldn't model themselves after those characters.

...The poems grew out of my increasing awareness of how women are treated now, in myth, and in our culture. I grew up around guys - I have three brothers, I dated a lot of great guys and had mostly guy friends - and I'm happy to say I have a terrific, supportive, dare-I-say feminist husband. But I look around me and wish for more positive role models, for some support for women who need to be protected, for a place where girls don't have to worry about what they wear for fear they will be attacked.

--Jeannine Hall Gailley [con't -- http://www.webbish6.com/2009/05/so-after-reading-about-feminism-here.html]

~~~

I know there are more forums planned (I plan to co-organize one, too), but I hope this topic gets a second run, because I imagine there are plenty of women [poets] who thought they weren't feminist poets until they read this -- just as there were contributors who thought they weren't feminist poets until they entered grad school, until they were employed by a bureaucracy, until they sat down to write their pieces.

A note on blog comment boxes: It's a thrill to see these filled with women's opinions. I can feel, but can't yet quite articulate, how the rhetoric shifts when women enter into comment-box conversations. It seems to me that comment boxes are sometimes like city streets at night: women know they shouldn't go alone, know they risk danger -- leering eyes, men who do not know how to listen in earnest but would rather hear themselves talk.

--Becca Klaver [con't -- http://beccaklaver.blogspot.com/2009/05/on-delirious-hem-this-is-what-feminist.html]

~~~~

So what to add? How about a confession I'm not supposed to make. When I was pregnant, I desperately wanted a boy and when I found out I was having a boy, I cried with joy...

But I did have a preference. There are some personal, complicated reasons, but also there is a philosophical one. I want to try to contribute to society a man who is thoughtful, introspective and considerate. Somebody who doesn't view himself as the center, the norm, the standard. A man who can both respect and not take advantage of the women of his generation. As feminists and mothers in general, I believe we spend a lot of time making up for what current society lacks and preparing our daughters to handle that. I think this is incredibly important and must continue. But I think some of us overlook how we need to prepare our sons. It's easy to do, society offers so many more advantages to our sons. But society fails them on many other levels.

...For instance, many of the poet-dads brag about "changing a lot of diapers" or staying home a day or two a week to watch their children. Yes, that's great. Yes, it undoubtedly is helpful to the mother. Yes, that's likely a big step forward from what their fathers did. But these guys see themselves as heros almost, like what their doing is above and beyond the expectation. It doesn't occur to them that 30% of diaper changing and 20% of childcare is closer to being described as supplemental.

I wouldn't even mind this imbalance if there was at least an better awareness of it. A poet-dad admitting that his wife does the bulk of the child rearing which allows him to write more and travel, well that's a totally different situation. That's awareness and honesty. He's not inflating himself or diminishing her.

Can you imagine a poet-mom bragging that she changes a lot of diapers? Your response would be, um, yeah, that's part of raising a baby. If I bragged about staying home to watch my child, you'd stare and scratch your head. Yes, you're a mother, you don't leave your young child alone to fend for himself. How many times have I heard a poet-dad say he's "babysitting" his own children? How can one babysit his own child? Aren't poets supposedly be conscious of their word choices? How many poet-dads of young children go away to writing colonies for a month at a time without a second thought? It's kind of amazing. I go away for three nights and am constantly reminded, often by complete strangers, how lucky (and of course, selfish I am) to leave my son with his own father.

--Reb Livingston [con't -- http://reblivingston.blogspot.com/2009/05/let-me-build-you-statue.html]

~~~

So it isnâ€™t like that when I say I was a feminist for two seconds. I didnâ€™t get it, and I still want to be one. I wish I was a feminist more than anything. I did a semester in grad school for theology because I think feminist theology is maybe second only to queer theology in terms of, you know, solving all of lifeâ€™s problems. My tongue is set firmly on the bottom of my mouth here.

...But I think I was discouraged from all of this by the cool reception I got from women, and also by the sheer difficulty of trying to comprehend feminist intellectuals who make it a point to work outside of the patriarchal system that I am fully steeped in.

....At any rate, I kind of donâ€™t pay a lot of attention to feminist currents anymore.

But there is a really awesome new bloggish called Delirious Hem, chock full of poets (women poets) describing their relationship to feminism. Itâ€™s personal stuff, smart stuff, really clever at times and really aware of the problems of communicating this way, and the problems of not.
~~~

--Adam Robinson [con't -- http://htmlgiant.com/?p=8885]

~~~~

Practice, on the other hand, can move only in relation to the worldâ€™s pace. While some things about the social condition of women (which?) have changed since earlier generations of feminist discourse, other things have changed more slowly if it all (which?).

...The arriving at (feminist) consciousness narrative. A fact of being human: nobodyâ€™s born knowing anything. So learning to be a feminist requires those moments of experience and recognition when one discovers why it matters, and every writer who becomes invested in feminism has to have such moments.

And yet, of course, the fact that everyone has to have them means that thereâ€™s now quite a history of narratives regarding the arrival at feminist consciousness.

....The role of articulating a poetics as such. Feminism is of course fundamentally a cultural practice. Itâ€™s possible to be a feminist without being a poet or an artist at all, obviously. So is there a specific relation between feminism and the actual practice of writing lines of poetry (or other kinds of writing) in this or that way? If feminism can be not simply a cultural theory but also a poetics, how does that poetics look as an actual practice of how to write? And how are the questions of how to write and what to write about connected?

...Does a list like this really have much value? Who knows. Nonetheless, it has been fascinating for me to think again about how alive and well feminist poetry still is as it brings new concerns into relationship with many of its ongoing ones.

--Mark Wallace [con't -- http://wallacethinksagain.blogspot.com/2009/05/post-millenial-feminist-poetry.html]

~~~

And much, much more to start thinking about over at Delirious Hem -- http://www.delirioushem.blogspot.com/

Thanks for listening,

Amy

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

205. Aryanil Mukherjee
Re: book ideas?
Fri 22 May 2009

I second it. True. Its hard to find a better anthology of post-war world poetry.

Aryanil

----- Original Message -----
From: "Mark Weiss" <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Friday, May 22, 2009 2:14:07 PM GMT -05:00 US/Canada Eastern
Subject: Re: book ideas?

Check out Poems for the Millennium vol 2, ed. Rothenberg and Joris (UC Press). You might even want to use it as your textbook.

Mark

At 12:31 PM 5/21/2009, you wrote:
>Hello,
>
>I'm teaching a senior undergraduate course entitled "Poetry since >1950" in the fall, and I'm making up my own anthology as a course >package so as to include a fair amount of experimental material.
>However, I need some ideas for a short critical overview of >contemporary poetry that takes a world or at least trans-Atlantic >perspective and addresses historical contexts, movements, issues in >poetics, etc. Is there such a book available?
>
>Thanks for ideas.
>
>Hilary Clark
>

↑ Index

206. Ann Bogle
Feminist poetics
Fri 22 May 2009

A response to Amy King's post about recent web developments in feminist poetics:

I attempted to comment at Mark Wallace's website a few days ago, and the comment -- never transmitted -- went up in a puff of peace smoke. I had tried to explain -- something I have written about at my weblog -- that in the early 80s

-- "feminist" where I lived in Madison (beloved city) meant "radical, lesbian separatist feminist." I explain further at my weblog that there was a difference between academic feminist scholarship (phenomenal) and lesbian street feminist (raw). The womyn's commune where I lived filled seats to hear women's poetry and promoted street feminism. I moved next to upstate New York, where few people (Mark Wallace an exception) talked about feminism in creative writing. There were international feminist scholars in training. One American woman feminist Ph.D. candidate was driven crazy with sticks. Her audibly dry mouth during seminar was almost the first I'd known of anti-depressants. Street feminism upstate was pro-choice activism, and as many men as women participated (the redneck men with shotguns). In Texas, I wrote a short story about it, and the editor (an influential "writer-who-happens-to-be-a-(white)-woman") read mysterious hinterlands anti-semitism into the pro-choice male vigilantes. That short story (called "Hymen") became boilerplate in workshop, running through three guest workshop "leaders" before it died on the schoolroom floor.

Texas in the early 90s was a trip. Texas is in favor of sexuality generally, and the politics of sexuality were a little hard to stab w/ a pickle fork. The strippers were the feminists and anti-war activists. Two of the strippers were the only two mothers among the graduate students. The strippers were the textual feminist critics in creative writing prose, too. I called it "finger-touch" feminism. It was witty, erudite, delicate, and literate. We did it quietly at the workshop table surrounded by male and female writers whose work was more likely to see mainstream publication.

New feminism -- stirrings of which are wafting like violets in our hair -- is new femininity. You don't get to punch the sky in new femininity, but you do get to knit. Knitting is big, so is embroidery, needlework of all kinds. Bored by textual feminism, it over, the women started on needle crafts and waited, first for Obama, when it was Bush, now for Michelle Obama's next gorgeous cover. My mother (who had wanted a career in public office) once knitted a tailored three-color v-neck-turtleneck for my Barbie. My sister, who is a textual designer, and I still can't believe she knit it.

AMB

↑ Index

207. Ann Bogle
Re: Feminist poetics
Fri 22 May 2009

A v-striped-turtleneck? My sister, though she also writes, is a textile designer.

AMB

In a message dated 5/22/2009 4:41:57 P.M. Central Daylight Time, AMBogle2 writes:

My mother (who had wanted a career in public office) once knitted a tailored three-color v-neck-turtleneck for my Barbie. My sister, who is a textual designer, and I still can't believe she knit it.

↑ Index

208. Murat Nemet-Nejat
Re: Urgent Poetics Query
Fri 22 May 2009

Amy,

I am surprised that you are the one asking the question about the moribund state of the Poetics List today since, if I remember correctly, you were instrumental in its creation. Under the overly broad rubric of "flaming," including within it unsavory ideas, and also banning the posting of any individual works new rules drain the Poetics List of all its energy and turned it essential a trade list where people list their publications and poetry readings.

Polemics is the bread and butter of thought. Heated polemics is the bread and butter of passionate, committed thought -a quality, as you have noted this list has been devoid of for quite a long time. Words don't break bones. I never quite understood what is to me the extreme squeamishness about flaming. That's me I suppose with all my male, aggressive hormones going all the time.

As for your comments about the recent London research results. I am one of those responded to you, thinking I was posting to the list. For some reason, my response was back channeled to you. Anyone who has taught a class of high school or early college students know very well how students -male and female- approach poetry with anxiety, with a sense that poetry requires rules or attitudes they are not familiar with or are alien to them. This was a casual cultural comment -a bit of kvetching by a poet- which it seems, to my amazement, you fantasized into a sexual verbal attack.

Ciao,

Murat

On Fri, May 22, 2009 at 3:24 PM, amy king <[redacted]> wrote:

> I wanted to call this post, "Feminism: Not Just for Women Anymore" but figured such a title might cause more than a few to 86 this straight to the trash bin.
>
> After posting my miscellany note earlier today, one guy actually followed up and gave me even more grief for being annoyed that he assumed I was shocked by the Briton study ("fine fine geez). I answered the other two guys by posting my response frontchannel. Only one person started a respectful conversation with me backchannel about the study.

So my question to the first chap who asked why would I post a study that includes info "we [Poetics list members] already know" (i.e. that people are afraid of poetry) was: If we were on a politics listserv and I posted a recent study that found many thought marriage equality was about civil rights or was overdue, would he then also question why I was shocked? And is it an accident that two other men asked me backchannel why I was surprised by the study?

This type of exchange raises all sorts of questions for me about this list. That study was posted on another listserv by a man (James). I don't think he was queried about his motivation, nor was it assumed he was shocked/surprised by the study. Correct me if I'm wrong, James. And yes, I think this is a gender issue.

I'm not alone as of late in wondering about the dynamics of listserve etiquette, the different models of "feminine" and "masculine" exchange, and just why this particular listserv, with nearly 2,000 members now, has grown so utterly quiet in discussion. I know I'm opening a can of worms now with this line of inquiry (pin the bulls eye on my forehead gently, please), but while it seems the old model of open, unchecked exchange led to more discussion in years past, a ton of flaming and ad hom attacks inevitably and typically spiraled into intimidation and attack mode, overwhelming and silencing most of the female members as well as many men who simply didn't have the time or interest to engage in such battles.
What was the past attraction? Does aggressive baiting stimulate? False accusations or intentional misreadings? I wonder if it's a coincidence that debate has significantly tapered now that those types of exchanges are prohibited. Even more telling, when I post a note of miscellany as a woman, I am "checked" backchannel by several men who projected a response onto me that I simply did not have nor indicate anywhere in my posting, forcing me into defense mode to waste more time that would be better served in discussion/debate. These types of exchanges are old school and so very tired.

The women of Delirous Hem [http://www.delirioushem.blogspot.com/] have recently been discussing the dynamics of such exchange as well as how men and women are actually advancing a feminist poetics. This line of inquiry has even led a few to wonder aloud (via their blogs) just what a feminist poetics is and how to promote it. Even a few men aren't afraid of the notion that we need new models of exchange, which is a poetics too. Feminist modes of thinking and operating may not, after all, be for women only. I don't have the answers, but feminist imaginings may actually provide models by which we can jump start a listserv that seems to have grown quiet in exchange, even by initially asking, Just what can feminist thinking make us aware of and what models for discussion might we use? What is a feminist poetics, exactly? What are the aims of feminist-minded poets? ... Some excerpts from the Delirous Hem responses:

"while ideas live differently in different cultures, equality is not necessarily a cultural idea/value; its thorough application would involve a change in culture, and as an idea, it might arise or live differently in different cultures, sure"
-- Catherine Daly (
http://cadaly.blogspot.com/2009/05/what-does-feminist-poet-look-like-or.html
)

~~~

Gina Myers, a teacher, a poet, and an all around amazing human being, has a piece up over at Delirious Hem, a blog for women poets. Myers' piece, entitled "This is what a [post] feminist [poet] looks like," explores her relationship with feminism in a so-called "post feminist" society. ...

Myers' poetry is an inspiration to all who read it, and in he piece, she reflects on her work co-directing the Vagina Monologues at a small town community college in the middle of a corn field and overflowing with sexist, homophobic ideologies that only a select few seem to want to fight against.

I did not see one cause as being more important than others, nor did I necessarily see them as being separate causes. The larger issue is social justice, and I have continued to live my life committed to this one cause.

--Feministing [cont'd
http://community.feministing.com/2009/05/this-is-what-a-post-feminist-p.html
]

~~~

A lot of the poems in Becoming the Villainess were written after these experiences left me frustrated - "Okay, Ophelia" is one of them. I started noticing that the culture does a great job of portraying women as eye candy, as victims and villainesses, but not a great job of portraying them as anything else. I started thinking about the mythology and fairy tale stories I grew up with, and how women today could or couldn't model themselves after those characters.

...The poems grew out of my increasing awareness of how women are treated now, in myth, and in our culture. I grew up around guys - I have three brothers, I dated a lot of great guys and had mostly guy friends - and I'm happy to say I have a terrific, supportive, dare-I-say feminist husband. But I look around me and wish for more positive role models, for some support for women who need to be protected, for a place where girls don't have to worry about what they wear for fear they will be attacked.

--Jeannine Hall Gailley [con't -- http://www.webbish6.com/2009/05/so-after-reading-about-feminism-here.html]

~~~

I know there are more forums planned (I plan to co-organize one, too), but I hope this topic gets a second run, because I imagine there are plenty of women [poets] who thought they weren't feminist poets until they read this -- just as there were contributors who thought they weren't feminist poets until they entered grad school, until they were employed by a bureaucracy, until they sat down to write their pieces.

A note on blog comment boxes: It's a thrill to see these filled with women's opinions. I can feel, but can't yet quite articulate, how the rhetoric shifts when women enter into comment-box conversations. It seems to me that comment boxes are sometimes like city streets at night: women know they shouldn't go alone, know they risk danger -- leering eyes, men who do not know how to listen in earnest but would rather hear themselves talk.

--Becca Klaver [con't -- http://beccaklaver.blogspot.com/2009/05/on-delirious-hem-this-is-what-feminist.html]

~~~~

So what to add? How about a confession I'm not supposed to make. When I was pregnant, I desperately wanted a boy and when I found out I was having a boy, I cried with joy...

But I did have a preference. There are some personal, complicated reasons, but also there is a philosophical one. I want to try to contribute to society a man who is thoughtful, introspective and considerate. Somebody who doesn't view himself as the center, the norm, the standard. A man who can both respect and not take advantage of the women of his generation. As feminists and mothers in general, I believe we spend a lot of time making up for what current society lacks and preparing our daughters to handle that. I think this is incredibly important and must continue. But I think some of us overlook how we need to prepare our sons. It's easy to do, society offers so many more advantages to our sons. But society fails them on many other levels.

...For instance, many of the poet-dads brag about "changing a lot of diapers" or staying home a day or two a week to watch their children. Yes, that's great. Yes, it undoubtedly is helpful to the mother. Yes, that's likely a big step forward from what their fathers did. But these guys see themselves as heros almost, like what their doing is above and beyond the expectation. It doesn't occur to them that 30% of diaper changing and 20% of childcare is closer to being described as supplemental.

I wouldn't even mind this imbalance if there was at least an better awareness of it. A poet-dad admitting that his wife does the bulk of the child rearing which allows him to write more and travel, well that's a totally different situation. That's awareness and honesty. He's not inflating himself or diminishing her.

Can you imagine a poet-mom bragging that she changes a lot of diapers? Your response would be, um, yeah, that's part of raising a baby. If I bragged about staying home to watch my child, you'd stare and scratch your head. Yes, you're a mother, you don't leave your young child alone to fend for himself. How many times have I heard a poet-dad say he's "babysitting" his own children? How can one babysit his own child? Aren't poets supposedly be conscious of their word choices? How many poet-dads of young children go away to writing colonies for a month at a time without a second thought? It's kind of amazing. I go away for three nights and am constantly reminded, often by complete strangers, how lucky (and of course, selfish I am) to leave my son with his own father.

--Reb Livingston [con't -- http://reblivingston.blogspot.com/2009/05/let-me-build-you-statue.html]

~~~

So it isn't like that when I say I was a feminist for two seconds. I didn't get it, and I still want to be one. I wish I was a feminist more than anything. I did a semester in grad school for theology because I think feminist theology is maybe second only to queer theology in terms of, you know, solving all of life's problems. My tongue is set firmly on the bottom of my mouth here.

...But I think I was discouraged from all of this by the cool reception I got from women, and also by the sheer difficulty of trying to comprehend feminist intellectuals who make it a point to work outside of the patriarchal system that I am fully steeped in.

....At any rate, I kind of don't pay a lot of attention to feminist currents anymore.

But there is a really awesome new bloggish called Delirious Hem, chock full of poets (women poets) describing their relationship to feminism. It's personal stuff, smart stuff, really clever at times and really aware of the problems of communicating this way, and the problems of not.

--Adam Robinson [con't -- http://htmlgiant.com/?p=8885]

~~~~

Practice, on the other hand, can move only in relation to the world's pace. While some things about the social condition of women (which?) have changed since earlier generations of feminist discourse, other things have changed more slowly if it all (which?).

...The arriving at (feminist) consciousness narrative. A fact of being human: nobody's born knowing anything. So learning to be a feminist requires those moments of experience and recognition when one discovers why it matters, and every writer who becomes invested in feminism has to have such moments.

And yet, of course, the fact that everyone has to have them means that there's now quite a history of narratives regarding the arrival at feminist consciousness.

....The role of articulating a poetics as such. Feminism is of course fundamentally a cultural practice. It's possible to be a feminist without being a poet or an artist at all, obviously. So is there a specific relation between feminism and the actual practice of writing lines of poetry (or other kinds of writing) in this or that way? If feminism can be not simply a cultural theory but also a poetics, how does that poetics look as an actual practice of how to write? And how are the questions of how to write and what to write about connected?

> ...Does a list like this really have much value? Who knows. Nonetheless, it has been fascinating for me to think again about how alive and well feminist poetry still is as it brings new concerns into relationship with many of its ongoing ones.
>
> --Mark Wallace [con't -- http://wallacethinksagain.blogspot.com/2009/05/post-millenial-feminist-poetry.html]
>
> ~~~
>
> And much, much more to start thinking about over at Delirious Hem -- http://www.delirioushem.blogspot.com/
>
> Thanks for listening,
>
> Amy
>
> _____
>
> Amy's Alias
>
> http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

209. Gerald Schwartz

Re: book ideas?

Fri 22 May 2009

Under the Rock Umbrella
Contemporary Poets 1951-77
Edited by William Walsh
Mercer University Press (2006)

--Gerald Schwartz

Hello,

I'm teaching a senior undergraduate course entitled "Poetry since 1950" in the fall, and I'm making up my own anthology as a course package so as to include a fair amount of experimental material. However, I need some ideas for a short critical overview of contemporary poetry that takes a world or at least trans-Atlantic perspective and addresses historical contexts, movements, issues in poetics, etc. Is there such a book available?

Thanks for ideas.

Hilary Clark

↑ Index

210. Geoffrey Gatza

Two great short reviews of Housecat Kung Fu by Geoffrey Gatza

Fri 22 May 2009

Two great short reviews of Housecat Kung Fu by Geoffrey Gatza

At Amazon reviewed y Kevin Killian & Galatea Resurrects #12 reviewed by Ruth Lepson

http://www.amazon.com/review/R1DR9ZQG8CWXVP/ref=cm_cr_rdp_perm <http://www.amazon.com/review/R1DR9ZQG8CWXVP/ref=cm_cr_rdp_perm>

http://galatearesurrection12.blogspot.com/2009/05/housecat-kung-fu-by-geoffrey-gatza.html <http://galatearesurrection12.blogspot.com/2009/05/housecat-kung-fu-by-geoff rey-gatza.html>

Buy Here:
http://www.amazon.com/gp/product/0979411963/ref=cm_rdp_product <http://www.amazon.com/gp/product/0979411963/ref=cm_rdp_product>

Geckos with Bristles, May 21, 2009
By Kevin Killian

Looks like mighty little Meritage Press has plucked forth another winner, this one with a nursery edge that will have your infants gripping the bars of their cribs and swatting those cut-out animals that dangle, like indents, above their faces on showy Kid Calder mobiles. Buffalo-based Geoffrey Gatza has long been a man of the animals, and now he has put together a complete collection of animal poems that invites comparison to similar efforts by Marianne Moore and Hilaire Belloc. The poems are illustrated with period woodcuts from a variety of childrens's literature texts of bygone eras, so the glamour of the antique falls gently here and there over what might otherwise be rather a sharp menu to feed baby with.

In fact I have a feeling that kids aren't the primary audience for Housecat Kung Fu, though there is nothing that would scare or offend any redblooded kid. Well, there is a Bambi like transition from two giraffes necking, to one of them being taken away and hanged by the neck. But children seem to adore violence and they might well laugh at the surreal practice of hanging anyhow: with a giraffe in the noose Gatza provides an indelible image of the wrong. Elsewhere the poems depict "befuiddled" heroes trying to obey strange customs that keep them caged, but, as we learn, "one cat's incarceration is another cat's contented cradle." Gatza's poetic invention never flags, and half the fun is seeing how he takes you from one line down to the next--no two poems are alike, except that here an accent on the quirky and mutable can always be heard, an onomatopoetic replicating the mind of the poet meeting the greater minds of the animal kingdom.

An attractive and illuminating book of wisdom.

http://www.amazon.com/review/R1DR9ZQG8CWXVP/ref=cm_cr_rdp_perm <http://www.amazon.com/review/R1DR9ZQG8CWXVP/ref=cm_cr_rdp_perm>

HOUSECAT KUNG FU by GEOFFREY GATZA
RUTH LEPSON Reviews

Housecat Kung Fu by Geoffrey Gatza
(Meritage Press, St. Helena & San Francisco, 2009)

Geoffrey Gatza has moments of Leslie Scalapinoism:

Consumed, I began cleaning; as a portrait of moments flicking out a drifting life, a lake, an edited reality of sweet humor:

a hazelnut is a miserable/ nut to quarrel with...a man¹s heart devises his dance/and earth charms away his days of visual poetry:

There are two sides to every tablecloth is a line that gets paler as we see the other side of the tablecloth of personification that moves compelling sounds through emotion:

look at me alive

frozen paths cut lonely blankets of snow

moments live for days

crazy flights of imagination:

so I took off my nose and unzipped my skin and folded it neatly by the reflecting pond so no one would think those awful things people think about people who go leaving their skin any which way

his own set of myths, for instance, how the jellyfish was beaten into a quivering lump and endless sweetness and sympathy:

maddened moments of trees in terrible pain, Cars rusting on their underbelly

so read his book HOUSECAT KUNG FU, whether you are an adult or a child, because once you start you will want to continue.

*****

Ruth Lepson is poet-in-res at New England Conservatory of Music. Her books are Dreaming in Color, Poetry from Sojourner: A Feminist Anthology (ed.), Morphology, a collaboration with artist Rusty Crump of his & her pix & her prose poems, and, forthcoming from blazeVOX.org, I Went Looking for You. She has been performing with jazz musicians Noah Preminger & Eric Lane in low road, & the group has a CD forthcoming.

http://galatearesurrection12.blogspot.com/2009/05/housecat-kung-fu-by-geoffrey-gatza.html <http://galatearesurrection12.blogspot.com/2009/05/housecat-kung-fu-by-geoff rey-gatza.html>

↑ Index

211. David-Baptiste Chirot

NYT review of Frederick Seidel's New Poetry Collection Selection

Sat 23 May 2009

---

http://www.nytimes.com/2009/05/24/books/review/Orr-t.html

BOOKS / SUNDAY BOOK REVIEW

| May 24, 2009

On Poetry:
The Edge of Night

By DAVID ORR

Frederick Seidel has spent the last half-century being the darkest and strangest sort of poet.

_____
Windows Live™: Keep your life in sync.
http://windowslive.com/explore?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_BR_life_in_synch_052009

↑ Index

212. Susan Webster Schultz

a few posts from tinfisheditor blog

Sat 23 May 2009

--"Words are what sticks to the real": Wayne Kaumali...
--Ventriloquists from Laenani to Palo Alto
--Forgetting poets; or the evanescence of memorials
--Albert Wendt and the Adventures of Genre

http://tinfisheditor.blogspot.com

Susan

↑ Index

213. Anny Ballardini
Re: Urgent Poetics Query
Sat 23 May 2009

Murat, Amy,

I do not know what kind of answer Murat forwarded but if it is within the limits Murat sets, it wasn't certainly the one that triggered Amy's response. I do not agree with Murat that Amy wanted the list to die down, and I am with Amy in being able to speak rather than insult. I have had my part of insults from one list and that is why I rarely contribute to some.

About the link Amy forwarded, I remember thinking, "ah the Britons". I went to England for several stays, and I read many posts/books by Britons. That is how I justify my comprehension of the undoubtedly true statistic. As I know the people of the north and the people of the south, as Mme de Stael would put it more broadly.

I cannot understand why such an article aroused any anti-feminist remarks, this really goes beyond my comprehension.

With my best wishes,

Anny

On Sat, May 23, 2009 at 12:36 AM, Murat Nemet-Nejat <[redacted]>wrote:

> Amy,
>
> I am surprised that you are the one asking the question about the moribund state of the Poetics List today since, if I remember correctly, you were instrumental in its creation. Under the overly broad rubric of "flaming," including within it unsavory ideas, and also banning the posting of any individual works new rules drain the Poetics List of all its energy and turned it essential a trade list where people list their publications and poetry readings.
>
> Polemics is the bread and butter of thought. Heated polemics is the bread and butter of passionate, committed thought -a quality, as you have noted this list has been devoid of for quite a long time. Words don't break bones.
> I never quite understood what is to me the extreme squeamishness about flaming. That's me I suppose with all my male, aggressive hormones going all > the time.
>
> As for your comments about the recent London research results. I am one of those responded to you, thinking I was posting to the list. For some reason,

my response was back channeled to you. Anyone who has taught a class of high school or early college students know very well how students -male and female- approach poetry with anxiety, with a sense that poetry requires rules or attitudes they are not familiar with or are alien to them. This was a casual cultural comment -a bit of kvetching by a poet- which it seems, to my amazement, you fantasized into a sexual verbal attack.

Ciao,

Murat

On Fri, May 22, 2009 at 3:24 PM, amy king <[redacted]> wrote:

I wanted to call this post, "Feminism: Not Just for Women Anymore" but figured such a title might cause more than a few to 86 this straight to the trash bin.

After posting my miscellany note earlier today, one guy actually followed up and gave me even more grief for being annoyed that he assumed I was shocked by the Briton study ("fine fine geez). I answered the other two guys by posting my response frontchannel. Only one person started a respectful conversation with me backchannel about the study.

So my question to the first chap who asked why would I post a study that includes info "we [Poetics list members] already know" (i.e. that people are afraid of poetry) was: If we were on a politics listserv and I posted a recent study that found many thought marriage equality was about civil rights or was overdue, would he then also question why I was shocked? And is it an accident that two other men asked me backchannel why I was surprised by the study?

This type of exchange raises all sorts of questions for me about this list.
That study was posted on another listserv by a man (James). I don't think he was queried about his motivation, nor was it assumed he was shocked/surprised by the study. Correct me if I'm wrong, James. And yes, I think this is a gender issue.

I'm not alone as of late in wondering about the dynamics of listserve etiquette, the different models of "feminine" and "masculine" exchange, and just why this particular listserv, with nearly 2,000 members now, has grown so utterly quiet in discussion. I know I'm opening a can of worms now with this line of inquiry (pin the bulls eye on my forehead gently, please), but while it seems the old model of open, unchecked exchange led to more discussion in years past, a ton of flaming and ad hom attacks inevitably and typically spiraled into intimidation and attack mode, overwhelming and silencing most of the female members as well as many men who simply didn't have the time or interest to engage in such battles.
What was the past attraction? Does aggressive baiting stimulate? False accusations or intentional misreadings? I wonder if it's a coincidence that debate has significantly tapered now that those types of exchanges are prohibited. Even more telling, when I post a note of miscellany as a woman, I am "checked" backchannel by several men who projected a response onto me that I simply did not have nor indicate anywhere in my posting, forcing me into defense mode to waste more time that would be better served in discussion/debate. These types of exchanges are old school and so very tired.

The women of Delirous Hem [http://www.delirioushem.blogspot.com/] have recently been discussing the dynamics of such exchange as well as how men and women are actually advancing a feminist poetics. This line of inquiry has even led a few to wonder aloud (via their blogs) just what a feminist poetics is and how to promote it. Even a few men aren't afraid of the notion that we need new models of exchange, which is a poetics too. Feminist modes of thinking and operating may not, after all, be for women only. I don't have the answers, but feminist imaginings may actually provide models by which we can jump start a listserv that seems to have grown quiet in exchange, even by initially asking, Just what can feminist thinking make us aware of and what models for discussion might we use? What is a feminist poetics, exactly? What are the aims of feminist-minded poets?

... Some excerpts from the Delirous Hem responses:

"while ideas live differently in different cultures, equality is not necessarily a cultural idea/value; its thorough application would involve a change in culture, and as an idea, it might arise or live differently in different cultures, sure"
-- Catherine Daly (

http://cadaly.blogspot.com/2009/05/what-does-feminist-poet-look-like-or.html)

~~~

Gina Myers, a teacher, a poet, and an all around amazing human being, has a piece up over at Delirious Hem, a blog for women poets. Myers' piece, entitled "This is what a [post] feminist [poet] looks like," explores her relationship with feminism in a so-called "post feminist" society. ...

Myers' poetry is an inspiration to all who read it, and in he piece, she reflects on her work co-directing the Vagina Monologues at a small town community college in the middle of a corn field and overflowing with sexist, homophobic ideologies that only a select few seem to want to fight against.

I did not see one cause as being more important than others, nor did I necessarily see them as being separate causes. The larger issue is social justice, and I have continued to live my life committed to this one cause.

--Feministing [cont'd

http://community.feministing.com/2009/05/this-is-what-a-post-feminist-p.html]

~~~

A lot of the poems in Becoming the Villainess were written after these experiences left me frustrated - "Okay, Ophelia" is one of them. I started noticing that the culture does a great job of portraying women as eye candy, as victims and villainesses, but not a great job of portraying them as anything else. I started thinking about the mythology and fairy tale stories I grew up with, and how women today could or couldn't model themselves after those characters.

...The poems grew out of my increasing awareness of how women are treated now, in myth, and in our culture. I grew up around guys - I have three brothers, I dated a lot of great guys and had mostly guy friends - and I'm happy to say I have a terrific, supportive, dare-I-say feminist husband. But I look around me and wish for more positive role models, for some support for women who need to be protected, for a place where girls don't have to worry about what they wear for fear they will be attacked.

--Jeannine Hall Gailley [con't --

http://www.webbish6.com/2009/05/so-after-reading-about-feminism-here.html]

~~~

I know there are more forums planned (I plan to co-organize one, too), but I hope this topic gets a second run, because I imagine there are plenty of women [poets] who thought they weren't feminist poets until they read this -- just as there were contributors who thought they weren't feminist poets until they entered grad school, until they were employed by a bureaucracy, until they sat down to write their pieces.

A note on blog comment boxes: It's a thrill to see these filled with women's opinions. I can feel, but can't yet quite articulate, how the rhetoric shifts when women enter into comment-box conversations. It seems to me that comment boxes are sometimes like city streets at night: women know they shouldn't go alone, know they risk danger -- leering eyes, men who do not know how to listen in earnest but would rather hear themselves talk.

--Becca Klaver [con't --

http://beccaklaver.blogspot.com/2009/05/on-delirious-hem-this-is-what-feminist.html]

~~~~

So what to add? How about a confession I'm not supposed to make. When I was pregnant, I desperately wanted a boy and when I found out I was having a boy, I cried with joy...

But I did have a preference. There are some personal, complicated reasons, but also there is a philosophical one. I want to try to contribute to society a man who is thoughtful, introspective and considerate. Somebody who doesn't view himself as the center, the norm, the standard. A man who can both respect and not take advantage of the women of his generation. As feminists and mothers in general, I believe we spend a lot of time making up for what current society lacks and preparing our daughters to handle that. I think this is incredibly important and must continue. But I think some of us overlook how we need to prepare our sons. It's easy to do, society offers so many more advantages to our sons. But society fails them on many other levels.

...For instance, many of the poet-dads brag about "changing a lot of diapers" or staying home a day or two a week to watch their children. Yes, that's great. Yes, it undoubtedly is helpful to the mother. Yes, that's likely a big step forward from what their fathers did. But these guys see themselves as heros almost, like what their doing is above and beyond the expectation. It doesn't occur to them that 30% of diaper changing and 20% of childcare is closer to being described as supplemental.

I wouldn't even mind this imbalance if there was at least an better awareness of it. A poet-dad admitting that his wife does the bulk of the child rearing which allows him to write more and travel, well that's a totally different situation. That's awareness and honesty. He's not inflating himself or diminishing her.

*Can you imagine a poet-mom bragging that she changes a lot of diapers? Your response would be, um, yeah, that's part of raising a baby. If I bragged about staying home to watch my child, you'd stare and scratch your head.
Yes, you're a mother, you don't leave your young child alone to fend for himself. How many times have I heard a poet-dad say he's "babysitting" his own children? How can one babysit his own child? Aren't poets supposedly be conscious of their word choices? How many poet-dads of young children go away to writing colonies for a month at a time without a second thought?
It's kind of amazing. I go away for three nights and am constantly reminded, often by complete strangers, how lucky (and of course, selfish I am) to leave my son with his own father.*

--Reb Livingston [con't -- http://reblivingston.blogspot.com/2009/05/let-me-build-you-statue.html]

~~~

So it isn't like that when I say I was a feminist for two seconds. I didn't get it, and I still want to be one. I wish I was a feminist more than anything. I did a semester in grad school for theology because I think feminist theology is maybe second only to queer theology in terms of, you know, solving all of life's problems. My tongue is set firmly on the bottom of my mouth here.

...But I think I was discouraged from all of this by the cool reception I got from women, and also by the sheer difficulty of trying to comprehend feminist intellectuals who make it a point to work outside of the patriarchal system that I am fully steeped in.

....At any rate, I kind of don't pay a lot of attention to feminist currents anymore.

But there is a really awesome new bloggish called Delirious Hem, chock full of poets (women poets) describing their relationship to feminism. It's personal stuff, smart stuff, really clever at times and really aware of the problems of communicating this way, and the problems of not.

--Adam Robinson [con't -- http://htmlgiant.com/?p=8885]

~~~~

Practice, on the other hand, can move only in relation to the world's pace.
While some things about the social condition of women (which?) have changed since earlier generations of feminist discourse, other things have changed more slowly if it all (which?).

...The arriving at (feminist) consciousness narrative. A fact of being human: nobody's born knowing anything. So learning to be a feminist requires those moments of experience and recognition when one discovers why it matters, and every writer who becomes invested in feminism has to have such moments.

And yet, of course, the fact that everyone has to have them means that there's now quite a history of narratives regarding the arrival at feminist consciousness.

....The role of articulating a poetics as such. Feminism is of course fundamentally a cultural practice. It's possible to be a feminist without being a poet or an artist at all, obviously. So is there a specific relation between feminism and the actual practice of writing lines of poetry (or other kinds of writing) in this or that way? If feminism can be not simply a cultural theory but also a poetics, how does that poetics look as an actual practice of how to write? And how are the questions of how to write and what to write about connected?

...Does a list like this really have much value? Who knows. Nonetheless, it has been fascinating for me to think again about how alive and well > feminist > poetry still is as it brings new concerns into relationship with many of its > ongoing ones.

>
> --Mark Wallace [con't --
>
> http://wallacethinksagain.blogspot.com/2009/05/post-millenial-feminist-poetry.html]
>
> ~~~
>
> And much, much more to start thinking about over at Delirious Hem -- http://www.delirioushem.blogspot.com/
>
> Thanks for listening,
>
> Amy
>
> _____
>
> Amy's Alias
>
> http://amyking.org/
>
> guidelines

--
Anny Ballardini
http://annyballardini.blogspot.com/
http://www.fieralingue.it/modules.php?name=poetshome
http://www.lulu.com/content/5806078
http://www.moriapoetry.com/ebooks.html
I Tell You: One must still have chaos in one to give birth to a dancing star!

↑ Index

214. amy king

Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

Sat 23 May 2009

Yes, Murat -- it's all my fault because, according to you, people simply don't want to join discussions that don't include flaming, name-calling, and the posting of their poems.

And no, I'm not "shocked" you reached this conclusion either (based on the historical nature of this list, you're right in line, hence the "bull's eye" notation) -- unfortunately, I think there is some truth to the idea that some are drawn to discussions for the mere drama of it all, and drama requires flaming, loud name calling, aggressive intimidating rhetoric, etc...

Additionally, discussions are often about one upping the next guy: the old hierarchical positioning that certainly takes place in conversations can also be seen in many other realms, including the popular sports realm -- if I disrespect you, then I'm on top. How many "in your face" moves do we see after someone successfully dunks a ball or reaches the goal line? I think this list has proven time and time again that the inclination is to devolve into such positioning, most especially among a specific few who cause others to retreat into silence while said handful dominate with their preening and bashing, degenerating the list's tone with name calling, flaming, ad hom. etc.

And if that is the requirement to keep discussions going, then it's a sad one that concludes the list is certainly best left for announcements only rather than getting mired into "listening" in on who comes out top dog via such unconstructive debate.

I do, however, think that there are other factors to consider and am wondering aloud (again, be gentle when you take aim, please). Perhaps the list is simply too large and a sense of community is no longer fostered. Can we actually have international and national discussions? What forum permits that? The women's poetry listserv, while it has its moments, maintains a specific focus that most members remain set on: discussing women's poetry and promoting it. The Lucipo listerv is situated within a geographical community. New Poetry is smaller and has a stable base of participants who contribute regular poetry/poetics info and respectful debate focused on analyzing poems, among other interesting foci. Of course, all three of those lists are considerably smaller than Poetics and certainly don't have the historical base of attack and flaming that Poetics has cultivated for itself, which is exactly why I was asked to moderate: to put an end to the cultivation of that tone. One need only do a search for Buffalo Poetics list to learn of that history. But before all of that, Poetics did foster great discussions on poetry and poetics ...

Also to consider, and I'm not the first to note this: many discussions now take place on blogs. The proliferation of blogs and their comment streams have opened up smaller, more focused discussions that you can join or ignore. On Poetics, every member receives every post. The same holds true for online forums. Each discussion is labeled, and while there may be nearly two thousand members, they only read what they want and join topics they deem worthwhile. They are not forced to read such discussions as earlier noted (hierarchical positioning via flaming).

I got to thinking about all of this yesterday morning when someone asked my why the list has had a lull. And then I posted my miscellany and rec'd some presumptuous queries backchannel. I posted a note, below, that I thought might generate some discussion about what has happened to this list and fully expected to be blamed. Don't think, Murat, you're alone. I've rec'd a few backchannels in the past with the same sentiment - actually from two men specifically. They want free reign to terrorize as they see fit and they believe bullying me will somehow get that kind of "power" reinstated. It's too bad that such blindered thinking gets airplay and that these men have the stamina to keep working at it. Sadly many have sent me backchannel support and bow out. I've had many more emails of that variety. The idea is that these latter people want to see a better list, one that offers more respectful discussion among members, one in which they feel safe from name calling if they join in debate, etc. Their numbers have been much greater than those who would bash me backchannel. But truly, no one wants to waste time defending themselves against willful misreadings and attacks on their character. Not even me.

CALL FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Beyond this particular discussion and overall, Poetics has been and remains a valuable resource. Our numerous members are hard-working poets, reviewers, educators, and culture makers. Perhaps it's time to figure out, communally, how we might revamp the list and generate material for discussions. Many on this list are active bloggers while others have lots to say about the topics debated on those blogs and elsewhere. We might take a cue from New Poetry and enlist contributors to post --on a schedule even-- about specific happenings, new and neglected books, schools of thought, and, taking a cue from Wompo, a once a week or once a month celebration of an admired poet (on Wompo, it's a "Foremother" celebration), etc.

We could even have a guest editor for a week or month who could solicit posts and steer discussion...

I'd be very happy to hear folks' suggestions, and if you'd like to be a contributor or nominate someone to guest edit, please contact me. This list offers an instant audience of nearly 2,000 active poets and poet appreciators with more joining everyday -- why not try to figure out new possibilities?

Thanks,

Amy

_____

Amy's Alias
http://amyking.org/

--- On Fri, 5/22/09, Murat Nemet-Nejat <[redacted]> wrote:

> From: Murat Nemet-Nejat <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: Urgent Poetics Query
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Friday, May 22, 2009, 6:36 PM
> Amy,
>
> I am surprised that you are the one asking the question about the moribund > state of the Poetics List today since, if I remember correctly, you were > instrumental in its creation. Under the overly broad rubric of "flaming," > including within it unsavory ideas, and also banning the posting of any > individual works new rules drain the Poetics List of all its energy and > turned it essential a trade list where people list their publications and > poetry readings.
>
> Polemics is the bread and butter of thought. Heated polemics is the bread > and butter of passionate, committed thought -a quality, as you have noted > this list has been devoid of for quite a long time. Words don't break bones.
> I never quite understood what is to me the extreme squeamishness about > flaming. That's me I suppose with all my male, aggressive hormones going all > the time.
>
> As for your comments about the recent London research results. I am one of those responded to you, thinking I was posting to the list. For some reason, my response was back channeled to you. Anyone who has taught a class of high school or early college students know very well how students -male and female- approach poetry with anxiety, with a sense that poetry requires rules or attitudes they are not familiar with or are alien to them. This was a casual cultural comment -a bit of kvetching by a poet- which it seems, to my amazement, you fantasized into a sexual verbal attack.

Ciao,

Murat

On Fri, May 22, 2009 at 3:24 PM, amy king <[redacted]> wrote:

I wanted to call this post, "Feminism:Â Not Just for Women Anymore" but figured such a title might cause more than a few to 86 this straight to the trash bin.

After posting my miscellany note earlier today, one guy actually followed up and gave me even more grief for being annoyed that he assumed I was shocked by the Briton study ("fine fine geez).Â I answered the other two guys by posting my response frontchannel.Â Only one person started a respectful conversation with me backchannel about the study.

So my question to the first chap who asked why would I post a study that includes info "we [Poetics list members] already know" (i.e. that people are afraid of poetry) was:Â Â Â If we were on a politics listserv and I posted a recent study that found many thought marriage equality > was about civil > rights or was overdue, would he then also question why

> I was shocked?Â And > is it an accident that two other men asked me > backchannel why I was > surprised by the study?
>
> This type of exchange raises all sorts of questions
> for me about this list.
> Â That study was posted on another listserv by a > man (James).Â I don't think > he was queried about his motivation, nor was it > assumed he was > shocked/surprised by the study.Â Correct me if > I'm wrong, James. And yes, I > think this is a gender issue.
>
> I'm not alone as of late in wondering about the > dynamics of listserve > etiquette, the different models of "feminine" and > "masculine" exchange, and > just why this particular listserv, with nearly 2,000 > members now, has grown > so utterly quiet in discussion.Â I know I'm > opening a can of worms now with > this line of inquiry (pin the bulls eye on my forehead > gently, please), but > while it seems the old model of open, unchecked > exchange led to more > discussion in years past, a ton of flaming and ad hom > attacks inevitably and > typically spiraled into intimidation and attack mode, > overwhelming and > silencing most of the female members as well as many > men who simply didn't > have the time or interest to engage in such battles.
> What was the past attraction?Â Does aggressive > baiting stimulate?Â False > accusations or intentional misreadings?Â I wonder > if it's a coincidence that > debate has significantly tapered now that those types > of exchanges are > prohibited.Â Even more telling, when I post a > note of miscellany as a woman,
> I am "checked" backchannel by several men who > projected a response onto me that I simply did not have nor indicate anywhere in my posting, forcing me into defense mode to waste more time that would be better served in discussion/debate.Â These types of exchanges are old school and so very tired.

The women of Delirous Hem [http://www.delirioushem.blogspot.com/] have recently been discussing the dynamics of such exchange as well as how men and women are actually advancing a feminist poetics.Â This line of inquiry has even led a few to wonder aloud (via their blogs) just what a feminist poetics is and how to promote it.Â Even a few men aren't afraid of the notion that we need new models of exchange, which is a poetics too.
Â Feminist modes of thinking and operating may not, after all, be for women only.Â I don't have the answers, but feminist imaginings may actually provide models by which we can jump start a listserv that seems to have grown quiet in exchange, even by initially asking, Just what can feminist thinking make us aware of and what models for discussion might we use? What is a feminist poetics, exactly?Â What are the aims of feminist-minded poets?
... Some excerpts from the Delirous Hem responses:

"while ideas live differently in different cultures, equality is not necessarily a cultural idea/value; its thorough application would involve a change in culture, and as an idea, it might arise or live differently in different cultures, sure"
-- Catherine Daly (http://cadaly.blogspot.com/2009/05/what-does-feminist-poet-look-like-or.html)

~~~

Gina Myers, a teacher, a poet, and an all around amazing human being, has a piece up over at Delirious Hem, a blog for women poets. Myers' piece, entitled "This is what a [post] feminist [poet] looks like," explores her relationship with feminism in a so-called "post feminist" society. ...

Myers' poetry is an inspiration to all who read it, and in he piece, she reflects on her work co-directing the Vagina Monologues at a small town community college in the middle of a corn field and overflowing with sexist, homophobic ideologies that only a select few seem to want to fight against.

I did not see one cause as being more important than others, nor did I necessarily see them as being separate causes. The larger issue is social justice, and I have continued to live my life committed to this one cause.

--Feministing [cont'd http://community.feministing.com/2009/05/this-is-what-a-post-feminist-p.html]

~~~

A lot of the poems in Becoming the Villainess were written after these experiences left me frustrated - "Okay, Ophelia" is one of them. I started noticing that the culture does a great job of portraying women as eye candy, as victims and villainesses, but not a great job of portraying them as anything else. I started thinking about the mythology and fairy tale stories I grew up with, and how women today could or couldn't model themselves after those characters.

...The poems grew out of my increasing awareness of how women are treated now, in myth, and in our culture.Â I grew up around guys - I have three brothers, I dated a lot of great guys and had mostly guy friends - and I'm happy to say I have a terrific, supportive, dare-I-say feminist husband. But I look around me and wish for more positive role models, for some support for women who need to be protected, for a place where girls don't have to worry about what they wear for fear they will be attacked.

--Jeannine Hall GailleyÂ [con't --
http://www.webbish6.com/2009/05/so-after-reading-about-feminism-here.html]

~~~

I know there are more forums planned (I plan to co-organize one, too), but I hope this topic gets a second run, because I imagine there are plenty of women [poets] who thought they weren't feminist poets until they read this
-- just as there were contributors who thought they weren't feminist poets until they entered grad school, until they were employed by a bureaucracy,
until they sat down to write their pieces.

A note on blog comment boxes: It's a thrill to see these filled with women's opinions. I can feel, but can't yet quite articulate, how the rhetoric shifts when women enter into comment-box conversations. It seems to me that comment boxes are sometimes like city streets at night: women know they shouldn't go alone, know they risk danger -- leering eyes, men who do not know how to listen in earnest but would rather hear themselves talk.

--Becca Klaver [con't --
http://beccaklaver.blogspot.com/2009/05/on-delirious-hem-this-is-what-feminist.html

> ]
>
> ~~~~
>
> So what to add? How about a confession I'm not supposed to make. When I was pregnant, I desperately wanted a boy and when I found out I was having a boy, I cried with joy...
>
> But I did have a preference. There are some personal, complicated reasons, but also there is a philosophical one. I want to try to contribute to society a man who is thoughtful, introspective and considerate. Somebody who doesn't view himself as the center, the norm, the standard. A man who can both respect and not take advantage of the women of his generation. As feminists and mothers in general, I believe we spend a lot of time making up for what current society lacks and preparing our daughters to handle that. I think this is incredibly important and must continue. But I think some of us overlook how we need to prepare our sons. It's easy to do, society offers so many more advantages to our sons. But society fails them on many other levels.
>
> ...For instance, many of the poet-dads brag about "changing a lot of diapers" or staying home a day or two a week to watch their children. Yes, that's great. Yes, it undoubtedly is helpful to the mother. Yes, that's likely a big step forward from what their fathers did. But these guys see themselves as heros almost, like what their doing is above and beyond the expectation. It doesn't occur to them that 30% of diaper changing and 20% of childcare is closer to being described as supplemental.

I wouldn't even mind this imbalance if there was at least an better awareness of it. A poet-dad admitting that his wife does the bulk of the child rearing which allows him to write more and travel, well that's a totally different situation. That's awareness and honesty. He's not inflating himself or diminishing her.

Can you imagine a poet-mom bragging that she changes a lot of diapers? Your response would be, um, yeah, that's part of raising a baby. If I bragged about staying home to watch my child, you'd stare and scratch your head. Yes, you're a mother, you don't leave your young child alone to fend for himself. How many times have I heard a poet-dad say he's "babysitting" his own children? How can one babysit his own child? Aren't poets supposedly be conscious of their word choices? How many poet-dads of young children go away to writing colonies for a month at a time without a second thought? It's kind of amazing. I go away for three nights and am constantly reminded, often by complete strangers, how lucky (and of course, selfish I am) to leave my son with his own father.

--Reb Livingston [con't -- http://reblivingston.blogspot.com/2009/05/let-me-build-you-statue.html]

~~~

So it isnâ€™t like that when I say I was a feminist for two seconds. I didnâ€™t get it, and I still want to be one. I wish I was a feminist more than anything. I did a semester in grad school for theology because I think feminist theology is maybe second only to queer theology in terms of, you know, solving all of lifeâ€™s problems. My tongue is set firmly on the bottom

of my mouth here.

...But I think I was discouraged from all of this by the cool reception I got from women, and also by the sheer difficulty of trying to comprehend feminist intellectuals who make it a point to work outside of the patriarchal system that I am fully steeped in.

....At any rate, I kind of donâ€™t pay a lot of attention to feminist currents anymore.

But there is a really awesome new bloggish called Delirious Hem, chock full of poets (women poets) describing their relationship to feminism. Itâ€™s personal stuff, smart stuff, really clever at times and really aware of the problems of communicating this way, and the problems of not.

--Adam Robinson [con't -- http://htmlgiant.com/?p=8885]

~~~~

Practice, on the other hand, can move only in relation to the worldâ€™s pace.
While some things about the social condition of women (which?) have changed since earlier generations of feminist discourse, other things have changed
more slowly if it all (which?).

...The arriving at (feminist) consciousness narrative.
A fact of being human: nobodyâ€™s born knowing anything. So learning to be a feminist requires those moments of experience and recognition when one discovers why it matters, and every writer who becomes invested in feminism has to have such moments.

And yet, of course, the fact that everyone has to have them means that thereâ€™s now quite a history of narratives regarding the arrival at feminist consciousness.

....The role of articulating a poetics as such.
Feminism is of course fundamentally a cultural practice. Itâ€™s possible to be a feminist without being a poet or an artist at all, obviously. So is there a specific relation between feminism and the actual practice of writing lines of poetry (or other kinds of writing) in this or that way? If feminism can be not simply a cultural theory but also a poetics, how does that poetics look as an actual practice of how to write? And how are the questions of how to write and what to write about connected?

...Does a list like this really have much value? Who knows. Nonetheless, it has been fascinating for me to think again about how alive and well feminist poetry still is as it brings new concerns into relationship with many of its ongoing ones.

--Mark Wallace [con't --
http://wallacethinksagain.blogspot.com/2009/05/post-millenial-feminist-poetry.html
]

~~~

And much, much more to start thinking about over at Delirious Hem --
http://www.delirioushem.blogspot.com/

> Thanks for listening,
>
> Amy
>
> ———
>
> Amy's Alias
>
> http://amyking.org/
>
> all posts. Check guidelines

↑ Index

215. Alan Sondheim

Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

Sat 23 May 2009

Hi - I'm probably more at fault than most, although I'm kept in check re: continuous posting. I do want to note that a list like Cybermind keeps on going without flaming at all, the discussion good at times, but then it's only about 180 members who have known each other, for the most part, for years.

I don't remember flames on Poetics, but that's my own lack of memory; I do remember open policies, and would like to see what would happen if moderation was ceased for, say, a set times - perhaps ten days? I promise I won't inundate. I'd like to see what other people are writing, for one thing, and figure that praxis involves the work itself just as much as discussion or critique - for one thing, a lot of us can't afford to buy poetry books/mags/etc. and this is a potentially amazing way to read.

Yes, of course, blogs are somewhat of a replacement - but they're also dominated by their creator - I always have the feeling I'm reading under the aegis, charity, and connoisseurship of someone else.

- Alan

| Alan Sondheim Mail archive: http://sondheim.rupamsunyata.org/
| To access the Odyssey exhibition The Accidental Artist:
| http://slurl.com/secondlife/Odyssey/48/12/22
| Webpage (directory) at http://www.alansondheim.org
| [redacted], [redacted], tel US [redacted]

↑ Index

216. amy king
Re: Feminist poetics
Sat 23 May 2009

Thanks for this, Ann. I wonder if the reasons you give below are why more intellectual men are no longer afraid of referring to themselves as feminists? Does the new wave of feminism seem less threatening or more inviting? Men can be nurturers now but fiscal equality isn't such a consideration anymore? How does this play out when men encounter feminist poetics? I find more men receptive to the likes of Alice Notley, despite her shirking of the notions that women should please - on The Poetics of Disobedience:

"It's very feminist but men seem to enjoy it a lot, it possibly contains a rather virile approach to things riding roughshod and shooting at every little duck that seems to pop up. As I implied earlier, Disobedience didn't exactly set out to be disobedient; it set out actually to try to do the kinds of things I'd previously done in different poems all in the same poem, that is tell a story, interact with the so-called visible or phenomenal the despised daily, and explore the unconscious. But it got more and more pissed off as it confronted the political from an international vantage, dealt with being a woman in France, with turning fifty and being a poet and thus seemingly despised or at least ignored."

Coincidentally, Belladonna is sponsoring a conference on Advancing Feminist Poetics this fall at the CUNY Grad center --

Call For Proposals:

Advancing Feminist Poetics and Activism: A Gathering

CUNY Graduate Center, Fall 2009

In celebration of its tenth year, Belladonna*/ will join with The CUNY Graduate Center's Women's Studies Certificate Program, Center for Research on Women and Society, Center for Humanities, Poetics Group, and English Department to present a conference aimed at advancing and broadcasting the life of Feminist Avant-Garde Poetics and Activism Today. The conference will take place at the CUNY Graduate Center on September 24 and 25, 2009.

Our goals for this conference are the following:

1) To support the study of the Feminist Avant-Garde

2) To encourage collaboration between radical feminist artists/thinkers/activists.

3) To provide a space to think about relevant activism in these times, in this place.

We at Belladonna* are particularly interested in what's immediate, present and happening now. We would like this call to encourage conversations and new designs for work between genres, into activist communities, and among academic and non-academic discourse. We are looking for evolving modes of knowing and acting and resisting.

Cont'd here:
http://www.avantgardenet.eu/2008/12/advancing_feminist_poetics_and.html

I have a feeling we'll see more men participating in such querying and promotion than ever before. That's my hope, anyway.

Amy

--- On Fri, 5/22/09, Ann Bogle <[redacted]> wrote:

> From: Ann Bogle <[redacted]>
> Subject: Feminist poetics
>
> New feminism -- stirrings of which are wafting like violets > in our hair -- > is new femininity. You don't get to punch the sky in > new femininity, but > you do get to knit. Knitting is big, so is > embroidery, needlework of all > kinds. Bored by textual feminism, it over, the women > started on needle
> crafts and waited, first for Obama, when it was Bush, now > for Michelle Obama's > next gorgeous cover. My mother (who had wanted a > career in public office) > once knitted a tailored three-color v-neck-turtleneck for > my Barbie. My > sister, who is a textual designer, and I still can't > believe she knit it.
>
> AMB

↑ Index

217. Mark Weiss

Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

Sat 23 May 2009

Amy:

One might suggest that in this otherwise quiet
time on the list your post could be the tinder that starts a flame war.

The worst I've ever been treated on line has been
by some of the women on WOMPO, who seem to think that the rules of civilized behavior don't apply in relation to men. The vast majority of the members are a lot more hospitable, but the verbal violence of the few appears to drive them into silence. So much for gender. Human unpleasantness is equal-opportunity.

I'll be away from my computer til Sunday very late.

Mark

At 09:45 AM 5/23/2009, you wrote:
>Yes, Murat -- it's all my fault because,
>according to you, people simply don't want to >join discussions that don't include flaming, >name-calling, and the posting of their >poems. And no, I'm not "shocked" you reached >this conclusion either (based on the historical >nature of this list, you're right in line, hence >the "bull's eye" notation) -- unfortunately, I >think there is some truth to the idea that some >are drawn to discussions for the mere drama of >it all, and drama requires flaming, loud name >calling, aggressive intimidating rhetoric, >etc... Additionally, discussions are often about >one upping the next guy: the old hierarchical >positioning that certainly takes place in >conversations can also be seen in many other >realms, including the popular sports realm -- if >I disrespect you, then I'm on top. How many "in >your face" moves do we see after someone >successfully dunks a ball or reaches the goal >line? I think this list has proven time and >time again that the inclination is to devolve >into such positioning, most especially among a >specific few who cause others to retreat into >silence while said handful dominate with their >preening and bashing, degenerating the list's >tone with name calling, flaming, ad hom.

>etc. And if that is the requirement to keep >discussions going, then it's a sad one that >concludes the list is certainly best left for >announcements only rather than getting mired >into "listening" in on who comes out top dog via >such unconstructive debate. I do, however, >think that there are other factors to consider >and am wondering aloud (again, be gentle when >you take aim, please). Perhaps the list is >simply too large and a sense of community is no >longer fostered. Can we actually have >international and national discussions? What >forum permits that? The women's poetry >listserv, while it has its moments, maintains a >specific focus that most members remain set on: >discussing women's poetry and promoting it. The >Lucipo listerv is situated within a geographical >community. New Poetry is smaller and has a >stable base of participants who contribute >regular poetry/poetics info and respectful >debate focused on analyzing poems, among other >interesting foci. Of course, all three of those >lists are considerably smaller than Poetics and >certainly don't have the historical base of >attack and flaming that Poetics has cultivated >for itself, which is exactly why I was asked to moderate: to put an end to the > cultivation of that tone. One need only do a > search for Buffalo Poetics list to learn of > that history. But before all of that, Poetics > did foster great discussions on poetry and > poetics ... Also to consider, and I'm not the > first to note this: many discussions now take > place on blogs. The proliferation of blogs and > their comment streams have opened up smaller, > more focused discussions that you can join or > ignore. On Poetics, every member receives > every post. The same holds true for online > forums. Each discussion is labeled, and while > there may be nearly two thousand members, they > only read what they want and join topics they > deem worthwhile. They are not forced to read > such discussions as earlier noted (hierarchical > positioning via flaming). I got to thinking > about all of this yesterday morning when > someone asked my why the list has had a > lull. And then I posted my miscellany and > rec'd some presumptuous queries backchannel. I > posted a note, below, that I thought might > generate some discussion about what has > happened to this list and fully expected to be > blamed. Don't think, Murat, you're > alone. I've rec'd a few backchannels in the > past with the same sentiment - actually from > two men specifically. They want free reign to > terrorize as they see fit and they believe > bullying me will somehow get that kind of > "power" reinstated. It's too bad that such > blindered thinking gets airplay and that these > men have the stamina to keep working at > it. Sadly many have sent me backchannel > support and bow out. I've had many more emails > of that variety. The idea is that these > latter people want to see a better list, one > that offers more respectful discussion among > members, one in which they feel safe > from name calling if they join in debate, > etc. Their numbers have been much greater than > those who would bash me backchannel. But > truly, no one wants to waste time defending > themselves against willful misreadings and > attacks on their character. Not even me. CALL > FOR CONTRIBUTORS Beyond this particular > discussion and overall, Poetics has been and > remains a valuable resource. Our numerous > members are hard-working poets, reviewers, > educators, and culture makers. Perhaps it's > time to figure out, communally, how we might > revamp the list and generate material for > discussions. Many on this list are active > bloggers while others have lots to say about > the topics debated on those blogs and > elsewhere. We might take a cue from New > Poetry and enlist contributors to post --on a > schedule even-- about specific happenings, new > and neglected books, schools of thought, and, > taking a cue from Wompo, a once a week or once > a month celebration of an admired poet (on > Wompo, it's a "Foremother" celebration), > etc. We could even have a guest editor for a > week or month who could solicit posts and steer > discussion... I'd be very happy to hear folks' > suggestions, and if you'd like to be a > contributor or nominate someone to guest edit, > please contact me. This list offers an instant > audience of nearly 2,000 active poets and poet > appreciators with more joining everyday -- why > not try to figure out new > possibilities? Thanks, Amy _____ Amy's Alias > http://amyking.org/ --- On Fri, 5/22/09, Murat > Nemet-Nejat <[redacted]> wrote: > From:

> Murat Nemet-Nejat <[redacted]> > > Subject: Re: Urgent Poetics Query > To:
> [redacted] > Date: Friday,
> May 22, 2009, 6:36 PM > Amy, > > I am surprised > that you are the one asking the question > > about the moribund > state of the Poetics List > today since, if I remember > correctly, you > were > instrumental in its creation. Under the > overly broad rubric > of "flaming," > including > within it unsavory ideas, and also banning > the > posting of any > individual works new > rules drain the Poetics List of all > its > energy and > turned it essential a trade list > where people list their > publications and > > poetry readings. > > Polemics is the bread and > butter of thought. Heated > polemics is the > bread > and butter of passionate, committed > thought -a quality, as > you have noted > this > list has been devoid of for quite a long time.
> Words > don't break bones. > I never quite > understood what is to me the extreme > > squeamishness about > flaming. That's me I > suppose with all my male, aggressive > hormones > going all > the time. > > As for your comments > about the recent London research > results. I > am one of > those responded to you, thinking I > was posting to the list. > For some reason, > > my response was back channeled to you. Anyone > who has > taught a class of high > school or > early college students know very well how > > students -male and > female- approach poetry > with anxiety, with a sense that > poetry > requires > rules or attitudes they are not > familiar with or are alien > to them. This > was > a casual cultural comment -a bit of > kvetching by a poet- > which it seems, to > my > amazement, you fantasized into a sexual verbal > attack. > > Ciao, > > Murat > > > On Fri, May > 22, 2009 at 3:24 PM, amy king > <[redacted]> > wrote: > > > I wanted > to call this post, "Feminism:Â Not Just > for > Women Anymore" but > > figured such a title > might cause more than a few to 86 > this > straight to the > > trash bin. > > > > > >

> After posting my miscellany note earlier today, > one > guy actually followed > > up and gave me > even more grief for being annoyed that > he > assumed I was > > shocked by the Briton study > ("fine fine geez).Â I > answered the other > two > > guys by posting my response > frontchannel.Â Only > one person started a > > > respectful conversation with me backchannel > about the > study. > > > > > > So my question > to the first chap who asked why would I > post > a study that > > includes info "we [Poetics > list members] already know" > (i.e. that people > are > > afraid of poetry) was:Â Â Â If we were > on > a politics listserv and I posted a > > > recent study that found many thought marriage > equality > was about civil > > rights or was > overdue, would he then also question why > I > was shocked?Â And > > is it an accident that > two other men asked me > backchannel why I > was > > surprised by the study? > > > > > >

> This type of exchange raises all sorts of > questions > for me about this list. > >Â That > study was posted on another listserv by a > man > (James).Â I don't think > > he was queried > about his motivation, nor was it > assumed he > was > > shocked/surprised by the > study.Â Correct me if > I'm wrong, James. And > yes, I > > think this is a gender > issue. > > > > > > I'm not alone as of late in > wondering about the > dynamics of listserve > > > etiquette, the different models of "feminine" > and > "masculine" exchange, and > > just why > this particular listserv, with nearly 2,000 > > members now, has grown > > so utterly quiet in > discussion.Â I know I'm > opening a can of > worms now with > > this line of inquiry (pin > the bulls eye on my forehead > gently, please), > but > > while it seems the old model of open, > unchecked > exchange led to more > > discussion > in years past, a ton of flaming and ad hom > > attacks inevitably and > > typically spiraled > into intimidation and attack mode, > > overwhelming and > > silencing most of the > female members as well as many > men who simply > didn't > > have the time or interest to engage > in such battles. > > What was the past > attraction?Â Does aggressive > baiting > stimulate?Â False > > accusations or > intentional misreadings?Â I wonder > if it's a > coincidence that > > debate has significantly > tapered now that those types > of exchanges > are > > prohibited.Â Even more telling, when I > post a > note of miscellany as a woman, > > I > am "checked" backchannel by several men who > > projected a response onto me > > that I simply > did not have nor indicate anywhere in my > > posting, forcing me > > into defense mode to > waste more time that would be > better served > in > > discussion/debate.Â These types of > exchanges are > old school and so very > > > tired. > > > > > > The women of Delirous Hem > [http://www.delirioushem.blogspot.com/]

> have > > recently been discussing the dynamics > of such exchange > as well as how men > > and > women are actually advancing a feminist > > poetics.Â This line of inquiry > > has even > led a few to wonder aloud (via their blogs) > > just what a feminist > > poetics is and how to > promote it.Â Even a few men > aren't afraid of > the > > notion that we need new models of > exchange, which is a > poetics > too. > >Â Feminist modes of thinking and > operating may > not, after all, be for > women > > only.Â I don't have the answers, but > feminist > imaginings may actually > > provide > models by which we can jump start a listserv > > that seems to have > > grown quiet in exchange, > even by initially asking, > Just what can > feminist > > thinking make us aware of and what > models for > discussion might we use? What > > > is a feminist poetics, exactly?Â What are > the > aims of feminist-minded poets? > > ...
> Some excerpts from the Delirous Hem > responses: > > > > > > "while ideas live > differently in different cultures, > equality > is not > > necessarily a cultural idea/value; > its thorough > application would involve a > > > change in culture, and as an idea, it might > arise or > live differently in > > different > cultures, sure" > > -- Catherine Daly (> >
> http://cadaly.blogspot.com/2009/05/what-does-feminist-poet-look-like-or.html
> > >) > > > > ~~~ > > > > Gina Myers, a > teacher, a poet, and an all around > amazing > human being, has a > > piece up over at > Delirious Hem, a blog for women > poets. Myers' > piece, > > entitled "This is what a [post] > feminist [poet] looks > like," explores her > > > relationship with feminism in a so-called > "post > feminist" society. ... > > > > > >
> Myers' poetry is an inspiration to all who read > it, > and in he piece, she > > reflects on her > work co-directing the Vagina > Monologues at a > small town > > community college in the middle > of a corn field and > overflowing with > sexist, > > homophobic ideologies that only a > select few seem to > want to fight > against. > > > > > > I did not see one cause as > being more important than > others, nor did > I > > necessarily see them as being separate > causes. The > larger issue is social > > > justice, and I have continued to live my life > > committed to this one cause. > > > >

> --Feministing [cont'd > >
> http://community.feministing.com/2009/05/this-is-what-a-post-feminist-p.html
> > >] > > > > ~~~ > > > > A lot of the poems > in Becoming the Villainess were > written after > these > > experiences left me frustrated - > "Okay, Ophelia" is > one of them. I started > > > noticing that the culture does a great job of > > portraying women as eye candy, > > as victims > and villainesses, but not a great job of > > portraying them as > > anything else. I started > thinking about the mythology > and fairy tale > stories > > I grew up with, and how women today > could or couldn't > model themselves after > > > those characters. > > > > > > ...The poems grew > out of my increasing awareness of > how women > are treated > > now, in myth, and in our > culture.Â I grew up > around guys - I have > three > > brothers, I dated a lot of great guys > and had mostly > guy friends - and I'm > > > happy to say I have a terrific, supportive, > dare-I-say > feminist husband. But > > I look > around me and wish for more positive role > > models, for some support > > for women who need > to be protected, for a place where > girls > don't have to > > worry about what they wear > for fear they will be > attacked. > > > >
> --Jeannine Hall GailleyÂ [con't -- > >
> http://www.webbish6.com/2009/05/so-after-reading-about-feminism-here.html]
> > > > > ~~~ > > > > I know there are more > forums planned (I plan to > co-organize one, > too), but > > I hope this topic gets a second > run, because I imagine > there are plenty > of > > women [poets] who thought they weren't > feminist poets > until they read this > > -- > just as there were contributors who thought > they > weren't feminist poets > > until they > entered grad school, until they were > employed > by a bureaucracy, > > until they sat down to > write their pieces. > > > > > > A note on blog > comment boxes: It's a thrill to see > these > filled with > > women's opinions. I can feel, > but can't yet quite > articulate, how the > > > rhetoric shifts when women enter into > comment-box > conversations. It seems to > > me > that comment boxes are sometimes like city > streets > at night: women know > > they > shouldn't go alone, know they risk danger -- > > leering eyes, men who do > > not know how to > listen in earnest but would rather > hear > themselves talk. > > > > --Becca Klaver [con't

> -- > >
> http://beccaklaver.blogspot.com/2009/05/on-delirious-hem-this-is-what-feminist.html
> > >] > > > > ~~~~ > > > > So what to add? How > about a confession I'm not > supposed to make.
> When I was > > pregnant, I desperately wanted a > boy and when I found > out I was having a > > > boy, I cried with joy... > > > > > > But I did > have a preference. There are some personal, > > complicated reasons, > > but also there is a > philosophical one. I want to try > to > contribute to > > society a man who is > thoughtful, introspective and > considerate.
> Somebody who > > doesn't view himself as the > center, the norm, the > standard. A man who > can > > both respect and not take advantage of > the women of > his generation. As > > feminists > and mothers in general, I believe we spend a > > lot of time making up > > for what current > society lacks and preparing our > daughters to > handle that. I > > think this is incredibly > important and must continue. > But I think some > of us > > overlook how we need to prepare our > sons. It's easy to > do, society offers so > > > many more advantages to our sons. But society > fails > them on many other > > > levels. > > > > > > ...For instance, many of > the poet-dads brag about > "changing a lot > of > > diapers" or staying home a day or two a > week to watch > their children. Yes, > > that's > great. Yes, it undoubtedly is helpful to the > > mother. Yes, that's > > likely a big step > forward from what their fathers did. > But > these guys see > > themselves as heros almost, > like what their doing is > above and beyond > the > > expectation. It doesn't occur to them > that 30% of > diaper changing and 20% of > > > childcare is closer to being described as > > supplemental. > > > > > > I wouldn't even mind > this imbalance if there was at > least an > better > > awareness of it. A poet-dad > admitting that his wife > does the bulk of > the > > child rearing which allows him to write > more and > travel, well that's a > > totally > different situation. That's awareness and > > honesty. He's not > > inflating himself or > diminishing her. > > > > > > Can you imagine a > poet-mom bragging that she changes a > lot of > diapers? Your > > response would be, um, yeah, > that's part of raising a > baby. If I > bragged > > about staying home to watch my > child, you'd stare and > scratch your head. > > > Yes, you're a mother, you don't leave your > young child > alone to fend for > > himself.

> How many times have I heard a poet-dad say > > he's "babysitting" his > > own children? How > can one babysit his own child? > Aren't poets > supposedly be > > conscious of their word > choices? How many poet-dads of > young children > go > > away to writing colonies for a month at > a time without > a second thought? > > It's > kind of amazing. I go away for three nights > and > am constantly reminded, > > often by > complete strangers, how lucky (and of course, > > selfish I am) to > > leave my son with his own > father. > > > > --Reb Livingston [con't -- > >
> http://reblivingston.blogspot.com/2009/05/let-me-build-you-statue.html]

> > > > > ~~~ > > > > So it isnâ€™t like that > when I say I was a feminist > for two seconds.
> I didnâ€™t > > get it, and I still want to be > one. I wish I was a > feminist more than > > > anything. I did a semester in grad school for > theology > because I think > > feminist > theology is maybe second only to queer > > theology in terms of, you > > know, solving all > of lifeâ€™s problems. My tongue is > set firmly > on the bottom > > of my mouth here. > > > > > >
> ...But I think I was discouraged from all of > this by > the cool reception I > > got from > women, and also by the sheer difficulty of > > trying to comprehend > > feminist intellectuals > who make it a point to work > outside of > the > > patriarchal system that I am fully > steeped in. > > > > > > ....At any rate, I kind > of donâ€™t pay a lot of > attention to > feminist > > currents anymore. > > > > > > But > there is a really awesome new bloggish called > > Delirious Hem, chock full > > of poets (women > poets) describing their relationship > to > feminism. Itâ€™s > > personal stuff, smart > stuff, really clever at times > and really > aware of the > > problems of communicating this > way, and the problems > of not. > > > > > >
> --Adam Robinson [con't -- > http://htmlgiant.com/?p=8885] > > > > > > > ~~~~ > > > > Practice, on the other hand, can > move only in relation > to the worldâ€™s > pace. > > While some things about the social > condition of women > (which?) have changed > > > since earlier generations of feminist > discourse, other > things have changed > > more > slowly if it all (which?). > > > > > > ...The > arriving at (feminist) consciousness > narrative. > A fact of being > > human:
> nobodyâ€™s born knowing anything. So learning > > to be a feminist requires > > those moments of > experience and recognition when one > discovers > why it > > matters, and every writer who > becomes invested in > feminism has to have > such > > moments. > > > > > > And yet, of > course, the fact that everyone has to have > > them means that > > thereâ€™s now quite a > history of narratives regarding > the arrival > at feminist > > consciousness. > > > > > >

> ....The role of articulating a poetics as > such. > Feminism is of course > > fundamentally > a cultural practice. Itâ€™s possible to > be a > feminist without > > being a poet or an artist > at all, obviously. So is > there a specific > relation > > between feminism and the actual > practice of writing > lines of poetry (or > > > other kinds of writing) in this or that way?
> If > feminism can be not simply a > > cultural > theory but also a poetics, how does that > > poetics look as an actual > > practice of how > to write? And how are the questions of > how to > write and what > > to write about > connected? > > > > > > ...Does a list like this > really have much value? Who > knows.
> Nonetheless, it > > has been fascinating for me > to think again about how > alive and well > feminist > > poetry still is as it brings new > concerns into > relationship with many of > its > > ongoing ones. > > > > > > --Mark > Wallace [con't -- > >
> http://wallacethinksagain.blogspot.com/2009/05/post-millenial-feminist-poetry.html
> > >] > > > > ~~~ > > > > And much, much more > to start thinking about over at > Delirious Hem
> -- > >
> http://www.delirioushem.blogspot.com/ > > > > >
> > Thanks for listening, > > > >
> Amy > > > > > > _____ > > > > > > > > > >
> Amy's Alias > > > >
> http://amyking.org/ > > > > > > > > > >
> ========== > > The > info:
> > > ========== > The
>

↑ Index

218. Halvard Johnson
Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
Sat 23 May 2009

Aka The Gatekeeper.

Hal

"My experience is what I agree to attend to."
--William James

Halvard Johnson
==========
[redacted]
http://sites.google.com/site/halvardjohnson/Home
http://entropyandme.blogspot.com
http://imageswithoutwords.blogspot.com
http://www.hamiltonstone.org

On Sat, May 23, 2009 at 9:52 AM, Alan Sondheim <[redacted]> wrote:

Yes, of course, blogs are somewhat of a replacement - but they're also > dominated by their creator - I always have the feeling I'm reading under the > aegis, charity, and connoisseurship of someone else.
>
> - Alan
>

↑ Index

219. Charles Alexander
chax press and the present
Sat 23 May 2009

Hi all,

As many of you know through individual letters and emails, Chax is in a big push to bring in needed funds, not only to make it "through" this current sometimes troubling period, but beyond, with ambitious plans to do more than we've ever done before, and to do it better. I don't want to make the pitch right here on poetics, but I hope you will all visit an event site created for this purpose on facebook, at http://www.facebook.com/reqs.php#/event.php?eid™709892577&ref=ts or read the message on my blog, at

http://chax.org/blog.htm

and consider what is there (follow links if needed to get to the heart of the message).

And if none of that, go to our main site at http://chax.org and buy 1 book (or 2 or more).

Thank you!

Charles

charles alexander
chax press
[redacted]
411 N 7th ave, suite 103
tucson arizona 85705
[redacted]

↑ Index

220. Murat Nemet-Nejat

Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

Sat 23 May 2009

Amy,

Does it occur to you that phrases such as "right in line," "aggressive," "intimidating" might be experienced by the person on the receiving side as name calling or flaming? My phrase "I am surprised that you are surprised" on the subject of the lack of interest in poetry among the general population was obviously experienced by you as some kind of aggressive, dominating, male (as though women are not permitted or do not use such an phrase) act. I do not mean that you should not have brought this discussion to the list (I am glad that you did) or should have leveled the tone of your language. I only mean that flaming or agressive "male" behavior is often in the eye of the beholder, whether one agrees with the expressed point of view or not. Because of that, I think, we should be more accomodating of tonalities and uses of language. Such tolerance will not kill us. Anyhow, you never struck be as someone shrinking back in front of somebody else's words.

As for your other comments, I think what was special about the Buffalo List was the broadness of the issues it covered. As a result, people's minds moved freely, though I agree with you sometimes it resulted in insane behavior; but even those often often had the kernel of a significant contention behind it. Now both are gone. Do you think this is a better result?

I have never been an enthusiast of blogs and expressed it under different occasions. It splinters the poetic community, making one search for who or what is like one, narrowing the horizons of discourse. The great promise of the web has been its potential openness to "the other." A vibrant list is an expression of that ideal which, I am afraid, gave up too easily, without a fight so to speak.

Ciao,

Murat

On Sat, May 23, 2009 at 9:52 AM, Alan Sondheim <[redacted]> wrote:

> Hi - I'm probably more at fault than most, although I'm kept in check re: continuous posting. I do want to note that a list like Cybermind keeps on going without flaming at all, the discussion good at times, but then it's only about 180 members who have known each other, for the most part, for years.
>
> I don't remember flames on Poetics, but that's my own lack of memory; I do remember open policies, and would like to see what would happen if moderation was ceased for, say, a set times - perhaps ten days? I promise I won't inundate. I'd like to see what other people are writing, for one thing, and figure that praxis involves the work itself just as much as discussion or critique - for one thing, a lot of us can't afford to buy poetry books/mags/etc. and this is a potentially amazing way to read.
>
> Yes, of course, blogs are somewhat of a replacement - but they're also dominated by their creator - I always have the feeling I'm reading under the aegis, charity, and connoisseurship of someone else.
>
> - Alan
>
> | Alan Sondheim Mail archive: http://sondheim.rupamsunyata.org/
> | To access the Odyssey exhibition The Accidental Artist:
> | http://slurl.com/secondlife/Odyssey/48/12/22
> | Webpage (directory) at http://www.alansondheim.org
> | [redacted], [redacted], tel US [redacted]

↑ Index

221. Lori Emerson
Re: Urgent Poetics Query
Sat 23 May 2009

Hi all - well, er, just to second Anny's note: as an ex-moderator of the list, I think it pretty much goes without saying that the list has a loooong history of being a venue of anything BUT "heated debate". In fact, I wasn't even going to bother posting this note because I didn't want to deal with the responses that would ensue. But, for the sake of historical accuracy, at least from my eyes, the days of the unmoderated list were dominated by dominators and one moderator after another had to continually deal not just with the flaming of friends and colleagues, but threatening personal emails. Why should that be an accepted part of the job?!

That all said, if anyone at all would be willing to step out from the shadows of the list and considering any of Amy's suggestions that sure would be wonderful. We've all thought about how great it would be if we could focus the list, somehow take advantage of the list's sprawling 2000 membership via a particular leader for a limited period of time, on a particular issue; and we imagined that leader soliciting considered responses from certain people etc. Many a year ago Chris Alexander did this on the list very successfully as I remember. But there are many other possibilities too I'm sure -

Over and out,
Lori

On Sat, May 23, 2009 at 5:20 AM, Anny Ballardini
<[redacted]>wrote:

> Murat, Amy,
>
> I do not know what kind of answer Murat forwarded but if it is within the limits Murat sets, it wasn't certainly the one that triggered Amy's response.
> I do not agree with Murat that Amy wanted the list to die down, and I am with Amy in being able to speak rather than insult. I have had my part of insults from one list and that is why I rarely contribute to some.
>
> About the link Amy forwarded, I remember thinking, "ah the Britons". I went to England for several stays, and I read many posts/books by Britons. That is how I justify my comprehension of the undoubtedly true statistic. As I know the people of the north and the people of the south, as Mme de Stael would put it more broadly.
>
> I cannot understand why such an article aroused any anti-feminist remarks, this really goes beyond my comprehension.

With my best wishes,

Anny

On Sat, May 23, 2009 at 12:36 AM, Murat Nemet-Nejat <[redacted] wrote:

Amy,

I am surprised that you are the one asking the question about the moribund state of the Poetics List today since, if I remember correctly, you were instrumental in its creation. Under the overly broad rubric of "flaming," including within it unsavory ideas, and also banning the posting of any individual works new rules drain the Poetics List of all its energy and turned it essential a trade list where people list their publications and poetry readings.

Polemics is the bread and butter of thought. Heated polemics is the bread and butter of passionate, committed thought -a quality, as you have noted this list has been devoid of for quite a long time. Words don't break bones.
I never quite understood what is to me the extreme squeamishness about flaming. That's me I suppose with all my male, aggressive hormones going all the time.

As for your comments about the recent London research results. I am one of those responded to you, thinking I was posting to the list. For some reason, my response was back channeled to you. Anyone who has taught a class of high school or early college students know very well how students -male and female- approach poetry with anxiety, with a sense that poetry requires rules or attitudes they are not familiar with or are alien to them. This was a casual cultural comment -a bit of kvetching by a poet- which it seems, to my amazement, you fantasized into a sexual verbal attack.

Ciao,

Murat

On Fri, May 22, 2009 at 3:24 PM, amy king <[redacted]> wrote:

I wanted to call this post, "Feminism: Not Just for Women Anymore" but figured such a title might cause more than a few to 86 this straight to the trash bin.

After posting my miscellany note earlier today, one guy actually followed up and gave me even more grief for being annoyed that he assumed I was shocked by the Briton study ("fine fine geez). I answered the other two guys by posting my response frontchannel. Only one person started a respectful conversation with me backchannel about the study.

So my question to the first chap who asked why would I post a study that includes info "we [Poetics list members] already know" (i.e. that people are afraid of poetry) was: If we were on a politics listserv and I posted a recent study that found many thought marriage equality was about civil rights or was overdue, would he then also question why I was shocked? And is it an accident that two other men asked me backchannel why I was surprised by the study?

This type of exchange raises all sorts of questions for me about this list. That study was posted on another listserv by a man (James). I don't think he was queried about his motivation, nor was it assumed he was shocked/surprised by the study. Correct me if I'm wrong, James. And yes, I think this is a gender issue.

I'm not alone as of late in wondering about the dynamics of listserve etiquette, the different models of "feminine" and "masculine" exchange, and just why this particular listserv, with nearly 2,000 members now, has grown so utterly quiet in discussion. I know I'm opening a can of worms now with this line of inquiry (pin the bulls eye on my forehead gently, please), but while it seems the old model of open, unchecked exchange led to more discussion in years past, a ton of flaming and ad hom attacks inevitably and typically spiraled into intimidation and attack mode, overwhelming and silencing most of the female members as well as many men who simply didn't have the time or interest to engage in such battles. What was the past attraction? Does aggressive baiting stimulate? False accusations or intentional misreadings? I wonder if it's a coincidence that debate has significantly tapered now that those types of exchanges are prohibited. Even more telling, when I post a note of miscellany as a woman, I am "checked" backchannel by several men who projected a response onto me that I simply did not have nor indicate anywhere in my posting, forcing me into defense mode to waste more time that would be better served in discussion/debate. These types of exchanges are old school and so very tired.

The women of Delirous Hem [http://www.delirioushem.blogspot.com/] have recently been discussing the dynamics of such exchange as well as how men and women are actually advancing a feminist poetics. This line of inquiry has even led a few to wonder aloud (via their blogs) just what a feminist poetics is and how to promote it. Even a few men aren't afraid of the notion that we need new models of exchange, which is a poetics too. Feminist modes of thinking and operating may not, after all, be for women only. I don't have the answers, but feminist imaginings may actually provide models by which we can jump start a listserv that seems to have grown quiet in exchange, even by initially asking, Just what can feminist thinking make us aware of and what models for discussion might we use? What is a feminist poetics, exactly? What are the aims of feminist-minded poets?
... Some excerpts from the Delirous Hem responses:

"while ideas live differently in different cultures, equality is not necessarily a cultural idea/value; its thorough application would involve a change in culture, and as an idea, it might arise or live differently in different cultures, sure"
-- Catherine Daly (

http://cadaly.blogspot.com/2009/05/what-does-feminist-poet-look-like-or.html)

~~~

Gina Myers, a teacher, a poet, and an all around amazing human being, has a piece up over at Delirious Hem, a blog for women poets. Myers' piece, entitled "This is what a [post] feminist [poet] looks like," explores her relationship with feminism in a so-called "post feminist" society. ...

Myers' poetry is an inspiration to all who read it, and in he piece, she reflects on her work co-directing the Vagina Monologues at a small town community college in the middle of a corn field and overflowing with sexist, homophobic ideologies that only a select few seem to want to fight against.

I did not see one cause as being more important than others, nor did I necessarily see them as being separate causes. The larger issue is social justice, and I have continued to live my life committed to this one cause.

--Feministing [cont'd

http://community.feministing.com/2009/05/this-is-what-a-post-feminist-p.html]

~~~

A lot of the poems in Becoming the Villainess were written after these *experiences left me frustrated - "Okay, Ophelia" is one of them. I started noticing that the culture does a great job of portraying women as eye candy, as victims and villainesses, but not a great job of portraying them as anything else. I started thinking about the mythology and fairy tale stories

I grew up with, and how women today could or couldn't model themselves after those characters.*

*...The poems grew out of my increasing awareness of how women are treated now, in myth, and in our culture. I grew up around guys - I have three brothers, I dated a lot of great guys and had mostly guy friends - and I'm happy to say I have a terrific, supportive, dare-I-say feminist husband.
But
I look around me and wish for more positive role models, for some support for women who need to be protected, for a place where girls don't have to worry about what they wear for fear they will be attacked.*

--Jeannine Hall Gailley [con't --

http://www.webbish6.com/2009/05/so-after-reading-about-feminism-here.html]

~~~

*I know there are more forums planned (I plan to co-organize one, too), but I hope this topic gets a second run, because I imagine there are plenty of women [poets] who thought they weren't feminist poets until they read this
-- just as there were contributors who thought they weren't feminist poets until they entered grad school, until they were employed by a bureaucracy, until they sat down to write their pieces.*

A note on blog comment boxes: It's a thrill to see these filled with women's opinions. I can feel, but can't yet quite articulate, how the rhetoric shifts when women enter into comment-box conversations. It seems to me that comment boxes are sometimes like city streets at night: women know they shouldn't go alone, know they risk danger -- leering eyes, men who do not know how to listen in earnest but would rather hear themselves talk.

--Becca Klaver [con't --

http://beccaklaver.blogspot.com/2009/05/on-delirious-hem-this-is-what-feminist.html]

~~~~

So what to add? How about a confession I'm not supposed to make. When I was pregnant, I desperately wanted a boy and when I found out I was having a boy, I cried with joy...

But I did have a preference. There are some personal, complicated reasons, but also there is a philosophical one. I want to try to contribute to society a man who is thoughtful, introspective and considerate. Somebody who doesn't view himself as the center, the norm, the standard. A man who can both respect and not take advantage of the women of his generation. As feminists and mothers in general, I believe we spend a lot of time making up for what current society lacks and preparing our daughters to handle that. I think this is incredibly important and must continue. But I think some of us overlook how we need to prepare our sons. It's easy to do, society offers so many more advantages to our sons. But society fails them on many other levels.

> ...For instance, many of the poet-dads brag about "changing a lot of diapers" or staying home a day or two a week to watch their children. Yes, that's great. Yes, it undoubtedly is helpful to the mother. Yes, that's likely a big step forward from what their fathers did. But these guys see themselves as heros almost, like what their doing is above and beyond the expectation. It doesn't occur to them that 30% of diaper changing and 20% of childcare is closer to being described as supplemental.
>
> I wouldn't even mind this imbalance if there was at least an better awareness of it. A poet-dad admitting that his wife does the bulk of the child rearing which allows him to write more and travel, well that's a totally different situation. That's awareness and honesty. He's not inflating himself or diminishing her.
>
> Can you imagine a poet-mom bragging that she changes a lot of diapers? Your response would be, um, yeah, that's part of raising a baby. If I bragged about staying home to watch my child, you'd stare and scratch your head. Yes, you're a mother, you don't leave your young child alone to fend for himself. How many times have I heard a poet-dad say he's "babysitting" his own children? How can one babysit his own child? Aren't poets supposedly be conscious of their word choices? How many poet-dads of young children go away to writing colonies for a month at a time without a second thought? It's kind of amazing. I go away for three nights and am constantly reminded, often by complete strangers, how lucky (and of course, selfish I am) to leave my son with his own father.
>
> --Reb Livingston [con't -- http://reblivingston.blogspot.com/2009/05/let-me-build-you-statue.html]

~~~

So it isn't like that when I say I was a feminist for two seconds. I didn't get it, and I still want to be one. I wish I was a feminist more than anything. I did a semester in grad school for theology because I think feminist theology is maybe second only to queer theology in terms of, you know, solving all of life's problems. My tongue is set firmly on the bottom of my mouth here.

...But I think I was discouraged from all of this by the cool reception I got from women, and also by the sheer difficulty of trying to comprehend feminist intellectuals who make it a point to work outside of the patriarchal system that I am fully steeped in.

....At any rate, I kind of don't pay a lot of attention to feminist currents anymore.

But there is a really awesome new bloggish called Delirious Hem, chock full of poets (women poets) describing their relationship to feminism. It's personal stuff, smart stuff, really clever at times and really aware of the problems of communicating this way, and the problems of not.

--Adam Robinson [con't -- http://htmlgiant.com/?p=8885]

~~~~

*Practice, on the other hand, can move only in relation to the world's pace.
While some things about the social condition of women (which?) have changed since earlier generations of feminist discourse, other things have changed more slowly if it all (which?).*

...The arriving at (feminist) consciousness narrative. A fact of being human: nobody's born knowing anything. So learning to be a feminist requires those moments of experience and recognition when one discovers why it matters, and every writer who becomes invested in feminism has to have such moments.

And yet, of course, the fact that everyone has to have them means that there's now quite a history of narratives regarding the arrival at feminist consciousness.

....The role of articulating a poetics as such. Feminism is of course fundamentally a cultural practice. It's possible to be a feminist without being a poet or an artist at all, obviously. So is there a specific relation between feminism and the actual practice of writing lines of poetry (or other kinds of writing) in this or that way? If feminism can be not simply a cultural theory but also a poetics, how does that poetics look as an actual practice of how to write? And how are the questions of how to write and what to write about connected?

...Does a list like this really have much value? Who knows. Nonetheless, it has been fascinating for me to think again about how alive and well feminist poetry still is as it brings new concerns into relationship with many of its ongoing ones.

--Mark Wallace [con't --

http://wallacethinksagain.blogspot.com/2009/05/post-millenial-feminist-poetry.html]

~~~

> And much, much more to start thinking about over at Delirious Hem -- http://www.delirioushem.blogspot.com/
>
> Thanks for listening,
>
> Amy
>
> _____
>
> Amy's Alias
>
> http://amyking.org/
>
> guidelines
>
> guidelines
>
> --
> Anny Ballardini
> http://annyballardini.blogspot.com/
> http://www.fieralingue.it/modules.php?name=poetshome
> http://www.lulu.com/content/5806078
> http://www.moriapoetry.com/ebooks.html
> I Tell You: One must still have chaos in one to give birth to a dancing star!

--
Lori Emerson
Assistant Professor | Electropoetics Thread Editor, Electronic Book Review
Department of English, University of Colorado at Boulder
Hellems 101, 226 UCB, Boulder, CO 80309-0226
http://www.colorado.edu/English/faculty/facpages/emerson.shtml
http://www.electronicbookreview.com

↑ Index

222. Catherine Daly

Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

Sat 23 May 2009

---

it might be neat if there were some sort of sampler, i.e., rather than a bunch of posts about "what I put on my blog this week" -- I don't watch or feed many -- there were a synopsis with links: should be fairly easy for someone with a good list of POETICS bloggers to rip off because of the posting limit, a lot of discussions get taken off list to blogs, and some posts here have been "hey look at this discussion on my blog"

the nature of the list has changed a bit, too, and necessarily, because the internet and small press publishing has changed

one of the things I've been thinking idly about is something that was picked up on the Black Ocean blog, which was about the distrust many established poets, particularly those a generation before me, have for younger poets who are publishing quite a bit and in general very active, and setting up coherent coteries, rather than the typical "a book every seven years from Knopf"

- because one such older poet is apparently Tony Hoagland, a lot of this is anxiety over quantity and quality, couched in a disdain for "easy domestic surrealism" and procedural poems and projects

- there seems to be a failure to realize that publication has gotten easier, and it is easier/less expensive/time consuming to found a press

- there seems to be a failure to accept that most aspects of writing well CAN and ARE being taught

- ditto for "po biz", seeing works to publication, etc.

I would be very interested in what people think about this; are we all getting more prolific? Editing less? Is this good?

in the flame days, the list was a time suck for me because posting something that wouldn't get ripped to shreds took forever; NOW it is because if you're in a discussion you've got to post something long and detailed (unless you're George Bowering), anticipating rebuttals, knowing you only have one

--
All best,
Catherine Daly
[redacted]

↑ Index

223. Ryan Daley

Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

Sat 23 May 2009

What's interesting about many young poets (and I don't know if this represents a sea change or is only because they're young) is that they seem to avoid the flaming and jockeying that so characterizes most "communities." Say what you will about Tao Lin, but the guy never talks shit about anything other than his own writing.

On Sat, May 23, 2009 at 12:50 PM, Catherine Daly <[redacted]>wrote:

> it might be neat if there were some sort of sampler, i.e., rather than a bunch of posts about "what I put on my blog this week" -- I don't watch or feed many -- there were a synopsis with links: should be fairly easy for someone with a good list of POETICS bloggers to rip off > because of the posting limit, a lot of discussions get taken off list to blogs, and some posts here have been "hey look at this discussion on my blog"
>
> the nature of the list has changed a bit, too, and necessarily, because the internet and small press publishing has changed
>
> one of the things I've been thinking idly about is something that was picked > up on the Black Ocean blog, which was about the distrust many established poets, particularly those a generation before me, have for younger poets who > are publishing quite a bit and in general very active, and setting up coherent coteries, rather than the typical "a book every seven years from Knopf"
>
> - because one such older poet is apparently Tony Hoagland, a lot of this is anxiety over quantity and quality, couched in a disdain for "easy domestic surrealism" and procedural poems and projects
>
> - there seems to be a failure to realize that publication has gotten easier, > and it is easier/less expensive/time consuming to found a press
>
> - there seems to be a failure to accept that most aspects of writing well CAN and ARE being taught
>
> - ditto for "po biz", seeing works to publication, etc.
>
> I would be very interested in what people think about this; are we all getting more prolific? Editing less? Is this good?

> in the flame days, the list was a time suck for me because posting something > that wouldn't get ripped to shreds took forever; NOW it is because if you're > in a discussion you've got to post something long and detailed (unless > you're George Bowering), anticipating rebuttals, knowing you only have one
>
> --
> All best,
> Catherine Daly
> [redacted]

↑ Index

224. Jesse Glass

Would like to meet Prague Poets June 17th, 18th--Jesse Glass

Sat 23 May 2009

Hi,

I'll be promoting Ahadada/ Ekleksographa in Prague on the 17th and 18th of June and would be happy to meet up with poets, playwrights, fictioneers. Please contact me back channel. Thanks, Jesse wwww.ahadadabooks.com

↑ Index

225. Lissa Wolsak

Re: "The Gateless Gate." New pages and a Revision

Sat 23 May 2009

You are most welcome! xxl

On Tue, May 19, 2009 at 8:18 AM, Joel Weishaus <[redacted]> wrote:

> Dear Friends and Colleagues:
>
> Here are four new pages of "The Gateless Gate":
>
> Pages 15-16: http://web.pdx.edu/~pdx00282/Gate/Pgs%2015-16.htm
> Pages 17-18: http://web.pdx.edu/~pdx00282/Gate/Pgs%2017-18.htm
>
> In addition:
>
> The Introduction has been revised:
> http://web.pdx.edu/~pdx00282/Gate/Intro.htm
>
> Thank you to those of you who have written to me on this project.

> If you don't want to receive these notices, please let me know, and I will delete your name from the list.
>
> -Joel

↑ Index

226. Jim Andrews
Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
Sun 24 May 2009

i think lists have had their day as high quality discussion forums. some options have emerged since then, such as blogs and social networks. well lists are social networks, aren't they. but they weren't called that when they were in their prime. now the term 'social networks' encompasses lists, things like facebook, myspace, rss of blogs, and so on. there's more options and more theory of social networks. unfortunately, for all that, i haven't seen anything that rivals the early days of the list in terms of strong discussion. i think it would take quite a strong platform/app to do that. something that was strong enough to merit the trust that the list no longer enjoys. if that's possible.

ja
http://vispo.com

↑ Index

227. Eric Weinstein
Re: book ideas?
Sun 24 May 2009

Also seconding Mark Weiss' suggestion. Poems for the Millennium Vol. 2 is excellent; Donald Allen's The New American Poetry, 1945 - 1960 might make a good companion text.

E

On Fri, May 22, 2009 at 6:39 PM, Gerald Schwartz <[redacted]>wrote:

> Under the Rock Umbrella
> Contemporary Poets 1951-77
> Edited by William Walsh
> Mercer University Press (2006)
>
> --Gerald Schwartz

Hello,

I'm teaching a senior undergraduate course entitled "Poetry since 1950" in the fall, and I'm making up my own anthology as a course package so as to include a fair amount of experimental material. However, I need some ideas for a short critical overview of contemporary poetry that takes a world or at least trans-Atlantic perspective and addresses historical contexts, movements, issues in poetics, etc. Is there such a book available?

Thanks for ideas.

Hilary Clark

--
Eric Weinstein
1319 Washington St., Apt. 1L
Hoboken, NJ 07030-6759

[redacted]

↑ Index

228. Murat Nemet-Nejat
Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
Sun 24 May 2009

Jim,

That is exactly my point. Was the sacrifice worth it or was the cure many times worse than the disease? Of course, that maybe just a man speaking.

Ciao,

Murat

On Sun, May 24, 2009 at 1:35 AM, Jim Andrews <[redacted]> wrote:

> i think lists have had their day as high quality discussion forums. some options have emerged since then, such as blogs and social networks. well lists are social networks, aren't they. but they weren't called that when they were in their prime. now the term 'social networks' encompasses lists, things like facebook, myspace, rss of blogs, and so on. there's more options and more theory of social networks. unfortunately, for all that, i haven't seen anything that rivals the early days of the list in terms of strong discussion. i think it would take quite a strong platform/app to do that. something that was strong enough to merit the trust that the list no longer enjoys. if that's possible.
>
> ja
> http://vispo.com

↑ Index

229. Rebecca Weaver
call for work--Midway
Sun 24 May 2009

Hello everyone,

this is a reminder that we at Midway will soon close our reading period, so please send work now!

As always, we're looking for poetry, mixed-genre work, and other text (please see www.midwayjournal.com for details).

thanks, and happy summer!

↑ Index

230. steve russell

Re: book ideas?

Sun 24 May 2009

"issues in poetics"--

Politics & Poetic Value, edited by Robert von Hallberg

--- On Sun, 5/24/09, Eric Weinstein <[redacted]> wrote:

> From: Eric Weinstein <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: book ideas?
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Sunday, May 24, 2009, 7:08 AM
> Also seconding Mark Weiss' > suggestion. Poems for the Millennium Vol. 2 is > excellent; Donald Allen's The New American Poetry, 1945 - > 1960 might make a > good companion text.
>
> E
>
> On Fri, May 22, 2009 at 6:39 PM, Gerald Schwartz <[redacted]>wrote:
>
> Under the Rock Umbrella
> Contemporary Poets 1951-77
> Edited by William Walsh
> Mercer University Press (2006)
>
> --Gerald Schwartz
>
> Hello,
>
> I'm teaching a senior undergraduate course > entitled "Poetry since 1950" in > the fall, and I'm making up my own anthology as a > course package so as to > include a fair amount of experimental material.
> However, I need some ideas
> for a short critical overview of contemporary > poetry that takes a world or > at least trans-Atlantic perspective and addresses
> historical contexts,
> movements, issues in poetics, etc. Is there such a > book available?
>
> Thanks for ideas.

Hilary Clark

accept all posts. Check

all posts. Check guidelines

--
Eric Weinstein
1319 Washington St., Apt. 1L
Hoboken, NJ 07030-6759
[redacted]

↑ Index

231. Daniel Godston

The Synesthetic Plan of Chicago

Sun 24 May 2009

2009 is the centenary of the publication of The Plan of Chicago. The Synesthetic Plan of Chicago is an art installation project which corresponds with the celebration of this historic event. SPC's participating artists and organizations have designed installation pieces which bring together sounds, sights, tastes, smells, and tactile things that relate to Chicago's neighborhoods; create an interactive environment so participants can interact with the sensory "artifacts" of Chicago in creative and imaginative ways; and encourage people to think about synesthetic connections with things that relate to Chicago.

The Synesthetic Plan of Chicago is commissioned by the City of Chicago. SPC, which is co-curated by Annie Heckman and Daniel Godston, includes the following projects:

"Neighborhood Synesthesia," by Anti Gravity Surprise

blank maps for "Notes for a People's Atlas of Chicago," by AREA Chicago

"House Music," by Brett Ian Balogh

"Bottletracks," by Sarah and Kelly Connolly

"Within the Scope of Wiki," by Alpha Bruton

"Urban Messengers," by Stephanie Burke

"Every Four Blocks," by Kelly Connolly

"A Cross-sensory Questionnaire About Chicago," by Eric Elshtain

"Putting Layers on the Onion," by Daniel Godston

"Memorializing Chicago's Disasters," by Elise Goldstein

"A Book of Chicago Bookstores," by Laura Goldstein

"Haunted Spaces," by Annie Heckman

"Chocolate Stockyard," by Jeriah Hildwine

"NetWorking," by Jeriah Hildwine

"Bubbly Creek," by James Jankowiak

"A Slice of Shoreline," by Deanna Krueger

"Daisy Chain," by Maggie Leininger

"Sensory City," by Clover Morell

"Extraction: Intelligentsia," by Ira S. Murfin

"Synestheticizing the Outsidereal," by the Next Objectivists

"C(l/r)aving," by Carol Ng-He

"Mapping My Hood," by Lindsay Obermeyer

"Textaport Vending Machine," by PiSplice

"Read Up and Down and You Will See Why I Love You and You Love Me," by Felicia Preston

"A Walking Dream of the World's Columbian Exposition," by Kelley Schei

"Phone Sound Collage," by Mark Smithivas

"Musical Chairs," by the Stockyard Institute with Faiz Razi, Beth Wiedner, & Zeb

"Acoustic Mirror of Chicago," by World Listening Project

SPC is being installed in the Visitors Center at the Chicago Cultural Center, with June 1st being its starting date. Parts of SPC will travel to locations throughout Chicago, and it will be part of the Fourth Annual Chicago Calling Arts Festival.

↑ Index

232. David Chirot

Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

Sun 24 May 2009

The phrase which initiated this discussion was "fear of poetry," which has been so little discussed since, that one wonders if this is not a "given," rather than perhaps having a good deal of potential for investigation and questioning--sometimes the very "unquestioning" acceptance of phrases may provoke in itself a questioning-- in this age of continual Fear mongering and inciting, imposing--it is not possible that what one is being presented with in this poll is the other way round?

that is:
that it is POETRY which is IN fear-- and also that it is quite possible there may exist a Poetry of Fear and, in turn a Poetry FOR Fear--

the "fear of poetry" then may not be an indication of a "given" but the symptom of FEAR which is continually made more frightening by the controlling forces within that society--

(see also as relative to the below:

David-Baptiste Chirot: "Waterboarding &
Poetry"<http://www.wordforword.info/vol13/dbc.htm>
Wordforword #13 Spring 2008
(also has Visual Poetry by chirot)

Kaurab Translation Site
Poems from Guantánamo
The Detainees Speak
David Baptite Chirot
<http://www.kaurab.com/english/books/guantanamo.html>

"Fear of poetry"-- i ran out of time before having a chance to briefly b/c Amy re this poll--and these questions-will essay to do so here--

the first thought that occurred to me regarding fear, as this poll is in the UK-- is how incredibly saturated by surveillance the British people are', the most so in the world, and that they experienced bombings in their midst more recently and quite differently from the 9//11 in the usa-- and that some of the bombers are persons living with in the UK, not as "illegal aliens always, but often as second and third generation immigrants who are British citizens themselves--

Americans are or should be familiar with this kind of bomber--Timothy McVeigh, Eric Rudolph, the little recalled fact that in the US in1970 there were 5,000 incidents of bombing, and historically there was the heyday of bombings first by primarily Galleanisti--the first car Bomb is attributed to Mario Buda aka Mike Boda--who on 16 September blasted Wall Street t the tune of 37 dead and hundreds of injured--while in 1917 in Milwaukee he is thought to be behind the bombing which unintentionally became the killer of 7 policemen and a number of civilians (the bomb was found outside a Church, and carried by the police to the station, where it then suddenly exploded) soon to follow were the use of explosives i Chicago and environs caused by rivals gangs vying for control of the bootlegging racket--today replaced y the primarily Crack racket--asChigao being one of the central points" from which the drug is distributed--

However, these parts and aspects of history are for the most part suppressed and or/omitted --as the role fn the US Government in the incendiary exterminating conflagration of Waco generally is-- (at Waco n the weeks preceding the fire-- and during the stand off in Panama preceding the arrest an extraditing of Noriega, many of the torture techniques using light and sound were "tried out" and later adapted for use through out the US secret prisons and those "open" ones such Guantanamo, Abu-Ghraib and Bagram and also in Gaza and many others--

In the UK the fear of bombings on British soil and done by Britons and "foreigners" alike is a very vivid one and real one, and not as expunged as in the US, where anything pre9/11 except the World Trade Center bombing is ignored--to emphasize s much as possible the focus on these events for reasons of "security" used to steadily eat away at Civil and Human Rights within and outside the US that are carried out by the US--

(in 1979 when the one cab we rode in in London began to take a suspiciously round about way--the driver said it was due to the call in of a bomb--one could see various streets on that night cordoned off--and unruffled Bobbies talking with passersby--)

the history of bombings in England is very long--Guy Fawkes Day for example point to one form of it--and novels like Henry James' The Princess Cassamassima and Joseph Conrad's The Secret Agent emerged from the massive bombing campaign in London esp. but in many areas of England in the 1880's and later on--a literary /bombing "connection/tradition" "carried on" literally by Brendan Behan, arrested and shipped to Borstal for attempting to enter the UK with an "Infernal Machine" as a teenager-- with the 24/7 surveillance and it seems every few months another series of Draconian Laws being imposed in the UK on al citizens, is it any wonder that anyone might not have fear not of poetry but simply of being asked what may be a "trick question" --seemingly about something as innocuous as poetry, while actually to-do with something far more insidious-- after all, a person polled might say that she or he loved the poetry of Rumi and had been known on many n occasion to fairly explode from the spontaneous combustion of this poetry which began to suddenly flow ecstatically forth from one's mouth while reading or reciting its line; the poetry uplifting being itself, so that that the Deleuzian “flight” of being is rising to new heights, like a Dove of Freedom flying above the Walls of Guantanamo, Bagram, Gaza, Baghdad----

You see? Red alert!! Red Alert!! and the lover of the works of Rumihis hauled off and after preliminary questioning renditioned to the US for assignment to one or another of the secret prisons polluting this earth at a rate faster than the vanishing that of potable water for these last many years--

(the exaggerations of mine are to remind the reader that these are possibilities, not, one hopes, facts; and so should be treated as, that is to say they are the imaginings which the facts may produce--not only as fiction--but also as a cause for alarm on the part of the individual, the person polled, because in the climate of today in the UK and US--and Canada--to like and recite Rumi may be a method for transmitting "terrorist" messages and "for security reasons" necessitate a "better Safe than sorry" policy of immediate "detention." A factual example prompting the imaginary as yet one is that the Poems from Guantanamo to this day are feared by some in the Military establishment to have contained hidden messages, despite al efforts to the contrary in controlling their translations and which were chosen.For almost everything noted here, there is actual factual proof; the times i include fiction is to indicate that an essay on poetry in a poetic mode may be created using both fact andimagaination--NOT separating Dr Williams ""only the imagaination is real" in Spring and All from "no ideas but in things, Mr" written roughly 20 years later and appearing in Paterson.)

"Fear of poetry" is not because of "poetry" perhaps n the cases of those polled, but the fear of being asked MORE questions, interrogated--frightened of what one might say in the "being forced to speak" of torture--

"Fear of poetry " then is this fear not od Poetry, but of the persons who, and the ways in which, Poetry may be manipulated with "Other Ends in Mind."

One's own poetry for example might be used against one, as an example of not producing the "correct" form of poetry or Poetics, which in turn leads to the questioning of the correctness of one's thoughts, commitments, beliefs, until such a point is reached that indeed even the person polled begins to know that they are guilty of "poem crimes" and "thought crimes," making their treatment at "Correctional Facilities" being completely necessary to save both themselves and the Security of Society, AKA the Society of Security, from the Evil that they bear and which is trying to destroy the Homeland, the Poetry of the State and State Institutions and so forth--.

It may not be Poetry at all which is "feared," in this poll, but perhaps very much the Fear of Not Conforming, of Not Saying the Right Thing, the Fear of being different, an outsider, and so one is unsafe AS oneself, unsafe even TO oneself-- in many other cultures around the world, this does not exist, this "fear of poetry"-- instead, often, poetry may be striking fear into the government, into traditional forms of conformity, or cause fear simply by being "outspoken" regarding things one is not supposed to say or think, or, knowing most people think these forbidden, "subversive" things, one is not allowed to express them, for the fear on the "leaders'" parts that once the door is opened a crack, the rush of those pouring forth with a long bottled up energy wil be enough to blast the leaders and government and al the institutions enforcing dutifully their edicts, from the military to the universities, as well as not a few complicit poets and artists--to blast these al away as they collapse under a "popular uprising " from "Below"--

To be sure, (as often is the case) poetry need not be even overtly protesting "things as they are" but doing so simply by remaining a living call through time of the yearnings of people for "something more than this"-- be it spiritual or erotic, complete liberty or the reiteration of the beauty of the world, of life, that is often lost sight of--

Lost sight of, really, in order to crush down any desire for anything "more"--to be cynically or intellectually etc opposed to the concept that persons may want much more than they are given--and that what persons may want is what you don't want them to have, in which case the "leaders" and their poets , KNOW, have DECIDED, what is "good for you"--and that is that-- So, to ask for more is NOT ALLOWED--ie. no more imagination! no more questions! no more laughter! no more doubts! no more thinking that things shsented & represented to one as the way they are is a lie! yes, for the benefit of the big shts and their accompanying bards -- (for al Kings, Empresses, have had their Bards, and today it is even claimed that a Bard is President--what a savings eh! two for the price of one!--what genious on the part of somebody or other--)

in which case, to join with "Poetry in Fear, " there may welexist also THE POETRY OF FEAR" and its sidekick "THE POETRY FOR FEAR""--

Poetry in Fear are those polled who fear to give any asnawers regarding Poetry which are outside the realm of Conformity-- It is not Poerty that is feared, but what might be behind the asking of what may be a "trick question, "leading to one's detnetion for non-confomrist thoughts and waysof life of being itself, one's being, being "out side the box" so much that the onlybox fit for one is the one they stick you in to be lowered into the ground--if you are lucky, eh--

The Potry of Fear is tha poetry which the President speaks when announcing notonly the continuance of a gret many of the worst and most Fearful programsof the previousadministration, but a Poetry of Fear which demands that the society join him in going evn further than any President has gone before.

And where might this be, this new direction ever futher --itis into the realm of deatiningone indefintiely wihtout being charged, meaning no recourse to a defense orlawyersof any kind--and al becuase the president candecide anytime he or she feelslike to say that so and so is going to COMMIT A HEINOUS CRIMEIN THE FUTURE, and to prevent this,nneeds to be detained and renditioned immediately.

Itisone thing to detain personfor crimes that HAVE BEEN COMMITTED--becuase then there is evivencde and both a prosecution and efense may present their arguments pro and con before a Judge. In other words, what American Law is supposed to be.

However, no on one in history has ever demanded the Right TO DETAIN PERSONS FOR CRIMES THEY HAVE NOT YET COMMITTED..

one SEES NOW,QUITE CLEARLY , THAT CONFOMRITY IN THINKING AND ACTING IS GOING TO BE ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY,. TO AVOID ANY NON-FORMING ALERTING THOUGHT OR WORDS OR POETRY WHICH WILL LEAD ONE TO SWIFT DETENTION--T BE "DISAPPEARED" AND--ALSO--PERHAPS--"DELETED" FROM EXISTENCE

To make matters worse, the President is also demanding that the Supreme Court overturn its ruling that a person arrested can not be questioned until provided with a lawyer, either their own or one court appointed.

Tihsm eans that the police, on their own, and in their own ways, may be questioning the person well before any defense or advice is provided, and thus given the FULL FEAR FACTOR that will elicit a confession in no time, and al the "valuable information" needed to avert yet more"CRIMES NOT YET COMMITTED.

This is the Poetry of Fear--on its way to being "the Law of the Land,"as decided by a President whom many Poets have seen as indeed being "One of Them."

"The Law of the Land"--the President is about to name a new Supreme Court justice--

Once upon a time this Poet president sat and talked with Edward Said. Dr Said knew a thing or two about bombings, arsons anonymous and publcithreatson hislife--after al his office at Coumbia was incierated--and he lived the rest of his life with an emergency button wired into his desk.

Dr Said of course was a deluded being, way outside the box, yes?-- (The Poetics list even at one point was carrying truly vicious violent virulent and graphically obscene hate speech directed at the then just deceased scholar among a great many things including Poetry. There were members who protested at the time, also, this kinds of attacks being allowed to be on thelist, not just Re Edward Said,, but any and eveyone)

That is why a very UnAmerican Law was instituted to protect Americans from such beings ever again having a chance to be so "influential:

'Another group, chaired by Lynne Cheney, wife of Vice president Richard Cheney, and Democratic Senator Joseph Lieberman , has decried liberal and leftist academics as the 'weak link' in the war on terror . These public relations campaigns are designed not simply to arouse public awareness, but also to influence government action. And they have. After taking hours of testimony from conservative intellectuals decrying the pernicious influence of the late Columbia University scholar Edward Said on Middle Eastern Studies, the House of Representatives UNANIMOUSLY (my emphasis) adopted in the Fall of 2003 a bill requiring academic programs receiving federal funding to tailor their their scholar ship and curriculum to 'better reflect the national needs related to homeland security.' Under that rubric, according to a report in Salon, the government could use the carrot and stick of federl money to make sure that ' international studies departments . . . show more support for American foreign policy."

(Corey Robin: Fear: The History of a Political Idea; Oxford UP, 2004; 188)

Here, as with the Military and Governement "chain of command" for translators working in a rigrously legal, controlled and constrained manner and environment on the very few non censored "Poems from Guantanamo is what one may call the "Fear of Poetry, "

Corey Robin in Fear : the History of a Political Idea just cited also notes another tactic directed against,a whole laundry list of threats internal and external published as full page NY Times ad taken out by AVOT (Americans for Victory Over Terrorism: amongt them Wiiliam J bennet, James Woolsey & Frank Gaffeny of the Regan, Bush and Clinton administrations), which calls for "ho.ding 'scholarly research' about Islam to "a serious and rigorous standard.'" (op cit; 188)

Since a lotof the study of Islam involves the poetry of the Qu'aran both within and without its text in the poetries inspired by it, one may again note a "Fear of Poetry" ("a threat internal and external") on the part of the American authorities.

On the one hand the "Fear of Poetry" and the "Poetry of and for Fear." and on the other, that evinced by the poll of British persons, as well as by the inaction's of, as has been the so often remakred on"internally and externally" the "fear within American poetry & arts" of being "out of line," not toeing the Company line, remaining complicityly silent re the actions internal and external of the current and previous Administrations, over a long period of time.

The American persons then who may well have a Fear of Poetry, may be those poets who do not conform to the "rigourous standards" of Institutions from the Office of President on down to the barcnhes of learning as well as the monitoring of emails, telephone calls, letters received or books taken out of the library.

That is the Fear within Poetry--to conform or else--be publicly and privately attacked. not only by the usual suspects from the Federales or State or University Administration and media Representatives, but from fellow poets also.

Re "the end of lists" -- a double edged sword of social networks and their theories is the possibility of always being among those who agree with one--"like-minded individuals"--in which case their is no criticism, feedback, discussion, that may or not be of help to the individual presenter, yet may contribute some new information or suggest other possibilities to other members of the network and where "the skies are not cloudy all day"

on the one hand, every poet, artist needs encouragement and support, attention and care; ontheother hand this may devolve into a nonstop parade of flatterers and sycophants-- one of the dangers of any list, blog, facebook, my space etc etc is that there is always a strong pressure to conform-- this pressure often need not be "voiced" or written, expressed in any overt way, yet exist as an undercurrent which flows among the members-- fear is the political arm used to enforce and control the directions of conformity-- ratchet up the fear and persons not previously fearful suddenly are-the fear no longer need come from without solely, it is also being generated within, through the adoption of rebranded language, which quietly omits any conflicts between directives and actualities-- in other words there is eventually a a good possibility for the parroting of propaganda only being allowed-- lists are not at all over, as Jim claims; it just dependents on what lists one is participating in--there are many that are very alive and well and also more inclusive than the old poetics list was--these lists and other social networks one may form without mingling always among the like minded, are international, and so not governed by the tendency to conformity which observers of the American scene since de Tocqueville have seen and remarked on-- the "fear of poetry" then may not be an indication of a "given" but the symptom of FEAR which is continually made more frightening by the controlling forces within that society--

On Sat, May 23, 2009 at 10:35 PM, Jim Andrews <[redacted]> wrote:

> i think lists have had their day as high quality discussion forums. some options have emerged since then, such as blogs and social networks. well lists are social networks, aren't they. but they weren't called that when they were in their prime. now the term 'social networks' encompasses lists, things like facebook, myspace, rss of blogs, and so on. there's more options and more theory of social networks. unfortunately, for all that, i haven't seen anything that rivals the early days of the list in terms of strong discussion. i think it would take quite a strong platform/app to do that. something that was strong enough to merit the trust that the list no longer enjoys. if that's possible.
>
> ja

> http://vispo.com

↑ Index

233. Andrew Lundwall
scantily clad update!
Mon 25 May 2009

---

new titles:

At night: by Lisa Ciccarello

You Are So Pretty by Donald Dunbar

Theater by Drew Kalbach

Prairies by Natalie Knight

Mandolintries by Philip Nikolayev

Taco Truck to Awesometown by Cate Peebles

read these & other SCP e-chaps at http://scantilycladpress.blogspot.com

↑ Index

234. David Buuck
BARGE closing reception/performance Sat 5/30 4-6pm
Mon 25 May 2009

Please join Mission17 and BARGE for the closing reception of "17 Reasons Why", the Visual/Cultural Criticism Residency exhibition. As part of the closing event, David Buuck will lead a performance and tour of the show, which will include readings, video, and street performance, along with the live assembly of "Reason 17," a catalog of the residency that will be free for visitors. Food and drink will be available, kids welcome - hope to see you there!

Saturday May 30, 4-6pm.
Mission17 Gallery
2111 Mission Street
Suite 401
San Francisco 94110

mission17.org
buuckbarge.wordpress.com

↑ Index

235. Mark Weiss
Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
Mon 25 May 2009

All but the important aspects.

> - there seems to be a failure to accept that most aspects of writing well CAN and ARE being taught

↑ Index

236. Adam Fieled
PFS Post: Mark Young & Kelley White
Mon 25 May 2009

Check out sparkling new work from Otoliths editor Mark Young and Kelley White on PFS Post:

http://www.artrecess.blogspot.com

Sky Blue Bells Ringing, Adam

↑ Index

237. Chris Pusateri
LONDON READING, THIS WEDNESDAY, 5/27 7:30pm: Wagner, Pusateri, Pierce, Robinson, Ormonde, Linsley, Cremin
Mon 25 May 2009

For those living in or passing through London

Openned presents

Catherine Wagner
Chris Pusateri
Michelle Naka Pierce
Sophie Robinson
Johanna Linsley
Ryan Ormonde
Rebecca Cremin

Where/when:

This Wednesday, 27 May
7:30pm

The Foundry
86 Great Eastern Street

London, EC2A 3JL
(basement level)

Admission is free.

Backchannel or visit www.openned.com for further details.

_____ Hotmail® has a new way to see what's up with your friends.
http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/WhatsNew?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tutorial_WhatsNew1_052009

↑ Index

238. steve russell

Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

Mon 25 May 2009

& public intellectuals are a dying breed. Or, there is neither the space or a public interested in intellectual debate. Bohemia is dead/dead/dead. The listserv is a rare and much needed exception... from "The Last Intellectuals/American Culture In The Age of Academe", by Russell Jacoby:

...it was not alwyas difficult to name the "young" intellectuals. Once writers and critics regularly, often obsessively, monitered the new generation; tehy differed not so much over the manes but over their merits. Today even the briefest list would include many blanks: leading younger critics? sociologists? historians? philosophers? Psycholgists? Who are they? Where are they?

--- On Sun, 5/24/09, Jim Andrews <[redacted]> wrote:

> From: Jim Andrews <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Sunday, May 24, 2009, 1:35 AM
> i think lists have had their day as > high quality discussion forums. some options have emerged
> since then, such as blogs and social networks. well lists > are social networks, aren't they. but they weren't called > that when they were in their prime. now the term 'social > networks' encompasses lists, things like facebook, myspace, > rss of blogs, and so on. there's more options and more
> theory of social networks. unfortunately, for all that, i > haven't seen anything that rivals the early days of the list
> in terms of strong discussion. i think it would take quite a > strong platform/app to do that. something that was strong > enough to merit the trust that the list no longer enjoys. if > that's possible.

> ja
> http://vispo.com

↑ Index

239. steve russell

Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

Mon 25 May 2009

--- On Sun, 5/24/09, Jim Andrews <[redacted]> wrote:

> From: Jim Andrews <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
> To: [redacted]

& public intellectuals are a dying breed. Or, there is neither the space or a public interested in intellectual debate. Bohemia is dead/dead/dead.
The listserv is a rare and much needed exception... from "The Last Intellectuals/American Culture In The Age of Academe", by Russell Jacoby:

...it was not always difficult to name the "young" intellectuals. Once writers and critics regularly, often obsessively, monitered the new generation; they differed not so much over the names but over their merits. Today even the briefest list would include many blanks: leading younger critics? sociologists? historians? philosophers? Psycholgists? Who are they? Where are they?

.EDU
> Date: Sunday, May 24, 2009, 1:35 AM
> i think lists have had their day as > high quality discussion forums. some options have emerged
> since then, such as blogs and social networks. well lists
> are social networks, aren't they. but they weren't called > that when they were in their prime. now the term 'social > networks' encompasses lists, things like facebook, myspace, > rss of blogs, and so on. there's more options and more
> theory of social networks. unfortunately, for all that, i > haven't seen anything that rivals the early days of the list
> in terms of strong discussion. i think it would take quite a > strong platform/app to do that. something that was strong > enough to merit the trust that the list no longer enjoys. if > that's possible.
>
> ja

> http://vispo.com
>

↑ Index

240. Crane's Bill Books
Poetry installation in Albuquerque
Mon 25 May 2009

THE LAND/an art site, Inc., presents

AZIMUTH: WRITING ON WALLS

THE LAND/gallery

June 6 - July 17

Opening reception June 6, 6-9 pm.

A text-environment incorporating AZIMUTH, a collaborative free renga by Miriam Sagan and fourteen other poets.

Miriam Sagan is the author of more than twenty books, including the recent MAP OF THE LOST from University of New Mexico Press. She created this gallery-sized poem with JB Bryan, Paula Castillo, Abigail Doan, Ephia, Dale Harris, Phyllis Hoge, J. A. Lee, Sabra Moore, Terry Mulert, Steve Peters, Suzanne Sbarge, John Tritica, Stefi Weisburd and Mera Wolf.

More information: www.landartsite.org .

↑ Index

241. Michael T Cross
Rob Halpern in the Pacific Northwest
Mon 25 May 2009

Dear Friends:

Rob Halpern, author of Rumored Place (Krupskaya) and co-author of Snow Sensitive Skin (Atticus/Finch), is touring the Pacific Northwest this coming week in celebration of his newest book of poetry, Disaster Suites (Palm Press). Those familiar with Halpern and his work know these events are not to be missed. To sweeten the deal, I've produced a limited edition broadside of Halpern's poem "Some Speculations Around George Oppen's Parousia" free to attendees of the Seattle events. I hope you'll have an opportunity to attend at least one of the following:

1. Wednesday, May 27th, 8pm
Olympia, Washington
The Evergreen State College

2700 Evergreen Parkway NW
Evergreen State College Library (Underground)

2. Thursday, May 28th, 6pm
Seattle, Washington
University of Washington
The Henry Art Gallery's Cafe
4100 15th Ave. N.

3. Saturday, May 30th, 5pm
Seattle, Washington
Crawl Space
504 E. Denny Way #1
*Entrance on Summit Ave E

All best,
Michael

↑ Index

242. Stephen Vincent
Re: Feminist poetics
Mon 25 May 2009

Appreciate reading your post, Ann. I am wondering,however, does knitting have to be gender identified, or gender claimed? That seems retro to me and no over-all benefit to 'the larger whole'. I have seen a lot of men knitting great stuff. Just this weekend up in Monte Rio on the Russian River, we encounter two men at a roadside table. They had yarns to extraordinary colors - translucent blues, carrot reds, jades, deep rose reds, etc. One of them was spinning a wooden wheel. There were a variety of woven caps in different styles for sales. I joked with the spinner as to whether or not he 'could also tell a good yarn.' Ironically he had never heard the term 'yarn' for a story. Then I told him that in Greek that the word 'text' means to 'weave' - as in, for example, 'to weave a good story.' And that a good story usually also had a good feel, 'a good texture'. Yes, he remembered a story of a woman who went to court with her loom and put the words and account of the proceedings into an on the spot weaving. This is not to deny that different genders will do the same things quite differently - no doubt informed by other causes as well (regional, age, etc.) Knitting is probably a form of 'marching in place' - as the legs go, and the fingers and hands keep going. Personally, I am walking not so far, and drawing much more!

Stephen V
http://stephenvincent.net/blog/

--- On Fri, 5/22/09, Ann Bogle <[redacted]> wrote:

From: Ann Bogle <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Feminist poetics
To: [redacted]
Date: Friday, May 22, 2009, 3:21 PM

A v-striped-turtleneck? My sister, though she also writes, is a textile designer.

AMB

In a message dated 5/22/2009 4:41:57 P.M. Central Daylight Time, AMBogle2 writes:

My mother (who had wanted a career in public office) once knitted a tailored three-color v-neck-turtleneck for my Barbie. My sister, who is a textual designer, and I still can't believe she knit it.

↑ Index

243. David Chirot
Vargas Llosa detained at Venezuelan airport
Mon 25 May 2009

---

http://news.yahoo.com/s/ap/20090525/ap_on_re_la_am_ca/lt_venezuela_vargas_llosa

CARACAS, Venezuela - Peruvian writer and journalist Alvaro Vargas Llosa says Venezuelan authorities detained him for about two hours after he arrived in Venezuela for an upcoming pro-democracy forum.

NOTE: Vargas Lhosa's Turn to the Right has made him something of a Persona Non Grata in many Latin American countries-this attitude towards Sr. Lhosa appears in one of Robert Bolano's stories, for example--

↑ Index

244. Susan Webster Schultz new book from TINFISH PRESS
Mon 25 May 2009

Due this week, and available for purchase now!

http://tinfishpress.com/books.html

Paul Naylor, JAMMED TRANSMISSION

Jammed Transmission is a unique text. It is poetry, but not poetry, philosophy but not philosophy, religion but not religion. It probably refers, wittingly or unwittingly, to ancient writing practices that were considered to be spiritual exercises, shorthand verse-form takes on scripture, composition as devotional exploration. Such forms of writing were commonplace all over the world at a time when religion – conceived as the process of ultimate encounter with the limits of human thought and being – was not, as it is now, divorced from the literary arts. In fact, in ancient times, long before religion learned how to become effectively repressive and oppressive, there was no distinction whatsoever between these two fields of endeavor. All religion required forms of writing, all writing was sacred writing, and all writers were of necessity religious people, because it was only within monasteries and religious enclaves that the esoteric arts of reading, writing and calligraphy were practiced. (Norman Fischer)

$16 from Tinfish Press, 47-728 Hui Kelu Street #9, Kaneohe, HI 96744
http://tinfishpress.com

Also available soon from SPD, spdbooks.org

aloha, Susan

↑ Index

245. Maria Damon
Re: book ideas?
Mon 25 May 2009

"issues in poetics" Poetry and Cultural Studies: A Reader, edited by yrs truly and Ira Livingston. Shd be available any minute now (U-Illinois Press).

steve russell wrote:
> "issues in poetics"--
>
> Politics & Poetic Value, edited by Robert von Hallberg
>
> --- On Sun, 5/24/09, Eric Weinstein <[redacted]> wrote:
>
>
>> From: Eric Weinstein <[redacted]>
>> Subject: Re: book ideas?
>> To: [redacted]
>> Date: Sunday, May 24, 2009, 7:08 AM
>> Also seconding Mark Weiss' >> suggestion. Poems for the Millennium Vol. 2 is >> excellent; Donald Allen's The New American Poetry, 1945 - >> 1960 might make a >> good companion text.
>>

>> E
>>
>> On Fri, May 22, 2009 at 6:39 PM, Gerald Schwartz <[redacted]>wrote:
>>
>>
>>> Under the Rock Umbrella
>>> Contemporary Poets 1951-77
>>> Edited by William Walsh
>>> Mercer University Press (2006)
>>>
>>> --Gerald Schwartz
>>>
>>>
>>> Hello,
>>>
>>>> I'm teaching a senior undergraduate course
>>>>
>> entitled "Poetry since 1950" in
>>
>>>> the fall, and I'm making up my own anthology as a
>>>>
>> course package so as to
>>
>>>> include a fair amount of experimental material.
>>>>
>> However, I need some ideas
>>
>>>> for a short critical overview of contemporary
>>>>
>> poetry that takes a world or
>>
>>>> at least trans-Atlantic perspective and addresses
>>>>
>> historical contexts,
>>
>>>> movements, issues in poetics, etc. Is there such a
>>>>
>> book available?
>>
>>>> Thanks for ideas.
>>>>
>>>> Hilary Clark

>>>>
>>>>
>> accept all posts. Check
>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>

>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>

>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>

>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>

>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>
>> all posts. Check guidelines
>>
>>>
>>>
>>
>> --
>> Eric Weinstein
>> 1319 Washington St., Apt. 1L
>> Hoboken, NJ 07030-6759
>> [redacted]
>> [redacted]
>>
>>
>>
>
>
>
>
>

↑ Index

246. Alan Sondheim

Alan Sondheim and Sandy Baldwin Second Life Performance

Mon 25 May 2009

A Life History Performance

Alan Sondheim and Sandy Baldwin
Performing in Barcelona and Second Life, 1630 hours Eastern Time, May 26
SLURL: http://slurl.com/secondlife/Odyssey/114/185/801

Witness the carapace of appearances, the wildlife exhibit, the shell and script of avatar bildungsroman. Alan Sondheim and Sandy Baldwin emanate with extra-ordinary langauges, disorderly conducts, and shamanistic bodies.

Performance as part of E-Poetry 2009, in the Bar-Cockteelaria Milano in Barcelona, Spain, and in Second Life at the the following SLURL: http://slurl.com/secondlife/Odyssey/114/185/801

(This may or may not work - if not, just look for Alan Dojoji and ask for teleport. Time slightly variable.)

Note: the performance will state at approximately 1630 hours New York City time and conclude at approximately 1730 hours.

↑ Index

247. Jennifer Karmin
Jenny Holzer exhibit in NYC
Tue 26 May 2009

Jenny Holzer: PROTECT PROTECT

through May 31, 2009 at the Whitney Museum of American Art 945 Madison Ave -- NYC
http://whitney.org

"For more than thirty years, Jenny Holzer's work has paired text and installation to examine emotional and societal realities. Her choice of forms and media brings a sensate experience to the contradictory voices, opinions, and attitudes that shape everyday life. The 1990s heralded a turn in Holzer's practice toward greater visual and environmental presence. In this exhibition, which centers on her work from the mid-1990s to the present, Holzer joins political bravura with formal beauty, sensitivity, and power."

↑ Index

248. George Bowering
Re: Vargas Llosa detained at Venezuelan airport
Tue 26 May 2009

Turn to the right?
He has always been on the right.

gb

On May 25, 2009, at 4:49 PM, David Chirot wrote:

> http://news.yahoo.com/s/ap/20090525/ap_on_re_la_am_ca/lt_venezuela_vargas_llosa
>
> CARACAS, Venezuela - Peruvian writer and journalist Alvaro Vargas Llosa says
> Venezuelan authorities detained him for about two hours after he arrived in > Venezuela for an upcoming pro-democracy forum.
>
> NOTE: Vargas Lhosa's Turn to the Right has made him something of a Persona
> Non Grata in many Latin American countries-
>
> this attitude towards Sr. Lhosa appears in one of Robert Bolano's stories, > for example--
>
> welcome.html

G. Harry Bowering
Merchant of Mirth

↑ Index

249. Jim Andrews
Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
Tue 26 May 2009

---

i don't think i've ever seen a list that has taken a dive really come back to life.

it might continue to have lots of announcements and perhaps poems and creative writings and so forth. but once they are scuttled as discussion forums, they don't seem to recover as discussion forums.

and they're relatively easy to scuttle as discussion forums. any idiot can and does post to them. if the list has interesting artists/critics/thinkers on it, all the better to bray on.

the open, unmoderated list can't be a good discussion forum for very long. it's too bad. a cryin shame, really.

we need an alternative where it is much easier to tune out braying. i know how to create a filter where mail from person x goes in the sin bin, but not a filter where the mail is from a list and the poster is x. facebook has this figured out, but i haven't run across any good discussion on facebook.

but the above presupposes a web interface. or a cross-platform email client architecture where it's easy to develop plugins for a wide variety of email clients. that'd be nice. then we could develop 'list apps' in email clients. you'd think the major makers of email clients would get together on such an effort. sort of like the w3c of emaildom.

ja
http://vispo.com

> Jim,
>
> That is exactly my point. Was the sacrifice worth it or was the cure many times worse than the disease? Of course, that maybe just a man speaking.
>
> Ciao,
>
> Murat

↑ Index

250. amy king
Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
Tue 26 May 2009

Mark,

Exactly. Which is why I brought the larger question back to "What can a feminist poetics offer?"

Going back, I do think the immediate reaction to my Briton post was gendered. I doubt very much if James, who originally posted the note with no other miscellany on another list received queries presuming he was "shocked" and "surprised." There was no indication in my note that I was either, and yet. Does David Chirot, who often posts studies here from the NYT, receive such backchannel queries? But that was just one event on this list that represents a model that is often gendered. There have been many other examples here that have devolved into bullying, aggression, and intimidation. And this model, like it or not, is classically dubbed a masculine one, no matter who executes it. BUT. That is not to say, and I think we all know this, that women cannot adopt that model.

From childhood, we are each gendered and taught to behave accordingly. It's why gender ambiguity is so frowned upon from the start. We want things to be clear so that we can fit the packaged expectations. It's very important to parents that they know "what they are having" beyond just a healthy baby. Clear gender is vital. Many more intersex children are born than we realize (or care to admit - http://www.isna.org/faq/frequency), but parents are urged to "correct" their childrent at birth. Then we've got studies that illustrate how people, once they know the gender of a baby, handle boys more roughly than girls. Next, everyone is telling boys not to cry and to be a "big boy" when they exhibit "feminine" expressions like crying or dancing or appreciating frilly or colorful things. If he likes to paint, he better not like nail polish. Girls are emphatically schooled to share, care, nurture their dollies, dress like princesses (learn to be beautiful), etc.

Literature, including children's verse, begins by upholding that tradition of socializing gender. Where the Wild Things Are emphasizes the "boy code" which is one that encourages boys to be adventurous, disobedient (to a limit - they eventually do come home to eat), independent, and above all, powerful. You need only Google "the boy code" to learn all that this term entails. When the boy in the book finally dominates the monsters, he learns that he has this potential to overcome other forms of power through his own strength, and should, and he will be able to continue to do so throughout his life. On the flip side, girls are taught in their books to be social via tea parties, to help each other learn how to ice skate and other non-competitive activities, and to just generally be cooperative and interdependent. I'm not saying grown-up women don't get bitter that these are the roles we've been instructed in anymore than men don't feel confined by their roles to always exhibit strength.

Additionally, both models have much to offer. We develop skills in competition; we complement each other as a species and help others to grow through cooperation. Of course, all of this is a quick, very generalized overview. Moreover, once we've learned these gendered behaviors, it's very difficult to take a step back and ask, "What isn't natural about the way I interact with others? What behaviors and ways of seeing have I learned? How do I communicate and what presumptions do I make based on how I learned to be a male or female?" There is immediate, massive resistance to such examining because to do so A) acknowledges that some of what we think of ourselves as being "naturally" we were in fact conditioned to and, gulp, such learning was beyond our control (does that inherently imply that we were duped?) and B) it's easy not to consider such gendering because it is so very base and instinctive for adults. Childhood conditioning becomes "second nature." "It's just the way I am." Studying any ideology, particularly one's own that is referred to as "reality" is simply upsetting. Especially when the very question implies the possibility of change.

And so we get to the original question -- what can a feminist poetics offer? Feminism, more specifically, a feminist poetics is the school of language work that strives to lay bare just how language is gendered and seeks to confound/upset/dismantle the expectations and mechanisms of those uses. It works away at the very ways we communicate. And yes, as noted, anyone can adopt those masculine and feminine models. It's why a select few women can behave as aggressively on another list (turf) as the select few men on this list can: because we are socialized to believe these behaviors are natural, but they are in fact learned and can be adopted at will. We fall back into our effortless roles of communicating as we were taught growing up -- it's why Reb, in the material I posted, was excited to raise a boy; she wants to break that tradition and raise a man who does not learn the "boy code" and all that it offers (and restricts). A feminist poetics also strives to confound the segregation of those models and see what happens when we mix up "feminine" and "masculine" ways of using language. I posted a few snippets indicating as much too. Perhaps they were lost in proving that the lull in list discussion was all my fault...

No matter. The former listserv model only worked for a select few and silenced many. As noted, these were men and women who were silenced. If current moderation simply means those select few don't get to name call and ad hom everyone into spent exhaustion and silence in the days of yore, then this will remain a list of announcements. But if some are interested in figuring out how we can communicate without resorting to such tactics, then the list just might resuscitate a bit. A list is only as good as its discussions and participants. I do think, as earlier noted, the lull goes beyond examining the gendered nature of those former discussions; there are other factors, as others have now noted, that detract from list discussion such as blogs. How many have left this forum to retreat to their own sites and others' comments streams? Do the smaller number of participants create a sense of community that nearly 2000 cannot? And perhaps people appreciate having a low volume listserv that solely provides announcements? Perhaps I am nostalgic for a period of discussion on this list from so very long ago, one that didn't resort to bashing other moderators and the creator of the list for discussion fodder.

Yikes -- more to say on mixing up the feminine and masculine modes / models but I'm late for an appointment!

Be well,

Amy

_____

Amy's Alias
http://amyking.org/

--- On Sun, 5/24/09, you wrote:

Amy:

One might suggest that in this otherwise quiet
time on the list your post could be the tinder that starts a flame war.

The worst I've ever been treated on line has been
by some of the women on WOMPO, who seem to think that the rules of civilized behavior don't apply

in relation to men. The vast majority of the members are a lot more hospitable, but the verbal violence of the few appears to drive them into silence. So much for gender. Human unpleasantness is equal-opportunity.

I'll be away from my computer til Sunday very late.

Mark

↑ Index

251. John Herbert Cunningham

Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

Tue 26 May 2009

An interesting perspective, Amy, and one well stated. And you've made an attempt in your discussion to be inclusive and not point fingers when you refer to "bullying, aggression, and intimidation" saying that this is a learned response. There is one problem created by your prose, however, and that is labelling it a 'feminist poetics'. This label, in and of itself, refutes your inclusivity. And please, don't take this as if I'm faulting your analysis. It's just that, when you state "Feminism, more specifically, a feminist poetics is the school of language work that strives to lay bare just how language is gendered and seeks to confound/upset/dismantle the expectations and mechanisms of those uses. It works away at the very ways we communicate.", you have neglected to examine and analyze this most basic of terms. Calling something a 'feminist poetics' is almost guaranteed to raise the hairs on the backs of nearly half your audience as a 'feminist poetics' must be in opposition to a 'masculine poetics', whatever the hell that is. Applying a binary Saussurean analysis to this, 'feminist poetics' is being privileged to the denigration of anything the male might contribute. Which is unfortunate as it is not what you intended. And I'm not saying that at one time (hopefully, no longer today) this rallying cry was required and necessary in order to get beyond the benign neglect occasioned by the at one time dominant male population. Somehow, we have to get beyond these gendered terms to a position of personhood. John Herbert Cunningham

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of amy king
Sent: May-26-09 7:40 AM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

Mark,

Exactly. Which is why I brought the larger question back to "What can a feminist poetics offer?"

Going back, I do think the immediate reaction to my Briton post was gendered. I doubt very much if James, who originally posted the note with no other miscellany on another list received queries presuming he was "shocked" and "surprised." There was no indication in my note that I was either, and yet. Does David Chirot, who often posts studies here from the NYT, receive such backchannel queries? But that was just one event on this list that represents a model that is often gendered. There have been many other examples here that have devolved into bullying, aggression, and intimidation. And this model, like it or not, is classically dubbed a masculine one, no matter who executes it. BUT. That is not to say, and I think we all know this, that women cannot adopt that model.

From childhood, we are each gendered and taught to behave accordingly. It's why gender ambiguity is so frowned upon from the start. We want things to be clear so that we can fit the packaged expectations. It's very important to parents that they know "what they are having" beyond just a healthy baby. Clear gender is vital. Many more intersex children are born than we realize (or care to admit - http://www.isna.org/faq/frequency), but parents are urged to "correct" their childrent at birth. Then we've got studies that illustrate how people, once they know the gender of a baby, handle boys more roughly than girls. Next, everyone is telling boys not to cry and to be a "big boy" when they exhibit "feminine" expressions like crying or dancing or appreciating frilly or colorful things. If he likes to paint, he better not like nail polish. Girls are emphatically schooled to share, care, nurture their dollies, dress like princesses (learn to be beautiful), etc.

Literature, including children's verse, begins by upholding that tradition of socializing gender. Where the Wild Things Are emphasizes the "boy code" which is one that encourages boys to be adventurous, disobedient (to a limit - they eventually do come home to eat), independent, and above all, powerful. You need only Google "the boy code" to learn all that this term entails. When the boy in the book finally dominates the monsters, he learns that he has this potential to overcome other forms of power through his own strength, and should, and he will be able to continue to do so throughout his life. On the flip side, girls are taught in their books to be social via tea parties, to help each other learn how to ice skate and other non-competitive activities, and to just generally be cooperative and interdependent. I'm not saying grown-up women don't get bitter that these are the roles we've been instructed in anymore than men don't feel confined by their roles to always exhibit strength.

Additionally, both models have much to offer. We develop skills in competition; we complement each other as a species and help others to grow through cooperation. Of course, all of this is a quick, very generalized overview. Moreover, once we've learned these gendered behaviors, it's very difficult to take a step back and ask, "What isn't natural about the way I interact with others? What behaviors and ways of seeing have I learned? How do I communicate and what presumptions do I make based on how I learned to be a male or female?" There is immediate, massive resistance to such examining because to do so A) acknowledges that some of what we think of ourselves as being "naturally" we were in fact conditioned to and, gulp, such learning was beyond our control (does that inherently imply that we were duped?) and B) it's easy not to consider such gendering because it is so very base and instinctive for adults. Childhood conditioning becomes "second nature." "It's just the way I am." Studying any ideology, particularly one's own that is referred to as "reality" is simply upsetting. Especially when the very question implies the possibility of change.

And so we get to the original question -- what can a feminist poetics offer? And yes, as noted, anyone can adopt those masculine and feminine models. It's why a select few women can behave as aggressively on another list (turf) as the select few men on this list can: because we are socialized to believe these behaviors are natural, but they are in fact learned and can be adopted at will. We fall back into our effortless roles of communicating as we were taught growing up -- it's why Reb, in the material I posted, was excited to raise a boy; she wants to break that tradition and raise a man who does not learn the "boy code" and all that it offers (and restricts). A feminist poetics also strives to confound the segregation of those models and see what happens when we mix up "feminine" and "masculine" ways of using language. I posted a few snippets indicating as much too. Perhaps they were lost in proving that the lull in list discussion was all my fault...

No matter. The former listserv model only worked for a select few and silenced many. As noted, these were men and women who were silenced. If current moderation simply means those select few don't get to name call and ad hom everyone into spent exhaustion and silence in the days of yore, then this will remain a list of announcements. But if some are interested in figuring out how we can communicate without resorting to such tactics, then the list just might resuscitate a bit. A list is only as good as its discussions and participants. I do think, as earlier noted, the lull goes beyond examining the gendered nature of those former discussions; there are other factors, as others have now noted, that detract from list discussion such as blogs. How many have left this forum to retreat to their own sites and others' comments streams? Do the smaller number of participants create a sense of community that nearly 2000 cannot?

And perhaps people appreciate having a low volume listserv that solely provides announcements? Perhaps I am nostalgic for a period of discussion on this list from so very long ago, one that didn't resort to bashing other moderators and the creator of the list for discussion fodder.

Yikes -- more to say on mixing up the feminine and masculine modes / models but I'm late for an appointment!

Be well,

Amy

_____

Amy's Alias
http://amyking.org/

--- On Sun, 5/24/09, you wrote:

Amy:

One might suggest that in this otherwise quiet
time on the list your post could be the tinder that starts a flame war.

The worst I've ever been treated on line has been
by some of the women on WOMPO, who seem to think that the rules of civilized behavior don't apply
in relation to men. The vast majority of the members are a lot more hospitable, but the verbal violence of the few appears to drive them into silence. So much for gender. Human unpleasantness is equal-opportunity.

I'll be away from my computer til Sunday very late.

Mark

↑ Index

252. J. Michael Mollohan

Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

Tue 26 May 2009

The alternative which you seek is called usenet. A usenet newsgroup may be moderated or not, preferably moderated, considering the trolls that lurk there. One may then create a killfile for your newsreader in which to dump undesired posters. Usenet is thriving with well over 100,000 groups, some of them quite active. Connected newsgroups could be set up as well, including binary groups where graphics and sound and short videos could be posted. You could have something like alt.poeticslist.discussion.moderated along with alt.poeticslist.poems and alt.poeticslist.binaries and this could possibly lead to a more robust use of the notion.

HTH

----- Original Message -----
From: "Jim Andrews" <[redacted]>
To: <[redacted]>
Sent: Tuesday, May 26, 2009 4:34 AM
Subject: Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

> i don't think i've ever seen a list that has taken a dive really come back to life.
>
> it might continue to have lots of announcements and perhaps poems and creative writings and so forth. but once they are scuttled as discussion forums, they don't seem to recover as discussion forums.
>
> and they're relatively easy to scuttle as discussion forums. any idiot can and does post to them. if the list has interesting artists/critics/thinkers on it, all the better to bray on.
>
> the open, unmoderated list can't be a good discussion forum for very long. it's too bad. a cryin shame, really.
>
> we need an alternative where it is much easier to tune out braying. i know how to create a filter where mail from person x goes in the sin bin, but not a filter where the mail is from a list and the poster is x. facebook has this figured out, but i haven't run across any good discussion on facebook.
>
> but the above presupposes a web interface. or a cross-platform email client architecture where it's easy to develop plugins for a wide variety of email clients. that'd be nice. then we could develop 'list apps' in email clients. you'd think the major makers of email clients would get together on such an effort. sort of like the w3c of emaildom.
>
> ja
> http://vispo.com
>
> Jim,
>
> That is exactly my point. Was the sacrifice worth it or was the cure many times worse than the disease? Of course, that maybe just a man speaking.
>
> Ciao,

> Murat

↑ Index

253. Michael Kelleher
Literary Buffalo Newsletter 05.26.09-05.31.09
Tue 26 May 2009

LITERARY BUFFALO
05.26.09-05.31.09

NEWSLETTER HIATUS

The newsletter (and its author) are taking a break after this week and will not return to action until July 6. Events can still be posted to the website.

For info on all literary events that would normally post in this newsletter, visit the Literary Buffalo web calendar:

http://www.justbuffalo.org/index.php?task=view&id=22

BABEL

PHOTO GALLERY

Bruce Jackson has been photographing all of the Babel events and has posted a beautiful set of photos of the first two years, so you can feed your Babel jones over the summer. Please visit them at:

http://babelphotos.us

You might also visit Talking Leaves...Books to purchase the four books for next season: Possession, by A.S. Byatt; Waiting, by Ha Jin, Reading Lolita in Tehran, by Azar Nafisi, and Midnight's Children, by Salman Rushdie. Babel Subscribers get a discount!

Speaking of which:

BABEL 2009-2010 SEASON SUBSCRIPTIONS ON SALE NOW!

October 9, A.S. Byatt
November 20, Ha Jin
March 5, Azar Nafisi
April 16, Salman Rushdie

Previous Subscriber: $85
New Subscriber: $110
These subscriptions include general admission seating at all 4 events.

Patron: $275
Patron Pair: $450
Patron level subscriptions include VIP reserved seating and admission to all pre-event author receptions.

Purchase subscriptions now at http://www.justbuffalo.org/babel or by phone at [redacted].

EVENTS THIS WEEK

All events free and open to the public unless otherwise noted. For more detailed information and a complete listing of future events, please visit the Literary Buffalo web calendar:

http://www.justbuffalo.org/index.php?task=view&id=22

05.27.09

Talking Leaves Books, Just Buffalo
Amy Stewart
Reading/signing: Wicked Plants, An A to Z of plants that kill, maim, intoxicate, and otherwise offend
Wednesday, May 27, 6:00 PM
Urban Roots
428 Rhode Island Street, Buffalo

JUST BUFFALO MEMBERS? WRITER CRITIQUE GROUP

The member writer critique group is back on a new night: 1st and 3rd Tuesdays at the Market Arcade. The critique group WILL continue to meet all summer long.

Click here for more info:

http://www.justbuffalo.org/media/pdf/CritiqueGroup0409.pdf

UNSUBSCRIBE

If you would like to unsubscribe from this list, just say so and you will immediately be removed. _____

Michael Kelleher
Artistic Director
Just Buffalo Literary Center
Market Arcade
617 Main St., Ste. 202A
Buffalo, NY 14203

[redacted]
[redacted] (fax)
www.justbuffalo.org
[redacted]

↑ Index

254. Mark Weiss

Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

Tue 26 May 2009

Thanks for the familiar explanation. It would be helpful if we had a state of nature for comparison, but we don't. There's of course no denying the differences in role models in our society and their enforcement by differences in child rearing. But the underlying assumptions about the nature of the species and genders are less than compelling. One of those assumptions,against a great deal of evidence, seems to be that we come into this world as tabulae rasa, hence infinitely mutable. Another seems to be that in a state of nature little girls, and boys, would be made of sugar and spice and everything nice, and that in the society we have aggression by men and women is a distortion of nature and to be lamented. I'm not that optimistic. It's entirely possible that, raised with no social expectations whatever, more little girls would grow up to be as aggressive as some men, and that aggressive women in our society have against the odds succeeded in being themselves, or that there are more aggressive women because there is less childhood conditioning against aggressiveness. Regardless, we can make a fair guess that in whatever just society there would be wide variation, with an unhealthy percentage of women as well as men exhibiting uncomfortable levels of aggression. One sign of this might be the numbers of women who, thanks to fertility control, find themselves free to join the military. Are they being masculine, or are they subject to the same economic motivations that drive some young men to enlist, and also the ungendered psychological motivations that drive some of those young men to enjoy inflicting pain? In a just society would more female sociopaths feel free to express themselves as men do?

Back to list behavior. I don't see any solution. I've been on this and other lists for a long time, and I don't remember "a period of discussion on this list from so very long ago, one that didn't resort to bashing other moderators and the creator of the list for discussion fodder." All lists seem to go through periods of warfare, though this more than most. I suspect that it's the demographics--a lot of academics, and a lot of the young. In any event, we're talking about the behavior of very few--active participation on any list I know of seems to be restricted to a very few members, you and I among them.

Best,

Mark

05:40 AM 5/26/2009 -0700, you wrote:
Mark,

Exactly. Which is why I brought the larger question back to "What can a feminist poetics offer?"

Going back, I do think the immediate reaction to my Briton post was gendered. I doubt very much if James, who originally posted the note with no other miscellany on another list received queries presuming he was "shocked" and "surprised." There was no indication in my note that I was either, and yet. Does David Chirot, who often posts studies here from the NYT, receive such backchannel queries? But that was just one event on this list that represents a model that is often gendered. There have been many other examples here that have devolved into bullying, aggression, and intimidation. And this model, like it or not, is classically dubbed a masculine one, no matter who executes it. BUT. That is not to say, and I think we all know this, that women cannot adopt that model.

From childhood, we are each gendered and taught to behave accordingly. It's why gender ambiguity is so frowned upon from the start. We want things to be clear so that we can fit the packaged expectations. It's very important to parents that they know "what they are having" beyond just a healthy baby. Clear gender is vital. Many more intersex children are born than we realize (or care to admit - http://www.isna.org/faq/frequency), but parents are urged to "correct" their childrent at birth. Then we've got studies that illustrate how people, once they know the gender of a baby, handle boys more roughly than girls. Next, everyone is telling boys not to cry and to be a "big boy" when they exhibit "feminine" expressions like crying or dancing or appreciating frilly or colorful things. If he likes to paint, he better not like nail polish. Girls are emphatically schooled to share, care, nurture their dollies, dress like princesses (learn to be beautiful), etc.

Literature, including children's verse, begins by upholding that tradition of socializing gender. Where the Wild Things Are emphasizes the "boy code" which is one that encourages boys to be adventurous, disobedient (to a limit - they eventually do come home to eat), independent, and above all, powerful. You need only Google "the boy code" to learn all that this term entails. When the boy in the book finally dominates the monsters, he learns that he has this potential to overcome other forms of power through his own strength, and should, and he will be able to continue to do so throughout his life. On the flip side, girls are taught in their books to be social via tea parties, to help each other learn how to ice skate and other non-competitive activities, and to just generally be cooperative and interdependent. I'm not saying grown-up women don't get bitter that these are the roles we've been instructed in anymore than men don't feel confined by their roles to always exhibit strength.

Additionally, both models have much to offer. We develop skills in competition; we complement each other as a species and help others to grow through cooperation. Of course, all of this is a quick, very generalized overview. Moreover, once we've learned these gendered behaviors, it's very difficult to take a step back and ask, "What isn't natural about the way I interact with others? What behaviors and ways of seeing have I learned? How do I communicate and what presumptions do I make based on how I learned to be a male or female?" There is immediate, massive resistance to such examining because to do so A) acknowledges that some of what we think of ourselves as being "naturally" we were in fact conditioned to and, gulp, such learning was beyond our control (does that inherently imply that we were duped?) and B) it's easy not to consider such gendering because it is so very base and instinctive for adults. Childhood conditioning becomes "second nature." "It's just the way I am." Studying any ideology, particularly one's own that is referred to as "reality" is simply upsetting. Especially when the very question implies the possibility of change.

And so we get to the original question -- what can a feminist poetics offer? Feminism, more specifically, a feminist poetics is the school of language work that strives to lay bare just how language is gendered and seeks to confound/upset/dismantle the expectations and mechanisms of those uses. It works away at the very ways we communicate. And yes, as noted, anyone can adopt those masculine and feminine models. It's why a select few women can behave as aggressively on another list (turf) as the select few men on this list can: because we are socialized to believe these behaviors are natural, but they are in fact learned and can be adopted at will. We fall back into our effortless roles of communicating as we were taught growing up -- it's why Reb, in the material I posted, was excited to raise a boy; she wants to break that tradition and raise a man who does not learn the "boy code" and all that it offers (and restricts). A feminist poetics also strives to confound the segregation of those models and see what happens when we mix up "feminine" and "masculine" ways of using language. I posted a few snippets indicating as much too. Perhaps they were lost in proving that the lull in list discussion was all my fault...

No matter. The former listserv model only worked for a select few and silenced many. As noted, these were men and women who were silenced. If current moderation simply means those select few don't get to name call and ad hom everyone into spent exhaustion and silence in the days of yore, then this will remain a list of announcements. But if some are interested in figuring out how we can communicate without resorting to such tactics, then the list just might resuscitate a bit. A list is only as good as its discussions and participants. I do think, as earlier noted, the lull goes beyond examining the gendered nature of those former discussions; there are other factors, as others have now noted, that detract from list discussion such as blogs. How many have left this forum to retreat to their own sites and others' comments streams? Do the smaller number of participants create a sense of community that nearly 2000 cannot? And perhaps people appreciate having a low volume listserv that solely provides announcements? Perhaps I am nostalgic for a period of discussion on this list from so very long ago, one that didn't resort to bashing other moderators and the creator of the list for discussion fodder.

Yikes -- more to say on mixing up the feminine and masculine modes / models but I'm late for an appointment!

Be well,

Amy

_____

Amy's Alias
http://amyking.org/

--- On Sun, 5/24/09, you wrote:

Amy:

One might suggest that in this otherwise quiet
time on the list your post could be the tinder that starts a flame war.

The worst I've ever been treated on line has been
by some of the women on WOMPO, who seem to think that the rules of civilized behavior don't apply
in relation to men. The vast majority of the members are a lot more hospitable, but the verbal violence of the few appears to drive them into silence. So much for gender. Human unpleasantness is equal-opportunity.

I'll be away from my computer til Sunday very late.

Mark

↑ Index

255. Will Larsen
TODAY: Erasure Poetry Reading
Tue 26 May 2009

---

*Today:

Erasure Poetry Reading
Featuring Chicu Reddy
With Eric Elshtain, Stephanie Dering, and Will Larsen

*Tuesday, May 26
5:30pm, Rosenwald 405
On the University of Chicago Campus

Reception to follow.

Please join us for this exciting opportunity to hear innovative work by three students and acclaimed poet/UC faculty member Chicu Reddy. Event sponsored by the Renaissance Society, the Committee on Creative Writing, and the Wrens.

As always, admission is free and open to the public. If you need assistance in order to participate, contact [redacted].

↑ Index

256. amy king
Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
Tue 26 May 2009

Thank you, John. However, I disagree with the notion that a "feminist poetics" implies a divisiveness based on there being one versus the other. That would be a "feminine poetics" versus a "masculine poetics." A feminist poetics is not exclusive to one gender. It's true that feminism, historically, has sought to make practical strides for women such as achieving equal pay and fairness in the law. But men have since become feminists (some call themselves as much too) as they have benefited from the more complex efforts to change gender roles and expand the very notion of gender, behaviors, etc. There are now many men who embrace feminism for what that school of thought has opened up for everyone, because of and despite gender divisions. And beyond them. For those reasons, again, practically speaking, there are men today who are living very different lives than their fathers and grandfathers. Riskily generalizing again, men are nurturing more now than ever (& not just in the home but in relation to others at work, with friends, etc), view relationships with their wives / parnters in much more egalitarian ways than even as recently as the feminine mystique (despite its remaining vestiges - http://www.nysun.com/arts/reconsiderations-betty-friedans-the-feminine/86003/), stand up to bullying even when its the popular thing to join in on, and a lot more changes than I can note here. Overall, both genders are engaging in ways of communicating previously unimagined and are appreciating and respecting more than ever before.

I don't think a feminist poetics is exclusive to women -- at all -- which is why we are now seeing more men and women (and those beyond the strict labels of "men" and "women") inquiring into and exploring what a feminist poetics is attempting and might offer. Of course, my rudimentary explanation was meant only to illustrate the foundations from which a feminist poetics was born; it is not -- by a long or short shot -- an explanation of what a feminist poetics is. I think there is a "fourth wave" (or whatever period we're entering) that will surprisingly include more men than ever. I earlier posted excerpts from just a few of the male poets who are inquiring to illustrate that a feminist poetics is open to all and is a much more complex field than even I am aware. Some of those notes I posted reveal that many are just now beginning to ask, "Who is practicing a feminist poetics and what are they doing?" -- in that line of inquiry is the idea that there are surely a variety of foci, aims, and achievements to date. By starting with how have we worked through inequities and how are we addressing them, as well as conceptual ones, we can trace some practices as well as note new innovations as they come to light.

All in all, a feminist poetics queries just what a "masculine poetics" does as well as a "feminine poetics" because both sides of the (false but still taught) dualism have their positives and negatives that we are trying to sort through -- as you are well aware, I'm sure, the very fact that the two are separated and then conditioned as behaviors based on biological gender is a sad condition that need not be. Who gets told to be aggressive? Who gets applauded for speaking with intimidation? Who is encouraged to avoid disagreement in favor of affirming others? Who sacrifices expressing what one knows because modesty is preferred over "vanity"? What is expected of me on those bases? etc. A feminist poetics wants to confound those binaries, from what I've seen, and blur the lines of who gets to practice a masculine poetics vs. a feminine one. A feminist poetics, in part, wants to conflate the very notions, reduce some aspects, emphasize others, etc. And of course, all of this remains much more complex than my explanation, which is why I posed the question to the list, "What can a feminist poetics offer in relation to the way we communicate, operate within a listserv community, and beyond?" Personhood, yes! Perhaps we could create a personhood poetics, but until then, its foundation is in a feminist poetics from what I can tell ...

Best,

Amy

_____

Amy's Alias
http://amyking.org/

--- On Tue, 5/26/09, John Herbert Cunningham <[redacted]> wrote:

From: John Herbert Cunningham <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
To: [redacted]
Date: Tuesday, May 26, 2009, 9:41 AM
An interesting perspective, Amy, and one well stated. And you've made an attempt in your discussion to be inclusive and not point fingers when you refer to "bullying, aggression, and intimidation" saying that this is a learned response. There is one problem created by your prose, however, and that is labelling it a 'feminist poetics'. This label, in and of itself,
refutes your inclusivity. And please, don't take this as if I'mÂ faulting
yourÂ analysis. It's just that, when you state
"Feminism, more specifically,
a feminist poetics is the school of language work that strives to lay bare
*just how language is gendered and seeks to* confound/upset/dismantle the expectations and mechanisms of those uses.Â It works away at the very ways
we communicate.", you have neglected to examine and analyze
this most basic of terms. Calling something a 'feminist poetics' is almost guaranteed to raise the hairs on the backs of nearly half your audience
as a 'feminist poetics' must be in opposition to a 'masculine poetics', whatever the hell
that is. Applying a binary Saussurean analysis to this,
'feminist poetics'
is being privileged to the denigration of anything the male might contribute. Which is unfortunate as it is not what you intended. And I'm not saying that at one time (hopefully, no longer today) this rallying cry was required and necessary in order to get beyond the benign neglect occasioned
by the at one time dominant male population. Somehow, we have to get beyond
these gendered terms to a position of personhood.
John Herbert Cunningham

-----Original Message-----

From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]]
On Behalf Of amy king
Sent: May-26-09 7:40 AM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics
Contributors

Mark,

Exactly.Â Which is why I brought the larger question back to "What can a feminist poetics offer?"Â

Going back, I do think the immediate reaction to my Briton post was gendered.Â I doubt very much if James, who originally posted the note with no other miscellany on another list received queries
presuming he was
"shocked" and "surprised."Â There was no indication in my note that I was either, and yet.Â Does David Chirot, who often posts studies here from the NYT, receive such backchannel queries?Â But that was just one event on this list that represents a model that is often gendered.Â
There have been many other examples here that have devolved into bullying, aggression, and intimidation.Â And this model, like it or not, is classically dubbed a masculine one, no matter who executes it.Â BUT.Â
That is not to say, and I think we all know this, that women cannot adopt that model.Â

From childhood, we are each gendered and taught to behave accordingly.Â It's why gender ambiguity is so frowned upon from the start.Â We want things to be clear so that we can fit the packaged expectations.Â It's very important to parents that they know "what they are having" beyond
just a healthy baby.
Clear gender is vital.Â Many more intersex children are born than we realize (or care to admit - http://www.isna.org/faq/frequency), but parents are urged to "correct" their childrent at birth.Â Then we've got studies that illustrate how people, once they know the gender of a baby, handle boys more roughly than girls.Â Next, everyone is telling boys not to cry and to be a

"big boy" when they exhibit "feminine" expressions like crying or dancing or appreciating frilly or colorful things.Â If he likes to paint, he better not like nail polish.Â Girls are emphatically schooled to share, care, nurture their dollies, dress like princesses (learn to be beautiful), etc.Â

Literature, including children's verse, begins by upholding that tradition
of socializing gender.Â Where the Wild Things Are emphasizes the "boy code"
which is one that encourages boys to be adventurous,
disobedient (to a limit
- they eventually do come home to eat), independent, and above all,
powerful.Â You need only Google "the boy code" to learn all that this term entails.Â When the boy in the book finally dominates
the monsters, he learns that he has this potential to overcome other forms of power through his own strength, and should, and he will be able to continue to do so throughout his life.Â On the flip side, girls are taught in their books to be social via tea parties, to help each other learn how to ice skate
and other non-competitive activities, and to just generally be cooperative and interdependent.Â I'm not saying grown-up women don't get bitter that these are the roles we've been instructed in anymore than men don't feel confined
by their roles to always exhibit strength.Â

Additionally, both models have much to offer.Â We develop skills in competition; we complement each other as a species and help others to grow

*through cooperation.Â Of course, all of this is a quick, very generalized
overview. Moreover, once we've learned these gendered behaviors, it's very difficult to take a step back and ask, "What isn't natural about the way I interact with others?Â What behaviors and ways of seeing have I learned?
How do I communicate and what presumptions do I make based on how I learned to be a male or female?"Â There is immediate, massive resistance to such examining because to do so A) acknowledges that some of what we think of ourselves as being "naturally" we were in fact conditioned to and, gulp,
such learning was beyond our control (does that inherently imply that we were duped?)Â and B) it's easy not to consider such gendering because it is so very base and instinctive for adults.Â Childhood conditioning becomes
"second nature."Â "It's just the way I am."Â Studying any ideology, particularly one's own that is referred to as "reality" is simply upsetting.Â Especially when the very question implies the possibility of change.*

*And so we get to the original question -- what can a feminist poetics offer?
And yes, as noted, anyone can adopt those masculine and feminine models.
It's why a select few women can behave as aggressively on another list
(turf) as the select few men on this list can:Â
because we are socialized to believe these behaviors are natural, but they are in fact learned and can be adopted at will.Â We fall back into our effortless roles of communicating as we were taught growing up -- it's why Reb, in the material
I posted, was excited to raise a boy; she wants to break that tradition
and raise a man
who does not learn the "boy code" and all that it offers (and restricts). A feminist poetics also* > strives to confound the segregation of those models and see what happens when we mix up "feminine" and "masculine" ways of using language.Â I posted a few snippets indicating as much too.Â Perhaps they were lost in proving that the lull in list discussion was all my fault...

>
> No matter.Â The former listserv model only worked for a select few and silenced many.Â As noted, these were men and women who were silenced.Â If current moderation simply means those select few don't get to name call and ad hom everyone into spent exhaustion and silence in the days of yore, then this will remain a list of announcements.Â But if some are interested in figuring out how we can communicate without resorting to such tactics, then the list just might resuscitate a bit.Â A list is only as good as its discussions and participants.Â I do think, as earlier noted, the lull goes beyond examining the gendered nature of those former discussions; there are other factors, as others have now noted, that detract from list discussion such as blogs.Â How many have left this forum to retreat to their own sites and others' comments streams?Â Do the smaller number of participants create a sense of community that nearly 2000 cannot?Â And perhaps people appreciate having a low volume listserv that solely provides announcements? Perhaps I am nostalgic for a period of discussion on this list from so very long ago, one that didn't resort to bashing other moderators and the creator of the list for discussion fodder.Â
>
> Yikes -- more to say on mixing up the feminine and masculine modes / models but I'm late for an appointment!
>
> Be well,

> Amy
>
> _____
>
> Amy's Alias
> http://amyking.org/
>
> --- On Sun, 5/24/09, you wrote:
>
> Amy:
>
> One might suggest that in this otherwise quiet
> time on the list your post could be the tinder that starts > a flame war.
>
> The worst I've ever been treated on line has been
> by some of the women on WOMPO, who seem to think > that the rules of civilized behavior don't apply
> in relation to men. The vast majority of the > members are a lot more hospitable, but the verbal
> violence of the few appears to drive them into > silence. So much for gender. Human unpleasantness is > equal-opportunity.
>
> I'll be away from my computer til Sunday very late.
>
> Mark
>
> Â Â Â
>
> posts. Check guidelines

↑ Index

257. amy king
Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
Tue 26 May 2009

That sounds defeatist but fair, Mark. All in all, it seems the very notion that this list is moderated against flaming and name calling was enough to quell the few. Honestly, I've omitted very few posts during my tenure here and only those that truly were flames/name calling. Even posts that don't seem to contribute to discussion are released. I'm all for passionate arguing, but based how few offer up debate anymore, I'm inclined to think that some versions of "passionate argument" necessitate name calling "warfare", and those few posters ("combatants"?) devoted to the practice gave up. Kind of like Rambo when he came home -- he had no purpose except the one he was rigorously trained for, to fight, so he made war in a small quiet town with the cops to give himself something to do. I guess once they realized such message bombs weren't going to get through, those few figured if they can't include such base tactics, why bother trying anything else.

Amy

_____

Amy's Alias
http://amyking.org/

--- On Tue, 5/26/09, you wrote:

Back to list behavior. I don't see any solution. I've been on this and other lists for a long time, and I don't remember "a period of discussion on this list from so very long ago, one that didn't resort to bashing other moderators and the creator of the list for discussion fodder." All lists seem to go through periods of warfare, though this more than most. I suspect that it's the demographics--a lot of academics, and a lot of the young. In any event, we're talking about the behavior of very few--active participation on any list I know of seems to be restricted to a very few members, you and I among them.

Best,

Mark

↑ Index

258. John Herbert Cunningham
Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
Tue 26 May 2009

Again, Amy, an excellent and well-thought out response. Thank you. John Herbert Cunningham

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of amy king Sent: May-26-09 10:45 AM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

Thank you, John. However, I disagree with the notion that a "feminist poetics" implies a divisiveness based on there being one versus the other. That would be a "feminine poetics" versus a "masculine poetics." A feminist poetics is not exclusive to one gender. It's true that feminism, historically, has sought to make practical strides for women such as achieving equal pay and fairness in the law. But men have since become feminists (some call themselves as much too) as they have benefited from the more complex efforts to change gender roles and expand the very notion of gender, behaviors, etc. There are now many men who embrace feminism for what that school of thought has opened up for everyone, because of and despite gender divisions. And beyond them. For those reasons, again, practically speaking, there are men today who are living very different lives than their fathers and grandfathers. Riskily generalizing again, men are nurturing more now than ever (& not just in the home but in relation to others at work, with friends, etc), view relationships with their wives / parnters in much more egalitarian ways than even as recently as the feminine mystique (despite its remaining vestiges - http://www.nysun.com/arts/reconsiderations-betty-friedans-the-feminine/86003/), stand up to bullying even when its the popular thing to join in on, and a lot more changes than I can note here. Overall, both genders are engaging in ways of communicating previously unimagined and are appreciating and respecting more than ever before.

I don't think a feminist poetics is exclusive to women -- at all -- which is why we are now seeing more men and women (and those beyond the strict labels of "men" and "women") inquiring into and exploring what a feminist poetics is attempting and might offer. Of course, my rudimentary explanation was meant only to illustrate the foundations from which a feminist poetics was born; it is not -- by a long or short shot -- an explanation of what a feminist poetics is. I think there is a "fourth wave" (or whatever period we're entering) that will surprisingly include more men than ever. I earlier posted excerpts from just a few of the male poets who are inquiring to illustrate that a feminist poetics is open to all and is a much more complex field than even I am aware. Some of those notes I posted reveal that many are just now beginning to ask, "Who is practicing a feminist poetics and what are they doing?" -- in that line of inquiry is the idea that there are surely a variety of foci, aims, and achievements to date. By starting with how have we worked through inequities and how are we addressing them, as well as conceptual ones, we can trace some practices as well as note new innovations as they come to light.

All in all, a feminist poetics queries just what a "masculine poetics" does as well as a "feminine poetics" because both sides of the (false but still taught) dualism have their positives and negatives that we are trying to sort through -- as you are well aware, I'm sure, the very fact that the two are separated and then conditioned as behaviors based on biological gender is a sad condition that need not be. Who gets told to be aggressive? Who gets applauded for speaking with intimidation? Who is encouraged to avoid disagreement in favor of affirming others? Who sacrifices expressing what one knows because modesty is preferred over "vanity"? What is expected of me on those bases? etc. A feminist poetics wants to confound those binaries, from what I've seen, and blur the lines of who gets to practice a masculine poetics vs. a feminine one. A feminist poetics, in part, wants to conflate the very notions, reduce some aspects, emphasize others, etc. And of course, all of this remains much more complex than my explanation, which is why I posed the question to the list, "What can a feminist poetics offer in relation to the way we communicate, operate within a listserv community, and beyond?" Personhood, yes! Perhaps we could create a personhood poetics, but until then, its foundation is in a feminist poetics from what I can tell ...

Best,

Amy

_____

Amy's Alias
http://amyking.org/

--- On Tue, 5/26/09, John Herbert Cunningham <[redacted]> wrote:

> From: John Herbert Cunningham <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Tuesday, May 26, 2009, 9:41 AM
> An interesting perspective, Amy, and
> one well stated. And you've made an > attempt in your discussion to be inclusive and not point
> fingers when you
> refer to "bullying, aggression, and intimidation" saying
> that this is a > learned response. There is one problem created by your > prose, however, and > that is labelling it a 'feminist poetics'. This label, in
> and of itself,
> refutes your inclusivity. And please, don't take this as if > I'm faulting
> your analysis. It's just that, when you state
> "Feminism, more specifically,
> a feminist poetics is the school of language work that > strives to lay bare
> *just how language is gendered and seeks to* > confound/upset/dismantle the expectations and mechanisms of those uses. It works away at the very ways

we communicate.", you have neglected to examine and analyze
this most basic
of terms. Calling something a 'feminist poetics' is almost guaranteed to raise the hairs on the backs of nearly half your audience
as a 'feminist
poetics' must be in opposition to a 'masculine poetics',
whatever the hell
that is. Applying a binary Saussurean analysis to this,
'feminist poetics'
is being privileged to the denigration of anything the male might contribute. Which is unfortunate as it is not what you intended. And I'm not saying that at one time (hopefully, no longer today) this rallying cry was required and necessary in order to get beyond the benign neglect occasioned
by the at one time dominant male population. Somehow, we have to get beyond
these gendered terms to a position of personhood.
John Herbert Cunningham

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]]
On Behalf Of amy king
Sent: May-26-09 7:40 AM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics
Contributors

Mark,

Exactly. Which is why I brought the larger question back to "What can a feminist poetics offer?"

Going back, I do think the immediate reaction to my Briton
post was gendered. I doubt very much if James, who originally posted the note with no other miscellany on another list received queries
presuming he was "shocked" and "surprised." There was no indication in my note that I was either, and yet. Does David Chirot, who often posts studies here from the NYT, receive such backchannel queries? But that was just one event on this list that represents a model that is often gendered.

There have been many
other examples here that have devolved into bullying,
aggression, and intimidation. And this model, like it or not, is classically dubbed a masculine one, no matter who executes it. BUT.
That is not to say, and I think we all know this, that women cannot adopt that model.

From childhood, we are each gendered and taught to behave accordingly. It's why gender ambiguity is so frowned upon from the start. We want things to be clear so that we can fit the packaged expectations. It's very important to parents that they know "what they are having" beyond
just a healthy baby.
Clear gender is vital. Many more intersex children are born than we realize (or care to admit - http://www.isna.org/faq/frequency), but parents are urged to "correct" their childrent at birth. Then we've got studies that illustrate how people, once they know the gender of a baby, handle boys more roughly than girls. Next, everyone is telling boys
not to cry and to be a
"big boy" when they exhibit "feminine" expressions like crying or dancing or appreciating frilly or colorful things. If he likes to paint, he better not like nail polish. Girls are emphatically schooled to share, care, nurture their dollies, dress like princesses (learn to be beautiful), etc.

Literature, including children's verse, begins by upholding
that tradition of socializing gender. Where the Wild Things Are emphasizes the "boy code"
which is one that encourages boys to be adventurous,
disobedient (to a limit
- they eventually do come home to eat), independent, and

above all, powerful. You need only Google "the boy code" to learn all that this term entails. When the boy in the book finally dominates
the monsters, he learns
that he has this potential to overcome other forms of power
through his own strength, and should, and he will be able to continue to do
so throughout his life. On the flip side, girls are taught in their books to be social via tea parties, to help each other learn how to ice skate
and other non-competitive activities, and to just generally be cooperative and interdependent. I'm not saying grown-up women don't get bitter that these are the roles we've been instructed in anymore than men don't feel confined
by their roles to always exhibit strength.

Additionally, both models have much to offer. We develop skills in competition; we complement each other as a species and help others to grow through cooperation. Of course, all of this is a quick, very generalized
*overview. Moreover, once we've learned these gendered*
behaviors, it's very difficult to take a step back and ask, "What isn't natural about the way I interact with others? What behaviors and ways of seeing have I learned?
How do I communicate and what presumptions do I make based on how I learned to be a male or female?" There is immediate, massive resistance to such examining because to do so A) acknowledges that some of what we think of ourselves as being "naturally" we were in fact conditioned
to and, gulp,
such learning was beyond our control (does that inherently
imply that we were duped?) and B) it's easy not to consider such gendering because it is so very base and instinctive for adults. Childhood conditioning becomes

"second nature." "It's just the way I am." Studying any ideology, particularly one's own that is referred to as "reality" is simply upsetting. Especially when the very question implies the possibility of change.

*And so we get to the original question -- what can a feminist poetics offer?
And yes, as noted, anyone can adopt those masculine and feminine models.
It's why a select few women can behave as aggressively on another list
(turf) as the select few men on this list can:
because we are socialized to
believe these behaviors are natural, but they are in fact learned and can be adopted at will. We fall back into our effortless roles of communicating as we were taught growing up -- it's why Reb, in the material
I posted, was excited to raise a boy; she wants to break that tradition
and raise a man
who does not learn the "boy code" and all that it offers (and restricts). A feminist poetics also strives to confound the segregation of those models and see what happens when we mix up "feminine" and "masculine" ways of using language. I posted a few snippets indicating as much too. Perhaps they were lost in proving that the lull in list discussion was all my fault...*

No matter. The former listserv model only worked for a select few and silenced many. As noted, these were men and women who were silenced. If current moderation simply means those select few don't get to name call and ad hom everyone into spent exhaustion and silence in the days of yore, then this will remain a list of announcements. But if some are interested in figuring out how we can communicate without resorting to such tactics, then the list just might resuscitate a bit. A list is only as good as its discussions and participants. I do think, as earlier noted, the lull goes beyond examining the gendered nature of those former discussions; there are other factors, as others have now noted, that detract from list discussion such as blogs. How many have left this forum to retreat to their own sites and others' comments streams? Do the smaller number of participants create a sense of community that nearly 2000 cannot? And perhaps people appreciate having a low volume listserv that solely provides announcements?

Perhaps I am nostalgic for a period of discussion on this list from so very long ago, one that didn't resort to bashing other moderators and the creator of the list for discussion fodder.

Yikes -- more to say on mixing up the feminine and masculine modes / models but I'm late for an appointment!

Be well,

Amy

Amy's Alias
http://amyking.org/

--- On Sun, 5/24/09, you wrote:

Amy:

One might suggest that in this otherwise quiet time on the list your post could be the tinder that starts
a flame war.

The worst I've ever been treated on line has been
by some of the women on WOMPO, who seem to think that the rules of civilized behavior don't apply
in relation to men. The vast majority of the > members are a lot more hospitable, but the verbal violence of the few appears to drive them into silence. So much for gender. Human unpleasantness is equal-opportunity.

>
> I'll be away from my computer til Sunday very late.
>
> Mark
>
> posts. Check guidelines

↑ Index

259. Mark Weiss

Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

Tue 26 May 2009

You may be right. Although I haven't seen these folks on the barely- or un-moderated poetry listserves that I belong to.

I've always been more concerned that so few contribute to the discussions on any list I know of. I kinow a fair number of those on the lists from other contexts, and I know how interesting they are. But this seems to have always been the case, even before blogs etc siphoned some of the discussion away.

It never occurred to me, by the way, that you were overcontrolling messages.

Best,

Mark

-----Original Message-----
>From: amy king <[redacted]>
>Sent: May 26, 2009 11:04 AM
>To: [redacted]
>Subject: Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
>
>That sounds defeatist but fair, Mark. All in all, it seems the very notion that this list is moderated against flaming and name calling was enough to quell the few. Honestly, I've omitted very few posts during my tenure here and only those that truly were flames/name calling. Even posts that don't seem to contribute to discussion are released. I'm all for passionate arguing, but based how few offer up debate anymore, I'm inclined to think that some versions of "passionate argument" necessitate name calling "warfare", and those few posters ("combatants"?) devoted to the practice gave up. Kind of like Rambo when he came home -- he had no purpose except the one he was rigorously trained for, to fight, so he made war in a small quiet town with the cops to give himself something to do. I guess once they realized such message bombs weren't going to get through, those few figured if they can't include such base tactics, why bother trying anything else.

>
>Amy
>
>_____
>
>
>Amy's Alias
>http://amyking.org/
>
>
>--- On Tue, 5/26/09, you wrote:
>
>Back to list behavior. I don't see any solution. I've been on this and other lists for a long time, and I don't remember "a period of discussion on this list from so very long ago, one that didn't resort to bashing other moderators and the creator of the list for discussion fodder." All lists seem to go through periods of warfare, though this more than most. I suspect that it's the demographics--a lot of academics, and a lot of the young. In any event, we're talking about the behavior of very few--active participation on any list I know of seems to be restricted to a very few members, you and I among them.
>
>Best,
>
>Mark
>
>
>
>
>

↑ Index

260. William Guzzardi
Wag's Revue Contest--5 Days
Tue 26 May 2009

Dearest poets,

Wag's Revue, a new online-only literary quarterly, is concluding its inaugural poetry contest this week. The winning poet will receive a $500 prize, as well as publication in Issue 2 (June 21) alongside such poets as K. Silem Mohammad, Kenneth Goldsmith, and others.

The submission deadline is May 31. For more information about what and how to submit, please see our contest page<http://www.wagsrevue.com/submit.html>.
And to read more of the magazine, visit our home page<http://www.wagsrevue.com/index.html>
.

Thanks very much,

Will Guzzardi
Poetry Editor, Wag's Revue

↑ Index

261. mIEKAL aND
Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
Tue 26 May 2009

I have no interest in wading into this thread, but my feeling is that the 2 post rule did much more to quell interesting, active & spontaneous discussion, than any form of moderation.

~mIEKAL

back to lurkhood

On Tue, May 26, 2009 at 11:04 AM, amy king <[redacted]> wrote:
> That sounds defeatist but fair, Mark. All in all, it seems the very notion that this list is moderated against flaming and name calling was enough to quell the few. Honestly, I've omitted very few posts during my tenure here and only those that truly were flames/name calling. Even posts that don't seem to contribute to discussion are released. I'm all for passionate arguing, but based how few offer up debate anymore, I'm inclined to think that some versions of "passionate argument" necessitate name calling "warfare", and those few posters ("combatants"?) devoted to the practice gave up. Kind of like Rambo when he came home -- he had no purpose except the one he was rigorously trained for, to fight, so he made war in a small quiet town with the cops to give himself something to do. I guess once they realized such message bombs weren't going to get through, those few figured if they can't include such base tactics, why bother trying anything else.

>
> Amy

↑ Index

262. Mark Weiss
Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
Tue 26 May 2009

I'm with you. Also the long delay between sending and posting. Both created a feeli9ng like running in molasses.

Mark

-----Original Message-----
>From: mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
>Sent: May 26, 2009 1:13 PM
>To: [redacted]
>Subject: Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
>
>I have no interest in wading into this thread, but my feeling is that >the 2 post rule did much more to quell interesting, active & >spontaneous discussion, than any form of moderation.
>
>~mIEKAL
>
>back to lurkhood
>
>On Tue, May 26, 2009 at 11:04 AM, amy king <[redacted]> wrote:
>> That sounds defeatist but fair, Mark. All in all, it seems the very notion that this list is moderated against flaming and name calling was enough to quell the few. Honestly, I've omitted very few posts during my tenure here and only those that truly were flames/name calling. Even posts that don't seem to contribute to discussion are released. I'm all for passionate arguing, but based how few offer up debate anymore, I'm inclined to think that some versions of "passionate argument" necessitate name calling "warfare", and those few posters ("combatants"?) devoted to the practice gave up. Kind of like Rambo when he came home -- he had no purpose except the one he was rigorously trained for, to fight, so he made war in a small quiet town with the cops to give himself something to do. I guess once they realized such message bombs weren't going to get through, those few figured if they can't include such base tactics, why bother trying anything else.

>>
>> Amy
>

↑ Index

263. Adam Tobin
Re: Urgent Poetics Query
Tue 26 May 2009

The poetic on this list that I find the most troubling is that every time an energetic discussion gets started, it quickly devolves into a binary argument -- because one person (often the person who started the discussion in the first place) hits REPLY to EVERY SINGLE MESSAGE that appears in the thread. This creates, at its very best, a two-way argument: PRO- vs. ANTI-, or the polemicist against the world, or the center against the margins, or the one against the many, or etc., and turns the remainder of the 2000 people on the list into mere cheerleaders who can only pick sides in the argument and not contribute any of their own thinking to the discussion.

I imagine that most of the thousands here are casual users like myself, who don't care very much about the brand name of The List, and are here because they like to think about poetics ("I don't 'like' the poetics list, but I read it anyway," is a sentiment I've often heard). We don't read it every day, and certainly not the several times per hour that would allow us to argue here with anyone intent on shouting us down. If you few frequent posters really want us many to contribute, I'd recommend you restrain yourselves from posting overmuch in the same thread, and post your posts in a more open form which invites participation and discussion rather than argument. I think Amy is right to call such a form "feminist", but I wonder whether quasi-academic expository-prose essays are ever a vital embodiment of a feminist poetics.

I, for one, would love to see more posts like Alan's more "poetic" essays, preferably a constellation of such posts and posters that they actually respond to and discuss with one another, however obliquely. I understand that you may not want to open the floodgates to a zillion nostalgic-for-profession amateurs, posting our doggerel and asking "SO WHADDYA GUYS THINK OF MY POOEMS?", but I think that framing a discussion of poetics with the rules of something like "literary influence" rather than those of "undergraduate seminar" or "presidential debate" would be very helpful.

↑ Index

264. CE Putnam

Crawlspace Event: Daniel Comiskey & C.E. Putnam read at Seattle Public Library Central Branch May 28 7pm

Tue 26 May 2009

You've probably already heard via o
Greetings
friends of Crawlspace!

You've probably already heard via our extensive blimp advertising campaign that:

Seattlepoets Daniel Comiskey and C.E. Putnam will read their book "Crawlspace."

Thursday, May 28, 2009, 7:00 PM â€“ 8:30 PM.
*Central Library. Level, Room: Level 1, Microsoft Auditorium.
Totally FREE.
Special SPL $5 event parking rate.

Seen Crawlspace before? Well not like this!
BONUS: See Crawlspace inside the Rem Koolhaasâ€™ Designed Seattle Public Library. Come early to get the best seats. Seating limited to 200.

BONUS: Listen to Guest Star Peter Cully (from Canada!) perform the voice of the Yak.

BONUS: Be amazed by introductory remarks delivered by Jen Coleman (Portland, OR).

BONUS: Audience members who already have their very own â€œCrawlspaceâ€ are encouraged to bring along their 3-D glasses in order to FULLY enjoy a pre/post reading audio-visual experience. (Books will be available for purchase on the night).

More here: http://www.spl.org/default.asp?pageID=audience_current_calendar&trumbaEmbed=view%3Devent%26eventid%3D83571657

and here: http://www.pisor-industries.org/crawlspace

Most Hoogily,

CE

P.I.S.O.R
(Putnam Institute for Space Opera Research)

http://www.pisor-industries.org http://www.myspace.com/pisorsounds

↑ Index

265. Nicholas Karavatos

mp3 [RE: Poet/Musician Collaboration Webcast Sunday Night]

Tue 26 May 2009

The show is archived at http://mra.yoursavinggrace.net/MRA090510.mp3

Nicholas Karavatos
Dept of English
American University of Sharjah
PO Box 26666
Sharjah
United Arab Emirates
http://nicholaskaravatos.blogspot.com/

> Date: Fri, 8 May 2009 19:08:55 +0000
> From: [redacted]
> Subject: Poet/Musican Collaboration Webcast Sunday Night
> To: [redacted]
>
> Poet Nicholas Karavatos with guitarist Jeff Kelley - Webcast on KHSU-FM on Sunday Night
>
> LISTEN LIVE in CALIFORNIA on Sunday, May 10 at 10:05 PM
> KHSU 90.5 FM Arcata, 91.9 FM Crescent City-Brookings, 89.1 Ferndale-Fortuna, 89.7 Garberville, and 99.7 Willow Creek.
> Live Streaming at http://www.khsu.org/
>
> LISTEN LIVE in DUBAI on Monday, May 11 at 9:05 AM - Live Streaming at http://www.khsu.org/
>
>
> While in California to perform at Accident Gallery in Eureka last January, Nick & Jeff spent an afternoon at KHSU studios at Humboldt State University. The afternoon was recorded by Tim Ayers who has edited down a 25 minute episode of "Mad River Anthology."
>
> These are spontaneous collaborations between a poet and an electric guitarist.

>
>
> Mad River Anthology is available on iTunes.
> http://phobos.apple.com/WebObjects/MZStore.woa/wa/viewPodcast?
id=286474699
>
> Mad River Anthology
> http://madriveranthology.wordpress.com/
> http://www.khsu.org/program_list#TB_inline?
height=300&width=400&inlineId=program_info
>
> Nicholas Karavatos
> http://nicholaskaravatos.blogspot.com/
> Jeff Kelley
> http://humboldtmusic.com/jeffkelley
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
> Nicholas Karavatos, M.F.A.
> Assistant Professor
> Department of English
> American University of Sharjah
> P.O. Box 26666
> Sharjah
> United Arab Emirates
> http://www.aus.edu
> _____
> Hotmail® has a new way to see what's up with your friends.
> http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/WhatsNew?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tutorial_WhatsNew1_052009
_____
Windows Live™: Keep your life in sync.
http://windowslive.com/explore?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_BR_life_in_synch_052009

↑ Index

266. David Chirot

answering question from mark weiss &what i wrote abt the way amy posted the original link and "fear of Poetry" that intersted me

Tue 26 May 2009

---

trying to scan through the one incredibly long post which has been added on to by many persons-- i noticed that mark Weiss had a question or remark wondering what i might hear back channel from posting just an article name here and the link

once in a while i may post a couple comments but on the whole i like it better (as you will see below) when the link is there and one may read it without another's voice thrumping in the head and so be bale to have a conversation rather than a reaction with the persons interested in the link, new story likewise i like it when people do as Amy did--do the same thing and just post the note as you will see below that way without having each other blasting boomboxes in other's the mind, one reads more attentively and is able to have a better conversation-

(a big problem on line is misreading--people read way too fast i think and just leap like panthers onto a few key words like in a speed reading class-and so get the actual letter/post al mixed up and are made as hell and not going to take it anymore about something that is not there in the original, but which has been projected into those empty spaces between the keywords in which one assumes it is saying what one is sure as certain is that THEY KNOW just what so and so will say--what i say included of course-i think often persons project their image or idea of a person on to the persons and so dont pay much attention to what they actually say -)

i can't recall having any negative feedback regarding these from anyone once in while on the list itself someone wil be angry but often it is due to misreading i actually get a very great deal of mailbackchannel from women in a wide variety of countries and societies, cultures-- actually when think of it i get quite abit more mail from women than men--and often it is about al ink without the message--so one can think for oneself-or artworks seen and so forth-and write lot back and forth-even though sometimes neither one of us may know the other's language al that well-sometimes just use a third language we both do know or--if you want to converse you will for sure

since a child i haven't been intersted in arguments but very much ore in conversations--usually arguing is done to show off smart one is and flex the mind-muscles and show off and try to beat the other person down into the ditches of humiliation often if you listen to an argument it is not based on anything more than oft times mutual dislike and not a real argumentative point-and also al otof the time neither one listens to the others and on top of it very often it is absurd as al too often neither one knows as much about the subject as each one thinks they do so that's why i don't put things out there with any of my nonsense attached or as litle as possible stiiaight?

straight up!

below you can see whati wrote re the events here --and links etc--

http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/05/fear-of-poetrypoetry-of-fear.html

below some opening images, this is exactly how my post appears re Fear of Poetry/Poetry of Fear and Poetry for Fear the piece there is slightly revised and typo corrected from what appeared on this list and is accompanied by a great many illustrations from a wide variety of sources inc some of my Visual Poetry --

there wil be Part Two re reviewing of poetry (and why al the reviews seem to be puff pieces)-- as the issue was raised and discussed by Kent Johnson and a distinguished gathering of poets-in mAYDAY. http://maydaymagazine.com/

(note: this is a response to a message on the buffalo poetics list from Amy King re a poll taken in the UK I thank Amy for sending this as i found it thought provoking in many ways. The original message is as here--

Britons are baffled by poetry, with many saying they live in fear of being asked to recite a poem in public, research has found.

Seven in 10 (73%) are "scared" by the genre, according to a poll of 1,500 adults, while two thirds (67%) admit reading and reciting poetry leave them tongue-tied.
more...
http://www.google.com/hostednews/ukpress/article/ALeqM5inb086GokHGwHM5CYXZ0-XLJpYxw

there were no comments, simply this note. Personally I like finding such things as some provocative facts placed out their in the winds to see what may be some responses re what I took to be the issue of "fear of poetry/poetry of fear."

For reasons beyond me the note apparently provoked many attacks, from what i can glean of the matter, y it's being sent by a woman. Fortunately the attacks led to a very good discussion of Feminism, Feminist Writing, and Feminist Writing blogs. Here is a link to an excellent blog and its description and address as posted by Amy King where many of the responses re the Feminist and Feminist writing issues appeared he women of Delirous Hem [http://www.delirioushem.blogspot.com/] have recently been discussing the dynamics of such exchange as well as how men and women are actually advancing a feminist poetics. This line of inquiry has even led a few to wonder aloud (via their blogs) just what a feminist poetics is and how to promote it. Even a few men aren't afraid of the notion that we need new models of exchange, which is a poetics too. Feminist modes of thinking and operating may not, after all, be for women only. I don't have the answers, but feminist imaginings may actually provide models by which we can jump start a listserv that seems to have grown quiet in exchange, even by initially asking, Just what can feminist thinking make us aware of and what models for discussion might we use? What is a feminist poetics, exactly? What are the aims of feminist-minded poets? ... Some excerpts from the Delirous Hem responses

"FEAR OF POETRY"---POETRY OF FEAR---POETRY FOR FEAR

↑ Index

267. Jim Andrews

Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

Tue 26 May 2009

---

i'm familiar with usenet. it's been around since 1980. some email clients such as outlook express can process usenet.

it's a little off the beaten track, isn't it. and it seems to have a spam problem. i suppose those are the unmoderated lists.

why isn't it more popular for poetics-like types of forums?

probably because it requires a very slightly higher tech level. and usenet is not supported by all email clients.

also, i'm thinking of something that would require almost no moderation.

is there something like a w3c for email clients? so that cross-platform apps for email clients can be developed. why not, if no? email is one of the 'killer apps' yet email clients still aren't all that great.

ja
http://vispo.com

> From: "J. Michael Mollohan
> The alternative which you seek is called usenet. A usenet newsgroup may be moderated or not, preferably moderated, considering the trolls that lurk there. One may then create a killfile for your newsreader in which to dump undesired posters. Usenet is thriving with well over 100,000 groups, some of them quite active. Connected newsgroups could be set up as well, including binary groups where graphics and sound and short videos could be posted. You could have something like alt.poeticslist.discussion.moderated along with alt.poeticslist.poems and alt.poeticslist.binaries and this could possibly lead to a more robust use of the notion.
>
> HTH

↑ Index

268. UbuWeb
Electronic Music and Films from the Middle Eastern Avant-Garde (1959-2001)
Tue 26 May 2009

__ U B U W E B __
http://ubu.com

In collaboration with Bidoun Magazine, UbuWeb is pleased to bring you the first installment of a trove of rarely heard and seen Middle Eastern culture. We begin by featuring six historic electronic musicians and sound poets:

Dariush Dolat-Shahi "Electronic music, Tar and Setar" (1985) and "Otashgah" (1986) http://ubu.com/sound/dolat-shahi.html

Halim El-Dabh "Leiyla Visitations" (1959)
http://ubu.com/sound/dabh.html

Forough Farrokhzad "Radio Tehran Sessions" (1962-1964)
http://ubu.com/sound/farrokhzad.html

Ali Reza Mashayekhi "Electronic Music" (1970-2001)
http://ubu.com/sound/mashayekhi.html

Bijan Mofid "Shahreh Ghesseh" (1967) http://ubu.com/sound/mofid.html

Ilhan Mimaroglu "Electronic Music" (1964-1983)
http://ubu.com/sound/mimaroglu.html

We are also pleased to present three films:

Forough Farrokhzad's "The House is Black / Khaneh Siyah Ast" (1962)
http://ubu.com/film/farrokhzad_house.html

Albert Lamorisse's "Baadeh Sabah / The Lovers' Wind / Vent Des Amoureux" (1970/1978) http://ubu.com/film/lamorisse.html

Ali Akbar Sadeghi's "Malek Khorshid" (1975) http://ubu.com/film/sadeghi_malek.html

Keep checking back for future installments: there's much more to come.

Bidoun Magazine - Art & Culture from the Middle East http://www.bidoun.com/

Bidoun on UbuWEb:
http://ubu.com/sound/bidoun.html

--

UBUWEB IS ENTIRELY FREE

__ U B U W E B __
http://ubu.com

↑ Index

269. David Chirot
Breaking News: Prop 8 decision
Tue 26 May 2009

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Anthony D. Romero, ACLU <[redacted]>
Date: Tue, May 26, 2009 at 11:53 AM
Subject: Breaking News: Prop 8 decision
To: [redacted]

[image: Because Freedom Can't Protect Itself]<http://action.aclu.org/site/R?i=lnB0hSoeNfxobRGbX9MOxw..>
Dear ACLU Supporter,

Today, personal freedom took a big hit in California. In a 6-to-1 decision, the California Supreme Court ruled against us in our case to overturn Proposition 8.

Marriages of same-sex couples will continue to be banned in California.

This is deeply disappointing, especially in light of the recent Iowa Supreme Court ruling saying that it is unconstitutional to keep gay couples from marrying -- and the passage of laws opening marriage to everyone by the Vermont and Maine legislatures. Public support for marriage for same-sex couples is gaining ground, but California is being left behind.

Matt Coles, the director of the ACLU's LGBT project, recorded a personal message about California's decision, what it means for people’s lives and its impact on the freedoms of all Americans.

Please take a minute to watch this video and share it with your friends and family: <http://action.aclu.org/site/R?i=fHykD_oIcQgmx3tphHCMzw..> [image: Watch Now]<http://action.aclu.org/site/R?i=-6oMyjb_CUlo9L7kMWKjpA..>

This decision legitimizes discrimination and allows the government to intrude on our most intimate commitments. You can be sure the ACLU will continue to work for fairness for gay couples and families.

But this case goes beyond the LGBT community. It is also about the government imposing one group’s idea of morality on everyone else. And when that happens, you can be sure the ACLU will be there.

Listen to what Matt has to say about the Prop 8 decision and the important work the ACLU is doing to protect the personal freedoms of all Americans.

Those opposed to same-sex marriage are on the wrong end of history. And, with your help, the ACLU will wage and win this battle for equality no matter how long it takes.

Sincerely,

[image: Anthony D. Romero]
Anthony D. Romero
Executive Director
American Civil Liberties Union

[image: take action]<http://action.aclu.org/site/R?i=Edle_RvNC1Pnj0bb1hNPnA..> [image: take action]<http://action.aclu.org/site/R?i=4YfUT6g2OSwEcqu1ICsZlA..>

© ACLU, 125 Broad Street, 18th Floor, New York, NY 10004

Unsubscribe from receiving email, or change your email preferences.<http://action.aclu.org/site/CO?i=Zqp9sZLzz63y5YulKp6r_xWCqMAm0WFX&cid=0>

↑ Index

270. Séamas Cain
Jeff Harrison reviews two books
Tue 26 May 2009

Jeff Harrison, in the on-line journal

GALATEA RESURRECTS, Issue Number 12, has a review of / interaction with / the book "Incongruities" by Séamas Cain, which, in turn, interconnects with Jeff Harrison's review of / interaction with / the book "Nosering Cellphone" by Lanny Quarles ...

http://galatearesurrection12.blogspot.com/2009/05/incongruities-by-seamas-cain.html

http://galatearesurrection12.blogspot.com/2009/05/nosering-cellphone-by-lanny-quarles.html

Jeff Harrison's twin reviews, in and of themselves, in their own right, are poems

... the "review" itself conceived as a work of art!

Best regards,

Séamas Cain
http://alazanto.org/seamascain
http://seamascain.writernetwork.com
http://www.mnartists.org/Seamas_Cain

_____

↑ Index

271. Tim Peterson
SEGUE 5/30: Szymaszek & Durgin
Tue 26 May 2009

The Segue Series Presents
*
Stacy Szymaszek
& Patrick Durgin*

Saturday, May 30, 2009  4PM SHARP
Bowery Poetry Club, 308 Bowery, NYC
$6 admission
hosted by Kristen Gallagher & Tim Peterson

*Stacy Szymaszek *is the author of Emptied of All Ships (Litmus Press, 2005). Recent chapbooks include Orizaba: A Voyage with Hart Crane (Faux Chaps, 2008) and from Hyperglossia (Hot Whiskey, 2008). Hyperglossia, the complete poem, is forthcoming from Litmus Press in early 2009. * Patrick Durgin* has collaborated with Jen Hofer since 1998 to produce The Route (Atelos, 2008). On his own, Durgin has published Imitation Poems (Atticus/Finch, 2007) and Color Music (Cuneiform Press, 2002).

↑ Index

272. aaron tieger
SECRET DONUT by Aaron Tieger
Tue 26 May 2009

Friends,

I'm very happy to announce the publication of my first full-length book. SECRET DONUT was written between 2004-2006, the same time frame as most of my other chapbooks. The book contains four longish sequences, including some "translations" of 20th century French poets) and a handful of loose poems.

I'm also very pleased that Pressed Wafer is issuing the book. I have long admired their work (they also published my second chapbook, DAYS AND DAYS) and this one is absolutely gorgeous.

I hope you'll check the book out. At the URL below you'll find ordering information, an image of the cover, and a sample poem.

http://pressed-wafer.blogspot.com

Thanks very much.

Be well,
Aaron

"Make a sudden, destructive unpredictable action; incorporate." (Brian Eno)

"Without people you're nothing" (Joe Strummer)

↑ Index

273. Maria Damon
Tammy CFW
Wed 27 May 2009

We're reading for Issue 2 for another couple of weeks; please pass along our address: http://tammyjournal.wordpress.com/

↑ Index

274. Alexander Jorgensen

Van Gogh's Ear 6 is out! - Forgive the "Toot!"

Wed 27 May 2009

And I am proud to appear in this issue with so many of today's most talented folks!
Â
Alexander Jorgensen
Â

Â
STUNNING COLLECTION OF CONTEMPORARY LOVE POETRY BY SOME OF TODAYâ€™S MOST CUTTING-EDGE ARTISTS

From the earliest records in the Western tradition of poetry, throughout the classical period and during the Middle Ages, spanning the Renaissance, the Enlightenment and beyond, romantic love has been the obsessive object of poetic attentions. However, modern and postmodern poets tend to avoid writing about love, focusing instead on political, social and theoretical terrains.

When Dawn-Michelle Baude took on the job of guest-editing the sixth edition of the internationally acclaimed poetry anthology Van Gogh's Ear, she deliberately chose love as her theme in order to challenge this modern poetic system in which the vocabularies for alienation and violence have outstripped those of attachment and affection.

More than seventy cutting edge poets, writers and visual artists from around the globe have answered Dawn-Michelle Baude's call for poems and prose pieces about love. Complementing the poetry and prose are the stunning images selected by Arts Editor Anne-Shelton Aaron whose twenty-five years of experience as a contemporary art connoisseur have leant incredible visual depth to this edition of Van Goghâ€™s Ear.

Van Goghs Ear 6: The Love Edition takes the throbbing pulse of love now, in 2009, in countries around the world. Sexual, romantic, altruistic, fetishistic, Platonic, political, happenstance and all the rest - the poems and prose in this edition are vital, and, in abrupt contrast to the foundational irony of postmodernism, even sincere. The writersâ€™ engagement with the topics ranges from the subtle to the overt, the off-hand to the engaged, just like in life.

http://www.frenchcx.com/press/

↑ Index

275. Sharon Dolin
Poetry Reading next Wednesday
Wed 27 May 2009

Greetings from Spain!

I'll be hosting a poetry reading next Wednesday, June 3rd at 6:30 pm @ The Center for Book Arts: Patricia Smith and Matthew Hittinger will read. I hope you can join me.

Matthew Hittinger is the author of Pear Slip, winner of the Spire Press 2006 Chapbook Award, Narcissus Resists (GOSS 183, 2009) and Platos de Sal (Editor's Series #2, Seven Kitchens Press, 2009).

Patricia Smith is the author of five books of poetry: Blood Dazzler (Coffee House), finalist for the 2008 National Book Award; Teahouse of the Almighty (Coffee House), a 2005 National Poetry Series selection; Close to Death (Zoland); Big Towns, Big Talk (Zoland) and Life According to Motown (Tia Chucha). She has won a Pushcart and the Hurston/Wright Legacy Award. Smith is an assistant professor of creative writing at the City University of NY and teaches in the Stonecoast MFA program.

The Center for Book Arts

28 West 27th Street, Third Floor

Between Broadway and Sixth Avenue

Subway: N, R, W to 28th Street; F, V to 23rd Street; 1 to 28th Street

Suggested Admission: $10/$5 members

Sharon Dolin

[redacted]

↑ Index

276. Sharon Dolin
Poetry Reading next Wednesday
Wed 27 May 2009

Greetings from Spain!

I'll be hosting a poetry reading next Wednesday, June 3rd at 6:30 pm @ The Center for Book Arts: Patricia Smith and Matthew Hittinger will read. I hope you can join me.

Matthew Hittinger is the author of Pear Slip, winner of the Spire Press 2006 Chapbook Award, Narcissus Resists (GOSS 183, 2009) and Platos de Sal (Editor's Series #2, Seven Kitchens Press, 2009).

Patricia Smith is the author of five books of poetry: Blood Dazzler (Coffee House), finalist for the 2008 National Book Award; Teahouse of the Almighty (Coffee House), a 2005 National Poetry Series selection; Close to Death (Zoland); Big Towns, Big Talk (Zoland) and Life According to Motown (Tia Chucha). She has won a Pushcart and the Hurston/Wright Legacy Award. Smith is an assistant professor of creative writing at the City University of NY and teaches in the Stonecoast MFA program.

The Center for Book Arts

28 West 27th Street, Third Floor

Between Broadway and Sixth Avenue

Subway: N, R, W to 28th Street; F, V to 23rd Street; 1 to 28th Street

Suggested Admission: $10/$5 members

Sharon Dolin
[redacted]

↑ Index

277. steve russell
Re: Vargas Llosa detained at Venezuelan airport
Wed 27 May 2009

---

he's not a marxist. by latin american standards, he's to the right. by whimpy american standards, he's an average, arm chair liberal.

--- On Tue, 5/26/09, George Bowering <[redacted]> wrote:

> From: George Bowering <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: Vargas Llosa detained at Venezuelan airport
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Tuesday, May 26, 2009, 3:20 AM
> Turn to the right?
> He has always been on the right.
>
> gb
>
> On May 25, 2009, at 4:49 PM, David Chirot wrote:
>
> http://news.yahoo.com/s/ap/20090525/ap_on_re_la_am_ca/lt_venezuela_vargas_llosa
>
> CARACAS, Venezuela - Peruvian writer and journalist
> Alvaro Vargas Llosa says
> Venezuelan authorities detained him for about two > hours after he arrived in > Venezuela for an upcoming pro-democracy forum.

>
> NOTE: Vargas Lhosa's Turn to the Right has made him > something of a Persona
> Non Grata in many Latin American countries-
>
> this attitude towards Sr. Lhosa appears in one of > Robert Bolano's stories,
> for example--
>
> G. Harry Bowering
> Merchant of Mirth

↑ Index

278. Richard Jeffrey Newman

Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

Wed 27 May 2009

On May 26, 2009, at 8:40 AM, amy king wrote:

> Which is why I brought the larger question back to "What can a > feminist poetics offer?"

I have been reading through this thread and wishing I had the time to contribute more than the quick response that this message is going to be. The question of a feminist poetics, what it is/might be, how men do/can/should/shouldn't/can't relate to it, adopt it, adapt to it, find ourselves in it, etc. and so on has been central to my writing for as long as I have considered myself a poet, and it goes back to the fact that it was feminism, specifically my reading of Adrienne Rich's essays when I was in my early 20s, that gave me a vocabulary-- and therefore a voice--to talk about, to speak my truth of, my experience of having been sexually abused as a boy. There is a great deal to unpack in that statement, I know, part of it autobiographical and part of it not, but, as I said, I don't really have the time to do so right now. What I will say here is that one of the things I found in feminism--and the connection to my being a survivor of sexual abuse will be obvious--is a poetics of the body that has been indispensable to me as a man trying to figure out who I am in this world and as a poet (and those two are obviously not unrelated). More than in any other framing of the world/way of reading/agenda for change (to the degree that feminism as some sort of abstract notion can be said to be or have one agenda; there are, after all, many feminisms), I find in feminism a willingness, an eagerness, to embrace the notion of the body, the material body, the skin in which we all walk around, and the integrity of the body, as fundamental to ideas of justice (and this is quite different from the patriarchal ideology of biology as destiny).

And so--I am sort of leaping here--one of the questions that has occurred to me as I have been reading through this thread is what, precisely, do we--or, more precisely, does our language, since language is all we have on a list--embody when we post here; and that makes me think of an essay that I read a long time ago in, I think, The Georgia Review by a woman whose name I cannot remember, but whose point (and I am paraphrasing a memory here) was that the kind of writing that gets taught in academia--argumentative, persuasive, scholarly--takes as its underlying metaphor the notion of battle, the idea that the point of engaging in scholarly discussion is to have your argument come out on top; and that makes me think of a book called Metaphors We Live By, by George Lakoff and Mark Johnson, in which they show that it's not just academic discourse that we think of metaphorically as war, but that, in US culture anyway, we conceive of argument in general as a kind of battle. Just think of the expressions we use: arguments are lost or won; they are destroyed, honed, advanced, withdrawn; we strategize our arguments, look for weaknesses, loopholes in the arguments of our opponents; we concede some points to gain others and, hopefully, by losing the battle, enable ourselves to win the war; and the list could go on.

Certainly what I have just written describes my experience of discussion, and it's not that I shy away from strong debate or intellectual confrontation; or that I think everyone is "right" in some easy relativistic sort of way...well, way of illustrating how deeply embedded this metaphor is in the way we see the world, Lakoff and Johnson suggest a thought experiment: try to imagine argument not as a contest with a winner and a loser, but as a dance, where the object is for the end result to be beautiful, where the point is to build that beautiful thing. We all know that there is tension in making art, that some ideas work better than others, that some parts need to be discarded in the interest of the whole, that one of the beauties of a work of art is that it can hold opposing points of view in some kind of resolution, even though that resolution may not necessarily be in the work itself, but in the experience of the artist and/or audience.

In this metaphor for argument, there is no opponent to defeat--and I apologize for writing quickly and perhaps carelessly or too telegraphically--and so it seems to me that one way of thinking about what a feminist poetics has to offer, one way of beginning to perform a feminist poetics, is to engage in this kind of what I will call "deep" reimagining; if we don't like the way arguments/discussions have been conducted on this list, and if the way they are conducted has to do with the results the participants expect (in this case, winning and losing); and if the results the participants expect have to do with metaphor(s) through which we imagine and experience argument/discussion; then maybe if we start to talk concretely about what other kinds of results we might want--and I don't know if "a dance of ideas," for example, is the way to go, but it's a beginning-- we might start to get the kind of change that Amy has been saying we need to be looking for.

And now it's back to my regularly scheduled writing tasks.

Richard

↑ Index

279. J.P. Craig
Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
Wed 27 May 2009

The biggest problem with usenet is that it (almost always) has to be locally cached by your ISP. Fewer and fewer ISPs are willing to devote the bandwidth and storage space to caching the huge, huge, HUGE volume of usenet, especially if their users clamor for the inclusion of binaries groups.

Sadly, usenet is a doddering old dinosaur about to expire, as wonderful as it was back in the days of Gopher and the like. There are alternatives like Deja News, but Google, who owns it, could pull the plug at any moment, and there goes your party. And most new use of usenet has been from spammers.

The better option might be a system like Slashdot's karma and mod- points system. That community is extremely contentious, yet their system allows posts to be hidden and/or promoted based on a user- based moderation system in which users with good karma are periodically given moderation points which they can spend to mod a post up or down, into greater or lesser visibility, depending on how an individual reader's preferences are set. Readers can effectively set their own level of tolerance, while a small, frequently-changing subset of users marked as responsible set the standards. Digg uses a similar but less complicated and less effective (more easily gamed) system of moderation.

Anyway, that's my geeky two cents, as a former moderator of in an old unix-based BBS discussion system. JP

On May 26, 2009, at 2:31 PM, Jim Andrews wrote:

> i'm familiar with usenet. it's been around since 1980. some email clients such as outlook express can process usenet.
>
> it's a little off the beaten track, isn't it. and it seems to have a spam problem. i suppose those are the unmoderated lists.

> why isn't it more popular for poetics-like types of forums?
>
> probably because it requires a very slightly higher tech level. and usenet is not supported by all email clients.
>
> also, i'm thinking of something that would require almost no moderation.
>
> is there something like a w3c for email clients? so that cross-platform apps for email clients can be developed. why not, if no? email is one of the 'killer apps' yet email clients still aren't all that great.
>
> ja
> http://vispo.com
>
> From: "J. Michael Mollohan
> The alternative which you seek is called usenet. A usenet newsgroup may be moderated or not, preferably moderated, considering the trolls that lurk there. One may then create a killfile for your newsreader in which to dump undesired posters. Usenet is thriving with well over 100,000 groups, some of them quite active. Connected newsgroups could be set up as well, including binary groups where graphics and sound and short videos could be posted. You could have something like alt.poeticslist.discussion.moderated along with alt.poeticslist.poems and alt.poeticslist.binaries and this could possibly lead to a more robust use of the notion.
>
> HTH
>
> welcome.html

JP Craig
http://jpcraig.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

280. Mark Weiss

Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

Wed 27 May 2009

Richard:

All this is very nice (way too nice), but it elides the difference between discussion, which is a dance of sorts, and argument. Here's a thought experiment: try to imagine the dance of a schoolboard divided between secularists and fundamentalists deciding whether to have creationism or evolution taught in its schools.

Not all argument is about the ego of the arguers. Often it's a matter of unbridgeable disagreement about passionately-held positions that do matter.

Maybe another way of thinking about this is sports, which also depends upon metaphors of combat. From the perspective of a god a baseball game is dynamic geometry arrived at through the cooperation of eighteen people, a beautiful, complex thing. On the field it's akin to warfare, with a winner and a loser.

Dancing and sports can each be pleasurable--we wouldn't engage in them otherwise--and the one doesn't need to supercede the other. Both become tiresome if all that's at stake is the ego of the participants. That's I think the kind of argument being objected to here.

Back to metaphor. Context is all. We routinely hope that "our" team slaughters the opposition. Nobody anywhere takes that literally (well, maybe the Maya did), football riots notwithstanding. So where's the problem? It seems to me that there's a kind of puritanism at work that says certain metaphors are to be eliminated, certain codes of language are simply beyond the pale. How little good that does is apparent in the CIA's constant invention of nonviolent metaphors for torture. Changing the language doesn't aleviate the victim's suffering.

Best,

Mark

> And so--I am sort of leaping here--one of the questions that has occurred to me as I have been reading through this thread is what, precisely, do we--or, more precisely, does our language, since language is all we have on a list--embody when we post here; and that makes me think of an essay that I read a long time ago in, I think, The Georgia Review by a woman whose name I cannot remember, but whose point (and I am paraphrasing a memory here) was that the kind of writing that gets taught in academia--argumentative, persuasive, scholarly--takes as its underlying metaphor the notion of battle, the idea that the point of engaging in scholarly discussion is to have your argument come out on top; and that makes me think of a book called Metaphors We Live By, by George Lakoff and Mark Johnson, in which they show that it's not just academic discourse that we think of metaphorically as war, but that, in US culture anyway, we conceive of argument in general as a kind of battle. Just think of the expressions we use: arguments are lost or won; they are destroyed, honed, advanced, withdrawn; we strategize our arguments, look for weaknesses, loopholes in the arguments of our opponents; we concede some points to gain others and, hopefully, by losing the battle, enable ourselves to > win the war; and the list could go on.

>
> Certainly what I have just written describes my experience of discussion, and it's not that I shy away from strong debate or intellectual confrontation; or that I think everyone is "right" in some easy relativistic sort of way...well, way of illustrating how deeply embedded this metaphor is in the way we see the world, Lakoff and Johnson suggest a thought experiment: try to imagine argument not as a contest with a winner and a loser, but as a dance, where the object is for the end result to be beautiful, where the point is to build that beautiful thing. We all know that there is tension in making art, that some ideas work better than others, that some parts need to be discarded in the interest of the whole, that one of the beauties of a work of art is that it can hold opposing points of view in some kind of resolution, even though that resolution may not necessarily be in the work itself, but in the experience of the artist and/or audience.
>
> In this metaphor for argument, there is no opponent to defeat--and I apologize for writing quickly and perhaps carelessly or too telegraphically--and so it seems to me that one way of thinking about what a feminist poetics has to offer, one way of beginning to perform a feminist poetics, is to engage in this kind of what I will call "deep" reimagining; if we don't like the way arguments/discussions have been conducted on this list, and if the way they are conducted has to do with the results the participants expect (in this case, winning and losing); and if the results the participants expect have to do with metaphor(s) through which we imagine and experience argument/discussion; then maybe if we start to talk concretely about what other kinds of results we might want--and I don't know if "a dance of ideas," for example, is the way to go, but it's a beginning--we might start to get the kind of change that Amy has been saying we need to be looking for.
>
> And now it's back to my regularly scheduled writing tasks.
>
> Richard

↑ Index

281. William Allegrezza

Series A next Wed: Tyrone Williams and Janet Holmes

Wed 27 May 2009

Please come hear two great readers next Wednesday for Series A.

June 3, 7:00-8:00 p.m.
Tyrone Williams
Janet Holmes

At the Hyde Park Art Center.
5020 S. Cornell Avenue
Chicago, IL
(There is parking and easy access to public transportation.)

BYOB.

For more information, visit http://moriapoetry.com/seriesa.html or e-mail me.

Bill Allegrezza

↑ Index

282. amy king
Tomorrow -- Our Final Event @ Stain Bar! Goodbye...
Wed 27 May 2009

May 29th @ 7 p.m. â€“ Stain Bar â€“ Williamsburg, B

May 29th @ 7 p.m. â€“ Stain Bar â€“ Williamsburg, Brooklyn

our last event at Stain Bar â€“ the bar is closing! come for the sendoff!

C. S. Carrier, Jennifer Firestone, Erica Kaufman, Matthew Klane,

Maya Pindyck, Laura Sims

~~~~

C. S. Carrier was born in Dayton, OH and grew up in western North Carolina.
His book, After Dayton, was published in 2008 by Four Way Books. He is also author of The 16s (Katalanche Press, 2007) and Lyric (horse less press, 2007). He adjuncts at the University of Hartford and lives in Sunderland, MA with a Chihuahua named Merwin.

~~~

Jennifer Firestone
is the co-editor of Letters To Poets: Conversations About Poetics, Politics, and Community (Saturnalia Books). She is the author of Holiday (Shearsman Books), Waves

(Portable Press at Yo-Yo Labs), From Flashes and snapshot (Sona Books). Her work has appeared in HOW2, LUNGFULL!, Xcp: Streetnotes,, Fourteen Hills, Dusie, 580 Split, Saint Elizabeth Street and others. She is an Assistant Professor teaching poetry at Eugene Lang College at The New School for Liberal Arts, and lives in Brooklyn with her husband and their baby twins.

~~~

erica kaufman is the author of several chapbooks, most recently censory impulse (an excerpt of her long poem of the same title) (OMG, March 2008), civilization day (Open24Hours, Winter 2007) and censory impulse (an excerpt of her long poem of the same title) (Big Game Books, Fall 2007). kaufman holds an MFA from the New School and was the winner of the 2003
New School University Chapbook Contest. kaufman is currently a Ph.D. candidate
at the CUNY Graduate Center.
she lives in Brooklyn and works in Manhattan and teaches at Baruch College.

~~~

Matthew Klane is founder and editor of Flim Forum Press. His new book is B_____ Meditations (Stockport Flats Press) and his chapbooks include The- Associated Press, Sorrow Songs, Friend Delighting the Eloquent, and The Meister-Reich
Experiments (online at www.housepress.org).
Other work can be found in Plantarchy, string of small machines, and online at Otoliths and Word for/Word.
He currently lives and writes in Albany,
NY. For more: www.matthewklane.blogspot.com.

~~~

Maya Pindyck is a poet and visual artist living and working in Brooklyn.
Her poems have appeared in Sycamore Review, Mississippi
Review, Bellingham
Review, and other journals. She is the author of Locket, Master, which won a Poetry Society of America Chapbook Fellowship in 2006, selected
~~~

by
Paul Muldoon. Her forthcoming first collection of poems, Friend Among Stones, won the Many Voices Project Award and will be published by New Rivers Press. In 2005, she co-founded Project Voice, an evolving compilation of abortion stories which aims to deflate the abortion stigma. Maya holds a B.A. in philosophy and studio art from Connecticut College, an M.F.A. in poetry from Sarah Lawrence College and an M.A. in education through the New York City Teaching Fellows program. She currently teaches at a public high school in Brownsville.

~~~

Laura Sims is the author of two books of poems: Practice, Restraint, winner of the 2005 Fence Books Alberta Prize, and Stranger, forthcoming from Fence Books in April of 2009. Her book reviews and essays have appeared in Boston Review, New England Review, Rain Taxi, and The Review of Contemporary Fiction, and she has recently published poems in the journals Denver Quarterly, Colorado Review, CAB/NET, and Crayon. She lives in Brooklyn, New York, and teaches writing at Baruch College in Manhattan.

~~~

stain

766 grand street

brooklyn, ny 11211

(L train to Grand Street,

1 block west)

718/[redacted]

open daily @ 5 p.m.

~~~~Please join us for the last hurrah @ 7 PM sharp!

Hosted by Amy King and Ana BoÅ¾iÄeviÄ‡

http://www.stainofpoetry.com/

Â

Â

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/
~~~~

↑ Index

283. amy king

Re: Tomorrow -- Our Final Event @ Stain Bar! Goodbye... APOLOGIES

Wed 27 May 2009

Not tomorrow - the final event takes place on Friday night:

Not tomorrow - the final event takes place on Friday night:

Friday, May 29th @ 7 p.m. â€“ Stain Bar â€“ Williamsburg, Brooklyn

Â

our last event at Stain Bar â€“ the bar is closing! come for the sendoff!

Â

C. S. Carrier, Jennifer Firestone, Erica Kaufman, Matthew Klane, Maya Pindyck, Laura Sims

Â

~~~~

Â

C. S. Carrier was born in Dayton,
OH and grew up in western North Carolina. His book, After Dayton, was published in 2008 by Four Way Books. He is also author of The 16s (Katalanche Press, 2007) and Lyric (horse less press, 2007). He adjuncts at the University of Hartford and lives in Sunderland, MA with a Chihuahua named Merwin.

Â

~~~

Â

Jennifer Firestone is the co-editor of Letters To Poets: Conversations About Poetics, Politics, and Community (Saturnalia Books). She is the author of Holiday (Shearsman Books), Waves (Portable Press at Yo-Yo Labs), From Flashes and snapshot (Sona Books). Her work has appeared in HOW2, LUNGFULL!, Xcp: Streetnotes,, Fourteen Hills, Dusie, 580 Split, Saint Elizabeth Street and others. She is an Assistant Professor teaching poetry at Eugene Lang College at The New School for Liberal Arts, and lives in Brooklyn with her husband and their baby twins.

Â

~~~

Â

erica kaufman is the author of several chapbooks, most recently censory impulse (an excerpt of her long poem of the same title) (OMG, March 2008), civilization day (Open24Hours, Winter 2007) and censory impulse (an excerpt of her long poem of the same title) (Big Game Books, Fall 2007). kaufman holds an MFA from the New School and was the winner of the 2003 New School University Chapbook Contest. kaufman is currently a Ph.D. candidate at the CUNY Graduate Center. she lives in Brooklyn and works in Manhattan and teaches at Baruch College.

Â

~~~

Â

Matthew Klane is founder and editor of Flim Forum Press. His new book is B_____ Meditations (Stockport Flats Press) and his chapbooks include The-Associated Press, Sorrow Songs, Friend Delighting the Eloquent, and The Meister-Reich Experiments (online at www.housepress.org). Other work can be found in Plantarchy, string of small machines, and online at Otoliths and Word for/ Word. He currently lives and writes in Albany, NY. For more: www.matthewklane.blogspot.com.

Â

~~~

Â

Maya Pindyck is a poet and visual artist living and working in Brooklyn. Her poems have appeared in Sycamore Review, Mississippi Review, Bellingham Review, and other journals. She is the author of Locket, Master, which won a Poetry Society of America Chapbook Fellowship in 2006, selected by Paul
~~~

Muldoon. Her forthcoming first collection of poems, Friend Among Stones, won the Many Voices Project Award and will be published by New Rivers Press. In 2005, she co-founded Project Voice, an evolving compilation of abortion stories which aims to deflate the abortion stigma. Maya holds a B.A. in philosophy and studio art from Connecticut College, an M.F.A. in poetry from Sarah Lawrence College and an M.A. in education through the New York City Teaching Fellows program. She currently teaches at a public high school in Brownsville.

Â

~~~

Â

Laura Sims is the author of two books of poems: Practice, Restraint, winner of the 2005 Fence Books Alberta Prize, and Stranger, forthcoming from Fence Books in April of 2009. Her book reviews and essays have appeared in Boston Review, New England Review, Rain Taxi, and The Review of Contemporary Fiction, and she has recently published poems in the journals Denver Quarterly, Colorado Review, CAB/NET, and Crayon. She lives in Brooklyn, New York, and teaches writing at Baruch College in Manhattan.

Â

~~~

Â

stain

766 grand street

brooklyn, ny 11211

(L train to Grand
Street,

1 block west)

718/[redacted]

open daily @ 5 p.m.

Â

~~~~

Â

Please join us for the last hurrah @ 7 PM sharp!

Â

Hosted by Amy King and Ana BoÅ¾iÄeviÄ‡
~~~~

http://www.stainofpoetry.com/

Â

Â

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

284. Catherine Daly

Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

Wed 27 May 2009

Richard's post, as well as my finding a first edition Naked Poetry anthology at the library book sale, made me think of a definition of what we mean by "open poetry" "open poetics" and -- "open discussion".

--
All best,
Catherine Daly
[redacted]

↑ Index

285. amy king

Call for villanelles

Wed 27 May 2009

From Annie Finch:

Annie Finch and Marie-Elizabeth Mali re co-editing an anthology of villanelles. Previously published, experimental use of the form, variations, and recommendations for villanelles from any era all welcome. Please send no more than three to Marie Elizabeth at [redacted] with contact info on each page and publication credit, if previously published, by June 1st.

Thank you,
Marie-Elizabeth Mali
[redacted]

P.S.
You'll get a notice from Spamarrest to verify yourself if we've never emailed before. Please do so, or your work will end up in my junk mail.

↑ Index

286. Pierre Joris
Query
Wed 27 May 2009

Does anyone have an email or postal address for David Able in Portland?
Thanks! — Pierre

==========
=
"Play what you don't know" -- Sun Ra
==========
=
Pierre Joris
244 Elm Street
Albany NY 12202-1310
h: [redacted]
c: [redacted]
o: 518 442 40 71
Euro cell: (011 33) 6 75 43 57 10
email: [redacted]
http://pierrejoris.com
http://pierrejoris.com/blog/
==========
=

↑ Index

287. Paul Nelson
Re: What is Open?
Wed 27 May 2009

Open is organic.

The Organic poem is not the recor
Catherine,

Open is organic.

The Organic poem is not the record of an event, it is an event, an occasion of experience, a map of the mind at work in the moment, ear measuring and mind mediating the crowd of outside voices/impulses and resonances erring on the side of entelechy for the individual and polis and culture, in deep connection with dimensions larger than the pen-holder, enacting â€“ not describing â€“ the instant rather than the act of thought about the instant.

The Organic poem is allied with velocity and the duende beyond mere discourse and the function of symbology, imbued with a luminousity that exists just beyond comprehension of the pen-holder, and ripples with the silver of a wave in the midnight of Harvest Moonlight, or the white of alder-filtered September sunlight just beyond the foot of the morning altar.

It is the living apprehension of the underlying form as it spills out its testimony as only the moment can reveal, never completely contained in one poem except that poem which is the final result of a lifetime of an individual poetâ€™s never fully articulate striving, a chaotic murmur of soul re-directing self to Self in an alchemical conjunctio only antepasados fully comprehend.

It is the practice divine of ear training, star to mind to hand to pen to blossoming, a harvesting of forces learned over years, decades, lifetimes of homage and refined, knows process as its own inherent reward in a systemless system which chooses recklessly those who would use speech (at once) at its least careless and least logical, poet as time mechanic, not embalmer.

The Organic poem is the mercy, mercy, mercy of the intersection of the vastness of outer space with the vastness of the space inside skull in complete candor, the ordinary mind in discovery of perceptions eternal in celebration of person (Universe is Person), not a stream of consciousness, more a coherent splendor, more a field of first permission to which one is allowed access more often than one thinks.

Paul

Paul E. Nelson

Global Voices Radio
SPLAB!
American Sentences
Organic Poetry
Poetry Postcard Blog

Ilalqo, WA [redacted]

From: Catherine Daly <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, May 27, 2009 2:24:22 PM
Subject: Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

Richard's post, as well as my finding a first edition Naked Poetry anthology at the library book sale, made me think of a definition of what we mean by "open poetry" "open poetics" and -- "open discussion".

--
All best,

Catherine Daly
[redacted]

↑ Index

288. Christina Milletti
&Now: a Conference of Innovative Writing & the Literary Arts
Wed 27 May 2009

CALL FOR WORK
&Now: a Conference of Innovative Writing and the Literary Arts
New Proposal Deadline: June 15, 2009

The 4th Biennial &Now Conference of Innovative Writing & the Literary Arts will be held in Buffalo, NY from October 15-17, 2009. The &Now Festival explores intersections between creative and critical praxes, examines innovative and experimental acts of writing, and advances a serious inquiry into theories of language.

Keynote Speakers: Robert Coover, Nathaniel Mackey, & Rikki Ducornet

PLEASE SUBMIT.... Critical papers and cross genre work of all kinds: criti-fictional presentations, readings, performance pieces (digital, sound, and otherwise), and digital and multimedia projects. Pieces that address linguistic transgressions, the limits of genre, or works that promote interdisciplinary explorations are particularly encouraged. Proposals can be for individual readings, critical panels, creative panels, and/or roundtable discussions.

Please send proposals by email in the following format:

*Title of Proposed Reading/Performance/Presentation
*Brief Description (no more than 500 words).
*Brief Bio (a few sentences) of all participants
*Tech needs (if any)

Submit all proposals to: [redacted]

PROPOSAL DEADLINE: June 15, 2009.

Please note: Each session will be approximately 75 minutes. Individual presentations/readings should therefore be limited to 15-20 minutes so that grouped sessions that make thematic sense can be arranged.

For more information, visit:
http://www.english.buffalo.edu/andnow/

Or contact:
Dimitri Anastasopoulos at [redacted] or Christina Milletti at [redacted]

****

Links to prior &Now Conferences:

&Now 2005: University of Notre Dame, South Bend, Indiana
http://www.nd.edu/~andnow/

&Now 2006: Lake Forest College, Chicago
http://www.lakeforest.edu/academics/programs/engl/andnow/

&Now 2008: Chapman University, Los Angeles
http://andnowfestival.com/

_____
Christina Milletti
Assistant Professor of English
Co-Director: Exhibit X Fiction Series
University at Buffalo
Office: 533 Clemens
Office Phone: [redacted] x1056

↑ Index

289. CA Conrad
Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
Thu 28 May 2009

Ah, FABULOUS! As a fag I tend to NOT say this word very often for obvious reasons!

But again, FABULOUS! There are things I would LOVE to say right now, but I know they would WITHOUT A DOUBT be censored, as many of my posts to this List have been censored!

Murat I'm with you all the way!

Fear of language should NOT be in the recipe for poets, at least not for poets worth their salt!
CAConrad
http://AdvancedELVIS.blogspot.com

↑ Index

290. Nico Vassilakis
SUBTEXT READING - Jim McCRARY & Paul NELSON
Thu 28 May 2009

---

http://subtextreadingseries.blogspot.com/

thanks for your time,

n

_____ Hotmail® has ever-growing storage! Don’t worry about storage limits.
http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/Storage?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tutorial_Storage1_052009

↑ Index

291. Laurie Schneider & Crag Hill
Jim McCray reading in Seattle (June 3) and Portland (June 4)
Thu 28 May 2009

Seattle, WA:

June 3 with Paul Nelson at

Good Shepherd Center Chapel Performance Space.

4649 Sunnyside Ave. N in Wallingford at 7:30 p.m.

Portland, OR:

June 4 with James Yeary at Concordia Coffee House
2909 NE Alberta
7:30

http://www.flim.com/spareroom/

Spread the word!

All That can be perused and purchased at:
http://www.lulu.com/content/paperback-book/all-that/4363355

↑ Index

292. cris cheek
part: short life housing
Thu 28 May 2009

---

cris cheek
part: short life housing

This book collects seven texts written between 1981 and 1999, by UK- born, US-based poet/multimedia artist cris cheek. cheek was one of the key figures in the London poetry scene of the 1980s â€” the so- called â€œlinguistically-innovative poetryâ€ grouping later anthologized in Robert Sheppard and Adrian Clarkeâ€™s Floating Capital: New Poets from London. Likewise, he became central to developments in Performance Writing emerging out of variant distributed networks during the following decade. He has remained a prolific, genre-slipping figure: poet, performance artist and musician, whose activities range from the ambitious conceptual project Things Not Worth Keeping to recordings with the ensembles Slant and Garam Masala. Yet to date his publications have been relatively scarce and elusive, a situation which part: short life housing goes far to rectify.

At the heart of this book are two long sequences, previously unpublished aside from short extracts: â€œcanning town chronicles,â€ a scathing set of verbal accretions that emerged from the wreckage of the Thatcher era; and â€œf o g s,â€ a series of typestracts quarried from verbal improvisations recorded during outdoor walks in densely foggy weather. Also included are several shorter pieces, including a selection of early 1980s work and â€œplain speaking yet,â€ cheekâ€™s memorial to the novelist Kathy Acker. The poems have, in keeping with the authorâ€™s concern for the specificity of occasion and publication, been revised and visually reimagined with this volume in mind.

*

For all its thickness, unanticipated moves, visual beauty, and playful language acrobatics, the poetry of part: short life housing consistently retains the edge of serious critique. There are few poets as attuned to the sounds and ambient fogs of everyday life as cris cheek, yet his record is tuned and sharply turned toward the reimagining of social knowledge. This volume is a generous move towards the full representation of cheekâ€™s crucial project. â€” Carla Harryman

Finally a good and rich span of writings from cris cheek. Hereâ€™s an artist and writer whose work has always taken up active tenancy of the languages and the streets of urban living, recording them and composing them back into the dense abstract neighbourhoods of his pieces. With this careful selection, cris cheek reminds us that he is a Londoner and as such is as inhabited by Dickensâ€™ dark maze of industrial streets as by mind-altering years of activist art lodgings, smoggy thoughtful wanderings or the eerie shock of the thatcheritic city. Thatâ€™s at least two hundred years of grime, greed and energy youâ€™ll find distilled in the cellular lines and ink splashes of this great volume. â€“ Caroline Bergvall â€œi s y o u r t o n g u e a g l o m / w e a p o n t h a t s t a i n s ?â€ cris cheek is the Kepler of Chisenhale Dance Space. After a century of developments in poetic form best understood as a series of metaphors for transcribed speech, cheekâ€™s poetry often actually is transcribed speech, throwing shapes on the page that pay homage to (and lay the ghosts of) all the dead metaphors. As in Alvin Lucierâ€™s I Am Sitting in a Room, the speech in cheekâ€™s work functions as something like echolocation: its reflections (on him and in us)

mapping out an ever more complex and multifocal shape for the public sphere, â€œw h e r e o t h e r s f e a r t o / t / r e a d.â€ â€” Peter Manson cris cheek, part: short life housing. The Gig, 2009. ISBN 978-0-9735875-5-5. 270pp, 6â€³ x 9â€³, perfectbound.

*

ORDERING INFORMATION (with a special deal!)

Within Canada: $22.50 â€” Within the US: $22.50 US
UK: Â£17 â€” Euro: â,¬22
All prices include postage.

A special deal: for $8 Cdn / $8 US / Â£5 / â,¬7, add one of the following:

* Slant, the canning town chronicles, sound&language (CD with cheek, Sianed Jones, Phillip Jeck â€” music based around texts collected in part: short life housing, as well as a reading of a Kinks tuneâ€¦!) * cris cheek, the church, the school, the beer (Critical Documents) * Antiphonies: Essays on Womenâ€™s Experimental Poetries in Canada * Maggie Oâ€™Sullivan, Palace of Reptiles * Allen Fisher, Entanglement

Please make out cheques to â€œNate Dorwardâ€, & send to:
109 Hounslow Ave, North York, ON, M2N 2B1, Canada
(email: ndorward [at-sign] ndorward [dot] com)

with apologies for cross posting

↑ Index

293. Christina Milletti
&Now: a Conference of Innovative Writing and the Literary Arts
Thu 28 May 2009

CALL FOR WORK
&Now: a Conference of Innovative Writing and the Literary Arts
New Proposal Deadline: June 15, 2009

The 4th Biennial &Now Conference of Innovative Writing & the Literary Arts will be held in Buffalo, NY from October 15-17, 2009. The &Now Festival explores intersections between creative and critical praxes, examines innovative and experimental acts of writing, and advances a serious inquiry into theories of language.

Keynote Speakers: Robert Coover, Nathaniel Mackey, Rikki Ducornet

PLEASE SUBMIT…. Critical papers and cross genre work of all kinds: criti-fictional presentations, readings, performance pieces (digital, sound, and otherwise), and digital and multimedia projects. Pieces that address linguistic transgressions, the limits of genre, or works that promote interdisciplinary explorations are particularly encouraged. Proposals can be for individual readings, critical panels, creative panels, and/or roundtable discussions.

Please send proposals by email in the following format:

*Title of Proposed Reading/Performance/Presentation
*Brief Description (no more than 500 words).
*Brief Bio (a few sentences) of all participants
*Tech needs (if any)

Submit all proposals to: [redacted]

PROPOSAL DEADLINE: June 15, 2009.

Please note: Each session will be approximately 75 minutes. Individual presentations/readings should therefore be limited to 15-20 minutes so that grouped sessions that make thematic sense can be arranged.

For more information, visit:
http://www.english.buffalo.edu/andnow/

Or contact:
Dimitri Anastasopoulos at [redacted] or Christina Milletti at [redacted]

****

Links to prior &Now Conferences:

&Now 2005: University of Notre Dame, South Bend, Indiana
http://www.nd.edu/~andnow/

&Now 2006: Lake Forest College, Chicago
http://www.lakeforest.edu/academics/programs/engl/andnow/

&Now 2008: Chapman University, Los Angeles
http://andnowfestival.com/

_____
Christina Milletti
Assistant Professor of English
Co-Director: Exhibit X Fiction Series
University at Buffalo
Office: 533 Clemens
Office Phone: [redacted] x1056

↑ Index

294. Just Buffalo Literary Center

Just Buffalo/CEPA Summer Youth Photo Camps

Thu 28 May 2009

2009 Summer Youth Camps

Session 1
(Ages 13-17)
July 27-31
1-4 pm

Session 2
(Ages 8-12)
August 3-7
9am-Noon

NEW Writing With Light Workshop:
Photography & Writing

This multidisciplinary workshop is designed for students that are interested in developing a strong photography portfolio. Taught by professional photographers and writers, students will learn their own unique visual expression as well as an understanding of the technical aspects of film and digital photography while also developing their creative writing skills.

PHOTOGRAPHY: Students will work in group settings and one-on-one with a CEPA Gallery teaching artist to ensure that each student finishes the workshop with a high-quality portfolio of portrait, landscape, and documentary images. Students are encouraged to use their own cameras but one can be provided if needed.

WRITING: Students will also have an opportunity to work with a writer from Just Buffalo Literary Center to help them compose an Artist Statement about their body of work. Creative writing exercises will also involve poetry and prose.

WORKSHOP FEE: $200 includes all supplies. Workshop fee is non-refundable.

Sign up today! Classes will fill up fast!

For more information please contact Lauren Tent, CEPA Gallery Education Director [redacted] or [redacted]
CEPA Gallery 617 Main Street, Buffalo NY 14203 www.cepagallery.org

↑ Index

295. Séamas Cain

The poems of Patricia Brody

Thu 28 May 2009

_____

"American Desire," a book of poems by Patricia Brody, has just been published by the Finishing Line Press. The book was selected for the 2009 New Women's Voices Series.

http://web.me.com/tom.kostro/Patricia_Brody/American_Desire.html

DANGEROUS TO KNOW, a poem from the book ...

http://web.me.com/tom.kostro/Patricia_Brody/Excerpt.html

Comments on the book by Marie Ponsot, Richard Howard, and Philip Miller ...

http://web.me.com/tom.kostro/Patricia_Brody/Blurbs.html

The "Irish Poet & Friends" Reading on June 2, 2009 in New York City ...

http://web.me.com/tom.kostro/Patricia_Brody/KGBBar_READING.html

Purchasing information for the book ...

http://web.me.com/tom.kostro/Patricia_Brody/Bio.html

Best regards,

Séamas Cain
http://alazanto.org/seamascain
http://seamascain.writernetwork.com
http://www.mnartists.org/Seamas_Cain

_____

↑ Index

296. Della Watson

Listserv Post: Wunderkammer Call For Submissions

Thu 28 May 2009

Wunderkammer <http://wunderkammerpoetry.typepad.com/wunderkammer/> is seeking innovative new work for its curious collection of art, poetry, and prose.

ABOUT THE NAME: A wunderkammer, also known as a cabinet of curiosities or a wonder room, is a collection of objects meant to represent the world in miniature. Wunderkammern were popular during the Renaissance, when wealthy men would amass encyclopedic collections that might include fossils, paintings, sculptures, bones, feathers, religious relics, and other oddities. The tradition of the wonder room is believed by some people to be the precursor to the modern museum.

SUBMISSIONS: Email original writing or art to [redacted] and write "Submission" in the subject line of the email.

THEME WEEKS: If you are submitting work that relates to a particular theme, please indicate the theme in the subject line of your email. In addition to non-themed submissions, Wunderkammer is now seeking creative work that falls into these categories:

Collection (deadline--June 14, 2009)

Obama (deadline--June 28, 2009)

Ecopoetics (deadline--July 12, 2009)

GUEST CURATORS: If you have an idea for a theme week, please submit a detailed proposal and write "Curator Proposal" in the subject line of your email.

http://www.wunderkammerpoetry.com/<http://wunderkammerpoetry.typepad.com/wunderkammer/>

↑ Index

297. Poetry Project
Events at The Poetry Project May/June
Thu 28 May 2009

Hi everyone,

Please go to our Website and check out Dustin Williamsonâ€™s reading report on the Jack Spicer events and Evelyn Reillyâ€™s report on John Ashberyâ€™s reading (in â€œFeatured Contentâ€) as well as Edwin Torresâ€™ last post as Guest Blogger. Also, thank you to the people who have responded to our Spring email appeal. We are $2,500 closer to our goal of at least $15,000. If you can help with even a small amount, simply follow this link: http://poetryproject.org/get-involved/donate-now We thank you in advance. The Project couldnâ€™t exist without your continued and unwavering support.

Love
The PP

Friday, May 29, 10 PM
Stephen McLaughlin & Phillip Dmochowski
Present An Evening Of Poetry & Collaborations

Stephen McLaughlin and Phillip Dmochowski are the editors of Principal Hand Publishing Series. Stephen is a poet/programmer whose first release, with Jim Carpenter, was Issue 1, a 3,785-page e-chap. Stephen edits the podcast â€œPoemTalk at the Writers House,â€ and is a contributing editor at PennSound and ubu.com. Phillip is an artist, DJ, and director of DNA Gallery in Provincetown, MA. His first book, Indian Method, documents a systematic disfigurement of rare books and is forthcoming from Patrick Lovelace Editions.

Monday, June 1, 8 PM
Carlos T. Blackburn & Betsy Fagin

Carlos T. Blackburn, author of Portraits (2006) and The Selected Poems of Hamster (2008). Born at the New York Infirmary for Indigent Women and Children, 1969; raised in Brooklyn. Poems have surfaced in Land of the Weejis, Aeroplano, 6Ã—6 and Watchword. Work as a soccer coach, bike messenger, roller coaster operator, collegian (anthropology), fish monger, copy editor, demolition worker, bartender and teacher all form a part of his rÃ©sumÃ©. Presently in the last year of his training as a physical therapist in Glasgow, Scotland. Betsy Fagin is the author of Belief Opportunity (Big Game Books, 2008), Rosemary Stretch (dusie e/chap, 2006) and For every solution there is a problem (Open 24 Hours, 2003), as well as a number of self-published chapbooks.

Wednesday, June 3, 8 PM
Steve Carey Book Party

Edmund Berrigan edited Steve Careyâ€™s Selected Poems for Subpress. The book will be available for the reading. Careyâ€™s books include The California Papers (United Artists), Gentle Subsidy (Big Sky), Smith Going Backwards (Cranium Press), and 20 Poems (Unimproved Editions Press). Anselm Berrigan writes of him: â€œHe was like this huge guy who wouldnâ€™t harm a soul, with a deep voice and ability to loom. Bob Newhart and Jimi Hendrix and Philip Whalen.â€ Carey passed away in 1989. With Anselm Berrigan, Edmund Berrigan, Tom Carey, Peggy DeCoursey, Marion Farrier, Greg Fuchs, Eileen Myles, Elinor Nauen, Simon Pettet, Harris Schiff and others.

And from our friends at Danspace Project:

Yoshiko Chuma & The School of Hard Knocks /ROOT CULTURE (USA/Japan)

POONARC: Not About Romanian Cinema
Concept, Design, Choreography and Direction: Yoshiko Chuma

From the ongoing dance/installation series A Page Out of Order (2001-2011). Featuring artists from the USA, Romania and Japan who have spent the last four weeks developing this work, while journeying through several regions of Romania. The development experience is integral to the creation of POONARC.

June 4, 5, 6, 11, 12, 13, 2009, St. Markâ€™s Church, 8:30pm

Post performance discussions: Fridays June 5th & 12th June 5: Moderator: Judy Hussie-Taylor, Director Danspace Project June 12: Moderator: Corina SuÅ£eu Director, Romanian Cultural Institute of New York

MORE INFO and TICKETS at Danspaceâ€™s site:
http://www.danspaceproject.org/performance/events7.html

Become a Poetry Project Member! http://poetryproject.org/become-a-member

Calendar: http://www.poetryproject.org/program-calendar

The Poetry Project is located at St. Mark's Church-in-the-Bowery
131 East 10th Street at Second Avenue
New York City 10003
Trains: 6, F, N, R, and L.
[redacted]
www.poetryproject.org

Admission is $8, $7 for students/seniors and $5 for members (though now those who take out a membership at $95 or higher will get in FREE to all regular readings).

We are wheelchair accessible with assistance and advance
notice. For more info call [redacted].

If youâ€™d like to be unsubscribed from this mailing list, please drop a line at [redacted].

↑ Index

298. Jesse Glass

Jesse Glass Featured At Text Festival Event, U.K.

Thu 28 May 2009

And happy to be there.

Friday, 12 June 7:30
Bury Art Gallery, Moss St., Bury

http://www.textfestival.com/when/view-12

Jess

↑ Index

299. Mark Young

Now out from Otoliths—Through the Funeral Mountains on a Burro, by Charles Freeland

Thu 28 May 2009

Through the Funeral Mountains on a Burro

Charles Freeland

68 pages

Cover collage by Angela Genusa

Otoliths 2009

ISBN: 978-0-9806025-2-4

$10.45 + p&h

Direct URL:
http://www.lulu.com/content/paperback-book/through-the-funeral-mountains-on-a-burro/7152290

Charles Freeland employs narrative sequence as a mode of aspiring to innocence. Each of these deceptively direct prose pieces, "embracing that infinity," is replete with power to endure what finally endows the conscious mind with revelations disguised as moments. Freeland’s wry humor, charged observations, sonorous lines ("Eulalie stands thigh deep in the river"), remind us of our privilege "just to catch the echo of it, the way children sometimes catch crayfish on the end of a sharpened stick." One final word for Freeland: "Encore!" — Sheila E. Murphy

Freeland's collection takes us on a journey with unexpected directions and deviations. Full of satire and the understated, the poetry of Through the Funeral Mountains on a Burro is masterful. — William Allegrezza ** **

The full Otoliths catalog, which includes books by Nick Piombino, Geof Huth, Marilyn R. Rosenberg, Tom Beckett, William Allegrezza, Anny Ballardini, Nico Vassilakis, Eileen Tabios, Martin Edmond, Paul Siegell, Sheila E. Murphy, Marton Koppany, Jordan Stempleman, & Adam Fieled, amongst many others, can be found at http://stores.lulu.com/l_m_young.

↑ Index

300. Jennifer Karmin
Illinois Poets: Support Literacy Education
Fri 29 May 2009

---

hi poetics friends in illionis....our state is trying to cut funds for adult literacy education. this is the program that i've taught in for 10 years. we service immigrants and people without high school degrees at the chicago city colleges and many locations around the state.

the illinois house has already approved eliminating all state funds for adult education. the senate will soon vote on this.

please call your illinois state senator ASAP. leave a message and let them know that you support adult education and oppose any cuts to its funding. people need education to get jobs!

find your illinois senator's contact information here:
http://www.ilga.gov/senate or -- call senator william delgado at [redacted] and [redacted].

CONTINUE STATE FUNDING FOR ADULT EDUCATION
$53.7 million in state and federal Adult Education / Family Literacy funding will be lost if the Illinois Community College Board Adult Education funding is eliminated

IMPACT OF ADULT EDUCATION SERVICES â€¢ Over 100 programs provide instruction in Adult Basic Education, Adult Secondary Education, and English as a Second Language â€¢ Approximately 118,000 students enroll in programs annually â€¢ Over 13,000 students pass the GED Test in Illinois annually â€¢ 82% of those who enter employment retain employment â€¢ Less than 3% of those in need of adult education are being served

NEED FOR ADULT EDUCATION IN ILLINOIS
â€¢ 1.8 million residents without a high school diploma â€¢ 2.34 million residents speak a language other than English â€¢ 644,000 immigrant residents who do not read and write â€¢ Federal resources will decrease by $1.5 million in FY 2010
â€¢ More than 4,300 students are waiting to enroll in adult education

onwards,
jennifer karmin

↑ Index

301. Sarah Sarai
Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
Fri 29 May 2009

Yup re the "long delay between sending and posting." {per Mark}

>>>>I'm with you. Also the long delay between sending and posting. Both created a feeli9ng like running in molasses.

Mark

-----Original Message-----
>From: mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
>Sent: May 26, 2009 1:13 PM
>To: [redacted]

>Subject: Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
>
>I have no interest in wading into this thread, but my feeling is that >the 2 post rule did much more to quell interesting, active & >spontaneous discussion, than any form of moderation.
>
>~mIEKAL
>
>back to lurkhood
>

↑ Index

302. Kate Eichhorn

Feminist Poetics - Open Letter (Summer 2009) Special Issue

Fri 29 May 2009

Open Letter (13, 9) -- Beyond Stasis: Poetics and Feminism Today Guest Editors: Kate Eichhorn and Barbara Godard

Open Letter (13, 9) features poetic statements and essays by and about innovative Canadian women poets born since 1960. Spanning at least two generations of writers, this issue places a group of new and already well established women poets in the context of Canada’s rich history of avant-garde women's writing. Contributors include Sina Queyras, Margaret Christakos, Rita Wong, Rachel Zolf, Nathalie Stephens, Trish Salah, Angela Rawlings, Angela Carr and Jenny Sampirisi among others.

To order copies of Open Letter (13, 9) go to:

http://publish.uwo.ca/~fdavey/sub.htm

↑ Index

303. David-Baptiste Chirot

Woodland Pattern--E-News: Small Press Focus & Alternating Currents Live

Fri 29 May 2009

Woodland Pattern E-News!http://www.woodlandpattern.org/_____ IN THIS ANNOUNCEMENT:==========EVENTSSat. 5/30: Reading & Small Press Focus with Kathleen Rooney, Brandi Homan, Becca Klaver; 7pmSun. 5/31: Alternating Currents Live presents Urs Leimgruber; 7pm

WORKSHOPSSat. 5/30: Sense & Nonsense" with Becca Klaver; 12-4pmJune 2 – July 16: Jack Collom Workshop Series at the Wilson Park Senior Center==========

==========SATURDAY, MAY 30: SWITCHBACK BOOKS READING & WORKSHOP========== Reading & Small Press Focus with Kathleen Rooney, Brandi Homan, Becca Klaver Saturday, May 30, 2009; 7pm ($8/$7/$6)Woodland Pattern Book Center720 East Locust StreetMilwaukee, WI 53212 Switchback Books is a feminist press publishing poetry by women. Founded in 2006 by a group of students at Columbia College Chicago, Switchback Books publishes two books a year, one of which is the winner of the Gatewood Prize for a first book of poetry by a woman aged 18 through 39. Brandi Homan is the author of Hard Reds (Shearsman Books, 2008). Her chapbook, Two Kinds of Arson, is available from dancing girl press. She earned her MFA at Columbia College Chicago and is editor-in-chief of Switchback Books. Kathleen Rooney was born in Beckley, West Virginia and raised in the Midwest. Along with Abby Beckel, she is a founding editor of Rose Metal Press. She is the author of Reading with Oprah: the Book Club That Changed America (University of Arkansas, 2005), That Tiny Insane Voluptuousness (Otoliths, 2008), a poetry collaboration with Elisa Gabbert, Oneiromance (an epithalamion), which won the the 2007 Gatewood Prize from Switchback Books, and Live Nude Girl: My Life as an Object (University of Arkansas Press, 2009), an occupational memoir. She lives in Chicago with her husband, the writer Martin Seay. Becca Klaver was born and raised in Milwaukee, attended the University of Southern California (BA) and Columbia College Chicago (MFA), and currently lives in Chicago, where she works and teaches at Columbia. With Brandi Homan and Hanna Andrews, she co-edits the feminist poetry press Switchback Books. Recent work can be found online in No Tell Motel, H_NGM_N, and Coconut. Her chapbook, Inside a Red Corvette: A 90s Mix Tape, is available from the greying ghost press. WORKSHOP"Sense & Nonsense: A Poetry Workshop" with Becca KlaverSaturday, May 30, 2009, 12am-4pm ($40/$35 WP Members includes ticket to 7pm reading) Call now to register! [redacted] Through a variety of sensory and nonsensical experiments, in this workshop we will explore our relationships to each of the traditional five senses (especially those we take for granted), consider the additional senses that poets rely on (sixth, seventh, seventeenth), examine synesthesia and other sense-related poetic topics, and indulge in nonsense. Experiments may or may not include flâneuring, blindfolds, taste/smell/touch-tests, and speaking in tongues, or in Stein. Participants will be asked to bring a few simple supplies to aid in the experiments, and will use the material generated to compose one or more poems or short texts by the end of the workshop.

http://www.woodlandpattern.org/workshops/adults.shtml#klaver ==========SUNDAY, MAY 31: URS LEIMGRUBER CONCERT; 7PM========== Alternating Currents Live presents Urs Leimgruber a concert of solo saxophone improvisations Sunday, May 31, 2009; 7pm ($8/$7/$6)Woodland Pattern Book Center720 East Locust StreetMilwaukee, WI 53212 Born Lucern, Switzerland in 1952, composer and saxophonist Urs Leimgruber has been active for many years in the areas of contemporary improvisation, composition, jazz and new music. In one of his earliest musical associations he was as a member of the electric jazz/free music group 'Om' with Christy Doran, Fredy Study and Bobbi Burri. His own projects have included a long duo association with percussionist Fritz Hauser, the Leimgruber/Roidinger/Hauser trio; as well as trio collaborations with both Joëlle Léandre and Marilyn Crispell. He has recently formed 'quartet noir' with Marilyn Crispell, Joëlle Léandre and Fritz Hauser. In addition to these long-standing collaborations Urs Leimgruber performs extensively as a solo artist and often performs in a wide variety of mixed media presentations, providing music for dance, radio plays and film. Throughout his career he has appeared in concert and on recordings with Steve Lacy, Tim Berne, Fred Frith, Joe McPhee, Lauren Newton, Keith Rowe, Sunny Murray, among many others.
http://www.woodlandpattern.org
==========JUNE 2 - JULY 16: JACK COLLOM WORKSHOP & RESIDENCY========== Jack Collom Workshop Series at the Wilson Park Senior Center Tuesdays & Thursdays, June 2 - July 16, 1pm-3pm (free & open to everyone 50 & older)Wilson Park Senior Center2601 W. Howard Ave.Milwaukee, WI 53221 Jack Collom will lead a series of creative memoir writing workshops with older adults beginning June 2, 2009. This exciting project will help nurture and share the voices of older adults through a lively series of writing exercises and playful exploration. Workshops are open to anyone over 50 and will be held at Wilson Park Senior Center, 2601 W. Howard Avenue in Milwaukee. Don’t miss this once in a lifetime opportunity to tell your story! Jack Collom joined the U.S. Air Force and wrote his first poems in Tripoli, Libya. He returned to the U.S. and worked in factories for twenty years. He earned a BA and an MA in English on the GI Bill, and has taught Creative Writing free-lance for over thirty years. Collom has authored 22 books and chapbooks. In 2001, Tuumba Press issued a more than 500-page-long volume, Red Car Goes By, as his Selected Poems. His latest books are Exchanges of Earth & Sky and Situations, Sings. Woodland Pattern looks forward to hosting Jack Collom as part of a Creativity and Aging initiative, with generous support from the NEA's Creativity and Aging in America initiative, the UWM Center on Age and Community, and Interfaith Milwaukee

http://www.woodlandpattern.org
==========Follow us on Twitter:
http://www.twitter.com/woodlandpatternWe're also on Facebook and MySpace!
========== To receive regular messages notifying you of Woodland Patternevents, send a message to us at [redacted] with"Join E-List" in the subject line. To unsubscribe from these mailings send a reply with "unsubscribe"in the subject line. PLEASE FORWARD! THANKS!!!

http://www.woodlandpattern.org/

Woodland Pattern Book Center

720 E. Locust Street

Milwaukee, WI 53212

phone [redacted]
_____ Hotmail® has ever-growing storage! Don't worry about storage limits.
http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/Storage?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tutorial_Storage1_052009

↑ Index

304. Brian Clements
Seeking Liz Waldner
Fri 29 May 2009

Anyone have a current email address for her?

bc

Prof. Brian Clements, Coordinator
MFA in Creative and Professional Writing Western Connecticut State University
[redacted]
http://www.wcsu.edu/writing/mfa

↑ Index

305. Christina Milletti

CFP: &Now Conference of Innovative Writing & the Literary Arts

Fri 29 May 2009

CALL FOR WORK
&Now: a Conference of Innovative Writing and the Literary Arts
New Proposal Deadline: June 15, 2009

The 4th Biennial &Now Conference of Innovative Writing & the Literary Arts will be held in Buffalo, NY from October 15-17, 2009. The &Now Festival explores intersections between creative and critical praxes, examines innovative and experimental acts of writing, and advances a serious inquiry into theories of language.

Keynote Speakers: Robert Coover, Nathaniel Mackey, Rikki Ducornet

PLEASE SUBMIT.... Critical papers and cross genre work of all kinds: criti-fictional presentations, readings, performance pieces (digital, sound, and otherwise), and digital and multimedia projects. Pieces that address linguistic transgressions, the limits of genre, or works that promote interdisciplinary explorations are particularly encouraged. Proposals can be for individual readings, critical panels, creative panels, and/or roundtable discussions.

Please send proposals by email in the following format:

*Title of Proposed Reading/Performance/Presentation
*Brief Description (no more than 500 words).
*Brief Bio (a few sentences) of all participants
*Tech needs (if any)

Submit all proposals to: [redacted]

PROPOSAL DEADLINE: June 15, 2009.

Please note: Each session will be approximately 75 minutes. Individual presentations/readings should therefore be limited to 15-20 minutes so that grouped sessions that make thematic sense can be arranged.

For more information, visit:
http://www.english.buffalo.edu/andnow/

Or contact:
Dimitri Anastasopoulos at [redacted] or Christina Milletti at [redacted]

****

Links to prior &Now Conferences:

&Now 2005: University of Notre Dame, South Bend, Indiana
http://www.nd.edu/~andnow/

&Now 2006: Lake Forest College, Chicago
http://www.lakeforest.edu/academics/programs/engl/andnow/

&Now 2008: Chapman University, Los Angeles
http://andnowfestival.com/

↑ Index

306. William Allegrezza
new AnPo(APo)/AniPo/POAtry blog
Fri 29 May 2009

---

i am going to create a new blog dedicated to animated poetry. i'm thinking mostly about animated .gifs, but it really could be any type of animation. (i'm a simple person. i just like to see moving words.) if you have something to add, send it to me at [redacted]. the blog will be as unedited as i can let it be, so i'll take just about anything. i'm just going to chunk what is sent onto the blog.

i know the e-mail address sounds like a spoof, but the blog will be real. i just like imaging a bunch of poets typing holymerda.

if you are an academic lacky, don't take the "unedited" thing to mean feel free to send me vita filler.

bill allegrezza

p.s. feel free to give me feedback on the idea. hopefully it generates more excitement than the poetry wiki i created (http://innovativeaudiences.pbworks.com/). that was lame.

↑ Index

307. William Allegrezza
wiki--call for writers
Fri 29 May 2009

---

ok, so i still think the idea of a poetics wiki that has space for any type of discussion is a good idea. here is the one i created a few years ago: http://innovativeaudiences.pbworks.com/. it already has some great discussion under the language traditions link from ernesto priego. i encourage you all, especially in light of the recent discussions here, to jump on the site and add your views. since i want to see the discussion myself, i'll sweeten the offer. i'll buy anyone who posts a beer (or a martini, coffee, tea, water, etc).

deal only valid when the writer visits chicago at a convenient time for me and visits the local bar/cafe/lake within walking distance from my place.

↑ Index

308. Catherine Daly
Re: What is Open?
Fri 29 May 2009

Well, Mesey and Berg included Levertov's organic poetry essay in NAKED poetry, but I see no reason open = organic

On Wed, May 27, 2009 at 3:23 PM, Paul Nelson <[redacted]> wrote:

> Open is organic.
>
> The Organic poem is not the recor
> Catherine,
>
> Open is organic.
>
> The Organic poem is not the record of an event, it is an event, an occasion of experience, a map of the mind at work in the moment, ear measuring and mind mediating the crowd of outside voices/impulses and resonances erring on the side of entelechy for the individual and polis and culture, in deep connection with dimensions larger than the pen-holder, enacting – not describing – the instant rather than the act of thought about the instant.
>
> The Organic poem is allied with velocity and the duende beyond mere discourse and the function of symbology, imbued with a luminousity that exists just beyond comprehension of the pen-holder, and ripples with the silver of a wave in the midnight of Harvest Moonlight, or the white of alder-filtered September sunlight just beyond the foot of the morning altar.
>
> It is the living apprehension of the underlying form as it spills out its testimony as only the moment can reveal, never completely contained in one poem except that poem which is the final result of a lifetime of an individual poet's never fully articulate striving, a chaotic murmur of soul re-directing self to Self in an alchemical conjunctio only antepasados fully comprehend.
>
> It is the practice divine of ear training, star to mind to hand to pen to blossoming, a harvesting of forces learned over years, decades, lifetimes of homage and refined, knows process as its own inherent reward in a systemless system which chooses recklessly those who would use speech (at once) at its least careless and least logical, poet as time mechanic, not embalmer.

The Organic poem is the mercy, mercy, mercy of the intersection of the vastness of outer space with the vastness of the space inside skull in complete candor, the ordinary mind in discovery of perceptions eternal in celebration of person (Universe is Person), not a stream of consciousness, more a coherent splendor, more a field of first permission to which one is allowed access more often than one thinks.

Paul

Paul E. Nelson

Global Voices Radio
SPLAB!
American Sentences
Organic Poetry
Poetry Postcard Blog

Ilalqo, WA [redacted]

From: Catherine Daly <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, May 27, 2009 2:24:22 PM
Subject: Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

Richard's post, as well as my finding a first edition Naked Poetry anthology at the library book sale, made me think of a definition of what we mean by "open poetry" "open poetics" and -- "open discussion".

--
All best,
Catherine Daly

> [redacted]

--
All best,
Catherine Daly
[redacted]

↑ Index

309. Paul Nelson
Re: What is Open?
Fri 29 May 2009

Open means allowing the poem to find its own track. Duncan Catherine,

Open means allowing the poem to find its own track. Duncan and Levertov used this language in the early 60's in their correspondence and differentiated Organic from Free Verse and certainly from Conventional poetry. You have to be open to let the poem find its way...open to the turns a poem wants to make for itself. A free verse poem like Howl is not entirely organic, because Allen had a sense of what he wanted to say about his friends and acquantences being fucked over by the Military-Industrial mentality and the industry-generated culture which maintains this force.

Robin Blaser, rest his soul, in the introduction to The Holy Forest suggests:"The whole marvellous thing of open form is a traditional and an American problem...the sublime poem (tells) the narrative of the spirit...not simply to be led to a conclusion, but be taken by such a magical carmen perpetuum to all the image-nations of this remarkable, revivifying world.

In my meetings with him in 2005 & 6 (documented here: http://www.goldenhandcuffsreview.com/gh9content/16.html) he was fine with calling it Open, Projective and Organic, as if the terms were interchangable. But I think Organic is more evocative of the cosmology of process, relationship and interdependence als Whitehead and the Hua Yen Buddhists. This is why I prefer it.

Paul

Paul E. Nelson

Global Voices Radio
SPLAB!
American Sentences

Organic Poetry
Poetry Postcard Blog

Ilalqo, WA [redacted]

From: Catherine Daly <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Friday, May 29, 2009 11:29:15 AM
Subject: Re: What is Open?

Well, Mesey and Berg included Levertov's organic poetry essay in NAKED poetry, but I see no reason open = organic

On Wed, May 27, 2009 at 3:23 PM, Paul Nelson <[redacted]> wrote:

> Open is organic.
>
> The Organic poem is not the recor
> Catherine,
>
> Open is organic.
>
> The Organic poem is not the record of an event, it is an event, an occasion of experience, a map of the mind at work in the moment, ear measuring and mind mediating the crowd of outside voices/impulses and resonances erring on the side of entelechy for the individual and polis and culture, in deep connection with dimensions larger than the pen-holder, enacting â€“ not describing â€“ the instant rather than the act of thought about the instant.
>
> The Organic poem is allied with velocity and the duende beyond mere discourse and the function of symbology, imbued with a luminousity that exists just beyond comprehension of the pen-holder, and ripples with the silver of a wave in the midnight of Harvest Moonlight, or the white of alder-filtered September sunlight just beyond the foot of the morning altar.
>
> It is the living apprehension of the underlying form as it spills out its testimony as only the moment can reveal, never completely contained in one poem except that poem which is the final result of a lifetime of an individual poetâ€™s never fully articulate striving, a chaotic murmur of soul re-directing self to Self in an alchemical conjunctio only antepasados fully comprehend.

It is the practice divine of ear training, star to mind to hand to pen to blossoming, a harvesting of forces learned over years, decades, lifetimes of homage and refined, knows process as its own inherent reward in a systemless system which chooses recklessly those who would use speech (at once) at its least careless and least logical, poet as time mechanic, not embalmer.

The Organic poem is the mercy, mercy, mercy of the intersection of the vastness of outer space with the vastness of the space inside skull in complete candor, the ordinary mind in discovery of perceptions eternal in celebration of person (Universe is Person), not a stream of consciousness, more a coherent splendor, more a field of first permission to which one is allowed access more often than one thinks.

Paul

Paul E. Nelson

Global Voices Radio
SPLAB!
American Sentences
Organic Poetry
Poetry Postcard Blog

Ilalqo, WA [redacted]

From: Catherine Daly <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, May 27, 2009 2:24:22 PM
Subject: Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors

Richard's post, as well as my finding a first edition Naked Poetry anthology at the library book sale, made me think of a definition of what we mean by
"open poetry" "open poetics" and -- "open discussion".

--

> All best,
> Catherine Daly
> [redacted]

--
All best,
Catherine Daly
[redacted]

↑ Index

310. K. Silem Mohammad

WEST WIND REVIEW 2009 feat. Rod Smith, Jen Hofer, Kevin Killian, Jennifer Knox, et al.

Fri 29 May 2009

WEST WIND REVIEW 2009

featuring

David Watson, Mel Nichols, Rod Smith, Catherine Meng, Grzegorz Wróblewski, Eddie Watkins, Ryan Fitzpatrick, Elisabeth Workman, Kathleen Rooney & Elisa Gabbert, Drew Gardner, Andrew Felsinger, Carol Guess, Jen Hofer, Brandon Brown, Stan Apps, Shane Allison, Nico Vassilakis, Noah Eli Gordon, Joshua Marie Wilkinson, Kaia Sand, Brandon Shimoda, Meg Hurtado, Alli Warren, William Knight, Dawn Sueoka, Lanny Quarles, Jim Klein, Michael Magee, Sandra Simonds, Jennifer Knox, Gary Sullivan, Rhoads Stevens, & Kevin Killian

Brandon Brown, "Talking's Money":

there's a hole in my pocket
but I'm talking with my mouth the speech goes out into the arena where sometimes it wields clubs and sometimes tingles (in a good way)

most often it returns to me transformed face to face with my own speech in the form of ghoulishly melted ore from the earth. What it says
I strain to hear. The sewer inside my neck spits like a dog's mouth but it wipes off clean, easy, shining.

$8 + $3 s&h

TO ORDER:

http://soubookstore.collegestoreonline.com/ePOS?this_category=4&store=523&item_number=9780971008588&form=shared3%2fgm%2fdetail%2ehtml&design=523

WWR BLOG:

http://westwindreview.blogspot.com/

--

K. Silem Mohammad
http://lime-tree.blogspot.com

↑ Index

311. Catherine Daly
Re: new AnPo(APo)/AniPo/POAtry blog
Fri 29 May 2009

isn't it lackey?

On Fri, May 29, 2009 at 11:00 AM, William Allegrezza
<[redacted]>wrote:

> *i am going to create a new blog dedicated to animated poetry. i'm thinking mostly about animated .gifs, but it really could be any type of animation. (i'm a simple person. i just like to see moving words.) if you have something to add, send it to me at [redacted]. the blog will be as unedited as i can let it be, so i'll take just about anything. i'm just going to chunk what is sent onto the blog.
>
> i know the e-mail address sounds like a spoof, but the blog will be real. i just like imaging a bunch of poets typing holymerda.*
>
> if you are an academic lacky, don't take the "unedited" thing to mean feel free to send me vita filler.*
>
> bill allegrezza
>
> p.s. feel free to give me feedback on the idea. hopefully it generates more excitement than the poetry wiki i created (http://innovativeaudiences.pbworks.com/). that was lame.

--
All best,
Catherine Daly
[redacted]

↑ Index

312. Peter
Dispensational collapse quartet
Fri 29 May 2009

<http://ciccariello.viewbook.com/dispensational_collapse>Dispensational collapse quartet <http://ciccariello.viewbook.com/dispensational_collapse>

-- Peter Ciccariello

http://invisiblenotes.blogspot.com/
http://uncommonvision.blogspot.com/
http://poemsfromprovidence.blogspot.com/
http://uncommon-vision.blogspot.com/
You can find my art and writing updates on Twitter @ciccariello

↑ Index

313. Charles Alexander
Re: What is Open?
Fri 29 May 2009

Also, I think Duncan and Olson thought the poem was not a "closed" system, i.e. it was open to what is "not" the poem, so that a poem didn't need to feel "finished" and set apart, so that one might think of the field as encompassing more than the single poem, even more than the single poet, a field of relations in which any single poem is partial. I think Blaser touches on this in the quote Paul brings forth here, about where the poem takes the reader, where it takes the poet. I'm not quite so comfortable with "organic" only in that I'm not sure how that might fit with the use of various procedures (a la Mac Low), which I think can (but don't necessarily always) partake of "open" poetry as well. "Organic" as I might understand it would apply various sorts of natural progressions in the poem, and I don't think that "natural" is the only way for the poem to move openly. But quite possibly Blaser had no such sense of "organic" as I do.

charles

charles alexander
chax press
[redacted]
411 N 7th ave, suite 103
tucson arizona 85705
[redacted]

On May 29, 2009, at 12:09 PM, Paul Nelson wrote:

> Open means allowing the poem to find its own track. Duncan
> Catherine,
>
> Open means allowing the poem to find its own track. Duncan and Levertov used this language in the early 60's in their correspondence and differentiated Organic from Free Verse and certainly from Conventional poetry. You have to be open to let the poem find its way...open to the turns a poem wants to make for itself. A free verse poem like Howl is not entirely organic, because Allen had a sense of what he wanted to say about his friends and acquantences being fucked over by the Military-Industrial mentality and the industry-generated culture which maintains this force.
>
> Robin Blaser, rest his soul, in the introduction to The Holy Forest suggests:"The whole marvellous thing of open form is a traditional and an American problem...the sublime poem (tells) the narrative of the spirit...not simply to be led to a conclusion, but be taken by such a magical carmen perpetuum to all the image-nations of this remarkable, revivifying world.
>
> In my meetings with him in 2005 & 6 (documented here: http://www.goldenhandcuffsreview.com/gh9content/16.html) he was fine with calling it Open, Projective and Organic, as if the terms were interchangable. But I think Organic is more evocative of the cosmology of process, relationship and interdependence als Whitehead and the Hua Yen Buddhists. This is why I prefer it.
>
> Paul
>
> Paul E. Nelson
>
> Global Voices Radio
> SPLAB!
> American Sentences
> Organic Poetry
> Poetry Postcard Blog
>
> Ilalqo, WA [redacted]

From: Catherine Daly <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Friday, May 29, 2009 11:29:15 AM
Subject: Re: What is Open?

Well, Mesey and Berg included Levertov's organic poetry essay in NAKED poetry, but I see no reason open = organic

On Wed, May 27, 2009 at 3:23 PM, Paul Nelson <[redacted]> wrote:

Open is organic.

The Organic poem is not the recor
Catherine,

Open is organic.

The Organic poem is not the record of an event, it is an event, an occasion of experience, a map of the mind at work in the moment, ear measuring and mind mediating the crowd of outside voices/impulses and resonances erring on the side of entelechy for the individual and polis
and culture, in deep connection with dimensions larger than the pen-holder, enacting – not describing – the instant rather than the act of thought about the instant.

The Organic poem is allied with velocity and the duende beyond mere discourse and the function of symbology, imbued with a luminousity that exists just beyond comprehension of the pen-holder, and ripples with the silver of a wave in the midnight of Harvest Moonlight, or the white of alder-filtered September sunlight just beyond the foot of the morning altar.

It is the living apprehension of the underlying form as it spills out its testimony as only the moment can reveal, never completely contained in one poem except that poem which is the final result of a lifetime of an individual poet's never fully articulate striving, a chaotic murmur of soul re-directing self to Self in an alchemical conjunctio only antepasados fully comprehend.

It is the practice divine of ear training, star to mind to hand to pen to blossoming, a harvesting of forces learned over years, decades, lifetimes of homage and refined, knows process as its own inherent reward in a systemless system which chooses recklessly those who would use speech (at once) at its least careless and least logical,
poet as time mechanic, not embalmer.

The Organic poem is the mercy, mercy, mercy of the intersection of the vastness of outer space with the vastness of the space inside skull in complete candor, the ordinary mind in discovery
of perceptions eternal in celebration of person (Universe is Person), not a stream of consciousness, more a coherent splendor, more a field of first permission to which one is allowed access more often than one thinks.

Paul

Paul E. Nelson

Global Voices Radio
SPLAB!
American Sentences
Organic Poetry
Poetry Postcard Blog

Ilalqo, WA [redacted]

> From: Catherine Daly <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Wednesday, May 27, 2009 2:24:22 PM
> Subject: Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
>
> Richard's post, as well as my finding a first edition Naked Poetry anthology
> at the library book sale, made me think of a definition of what we mean by
> "open poetry" "open poetics" and -- "open discussion".
>
> --
> All best,
> Catherine Daly
> [redacted]
>
> guidelines
>
> guidelines
>
> --
> All best,
> Catherine Daly
> [redacted]
>
> welcome.html
>
> welcome.html

↑ Index

314. David Chirot

Fear of Poetry/Poetry of Fear --Palfest 2009--Police, Army try shutting down Opening , Closing Nights

Fri 29 May 2009

To Confront the Culture of Power with the Power of Culture-- Edward Said, quoted at Palfest09 after it became, thanks tothe Army and Ploice literaly and literally true--

I sent earlier this week a piece re Fear of Poetry, Poetry of Fear and Poetry FOR Fear--and Fear FOR Poetry-- as "fear of poetry " was at the origin of the long discussion that is most recently re what to do abt about lists/discussions--

I don't know if anyone else has been following it, but from 23 May to 28 has been the 2nd "Palfest"--Palestinian Festival of Literature.

The festival is actually a touring one, beginning in Jerusalem and traveling to several different towns and communities before returning to Jerusalem for the Closing Night Events.

Jerusalem was chosen because this year it is the rotating Arab Capital of Culture. Every year the Capital is in a different City and country--

Opening Night was set upon by Police and IOF soldiers; the French consulate volunteered their cultural spaces--so to speak- for the night and the Festival proceeded without a hitch.

The final night--last night--the same thing occurred--the Army and some police appeared, a paper was nailed to a door--and the planned Theater site was made a Forbidden Zone.

This time the British Consulate stepped in and provided the site for the Events.

I've been posting a steady stream of the videos the Palfest Photo stream, and also many International reports on the events. (Ha'arretz has a lot f l inks at its site--and very good coverage--most of the reports i have found so far are Israeli and from various Arabic networks. (The only language i checked in so far is English--now on to more--) http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com http://www.palfest.org/

The only mention so far found in the USA media is a tiny note today from USA today.

Also haven been posting readings , interviews, articles, reviews of several contemporary Palestinian and Palestinian-American writers and performers and as ever music videos also.Esp of one of my favorite bands, Checkpoint 303--one of the most interesting and original electronic/sampling, unplugged acoustic, uses of recorded documentary sounds in streets and from literally old documentaries. bands around in their uses of sounds, mixes, ,live recordings and techno and "natural" instruments--across three countries and two continents--

Perhaps the "Fear of Poetry" is too evident in the attempted closing downs to be considered an "interesting enough" form of fear these days?

On the other hand there is the Fear of reporting about these events and also,of discussing them,--in terms of the discussion here--to really discuss, rather than censoring or attacking-- because this is "not really to do with poetry." does that mean that it really cant be discussed at al in such a relation?

or is that simply "yet another reason to rid oneself and language of the troubling obstacles to the purity of the language the tribe--"

Or simply in the case of the "conflict," only one side is really permissible to think of and act on in the US.

This fear is the one impressed on one in a culture and society which has developed a powerful denial of events in favor of words, and in this way interiorized self censorship regarding many issues, among them quite prominently the Israeli-Palestinian "conflict."

To be rid of conflict means that there remain now " no opposing sides"--no contradictory language
IT IS ONE
it is won

Of course it is not a fear or closing down only on the account of Poetry, but oon account and due to al aspects of a culture and people, because any acknowledgement of them is taken to be a criticism of the other side, when it may not be anything other than a simple statement of fact.

Which is the most feared of all, these facts, because they do not agree with the discourse which has been created for these situations.

In order to keep hidden the US and its Black President supporting an Apartheid Regime, the word "Apartheid" as much as possible must be attacked if mentioned, and the person--as Jimmy Carter found out--writing or saying the word is attacked personally, morally, aesthetically, in every way possible, so as to give an object lessons in what happens unless the repellent word is expunged not only form language, but from thought itself.

This is basically the project that Orwell outlines in 1984 and its appendices on the development of Newspeak.

The reduction of the lexicon that is permissible and remains in use though every day shrinking a bit, by bit----this reduction of vocabulary creates also a reduction in thinking, and especially thinking of any "critical" kind. Instead, one is trained to dutifully be unquestioning in the acceptance of whatever one is told, even if yesterday one was expected to believe the exact opposite. This "forgetting" via unquestioning belief erases memory also, so another critical faculty is expunged.

Over the last couple years--and in this discussion, pronounced by Amy, the term "dumbing down" has become something that is being contended with in re poetics and poetry.

Apparently the "dumbing down' is considered a natural casualty of adjustment to quite different times etc, and different technologies, and, ironically, "difficult poetries."

(Perhaps the "dumbing down" makes the "difficult poems" much more prevalent and easier to not only create but also constructing itself as a discourse that does not even permit the thought that it is making itself ever more less capable of understanding the "difficult poem," which in itself is being turned into ever more gibberish, as no one really notices--and al that matter is that the "difficult poem" be preserved against the "attack of the dumbed down readers."

Now why would an intellectual or a poet, as I read Charles Bernstein also speaking of "dumbing down" being something that the was accused of-and didn't seem to find so bad--, why wd a poet want to speak so casually of the fact that one must accept the dumbing down, as what one "gains from it," is at least for the nonce, more important.

Perhaps for the simple reason of taking advantage a situation in order to be advantaged by it and so --making it the only existing "alternative"--

That is, the "dumbing down" of others makes ever more "evident" the difficulty of the poet's "difficult poems." Both the dumbed down and the poets themselves will see very clearly that the difficulty of difficult poems is a matter of a simple and natural occurrence,and fate, of some persons being less dumbed down than other, making them the ones capable of making and understanding the difficult poems so difficult that the vast run of humans may wel not arise to the levels of thought required to "understand" or "process" the difficult poem

The debates over the lack of "critical, satiric or negative reviews of books of poetry," are in a sense a barking up the wrong tree.

For if only those capable of reading difficult poetry are reading writing and reviewing it, how wds any one out side the circles of of difficult poets ever even know care or be interested if what they are reviewing is good bad or ugly--

The problem is, that after a certain point, the dumbing dow and expunging and erasing of vocabularies, meanings, references, allusions, creates the impossibility of the mind to recover or reverse engineer what it was was dumbed down from.

Dumbing down, considered as a process of effects and aims on the "mental state and well being of individuals," iis not unlike the "we had to destroy the village to save it," deformation of thoughts and words that the Vietnam War-and every War-produces.

The "fear of poetry" often discussed on this list as in a certain way at times being seen as a "positive sign of its difficulty"--is taken to be a fear of "poetic language" rather than perhaps motivated by class differences, cultural differences, political imperatives or simply that the elite practitioners need to feel that they are in possession of something"too difficult" for the great unwashed to grasp.

Indeed, "difficult poetry" is felt to be its own sure sure guarantee of one's elite status in comparison to those weak and hopeless dullards who are the bards of al other poetries--

I wrote previously of many different reasons that a person might fear not poetry, but simply being asked questions that are being "noted down" and counted observed, polled and --what then--by these nosy and snooping individuals from perhaps a secret undercover govt agency?--

This age of Security ,wire tapping, email decoding,library card watching and checking, the time of the monitoring of the destinations one not only flies but drives to-walks to--the stores and public restrooms frequented--in an age like this what is really needed i is not Security on the part of the State, but of the interiorization of the behaviours habits, thoughts and words of the Security States directives and recommendations of "dumbing down" and also of the "attack of the difficult poems"--as a reminder to each particular group of its positioning in the hierarchies of the society vis a vis one another.

The Thought Police, the Brain Police--especially now that the Obama Administration is essaying to introduce into US Law the concept that one may "detain indefinitely" a person who MAY IN THE FUTURE THINK OF COMMITTING A CRIME--OR EVEN COMMIT IT.

To arrest someone because they have the possibility someday of doing such and such--is a truly disturbing form of instilling fear, because one will have to be ever more carefully monitored by ONESELF--trying to desperately to control and prevent one's inward thoughts and their outward expressions."happening" or "behaving"in any way remotely suggestive of a future criminality-

The self censuring citizen will need no censor from above or outside itself, as everything will be censored before leaving the consciousness of the citizen involved.To continually fear not what has happened and being caught, for it, or what is happening and being caught, but to not caught,not charged, not accused, but simply "detained indefinitely" for something one has never done--simply so that one may in fact NEVER DO IT-- basically delivering one over to the authorities via breakdown and the overwhelming sense of guilt----like Winston Smith's in 1984--guilt not for something in the past as Freudian psychology and religions would have one be wary of--but of something which one does not have any idea of which others think one is be capable of doing in the future--so capable that it is better that one is detained indefinitely--

(Why not lock everyone u after being born and nursed long enough to make the transfer to the life time cell-- in a sense this is what a good part of Earth's billions are bron into--not to mention the imnese prison of Gaza--where one is guilty for being Palestinian--because of course one day you wil be a terrorist--if not already being one at a few weeks old--

Is this not what "Homeland Security" is really about?

Securing language and minds so that "seldom is heard a discouraging word and the skies are not cloudy al day."

Home Homeland on the Range!--

The "fear of Poetry " then is actually cherished by an elite as it designates them as above such toxic situations, and thinking themselves immune, they do not notice that in fact they are among the traffic cops directing the flow of persons thoughts words al into one direction, the one that knows it is "Home Wa/ord Bound"--bound and gagged--

Instead of Fear of Poetry what one is manufacturing is the Poetry of Fear and the Poetry For Fear.

A Poetics can be seen as an "attacking entity" like a virus, or parasite as it seeks to attach itself to the body of the subject, and from there to work the way INWO/ARDS--and to create as it travels a wake behind it in which everything previously present "vanishes amid the white froth--"

a present absentee- - is now become what it needs to be to fullfll its destiny (as the Israeli reporters are trained to write and speak of a Palestinian killed by the IOF--"they met, or walked into, their destiny"--which came about naturally , and via Kismet, rather than by any human agency which might be forced to take respsonsibality some day.

And because one is not supposed to acknowledge that this is happening, , these events, this closing of poetry festivals, Apartheid Walls, denial of 700 students in Gaza to attend the schools and universities including in the us that they have fellowships and grants for--o because of the immense and immensely contradictory, surreal and horrifying gaps between words and things, words and events, words and peoples,--one is ever more constrained to interiorize the imperatives of the society and culture to "remain silent," or to learn, like Winston Smith that Peace is War, 2 +2=5 that is--that loving Big brother one now understands that seeming Opposites are equal, thus ruling out the possibility of the previous elements of the equation ever having existed-- one learns the ineffable joys of denying that one knew ever existed an alternative , or that one ever thought even thought and so, eventually one cannot recall at all what it was that one forgot-- the complete expunging of those irksome questionings doubts, those impure words ideas and actions which are the obstacles between one and Big Brother-- and demonstrating this ineffable joy in the Truth by joining in the attacking bray as loudly and long as one can ,along with the ever more numerous and exactly like minded right thinking crowd, for the longer and more loudly the Big Lie is repeated, the more solid and real and unquestionable is its Truith--

Take for example Frank Geary-designed Simon Wiesenthal Museum of Tolerance in Israel-- which tolerates not a single shred of a thread that would give any evidence that the Palestinians ever existed right there for centuries., and continue to exist right outside the building.

The Museum of Tolerance however is a proof that, as Golda Meier said, "There never was such aa thing as a Palestinian."

The attempts to close down the Palfest 2009 is perfectly consistent with these attempts to make --"never existing"--be the state of anything Palestinian..

In fact, the Palestinians living inside Israel--who are steadily having al their rights taken away-- are called "present absentees."

This is a remarkable phrase--truly a poetic one--
In that a person who is a present absentee--is a reverse refugee, a reverse engineered ghost from the future--

To be an absentee who is "present'__wel isn't that the way that soldiers and prisoners are "hailed" as the man said.'
"present," "absent"-- already the prison routine has set in for these beings present awaiting their absentee status to be fulfilled.

of course al humans as transient beings on earth are "present absentees" from the point of view of Death-- the efficacy of the phrase is to designate specific persons as already dead-- and being present only by being absentees-- whose time has not yet quite come-don't you see --

like the Indians of the Americas-are very much in the way-- and so their presence needs to be absented as they walk out one day and "meet their destiny" which comes not due to the rocket that kills them and 14 others, but was simply the action of their personal private Kismet--

If one examines the current situations in the US and Israel, and everywhere where the things which words --via difficult poetry--no longer refer to or have any repsonability for-- is it not so that in order to believe in them unquestioningly , one must treat language itself not as a present absentee-- but as an absent present-- a "not there" meaning a never was there-- which however the Govt State sees as "not yet there" whose "indefinite detention" is an effort to ensure--Securely-- that the not yet there never wil be so that the absent present functions even more smoothly than does the present absentee-- and so even in the future--the past and p[resent never were there-are there-and this means that it wilnever happen there never wi be any change from this Steady State of Equilibrium of the Law of Entropy--the Second law of Thermodynamics--again, donning an sense of rationality and normality and happening as though completely "naturally" --so that it never is a there--and no, there never was such a thing-- nor wi thever be--

and so like Klaus Kinski's completely Mad Conquistador Arch Fiend of the Most Great Treaons-- Don Lope de Aguirre "The Wrath of God"-- in Werner Herzog's film, --the present has dropped away like al the dead aboard Aguirre's disintegrating raft overrun b small monkeys and in its place is that "difficult poetry " of making absent reality and --creating not an ambiguity of appearance but instead a complete splitting between the appearances and language, appearnces and things, persons-- a splitting in which it is "obvious" that one, in order to believe in the Big Lie now TRUTH which one of Aguirre's men struggles with--a boat in a tree indicating not there is ahaluciontation but instead that there is the new meaning of t"that is not a shoip, that is not a tree, --"the seeing of a doubled world now split asunder and collapsing into that empty space in which al things rare a smooth opacity, a surface of appearances from which never is heard a discouraging word

and the skies are not cloudy all day--
a discouraging word

is seldom heard
and the skies are not cloudy al day--

the search for that perfect El Dorado-- made possible by Mallarme's "purifying of the language of the tribe" which may be taken to mean also by some wags as the purifying of the tribe from language-- hurling any contradictory being thing object word name into that ayss in which there never was such a thing as a Palestinian, in which 2+ 2=5 and in which the US Black President is a supporter of Apartheid.

In the forced denial of reality --the Museum of Tolerance and its non present present absentees, who are treated as not even ever having been present let alone absent--that is, they never existed, such things-- in there, the ridding oneself of the contradictions of language creates poetry not difficult but one in which difficulty or ease are no longer questions-- al that is left now is that self same appearing of oneself to oneself as oneself purified in language and tribe into that ultimate trasncendence of the fusion of oneself with Big Brother-- the final closing down of the being of being-and the birth of the empty vessel of the new conceptualsm , which gives i the empty vessel tasks to perform-- copying to be done-- data to be moved about--filed-- and so-- dreaming that absent present is this hallucinatory Virtuality of detached things , detached words sheltering in the Difficult Poem and Museums of Tolerance-- where seldom is heard

a discouraging word
and the skies are not cloudy all day

↑ Index

315. CA Conrad
6 poets on A SHORT POEM
Sat 30 May 2009

Al Filreis is head of the Kelly Writers House at the University of Pennsylvania (more on Al here: http://www.writing.upenn.edu/~afilreis)

He invited 6 of us to come and talk to a group of students about a short poem, we each had 18 minutes to make our case.

Here's the link, video and/or audio:
http://writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/Six-Poets-Teach.html

HOPE YOU ENJOY,
CAConrad
advancedELVIS.blogspot.com

↑ Index

316. maxpaul
NAW free issues
Sat 30 May 2009

Subscribe to NAW and receive 2 recent back issues free, or send $5 postage for a free, recent back issue. Foreign mail is $15.

Now available:

NEW AMERICAN WRITING #27 with work from Mahmoud Darwish on Edward Said, Ben Lerner on Barbara Guest, Etel Adnan, Sylvia Legris, Phillip Foss, Clayton Eshleman, Ray Ragosta, Caroline Knox, Laynie Brown, Jennifer Pilch, Ales Steger, Brian Henry GC Waldrep, Brandon Shimoda, John Olson, Leonard Schwartz, Gassan Zaqtan, Fady Joudah, Rachel Loden, Sharon Dolin, Edward Smallfield, Joshua Kryah, Amy Pence, Linh Dinh, and many others.

Cover by David Maisel from "Library of Dust."

Available by check to New American Writing, 369 Molino Avenue, Mill Valley CA 94941 $36 for 3 issues.
  $15 for current issue.

----- End forwarded message -----

↑ Index

317. David Hadbawnik
kadar koli #4 now available!
Sat 30 May 2009

Edited by Roger Snell; designed by Ann Marie Snell; cover by Yasuhiro Esaki

Featuring work by Joanne Kyger, John Phillips, Nicole Mauro, Lal Ded(trans. Andrew Schelling), Betsy Andrews, Beau Beausoleil, Jacques Roubaud(trans. Eleni Sikelianos), George Albon, Kate Colby, David Miller, Carol Snow, Dale Smith, Laura Solorzano (trans. Jen Hofer), Chuck Stebelton, Rosmarie Waldrop, Theodore Enslin, translations of Gypsy Cante by Will Kirkland, Kristin Prevallet.

Published by Habenicht Press in Spring 2009 … thanks to Roger and Ann Marie for all their hard work on this issue, as well as all the lovely contributors!

$5 plus shipping.
visit www.habenichtpress.com

for ordering details

↑ Index

318. Maria Damon
check out issue #3!
Sat 30 May 2009

---

http://www.midribpoetry.com/

↑ Index

@poetics

The UB Poetics Discussion Group

Archive of Electronic Correspondence

June 2009

269 messages · Sun 31 May 2009 – Mon 29 Jun 2009

June 2009 buried another of its own and, in mourning him, found itself drawn all month to the figure of the outsider — the poet who stands askew to the institution, the metropolis, the canon, and makes something the inside could not. Two hundred and sixty-nine messages moved through the list, thinned by summer, and across them ran a quiet preoccupation with those who write from the margins: the exile, the naif, the self-taught, the poet nobody assigned. It was a fitting preoccupation for the month, because the man it lost had been, all his life, a brilliant outsider.

David Bromige died on the third, at seventy-five, and the room set up a page of memories for him. British-born, Canadian-raised, American by adoption, he had been the wittiest kind of exile — a Language-adjacent poet who belonged fully to no camp and punned his way past every orthodoxy — and his death left the list mourning a man who had made a whole art out of not quite fitting in. The obituary thread became, as they do here, a small collective portrait of a life spent gloriously to one side of the mainstream.

The largest live thread made the outsider a project. A mini-anthology of outsider poems gathered in progress, the room trading names of the untutored and the strange — one poster nominating "Best outsider poet I know is Malok", a man who had never read a poem in his life and made them anyway — the commons reaching past its own credentialed membership toward the poetry that comes from nowhere the schools recognize. Beside it, a thread on Kenneth Patchen kept the same faith, honoring the poet of experimental simplicity who had worked his whole career outside the academy's approval.

Against the margins the month set the center, and could not quite love it. A wide thread hunted for New York in fiction — the metropolis as the great subject, the inside of the inside — even as the room's heart plainly lay with Malok and Patchen and Bromige, the ones who wrote from the edges. And a soberer current sought poems treating the American occupation of Iraq, the reminder that the largest outside of all was the war the literature had barely metabolized.

I have set June down exactly as the archive delivered it — Bromige the witty exile gone, the outsider-poem anthology gathering its untutored names, Patchen the plain outsider honored, and the metropolis courted without conviction — because it was the month the list lost a great outsider and spent its grief the right way, by celebrating the whole tribe of them. A room that answers the death of a poet who never fit in by going looking for the man who never read a poem and made them anyway is a room declaring where its true loyalty lies: not with the center that credentials and canonizes, but with the margin, where the strangest and freest of the poetry has always actually come from.

— Kristen M. Fabians

Index

Writers, names mentioned, and concepts. Every number links to its message. 269 in all.

WRITERS

AND, mIEKAL 20, 21, 128, 129, 158, 178
Andrews, Jim 211, 240, 261
Angeline, Mary 25
Annual, Fulcrum 152
Bales, Marcus 205
Behm-Steinberg, Hugh 43, 96, 140
Bibby, Michael 127
Black, Sheila 40, 44
Books, Spineless 130
Borchart, Sharon Mesmer/David 19
Bowering, George 29, 72, 73, 84, 104, 136
Brady, Taylor 139
Brink, Dean 82, 175
Brown, Pam 117
Buuck, David 63
Camplin, Troy 185, 219
Casamassima, Christophe 186
Chirot, David 9, 26, 165, 258
Chirot, David-Baptiste 52, 153, 193, 224
Christopher.winks 167
Cleary, John 113
Clodfelter, Loretta 256
Conrad, CA 121, 208
Croggon, Alison 124
Cunningham, John 160
Dalachinsky, Steve 189, 212
Dalachinsky, Steve D. 67, 90, 168, 169
Daley, Ryan 22, 62
Daly, Catherine 108, 144, 163
Daly, Luke 53
Damon, Maria 24, 79, 101, 103, 122, 154, 166, 188, 190, 198, 217
Dean, Larry O. 71, 102
Dillon, Patrick 91, 107
Dolin, Sharon 12
DuCharme, Mark 57, 213
Dunagan, Patrick 51
Durgin, Patrick F. 39
Earl, Amanda 174, 269
Elshtain, Eric 268
Exley, Roy 126
Al Filreis 118
Foley, John 231
Frazer, Vernon 7
Giscombe, C. S. 123
Glass, Jesse 89
Godston, Daniel 78, 249
Gordon, Noah Eli 1
Hamilton, Robin 109
Hansen, Jeff 138
Heller, Michael 48, 49
Heman, Bob 16
Henriksen, Matt 202, 229
Hill, Laurie Schneider & Crag 111
Hinton, Laura 210
Hoffman, Crystal 17, 18
Holder, Doug 45, 262, 265
Jenkins, Grant 99
Jeroen, Nieuwland 259
Johnson, Halvard 11
Joris, Pierre 257
Joyce, Trevor 23
Karmin, Jennifer 15, 76, 120, 142, 223, 251
Kasimor, Mary 31, 75, 162
Katko, Justin 157, 207, 222
Katz, Adam 172
Kimmelman, Burt 47
King, Amy 10, 70, 83
Kirschenbaum, David 92, 110, 114, 192, 235, 243, 255
Kiviok, Kiviok 133
Koeneke, Rodney 244
Kuhn, Donna 54, 56
Ladkin, Sam 6, 179, 180
Lepson, Ruth 173, 218
Leslie, Wallis 87
List, Poetics 30
Loden, Rachel 112, 204
Madison, Alana 105
Manson, Douglas 38
Martin, Camille 149, 183
Maurer, Susan 13
McLennan, Rob 3, 66, 220, 234, 245
McVay, Gwyn 32
Meadows, Deborah 225
Meersman, Philip 230
Michael 98
Milletti, Christina 242
Mindock, Gloria 214, 215, 216
Mukherjee, Aryanil 68
Munday, Evan 182
Nelson, Paul 5, 58
Nemet-Nejat, Murat 161
Newman, Richard Jeffrey 206
Newmystics.com 191
Nielsen, Aldon 74, 197
Norðdahl, Eiríkur Örn 116
Oatis, Martha 34
Palm, Lars 8, 81, 97, 135
Penton, Jonathan 27, 28, 170, 171
Peter 155, 164
Peterson, Tim 267

Phipps, Wanda 64
PJ 184, 203
Project, Poetry 59
Review, Chicago 187
Reyes, Barbara Jane 264
Robins, Maureen 36, 37
Rosenthal, Sarah 134, 246
Ross, Stuart 159
Rossiter, Charlie 33
Rothenberg, Jerome 151
Rowan, Lou 94
Russell, Layne 200
Russell, Steve 60, 88, 132, 150, 181, 194, 201, 221, 239, 253
Sarai, Sarah 85, 250
Schickling, Jared 50
Schlesinger, Kyle 42, 241
Schultz, Susan Webster 143, 228, 266
Siegell, Paul 131
Slaughter, William 14
Smith, Rod 146
Sondheim, Alan 41, 55, 61, 77, 80, 125, 156, 176
Strand, Julie 2
Strudensky, Andrea 254
Sweeney, Chad 226, 227
Teersteeg 177
Traffic, Small Press 46, 232
Tranter, John 236
Twshaner 233
Vassilakis, Nico 196, 247
Vincent, Stephen 95, 209, 260
Vitale, Anna 145
Weaver, Rebecca 86
Weishaus, Joel 65, 119, 237
Weiss, Mark 35, 137
Welford, Gabrielle 69, 238, 252
Wharton, Samuel 4
Wilcox, Dan 147
Williams, John Moore 199
Wilson, Ian Randall 263
Winks, Christopher Leland 93, 100
Yildiran, Taylan 115
Young, Mark 141
}, { Brad Brace 106, 148, 195, 248

NAMES MENTIONED

Abramowitz, Harold 53
Ackerman, Amanda 53
Adams, Robert 245
Albright, Madeline 152
Alexander, Charles 5
Alice, Mary 193, 234
Allan, Edgar 26
Amato, Joe 213
Americans, Asian 165, 258
Anderson, Beth 213
Anderson, Laurie 16
Andre, Michael 262
Andrews, Bruce 225
Anton, Robert 42, 241
Armand, Louis 23, 94, 151, 162, 168, 224, 236, 239, 253
Arnold, Bob 17
Ashbery, John 99, 133, 228, 236
Augustine, Jane 27
Austin, Geer 243
Bacos, Camille 158, 166, 169, 173, 189, 194, 218, 238
Baik, Cristiana 192
Baker, Mary 135, 191
Baldwin, James 24, 31, 41, 75, 80, 85, 156
Ballard, Micah 51
Ballardini, Anny 236
Baraka, Amiri 41, 75, 85
Barbour, Douglas 234
Barker, Clive 96, 102, 105, 108, 111, 113, 115, 123, 124, 126, 137, 139, 140, 150
Barthes, Roland 165, 181, 205, 219
Barwin, Gary 269
Basinski, Mike 265
Bates, Joe 110
Baus, Eric 236, 245
Beasley, Sandra 92
Beckett, Samuel 152
Beckman, Joshua 227
Behrle, Jim 235
Belle, Cecelia 56
Bennett, John M. 184, 196
Berger, Jonathan 110
Bergvall, Caroline 236
Berkeley, Michael 56
Berkson, Bill 146
Bernstein, Charles 23, 245, 260
Berrigan, Anselm 92, 99, 133, 192
Berrigan, Eddie 99, 133
Berrigan, Edmund 99, 133
Berrigan, Ted 165, 181, 205, 219
Berry, Stephen 245
Berryman, John 45
Bettridge, Joel 236
Bidart, Frank 262
Blake, William 42, 241
Blaser, Robin 5
Blau, Rachel 236
Bloom, Molly 250
Bolano, Roberto 224, 258
Bonney, Sean 23
Borges, Jorge Luis 224, 239, 253
Bowen, Kevin 193
Bowering, Harry 73, 136, 154
Boyer, Stephen 232
BpNichol 182
Bradley, Tom 39

Brainard, Joe 99, 133
Brennan, Patrick 67
Bromige, David 54, 55, 56, 69, 74, 79, 84, 103, 112, 117, 122, 136, 144, 154, 197, 200, 252
Brook, James 110
Brooks, Gwendolyn 40, 44
Brown, Ann 146
Brown, Tina 59
Buckley, Jeff 184
Bukowski, Charles 201, 212, 221
Burroughs, William S. 132
Bush, George W. 236
Butler, Judith 17, 140, 150, 165, 181, 205, 219, 234
Byrne, Mairead 23
Byron, Philip 205, 219
Byrum, John 146
Cafe, Poets 75, 110
Cage, John 165, 181, 205, 219
Cameron, Sharon 3
Campbell, Jeremy 102
Campbell, Roy 67
Carlos, William 27, 132, 181, 205, 219
Carlstrom, Todd 235
Carroll, Jon 12, 67, 78, 182
Carson, Anne 187
Carter, Mike 156
Cather, Willa 26, 40, 44
Catullus 227
Celan, Paul 257
Cendrars, Blaise 26
Cervantes, James 27
Chabon, Michael 165, 181, 205, 219
Chace, Joel 16, 141, 236
Charyn, Jerome 29, 35, 36, 40, 44, 62
Chernoff, Maxine 175
Chester, Jeff 26
Ciccariello, Peter 10, 155, 161, 164, 177
Clark, Cheryl 12, 109, 142, 193
Clark, Jeff 193
Clark, Tom 236
Clarke, Jack 10, 147
Clifford, Pat 12
Clinton, Bill 130, 244
Cobbing, Bob 224, 239, 253
Cohen, David 254
Cohen, Leonard 254
Coleman, Victor 78
Coleridge, Samuel Taylor 205, 219
Coletti, John 235
Collins, Billy 152, 165, 181, 205, 219
Collis, Stephen 228
Collom, Jack 2, 193
Columbus, Christopher 57, 132
Compton, Shanna 192
Conrad, Tony 121, 146, 208, 258
Cooper, Paula 110
Cornish, Sam 262
Corso, Gregory 132
Cortez, Jayne 210
Coultas, Brenda 192
County, Mike 56, 58, 92, 192
Covey, Bruce 110
Crane, Stephen 35
Crawford, Robert 23
Critchley, Simon 152
Curtis, Dana 128
Cyrille, Andrew 176
Daive, Jean 257
Davidson, Michael 95
Davis, Martin 118, 263
Davis, Peter 236
Delany, Samuel R. 32
Deming, Richard 94
Dennis, Michael 94, 258
Derrida, Jacques 165, 181, 205, 219, 236
Desmond, Rae 236
Dewinetz, Jason 245
Dickinson, Emily 98
Dixon, Bill 258
Dobran, Ryan 146
Donahue, Joseph 94
Donovan, Thom 236
Dos, John 26
Downing, Brandon 236
Doyle, Erica 17
Duggan, Laurie 94
Dunagan, James 51
Duncan, Andrew 5, 110, 165, 181
Duncan, Robert 56, 110
Dunn, Jim 92, 192
Durgin, Patrick F. 39
Duwell, Martin 236
Dylan, Michael 78
Elena, Maria 236
Eliot, Joe 107, 175, 181
Ellen, Mary 27
Elman, Richard 35
Emerson, Claudia 165, 181, 205, 219
Encke, Jeff 175
England, Amy 56, 110, 146, 214
Ernst, Kathy 196
Etter, Carrie 175
Eugene, Brett 233
Evans, George 10
Fagin, Larry 59
Farrell, Michael 236
Faulkner, Andrew 214, 245
Fay, Alice 27
Felix, Joel 224, 239, 253
Felsinger, Andrew 134, 246
Ferlinghetti, Lawrence 68, 235
Ffytche, Matt 6

Fieled, Adam 8, 13
Finkelstein, Norman 94
Fishman, Ellen 27, 48, 49
Flanagan, Bob 201, 212, 221
Fleisher, Kass 57, 213
Flynn, Richard 262
Fodaski, Elizabeth 236
Foley, Jack 231
Foster, Edward 94, 236
Foster, Paul 92, 192
Foust, Graham 245
France, Peter 110, 165, 181, 205, 219, 230, 258
Frances, Mary 23
Freedman, Lewis 176
Frost, Corey 152
Frost, Robert 152
Fuchs, Greg 92, 192
Fuhr, Laurie 3
Fuhrman, Joanna 110
Fulton, Alice 120
Gallup, Dick 99
Gander, Forrest 227, 245
Gayle, Charles 67
Gelsinger, Eric 92, 192
Genet, Jean 224, 239, 253
Gilbert, Roger 60, 73, 117
Giles, Samantha 46, 63, 232
Ginsberg, Allen 42, 132, 235, 241
Giscombe, Cecil 123, 137, 139
Goar, Jim 23, 236
Van Gogh 224, 239, 253
Goldman, Judith 258, 260
Goldsmith, Kenneth 23, 232
Gordon, Nada 232
Gould, Glenn 182
Graham, Susan 193
Greenaway, Peter 258
Greenberg, Arielle 245
Griffin, Tim 182, 268
Griffiths, Bill 94
Grimes, Henry 176
Guinzio, Carolyn 202
Guthrie, Annie 110
Hall, Phil 236
Halpern, Rob 236
Hamill, Sam 127
Hamilton, Diana 59, 187
Harper, Michael 264
Harris, Ken 99, 133
Harris, Sharon 245
Hastings, Katherine 94
Hatcher, Ian 15
Hawkins, Ralph 6
Hayes, Jared 94, 110
Heaney, Seamus 165, 181, 205, 219, 236
Heath, Jennifer 2
Heidegger, Martin 165, 181, 205, 219, 236
Hejinian, Lyn 2, 19
Heller, Joseph 48, 49
Helms, Jesse 221
Henning, Barbara 236, 258
Henri, Charles 57
Herbert, John 160, 164, 165, 177, 181, 183, 205, 219
Hibbard, Tom 236
Hoagland, Tony 263
Hogan, Linda 214
Hollo, Anselm 94
Homer 258
Hoover, Edgar 227
Hosea, Chris 10
Howard, Richard 72, 88, 117
Howe, Susan 187
Hsu, Ray 245
Huang, Yunte 12
Hubbard, Melanie 202
Hume, Christine 193
Hunter, Carrie 165, 181
Indiana, Gary 264
Ireland, Lauren 23
Israel, David R. 15, 52, 258
Israeli, Henry 52, 258
Jackson, Jesse 110
Jacob, Max 245
Jameson, Fredric 15, 120, 172
Janssen, Lisa 15
Javier, Paolo 92, 110, 192
Jeanne, Sarah 215
Jeffery, Mark 59
Johns, Jasper 165, 181, 205, 219
Johnson, Kent 175, 236
Johnson, Thomas 11, 12, 27, 48, 49, 50, 77, 92, 175, 192, 201, 212, 221
Johnston, Daniel 193
Johnston, Devin 193
Jones, Bob 26, 236
Joseph, Safdie 15
Kalamaras, George 236
Kane, Jonathan 78
Kaplan, Josef 12
Katz, Alex 146
Keats, John 236
Kelly, Paul 118
Kelly, Robert 94
Kendall, Robert 184
Kennedy, Kit 152
Kerouac, Jack 57
Kerr, Bob 235
Kiely, Aaron 216
Killian, Kevin 236, 245
Killian, Sean 110
Kinsella, John 152
Kirschenbaum, David A. 92, 110, 114, 192, 235, 243, 255

Kissinger, Henry 258
Klein, Naomi 184, 258
Knowles, Alison 184
Kramer, Scott 12, 15
Krieger, Ben 92
Krugman, Paul 258
Lacan, Jacques 165, 181, 205, 219
Larkin, Philip 264
Larsen, David 215
Lavender, Bill 260
Lazer, Hank 94, 260
Leary, Timothy 193
Lehman, David 184
Leonard, Tom 254
Leuzzi, Tony 133, 184
Levato, Francesco 175
Levertov, Denise 5, 56, 132
Lewis, Jeffrey 235
Lewis, Jerry 165, 181
Lewis, Susan 10
Lichty, Patrick 80
Lightman, Ira 236
Limon, Ada 243
Livingston, Ira 38, 68, 71, 198, 199, 217
Logan, John 184
Lomax, Alan 134, 246
London, Frank 56, 179, 180, 222, 259
Loney, Alan 236
Lorber, Brendan 92, 192
Lowell, Robert 45
Lurie, Bobbie 39
Luther, Martin 56
Machlin, Dan 92
Madison, James 97, 105, 113, 178, 190
Madrid, Anthony 145
Mailer, Norman 262
Mandelstam, Osip 151, 162, 168, 224, 239, 253
Manson, Charles 42, 241
Marcacci, Bob 28
Marie, Julie 78
Marks, Justin 92, 192, 243
Marley, Bob 94
Marmon, Leslie 40, 44
Mason, George 233
Matlin, David 94
Matson, Clive 236
Matthews, William 45
Mayer, Bernadette 146, 251
Mazer, Ben 202
Mead, Philip 236
Mee, Don 247
Meltzer, David 94, 98
Melville, Pierre 26
Mengham, Rod 179, 180
Meredith, William 15
Merrill, Stuart 2
Messerli, Douglas 94
Metres, Philip 175
Milton, John 12
Miriam, Erica 42, 241
Mohammad, Kasey 232
Moody, Rick 262
Mooney, Stephen 236
Moore, Nicholas 1, 11, 16, 77, 85, 90, 176
Moore, Todd 171
Morris, Daniel 42, 241
Morris, Tim 42, 241
Moxley, Jennifer 236
Muckle, John 236
Mullen, Harryette 236
Murphy, Michelle 208
Murphy, Ryan 92, 192
Murray, Elizabeth 234
Myers, Michael 36
Myles, Eileen 134, 246, 267
Nasdor, Marc 59
Nelson, Paul E. 5, 58, 165, 181, 205, 219
Neruda, Pablo 165, 181, 205, 219
Newton, Keith 202
Nichols, Travis 146
Nielsen, Aldon L. 74, 197
Nikolayev, Philip 152
Nixon, Richard 152
Nolan, Pat 56, 94
Norman, Peter 245, 266
Norse, Harold 132
Notley, Alice 6, 94, 99, 118, 133
O'Hara, Frank 39
O'Sullivan, Maggie 23
Oliver, Douglas 6
Olivia, Carrie 245
Olson, Charles 5, 27, 132, 165, 181, 205, 219
Olson, John 94
Oppen, George 27, 48, 49, 236
Opstedal, Kevin 51
Ostashevsky, Eugene 236
Ota, Carolyn 16
Owen, Catherine 234
Owen, Maureen 57
Pacific, Asian 266
Padgett, Ron 99, 133, 236
Paglia, Camille 181
Palmer, Michael 152
Parker, William 67
Parkway, Neal 57, 213
Parrish, Gary 192
Patchen, Kenneth 38, 68, 71
Paterson, William 165, 181, 205, 219
Patton, Julie 267
Pearson, Ted 234, 264
Pecqueur, Paul 92, 192
Penn, Joanna 110
Perez, James 236

Perkins, Charlotte 184
Perloff, Marjorie 23, 152
Pettet, Simon 94
Peyrafitte, Nicole 210, 257
Phillips, Malcolm 39, 94
Picabia, Francis 26
Picard, Maureen 36, 37
Piccinnini, Douglas 236
Pierce, Scott 243
Pinsky, Robert 262
Piombino, Nick 92, 192
Pitt, Brad 84, 103, 112, 122, 136, 154
Plath, Sylvia 45
Poe, Allan 26
Porter, Anne 94, 176
Pound, Ezra 27
Powell, Colin 258
Powell, Dawn 85
Price, Michael 51
Prince, Richard 258
Professor, Kelly 74, 118, 197
Prynne, J. H. 236
Quackenbush, Jason 165, 181, 205, 219
Quartermain, Peter 94
Randall, Karen 264
Raworth, Tom 23, 157, 179, 180
Reyes, Louis 264
Rhodes, Martha 128
Ribot, Marc 78
Ricard, Gabriel 170
Rich, Adrienne 86, 101
Ricks, Christopher 152
Ridge, Tom 195
Ridley, Sandra 174, 245, 269
Rimbaud, Arthur 224, 239, 253
Rimbaud, Dee 224
Roberts, Wendy 175, 258
Robinson, Elizabeth 57, 213
Robinson, Jeffrey C. 236
Robinson, Mary 17
Rockwell, Norman 15
Rorty, Richard 165, 205, 219
Roth, Henry 24, 31, 41, 75, 85
Rothschild, Douglas 235
Rubin, Tony 110
Samuels, Ian 12
Samuels, Lisa 175
Sandburg, Carl 12
Sanders, Edward 42, 241
Sanders, Jay 42, 241
Santos, Craig 236
Sartre, Paul 61, 165, 181, 205, 219
Schoen, Jesse 192
Schultz, Susan M. 266
Schuyler, James 27
Schwabsky, Barry 141
Schwartz, Gerald 236
Semerdjian, Alan 92, 192
Sexton, Anne 45
Shakespeare, William 110
Shapiro, David 236
Shapiro, Gary 203
Sharma, Prageeta 228
Shimoda, Brandon 236
Shipp, Matthew 67
Shmailo, Larissa 141
Shoemaker, Steven 236
Side, Jeffrey 236
Silem, Kasey 232
Silliman, Ron 56, 141
Simon, Rachel M. 263
Simpson, Bennett 258
Sims, Laura 213
Skinner, Jonathan 210
Slease, Marcus 23
Smith, Dale 236
Smith, Elizabeth 16
Smith, Marc 33
Smith, Patricia 12
Smith, Tracy K. 12, 16, 109
Smithson, Robert 52, 258
Snapper, Juliana 267
Snyder, Gary 33
Sondheim, Joanna 92, 192
Sorrentino, Christopher 60, 73, 117
Spahr, Juliana 134, 246
Sparling, Ken 245
Sparrow, John 59
Spears, Patricia 165, 181, 205, 219
Spicer, Jack 110, 165, 181
Squires, Geoff 23
Stalin, Joseph 216
Stanley, George 236
Stannard, Martin 179, 180
Stanton, Rob 236
Stein, Gertrude 56, 165, 181, 205, 219
Stein, Suzanne 12
Stephens, Michael 35
Stevens, Wallace 181
Stewart, Christine 234
Strang, Brian 94
Straub, Peter 102
Strauss, Joshua 146, 222
Strickland, Stephanie 236
Sullivan, Gary 12, 27, 48, 49, 70, 232
Sutherland, Keston 23, 146
Swensen, Cole 172
Swift, Todd 236
Szymaszek, Stacy 247
Tabios, Eileen 191
Tarn, Nathaniel 94
Taylor, Cecil 176
Tepper, Susan 214
Terry, Philip 6, 12

Texas, Irving 28, 243
Theater, Poets 39
Thomas, Dylan 26, 115, 124, 140, 150, 242
Thompson, Jon 12, 27, 48, 49, 70
Thompson, Robert 27, 48, 49, 70
Tichy, Susan 233
Tills, Steve 200, 236, 252
Timerman, Eugene 236
Timmons, Jeffrey 59
Tipton, John 92
Tonouchi, Lee 228, 266
Toscano, Rodrigo 175
Trinidad, David 12
Trott, Sarah 256
Tully, Jessica 46, 63
Tuma, Keith 23, 157
Turner, Brian 127, 219
Vengua, Jean 191
Veronica, Angela 92, 192
Vidal, Pierre 12
Wagner, Catherine 12
Waldman, Ann 210
Waldman, Ken 57
Waldrop, Rosmarie 94, 236
Walker, Alice 17, 37
Walker, Ryan 92, 192
Wallace, Nicole 59
Wallace, Sara 165, 181, 182, 205, 219
Wallenstein, Barry 236
Warren, Jim 152
Warsh, Lewis 92, 192, 251
Washington, Harold 15, 35, 76, 110, 134, 146, 194, 246, 258
Watson, Sasha 12
Weinberger, Eliot 152
Weinstein, Norman 94
Weiser, Karen 92
Wellman, Donald 27, 48, 49, 70
Welsh, Lawrence 171
Wertheim, Christine 23
Whitehead, Helen 5, 165, 181, 205, 219
Whiting, Nathan 16
Whitman, Walt 12, 26, 98, 110
Williams, Tony 27, 78, 98, 129, 132, 181, 199, 205, 214, 217, 219
Williams, William Carlos 165
Willis, Elizabeth 187, 227
Wilson, Colin 109
Wilson, Erin 134, 246
Wintz, Sara 192
Witherup, William 65
Wittgenstein, Ludwig 165, 181, 205, 219
Wright, James 57
Wright, Laura 57
Yates, Katie 192
Zapruder, Matthew 227
Zawacki, Andrew 227, 236
Zimmerman, Daniel 30
Zinnes, Harriet 236
Zolf, Rachel 236
Zukofsky, Louis 118
Zuzga, Jason 146

CONCEPTS

9/11 92, 239, 253, 258
Activism and protest 52, 76, 142, 167, 239, 253, 258
Aesthetics 38, 46, 63, 68, 71, 95, 152, 193, 232
Afghanistan 258
Anthologies 5, 12, 27, 39, 57, 110, 113, 123, 127, 137, 139, 151, 152, 158, 162, 163, 166, 168, 169, 173, 175, 178, 188, 189, 190, 191, 194, 201, 212, 215, 218, 221, 224, 232, 238, 239, 244, 253, 256, 269
Appropriation 165, 181, 205, 219, 232
Archives and libraries 5, 6, 39, 41, 75, 77, 91, 99, 120, 133, 163, 175, 182, 186, 264, 265
Asemic writing 196
Autobiography 27, 56, 179, 180, 195, 213, 214, 248, 257
Avant-garde 23, 27, 224, 225, 236, 239, 253
Beauty 248
Biography 39, 42, 132, 179, 180, 195, 241, 248, 254
Blogs 3, 4, 5, 11, 12, 20, 27, 38, 46, 53, 54, 56, 58, 63, 66, 68, 71, 74, 77, 80, 82, 83, 87, 91, 93, 95, 97, 100, 105, 107, 113, 118, 121, 123, 124, 131, 135, 137, 139, 140, 141, 143, 150, 151, 155, 158, 161, 162, 164, 165, 166, 168, 169, 173, 175, 177, 181, 182, 183, 188, 189, 191, 194, 197, 202, 205, 206, 208, 209, 210, 218, 219, 220, 222, 224, 228, 229, 232, 234, 236, 238, 239, 240, 243, 245, 247, 250, 253, 257, 258, 260, 264, 265, 266
Book announcements 7, 27, 38, 57, 67, 68, 71, 95, 110, 120, 134, 135, 138, 165, 181, 185, 193, 198, 199, 208, 214, 215, 216, 217, 223, 236, 244, 256, 263
Bookstores 12, 48, 49, 215, 216
Calls for submissions 6, 50, 223, 242, 258
Capitalism 139
Censorship 165, 181, 205, 219, 258
Cities 23, 27, 37, 66, 78, 110, 134, 142, 167, 242, 246, 255
Class 151, 158, 162, 166, 168, 169, 173, 188, 189, 194, 218, 224, 238, 239, 253
Collage and montage 12, 17, 67, 128, 129, 132, 143, 183, 184, 196
Conceptual writing 23, 52, 232
Conferences and festivals 6, 15, 17, 23, 27, 45, 52, 67, 76, 80, 92, 99, 110, 114, 133, 157, 182, 192, 206, 230, 242, 258, 262

Copyright and permissions 5, 39, 210, 214
Craft 182, 232
Dada 26, 132, 153
Deconstruction 165, 181, 205, 219
Difficulty 77, 176, 224, 239, 253
Digital archives 23, 48, 49, 118, 225
Disability 95
Dreams 36, 57, 92, 146, 196, 224, 239, 242, 253, 256, 258
Ecology and ecopoetics 2, 42, 76, 241, 253
Editing 17, 27, 38, 68, 71, 143, 193, 232, 242, 244
Ekphrasis 129
Electronic poetry and hypertext 27, 205, 219, 225
Elegy 151, 162, 168, 224, 239, 253
Epic 17
Epistemology 61, 219
Experimental poetry 56, 165, 181, 251
Fascism 165, 167, 181, 205, 219
Feminism 165, 181, 205, 219
Film 1, 6, 11, 15, 23, 45, 50, 52, 57, 76, 77, 90, 110, 156, 165, 170, 181, 224, 239, 253, 258
Flarf 232
Fluxus 195, 248
Formalism 165, 181, 205, 219
Free verse 5
Futurism 224, 239, 253
Gender 165, 181
Ghazal 269
Grants and funding 12, 23, 27, 42, 83, 99, 133, 142, 165, 181, 205, 219, 221, 233, 241, 254, 258
Haiku 98
Humour and satire 2, 224, 236, 239, 253
Ideology 61, 165, 181, 205, 219
Improvisation 5, 7, 23, 80, 175, 191
Interviews 10, 45, 86, 101, 110, 123, 137, 139, 146, 225, 234, 236, 245, 258
Israel and Palestine 15, 52, 258
Language poetry 27, 165, 181, 205, 219, 225
Latino and Latin American poetry 264
Letters and correspondence 5, 152
List moderation 27, 70, 92, 192, 215
Little magazines 12, 14, 17, 27, 38, 42, 45, 50, 57, 68, 71, 80, 118, 127, 132, 142, 146, 152, 203, 214, 215, 223, 227, 230, 232, 234, 236, 241, 242, 243, 251, 264, 269
Lyric poetry 93, 107, 157, 175, 224, 236, 239, 253
Marxism 165, 181, 205, 219
Materiality of the text 61
Memory 80, 163, 233, 235
MFA programs 57, 83, 262, 264
Modernism 27, 98, 146, 165, 181, 205, 219
Mourning and loss 175, 248, 258
Music and poetry 2, 10, 15, 17, 23, 27, 28, 38, 46, 48, 49, 59, 63, 66, 67, 68, 71, 78, 80, 92, 98, 110, 120, 135, 146, 165, 170, 173, 176, 181, 188, 189, 192, 193, 194, 195, 205, 207, 208, 213, 218, 219, 223, 224, 225, 235, 238, 239, 243, 248, 253, 257, 258, 262
Nature 2, 65, 141, 165, 181, 196, 205, 219, 236, 267
Negativity and refusal 224, 239, 253
New York School 99, 133
Obituary and memorial 54, 56, 74, 79, 84, 103, 112, 122, 132, 136, 144, 154, 240
Objectivism 27
Ontology 61, 125
Oulipo 236
Performance and the poetry reading 12, 17, 33, 57, 80, 83, 110, 145, 146, 147, 165, 170, 181, 193, 205, 213, 219, 246, 267
Phenomenology 61, 125, 156
Philosophy 59, 165, 181, 185, 205, 216, 219, 236
Place and region 182, 196, 215, 235
Poet laureate 27, 56, 257
Poetics 2, 5, 14, 23, 25, 27, 30, 38, 40, 44, 48, 49, 50, 59, 68, 70, 71, 82, 87, 92, 93, 95, 98, 100, 107, 117, 127, 151, 158, 160, 162, 164, 165, 166, 168, 169, 173, 175, 177, 181, 183, 188, 189, 192, 194, 199, 205, 210, 217, 218, 219, 224, 225, 232, 236, 238, 239, 244, 251, 253, 259, 266
Poets Against the War 127
Post-structuralism 165, 181, 205, 219
Postmodernism 165, 181, 205, 219
Print vs. digital 8, 13, 27, 40, 44, 67, 106, 121, 127, 134, 148, 178, 190, 195, 196, 208, 223, 224, 235, 236, 239, 246, 248, 253, 262, 266
Prizes and awards 2, 12, 15, 27, 42, 56, 57, 59, 110, 170, 179, 180, 182, 193, 215, 241, 243, 262, 264, 269
Procedural and constraint writing 5, 196
Prosody and meter 59, 151, 162, 167, 168, 224, 239, 253
Psychoanalysis 6, 61, 165, 181, 205, 219
Queer poetics 95, 132, 165, 181, 208
Race and poetry 214, 258
Reading announcements 1, 11, 67, 77, 90, 141, 146, 222, 236, 264
Religion and the sacred 132, 151, 158, 162, 166, 168, 169, 173, 188, 189, 194, 201, 212, 218, 221, 224, 238, 239, 253
Representation 77, 165, 181, 205, 219
Reviewing and criticism 10, 12, 17, 27, 57, 59, 94, 95, 110, 121, 131, 134, 146, 152, 170, 175, 176, 182, 187, 193, 201, 211, 212, 215, 221, 227, 234, 236, 242, 243, 246, 256, 258, 264

Revision 119
Romanticism 110, 151, 162, 168, 224, 239, 253
San Francisco Renaissance 56
Science 61, 125, 202, 205, 219
Semiotics 233
Serial poem 7, 59
Small press publishing 2, 3, 12, 17, 27, 38, 45, 46, 57, 59, 63, 66, 68, 71, 80, 92, 141, 170, 171, 174, 192, 193, 202, 213, 215, 220, 225, 229, 232, 234, 235, 243, 244, 245, 255, 262, 263, 266, 269
Social media 12, 28, 33, 38, 64, 68, 71, 120, 155, 161, 164, 167, 177, 193, 230, 235, 243
Software and code 76, 80, 83, 184
Sonnet 5, 175, 236
Sound poetry 116, 258
Structuralism 165, 181, 205, 219
Subjectivity 50, 57, 61, 110, 152, 165, 181, 193, 205, 213, 219, 225
Sublime 5
Surrealism 2, 224, 236, 239, 253
Terrorism 258
The academy 1, 2, 6, 11, 12, 14, 15, 17, 27, 56, 57, 59, 74, 77, 80, 89, 90, 99, 118, 127, 133, 167, 182, 193, 197, 213, 221, 224, 225, 232, 233, 236, 239, 242, 253, 260, 264
The body 14, 30, 61, 65, 80, 125
The Gulf War 107, 175
The Holocaust 93, 107, 175, 236, 258
The internet 58, 118, 132, 167, 199, 213, 217, 258, 261
The Iraq war 82, 87, 93, 100, 107, 127, 130, 165, 175, 181, 258
The line 141
The listserv 12, 27, 59, 82, 84, 87, 93, 100, 103, 107, 112, 122, 127, 132, 136, 154, 165, 175, 181, 193, 199, 203, 205, 211, 217, 219, 250
Theatre 6, 12, 15, 39, 67, 80, 92, 110, 114, 195, 224, 239, 248, 253
Torture and Abu Ghraib 258
Translation 17, 27, 57, 151, 152, 162, 168, 179, 180, 182, 216, 224, 227, 236, 239, 253
Vietnam 233
Visual and concrete poetry 7, 15, 27, 38, 68, 71, 128, 129, 153, 178, 190, 196, 211, 224, 239, 253, 261
Visual art 12, 16, 23, 28, 38, 42, 45, 67, 68, 71, 89, 99, 110, 133, 134, 146, 170, 191, 193, 196, 201, 212, 219, 221, 224, 239, 241, 246, 249, 253, 258
Women's writing 193

Contents

Every entry links to its message. 269 in all.

31 MAY 2009

1. noah eli gordon — Call for book submissions
2. Julie Strand — Jack Collom Master Class & Reading, June 6th, Woodland Pattern
3. Rob McLennan — ottawa small press book fair; reminder
4. Samuel Wharton — Fwd: sawbuck 3.2, summer 2009
5. Paul Nelson — Re: What is Open?

1 JUN 2009

6. Sam Ladkin — Doug Oliver Conference Call for Papers
7. Vernon Frazer — NEW BOOK by Vernon Frazer: EMBLEMATIC MOON
8. Lars Palm — now out from ungovernable press, Adam Fieled
9. David Chirot — : NYTimes.com: Poetic Justice: Briton Says She Helped Taint Rival
10. amy king — Fwd: New Issue of the clarity, please forward
11. Halvard Johnson — Re: Call for book submissions
12. Sharon Dolin — Fwd: Reading with Patricia Smith & Matthew Hittinger @ Center for Book Arts ...
13. susan maurer — Re: now out from ungovernable press, Adam Fieled
14. William Slaughter — Notice: Mudlark

2 JUN 2009

15. Jennifer Karmin — Red Rover Series / Experiment #30
16. Bob Heman — 9th Big CLWN WR Event + Onomatomania
17. crystal hoffman — TypewriterGirls Poetry Cabaret this Sunday! Pittsburgh, PA
18. crystal hoffman — More TypewriterGirl Info--just in case
19. Sharon Mesmer/David Borchart — Lyn Hejinian query
20. mIEKAL aND — What Plagiarism Looks Like
21. mIEKAL aND — [out of nothing] #2: A New Frame of Nothing
22. Ryan Daley — New York in Fiction
23. Trevor Joyce — SoundEye Festival, 8-12 July, Cork, Ireland

3 JUN 2009

24. Maria Damon — Re: New York in Fiction
25. Angeline, Mary — Re: New York in Fiction
26. David Chirot — Re: New York in Fiction
27. Jonathan Penton — Ahadada Books Presents... at the Zinc Bar, NYC, June 13
28. Jonathan Penton — The Sunset Heights Block Party in El Paso, Texas
29. George Bowering — Re: New York in Fiction
30. Poetics List — CFW -- ARSENAL [on behalf of Dan Zimmerman]
31. Mary Kasimor — Re: New York in Fiction
32. Gwyn McVay — Re: New York in Fiction
33. Charlie Rossiter — Article on Marc Smith & Slam in NY Times
34. Martha Oatis — summer job opportunity
35. Mark Weiss — Re: New York in Fiction
36. Maureen Robins — Re: New York in Fiction
37. Maureen Robins — Re: New York in Fiction
38. Douglas Manson — Kenneth Patchen, poet of experimental simplicity
39. Patrick F. Durgin — V. R. "Bunny" Lang literary estate
40. sheila black — Re: New York in Fiction
41. Alan Sondheim — Re: New York in Fiction
42. Kyle Schlesinger — ED SANDERS : GLYPHS 1962-2009
43. Hugh Behm-Steinberg — Re: New York in Fiction
44. sheila black — Re: New York in Fiction
45. Doug Holder — Literature and the Arts in the Transitional Living Center at McLean Hospital

46. Small Press Traffic — Site Based Practices: A workshop with David Buuck and Jessica Tully

4 JUN 2009

47. Kimmelman, Burt — Herschlag, Holder and Kimmelman Reading in Manhattan, June 7th at 5
48. Michael Heller — (no subject)
49. Michael Heller — (no subject)
50. jared schickling — Reconfigurations #3 -- call for work
51. patrick dunagan — Reading in Boulder June 6, 2009
52. David-Baptiste Chirot — NYTimes: Chen Guan: Tiananmen Square Scars Soldier Turned Artist
53. luke daly — House Press: Ackerman & Abramowitz: Sin is to Celebration
54. Donna Kuhn — david bromige dies
55. Alan Sondheim — David Bromige obit (fwd)
56. Donna Kuhn — David Bromige Obituary
57. Mark DuCharme — REMINDER: Owen & Wright, Stratford Park Reading Series, June 9th
58. Paul Nelson — Survey of Teaching Artists
59. Poetry Project — Events at The Poetry Project June
60. steve russell — Re: New York in Fiction
61. Alan Sondheim — My Hubris in Writing Itselves (an essay)
62. Ryan Daley — Re: New York in Fiction

5 JUN 2009

63. David Buuck — Site Based Practices: A workshop with David Buuck and Jessica Tully
64. Wanda Phipps — Brooklynites and others: Having a Group Stoop Sale this Sat June 6th at Tom ...
65. Joel Weishaus — William Witherup
66. Rob McLennan — ottawa: the unknown city by rob mclennan, arsenal pulp press
67. steve d. dalachinsky — new book and some readings
68. Aryanil Mukherjee — Re: Kenneth Patchen, poet of experimental simplicity
69. Gabrielle Welford — Re: David Bromige obit (fwd)
70. amy king — More Miscellany – Fire at will! 1) Unexpected Poetics ...
71. Larry O. Dean — Re: Kenneth Patchen, poet of experimental simplicity
72. George Bowering — Re: New York in Fiction
73. George Bowering — Re: New York in Fiction
74. Aldon Nielsen — Re: David Bromige Obituary
75. Mary Kasimor — Re: New York in Fiction
76. Jennifer Karmin — Call for proposals: Split This Rock Poetry Festival

6 JUN 2009

77. Alan Sondheim — Re: Call for book submissions
78. Daniel Godston — soundwalk-a-thon!
79. Maria Damon — Re: David Bromige Obituary
80. Alan Sondheim — June 12th Performance Event At Subtle Technologies! - Please note!

7 JUN 2009

81. Lars Palm — Mark Young on ungovernable press
82. Dean Brink — Seeking poetry treating American occupation of Iraq
83. amy king — It's hard all around -- Help the PoPo!
84. George Bowering — Re: David Bromige Obituary
85. Sarah Sarai — Re: New York in Fiction
86. Rebecca Weaver — new issue of midway now up!
87. Wallis Leslie — Re: Seeking poetry treating American occupation of Iraq
88. steve russell — Re: New York in Fiction
89. Jesse Glass — Jesse Glass at the University of Essex, Colchester, June 15th

8 JUN 2009

90. steve d. dalachinsky — Re: Call for book submissions
91. Patrick Dillon — Matt Cutts: Search Your Bookshelf with a $65 Barcode Scanner

92. David Kirschenbaum — Save the Date: Welcome to Boog City 3, Sept. 9-13
93. Christopher Leland Winks — Re: Seeking poetry treating American occupation of Iraq
94. Lou Rowan — Golden Handcuffs 11 out

9 JUN 2009

95. Stephen Vincent — Michael Davidson & Susan Schweik at Nonsite
96. Hugh Behm-Steinberg — Horror help
97. Lars Palm — Alana Madison new from ungovernable press
98. Michael — Incredible David Meltzer & Neeli Cherkovski poetics course!!!
99. Grant Jenkins — Call for creative submissions July 1--Tulsa/NY School Conference Nov 5-7
100. Christopher Leland Winks — Re: Seeking poetry treating American occupation of Iraq
101. Maria Damon — Re: new issue of midway now up!
102. Larry O. Dean — Re: Horror help
103. Maria Damon — Re: David Bromige Obituary
104. George Bowering — Re: New York in Fiction
105. Alana Madison — Re: Horror help
106. { brad brace } — Twelve (illustrated) Pleated Plaid Pamphlets of Poetry Published Today bef...
107. Patrick Dillon — Re: Seeking poetry treating American occupation of Iraq
108. Catherine Daly — Re: Horror help
109. Robin Hamilton — Re: Horror help
110. David Kirschenbaum — Boog City 57 Print and Online PDF Editions Available
111. Laurie Schneider & Crag Hill — Re: Horror help
112. Rachel Loden — Re: David Bromige Obituary
113. John Cleary — Re: Horror help

10 JUN 2009

114. David Kirschenbaum — Call for Work: Boog Fest's Poets' Theater
115. taylan yildiran — Re: Horror help
116. Eiríkur Örn Norðdahl — Mind the Sound - 17th century Icelandic Sound Poetry
117. Pam Brown — Re: POETICS Digest - 7 Jun 2009 to 9 Jun 2009 (#2009-131)
118. Al Filreis — episode #18 of PoemTalk released today: Lydia Davis
119. Joel Weishaus — "The Gateless Gate." New Page and a Revision
120. Jennifer Karmin — Call for Participants: Emerging Writers Fair & Book Launch
121. CA Conrad — sol stice 888
122. Maria Damon — Re: David Bromige Obituary
123. c. s. giscombe — Re: Horror help
124. Alison Croggon — Re: Horror help
125. Alan Sondheim — Talking points (OCAD talk)

11 JUN 2009

126. Roy Exley — Roy Exley - Re: Horror help
127. Bibby, Michael — Re: Seeking poetry treating American occupation of Iraq
128. mIEKAL aND — X E R O L A G E 4 2: A Catalogue of Rare Movements by Monica McFawn & Curtis A...
129. mIEKAL aND — Xerolage 43—Grapyrus by Matina L. Stamatakis
130. Spineless Books — Seeking poetry treating American occupation of Iraq
131. Paul Siegell — poem on youtube
132. steve russell — "The end is the beginning." Harold Norse, dies at 92.
133. kiviok kiviok — Re: Call for creative submissions July 1--Tulsa/NY School Conference Nov 5-7

12 JUN 2009

134. Sarah Rosenthal — Launching Manhatten
135. Lars Palm — Ed Baker's Hexapoems II & Song of Chin
136. George Bowering — Re: David Bromige Obituary
137. Mark Weiss — Re: Horror help

138. Jeff Hansen — Reading
139. Taylor Brady — Re: Horror help
140. Hugh Behm-Steinberg — Re: Horror help
141. Mark Young — Now out from Otoliths—A SCRIPT, Joel Chace's new chapbook
142. Jennifer Karmin — Calling IL: protest state budget cuts

13 JUN 2009

143. Susan Webster Schultz — some recent Tinfish Editor blog posts
144. Catherine Daly — Re: David Bromige Obituary
145. Anna Vitale — readings in barcelona or madrid?
146. Rod Smith — Bill Berkson @ Bridge Street Books, Sunday June 14th, 7 PM
147. Dan Wilcox — Third Thursday Poetry Night, Albany -- W.D. Clarke & open Mic
148. { brad brace } — 18 new pleated plaid pamphlets published !!!
149. Camille Martin — new collages by Camille Martin
150. steve russell — Re: Horror help
151. Jerome Rothenberg — Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress

14 JUN 2009

152. Fulcrum Annual — Beckett as Poet; unpublished Beckett, Frost, Paz; great current poetry
153. David-Baptiste Chirot — FW: announcement about "dada korkut"
154. Maria Damon — Re: David Bromige Obituary
155. Peter — He could find the melody in anything
156. Alan Sondheim — Alan Sondheim Screening at Millennium Film/Video
157. Justin Katko — Keith Tuma's THE PARIS HILTON

15 JUN 2009

158. mIEKAL aND — Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
159. Stuart Ross — some readings on YouTube
160. John Cunningham — Re: new collages by Camille Martin
161. Murat Nemet-Nejat — Re: He could find the melody in anything
162. Mary Kasimor — Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
163. Catherine Daly — Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
164. Peter — Re: new collages by Camille Martin
165. David Chirot — Re: Gift Economy
166. Maria Damon — Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
167. christopher.winks — Fw: Dispatch from Tehran #7 -- POETRY IS MADE IN THE STREETS
168. steve d. dalachinsky — Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
169. steve d. dalachinsky — Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
170. Jonathan Penton — new issue and site news from UnlikelyStories.org
171. Jonathan Penton — Lawrence Welsh and Todd Moore reading in Albuquerque
172. Adam Katz — Re: Gift Economy
173. Ruth Lepson — Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
174. Amanda Earl — AngelHousePress Presents Pent Up

16 JUN 2009

175. Dean Brink — Seeking poetry treating American occupation of Iraq
176. Alan Sondheim — Fwd: review
177. teersteeg — Re: new collages by Camille Martin
178. mIEKAL aND — Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
179. Sam Ladkin — Tom Raworth - Equipage and Salt
180. Sam Ladkin — Re: Tom Raworth - Equipage and Salt
181. steve russell — Re: Gift Economy
182. Evan Munday — Jeramy Dodds wins Trillium Book Award for Poetry!
183. Camille Martin — Re: new collages by Camille Martin
184. PJ — from east to west, summer '09 is live (& submission call)
185. Troy Camplin — Diaphysics
186. Christophe Casamassima — New Repurposed Journals from RePsychAll

187. Chicago Review —  New issue of CHICAGO REVIEW ***
188. Maria Damon — Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress

17 JUN 2009

189. steve dalachinsky — Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
190. Maria Damon — Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
191. newmystics.com — June update for www.newmystics.com
192. David Kirschenbaum — Exhibit at Boog Fest's Small, Small Press Fair
193. David-Baptiste Chirot — This Weekend: Redletter, Gallery Talk, & Small Press Focus

18 JUN 2009

194. steve russell — Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
195. { brad brace } — 17 new pleated plaid pamphlets published!
196. Nico Vassilakis — PROTRACTED TYPE: a collection of visual poetry
197. Aldon Nielsen — Currently on the HEATSTRINGS BLOG
198. Maria Damon — Poetry and Cultural Studies: A Reader
199. John Moore Williams — Re: [spidertangle] Poetry and Cultural Studies: A Reader
200. Layne Russell — ...david bromige
201. steve russell — Re: Outsider Poetry: a mine-anthology in progress
202. Matt Henriksen — Cannibal Books Summer Sale
203. PJ — Re: from east to west, summer '09 is live (& submission call)

19 JUN 2009

204. Rachel Loden — dear possum
205. Marcus Bales — Re: Gift Economy
206. Richard Jeffrey Newman — Life Imitates Art: Iran's Opposition and Ferdowsi's Shahnameh
207. Justin Katko — Fwd: PRAXIS DUDES: DC/Baltimore: June 20/21
208. CA Conrad — the purple gang
209. Stephen Vincent — Solstice de Blog
210. Laura Hinton — Chant de la Sirene posts

20 JUN 2009

211. Jim Andrews — papers on digital literature
212. steve dalachinsky — Re: Outsider Poetry: a mine-anthology in progress
213. Mark DuCharme — Stratford Park Reading Series: ROBINSON, FLEISHER & AMATO July 16th
214. Gloria Mindock — Cervena Barva Press Announces the Publication of "Pretty Little Lies"
215. Gloria Mindock — Cervena Barva Press Announces the Publication of "Anthem" by CL Bledsoe
216. Gloria Mindock — Anezka Ceska (Agnes of Bohemia) by Jaromir Horec Released by Cervena Barva...
217. Maria Damon — Re: [spidertangle] Poetry and Cultural Studies: A Reader
218. Ruth Lepson — Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
219. Troy Camplin — Re: Gift Economy
220. Rob McLennan — vancouver poet gerry gilbert
221. steve russell — Re: Outsider Poetry: a mine-anthology in progress

21 JUN 2009

222. Justin Katko — Buffalo June 25: Jow Lindsay, Posie Rider, Joshua Strauss
223. Jennifer Karmin — Call for submissions: Printers' Ball
224. David-Baptiste Chirot — Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
225. Deborah Meadows — Bruce Andrews & Deborah Meadows @ The PRB
226. Chad Sweeney — Do you know any poets living in Prague?
227. Chad Sweeney — Looking for work for Parthenon West Review Issue 7
228. Susan Webster Schultz — recent posts from mid-Pacific

22 JUN 2009

229. Matt Henriksen — Cannibal 5 Accepting Submissions

230. Philip Meersman — Proud to present: some international publications and performances by Phi…
231. John Foley — FlashPoint Celebrates FINNEGANS WAKE!
232. Small Press Traffic — status update: Conceptualism and Craft now ONE NIGHT ONLY
233. twshaner — Susan Tichy reading in Eugene this Friday
234. Rob McLennan — The Garneau Review: first issue (finally) on-line!
235. David Kirschenbaum — SAVE THE DATE: 7/15, Rothschild Book Party & Stop Making Sense Live
236. John Tranter — Jacket 37 still growing
237. Joel Weishaus — "The Gateless Gate." New Pages

23 JUN 2009

238. Gabrielle Welford — Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
239. steve russell — Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
240. Jim Andrews — Re: vancouver poet gerry gilbert
241. Kyle Schlesinger — ED SANDERS : GLYPHS 1962-2009
242. Christina Milletti — Cityscapes Conference CFP

24 JUN 2009

243. David Kirschenbaum — Boog City presents Effing Press and Katie May
244. Rodney Koeneke — Tangent reading in Portland this SAT., 6/27: STEPHANIE YOUNG, DANA WARD & …
245. Rob McLennan — 12 or 20 questions, second series;
246. Sarah Rosenthal — This Friday: Manhatten in San Francisco!

25 JUN 2009

247. Nico Vassilakis — SUBTEXT reading; Stacy Szymaszek & Don Mee Choi = 7/1/09
248. { brad brace } — 20 new pleated plaid pamphlets published!
249. Daniel Godston — Bauhaus: 90 Years / 90 Days
250. Sarah Sarai — My 3,000 Loving Arms embrace Anwar Sadat, Mark Strand, the prolific, watermel…
251. Jennifer Karmin — Poetry Workshop with Bernadette Mayer
252. Gabrielle Welford — Re: ...david bromige
253. steve russell — Fw: Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress

26 JUN 2009

254. andrea strudensky — CALL FOR POETRY SUBMISSIONS

27 JUN 2009

255. David Kirschenbaum — Last Call to Advertise in Boog City 58
256. Loretta Clodfelter — Planned by Sarah Trott Now Available from There
257. Pierre Joris — Recent NOMADICS blog posts
258. David Chirot — from blog /DAVID-BAPTISTE CHIROT Site Sight Cite Visual Sonic Visceral Poetr…

28 JUN 2009

259. nieuwland jeroen — Shady cartography
260. Stephen Vincent — H. Lazer & Tree Haptics, etc. new de blog
261. Jim Andrews — new dbcinema series: silvia saint II

29 JUN 2009

262. Doug Holder — Get a book table at the Somerville News Writers Festival!!
263. Ian Randall Wilson — A Now A Word From. . .
264. Barbara Jane Reyes — Fwd: 07/11/2009 Literary Reading at SFPL: Randall Mann, Kristin Naca, …
265. Doug Holder — Anew poetry collection: Steerage by Bert Stern
266. Susan Webster Schultz — P/RE-PUBLICATION SALE FOR LIVING PIDGIN BY LEE TONOUCHI
267. Tim Peterson — The Collection of Silence, June 30, 7 PM

268. Eric Elshtain — New Beard of Bees Poetic Almanac
269. Amanda Earl — news from AngelHousePress

1. noah eli gordon

Call for book submissions

Sun 31 May 2009

Subito Press of the University of Colorado invites submissions to its annual book competition.

We will publish two books of innovative writing, one each of fiction and poetry.

Submissions will be accepted from June 1 to August 15, 2009 (postmark date).

Submit manuscripts of up to 70 pages of poetry or up to 100 pages of (double spaced) fiction along with a $20 reading fee and an SASE for notification of results.

Manuscripts should include two cover sheets: one with title only, the other with title, author's name, address, e-mail, and phone number.

All submissions will be judged anonymously by the creative writing faculty at the University of Colorado; friends, relatives, and former students of University of Colorado creative writing faculty are not eligible.

http://www.colorado.edu/English/crw/faculty/index.html

Simultaneous submissions are ok; please notify Subito immediately if your ms. is accepted elsewhere.

Winners will give a reading at the University of Colorado in the Spring of 2010.

Notification of winners will occur by January of 2010.

Send mss. to:

Subito Press
Department of English
226 UCB
Boulder, Colorado 80309-0226

http://www.subitopress.org/

Subito Press is a nonprofit literary publisher based in the Creative Writing Department at the University of Colorado at Boulder. We look for innovative fiction and poetry that at once reflects and informs the contemporary human condition, and we promote new literary voices as well as work from previously published writers. Subito Press encourages and supports work that challenges already-accepted literary modes and devices

http://www.colorado.edu/English/crw/

Subito Press 2008 Book Competition Winners

F-Stein, by L.J. Moore
Self-Titled Debut, by Andrew Farkas

Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail®.
http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/QuickAdd?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tutorial_QuickAdd1_052009

↑ Index

2. Julie Strand

Jack Collom Master Class & Reading, June 6th, Woodland Pattern

Sun 31 May 2009

Eco-poetics Workshop with Jack Collom Saturday, June 6, 2-5pm $25 includes ticket to 7pm reading

To me, Humor and Nature are one, or maybe one and a half. Nature is everything and everything is funny. Case closed. Incongruity donut, I mean done it. We'll look into some old shell games (like which is funnier, skeletons or people? trees without leaves or trees with leaves?) but mostly we'll make our own via tradeoff poems, trying to write something that isn't funny, and other doomed enterprises. We'll also woodpecker a little surreal.

Jack Collom was born in Chicago, Illinois, 8 November 1931, and grew up in nearby Western Springs. He walked a lot in Salt Creek Woods and began bird watching at age 11. He joined the U.S. Air Force and wrote his first poems in Tripoli, Libya. After spending time in Germany, he returned to the U.S. and worked in factories for twenty years. He has four grown children and is married to the writer Jennifer Heath.

He earned an MA in English on the GI Bill, and has taught Creative Writing free-lance for over thirty years. He is Adjunct Professor at Naropa University, where he received the 2001 President's Award for Faculty and has been teaching Eco-lit (Ecology Literature) for 19 consecutive years, as well as outreach teacher-training.

Collom has authored 22 books and chapbooks of poetry. He is, moreover, responsible for three collections (with essays and commentary) of writings by children, all published by Teachers & Writers Collaborative, New York. In 2001, Tuumba Press issued a more than 500-page-long volume, *Red Car Goes By *, as his Selected Poems. His latest books are *Exchanges of Earth & Sky*and Situations, Sings (with Lyn Hejinian).

Jack Collom long ago rejected the notion that a distinction is to be made between the quotidian and the poetic. There is poetry everywhere. But to find poetry everywhere means that one is incessantly engaged with the world at the level of poetry... His attention to surprise is pronounced but never programmatic. The result is (as Merrill Gilfillan has phrased it) "the dance and weave between fierce notation and ceilingless song." from Editors' Preface to Red Car Goes By

↑ Index

3. Rob McLennan

ottawa small press book fair; reminder

Sun 31 May 2009

---

a reminder:

the ottawa small press book fair twice a year since 1994
june 20th at the jack purcell community centre

http://smallpressbookfair.blogspot.com/2009/02/ottawa-small-press-book-fair-spring.html

& pre-fair reading, june 19th at the carleton tavern with Gillian Sze, Nick McArthur, Laurie Fuhr & Cameron Anstee

http://abovegroundpress.blogspot.com/2009/05/ottawa-small-press-book-fair-spring.html

info: rob mclennan at [redacted]

-- writer/editor/publisher ...STANZAS mag, above/ground press & Chaudiere Books (www.chaudierebooks.com) ...coord.,SPAN-O + ottawa small press fair ...13th poetry coll'n - The Ottawa City Project ...novel - white www.abovegroundpress.blogspot.com * http://robmclennan.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

4. Samuel Wharton

Fwd: sawbuck 3.2, summer 2009

Sun 31 May 2009

---

readers & contributors~

it's getting hot here in sacramento. that's probably because the summer 2009 issue of sawbuck <http://www.sawbuckpoetry.blogspot.com> is ready to roll.

with such blazing poets as corey mesler david sewell erik anderson gina abelkop jennifer h. fortin joseph p. wood kate schapira kristina marie darling nick demske & paul hostovsky doing the contributing, what would you expect?

& as always, we're reading for future issues, so send something over, or tell your friends.

~samuel day wharton, editor sawbuck <http://www.sawbuckpoetry.blogspot.com>

↑ Index

5. Paul Nelson

Re: What is Open?

Sun 31 May 2009

This seems right to me, the distinction of McLow, etc. as bei Charles,

This seems right to me, the distinction of McLow, etc. as being Open and not necessarily Organic. I'd put Berrigan's Sonnets in the Open category as well, among many others. Aleatorical methods are not to be confused with Improvisational ones and I think that has a lot in common with the Organic.

For me though, what IS in common with the Organic method and chance is the philsophical substrate/underpinning on which they're based, that being an organismic world view, as opposed to a mechanistic/reductionist/competitive one. The focus on relationships, relativity, negative capability, relinquishing control - to some degree - is part of that commonality.

As for Robin, I did not get into it with him the few times I had the honor of talking with him.

Paul

Paul E. Nelson

Global Voices Radio
SPLAB!
American Sentences
Organic Poetry
Poetry Postcard Blog

Ilalqo, WA [redacted]

_____
From: Charles Alexander <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Friday, May 29, 2009 4:08:24 PM
Subject: Re: What is Open?

Also, I think Duncan and Olson thought the poem was not a "closed" system, i.e. it was open to what is "not" the poem, so that a poem didn't need to feel "finished" and set apart, so that one might think of the field as encompassing more than the single poem, even more than the single poet, a field of relations in which any single poem is partial. I think Blaser touches on this in the quote Paul brings forth here, about where the poem takes the reader, where it takes the poet. I'm not quite so comfortable with "organic" only in that I'm not sure how that might fit with the use of various procedures (a la Mac Low), which I think can (but don't necessarily always) partake of "open" poetry as well. "Organic" as I might understand it would apply various sorts of natural progressions in the poem, and I don't think that "natural" is the only way for the poem to move openly. But quite possibly Blaser had no such sense of "organic" as I do.

charles

charles alexander
chax press
[redacted]
411 N 7th ave, suite 103
tucson arizona 85705
[redacted]

On May 29, 2009, at 12:09 PM, Paul Nelson wrote:

> Open means allowing the poem to find its own track. Duncan
> Catherine,
>
> Open means allowing the poem to find its own track. Duncan and Levertov used this language in the early 60's in their correspondence and differentiated Organic from Free Verse and certainly from Conventional poetry. You have to be open to let the poem find its way...open to the turns a poem wants to make for itself. A free verse poem like Howl is not entirely organic, because Allen had a sense of what he wanted to say about his friends and acquantences being fucked over by the Military-Industrial mentality and the industry-generated culture which maintains this force.
>
> Robin Blaser, rest his soul, in the introduction to The Holy Forest suggests:"The whole marvellous thing of open form is a traditional and an American problem...the sublime poem (tells) the narrative of the spirit...not simply to be led to a conclusion, but be taken by such a magical carmen perpetuum to all the image-nations of this remarkable, revivifying world.
>
> In my meetings with him in 2005 & 6 (documented here: http://www.goldenhandcuffsreview.com/gh9content/16.html) he was fine with calling it Open, Projective and Organic, as if the terms were interchangable. But I think Organic is more evocative of the cosmology of process, relationship and interdependence als Whitehead and the Hua Yen Buddhists. This is why I prefer it.

Paul

Paul E. Nelson

Global Voices Radio
SPLAB!
American Sentences
Organic Poetry
Poetry Postcard Blog

Ilalqo, WA [redacted]

From: Catherine Daly <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Friday, May 29, 2009 11:29:15 AM
Subject: Re: What is Open?

Well, Mesey and Berg included Levertov's organic poetry essay in NAKED poetry, but I see no reason open = organic

On Wed, May 27, 2009 at 3:23 PM, Paul Nelson <[redacted]> wrote:

Open is organic.

The Organic poem is not the recor
Catherine,

Open is organic.

The Organic poem is not the record of an event, it is an event, an occasion of experience, a map of the mind at work in the moment, ear measuring and mind mediating the crowd of outside voices/impulses and resonances erring on the side of entelechy for the individual and polis and culture, in deep connection with dimensions larger than the pen-holder, enacting â€“ not describing â€“ the instant rather than the act of thought about the instant.

The Organic poem is allied with velocity and the duende beyond mere discourse and the function of symbology, imbued with a luminousity that exists just beyond comprehension of the pen-holder, and ripples with the silver of a wave in the midnight of Harvest Moonlight, or the white of alder-filtered September sunlight just beyond the foot of the morning altar.

It is the living apprehension of the underlying form as it spills out its testimony as only the moment can reveal, never completely contained in one poem except that poem which is the final result of a lifetime of an individual poetâ€™s never fully articulate striving, a chaotic murmur of soul re-directing self to Self in an alchemical conjunctio only antepasados fully comprehend.

It is the practice divine of ear training, star to mind to hand to pen to blossoming, a harvesting of forces learned over years, decades, lifetimes of homage and refined, knows process as its own inherent reward in a systemless system which chooses recklessly those who would use speech (at once) at its least careless and least logical, poet as time mechanic, not embalmer.

The Organic poem is the mercy, mercy, mercy of the intersection of the vastness of outer space with the vastness of the space inside skull in complete candor, the ordinary mind in discovery of perceptions eternal in celebration of person (Universe is Person), not a stream of consciousness, more a coherent splendor, more a field of first permission to which one is allowed access more often than one thinks.

Paul

Paul E. Nelson

Global Voices Radio
SPLAB!
American Sentences
Organic Poetry
Poetry Postcard Blog

Ilalqo, WA [redacted]

> From: Catherine Daly <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Wednesday, May 27, 2009 2:24:22 PM
> Subject: Re: Urgent Poetics Query --New: Call for Poetics Contributors
>
> Richard's post, as well as my finding a first edition Naked Poetry anthology
> at the library book sale, made me think of a definition of what we mean by "open poetry" "open poetics" and -- "open discussion".
>
> --
> All best,
> Catherine Daly
> [redacted]
>
> --All best,
> Catherine Daly
> [redacted]

↑ Index

6. Sam Ladkin

Doug Oliver Conference Call for Papers

Mon 1 Jun 2009

Dear All,
Apologies for cross-posting but delighted to send out word of this Doug Oliver conference shepherded into life by Matt Ffytche and Philip Terry. I hope some helpful things can be said.
Best, Sam

CALL FOR PAPERS

VARIATIONS ON THE THEME OF HARM

A One-day Conference on the work of Douglas Oliver

University of Essex, Saturday 5th December 2009.

You are invited to submit a title and an abstract for a 20-minute paper on either: any aspect of Douglas Oliver's work and its influence(s); or, a reading of an individual poem or other work. Abstracts should be no more than 200 words in length and must be received by 31st July 2009.

The conference will be accompanied by an exhibition of books and manuscripts from the University of Essex's Douglas Oliver Archive. A series of readings from poets, including Alice Notley and Ralph Hawkins, will follow in the evening.

Conference organisers:

Matt ffytche, Centre for Psychoanalytic Studies, [redacted]

Philip Terry, Department of Literature, Film, and Theatre Studies, [redacted]

↑ Index

7. Vernon Frazer

NEW BOOK by Vernon Frazer: EMBLEMATIC MOON

Mon 1 Jun 2009

Beneath the Underground Books is pleased to announce the May 15 publication of EMBLEMATIC MOON, Vernon Frazer's first long poem since IMPROVISATIONS.

EMBLEMATIC MOON continues Frazer's fusion of textual and visual poetry in its it exploration of the human desire to transcend limitations.

EMBLEMATIC MOON can be downloaded or purchased at http://www.lulu.com/content/paperback-book/emblematic-moon/6562653 .

↑ Index

8. Lars Palm

now out from ungovernable press, Adam Fieled

Mon 1 Jun 2009

Dear all,

ungovernable press is excited to announce the publication of

The White Album, the new free e-book by Adam Fieled

cheers,
lars

http://ungovernablepress.weebly.com

↑ Index

9. David Chirot

: NYTimes.com: Poetic Justice: Briton Says She Helped Taint Rival

Mon 1 Jun 2009

---

* BOOKS * | May 26, 2009
* Poetic Justice: Briton Says She Helped Taint Rival <http://www.nytimes.com/2009/05/26/books/26poet.html?emc=eta1> *
By JOHN F. BURNS
Ruth Padel resigned after admitting that she helped publicize charges that her rival for Oxford's chair in poetry had sexually harassed a former student.

<http://www.nytimes.com/adx/bin/adx_click.html?type=goto&page=www.nytimes.com/yr/mo/day/books&pos=Center1&sn2=6ab0aed9/1789547c&sn1=24e46954/5c35c418&camp=foxsearch2009_emailtools_1011074g-nyt5&ad=Adam_120x60_recipientpage&goto=http://www.foxsearchlight.com/adam> <http://www.nytimes.com/adx/bin/adx_click.html?type=goto&page=www.nytimes.com/yr/mo/day/books&pos=Center1&sn2=6ab0aed9/1789547c&sn1=24e46954/5c35c418&camp=foxsearch2009_emailtools_1011074g-nyt5&ad=Adam_120x60_recipientpage&goto=http://www.foxsearchlight.com/adam>

↑ Index

10. amy king

Fwd: New Issue of the clarity, please forward

Mon 1 Jun 2009

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Ben Evans <[redacted]>

Please forward. This issue has a lot to offer, and we would GREATLY appreciate all your help in spreading the word. Thanks so much!

The June Issue of the Arts Review Fogged Clarity is up at www.foggedclarity.com. This edition features an interview with author Joe Meno, a startling new essay by UCLA professor Jascha Kessler, the art of Damara Kaminecki and Peter Ciccariello, the fiction of Richard Cassone, the music of Lewis and Clarke, the poetry of Chris Hosea and much more.

--
Executive Editor, "Fogged Clarity"
www.foggedclarity.com

Ben Evans

--

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

11. Halvard Johnson
Re: Call for book submissions
Mon 1 Jun 2009

Thanks for the invitation, but as a non-profit content-provider I don't supply reading fees or SASEs.

Hal

"My experience is what I agree to attend to."
--William James

Halvard Johnson
==========
[redacted]
http://sites.google.com/site/halvardjohnson/Home
http://entropyandme.blogspot.com
http://imageswithoutwords.blogspot.com
http://www.hamiltonstone.org

On Sun, May 31, 2009 at 12:11 PM, noah eli gordon <[redacted]
> wrote:

> Subito Press of the University of Colorado invites submissions to its annual book competition.
>
> We will publish two books of innovative writing, one each of fiction and poetry.
>
> Submissions will be accepted from June 1 to August 15, 2009 (postmark date).
>
> Submit manuscripts of up to 70 pages of poetry or up to 100 pages of (double spaced) fiction along with a $20 reading fee and an SASE for notification of results.
>
> Manuscripts should include two cover sheets: one with title only, the other with title, author's name, address, e-mail, and phone number.
>
> All submissions will be judged anonymously by the creative writing faculty at the University of Colorado; friends, relatives, and former students of University of Colorado creative writing faculty are not eligible.

http://www.colorado.edu/English/crw/faculty/index.html

Simultaneous submissions are ok; please notify Subito immediately if your ms. is accepted elsewhere.

Winners will give a reading at the University of Colorado in the Spring of 2010.

Notification of winners will occur by January of 2010.

Send mss. to:

Subito Press
Department of English
226 UCB
Boulder, Colorado 80309-0226

http://www.subitopress.org/

Subito Press is a nonprofit literary publisher based in the Creative Writing Department at the University of Colorado at Boulder. We look for innovative fiction and poetry that at once reflects and informs the contemporary human condition, and we promote new literary voices as well as work from previously published writers. Subito Press encourages and supports work that challenges already-accepted literary modes and devices

http://www.colorado.edu/English/crw/

Subito Press 2008 Book Competition Winners

F-Stein, by L.J. Moore
Self-Titled Debut, by Andrew Farkas

Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail®.

> http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/QuickAdd?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tutorial_QuickAdd1_052009

↑ Index

12. Sharon Dolin

Fwd: Reading with Patricia Smith & Matthew Hittinger @ Center for Book Arts - Wed, Jun 3, 6:30 pm

Mon 1 Jun 2009

Dear Friends,
A reminder:
>
>
>
>
> Quick Links:
>
> Browse our > Upcoming Classes
>
> Current Exhibitions > Opportunities
> Online Calendar
> Flickr
> Facebook
> Twitter
> Blog
>
> UPCOMING WORKSHOP:
>
> Cloth Reback
> aka > Book Emergency Room!
>
> Saturday & Sunday
> June 20-21
> 10am-4pm
>
>
>
> This course is aimed at students with some experience of > bookbinding who want to further develop their skills in > conservation and restoration. Students will learn how to restore a > cloth bound book and conserve the original binding materials.

> Demonstrations and hands-on work will include: cleaning and > relining spines, making headbands, dying cloth, corner and inner > joint repair, headcap repair. Bring 2-3 books to work on. Some > bookbinding experience required.
>
> Teacher:
> Sophia Kramer,
> Book Conservator at the Metropolitan Museum of Art
>
> Click here to register.
> UPCOMING WORKSHOP:
>
> Brown Bag Bindery: Essential Tools 101
>
> Saturday, June 27
> 10am-4pm
>
>
>
> Many book arts facilities are limited in storage space and budgets > to purchase additional equipment. Now students can begin to acquire > equipment as they advance in their knowledge and skills. Continue > creating books at home after taking a workshop or community class.
> Complete and personalize your own piercing cradle, sewing frame and > finishing press.
>
> All tools are knock-down, hand finished with multiple layers of eco-> friendly paints. A carrying tote is included!
>
> Teacher:
> Sylvia Alotta
>
> Click here to register
>
>
> with > Patricia Smith
> and Matthew Hittinger
>
> This Wednesday

> June 3, 6:30pm
>
> Join us for this dynamic pairing of two poets and take home a > unique letterpress broadside of the poets' work. A reception > accompanies the reading, and a limited-edition broadside print of > work by each poet is produced by an artist at the Center and > distributed at the reading
>
> Patricia Smith is a poet, spoken word performer, playwright, > author, and writing teacher. Her most recent book of poetry, Blood > Dazzler, was selected as a finalist for the 2008 National Book Award.
>
> She is the author of Teahouse of the Almighty, a 2005 National > Poetry Series selection; Close to Death; Big Towns, Big Talk, which > won the Carl Sandburg Literary Award; and Life According to Motown.
>
> A four-time individual champion on the National Poetry Slam, Smith > has also been a featured poet on HBO's Def Poetry Jam and has > performed her work around the world. She has written and performed > two one-woman plays, one of which was produced by Derek Walcott's > Trinidad Theater Workshop. She is a Cave Canem faculty member and > has served as the Bruce McEver Chair in Writing at Georgia Tech > University.
>
> Matthew Hittinger is the author of Pear Slip, winner of the Spire > Press 2006 Spring Chapbook Award. Shortlisted for the National > Poetry Series, the New Issues Poetry Prize, and twice for the Walt > Whitman Award, Matthew's honors include a Hopwood Award and The > Helen S. and John Wagner Prize from the University of Michigan, the > Kay Deeter Award from the journal Fine Madness, and three Pushcart > nominations. His work has appeared in many journals including > American Letters & Commentary, Center: A Journal of the Literary > Arts, DIAGRAM, Mantis, Memorious, Meridian, Michigan Quarterly > Review, Oranges & Sardines and elsewhere, including the anthology > Best New Poets 2005. Matthew lives and works in New York City.
>
> This reading is organized and will be introduced by Sharon Dolin.
>
> Click here to see recent poetry broadsides from the series, and you > can also take a look at photos from previous Broadsides readings.
>
> WHEN:

> Wednesday, June 3, 6:30 pm
>
> WHERE:
> The Center for Book Arts
> 28 West 27th Street, Third Floor
> Between Broadway and Sixth Avenue
> Subway: N, R, W to 28th Street; F, V to 23rd Street; 1 to 28th Street
> www.centerforbookarts.org
>
> HOW MUCH:
> Suggested Admission: $10/$5 members
>
>
> AGITPROP!
> Friday, June 12, 6-9pm - NEXT WEEK!
>
> We'll be rolling up our sleeves in the printshop with poet-printer > Jeremy James Thompson, former Stein Scholar and creator > extraordinaire of exciting printed materials at the Center for Book > Arts. The theme, AGITPROP!, will have us converted into members of > the New York Department of Agitation & Propaganda, where we'll > print a selection of handbills and small posters relevant to the > economic situation affecting all of us, and discuss some techniques > for distributing the message. Join the movement! Apolitical > printers welcome!
>
> $10/$5 members (suggested). No registration required.
>
> Click here to see photos from last month's Lounge.
>
>
>
> \'flÅ\: art, text, new media > Organized by RocÃo Aranda-Alvarado, this exhibition brings together > sculptors, painters, photographers, printers, and video and > performance artists, all of whom engage the concept of "flow" - how > text and image move and interfuse.
>
> Artists in the exhibition include: Cara Barer, Victoria Bean, Karen > Bleitz, Terry Boddie, Chris Burnett, Karlos CÃ¡rcamo, Brendan
> Carroll, Cheto Castellano, Vidal Centeno, YOUNG-HAE CHANGE HEAVY > INDUSTRIES, Andrew Demirjian, Dahlia Elsayed, Leor Grady, Heather

> Johnson, Elaine Kaufmann, Swati Khurana, Jessica Lagunas, Tami
> Lynn, Jeanette May, Emily McVarish, Roni Mocan, Shayok
> Mukhopadhyay, Clifford Owens, Robin Price, Diane Samuels, Rocco > Scary, Holli Schorno, Nyugen Smith, Masumi Shibata, Jennifer > Sullivan, Scott Taylor, Delmira Valladares, Alejandra Villasmil, > and Sam Winston.
>
> Roni Gross: Zitouna at 20 > 2008 was the 20th Anniversary of Zitouna press, which means "olive" > in Arabic. Started in 1988 by Roni Gross, the press publishes > multiple editions twice a year for Halloween and Valentines Day.
> These holidays were chosen because they are secular and thus > inclusive. Beginning as cards, they soon became vehicles for > investigations into the origins of these holidays; meditations on > the seasons in which they occur; folklore from around the world;
> mating rituals, word play and numerous other topics. The objects > have taken many forms over the years, from constructed Rolodex > books, to broadsides, to photographic puzzles. Letterpress, offset > and Xerox printing, photography, watercolor, and collage have been > some of the mediums employed.
>
> Spotlight: 2008 Artists-in-Residence > An exhibition featuring new work produced here at the Center during > their 2008 residency by emerging artists Cesar Cornejo, Hadassa > Goldvicht, Wennie Huang, Ivan Monforte, and ZoÃ« Sheehan SaldaÃ±a.
> These New York-based emerging artists are offered space, time and > support to explore the production and exhibition of artist's books > and related work in twelve-month residencies. The purpose of this > program is to promote experimentation in making book art. The > Center especially encourages artists from all disciplinary > backgrounds and from culturally diverse backgrounds.
>
>
>
> Gallery Opening Hours:
> Monday to Friday, 10am-6pm
> Saturday, 10am-4pm
>
> All Current Exhibitions on View Through June 27, 2009
>
> Free Admission to Gallery > Support the Center for Book Arts > and receive great benefits ...

>
>
> Discounts on all Center for Book Arts classes > Reduced admission to the Center's public events, readings, and > workshops
> Discounts at select NYC art supply stores and the Center's bookstore > Receive course catalogues and special invitations
> Membership starts at $50
> Click here to learn more and join online!
>
>
>
>
> 28 West 27th Street, Third Floor
> New York, New York 10001
> [redacted]
> www.centerforbookarts.org
>
> Click here for directions to the Center.
>
> The Center's Visual Arts Program and related Public Programs are > supported in part by the Lily Auchincloss Foundation and the > Dedalus Foundation. Additional support for the Center's programs is > provided in part by the Achelis Foundation, the Carnegie > Corporation, the J.M. Kaplan Fund, the Milton and Sally Avery Arts > Fund, the New York City Department of Cultural Affairs and the New > York State Council on the Arts. Support for the Center's > Collections Initiative comes from the National Endowment for the > Arts, the Max and Victoria Dreyfus Foundation, and the Gladys > Krieble Delmas Foundation. Major funding for the Center's Capacity > Building programs is provided by the Rockefeller Brothers Fund, the > Robert Sterling Clark Foundation, the Hyde & Watson Foundation, and > the New York Community Trust. Special support for the Center's > Artist-in-Residence program has been provided by the Foundation for > Contemporary Arts. The Center also acknowledges the generous > support of its patrons and members.
>
>
> Forward email
>
> This email was sent to [redacted] by

> [redacted].
> Update Profile/Email Address | Instant removal with > SafeUnsubscribeâ„¢ | Privacy Policy.
> Email Marketing by
>
> The Center for Book Arts | 28 West 27th Street | Third Floor | New > York | NY | 10001
>

↑ Index

13. susan maurer

Re: now out from ungovernable press, Adam Fieled

Mon 1 Jun 2009

congrats. susan maurer

> Date: Mon, 1 Jun 2009 08:43:22 -0400
> From: [redacted]
> Subject: now out from ungovernable press, Adam Fieled
> To: [redacted]
>
> Dear all,
>
> ungovernable press is excited to announce the publication of
>
> The White Album, the new free e-book by Adam Fieled
>
> cheers,
> lars
>
> http://ungovernablepress.weebly.com

Windows Live™: Keep your life in sync.
http://windowslive.com/explore?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_BR_life_in_synch_052009

↑ Index

14. William Slaughter

Notice: Mudlark

Mon 1 Jun 2009

New and On View: Mudlark Poster No. 81 (2009)

Six Poems by T. R. Hummer

T.R. Hummer is the author of 11 books of poetry & prose, most recently The Infinity Sessions (poems) and The Muse in the Machine: Essays on Poetry and the Anatomy of the Body Politic (essays). He teaches creative writing and literature at Arizona State University.

Spread the word. Far and wide,

William Slaughter

MUDLARK
An Electronic Journal of Poetry & Poetics
Never in and never out of print...
E-mail: [redacted]
URL: http://www.unf.edu/mudlark

↑ Index

15. Jennifer Karmin
Red Rover Series / Experiment #30
Tue 2 Jun 2009

Red Rover Series
{readings that play with reading}

Experiment #30:
Eye Heard Throughout

SATURDAY, JUNE 6th
7pm

Featuring:
Amira Hanafi
Noé Cuéllar with Ian Hatcher, Joseph Kramer & Meredith Zielke

NEW LOCATION
at the Orientation Center
2129 N. Rockwell -- Chicago, IL
corner of Milwaukee/Rockwell
left side of the Congress Theater building
http://orientationcenter.wordpress.com
suggested donation $4

NOÉ CUÉLLAR is a sound designer and photographer originally from Laredo, TX, graduating from the School of the Art Institute of Chicago this spring. His work comprises composition, text and musical elements. variety of his work has been performed or exhibited at the Third Coast International Audio Festival, New Music at the Green Mill, Looptopia(Chicago); Neighborhood Public Radio/Whitney Biennial (NYC); Megapolis Audio Art and Documentary Festival (Boston); Sound Art Space (Laredo, TX); among others. Cuéllar frequents collaborations with poets, filmmakers and performers, and also strives to present Sound as an independent medium.

AMIRA HANAFI lives in Chicago. She has exhibited work in Chicago galleries, published visual poetry in Diagram and Sleepingfish, organized multi-vocal readings of her texts, performed with the Clairaudient sound collective, and dispersed handmade books and multiples including Palm Reading, Mesostis, and Trinities. You can read her work in the new issue of American Letters & Commentary.

IAN HATCHER is a graduate of the School of the Art Institute of Chicago. His work in realtime networked writing has been performed and presented at the Electronic Literature Organization conference in Washington, the Electronic Literature in Europe conference in Norway, and Brown University. He is also the primary composer and accompanist for the Moving Architects dance company, and collaborates widely on projects with other interdisciplinary artists in Chicago and elsewhere. http://clearblock.net

JOSEPH KRAMER is a multi-instrumentalist from the Ozark plateau where he performed with and helped organize the close/far family of music groups. He is currently living in Chicago and pursuing a graduate degree from the School of the Art Institute. Recent work has focused on an exploration of space through transmission, interference, and gentle feedback performed on modified consumer electronics.

MEREDITH ZIELKE is an award-winning independent filmmaker and audio producer, having undertaken topics such as the effective process of dialogue in confronting the Israel/Palestine conflict ("Zeitouna"), prismatic notions of body in Ecuador ("La Curación"), nautical illustrations of Restless Leg Syndrome ("Jib Halyard") and alternatives in hierarchical public education ("Our School"). Meredith filmed and edited documentaries as well as experimental shorts have been screened at film / multimedia festivals and anthropological / ethnographic conferences. She often films commission work in support of non-profit efforts and has instructed audio/video documentary courses at the Detroit Film Center, Mess Hall [Chicago], and in Loja, Ecuador.

Red Rover Series is curated by Lisa Janssen and Jennifer Karmin. Each event is designed as a reading experiment with participation by local, national, and international writers, artists, and performers. The series was founded in 2005 by Amina Cain and Jennifer Karmin.

UPCOMING
July 11: A D Jameson & Michelle Tupko
August 29: Krista Franklin & Adam Rose

Email ideas for reading experiments
to us at [redacted]

The schedule for events is listed at http://groups.yahoo.com/group/redroverseries

↑ Index

16. Bob Heman
9th Big CLWN WR Event + Onomatomania
Tue 2 Jun 2009

Hi folks - this is just to remind you all that from 7 until 10 on thursday, June 11 the 9th Big CLWN WR Event will be unfolding at the SAFE-T Gallery in the D.U.M.B.O. ("down under Manhattan Bridge overpass") section of Brooklyn

the information follows below, but first a word about Onomatomania, the group show that will be filling the walls of SAFE-T Gallery during June and July with some exciting work that explores the repetitive, obsessive, and compulsive involvement of visual artists with words - i'll have seven collages in the show - six of them are brand new (and quite different from what you've seen me do in the past) - for all the information on the show (plus a reproduction of a work by each of the artists) follow the link below:

http://www.safetgallery.com/Onomatomania/OnomatoWriteup.html

there will be an opening celebration for Onomatomania this thursday, June 4, between 6 and 8 at the Gallery (and if you want to make it a gallery evening there will be openings as well at 3 or 4 of the other galleries that share the building) - the show will be up until July 18, so if you wish you can wait and view the show on thursday, June 11, at the

9th Big CLWN WR Event which will feature readings and performances by Holly Anderson, Joel Chace, R. Nemo Hill, Sheila Lanham, Katrinka Moore, Jane Ormerod, Carolyn Ota, Adriana Scopino, Elizabeth Smith, Moira T. Smith, Phyllis Wat and Nathan Whiting

plus there will be an exciting special guest as well - the extremely talented coloratura soprano Patricia Sonego will be performing several early baroque songs accompanied by Michael Eisenberg on lap harp - Patricia is a wonderful performer who i never tire of hearing (i've heard her over a dozen times!!) - most recently i had the pleasure several nights ago of hearing her rehearsing with Michael the pieces she'll be performing on the 11th - i think it's safe to say that if you attend you'll be in for a memorable experience - if you want to read more about Patricia check out her website at www.patriciasonego.com

SAFE-T GALLERY is located at 111 Front Street, Gallery 214, in the D.U.M.B.O. section of Brooklyn (take the "F" train to York Street, walk downhill to Front St. and turn left under the Manhattan Bridge - for more information, maps, and directions from other subway lines go to the Gallery's website at http://www.safetgallery.com) admission is free and everyone who attends will receive a copy of the latest issue of CLWN WR hope to see you all soon - Bob

Bob Heman
[redacted]

↑ Index

17. crystal hoffman

TypewriterGirls Poetry Cabaret this Sunday! Pittsburgh, PA

Tue 2 Jun 2009

It's a play, it's a dance party, it's a poetry reading and a magic act--what else could you ask for, really? Free Whiskey? Yep, we've got that too!

If any of you will be in the area, I would be honored to have you there.

Crystal

@Your Inner Vagabond Coffeehouse & World Lounge
4130 Butler Street, Lawrenceville, Pgh, 15201

Sunday, June 7th
Doors/ Whiskey Games/Exquisite Corpse at 7:00pm/ShowÂ at 7:30pm
The TypewriterGirls Try Politics:

An Awareness Event for the Employee Free Choice Actâ€¦kind of After the (amazing) scantily clad, mildly orgiastic debacle that was The TypewriterGirls Try Drag, the ladies have decided to turn over a new leaf and begin an epic battle in the name of social justice.Â Join them in their quest to unionize the Greater Pittsburgh bohemian communityâ€“streetwalkers, poets, bicyclists, tarot card readers, amateur astrologers, and the likeâ€“while revolutionizing Pittsburghâ€™s concept of â€œemployed.â€ Supported by the AFL-CIO (in a manner of speaking), The TypewriterGirls have rounded up an all-star team of Grass Roots Community Organizers to aid them in their cause.

Featured Poets: Renee Alberts â€“ Renee Alberts lives on a mountain in Pittsburgh with her partner and two cats, Fellini and Pushpaw. From there, she listens to rivers and shortwave and translates the conversations into poetry, sound and collage. She is the author of the recently published No Water (Speed and Brisco, 2009). She collaborates across mediums with some fine wordsmiths, musician, and dancers has organized numerous poetry and music events, including the Sunday Poetry & Reading Series. Adam Atkinson â€“ Adam Atkinson was born in 1983 and grew up in Arnold, Pennsylvania. This winter, he will be a resident at the Ventspils House for Writing and Translation in Latvia. Currently, he is the Co-Director of Open Thread, a Pittsburgh-based arts organization, where he also coordinates SPF, the upcoming small press festival in Pittsburgh, and serves as Literary Editor of all publications. He has taught writing and literature at the Lincoln Park Performing Arts Charter and the Pittsburgh Center for the Arts. His poems have appeared in Bat City Review and Encyclopedia Destructica.

Mary Biddinger- Mary is the author of Prairie Fever (Steel Toe Books, 2007), and the Editor of the Akron Series in Poetry. She also serves on the Open Competition Editorial Committee for the Cleveland State University Poetry Center. In 2007 she founded the independent literary magazine Barn Owl Review. Her work has recently appeared or is forthcoming in 32 Poems, Fifth Wednesday Journal, Gulf Coast, The Laurel Review, Memorious, Ninth Letter, North American Review, /nor, Third Coast, and many other journals. Jay Robinson- Jay Robinson teaches English Composition at the University of Akron. Heâ€™s Co-Editor-in-Chief / Reviews Editor of Barn Owl Review. His poems have appeared in Anti, Mars Hill Review, Plainsongs, Softblow, Tar River Poetry, Weave. Prose has been published in Agni and Poetry. Festured Miscellany: Escape Artistry by Dave Doyle (aka Pester the Jester) â€” Magician, Fire Breather, Stilt Walker, Stage Combatant, Childrenâ€™s Entertainer and Chain Maille Tinker.

Music by Between Liberties â€” a progressive acoustic musical experiment Punk Rock Burlesque by Shrimp Scanty â€” Smallest member of The Bridge City Bombshells (Pittsburghâ€™s only alternative burlesque troupe).

Dance Party by DJ Randy Spinster

↑ Index

18. crystal hoffman

More TypewriterGirl Info--just in case

Tue 2 Jun 2009

Check out typewritergirls.net. It's our new site.

↑ Index

19. Sharon Mesmer/David Borchart

Lyn Hejinian query

Tue 2 Jun 2009

Hello, poets,

Would anyone have an email address (or any contact info) for Lyn Hejinian? You can b/c at [redacted].

With thanks,
Sharon Mesmer

↑ Index

20. mIEKAL aND
What Plagiarism Looks Like
Tue 2 Jun 2009

Business as usual...

http://mleddy.blogspot.com/2009/06/what-plagiarism-looks-like.html

↑ Index

21. mIEKAL aND
[out of nothing] #2: A New Frame of Nothing
Tue 2 Jun 2009

[out of nothing] #2: A New Frame of Nothing

Ogle / eavesdrop / be diverted / be disarmed / luxuriate in / puzzle over the second issue of [out of nothing], "a new frame of nothing".

http://www.outofnothing.org featuring work from:

mIEKAL aND
jennifer calkins andrew choate debra diblasi jenn hawe jeremy hight alan jones maxi kim sawako nakayusa kristen orser analisa raya-flores
davis schneiderman
anna joy springer and our emcee, christine wertheim always accepting submissions... [redacted]

enjoy!

↑ Index

22. Ryan Daley
New York in Fiction
Tue 2 Jun 2009

Dear Fellow Listservees and Listserved,

I'm teaching a class on New York City in Fiction in the fall and wanted to hear your suggestions for supplemental reading. I have a few in mind (Invisible Man, New York Trilogy, etc), but I'm looking for more. Length isn't a concern: 50 or 500 pages, they'll read it.

I'd greatly appreciate suggestions.

Thanks!

Best,

Ryan Daley

↑ Index

23. Trevor Joyce
SoundEye Festival, 8-12 July, Cork, Ireland
Tue 2 Jun 2009

---

*SoundEye Festival of the Arts of the Word
8-12 July, 2009
Cork, Ireland*

Participants include:

Christine Wertheim
David Toms
Fergal Gaynor
Frances Kruk
Geoff Squires
Jaap Blonk
James Cummins
Jerome Rothenberg
Jim Goar
Keith Tuma
Keston Sutherland
Kevin Perryman
Louis Armand
Maggie O'Sullivan
Mairéad Byrne

Marcus Slease
Michael Smith
Peter Manson
Sean Bonney
Swantjia Lichtenstein
Tom Raworth
& others in readings, and the SoundEye Cabaret

"Without question it is the most innovative and most important literary gathering to take place in Ireland - or just about anywhere else - over the last decade". - Charles Bernstein (2005)

"One of the most important ongoing poetry festivals in the Anglophone poetry world. . . . This is the festival poetry scholars of the future will be writing about." - Marjorie Perloff

"Our affiliation has provided UbuWeb with new content focused on the rich terrain of Irish and British poetry and poetics. The partnership works both ways: for our audience, SoundEye is Ireland''s most important literary festival." - Kenneth Goldsmith

+++

This year SoundEye will take place in the context of:

*The Avant: Ten Days of the Progressive Arts

July 3-12 in Cork, Ireland*

Go see their website at http://theavant.wordpress.com/

Where you can read Fergal Gaynor's account of the origins of the idea . . .

"In 2008 experimental composer Alvin Lucier bumped into Ubuweb founder and conceptual writer Kenny Goldsmith on a street in Cork. Completely surprised, each wondered what the other was doing in this provincial city on the other side of the Atlantic. Apparently, SoundEye Festival of the Arts of the Word, in which Goldsmith was participating, was on at the same time as The Quiet Music Festival, which featured Lucier. So Kenny attended as much of the music festival as he could, and took me aside one evening for a chat.

Kenny is a can-do kind of guy: "you've got these two great festivals here in Cork, why don't you talk to each other and co-ordinate the programmes? I'm sure lots of people in SoundEye would like to go to Quiet Music stuff and vice versa."

The irony of Kenny's chance encounter wasn't lost on me, but I'd been so busy with SoundEye in the preceding months that I simply hadn't surfaced sufficiently to be aware of what was happening in the city apart from the poetry festival. Soon afterwards Mick O'Shea informed me that it was unlikely that a Quiet Music Festival would take place in Cork in 2009. But neither fact mattered: Kenny had sown a seed.

And once I managed to look around it was clear that these two summer festivals weren't the only things happening in the city. After what had felt like a hangover period in the wake of 2005 and the European Capital of Culture Year signs of renewed energy had begun to appear: the opening of artist-run galleries like the Black Mariah and Couch; a host of sound art and improvisation events; film nights run in the National Sculpture Factory and the Sláinte Bar; regular events at the Glucksman, including Ed Krèma's Eye and Mind series of discussions. What was evident in all of these enterprises was a taste for the avant-garde: it could almost be said that Cork was becoming a centre for avant-garde art. All that was needed was some of Kenny's co-ordination.

The Avant is a simple idea: ask a number of Cork-based organisations, supportive of avant-garde practices, to schedule events which they would programme in any case, in a limited period (9 days) in the summer. Pool their resources in terms of audience and publicity, but in all other matters let them run their events independently. Voilá, with no extra funding, and little extra effort, a festival of experimental and pioneering art in Cork city, worthy of national, if not international attention. Hopefully that is what will happen, and hopefully the public interested in hearing sonic improvisation in the Crawford Gallery will be willing to try out conceptual writing at SoundEye; the SoundEye poets will be found scrutinising the artworks at the Black Mariah; the art lovers will find their way to the SoundEye cabaret, and the music lovers there will give Sonic Vigil a chance. And hopefully from all of this - new ideas, new publics and new collaborations.

The Avant won't be perfect: I'm not a waged arts administrator, so organising this means that I'm again immersed, unable to take in what's happening outside of my little sphere of business. The organisations involved in The Avant are associated with individuals I meet regularly: there are certainly a number of other vibrant groups whom I don't often come into contact with, and who have therefore fallen outside the range of my organisational activity, but might very well wish to be involved. On the other hand there is a strength in this kind of more personal practice: it means that The Avant is based on ongoing conversations, and conversation, to my mind, is the soul of culture. With any luck the 'festival' itself will draw new people into the conversation, just as it will reshape that same conversation, leading to wider and deeper urban activity in the wake of July 2009."

So, come see us in Cork, early July!

Best to all,

Trevor

↑ Index

24. Maria Damon
Re: New York in Fiction
Wed 3 Jun 2009

Henry Roth, Call It Sleep
James Baldwin, Another Country
Maggi Dubris, Skels

Ryan Daley wrote:
> Dear Fellow Listservees and Listserved,
>
> I'm teaching a class on New York City in Fiction in the fall and wanted to > hear your suggestions for supplemental reading. I have a few in mind > (Invisible Man, New York Trilogy, etc), but I'm looking for more. Length > isn't a concern: 50 or 500 pages, they'll read it.
>
> I'd greatly appreciate suggestions.
>
> Thanks!
>
> Best,
>
> Ryan Daley
>
>

↑ Index

25. Angeline, Mary
Re: New York in Fiction
Wed 3 Jun 2009

The Recognitions by the Iconoclast, W.G.

_____

From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) on behalf of Ryan Daley Sent: Tue 6/2/2009 12:25 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: New York in Fiction

Dear Fellow Listservees and Listserved,

I'm teaching a class on New York City in Fiction in the fall and wanted to hear your suggestions for supplemental reading. I have a few in mind (Invisible Man, New York Trilogy, etc), but I'm looking for more. Length isn't a concern: 50 or 500 pages, they'll read it.

I'd greatly appreciate suggestions.

Thanks!

Best,

Ryan Daley

↑ Index

26. David Chirot
Re: New York in Fiction
Wed 3 Jun 2009

Thomas Wolfe--"Only the Dead Know Brooklyn" might be better than the gigantic novels
Henry Miller--Tropic of Capricorn
Walt Whitman--Leaves of Grass esp the first edition
Edith Wharton did a great quartet of novellas on"Old New Yorik"
Manhattan Transfer --John Dos Passos
The Harlem Coffin Ed and Gravedigger Jones series by Chester Himes (Cotton comes to Harlem, Blind man with a pistol, etc etc they're al great!)
The New York section of Celine's Journey to the end of the night
Les Paques a NewYork/Easter in New York--prosepoem Blaise Cendrars Bartleby the scriveerr--Herman Melville (a tale of wall street) poet in new york--federico garcia lorca-- there's tons of autobigrohapical fiction re nyc-- the novels of Hal Ellison if any are stil in print (Hal, not Harlan, Ellison
Sections from first section of Visions of Cody by Jack kerouac Youth and the Bright Medusa, Paul's Case--Willa Cather thats justs a few off top of my head-but maybe different examples than usual i mean one can read the poems like The Bridge by hart crane, federico garcia lorca whitman and say chales reznikoff as fictional/poetry/documentary the writings of Baroness Elsa von Freytag Junkie by william s burroughs speed by william s burroughs jr beneath the underdog by charles mingus

the writings around the New York Dada--marcel duchamp man ray w c williams Baroness Picabia Juan Ramon Jimenez has some amazing prose pieces re NYC during ww1 though its not fiction but criticsum which in part is a fiction in its self
The Literati of new York by Edgar Allan Poe

On Tue, Jun 2, 2009 at 11:25 AM, Ryan Daley <[redacted]> wrote:

> Dear Fellow Listservees and Listserved,
>
> I'm teaching a class on New York City in Fiction in the fall and wanted to hear your suggestions for supplemental reading. I have a few in mind (Invisible Man, New York Trilogy, etc), but I'm looking for more. Length isn't a concern: 50 or 500 pages, they'll read it.
>
> I'd greatly appreciate suggestions.
>
> Thanks!
>
> Best,
>
> Ryan Daley

↑ Index

27. Jonathan Penton

Ahadada Books Presents... at the Zinc Bar, NYC, June 13

Wed 3 Jun 2009

Ahadada Books Presents on Saturday June 13, 2009 an event hosted by Ahadada author Robert Thompson set to run from 6:30–8:30pm

Featuring readings from

* Michael Heller
* Amy King
* Robert Thompson
* Donald Wellman

at the Zinc Bar
82 West 3rd Street
(between Thompson & Sullivan)
Greenwich Village
New York NY 10012

Michael Heller is a poet, essayist and critic. He has published six volumes of poetry, the most recent being Exigent Futures: New and Selected Poems (2003). Earth and Cave, his mixed genre journals of the 1960s when he lived in Spain, was published in 2007. A memoir, Living Root, was brought out by the State University Press of New York in 2000. His most recent critical work is Speaking the Estranged: Essays on the Work of George Oppen (2008). A selection of his essays, Uncertain Poetries, appeared in 2005. His ground-breaking book on the Objectivist poets, Conviction's Net of Branches: Essays on the Objectivist Poets and Poetry was published in 1985 by Southern Illinois University Press and has been reissued by Spuyten-Duyvil. His poetry and criticism have appeared in numerous magazines and anthologies including The Paris Review, Conjunctions, Harpers, New Letters, The Nation, American Poetry Review and The New York Times Book Review. His libretto for the opera, Constellations of Waking, was set to music by the composer Ellen Fishman Johnson and performed at the Fringe Festival in Philadelphia in 2002. He has won prizes for his poetry from The New School for Social Research, Poetry in Public Places, the National Endowment for the Humanities, the New York State CAPS Fellowship in Poetry, the Alice Fay Di Castagnola Prize of the Poetry Society of America, the New York Foundation on the Arts Fellowship and the Fund for Poetry. He lives in New York City with his wife, the poet and scholar Jane Augustine.

Amy King is the author of I'm the Man Who Loves You and Antidotes for an Alibi, both from Blazevox Books, The People Instruments (Pavement Saw Press), Kiss Me With the Mouth of Your Country (Dusie Press), and forthcoming, Slaves to Do These Things (Blazevox Books).

Amy edits the Poetics List, sponsored by The Electronic Poetry Center (SUNY-Buffalo/University of Pennsylvania), moderates the Women's Poetry Listserv (WOMPO) and the Goodreads Poetry! Group, and teaches English and Creative Writing at SUNY Nassau Community College. Her poems have been nominated for several Pushcart Prizes, and she has been the recipient of a MacArthur Scholarship for Poetry. Amy King was also the 2007 Poet Laureate of the Blogosphere. She is currently editing an anthology, The Urban Poetic, forthcoming from Factory School.

Robert Thompson, a Midwesterner living in Brooklyn for the past twenty-five years, studied poetry at Brooklyn College and wrote a doctoral dissertation on James Schuyler at the C.U.N.Y. Graduate Center. City of Water (Ahadada Books) was published in 2008. A chapbook entitled The Pear Tree's Winter was published by Intuflo/Groundwater Press (Hudson, New York). He teaches English at Touro College in the School of Career and Applied Studies.

Robert Thompson's poems have many admirable qualities, chief among them: a light touch. A light touch is only admirable when it goes against the grain, when it is something more than willful fun 'n games, or mere whimsy, when it undermines solemnity without sacrificing attention.

Born in Nashua, NH, USA, Donald Wellman attended University of New Hampshire, served in the US Army(1968-71), and completed a Doctor Arts at the University of Oregon in 1975 (concentrations in Old English, Middle English, and Modern Literature. He has taught in the Caribbean and in the Boston area. He is currently professor of Writing and Humanities at Daniel Webster College. From 1981 to 1995, Wellman directed O.ARS, a literary and cultural organization, publishing anthologies of poetry, visual poetry, experimental prose, and commentary. Each volume explores an aspect of postmodern poetics. From its inception O.ARS published works of experimental or sur-fiction, visual poetry and other forms of writing associated with the international avant-garde, as well as what has come now to be known as language writing.

Wellman’s poetry and criticism have appeared in a variety of venues, including the on-line journal Jacket. An e-book entitled Baroque Threads has been published by Mudlark. Fields . a selected poems, spanning twenty years work, appeared in 1995 from Light & Dust. Wellman has given conference papers and published criticism on key modernist poets such as Ezra Pound, William Carlos Williams, and Charles Olson. He has also written and published on contemporary world poetry, especially that employing hybrid forms. In both his poetry and prose, Wellman engages a field poetics, using tropes like margin, frame or overlay to explore the ways in which cross-cultural contact or liminality produce meaning. He has translated contemporary poetry from French, German and Spanish sources. Current translation projects include Jardín cerrado by Emilio Prados and several works by Antonio Gamoneda, 2006 winner of the Cervantes prize. His translation of Gamoneda’s Book of the Cold is forthcoming from Swan Isle.

↑ Index

28. Jonathan Penton

The Sunset Heights Block Party in El Paso, Texas

Wed 3 Jun 2009

Belinda Subraman and I will be attending:

The Sunset Heights Block Party
June 6th
2-10pm
Prospect St. between Upson and Corto (the southwest edge of Sunset Heights, overlooking I-10)

El Paso, Texas

This is the second annual block party, and it looks really cool. It's put on by a group called The Revolutionary Party of Anarcho-Sexiness, and they've arranged for the street to be closed and open containers permitted (but NO GLASS, please). They've got free food (early), free live music, free live painting, and free dancers. Belinda and I will be selling Unlikely Books, including:

/Blue Rooms, Black Holes, White Lights/, Belinda's book of poetry illustrated by Cesar Ivan, which she can sign /Painting Rust/Blood and Salsa/, my double-chap of poetry which I'll be signing
/Moonlight on Moloch/ by Luke Buckham
/Anonymous Gun/ by Kurtice Kucheman
/When Red Blood Cells Leak/ by Anne McMillen and /Star-Spangled Banter/ by Bob Marcacci

For more information on the block party, check out http://www.myspace.com/rpfasblockparty . For more information on Unlikely Books, check out http://www.makeitnewmedia.com/unlikely/

Hope to see you there!

--
Jonathan Penton
http://www.unlikelystories.org/

↑ Index

29. George Bowering
Re: New York in Fiction
Wed 3 Jun 2009

All the Secret Isaac novels of Jerome Charyn, to start with.

gb

On Jun 2, 2009, at 11:25 AM, Ryan Daley wrote:

> Dear Fellow Listservees and Listserved,
>
> I'm teaching a class on New York City in Fiction in the fall and wanted to > hear your suggestions for supplemental reading. I have a few in mind (Invisible Man, New York Trilogy, etc), but I'm looking for more. Length > isn't a concern: 50 or 500 pages, they'll read it.

> I'd greatly appreciate suggestions.
>
> Thanks!
>
> Best,
>
> Ryan Daley
>
> welcome.html

George Bowering, esq.
Not a morning kind of guy.

↑ Index

30. Poetics List
CFW -- ARSENAL [on behalf of Dan Zimmerman]
Wed 3 Jun 2009

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Daniel <[redacted]>

ARSENAL seeks innovative poetry and short fiction for its inaugural issue. Send up to 6 poems or 10 pages with a brief bio in the body of an email (no attachments) by July 15th to Daniel Zimmerman at [redacted]. Simultaneous submissions OK, but please notify if accepted elsewhere.

Thanks very much,

~ Dan Zimmerman

↑ Index

31. Mary Kasimor
Re: New York in Fiction
Wed 3 Jun 2009

House of Mirth
I read that many many years ago and it left quite an impression on me.
Mary Kasimor

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Maria Damon <[redacted]> wrote:

From: Maria Damon <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: New York in Fiction
To: [redacted]
Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 11:07 PM

Henry Roth, Call It Sleep
James Baldwin, Another Country
Maggi Dubris, Skels

Ryan Daley wrote:
> Dear Fellow Listservees and Listserved,
>
> I'm teaching a class on New York City in Fiction in the fall and wanted to > hear your suggestions for supplemental reading. I have a few in mind > (Invisible Man, New York Trilogy, etc), but I'm looking for more. Length > isn't a concern: 50 or 500 pages, they'll read it.
>
> I'd greatly appreciate suggestions.
>
> Thanks!
>
> Best,
>
> Ryan Daley
>
>

↑ Index

32. Gwyn McVay
Re: New York in Fiction
Wed 3 Jun 2009

Claude McKay, Home to Harlem
Samuel R. Delany, The Mad Man

Gwyn McVay

↑ Index

33. Charlie Rossiter
Article on Marc Smith & Slam in NY Times
Wed 3 Jun 2009

Marc says some pretty good things about the Slam.

Here's a link to the article http://www.nytimes.com/2009/06/03/books/03slam.html?th&emc=th

Charlie

--
Poetry strengthens the community and honors the life of the spirit.
Gary Snyder
---
www.poetrypoetry.com
 where you hear poems read by poets who wrote them

www.myspace.com/charlierossiter
 hear Charlie as solo performance poet

↑ Index

34. Martha Oatis summer job opportunity
Wed 3 Jun 2009

From: Robins Maureen (25Q194) [mailto:[redacted]]
Sent: Tuesday, June 02, 2009 6:02 PM
To: Amy Swauger
Subject: TWC

Hi Amy, I was a writer for Teachers and Writers Collaborative many years ago. During the summers I also taught creative writing at a day camp, Usdan, the Center for Performing Arts in Huntington. Right now they are looking for a person to teach creative writing at camp. If you know someone who might be interested please have them contact Andrew Copper at [redacted]. A teaching writer would be perfect for this summer gig. Thanks.

Maureen Robins

Assistant Principal

J.H.S. 194

718/[redacted]

[redacted]

--

"if you enjoy it, you understand it"
-gertrude stein

↑ Index

35. Mark Weiss
Re: New York in Fiction
Wed 3 Jun 2009

Grace Paley's three volumes of short stories. Scholem Asch's East River. Richard Elman's short stories in Crossing Over. Michael Stephens' The Brooklyn Book of the Dead. Selby's Last Exit to Brooklyn. The Asch, Elman and Stephens are unacknowledged masterpieces. Michael Gold, Jews Without Money. Henry James Washington Square. Edith Wharton The House of Mirth. Stephen Crane, Maggie a Girl of the Streets. Poe The Man of the Crowd.

At 03:21 AM 6/3/2009, you wrote:
>All the Secret Isaac novels of
>Jerome Charyn, to start with.
>
>gb
>
>
>On Jun 2, 2009, at 11:25 AM, Ryan Daley wrote:
>
>>Dear Fellow Listservees and Listserved,
>>
>>I'm teaching a class on New York City in Fiction in the fall and >>wanted to >>hear your suggestions for supplemental reading. I have a few in mind >>(Invisible Man, New York Trilogy, etc), but I'm looking for more.
>>Length
>>isn't a concern: 50 or 500 pages, they'll read it.
>>
>>I'd greatly appreciate suggestions.
>>
>>Thanks!
>>
>>Best,
>>
>>Ryan Daley
>>
>
>George Bowering, esq.
>Not a morning kind of guy.
>
>

↑ Index

36. Maureen Robins
Re: New York in Fiction
Wed 3 Jun 2009

Tom Wolfe's The Bonfire of the Vanities

Bodega Dreams by Ernesto Quinonez

Monster by Walter Dean Myers
(Harlem a poem illustrated as a picture book)

Maureen Picard Robins

On 6/3/09, George Bowering <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> All the Secret Isaac novels of > Jerome Charyn, to start with.
>
> gb
>
>
> On Jun 2, 2009, at 11:25 AM, Ryan Daley wrote:
>
> Dear Fellow Listservees and Listserved,
>>
>> I'm teaching a class on New York City in Fiction in the fall and wanted to >> hear your suggestions for supplemental reading. I have a few in mind >> (Invisible Man, New York Trilogy, etc), but I'm looking for more. Length >> isn't a concern: 50 or 500 pages, they'll read it.
>>
>> I'd greatly appreciate suggestions.
>>
>> Thanks!
>>
>> Best,
>>
>> Ryan Daley
>>
>>
>
> George Bowering, esq.
> Not a morning kind of guy.
>
>
>

↑ Index

37. Maureen Robins
Re: New York in Fiction
Wed 3 Jun 2009

One more: A Walker in the City by Alfred Kazin

Maureen Picard Robins

On 6/2/09, Ryan Daley <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> Dear Fellow Listservees and Listserved,
>
> I'm teaching a class on New York City in Fiction in the fall and wanted to > hear your suggestions for supplemental reading. I have a few in mind > (Invisible Man, New York Trilogy, etc), but I'm looking for more. Length > isn't a concern: 50 or 500 pages, they'll read it.
>
> I'd greatly appreciate suggestions.
>
> Thanks!
>
> Best,
>
> Ryan Daley
>
>

↑ Index

38. Douglas Manson
Kenneth Patchen, poet of experimental simplicity
Wed 3 Jun 2009

Writing here to ask for contributions, and for contributing editors, to the next issue of Celery Flute: The Kenneth Patchen Newsletter, which will focus on the visual poetry (officially known as "picture-poems") of a unique, late-modern American poet/artist. Jim Woodring calls Patchen's works of 1954-1972 "drawings of words," because "the way they are drawn determines the way they affect our minds".

With the recent re-publication of seven of Patchen's books of picture-poems in two new volumes (*We Meet *and The Walking-Away World), a reasonably complete "collected poetry" is now available alongside the Collected Poems of Kenneth Patchen, which was published thirty years earlier, in 1968.

Woodring again: "He can make his phrases flow like trickles of mercury or stick like a bone in the throat."

The intent of the forthcoming summer issue of Celery Flute is to provide a productively critical tension in current poetics by way of essays and commentary focusing on Patchen's visual poetry and his influence on poets, musicians and artists.

Possible themes include: the contemporary context of visual art and poetry (intermedia) in relation to Patchen's aesthetic, as well as the literary historical issues surrounding his publications and critical reception.

I'd also like to announce that a new issue of Celery Flute has just been printed, which focuses on the "performance" of Patchen's poems in Jazz and Pop contexts, as well as a production of his play Don't Look Now. The new issue also features tribute essays, a recap of the '07 Patchen-Fest in Cleveland, OH, and reviews of small press titles and chapbooks.

email ([redacted]) or write to me for a copy ($9 ppd) of the magazine, or to send your work for consideration:

Celery Flute
82 Livingston St. #2
Buffalo, NY 14213

After this limited-run issue sells out, and with the help and assistance from as-yet unknown, interested web developers, the magazine will be available in .pdf formats on a website dedicated to the magazine, and to my "micro" press, little scratch pad.

Once again, please send your critical works, poetic collisions, editorial contributions and/or other media to this email address or to our office address for consideration by June 30, 2009.

Thank you!!
--
www.dougfinmanson.blogspot.com
www.myspace.com/inksaudible

↑ Index

39. Patrick F. Durgin
V. R. "Bunny" Lang literary estate
Wed 3 Jun 2009

I am seeking contact information for whomever may be involved with the literary estate of V. R. "Bunny" Lang, founding member of the Cabridge Poets Theater in the 50s, friend and inspiration to Frank O'Hara, among others. On behalf of the press Kenning Editions, I seek to acquire permission to reprint a work by Lang in a major forthcoming anthology of Poets Theater. Her husband Bradley Phillips controlled the estate until his death. It is known that he has a sister, Sarah Phillips, who may still live in the Boston area. Lang biographer Alison Lurie suggested that Sarah was a Radcliffe graduate, but the name is not on file with the Alumni Association at Harvard. Although Lurie has given the reprint her blessing, she does not in fact control the estate. Lang's papers, donated by Lurie, are held by the Harvard Libraries' American Theater Collection, though the library has no leads in this matter. It seems that only the Phillips family would now know who does. Any information you can provide in this regard would be greatly appreciated. Please back channel [redacted] and/or spread the word.

↑ Index

40. sheila black
Re: New York in Fiction
Wed 3 Jun 2009

Contemporary American Lit or Contemporary Brit Lit??
Here are some great choices from Contemporary American Lit----Tim O"Brian In The Lake of the Woods or The Things They Carried; Leslie Marmon Silko Ceremony; Joy Kogawa Obasan; Zora Neale Hurston Their Eyes Are Watching God; Geraldine Brooks People of the Book and March; Arunddhati Roy The God of Small Things; V.S. Naipaul The Enigma of Arrival; Anne Enright The Gathering; Hope these help...I could go on and on....Willa Cather JOan Didion etc.

Best,

Sheila Black
 Sheila Black

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, George Bowering <[redacted]> wrote:

From: George Bowering <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: New York in Fiction
To: "Poetics List (UPenn, UB)" <[redacted]>
Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 2:21 AM

All the Secret Isaac novels of Jerome Charyn, to start with.

gb

On Jun 2, 2009, at 11:25 AM, Ryan Daley wrote:

> Dear Fellow Listservees and Listserved,
>
> I'm teaching a class on New York City in Fiction in the fall and wanted to hear your suggestions for supplemental reading. I have a few in mind (Invisible Man, New York Trilogy, etc), but I'm looking for more. Length isn't a concern: 50 or 500 pages, they'll read it.
>
> I'd greatly appreciate suggestions.
>
> Thanks!
>
> Best,
>
> Ryan Daley

George Bowering, esq.
Not a morning kind of guy.

↑ Index

41. Alan Sondheim
Re: New York in Fiction
Wed 3 Jun 2009

Anything by Damon Runyon, Jimmy Breslin, Amiri Baraka

On Tue, 2 Jun 2009, Maria Damon wrote:

> Henry Roth, Call It Sleep
> James Baldwin, Another Country
> Maggi Dubris, Skels
>
> Ryan Daley wrote:
> Dear Fellow Listservees and Listserved,
>
> I'm teaching a class on New York City in Fiction in the fall and wanted to hear your suggestions for supplemental reading. I have a few in mind (Invisible Man, New York Trilogy, etc), but I'm looking for more. Length isn't a concern: 50 or 500 pages, they'll read it.
>
> I'd greatly appreciate suggestions.
>
> Thanks!
>
> Best,
>
> Ryan Daley

| Alan Sondheim Mail archive: http://sondheim.rupamsunyata.org/
| To access the Odyssey exhibition The Accidental Artist:
| http://slurl.com/secondlife/Odyssey/48/12/22
| Webpage (directory) at http://www.alansondheim.org
| [redacted], [redacted], tel US [redacted]

↑ Index

42. Kyle Schlesinger

ED SANDERS : GLYPHS 1962-2009

Wed 3 Jun 2009

I¡¯m posting this for Dan Morris
Cheers// KS

ED SANDERS : GLYPHS 1962-2009

A rare exhibition of nearly half a century of Ed Sanders?s glyph-poems produced between 1962 and 2009 will be on display at The Arm in Williamsburg [Brooklyn, NY] from July 10 through July 31. An opening reception will be held on July 10th at 6PM.

Building on a long history of utilizing a highly visible language that continues into the present, Sanders?s glyph-poems fuse image with text, and image as text. Political, personal, ephemeral, historical, uncanny, and humorous¡ªthe glyph-poems on display at The Arm appear in several different mediums, including original drawings, collages, mimeographed pages from Fuck You/ A Magazine of the Arts (1962-'65), plus a number featuring color images, and an artist?s book. Over 200 Glyph-works will be featured in the show.

In addition, Glyphs 1962-2009 will feature new letterpress prints and a limited edition catalogue produced on location at The Arm.

Edward Sanders is a poet, historian and musician. He is at work, since 1998, on a 9-volume America, a History in Verse. The first five volumes, tracing the history of the 20th century, have been completed and published in a fully indexed CD format, over 2,000 pages in length, by Blake Route Press. Another recent writing project is Poems for New Orleans, a book and CD on the history of that great city, and its tribulations during and after hurricane Katrina. He has been granted a Guggenheim fellowship in poetry, a National Endowment for the Arts fellowship in verse, an American Book Award for his collected poems, and other awards for his writing. Other books in print include Tales of Beatnik Glory (4 volumes published in a single edition), 1968, a History in Verse; The Poetry and Life of Allen Ginsberg, The Family, a history of the Charles Manson murder group, and Chekhov, a biography in verse of Anton Chekhov.

Sanders was the founder of the satiric folk/rock group, The Fugs, which has released many albums and CDs during its 45 year history. The Fugs have recently completed a CD, Be Free, The Fugs Final CD (Part 2), featuring 14 new tunes. Be Free will be released in late summer. Two of Sanders' books, The Family and Tales of Beatnik Glory, are under option to be made into movies. His selected poems, 1986-2008, Let?s Not Keep Fighting the Trojan War will be published by Coffee House Press in the fall of 2009. He lives in Woodstock, New York with his wife, the essayist and painter Miriam Sanders, and both are active in environmental and other social issues. Sanders will perform a section of America, the 17th Century, tracing the voyage of Henry Hudson up the Hudson River in 1609, at the Byrdcliffe Art Colony in Woodstock on August 8, as part of the 400th anniversary celebration of Hudson?s discoveries.

Opening reception for Glyphs 1962-2009 on Friday, July 10th from 6PM.

All inquiries may be addressed to:
Daniel Morris
The Arm
281 North 7th Street
Brooklyn, NY 11211
dan at thearmnyc dot com

↑ Index

43. Hugh Behm-Steinberg
Re: New York in Fiction
Wed 3 Jun 2009

Colson Whitehead's The Intuitionist is very teachable (and you can also assign bits of his The Colossus of New York, which is nonfiction), also Jonathan Lethem's Motherless Brooklyn.

Hugh Behm-Steinberg

_____
From: Ryan Daley <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, June 2, 2009 11:25:26 AM
Subject: New York in Fiction

Dear Fellow Listservees and Listserved,

I'm teaching a class on New York City in Fiction in the fall and wanted to hear your suggestions for supplemental reading. I have a few in mind (Invisible Man, New York Trilogy, etc), but I'm looking for more. Length isn't a concern: 50 or 500 pages, they'll read it.

I'd greatly appreciate suggestions.

Thanks!

Best,

Ryan Daley

↑ Index

44. sheila black
Re: New York in Fiction
Wed 3 Jun 2009

So that I no one else feels the need to correct my enthusiastic misreading of the request for fiction, here's what happened. First, I am so sorry that I misread that request for New York in Fiction (my eyes not as good as they once were); however, I read Ryan's message as a request from someone teaching IN New York ON Fiction" ...I love to share my love of books with others, so I just jumped in named all my contemporary lit favorites without realizing Ryan wanted only fiction about New York, written with New York as Setting, New York as Character, New York New York --what a beautiful place! So on one else is required for whatever reason to give me a heads up. I got it. Thank you.

Best,

Sheila Black

Sheila Black

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, sheila black <[redacted]> wrote:

From: sheila black <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: New York in Fiction
To: " UB)Poetics List (UPenn" <[redacted]>, "George Bowering" <[redacted]>
Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 10:46 AM

Contemporary American Lit or Contemporary Brit Lit??
Here are some great choices from Contemporary American Lit----Tim O"Brian In The Lake of the Woods or The Things They Carried; Leslie Marmon Silko Ceremony; Joy Kogawa Obasan; Zora Neale Hurston Their Eyes Are Watching God; Geraldine Brooks People of the Book and March; Arunddhati Roy The God of Small Things; V.S. Naipaul The Enigma of Arrival; Anne Enright The Gathering; Hope these help...I could go on and on....Willa Cather JOan Didion etc.

Best,

Sheila Black
 Sheila Black

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, George Bowering <[redacted]> wrote:

From: George Bowering <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: New York in Fiction
To: "Poetics List (UPenn, UB)" <[redacted]>
Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 2:21 AM

All the Secret Isaac novels of Jerome Charyn, to start with.

gb

On Jun 2, 2009, at 11:25 AM, Ryan Daley wrote:

> Dear Fellow Listservees and Listserved,
>
> I'm teaching a class on New York City in Fiction in the fall and wanted to > hear your suggestions for supplemental reading. I have a few in mind > (Invisible Man, New York Trilogy, etc), but I'm looking for more. Length > isn't a concern: 50 or 500 pages, they'll read it.
>
> I'd greatly appreciate suggestions.
>
> Thanks!
>
> Best,
>
> Ryan Daley
>

George Bowering, esq.
Not a morning kind of guy.

↑ Index

45. Doug Holder

Literature and the Arts in the Transitional Living Center at McLean Hospital

Wed 3 Jun 2009

Advertise with the Boston Area Small Press and Poetry Scene!

Literature and the Arts in the Transitional Living Center at McLean Hospital

By Doug Holder

Some years ago Alex Beam, The Boston Globe columnist came to my then home on Ibbetson Street in Somerville, Mass., to interview me about the role of poets and poetry at McLean Hospital. Beam was doing research on his book about the history of McLean: Gracefully Insane: Life and Death Inside America's Premier Mental Hospital.

McLean Hospital has a rich literary past and has been declared a national literary landmark. Poets Sylvia Plath, Anne Sexton, Robert Lowell, John Berryman, and others had “residencies” at the hospital. Anne Sexton ran her famed poetry groups here and was briefly hospitalized at McLean shortly before her death by suicide. I had the privilege to interview Lois Ames, the social worker for Sylvia Plath and Sexton, and the author of the introduction to Plath’s novel “The Bell Jar” that was set on these grounds.

For 20 years I worked on the inpatient units of McLean Hospital as a mental health worker. And since I am a poet, I made of point of running poetry groups for patients who resided on the units. I worked with an eclectic group of clients on several units. I helped them with their poems, conducted informal readings and even publishing some of their work in the now defunct literary journal “The Boston Poet.”

When I took a new position at the Transitional Living Center at Waverly House at McLean I hoped to continue the literary tradition that I established, and that was inherent at the hospital. The Transitional Living Care Center at McLean, according to its website, is a “… private pay program designed for men and women, age 18, and older, who are involved in psychiatric treatment and require a staff supported setting. For many persons with psychiatric illness, brief hospital stays alone are not sufficient to full recovery and return to normal living. The Transitional Living Center provides a setting for comprehensive treatment, and support of family members by providing the intensive assistance that recovering patients require.”

Shortly after I was hired by Robin Weiss, the program director, Richard Wilhelm, a friend of mine and the arts editor for my small literary press “Ibbetson Street” came aboard. Richard is an artist and a poet, and another staff member at that time Jennifer Matthews was a vocalist and a poet, so it was like a writer's retreat on the campus of the hospital.

On the inpatient unit you more or less had a captive audience. The patients had to have privileges to leave the unit, so a poetry group in the evening could be a welcomed change from the usual didactic groups in the day. At Waverly House it is vastly different. The house is loosely structured, and the clients for the most part can come and go as they please. I focused my efforts on clients who expressed strong interests in the arts and literature. Some clients who studied writing in college brought whole collections of their poetry to the house. Often Richard and I would sit down with folks and workshop their poems and some even saw their work appear in my literary column in The Somerville News.

Other clients expressed interest in literary journalism, and in this regard I was able to help as well. For many years I have been the arts/editor for The Somerville News, and I have frequently gotten internships for students, friends, etc… I can remember one client, a law school dropout, who seemed to have lost direction. He got an internship at the paper, secured a paid editorship, and then went on to the Boston Herald organization. Another client got her first clippings at the paper, which made her professional journalist father beam with pride.

I have also hooked up clients with literary internships, with magazines like "the new renaissance," as well as other publications. One client was studying for his PhD in Psychology but also had a strong interest in mystery and science fiction writing. I introduced him to the world of little magazines and online publishing and he racked up an impressive number of publication credits in a short time. We even appeared in the same online journal: his story, my poem.

I also have an affiliation with a local art gallery in Cambridge, "The Out of the Blue Art Gallery." A number of clients have held volunteer jobs there, helping with publicity, with sales, and other duties .One recent client volunteered at the gallery and made a connection with an organizer at a local film festival. She wound up getting valuable experience writing press releases for the festival.

I find that patients that are involved in the arts have a greater sense of self-esteem, and it helps them get involved with the community, the larger world, hopefully realizing the mission statement of our program, namely transitioning clients back into the community for a fruitful and productive life.

↑ Index

46. Small Press Traffic

Site Based Practices: A workshop with David Buuck and Jessica Tully

Wed 3 Jun 2009

There is still room available in our June workshop. Sign up today!

SITE-BASED PRACTICES
a workshop led by David Buuck & Jessica Tully
Marin Headlands Bunkers
Sunday June 21, 11am-2pm
co-sponsored by the Headlands Center for the Arts

Please join writer David Buuck and artist Jessica Tully for a site-specific workshop at the former military bunkers in the Marin Headlands. We will explore a wide range of methods and practices related to site-based writing and art practices, including several on-site exercises and experiments. This workshop is designed for ALL levels of interested writers and artists, to explore how we engage place, site, environment and the political histories therein as writers, artists, and citizens. We will discuss and explore writing and research techniques as well as much more performative and embodied strategies of site-work, so be prepared to try new ways of thinking, moving, and working!

David Buuck is an alumni artist in residence this June at Headlands Center for the Arts. He is contributing editor at Artweek, and teaches at the San Francisco Art Institute. Recent publications include The Shunt (Palm Press)and Buried Treasure Island, a guidebook printed in conjunction with an installation and audio-tour by Barge (the Bay Area Research Group in Enviro-aesthetics).

Jessica Tully is a conceptual artist working at the intersection of culture and politics. From hip-hop water ballet to a rock opera of live construction equipment to voter education drives, her site-specific performances, videos, drawings and campaigns are set within socially charged public spaces. In 2008 she debuted a new stencil series and walking tour entitled Syndicate commissioned by Yerba Buena Center for the Arts for the Bay Area Now 5 triennial exhibition.

Note: We will meet at the Headlands Center Dining Hall at 11 for introductory remarks and head out from there. We will arrange for car-pooling to the site for those who need it. There will be optional pre-workshop readings. Bring notebook, camera, sunscreen and/or hat, outdoor shoes, layers for cold, etc. The Marin Headlands is home to several former military installations, including the bunkers, the Nike Missile Site, and the current home of the Headlands Center for the Arts. $40 general public / $30 students and members of Headlands Center for the Arts and/or Small Press Traffic. Class is limited to 20 participants. Sign up online by using paypal from sptraffic.org or make arrangements through email at [redacted]

--
Samantha Giles
Executive Director
Small Press Traffic Literary Arts Center

sptraffic.org
smallpresstraffic.blogspot.com

↑ Index

47. Kimmelman, Burt

Herschlag, Holder and Kimmelman Reading in Manhattan, June 7th at 5

Thu 4 Jun 2009

—

↑ Index

48. Michael Heller

(no subject)

Thu 4 Jun 2009

AHADADA BOOKS READING

Michael Heller, Amy King, Robert Thompson and Donald Wellman

June 13th at 6:30
Zinc Bar
82 West 3rd Street (btween Thompson & Sullivan)
New York NY 10012

Eschaton (new poems) Talisman House Publishers (2009) available at SPD, Greenfield Distribution (www.gfibooks.com), www. amazon.com and good bookstores. Two Novellas: Marble Snows & The Study (ahadada press 2009) available from SPD, amazon.com and from ahadadpress.com. Speaking The Estranged: Essays on the Work of George Oppen (2008); Uncertain Poetries: Essays on Poets, Poetry and Poetics (2005) and Exigent Futures: New and Selected Poems (2003) available at www.saltpublishing.com, amazon.com and good bookstores. Survey of work at http://www.thing.net/~grist/ld/heller.htm Collaborations with the composer Ellen Fishman Johnson at http://www.efjcomposer.com/EFJ/Collaborations.html Recordings at http://writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/Heller.html

↑ Index

49. Michael Heller

(no subject)

Thu 4 Jun 2009

AHADADA BOOKS READING

Michael Heller, Amy King, Robert Thompson and Donald Wellman

June 13th at 6:30
Zinc Bar
82 West 3rd Street (btween Thompson & Sullivan)
New York NY 10012

Eschaton (new poems) Talisman House Publishers (2009) available at SPD, Greenfield Distribution (www.gfibooks.com), www. amazon.com and good bookstores. Two Novellas: Marble Snows & The Study (ahadada press 2009) available from SPD, amazon.com and from ahadadpress.com. Speaking The Estranged: Essays on the Work of George Oppen (2008); Uncertain Poetries: Essays on Poets, Poetry and Poetics (2005) and Exigent Futures: New and Selected Poems (2003) available at www.saltpublishing.com, amazon.com and good bookstores. Survey of work at http://www.thing.net/~grist/ld/heller.htm Collaborations with the composer Ellen Fishman Johnson at http://www.efjcomposer.com/EFJ/Collaborations.html Recordings at http://writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/Heller.html

↑ Index

50. jared schickling

Reconfigurations #3 -- call for work

Thu 4 Jun 2009

Dear All,

Reconfigurations: A Journal for Poetics and Poetry / Literature and Culture is currently seeking submissions for its third issue.

In addition to the general call for work pasted below, we're seeking a gathering of statements / questions / perspectives on the current status of poetry book reviews and suggestions for how that genre could be re-imagined, re-invigorated, etc.

This gathering follows on the heels of Mayday Magazine's forum on Kent Johnson's proposal of resurrecting the practice of publishing anonymously authored book reviews: http://www.maydaymagazine.com/issue1JOHNSON.php

Mayday's forum consists of responses to one proposition. Reconfigurations seeks to expand the conversation by seeking other ideas.

Please feel free to forward as you wish, and to send your submissions on this topic to: [redacted]

If you're interested but the August deadline listed below sounds too soon, lets talk.

All the best,
Jared Schickling

CALL FOR WORK: Volume Three

Volume three of Reconfigurations seeks innovative works concerning immanence / imminence—that is, the phenomena of emergence & becoming, appearance & disappearance—across a wide range of signification: matters inherent or abiding; objects intentional or manifest; perceptions noetical or pataphysical; actions impending or close-at-hand; communities realized or indeterminate.

Submissions: April thru August
Publication: November, 2009

Electronic Submissions: [redacted].
Submissions should be attached as a single .doc, .rtf, or .txt file.
Visuals
should be attached individually as .jpg, .gif or .bmp files. Please include the word "submission" in the subject line of your message.

Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail®.
http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/QuickAdd?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tutorial_QuickAdd_062009

↑ Index

51. patrick dunagan

Reading in Boulder June 6, 2009

Thu 4 Jun 2009

This Saturday at 7:30pm

at BMoCO, Boulder Museum of Contemporary Art,

Micah Ballard, Patrick James Dunagan, Kevin Opstedal, Michael Price, and Sunnylyn Thibodeaux

will be reading some poems

http://www.bmoca.org/events.php?id

Cheers,

Patrick

↑ Index

52. David-Baptiste Chirot

NYTimes: Chen Guan: Tiananmen Square Scars Soldier Turned Artist

Thu 4 Jun 2009

NYTimes: Chen Guan: Tiananmen Square Scars Soldier Turned Artistþ

http://www.nytimes.com/2009/06/04/world/asia/04soldier.html?th&emc=th very amazing article with links and video etc it's always amazed me the quasi-sentimentality of the "good feelings" of the "unknown" lone man facing down a tank in the name of democracy compared to the emotions that immediately churn forth if the lone man is replaced by a Palestinian child with a rock and slingshot staring down an Israel tank. rockets' red gale, bombs bursting in air, white phosphorus raining down illegally--today's David taking on Goliath-- if one thinks about the immediacy of the reflexive thoughts whiich each image stirs and the perhaps or not gulf between them-- isn't it a sign of the Pavlovian response that is generated by a socio-cultural training the immediacy of the response, depending on one's training say--seizes the respondant with such force and swiftness that THERE IS NO ROOM NOR TIME FOR THOUGHT- a push button respondant immediately to rush in on the attack--or to cry or handwring or shrug who knows--in terms of soldier turned artist's imagery--one wonders what built in responses there to it in different parts of the world- an example of a silence which meets an act of silencing, and that silence regarding the act installing as it were a regime of such silence-- in the us there was hardly any reporting at all, thus creating a ssilence a priori--regarding the Israeli Army and Police trying to shut ddown Palfest 2009--the Festival of Lieterature--on its opening and closing nights in Jersualem. (In the interveing days the festival of poets toured the wet bank giving many readings--and observing everything possible)-- since there was no news of the event, there will be no protest of it, which in turn creates in which silencing and being silent unite int a form of complicitiy-- think of the contrast of these two statements: "If it's not in writing it never happened." and Walt Whitman's "The Real War will Never be in the Books" looked at from one angle it seems to suggest that what is in writing is not "real,"nor true--and that what is outside of this is where the reality lies, literally dead in the earth-- an uwritten writing, an unbookedone--a conceptual writing like Robert Smithson's "a great artist could cast a glance and it would be a work of art." that is, there are no objects which imprsion what Smithson calls "the time of the interest" if it is not in writing--it never happened-- yet the Real War will never be in the Books-- one might think on this in a great many ways-- (of courase someone in the back pipes up and says loudly, pronouncing with care the nostrum--"actions speak louder than words." but do they thenwhen the persons actions are no more?lying in the fields and ditches-- a Real Death literally outside-- while what then is it one readsin writing that has ahppened that would not have if it were not for writing, for being written-- is everything wirtten permeated with the ambiguity of not being the Real War--and at the same time claiming to be what happened-- as hsitory-- as ficiton--??? you see--a very amaazing condundrum to go with an amaing artilce--

---

Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail®.
http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/QuickAdd?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tutorial_QuickAdd_062009

↑ Index

53. luke daly

House Press: Ackerman & Abramowitz: Sin is to Celebration

Thu 4 Jun 2009

House Press is happy to announce the latest installment in the arrow as aarow series: Amanda Ackerman & Harold Abramowitz's Sin is to Celebration. It is 84 pages, $8, and available through paypal at the arrow as arrow blog: arrowasaarow.blogspot.com

↑ Index

54. Donna Kuhn

david bromige dies

Thu 4 Jun 2009

David Bromige 1933-2009
June 3, 2009
David Mansfield Bromige passed away at 6:00 am today, surrounded by his wife, Cecelia, his children Margaret & Chris and touched by all those who came to visit and call over the past few weeks.

Poet, writer, reviewer, actor, farmer, explorer, cartographer, storyteller, illustrator, piano player, driver, swimmer, traveler, brother, uncle, father, grandfather, husband, friend, mentor, inspiration are some of the roles David played in his 75 years. This is to be a web pository of memories, thoughts, impressions and opinions.

We, his immediate family, hope that you will take the time to contribute to these pages.

Private emails may be sent to davidmbro_ _ _ [redacted] (where the "_ _" are replaced with letters).

Thanks.

http://digitalaardvarks.blogspot.com

↑ Index

55. Alan Sondheim
David Bromige obit (fwd)
Thu 4 Jun 2009

Very very sorry to hear this -

---------- Forwarded message ----------
Date: Thu, 4 Jun 2009 13:35:05 -0700
From: Donna Kuhn <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Subject: David Bromige obit

http://www.pressdemocrat.com/article/20090603/ARTICLES/906039888/1052/OBITS

i am just so sad, i had no idea this remarkable man and my former professor meant so much to me as a writer, teacher and human being

↑ Index

56. Donna Kuhn
David Bromige Obituary
Thu 4 Jun 2009

David Bromige

Published: Wednesday, June 3, 2009 at 6:48 p.m.
Last Modified: Wednesday, June 3, 2009 at 6:48 p.m.
http://www.pressdemocrat.com/article/20090603/ARTICLES/906039888/1052/OBITS

David Bromige's bold and experimental poetry won him multiple literary honors and the respect of readers around the world. But the retired Sonoma State University professor and former Sonoma County Poet Laureate, who died June 3 at home in Sebastopol at the age of 75, will be remembered by those who knew and loved him for his rapier wit and generous support of other writers.

"I am happy to say that in the last week of his life his family was reading to him my new memoir and he was laughing at my jokes. He never missed a joke," said former SSU colleague and novelist Jerry Rosen.

Bromige, he praised, "knew as much about contemporary poetry as any person in the world" and managed to communicate his love for poetry to his students during 25 years at SSU.

His wife of 28 years, Cecelia Belle, said he had a large filing cabinet filled with what he labeled “Uncalled For Manuscripts.” But he gave them all an insightful read and passed along encouragement with his comments.

His prodigious gift for writing mixed with his giving spirit won him many fans. Russian River poet Pat Nolan recalled watching him at a gathering of poets five years ago, seated in the shade of a porch in his signature Panama hat.

“One by one, everyone at that gathering stepped up to pay their respects to him...But the homage that was being paid to him that day was more of that befitting a godfather.”

Bromige had fought his way back from a heart attack and stroke in 2001, going on to serve as Poet Laureate of Sonoma County, writing, mentoring other writers and giving readings. But a lifetime struggle with the effects of diabetes finally caught up with him.

Only last month, he gave his last reading in a gathering by the Healdsburg Literary Society of 16 poet laureates from around the state. The ever dapper British-born writer stood to deliver his piece, the first time he had risen from his wheelchair in many months, said Belle.

The author of more than 40 books of prose and poetry, Bromige was working on a memoir, “Til There Was You,” at the time of his death. He also was eagerly collaborating with Reality Street press in England to publish a complete collection of his poetry.

He could often be seen seated in a chair in the front yard of his Sebastopol home soaking in the sun while pounding on a manual typewriter.

Born in London, he was a childhood survivor of The Blitz of World War II. He attended agricultural college and worked on a farm in Sweden before settling into a teaching program at the University of British Columbia. But it was his poetry and playwriting that won him prizes and a graduate scholarship to UC Berkeley.

He became involved in the emergence of historic poetic movements, and was taken up by the poets known as the San Francisco Renaissance, “who valued his erudition and his abilities with form and narrative,” said fellow poet and provocative poetry blogger Ron Silliman.

Always questioning conventional wisdom in poetry and the arts, Bromige was also adopted by young writers practicing what came to be known as language poetry, said Silliman. His 1980 volume “My Poetry” is considered “a classic of the genre,” he said.

Bromige counted among his distinguished mentors Robert Duncan of the Black Mountain School of Poets and Denise Levertov, for whom he was a teaching assistant at Berkeley.

During his years at Sonoma State he helped launch and maintain the university's literary magazines while bringing a host of internationally known writers to campus.

His numerous honors include the Western States Book Award, the Pushcart Prize for poetry, the Canada Council award and the Gertrude Stein Award for Innovative Writing. In 1994 the Luther Burbank Center for the Arts named him a Sonoma County Living Treasure.

In addition to his wife he is survived by his son Christopher Bromige, of Vancouver, B.C., his daughter Margaret Belle Bromise, of Sebastopol, two grandchildren and numerous in-laws, nieces and nephews.

Bromige will be buried at Pleasant Hills Memorial Park in Sebastopol. A public celebration of his life is being planned for sometime in July.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Sonoma County Book Fair, socobookfest.org/donate.shtml.

http://digitalaardvarks.blogspot.com

↑ Index

57. Mark DuCharme

REMINDER: Owen & Wright, Stratford Park Reading Series, June 9th

Thu 4 Jun 2009

Please join us for the debut event in the STRATFORD PARK READING SERIES.

Two extraordinary poets will help us celebrate the launch of this new series in north Boulder: MAUREEN OWEN & LAURA E. WRIGHT.

It all happens TUESDAY, JUNE 9th at 7:30 p.m.

3030 O'NEAL PARKWAY, Boulder, Colorado
(across the street from Naropa University's Paramita campus & the Boulder Cork restaurant)
http://www.mapquest.com/maps?city=Boulder&state=CO&address=3030+O'neal+Parkway&zipcode=80301

A Donation is requested— but All are welcome!

A reception will follow the reading

§

DIRECTIONS: O'Neal Parkway is off 30th Street in north Boulder between Valmont & Iris. Turn East at the signs for STRATFORD PARK WEST. The community house is the one-story building with a fence leading down to the street, half a block from 30th. Please park ONLY on O'Neal Parkway, O'Neal Circle, or in VISITOR spaces in the Stratford Park West lots. Please do not park in any other nearby lots. Thank you.

§

Maureen Owen, poet, editor and publisher, is the author of ten poetry titles, most recently Erosion's Pull from Coffee House Press, a finalist for the Colorado Book Award and the Balcones Poetry Prize. Her title American Rush: Selected Poems was a finalist for the L.A. Times Book Prize and her work AE (Amelia Earhart) was a recipient of the prestigious Before Columbus American Book Award. Other books include Untapped Maps and Imaginary Income. She has had work most recently published in YAWP magazine, Columbia Review, and Thuggery & Grace. She currently teaches at Naropa University both on campus and in the low-residency MFA Creative Writing Program and is editor of Naropa's on-line zine not enough night. Laura Wright is a poet, librarian, and volunteer firefighter. She is the author of Part of the Design (Meeting Eyes Bindery, 2005) as well as various chapbooks. She recently co-edited, with Anne Waldman, Beats at Naropa, an anthology of talks from the Kerouac School to be published this summer by Coffee House Press; her translation of Henri Michaux's La vie dans les plis (Life in the Folds) is forthcoming from Action Books.

§

UPCOMING IN THE STRATFORD PARK READING SERIES:
Thursday, July 16th at 7:30 p.m.— Elizabeth Robinson, Kass Fleisher & Joe Amato.

§

If you no longer wish to receive email announcements of upcoming events in the Stratford Park Reading Series, please email [redacted] with the subject line "SPRS: REMOVE."

Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail®. See how. Hotmail® has ever-growing storage! Don't worry about storage limits. Check it out. Lauren found her dream laptop. Find the PC that's right for you.
_____ Windows Live™: Keep your life in sync. http://windowslive.com/explore?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_BR_life_in_synch_062009

↑ Index

58. Paul Nelson
Survey of Teaching Artists
Thu 4 Jun 2009

Dear Friend,

Thank you so much for completing our online survey of Teaching Artists! Your generous cooperation is helping to make this historic study a success.

We need to hear from more teaching artists in our study locations. Your friends and acquaintances in the teaching artist world can sign up for the online survey at the web address below. Please forward this to other teaching artists in Chicago, Boston, Seattle, Providence, San Francisco/Alameda County, Los Angeles, San Diego, Bakersfield, San Bernardino, Santa Cruz, Salinas, or Humboldt County.

For more information about the Teaching Artist Research Project and a link to our online registration for new participants, go to:

http://teachingartists.uchicago.edu

Thank you!
Paul E. Nelson

Global Voices Radio
SPLAB!
American Sentences
Organic Poetry
Poetry Postcard Blog

Ilalqo, WA [redacted]

↑ Index

59. Poetry Project
Events at The Poetry Project June
Thu 4 Jun 2009

The end of our poetry season approaches! After these three events we break until September:

Monday, June 8, 8 PM
Spring Workshop Reading

Come and hear what the writers who took workshops with Larry Fagin, Sparrow, Jeffery Conway and Susie Timmons have been up to! Workshop leaders will be on hand to introduce them.

Wednesday, June 10, 8 PM
Tina Brown Celona & Marc Nasdor

Tina Brown Celona is a graduate of Brown University and the Iowa Writers Workshop and the author of Songs and Scores (chapbook; Spectacular Books 1999), The Real Moon of Poetry and Other Poems (Fence 2002), winner of the 2002 Alberta Prize, and Snip Snip! (Fence 2006). Currently working on a Ph.D. in English at the University of Denver, where she is studying Edwardian novels, Renaissance poetics, the philosophy of the Enlightenment, and prosody. Her work has appeared in Shampoo, Octopus, La Petite Zine, The Canary, Fence, and Colorado Review. Marc Nasdor¹s most recent book is Sonnetailia, published by Roof Books in 2007. A book-length poem, Treni in Partenza, was published in Temblor 7 in 1988. In 1993, he ceased all writing activity until returning to it in 2006. He is currently working on a new series of poems, Insurgentes. He also spins global party music in the Lower East Side under the name DJ Poodlecannon, and has recently performed in Budapest and Pécs (Hungary), and in Mérida, Yucatan (Mexico).

Friday, June 12, 10 PM
Poets¹ Potluck IV

Come on by and celebrate the beginning of the summer and the end of poem season with Diana Hamilton & Nicole Wallace as they bring their first co-curatorial run to a close. Make sure to bring yourself & something to share, like shortcake or sangria. There will be readings and musical performances by various past participants in the Friday Night Series.

Become a Poetry Project Member! http://poetryproject.org/become-a-member

Calendar: http://www.poetryproject.org/program-calendar

The Poetry Project is located at St. Mark's Church-in-the-Bowery
131 East 10th Street at Second Avenue
New York City 10003
Trains: 6, F, N, R, and L.
[redacted]
www.poetryproject.org

Admission is $8, $7 for students/seniors and $5 for members (though now those who take out a membership at $95 or higher will get in FREE to all regular readings).

We are wheelchair accessible with assistance and advance
notice. For more info call [redacted].

If you¹d like to be unsubscribed from this mailing list, please drop a line at [redacted].

↑ Index

60. steve russell
Re: New York in Fiction
Thu 4 Jun 2009

no mention of Brooklyn New York native, Gilbert Sorrentino. "Imaginative Qualities of Actual Things" is a wonderful take on the New York artistic and literary world.

↑ Index

61. Alan Sondheim
My Hubris in Writing Itselves (an essay)
Thu 4 Jun 2009

My Hubris in Writing Itselves

A description of a talk for the Subtle Technologies gathering (Toronto), unpacking the following short abstract:

'The world, the body, the existent, have information in common; informa- tion is always already inscribed. The real and the virtual commingle; they appear separated only by virtue of a phenomenology of technology that emphasizes prosthetics and cyberspace as "additional" fields of research and perception. My work in the virtual world of Second Life describes space, sexuality, and body as problematic inscriptions which require negotiation within and without the Second Life environment. Inscriptions have no beginning and no end; they're holographic in a holographic universe. I'll explain, we'll look about.'

Information is a way of looking at the world; in-formation characterizes the world. The body looks at the world which is of and not of the body; the world is therefore abject, debris - almost, but not quite escaping. What escapes is articulated by mathesis; mathesis is our window on the existent. Mathesis grasps everything and nothing; an equation cannot _directly_ move an object, but describes its structure to the extent that its structure is nothing. Mathesis is what lies beyond the reach of the _gesture._

The _existent_ is almost entirely unobservable, process at a distance; beyond the imminent, the existent and mathesis coalesce. Neither copula nor protocol statement apply, and the verb 'to be' devolves, itself abject, inconceivable. (In fact, what is abject is inconceivable; what is conceivable is potentially parameterized.)

Information is always already inscribed: The world as imminent totality (which for us is a broken totality, broken immanence) possesses an onto- logy of inscriptions and an collocation of nearly decomposable epistemolo- gies. The ontology of inscriptions devolves as well to collocations of the ordinary.

The real and the virtual commingle, since there is no split, only a dividing-up of ontologies of the ordinary. Inscription is always virtual, always real; inscription is _neti neti,_ Sheffer-stroke and its dual fundamental. Don't mistake this for an ontology based on propositional logic - that, too, falls by the wayside.

'The real and the virtual commingle; they appear separated only by virtue of a phenomenology of technology that emphasizes prosthetics and cyber- space as "additional" fields of research and perception.' Let us think this through together. Technology implies progress, procedures, split, free and bound variables, mathesis, 'materiality'; phenomenology implies a deep and potentially fundamental structuration of 'world' in the broadest sense possible. We can define _broken phenomenology_ as a combination of phenomenology and heuristics of the imminent. Broken phenomenology _cannot be extrapolated._ Prosthetics is what engenders from exteriority; what might be diacritical, addendum; what bridges world-body and body-world; what in-forms body, forming-body. Prosthetics is sited, gestural - as usual in this thought, prosthetics is imminent.

All space is cyberspace, helmed, to the extent that space is _thought,_ related to the thinking-of space. All space is steerage in this sense. But what is at stake in the quote above is that of '"additional" fields of research and perception.' Research is not necessarily perception and perception is not necessarily research. Fields in the sense used here are ideological-cultural constructs, discursive formations, loosely defined domains. Now I am questioning through this '"additional"' separations that are explicate, not implicate (in the sense of Bohm's implicate order), and whose entanglements can ultimately, theoretically, be separated. Let us replace 'additional' with 'mess,' with 'more of the same,' with 'rasa' or 'tenor' and let us think through fields or fielding as wide and wild indefinite domains (wildernesses) of inscriptions, fields, particulations, intensifications, strange and other attractors. Let us think of the world as inherently _lossy,_ and by world I refer to potential 10^500 universes.

Here is the rest of the quote, which is fluff, descriptive of one project/ ing among many by many, and which doesn't necessarily map into the above: 'My work in the virtual world of Second Life describes space, sexuality, and body as problematic inscriptions which require negotiation within and without the Second Life environment. Inscriptions have no beginning and no end; they're holographic in a holographic universe. I'll explain, we'll look about.' And what 'about' this? Second Life is a 'virtual world' in a technical sense that is a world which has a broken imminent ontology in relation to the avatar operator organism; it's a projection based on fundamental protocols and matheses.

Within the server++ domain, SL is a totalization, total institution, and in this sense a _seriality_ (Sartre) as well. In a very classical sense, it is always already inscribed, channels of information constructed from binary encoding within deep potential wells. So my 'work' in SL is addenda, supplement - my 'work' in SL is the appearance of installations-within-the-virtual of SL, bending the local fabric of SL into patternings which are fundamentally the usual. Nothing new here at all. The installation then 'deals with' - is 'about' - inheres within the sememe - of body, space, sexuality, and deals with these in the in-forming of abject fields of indexicalities, negotiations of process and movement, crude effects of avatar presence or absence, and so forth. There's nothing more than the narratology implied, which, if it is a form of research at all, is a form depending on the psycho-analytics of inscription and inscriptive processes anywhere at all. But there's more: I argue that inscriptions and inscriptive processes are 'problem- atic,' problematized, by which I mean, there are no problems and no solutions, only the inhering _mess_ of entanglement and imminent domains. Now the negotiations of the subject organism (not object/avatar) are within and without the SL environment, by which I mean they are flux- states that are basically irresolute as well, and that tend to corrode law and justice (as well as subject and object) _everywhere,_ just as intellectual property is corroded among reals and virtuals, duplications and instantiations, variora and holograph editions, everywhen and everywhere. Think of such property as extended inscriptions and remember the old adage that there are no authors (bad paraphrase); one might see everything inhering, and in that sense might read Dufrenne's phenomenology of literary worlds as not only indefinite and imminent, but gesturing towards an inauthentic immanence, and in this gesturing, corroding everything: Literature, then, is a corrosion, not construction, of worlds (in the sense of worlds as habitus, inhabitations).

Again, 'Inscriptions have no beginning and no end; they're holographic in a holographic universe. I'll explain, we'll look about.' 'Holographic' references Susskind's theory, of which I have nothing to say (not being- physicist, string or otherwise), but it also references a modeling of entangling in such a manner as perception (read 'theory' as well) is blurred, domainless, holography modeling itselves within itselves. Sooner or later these 'quick' broken epistemologies and ontologies will replace the older classical models; sooner or later the universe (world, cosmos) will be recognized as fast-forward fast-backward slow-forward slow-back- ward among inconceivable (broken) orders of magnitude; psychoanalysis pales as domains fall into alien abjections which are deeply unknowable. The hall of mirrors requires quick-depth disorderings.

I say 'I'll explain' but there is no explanation, not on this level any- way, nothing of the physics or mathesis of it, embedded almost as if in defiance of the 'real.' Or the explanation is without concept of origins, neither punctum nor 'turtles all the way down' nor mutual creating and recursion. Or the anecdotal is all that's left.

I say 'we'll look about' this is nothing but a reference to the particu- lar installation, 'about' the usual confine. And of course in looking, am I not your prosthesis, to the extent that I am not?

↑ Index

62. Ryan Daley
Re: New York in Fiction
Thu 4 Jun 2009

Thanks for all the suggestions. It looks like I'll be spending this entire summer reading about NYC.

On Wed, Jun 3, 2009 at 3:21 AM, George Bowering <[redacted]> wrote:

> All the Secret Isaac novels of
> Jerome Charyn, to start with.
>
> gb
>
> On Jun 2, 2009, at 11:25 AM, Ryan Daley wrote:
>
> Dear Fellow Listservees and Listserved,
>
> I'm teaching a class on New York City in Fiction in the fall and wanted to hear your suggestions for supplemental reading. I have a few in mind (Invisible Man, New York Trilogy, etc), but I'm looking for more. Length isn't a concern: 50 or 500 pages, they'll read it.
>
> I'd greatly appreciate suggestions.
>
> Thanks!
>
> Best,
>
> Ryan Daley
>
> George Bowering, esq.
> Not a morning kind of guy.

↑ Index

63. David Buuck

Site Based Practices: A workshop with David Buuck and Jessica Tully

Fri 5 Jun 2009

There is still room available in our June workshop. Sign up today!

SITE-BASED PRACTICES
a workshop led by David Buuck & Jessica Tully
Marin Headlands Bunkers
Sunday June 21, 11am-2pm
co-sponsored by the Headlands Center for the Arts
Please join writer David Buuck and artist Jessica Tully for a site-specific workshop at the former military bunkers in the Marin Headlands. We will explore a wide range of methods and practices related to site-based writing and art practices, including several on-site exercises and experiments. This workshop is designed for ALL levels of interested writers and artists, to explore how we engage place, site, environment and the political histories therein as writers, artists, and citizens. We will discuss and explore writing and research techniques as well as much more performative and embodied strategies of site-work, so be prepared to try new ways of thinking, moving, and working!

David Buuck is an alumni artist in residence this June at Headlands Center for the Arts. He is contributing editor at Artweek, and teaches at the San Francisco Art Institute. Recent publications include The Shunt (Palm Press)and Buried Treasure Island, a guidebook printed in conjunction with an installation and audio-tour by Barge (the Bay Area Research Group in Enviro-aesthetics).

Jessica Tully is a conceptual artist working at the intersection of culture and politics. From hip-hop water ballet to a rock opera of live construction equipment to voter education drives, her site-specific performances, videos, drawings and campaigns are set within socially charged public spaces. In 2008 she debuted a new stencil series and walking tour entitled Syndicate commissioned by Yerba Buena Center for the Arts for the Bay Area Now 5 triennial exhibition.

Note: We will meet at the Headlands Center Dining Hall at 11 for introductory remarks and head out from there. We will arrange for car-pooling to the site for those who need it. There will be optional pre-workshop readings. Bring notebook, camera, sunscreen and/or hat, outdoor shoes, layers for cold, etc. The Marin Headlands is home to several former military installations, including the bunkers, the Nike Missile Site, and the current home of the Headlands

Center for the Arts.
http://www.flickr.com/photos/[redacted]/sets/72157618977407766/

$40 general public / $30 students and members of Headlands Center for the Arts and/or Small Press Traffic.
Class is limited to 20 participants.
Sign up online by using paypal from sptraffic.org or make arrangements through email at [redacted]

--
Samantha Giles
Executive Director
Small Press Traffic Literary Arts Center
sptraffic.org
smallpresstraffic.blogspot.com

↑ Index

64. Wanda Phipps

Brooklynites and others: Having a Group Stoop Sale this Sat June 6th at Tom Paul's in Park Slope

Fri 5 Jun 2009

I am joining in a group stoop sale (weather permitting) this Saturday, June 6th (tomorrow) in Park Slope in front of my friend Tom Paul's apartment at 521 12th Street btwn 8th ave and Prospect Park West--1 door off of Prospect Park

starting in the early morning 10 or 11am through the afternoon 4 or 5pm

I'll be selling a lot of books (poetry, fiction, non-fiction, everything), CDs and some clothes and jewelry but others will be selling a variety of items

Stop by if you are in the neighborhood

Best,
Wanda

--
Wanda Phipps

Check out my websites: http://www.mindhoney.com and
http://www.myspace.com/wandaphippsband

My latest book of poetry Field of Wanting: Poems of Desire available at:
http://www.blazevox.org/bk-wp.htm

And my 1st full-length book of poems Wake-Up Calls: 66 Morning Poems available at:http://www.amazon.com/exec/obidos/ASIN/193236031X/ref=rm_item

↑ Index

65. Joel Weishaus

William Witherup

Fri 5 Jun 2009

Dear Friends and Colleagues:

I learned today of the death of William Witherup.

Bill wrote some of the finest nature poems of the 20th century.

Twenty years ago, I reviewed "Black Ash, Orange Fire: Collected Poems 1959-1985." http://www.cddc.vt.edu/host/weishaus/Writing/witherup.htm

Then, in 2000, "Down Wind, Down River: New and Selected Poems" was published, which I also had the privilege of reviewing: http://www.cddc.vt.edu/host/weishaus/Writing/wither-2.htm

Bill will be missed, and the body of his work will live on.

-Joel

↑ Index

66. Rob McLennan

ottawa: the unknown city by rob mclennan, arsenal pulp press

Fri 5 Jun 2009

In 2008, Vancouver publisher Arsenal Pulp Press published my travel/listings book Ottawa: The Unknown City as part of their ongoing "unknown city" series, originally written to counter the false notion that Ottawa is boring, and to counter Ottawa's baffling self-dismissal. Unfortunately, the result was that the city media and booksellers, almost completely ignored the title, thus rendering it impotent; thus putting it exactly into the same problem it was working to counter.

This is a book I'm extremely proud of, and one that explores many aspects of the city's literature, history, politics, alternative cultures, festivals, music, sports and people, as well as listings of where to purchase food, clothing, books and whatever else you might need while inside a city, whether you have no money, some money or too damned much.

This is a book worth looking for, and looking at, and a tourist guide for locals as much as for out-of-towners. Even if media and Chapters insist on ignoring it, please be sure to check out a copy yourself, and make up your own mind.

http://www.arsenalpulp.com/bookinfo.php?index=273

rob mclennan

-- writer/editor/publisher ...STANZAS mag, above/ground press & Chaudiere Books (www.chaudierebooks.com) ...coord.,SPAN-O + ottawa small press fair ...13th poetry coll'n - The Ottawa City Project ...novel - white www.abovegroundpress.blogspot.com * http://robmclennan.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

67. steve d. dalachinsky

new book and some readings

Fri 5 Jun 2009

---

our email's crashed test tst test what is rundall and bad image?

we are dumb and know not how to correct any of these pc problemss HHHHHEEEEE LLLLL PPPPPP rain all day test ic(l)e (s) itch fightin with wife on a lighter note

I have a NEW BIG BOOK ON ROGUEART PRESS FROM FRANCE 432 PAGES OF POEMS AND PHOTOS (by great French photographer Jacques Bisceglia co-founder of the lengendary avante record label BYG) OF GREAT MUSICIANS FROM ELLINGTON TO CAGE TO..
COLTRANE YOU NAME IT -$55 INCLUDING POSTAGE - LIMITED COPIES AVAILABLE
HERE IN AMERICAN -
ASK ME PLEASE I'M DESPARATE

ALSO A NEW COLLAGE BOOK OUT FROM OILCAN PRESS - CHRIST AMONGST THE FISHES 35 PAGES OF B AND W COOLLAGES OF , THAT'S RIGHT CHRIST AMONGST THE FISHES SIGNED LIMITED EDITION OF 150 COPIES ALL WITH DIFFERENT COVERS - $12 WITH POSTAGE FOR SIMPLE INSERT $17 INCL POSTAGE WITH SPECIAL INNER COVER GET EM WHILE THEY'RE HERE

THERE'LL BE A BOOK PARTY FOR THE BIG BOOK ON JUNE 12TH AT THE VISION FESTIVAL AT
THE ABRONSON ARTS CENTER 266 GRAND STREET AT 8:15 PM WITH SOME OF THE

GREAT MUSICIANS
IN THE BOOK PARTICIPATING PRECEEDED BY THE CHARLES GAYLE TRIO PROCEEDED
BY JOE MCPHEE ROY CAMPBELL AND OTHERS.....

anyone who can donate a LAPTOP APPLE OR WHATEVER THAT'S NOT TOO OLD AND WORN OUT let me know

other readings:

> Tribes Gallery and Idea Kitchen presents
>
> > steve dalachinsky reading and discussing his writing process and > > it's connection to music > >with host Patrick Brennan
> > on saxophone
> >
>
> > Sunday June 7th 2 PM - 4PM
> > @ Tribes Gallery 285 e. 3rd st. and ave. C
>
> (F to 2nd Ave, 21 bus to ave C and e.3rd st)
> >
>
> > FREE
> >
> >then at 5 PM steve, Yuko, > > Tsaurah, Tom and other poets meet at Carroll St near 3rd St in > Brooklyn
> >at 5PM for a poetry walk to end
> > at > > Issue Project Space 3rd and 3rd > by 6PM as part of a benefit for the space
> >
>
>
> > all welcome to join in
> >
>

> >
> >June 12th
> > 8:15 PM - 9:30 as part of the 14th annual Vision Festival

> steve dalachinsky will read from his new collaborative book > with photographer Jacques Bisceglia > REACHING into the UNKNOWN
> > at the Abronson Arts Center - > >466 Grand St in the Experimental Theater > >with guest musicians
> William Parker, Joe McPhee, Roy Campbell, Sabir Mateen, Rob Brown > and Hamid Drake
> >
> preceeded at 7 by
> > the Charles Gayle Trio
> and proceeded by Ras Moshe Joe Mcphee Matthew Shipp > and others on the Main Stage
> >
> $25 in advance $30 at > the door for the entire nite - $20 for seniors and students

---

June 18th @ 5C cultural center at 8 pm
e. 5th and ave c

steve reads with 3 bassists an encore performance alby begosian michael bisio
ken filiano - contribution

preceeeded by from 6-10 pm tribes 12 art opening at tribes 285 e 3rd st 2nd fl

↑ Index

68. Aryanil Mukherjee
Re: Kenneth Patchen, poet of experimental simplicity
Fri 5 Jun 2009

Don't understand how even simplicity can be EXPERIMENTAL !

Patchen was a major influence for Ferlinghetti in his early work.

aryanil

----- Original Message -----
From: "Douglas Manson" <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, June 3, 2009 11:35:27 AM GMT -05:00 US/Canada Eastern Subject: Kenneth Patchen, poet of experimental simplicity

Writing here to ask for contributions, and for contributing editors, to the next issue of Celery Flute: The Kenneth Patchen Newsletter, which will focus on the visual poetry (officially known as "picture-poems") of a unique, late-modern American poet/artist. Â Jim Woodring calls Patchen's works of 1954-1972 "drawings of words," because "the way they are drawn determines the way they affect our minds".

With the recent re-publication of seven of Patchen's books of picture-poems in two new volumes (*We Meet *and The Walking-Away World), a reasonably complete "collected poetry" is now available alongside the Collected Poems of Kenneth Patchen, which was published thirty years earlier, in 1968.

Woodring again: Â "He can make his phrases flow like trickles of mercury or stick like a bone in the throat."

The intent of the forthcoming summer issue of Celery Flute is to provide a productively critical tension in current poetics by way of essays and commentary focusing on Patchen's visual poetry and his influence on poets, musicians and artists.

Possible themes include: Â the contemporary context of visual art and poetry (intermedia) in relation to Patchen's aesthetic, as well as the literary historical issues surrounding his publications and critical reception.

I'd also like to announce that a new issue of Celery Flute has just been printed, which focuses on the "performance" of Patchen's poems in Jazz and Pop contexts, as well as a production of his play Don't Look Now. Â The new issue also features tribute essays, a recap of the '07 Patchen-Fest in Cleveland, OH, and reviews of small press titles and chapbooks.

email Â ([redacted]) or write to me for a copy ($9 ppd) of the magazine, or to send your work for consideration:

Celery Flute
82 Livingston St. #2
Buffalo, NY 14213

After this limited-run issue sells out, and with the help and assistance from as-yet unknown, interested web developers, the magazine will be available in .pdf formats on a website dedicated to the magazine, and to my "micro" press, little scratch pad.

Once again, please send your critical works, poetic collisions, editorial contributions and/or other media to this email address or to our office address for consideration by June 30, 2009.

Thank you!!
--

www.dougfinmanson.blogspot.com
www.myspace.com/inksaudible

↑ Index

69. Gabrielle Welford

Re: David Bromige obit (fwd)

Fri 5 Jun 2009

---

i am also so very very sorry to hear. i was thinking about him yesterday and wondering how he was. he gave me huge encouragement when i was at sonoma state. much love to his spirit and his family. gabe

On Thu, 4 Jun 2009, Alan Sondheim wrote:

> Very very sorry to hear this -
>
> ---------- Forwarded message ----------
> Date: Thu, 4 Jun 2009 13:35:05 -0700
> From: Donna Kuhn <[redacted]>
> Reply-To: Theory and Writing <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Subject: David Bromige obit
>
> http://www.pressdemocrat.com/article/20090603/ARTICLES/906039888/1052/OBITS
>
> i am just so sad, i had no idea this remarkable man and my former professor meant so much to me as a writer, teacher and human being

↑ Index

70. amy king

More Miscellany – Fire at will! 1) Unexpected Poetics …

Fri 5 Jun 2009

---

1)Â Unexpected, lively Poetics! discussion in another gr

1)Â Unexpected, lively Poetics! discussion in another group I moderate:

http://www.goodreads.com/topic/show/150874-please-vote-for-june-s-goodreads-poem-six-finalists

Â

Â

2)Â NEW -- Womenâ€™s Work: The Poetic Justice Forum

http://www.poetryfoundation.org/harriet/2009/06/womens-work-the-poetic-justice-forum/

Â

3)Â Ahadada Books Presents on Saturday, June 13, 2009 @
6:30pm

Â Â

Â Â Â * Michael Heller

Â Â Â * Amy King

Â Â Â * Robert Thompson

Â Â Â * Donald Wellman

Â

ZINC BAR

82 West 3rd Street (btwn Thompson & Sullivan)

Greenwich Village

New York NY 10012

http://www.ahadadabooks.com/content/view/167/1/

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

71. Larry O. Dean

Re: Kenneth Patchen, poet of experimental simplicity

Fri 5 Jun 2009

I use Patchen every year in my Chicago Public School classes. I have What Shall We Do Without Us? which reproduces many fine picture poems in color. The kids go nuts!

Here are links to some student work reacting to Patchen:

http://mcphersonelementarypoetry.blogspot.com/2008/03/picture-poems.html

http://solomonelementarypoetry.blogspot.com/search/label/Kenneth%20Patchen

http://handsonstanzas.typepad.com/shields/2006/05/kenneth_patchen.html

> Writing here to ask for contributions, and for contributing editors, to the > *next issue of Celery Flute: The Kenneth Patchen Newsletter, which will* > focus on the visual poetry (officially known as "picture-poems") of a > unique, late-modern American poet/artist. Jim Woodring calls Patchen's > *works of 1954-1972 "drawings of words," because "the way they are drawn* > determines the way they affect our minds".
>
> With the recent re-publication of seven of Patchen's books of picture-poems > *in two new volumes (*We Meet *and The Walking-Away World), a reasonably* > *complete "collected poetry" is now available alongside the Collected Poems > of Kenneth Patchen, which was published thirty years earlier, in 1968.*
>
> Woodring again: "He can make his phrases flow like trickles of mercury or > stick like a bone in the throat."
>
> *The intent of the forthcoming summer issue of Celery Flute is to provide a* > productively critical tension in current poetics by way of essays and > commentary focusing on Patchen's visual poetry and his influence on poets, > musicians and artists.
>
> Possible themes include: the contemporary context of visual art and poetry > (intermedia) in relation to Patchen's aesthetic, as well as the literary > historical issues surrounding his publications and critical reception.
>
> *I'd also like to announce that a new issue of Celery Flute has just been* > printed, which focuses on the "performance" of Patchen's poems in Jazz and > *Pop contexts, as well as a production of his play Don't Look Now. The new* > issue also features tribute essays, a recap of the '07 Patchen-Fest in > Cleveland, OH, and reviews of small press titles and chapbooks.
>
> email ([redacted]) or write to me for a copy ($9 ppd) of the > magazine, or to send your work for consideration:
>
> Celery Flute
> 82 Livingston St. #2
> Buffalo, NY 14213
>
> After this limited-run issue sells out, and with the help and assistance > from as-yet unknown, interested web developers, the magazine will be > available in .pdf formats on a website dedicated to the magazine, and to my

> "micro" press, little scratch pad.
>
> Once again, please send your critical works, poetic collisions, editorial contributions and/or other media to this email address or to our office address for consideration by June 30, 2009.
>
> Thank you!!
> --
> www.dougfinmanson.blogspot.com
> www.myspace.com/inksaudible

↑ Index

72. George Bowering
Re: New York in Fiction
Fri 5 Jun 2009

I am surprised that no one has mention Sorrentino's
The Sky Changes, etc.

George Howard Bowering
Born with a zinc spoon.

↑ Index

73. George Bowering
Re: New York in Fiction
Fri 5 Jun 2009

That's probably my favourite NY fiction.

gb

On Jun 4, 2009, at 5:36 PM, steve russell wrote:

> no mention of Brooklyn New York native, Gilbert Sorrentino.
> "Imaginative Qualities of Actual Things" is a wonderful take on the New York artistic and literary world.
>
> welcome.html

G. Harry Bowering, OBC
Down by the watermelons.

↑ Index

74. Aldon Nielsen
Re: David Bromige Obituary
Fri 5 Jun 2009

I was one of the many who enjoyed the benefit of David Bromige's generosity and hospitality. I also enjoyed sharing a birthday with him -- David liked to get us Oct 22nd people together whenever he could -- a fine company of liberal Libras . . . David was one of the finest poets I've read across the years --

--
Aldon L. Nielsen
Kelly Professor of American Literature
The Pennsylvania State University

[redacted]

sailing the blogosphere at http://heatstrings.blogspot.com

"The practical application of the rule of 'If you read me, I'll read you' is such an important advance for the Republic of Letters that I think it should appear, as a mandatory precept, in the first article of its Constitution" -- Juan Goytisolo

↑ Index

75. Mary Kasimor
Re: New York in Fiction
Fri 5 Jun 2009

Also, Aloud: Voices from the Nuyorican Poets Cafe.

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, Alan Sondheim <[redacted]> wrote:

From: Alan Sondheim <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: New York in Fiction
To: [redacted]
Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 10:49 AM

Anything by Damon Runyon, Jimmy Breslin, Amiri Baraka

On Tue, 2 Jun 2009, Maria Damon wrote:

> Henry Roth, Call It Sleep
> James Baldwin, Another Country
> Maggi Dubris, Skels
>
> Ryan Daley wrote:
> Dear Fellow Listservees and Listserved,
>
> I'm teaching a class on New York City in Fiction in the fall and wanted to > hear your suggestions for supplemental reading. I have a few in mind (Invisible Man, New York Trilogy, etc), but I'm looking for more. Length isn't a concern: 50 or 500 pages, they'll read it.

>
> I'd greatly appreciate suggestions.
>
> Thanks!
>
> Best,
>
> Ryan Daley

| Alan Sondheim Mail archive: http://sondheim.rupamsunyata.org/
| To access the Odyssey exhibition The Accidental Artist:
| http://slurl.com/secondlife/Odyssey/48/12/22
| Webpage (directory) at http://www.alansondheim.org
| [redacted], [redacted], tel US [redacted]

↑ Index

76. Jennifer Karmin
Call for proposals: Split This Rock Poetry Festival
Fri 5 Jun 2009

Split This Rock Poetry Festival
March 10-13, 2010
http://splitthisrock.org

Call for Proposals:
Deadline extended to June 30, 2009

Split This Rock Poetry Festival: Poems of Provocation & Witness invites poets, writers, and activists to Washington, DC, for poetry, community building, and creative transformation as our country continues to grapple with a crippling economic crisis and other social and environmental ills. The festival will feature readings, workshops, panel discussions, youth programming, film, activism â€“- opportunities to imagine a way forward, hone our activist skills, and celebrate the many ways that poetry can act as an agent for social change.

http://splitthisrock.org/documents/2010_panel_proposals.doc

↑ Index

77. Alan Sondheim

Re: Call for book submissions

Sat 6 Jun 2009

This message is in MIME format. The first part should be readable text, while the remaining parts are likely unreadable without MIME-aware tools.

--0-92825366-1244304577=:24876

I agree with Halvard here. It's the same for film festivals, etc. If there were a sliding scale for those who can't afford these fees, it would be one thing, but the assumption is that we've all got money from the sky to pay for people to see/read what we've done. I can guarantee you the creative writing faculty mentioned are making a hell of a lot more money than I am. This sort of tiered system applies to conferences as well - with a few exceptions, for which I'm grateful. It legislates against the poor against the elderly, etc. etc. It's ugly and has nothing to do with creative work. Admittedly there are some places that absolutely need the monies gathered to continue - but even with those, sliding scale would make better sense to ensure a more democratic representation, if such a thing is even possible today. - Alan

On Mon, 1 Jun 2009, Halvard Johnson wrote:

> Thanks for the invitation, but as a non-profit content-provider
> I don't supply reading fees or SASEs.
>
> Hal
>
> "My experience is what I agree to attend to."
> --William James
>
> Halvard Johnson
> ==========
> [redacted]
> http://sites.google.com/site/halvardjohnson/Home
> http://entropyandme.blogspot.com
> http://imageswithoutwords.blogspot.com
> http://www.hamiltonstone.org
>
> On Sun, May 31, 2009 at 12:11 PM, noah eli gordon <[redacted]
> wrote:
>
> Subito Press of the University of Colorado invites submissions to its > annual book competition.

We will publish two books of innovative writing, one each of fiction and poetry.

Submissions will be accepted from June 1 to August 15, 2009 (postmark date).

Submit manuscripts of up to 70 pages of poetry or up to 100 pages of (double spaced) fiction along with a $20 reading fee and an SASE for notification of results.

Manuscripts should include two cover sheets: one with title only, the other with title, author's name, address, e-mail, and phone number.

All submissions will be judged anonymously by the creative writing faculty at the University of Colorado; friends, relatives, and former students of University of Colorado creative writing faculty are not eligible.

http://www.colorado.edu/English/crw/faculty/index.html

Simultaneous submissions are ok; please notify Subito immediately if your ms. is accepted elsewhere.

Winners will give a reading at the University of Colorado in the Spring of 2010.

Notification of winners will occur by January of 2010.

Send mss. to:

Subito Press
Department of English
226 UCB
Boulder, Colorado 80309-0226

http://www.subitopress.org/

Subito Press is a nonprofit literary publisher based in the Creative Writing Department at the University of Colorado at Boulder. We look for innovative fiction and poetry that at once reflects and informs the contemporary human condition, and we promote new literary voices as well as > work from previously published writers. Subito Press encourages and supports work that challenges already-accepted literary modes and devices

>
> http://www.colorado.edu/English/crw/
>
> Subito Press 2008 Book Competition Winners
>
> F-Stein, by L.J. Moore
> Self-Titled Debut, by Andrew Farkas
>
> ---
>
> Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail®.
>
> http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/QuickAdd?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tutorial_QuickAdd1_052009

| Alan Sondheim Mail archive: http://sondheim.rupamsunyata.org/
| To access the Odyssey exhibition The Accidental Artist:
| http://slurl.com/secondlife/Odyssey/48/12/22
| Webpage (directory) at http://www.alansondheim.org
| [redacted], [redacted], tel US [redacted]

--0-92825366-1244304577=:24876--

↑ Index

78. Daniel Godston
soundwalk-a-thon!
Sat 6 Jun 2009

This looks / sounds like a fantastic project:

On the afternoon of Sunday June 7, a group of visionary artists will lead sonic excursions throughout New York as part of a rare live sonic arts experiment - the ISSUE Project Room Soundwalk-a-thon - a fundraiser and collective public inquiry into the connection between urban space and our collective sonic imaginations.

Led and designed by some of New York's most exciting sound artists and musicians, these walks will take groups of 10-20 people at a time on an intimate journey of sonic discovery to experience our community in a way they may never have done before - through sound. Walks range from meditative deep listening, to sing-a-longs, to noise-making walks incorporating instruments, iPods, boomboxes, cell phones, or silence in order to amplify the nuances of our ever-changing soundscape.

Choose your own adventure:

* 12:30 pm Gowanus <http://issueprojectroom.org/soundwalk?id=26> Soundwalk led by Marc Ribot
* 1:00 pm Tinnitus <http://issueprojectroom.org/soundwalk?id=1> Contemplation Walk led by Anthony Coleman
* 2:00 pm Listen 2009 - <http://issueprojectroom.org/soundwalk?id=12> Remote Access led by Keiko Uenishi
* 2:00 pm Transmutation <http://issueprojectroom.org/soundwalk?id=10> in the shift (---Documenting the Grand Concourse) led by Du Yun
* 2:00 pm Urban Zen Sound <http://issueprojectroom.org/soundwalk?id=17> Meditation and Labyrinth Walk led by Eric A. Dahl
* 3:00 pm Demasking The <http://issueprojectroom.org/soundwalk?id=13>
Bridges led by Daniel Neumann
* 3:00 pm Gowan-us! A <http://issueprojectroom.org/soundwalk?id=20> Crudrophonic Sound Event led by Dylan Gauthier
* 3:00 pm Underpass Walk <http://issueprojectroom.org/soundwalk?id=2> led by Bruce Tovsky
* 3:30 pm Prospect Park <http://issueprojectroom.org/soundwalk?id=14> Ravine Soundwalk led by Jonny Farrow
* 4:00 pm Balloon Bassoon <http://issueprojectroom.org/soundwalk?id=21> Promenade led by Kenny Wollesen
* 4:00 pm Gowanus Field <http://issueprojectroom.org/soundwalk?id=19> Reflections and The Great Steel Elevator led by Bradford Reed
* 4:00 pm Prospect Park <http://issueprojectroom.org/soundwalk?id=11> Soundwalk led by Andrea Williams
* 4:30 pm Carroll Street <http://issueprojectroom.org/soundwalk?id=16> Soundwalk led by Todd Shalom
* 4:30 pm Four Bridges <http://issueprojectroom.org/soundwalk?id=4> Walk led by Edmund Mooney
* 5:00 pm Bang a Gong for <http://issueprojectroom.org/soundwalk?id=24> ISSUE led by Jonathan Kane
* 5:00 pm Detox Project <http://issueprojectroom.org/soundwalk?id=23> led by Betsey Biggs
* 5:00 pm Poets March <http://issueprojectroom.org/soundwalk?id=25>

led by Steve Dalachinsky
* 5:00 pm Shuffle <http://issueprojectroom.org/soundwalk?id=9> Sing-a-long led by Collective Opera Company
* 5:00 pm Tin Can <http://issueprojectroom.org/soundwalk?id=22> Telewalk led by Kurt Gottschalk and Marie Evelyn
* Anytime - All Borough <http://issueprojectroom.org/soundwalk?id=15> Bag Walk led by Michelle Nagai
* Various times - We <http://issueprojectroom.org/soundwalk?id=18> would like to run past all your walkers, opposite their direction, while screaming songs. led by Flaming Fire

http://issueprojectroom.org/2009/05/11/issue-project-room-soundwalk-a-thon/

↑ Index

79. Maria Damon
Re: David Bromige Obituary
Sat 6 Jun 2009

David was brilliantly witty, and warm as well. I loved our 4-way banter on the list years ago (w/ Rachel Loden and George Bowering). Cracked me up every time. And so lovely in person, when I met him at Orono. What a shining light.

Aldon Nielsen wrote:
> I was one of the many who enjoyed the benefit of David Bromige's generosity > and hospitality. I also enjoyed sharing a birthday with him -- David liked > to get us Oct 22nd people together whenever he could -- a fine company of > liberal Libras . . .
> David was one of the finest poets I've read across the years --
>
>

↑ Index

80. Alan Sondheim
June 12th Performance Event At Subtle Technologies! - Please note!
Sat 6 Jun 2009

June 12th Performance Event At Subtle Technologies!

"This is the press release for Friday's June 12th's event. For those that can't attend the symposium in standard shape and form; there will be a video-slip-stream into Second Life. The SLURL for Subtle Technologies/OCAD Island in Second Life is at http://tiny.cc/Tru7M unfortunately, to preserve bandwidth, we won't stream the performances."

Friday June the 12th at 8pm at the Innis Town Hall at 2 Sussex Ave on Toronto the University of Toronto campus

The Subtle Technologies Festival is proud to present an evening of networked performance featuring:

The Pauline Oliveros/Ione/Chris Chafe trio - in a networked performance between Innis Hall and The Banff Center Alan Sondheim - will be performing on stage, t?te-?-t?te, through Second Life with his Austria situated counterpart Sandy Baldwin. Second Front -Scott Kildall and Patrick Lichty will have an on stage face off with their Second Front performance troop to present a new piece for the denizen's of Second Life, 'Red White and Blue Dawn' Jeremy Bailey - in demo/performance mode, presenting his new mockware 'War Mail' Johannes Birringer - will screen an excerpt from his new performance peice Ukiyo - Movable World the evening is curated by Willy Le Maitre

http://www.subtletechnologies.com/2009/?page_id=206

The Pauline Oliveros / Ione / Chris Chafe trio Pioneers in extended forms of American New Music; their performance explores musical spaces often across physical spaces. Blending music and spoken word improvisation, the festival performance links stages in Toronto and Banff. The three have been developing artistic practice within the telematic medium collectively.

Pauline Oliveros, composer, performer and humanitarian is an important pioneer in American Music. Acclaimed internationally, for four decades she has explored sound -- forging new ground for herself and others.Deep Listening, her lifetime practice, is fundamental to her composing, performing and teaching. She serves as Distinguished Research Professor of Music at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy NY; Darius Milhaud Artist-in-residence at Mills College, Oakland CA; and president of the Deep Listening Institute in Kingston NY. http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Pauline_Oliveros Chris Chafe is a composer, cellist, music researcher with an interest in computer music composition and interactive performance. He has been a long-term denizen of the Center for Computer Research in Music and Acoustics, Stanford University, where he directs the centre and teaches computer music courses. Chafe developed the Jack Trip software which has enabled an exploration in near realtime telematic music. Using a fast network the open source software facilitates an eight channel Cd quality audio link where bi-costal delays are around 400 milliseconds. IONE is an author, playwright and director, & spoken word performer, whose seminal work, Pride of Family; Four Generations of American Women of Color, (a New York Times Notable Book) was published in a classic edition by Doubleday/Broadway Books. (October 2004). Ione is also the Artistic Director of Deep Listening Institute, Ltd.

Alan Sondheim Alan Sondheim and Sandy Baldwin performing in Second Life: Sandy and I AvaTanz together which means we trigger objects to take us over, splurge on the chat, maybe have some sound at work beyond the usual click-clack, and work those altered mocap files at around 800 meters transparent space. Usually stuff crashes; here, who knows? It's about eroticism, memory of neighborhood, being-mess. http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Alan_Sondheim

Second Front - performance of Red White and Blue Dawn
Second Front are a pioneering avatar performance group in Second Life. They create theatres of the absurd that challenge notions of virtual embodiment, online performance and the formation of virtual narrative. Tactical art by the performance group currently serving a Second Life sentence. Scott Kildall and Patrick Lichty will be present in the flesh.
http://www.secondfront.org/blog/

Jeremy Bailey - ~QWar Mail~R a launch of War Mail by Demo-Performer Jeremy Bailey.
Bailey creates videos and performances that demonstrate satirical software programs of his own design. His work has been described by filmmaker magazine as ~Sa one man revolution on the way we use video, computers and our bodies to create art~T.
http://www.jeremybailey.net/

Johannes Birringer - Ukiyo - Movable World Johannes Birringer will present an excerpt from the choreographic installation UKYIO, a collaboration between performers in the UK and Tokyo. The performance blends audio, dance, and digital projections, inviting the audience to shift its perspectives by moving among the various elements as the work unfolds.
http://www.aliennationcompany.com/people/jobi.htm

↑ Index

81. Lars Palm
Mark Young on ungovernable press
Sun 7 Jun 2009

Dear all,

ungovernable press strikes again. this time i'm happy to announce terracotta worriers by Mark Young where he takes on the chapter headings from Sun Tzu's "The Art of War" in his own inimitable way

cheers,
lars

http://ungovernablepress.weebly.com

↑ Index

82. Dean Brink

Seeking poetry treating American occupation of Iraq

Sun 7 Jun 2009

Dear Poetics List,

I recently rejoined the list and it is nice to be back. I am glad it is still going strong, for I have a humble request for assistance.

I'm trying to assess poetry by American poets that have written on the American invasion and occupation of Iraq. It's for research purposes—I am especially interested in antiwar poetry, but if there is also pro-war poetry it would be important to know of it. As I am living in Taiwan and have scant access to small journals (of which there are hundreds) any suggestions for notable poems and essays would be greatly appreciated.

An anticipatory thank you for any help.

Dean Brink

[redacted]/

interpoetics.blogspot.com

↑ Index

83. amy king

It's hard all around -- Help the PoPo!

Sun 7 Jun 2009

And by "PoPo"Â I don't mean "police."Â I mean a historical institution long-nestled in the East Village of New York City, a place that has nurtured and promoted many, many visiting and residential poets and continues strong each week to offer space and support for workshops, readings, a gabbing spot for the poetically-inclined, etc...

Admittedly, I've been lax in my own support.Â My membership expired many moons ago, and since there was no urgency, I put renewal low on my To Do list.Â Still, recessions are especially hard on non-profits, thanks to cuts in gov't funding as well as the shrinking wallets of artists...

But as the weather warms and my health & desire to socialize returns, it dawned on me recently that fifty bucks gets me a hell of lot at the Poetry Project and helps the community of poets I frequent and belong to.Â I finally realized, What the hell?Â If my fifty bucks can put a dent in the rent bill of the Poetry Project, then why am I being so lazy about going online to do my small part?Â

Anyway, this isn't really about how bad I am but just a note pointing out a need and asking you to help a very necessary spot along through some tough financial times--and to offer a few details from the Poetry Project website:

http://poetryproject.org/get-involved/become-a-member Individual Membership {$50}
Discounted admission for a year to all regularly scheduled and special Poetry Project events â€” potentially a $300 value.A yearâ€™s subscription to The Poetry Project Newsletter â€” a $25 value.Substantial savings on workshops offered at the Project by renowned writers.

Project Mission Through its live programming, workshops, publications, website and special events, The Poetry Project promotes, fosters and inspires the reading and writing of contemporary poetry by (a) presenting contemporary poetry to diverse audiences, (b) increasing public recognition, awareness and appreciation of poetry and other arts, (c) providing a community setting in which poets and artists can exchange ideas and information, and (d) encouraging the participation and development of new poets from a broad range of styles. The Poetry Project offers:Weekly readings, including a Wednesday Night Reading series, a Monday Night Reading/Performance Series, and a Friday Late-Night Reading seriesFour weekly writing workshopsThe Recluse, an annual literary magazineA quarterly NewsletterMembership in the Poetry ProjectTape and document archivesSpecial events, such as the Annual New Yearâ€™s Day Marathon Reading

Plus, they've got a blog!Â

http://poetryproject.org/project-blog

http://poetryproject.org/get-involved/become-a-member

Enjoy,

Amy

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

84. George Bowering
Re: David Bromige Obituary
Sun 7 Jun 2009

And we meant every word of it, my sweet Maria D.,

gb

On Jun 6, 2009, at 5:48 PM, Maria Damon wrote:

> David was brilliantly witty, and warm as well. I loved our 4-way banter on the list years ago (w/ Rachel Loden and George Bowering). Cracked me up every time. And so lovely in person, when I met him at Orono. What a shining light.
>
> Aldon Nielsen wrote:
> I was one of the many who enjoyed the benefit of David Bromige's generosity > and hospitality. I also enjoyed sharing a birthday with him -- David liked > to get us Oct 22nd people together whenever he could -- a fine company of
> liberal Libras . . .
> David was one of the finest poets I've read across the years --
>
> welcome.html

George B.
Indifferent to Brad Pitt

↑ Index

85. Sarah Sarai
Re: New York in Fiction
Sun 7 Jun 2009

Watchmen Alan Moore/Dave Gibbons
Zooey (from Franny and Zooey) Salinger
The Wicked Pavilion Dawn Powell
& I'm sure others included:
ANYTHING & EVERYTHING BY EDITH WHARTON

Sarah
--- On Wed, 6/3/09, Alan Sondheim <[redacted]> wrote:

From: Alan Sondheim <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: New York in Fiction

To: [redacted]
Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 10:49 AM

Anything by Damon Runyon, Jimmy Breslin, Amiri Baraka

On Tue, 2 Jun 2009, Maria Damon wrote:

> Henry Roth, Call It Sleep
> James Baldwin, Another Country
> Maggi Dubris, Skels
>
> Ryan Daley wrote:
> Dear Fellow Listservees and Listserved,
>
> I'm teaching a class on New York City in Fiction in the fall and wanted to hear your suggestions for supplemental reading. I have a few in mind (Invisible Man, New York Trilogy, etc), but I'm looking for more. Length isn't a concern: 50 or 500 pages, they'll read it.
>
> I'd greatly appreciate suggestions.
>
> Thanks!
>
> Best,
>
> Ryan Daley

↑ Index

86. Rebecca Weaver
new issue of midway now up!
Sun 7 Jun 2009

Hi all,

the new issue of Midway is now up, featuring poets Deborah Keenan, Jen March, and and an interview of Adrienne Rich by Iranian poet Farideh Hassanzadeh-Mostafavi.

Enjoy!

www.midwayjournal.com

↑ Index

87. Wallis Leslie
Re: Seeking poetry treating American occupation of Iraq
Sun 7 Jun 2009

I taught Brian Turner's Here Bullet Winter quarter. It is powerful poetry, not didactic, full of the desert, ancient culture, life and death.
Â
Wallis Leslie

--- On Sun, 6/7/09, Dean Brink <[redacted]> wrote:

From: Dean Brink <[redacted]>
Subject: Seeking poetry treating American occupation of Iraq
To: [redacted]
Date: Sunday, June 7, 2009, 8:15 AM

Dear Poetics List,

I recently rejoined the list and it is nice to be back. I am glad it is still going strong, for I have a humble request for assistance.

Iâ€™m trying to assess poetry by American poets that have written on the American invasion and occupation of Iraq. Itâ€™s for research purposesâ€”I am especially interested in antiwar poetry, but if there is also pro-war poetry it would be important to know of it. As I am living in Taiwan and have scant access to small journals (of which there are hundreds) any suggestions for notable poems and essays would be greatly appreciated.

An anticipatory thank you for any help.

Dean Brink

[redacted]/

interpoetics.blogspot.com

↑ Index

88. steve russell
Re: New York in Fiction
Sun 7 Jun 2009

& his poetry is overlooked. He's an excellent poet.

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, George Bowering <[redacted]> wrote:

> From: George Bowering <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: New York in Fiction
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 4:35 PM
> I am surprised that no one has

> mention Sorrentino's
> The Sky Changes, etc.
>
> George Howard Bowering
> Born with a zinc spoon.

↑ Index

89. Jesse Glass

Jesse Glass at the University of Essex, Colchester, June 15th

Sun 7 Jun 2009

Reading is Monday 15th June 6.00-8.00 in the University Gallery, readings by Jesse Glass and poets from the University of Essex Poetry Project. Everyone invited. Jess

↑ Index

90. steve d. dalachinsky

Re: Call for book submissions

Mon 8 Jun 2009

---

hello i need emails for pierre joris and his wife nicol my email crashed lost asll addresses thanks steve back channel please

On Sun, 31 May 2009 11:11:35 -0600 noah eli gordon <[redacted]> writes:
> Subito Press of the University of Colorado invites submissions to its > annual book competition.
>
> We will publish two books of innovative writing, one each of fiction > and poetry.
>
> Submissions will be accepted from June 1 to August 15, 2009 > (postmark date).
>
> Submit manuscripts of up to 70 pages of poetry or up to 100 pages of > (double spaced) fiction along with a $20 reading fee and an SASE for > notification of results.
>
> Manuscripts should include two cover sheets: one with title only, > the other with title, author's name, address, e-mail, and phone > number.

>
> All submissions will be judged anonymously by the creative writing > faculty at the University of Colorado; friends, relatives, and > former students of University of Colorado creative writing faculty > are not eligible.
>
> http://www.colorado.edu/English/crw/faculty/index.html
>
> Simultaneous submissions are ok; please notify Subito immediately if > your ms. is accepted elsewhere.
>
> Winners will give a reading at the University of Colorado in the > Spring of 2010.
>
> Notification of winners will occur by January of 2010.
>
> Send mss. to:
>
> Subito Press
> Department of English
> 226 UCB
> Boulder, Colorado 80309-0226
>
>
>
>
> http://www.subitopress.org/
>
>
>
>
>
> Subito Press is a nonprofit literary publisher based in the Creative > Writing Department at the University of Colorado at Boulder. We look > for innovative fiction and poetry that at once reflects and informs > the contemporary human condition, and we promote new literary voices > as well as work from previously published writers. Subito Press > encourages and supports work that challenges already-accepted > literary modes and devices
>

>
>
> http://www.colorado.edu/English/crw/
>
>
> Subito Press 2008 Book Competition Winners
>
> F-Stein, by L.J. Moore
> f-Titled Debut, by Andrew Farkas
> _____
> Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail®.
>
http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/QuickAdd?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tut orial_QuickAdd1_052009
>
>

↑ Index

91. Patrick Dillon

Matt Cutts: Search Your Bookshelf with a $65 Barcode Scanner

Mon 8 Jun 2009

Matt Cutts, head of Google's web spam team, has a terrific blog post about a $65 barcode scanner you can buy from Amazon.com. You can scan the barcodes and easily upload them to Google's My Library. Among other things, you can combine this with Google booksearch and do a full textual search of your entire library. A lot of potential there...

http://www.mattcutts.com/blog/scan-and-search-books/

↑ Index

92. David Kirschenbaum

Save the Date: Welcome to Boog City 3, Sept. 9-13

Mon 8 Jun 2009

Hi all,

From Wed. Sept. 9-Sun. Sept. 13 we'll be putting on the third annual Welcome to Boog City poetry and music festival, a fundraiser for our press and community newspaper. Here are links to the first two festivals' programs:

http://welcometoboogcity.com/boogpdfs/wbcprogram2007.pdf
http://welcometoboogcity.com/boogpdfs/bc51.pdf

The breakdown for this year's festival is:

WEDNESDAY SEPTEMBER 9, 7:00 P.M.
Sidewalk Café (94 Ave. A, at E. 6th St.)
Boog City Classic Albums Live will kick off the festival with local musical acts performing, for its 10th anniversary, The Magnetic Fields' classic 69 Love Songs. Among those partaking:

Ben Krieger
Dream Bitches
Gracefully
The Trouble Dolls
Andrew Philip Tipton
Genan Zilkha

and more

THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 10, 6:00 P.M. ACA Galleries (529 W. 20th St., 5th Flr., bet. 10th/11th aves.) This is the first date of season seven of our d.a. levy lives: celebrating the renegade press series, where each month we have a different non-NYC small press host its authors and a musical act.

FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 11, 7:00 P.M.
Sidewalk Café (94 Ave. A, at E.6th St.)
We'll have poets, smaller musical acts, full bands, and theater performances.

SATURDAY SEPTEMBER 12, 12:00 P.M. Unnameable Books (600 Vanderbilt Ave., bet. Prospect Pl./St. Marks Ave., Brooklyn) Poets and musical acts performing nonstop during our 6th annual small, small press fair, which will also have readings from poets representing the exhibiting presses. The day will also feature two poets in conversation with each other.

SUNDAY SEPTEMBER 13, 12:00 P.M.
Unnameable Books (600 Vanderbilt Ave., bet. Prospect Pl./St. Marks Ave., Brooklyn)
We'll close the festival with more poets and musical acts performing, sandwiched around a discussion.

The poets who will give readings on Fri., Sat., or Sun. include:

Ammiel Alcalay
Sandra Beasley
Mike County
Jim Dunn
Eric Gelsinger
Hailey Higdon

Paolo Javier
Paul Foster Johnson
Basil King
Martha King
Brendan Lorber
Dan Machlin
Justin Marks
Tracey McTague
Ryan Murphy
Elinor Nauen
Jean-Paul Pecqueur
Nick Piombino
Joanna Sondheim
Ryan Walker
Dana Ward
Lewis Warsh
Karen Weiser
Dan Wilcox
Angela Veronica Wong

and more

On Saturday, Anselm Berrigan and Buck Downs will be reading and in conversation with one another.

On Sunday there will be a discussion on politics, poetics, and community curated and moderated by longtime Boog contributor Greg Fuchs

The musical acts who will perform solo sets on Fri., Sat., or Sun. include:

Dorit
Gracefully
Serena Jost
Phoebe Kreutz
Alan Semerdjian
The Lo and the Lonesome

and more

Please email [redacted] for additional information.

Looking forward to seeing you there and hope this finds you swell.

as ever,
David

--
David A. Kirschenbaum, editor and publisher

Boog City
330 W.28th St., Suite 6H
NY, NY 10001-4754
For event and publication information:
http://welcometoboogcity.com/
T: (212) 842-BOOG (2664)

↑ Index

93. Christopher Leland Winks

Re: Seeking poetry treating American occupation of Iraq

Mon 8 Jun 2009

Dear Dean:

You'll definitely want to check out Kent Johnson's collection LYRIC POETRY AFTER AUSCHWITZ, available from Effing Press.

----- Original Message -----
From: Dean Brink <[redacted]>
Date: Sunday, June 7, 2009 1:45 pm
Subject: Seeking poetry treating American occupation of Iraq
To: [redacted]

> Dear Poetics List,
>
> I recently rejoined the list and it is nice to be back. I am glad it is still going strong, for I have a humble request for assistance.
>
> I'm trying to assess poetry by American poets that have written on the American invasion and occupation of Iraq. It's for research purposes—I am especially interested in antiwar poetry, but if there is also pro-war poetry it would be important to know of it. As I am living in Taiwan and have scant access to small journals (of which there are hundreds) any suggestions for notable poems and essays would be greatly appreciated.
>
> An anticipatory thank you for any help.
>
> Dean Brink
>
> [redacted]/
>
> interpoetics.blogspot.com

↑ Index

94. Lou Rowan
Golden Handcuffs 11 out
Mon 8 Jun 2009

The new issue features symposia on Nathaniel Tarn at 80 and Luisa Valenzuela at 70. Artwork by William Powhida and Brian Smale. Essays, fiction, poetry by Louis Armand, Rebecca Brown, Pedro Calderón, Richard Deming, Gwendolyn Diaz, Joseph Donahue, Laurie Duggan, Andrew Ervin, Norman Finkelstein, Ed Foster, Paul Griffiths, Katherine Hastings, Randy Hayes, Michael Heller, Anselm Hollo, Robert Kelly, Hank Lazer, Maria Teresa Madeiros-Lichem, Gherasim Luca, David Matlin, Brian Marley, David Meltzer, Douglas Messerli, David Need, Pat Nolan, Alice Notley, Peter O'Leary, John Olson, Alicia Partnoy, Simon Pettet, Dennis Phillips, Joe Ashby Porter, Peter Quartermain, Christina Peri Rossi, Susana Szwarc, Jerome Rothenberg, Alan Singer, Brian Strang, Rosmarie Waldrop, Norman Weinstein, Zack Wentz, Raul Zurita.

website: www.goldenhandcuffs review.com SUBSCRIPTIONS $20/year. Please subscribe, we need your support. thanks, Lou

Lou Rowan

[redacted]
www.lourowan.com

1825 NE 58th St.
Seattle, WA 98105

[redacted]

↑ Index

95. Stephen Vincent
Michael Davidson & Susan Schweik at Nonsite
Tue 9 Jun 2009

I have written a little review on my blog [http://stephenvincent.net/blog/] of a Nonsite Collective lecture that some might find of interest - (An initial taste] Michael Davidson, poet, professor and critic, and Susan Schweik, professor, both gave talks as a continuation of the Nonsite Collectiveâ€™s discussions of the poetics of disability/disablement, and the fourth in a series of events in the Aesthetics as Somatic Practice series.http://stephenvincent.net/blog/ This Sunday evening, at least, I cannot begin to paraphrase either talk, other than to say both pieces were â€˜loaded.â€™ Michaelâ€™s talk began with a focus on the implications for queer theory for a man who actually became pregnant and brought the baby to term. Susanâ€™s focus took off from her just out, The Ugly Laws from NYU Press, which she describes a social and cultural history of an ordinance adopted by many American cities in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. The law prohibited â€œdiseased,â€ â€œmaimed,â€ and â€œdeformedâ€ people from exposing themselves to public view...

Stephen V

↑ Index

96. Hugh Behm-Steinberg
Horror help
Tue 9 Jun 2009

Hi all,

I'm working with a student this summer who's writing horror fiction, a genre I haven't done much reading in myself. I was wondering if there are any recommendations for essays about the genre, or recent writers I should plunge into besides Stephen King or Clive Barker.

Many thanks,

Hugh Behm-Steinberg

↑ Index

97. Lars Palm
Alana Madison new from ungovernable press
Tue 9 Jun 2009

Dear all,

ungovernable press is in a period of activity at the moment. today i announce

Bash Slasho by Alana Madison freely available for your reading pleasure

cheers,
lars

http://ungovernablepress.weebly.com
http://mischievoice.blogspot.com

↑ Index

98. Michael Incredible David Meltzer & Neeli Cherkovski poetics course!!!
Tue 9 Jun 2009

Before WRITING

WRITING

& AFTER WRITING

A poetics course w/

David Meltzer &

Neeli cherkovski

July 21st through august 25th

6 consecutive Tuesday nights

7:00 - 9:30 pm

Presented by the Bird & beckett

Cultural legacy project

653 chenery st., SF, ca 94131

www.birdbeckett.com

[redacted]

$100 for All 6 sessions in advance, or

$20 per session, on a space available basis

We will talk about origins -- When did poetry begin? Why do we choose the poem as a primary means of expression? What does it mean to take on the identity of "Poet?" These and other crucial questions become the ground for talking about the life of a poet over time, and the relationship of poetry to art and music. Haiku, Whitman and Dickinson, modernists such as W.C. Williams and H.D. -- along with the poetry of today, will lead us to look on the role of a poet in the larger society.

↑ Index

99. Grant Jenkins

Call for creative submissions July 1--Tulsa/NY School Conference Nov 5-7

Tue 9 Jun 2009

Call for Creative Presentations
the ³Tulsa School²
Conference at the University of Tulsa
Tulsa, Oklahoma, November 5-7 2009

Readings by: RON PADGETT, DICK GALLUP,
Alice Notley, Robert Harris, Anselm Berrigan, and Edmund Berrigan

Creative works inspired by what John Ashbery once nicknamed the ³soi-disant Tulsa School,² are being solicited for panel readings. Considered part of the New York School of artists and writers, the Tulsa School included Ted Berrigan, Ron Padgett, Joe Brainard, and Dick Gallup‹who met in Tulsa and later moved to New York City in the early 1960s . Presentations may include but are not limited to the following:

€ Current writing inspired by New York School art and poetry € Visual art
€ Poetry
€ Experimental prose
€ Digital media
€ Creative non-fiction

Cover letter and 3-4 pages of writing by July 1, 2009 via email to
<[redacted]>

The conference will include keynote addresses, plenary sessions, concurrent panels, an exhibit from TU¹s Special Collections, a Tulsa School Bus Tour of town, and more.

PLEASE FORWARD

↑ Index

100. Christopher Leland Winks

Re: Seeking poetry treating American occupation of Iraq

Tue 9 Jun 2009

Gloria Frym's collection "Solution Simulacra" is highly recommended.

----- Original Message -----
From: Wallis Leslie <[redacted]>
Date: Tuesday, June 9, 2009 12:53 pm
Subject: Re: Seeking poetry treating American occupation of Iraq
To: [redacted]

> I taught Brian Turner's Here Bullet Winter quarter. It is powerful poetry, not didactic, full of the desert, ancient culture, life and death.
>
> Wallis Leslie
>
> --- On Sun, 6/7/09, Dean Brink <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> From: Dean Brink <[redacted]>
> Subject: Seeking poetry treating American occupation of Iraq
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Sunday, June 7, 2009, 8:15 AM
>
> Dear Poetics List,
>
> I recently rejoined the list and it is nice to be back. I am glad it is still going strong, for I have a humble request for assistance.
>
> I'm trying to assess poetry by American poets that have written on the American invasion and occupation of Iraq. It's for research purposes—I am especially interested in antiwar poetry, but if there is also pro-war poetry it would be important to know of it. As I am living in Taiwan and have scant access to small journals (of which there are hundreds) any suggestions for notable poems and essays would be greatly appreciated.
>
> An anticipatory thank you for any help.
>
> Dean Brink
>
> [redacted]/
>
> interpoetics.blogspot.com

↑ Index

101. Maria Damon
Re: new issue of midway now up!
Tue 9 Jun 2009

---

impressive! keep up the good work!

Rebecca Weaver wrote:
> Hi all,
>
> the new issue of Midway is now up, featuring poets Deborah Keenan, Jen > March, and and an interview of Adrienne Rich by Iranian poet Farideh > Hassanzadeh-Mostafavi.
>
> Enjoy!
>
> www.midwayjournal.com
>

↑ Index

102. Larry O. Dean
Re: Horror help
Tue 9 Jun 2009

King's son, Joe Hill's novel, Heart-Shaped Box is quite good. I'm not up on who the latest luminaries are, but Ramsey Campbell and Peter Straub I remember as being consistently interesting.

On Mon, 8 Jun 2009 22:18:03 -0700, Hugh Behm-Steinberg
<[redacted]> wrote:
> Hi all,
>
> I'm working with a student this summer who's writing horror fiction, a > genre I haven't done much reading in myself. I was wondering if there are > any recommendations for essays about the genre, or recent writers I should > plunge into besides Stephen King or Clive Barker.
>
> Many thanks,
>
> Hugh Behm-Steinberg
>
>
>

>
guidelines

↑ Index

103. Maria Damon
Re: David Bromige Obituary
Tue 9 Jun 2009

---

it was a real honor to trade innuendos with the stars...xo backatcha, george of the true north

George Bowering wrote:
> And we meant every word of it, my sweet Maria D.,
>
> gb
>
>
> On Jun 6, 2009, at 5:48 PM, Maria Damon wrote:
>
>> David was brilliantly witty, and warm as well. I loved our 4-way >> banter on the list years ago (w/ Rachel Loden and George Bowering).
>> Cracked me up every time. And so lovely in person, when I met him at >> Orono. What a shining light.
>>
>>
>> Aldon Nielsen wrote:
>>> I was one of the many who enjoyed the benefit of David Bromige's >>> generosity
>>> and hospitality. I also enjoyed sharing a birthday with him --
>>> David liked >>> to get us Oct 22nd people together whenever he could -- a fine >>> company of
>>> liberal Libras . . .
>>> David was one of the finest poets I've read across the years --
>>>
>>>
>>
>
> George B.
> Indifferent to Brad Pitt
>
>

↑ Index

104. George Bowering
Re: New York in Fiction
Tue 9 Jun 2009

Odd.
I think that people in my generation think of him as a poet who took to writing interesting novels.

gb

On Jun 7, 2009, at 4:50 PM, steve russell wrote:

> & his poetry is overlooked. He's an excellent poet.
>
> --- On Fri, 6/5/09, George Bowering <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> From: George Bowering <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: New York in Fiction
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 4:35 PM
> I am surprised that no one has
> mention Sorrentino's
> The Sky Changes, etc.

"Whip" Bowering
Shortstop to the Gods

↑ Index

105. Alana Madison
Re: Horror help
Tue 9 Jun 2009

Try HP Lovecraft-- spook

A

On Tue, Jun 9, 2009 at 1:18 AM, Hugh Behm-Steinberg <[redacted]
> wrote:

> Hi all,
>
> I'm working with a student this summer who's writing horror fiction, a genre I haven't done much reading in myself. I was wondering if there are any recommendations for essays about the genre, or recent writers I should plunge into besides Stephen King or Clive Barker.

> Many thanks,
>
> Hugh Behm-Steinberg

--
http://whywouldanyonebein.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

106. { brad brace }
Twelve (illustrated) Pleated Plaid Pamphlets of Poetry Published Today before Lunch!
Tue 9 Jun 2009

---

176 - Right Road Right Relation Radish Oil
177 - Righteous Indignation Righteous Fury Rage and Despair
178 - Rage and Radishes Righteous Souls Righteous Violence 179 - Rage Born Righteousness Endureth Forever Rightly Regarded 180 - Ragged Chorus Rightly Responsible Rigid and Solemn 181 - Ragged Fringes Rigid Cheeks Rigid Definitions
182 - Ragged Gasps Rigid Digit Rigid Grins
183 - Ragged Raft Rigid Protocols Rigid Rhythm
184 - Ragged Regalia Rigidly Erect Rigor Mortis
185 - Ragged Relief Rigorous Crystallization Ring and Then Knock 186 - Ragged Remains Ring Bolt Ringed Horizon
187 - Ragged Ring Riot Shutters Ripe Moments
188 - Ragged Staring Wretch Ripe Raspberries Ripped Open

Twelve (illustrated) Pleated Plaid Pamphlets of Poetry Published Today before Lunch!

{ brad brace }

> Pleated Plaid Pamphlet
> Volumes 176-188
> [accompaniment to insatiable abstraction engine]
>
> http://bbrace.laughingsquid.net/abstraction-engine.html
> http://www.bbrace.net/abstraction-engine.html
> [redacted]

ppp176
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-176/7256790
ppp177
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-177/7256828
ppp178
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-178/7256851
ppp179
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-179/7256871
ppp180
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-180/7256887
ppp181
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-181/7256933
ppp182
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-182/7256955
ppp183
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-183/7256975
ppp184
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-184/7256990
ppp185
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-185/7257014
ppp186
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-186/7256999
ppp187
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-187/7257023
ppp188
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-188/7257037

↑ Index

107. Patrick Dillon
Re: Seeking poetry treating American occupation of Iraq
Tue 9 Jun 2009

Barrett Watten's Bad History is about the first Gulf War, so you may or may not be interested in that.

Eliot Weinberger's *What Happened Here, *especially the final piece, What I Heard about Iraq:
http://www.lrb.co.uk/v27/n03/wein01_.html

On Mon, Jun 8, 2009 at 10:58 AM, Christopher Leland Winks
<[redacted]>wrote:

> Dear Dean:

> You'll definitely want to check out Kent Johnson's collection LYRIC POETRY AFTER AUSCHWITZ, available from Effing Press.
>
> ----- Original Message -----
> From: Dean Brink <[redacted]>
> Date: Sunday, June 7, 2009 1:45 pm
> Subject: Seeking poetry treating American occupation of Iraq
> To: [redacted]
>
> Dear Poetics List,
>
> I recently rejoined the list and it is nice to be back. I am glad it is still going strong, for I have a humble request for assistance.
>
> I'm trying to assess poetry by American poets that have written on the American invasion and occupation of Iraq. It's for research purposes—I am especially interested in antiwar poetry, but if there is also pro-war poetry it would be important to know of it. As I am living in Taiwan and have scant access to small journals (of which there are hundreds) any suggestions for notable poems and essays would be greatly appreciated.
>
> An anticipatory thank you for any help.
>
> Dean Brink
>
> [redacted]/
>
> interpoetics.blogspot.com

↑ Index

108. Catherine Daly

Re: Horror help

Tue 9 Jun 2009

Patrick McGrathScott Bradfield (History of Luminous Motion, Good Girl Wants it Bad)

On Mon, Jun 8, 2009 at 10:18 PM, Hugh Behm-Steinberg <[redacted]> wrote:

> Hi all,
>
> I'm working with a student this summer who's writing horror fiction, a genre I haven't done much reading in myself. I was wondering if there are any recommendations for essays about the genre, or recent writers I should plunge into besides Stephen King or Clive Barker.
>
> Many thanks,
>
> Hugh Behm-Steinberg

--
All best,
Catherine Daly
[redacted]

↑ Index

109. Robin Hamilton
Re: Horror help
Tue 9 Jun 2009

> Try HP Lovecraft-- spook
>
> A

Before Lovecraft, Poe, and beside him Clark Ashton Smith. After him in the same tradition, Lord Dunsany.

The English novelist Colin Wilson has a couple of Lovecraft imitation/homages.

Robin Hamilton

↑ Index

110. David Kirschenbaum
Boog City 57 Print and Online PDF Editions Available
Tue 9 Jun 2009

Please forward

Hi all,

The print edition of Boog City 57 will be available Wed. night. You can read the pdf version now at:

http://welcometoboogcity.com/boogpdfs/bc57.pdf

Thanks,
David

Boog City 57

now available

featuring:

On the Cover

Our Printed Matter section,
edited by Paolo Javier

—"I was in grad school and one of my examiners was a Pulitzer Prize- winning poet … He had written a book that included a section on Robert Duncan, and he told me that Duncan had some qualities we should admire, but that Spicer was best left in the gutter." from To Know Jack: Hot and Spicer Questions for Kevin Killian, interview by Del Ray Cross

And From Our Poetry section, now edited by Joanna Fuhrman (excerpt below)

—Washington Heights' Joanna Penn Cooper with "See That Bird"

Believe me or don't, I've been a hoarder of private glees. Have forgotten my givens, the muck of my beginnings. Thought on those other beginnings. How string-haired teenagers stood around my crib harmonizing Neil Young. I'm not even kidding. There is that in my species—an algebra of voice and floating particles. Sly jokes. Feet out the car window. Minor key susurrations.

And Inside

New art editor Cora Lambert brings us work from Buchwick, Brooklyn's Nim Ben-Ruven.

And the Rest of Our Poetry section
(excerpts below)

—From France, England, Germany, South Korea, and New York City
it's the Crow Jane collective, with "Here I Will Use Establishing Shots
as We Say of Film"

If you don’t pay your exorcist
You may get repossessed

Show me a piano falling down a mineshaft
And I’ll show you A-flat miner.

and

"Covey"
Still I am swept off by the Romantics
Maybe this foreign film will set me free
How can I believe Art is business
That Painting’s been defeated by machines?

—Elmhurst, Queens' Geoffrey Cruickshank-Hagenbuckle with "Tragic Wand" for Ariana Reines

They’re tearing down the brownstones
And townhouses in New York—

“We don’t draw pictures
Of the storm,
We draw power from it.”

And From Our Music section, Urban Folk
edited by Jonathan Berger

—"I realize that it would be in the interests of our children and our children’s children if every family in America owned a copy of this album. I think riders should go forth from every town on Pridemore’s current tour to alert the next town along the way that something important is coming. The singer of these songs, the writer of these songs, has achieved something worthy of emulation, purchase and repeated listening." from On the Road 2009, with Brook Pridemore; A Brighter Light, reviewed by J.J. Hayes

—"Schwervon internalizes the sense of dread that seems to be the background noise for the entire world right now, and rebroadcast it for your listening pleasure. Low Blow is the achingly beautiful sound of the excrement slowly hitting the fan." from Couple Punk and the Orphan's Mystery; Low Blow, reviewed by Tony Rubin

—"Ever Heard the cliché about the guy wh can sing the phone book convincingly? Daniel Harnett is that guy." from In Kitchens and On Computers; Hey Richard reviewed by Jonathan Berger

—"The performers couldn’t be pinned down by style. The artists ran the gamut: one guy was very soulful, singing most of his first song a cappella; one girl sang cute melodic songs with witty lyrics; an Irishman played beautiful finger-picking accompaniment to his sad songs. The featured act played like a finger-style Woody Guthrie, singing about Memphis on the morning train." from Not an Open Mic, Exactly: A Night at the Red Lion's Bleecker St. Folk Club

—"I grew up one town west of Pontiac, Mich. but was strictly instructed not to go to Pontiac. Smart white people who weren't hooked through the bag on something stayed the hell out of Pontiac." from Exegesis Department Concerning 'Stockholm St. Syndrome' by Brook Pridemore

---

And thanks to our copy editor, Joe Bates.

Please patronize our advertisers:

Portable Press at Yo-Yo Labs * http://www.yoyolabs.com/poetry2009.html
ILOVEPEPL * http://www.ilovepepl.com/
OJ All Day Real Independent Music Festival * http://2009.ojallday.com/

Advertising or donation inquiries can be directed to
[redacted] or by calling 212-842-BOOG (2664)

Poetry Submission Guidelines: Email subs to [redacted], with no more than five poems, all in one attached file with "My Name Submission" in the subject line and as the name of the file, ie: Walt Whitman Submission. Or mail with an SASE to Poetry editor, Boog City, 330 W. 28th St., Suite 6H, N.Y., N.Y. 10001-4754.

Want to write a review (or be reviewed)
in Boog's Urban Folk music or printed matter sections?
Email UF editor Jonathan Berger, [redacted] or printed matter editor Paolo Javier, [redacted]

Want to have your work appear in our art section?
Query our art editor, Cora Lambert, [redacted]

2,250 copies of Boog City are distributed among, and available for free at, the following locations:

MANHATTAN

THE EAST VILLAGE

Anthology Film Archives
Bluestockings
Bowery Poetry Club
Cake Shop
Lakeside Lounge
Life Café
Living Room
Mission Café
Nuyorican Poets Café
Pianos
St. Mark's Books
St. Mark's Church
Sidewalk Café
Sunshine Theater
Think Coffee (Bleecker/Bowery)
Trash and Vaudeville

OTHER PARTS OF MANHATTAN

Acme Underground
Angelika Film Center and Café
Hotel Chelsea
McNally Jackson
Mercer Street Books
Other Music
Shakespeare & Co.

BROOKLYN

GREENPOINT

Champion Coffee
East Coast Aliens
Greenpoint Coffee House
Matchless
Thai Cafe

WILLIAMSBURG

Bliss Café
Earwax Records
Sideshow Gallery
Sound Fix
Spike Hill
Spoonbill & Sugartown
Supercore Café

--
David A. Kirschenbaum, editor and publisher
Boog City
330 W. 28th St., Suite 6H
NY, NY 10001-4754
For event and publication information:
http://welcometoboogcity.com/
T: (212) 842-BOOG (2664)

↑ Index

111. Laurie Schneider & Crag Hill

Re: Horror help

Tue 9 Jun 2009

Hugh:

Though he's not named as such, I'd argue Chuck Palhniuk is a contemporary master of horror (or he's a provocative tangent of that genre). That's certainly how much of his work (Haunted, Invisible Monsters, Dairy) was read by my high school students in the last decade. Many adventerous readers also liked looking back at H. P. Lovecraft.

Best, Crag
http://scorecard.typepad.com

> Hi all,
>
> I'm working with a student this summer who's writing horror fiction, a genre I haven't done much reading in myself. I was wondering if there are any recommendations for essays about the genre, or recent writers I should plunge into besides Stephen King or Clive Barker.
>
> Many thanks,
>
> Hugh Behm-Steinberg

No virus found in this incoming message.
Checked by AVG - www.avg.com
Version: 8.5.339 / Virus Database: 270.12.59/2165 - Release Date: 06/09/09 05:53:00

↑ Index

112. Rachel Loden

Re: David Bromige Obituary

Tue 9 Jun 2009

Yes, where are the innuendoes of yesteryear?

That impish, lovely man --

how we will miss him.

Rachel

Maria Damon wrote:

> it was a real honor to trade innuendos with the stars...xo backatcha,
> george of the true north
>
> George Bowering wrote:
> And we meant every word of it, my sweet Maria D.,
>
> gb
>
> On Jun 6, 2009, at 5:48 PM, Maria Damon wrote:
>
> David was brilliantly witty, and warm as well. I loved our 4-way > banter on the list years ago (w/ Rachel Loden and George > Bowering).
> Cracked me up every time. And so lovely in person, when I > met him at > Orono. What a shining light.
>
> Aldon Nielsen wrote:
> I was one of the many who enjoyed the benefit of David Bromige's
> generosity
> and hospitality. I also enjoyed sharing a birthday with him --
> David liked
> to get us Oct 22nd people together whenever he could -- a fine
> company of
> liberal Libras . . .
> David was one of the finest poets I've read across the years --
>
> George B.
> Indifferent to Brad Pitt

↑ Index

113. John Cleary
Re: Horror help
Tue 9 Jun 2009

The anthology "The Dark Descent," edited by David G. Hartwell, is comprehensive and includes useful notes on the genre's origins and variations.

On Tue, Jun 9, 2009 at 1:11 PM, Alana Madison <[redacted]>wrote:

> Try HP Lovecraft-- spook
>
> A
>
> On Tue, Jun 9, 2009 at 1:18 AM, Hugh Behm-Steinberg <
> [redacted]
> wrote:
>
> Hi all,
>
> I'm working with a student this summer who's writing horror fiction, a genre I haven't done much reading in myself. I was wondering if there are any recommendations for essays about the genre, or recent writers I should plunge into besides Stephen King or Clive Barker.
>
> Many thanks,
>
> Hugh Behm-Steinberg
>
> guidelines
>
> --
> http://whywouldanyonebein.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

114. David Kirschenbaum
Call for Work: Boog Fest's Poets' Theater
Wed 10 Jun 2009

please forward

Call for Work:

Boog City's Poets' Theater

Fri. Sept. 11, 2009

On Day 3 of the 3rd annual Welcome to Boog City Festival

Sidewalk Café
94 Avenue A
New York City

Open reading period for submissions of plays.

New playwrights encouraged, all welcome.

Pieces should be no more than 15 minutes long (under 15 pages long).

Be sure to put title, your name, address, phone, and email on cover sheet.

Deadline July 11, 2009.

email plays (as attachments) and inquiries to:

[redacted]

--
David A. Kirschenbaum, editor and publisher
Boog City
330 W. 28th St., Suite 6H
NY, NY 10001-4754
For event and publication information:
http://welcometoboogcity.com/
T: (212) 842-BOOG (2664)

↑ Index

115. taylan yildiran
Re: Horror help
Wed 10 Jun 2009

for short form I recommend Tanith Lee and Frederick Brown for the novel length later works by Thomas disch (a poet who wrote better than many masters of the genre) and john williamson (on the other side of literary respectability but dear to me any way)

--- On Tue, 6/9/09, Hugh Behm-Steinberg <[redacted]> wrote:

From: Hugh Behm-Steinberg <[redacted]>
Subject: Horror help
To: [redacted]
Date: Tuesday, June 9, 2009, 8:18 AM

Hi all,

I'm working with a student this summer who's writing horror fiction, a genre I haven't done much reading in myself. I was wondering if there are any recommendations for essays about the genre, or recent writers I should plunge into besides Stephen King or Clive Barker.

Many thanks,

Hugh Behm-Steinberg

↑ Index

116. Eiríkur Örn Norðdahl

Mind the Sound - 17th century Icelandic Sound Poetry

Wed 10 Jun 2009

Mind the Sound - an article about 17th century Icelandic Sound Poet, Ã†ri-Tobbi ("Mad-Tobbi"):
http://www.norddahl.org/english/2009/05/mind-the-sound/

--
www.norddahl.org
EirÃkur Ã–rn NorÃ°dahl
Fleminginkatu 9A 10
00530 Helsinki
Finland

↑ Index

117. Pam Brown

Re: POETICS Digest - 7 Jun 2009 to 9 Jun 2009 (#2009-131)

Wed 10 Jun 2009

> ----------
>
> Date: Sun, 7 Jun 2009 16:50:40 -0700
> From: steve russell <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: New York in Fiction

> & his poetry is overlooked. He's an excellent poet.
>
> --- On Fri, 6/5/09, George Bowering <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> From: George Bowering <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: New York in Fiction
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 4:35 PM
> I am surprised that no one has
> mention Sorrentino's
> The Sky Changes, etc.
>
> George Howard Bowering
> Born with a zinc spoon.

Dear George,

So very sorry to hear about David Bromige.
I enjoyed your banter - yours & Rachel's & Maria's on this list.

Living here not going there I never met him but I think I'd have enjoyed that privilege .

But I'm emailing to give you Jacket on this other current subject, Gilbert Sorrentino

http://jacketmagazine.com/29/index.shtml

All good wishes & condolences to friends of David B.
Pam

↑ Index

118. Al Filreis
episode #18 of PoemTalk released today: Lydia Davis
Wed 10 Jun 2009

The 18th episode of PoemTalk has been released today - a discussion of Lydia Davis's "A Position at the University" with PoemTalkers Adrian Khactu, Jessica Lowenthal, and David Grazian.

> http://www.poetryfoundation.org/journal/audioitem.html?id=1638
>
> http://www.poemtalk.org

PoemTalk is a collaboration of PennSound, the Kelly Writers House and the Poetry Foundation.

A look at selected PoemTalk episodes coming up:

#19 - Bob Perelman's childhood
#20 - Amiri Baraka's Kenyatta
#22 - Louis Zukofsky anew
#24 - Barbara Guest's rose is more than a rose
#25 - Alice Notley, patriot

Al Filreis
Kelly Professor
Faculty Dir., Kelly Writers House
Dir., Center for Programs in Contemporary Writing
University of Pennsylvania

on the web: http://writing.upenn.edu/~afilreis
blog: http://writing.upenn.edu/~afilreis/blog
PoemTalk: http://www.poemtalk.org
get your daily Al: http://bit.ly/1UCfRp

↑ Index

119. Joel Weishaus
"The Gateless Gate." New Page and a Revision
Wed 10 Jun 2009

Dear Friends and colleagues:

Pages 17-18 (revised): http://web.pdx.edu/~pdx00282/Gate/Pgs%2017-18.htm
Pages 19-20 (new): http://web.pdx.edu/~pdx00282/Gate/Pgs%2019-20.htm

Introduction: http://web.pdx.edu/~pdx00282/Gate/Intro.htm

As always, thank you to those of you who have written to me on this project.

-Joel

↑ Index

120. Jennifer Karmin
Call for Participants: Emerging Writers Fair & Book Launch
Wed 10 Jun 2009

(CHICAGO, IL)
We want to launch your book. On a catapult. We're not kidding.

If you have recently finished writing a book, or have published your first book in the past year (or just feel like taking out some aggression on a publication of your choice), we invite you to celebrate by launching your work into space--or at least halfway down the block.

In addition to the catapult book launch, we're hosting a literary science fair so that you can receive proper admiration for your writing. Now is your chance to explain to the world what's so special about your fiction, poetry, non-fiction...by means of a diorama, poster, or tri-fold board. Baking soda volcanoes are welcome, colorful graphs encouraged.

Because space is limited, if you'd like to participate in the literary science fair, we'll need a short proposal for any table-top display, due by 15 June. (We'll squeeze in as many as we can, but space will be available on a first-come, first-served basis.)

OUT OF TOWN WRITERS are encouraged to submit posters, rather than moping at home all night on Facebook. Note that we have near-unlimited room for wall poster displays.

The Logistics:

10 July 2009, 7â€“10pm
Emerging Writers Fair + Book Launch (an official Printers' Ball lead-up event)
http://www.printersball.org

Featuring the dazzling debut of the Chicago Underground Library's Public Donation Boxes!
+ Music! A Raffle! Prizes!
http://underground-library.org

At the Jupiter Outpost (1139 W. Fulton Market, Chicago)
Food and drink will be available for sale
+ you should feel free to BYOB

Best of All: It's Free!
Tell all of your friends!

Contacts:
A D Jameson <[redacted]>
Nell Taylor <[redacted]>

↑ Index

121. CA Conrad
sol stice 888
Wed 10 Jun 2009

...hope you can make this! ADVANCED ELVIS COURSE (Soft Skull Press) is finally out, after a lot of hard work on the part of a lot of very talented, amazing people! I'M VERY EXCITED!

The release party for ADVANCED ELVIS COURSE
http://ADVANCEDElvis.blogspot.com
NEW REVIEW in The Brooklyn Rail:
http://www.brooklynrail.org/2009/06/books/poetry-the-king-lives-long-live-the-king

friday, JUNE 19TH, 6pm
IN BEAUTIFUL DOWNTOWN PHILLY
MOONSTONE Arts Center
110A S. 13th Street
(on 13th between Chestnut and Sansom)
(right next door to the old Robin's Bookshop location)

HEATHER RAQUEL PHILLIPS took the photograph of CAConrad worshipping the giant blue E in the Elvis book, and she will have prints for sale, including prints of Elvis impersonators she has taken over the years.

(ELVIS)(888)(SOLSTICE)(888)(ELVIS)

You've heard of Summer Solstice, but this June 19th is ELVIS SOLSTICE!

ALL THIS FUN AND MORE INCLUDING PEANUT BUTTER BANANA SANDWICHES!

--
PhillySound: new poetry http://PhillySound.blogspot.com

THE BOOK OF FRANK by CAConrad http://CAConrad.blogspot.com

↑ Index

122. Maria Damon
Re: David Bromige Obituary
Wed 10 Jun 2009

---

impish, yes, that's it.
handsome, witty, creative, the whole package!
is that innuendo enough?
yes, he will be missed, but he is in our hearts forever. cloying banalities, but too true.

Rachel Loden wrote:
> Yes, where are the innuendoes of yesteryear?
>
> That impish, lovely man --
>
> how we will miss him.
>

> Rachel
>
> Maria Damon wrote:
>
>
>> it was a real honor to trade innuendos with the stars...xo backatcha, >> george of the true north
>>
>> George Bowering wrote:
>>
>>> And we meant every word of it, my sweet Maria D.,
>>>
>>> gb
>>>
>>>
>>> On Jun 6, 2009, at 5:48 PM, Maria Damon wrote:
>>>
>>>
>>>> David was brilliantly witty, and warm as well. I loved our 4-way >>>> banter on the list years ago (w/ Rachel Loden and George >> Bowering).
>>>>
>>
>>>> Cracked me up every time. And so lovely in person, when I
>>>>
>> met him at
>>
>>>> Orono. What a shining light.
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> Aldon Nielsen wrote:
>>>>
>>>>> I was one of the many who enjoyed the benefit of David Bromige's
>>>>> generosity
>>>>> and hospitality. I also enjoyed sharing a birthday with him --
>>>>> David liked
>>>>> to get us Oct 22nd people together whenever he could -- a fine
>>>>> company of
>>>>> liberal Libras . . .
>>>>> David was one of the finest poets I've read across the years --
>>>>>
>>>>>

>>>>>
>>>>
>>
>>> George B.
>>> Indifferent to Brad Pitt
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>
>>
>>
>
>

↑ Index

123. c. s. giscombe
Re: Horror help
Wed 10 Jun 2009

I'd recommend two of Richard Matheson's books, The Shrinking Man (aka The Incredible Shrinking Man) and, especially, I Am Legend. The latter's been the basis for three bad films, most recently Will Smith's. The books are both very good. Anne Rice's first vampire book, Interview with the Vampire, is also a very good novel; the second, The Vampire Lestat, is passable, much less rich. I wouldn't recommend the third and that's the place where I stopped reading the series. I read Stephen King's novel in the 70s and 80s and recall that his best book, at least from that time, is Cujo. I've been meaning to follow up on Peter Fleming's work after coming across his lycanthrope story, "The Kill," in an anthology some years ago. Good luck with the student.

_____

C. S. Giscombe

[redacted]

telephone: [redacted]

> On Tue, Jun 9, 2009 at 1:18 AM, Hugh Behm-Steinberg <
> [redacted]
> wrote:
>
> Hi all,
>
> I'm working with a student this summer who's writing horror fiction, a > genre I haven't done much reading in myself. I was wondering if there are > any recommendations for essays about the genre, or recent writers I should > plunge into besides Stephen King or Clive Barker.

>
> Many thanks,
>
> Hugh Behm-Steinberg
>
> guidelines
>
> --
> http://whywouldanyonebein.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

124. Alison Croggon
Re: Horror help
Wed 10 Jun 2009

The classiest horror story I've read recently is by (brilliant) British young adult author David Almond: a novel called Clay. Genuinely chilling devil's child story.

xA

On Wed, Jun 10, 2009 at 5:00 PM, taylan yildiran<[redacted]> wrote:
> for short form I recommend Tanith Lee and Frederick Brown for the novel length later works by Thomas disch (a poet who wrote better than many masters of the genre) and john williamson (on the other side of literary respectability but dear to me any way)
>
> --- On Tue, 6/9/09, Hugh Behm-Steinberg <[redacted]> wrote:
>
>
> From: Hugh Behm-Steinberg <[redacted]>
> Subject: Horror help
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Tuesday, June 9, 2009, 8:18 AM

>
>
> Hi all,
>
> I'm working with a student this summer who's writing horror fiction, a genre I haven't done much reading in myself. I was wondering if there are any recommendations for essays about the genre, or recent writers I should plunge into besides Stephen King or Clive Barker.
>
> Many thanks,
>
> Hugh Behm-Steinberg
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

--
Editor, Masthead: http://www.masthead.net.au
Blog: http://theatrenotes.blogspot.com
Home page: http://www.alisoncroggon.com

↑ Index

125. Alan Sondheim
Talking points (OCAD talk)
Wed 10 Jun 2009

Talking points (OCAD talk)

1. The virtual and real are united by inscription: inscription is a form of mark.

2. The body is always already inscribed.

3. A 'metric' is associated with every phenomenology - a certain _tenor_ of behavior, style of inscription.

4. The 'metric' sets forth 'geodesics,' paths of least resistance; it's easiest to construct along them - in which case what might be considered 'corporate style' dominates.

5. There is always the possibility of the cheat, kludge, or hack:
a. Cheat: something appearing as more or less than it is, something 'magical.'
b. Kludge: making do, using available tech: the clumsy.
c. Hack: beneath the surface, something doing something it wasn't 'intended' to do. Along this line: reality was intended to _do nothing_ of course.

6. Inscription is information; the more information, the less entropy. Information is of various sorts: a. Autonomous: Information within event horizons (black holes, universes). b. Intended: Information created by _agency_ - in which case one might speak of residue and parasitism. c. Unintended: residue or trace.

7. In my work I want to make a mess, something apparently disordered, something _abject._
a. Abject because impossible to disentangle.
b. The world is deeply entangled.
c. Outside of narrative, the world is _inherently_ entangled.
d. Through reduction, narrative tries to make sense of the world.
e. Through expansion, non-narratives inhabit it, i.e. are _equivalent_ 'one way or another.'

8. Intended or interpreted information: Information is a way of looking at the world; in-formation characterizes the world. The body looks at the world which is of and not of the body; the world is therefore abject, debris - almost, but not quite escaping. What escapes is articulated by mathesis; mathesis is our window on the existent. Mathesis grasps everything and nothing; an equation cannot _directly_ move an object, but describes its structure to the extent that its structure is nothing. Mathesis is what lies beyond the reach of the _gesture._

9. The ontology of mathesis is neither real nor virtual: Mathematics, in other words, is elsewhere.

10 The more the universe is 'comprehended' in terms of fundamental characteristics, the greater the mathesis required.

11. Eventually mathesis dominates and the use of 'proper models' falls by the wayside.

12. The question: 'How are we' within the alien - i.e. within a knowledge that we occur, inhabit, the alien?

↑ Index

126. Roy Exley

Roy Exley - Re: Horror help

Thu 11 Jun 2009

Hi Catharine,

According to my research, 'The History of Luminous Motion'(Knopf) & 'Good Girl Wants it Bad', are written by Scott Bradfield and not Patrick Mc Grath Scott as per your message. Hope this helps.

Regards,

Roy Exley.

On 9/6/09 7:38 pm, "Catherine Daly" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Patrick McGrathScott Bradfield (History of Luminous Motion, Good Girl Wants it Bad)
>
> On Mon, Jun 8, 2009 at 10:18 PM, Hugh Behm-Steinberg <
> [redacted]> wrote:
>
> Hi all,
>
> I'm working with a student this summer who's writing horror fiction, a genre I haven't done much reading in myself. I was wondering if there are any recommendations for essays about the genre, or recent writers I should plunge into besides Stephen King or Clive Barker.
>
> Many thanks,
>
> Hugh Behm-Steinberg

↑ Index

127. Bibby, Michael

Re: Seeking poetry treating American occupation of Iraq

Thu 11 Jun 2009

Dean:

I highly recommend Brian Turner's _Here, Bullet_. Turner served in the infantry during the war. We had Turner give a reading here a few years ago, and he was great.

There is also, of course, the Sam Hamill collection, _Poets Against the War_, which contains a fairly wide range of responses. In addition various collections were produced as resistance geared up in 2003. The online journal nthposition (www.nthposition.com<http://www.nthposition.com/>) produced 3 different PDF-only e-books anthologizing antiwar poetry: _100 Poets Against the War_, _100 Poets Against the War Redux_, and _100 Poets Against the War 3.0_. If you can't find these online, b/c me and I can send them to you.

You might also want to browse the archives of Poetics-L: I remember a flurry of writings coming out of the list as the war erupted--lots of exchanges about what poets could do, and many poets communicating with each other about their newly published or performed antiwar works. In addition, several antiwar poetry websites were constructed in response to the war. Most seem to be dead now, but some still exist. I have the links in my office PC, so if you'd like these, just b/c me.

Michael Bibby
Professor, Dept. of English
Shippensburg University
[redacted]

↑ Index

128. mIEKAL aND
X E R O L A G E 4 2: A Catalogue of Rare Movements by Monica McFawn & Curtis A. Rhodes
Thu 11 Jun 2009

- - - - - - - - - - - - - - -
X E R O L A G E 4 2
- - - - - - - - - - - - - - -

A Catalogue of Rare Movements by Monica McFawn & Curtis A. Rhodes

from the introduction:

Making art is hard. The empty page or canvas seems limitless and glorious, one of the few places where anything can happen. But the moment a word is written or a mark made, what can happen is suddenly—violently—limited. A line is a barrier, and words silence all other words that could have been said. To commit to a course of action in art is, paradoxically, to commit to not-doing the infinite anything else. Making art is the bold relinquishing of possibility.

In the larger world of art, every art movement is a theory of how to get free—how to get free of the influence of earlier artists, how to get free of public expectation, and how to get free of the limitations of what one has already done. In the insular world of this Catalogue, each of our art movements likewise describes how a drawing tried to transcend itself. The following work is an example of what can happen within, or as a result of, narrow constraints. Each drawing was created using a strict set of rules: they were collaboratively drawn with the same pens, using a postcard-sized rectangle as a starting point. The box is the first limitation, the other person's contribution another.

Within this insular process, the subtitles, deviations, and variations took on particular import. A Catalogue of Rare Movements depicts twenty-four art movements that flourished and flared out in this tight space of possibility. Xerolage 42- Monica McFawn & Curtis A. RhodesEach drawing itself became a theory of art, rising up and burning out within the course of its creation. But by the time each art movement was identified, it was already obsolete, and only another drawing could get us free of it.

more at:

http://xexoxial.org/is/xerolage42/by/monica_mcfawn_and_curtis-a-rhodes

The primary investigation of Xerolage is how collage technique of 20th century art, typography, computer graphics, visual & concrete poetry movements & the art of the copier have been combined. Each issue is devoted to the work of one artist (or set of collaborators).

24 pages, 8.5 x 11, $6 includes postage
Subscriptions: 4 issues/$20

XEXOXIAL EDITIONS
10375 Cty Hway Alphabet
La Farge WI 54639

↑ Index

129. mIEKAL aND
Xerolage 43—Grapyrus by Matina L. Stamatakis
Thu 11 Jun 2009

- - - - - - - - - - - - - - -
X E R O L A G E 4 3
- - - - - - - - - - - - - - -

Xerolage 43—Grapyrus by Matina L. Stamatakis

Matina Stamatakis has "arrived" even if the rest of the world has been too slow to realize it. Her newest "art/non" textscape is a veritable plum pudding of ruthless extravagance, a cryptological scherzo written in "sanscript", so to speak. Teasing out texture from text, this most recent offering from the Xerolage series has a haunting aspect that unites papyri and the phantom after-effects of words in constant stochastic exile. In essence, Stamatakis "writes" perpetually double, the reflection upon a surface of "lin/geist" that judders with an ekphrastic motion of the cinematic or photographic double-take.

—Kane X. Faucher

Tombstones and footprints, prehistoric imperial Chinese silk distressed and preserved in airtight tombs, Sapphic papyrus scrolls used as winding sheets for the human dead: languaged shapes (letters, glyphs, cuneiform, runes) layer each other on multidimensional, neonic, poly-textural surfaces that glow through the eras, aeons and ages. Evocative of sound, syntax and melismatic intuition, these works are endlessly resonant through time, space, and mind, expanding them all.

—Maria Damon

In Matina Stamatakis' Grapyrus, an utterly fresh light unveils antiquities. Under the cold glare of the photocopier's bulb new thoughts are seared onto the richly textured venerability of the page. Here is a vibrantly dark art that does not merely mimic or ape antediluvian roots, but consciously honors and revises them, relentlessly refreshing deep-seeded threads of thought. Flourishing gestures of contemporary graffiti no longer deface or elide, but honor; the visually brutalizing process of Xeroxing accentuates, antiques. Xerolage 43-Matina StamatakisHere papyrus and spray paint conspire to create a Rosetta stone for the hermetic communiqués scribbled on bathroom walls. The "reader" wanders through a nonexistent city, inexplicably entranced by the tattered posters pasted to crumbling edifices, and couldn't be happier to be so utterly lost.

—John Moore Williams

more at:

http://xexoxial.org/is/xerolage43/by/matina-l-stamatakis

The primary investigation of Xerolage is how collage technique of 20th century art, typography, computer graphics, visual & concrete poetry movements & the art of the copier have been combined. Each issue is devoted to the work of one artist.

24 pages, 8.5 x 11, $6 includes postage
Subscriptions: 4 issues/$20

XEXOXIAL EDITIONS
10375 Cty Hway Alphabet
La Farge WI 54639

↑ Index

130. Spineless Books

Seeking poetry treating American occupation of Iraq

Thu 11 Jun 2009

---

http://spinelessbooks.com/newspoetry/

There's plenty of anti-war poetry here, from the continued military harassment of Iraq under Clinton through the present.

Here's one example:
http://spinelessbooks.com/newspoetry/2003/030914.html

In case it has gone unmentioned, check out Rob Halpern's Disaster Suite.

William

↑ Index

131. Paul Siegell

poem on youtube

Thu 11 Jun 2009

---

friends,

how's it going? i've just created a youtube out of a poem of mine. if you have a moment: http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=m_fPyqTuwe0 whaddaya think?

also, a new review of Poemergency Room:
http://www.amazon.com/review/R2VIOFKAJILQBI/ref=cm_cr_rdp_perm thanks for taking a look,

paul>
http://paulsiegell.blogspot.com/

HEADS UP/COMING SOON: jambandbootleg

↑ Index

132. steve russell

"The end is the beginning." Harold Norse, dies at 92.

Thu 11 Jun 2009

links at the bottom: from theÂ Beat museum home page.
****

We recently received word that Harold Norse passed away on Monday.Â He was 92.Â

The Beat Museum will be hosting a Memorial forHarold on Sunday, July 12th, time TBA

From the Beat Museum: "In 1951, Norse's talent was recognized by William Carlos Williams, who invited him to read at the Museum of Modern Art in early 1952. Williams remarked on Norse's ability to "use the direct image on its own," and became an important mentor to Harold. Williams would later call Norse "the best poet of his generation," a profound accolade considering Williams was mentor to such figures as Charles Olson, Denise Levertov, and Allen Ginsberg. Following the 1953 publication of his first book of poetry, The Undersea Mountain, which was reviewed in The New York Times and Poetry magazine, Norse left America for Italy.

In 1957, Norse was nearly deported from Italy when the Italian government deemed his poem "Victor Emmanuel Monument (Rome)," political fodder for the Communists.

Norse moved to Paris in 1960, on a tip from Williams, and at the Beat Hotel he met Allen Ginsberg, Gregory Corso, William S. Burroughs, Brion Gysin, and others, drawn by their interest in Buddhist meditation, which Norse had recently taken up. Using the cut-up technique devised by Gysin and Burroughs, Norse wrote his experimental novel, Beat Hotel. Originally titled Sniffing Keyholes, the first chapterâ€”which he describes as "a sex/dope scene between a muscular black youth called Melo and a blond Russian princess called Z.Z."â€” made even the often stoic Burroughs laugh. During his time at the Beat Hotel, Norse began creating his 'random paintings' or Cosmographs (using the hotel's bidet).

Norse returned to America in 1969, and with Carnivorous Saint: Gay Poems 1941-1976 became a leading gay liberation poet. For the last 35 years he has lived in San Franciscoâ€™s Mission District."

Some Friends Have Created a Memorial Website
http://haroldnorse.com/

Harold Norse Biography
http://www.beatmuseum.org/norse/haroldnorse.html

Details of Harold's Last Hours
http://www.corpse.org/index.php?
option=com_content&task=view&id=402&Itemid=39

His last words were:
"The End is the Beginning"

--
The following information is a reminder of your current mailing list subscription:

You are subscribed to the following list:
Â Â Â kerouac.com
Â Â Â
using the following email:
Â Â Â [redacted]

You may automatically unsubscribe from this list at any time by visiting the following URL:

<http://www.kerouac.com/cgi-local/dada/mail.cgi/u/kerouac/>

If the above URL is inoperable, make sure that you have copied the entire address. Some mail readers will wrap a long URL and thus break this automatic unsubscribe mechanism.

You may also change your subscription by visiting this list's main screen:

<http://www.kerouac.com/cgi-local/dada/mail.cgi/list/kerouac>

If you're still having trouble, please contact the list owner at:

Â Â Â <mailto:[redacted]>

The following physical address is associated with this mailing list:

The Beat Museum
540 Broadway (at Columbus)
San Francisco, CA 94133
1-800-KER-OUAC
http://www.kerouac.com
http://www.thebeatmuseumonwheels.com
ReplyReply AllMove...13 tier bad poems best_poems_top_tierCatholic Charitiescool site_spiritual_...cool sitesDC_CATERING_1dog_33_depression_ch...literary termsmostly good poemsno images here_1Play about lunatic p...poetics_new_stuffpoetics_Simone_Weilshort_Cid Corman_hai...theatreuntitledwww.cater.expertwww.caterxpert.comGo to Previous message | Go to Next message | Back to Messages

Select Message EncodingASCII (ASCII)Greek (ISO-8859-7)Greek (Windows-1253)Latin-10 (ISO-8859-16)Latin-3 (ISO-8859-3)Latin-6 (ISO-8859-10)Latin-7 (ISO-8859-13)Latin-8 (ISO-8859-14)Latin-9 (ISO-8859-15)W. European (850)W. European (CP858)W. European (HPROMAN8)W. European (MACROMAN8)W. European (Windows-1252)Armenia (ARMSCII-8)Baltic Rim (ISO-8859-4)Baltic Rim (WINDOWS-1257)Cyrillic (866)Cyrillic (ISO-8859-5)Cyrillic (KOI8-R)Cyrillic (KOI8-RU)Cyrillic (KOI8-T)Cyrillic (KOI8-U)Cyrillic (WINDOWS-1251)Latin-2 (852)Latin-2 (ISO-8859-2)Latin-2 (WINDOWS-1250)Turkish (ISO-8859-9)Turkish (WINDOWS-1254)Arabic (ISO-8859-6, ASMO-708)Arabic (WINDOWS-1256)Hebrew (856)Hebrew (862)Hebrew (WINDOWS-1255)Chinese Simplified (GB-2312-80)Chinese Simplified (GB18030)Chinese Simplified (HZ-GB-2312)Chinese Simplified (ISO-2022-CN)Chinese Simplified (WINDOWS-936)Chinese Trad.-Hong Kong (BIG5-HKSCS)Chinese Traditional (BIG5)Chinese Traditional (EUC-TW)Japanese (SHIFT_JIS)Japanese (EUC-JP)Japanese (ISO-2022-JP)Korean (ISO-2022-KR)Korean (EUC-KR)Thai (TIS-[redacted])Thai (WINDOWS-874)Vietnamese (TCVN-5712)Vietnamese (VISCII)Vietnamese (WINDOWS-1258)Unicode (UTF-7)Unicode (UTF-8)Unicode (UTF-16)Unicode (UTF-32)|Â Full Headers gLaunchProfile.start('RT_GB');

Search Mail

Search the Web

gLaunchProfile.stop('RT_GB', false);#yui-main { background-color:#D6DEEC }gLaunchProfile.stop('RT_RP', false);gLaunchProfile.start('RT_BP');gLaunchProfile.start('LD_JS_BP');YAHOO.mc.intl = "us";YAHOO.mc.IM_TOGGLE_STRINGS = {"im_settings_helpurl" : "http://help.yahoo.com/l/us/yahoo/mail/classic/chat/","im_settings_help_toggle" : "1","im_enable_mobile_l10n": "1","im_sign_in": "true","im_time_format_am" : "AM","im_time_format_pm" : "PM","im_date_time_format" : "{d}/{M}/{yy} {h}:{mm} {A}"};if (YAHOO.mc.page.generic) {YAHOO.mc.page.generic.initComposeMenu();}YAHOO.mc.page.TriggerULT=true;YAHOO.util.Event.onDOMReady(function () {sessionMgr.initSession();sessionMgr.loadFromBookmarks();});var adPrefetch = true;if (document.getElementById("JSMailOptionsLink")) {document.getElementById("JSMailOptionsLink").href = optionObj["JSMailOptionsLink"];}if (document.getElementById("chk_pop_options") || document.getElementById("chk_pop_error") || document.getElementById("option_bad_folder") || document.getElementById("folders_options_spam") || document.getElementById("folders_options_sent") || document.getElementById("spam_edit_options")) {YAHOO.util.Event.addListener(YAHOO.mc.optionsID, "click", displayOptions, optionObj);}YAHOO.namespace("fcue");

YAHOO.mc.FCUE_METADATA = {imInit:"1",imSent:"",fcElap:"1244686675938",fcEcap:"2",fcNag:"",inEcap:"",inElap:"1244691976744"};YAHOO.mc.noCues = false;YAHOO.mc.msgrLoaded = false;YAHOO.mc.loadMsgr = function () {clearTimeout(YAHOO.mc.msgrLoadID);if (hasIM && ! YAHOO.mc.msgrLoaded) {YAHOO.mc.msgrLoaded = true;YAHOO.util.Get.script("http://mail.yimg.com/d/combo?/mg/5_4_12/js/im_blue_all.js&/mg/5_4_12/js/us_strings.js&/mg/5_4_12/js/msgr.js");}};YAHOO.util.Event.on(window, "load", YAHOO.mc.loadMsgr);YAHOO.mc.msgrLoadID = setTimeout(YAHOO.mc.loadMsgr, 5000);gLaunchProfile.stop('LD_JS_BP', false);resizeLeftPane();gLaunchProfile.start('RT_AD_FOOT');Â

↑ Index

133. kiviok kiviok

Re: Call for creative submissions July 1--Tulsa/NY School Conference Nov 5-7

Thu 11 Jun 2009

Thanks, Carrie.

Tony Leuzzi

The new issues look great!

Thanks, Carrie.

Tony Leuzzi

_____
From: Grant Jenkins <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, June 9, 2009 11:50:51 AM
Subject: Call for creative submissions July 1--Tulsa/NY School Conference Nov 5-7

Call for Creative Presentations
the Â³Tulsa SchoolÂ²
Conference at the University of Tulsa
Tulsa, Oklahoma, November 5-7 2009

Readings by: RON PADGETT, DICK GALLUP,
Alice Notley, Robert Harris, Anselm Berrigan, and Edmund Berrigan

Creative works inspired by what John Ashbery once nicknamed the Â³soi-disant Tulsa School,Â² are being solicited for panel readings. Considered part of the New York School of artists and writers, the Tulsa School included Ted Berrigan, Ron Padgett, Joe Brainard, and Dick Gallupâ€¹who met in Tulsa and later moved to New York City in the early 1960s . Presentations may include but are not limited to the following:

â‚¬ Current writing inspired by New York School art and poetry â‚¬ Visual art
â‚¬ Poetry
â‚¬ Experimental prose â‚¬ Digital media
â‚¬ Creative non-fiction

Cover letter and 3-4 pages of writing by July 1, 2009 via email to
<[redacted]>

The conference will include keynote addresses, plenary sessions, concurrent panels, an exhibit from TUÂ¹s Special Collections, a Tulsa School Bus Tour of town, and more.

PLEASE FORWARD

↑ Index

134. Sarah Rosenthal
Launching Manhatten
Fri 12 Jun 2009

Hi all,
Â
MyÂ book ManhattenÂ is just outÂ and Iâ€™m celebrating with a launch:Â
Â
Friday June 26, 7:30pm, Canessa Park Gallery, 708 Montgomery (x Washington) in San Francisco.

Reading with me from Manhatten will be poets Dana Teen Lomax, Erin Wilson, Jono Schneider, Andrew Felsinger, and Lauren Schiffman. Bay Area musician Steve Musial will perform on classical guitar. Wine, tea, other non-alc bevs, and desserts will be served.

Parking in the immediate vicinity is usually findable; here's a garage just in case: http://www.sfpsg.com/directions.php

Gallery website: (http://www.canessa.org/)

Map: http://www.mapquest.com/maps?city=San+Francisco&state=CA&address=708+Montgomery

If you canâ€™t make the event but wish to check out the book, you can visit http://spdbooks.orgÂ (also available at Amazon).
Â
From the jacket:

This is not the mythic Manhattan of bright lights and glitz. It is called Manhatten and it is wonderfully out of kilter. In this mixed-genre book (fiction, poetry, review), Sarah Rosenthal layers headlong, voice-driven prose with silent, otherly poems to tell a story of an island where relationships are disturbed yet meaningful and luminous. --Juliana Spahr

Proudly misspelled, Manhatten chronicles the adventures of a young woman as she searches for her life story in the ultimate American metropolis. The heroine--who may or may not be author Sarah Rosenthal--leads the reader into one scene after another filled with family, friends, chance acquaintances, exes, and current love interests, where relationships and geography intertwine and memories collect on every street corner. As keen and insistent as the city it describes, this writing attains a clarity fueled by hunger for insight and language's tonal responsiveness. Spanning two coasts, leaping whole decades in a single clause, Manhatten documents the rush of events and the meditative spaces between, negotiating a life complete with all its enchantments, illusions, intersections, and collisions. --Pamela Lu

I like Sarah Rosenthal's Manhatten because it's generous with self. Also alarmingly well written. And best of all, Manhatten awkwardly and beautifully makes the claim that heterosexuals are human too! --Eileen Myles

Thanks,
Sarah
Â

↑ Index

135. Lars Palm
Ed Baker's Hexapoems II & Song of Chin
Fri 12 Jun 2009

Dear all,

ungovernable press continues its wave of activity. Today it brings me great pleasure to announce two new books by Ed Baker

Hexapoems II

&

Song of Chin (part I,II) cheers,

lars

http://ungovernablepress.weebly.com
http://mischievoice.blogspot.com

↑ Index

136. George Bowering
Re: David Bromige Obituary
Fri 12 Jun 2009

Could you really be impish with that nose?

I miss it and the straw hat just above it.

gb

On Jun 10, 2009, at 2:31 PM, Maria Damon wrote:

> impish, yes, that's it.
> handsome, witty, creative, the whole package!
> is that innuendo enough?
> yes, he will be missed, but he is in our hearts forever. cloying > banalities, but too true.
>
> Rachel Loden wrote:
> Yes, where are the innuendoes of yesteryear?
>
> That impish, lovely man --
>
> how we will miss him.
>
> Rachel
>
> Maria Damon wrote:
>
> it was a real honor to trade innuendos with the stars...xo
> backatcha, george of the true north
>
> George Bowering wrote:
>
> And we meant every word of it, my sweet Maria D.,
>
> gb
>
> On Jun 6, 2009, at 5:48 PM, Maria Damon wrote:

> David was brilliantly witty, and warm as well. I loved our 4-way banter on the list years ago (w/ Rachel Loden and George Bowering).
> Cracked me up every time. And so lovely in person, when I met him at > Orono. What a shining light.
>
> Aldon Nielsen wrote:
>
> I was one of the many who enjoyed the benefit of David Bromige's generosity > and hospitality. I also enjoyed sharing a birthday with him -- David liked > to get us Oct 22nd people together whenever he could -- a fine company of
> liberal Libras . . .
> David was one of the finest poets I've read across the years --
>
> George B.
> Indifferent to Brad Pitt
>
> welcome.html
>
> welcome.html
>
> welcome.html

George Harry Bowering,
Never got his share.

↑ Index

137. Mark Weiss
Re: Horror help
Fri 12 Jun 2009

Nobody's mentioned Frankenstein or Dracula. The latter tends to get short shrift as literature, but it's very fine, very perverse.

At 06:31 PM 6/10/2009, you wrote:
>I'd recommend two of Richard Matheson's books, The Shrinking Man >(aka The Incredible Shrinking Man) and, especially, I Am >Legend. The latter's been the basis for three bad films, most >recently Will Smith's. The books are both very good.
>Anne Rice's first vampire book, Interview with the Vampire, is also >a very good novel; the second, The Vampire Lestat, is passable, much >less rich. I wouldn't recommend the third and that's the place >where I stopped reading the series.
>I read Stephen King's novel in the 70s and 80s and recall that his >best book, at least from that time, is Cujo.
>I've been meaning to follow up on Peter Fleming's work after coming >across his lycanthrope story, "The Kill," in an anthology some years ago.
>Good luck with the student.
>
>_____
>C. S. Giscombe
>[redacted]
>telephone: [redacted]
>
> >
> > On Tue, Jun 9, 2009 at 1:18 AM, Hugh Behm-Steinberg <
> > [redacted]
> > > wrote:
> >
> > > Hi all,
> > >
> > > I'm working with a student this summer who's writing horror fiction, a > > > genre I haven't done much reading in myself. I was wondering if there > > are > > > any recommendations for essays about the genre, or recent writers I > > should > > > plunge into besides Stephen King or Clive Barker.
> > >
> > > Many thanks,
> > >
> > > Hugh Behm-Steinberg
> > >
> > >
> > >
> > >
> > guidelines

> > >
> > >
> >
> >
> > --
> > http://whywouldanyonebein.blogspot.com/
> >
> >
>
>

↑ Index

138. Jeff Hansen
Reading
Fri 12 Jun 2009

I just published a novel with Blazevox, And Beefheart Saved Craig. It is full of typographical experimentation. I am going on a reading tour from Minneapolis to Rhode Island during the last week of July and the second week of Aug. If anyone could help me set up a reading in either a public or private space, I would appreciate it.

If I read in a private place, I will sell books for wholesale: $4.

↑ Index

139. Taylor Brady
Re: Horror help
Fri 12 Jun 2009

China Miéville, King Rat.

Have been greatly enjoying his fantasy/sf work of late, as well. The Scar, in particular, is a like a fantastic re-setting of Linebaugh and Rediker's books on piracy, slavery, and Atlantic maritime capitalism.

Taylor

On Jun 10, 2009, at 3:31 PM, c. s. giscombe wrote:

> I'd recommend two of Richard Matheson's books, The Shrinking Man (aka The Incredible Shrinking Man) and, especially, I Am Legend. The latter's been the basis for three bad films, most recently Will Smith's. The books are both very good.
> Anne Rice's first vampire book, Interview with the Vampire, is also a very good novel; the second, The Vampire Lestat, is passable, much less rich. I wouldn't recommend the third and that's the place where I stopped reading the series.

I read Stephen King's novel in the 70s and 80s and recall that his best book, at least from that time, is Cujo.
I've been meaning to follow up on Peter Fleming's work after coming across his lycanthrope story, "The Kill," in an anthology some years ago.
Good luck with the student.

C. S. Giscombe

[redacted]

telephone: [redacted]

On Tue, Jun 9, 2009 at 1:18 AM, Hugh Behm-Steinberg <
[redacted]
wrote:

Hi all,

I'm working with a student this summer who's writing horror fiction, a genre I haven't done much reading in myself. I was wondering if there are any recommendations for essays about the genre, or recent writers I should plunge into besides Stephen King or Clive Barker.

Many thanks,

Hugh Behm-Steinberg

guidelines

> --
> http://whywouldanyonebein.blogspot.com/
>
> guidelines
>
> welcome.html
>
> welcome.html

↑ Index

140. Hugh Behm-Steinberg
Re: Horror help
Fri 12 Jun 2009

Hi all,

Many thanks for all the suggestions! If I could narrow things down a little more, I'm particularly looking for Horror writing from African American/Canadian writers. There's some Octavia Butler and Nalo Hopkinson I plan to show my student, but other leads would be most welcome.

Thanks,

Hugh Behm-Steinberg

_____
From: Alison Croggon <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, June 10, 2009 4:33:49 PM
Subject: Re: Horror help

The classiest horror story I've read recently is by (brilliant) British young adult author David Almond: a novel called Clay. Genuinely chilling devil's child story.

xA

On Wed, Jun 10, 2009 at 5:00 PM, taylan yildiran<[redacted]> wrote:
> for short form I recommend Tanith Lee and Frederick Brown for the novel length later works by Thomas disch (a poet who wrote better than many masters of the genre) and john williamson (on the other side of literary respectability but dear to me any way)
>
> --- On Tue, 6/9/09, Hugh Behm-Steinberg <[redacted]> wrote:
>

>
> From: Hugh Behm-Steinberg <[redacted]>
> Subject: Horror help
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Tuesday, June 9, 2009, 8:18 AM
>
>
> Hi all,
>
> I'm working with a student this summer who's writing horror fiction, a genre I haven't done much reading in myself. I was wondering if there are any recommendations for essays about the genre, or recent writers I should plunge into besides Stephen King or Clive Barker.
>
> Many thanks,
>
> Hugh Behm-Steinberg
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

--
Editor, Masthead: http://www.masthead.net.au
Blog: http://theatrenotes.blogspot.com
Home page: http://www.alisoncroggon.com

↑ Index

141. Mark Young

Now out from Otoliths—A SCRIPT, Joel Chace's new chapbook

Fri 12 Jun 2009

"Joel Chace's reading at Robins Books May 19 makes me want to look at his linebreaks again," wrote Ron Silliman in a footnote to a recent post to his blog. This new chapbook provides the perfect opportunity.

A SCRIPT
Joel Chace
24 pages
Cover photo by Michael Aanji Crowley
Otoliths 2009
ISBN: 978-0-9806025-3-1
$8.25 + p&h
Direct URL: http://www.lulu.com/content/paperback-book/a-script/7226173

Joel Chace's A Script cons our part: part Asbergian stutter, part zen enlightenment, words and white spaces carefully/randomly placed pace us through a spectrum of verbal light, asking if there is a difference between self and other, background and text. These experiments of space and the phrase and word range over nature, food, and communication, invoking Inca and Silliman both, "speaking that other language again ... yield itself each sentence." —Larissa Shmailo

I like what Joel Chace does with the topology of the line, the way he shows how far it can be stretched while still maintaining its integrity. And I like how in doing so he takes the plainest words—especially everyday nouns like work, linen, world, office, desk, ceiling—and makes them oddly visible in the poem's raking light: "words / tiny far but clear" indeed. —Barry Schwabsky

The full Otoliths catalogue can be found at http://stores.lulu.com/l_m_young

↑ Index

142. Jennifer Karmin
Calling IL: protest state budget cuts
Fri 12 Jun 2009

READ OUT to protest budget cuts

MONDAY, JUNE 15th
7:30pm at Lakeview Learning Center
3310 N. Clark St -- Chicago, IL

BYOB bring your own book or magazine or newspaper

SUPPORT adult education and family literacy

The IL Adult Education program provides ESL and GED classes to immigrants, refugees, and people without high school degrees at the City Colleges of Chicago and across the state. With the current state budget crisis, $53.7

million dollars in state and federal Adult Education and Family Literacy funding will be lost if the Illinois Community College Board's funding is eliminated.

Tell the IL government that you support the Adult Education Program and oppose any cuts to its funding. People need education to get jobs.

CALL GOVERNOR QUINN
[redacted]

↑ Index

143. Susan Webster Schultz some recent Tinfish Editor blog posts
Sat 13 Jun 2009

---

* Paul Naylor's waste of paper in Jammed Transmission
* Editing as collage: Tinfish 19 in the making
* Forgetting as disease: Dementia in recent poetry

Enjoy.

Aloha, Susan

Oh!

http://tinfisheditor.blogspot.com

↑ Index

144. Catherine Daly
Re: David Bromige Obituary
Sat 13 Jun 2009

---

without it, it's not a panama

(isthmus: we miss him)

--
All best,
Catherine Daly
[redacted]

↑ Index

145. Anna Vitale readings in barcelona or madrid?
Sat 13 Jun 2009

Hello,

I'm hoping to attend some poetry readings in Barcelona or Madrid (July 1-14). Any suggestions on series, sources, special spots for readings?

You can reply to [redacted].

Thanks,
Anna

↑ Index

146. Rod Smith
Bill Berkson @ Bridge Street Books, Sunday June 14th, 7 PM
Sat 13 Jun 2009

Sunday, June
THE EDGE READING SERIES
at BRIDGE STREET BOOKS presents

Sunday, June 14th, at 7 PM

BILL BERKSON

Please join us for a reading to celebrate his latest book, Portrait and Dream: New & Selected Poems.

Bill Berkson was born in New York in 1939. A poet, critic, teacher, and sometime curator, he moved to Northern California in 1970 and during the next decade edited a series of little magazines and books under the Big Sky imprint. From 1984 to 2008 he was a professor of Liberal Arts at the San Francisco Art Institute. He is a corresponding editor for Art in America and has contributed reviews and essays to such other journals as Aperture, Artforum, Works on Paper and Modern Painters. His recent books of poetry include Gloria (in a deluxe limited edition with etchings by Alex Katz), Our Friends Will Pass Among You Silently, and Goods and Services. Other books include a collection of his criticism, The Sweet Singer of Modernism & Other Art Writings: 1985-2003; Sudden Address: Selected lectures 1981-2006; an epistolary collaboration with Bernadette Mayer entitled Whatâ€™s Your Idea of a Good Time?: Interviews & Letters 1977-1985. His Portrait and Dream: New & Selected Poems appeared form Coffee House Press in April 2009. Berkson was the 2006 Distinguished Mellon Fellow at the Skowhegan School of Painting and Sculpture and received the 2008 Goldie for Literature from the San Francisco Bay Guardian. He now lives in New York and San Francisco.

BRIDGE STREET BOOKS
2814 Pennsylvania Ave NW
Washington, DC

ph [redacted]

Bridge Street Books is located in Georgetown next to the Four Seasons Hotel, five blocks from the Foggy Bottom Metro Stop it.

UPCOMING:

The VELVET LOUNGE, Saturday June 20th PRAXIS DUDES FEST an international gathering of contemporary performance art, poetry, and music Saturday 06.20.09 $8, doors at 7pm, sets start at 8pm, 18+ Haley Dolan (Providence/DC) Justin Katko (Providence) Jow Lindsay (England) Nour Mobarak (Portland) Andrew Bucket (DC) Ryan Dobran (NYC) Joshua Strauss (Buffalo) Keston Sutherland (England) Mike Wallace-Hadrill (England) Adrian Parsons (DC) Chris Grier (DC)

DCAC, Sunday June 21st, 3 pm
Buck Downs will read 69 poems from Black Peppermint

this is not that Cafe at The PHILLIPS COLLECTION
Thursday July 2nd, 5-830 PM
Lee Ann Brown, C.A. Conrad, Mel Nichols,
Jason Zuzga, Greta Byrum, Rod Smith, and others

For more information about upcoming events, or to subscribe to this list, check out our website at http://www.dcpoetry.com

↑ Index

147. Dan Wilcox
Third Thursday Poetry Night, Albany -- W.D. Clarke & open Mic
Sat 13 Jun 2009

---

the Poetry Motel Foundation
presents

Third Thursday Poetry Night

at
the Social Justice Center
33 Central Ave., Albany, NY

Thursday, June 18
7:00 sign up; 7:30 start

Featured Poet: W.D. Clarke

W.D. Clarke is the author of “Soldier Ballads and Other Tales” (Infinity Publishing). His poems are narrative rhymes done in a style of Robert Service and Rudyard Kipling. Many have a military setting, while others are based on Clarke’s wanderings and love of the Old West California’s “gold country.”

-- with an open mic for community poets before & after the feature: $3.00 donation, suggested; more if you got it, less if you can't. Your poetry host: Dan Wilcox.

↑ Index

148. { brad brace }

18 new pleated plaid pamphlets published !!!

Sat 13 Jun 2009

---

189 Ragged Stitch Raging Deep Ripple and Flow Rippled Strand
190 Raging Elements Rippling Eddy Rippling Flow
191 Raging Sea Rippling Waves Rise and Depart 192 Raging Tumult Rise Rather Rises Still 193 Ragtag and Bobtail Rising Chill Embraced Rising Rocket 194 Railway Regulations Rising Steam Rising Sun
195 Rain Dogs Rising to the Surface Rising Waters
196 Rain Falls Risky Securities Ritual Exchange
197 Rain Rarely Ritual Gesture Ritual Ingestion
198 Rain Roared Ritual Meaning Ritual Obeisance
199 Rain Soaked Raise Doubts Ritual Phrase
200 Ritual Preliminaries Raised Before Ritual Pretense
201 Raised Seams Rallied Round Ritual Profanations
202 Rally Resistance Ramble Random Ritual Repeated
203 Ran Round Ran Towards Randolf Ritual Stretches
204 Random Aspect Random Celestial Ritualistic Restraint
205 Random Consolations Random Dan Rival Faction
206 Random Remark Random Surveillance Rival Shamans
207 Rang False Rang Hollow River Running

{ brad brace }

Pleated Plaid Pamphlet
Volumes 189-207
[accompaniment to insatiable abstraction engine]

http://bbrace.laughingsquid.net/abstraction-engine.html
http://www.bbrace.net/abstraction-engine.html
[redacted]

ppp189
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-189/7275355
ppp190
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-190/7275373
ppp191
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-191/7275387

ppp192
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-192/7275583
ppp193
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-193/7275589
ppp194
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-194/7275598
ppp195
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-195/7275622
ppp196
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-196/7275614
ppp197
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-197/7275631
ppp198
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-198/7275638
ppp199
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-199/7275646
ppp200
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-200/7275656
ppp201
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-201/7275664
ppp202
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-202/7275675
ppp203
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-203/7275682
ppp204
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-204/7275685
ppp205
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-205/7275725
ppp206
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-206/7275738
ppp207
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-207/7275746

↑ Index

149. Camille Martin

new collages by Camille Martin

Sat 13 Jun 2009

Hi, new collages can be seen at

http://www.camillemartin.ca/index.php?pr=Collages_15
http://www.camillemartin.ca/index.php?pr=Collages_16

http://www.camillemartin.ca/index.php?pr=Collages_17
http://www.camillemartin.ca/index.php?pr=Collages_18

Camille

↑ Index

150. steve russell
Re: Horror help
Sat 13 Jun 2009

---

wish I haven't lost so much stuff to recommend. Remember, British horror is 1st rate. American/sucks... --- On Fri, 6/12/09, Hugh Behm-Steinberg <[redacted]> wrote:

> From: Hugh Behm-Steinberg <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: Horror help
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Friday, June 12, 2009, 6:53 PM
> Hi all,
>
> Many thanks for all the suggestions! If I could > narrow things down a little more, I'm particularly looking > for Horror writing from African American/Canadian > writers. There's some Octavia Butler and Nalo > Hopkinson I plan to show my student, but other leads would > be most welcome.
>
> Thanks,
>
> Hugh Behm-Steinberg
>
> ---
> From: Alison Croggon <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Wednesday, June 10, 2009 4:33:49 PM
> Subject: Re: Horror help
>
> The classiest horror story I've read recently is by > (brilliant)
> British young adult author David Almond: a novel called > Clay.
> Genuinely chilling devil's child story.
>
> xA

On Wed, Jun 10, 2009 at 5:00 PM, taylan yildiran<[redacted]> wrote:
for short form I recommend Tanith Lee and Frederick Brown for the novel length later works by Thomas disch (a poet who wrote better than many masters of the genre) and john williamson (on the other side of literary respectability but dear to me any way)

--- On Tue, 6/9/09, Hugh Behm-Steinberg <[redacted]> wrote:

From: Hugh Behm-Steinberg <[redacted]>
Subject: Horror help
To: [redacted]
Date: Tuesday, June 9, 2009, 8:18 AM

Hi all,

I'm working with a student this summer who's writing horror fiction, a genre I haven't done much reading in myself. I was wondering if there are any recommendations for essays about the genre, or recent writers I should plunge into besides Stephen King or Clive Barker.

Many thanks,

Hugh Behm-Steinberg

--
Editor, Masthead: http://www.masthead.net.au
Blog: http://theatrenotes.blogspot.com
Home page: http://www.alisoncroggon.com

↑ Index

151. Jerome Rothenberg

Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress

Sat 13 Jun 2009

For those who might be interested, my current posting on Poems & Poetics (poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com) is the first installment of Outsider Poems, a mini-anthology in progress. What I'm hoping to do here is to work in public while assembling material toward a gathering of poems & near-poems from anywhere/anytime that exist in literate societies but outside of the normative literary nexus. I'll be developing the project - as far as I can take it - with a sense that the term "outsider poetry" can cover a wide range of sources & possibilities, from art brut & mystical/religious poems & offerings to folk & working class poetry, sermons & rants, glossolalia & glossographia, dialect & "nation language" (K. Brathwaite), & so on - works in short both written & oral. In doing so, as with Poems for the Millennium, I'll be open to suggestions from anyone out there, both definitional or theoretical ones for "outsider poetry" in general and specific ones for the selection of poems & poets. I don't for the moment know exactly where this is taking me, but that's the pleasure & mystery of any new beginning.

Other recent postings on Poems & Poetics include: Octavio Paz on Modernity & Romanticism; Two Poems Recovered from Seymour Faust; my own "Poetry of the 1950s as a Global Awakening"; "The Nanking Massacre: A Birthday Poem & Tribute for Makoto Oda"; David Antin's "Notes for an Ultimate Prosody"; Armand Schwerner's "Hall of Mirrors, A Dialogue" (previously unpublished); an excerpt from Ilya Kaminsky's "Musica Humana, an Elegy for Osip Mandelstam"; Pierre Joris's translations from Goethe's West-Östlicher Diwan; & Karl Young's "Toward an Ideal Anthology" (excerpted). Scheduled for future publication are Charles Bernstein's translation from Victor Hugo's "Les Contemplations"; Heriberto Yépez's "Ethopoetics [not ethnopoetics], What Is It?"; excerpts from Christian Bök's Eunoia; Bruce Andrews' "Four 19th-Century Poems"; Ambar Past's introduction to Tzotzil Indian "Incantations": Joe Safdie's "Against Romanticism" (excerpts); & further ongoing installments of Outsider Poems, a Mini-Anthology in Progress.

Jerome Rothenberg
1026 San Abella
Encinitas, CA 92024
jrothenberg at cox.net
Blog at poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com

"Poetry must have something in it that is barbaric, vast, and wild."
D. Diderot

↑ Index

152. Fulcrum Annual

Beckett as Poet; unpublished Beckett, Frost, Paz; great current poetry

Sun 14 Jun 2009

Beckett as Poet; unpublished Beckett, Frost, Paz; great current poetry

FULCRUM: An Annual of Poetry and Aesthetics, #6 (730 pages) features uncollected Samuel Beckett; unpublished Robert Frost and Octavio Paz; essays by Christopher Ricks, Marjorie Perloff, Eliot Weinberger and many others; a feature on "Poetry and Myth"; a debate between poets John Kinsella and Rosanna Warren; translations of Seferis, Vian, Quevedo; and a great deal more.

Most readers of Samuel Beckett are well acquainted with his plays and prose, but few are aware that Becket was a considerable, stunningly original poet. The special feature (185 pages) on "Samuel Beckett as Poet," edited by Philip Nikolayev in the current FULCRUM #6, presents Beckett's neglected masterpiece, "Ceiling," drawings of Beckett from life by Avigdor Arikha, and essays by Christopher Ricks, Marjorie Perloff, Eliot Weinberger, Anne Atik, S. E. Gontarski, Jean-Michel RabatÃ©, Simon Critchley, Chris Ackerley, SeÃ¡n Lawlor, David Wheatley, Mark Nixon, Philip Nikolayev, Daniel Albright, and a previously unpublished conversation between Octavio Paz and Eliot Weinberger on Beckett's English translation of An Anthology of Mexican Poetry. A few of the essays quote extensively from Beckett's unpublished correspondence and manuscripts.

FULCRUM # 6 also presents previously unpublished lectures by Robert Frost ("The Claims of Poetry," "The Most Dangerous Phrase in America," and "The Natural and Supernatural Bounds of Science"), transcribed with annotation and commentary by Frost scholar James Sitar.

The special "Poetry and Myth" section, edited by Cliff Forshaw and David Kennedy, presents a variety of essays and poems on the subject.

And there is a great deal more outstanding poetry and criticism in the issue!

"FULCRUM has in only a few years established itself as a must-read journal, a unique annual of literary and intellectual substance positioned on the cutting edge of culture."--Billy Collins

"FULCRUM serves as a primary resource for anyone interested in diverse poetic practices not only from these States, but also from around our trembling globe."--Michael Palmer

FULCRUM #6 is 730 pages long and offered at an artificially low price. Please visit http://fulcrumpoetry.com for more information, or to acquire a copy.

↑ Index

153. David-Baptiste Chirot

FW: announcement about "dada korkut"

Sun 14 Jun 2009

> Date: Sun, 14 Jun 2009 22:32:09 +0300
> Subject: announcement about "dada korkut"
> From: [redacted]
> To: [redacted]
>
> Dear visual poets and friends,
>
> Last week, my first visual poetry book published (also the very first > visual poetry book in turkey and in turkish, titled and announced as > visual poetry). The collection contains over 90 pieces of visual > poetry, in 94 pages. Printed in Ankara by Ebabil Publishers. Book > titled as "dada korkut". Title is a little word play which refers to > the dada movement (obviously) and "dede korkut" (Book of Dede Korkut, > http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Book_of_Dede_Korkut) slightly. Most of > the works came out 2003 - 2009 period, which i founded Zinhar and > poetikhars.com and published experimental and visual poetry.
>
> The title is my 7th book and 6th one published in poetry. I would like > to thank all of you for your support and willful efforts for visual > poetry all around the world, which couraged us.
.
>
> best regards
> serkan isin
> www.poetikhars.com
> www.hzhubble.com

Windows Live™: Keep your life in sync.
http://windowslive.com/explore?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_BR_life_in_synch_062009

↑ Index

154. Maria Damon
Re: David Bromige Obituary
Sun 14 Jun 2009

---

especially with that nose.
and hat.
i wrote "and hot" initially...
md

George Bowering wrote:
> Could you really be impish with that nose?
>
> I miss it and the straw hat just above it.
>
> gb
>
>
> On Jun 10, 2009, at 2:31 PM, Maria Damon wrote:
>
>> impish, yes, that's it.
>> handsome, witty, creative, the whole package!
>> is that innuendo enough?
>> yes, he will be missed, but he is in our hearts forever. cloying >> banalities, but too true.
>>
>> Rachel Loden wrote:
>>> Yes, where are the innuendoes of yesteryear?
>>>
>>> That impish, lovely man --
>>>
>>> how we will miss him.
>>>
>>> Rachel
>>>
>>> Maria Damon wrote:
>>>
>>>> it was a real honor to trade innuendos with the stars...xo
>>>> backatcha, george of the true north
>>>>
>>>> George Bowering wrote:
>>>>

>>>>> And we meant every word of it, my sweet Maria D.,
>>>>>
>>>>> gb
>>>>>
>>>>>
>>>>> On Jun 6, 2009, at 5:48 PM, Maria Damon wrote:
>>>>>
>>>>>
>>>>>> David was brilliantly witty, and warm as well. I loved our 4-way >>>>>> banter on the list years ago (w/ Rachel Loden and George >>>> Bowering).
>>>>>> Cracked me up every time. And so lovely in person, when I >>>> met him at >>>>>> Orono. What a shining light.
>>>>>>
>>>>>>
>>>>>> Aldon Nielsen wrote:
>>>>>>
>>>>>>> I was one of the many who enjoyed the benefit of David Bromige's
>>>>>>> generosity
>>>>>>> and hospitality. I also enjoyed sharing a birthday with him --
>>>>>>> David liked
>>>>>>> to get us Oct 22nd people together whenever he could -- a fine
>>>>>>> company of
>>>>>>> liberal Libras . . .
>>>>>>> David was one of the finest poets I've read across the years --
>>>>>>>
>>>>>>>
>>>>>>>
>>>>
>>>>> George B.
>>>>> Indifferent to Brad Pitt
>>>>>
>>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>
>>>
>>
>
> George Harry Bowering,

> Never got his share.
>
>

↑ Index

155. Peter
He could find the melody in anything
Sun 14 Jun 2009

He could find the melody in anything

http://ciccariello.viewbook.com/melody

Peter Ciccariello

--
http://invisiblenotes.blogspot.com/
http://uncommonvision.blogspot.com/
http://poemsfromprovidence.blogspot.com/
http://uncommon-vision.blogspot.com/
You can find my art and writing updates on Twitter
https://twitter.com/ciccariello

↑ Index

156. Alan Sondheim
Alan Sondheim Screening at Millennium Film/Video
Sun 14 Jun 2009

Alan Sondheim Screening at Millennium Film/Video

(Please come if you can; I'll be talking about Second Life and my recent online work, The Accidental Artist. It should be fun.)

Alan Sondheim Screening at Millennium Film/Video

June 20th (Saturday) 8 P.M.

Admission $8 / $6 (for members)

Information [redacted]
www.millenniumfilm.org
[redacted]

(from the announcement -)

"The word prolific always comes to mind when describing Alan Sondheim who has produced an unending, constantly changing array of media works, writings, and musical pieces, and has given innumerable workshops and lectures around the world. He has been a regular participant in the Personal Cinema Series."

"ADVENTURES IN THE SIM TRADE: ACCIDENTAL ART AND PERFORMANCE IN SECOND LIFE.

'June 2008 through March 2009, I worked in an installation/performance space called Odyssey in the virtual world Second Life. I changed the environment almost daily, reflecting dynamic (moving, shuddering) complex spaces that were narratives in their own right, difficult to navigate, built on phenomenologies of being virtual real, really virtual. I will walk/work my way through these transformations, presenting videos and images of installations with Azure Carter), dance (with Foofwa d'Imobilite and Sandy Baldwin), and performance (with Sandy Baldwin). This work is unique within and without Second Life.' - A.S."

↑ Index

157. Justin Katko
Keith Tuma's THE PARIS HILTON
Sun 14 Jun 2009

---

*For Immediate Release * 13 June 2009 *

Just as you make the chronic mistake of believing the intrepid Keith Tuma to have pulled his final card in a teetering gambit of interlocking blitz evacuations, Critical Documents finds itself with recourse to naught but impassioned hyperbolic announcement of Tuma's very own THE PARIS HILTON, now available at websites such as http://plantarchy.us/the-paris-hilton.html. This slick red pamphlet, filled to the over-running nostril's brim with some 32 mono-lyric squibs, torqued in the veritable plain style, and made to rhyme itself, is priced at $5/£3.50, that's with postage included, and will ship instantly to locations around the entire globe. Remote interpretations imply such predictions as: first edition of thousands / eminent upon sell out. Even Mao, his celebrated verses, couldn't so efficiently dish. The printers themselves have ordered 30 bags of Tuma straight, and Hilton herself has put out an indeterminate A.P.B. for some lines of "that pure Tumaein stuff". The cover image is by Tom Raworth. Paypal purchases may be made online or through the mail, payable to Critical Documents at 40 Brighton Street - Providence, RI 02909 - USA. Those of you attending the upcoming SoundEye festival will find them available for purchase from the Author himself. Potential reviewers encouraged to send inquiries.

Justin Katko, Editor, Critical Documents

↑ Index

158. mIEKAL aND
Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
Mon 15 Jun 2009

Best outsider poet I know is Malok. Never read a poem in his life, in & out of mental hospitals in the late 70s (once for trying to take over a naval carrier), on the dole, hermit, curmudgeon, divinely inspired by Charles Bronson... You can real a lot of his work at

http://malok.org

Also new recordings soon out of his reading of F*ck Dirge & of C*nt Utters produced by Foist. Also a full length documentary of Malok by Camille Bacos is in the works.

~mIEKAL

On Sat, Jun 13, 2009 at 7:43 PM, Jerome Rothenberg <[redacted]>wrote:

> For those who might be interested, my current posting on Poems & Poetics (poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com) is the first installment of Outsider Poems, a mini-anthology in progress. What I'm hoping to do here is to work in public while assembling material toward a gathering of poems & near-poems from anywhere/anytime that exist in literate societies but outside of the normative literary nexus. I'll be developing the project - as far as I can take it - with a sense that the term "outsider poetry" can cover a wide range of sources & possibilities, from art brut & mystical/religious poems & offerings to folk & working class poetry, sermons & rants, glossolalia & glossographia, dialect & "nation language" (K. Brathwaite), & so on - works in short both written & oral. In doing so, as with Poems for the Millennium, I'll be open to suggestions from anyone out there, both definitional or theoretical ones for "outsider poetry" in general and specific ones for the selection of poems & poets. I don't for the moment know exactly where this is taking me, but that's the pleasure & mystery of any new beginning.

↑ Index

159. Stuart Ross
some readings on YouTube
Mon 15 Jun 2009

This past winter, I recorded some poems in downtown Toronto for a programme designed for high school students in the British Columbia Interior. The students viewed the videos and then they and I met online, where they asked me questions and I got them to write poems.

The videos are here:

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=lXAwJoqP8SI

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=it4nZaZcKV0

Cheers,

Stuart

↑ Index

160. John Cunningham
Re: new collages by Camille Martin
Mon 15 Jun 2009

I loved these, Camille. I wish I had your abilities.
John Herbert Cunningham

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Camille Martin
Sent: June-13-09 5:18 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: new collages by Camille Martin

Hi, new collages can be seen at

http://www.camillemartin.ca/index.php?pr=Collages_15
http://www.camillemartin.ca/index.php?pr=Collages_16
http://www.camillemartin.ca/index.php?pr=Collages_17
http://www.camillemartin.ca/index.php?pr=Collages_18

Camille

↑ Index

161. Murat Nemet-Nejat
Re: He could find the melody in anything
Mon 15 Jun 2009

Peter,
Beautiful.
Murat

On Sun, Jun 14, 2009 at 9:25 PM, Peter <[redacted]> wrote:

> He could find the melody in anything
>
> http://ciccariello.viewbook.com/melody

> Peter Ciccariello
>
> --
> http://invisiblenotes.blogspot.com/
> http://uncommonvision.blogspot.com/
> http://poemsfromprovidence.blogspot.com/
> http://uncommon-vision.blogspot.com/
> You can find my art and writing updates on Twitter
> https://twitter.com/ciccariello

↑ Index

162. Mary Kasimor

Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress

Mon 15 Jun 2009

Jerome,
I don't have any ideas right now, but I think that is a wonderful idea.

--- On Sat, 6/13/09, Jerome Rothenberg <[redacted]> wrote:

From: Jerome Rothenberg <[redacted]>
Subject: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
To: [redacted]
Date: Saturday, June 13, 2009, 7:43 PM

For those who might be interested, my current posting on Poems & Poetics (poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com) is the first installment of Outsider Poems, a mini-anthology in progress. What I'm hoping to do here is to work in public while assembling material toward a gathering of poems & near-poems from anywhere/anytime that exist in literate societies but outside of the normative literary nexus. I'll be developing the project - as far as I can take it - with a sense that the term "outsider poetry" can cover a wide range of sources & possibilities, from art brut & mystical/religious poems & offerings to folk & working class poetry, sermons & rants, glossolalia & glossographia, dialect & "nation language" (K. Brathwaite), & so on - works in short both written & oral. In doing so, as with Poems for the Millennium, I'll be open to suggestions from anyone out there, both definitional or theoretical ones for "outsider poetry" in general and specific ones for the selection of poems & poets. I don't for the moment know exactly where this is taking me, but that's the pleasure & mystery of any new beginning.

Other recent postings on Poems & Poetics include: Octavio Paz on Modernity & Romanticism; Two Poems Recovered from Seymour Faust; my own "Poetry of the 1950s as a Global Awakening"; "The Nanking Massacre: A Birthday Poem & Tribute for Makoto Oda"; David Antin's "Notes for an Ultimate Prosody"; Armand Schwerner's "Hall of Mirrors, A Dialogue" (previously unpublished); an excerpt from Ilya Kaminsky's "Musica Humana, an Elegy for Osip Mandelstam"; Pierre Joris's translations from Goethe's West-Östlicher Diwan; & Karl Young's "Toward an Ideal Anthology" (excerpted). Scheduled for future publication are Charles Bernstein's translation from Victor Hugo's "Les Contemplations"; Heriberto Yépez's "Ethopoetics [not ethnopoetics], What Is It?"; excerpts from Christian Bök's Eunoia; Bruce Andrews' "Four 19th-Century Poems"; Ambar Past's introduction to Tzotzil Indian "Incantations": Joe Safdie's "Against Romanticism" (excerpts); & further ongoing installments of Outsider Poems, a Mini-Anthology in Progress.

Jerome Rothenberg
1026 San Abella
Encinitas, CA 92024
jrothenberg at cox.net
Blog at poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com

"Poetry must have something in it
that is barbaric, vast, and wild."
D. Diderot

↑ Index

163. Catherine Daly

Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress

Mon 15 Jun 2009

The Library of Congress has got some great stuff that even Folkways never released http://memory.loc.gov/diglib/ihas/html/afccards/afccards-home.html <http://memory.loc.gov/diglib/ihas/html/afccards/afccards-home.html>

--
All best,
Catherine Daly
[redacted]

↑ Index

164. Peter
Re: new collages by Camille Martin
Mon 15 Jun 2009

Wonderful Camille, thanks for posting them.
'

- Peter Ciccariello

On Mon, Jun 15, 2009 at 11:07 AM, John Cunningham <
[redacted]> wrote:

> I loved these, Camille. I wish I had your abilities.
> John Herbert Cunningham
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On > Behalf Of Camille Martin
> Sent: June-13-09 5:18 PM
> To: [redacted]
> Subject: new collages by Camille Martin
>
> Hi, new collages can be seen at
>
> http://www.camillemartin.ca/index.php?pr=Collages_15
> http://www.camillemartin.ca/index.php?pr=Collages_16
> http://www.camillemartin.ca/index.php?pr=Collages_17
> http://www.camillemartin.ca/index.php?pr=Collages_18
>
> Camille

--
http://invisiblenotes.blogspot.com/
http://uncommonvision.blogspot.com/
http://poemsfromprovidence.blogspot.com/
http://uncommon-vision.blogspot.com/
You can find my art and writing updates on Twitter
https://twitter.com/ciccariello

↑ Index

165. David Chirot
Re: Gift Economy
Mon 15 Jun 2009

Ironically, the attacks--and making fun of in a nasty way--on the French "influence" mirror a long standing American popular tradition of equating the French with crazy ideas, moral turpitude, a fey (vaguely homosexual) style of speaking and gesturing, and cowardice in war, insuring their always needing the US to "save them".

My mom used to point this out to me a lot growing up, especially when at the movies. In Casablanca, the morally ambiguous middleman between opposing sides is Louis (Claude Rains), in the Deer Hunter the courrputer of Christopher Walken is French; then of course there's The French Connection and Maurice Chevalier sining "I like little girls." (Spoofed by Gerard Deparideu in a film in which his American-raised duaghter has told everyone that her French father is actually her lover.Immediately the French father is loathed as an overaged lover of possibly underage girls, who goes about play8ing piano and singing about hoe he "likes little girls.)

I remeber that during the buildup of the final months leading to the US Invasion of Iraq, FOX Netwrok had a daily anti-fench/make fun of the French number of inutes set aside everyday for viewers to join in, like the "Two Minutes of Hate" in orwell's 1984.

Remember how French Fries had to be changed to Liberty Fries!!???? Despite the fact that the Statue of Liberty herself is a gift from France--

I saw also a book called "Our First Enemey"--France!! because "we" as colonials fought them in the French and Indian Wars.

Being from the family of the defeated French and Indians, my mother used to remind me how this defeat of "cowards" who were more into fashion than fighting, has been wrapped in the arms of American culture ever since, despite Lafayette and the pardon of Jean Lafitte (the famous pierate) for services rendered to the Americans during the War of 1812.

So--what red blooded American writer of any gender would want to emulate these scum or be caught reading one of their twisted perversion spanwing works?

Don't you know how stupid the French are people cry--they worship Poe and Jerry Lewis!

Depite the occaisonal "fashionable" intrusion of French thought into American acedemia, for the most part American poetry is influeced as Jason wrote--by the Anglo-philsiophers and by previous American writers in the "Modernist" tradition. (Charles Olson used the word "postmodern" in a 1950 statement.)

Actually from the too little I have read of more recent American poetry and prose, novels--I would say the biggest influences have been Creative Writing taught in any of the now available manners.

Often one reads a sentence that has been so carefully worked, a phrase in apoem, a line--that has been labored over as a Diamond erging from the rough--and at the end of the phrase so gorgous so compolte so fixed,-- I always looka round expecting to hear clapping--

My guess is that comes from the endless classes, workshops, groups, etc people seem to be willing to undergo-- "wreading expperiments" to produce "experimental poets," solid poem production taught in another place, and over here--"the Duncan Tradition," and there The Spicer radio playing at basebal game--seenon tiv in a bar.

Perhaps these exercises themselves are part of that mystical training in Becoming a Poet in the "Imitation of Christ" enactments of depravity debauchery or simple clean livin and the great karmic Outdoors--that are "guaranteed to PRODUCE THE POWERFUL POET WITHIN YOU--and Heed the Call of the --wild or bar or philsophical discrpancies and so forth--

Has joining Poetry become something akin to joining the Army or a Club Scene inwehcih identity is part of "group formation?"

Who knows??
The main thing above al is don't have anything to do with the French!

On Tue, Mar 10, 2009 at 9:09 AM, Murat Nemet-Nejat <[redacted]>wrote:

> Jason,
>
> Thank you for shedding some light on the matter, making specific, precise distinctions, instead of hurling around a bunch of shibboleths.
>
> Ciao,
>
> Murat
>
> On Mon, Mar 9, 2009 at 10:52 PM, Jason Quackenbush <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> So because Martin Heidegger was a Nazi the disenchanted Marxist ideas of existentialism and post-structuralism were founded in fascism? It seems quite clear to me that you haven't read all of the "French Theorists" you're > talking about because you are lumping them together inappropriately as if they represent some monolith of ideology that doesn't exist. Borrowing the following quote from the wikipedia entry on postmodernism, Judith Butler pointed out that:

"A number of positions are ascribed to postmodernism - Discourse is all there is, as if discourse were some kind of monistic stuff out of which all things are composed; the subject is dead, I can never say "I" again; there is no reality, only representation. These characterizations are variously imputed to postmodernism or poststructuralism, which are conflated with each other and sometimes conflated with deconstruction, and understood as an indiscriminate assemblage of French feminism, deconstruction, Lacanian psychoanalysis, Foucauldian analysis, Rorty's conversationalism, and cultural studies ... In reality, these movements are opposed: Lacanian psychoanalysis in France positions itself officially against poststructuralism, that Foucauldian rarely relate to Derridideans ... Lyotard champions the term, but he cannot be made into the example of what all the rest of the purported postmodernists are doing. Lyotard's work is, for instance, seriously at odds with that of Derrida" more importantly, looking around at the literary field of the last 40 years or so I see in prose generally a marginal group in the vein of Gaddis/Pynchon/Barth/Coover/Delillo/Wallace et al that is rapidly giving way to the sort of thing that Michael Chabon is now up to where the wild craziness of the high postmodernists is replaced with a more subtle emphasis on traditional storytelling and the artificiality of the publishing market controlled "genres" of fiction. In poetry the situation is much clearer, where there were poets influenced by philosophers, the most obvious being the Language poets, many of them are much more involved in anglo-american philosophy than you are giving them credit. Wittgenstein is an obvious influence across the board, but probably more important are John Cage, Gertrude Stein, and Charles Olson, none of whom were formed in the grips of anything you might find in the Saussure to Derrida tradition in philosphy you're pointing at. Ted Berrigan was heavily inspired by Whitehead, and Bertrand Russeell is the most widely read philosopher that I'm aware of for those poets who read philosophy.

All of that aside, by my lights, it still seems to me that contemporary poetry is largely dominated by slam poetry and the sort of MOR confessionalism that you find in Seamus Heaney, Billy Collins, and their ilk. ANd frankly the complaints of the reactionary trend to be found in neo-formalism are much more present in the popular consciousness than anything informed by Barthes or other critics with his commitments.

So really, while there is a great deal of nattering by undergraduates about poorly understood french philosophers leaking out of cultural studies departments, i just don't see all this influence that you're talking about by "French Theorists" and it makes me wonder what it is that you're reading, because it's not the same stuff I am.

On Mar 9, 2009, at 1:43 PM, Troy Camplin wrote:

I'm sorry that I don't uncritically accept every idea that comes along. Hold, it, wait, neither do you. You just like what I don't, and dislike what I do. That doesn't make me a fascist. In fact, you show you don't even know what a fascist is, with this statement.

The American postmodernist writers were all influenced by such people as Sartre, deBeauvoir, Lacan, Derrida, Barthes, Foucauld, etc. I've read them all. I like them all. But they have had too much influence over American letters over the last half century, and it will benefit us greatly to come out from under that influence precisely because of the fascist foundations of their ideas and works (see Wolin's works on the fascist foundations of the postmodernist thinkers in "Heidegger's Children" and "The Seduction of Unreason" and Argyros' "A Blessed Rage for Order" on Derrida).

The ability to judge ideas or their influence as bad doesn't make one a fascist. It shows that one is able to think and make critical judgments based on observation. The attempt to stifle dialogue by throwing around the word "fascist" to label those with whom you disagree is in fact a fascist tactic.

Troy Camplin

From: Murat Nemet-Nejat <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Friday, March 6, 2009 4:40:44 PM
Subject: Re: Gift Economy

Troy,

"our art and literature will improve greatly the minute we stop being influenced by the French theorists."

Why does almost every statement you make must involve the putting down of another? Are you aware how ridiculous that statements sounds. How much of American literature, do you thing, is influenced by "French theorists"? Or how much of French literature is influence by "French theorists" for that matter? What is a French theorist anyhow?

To indulge in some name calling myself, are you aware demonizing the other is the basic mode of Fascist thought, regardless how much libertarian, you might image, means liberty.

Ciao,

Murat

On Thu, Mar 5, 2009 at 10:36 AM, Troy Camplin <[redacted]> wrote:

I do believe I can make better judgments than any government administrator, yes. Especially if they are working in their capacity of government administrator. Impersonal judgment is no judgment. As for people on the listserv, I believe my judgment is better than some, the same as others, and likely worse than a few -- but we are free to have those differences, that those who agree that my judgments are better or the same as theirs can support my nonprofit, and those who disagree can contribute to one (or start their own) that better reflects their own taste. The point is that such actions would be voluntary.

Personally, I've seen no evidence that France or Canada is turning out superior artists, though I have n o doubt that the French and the French Canadians certainly think so. I will admit, though, that our art and literature will improve greatly the minute we stop being influenced by the French theorists.

Troy Camplin

From: François Luong <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, March 4, 2009 4:23:06 PM
Subject: Re: Gift Economy

The market already drives more than one art form. As many people
Troy,

The market already drives more than one art form. As many people have pointed out, the majority of the music industry is driven by the free market at a global level. Is the music industry any more equitable than other government-funded arts? Well, as cris costa pointed out, the only thing that is successful nowadays are "cheap products, made quickly, sold for a lot
of money," an argument you completely disregarded in your response to her.

You also fail to show how a "nonprofit organization such as yours" would be a better way to fund the arts. Are you implying you have better taste than government administrators and/or anyone else on this listserv? Do I believe that "my" people would be in charge of a government art funding program?
Certainly not. Even though Canada and France have much better funding programs than the United States, they still have their faults. Does that mean we should scrap them? Well, they have certainly contributed to Canadian arts and poetry being more interesting than the majority of US arts.

Finally, many of the programs you are listed had already been enacted before Hitler's rise to power. National health care had for example been implemented by Bismarck in 1883 (I might be a year or so off) and unemployment compensation in 1927 at the national level. The Ländern had their own programs before it was made a federal law.

françois luong

From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, March 4, 2009 1:42:35 PM
Subject: Re: Gift Economy

Much of the great monuments were in fact made with slave labor? Does that then argue for slave labor for other massive works? Yes, many of our great works of art were government-funded, and government funds come from somebody with power having enough power to take money from weaker people. To me, that argues against that method, no matter how successful it has been in the past. It's not magical thinking to believe there better, non-coercive ways to fund the arts, and that we should try to use and develop those. The market is one way. Nonprofit organizations such as mine are and can be another. Both are highly preferable to the coercive methods of government.

And fascism is indeed a form of socialism -- even if it is corporate socialism. I'm sorry that's an inconvenient fact for everyone here. There are different kinds of socialism, you know -- it doesn't have to be communist in nature. Here is what Hitler's version looked like: he suspended the gold standard, embarked on huge public works programs like

Autobahns,
protected industry from foreign competition, expanded credit, instituted jobs programs, bullied the private sector on prices and production decisions, vastly expanded the military, enforced capital controls, instituted family planning, penalized smoking, brought about national health care and unemployment insurance, imposed education standards, and eventually ran huge deficits. In all honesty, it was the kind of economy our government has been actively trying to set up for a while now, though it's been accelerating quite a bit of late..

Those who support government funding of the arts naively think that they will always have their people in charge and that therefore they will be the ones getting the funding. But you can't count on being in charge in a democratic country -- or even in socialist utopian dictatorship. I prefer
to keep the government out of the arts completely, so there is far less danger of coercion or censorship -- direct or indirect.

Troy Camplin

From: François Luong <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, March 3, 2009 11:16:51 AM
Subject: Re: Gift Economy

"The market also allows for persuasion. People can be educated to learn what is good and what is not good." And who is going to do that education, Troy? The marketing department? I think we already have such situation. I mean, aren't Shakira and Britney Spears more popular because they have a bigger marketing department than say, New Model Army?

In all seriousness, your argument is based on magical thinking. There is no

account for naturally occurring taste, especially in a free market. What you base your argument on is, one, that all people are reasonable, two, that reason will lead them toward goodness. There are however no evidence for this assertion, much like there is no evidence for the free market being able to nurture art as we understand it. In the contrary, state-funded art goes back all the way to the Antiquity. Who funded the Parthenon, for example? Or Leonardo receiving his funding from Francis I of France? An example of an artistic situation within a free market context? Try Germany in the 1930s (just because the Nazi have "Socialist" in their name does not make them socialists. Being in the pocket of Mercedes and Krupp proves it), with the painters of the Neue Sachlichkeit being persecuted because their art was not marketable to the German populace.

françois luong

From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Monday, March 2, 2009 12:33:03 PM
Subject: Re: Gift Economy

You only prove my point with such statement. Not that I'm not in agreement with you that Dogs Playing Poker isn't really what I'm looking for in high art. What you missed was what came after the comma. The market also allows for persuasion. People can be educated to learn what is good and what is not good. The same person who has Dogs Playing Poker in his basement would be terribly disappointed to find such a work in his museum when he went to visit. There is a difference between what people like in a general sort of way and what people acknowledge to be great works of art. My wife, for example, thinks that opera is literally the best way to spend an evening.

But she also listens to Shakira. If you read the rest of my posting, you will note that I differentiate between what the market does in allowing for niches and true democracy, where there is a tyranny of the majority. In that case, one would in fact get Dogs Playing Poker as high art. This is precisely why I'm not a fan of democratic government supporting the arts.

Troy Camplin

From: John Cunningham <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Monday, March 2, 2009 8:50:34 AM
Subject: Re: Gift Economy

Are you kidding, Troy? Only if we want high art to consist of poker playing dogs is the market "the most democratic determiner of artistic merit"!
There are times when democracy is the worst possible determiner. If it had been allowed to determine things, blacks would still be slaves as the Emancipation Proclamation was probably the most hated piece of legislation ever and popular support was vastly against it.
John Herbert Cunningham

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]]
On Behalf Of Troy Camplin
Sent: March-01-09 2:21 PM
To: [redacted]..BUFFALO.EDU
Subject: Re: Gift Economy

Funny thing is, you're right about the anti-market position. The market is in fact the most democratic determiner of artistic merit (much to the horror of the elitists here), while also allowing room for people to have access

to works that fit their own tastes. In a pure democracy, we would only listen to Britney Spears. Under democratic-government-controlled arts, we would only listen to music that is inoffensive to everyone (I'm guessing something along the lines of 50's soft pop rock). Only in the free market can I listen to Franz Ferdinand and Modest Mouse. Incidentally, one of the reasons why
I set up the Emerson Institute was to truly democratize patronage of the arts
-- in a way that was 100% voluntary. Equality under the law, yes;
collectivist egalitarianism, no.

Troy Camplin

From: Marcus Bales <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Friday, February 27, 2009 12:15:42 PM
Subject: Re: Gift Economy

The problem with Paul Nelson's objection to Troy's notion that a free market is a good judge of artistic merit is that it means Paul has put himself in an untenable position:
he's implicitly arguing that some poems are better than others, and that some people
can tell which ones those poems are -- it's an elitist position, one that will get him in a lot of trouble if he's not careful, and get him lumped in with Troy as an equality-hater.
Be careful, Paul! You just can't say that some poems are better than others, or some
poets better than others, without getting accused of elitism!

You're not an elitist, are you, Paul?

Marcus

On 26 Feb 2009 at 8:40, Paul Nelson wrote:

Date sent: Thu, 26 Feb 2009 08:40:55 -0800
Send reply to: "Poetics List (UPenn, UB)"
<[redacted]>
From: Paul Nelson <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Gift Economy
To: [redacted]

Like most of your arguments, you base your stand on a false dich
Troy,

Like most of your arguments, you base your stand on a false dichotomy. You say if it is not FREE MARKET, it is GOVERNMENT. I was only responding to your notion that the Free Market is a good judge of artistic quality. I find that laughable, which is why I have responded in what I thought was a humorous manner.

What is lost in the dialog is the notion of poetry (hey, we can actually get it back to what the LIST is about) poetry is part of the gift economy.

from Wikipedia:

A gift economy is a social theory[1] in which goods and services are given without any explicit agreement for immediate or future quid pro quo.
Ideally simultaneous or recurring giving serves to circulate and redistribute valuables within a community. This can be considered a form of reciprocal altruism.
The concept of a gift economy stands in contrast to a planned economy or a market or barter economy.
In a planned economy, goods and services are distributed by explicit command and control rather than informal custom; in barter or market economies, an explicit quid pro quo - an exchange of money or some other commodity - is established before the transaction takes place.

Other cultures (& ours, to some degree, in years past) had a different idea of the poet's role in society. Paz and Neruda as Ambassadors, for example. Most industrial democracies have social safety nets allowing an artist to live a decent life without becoming a corporate puppet, but not ours.

I'd like nothing more than a drastic reduction in Federal Spending, starting with the outlays for militarism:

Again Wiki:

As of 2009, the United States government is spending about $1 trillion annually on defense-related purposes.

Imagine $1B of that going to fund doctors and nurses in underserved areas. Imagine a new (old) way of structuring economies on a bioregional (sustainable) basis. The Federal Government becomes much less of a factor which, it seems to me, is the common ground you and I have. But when you make fauty premises such as the GOVERNMENT vs FREE MARKET, little light is generated.

Charles Olson, William Carlos Williams and others had some inkling about the importance of the local, hence The Maximus Poems and Paterson. This, to me, is the link between the discusson of Free Markets vs Government intervention and POETICS is, in theory anyway, the mission of this listserv. May it be so.

Paul

Paul E. Nelson

Global Voices Radio
SPLAB!
American Sentences
Organic Poetry
Poetry Postcard Blog

Ilalqo, WA 253..[redacted]

From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>

To: [redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, February 24, 2009 5:48:27 PM
Subject: Re: The Market recognizes talent!

Now there's a fundamentalist statement: "the opposite may be true." The market sometimes recognizes talent, sometimes not. It is an imperfect arbiter of taste. What it does do, though, is allow for a wide variety of options. The government does not give you options. It is a monopoly. You get what they give you, or nothing. Don't like government-brand corn? Too bad. Don't like the government-brand car? Too bad. Don't like government-brand art? AH, but there's the rub, isn't it? Nobody here wants to believe there will be government-brand art. Except that the government simply cannot support everyone who says they are an artist. There must be someone deciding who gets supported. Who is that going to be? You? I don't think so. Me? Don't think so. This year it may be someone with whom you agree; next year it may be someone with whom you never agree. Or should there be a democratic vote? Do you really want art by democratic vote? How many here write anything a democratic majority would want to read? Perhaps a committee? Similar problems arise, just on a smaller scale. In fact, it has the problems of both situations. How, then, is funding to be determined? How much funding? To whom will funding go? The safe bet would be to give it to those who are already successful -- but then, if they are already successful, why do they need government funding? And if they are not successful, how does the government determine who to give funding to, who to support? Based on production? Well, then, what prevents us from having cheaters, who will produce just enough really bad art to get the funding just so they don't have to go get a "real" job? I think about all these things and look at the history of government support for the arts and cannot come to any other conclusion that government funding for the arts is bad for the arts..

Troy Camplin

From: Paul Nelson <[redacted]..COM>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Sunday, February 22, 2009 3:23:54 PM
Subject: Re: The Market recognizes talent!

From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Friday, February 20, 2009 1:14:23 PM
Subject: Re: The Market recognizes talent!

One can always point to people who in your opinion (and, with this list, mine) are at best embarrassing. However, one can also point to the fact that Picasso, Monet, and Jasper Johns were all made wealthy during their lifetimes. I may not like Britney Spears, but I'm also not going to deprive anyone of her, either, if that's what they like. If you want to try to educate people to have better taste, that's fine and good
--
but there's no evidence the government is good at educating people in math and reading, let alone good taste. I love how you people have
to purposefully ignore facts to make your points. Throw up a few straw men
(and women, in this case) to try to make a "point."

Troy Camplin

I prefer the phrase "People of Straw" but I don't use the market as any guide to quality in the arts. In fact, the opposite may be true, but
when you're a fundamentalist, you say funny things, eh?
Paul E. Nelson

Global Voices Radio
SPLAB!
American Sentences
Organic Poetry
Poetry Postcard Blog

Ilalqo, WA [redacted]

--
No virus found in this incoming message.
Checked by AVG.
Version: 7.5.557 / Virus Database: 270..11.3 - Release Date:
2/22/2009 12:00 AM

guidelines

guidelines

welcome..html

welcome..html

guidelines

guidelines

guidelines

guidelines

Jason Quackenbush
[redacted]

guidelines

↑ Index

166. Maria Damon

Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress

Mon 15 Jun 2009

---

i love this project. it's like my "micropoetries." ecriture brute, outsider writing, etc.

mIEKAL aND wrote:
> Best outsider poet I know is Malok. Never read a poem in his life, in & out > of mental hospitals in the late 70s (once for trying to take over a naval > carrier), on the dole, hermit, curmudgeon, divinely inspired by Charles > Bronson... You can real a lot of his work at
>
> http://malok.org
>
> Also new recordings soon out of his reading of F*ck Dirge & of C*nt Utters > produced by Foist. Also a full length documentary of Malok by Camille Bacos > is in the works.
>
> ~mIEKAL
>
>
>
> On Sat, Jun 13, 2009 at 7:43 PM, Jerome Rothenberg <[redacted]>wrote:
>
>
>> For those who might be interested, my current posting on Poems & Poetics
(
>> poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com) is the first installment of Outsider Poems, >> a mini-anthology in progress. What I'm hoping to do here is to work in >> public while assembling material toward a gathering of poems & near-poems
>> from anywhere/anytime that exist in literate societies but outside of the >> normative literary nexus. I'll be developing the project - as far as I can >> take it - with a sense that the term "outsider poetry" can cover a wide >> range of sources & possibilities, from art brut & mystical/religious poems & >> offerings to folk & working class poetry, sermons & rants, glossolalia & >> glossographia, dialect & "nation language" (K. Brathwaite), & so on - works >> in short both written & oral. In doing so, as with Poems for the >> Millennium, I'll be open to suggestions from anyone out there, both >> definitional or theoretical ones for "outsider poetry" in general and >> specific ones for the selection of poems & poets. I don't for the moment >> know exactly where this is taking me, but that's the pleasure & mystery of >> any new beginning.

>>
>
>

↑ Index

167. christopher.winks

Fw: Dispatch from Tehran #7 -- POETRY IS MADE IN THE STREETS

Mon 15 Jun 2009

----- Forwarded by Christopher L Winks/CMLIT/Faculty/Queens College on 06/15/2009 02:47 PM -----

Retort <[redacted]>
06/15/2009 06:17 AM

To
[redacted]
cc

Subject
Dispatch from Tehran #7

To: Retort
From: BK

Dear friends,

First of all, thanks so much for your messages! We share them with friends here, and it gives us strength and morale to know we are not alone!

I know these dispatches are long, but please circulate wherever you think helpful, even if you don't have time to read. It was too dangerous to take photos or video today, but i'm sure there are plenty of images being spread over the net. I don't do Facebook, and it has been officially blocked here, but some are able to access it through proxies. It is a good minute to minute update, and somewhere we have been sending our images.

b ---------- TEHRAN, June 14, midnight---The streets of Tehran are under siege. After this coup d'etat, people are remaining in the streets, although today there was severe repression and riot police everywhere. The word revolution is in everyone's mouths, and people are refusing to stay indoors, as the regime and police are asking them to. The fascist apparatus is coming on full force. Riot police are accompanied by Bassiji militants, huge men with beards, dressed in emblematic khaki pants and white button up shirts, with one-meter long wooden batons in hand, and colt pistols. These men, usually hidden on a 'normal' day in the streets to monitor behavior and the dress code, are now working at full force with the police, especially at night.

Today we mostly stayed indoors, although there were some gatherings further into the city. Because Ahmadinejad was holding an official victory rally, where thousands had gathered (although as usual, many were probably brought in by bus from the outskirts of the city), people in opposition were encouraged to stay away. This is mostly because meeting face to face with these people would lead to violent clashes, and more deaths. Although there are no official figures, there have been some deaths. We have heard that 11 were killed yesterday, but there is no way to know.

This is not an explosion or a spontaneous riot. This is not a show of anger or rage. Something bigger is happening, and we can feel that people are preparing for it. Although there is severe repression and fear, people are maintaining their presence in the streets. This is not just an angry reaction to election fraud, but a real movement that is bubbling. The slogans on the street now are mainly 'Death to Dictatorship', and people are not afraid to cry this out.

Again, through some accessible weblogs (or others we get through to with filters), and phone calls to others around the city, we gather information. Internet has been virtually cut, although a slow dialup service allows us to send a few emails or read feeds every few hours.

A short list of today's news: Moussavi is still under house arrest; his wife gave a talk today at Tehran University announcing that tomorrow there will be a massive demonstration (for which they will have asked for a permit, which is not sure to be granted); a large number of reformist leaders were arrested, threatened not to make any radical moves or declarations, and then released; SMS services are still deactivated, as are any wave using internet services; Ayatollah Sanei (a reformist, elderly cleric) took to the streets of Qom in protest, wearing a shroud that Muslims are wrapped in when they die; weblogs called for people to stay in the streets and to walk calmly; Tehran and Isfahan Universities were attacked by Bassij militia who severely beat students.

As night fell on Tehran, we went up on the rooftop and along with hundreds of other people began yelling "Death to Dictatorship". You could hear the voices in the dark across the city. Friends who live in other parts of the city reported that in their parts the same was happening. People were also yelling, "Allah Akbar" (which I personally have an extremely hard time saying, but it is a tactical move for people: they need to keep the support of figures like Moussavi, Rafsanjani, Ayatollah Sanei, and others important within the political sphere if their movement is to build and go forward with force). During the 1979 revolution, the movements were leftist, but what is happening today is first and foremost a fight for social and political freedom.

Officially it is illegal to gather, meaning that groups of 3 or 4 people standing together in the street are threatened and hit with batons if they don't move. So the quiet walking continues tonight.

In our street, Bassiji militants have attacked people and beaten their wooden batons onto our doors, insulting us and telling us to get back in the house. They are trying to create fear and hysteria, but people continue to go outside, to walk in the streets, to drive their cars and honk. This will only grow.

But the situation is severe, and the police have been given orders to kill. That said, we are all seeing a clip today of a number of protesters protecting a policeman after he was beaten by a group of protesters, pleading with each other that we are all the same people, that we are all in this country together. Today, I witnessed a few occasions where people were discussing with young policemen in riot gear. At one point a few friends and I conversed with a policeman in his twenties. He was ashamed, and told us that they have been told to shoot to kill, but that they are 'trying hard to keep the situation calm'. He said that he considers us like his brothers and sisters; we told him to drop his weapons and join our ranks. This will hopefully happen soon.

The main problem for us is the plainclothes police, Bassijis, and secret service that are stationed all over the place; on each street corner, as well as around the major squares of the city.

Something is happening, slowly but surely, and the force of the people will only grow each day. Tehran, Isfahan, Mashad, Ahvaz, Shiraz, Zahedan are [sic], and probably more cities in the coming days and weeks.

What we want may take a long time, but it is happening. The walls are covered with "Death to Dictatorship", and it will come to an end.

Latest news: ? Helicopter police have opened fire on a crowd in Haft Tir Square (in central Tehran). We heard that this was with plastic coated bullets, but this is to be confirmed.

? Tehran University is under severe attack; this is the first time that the army has actually entered the university grounds in 44 years.

? The above mentioned, Ayatollah Sanei has come to Tehran from Qom and is maintaining a sit in in Khomeini's home, asking others of the Ulema to join him. This is extremely important; a remnant action from the Constitutional Revolution of 1906.

↑ Index

168. steve d. dalachinsky

Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress

Mon 15 Jun 2009

---

what definition??
so many of us are outsiders dead and alive
such an overused word ... who qualifies???

On Mon, 15 Jun 2009 08:26:17 -0700 Mary Kasimor <[redacted]> writes:
> Jerome,
> I don't have any ideas right now, but I think that is a wonderful > idea.
>
>
> --- On Sat, 6/13/09, Jerome Rothenberg <[redacted]> wrote:
>
>
> From: Jerome Rothenberg <[redacted]>
> Subject: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Saturday, June 13, 2009, 7:43 PM
>
>
> For those who might be interested, my current posting on Poems &
> Poetics (poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com) is the first installment of > Outsider Poems, a mini-anthology in progress. What I'm hoping to do > here is to work in public while assembling material toward a > gathering of poems & near-poems from anywhere/anytime that exist in > literate societies but outside of the normative literary nexus.
> I'll be developing the project - as far as I can take it - with a > sense that the term "outsider poetry" can cover a wide range of > sources & possibilities, from art brut & mystical/religious poems & > offerings to folk & working class poetry, sermons & rants, > glossolalia & glossographia, dialect & "nation language" (K.
> Brathwaite), & so on - works in short both written & oral. In doing > so, as with Poems for the Millennium, I'll be open to suggestions > from anyone out there, both definitional or theoretical ones for > "outsider poetry" in general and specific ones for > the selection of poems & poets. I don't for the moment know > exactly where this is taking me, but that's the pleasure & mystery > of any new beginning.
>

>
>
>
> Other recent postings on Poems & Poetics include: Octavio Paz on > Modernity & Romanticism; Two Poems Recovered from Seymour Faust; my > own "Poetry of the 1950s as a Global Awakening"; "The Nanking > Massacre: A Birthday Poem & Tribute for Makoto Oda"; David Antin's
> "Notes for an Ultimate Prosody"; Armand Schwerner's "Hall of > Mirrors, A Dialogue" (previously unpublished); an excerpt from Ilya > Kaminsky's "Musica Humana, an Elegy for Osip Mandelstam"; Pierre > Joris's translations from Goethe's West-Östlicher Diwan; & Karl > Young's "Toward an Ideal Anthology" (excerpted). Scheduled for > future publication are Charles Bernstein's translation from Victor > Hugo's "Les Contemplations"; Heriberto Yépez's "Ethopoetics [not > ethnopoetics], What Is It?"; excerpts from Christian Bök's Eunoia; > Bruce Andrews' "Four 19th-Century Poems"; Ambar Past's introduction > to Tzotzil Indian "Incantations": Joe Safdie's "Against Romanticism" > (excerpts); & further ongoing installments > of Outsider Poems, a Mini-Anthology in Progress.
>
>
> Jerome Rothenberg "Poetry must have something in it > 1026 San Abella that is barbaric, vast, and wild."
> Encinitas, CA 92024 D. Diderot
> jrothenberg at cox.net
> Blog at poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

↑ Index

169. steve d. dalachinsky

Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress

Mon 15 Jun 2009

---

i do mail art and malok is one of the folks i communcate with ah those mad houses i know em well

On Mon, 15 Jun 2009 09:52:56 -0500 mIEKAL aND <[redacted]>
writes:
> Best outsider poet I know is Malok. Never read a poem in his life, > in & out > of mental hospitals in the late 70s (once for trying to take over a > naval > carrier), on the dole, hermit, curmudgeon, divinely inspired by > Charles
> Bronson... You can real a lot of his work at
>
> http://malok.org
>
> Also new recordings soon out of his reading of F*ck Dirge & of C*nt > Utters > produced by Foist. Also a full length documentary of Malok by > Camille Bacos
> is in the works.
>
> ~mIEKAL
>
>
>
> On Sat, Jun 13, 2009 at 7:43 PM, Jerome Rothenberg
> <[redacted]>wrote:
>
> > For those who might be interested, my current posting on Poems & > Poetics (
> > poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com) is the first installment of Outsider > Poems,
> > a mini-anthology in progress. What I'm hoping to do here is to > work in > > public while assembling material toward a gathering of poems & > near-poems
> > from anywhere/anytime that exist in literate societies but outside > of the > > normative literary nexus. I'll be developing the project - as far > as I can > > take it - with a sense that the term "outsider poetry" can cover a > wide > > range of sources & possibilities, from art brut & > mystical/religious poems & > > offerings to folk & working class poetry, sermons & rants,

> glossolalia & > > glossographia, dialect & "nation language" (K. Brathwaite), & so > on - works
> > in short both written & oral. In doing so, as with Poems for the > > Millennium, I'll be open to suggestions from anyone out there, > both > > definitional or theoretical ones for "outsider poetry" in general
> and > > specific ones for the selection of poems & poets. I don't for the > moment
> > know exactly where this is taking me, but that's the pleasure & > mystery of
> > any new beginning.
>
>
>

↑ Index

170. Jonathan Penton
new issue and site news from UnlikelyStories.org
Mon 15 Jun 2009

Greetings, balding and graying heroes! There's a new multimedia issue up at www.UnlikelyStories.org, including:

Six Paintings by Orna Ben-Shohan
Six Photographs by Carlin Felder
Alakananda Mookerjee's review of the art of Ellie Harrison Music and a Video by folk artist Hogeye Bill, with a discussion by Gabriel Ricard and "Enter At Your Own Risk," a Spoken Word Video by "MrDaMan" and Luis Medina

There's lots of exciting things happening at www.UnlikelyStories.org, so I will write about these things in this e-mail, because that is my job:

Submissions for the July 4th Issue will be held open for a couple of more days. We will close submissions for this issue on Midnight, June 18th, but we will not tell you what time zone. For more information, check out http://www.unlikelystories.org/july4thad.shtml

The First Annual WRITE REAL GOOD Poetry Chapbook Contest is accepting manuscripts. For your chance at winning the only poetry award you can brag about with a straight face, check out http://www.unlikelystories.org/writerealgood1.shtml

Regular Submissions of fiction and poetry are currently closed due to backlog. We anticipate re-opening them around July 15th. Essay, visual art, film and music submissions remain open.

Finally, have you noticed the "From the Archives:" feature, presenting you great works from past years of Unlikely 2.0, at the bottom of the page at www.UnlikelyStories.org ? We go through the archives and select our favorites from time past. Right now we've got poems by Luis Cuauhtemoc Berrozabal featured, and there's always something (old) and cool...

No she's not and July is hot,
--
Jonathan Penton
http://www.unlikelystories.org/

↑ Index

171. Jonathan Penton
Lawrence Welsh and Todd Moore reading in Albuquerque
Mon 15 Jun 2009

Lawrence Welsh and Todd Moore, two vital poets of the small press and American southwest, will be in Albuquerque, New Mexico on:

Sunday, July 12th, 3pm
at Acequia Booksellers
4019 4th St. NW
[redacted]

Lawrence will be reading from "Skull Highway," his recent book from La Alameda Press, and Todd will be reading from "The Riddle of the Wooden Gun," his book from Lummox Press. Please check out these excellent books by these seminal small presses, and if you're in the area, come here the cowboys read!

Yours,
--
Jonathan Penton
http://www.unlikelystories.org/

↑ Index

172. Adam Katz
Re: Gift Economy
Mon 15 Jun 2009

If I may speak as an amateur for a moment, there was something very inspiring in Cole Swensen's intro to American Hybrid, basically (as I took it) that there is so much diversity now in poetry that it is kind of incoherent to think about being influenced by 'the influences,' by the basic theoretical or poetic or whatever texts of the field. There are enough of these 'basic' texts that the term basic cannot really apply to them. I think this is maybe similar to what Jameson means by impossibility of cognitive mapping in the postmodern city as the postmodern condition. Swensen seemed to be saying that the excess of influences means that what makes a poet strong is the decision by which specific influences are selected from the larger set, and the field of influence is thus reduced to a manageable field. In my experience, what can make workshop poetry bad is lack of specific influence. In other words, if the poet has not selected something particular, such as the work of certain theorists, painters, etc., to be influenced by, and studied it. This commitment to a particular influence, and the concomitant risk of not-studying something else with the same time, I think is a good application of Badiou's concept of "fidelity" in Being and Event. Without choosing a fidelity, however idiosyncratic it may be, poets will fall into a relatively homogenous voice (or lack thereof). At least by doing this, they define a situation out of which venturesome, faithful, selective voices can emerge. But I think the point is, even among the most capacious reader-writers of the 20thc., there was always a selection, and a fidelity tending towards a particular cut of the spuriously conceptualized 'whole.' (Maybe I'm being too general?)Adam Katz

↑ Index

173. Ruth Lepson

Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress

Mon 15 Jun 2009

---

check out henry grimes, great old jazz musician, who has written over 90 books of poetry--lives in NYC now.

Ruth

On 6/15/09 10:52 AM, "mIEKAL aND" <[redacted]> wrote:

> Best outsider poet I know is Malok. Never read a poem in his life, in & out of mental hospitals in the late 70s (once for trying to take over a naval carrier), on the dole, hermit, curmudgeon, divinely inspired by Charles Bronson... You can real a lot of his work at
>
> http://malok.org
>
> *Also new recordings soon out of his reading of F*ck Dirge & of C*nt Utters produced by Foist. Also a full length documentary of Malok by Camille Bacos is in the works.*

> ~mIEKAL
>
> On Sat, Jun 13, 2009 at 7:43 PM, Jerome Rothenberg <[redacted]>wrote:
>
> For those who might be interested, my current posting on Poems & Poetics (poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com) is the first installment of Outsider Poems, a mini-anthology in progress. What I'm hoping to do here is to work in public while assembling material toward a gathering of poems & near-poems from anywhere/anytime that exist in literate societies but outside of the normative literary nexus. I'll be developing the project - as far as I can take it - with a sense that the term "outsider poetry" can cover a wide range of sources & possibilities, from art brut & mystical/religious poems & offerings to folk & working class poetry, sermons & rants, glossolalia & glossographia, dialect & "nation language" (K. Brathwaite), & so on - works in short both written & oral. In doing so, as with Poems for the Millennium, I'll be open to suggestions from anyone out there, both definitional or theoretical ones for "outsider poetry" in general and specific ones for the selection of poems & poets. I don't for the moment know exactly where this is taking me, but that's the pleasure & mystery of any new beginning.

↑ Index

174. Amanda Earl

AngelHousePress Presents Pent Up

Mon 15 Jun 2009

---

the latest chapbook published by AngelHousePress and featuring the poetry of Sandra Ridley, Pearl Pirie, Amanda Earl, Marcus McCann and Roland Prevost. Five Ottawa writers play dominoes with sound and language. This is the second chapbook of the as yet unnamed poetry group, following "Whack of Clouds" published in 2008.

You can get Pent Up at the upcoming Ottawa Small Press Fair on Saturday, June 20 and also via Paypal at the site: www.angelhousepress.com.

Amanda

Amanda Earl
AngelHousePress
www.angelhousepress.com
the angel is in the house

↑ Index

175. Dean Brink

Seeking poetry treating American occupation of Iraq

Tue 16 Jun 2009

Dear Poetics List,

Thank you very much for helping me locate poems and anthologies on the invasion and occupation of Iraq. I hope to correspond and form alliances with everyone interested in using poetry and critical writing to reframe what we know in terms of what we know rather than what we are told in the media that we know (a starting point). There are so many approaches to resistance and I hope to support them all in a Guattarian critique. I will let the list know of any fruits of this small (?) research project.

I want to thank (in order received):

Halvard Johnson, for The Sonnet Project.

Lisa Samuels, for War Holdings and 'Fire Skin with the cell phone execution on', in The Invention of Culture.

Dan Wilcox, for "BAGHDAD/ALBANY"

Jeff Encke, for Most Wanted: A Gamble in Verse

Carrie Etter, for "The Occupation of Iraq"

Justin Katko, for leads to many British poets.

Maxine Chernoff, for "Embedded in the Language"

Francesco Levato, for "War Rug"

Philip Metres, for Behind the Lines: Poetry, War, & Peacemaking (http://www.behindthelinespoetry.blogspot.com/) and the last chapter of his book, Behind the Lines: War Resistance Poetry on the American Homefront Since 1941.

Wallis Leslie, for pointing out Brian Turner's Here Bullet.

Christopher Leland Winks for pointing out Gloria Frym's collection "Solution Simulacra" and Kent Johnson's collection Lyric Poetry after Auschwitz.

Michael Bibby for emphasizing Brian Turner's Here Bullet, as well as Poets Against the War, and this list itself as an archive of responses.

William at Spineless Books suggested his press's "newspoetry" section, and Rob Halpern's Disaster Suite.

Steve Dalachinsky, for "Beached 2"

Michelle Detorie's for the collection Bellum Letters.

Patrick Dillon, for pointing out Barrett Watten's Bad History (about the first Gulf War), and Eliot Weinberger's What Happened Here, especially the long poem "What I Heard about Iraq."

Rodrigo Toscano's "State & Sensibility," "Improvised Poetics Device (IPD)," "Inaguración" (Inauguration), "Exaltado" (Jumpy), and "Tacitus" and "Cicero" in To Leveling Swerve.

Luke Roberts, for many suggestions of poets and criticism especially in the UK, including an essay by Andrea Brady, "Grief Work in a War Economy."

Thank you everyone!

Dean Brink
(interpoetics.blogspot.com)

↑ Index

176. Alan Sondheim

Fwd: review

Tue 16 Jun 2009

This message is in MIME format. The first part should be readable text, while the remaining parts are likely unreadable without MIME-aware tools.

--0-565215493-1245128810=:229

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Porter Records

Hi guys, here is a review by Thurston Moore form the rock band Sonic Youth...

3. For whatever reason, new jazz/improv disks have not been finding us as regularly as they once did. Maybe we complained about the format too much, and since no one apart from SIWA, QBICO, Eremite and a coupla other places even understand that jazz should be available on LP, it's usually no big deal. But recent car travel has made CDs a somewhat more useful format (at least in the short term), and we got these three new things from the Porter Records label (previously noted for reissuing a few key Philadelphia pieces), and figured they'd ride as well as anything. And they did. Opus de Life by Profound Sound Trio which documents a show from June '08. Saxophonist for the date is Englishman Paul Dunmall, who doubles on bagpipes, and really blows like a maniac. Long mired in my brain as a second tier freebopper, Dunmall presents a much weirder surface here than expected, creating raw melodicism with an almost primitive grace. The rhythm section is Andrew Cyrille and Henry Grimes (Cecil Taylor's legendary Blue Note-era backline). Cyrille sounds as good as always—alternately multi-dimensional and hammy—and Grimes puts in a very solid arco-heavy performance on bass and violin. Had not paid much attention to the rediscovered Grimes, but his work here is fine. Julu Twine by Alan Sondheim and Myk Freedman finds Sondheim's various strings (he's been playing, writing and creating in various fields since the early '60s) paired with Freedman's lap steel to lovely weird effect. Tones get bent so far they curl back on themselves, and eternity's whistle is always just a psychedelic heartbeat away. Sondheim's reactivated musical career has been very interesting to track, and this album's a good one. Not jazz, but good. Even less jazzic is Folkanization by Francesco Giannico. This young Italian electro-acoustic composer in whose work we can hear tendrils of everything from Luigi Nono to Toru Takemitsu. Filled with odd details, the music is fascinating. Good for the car, anyway.

Here is the actual link.

http://www.arthurmag.com/contributors/byron-coley-thurston-moore/

Luke Mosling / PORTER RECORDS

WWW.PORTERRECORDS.COM
Phone: [redacted]

[Non-text portions of this message have been removed]

--0-565215493-1245128810=:229--

↑ Index

177. teersteeg
Re: new collages by Camille Martin
Tue 16 Jun 2009

Attractive arrangements, but far too literary. Try making some pieces where your "symbols" don't stand in for ideas but are non-language based.

regards,
bruno
Cape Cod
----- Original Message -----
From: "Peter" <[redacted]>
To: <[redacted]>
Sent: Monday, June 15, 2009 12:29 PM
Subject: Re: new collages by Camille Martin

> Wonderful Camille, thanks for posting them.
> '
> - Peter Ciccariello

> On Mon, Jun 15, 2009 at 11:07 AM, John Cunningham <
> [redacted]> wrote:
>
> I loved these, Camille. I wish I had your abilities.
> John Herbert Cunningham
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On > Behalf Of Camille Martin
> Sent: June-13-09 5:18 PM
> To: [redacted]
> Subject: new collages by Camille Martin
>
> Hi, new collages can be seen at
>
> http://www.camillemartin.ca/index.php?pr=Collages_15
> http://www.camillemartin.ca/index.php?pr=Collages_16
> http://www.camillemartin.ca/index.php?pr=Collages_17
> http://www.camillemartin.ca/index.php?pr=Collages_18
>
> Camille
>
> guidelines
>
> guidelines
>
> --
> http://invisiblenotes.blogspot.com/
> http://uncommonvision.blogspot.com/
> http://poemsfromprovidence.blogspot.com/
> http://uncommon-vision.blogspot.com/
> You can find my art and writing updates on Twitter
> https://twitter.com/ciccariello

↑ Index

178. mIEKAL aND

Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress

Tue 16 Jun 2009

Another of my favorite outsider visual poets was a man named David Barkus who lived on the streets of Madison in the 80s. Still haven't tracked down what happened to him. He was convinced, among other things, that he was a leprechaun & could speak & write in leprechaunese. For the record, he did have a twinkle in his eyes & unexplained things were certain to happen around him. Xexoxial published his one & only book, basically an anthology of pages from a few of his notebooks. He asked that the book be published under his leprechaun name, Gazaliel, tho no one knew him by that name. I've put up a pdf of the book so more folks could see what he was doing. It's apparent when seeing these pages that he was spontaneously collaging a lot of known alphabets, which I think he had taught himself at some point. I often times saw him writing & not once did I see him copying a script from a book.

http://xexoxial.org/is/philoontosophy/by/gazaliel

~mIEKAL

↑ Index

179. Sam Ladkin
Tom Raworth - Equipage and Salt
Tue 16 Jun 2009

Dear All,

Great news from Rod Mengham of Equipage about the lost now found new (old) Raworth publication - THERE ARE FEW PEOPLE WHO PUT ON ANY CLOTHES (starring it). This sounded terrific in a recent reading.Herein advertised with due mention of the new Salt book of Raworth's prose - Earn Your Milk. Letters from Yaddo and Serial Biography are tremendous works. A good new swathe eh.

NEW PUBLICATION

Tom Raworth

THERE ARE FEW PEOPLE WHO PUT ON ANY CLOTHES (starring it)

A prose work in 23 sections, mislaid for 35 years and then found in an attic, this is a classic Raworth text from the era of Logbook: fast, profound, knockabout, intense, tricky, brainy, daft, those were the days once again…

A5, 28pp (price £4.50 including P&P)
Cheques to ‘Equipage’
c/o Rod Mengham, Jesus College, Cambridge, CB5 8BL

And from Salt - Earn Your Milk.

For the Salt seller see

http://www.saltpublishing.com/books/sml/9781844715084.htm

Main description: Earn Your Milk contains all the uncollected prose works of Tom Raworth, gathering together Letters from Yaddo, The Vein and Letter to Martin Stannard with his uncategorizable prose-work A Serial Biography, an extraordinary assembly memoir and reportage. This invaluable collection now makes widely available work which was previously hard to obtain or long out of print, it will delight fans as well as general readers wanting to discover more about one of the UK's most widely-celebrated poets.

Tom Raworth was born in London just before the Second World War and has done everything wrong since. For half-a-century he has printed, published, translated and written poetry; has occasionally taught in several countries; and has read his own work and performed with other artists all over the world. He has a taste for spicy food from his father's service in Burma and a quick temper from his Irish mother. He is at the moment of no fixed abode. In 2007, in Modena, he was awarded the Antonio Delfini Prize for "lifetime career achievement" though as he remarks "he is not yet dead."

↑ Index

180. Sam Ladkin
Re: Tom Raworth - Equipage and Salt
Tue 16 Jun 2009

Further to the last,

I'm reminded I didn't provide an email address for equipage. Orders to Rod Mengham at

[redacted]

best
s

2009/6/16 Sam Ladkin <[redacted]>:
> Dear All,
>
> Great news from Rod Mengham of Equipage about the lost now found new > (old) Raworth publication - THERE ARE FEW PEOPLE WHO PUT ON ANY > CLOTHES (starring it). This sounded terrific in a recent > reading.Herein advertised with due mention of the new Salt book of > Raworth's prose - Earn Your Milk. Letters from Yaddo and Serial > Biography are tremendous works. A good new swathe eh.
>
>
> NEW PUBLICATION
>

> Tom Raworth
>
> THERE ARE FEW PEOPLE WHO PUT ON ANY CLOTHES (starring it)
>
>
> A prose work in 23 sections, mislaid for 35 years and then found in an > attic, this is a classic Raworth text from the era of Logbook: fast, > profound, knockabout, intense, tricky, brainy, daft, those were the > days once again…
>
> A5, 28pp (price £4.50 including P&P)
> Cheques to 'Equipage'
> c/o Rod Mengham, Jesus College, Cambridge, CB5 8BL
>
>
> And from Salt - Earn Your Milk.
>
> For the Salt seller see
>
> http://www.saltpublishing.com/books/sml/9781844715084.htm
>
> Main description: Earn Your Milk contains all the uncollected prose > works of Tom Raworth, gathering together Letters from Yaddo, The Vein > and Letter to Martin Stannard with his uncategorizable prose-work A > Serial Biography, an extraordinary assembly memoir and reportage. This > invaluable collection now makes widely available work which was > previously hard to obtain or long out of print, it will delight fans > as well as general readers wanting to discover more about one of the > UK's most widely-celebrated poets.
>
> Tom Raworth was born in London just before the Second World War and > has done everything wrong since. For half-a-century he has printed, > published, translated and written poetry; has occasionally taught in > several countries; and has read his own work and performed with other > artists all over the world. He has a taste for spicy food from his > father's service in Burma and a quick temper from his Irish mother. He > is at the moment of no fixed abode. In 2007, in Modena, he was awarded > the Antonio Delfini Prize for "lifetime career achievement" though as > he remarks "he is not yet dead."
>

↑ Index

181. steve russell
Re: Gift Economy
Tue 16 Jun 2009

Camille Paglia in "Sex/Art/& American Culture" wrote about how (to paraphrase) American academics were too easily swayed by French thought, ignoring the richness of pop/American culture. Her argument, not very convincing, although her essay was entertaining.

As for French influence on contemporary American poetry, in as much as people still read Eliot or Wallace Stevens, the influence is at least vaguely felt in the manner Bloom speaks of when he speaks of an "anxiety of influence."

--- On Mon, 6/15/09, David Chirot <[redacted]> wrote:

> From: David Chirot <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: Gift Economy
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Monday, June 15, 2009, 1:23 PM
> Ironically, the attacks--and making > fun of in a nasty way--on the French > "influence" mirror a long standing American popular > tradition of equating
> the French with crazy ideas, moral turpitude, a fey > (vaguely homosexual) > style of speaking and gesturing, and cowardice in war, > insuring their always > needing the US to "save them".
>
> My mom used to point this out to me a lot growing up, > especially when at the > movies.Â In Casablanca, the morally ambiguous > middleman between opposing > sides is Louis (Claude Rains), in the Deer Hunter the > courrputer of > Christopher Walken is French; then of course there's The > French Connection > and Maurice Chevalier sining "I like little girls."Â > (Spoofed by Gerard
> Deparideu in a film in which his American-raised duaghter > has told everyone > that her French father is actually her lover.Immediately
> the French father > is loathed as an overaged lover of possibly underage girls, > who goes about > play8ing piano and singing about hoe he "likes little > girls.)

I remeber that during the buildup of the final months leading to the US Invasion of Iraq, FOX Netwrok had a daily anti-fench/make fun of the French number ofÂ inutes set aside everyday for viewers to join in, like the "Two Minutes of Hate" in orwell's 1984.

Remember how French Fries had to be changed to Liberty Fries!!???? Despite the fact that the Statue of Liberty herself is a gift from France--

I saw also a book called "Our First Enemey"--France!! because "we" as colonials fought them in the French and Indian Wars.

Being from the family of the defeated French and Indians, my mother used to remind me how this defeat of "cowards" who were more into fashion than fighting,Â has been wrapped in the arms of American culture ever since, despite Lafayette and the pardon of Jean Lafitte (the famous pierate)Â for services rendered to the AmericansÂ during the War of 1812.

So--what red blooded American writer of any gender would want to emulate these scum or be caught reading one of their twisted perversion spanwing works?

Don't you know how stupid the French are people cry--they worship Poe and Jerry Lewis!

Depite the occaisonal "fashionable" intrusion of French thought into American acedemia, for the most part American poetry is influeced as Jason wrote--by the Anglo-philsiophers and by previous American writers in the "Modernist" tradition.Â (Charles Olson used the word "postmodern" in a 1950 statement.)

Actually from the too little I have read of more recent American poetry and prose, novels--I would say the biggest influences have been Creative Writing taught in any of the now available manners.

Often one reads a sentence that has been so carefully worked, a phrase in apoem, a line--that has been labored over as a Diamond erging from the rough--and at the end of the phrase so gorgous so compolte so fixed,--
I always looka round expecting to hear clapping--

My guess is that comes from the endless classes, workshops, groups, etc people seem to be willing toÂ undergo-- "wreading expperiments" to produce "experimental poets," solid poem production taught in another place, and over here--"the Duncan Tradition," and there The Spicer radio playing at basebal game--seenon tiv in a bar.

Perhaps these exercises themselves are part of that mystical training in Becoming a Poet in the "Imitation of Christ" enactments of depravity debauchery or simple clean livin and the great karmic Outdoors--that are "guaranteed toÂ PRODUCE THE POWERFUL POET WITHIN YOU--and Heed the Call of the --wild or bar or philsophical discrpancies and so forth--

Has joining Poetry become something akin to joining the Army or a Club Scene inwehcih identity is part of "group formation?"

Who knows??
The main thing above al is don't have anything to do with the French!

> On Tue, Mar 10, 2009 at 9:09 AM, Murat Nemet-Nejat <[redacted]>wrote:
>
> Jason,
>
> Thank you for shedding some light on the matter, > making specific, precise > distinctions, instead of hurling around a bunch of > shibboleths.
>
> Ciao,
>
> Murat
>
> On Mon, Mar 9, 2009 at 10:52 PM, Jason Quackenbush
> <[redacted]>
> wrote:
>
> So because Martin Heidegger was a Nazi the > disenchanted Marxist ideas of > existentialism and post-structuralism were > founded in fascism? It seems > quite clear to me that you haven't read all of > the "French Theorists"
> you're > talking about because you are lumping them > together inappropriately as if > they represent some monolith of ideology that > doesn't exist. Borrowing
> the
> following quote from the wikipedia entry on > postmodernism, Judith Butler
> pointed out that:
> "A number of positions are ascribed to > postmodernism - Discourse is all > there is, as if discourse were some kind of > monistic stuff out of which > all > things are composed; the subject is dead, I can > never say â€œIâ€ again;
> there
> is no reality, only representation. These > characterizations are variously
> imputed to postmodernism or poststructuralism, > which are conflated with

> each > other and sometimes conflated with > deconstruction, and understood as an
> indiscriminate assemblage of French feminism,
> deconstruction, Lacanian
> psychoanalysis, Foucauldian analysis, Rortyâ€™s
> conversationalism, and > cultural studies ... In reality, these movements
> are opposed: Lacanian
> psychoanalysis in France positions itself
> officially against > poststructuralism, that Foucauldian rarely relate
> to Derridideans ...
> Lyotard champions the term, but he cannot be made
> into the example of > what
> all the rest of the purported postmodernists are > doing. Lyotardâ€™s work
> is,
> for instance, seriously at odds with that of > Derrida"
>
> more importantly, looking around at the literary > field of the last 40
> years
> or so I see in prose generally a marginal group
> in the vein of > Gaddis/Pynchon/Barth/Coover/Delillo/Wallace et al
> that is rapidly giving
> way
> to the sort of thing that Michael Chabon is now
> up to where the wild
> craziness of the high postmodernists is replaced
> with a more subtle > emphasis
> on traditional storytelling and the artificiality
> of the publishing
> market > controlled "genres" of fiction. In poetry the > situation is much clearer,
> where there were poets influenced by > philosophers, the most obvious being > the Language poets, many of them are much more > involved in anglo-american > philosophy than you are giving them credit.
> Wittgenstein is an obvious > influence across the board, but probably more > important are John Cage,

Gertrude Stein, and Charles Olson, none of whom were formed in the grips
of anything you might find in the Saussure to Derrida tradition in philosphy you're pointing at. Ted Berrigan was heavily inspired by Whitehead, and Bertrand Russeell is the most widely read philosopher that I'm aware of
for those poets who read philosophy.

All of that aside, by my lights, it still seems to me that contemporary poetry is largely dominated by slam poetry and the sort of MOR
confessionalism that you find in Seamus Heaney, Billy Collins, and their
ilk. ANd frankly the complaints of the reactionary trend to be found in neo-formalism are much more present in the popular consciousness than anything informed by Barthes or other critics
with his commitments.

So really, while there is a great deal of nattering by undergraduates
about poorly understood french philosophers leaking out
of cultural studies
departments, i just don't see all this influence that you're talking about by "French Theorists" and it makes me wonder what it is that you're
reading,
because it's not the same stuff I am.

On Mar 9, 2009, at 1:43 PM, Troy Camplin wrote:

Â I'm sorry that I don't uncritically accept every idea that comes along.
Hold, it, wait, neither do you. You just like what I don't, and dislike
what I do. That doesn't make me a fascist. In fact, you show you don't even know

what a fascist is, with this statement.

The American postmodernist writers were all influenced by such people as Sartre, deBeauvoir, Lacan, Derrida, Barthes, Foucauld, etc. I've read them
all. I like them all. But they have had too much influence over American letters over the last half century, and it will benefit us greatly to come out from under that influence precisely because of the fascist
foundations
of their ideas and works (see Wolin's works on the fascist foundations
of
the postmodernist thinkers in "Heidegger's Children" and "The Seduction
of Unreason" and Argyros' "A Blessed Rage for Order" on Derrida).

The ability to judge ideas or their influence
as bad doesn't make one a fascist. It shows that one is able to think and make critical judgments
based on observation. The attempt to stifle dialogue by throwing around
the word "fascist" to label those with whom you disagree is in fact a fascist
tactic.

Troy Camplin

From: Murat Nemet-Nejat <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Friday, March 6, 2009 4:40:44 PM
Subject: Re: Gift Economy

Troy,

"our art and literature will improve greatly
the minute we stop being influenced by the French theorists."

Why does almost every statement you make must involve the putting down
of another? Are you aware how ridiculous that statements sounds. How much
of American literature, do you thing, is influenced by "French theorists"?
Or
how much of French literature is influence by "French theorists" for
that matter? What is a French theorist anyhow?

To indulge in some name calling myself, are you aware demonizing the other
is the basic mode of Fascist thought, regardless how much libertarian,
you might image, means liberty.

Ciao,

Murat

On Thu, Mar 5, 2009 at 10:36 AM, Troy Camplin
<[redacted]>
wrote:

Â I do believe I can make better judgments than any government
administrator,
yes. Especially if they are working in their capacity of government administrator. Impersonal judgment is no judgment. As for people on the listserv, I believe my judgment is better than some, the same as others,
and

likely worse than a few -- but we are free to have those differences,
that those who agree that my judgments are better or the same as theirs can support my nonprofit, and those who disagree can contribute to one (or start their own) that better reflects their own taste. The point is that such actions would be voluntary.

Personally, I've seen no evidence that France or Canada is turning out superior artists, though I have n o doubt that the French and the French
Canadians certainly think so. I will admit, though, that our art and literature will improve greatly the minute we stop being influenced by
the French theorists.

Troy Camplin

From: FranÃ§ois Luong <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, March 4, 2009 4:23:06
PM
Subject: Re: Gift Economy

The market already drives more than one art form. As many people
Troy,

The market already drives more than one art form. As many people have pointed out, the majority of the music industry is driven by the free
market
at a global level. Is the music industry any more equitable than other government-funded arts? Well, as cris costa pointed out, the only thing

that is successful nowadays are "cheap products, made quickly, sold for a lot
of money," an argument you completely disregarded in your response to her.

You also fail to show how a "nonprofit organization such as yours"
would
be a better way to fund the arts. Are you implying you have better taste
than government administrators and/or anyone else on this listserv? Do I believe that "my" people would be in charge of a government art funding
program?
Certainly not. Even though Canada and France have much better funding programs than the United States, they still have their faults. Does
that mean we should scrap them? Well, they have certainly contributed to Canadian
arts and poetry being more interesting than the majority of US arts.

Finally, many of the programs you are listed had already been enacted before Hitler's rise to power. National health care had for example
been implemented by Bismarck in 1883 (I might be a year or so off) and unemployment compensation in 1927 at the national level. The LÃ¤ndern had their own programs before it was made a federal law.

franÃ§ois luong

_____
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, March 4, 2009 1:42:35 PM
Subject: Re: Gift Economy

Much of the great monuments were in fact made with slave labor? Does that then argue for slave labor for other massive works? Yes, many of our great works of art were government-funded, and government funds come from somebody with power having enough power to take money from weaker people. To me, that argues against that method, no matter how successful it has been in the past. It's not magical thinking to believe there better, non-coercive ways to fund the arts, and that we should try to use and develop those. The market is one way. Nonprofit organizations such as mine are and can be another. Both are highly preferable to the coercive methods of government.

And fascism is indeed a form of socialism -- even if it is corporate socialism. I'm sorry that's an inconvenient fact for everyone here. There are different kinds of socialism, you know -- it doesn't have to be communist in nature. Here is what Hitler's version looked like: he suspended the gold standard, embarked on huge public works programs like Autobahns, protected industry from foreign competition, expanded credit, instituted

jobs programs, bullied the private sector
on prices and production decisions, vastly expanded the military,
enforced capital controls,
instituted family planning, penalized smoking, brought about national health care and unemployment insurance, imposed education standards, and eventually ran huge deficits. In all honesty, it was the kind of economy our government has been actively trying to set up for a while now, though it's been accelerating quite a bit of late..

Those who support government funding of the arts naively think that they will always have their people in charge and that therefore they will be
the ones getting the funding. But you can't count on being in charge in a democratic country -- or even in socialist utopian dictatorship. I prefer
to keep the government out of the arts completely, so there is far less danger
of coercion or censorship -- direct or indirect.

Troy Camplin

From: FranÃ§ois Luong <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, March 3, 2009 11:16:51 AM
Subject: Re: Gift Economy

"The market also allows for persuasion.

People can be educated to learn what is good and what is not good." And who is going to do that education,
Troy? The marketing department? I think we already have such situation.
I
mean, aren't Shakira and Britney Spears more popular because they have
a bigger marketing department than say, New Model Army?

In all seriousness, your argument is based on magical thinking. There
is no
account for naturally occurring taste,
especially in a free market.
What
you base your argument on is, one, that all people are reasonable, two,
that reason will lead them toward goodness.
There are however no evidence
for this assertion, much like there is no evidence for the free market
being able to nurture art as we understand it.
In the contrary, state-funded
art
goes back all the way to the Antiquity.
Who funded the Parthenon, for example? Or Leonardo receiving his funding from Francis I of France? An example of an artistic situation within a free market context? Try Germany
in the 1930s (just because the Nazi have "Socialist" in their name does not make them socialists. Being in the pocket of Mercedes and Krupp proves
it),
with the painters of the Neue Sachlichkeit being persecuted because their art was not marketable to the German populace.

franÃ§ois luong

_____
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Monday, March 2, 2009 12:33:03 PM
Subject: Re: Gift Economy

You only prove my point with such statement. Not that I'm not in agreement
with you that Dogs Playing Poker isn't really what I'm looking for in high
art. What you missed was what came after the comma. The market also allows for persuasion. People can be educated to learn what is good and what
is
not good. The same person who has Dogs Playing Poker in his basement would
be terribly disappointed to find such a work in his museum when he went to visit. There is a difference between what people like in a general sort
of way and what people acknowledge to be great works of art. My wife, for example, thinks that opera is literally
the best way to spend an evening.
But she also listens to Shakira. If you read the rest of my posting,
you will note that I differentiate between what the market does in allowing
for niches and true democracy, where there is a tyranny of the majority. In

that case, one would in fact get Dogs Playing Poker as high art. This is precisely why I'm not a fan of democratic government supporting the arts.

Troy Camplin

From: John Cunningham <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Monday, March 2, 2009 8:50:34 AM
Subject: Re: Gift Economy

Are you kidding, Troy? Only if weÂ want high art to consist of poker playing dogsÂ is the market "the most democratic determiner of artistic merit"!
There are times when democracy is the worst possible determiner. If it had been allowed to determine things, blacks would still be slaves as the Emancipation Proclamation was probably the most hated piece of legislation
ever and popular support was vastly against it.
John Herbert Cunningham

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]]
On Behalf Of Troy Camplin
Sent: March-01-09 2:21 PM
To: [redacted]..BUFFALO.EDU
Subject: Re: Gift Economy

Funny thing is, you're right about the anti-market position. The market
is in fact the most democratic determiner of artistic merit (much to the horror

of the elitists here), while also allowing room for people to have access
to works that fit their own tastes. In a pure democracy, we would only listen
to Britney Spears. Under democratic-government-controlled arts, we
would only listen to music that is inoffensive to everyone (I'm guessing
something along the lines of 50's soft pop rock).
Only in the free market can I
listen
to Franz Ferdinand and Modest Mouse.
Incidentally, one of the reasons
why
I
set up the Emerson Institute was to truly democratize patronage of the
arts
-- in a way that was 100% voluntary.
Equality under the law, yes;
collectivist egalitarianism, no.

Troy Camplin

From: Marcus Bales <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Friday, February 27, 2009 12:15:42
PM
Subject: Re: Gift Economy

The problem with Paul Nelson's objection to Troy's notion that a free market
is a good judge of artistic merit is that it means Paul has put himself in an
untenable position:
he's implicitly arguing that some poems
are better than others, and

that some people
can tell which ones those poems are -- it's an elitist position, one
that
will get him in a lot of trouble if he's not careful, and get him lumped in with Troy as an equality-hater.
Be careful, Paul! You just can't say that some poems are better than others,
or some poets better than others, without getting accused of elitism!

You're not an elitist, are you, Paul?

Marcus

On 26 Feb 2009 at 8:40, Paul Nelson
wrote:

Date sent:Â Â Â Â
Â Thu, 26 Feb 2009 08:40:55 -0800
Send reply to:Â Â Â
"Poetics List (UPenn, UB)"
<[redacted]>
From:Â Â Â Â Â
Â Â Â Â Paul Nelson <[redacted]>
Subject:Â Â Â Â
Â Â Re: Gift Economy
To:Â Â Â Â Â
Â Â Â [redacted]

Â Like most of your arguments, you base your stand on a false dich
Troy,

Like most of your arguments, you base
your stand on a false
dichotomy. You say if it is not FREE MARKET, it is GOVERNMENT. I was only responding to your notion that the Free Market is a good judge of artistic quality. I find that laughable, which is why I have responded in what I thought was a humorous manner.

What is lost in the dialog is the notion of poetry (hey, we can actually get it back to what the LIST is about) poetry is part of the gift economy.

from Wikipedia:

A gift economy is a social theory[1] in which goods and services are given without any explicit agreement for immediate or future quid pro quo.
Ideally simultaneous or recurring giving serves to circulate and redistribute valuables within a community. This can be considered a form of reciprocal altruism.
The concept of a gift economy stands in contrast to a planned economy or a market or barter economy.
In a planned economy, goods and services are distributed by explicit command and control rather than informal custom; in barter or market economies, an explicit quid pro quo - an exchange of money or some other commodity - is established before the transaction takes place.

Other cultures (& ours, to some degree, in years past) had a different idea of the poet's role in society. Paz and Neruda as Ambassadors, for example. Most industrial democracies have social safety nets allowing an artist to live a decent life without becoming a corporate puppet, but not ours.

I'd like nothing more than a drastic reduction in Federal Spending, starting with the outlays for militarism:

Again Wiki:

As of 2009, the United States government is spending about $1 trillion annually on defense-related purposes.

Imagine $1B of that going to fund doctors and nurses in underserved areas. Imagine a new (old) way of structuring economies on a bioregional (sustainable) basis. The Federal Government becomes much less of a factor which, it seems to me, is the common ground you and I have. But when you make fauty premises such as the GOVERNMENT vs FREE MARKET, little light is generated.

Charles Olson, William Carlos Williams and others had some inkling about the importance of the local, hence The Maximus Poems and Paterson. This, to me, is the link between the discusson of Free Markets vs Government intervention and POETICS is, in theory anyway, the mission of this listserv. May it be so.

Paul

Â Paul E. Nelson

Global Voices Radio

SPLAB!
American Sentences
Organic Poetry
Poetry Postcard Blog

Ilalqo, WA 253..[redacted]

_____
From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Tuesday, February 24, 2009 5:48:27 PM
Subject: Re: The Market recognizes talent!

Now there's a fundamentalist statement: "the opposite may be true." The market sometimes recognizes talent, sometimes not. It is an imperfect arbiter of taste. What it does do, though, is allow for a wide variety of options. The government does not give you options. It is a monopoly. You get what they give you, or nothing. Don't like government-brand corn? Too bad. Don't like the government-brand car? Too bad. Don't like government-brand art? AH, but there's the rub, isn't it? Nobody here wants to believe there will be government-brand art. Except that the government simply cannot support everyone who says they are an artist. There must be someone deciding who gets supported. Who is that going to be? You? I don't think so. Me? Don't think so. This year it may be someone with whom you agree; next year it may be someone with whom you never agree. Or should there be a democratic vote? Do you really want art by democratic vote? How many here write anything a democratic majority would want to read? Perhaps a committee? Similar problems arise, just on a smaller scale. In fact, it has the problems of both situations. How,

then, is funding to be determined?
How much funding? To whom will funding go? The safe bet would be to give it to those who are already successful -- but then, if they are already successful, why do they need government funding? And if they are not successful, how does the government determine who to give funding to, who to support? Based on production? Well, then, what prevents us from having cheaters, who will produce just enough really bad art to get the funding just so they don't have to go get a "real" job? I think about all these things and look at the history of government support for the arts
and cannot come to any other conclusion that government funding for the arts is bad for the arts..

Troy Camplin

From: Paul Nelson <[redacted]..COM>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Sunday, February 22, 2009
3:23:54 PM
Subject: Re: The Market recognizes
talent!

From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Friday, February 20, 2009
1:14:23 PM
Subject: Re: The Market recognizes

talent!

One can always point to people who in your opinion (and, with this
list,
mine) are at best embarrassing.
However, one can also point to the fact that Picasso, Monet, and Jasper Johns were all made wealthy during their lifetimes. I may not like Britney Spears, but I'm also not going to deprive anyone of her, either, if that's what they like. If you want
to try to educate people to have better taste, that's fine and good
--
but there's no evidence the government is good at educating people
in math and reading, let alone good taste. I love how you people have
to purposefully ignore facts to make your points. Throw up a few straw
men
(and women, in this case) to try to make a "point."

Troy Camplin

I prefer the phrase "People of Straw"
but I don't use the market as
any guide to quality in the arts. In fact, the opposite may be true,
but when you're a fundamentalist, you say funny things, eh?
Paul E. Nelson

Global Voices Radio
SPLAB!
American Sentences
Organic Poetry

Poetry Postcard Blog

Ilalqo, WA [redacted]

--
No virus found in this incoming message.
Checked by AVG.
Version: 7.5.557 / Virus Database: 270..11.3 - Release Date: 2/22/2009 12:00 AM

not accept all posts. Check guidelines

not accept all posts. Check guidelines

not accept all posts.. Check welcome..html

not accept all posts.. Check welcome..html

not accept all posts. Check guidelines

not accept all posts. Check guidelines

> not accept all posts. Check guidelines
>
> not accept all posts. Check guidelines
>
> accept all posts. Check
>
> accept all posts. Check
>
> Jason Quackenbush
> [redacted]
>
> accept all posts. Check guidelines
>
> all posts. Check guidelines

↑ Index

182. Evan Munday

Jeramy Dodds wins Trillium Book Award for Poetry!

Tue 16 Jun 2009

Hello everyone,

Some excellent news:

June 16 – Jeramy Dodds wins Trillium Book Award for Poetry! Debut poetry collection, also shortlisted for the Griffin Prize, tops year’s Ontario poetry titles Jeramy Dodds’s debut poetry collection, Crabwise to the Hounds, was announced the winner of the Trillium Book Award for Poetry. The Honourable Aileen Carroll, Ontario Minister of Culture, announced the winners of the 22nd Trillium Book Awards in Toronto earlier today at a luncheon at the Park Hyatt. As winner of the Trillium Book Award for Poetry, Dodds receives $10,000 and joins fellow Trilllium winners Pasha Malla, Marguerite Andersen and Paul Prud'homme.

The full list of Trillium winners can be found at http://www.quillandquire.com/blog/index.php/2009/06/16/malla-andersen-dodds-and-prudhomme-win-trillium-book-awards/ . Dodds will be in the Toronto area until June 23rd (when he returns to Fredericton). But he returns on July 13th to read on the mainstage at the popular Scream in High Park, the cornerstone of the summer's Scream Literary Festival (http://www.thescream.ca).

About Crabwise to the Hounds:

With cameos by jackalopes, Glenn Gould, homemade spaceships and Carl Linnaeus, these poems are astonishing for their technical agility and their restless inventiveness. There's an elegance here that matches Dodds's impulse to challenge the reader with fresh metaphor and remarkable phrasing; the formal ambitions of many of the poems in Crabwise to the Hounds are balanced by an inclination toward wordplay and bright musicality.

Humorous at times, yet always handled with consummate craft, these poems invoke historical figures like Hiram Bingham and Ho Chi Minh even as they traverse a poetic landscape that includes telephone-game- style translations, interpretive-dance poems on historic paintings and carnivalesque jaunts into a natural world overrun with mules, Alsatians, lions and motorcycle-sized deer.

Praise for Crabwise to the Hounds:

'The most exciting Canadian debut this year, hands down.' – The Poetry Foundation

'There is a cyclonic lexical energy here, deep intelligence, and a serious commitment to craft. His poems build and infold all at once, and opposing forces create incredible tension in them: the reader's mouth, open in awe, next barks a disbelieving laugh.' – Griffin Prize jury citation

'Crabwise to the Hounds is akin to having your room lit up by sheet lightning … [I]n this poet's hands language itself is a musical instrument, capable of an entertaining variety of sounds, tones and tempos.' – Toronto Star

'Most remarkable about Dodds's writing is its resourcefulness and versatility … his poems resonate physically with cunningly crafted language while they successfully amuse the intellect. He balances form, content, entertainment and ingenuity without giving any indication that any ingredient is more or less important than the others.' – Globe and Mail

Jeramy Dodds was born and raised in Orono, Ontario, and currently lives in Fredericton. His poems have been translated into Finnish, French, Latvian, Swedish, German and Icelandic. In 2007 he held a residency at the Baltic Centre for Writers and Translators on the island of Gotland, Sweden. He is the winner of the 2006 Bronwen Wallace Memorial Award and the 2007 CBC Literary Award in poetry. He has worked as a research archaeologist and co-edits for littlefishcartpress. He currently teaches creative writing at the University of New Brunswick.

crabwise to the hounds • jeramy dodds • october 2008 • 72 pp. • $16.95 cdn • isbn 1 55245 205 0

For review copies or media requests, contact Evan Munday at [redacted] or [redacted].

All the best,

Evan

Evan Munday
Publicist
Coach House Books
401 Huron St. (rear) on bpNichol Lane
Toronto ON, M5S 2G5
[redacted]
[redacted]

↑ Index

183. Camille Martin
Re: new collages by Camille Martin
Tue 16 Jun 2009

Thanks, John and Peter, for the kind words about the collages.

And to anyone interested in collage: I received a copy of Keith Waldrop's book of poems and collages, Several Gravities, and it is fabulous - highly recommended: http://www.sigliopress.com/books/gravities.htm

And I can't wait to receive Peter Ciccariello's book of digital art, Uncommon Vision, just ordered: http://uncommon-vision.blogspot.com/

Cheers,
Camille

_____
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [[redacted]] On Behalf Of John Cunningham [[redacted]]
Sent: Monday, June 15, 2009 11:07 AM
To: [redacted]
Subject: Re: new collages by Camille Martin

I loved these, Camille. I wish I had your abilities.
John Herbert Cunningham

-----Original Message-----
From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB) [mailto:[redacted]] On Behalf Of Camille Martin
Sent: June-13-09 5:18 PM
To: [redacted]
Subject: new collages by Camille Martin

Hi, new collages can be seen at

http://www.camillemartin.ca/index.php?pr=Collages_15
http://www.camillemartin.ca/index.php?pr=Collages_16
http://www.camillemartin.ca/index.php?pr=Collages_17
http://www.camillemartin.ca/index.php?pr=Collages_18

Camille

↑ Index

184. PJ
from east to west, summer '09 is live (& submission call)
Tue 16 Jun 2009

Live! Summer '09 edition of from east to west: bicoastal verse (http://www.geocities.com/pj_nights) with featured poets, John Bennett, Brion Berkshire, Peter Cicariello & Vernon Frazer, featured artists, Nancy Buckley, Jim Fuess, Jessy Kendall & Laurie Proctor-Lefebvre, & "found & cut-up" poets, Ching-In Chen, Barbara B. Feehrer, Jeff Harrison, Christopher Hildebrand, Tasha Klein, Jim Knowles, Gary Lehman, Tony Leuzzi, Kirsty Logan, Christina Lovin, Ben Nardolilli, Keith Perkins & Amber Troy.

As always, you having various viewing options. Click "current issue" on our front page to find them. Clicking the cover allows you to view online. Clicking "Lulu.com" sends you to Lulu (surprise!) where you can download a free .pdf or purchase a printed copy (note that this option is provided because some of you asked - east/west does not make a profit from this). Also, the direct link to the Issuu version is as follows:
http://issuu.com/pjnights/docs/from_east_to_west_summer09. A pdf can be downloaded from there as well.

Please note our submission call for fall (nice ring to that) on the east/west website. Our themed section has no theme except you should be willing to send both a printed and audio version. Our Fall '09 issue will have an accompanying CD! Our submission call web page has a link to "Audacity", a free, multiplatform recording software

Thanks to all of you for your continuing support of our endeavors.

PJ Nights
Ray Sweatman
from east to west: bicoastal verse

↑ Index

185. Troy Camplin
Diaphysics
Tue 16 Jun 2009

I am please to announce that my book, Diaphysics, a work on systems philosophy (which does have everything to do with poetry, as readers will see), is now available through Amazon and Barnesandnoble.com

Troy Camplin, Ph.D.

↑ Index

186. Christophe Casamassima
New Repurposed Journals from RePsychAll
Tue 16 Jun 2009

Please visit my new site at http://www.etsy.com/shop.php?user_id=7546923. The library has given me about 200 books with which I will make repurposed journals. I have about 30 completed, which are available on the site.

If you have any questions, please write me at [redacted]

Christophe Casamassima

--
Powered By Outblaze

↑ Index

187. Chicago Review
 New issue of CHICAGO REVIEW ***
Tue 16 Jun 2009

CHICAGO REVIEW is pleased to announce the pub li ca tion of issue 54:4, featuring:

POETRY by Anne Carson, Saskia Hamilton, Tomaž Šalamun, Peter Streck fus, Jee Young Lee, Rusty Mor ri son, and Eliz a beth Willis

FIC TION by Michael Mar tone, Made line ffitch, and Juan Filloy

ESSAYS by Susan Howe and John Matthias

& REVIEWS of Robert Cree ley, Devin John ston, Kent John son, African Amer i can poetry antholo gies, and Alis tair McCartney.

***

To order or sub scribe, visit:

http://humanities.uchicago.edu/orgs/review/and enter coupon code ALICE for a dis count

***

CHICAGO REVIEW
5801 South Kenwood
Chicago, IL 60637
http://humanities.uchicago.edu/review

↑ Index

188. Maria Damon

Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress

Tue 16 Jun 2009

Amus Mor.

Ruth Lepson wrote:
> check out henry grimes, great old jazz musician, who has written over 90
> books of poetry--lives in NYC now.
>
> Ruth
>
>
> On 6/15/09 10:52 AM, "mIEKAL aND" <[redacted]> wrote:
>
>
>> Best outsider poet I know is Malok. Never read a poem in his life, in & out >> of mental hospitals in the late 70s (once for trying to take over a naval >> carrier), on the dole, hermit, curmudgeon, divinely inspired by Charles >> Bronson... You can real a lot of his work at
>>
>> http://malok.org
>>
>> Also new recordings soon out of his reading of F*ck Dirge & of C*nt Utters >> produced by Foist. Also a full length documentary of Malok by Camille Bacos
>> is in the works.

>>
>> ~mIEKAL
>>
>>
>>
>> On Sat, Jun 13, 2009 at 7:43 PM, Jerome Rothenberg <[redacted]>wrote:
>>
>>
>>> For those who might be interested, my current posting on Poems & Poetics ( >>> poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com) is the first installment of Outsider Poems, >>> a mini-anthology in progress. What I'm hoping to do here is to work in >>> public while assembling material toward a gathering of poems & near-poems >>> from anywhere/anytime that exist in literate societies but outside of the >>> normative literary nexus. I'll be developing the project - as far as I can >>> take it - with a sense that the term "outsider poetry" can cover a wide >>> range of sources & possibilities, from art brut & mystical/religious poems & >>> offerings to folk & working class poetry, sermons & rants, glossolalia &
>>> glossographia, dialect & "nation language" (K. Brathwaite), & so on - works >>> in short both written & oral. In doing so, as with Poems for the >>> Millennium, I'll be open to suggestions from anyone out there, both >>> definitional or theoretical ones for "outsider poetry" in general and >>> specific ones for the selection of poems & poets. I don't for the moment >>> know exactly where this is taking me, but that's the pleasure & mystery of >>> any new beginning.
>>>
>>
>
>

↑ Index

189. steve dalachinsky

Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress

Wed 17 Jun 2009

---

i know henry well 90 books??? where'd that figure come from

On Mon, 15 Jun 2009 20:40:18 -0400 Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
writes:
> check out henry grimes, great old jazz musician, who has written over > 90

> books of poetry--lives in NYC now.
>
> Ruth
>
>
> On 6/15/09 10:52 AM, "mIEKAL aND" <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> > Best outsider poet I know is Malok. Never read a poem in his > life, in & out > > of mental hospitals in the late 70s (once for trying to take over > a naval > > carrier), on the dole, hermit, curmudgeon, divinely inspired by > Charles
> > Bronson... You can real a lot of his work at
> >
> > http://malok.org
> >
> > Also new recordings soon out of his reading of F*ck Dirge & of > C*nt Utters > > produced by Foist. Also a full length documentary of Malok by > Camille Bacos
> > is in the works.
> >
> > ~mIEKAL
> >
> >
> >
> > On Sat, Jun 13, 2009 at 7:43 PM, Jerome Rothenberg
> <[redacted]>wrote:
> >
> >> For those who might be interested, my current posting on Poems & > Poetics (
> >> poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com) is the first installment of > Outsider Poems,
> >> a mini-anthology in progress. What I'm hoping to do here is to > work in > >> public while assembling material toward a gathering of poems & > near-poems
> >> from anywhere/anytime that exist in literate societies but > outside of the > >> normative literary nexus. I'll be developing the project - as > far as I can > >> take it - with a sense that the term "outsider poetry" can cover > a wide > >> range of sources & possibilities, from art brut &

> mystical/religious poems & > >> offerings to folk & working class poetry, sermons & rants,
> glossolalia &
> >> glossographia, dialect & "nation language" (K. Brathwaite), & so > on - works > >> in short both written & oral. In doing so, as with Poems for
> the > >> Millennium, I'll be open to suggestions from anyone out there, > both > >> definitional or theoretical ones for "outsider poetry" in general
> and > >> specific ones for the selection of poems & poets. I don't for the > moment
> >> know exactly where this is taking me, but that's the pleasure & > mystery of
> >> any new beginning.
> >
> guidelines &
>
>
>

↑ Index

190. Maria Damon

Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress

Wed 17 Jun 2009

---

interesting: gazaliel sounds like a hebrew angel-name, not a celtic name at all. but whatever. i want that book!

mIEKAL aND wrote:
> Another of my favorite outsider visual poets was a man named David > Barkus who lived on the streets of Madison in the 80s. Still haven't > tracked down what happened to him. He was convinced, among other > things, that he was a leprechaun & could speak & write in > leprechaunese. For the record, he did have a twinkle in his eyes & > unexplained things were certain to happen around him. Xexoxial > published his one & only book, basically an anthology of pages from a > few of his notebooks. He asked that the book be published under his > leprechaun name, Gazaliel, tho no one knew him by that name. I've put > up a pdf of the book so more folks could see what he was doing. It's > apparent when seeing these pages that he was spontaneously collaging a > lot of known alphabets, which I think he had taught himself at some > point. I often times saw him writing & not once did I see him copying > a script from a book.

>
> http://xexoxial.org/is/philoontosophy/by/gazaliel
>
> ~mIEKAL
>

↑ Index

191. newmystics.com

June update for www.newmystics.com

Wed 17 Jun 2009

---

www.newmystics.com, an art an literary site, is please to announce its June update:

Poetry by Jean-Marie Avril, Steve Dalachinsky, and Yuko Otomo

"Brew," a short story by Salvatore Buttaci

Book 4 of Ed Baker's "Neighbors"

Ed Baker is also the spotlight artist of the month at www.newmysticscommunity.com newmystics.com accepts submissions in all forms of literary and visual arts on an ongoing basis. See our Submissions section for details.

Visit www.newmysticsreviews.blogspot.com for recent reviews of works by Ed Baker, Eileen Tabios, Jean Vengua, and Letterhead, Volume 2, an anthology published by Highest Hurdle Press. Forthcoming poetry reviews include Vernon Frazer's Improvisations.

↑ Index

192. David Kirschenbaum

Exhibit at Boog Fest's Small, Small Press Fair

Wed 17 Jun 2009

Greetings,

Boog City would like to invite you to exhibit at our 6th annual small, small press fair (with indie records and crafts, too).

For the first time the fair will span two days, Sat. Sept. 12-Sun. Sept. 13, and will be held at a new location, Brooklyn's Unnameable Books (600 Vanderbilt Ave.) in their backyard. The fair will take place during the final two days of the 3rd annual Welcome to Boog City poetry and music festival.

The fair will open on Saturday with two-and-a-half hours of performances by authors from each of the tablers.

Tables are $30 for the fair, $20 dollars if you bring your own bridge table (of up to 3' x 3') with a portion of the proceeds going to help Unnameable Books. Reservations made by July 1st will receive a $5 dollar discount. That, combined with bringing your own table, can bring your cost to as low as $15 dollars for the whole weekend.

This year's fair will also have a web component that's designed to display some of the exhibitors' handiwork online. The hope is to reach a broader audience who can receive information about purchasing books, as well as offerings from our non-printed matter exhibitors.

Door charge for attendees is by donation.

Please email Gary Parrish, who will be curating the fair, to reserve your table and schedule your reader. We look forward to the fair once again being a warm gathering with wonderful books, poetry, music, and other items from around our creative community.

You can reach Gary by emailing [redacted].

This year's fair will feature a barbecue from our good friends at Unnameable, as well as readings, musical performances, poets in conversation, and a lively panel. Listed below this note is the schedule at present.

as ever,
David

P.S. Apologies if you received more than one copy of this email.

The weekend will include:

Readings from:

Ammiel Alcalay
Cristiana Baik
Anselm Berrigan
Cori Copp
Shanna Compton
Brenda Coultas
Mike County

Buck Downs
Jim Dunn
Eric Gelsinger
Danielle Le Gros Georges
Hailey Higdon
Paolo Javier
Paul Foster Johnson
Basil King
Martha King
Brendan Lorber
Justin Marks
Tracey McTague
Ryan Murphy
Jean-Paul Pecqueur
Nick Piombino
Joanna Sondheim
Ryan Walker
Dana Ward
Lewis Warsh
Dan Wilcox
Sara Wintz
Angela Veronica Wong
Katie Yates

Anselm Berrigan in conversation with Buck Downs

A discussion on politics, community, and poetics curated and moderated by longtime Boog contributor Greg Fuchs

And musical performances by:

Dorit
Gracefully
Phoebe Kreutz
Jesse Schoen
Alan Semerdjian

--
David A. Kirschenbaum, editor and publisher
Boog City
330 W. 28th St., Suite 6H
NY, NY 10001-4754
For event and publication information:
http://welcometoboogcity.com/
T: (212) 842-BOOG (2664)

↑ Index

193. David-Baptiste Chirot

This Weekend: Redletter, Gallery Talk, & Small Press Focus

Wed 17 Jun 2009

---

t

Woodland Pattern E-News!http://www.woodlandpattern.org/_____ _____

JUNE

EVENTS:==========EVENTSFri. 6/19: Redletter & Open Mic feat. Julie Strand & Kristy Bowen; 7pmSat. 6/20: Gallery Talk with Jeff Clark, Devin Johnston, & Michael O'Leary; 2pmSat. 6/20: Small Press Focus: Flood Editions Reading with Jeff Clark, Devin Johnston, & Michael O'Leary; 7pm WORKSHOPS5/22 - 7/19: Creativity & Aging Residency with Jack ColomJune 2 – July 16: Jack Collom Workshop Series at the Wilson Park Senior Center;
1pm-3pm==========

==========FRIDAY, JUNE 19: REDLETTER WITH JULIE STRAND & KRSITY BOWEN; 7PM========== Redletter Reading @ Open Mic featuring Julie Strand & Kristy Bowen Friday, June 19, 2009; 7pm ($3/$2 open mic)Woodland Pattern Book Center720 East Locust StreetMilwaukee, WI 53212 Julie Strand is the Education Coordinator at Woodland Pattern Book Center. Her poetry has appeared in Wicked Alice, Arsenic Lobster, WOMB Poetry, Rock Heals (A Narrow House Weekly) and others. In 2008, her poem "Neon Yellow" was nominated for a Pushcart Prize. Her second chapbook, The Mae West Defense, is forthcoming in 2009 from Dancing Girl Press. http://www.woodlandpattern.org/poems/julie_strand01.shtml Kristy Bowen is the author of in the bird museum (Dusie Press, 2008) and the fever almanac (Ghost Road Press, 2006). She is the editor of dancing girl press, devoted to publishing work by emerging women poets. She lives and writes in Chicago. http://www.woodlandpattern.org/

==========SATURDAY, JUNE 20: GALLERY TALK & SMALL PRESS FOCUS========== Gallery Talk with Jeff Clark, Devin Johnston, Michael O'Leary Saturday, June 20, 2009; 2pm (FREE)Woodland Pattern Book Center720 East Locust StreetMilwaukee, WI 53212 Devin Johnston, Michael O’Leary, and Jeff Clark will discuss their work with Flood Editions, an independent publishing house. Their conversation will focus on the origins of the press, its editorial focus, and its design aesthetics. Established in 2001, Flood Editions is an independent publishing house for poetry and short fiction based in Chicago. They publish four or five titles each year, including first books, volumes by established writers, and reprints. Forthcoming books include Fanny Howe’s novella What Did I Do Wrong?, William Wylie's As the Crow Flies, a book of photographs; and Graham Foust's A Mouth in California, a volume of poetry.

READINGSmall Press Focus and Flood Editions Reading with Jeff Clark, Devin Johnston, Michael O'LearySaturday, June 20, 2009; 7pm ($8/$7/$6)Woodland Pattern Book Center720 East Locust StreetMilwaukee, WI 53212 Jeff Clark was born in southern California in 1971. He went to Iowa for poetry, then moved to San Francisco and Oakland. Clark currently does book design as Quemadura, after eleven years with Oakland design studio Wilsted & Taylor. His own books are The Little Door Slides Back (Sun and Moon, 1997; reprint FSG, 2004), Music and Suicide (FSG, 2004), and 2A (Quemadura, 2006), written in collaboration with Geoffrey G. O'Brien. He lives in Ypsilanti, Michigan, with his partner, the poet Christine Hume, and their daughter, Juna Hume Clark. Michael O'Leary is the co-editor ofFlood Editions and he works as a structuralengineer in Chicago. Devin Johnston is the author of three books of poetry, including Sources (Turtle Point Press, 2008). Creaturely and Other Essays, reflections on the natural world, is forthcoming from Turtle Point Press in 2009. His book of criticism, Precipitations: Contemporary American Poetry as Occult Practice, appeared from Wesleyan University Press in 2002. With Michael O’Leary, he directs Flood Editions, an independent and nonprofit press for poetry. He teaches at Saint Louis University.
http://www.woodlandpattern.org/
==========Follow us on Twitter:
http://www.twitter.com/woodlandpatternWe're also on Facebook and MySpace!
========== To receive regular messages notifying you of Woodland Patternevents, send a message to us at [redacted] with"Join E-

List" in the subject line. To unsubscribe from these mailings send a reply with "unsubscribe"in the subject line. PLEASE FORWARD! THANKS!!!

http://www.woodlandpattern.org/

Woodland Pattern Book Center

720 E. Locust Street

Milwaukee, WI 53212

phone [redacted]

_____ Bing™ brings you maps, menus, and reviews organized in one place. Try it now. http://www.bing.com/search?q=restaurants&form=MLOGEN&publ=WLHMTAG&crea=TEXT_MLOGEN_Core_tagline_local_1x1

↑ Index

194. steve russell

Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress

Thu 18 Jun 2009

---

also, check out Denis Johnson's (author Jesus's son) collected poems. It's about an outsider, a janitor who worked for the Musuem of American Art in Washington, D.C., an artist/janitor ... beatiful work. As much as I enjoy DJ's novels, his poetry is at least as good.

--- On Mon, 6/15/09, Ruth Lepson <[redacted]> wrote:

> From: Ruth Lepson <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Monday, June 15, 2009, 8:40 PM
> check out henry grimes, great old > jazz musician, who has written over 90
> books of poetry--lives in NYC now.
>
> Ruth
>
> On 6/15/09 10:52 AM, "mIEKAL aND" <[redacted]>
> wrote:
>
> Best outsider poet I know is Malok. Never read a > poem in his life, in & out > of mental hospitals in the late 70s (once for trying > to take over a naval > carrier), on the dole, hermit, curmudgeon, divinely

inspired by Charles Bronson... You can real a lot of his work at

http://malok.org

*Also new recordings soon out of his reading of F*ck*
*Dirge & of C*nt Utters* produced by Foist. Also a full length documentary of Malok by Camille Bacos is in the works.

~mIEKAL

On Sat, Jun 13, 2009 at 7:43 PM, Jerome Rothenberg
<[redacted]>wrote:

For those who might be interested, my current posting on Poems & Poetics ( poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com) is the first installment of Outsider Poems, a mini-anthology in progress. What I'm hoping to do here is to work in public while assembling material toward a gathering of poems & near-poems from anywhere/anytime that exist in literate societies but outside of the normative literary nexus. I'll be developing the project - as far as I can take it - with a sense that the term "outsider poetry" can cover a wide range of sources & possibilities, from art brut & mystical/religious poems & offerings to folk & working class poetry, sermons & rants, glossolalia & glossographia, dialect & "nation language" (K.
Brathwaite), & so on - works in short both written & oral. In doing so, as with Poems for the Millennium, I'll be open to suggestions from anyone out there, both definitional or theoretical ones for "outsider poetry" in general and specific ones for the selection of poems & poets. I don't for the moment know exactly where this is taking me, but that's the pleasure & mystery of > any new beginning.

>
> all posts. Check guidelines &

↑ Index

195. { brad brace }

17 new pleated plaid pamphlets published!

Thu 18 Jun 2009

---

004 Rank Abuse Rank and Fashion Roadside Rubble
005 Rapid Cellular Proliferation Rapid Circuit Roar of Breakers
006 Rapid Glance Rapid Rate Roared Forth
007 Rapid Readings Rapid Response Roaring Streams
008 Rapid Russian Rapid Strides Roasted River Horse
009 Rapidly Reverted Rapidly Risen Roasted Toasted
010 Robbed Blind Robed Investiture Rock Calm
011 Rock Ridge Rocket Fins Rockhampton Ebony
012 Rapt Affection Rapt Attention Rapt Bemusement
013 Rapt Fury Rapt Intensity Rapt Stance
014 Rapturous Exclamation Rare Art Rare Bird Rare Distinction
015 Rare Elation Rare Explicit Clarity Rare Felicity Rare Forays
016 Rare Gas Molecules Rare Holism Rosy Flesh
017 Rare Intervals Rare Lapse Rosy Gleam
018 Rare Occasions Rare Pageant Rosy Goddess
019 Rare Realms Rare Recordings Rosy Hues
020 Rattle Trap Ravaged Bosoms Rotgut Swill

17 new pleated plaid pamphlets published!

{ brad brace }

> Pleated Plaid Pamphlets
> Volume 004-020
> [accompaniment to insatiable abstraction engine]
>
> http://bbrace.laughingsquid.net/abstraction-engine.html
> http://www.bbrace.net/abstraction-engine.html
> [redacted]

brad brace, bbrace, architecture, poetry, engineering, biography, memoir, illustration, map, creative, writing, drama, opera, puzzles, games, samizdat, artists' books, poetry, fluxus, contemporary, art, design, fiction,musical

ppp004
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-004/7295881
ppp005
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-005/7295899
ppp006
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-006/7295910
ppp007
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-007/7295923
ppp008
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-008/7295935
ppp009
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-009/7295943
ppp010
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-010/7295951
ppp011
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-011/7295964
ppp012
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-012/7295980
ppp013
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-013/7295991
ppp014
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-014/7296001
ppp015
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-015/7296017
ppp016
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-016/7296033
ppp017
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-017/7296050
ppp018
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-018/7296075
ppp019
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-019/7296087
ppp020
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-020/7296108

↑ Index

196. Nico Vassilakis
PROTRACTED TYPE: a collection of visual poetry
Thu 18 Jun 2009

PROTRACTED TYPE: a collection of visual poetry.

270 pages, Blue Lion Books, 2009

reviewers or the financially demur or the merely curious can find a free download.

or purchase the very handsome book.

http://www.lulu.com/content/paperback-book/protracted-type/6845937 blurbs?

In Protracted Type, Nico Vassilakis provides us with a stunning and extensive survey of the impressive variety of his visual and conceptual work with language over the past several years. The book is punctuated with thoughtful statements about the nature of creating that work, of “finding your aleatoric self among the pencils”; i.e., coming to grips with the paradox of working subconsciously with language which is generally experienced as a conscious medium. In one of his statements he describes his creative process as a kind of disassociation: “I let my brain do the thinking. I watch it think for me…it makes the associations…maybe my brain thinks I’m staring and is piecing the puzzle together for me.” This is an excellent description of the creative process at its best. Vassilakis has explored the possibilities of visual poetry from the outer limits of the purely letteral to the purely graphic, and the results are consistently stimulating and resonant: from enlarged and manipulated photos of typewriter keys and printed letters, to collaged cut-ups, to glyphic drawings, to concrete poetry, to photocopier artifacts, Vassilakis has given us a tour-de-force of styles and approaches. This is an essential work, and would be a bargain at three times the price.

John M. Bennett

the formula states, “a picture equals a thousand words.” what, then, is the formula when the image is itself language? and, that the language ranges from its initial formation slowly congealing afloat in the willful stage of conscious intent to its full and robust compositional form as a typographic-scape on a page? to approach this collection, think first of a landscape artist’s precise use of topographic perspective at the marco level and the same artist as a still life painter at the micro level rendering the sensual curve of an apple in a tree within the macro-scape. then, transfer your trained eye and esthetic process onto and into vassilakis’ typographic-scapes and typographic-stills to wander with delight and wonder within one of the most comprehensive, serious and playful overviews and inner views of type and font with accents by hand to date.

karl kempton

A tour de force through visual poetry, Protracted Type is a place where, according to the author, "letters are vulnerable and cant always stand on their own." Within, our thoughts become interlaced with Vassilakis's perception of visual poetry from minimal to maximal with letters ranging from typewriter and digital through handwritten, shorthand, and altered text, text sometimes so overlayed as to become asemic. This is a thoroughly enjoyable and beautiful book.

Kathy Ernst

It’s drizzling on Admiral Way. Cigarette smoke trailing through his black hair, the Captain stands stock-still at the window, his sea legs steady, framed by the world he’s framing. He sees this series of black and white visual poems–and these poems are seen, composed, more than they are written–particulates, letters, phrases, fields of words before and after they construct their meaning, some sharp, some fuzzy, some slipping over the edge. At the center point of the glass, where inside and outside are indivisible, these poems fuse, the Captain’s eyes seizing–seized by–the world he perceives. At the very instant of our dissembling, he nods, our language comes together.

Crag Hill

thanks for your time,

n

_____ Lauren found her dream laptop. Find the PC that’s right for you. http://www.microsoft.com/windows/choosepc/?ocid=ftp_val_wl_290

↑ Index

197. Aldon Nielsen

Currently on the HEATSTRINGS BLOG

Thu 18 Jun 2009

Our new feature, ASK NIELSEN, explains the Republican position on a public option. Also: a poem for David Bromige, photos from the American Literature Association, and so on . . . http://heatstrings.blogspot.com

--
Aldon L. Nielsen
Kelly Professor of American Literature
The Pennsylvania State University

sailing the blogosphere at http://heatstrings.blogspot.com

"The practical application of the rule of 'If you read me, I'll read you' is such an important advance for the Republic of Letters that I think it should appear, as a mandatory precept, in the first article of its Constitution" -- Juan Goytisolo

↑ Index

198. Maria Damon
Poetry and Cultural Studies: A Reader
Thu 18 Jun 2009

Hi all:

Poetry and Cultural Studies: A Reader, edited by yours truly and Ira Livingston, is now available. I'm hiding under my desk as i anticipate rocks and tomatoes from people who see their favorite scholar/poet unrepresented and/or their favorite scholar/poet's work redacted in a way that they don't like. Nonetheless, it's available, with cover art by our own David-Baptiste Chirot.

http://www.amazon.com/Poetry-Cultural-Studies-Maria-Damon/dp/0252076087/ref=sr_1_1?ie=UTF8&s=books&qid=1245347572&sr=1-1

↑ Index

199. John Moore Williams
Re: [spidertangle] Poetry and Cultural Studies: A Reader
Thu 18 Jun 2009

---

wonderful! can't wait to get one.

_____
From: Maria Damon <[redacted]>
To: Theory and Writing <[redacted]>; UB Poetics discussion group <[redacted]>; [redacted]
Sent: Thursday, June 18, 2009 10:53:52 AM
Subject: [spidertangle] Poetry and Cultural Studies: A Reader

Hi all:

Poetry and Cultural Studies: A Reader, edited by yours truly and Ira Livingston, is now available. I'm hiding under my desk as i anticipate rocks and tomatoes from people who see their favorite scholar/poet unrepresented and/or their favorite scholar/poet' s work redacted in a way that they don't like. Nonetheless, it's available, with cover art by our own David-Baptiste Chirot.

http://www.amazon. com/Poetry- Cultural- Studies-Maria- Damon/dp/0252076087/ ref=sr_1_ 1?ie=UTF8& s=books&qid= 1245347572& sr=1-1

__._,_.___
Messages in this topic (1) Reply (via web post) | Start a new topic
Messages | Files | Photos | Links | Database | Polls | Members | Calendar
S P I D E R T A N G L E Projects listed at:
http://www.spidertangle.net

Change settings via the Web (Yahoo! ID required)
Change settings via email: Switch delivery to Daily Digest | Switch format to Traditional
Visit Your Group | Yahoo! Groups Terms of Use | Unsubscribe
Recent Activity
* 1
New MembersVisit Your Group
Give Back
Yahoo! for Good
Get inspired by a good cause.
Y! Toolbar
Get it Free! easy 1-click access
to your groups.
Yahoo! Groups
Start a group
in 3 easy steps.
Connect with others.
..

__,_._,___

↑ Index

200. Layne Russell
...david bromige
Thu 18 Jun 2009

I was going to do the official David Bromige site. David and I had talked often about it and I had some bigraphical and other material here for it that he sent me. I had asked Steve Tills to assist, and, of course, he said yes. I'm so sorry now that it did not materialize before David left us. And now that David's work is understandably and rightfully so in the hands of family, I have used the domain to, for now, just put up a goodbye to David. If anyone would like to visit this simiple page, you will find it at http://davidbromigepoet.com.

Peace,
Layne

↑ Index

201. steve russell
Re: Outsider Poetry: a mine-anthology in progress
Thu 18 Jun 2009

...of course, since this is an open or not fully defined project, we can go just about ... Bob Flanagan, jesus, the guy did it all he fucking nailed his cock to a cross with real nails and if that's not art it qualifies as inspired in my book ...

his poetry wasn't bad
he did a nice homage to Bukowski
see the Outlaw Bible of American Poetry

...mental illness/jail/ jimmy santiago baca has the most impressive bio of any living poet who managed to survive hard incarceration...

...i'll put a plug in for myself, i mean, goddamn, i fit the ill catagory ... i have a track record ... documentation ... a small but devoted ...

... really, i dig these sort of projects, in d.c. we have poetry in the shelters, the weekly rag "Street Sense"/tho many major cities have it also ...

...Dan Snider, I think that's his name, check out his website, yeah, i can't say his poetry is ... but as a critic, the guy slams ...

...& let's see, i read "technicians of the sacred" a while back & dug, but no/ONE has focused on blasphemy or the shit that makes us all uncomfortable, I mean pedophilia: i think it's ugly enough to be universal, not just a Catholic thing...

...Denis Johnson, I hope he doesn't stop writing poetry because THE THRONE OF THE THIRD HEAVEN OF THE NATIONS MILLENNIUM GENERAL ASSEMBLY was truely awesome; he wrote about an artist janitor and the lifelong project this man assembled while he worked as a janitor at the National Portrait Gallery.

↑ Index

202. Matt Henriksen
Cannibal Books Summer Sale
Thu 18 Jun 2009

Any 3 Cannibal chapbooks for $12.50.

flesheatingpoems.blogspot.com

Carolyn Guinzio Untitled Wave
Melanie Hubbard Gilbi Winco Swags
Ben Mazer The Foundations of Poetry Mathematics
Keith Newton Sent Forth to Die in a Happy City

Marvyn Petrucci Pardon Me, Madam
Bronwen Tate Like the Native Tongue the Vanquished

Buying Canniobal Books this summer helps us make more books and cover the cost of an emergency computer bought after two computer crashes.

We are also taking submissions for Cannibal 5: email submissions in an attachment or query [redacted].

↑ Index

203. PJ
Re: from east to west, summer '09 is live (& submission call)
Thu 18 Jun 2009

I will at some point figure out how links get transferred when my email is transposed to the list.

Just go here:

http://www.geocities.com/pj_nights

for ~50 pages of free poetry (not mine even though the URL suggests so - new web address for the journal next fall) and please send us your art and audios for the next issue.

I apologize in my last announcement of the new issue for spelling Gary Lehmann's name incorrectly and for leaving out Lynne Shapiro altogether.

PJ NIghts

↑ Index

204. Rachel Loden
dear possum
Fri 19 Jun 2009

Dear poets and fellow travelers --

De-lurking briefly to say that "Dear Possum," my riff on a few lines from "The Waste Land," is at Poetry Daily today:

http://poems.com/

and will be in their archives for a year.

All good things,

Rachel

http://ahsahtapress.boisestate.edu/books/loden/loden.htm

↑ Index

205. Marcus Bales
Re: Gift Economy
Fri 19 Jun 2009

On Mon, Mar 9, 2009 at 10:52 PM, Jason Quackenbush <[redacted]> wrote:
> ... you are lumping ["French Theorists"] together inappropriately as if they represent some monolith of ideology that doesn't exist.<

I can't speak for Troy, but I don't view the "French Theorists" we're talking about here as a monolith of ideology, but rather as a series of misadventures in antifoundationalism. They are, as you rightly quote Butler pointing out, often contradictory with one another in some ways, but those ways are the ways they choose to disparage foundationalism, not their opposition to it. Where Butler (and, I take it, you) go wrong, in my view, is to assume that modes of thinking which disagree with or contradict one another about means can have no common end.

Antifoundationalism is not solely French, I think we can agree -- perhaps even that it isn't French at all except that it is the French literary intellectuals in the last century who were its most recent primary sponsors, Rorty aside, and are the writers under whose influence most of the people on this list are antifoundationalist.

You also rightly point out that most poets don't read philosophy. I'd like to add that when they do, they read it like they read books about quantum physics, and they get it miserably wrong. Even among the poets who've read Russell do you know any who could explain his Theory of Types? Of course one could paraphrase Byron about Coleridge and say even Russell couldn't explain his Theory of Types, but that's not a serious objection. Not only do most poets not read philosophy, and thus don't understand it, even those who read a little philosophy don't read it well or in context.

The problem, though, isn't that poets do or don't read or understand philosophy. The problem is how uncritically accepting most contemporary poets are of the antifoundationalist view. Well, okay, that means that the problem really is that poets don't read and understand philosophy. But most poets won't read poetry -- so what are the chances of getting them to read philosophy?

Marcus

.

On Mon, Mar 9, 2009 at 10:52 PM, Jason Quackenbush <[redacted]> wrote:
> > > > So because Martin Heidegger was a Nazi the > > disenchanted Marxist ideas of > > > > existentialism and post-structuralism were > > founded in fascism? It seems > > > > quite clear to me that you haven't read all of > > the "French Theorists"

> > > you're > > > > talking about because you are lumping them
> > together inappropriately as if > > > > they represent some monolith of ideology that > > doesn't exist. Borrowing
> > > the
> > > > following quote from the wikipedia entry on > > postmodernism, Judith Butler
> > > > pointed out that:
> > > > "A number of positions are ascribed to > > postmodernism - Discourse is all
> > > > there is, as if discourse were some kind of > > monistic stuff out of which
> > > all > > > > things are composed; the subject is dead, I can > > never say "I" again;
> > > there
> > > > is no reality, only representation. These > > characterizations are variously
> > > > imputed to postmodernism or poststructuralism, > > which are conflated with
> > > each
> > > > other and sometimes conflated with > > deconstruction, and understood as an
> > > > indiscriminate assemblage of French feminism,
> > deconstruction, Lacanian
> > > > psychoanalysis, Foucauldian analysis, Rorty´s
> > conversationalism, and > > > > cultural studies ... In reality, these movements
> > are opposed: Lacanian
> > > > psychoanalysis in France positions itself
> > officially against > > > > poststructuralism, that Foucauldian rarely relate
> > to Derridideans ...
> > > > Lyotard champions the term, but he cannot be made > > into the example of > > > what
> > > > all the rest of the purported postmodernists are > > doing. Lyotard´s work
> > > is,

> > > > for instance, seriously at odds with that of > > Derrida"
> > > >
> > > > more importantly, looking around at the literary > > field of the last 40
> > > years
> > > > or so I see in prose generally a marginal group
> > in the vein of > > > > Gaddis/Pynchon/Barth/Coover/Delillo/Wallace et al
> > that is rapidly giving
> > > way
> > > > to the sort of thing that Michael Chabon is now
> > up to where the wild
> > > > craziness of the high postmodernists is replaced
> > with a more subtle
> > > emphasis > > > > on traditional storytelling and the artificiality
> > of the publishing
> > > market > > > > controlled "genres" of fiction. In poetry the > > situation is much clearer,
> > > > where there were poets influenced by > > philosophers, the most obvious being
> > > > the Language poets, many of them are much more > > involved in anglo-american > > > > philosophy than you are giving them credit.
> > Wittgenstein is an obvious > > > > influence across the board, but probably more > > important are John Cage,
> > > > Gertrude Stein, and Charles Olson, none of whom > > were formed in the grips
> > > of
> > > > anything you might find in the Saussure to > > Derrida tradition in philosphy
> > > > you're pointing at. Ted Berrigan was heavily > > inspired by Whitehead, and > > > > Bertrand Russeell is the most widely read > > philosopher that I'm aware of
> > > for > > > > those poets who read philosophy.
> > > >
> > > > All of that aside, by my lights, it still seems > > to me that contemporary > > > > poetry is largely dominated by slam poetry and

> > the sort of MOR
> > > > confessionalism that you find in Seamus Heaney, > > Billy Collins, and their
> > > > ilk. ANd frankly the complaints of the > > reactionary trend to be found in > > > > neo-formalism are much more present in the > > popular consciousness than > > > > anything informed by Barthes or other critics
> > with his commitments.
> > > >
> > > > So really, while there is a great deal of
> > nattering by undergraduates
> > > about > > > > poorly understood french philosophers leaking out
> > of cultural studies
> > > > departments, i just don't see all this influence
> > that you're talking > > > about
> > > > by "French Theorists" and it makes me wonder what > > it is that you're
> > > reading,
> > > > because it's not the same stuff I am.
> > > >
> > > >
> > > > On Mar 9, 2009, at 1:43 PM, Troy Camplin wrote:
> > > >
> > > > I'm sorry that I don't uncritically accept
> > every idea that comes along.
> > > >> Hold, it, wait, neither do you. You just like > > what I don't, and dislike
> > > what
> > > >> I do. That doesn't make me a fascist. In > > fact, you show you don't even > > > know
> > > >> what a fascist is, with this statement.
> > > >>
> > > >> The American postmodernist writers were all > > influenced by such people as > > > >> Sartre, deBeauvoir, Lacan, Derrida, Barthes, > > Foucauld, etc. I've read

> > > them
> > > >> all. I like them all. But they have had too > > much influence over American
> > > >> letters over the last half century, and it > > will benefit us greatly to > > > come
> > > >> out from under that influence precisely > > because of the fascist
> > > foundations
> > > >> of their ideas and works (see Wolin's works > > on the fascist foundations
> > > of
> > > >> the postmodernist thinkers in "Heidegger's > > Children" and "The Seduction
> > > of
> > > >> Unreason" and Argyros' "A Blessed Rage for > > Order" on Derrida).
> > > >>
> > > >> The ability to judge ideas or their influence
> > as bad doesn't make one a > > > >> fascist. It shows that one is able to think > > and make critical judgments
> > > >> based on observation. The attempt to stifle > > dialogue by throwing around
> > > the
> > > >> word "fascist" to label those with whom you > > disagree is in fact a > > > fascist
> > > >> tactic.
> > > >>
> > > >> Troy Camplin
> > > >>
> > > >>
> > > >>
> > > >> _____
> > > >> From: Murat Nemet-Nejat <[redacted]>
> > > >> To: [redacted]
> > > >> Sent: Friday, March 6, 2009 4:40:44 PM
> > > >> Subject: Re: Gift Economy
> > > >>
> > > >> Troy,
> > > >>

> > > >> "our art and literature will improve greatly
> > the minute we stop being > > > >> influenced by the French theorists."
> > > >>
> > > >> Why does almost every statement you make must > > involve the putting down
> > > of > > > >> another? Are you aware how ridiculous that > > statements sounds. How much
> > > of > > > >> American literature, do you thing, is > > influenced by "French theorists"?
> > > Or
> > > >> how much of French literature is influence by
> > "French theorists" for
> > > that > > > >> matter? What is a French theorist anyhow?
> > > >>
> > > >> To indulge in some name calling myself, are > > you aware demonizing the
> > > other
> > > >> is the basic mode of Fascist thought, > > regardless how much libertarian,
> > > you
> > > >> might image, means liberty.
> > > >>
> > > >> Ciao,
> > > >>
> > > >> Murat
> > > >>
> > > >>
> > > >>
> > > >> On Thu, Mar 5, 2009 at 10:36 AM, Troy Camplin
> > <[redacted]>
> > > >> wrote:
> > > >>
> > > >> I do believe I can make better > > judgments than any government
> > > >>> administrator,
> > > >>> yes. Especially if they are working in > > their capacity of government > > > >>> administrator. Impersonal judgment is no

> > judgment. As for people on the > > > >>> listserv, I believe my judgment is better > > than some, the same as
> > > others,
> > > >>> and
> > > >>> likely worse than a few -- but we are > > free to have those differences,
> > > >>> that
> > > >>> those who agree that my judgments are > > better or the same as theirs can > > > >>> support my nonprofit, and those who > > disagree can contribute to one (or > > > >>> start
> > > >>> their own) that better reflects their own > > taste. The point is that such > > > >>> actions would be voluntary.
> > > >>>
> > > >>> Personally, I've seen no evidence that > > France or Canada is turning out
> > > >>> superior artists, though I have n o doubt > > that the French and the > > > French
> > > >>> Canadians certainly think so. I will > > admit, though, that our art and > > > >>> literature will improve greatly the > > minute we stop being influenced by
> > > >>> the > > > >>> French theorists.
> > > >>>
> > > >>> Troy Camplin
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>> _____
> > > >>> From: François Luong <[redacted]>
> > > >>> To: [redacted]
> > > >>> Sent: Wednesday, March 4, 2009 4:23:06
> > PM
> > > >>> Subject: Re: Gift Economy
> > > >>>
> > > >>> The market already drives more than one > > art form. As many people

> > > >>> Troy,
> > > >>>
> > > >>> The market already drives more than one > > art form. As many people have > > > >>> pointed out, the majority of the music > > industry is driven by the free
> > > >>> market
> > > >>> at a global level. Is the music industry
> > any more equitable than other > > > >>> government-funded arts? Well, as cris > > costa pointed out, the only thing
> > > >>> that
> > > >>> is successful nowadays are "cheap > > products, made quickly, sold for a > > > lot
> > > >>> of
> > > >>> money," an argument you completely > > disregarded in your response to her.
> > > >>>
> > > >>> You also fail to show how a "nonprofit > > organization such as yours"
> > > would
> > > >>> be > > > >>> a better way to fund the arts. Are you > > implying you have better taste
> > > >>> than > > > >>> government administrators and/or anyone > > else on this listserv? Do I > > > >>> believe > > > >>> that "my" people would be in charge of a > > government art funding
> > > program?
> > > >>> Certainly not. Even though Canada and > > France have much better funding > > > >>> programs than the United States, they > > still have their faults. Does
> > > that > > > >>> mean we should scrap them? Well, they > > have certainly contributed to > > > >>> Canadian
> > > >>> arts and poetry being more interesting > > than the majority of US arts.

> > > >>>
> > > >>> Finally, many of the programs you are > > listed had already been enacted
> > > >>> before Hitler's rise to power. National > > health care had for example
> > > been > > > >>> implemented by Bismarck in 1883 (I might > > be a year or so off) and > > > >>> unemployment compensation in 1927 at the > > national level. The Ländern
> > > had > > > >>> their own programs before it was made a > > federal law.
> > > >>>
> > > >>> françois luong
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>> _____
> > > >>> From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
> > > >>> To: [redacted]
> > > >>> Sent: Wednesday, March 4, 2009 1:42:35
> > PM
> > > >>> Subject: Re: Gift Economy
> > > >>>
> > > >>> Much of the great monuments were in fact > > made with slave labor? Does
> > > that
> > > >>> then argue for slave labor for other > > massive works? Yes, many of our > > > >>> great > > > >>> works of art were government-funded, and > > government funds come from > > > >>> somebody > > > >>> with power having enough power to take > > money from weaker people. To me,
> > > >>> that > > > >>> argues against that method, no matter how > > successful it has been in the > > > >>> past. It's not magical thinking to > > believe there better, non-coercive

> > > >>> ways
> > > >>> to fund the arts, and that we should try > > to use and develop those. The > > > >>> market is one way. Nonprofit > > organizations such as mine are and can be > > > >>> another. Both are highly preferable to > > the coercive methods of > > > >>> government.
> > > >>>
> > > >>> And fascism is indeed a form of socialism
> > -- even if it is corporate > > > >>> socialism. I'm sorry that's an > > inconvenient fact for everyone here.
> > > There
> > > >>> are different kinds of socialism, you > > know -- it doesn't have to be > > > >>> communist in nature. Here is what > > Hitler's version looked like: he > > > >>> suspended
> > > >>> the gold standard, embarked on huge > > public works programs like > > > Autobahns,
> > > >>> protected industry from foreign > > competition, expanded credit,
> > > instituted
> > > >>> jobs programs, bullied the private sector
> > on prices and production > > > >>> decisions, vastly expanded the military,
> > enforced capital controls,
> > > >>> instituted family planning, penalized
> > smoking, brought about national > > > >>> health > > > >>> care and unemployment insurance, imposed > > education standards, and > > > >>> eventually > > > >>> ran huge deficits. In all honesty, it was > > the kind of economy our
> > > >>> government
> > > >>> has been actively trying to set up for a > > while now, though it's been > > > >>> accelerating quite a bit of late..
> > > >>>

> > > >>> Those who support government funding of > > the arts naively think that
> > > they
> > > >>> will always have their people in charge
> > and that therefore they will be
> > > >>> the > > > >>> ones getting the funding. But you can't > > count on being in charge in a > > > >>> democratic country -- or even in > > socialist utopian dictatorship. I > > > prefer
> > > >>> to > > > >>> keep the government out of the arts > > completely, so there is far less
> > > >>> danger
> > > >>> of coercion or censorship -- direct or > > indirect.
> > > >>>
> > > >>> Troy Camplin
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>> _____
> > > >>> From: François Luong <[redacted]>
> > > >>> To: [redacted]
> > > >>> Sent: Tuesday, March 3, 2009 11:16:51 AM
> > > >>> Subject: Re: Gift Economy
> > > >>>
> > > >>> "The market also allows for persuasion.
> > People can be educated to learn > > > >>> what is good and what is not good." And > > who is going to do that
> > > >>> education,
> > > >>> Troy? The marketing department? I think > > we already have such situation.
> > > I
> > > >>> mean, aren't Shakira and Britney Spears > > more popular because they have
> > > a > > > >>> bigger marketing department than say, New > > Model Army?
> > > >>>

> > > >>> In all seriousness, your argument is > > based on magical thinking. There
> > > is
> > > >>> no
> > > >>> account for naturally occurring taste,
> > especially in a free market.
> > > What
> > > >>> you
> > > >>> base your argument on is, one, that all > > people are reasonable, two,
> > > that
> > > >>> reason will lead them toward goodness.
> > There are however no evidence
> > > for
> > > >>> this assertion, much like there is no > > evidence for the free market
> > > being > > > >>> able to nurture art as we understand it.
> > In the contrary, state-funded
> > > >>> art
> > > >>> goes back all the way to the Antiquity.
> > Who funded the Parthenon, for > > > >>> example? Or Leonardo receiving his > > funding from Francis I of France? An > > > >>> example of an artistic situation within a > > free market context? Try > > > >>> Germany
> > > >>> in the 1930s (just because the Nazi have
> > "Socialist" in their name does
> > > >>> not > > > >>> make them socialists. Being in the pocket > > of Mercedes and Krupp proves
> > > >>> it),
> > > >>> with the painters of the Neue > > Sachlichkeit being persecuted because > > > their > > > >>> art was not marketable to the German > > populace.
> > > >>>
> > > >>> françois luong
> > > >>>
> > > >>>

> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>> _____
> > > >>> From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
> > > >>> To: [redacted]
> > > >>> Sent: Monday, March 2, 2009 12:33:03 PM
> > > >>> Subject: Re: Gift Economy
> > > >>>
> > > >>> You only prove my point with such > > statement. Not that I'm not in > > > >>> agreement
> > > >>> with you that Dogs Playing Poker isn't > > really what I'm looking for in > > > >>> high > > > >>> art. What you missed was what came after > > the comma. The market also > > > >>> allows > > > >>> for persuasion. People can be educated to > > learn what is good and what
> > > is
> > > >>> not > > > >>> good. The same person who has Dogs > > Playing Poker in his basement would
> > > be > > > >>> terribly disappointed to find such a work
> > in his museum when he went to > > > >>> visit. There is a difference between what > > people like in a general sort
> > > >>> of
> > > >>> way and what people acknowledge to be > > great works of art. My wife, for > > > >>> example, thinks that opera is literally
> > the best way to spend an > > > evening.
> > > >>> But she also listens to Shakira. If you > > read the rest of my posting,
> > > you
> > > >>> will note that I differentiate between > > what the market does in allowing
> > > >>> for > > > >>> niches and true democracy, where there is > > a tyranny of the majority. In

> > > >>> that > > > >>> case, one would in fact get Dogs Playing > > Poker as high art. This is > > > >>> precisely why I'm not a fan of democratic > > government supporting the > > > arts.
> > > >>>
> > > >>> Troy Camplin
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>> _____
> > > >>> From: John Cunningham <[redacted]>
> > > >>> To: [redacted]
> > > >>> Sent: Monday, March 2, 2009 8:50:34 AM
> > > >>> Subject: Re: Gift Economy
> > > >>>
> > > >>> Are you kidding, Troy? Only if we > > want high art to consist of poker
> > > >>> playing > > > >>> dogs is the market "the most > > democratic determiner of artistic merit"!
> > > >>> There are times when democracy is the > > worst possible determiner. If it > > > >>> had > > > >>> been allowed to determine things, blacks
> > would still be slaves as the > > > >>> Emancipation Proclamation was probably > > the most hated piece of > > > >>> legislation
> > > >>> ever and popular support was vastly
> > against it.
> > > >>> John Herbert Cunningham
> > > >>>
> > > >>> -----Original Message-----
> > > >>> From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB)
> [mailto:[redacted]]
> > > On
> > > >>> Behalf Of Troy Camplin
> > > >>> Sent: March-01-09 2:21 PM
> > > >>> To: [redacted]..BUFFALO.EDU
> > > >>> Subject: Re: Gift Economy

> > > >>>
> > > >>> Funny thing is, you're right about the > > anti-market position. The market
> > > >>> is > > > >>> in fact the most democratic determiner of > > artistic merit (much to the > > > >>> horror
> > > >>> of the elitists here), while also > > allowing room for people to have > > > access
> > > >>> to > > > >>> works that fit their own tastes. In a > > pure democracy, we would only
> > > >>> listen
> > > >>> to Britney Spears. Under > > democratic-government-controlled arts, we
> > > would > > > >>> only listen to music that is inoffensive
> > to everyone (I'm guessing
> > > >>> something
> > > >>> along the lines of 50's soft pop rock).
> > Only in the free market can I
> > > >>> listen
> > > >>> to Franz Ferdinand and Modest Mouse.
> > Incidentally, one of the reasons
> > > why
> > > >>> I
> > > >>> set up the Emerson Institute was to truly > > democratize patronage of the
> > > >>> arts
> > > >>> -- in a way that was 100% voluntary.
> > Equality under the law, yes;
> > > >>> collectivist egalitarianism, no.
> > > >>>
> > > >>> Troy Camplin
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>> _____
> > > >>> From: Marcus Bales <[redacted]>
> > > >>> To: [redacted]
> > > >>> Sent: Friday, February 27, 2009 12:15:42

> > PM
> > > >>> Subject: Re: Gift Economy
> > > >>>
> > > >>> The problem with Paul Nelson's objection
> > to Troy's notion that a free
> > > >>> market
> > > >>> is a good
> > > >>> judge of artistic merit is that it means > > Paul has put himself in an
> > > >>> untenable position:
> > > >>> he's implicitly arguing that some poems
> > are better than others, and
> > > that
> > > >>> some people
> > > >>> can tell which ones those poems are -- > > it's an elitist position, one
> > > that
> > > >>> will get him in a > > > >>> lot of trouble if he's not careful, and > > get him lumped in with Troy as
> > > an
> > > >>> equality-hater.
> > > >>> Be careful, Paul! You just can't say that > > some poems are better than
> > > >>> others,
> > > >>> or some
> > > >>> poets better than others, without getting > > accused of elitism!
> > > >>>
> > > >>> You're not an elitist, are you, Paul?
> > > >>>
> > > >>> Marcus
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>> On 26 Feb 2009 at 8:40, Paul Nelson
> > wrote:
> > > >>>
> > > >>> Date sent:
> > Thu, 26 Feb 2009 08:40:55 -0800
> > > >>> Send reply to:
> > "Poetics List (UPenn, UB)"
> > > >>> <[redacted]>

> > > >>> From:
> > Paul Nelson <[redacted]>
> > > >>> Subject:
> > Re: Gift Economy
> > > >>> To:
> > [redacted]
> > > >>>
> > > >>> Like most of your arguments, you > > base your stand on a false dich
> > > >>>> Troy,
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Like most of your arguments, you base
> > your stand on a false
> > > >>>> dichotomy. You say if it is not FREE > > MARKET, it is GOVERNMENT. I was > > > >>>> only responding to your notion that > > the Free Market is a good judge
> > > >>>> of artistic quality. I find that > > laughable, which is why I have > > > >>>> responded in what I thought was a > > humorous manner.
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> What is lost in the dialog is the > > notion of poetry (hey, we can > > > >>>> actually get it back to what the LIST > > is about) poetry is part of > > > >>>> the gift economy.
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> from Wikipedia:
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> A gift economy is a social theory[1]
> > in which goods and services are > > > >>>> given without any explicit agreement > > for immediate or future quid
> > > >>>> pro quo.
> > > >>>> Ideally simultaneous or recurring > > giving serves to circulate and > > > >>>> redistribute valuables within a > > community. This can be considered
> > > >>>> a
> > > >>>> form of reciprocal altruism.

> > > >>>> The concept of a gift economy stands
> > in contrast to a planned > > > >>>> economy or a market or barter > > economy.
> > > >>>> In a planned economy, goods and > > services are distributed by > > > >>>> explicit > > > >>>> command and control rather than > > informal custom; in barter or
> > > >>>> market
> > > >>>> economies, an explicit quid pro quo - > > an exchange of money or some > > > >>>> other commodity - is established > > before the transaction takes > > > >>>> place.
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Other cultures (& ours, to some > > degree, in years past) had a > > > >>>> different idea of the poet's role in > > society. Paz and Neruda as > > > >>>> Ambassadors, for example. Most > > industrial democracies have social > > > >>>> safety nets allowing an artist to > > live a decent life without > > > >>>> becoming a corporate puppet, but not > > ours.
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> I'd like nothing more than a drastic > > reduction in Federal Spending, > > > >>>> starting with the outlays for > > militarism:
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Again Wiki:
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> As of 2009, the United States > > government is spending about $1 > > > >>>> trillion annually on defense-related > > purposes.
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Imagine $1B of that going to fund

> > doctors and nurses in underserved > > > >>>> areas. Imagine a new (old) way of > > structuring economies on a > > > >>>> bioregional (sustainable) basis. The > > Federal Government becomes much > > > >>>> less of a factor which, it seems to > > me, is the common ground you and > > > >>>> I have. But when you make fauty > > premises such as the GOVERNMENT vs > > > >>>> FREE MARKET, little light is > > generated.
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Charles Olson, William Carlos
> > Williams and others had some inkling
> > > >>>> about the importance of the local,
> > hence The Maximus Poems and > > > >>>> Paterson. This, to me, is the link > > between the discusson of Free > > > >>>> Markets vs Government intervention
> > and POETICS is, in theory anyway,
> > > >>>> the mission of this listserv. May it > > be so.
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Paul
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Paul E. Nelson
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Global Voices Radio
> > > >>>> SPLAB!
> > > >>>> American Sentences
> > > >>>> Organic Poetry
> > > >>>> Poetry Postcard Blog
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Ilalqo, WA 253..[redacted]
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>

> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> _____
> > > >>>> From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
> > > >>>> To: [redacted]
> > > >>>> Sent: Tuesday, February 24, 2009
> > 5:48:27 PM
> > > >>>> Subject: Re: The Market recognizes
> > talent!
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Now there's a fundamentalist
> > statement: "the opposite may be true."
> > > >>>> The market sometimes recognizes > > talent, sometimes not. It is an > > > >>>> imperfect arbiter of taste. What it > > does do, though, is allow for a > > > >>>> wide variety of options. The > > government does not give you options.
> > > >>>> It is a monopoly. You get what they > > give you, or nothing. Don't like > > > >>>> government-brand corn? Too bad. Don't > > like the government-brand car?
> > > >>>> Too bad. Don't like government-brand > > art? AH, but there's the rub, > > > >>>> isn't it? Nobody here wants to > > believe there will be > > > >>>> government-brand art. Except that the > > government simply cannot > > > >>>> support everyone who says they are an > > artist. There must be someone > > > >>>> deciding who gets supported. Who is > > that going to be? You? I don't > > > >>>> think so. Me? Don't think so. This > > year it may be someone with whom > > > >>>> you agree; next year it may be > > someone with whom you never agree. Or > > > >>>> should there be a democratic vote? Do > > you really want art by > > > >>>> democratic vote? How many here write > > anything a > > > >>>> democratic majority would want to > > read? Perhaps a committee? Similar > > > >>>> problems arise, just on a smaller

> > scale. In fact, it has the > > > >>>> problems of both situations. How,
> > then, is funding to be determined?
> > > >>>> How much funding? To whom will > > funding go? The safe bet would be to > > > >>>> give it to those who are already > > successful -- but then, if they are > > > >>>> already successful, why do they need > > government funding? And if they > > > >>>> are not successful, how does the > > government determine who to give > > > >>>> funding to, who to support? Based on > > production? Well, then, what > > > >>>> prevents us from having cheaters, who > > will produce just enough
> > > >>>> really bad art to get the funding
> > just so they don't have to go get
> > > >>>> a "real" job? I think about all these > > things and look at the history
> > > >>>> of government support for the arts
> > and cannot come to any other > > > >>>> conclusion that government funding > > for the arts is bad for the > > > >>>> arts..
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Troy Camplin
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> _____
> > > >>>> From: Paul Nelson <[redacted]..COM>
> > > >>>> To: [redacted]
> > > >>>> Sent: Sunday, February 22, 2009
> > 3:23:54 PM
> > > >>>> Subject: Re: The Market recognizes
> > talent!
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
> > > >>>> To: [redacted]
> > > >>>> Sent: Friday, February 20, 2009
> > 1:14:23 PM
> > > >>>> Subject: Re: The Market recognizes

> > talent!
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> One
> > > >>>> can always point to people who in > > your opinion (and, with this
> > > >>>> list,
> > > >>>> mine) are at best embarrassing.
> > However, one can also point to the
> > > >>>> fact
> > > >>>> that Picasso, Monet, and Jasper Johns
> > were all made wealthy during > > > >>>> their lifetimes. I may not like > > Britney Spears, but I'm also not > > > >>>> going
> > > >>>> to deprive anyone of her, either, if > > that's what they like. If you > > > >>>> want
> > > >>>> to try to educate people to have > > better taste, that's fine and good
> > > >>>> --
> > > >>>> but there's no evidence the > > government is good at educating people
> > > >>>> in
> > > >>>> math and reading, let alone good > > taste. I love how you people have
> > > >>>> to > > > >>>> purposefully ignore facts to make > > your points. Throw up a few straw
> > > >>>> men
> > > >>>> (and women, in this case) to try to > > make a "point."
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Troy Camplin
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> I prefer the phrase "People of Straw"
> > but I don't use the market as
> > > >>>> any > > > >>>> guide to quality in the arts. In > > fact, the opposite may be true,
> > > >>>> but
> > > >>>> when you're a fundamentalist, you say
> > funny things, eh?

> > > >>>> Paul E. Nelson
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Global Voices Radio
> > > >>>> SPLAB!
> > > >>>> American Sentences
> > > >>>> Organic Poetry
> > > >>>> Poetry Postcard Blog
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Ilalqo, WA [redacted]
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> --
> > > >>>> No virus found in this incoming > > message.
> > > >>>> Checked by AVG.
> > > >>>> Version: 7.5.557 / Virus Database:
> > 270..11.3 - Release Date:
> > > >>>> 2/22/2009 12:00 AM
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > not accept all posts. Check
> > > >>> guidelines
> http://epc.buffalo..edu/poetics/welcome..html
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > not accept all posts. Check
> > > >>> guidelines
> > > >>>
> > not accept all posts.. Check
> http://epc.buffalo.edu/poetics/
> > > >>> welcome..html
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > not accept all posts.. Check
> http://epc.buffalo.edu/poetics/
> > > >>> welcome..html

> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > not accept all posts. Check
> > > >>> guidelines
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > not accept all posts. Check
> > > >>> guidelines
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > not accept all posts. Check
> > > >>> guidelines
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > not accept all posts. Check
> > > >>> guidelines
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > accept all posts. Check
> > > >>
> > > >>
> > accept all posts. Check
> > > >>
> > > >
> > > > Jason Quackenbush
> > > > [redacted]
> > > >
> > > >
> > accept all posts. Check
> > > guidelines
> > > >
> > >
> > all posts. Check guidelines
> > >
> >
> >

>
>
>
>

↑ Index

206. Richard Jeffrey Newman
Life Imitates Art: Iran's Opposition and Ferdowsi's Shahnameh
Fri 19 Jun 2009

On my blog: Life Imitates Art: Iran’s Opposition and Ferdowsi’s Shahnameh (The Story of Zahhak and Kaveh): http://itsallconnected.wordpress.com/2009/06/18/life-imitates-art-irans-opposition-and-ferdowsis-shahnameh-the-story-of-zahhak-and-kaveh/

Rich Newman

_____
Richard Jeffrey Newman
Associate Professor, English Coordinator, Creative Writing Project
Nassau Community College
One Education Drive
Garden City, NY 11530
O: [redacted]
F: [redacted]
[redacted]

--

Co-Curator, Persian Arts Festival Shab-e She'r
[redacted]
www.persianartsfestival.org

--

[redacted]
www.richardjnewman.com

↑ Index

207. Justin Katko
Fwd: PRAXIS DUDES: DC/Baltimore: June 20/21
Fri 19 Jun 2009

ARRIVAL OF PRAXIS DUDES FEST

2 Night Axiomatic Shield Face Glove Jam.

RYAN DOBRAN (NYC)
JOW LINDSAY (UK)
NOUR MOBARAK (Portland)
POSIE RIDER (UK)
JOSHUA STRAUSS (Buffalo)
KESTON SUTHERLAND (UK)
MIKE WALLACE-HADRILL (UK)

And More. Poetry, Music, Foldy Crap.

Praxis Dudes Fest 1 - DC (The Velvet Lounge) - Saturday June 20
http://plantarchy.us/images/praxis-dudes-i.jpg

Praxis Dudes Fest 2 - Baltimore (The LOF/T) - Sunday June 21
http://plantarchy.us/images/praxis-dudes-ii.jpg

ADVANTAGEOUS GUARDIANS OF HISTORICAL DATA-SHREDS

↑ Index

208. CA Conrad
the purple gang
Fri 19 Jun 2009

OK, so, my new book Advanced Elvis Course is OUT, and I do mean OUT, as in the reviews (they're been really good reviews) are mentioning the queer content of the book. Well, it's making some Elvis fans INSANE with rage that I would DARE make Elvis MY OWN, for me, as who I am.

One dude wrote to me, "You know Elvis was straight, don't you?"

First of all, NO, I don't know that, and neither does Dude. I think it's VERY SAFE to say that YES, Elvis liked women, and liked them A LOT! But who is to say he didn't also like men?

So I wrote back to Dude, and said, "OH REALLY!? LET'S GO OVER THE LYRICS TO JAILHOUSE ROCK TOGETHER, SHALL WE?????"

"Spider Murphy played the tenor saxaphone Little Joe was blowin on his slide trombone. (yeah, BONE all right!)
The whole rhythm section was the purple gang." PURPLE GANG?

There's not A SINGLE female pronoun or female name in this entire song, I challenge ANYONE to find her between the tromBONE and the purple gang!
But wait, we're not finished:

"Number 47 said to Number 3:
You're the cutest jailbird I ever did see.

I sure would be delighted with your company,
Come on and do the Jailhouse Rock with me."

WHAT????????? Number 47 and Number 3, those are prisoner numbers, right? There's no such thing as a co-ed prison in 2009, and I certainly don't believe there was one in 1957 either! But wait, we're not finished:

"Shifty Henry said to Bugs, for heavens sake,
No ones lookin, now's our chance to make a break.
Bugsy turned to Shifty and he said, nix nix,
I wanna stick around a while and get my kicks."

BUGSY is so turned on he's not even interested in escaping when he's got the chance! This is SUCH A FAG SONG, GIVE ME A BREAK!

Well, as you can imagine, this did NOT go over well with Dude when I wrote to him, to which he replied with the single word "PERVERT!" Ah, yes, Dude got that one right at least!

BRING IT ON BABY!
CAConrad

advanced ELVIS course: http://advancedELVIS.blogspot.com

--
PhillySound: new poetry http://PhillySound.blogspot.com

THE BOOK OF FRANK by CAConrad http://CAConrad.blogspot.com

↑ Index

209. Stephen Vincent
Solstice de Blog
Fri 19 Jun 2009

A solstice text/photo triptych on my blog:
http://stephenvincent.net/blog/
Ah, yes, enjoy your solstice, and, if close to San Francisco, come to the Bay Area Poetry Marathon this Saturday evening at The Lab (16th & Capp)!Stephen V

↑ Index

210. Laura Hinton
Chant de la Sirene posts
Fri 19 Jun 2009

See some recent posts at my blogsite, Chant de la Sirene:

An "eco-poetics" reading with Mei-mei Berssenbrugge and Jonathan Skinner at Segue

Nicole Peyrafitte and her CD "Whisk! Don't Churn"

"They didn't wait for permission," on Jayne Cortez and Ann Waldman reading for Belladonna

--
Laura Hinton
Professor of English
City College of New York
http://www.mermaidtenementpress.com
http://www.chantdelasirene.com

↑ Index

211. Jim Andrews papers on digital literature
Sat 20 Jun 2009

---

here is a collection of scholarly papers from europe on digital literature:
http://www.rilune.org/ENGLISH/mono5/digital01.htm

they're published as issue 5, 2006, in the 'Review of Literatures of the European Union'. the list of other issues is at http://www.rilune.org/ENGLISH/mono.htm

ja
http://vispo.com

↑ Index

212. steve dalachinsky
Re: Outsider Poetry: a mine-anthology in progress
Sat 20 Jun 2009

---

saw flanagan when he did new museum show we spoke wow and his wife as well or mate but why is he an outsider - he had a major museum show while alive what qualifies him his cock nailed to across?

On Thu, 18 Jun 2009 16:07:16 -0700 steve russell <[redacted]>
writes:
> ...of course, since this is an open or not fully defined project, we > can go just about ... Bob Flanagan, jesus, the guy did it all he > fucking nailed his cock to a cross with real nails and if that's not > art it qualifies as inspired in my book ...
>
> his poetry wasn't bad
> he did a nice homage to Bukowski

> see the Outlaw Bible of American Poetry
>
> ...mental illness/jail/ jimmy santiago baca has the most impressive > bio of any living poet who managed to survive hard incarceration...
>
> ...i'll put a plug in for myself, i mean, goddamn, i fit the ill > catagory ... i have a track record ... documentation ... a small but > devoted ...
>
> ... really, i dig these sort of projects, in d.c. we have poetry in > the shelters, the weekly rag "Street Sense"/tho many major cities > have it also ...
>
> ...Dan Snider, I think that's his name, check out his website, yeah, > i can't say his poetry is ... but as a critic, the guy slams ...
>
> ...& let's see, i read "technicians of the sacred" a while back & > dug, but no/ONE has focused on blasphemy or the shit that makes us > all uncomfortable, I mean pedophilia: i think it's ugly enough to be > universal, not just a Catholic thing...
>
> ...Denis Johnson, I hope he doesn't stop writing poetry because THE > THRONE OF THE THIRD HEAVEN OF THE NATIONS MILLENNIUM
GENERAL
> ASSEMBLY was truely awesome; he wrote about an artist janitor and > the lifelong project this man assembled while he worked as a janitor > at the National Portrait Gallery.
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

↑ Index

213. Mark DuCharme

Stratford Park Reading Series: ROBINSON, FLEISHER & AMATO July 16th

Sat 20 Jun 2009

Please join us at the STRATFORD PARK READING SERIES as three extraordinary writers present readings of their work: ELIZABETH ROBINSON, KASS FLEISHER & JOE AMATO.

It all happens THURSDAY, JULY 16th at 7:30 p.m.

Address: 3030 O'NEAL PARKWAY, Boulder, Colorado
(across the street from Naropa University's Paramita campus & the Boulder Cork restaurant)
http://www.mapquest.com/maps?city=Boulder&state=CO&address=3030+O'neal+Parkway&zipcode=80301

A Donation is requested— but All are welcome!

A reception will follow the reading

§

DIRECTIONS: O'Neal Parkway is off 30th Street in north Boulder between Valmont & Iris. Turn East at the signs for STRATFORD PARK WEST. The community house is the one-story building with a fence leading down to the street, half a block from 30th. Please park ONLY on O'Neal Parkway, O'Neal Circle, or in VISITOR spaces in the Stratford Park West lots. Please do not park in any other nearby lots. Thank you.

§

Elizabeth Robinson's most recent books are Inaudible Trumpeters and The Orphan & its Relations. She has been a recipient of grants from the Fund for Poetry and the Foundation for Contemporary Arts, and has also been a winner of the Fence Modern Poets Series and the National Poetry Series. She spends money that she does not have as a co-editor with Colleen Lookingbil of EtherDome Chapbooks, and co-editor with Beth Anderson and Laura Sims of Instance Press.

Kass Fleisher
Bio forthcoming.

Joe Amato's most recent volume of poetry, Pain Plus Thyme, was released by Factory School last summer. His memoir, Once an Engineer: A Song of the Salt City, is due out from SUNY Press in September, and his first novel, Big Man with a Shovel, is due out from Chax Press later this year. He's completed a second novel, Samuel Taylor's Last Night, and is currently at work on a third novel, which takes its title from a 1938 sci-fi novella, Who Goes There?

§

If you no longer wish to receive email announcements of upcoming events in the Stratford Park Reading Series, please email [redacted] with the subject line "SPRS: REMOVE."

_____ Microsoft brings you a new way to search the web. Try Bing™ now http://www.bing.com?form=MFEHPG&publ=WLHMTAG&crea=TEXT_MFEHPG_Core_tagline_try bing_1x1

↑ Index

214. Gloria Mindock

Cervena Barva Press Announces the Publication of "Pretty Little Lies"

Sat 20 Jun 2009

Cervena Barva Press announces a new book
"Pretty Little Lies" by W. R. Mayo

Pretty Little Lies by W. R. Mayo

NEW RELEASE - AVAILABLE NOW!

PRETTY LITTLE LIES
by W. R. Mayo
ISBN: 978-0-9773695-4-0
Copyright 2009, 211 pages
Non-fiction and fully illustrated with 29 photographs, maps and charts with extensive reference notes.

It is more than a history of the Eastern Arkansas Delta. It is a journey covering three and half centuries from the origins of a Southern Arkansas family through the the plantation days of slavery, the Jim Crow Era to the present following a trail of lies, deceit and betrayal.

Take a pinch of Poe, mixed lightly with Faulkner and thicken with Tennessee Williams and you will not find a more dysfunctional family in the Southern Gothic tradition.

Visit this special Website to read more about it: www.prettylittlelies.com

Pretty Little Lies , as told from the perspective of a member of the southern Mayo clan, reads like a gothic novel spanning centuries. In a take no prisoners accounting. W. R. Mayo's memoir is a serious undertaking that makes for fascinating reading. Though not from an old southern family, I, for one recognize much of what we all carry in our DNA. - Susan Tepper, author of DEER

In his biting family memoir, Pretty Little Lies , W. R. Mayo courageously puts a dagger into the heart of the southern plantation myth. By unflinchingly facing his own dysfunctional past, Mayo gives the romantic, idealized version of ante- and post-bellum life below the Mason-Dixon Line a well-deserved paddling. In moving prose, he reveals the underbelly of the "big house"- a way of life created and sustained by traffic in human slavery and one reliant upon the manipulation, or far worse, of the land and those who lived and toiled upon it. Pretty Little Lies is a must read for anyone looking to see past the mythology of the Old South. - J. B. Hogan, author Unflinching. Revealing. In this exhaustively researched family history, Mayo charts the rise of a Southern family from its roots in England to the founding of a plantation in Southeastern Arkansas in the middle of the nineteenth century. Through the degradations of the Civil War, two world wars, and countless family conflicts still raging to this day, Mayo lays bare the mythology of Southern "Nobility." He frankly examines the treatment of slaves by his family which led to "the other Mayos," a family of blacks descended from these slaves, and describes the uncompromising natures of his progenitors. From his mother who never apologized for anything, considering it a waste of time to his racist, domineering father, Mayo chronicles the infighting, manipulation, and xenophobia prevalent in his family's past. Mayo digs to the core to face head-on not only the lies, exaggerations and conscious-salving stories of "pride" passed down within his family, but also to uncover the real story of Southern history. As Faulkner said, "The past is never dead. In fact, it's not even past." Mayo's past is certainly not dead, though this book is an attempt to put a stake through it's heart. - C. L. Bledsoe, author of Anthem, Riceland and editor for Ghoti Magazine

Order online at http://www.thelostbookshelf.com/index.html#W. R. Mayo

Title

$15.95

Shipping

$3.00

Total

$18.95

Â

Send check or money order payable to:
Cervena Barva Press
P.O. Box 440357,
W. Somerville, MA 02144-3222
e-mail: [redacted]

Send me_____copies of " Pretty Little Lies " Â Total enclosed:Â $_____

Name_____

Street_____

City_____State_____Zip_____

e-mail_____Phone_____

Thank you.Â visit www.cervenabarvapress.com

Sign up for our monthly newsletter and visit The Lost Bookshelf at www.thelostbookshelf.com

Contact at: [redacted]

Gloria Mindock

[redacted]

↑ Index

215. Gloria Mindock

Cervena Barva Press Announces the Publication of "Anthem" by CL Bledsoe

Sat 20 Jun 2009

Cervena Barva Press announces a new book
"Anthem" by CL Bledsoe

Â

CL Bledsoe has published work in over 200 journals and anthologies, including The Cimarron Review, Nimrod and The Arkansas Review . Winner of the Blue Collar Review's Working People's Poetry Contest, he is also a 3-time Pushcart Prize nominee. He is an editor for Ghoti Magazine . http://www.ghotimag.com and the author of a chapbook entitled_____(Want/Need)

Fresh, funny, hip, anarchic, jaded, secretly hopeful, angry, wry, laid-back: to read CL Bledsoe's Anthem is to enter a world that may make you twitch - but will surely help you keep on keeping on. These songs of punked-out innocence stage-strut across the page, even when they claim they're simply slacking on the couch. Join Frog and Death and the absinthe squirrels on a savvy, consciousness-jolting road-trip through the landscape of right now. I loved this smart and artful book. I bet you will to. Open it. Find out. -Jeanne Larsen, winner of the AWP poetry book award

CL Bledsoe's Anthem is succinct, shrewd and contemporary. Bledsoe is a modern-age poet with the unique ability to bring the reader smack into the moment with him ... Anthem's poems are no exception. Often confessional, occasionally biting, Bledsoe proves once again that he is the poet for generation X, Y and whatever lies beyond. -Patricia Gomes, editor of Adagio Verse Quarterly and poetry moderator of iVillage's Poet's Workshop Order online at http://www.thelostbookshelf.com/index.html#CL Bledsoe

Anthem

$15.00

Shipping

$3.00

Total

$18.00

Â

Send check or money order payable to:
Cervena Barva Press
P.O. Box 440357,
W. Somerville, MA 02144-3222
e-mail: [redacted]

Visit Cervena Barva Press at: www.cervenabarvapress.com

Contact the editor: [redacted]

Visit our bookstore: www.thelostbookshelf.com

Thank you.

Gloria Mindock

[redacted]

↑ Index

216. Gloria Mindock

Anezka Ceska (Agnes of Bohemia) by Jaromir Horec Released by Cervena Barva Press

Sat 20 Jun 2009

Cervena Barva Press announces a new book
"Anezka Ceska" by Jaromir Horec Translated into English by Jana Moravkova Kiely as Agnes of Bohemia

Â

Jaromir Horec was born on December 18, 1921 in Chust, in Sub-Carpathian Ruthenia, which in 1919, at the treaty of Versailles, had voted to become part of the newly formed Czechoslovak Republic with an enlightened, freely elected government led by the humanist philosopher, Tomas Garrigue Masaryk.

Throughout the Nazi occupation of Czechoslovakia, JaromÃr Hoec was active in the underground anti-Nazi youth movement. After World War II, Sub-Carpathian Ruthenia was not returned to Czechoslovakia but was annexed by Stalin to the Soviet Union. Thus Horec, living in Prague, became an expatriate in his own country. He was a prolific poet, who was not allowed to publish for two periods of twenty years each: 1948-1966 and 1969-1989.

In 1977, he signed Charter 77 and two years later, he founded the Czech underground press Ceska Expedice for which he was imprisoned in 1981. His many works of poetry, include Anezka Ceska , and Chleb Na Stole , as well as many other publications, such as Why I Am Not a Communist and Sub-Carpathian Ruthenia-an Unknown land have been coming out only since 1989.

Order online at http://www.thelostbookshelf.com/index.html#Jaromir Horec

Anezka Ceska

$15.00

Shipping

$3.00

Total

$18.00

Â

Send check or money order payable to:
Cervena Barva Press
P.O. Box 440357,

W. Somerville, MA 02144-3222
e-mail: [redacted]

Thank you.

Visit Cervena Barva Press at: www.cervenabarvapress.com

To join our monthly newsletter, send an e-mail to: [redacted]

Visit our bookstore at: www.thelostbookshelf.com

Gloria Mindock

[redacted]

↑ Index

217. Maria Damon

Re: [spidertangle] Poetry and Cultural Studies: A Reader

Sat 20 Jun 2009

---

thanks, all, for your encouraging remarks! nothing like a poetry community to bolster the spirits. most of the time.

John Moore Williams wrote: > wonderful! can't wait to get one.
>
>
>
>
> _____
> From: Maria Damon <[redacted]>
> To: Theory and Writing <[redacted]>; UB Poetics discussion group <[redacted]>; [redacted]
> Sent: Thursday, June 18, 2009 10:53:52 AM
> Subject: [spidertangle] Poetry and Cultural Studies: A Reader
>
>
>
>
>
> Hi all:
>
> Poetry and Cultural Studies: A Reader, edited by yours truly and Ira > Livingston, is now available. I'm hiding under my desk as i anticipate > rocks and tomatoes from people who see their favorite scholar/poet > unrepresented and/or their favorite scholar/poet' s work redacted in a > way that they don't like. Nonetheless, it's available, with cover art by > our own David-Baptiste Chirot.

>
> http://www.amazon. com/Poetry- Cultural- Studies-Maria- Damon/dp/0252076087/ ref=sr_1_ 1?ie=UTF8& s=books&qid= 1245347572& sr=1-1
>
> __._,_.___
> Messages in this topic (1) Reply (via web post) | Start a new topic
> Messages | Files | Photos | Links | Database | Polls | Members | Calendar
> S P I D E R T A N G L E Projects listed at:
> http://www.spidertangle.net
>
> Change settings via the Web (Yahoo! ID required)
> Change settings via email: Switch delivery to Daily Digest | Switch format to Traditional
> Visit Your Group | Yahoo! Groups Terms of Use | Unsubscribe
> Recent Activity
> * 1
> New MembersVisit Your Group
> Give Back
> Yahoo! for Good
> Get inspired
> by a good cause.
> Y! Toolbar
> Get it Free!
> easy 1-click access
> to your groups.
> Yahoo! Groups
> Start a group
> in 3 easy steps.
> Connect with others.
> ..
>
> __,_._,___
>
>
>
>
>

↑ Index

218. Ruth Lepson
Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
Sat 20 Jun 2009

he & his wife told us that when he read at Berklee College of Music this winter. I know--I was astonished.

On 6/17/09 8:42 AM, "steve dalachinsky" <[redacted]> wrote:

> i know henry well 90 books??? where'd that figure come from
>
> On Mon, 15 Jun 2009 20:40:18 -0400 Ruth Lepson <[redacted]> writes:
> check out henry grimes, great old jazz musician, who has written over 90
> books of poetry--lives in NYC now.
>
> Ruth
>
> On 6/15/09 10:52 AM, "mIEKAL aND" <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> Best outsider poet I know is Malok. Never read a poem in his life, in & out > of mental hospitals in the late 70s (once for trying to take over a naval > carrier), on the dole, hermit, curmudgeon, divinely inspired by Charles > Bronson... You can real a lot of his work at
>
> http://malok.org
>
> *Also new recordings soon out of his reading of F*ck Dirge & of C*nt Utters*
> produced by Foist. Also a full length documentary of Malok by Camille Bacos
> is in the works.
>
> ~mIEKAL
>
> On Sat, Jun 13, 2009 at 7:43 PM, Jerome Rothenberg
> <[redacted]>wrote:
>
> For those who might be interested, my current posting on Poems & Poetics ( > poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com) is the first installment of > Outsider Poems,

> a mini-anthology in progress. What I'm hoping to do here is to work in > public while assembling material toward a gathering of poems & near-poems
> from anywhere/anytime that exist in literate societies but outside of the > normative literary nexus. I'll be developing the project - as far as I can > take it - with a sense that the term "outsider poetry" can cover a wide > range of sources & possibilities, from art brut & mystical/religious poems &
> offerings to folk & working class poetry, sermons & rants, glossolalia &
> glossographia, dialect & "nation language" (K. Brathwaite), & so on - works > in short both written & oral. In doing so, as with Poems for the > Millennium, I'll be open to suggestions from anyone out there, both > definitional or theoretical ones for "outsider poetry" in general and > specific ones for the selection of poems & poets. I don't for the moment > know exactly where this is taking me, but that's the pleasure & mystery of
> any new beginning.
>
> guidelines &

↑ Index

219. Troy Camplin

Re: Gift Economy

Sat 20 Jun 2009

Certainly they aren't a monolith, and anyone who says I said that they were was either disingenuous or didn't understand my argument. But Marcus is right that they are all antifoundationalists. They also tend to be anti-epistemologists as well. And their ideas tend to be founded in a combination of fascism and Marxism (read Richard Wolin's "The Seduction of Unreason" and Alexander Argyros' "A Blessed Rage for Order"). Further, Marcus is also right that too many poets either don't read philosophy, or don't understand what they are reading. There are a few contemporary exceptions, like Frederick Fierstein and Frederick Turner, but it sadly remains the rule. He is also right that too many poets don't actually read much poetry, except their contemporaries, who also haven't read anybody. This is in no small part due to the prevalence of antifoundational thinking, making people think they don't have to have any sort of foundation to be an artist. The result tends to be a bunch of garbage that all sounds the same. Or looks the same, with the visual arts.

Troy Camplin

_____
From: Marcus Bales <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Friday, June 19, 2009 9:12:09 AM
Subject: Re: Gift Economy

On Mon, Mar 9, 2009 at 10:52 PM, Jason Quackenbush <[redacted]> wrote:
> ... you are lumping ["French Theorists"] together inappropriately as if they represent some monolith of ideology that doesn't exist.<

I can't speak for Troy, but I don't view the "French Theorists" we're talking about here as a monolith of ideology, but rather as a series of misadventures in antifoundationalism. They are, as you rightly quote Butler pointing out, often contradictory with one another in some ways, but those ways are the ways they choose to disparage foundationalism, not their opposition to it. Where Butler (and, I take it, you) go wrong, in my view, is to assume that modes of thinking which disagree with or contradict one another about means can have no common end.

Antifoundationalism is not solely French, I think we can agree -- perhaps even that it isn't French at all except that it is the French literary intellectuals in the last century who were its most recent primary sponsors, Rorty aside, and are the writers under whose influence most of the people on this list are antifoundationalist.

You also rightly point out that most poets don't read philosophy. I'd like to add that when they do, they read it like they read books about quantum physics, and they get it miserably wrong. Even among the poets who've read Russell do you know any who could explain his Theory of Types? Of course one could paraphrase Byron about Coleridge and say even Russell couldn't explain his Theory of Types, but that's not a serious objection. Not only do most poets not read philosophy, and thus don't understand it, even those who read a little philosophy don't read it well or in context.

The problem, though, isn't that poets do or don't read or understand philosophy. The problem is how uncritically accepting most contemporary poets are of the antifoundationalist view. Well, okay, that means that the problem really is that poets don't read and understand philosophy. But most poets won't read poetry -- so what are the chances of getting them to read philosophy?

Marcus
.

On Mon, Mar 9, 2009 at 10:52 PM, Jason Quackenbush <[redacted]> wrote:
> > > > So because Martin Heidegger was a Nazi the > > disenchanted Marxist ideas of > > > > existentialism and post-structuralism were > > founded in fascism? It seems > > > > quite clear to me that you haven't read all of > > the "French Theorists"
> > > you're > > > > talking about because you are lumping them
> > together inappropriately as if > > > > they represent some monolith of ideology that > > doesn't exist. Borrowing
> > > the
> > > > following quote from the wikipedia entry on > > postmodernism, Judith Butler
> > > > pointed out that:
> > > > "A number of positions are ascribed to > > postmodernism - Discourse is all
> > > > there is, as if discourse were some kind of > > monistic stuff out of which
> > > all > > > > things are composed; the subject is dead, I can > > never say "I" again;
> > > there
> > > > is no reality, only representation. These > > characterizations are variously
> > > > imputed to postmodernism or poststructuralism, > > which are conflated with
> > > each
> > > > other and sometimes conflated with > > deconstruction, and understood as an
> > > > indiscriminate assemblage of French feminism,
> > deconstruction, Lacanian
> > > > psychoanalysis, Foucauldian analysis, Rorty´s
> > conversationalism, and > > > > cultural studies ... In reality, these movements

> > are opposed: Lacanian
> > > > psychoanalysis in France positions itself
> > officially against > > > > poststructuralism, that Foucauldian rarely relate
> > to Derridideans ...
> > > > Lyotard champions the term, but he cannot be made > > into the example of > > > what
> > > > all the rest of the purported postmodernists are > > doing. Lyotard´s work
> > > is,
> > > > for instance, seriously at odds with that of > > Derrida"
> > > >
> > > > more importantly, looking around at the literary > > field of the last 40
> > > years
> > > > or so I see in prose generally a marginal group
> > in the vein of > > > > Gaddis/Pynchon/Barth/Coover/Delillo/Wallace et al
> > that is rapidly giving
> > > way
> > > > to the sort of thing that Michael Chabon is now
> > up to where the wild
> > > > craziness of the high postmodernists is replaced
> > with a more subtle
> > > emphasis > > > > on traditional storytelling and the artificiality
> > of the publishing
> > > market > > > > controlled "genres" of fiction. In poetry the > > situation is much clearer,
> > > > where there were poets influenced by > > philosophers, the most obvious being
> > > > the Language poets, many of them are much more > > involved in anglo-american > > > > philosophy than you are giving them credit.
> > Wittgenstein is an obvious > > > > influence across the board, but probably more > > important are John Cage,
> > > > Gertrude Stein, and Charles Olson, none of whom > > were formed in the grips

> > > of
> > > > anything you might find in the Saussure to > > Derrida tradition in philosphy
> > > > you're pointing at. Ted Berrigan was heavily > > inspired by Whitehead, and > > > > Bertrand Russeell is the most widely read > > philosopher that I'm aware of
> > > for > > > > those poets who read philosophy.
> > > >
> > > > All of that aside, by my lights, it still seems > > to me that contemporary > > > > poetry is largely dominated by slam poetry and
> > the sort of MOR
> > > > confessionalism that you find in Seamus Heaney, > > Billy Collins, and their
> > > > ilk. ANd frankly the complaints of the > > reactionary trend to be found in > > > > neo-formalism are much more present in the > > popular consciousness than > > > > anything informed by Barthes or other critics
> > with his commitments.
> > > >
> > > > So really, while there is a great deal of
> > nattering by undergraduates
> > > about > > > > poorly understood french philosophers leaking out
> > of cultural studies
> > > > departments, i just don't see all this influence
> > that you're talking > > > about
> > > > by "French Theorists" and it makes me wonder what > > it is that you're
> > > reading,
> > > > because it's not the same stuff I am.
> > > >
> > > >
> > > > On Mar 9, 2009, at 1:43 PM, Troy Camplin wrote:
> > > >
> > > > I'm sorry that I don't uncritically accept
> > every idea that comes along.
> > > >> Hold, it, wait, neither do you. You just like > > what I don't, and dislike

> > > what
> > > >> I do. That doesn't make me a fascist. In > > fact, you show you don't even > > > know
> > > >> what a fascist is, with this statement.
> > > >>
> > > >> The American postmodernist writers were all > > influenced by such people as > > > >> Sartre, deBeauvoir, Lacan, Derrida, Barthes, > > Foucauld, etc. I've read
> > > them
> > > >> all. I like them all. But they have had too > > much influence over American
> > > >> letters over the last half century, and it > > will benefit us greatly to > > > come
> > > >> out from under that influence precisely > > because of the fascist
> > > foundations
> > > >> of their ideas and works (see Wolin's works > > on the fascist foundations
> > > of
> > > >> the postmodernist thinkers in "Heidegger's > > Children" and "The Seduction
> > > of
> > > >> Unreason" and Argyros' "A Blessed Rage for > > Order" on Derrida).
> > > >>
> > > >> The ability to judge ideas or their influence
> > as bad doesn't make one a > > > >> fascist. It shows that one is able to think > > and make critical judgments
> > > >> based on observation. The attempt to stifle > > dialogue by throwing around
> > > the
> > > >> word "fascist" to label those with whom you > > disagree is in fact a > > > fascist
> > > >> tactic.
> > > >>
> > > >> Troy Camplin

> > > >>
> > > >>
> > > >>
> > > >> _____
> > > >> From: Murat Nemet-Nejat <[redacted]>
> > > >> To: [redacted]
> > > >> Sent: Friday, March 6, 2009 4:40:44 PM
> > > >> Subject: Re: Gift Economy
> > > >>
> > > >> Troy,
> > > >>
> > > >> "our art and literature will improve greatly
> > the minute we stop being > > > >> influenced by the French theorists."
> > > >>
> > > >> Why does almost every statement you make must > > involve the putting down
> > > of > > > >> another? Are you aware how ridiculous that > > statements sounds. How much
> > > of > > > >> American literature, do you thing, is > > influenced by "French theorists"?
> > > Or
> > > >> how much of French literature is influence by
> > "French theorists" for
> > > that > > > >> matter? What is a French theorist anyhow?
> > > >>
> > > >> To indulge in some name calling myself, are > > you aware demonizing the
> > > other
> > > >> is the basic mode of Fascist thought, > > regardless how much libertarian,
> > > you
> > > >> might image, means liberty.
> > > >>
> > > >> Ciao,
> > > >>
> > > >> Murat
> > > >>
> > > >>

> > > >>
> > > >> On Thu, Mar 5, 2009 at 10:36 AM, Troy Camplin
> > <[redacted]>
> > > >> wrote:
> > > >>
> > > >> I do believe I can make better > > judgments than any government
> > > >>> administrator,
> > > >>> yes. Especially if they are working in > > their capacity of government > > > >>> administrator. Impersonal judgment is no > > judgment. As for people on the > > > >>> listserv, I believe my judgment is better > > than some, the same as
> > > others,
> > > >>> and
> > > >>> likely worse than a few -- but we are > > free to have those differences,
> > > >>> that
> > > >>> those who agree that my judgments are > > better or the same as theirs can > > > >>> support my nonprofit, and those who > > disagree can contribute to one (or > > > >>> start
> > > >>> their own) that better reflects their own > > taste. The point is that such > > > >>> actions would be voluntary.
> > > >>>
> > > >>> Personally, I've seen no evidence that > > France or Canada is turning out
> > > >>> superior artists, though I have n o doubt > > that the French and the > > > French
> > > >>> Canadians certainly think so. I will > > admit, though, that our art and > > > >>> literature will improve greatly the > > minute we stop being influenced by
> > > >>> the > > > >>> French theorists.
> > > >>>
> > > >>> Troy Camplin
> > > >>>

> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>> _____
> > > >>> From: François Luong <[redacted]>
> > > >>> To: [redacted]
> > > >>> Sent: Wednesday, March 4, 2009 4:23:06
> > PM
> > > >>> Subject: Re: Gift Economy
> > > >>>
> > > >>> The market already drives more than one > > art form. As many people
> > > >>> Troy,
> > > >>>
> > > >>> The market already drives more than one > > art form. As many people have > > > >>> pointed out, the majority of the music > > industry is driven by the free
> > > >>> market
> > > >>> at a global level. Is the music industry
> > any more equitable than other > > > >>> government-funded arts? Well, as cris > > costa pointed out, the only thing
> > > >>> that
> > > >>> is successful nowadays are "cheap > > products, made quickly, sold for a > > > lot
> > > >>> of
> > > >>> money," an argument you completely > > disregarded in your response to her.
> > > >>>
> > > >>> You also fail to show how a "nonprofit > > organization such as yours"
> > > would
> > > >>> be > > > >>> a better way to fund the arts. Are you > > implying you have better taste
> > > >>> than > > > >>> government administrators and/or anyone > > else on this listserv? Do I > > > >>> believe > > > >>> that "my" people would be in charge of a > > government art funding

> > > program?
> > > >>> Certainly not. Even though Canada and > > France have much better funding > > > >>> programs than the United States, they > > still have their faults. Does
> > > that > > > >>> mean we should scrap them? Well, they > > have certainly contributed to > > > >>> Canadian
> > > >>> arts and poetry being more interesting > > than the majority of US arts.
> > > >>>
> > > >>> Finally, many of the programs you are > > listed had already been enacted
> > > >>> before Hitler's rise to power. National > > health care had for example
> > > been > > > >>> implemented by Bismarck in 1883 (I might > > be a year or so off) and > > > >>> unemployment compensation in 1927 at the > > national level. The Ländern
> > > had > > > >>> their own programs before it was made a > > federal law.
> > > >>>
> > > >>> françois luong
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>> _____
> > > >>> From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
> > > >>> To: [redacted]
> > > >>> Sent: Wednesday, March 4, 2009 1:42:35
> > PM
> > > >>> Subject: Re: Gift Economy
> > > >>>
> > > >>> Much of the great monuments were in fact > > made with slave labor? Does
> > > that
> > > >>> then argue for slave labor for other > > massive works? Yes, many of our > > > >>> great > > > >>> works of art were government-funded, and > > government funds come from > > > >>> somebody

> > > >>> with power having enough power to take > > money from weaker people. To me,
> > > >>> that
> > > >>> argues against that method, no matter how > > successful it has been in the > > > >>> past. It's not magical thinking to > > believe there better, non-coercive
> > > >>> ways
> > > >>> to fund the arts, and that we should try > > to use and develop those. The > > > >>> market is one way. Nonprofit > > organizations such as mine are and can be > > > >>> another. Both are highly preferable to > > the coercive methods of > > > >>> government.
> > > >>>
> > > >>> And fascism is indeed a form of socialism
> > -- even if it is corporate > > > >>> socialism. I'm sorry that's an > > inconvenient fact for everyone here.
> > > There
> > > >>> are different kinds of socialism, you > > know -- it doesn't have to be > > > >>> communist in nature. Here is what > > Hitler's version looked like: he > > > >>> suspended
> > > >>> the gold standard, embarked on huge > > public works programs like > > > Autobahns,
> > > >>> protected industry from foreign > > competition, expanded credit,
> > > instituted
> > > >>> jobs programs, bullied the private sector
> > on prices and production > > > >>> decisions, vastly expanded the military,
> > enforced capital controls,
> > > >>> instituted family planning, penalized
> > smoking, brought about national

> > > >>> health > > > >>> care and unemployment insurance, imposed > > education standards, and > > > >>> eventually > > > >>> ran huge deficits. In all honesty, it was > > the kind of economy our
> > > >>> government
> > > >>> has been actively trying to set up for a > > while now, though it's been > > > >>> accelerating quite a bit of late..
> > > >>>
> > > >>> Those who support government funding of > > the arts naively think that
> > > they
> > > >>> will always have their people in charge
> > and that therefore they will be
> > > >>> the > > > >>> ones getting the funding. But you can't > > count on being in charge in a > > > >>> democratic country -- or even in > > socialist utopian dictatorship. I > > > prefer
> > > >>> to > > > >>> keep the government out of the arts > > completely, so there is far less
> > > >>> danger
> > > >>> of coercion or censorship -- direct or > > indirect.
> > > >>>
> > > >>> Troy Camplin
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>> _____
> > > >>> From: François Luong <[redacted]>
> > > >>> To: [redacted]
> > > >>> Sent: Tuesday, March 3, 2009 11:16:51 AM
> > > >>> Subject: Re: Gift Economy
> > > >>>
> > > >>> "The market also allows for persuasion.
> > People can be educated to learn > > > >>> what is good and what is not good." And > > who is going to do that

> > > >>> education,
> > > >>> Troy? The marketing department? I think > > we already have such situation.
> > > I
> > > >>> mean, aren't Shakira and Britney Spears > > more popular because they have
> > > a > > > >>> bigger marketing department than say, New > > Model Army?
> > > >>>
> > > >>> In all seriousness, your argument is > > based on magical thinking. There
> > > is
> > > >>> no
> > > >>> account for naturally occurring taste,
> > especially in a free market.
> > > What
> > > >>> you
> > > >>> base your argument on is, one, that all > > people are reasonable, two,
> > > that
> > > >>> reason will lead them toward goodness.
> > There are however no evidence
> > > for
> > > >>> this assertion, much like there is no > > evidence for the free market
> > > being > > > >>> able to nurture art as we understand it.
> > In the contrary, state-funded
> > > >>> art
> > > >>> goes back all the way to the Antiquity.
> > Who funded the Parthenon, for > > > >>> example? Or Leonardo receiving his > > funding from Francis I of France? An > > > >>> example of an artistic situation within a > > free market context? Try > > > >>> Germany
> > > >>> in the 1930s (just because the Nazi have
> > "Socialist" in their name does
> > > >>> not > > > >>> make them socialists. Being in the pocket

> > of Mercedes and Krupp proves
> > > >>> it),
> > > >>> with the painters of the Neue > > Sachlichkeit being persecuted because > > > their > > > >>> art was not marketable to the German > > populace.
> > > >>>
> > > >>> françois luong
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>> _____
> > > >>> From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
> > > >>> To: [redacted]
> > > >>> Sent: Monday, March 2, 2009 12:33:03 PM
> > > >>> Subject: Re: Gift Economy
> > > >>>
> > > >>> You only prove my point with such > > statement. Not that I'm not in > > > >>> agreement
> > > >>> with you that Dogs Playing Poker isn't > > really what I'm looking for in > > > >>> high > > > >>> art. What you missed was what came after > > the comma. The market also > > > >>> allows > > > >>> for persuasion. People can be educated to > > learn what is good and what
> > > is
> > > >>> not > > > >>> good. The same person who has Dogs > > Playing Poker in his basement would
> > > be > > > >>> terribly disappointed to find such a work
> > in his museum when he went to > > > >>> visit. There is a difference between what > > people like in a general sort
> > > >>> of
> > > >>> way and what people acknowledge to be > > great works of art. My wife, for > > > >>> example, thinks that opera is literally

> > the best way to spend an > > > evening.
> > > >>> But she also listens to Shakira. If you > > read the rest of my posting,
> > > you
> > > >>> will note that I differentiate between > > what the market does in allowing
> > > >>> for > > > >>> niches and true democracy, where there is > > a tyranny of the majority. In
> > > >>> that > > > >>> case, one would in fact get Dogs Playing > > Poker as high art. This is > > > >>> precisely why I'm not a fan of democratic > > government supporting the > > > arts.
> > > >>>
> > > >>> Troy Camplin
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>> _____
> > > >>> From: John Cunningham <[redacted]>
> > > >>> To: [redacted]
> > > >>> Sent: Monday, March 2, 2009 8:50:34 AM
> > > >>> Subject: Re: Gift Economy
> > > >>>
> > > >>> Are you kidding, Troy? Only if we > > want high art to consist of poker
> > > >>> playing
> > > >>> dogs is the market "the most > > democratic determiner of artistic merit"!
> > > >>> There are times when democracy is the > > worst possible determiner. If it > > > >>> had > > > >>> been allowed to determine things, blacks
> > would still be slaves as the > > > >>> Emancipation Proclamation was probably > > the most hated piece of > > > >>> legislation
> > > >>> ever and popular support was vastly

> > against it.
> > > >>> John Herbert Cunningham
> > > >>>
> > > >>> -----Original Message-----
> > > >>> From: Poetics List (UPenn, UB)
> [mailto:[redacted]]
> > > On
> > > >>> Behalf Of Troy Camplin
> > > >>> Sent: March-01-09 2:21 PM
> > > >>> To: [redacted]..BUFFALO.EDU
> > > >>> Subject: Re: Gift Economy
> > > >>>
> > > >>> Funny thing is, you're right about the > > anti-market position. The market
> > > >>> is > > > >>> in fact the most democratic determiner of > > artistic merit (much to the > > > >>> horror
> > > >>> of the elitists here), while also > > allowing room for people to have > > > access
> > > >>> to > > > >>> works that fit their own tastes. In a > > pure democracy, we would only
> > > >>> listen
> > > >>> to Britney Spears. Under > > democratic-government-controlled arts, we
> > > would > > > >>> only listen to music that is inoffensive
> > to everyone (I'm guessing
> > > >>> something
> > > >>> along the lines of 50's soft pop rock).
> > Only in the free market can I
> > > >>> listen
> > > >>> to Franz Ferdinand and Modest Mouse.
> > Incidentally, one of the reasons
> > > why
> > > >>> I
> > > >>> set up the Emerson Institute was to truly > > democratize patronage of the
> > > >>> arts
> > > >>> -- in a way that was 100% voluntary.

> > Equality under the law, yes;
> > > >>> collectivist egalitarianism, no.
> > > >>>
> > > >>> Troy Camplin
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>> _____
> > > >>> From: Marcus Bales <[redacted]>
> > > >>> To: [redacted]
> > > >>> Sent: Friday, February 27, 2009 12:15:42
> > PM
> > > >>> Subject: Re: Gift Economy
> > > >>>
> > > >>> The problem with Paul Nelson's objection
> > to Troy's notion that a free
> > > >>> market
> > > >>> is a good
> > > >>> judge of artistic merit is that it means > > Paul has put himself in an
> > > >>> untenable position:
> > > >>> he's implicitly arguing that some poems
> > are better than others, and
> > > that
> > > >>> some people
> > > >>> can tell which ones those poems are -- > > it's an elitist position, one
> > > that
> > > >>> will get him in a > > > >>> lot of trouble if he's not careful, and > > get him lumped in with Troy as
> > > an
> > > >>> equality-hater.
> > > >>> Be careful, Paul! You just can't say that > > some poems are better than
> > > >>> others,
> > > >>> or some
> > > >>> poets better than others, without getting > > accused of elitism!
> > > >>>
> > > >>> You're not an elitist, are you, Paul?
> > > >>>

> > > >>> Marcus
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>> On 26 Feb 2009 at 8:40, Paul Nelson
> > wrote:
> > > >>>
> > > >>> Date sent:
> > Thu, 26 Feb 2009 08:40:55 -0800
> > > >>> Send reply to:
> > "Poetics List (UPenn, UB)"
> > > >>> <[redacted]>
> > > >>> From:
> > Paul Nelson <[redacted]>
> > > >>> Subject:
> > Re: Gift Economy
> > > >>> To:
> > [redacted]
> > > >>>
> > > >>> Like most of your arguments, you
> > base your stand on a false dich
> > > >>>> Troy,
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Like most of your arguments, you base
> > your stand on a false
> > > >>>> dichotomy. You say if it is not FREE > > MARKET, it is GOVERNMENT. I was > > > >>>> only responding to your notion that > > the Free Market is a good judge
> > > >>>> of artistic quality. I find that > > laughable, which is why I have > > > >>>> responded in what I thought was a > > humorous manner.
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> What is lost in the dialog is the > > notion of poetry (hey, we can > > > >>>> actually get it back to what the LIST
> > is about) poetry is part of
> > > >>>> the gift economy.
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> from Wikipedia:
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>

> > > >>>> A gift economy is a social theory[1]
> > in which goods and services are > > > >>>> given without any explicit agreement
> > for immediate or future quid
> > > >>>> pro quo.
> > > >>>> Ideally simultaneous or recurring > > giving serves to circulate and > > > >>>> redistribute valuables within a > > community. This can be considered
> > > >>>> a
> > > >>>> form of reciprocal altruism.
> > > >>>> The concept of a gift economy stands
> > in contrast to a planned > > > >>>> economy or a market or barter
> > economy.
> > > >>>> In a planned economy, goods and > > services are distributed by > > > >>>> explicit > > > >>>> command and control rather than > > informal custom; in barter or
> > > >>>> market
> > > >>>> economies, an explicit quid pro quo -
> > an exchange of money or some > > > >>>> other commodity - is established > > before the transaction takes > > > >>>> place.
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Other cultures (& ours, to some > > degree, in years past) had a > > > >>>> different idea of the poet's role in > > society. Paz and Neruda as > > > >>>> Ambassadors, for example. Most > > industrial democracies have social > > > >>>> safety nets allowing an artist to > > live a decent life without > > > >>>> becoming a corporate puppet, but not > > ours.
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> I'd like nothing more than a drastic > > reduction in Federal Spending,
> > > >>>> starting with the outlays for > > militarism:

> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Again Wiki:
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> As of 2009, the United States > > government is spending about $1 > > > >>>> trillion annually on defense-related > > purposes.
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Imagine $1B of that going to fund
> > doctors and nurses in underserved > > > >>>> areas. Imagine a new (old) way of > > structuring economies on a > > > >>>> bioregional (sustainable) basis. The > > Federal Government becomes much > > > >>>> less of a factor which, it seems to > > me, is the common ground you and > > > >>>> I have. But when you make fauty > > premises such as the GOVERNMENT vs
> > > >>>> FREE MARKET, little light is > > generated.
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Charles Olson, William Carlos
> > Williams and others had some inkling
> > > >>>> about the importance of the local,
> > hence The Maximus Poems and > > > >>>> Paterson. This, to me, is the link > > between the discusson of Free > > > >>>> Markets vs Government intervention
> > and POETICS is, in theory anyway,
> > > >>>> the mission of this listserv. May it > > be so.
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Paul
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Paul E. Nelson
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Global Voices Radio
> > > >>>> SPLAB!

> > > >>>> American Sentences
> > > >>>> Organic Poetry
> > > >>>> Poetry Postcard Blog
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Ilalqo, WA 253..[redacted]
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> _____
> > > >>>> From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
> > > >>>> To: [redacted]
> > > >>>> Sent: Tuesday, February 24, 2009
> > 5:48:27 PM
> > > >>>> Subject: Re: The Market recognizes
> > talent!
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Now there's a fundamentalist
> > statement: "the opposite may be true."
> > > >>>> The market sometimes recognizes > > talent, sometimes not. It is an > > > >>>> imperfect arbiter of taste. What it > > does do, though, is allow for a > > > >>>> wide variety of options. The > > government does not give you options.
> > > >>>> It is a monopoly. You get what they > > give you, or nothing. Don't like > > > >>>> government-brand corn? Too bad. Don't > > like the government-brand car?
> > > >>>> Too bad. Don't like government-brand
> > art? AH, but there's the rub, > > > >>>> isn't it? Nobody here wants to > > believe there will be > > > >>>> government-brand art. Except that the > > government simply cannot > > > >>>> support everyone who says they are an > > artist. There must be someone > > > >>>> deciding who gets supported. Who is > > that going to be? You? I don't > > > >>>> think so. Me? Don't think so. This > > year it may be someone with whom > > > >>>> you agree; next year it may be > > someone with whom you never agree. Or > > > >>>> should there be a democratic vote? Do > > you really want art by > > > >>>> democratic vote? How many here write > > anything a > > > >>>> democratic majority would want to > > read? Perhaps a committee? Similar > > > >>>> problems arise, just on a smaller > > scale. In fact, it has the > > > >>>> problems of both situations. How,

> > then, is funding to be determined?
> > > >>>> How much funding? To whom will > > funding go? The safe bet would be to > > > >>>> give it to those who are already > > successful -- but then, if they are > > > >>>> already successful, why do they need > > government funding? And if they > > > >>>> are not successful, how does the > > government determine who to give > > > >>>> funding to, who to support? Based on > > production? Well, then, what > > > >>>> prevents us from having cheaters, who > > will produce just enough
> > > >>>> really bad art to get the funding
> > just so they don't have to go get
> > > >>>> a "real" job? I think about all these > > things and look at the history
> > > >>>> of government support for the arts
> > and cannot come to any other > > > >>>> conclusion that government funding > > for the arts is bad for the > > > >>>> arts..
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Troy Camplin
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> _____
> > > >>>> From: Paul Nelson <[redacted]..COM>

> > > >>>> To: [redacted]
> > > >>>> Sent: Sunday, February 22, 2009
> > 3:23:54 PM
> > > >>>> Subject: Re: The Market recognizes
> > talent!
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> From: Troy Camplin <[redacted]>
> > > >>>> To: [redacted]
> > > >>>> Sent: Friday, February 20, 2009
> > 1:14:23 PM
> > > >>>> Subject: Re: The Market recognizes
> > talent!
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> One
> > > >>>> can always point to people who in > > your opinion (and, with this
> > > >>>> list,
> > > >>>> mine) are at best embarrassing.
> > However, one can also point to the
> > > >>>> fact
> > > >>>> that Picasso, Monet, and Jasper Johns
> > were all made wealthy during > > > >>>> their lifetimes. I may not like > > Britney Spears, but I'm also not > > > >>>> going
> > > >>>> to deprive anyone of her, either, if > > that's what they like. If you > > > >>>> want
> > > >>>> to try to educate people to have > > better taste, that's fine and good
> > > >>>> --
> > > >>>> but there's no evidence the > > government is good at educating people
> > > >>>> in
> > > >>>> math and reading, let alone good > > taste. I love how you people have
> > > >>>> to > > > >>>> purposefully ignore facts to make > > your points. Throw up a few straw
> > > >>>> men
> > > >>>> (and women, in this case) to try to > > make a "point."

> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Troy Camplin
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> I prefer the phrase "People of Straw"
> > but I don't use the market as
> > > >>>> any > > > >>>> guide to quality in the arts. In > > fact, the opposite may be true,
> > > >>>> but
> > > >>>> when you're a fundamentalist, you say
> > funny things, eh?
> > > >>>> Paul E. Nelson
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Global Voices Radio
> > > >>>> SPLAB!
> > > >>>> American Sentences
> > > >>>> Organic Poetry
> > > >>>> Poetry Postcard Blog
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> Ilalqo, WA [redacted]
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>> --
> > > >>>> No virus found in this incoming
> > message.
> > > >>>> Checked by AVG.
> > > >>>> Version: 7.5.557 / Virus Database:
> > 270..11.3 - Release Date:
> > > >>>> 2/22/2009 12:00 AM
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > not accept all posts. Check
> > > >>> guidelines
> http://epc.buffalo..edu/poetics/welcome..html
> > > >>>
> > > >>>

> > not accept all posts. Check
> > > >>> guidelines
> > > >>>
> > not accept all posts.. Check
> http://epc.buffalo.edu/poetics/
> > > >>> welcome..html
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > not accept all posts.. Check
> http://epc.buffalo.edu/poetics/
> > > >>> welcome..html
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > not accept all posts. Check
> > > >>> guidelines
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > not accept all posts. Check
> > > >>> guidelines
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > not accept all posts. Check
> > > >>> guidelines
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > not accept all posts. Check
> > > >>> guidelines
> > > >>>
> > > >>>
> > accept all posts. Check
> > > >>
> > > >>
> > accept all posts. Check
> > > >>
> > > >
> > > > Jason Quackenbush

> > > > [redacted]
> > > >
> > > >
> > accept all posts. Check
> > > guidelines
> > > >
> > >
> > all posts. Check guidelines
> > >
> >
> >
>
>
>
>

↑ Index

220. Rob McLennan
vancouver poet gerry gilbert
Sat 20 Jun 2009

---

died yesterday;

http://www.ucalgary.ca/uofc/faculties/HUM/ENGL/canada/poet/g_gilbert.htm

rob

-- writer/editor/publisher ...STANZAS mag, above/ground press & Chaudiere Books (www.chaudierebooks.com) ...coord.,SPAN-O + ottawa small press fair ...14th poetry coll'n - gifts (Talon) ...2nd novel - missing persons www.abovegroundpress.blogspot.com * http://robmclennan.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

221. steve russell
Re: Outsider Poetry: a mine-anthology in progress
Sat 20 Jun 2009

---

yeah. more accurately: Flanagan was outside of academic circles. He's had plenty of recognizition, especially as a performance artist. I think Jesse Helms mentioned the crucified cock thing during an NEA debate. Actually, I'm not necessarily sure if Flanagan nailed his cock to a cross, but if I'm not mistaken, nails and pain were involved, and Helms couldn't appreciate S/M mutilation. Go figure...

--- On Sat, 6/20/09, steve dalachinsky <[redacted]> wrote:

From: steve dalachinsky <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Outsider Poetry: a mine-anthology in progress
To: [redacted]
Date: Saturday, June 20, 2009, 2:27 AM saw flanagan when he did new museum show we spoke wow and his wife as well or mate
but why is he an outsider - he had a major museum show while alive what qualifies him his cock nailed to across?

On Thu, 18 Jun 2009 16:07:16 -0700 steve russell <[redacted]>
writes:
...of course, since this is an open or not fully defined project, we can go just about ... Bob Flanagan, jesus, the guy did it all he fucking nailed his cock to a cross with real nails and if that's not art it qualifies as inspired in my book ...

his poetry wasn't bad
he did a nice homage to Bukowski
see the Outlaw Bible of American Poetry

...mental illness/jail/ jimmy santiago baca has the most impressive
bio of any living poet who managed to survive hard incarceration...

...i'll put a plug in for myself, i mean, goddamn, i fit the ill
catagory ... i have a track record ... documentation
... a small but devoted ...

... really, i dig these sort of projects, in d.c. we have poetry in the shelters, the weekly rag "Street Sense"/tho many major cities
have it also ...

...Dan Snider, I think that's his name, check out his website, yeah,
i can't say his poetry is ... but as a critic,
the guy slams ...

...& let's see, i read "technicians of the sacred"

> a while back & > dug, but no/ONE has focused on blasphemy or the shit > that makes us > all uncomfortable, I mean pedophilia: i think it's > ugly enough to be > universal, not just a Catholic thing...
>
> ...Denis Johnson, I hope he doesn't stop writing > poetry because THE
> THRONE OF THE THIRD HEAVEN OF THE NATIONS MILLENNIUM
> GENERAL
> ASSEMBLY was truely awesome; he wrote about an artist > janitor and > the lifelong project this man assembled while he > worked as a janitor
> at the National Portrait Gallery.
>
> all posts. Check

↑ Index

222. Justin Katko

Buffalo June 25: Jow Lindsay, Posie Rider, Joshua Strauss

Sun 21 Jun 2009

Jow Lindsay (London)
Posie Rider (London)
Joshua Strauss (Buffalo)

will read poetry at Rust Belt Books, Buffalo, on 7pm June 25 2009

Links:
http://plantarchy.us/images/buffalo-june-25.jpg
Jow - http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Jow_Lindsay
Posie - http://ladiesalone.blogspot.com/
Josh - http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=t1VcfIVMjPc

↑ Index

223. Jennifer Karmin

Call for submissions: Printers' Ball

Sun 21 Jun 2009

ALL PRINT ENTHUSIASTS:
It's time to register for the biggest lit party of the year!

The Printersâ€™ Ball
Friday, July 31, 2009
5pm to 11pm
1104 South Wabash Avenue
Chicago, IL

The Printers' Ball, founded by Poetry magazine with Chicago literary organizations, is an annual celebration of print culture, featuring thousands of free magazines, books, and broadsides; live readings and music; letterpress, offset, and paper-making demonstrations; and much more. This yearâ€™s Printersâ€™ Ball is hosted by Columbia College Chicago and the Center for Book & Paper Arts in the historic Ludington Building, former home to the American Book Company. As always, there is no fee to attend or participate in the Printers' Ball!

To participate in the Printersâ€™ Ball, you must donate one to three-hundred (1-300) back issues, current issues, old books, new books, and/or broadsides to the Printersâ€™ Ball (ephemera and/or promotional materials are welcome!). Delivery details will be sent next week, after registration is complete. The deadline to register is Wednesday, June 24!

Now, for the first time ever, doors are open to publishers outside of Chicago. Even if you are unable to attend in person, we will add your materials to the mix of print. More than 1,500 people attend the Printersâ€™ Ball, and over 150 literary organizations will showcase the various ways they bring print to life. If you would like to participate, reply YES! to this email and provide:

â€¢ The name of your publication or organization and the corresponding URL
â€¢ A 20- to 50-word mission statement
â€¢ Contact person (full name and e-mail)

Fred Sasaki
[redacted]

Associate Editor, Poetry
444 North Michigan Avenue, Suite 1850
Chicago, IL 60611-4034
[redacted] Ext. 8005

[redacted] Fax
http://www.poetrymagazine.org

↑ Index

224. David-Baptiste Chirot

Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress

Sun 21 Jun 2009

“I liked absurd paintings, pictures over doorways, stage sets, carnival backdrops, billboards, colored prints, old-fashioned literature, Church Latin, erotic books badly spelled, the kind of novels our grandmothers read, fairy tales, little children’s books, old operas, silly refrains, naïve rhythms . . .

Arthur Rimbaud, “Alchemy of the Word”

It might be very interesting to also have some --perhaps--who knows----at any rate some examinations investigations questionings of "outsider poems"—'outsider poetry" in an anthology of this kind----

Such as when does one begin to find the lists of “outsider Poetry” such as Rimbaud’s beginning to first appear—in Rabelais or Villon, or among the romans or Greeks--??—

Among the “idees recues” of Flaubert’s dictionary of them compiled by Bouvard and Pecuchet—among the anonymous Faits divers of Felix Feneon in 1906—al the disappeared and forgotten works which begin to beckon to one from out of the shadowy little known or visited areas where Outsiders are said to dwell—hidden inside fictions as among camouflaging and codes, so as to remain hidden until the “right person comes along and finds them . . . “ a soon to arrive or quite distant M Champollion to translate them from Outsider languages—“ (these works while considered "classics" within themselves ask questions which may be of use in thinking on "outsider poetry--"

The usual journalistic questions come swarming to mind----what is Outsider Poetry--when did it first appear--by whom--anonymous or known--where--and then why--why this anthology, why now, and what for--and why or when or how is the editor interested in this--new territories to conquer?--to open up things not already opened or come to mind--and for whom one may ask other than as a corollary of textbooks already taught and used by poets also--as yet another tome creating a whole new field of teaching jobs and essay production and commentaries and so on--which accompanies the outsider's procession into the insiders' worlds-- . . . Perhaps the simple asking of basic journalistic questions is a good way to start some thinking about the "outsiders" and who and why they are and where and when and which to put inside and insider collection of outsiders . . . / to generate some ideas and evermore questions--else one is just going along with a kind of blurry image in the mind of something called willy nilly an outsider by all manner oc qualifications without asking oneself what the heck am i actually thinking about--in considering this or that poet

so there is a lot of work and fun and creation to be done withal these questions and there swarming descendants and proliferating extended families for sure--

Yes--as very many of these questions, investigations, perhapses and wonderings can and do swarm into the light like moths disturbed from their somnolence in the quiet darkness of libraries where the book worms create a new form of writing which is the literal consumption of the texts—creating strange labyrinthine passages which re-write whole sections of poetry and devastate fields of prose—

and mimic in their way certain acts of reading which eat their way through texts leaving behind them an erased zone someday to be part of palimpsests of dust, grime, or jottings when the blank pages are reused by the recycling minded as the “blank spaces” to fill with a diary, or an outline of an essay on the manner in which locusts resemble readers devouring texts, and in a much more systematic and ruthless manner than mere book worms or moths resembling worn out scraps of old carpeting imbued with the dust of many fortunately departed days--

Yes, regarding an anthology of Outsider Poetry on might well ask--How much does this idea borrow from or diverge from the original conceptions of Outsider work that began early in the late 19th-early 20th century with artists trying to get "outside" their own culture via arts from other cultures (Gauguin, Van Gogh

, Picasso etc) or via the discovery of a "Sunday Painter, a naif" like Rousseau who could also be included in "art,", or art from children (Kandinsky, abt 1905) and then art from the mentally ill (Prinzhorn, 1922). . . or the Surrealist uses of the dream and exquisite corpses and automatic writings (precursors perhaps of the machine programmed writings of today used to “get outside of the lyric I”--) or the uses of drugs and alcohol to create “out of the same old same old mind experiences” so to speak—and then Dubuffet’s concepts and collection of Art Brut first announced in 1947—

There are a huge number of ways to examine what is "outsider poetry" depending on the cultural construction, as well as the academic, poetic, social constructions that one brings to the concept, the idea, the image of what "outsider poetry" is or is not, or could be etc—

There’s also an immense worldwide phenomena across many media and arts of "the outsider artist and his/her works" in art magazines, lit mags, among musicians and record collectors, buyers of "primitive" or "self taught" artists' creations--al of these have contributed to the vast explosion of a now very widespread popular appreciation of and deliberate creation of "outsider works" as an "underground, legendary source" of some of the works considered to be "extraordinary, different, outside the usual run of things, brut"--from the past, the present--and maybe even in a sort of Futurism based on the sense that what exists in the Present is a "ruins in reverse" of the future--when the present is taken to be a "construction site" from which building s emerge—

Yes, out of art brut and outsider works for a long time have the professional or amateur “artists “of the non-brut variety found inspiration, solace, the recognition of a “fellow spirit,” Just as they do with non-Outsiders except the Outsider comes with far less cultural baggage—at least for a while--

What then would make "outsider poetry" different from the other "outsider works and artists?" What then might be the meta literature of outsider works like that of Roberto Bolano's book Nazi Literature of the Americas, whose last section led to the novella Distant Star in which exists such "outsiders" as the Barbaric Writers, fan zines of football teams that aspire to a kind of super aggressive poetry, bizarre motorcycle white power club mags on badly printed low quality papers----and so on-or those produced as de luxe “vanity editions” to the select few--

Then there are the various approaches to what a French writer has called "The Literature of the No," which I have worked in for a while now and been ecstatic to begin finding it in the work of other writers such as Edgardo Vila-Matas and M. Berube-as well as a long tradition going back especially to some examples in the travel Literature of the 17th century---this is the "Bartlebys and Company" branch of the unwritten and--al the same perhaps readable texts--the areas of the unreadable which will someday emerge as readable or the unwritten which is ultimately written by a completely different person as though "taking dictation" from an unknown source--a voice, a trace among spider webs "blowing in the wind"--

then there could be the question of the history of the recognitions of an outsider poetry at different epochs--say beginning at one period and ever since the uses and interests of such an Outsider text as the confessional writings of the condemned serial killer Gilles de Rais, or that of "peasant writers" in several European countries "coming to light" during the Age of Enlightenment--

Speaking in tongues--might have found through its immensely long history various ways other than Zaum which attempted to create/included in itself something akin to this in writing?--

Then there is the language and writings of it given to puppets, Guignol, the works written with much use of slang like Celine and Genet--and ones who are more extreme by far--so many many others now in the usa alone--in which there’s the return to the kind of jargon used by Villon whcih not long after begins to decay in its being able to be understood and turns then into a form of writing "outside" the very words around it—

one could include as Outsider Poetry could one not the immense amount of writing which is right on the paintings and objects of art brut—which is quite like the book of Kells as redone say by the pre-perspective “primitive” painters of Italy, whose works are like forerunners to comic strips—with the writing of what the personages are saying underneath the image, esp of Holy persons, the Holy Family and Saints and so forth—

(I am for the most part limiting this to Western examples—as that is what i am more familiar with--)

Outsider writing/poetry could be that done in Mail Art by the writings and stampings collaged images and quotations from magazinzes and newspapers –

The question of what is Outsider Poetry—and according to whom, and why—and at what time in art historical and in literary historical and in historical time—al of these play a prt do they not in considering what or may not be ‘Outsider poetry—“

In Visual Poetry, my works are accepted as “visual poetry” though at a kind of extreme (“the dirtiest of the dirty” according to Geof Huth and , with Bob Cobbing, part of the “extreme school of Quick’nDirty” by jw curry)—

But when one asks about whereone might display them, as soon as they are moved from one realm (poetry, visual poetry) to another—the visual strictly, the become immediately called “art brut” or “punk art brut’ etc

In writing how then does one qualify an outsider poet—by many criteria of a person’s life and influences an the effects methods and interests and style of the writing, a person like Bill burroughs and myself are lumped as a form of “outsider” writer off in the darker areas close to the “Poetes Maudits”—

Yet one might also say—yes but –despite the other qualifications these birds pass without question, what about other factors involved--??—the same with jean genet or a writer like Mohamed Choukri who was illiterate until age twenty and went straight from illiteracy to writing in classical Arabic, as genet wrote in Classical Racinien French—

Yet they are considered also Outsiders due to thebackgr9unds, life story—

So it al a much more complex and swarming area—to really extend the questions of I wd think—or hope—because otherwise why do an anthology of outsider poetry now, at this moment other than perhaps, since writing is always fifty or more years behind painting—

To only now “catch the wave” of a guaranteed mass appeal--and throw together an anthology of something vaguely called an “Outsider poetry” –

Isn’t it important to present some ideas of what Outsider is in poetry what might be different from it than in other arts—or—to make use of these for forms of thinking on works that aren’t outsider ones—either what I call “Fauxk Art” type writing or the neo-Brute , or the Nostalgic poetics of the neo-Naugahyde poetry of the ranch houses of yesterday and their contribution to a “fauxk rusticity” or a “kind of ruin of the images of the old west” down to the fake Fauxk --yes, one can indeed fake the fauxk!!!--wagon wheel in the corner to be immortalized in a harsh yet ‘swinging’ meter based indeed on Western Swing music—

That is, one can INVENT all manner of outsider Writers just as Borges did to a good and powerful extent and Bolaño, Berube, Vila-Matas and myself invent them whole sale—out of whole cloth—because even the fictional or perhaps even more so the fictional becomes a kind of “avant-garde” leading the way into these “unknown realms existing al around one and hitherto unnoticed”—

Because the elasticity of the fictional as it operates among the actual—opens gates there one had never noticed at all—like the place in a wal in a H G Wells story which suddenly for passerby produces a door opening to a compltely Other World--

Or has perhaps gleaned from the art music and various other outsider lit examples of the past—

That is part of the challenge of this kind of project—for sure—

“El Colonel sits and reads smoking, and thinking how Death, the Grim Reaper, harvests not only corpses and souls, but poetry also, and literature, painting, theater, cinema and the documentary of “non-fiction.” “As the Blood dries, so the Ink comes to life—the paint, the greasepaint, the photo and cinematographic negatives . . . the development of images arises from the decay of the flesh . . . Rimbaud’s ‘Sleeper in the Valley’ born and given life by the two red bullet holes . . . vibrantly, startlingly bright flowers in the verdant valley’s peaceful fields of a long ago War . . .

El Colonel, seated on the large rock growing warm in the midday sun, sees around him tableaux out of a shifting series of eras of painting and writing that he knows from various tomes and journals found through time in the ruins of villages, the war torn forests and fields, the shattered and smoldering ruins of bombed out municipal libraries, of private collections assembled by this person and that, and by the scattered remnants of torn newspapers from mutilated kiosks, or the torn and jagged wind blown strips of posters clinging precariously to the walls of collapsed cinemas, the smashed and bullet pocked walls of small alleys, and the wide-flung spaces of avenues where theatres and cafes once stood, and which now lie in a heap of tangled images, signs, structures, bodies arranged intriguingly among the still smoking craters of bombings and fires set by incendiary devices.

El Colonel's eyes surgically examine the corpses as his thoughts "make incisions in the pulpy mass of memories, a substance akin to that of the insides of melons, mangos, avocados . . . cutting into this fresh and drenched flesh of memories, El Colonel finds always the mixture of death with art, blood with poetry, sadism with cinema, propaganda with photographs and inside them all, the nerves and sinews of rebellion, of refusal, of the Unwritten Writing, the Unread Non-Written texts, the images and paintings of Untaken Photos Not Capturing the Moment, the Unpainted Unseen images not even found in the "Museum without Walls."

From "El Colonel is sitting on a rock and smoking"—David chirot (five El Colonel Stories are already on line in various journals-)

> Date: Sat, 13 Jun 2009 16:43:18 -0800
> From: [redacted]
> Subject: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
> To: [redacted]
>
> For those who might be interested, my current posting on Poems & Poetics (poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com) is the first installment of Outsider Poems, a mini-anthology in progress. What I'm hoping to do here is to work in public while assembling material toward a gathering of poems & near-poems from anywhere/anytime that exist in literate societies but outside of the normative literary nexus. I'll be developing the project - as far as I can take it - with a sense that the term "outsider poetry" can cover a wide range of sources & possibilities, from art brut & mystical/religious poems & offerings to folk & working class poetry, sermons & rants, glossolalia & glossographia, dialect & "nation language" (K. Brathwaite), & so on - works in short both written & oral. In doing so, as with Poems for the Millennium, I'll be open to suggestions from anyone out there, both definitional or theoretical ones for "outsider poetry" in general and specific ones for the selection of poems & poets. I don't for the moment know exactly where this is taking me, but that's the pleasure & mystery of any new beginning.
>
> Other recent postings on Poems & Poetics include: Octavio Paz on Modernity & Romanticism; Two Poems Recovered from Seymour Faust; my own "Poetry of the > 1950s as a Global Awakening"; "The Nanking Massacre: A Birthday Poem & Tribute for Makoto Oda"; David Antin's "Notes for an Ultimate Prosody"; Armand Schwerner's "Hall of Mirrors, A Dialogue" (previously unpublished); an excerpt from Ilya Kaminsky's "Musica Humana, an Elegy for Osip Mandelstam"; Pierre Joris's translations from Goethe's West-Östlicher Diwan; & Karl Young's "Toward an Ideal Anthology" (excerpted). Scheduled for future publication are Charles Bernstein's translation from Victor Hugo's "Les Contemplations"; Heriberto Yépez's "Ethopoetics [not ethnopoetics], What Is It?"; excerpts from Christian Bök's Eunoia; Bruce Andrews' "Four 19th-Century Poems"; Ambar Past's introduction to Tzotzil Indian "Incantations": Joe Safdie's "Against Romanticism" (excerpts); & further ongoing installments of Outsider Poems, a Mini-Anthology in Progress.

>
> Jerome Rothenberg
> 1026 San Abella
> Encinitas, CA 92024
> jrothenberg at cox.net
> Blog at poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com
>
> "Poetry must have something in it that is barbaric, vast, and wild."
> D. Diderot

_____ Hotmail® has ever-growing storage! Don’t worry about storage limits. http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/Storage?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tutorial_Storage_062009

↑ Index

225. Deborah Meadows

Bruce Andrews & Deborah Meadows @ The PRB

Sun 21 Jun 2009

Buffalo List friends in LA area,

It would be great if you could attend.

Deborah Meadows

-----Original Message-----
From: PRB Directors [mailto:[redacted]]
Sent: Wed 6/10/2009 2:37 PM
To: undisclosed-recipients
Subject: Bruce Andrews & Deborah Meadows @ The PRB

The Poetic Research Bureau presents...

BRUCE ANDREWS & DEBORAH MEADOWS

Friday, June 26 2009 at 7:00pm

@ The Poetic Research Bureau
3702 San Fernando Blvd
Glendale, CA 91206

Doors open at 7:00pm
Reading starts at 7:30pm

$5 donation requested

*Bruce Andrews *is "a performance artist and poet whose texts are some of the most radical of the Language school; his poetry tries to cast doubt on each and every 'natural' construction of language" (The Oxford Companion to Twentieth Century Literature in English). A founding editor of the key journalL=A=N=G=U=A=G=E, Andrews has maintained a consistent position at the radical edge of the literary avant-garde. Author of over thirty volumes of poetry, and a collection of innovative critical essays (Paradise & Method: Poetics & Praxis, with a load of books, shorter texts, interviews, essays, recordings & commentary online at the Electronic Poetry Center, Ubu, PennSound, Eclipse, Jacket & Wikipedia). He has lived in New York City since 1975, teaching political science at Fordham University (see YouTube for his 5 minute dust-up with Bill O'Reilly), and since the mid-80s has been Music Director & sound designer for Sally Silvers & Dancers. [Sally, by the way, is in town performing with Yvonne Rainer at Red Cat this week, June 25 to 28.]

Deborah Meadows teaches in the Liberal Studies department at California State Polytechnic University, Pomona. Her most recent book of poetry is from Shearsman Press entitled Goodbye Tissues. Other works of poetry include: * involutia* (Shearsman Press, UK, 2007), The Draped Universe (Belladonna* Books, 2007), Thin Gloves (Green Integer, 2006), Representing Absence(Green Integer, 2004), Itinerant Men (Krupskaya, 2004), and two chapbooks, Growing Still(Tinfish Press, 2005) and "The 60's and 70's: from The Theory of Subjectivity in Moby-Dick" (Tinfish Press, 2003). Her Electronic Poetry Center author page is located: http://epc.buffalo.edu/authors/meadows/

↑ Index

226. Chad Sweeney

Do you know any poets living in Prague?

Sun 21 Jun 2009

I'm going to Prague for the month of July, and I'd love to meet some poets living there. Know any Czech poets? Email addresses? Back channel me, and thank you!!!!! Cheers,Chad Sweeney

↑ Index

227. Chad Sweeney
Looking for work for Parthenon West Review Issue 7
Sun 21 Jun 2009

[redacted] for current and past issues

Building a dynamic issue 7, but we need more translations. Always a major feature of the magazine. In the past we've published translations by Paul Hoover (several Vietnamese poets), Forrest Gander (Xue Di), Brian Henry (Ales Stager), Andrew Zawacki (Ales Debeljak), Matthew Zapruder (Eugen Jebeleanu), Joshua Beckman (Tomaz Salamun), even Willis Barnstone's Horace and Catullus, and lots more than I can't remember off the top.
Send work to [redacted]
Cheers,Chad Sweeney

↑ Index

228. Susan Webster Schultz recent posts from mid-Pacific
Sun 21 Jun 2009

Tinfish Editor's Blog update:

Contemplations on Contemplations on Pidgin Culture...republishing _Living Pidgin_, by Lee Tonouchi # Defying etymology: Intertexts and adoption in Dobbs, Shin, and Ashbery # "Intercontinental and damn proud of it": Gaye Chan, Nandita Sharma, Stephen Collis and Otherly Ones

http://tinfisheditor.blogspot.com

aloha, Susan

↑ Index

229. Matt Henriksen
Cannibal 5 Accepting Submissions
Mon 22 Jun 2009

We're reading for Cannibal: Issue 5. Send about 1-12 pages in an attachment to [redacted].

Copies of Cannibal 4 are still available at flesheatingpoems.blogspot.com & our Summer Sale, 3 chapbooks for $12.50, continues.

↑ Index

230. Philip Meersman

Proud to present: some international publications and performances by Philip Meersman

Mon 22 Jun 2009

Dear Friends,

Just an update of what I've been doing lately:
Getting published in Monkey Puzzle
Performances in Romania during the Antares festival together with the Flemish poets Jasoro, Pisteffo, Fjorton and Dirk Elst (pictures you can find here: http://www.facebook.com/album.php?aid=127637&id=661490308)

Participated and performance at the Festival and Colloquium "Days and Nights of Literature" Mangalia-Neptun, Romania (www.uniuneascriitorilor.ro): pictures, recordings and created pieces soon on www.facebook.com/spooninmybrain and www.myspace.com/spooninmybrain

Being published in two of the main Dutch language webmagazines: http://www.decontrabas.com/de_contrabas/2009/05/gedichten-philip-meersman.html and http://www.kraai.be/gastschrijvers/philip-meersman-dichter-des-vaderlands/

Being published with some audio and txt-files in the online Magazine Aslongasittakes: http://www.aslongasittakes.org/issue%203.html#MEERSMAN

Being twice published in Monkey Puzzle #7 (a picture and a poem) http://www.monkeypuzzleonline.com/magazine/?p=773
+ being published in Monkey Puzzle #6 too

Latest achievement: I am proud to announce the fact that the Nordic Poetry Center has posted some of my pieces on the Nokturno side of the Nokturno/NPC portal, at http://www.nokturno.org/philip-meersman/sound-poems/

Your comments are welcome.

Booking nformation for performances or poetry workshops, mail your inquiries to: [redacted]

Next workshop: Ghent in Cap during the Ghentse Feesten, Ghent in Belgium: July, 18-21, 2009 (contact "Priegel Koelman" <[redacted]
>)

More international workshops you can find on: http://www.galerie-quint-essences.ch/Writing_retreats_&_residencies.htm This site will be updated in July with more information and more diverse workshops.

Huge hug,

Philip

--
Philip Meersman
A. Lynenstraat 25 bus 3
1210 St-Joost-ten-Noode Belgium
tel[redacted]
www.myspace.com/spooninmybrain http://www.poetasdelmundo.com/verInfo_europa.asp?ID=4337 http://www.youtube.com/spooninmybrain skype: Spooninmybrain
[redacted]
22/0509: Kunst in de Luwte, Roosdaal, Koetshuis 22.00 uur (www.kunstindeluwte.be)
28/05/09-01/06/09: Antares festival, Romania (http://antares.inforapart.ro/)
03/06/09-05/06/09: performances @ rushhour in the Brussels metro system for Bruxelles Environment (http://vimeo.com/5001240)
11-16/06/09: Festival and Colloquium "Days and Nights of Literature" Mangalia-Neptun, Romania (www.uniuneascriitorilor.ro)
17/07/09-28/07/09: Ghent in Cap: Het poeziepodium van de Gentse Feesten met workshops, debatten,...
19/08/09-:29/08/09: 2nd Masterclass poezie @ Struga Poetry Evenings (www.svp.org.mk/) (www.creatiefschrijven.be)
13-15/11/09: Festival Flamme, Amnéville les Thermes, France

↑ Index

231. John Foley
FlashPoint Celebrates FINNEGANS WAKE!
Mon 22 Jun 2009

FLASHPOINT
http://www.flashpointmag.com celebrates FINNEGANS WAKE on its 70th Re-Birthday!
GEORGE CINCLAIR GIBSON
MARY ELLEN BUTE
KARL REISMAN

SUZANNE NIXON

ERIC ROSENBLOOM

STEPHEN WALSH & BRIAN O'TOOLE

JAMES JOYCE

LUCIA JOYCE

STELLA STEYN

JOHN ATKINSON

KIT SMYTH BASQUIN

ELLIOT KAPLAN

JOHN MATTHIAS

JOHN RYSKAMP

DAVID HICKMAN

PETER O'BRIEN

ROSALIE GANCIE

JOE BRENNAN

JR FOLEY

CARLO PARCELLI

"Along the frontier where the arts & politics clash ..."

↑ Index

232. Small Press Traffic

status update: Conceptualism and Craft now ONE NIGHT ONLY

Mon 22 Jun 2009

Please not the change of length and cost for this amazing workshop

Conceptualism and Craft with K. Silem Mohammad
CCA San Francisco Campus
WEDNESDAY JULY 8TH ONLY
Time: 6pm-9pm
$40 / $30 students and members

This one-day workshop will begin by examining and rehearsing various techniques central to Conceptualist poetics, broadly considered so as to encompass appropriation, transcription, and other versions of what Kenneth Goldsmith has called “uncreative writing,” as well as the deliberately awkward and expressively debased gestures associated with Flarf. We will then look at these techniques in relation to older and more traditional notions of craft: can there be coherent criteria for craft-based evaluation of texts written using blankly conceptual or intentionally “bad” methods? Do any of the familiar aesthetic categories still apply, and if so, how?

K. Silem Mohammad is the author of three books of poetry: Breathalyzer (Edge Books, 2008), A Thousand Devils (Combo Books, 2004), and Deer Head Nation (Tougher Disguises, 2003). His work has been featured in numerous journals and anthologies, including The Best American Poetry 2004, Bay Poetics, and A Best of Fence, as well as the forthcoming Flarf: An Anthology of Flarf, which he is co-editing with Sharon Mesmer, Nada Gordon, and Gary Sullivan. With Anne Boyer, he edits the poetry magazine Abraham Lincoln. He is Associate Professor of English and Writing at Southern Oregon University in Ashland.

Class is limited to 20 participants.
Sign up online by using paypal from sptraffic.org
or make arrangements through email at [redacted]

Samantha Giles
Executive Director
Small Press Traffic Literary Arts Center
sptraffic.org
smallpresstraffic.blogspot.com

↑ Index

233. twshaner
Susan Tichy reading in Eugene this Friday
Mon 22 Jun 2009

DIVA's New Poetry Series features a reading by Susan Tichy

at 7:30 PM on Friday, June 26th.
Admission by donation.

DIVA Center

110 W. Broadway

Eugene, Oregon

Phone: [redacted]

Susan Tichy's poems have appeared widely in the US and Britain , and have been recognized by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, and numerous awards.

She teaches in the Graduate Writing Program at George Mason University in Virginia , and otherwise makes her home in a ghost town in the Colorado Rockies.

Susan Tichyâ€™s most recent book, Bone Pagoda (Ahsahta Press, 2007), is an extended meditation on Vietnam â€”the country, the war, and the moral catastrophe signified by this word in American memory. It is underwritten by her experience as a war protester and as the wife of a combat veteran.

Her fourth book, Gallowglasss, will be out from Ahsahta in 2010. Ahsahta Press Boise State University 1910 University Drive , Boise , ID 83725-1525 . Web: http://ahsahtapress.boisestate.edu/

More about Susan Tichy: http://ahsahtapress.boisestate.edu/books/tichy/tichy-bio.htm

Phone: [redacted]

Susan Tichy's poems have appeared widely in the US and Britain , and have been recognized by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, and numerous awards.

She teaches in the Graduate Writing Program at George Mason University in Virginia , and otherwise makes her home in a ghost town in the Colorado Rockies.

Susan Tichyâ€™s most recent book, Bone Pagoda (Ahsahta Press, 2007), is an extended meditation on Vietnam â€”the country, the war, and the moral catastrophe signified by this word in American memory. It is underwritten by her experience as a war protester and as the wife of a combat veteran.

Her fourth book, Gallowglasss, will be out from Ahsahta in 2010. Ahsahta Press Boise State University 1910 University Drive , Boise , ID 83725-1525 . Web: http://ahsahtapress.boisestate.edu/

More about Susan Tichy: http://ahsahtapress.boisestate.edu/books/tichy/tichy-bio.htm

DIVA Center

110 W. Broadway

Eugene, Oregon

Phone: [redacted]

Susan Tichy's poems have appeared widely in the US and Britain , and have been recognized by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, and numerous awards.

She teaches in the Graduate Writing Program at George Mason University in Virginia , and otherwise makes her home in a ghost town in the Colorado Rockies.

Susan Tichyâ€™s most recent book, Bone Pagoda (Ahsahta Press, 2007), is an extended meditation on Vietnam â€”the country, the war, and the moral catastrophe signified by this word in American memory. It is underwritten by her experience as a war protester and as the wife of a combat veteran.

Her fourth book, Gallowglasss, will be out from Ahsahta in 2010. Ahsahta Press Boise State University 1910 University Drive , Boise , ID 83725-1525 . Web: http://ahsahtapress.boisestate.edu/

More about Susan Tichy: http://ahsahtapress.boisestate.edu/books/tichy/tichy-bio.htm

Phone: [redacted]

Susan Tichy's poems have appeared widely in the US and Britain , and have been recognized by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, and numerous awards.

She teaches in the Graduate Writing Program at George Mason University in Virginia , and otherwise makes her home in a ghost town in the Colorado Rockies.

Susan Tichyâ€™s most recent book, Bone Pagoda (Ahsahta Press, 2007), is an extended meditation on Vietnam â€”the country, the war, and the moral catastrophe signified by this word in American memory. It is underwritten by her experience as a war protester and as the wife of a combat veteran.

Her fourth book, Gallowglasss, will be out from Ahsahta in 2010. Ahsahta Press Boise State University 1910 University Drive , Boise , ID 83725-1525 . Web: http://ahsahtapress.boisestate.edu/

More about Susan Tichy: http://ahsahtapress.boisestate.edu/books/tichy/tichy-bio.htm

↑ Index

234. Rob McLennan

The Garneau Review: first issue (finally) on-line!

Mon 22 Jun 2009

The first issue of The Garneau Review, a pdf Edmonton poetry journal, is now on-line at www.ottawater.com/garneaureview/, featuring poetry by Douglas Barbour, Jenna Butler, Trisia Eddy, Lainna Lane, Alice Major, rob mclennan, Ben Murray, Catherine Owen, Paul Pearson and Christine Stewart, as well as an essay by Shawna Lemay, and an interview with Christine Stewart, conducted by rob mclennan.

Future issues will each be edited by different Edmonton-based writers, including the second issue, edited by Trisia Eddy and Lainna Lane El Jabi, due in fall 2009.

For comments, questions or queries, email rob mclennan at az421 (at) freenet (dot) carleton (dot) ca

-- writer/editor/publisher ...STANZAS mag, above/ground press & Chaudiere Books (www.chaudierebooks.com) ...coord.,SPAN-O + ottawa small press fair ...14th poetry coll'n - gifts (Talon) ...2nd novel - missing persons www.abovegroundpress.blogspot.com * http://robmclennan.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

235. David Kirschenbaum
SAVE THE DATE: 7/15, Rothschild Book Party & Stop Making Sense Live
Mon 22 Jun 2009

please forward

Boog City's Classic Albums Live presents

Douglas Rothschild Book Party
& Talking Heads' Stop Making Sense Live

Wed., July 15, 7:00 p.m.
Free with a two-drink minimum

Sidewalk Café
94 Ave. A
NYC

*Doug reads from His Subpress Book Theogony plus sets from his hand-picked readers:
—Jim Behrle
—John Coletti
—Arlo Quint

*and Doug's album pick, Talking Heads' Stop Making Sense performed live by (and with solo sets from):

—Dibson T. Hoffweiler
—I feel tractor

—Bob Kerr
—Limp Richard

Hosted and curated by Boog City editor and publisher David Kirschenbaum

Directions: F/V to 2nd Ave., L to 1st Ave.
Venue is at E. 6th St.

For further information:
212-842-BOOG (2664), [redacted]

Boog City
http://www.welcometoboogcity.com

Boog City is a New York City-based small press now in its 18th year and East Village community newspaper of the same name. It has also published 35 volumes of poetry and various magazines, featuring work by Allen Ginsberg and Lawrence Ferlinghetti among others, and theme issues on baseball, women's writing, and Louisville, Ky. It hosts and curates two regular performance series —d.a. levy lives: celebrating the renegade press, where each month a non-NYC small press and its writers and a musical act of their choosing is hosted at Chelsea's ACA Galleries; and Classic Albums Live, where up to 13 local musical acts perform a classic album live at venues including The Bowery Poetry Club, Cake Shop, CBGB's, and The Knitting Factory. Past albums have included Elvis Costello, My Aim is True; Nirvana, Nevermind; and Liz Phair, Exile in Guyville.

Jim Behrle
http://americanpoetry.biz

Jim Behrle lives in Brooklyn.

John Coletti

John Coletti is the author of The New Normalcy (Boog Literature), Physical Kind (Yo-Yo-Labs), and Same Enemy Rainbow (fewer & further).

Dibson T. Hoffweiler
http://www.myspace.com/dibson

The latest in a long line of quirky anti-folk ingenues, including Beck, Adam Green and Jeffrey Lewis, Dibs applies that time-honored tradition of off-beat songwriting to his own private world of sugar factories, laundry baskets and ducks. With a low voice, both sweet and deadpan, and a guitar-style both virtuosic and sloppy, Dibson Hoffweiler carves out a space of compassion and intelligence in a landscape of boring love songs and thinly-veiled songwriterly misogyny.

I feel tractor
http://www.myspace.com/ifeeltractor

I feel tractor performs music to "make your children feel funky like a donkey."

Bob Kerr

Bob Kerr was a founding member of the Minneapolis band Alien Detector. He has written songs for his plays Meet Uncle Casper, Kingdom Gone, and End Times, and wrote the book and lyrics for the 10- minute musical The Sticky-Fingered Fiancée.

Limp Richard
http://www.myspace.com/toddcarlstrom

Limp Richard's alter ego, Todd Carlstrom, has played in NYC bands for years (The Domestics, Heroes of the Alamo, Dirty Vicars, and currently, Todd Carlstrom and the Clamour). Limp rarely performs live, preferring to wait until Boog City presses him into service. His influences include, but are not limited to, squid, bacon, epilepsy medication, and the guy sitting next to you as you read this. He is managed by the beautiful, but criminally pathological, Remorah.

Arlo Quint
http://www.puppyflowers.com/9/quint.html

Arlo Quint is the author of Days On End (Open 24 Hours) and Photogenic Memory (Lame House).

Douglas Rothschild

Douglas Rothschild's life has been one long miasma of failure, disappointment, coffee, and overarching desire. Though he has not yet accomplished anything of note, Mr. Rothschild intends to continue on for some time yet. Some of this life, such as it is, has been chronicled in Bill Luoma's Works & Days and Jennifer Moxley's The Middle Room.

--
David A. Kirschenbaum, editor and publisher
Boog City
330 W.28th St., Suite 6H
NY, NY 10001-4754
For event and publication information:
http://welcometoboogcity.com/
T: (212) 842-BOOG (2664)
F: [redacted]

↑ Index

236. John Tranter
Jacket 37 still growing
Mon 22 Jun 2009

Jacket magazine: John Tranter, editor -- Pam Brown, Associate Editor:

JAcket 37 is growing, and more items will appear through June and July 2009. In accord with Jacket's long-standing tradition of tardiness, this issue is a little late this year. Apart from accepting the editor's humble apologies, we advise you to invest in this opportunity to practise the skills of "patient waiting"! A week or two of "patient waiting" is guaranteed to elevate your Good Karma(R) rating by up to forty per cent, make beautiful people fall in love with you -- even against their will!! -- completely cure those unsightly nasal warts, and reduce your next "community work" probational sentence for shoplifting or animal assault by three to four weeks. Come on, do it now!

You can browse the issue as it is being built -- as we speak:

http://jacketmagazine.com/37/index.shtml

... for example:

========== Articles

["] Caroline Bergvall: A Cat in the Throat -- on bilingual occupants

["] Louis Bury: The Exercise and the Oulipo: 99 Variations on a Thesis

["] Beverly Dahlen: Some notes on George Stanley 's "Vancouver: A Poem" ["] Christopher Funkhouser: Presents: Maria Damon's textile styling

["] Jack Spicer's "The Book of the Death of Arthur", by Jim Goar ["] George Kalamaras (ed.): Surrealist Inquiry: "Would You Lend Money To?"

["] David Kauffman: Frank O'Hara's Timing

["] Kevin Killian: Jack Spicer's Secret

["] Burt Kimmelman: George Oppen and Martin Heidegger: The Philosophy and Poetry of "Gelassenheit", and the Language of Faith

["] An excerpt from John Latta's blog, "Isola di Rifiuti", May 2009

["] Stephen Mooney: Discontinuous Visuality -- Brakhage's 'just seeing', and background temporality in contemporary poetics

["] Douglas Piccinnini: Ashbery In Paris: Out of School

["] Dale Smith: 'Lyric Poetry after Auschwitz'?: Kent Johnson and Political Satire

["] Richard Swigg: Parts, Pairs, Positions: A Reading of George Oppen's "Discrete Series"

========== Heaney Agonistes

["] Jeffrey Side: The Dissembling Poet: Seamus Heaney and the Avant-garde

["] Rob Stanton: 'A shy soul fretting and all that ': Heaney, Prynne and Brands of Uncertainty

["] The Group in Belfast, 1960s: (Seamus Heaney: The Early Years)

Letters to the Editor from: ["] Ira Lightman; ["] John Muckle; ["] J.P. Craig; ["] Jamie McKendrick; ["] David Latane; ["] Aidan Semmens; ["] Ira Lightman (2); ["] Jamie McKendrick (2); ["] Ira Lightman (3); ["] Desmond Swords; ["] Todd Swift and Jeffrey Side; ["] Jeffrey Side, reply to Desmond Swords; ["] Jamie McKendrick (3); ["] Ira Lightman (4); ["] Jeffrey Side responds to Ira Lightman; ["] Jeffrey Side responds to Jamie McKendrick; ["] From Desmond Swords, 2009-04-07; ["] From Jamie McKendrick, 2009-04-09; ["] Jeffrey Side responds to Jamie McKendrick; ["] Andrew Boobier ========== Note: This topic is closed for now.

========== Poems

["] Louis Armand: Correspondences

["] Joel Chace: Six poems: Scaffold, 19-24

["] Tom Clark: Three poems: Keats on Shipboard, September 1820 / Comic Interpretation / from "Little Cantos": 1

["] Peter Davis: Five poems

["] Elizabeth Fodaski: Two poems: Latent Progress / Short History

["] Chrissie Gittins: Three poems: Anxiety / Menopause / Sex Drive Problem

["] Jim Goar: Three poems: Just passing through / Sunken treasure / overseas edition

["] Phil Hall: Four poems: An Apprenticeship Ends / Variorum / Stephen Foster / Sawmill Tuning

["] Barbara Henning: Three prose pieces: Out of Detroit / Organ Light / Protestants and Catholics

["] Brian Henry: Three poems: Oklahoma / George W. Bush / Actually Sounding

["] Tom Hibbard: Poem: VII. Big Snow

["] Fanny Howe: After Watching Klimov's "Agoniya"

["] Geoff Page: Southward

["] Alan Loney: Testament : tenth muse

["] Camille Martin: 8 Sonnets

["] Annie Mullen: Three poems: You're Highness / Jarlyth and Phyllis / News of the World

["] Tomas Salamun: Three poems, translated by Brian Henry: The Loire Delta / poem ("If I don't know what to do...") / Greece

["] Beth Staley: The first voice loop was an echo

["] John Tranter: Two Poems: Derek Walcott's Lips; and Craig Raine's Arsehole: variations on a theme by Helen Farish

["] Barry Wallenstein: Five poems: Shades of Keats / The Fabulous Backdrop / Euphoria Ripens / The Mite and the Peacock / Gazing at Raindrops

["] Harriet Zinnes: Two poems: The Wilderness / Conclusion

========== Interviews

["] Eric Baus in conversation with Cynthia Arrieu-King: Bushwick, N.Y., 4 May 2009

["] Jennifer Moxley in conversation with Noah Eli Gordon

["] Murat Nemet-Nejat in conversation with Kent Johnson, 2009

["] David Shapiro: in conversation with Kent Johnson, 2009, with an Introduction by Don Share

["] Rachel Zolf in conversation with Joel Bettridge, 2008-2009

========== Featured Review

["] Philip Mead: Networked Language: Culture & History in Australian Poetry, reviewed by Pam Brown

========== Feature

["] Rachel Blau DuPlessis: Draft 94: Mail Art

========== Reviews

["] Louis Armand: "Solicitations: Essays on Criticism and Culture", reviewed by Jeroen Nieuwland

["] Anny Ballardini: "Ghost Dance in 33 Movements", reviewed by Crag Hill

["] Jacques Derrida: "Monolinguism of the Other or The Prosthesis of Origin" (translated by Patrick Mensah), reviewed by Tom Hibbard: When Poetry Becomes Visual: Derrida's "Monolingualism of the Other"

["] Rosmarie Waldrop (ed.). Dichten = [number ten], 16 new (to American readers) German poets, reviewed by Catherine Hales

["] Elena Fanailova: "The Russian Version" (poems), Translated by Genya Turovskaya and Stephanie Sandler, reviewed by Stephan Delbos

["] Sandy Florian: "The Tree of No", reviewed by Robert Savino Oventile

["] Tim Gaze: "Noology", reviewed by Michael Farrell

["] Nora Delaney: The Poetry of Melissa Green

["] Rob Halpern and Taylor Brady: "Snow Sensitive Skin", reviewed by Thom Donovan

["] Mystery Man! "... he may be a hypocrite, like some fornicating Baptist pastor. This seems to be what some of his critics think." Kent Johnson: "Homage to the Last Avant-Garde", reviewed by Peter Davis ["] Rae Desmond Jones: "Blow Out", reviewed by Martin Duwell. See over 80 photos from the launch for that book ["] here.

["] August Kleinzahler: Sleeping It Off in Rapid City: Poems, New and Selected, Reviewed by Michael Aiken

["] Clive Matson: "Mainline to the Heart", reviewed by Kevin Ring

["] Jennifer Moxley: "Clampdown", reviewed by Rob Stanton

["] Eugene Ostashevsky: "The Life and Opinions of DJ Spinoza". Drawings by Eugene Timerman, reviewed by Timothy Leonido

["] Ron Padgett: "How to Be Perfect", reviewed by Jack Cox

["] Jerome Rothenberg & Jeffrey C. Robinson, eds. "Poems for the Millennium: The University of California Book of Romantic & Postromantic Poetry". Volume Three, reviewed by Joe Safdie

["] Craig Santos Perez: "from UNINCORPORATED TERRITORY", reviewed by Mary Kasimor

["] Brandon Shimoda: "The Alps", reviewed by Brandon Downing

["] Stephanie Strickland; "Zone : Zero", Ahsahta Press, 2008 reviewed by Rachel Daley

["] Steve Tills: "Rugh Stuff", reviewed by Gerald Schwartz

["] Andrew Zawacki: "Petals of Zero Petals of One", reviewed by Daniel Shoemaker

========== Don't forget: there's more to come!!! ==========

And while you're waiting, visit our new Jacket Notes pages:
http://sites.google.com/site/jacket-notes/Home readings, new books & magazines, blogs, etc.

_____

John Tranter
39 Short Street, Balmain 2041, Australia

Phone Sydney (61+2+) 95 55 85 02

http://johntranter.com/
http://jacketmagazine.com/

↑ Index

237. Joel Weishaus
"The Gateless Gate." New Pages
Mon 22 Jun 2009

Dear Friends and colleagues:

Here are four new pages of "The Gateless Gate":

Pages 21-22: http://web.pdx.edu/~pdx00282/Gate/Pgs%2021-22.htm Pages 23-24: http://web.pdx.edu/~pdx00282/Gate/Pgs%2023-24.htm

Introduction: http://web.pdx.edu/~pdx00282/Gate/Intro.htm

Thank you, always, to those of you who have written to me on this project.

-Joel

↑ Index

238. Gabrielle Welford
Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
Tue 23 Jun 2009

madge herron. :-) she used to come to the market stall i had at camden town market in the early 70s. she told me once she felt as though her face was hanging by the eyebrows.

On Tue, 16 Jun 2009, Maria Damon wrote:

> Amus Mor.
>
> Ruth Lepson wrote:
> check out henry grimes, great old jazz musician, who has written over 90 books of poetry--lives in NYC now.
>
> Ruth

On 6/15/09 10:52 AM, "mIEKAL aND" <[redacted]> wrote:

Best outsider poet I know is Malok. Never read a poem in his life, in & out of mental hospitals in the late 70s (once for trying to take over a naval carrier), on the dole, hermit, curmudgeon, divinely inspired by Charles Bronson... You can real a lot of his work at

http://malok.org

*Also new recordings soon out of his reading of F*ck Dirge & of C*nt Utters produced by Foist. Also a full length documentary of Malok by Camille Bacos is in the works.*

~mIEKAL

On Sat, Jun 13, 2009 at 7:43 PM, Jerome Rothenberg <[redacted]>wrote:

For those who might be interested, my current posting on Poems & Poetics (poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com) is the first installment of Outsider Poems, a mini-anthology in progress. What I'm hoping to do here is to work in public while assembling material toward a gathering of poems & near-poems from anywhere/anytime that exist in literate societies but outside of the normative literary nexus. I'll be developing the project - as far as I can take it - with a sense that the term "outsider poetry" can cover a wide range of sources & possibilities, from art brut & mystical/religious poems & offerings to folk & working class poetry, sermons & rants, glossolalia & glossographia, dialect & "nation language" (K. Brathwaite), & so on - works in short both written & oral. In doing so, as with Poems for the Millennium, I'll be open to suggestions from anyone out there, both definitional or theoretical ones for "outsider poetry" in general and specific ones for the selection of poems & poets. I don't for the moment know exactly where this is taking me, but that's the pleasure & mystery of any new beginning.

↑ Index

239. steve russell
Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
Tue 23 Jun 2009

---

but so much remains invisible.

invisibility, isn't that outsider art?
are there any taboos left?
any area of the human psyche still unexplored?

any socio-economic wound in need of further artistic flagellation?

does the invisible artist yearn to be seen?
doesn't any artist wish that his/her work is seen?

Â think of Philippe Petit, his ultimate dance with death, as he became in the most literal sense an outlaw artist walking the high wire illegally rigged between the New York World Trade center's twin towers.

outlaw art, not art that is merely deemed obscene (if such a thing is still possible), but art which literally breaks the law ... ... guirilla art, activist art, art which seeks to destroy ...

is it still possible to shock the goddamn bougeoise?

home invasion art/identity theft art/art that imitates anything at anytime but remains as insignificant as...

--- On Sun, 6/21/09, David-Baptiste Chirot <[redacted]> wrote:

From: David-Baptiste Chirot <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
To: [redacted]
Date: Sunday, June 21, 2009, 5:51 PM

â€œI liked absurd paintings, pictures over doorways, stage sets, carnival backdrops, billboards, colored prints, old-fashioned literature, Church Latin, erotic books badly spelled, the kind of novels our grandmothers read, fairy tales, little childrenâ€™s books, old operas, silly refrains, naÃ¯ve rhythms . . .

Arthur Rimbaud, â€œAlchemy of the Wordâ€

It might be veryÂ interesting to also have some --perhaps--who knows----at any rate some examinations investigations questionings of "outsider poems"â€”'outsider poetry" in an anthology of this kind----

Such as when does one begin to find the lists of â€œoutsider Poetryâ€ such as Rimbaudâ€™s beginning to first appearâ€”in Rabelais or Villon, or among the romans or Greeks--??â€”

Among the â€œidees recuesâ€ of Flaubertâ€™s dictionary of them compiled by Bouvard and Pecuchetâ€”among the anonymous Faits divers of Felix Feneon in 1906â€”al the disappeared and forgotten works which begin to beckon to one from out of the shadowy little known or visited areas where Outsiders are said to dwellâ€”hidden inside fictions as among camouflaging and codes, so as to remain hidden until the â€œright person comes along and finds them . . . â€œ a soon to arrive or quite distant M Champollion to translate them from Outsider languagesâ€”â€œ (these works while considered "classics" withinÂ themselves ask questions which may be of use in thinking on "outsider poetry--"

The usual journalistic questions come swarming to mind----what is Outsider Poetry--when did it first appear--by whom--anonymousÂ or known--where--and then why--why this anthology, why now, and what for--and why or when or how is the editor interested in this--new territories to conquer?--to open up things not already opened or come to mind--and for whom one may ask other than as a corollary of textbooks already taught and used by poets also--as yet another tome creating a whole new field of teaching jobs and essay production and commentaries and so on--which accompanies the outsider's procession into the insiders' worlds-- . . . Perhaps the simple asking of basic journalistic questions is a good way to start some thinking about the "outsiders" and who and why they are and where and when and which to put inside and insider collection of outsiders . . . / to generate some ideas and evermore questions--else one is just going along with a kind of blurry image in the mind of something called willy nilly an outsider by all manner oc qualifications without asking oneself what the heck am i actually thinking about--in considering this or that poet

so there is a lot of work and fun and creation to be done withal these questions and there swarming descendants and proliferating extended families for sure--

Yes--as very many of these questions, investigations, perhapses and wonderings can and do swarm into the light like moths disturbed from their somnolence in the quiet darkness of libraries where the book worms create a new form of writing which is the literal consumption of the textsâ€”creating strange labyrinthine passages which re-write whole sections of poetry and devastate fields of proseâ€”

and mimic in their way certain acts of reading which eat their way through texts leaving behind them an erased zone someday to be part of palimpsests of dust, grime,Â or jottings when the blank pages are reused by the recycling minded as the â€œblank spacesâ€ to fill with a diary, or an outline of an essay on the manner in which locusts resemble readers devouring texts, and in a much more systematic and ruthless manner than mere book worms or moths resembling worn out scraps of old carpeting imbued with the dust of many fortunately departed days--

Yes, regarding an anthology of Outsider Poetry on might well ask--How much does this idea borrow from or diverge from the original conceptions of Outsider work that began early in theÂ late 19th-early 20th century with artists trying to get "outside" their own culture via arts from other cultures (Gauguin, Van Gogh

, Picasso etc) or via the discovery of a "Sunday Painter, a naif" like Rousseau who could also be included in "art,", or art from children (Kandinsky, abt 1905) and then art from the mentally ill (Prinzhorn, 1922). .Â . or the Surrealist uses of the dream and exquisite corpses and automatic writings (precursors perhaps of the machine programmed writings of today used to â€œget outside of the lyric Iâ€--) or the uses of drugs and alcohol to create â€œout of the same old same old mind experiencesâ€ so to speakâ€”and then Dubuffetâ€™s concepts and collection of Art Brut first announced in 1947â€”

There are a huge number of ways to examine what is "outsider poetry" depending on the cultural construction, as well as the academic, poetic, social constructions that one brings to the concept, the idea, the image of what "outsider poetry" is or is not, or could be etcâ€”

Thereâ€™s also an immense worldwide phenomena across many media and arts of "the outsider artist and his/her works" in art magazines, lit mags, among musicians and record collectors, buyers of "primitive" or "self taught" artists' creations--al of these have contributed to the vast explosion of a now very widespread popular appreciation of and deliberate creation of "outsider works"Â as anÂ "underground, legendary source" of some of the works considered to be "extraordinary, different, outside the usual run of things, brut"--from the past, the present--and maybe even in a sort of Futurism based on the sense that what exists in the Present is a "ruins in reverse" of the future--when the present is taken to be a "construction site" from which building s emergeâ€”

Yes, out of art brut and outsider works for a long time have the professional or amateur â€œartists â€œof the non-brut variety found inspiration, solace, the recognition of a â€œfellow spirit,â€ Just as they do with non-Outsiders except the Outsider comes with far less cultural baggageâ€”at least for a while--

What then would make "outsider poetry" different from the other "outsider works and artists?"Â What then might be the meta literature of outsider works like that of Roberto Bolano's book Nazi Literature of the Americas, whose last section led to the novella Distant Star in which exists such "outsiders" as the Barbaric Writers, fan zines of football teams that aspire to a kind of super aggressive poetry, bizarre motorcycle white power club mags on badly printed low quality papers----and so on-or those produced as de luxe â€œvanity editionsâ€ to the select few--

Then there are the various approaches to what a French writerÂ has called "The Literature of the No," whichÂ I have worked in for a while now and been ecstatic to begin finding it in the work ofÂ other writers such as Edgardo Vila-Matas and M. Berube-as well as a long tradition going back especially to some examples in the travel Literature of the 17th century---this is the "Bartlebys and Company" branch of the unwritten and--al the same perhaps readable texts--the areas of the unreadable which will someday emerge as readable or the unwritten which is ultimately written by a completely different person as though "taking dictation" from an unknown source--a voice, a trace among spider webs "blowing in the wind"--

then there could be the question of the history of the recognitions of an outsider poetry at different epochs--say beginning at one period and ever since the uses and interests of such an Outsider text as the confessionalÂ writings of the condemned serial killer Gilles de Rais, or that of "peasant writers" in several European countries "coming to light" during the Age of Enlightenment--

Speaking in tongues--might have found through its immensely long history various ways other than Zaum which attempted to create/included in itself something akin to this in writing?--

Then there is the language and writings of it given to puppets, Guignol, the works written with much use of slang like Celine and Genet--andÂ ones who are more extreme by far--so many many others now in the usa alone--in which thereâ€™s the return to the kind of jargon used by Villon whcih not long after begins to decay in its being able to be understood and turns then into a form of writing "outside" the very words around itâ€”

one could include as Outsider Poetry could one not the immense amount of writing which is right on the paintings and objects of art brutâ€”which is quite like the book of Kells as redone say by the pre-perspective â€œprimitiveâ€ painters of Italy, whose works are like forerunners to comic stripsâ€”with the writing of what the personages are saying underneath the image, esp of Holy persons, the Holy Family and Saints and so forthâ€”

(I am for the most part limiting this to Western examplesâ€”as that is what i am more familiar with--)

Outsider writing/poetry could be that done in Mail Art by the writings and stampings collaged images and quotations from magazinzes and newspapers â€“

The question of what is Outsider Poetryâ€”and according to whom, and whyâ€”and at what time in art historical and in literary historical and in historical timeâ€”al of these play a prt do they not in considering what or may not be â€˜Outsider poetryâ€”â€œ

In Visual Poetry, my works are accepted as â€œvisual poetryâ€ though at a kind of extreme (â€œthe dirtiest of the dirtyâ€ according to Geof Huth and , with Bob Cobbing, part of the â€œextreme school of Quickâ€™nDirtyâ€ by jw curry)â€”

But when one asks about whereone might display them, as soon as they are moved from one realm (poetry, visual poetry) to anotherâ€”the visual strictly, the become immediately called â€œart brutâ€ or â€œpunk art brutâ€™ etc

In writing how then does one qualify an outsider poetâ€”by many criteria of a personâ€™s life and influences an the effects methods and interests and style of the writing, a person like Bill burroughs and myself are lumped as a form of â€œoutsiderâ€ writer off in the darker areas close to the â€œPoetes Mauditsâ€â€”

Yet one might also sayâ€”yes but â€“despite the other qualifications these birds pass without question, what about other factors involved--??â€”the same with jean genet or a writer like Mohamed Choukri who was illiterate until age twenty and went straight from illiteracy to writing in classical Arabic, as genet wrote in Classical Racinien Frenchâ€”

Yet they are considered also Outsiders due to thebackgr9unds, life storyâ€”

So it al a much more complex and swarming areaâ€”to really extend the questions of I wd thinkâ€”or hopeâ€”because otherwise why do an anthology of outsider poetry now, at this moment other than perhaps, since writing is always fifty or more years behind paintingâ€”

To only now â€œcatch the waveâ€ of a guaranteed mass appeal--and throw together an anthology of something vaguely called an â€œOutsider poetryâ€ â€“

Isnâ€™t it important to present some ideas of what Outsider is in poetry what might be different from it than in other artsâ€”orâ€”to make use of these for forms of thinking on works that arenâ€™t outsider onesâ€”either what I call â€œFauxk Artâ€ type writing or the neo-Brute , or theÂ Nostalgic poetics of the neo-Naugahyde poetry of the ranch houses of yesterday and their contribution to a â€œfauxk rusticityâ€ or a â€œkind of ruin of the images of the old westâ€ down to the fake Fauxk --yes, one can indeed fake the fauxk!!!--wagon wheel in the corner to be immortalized in a harsh yet â€˜swingingâ€™ meter based indeed on Western Swing musicâ€”

That is, one can INVENT all manner of outsider Writers just as Borges did to a good and powerful extent and BolaÃ±o, Berube, Vila-Matas and myself invent them whole saleâ€”out of whole clothâ€”because even the fictional or perhaps even more so the fictional becomes a kind of â€œavant-gardeâ€ leading the way into these â€œunknown realms existing al around one and hitherto unnoticedâ€â€”

Because the elasticity of the fictional as it operates among the actualâ€”opens gates there one had never noticed at allâ€”like the place inÂ a wal in a H G Wells story which suddenly for passerby produces a door opening to a compltely Other World--

Or has perhaps gleaned from the art music and various other outsider lit examples of the pastâ€”

That is part of the challenge of this kind of projectâ€”for sureâ€”

â€œEl Colonel sits and reads smoking, and thinking how Death, the Grim Reaper, harvests not only corpses and souls, but poetry also, and literature, painting, theater, cinema and the documentary of â€œnon-fiction.â€ â€œAs the Blood dries, so the Ink comes to lifeâ€”the paint, the greasepaint, the photo and cinematographic negatives . . . the development of images arises from the decay of the flesh . . . Rimbaudâ€™s â€˜Sleeper in the Valleyâ€™ born and given life by the two red bullet holes . . . vibrantly, startlingly bright flowers in the verdant valleyâ€™s peaceful fields of a long ago War . . .Â

El Colonel, seated on the large rock growing warm in the midday sun, sees around him tableaux out of a shifting series of eras of painting and writing that he knows from various tomes and journals found through time in the ruins of villages, the war torn forests and fields, the shattered and smoldering ruins of bombed out municipal libraries, of private collections assembled by this person and that, and by the scattered remnants of torn newspapers from mutilated kiosks, or the torn and jagged wind blown strips of posters clinging precariously to the walls of collapsed cinemas, the smashed and bullet pocked walls of small alleys, and the wide-flung spaces of avenues where theatres and cafes once stood, and which now lie in a heap of tangled images, signs, structures, bodies arranged intriguingly among the still smoking craters of bombings and fires set by incendiary devices.

El Colonelâ€™s eyes surgically examine the corpses as his thoughts â€œmake incisions in the pulpy mass of memories, a substance akin to that of the insides of melons, mangos, avocados . . . cutting into this fresh and drenched flesh of memories, El Colonel finds always the mixture of death with art, blood with poetry, sadism with cinema, propaganda with photographs and inside them all, the nerves and sinews of rebellion, of refusal, of the Unwritten Writing, the Unread Non-Written texts, the images and paintings of Untaken Photos Not

Capturing the Moment, the Unpainted Unseen images not even found in the â€œMuseum without Walls.â€Â

From "El Colonel is sitting on a rock and smokingâ€â€”David chirot (five El Colonel Stories are already on line in various journals-)

> Date: Sat, 13 Jun 2009 16:43:18 -0800
> From: [redacted]
> Subject: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
> To: [redacted]
>
> For those who might be interested, my current posting on Poems & Poetics (poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com) is the first installment of Outsider Poems, a mini-anthology in progress.Â What I'm hoping to do here is to work in public while assembling material toward a gathering of poems & near-poems from anywhere/anytime that exist in literate societies but outside of the normative literary nexus.Â I'll be developing the project - as far as I can take it - with a sense that the term "outsider poetry" can cover a wide range of sources & possibilities, from art brut & mystical/religious poems & offerings to folk & working class poetry, sermons & rants, glossolalia & glossographia, dialect & "nation language" (K. Brathwaite), & so on - works in short both written & oral.Â In doing so, as with Poems for the Millennium, I'll be open to suggestions from anyone out there, both definitional or theoretical ones for "outsider poetry" in general and specific ones for the selection of poems & poets.Â I don't for the moment know exactly where this is taking me, but that's the pleasure & mystery of any new beginning.
>
>
>Â
>
> Other recent postings on Poems & Poetics include: Octavio Paz on Modernity & Romanticism; Two Poems Recovered from Seymour Faust; my own "Poetry of the 1950s as a Global Awakening"; "The Nanking Massacre: A Birthday Poem & Tribute for Makoto Oda"; David Antin's "Notes for an Ultimate Prosody"; Armand Schwerner's "Hall of Mirrors, A Dialogue" (previously unpublished); an excerpt from Ilya Kaminsky's "Musica Humana, an Elegy for Osip Mandelstam"; Pierre Joris's translations from Goethe's West-Ã–stlicher Diwan; & Karl Young's "Toward an Ideal Anthology" (excerpted).Â Scheduled for future publication are Charles Bernstein's translation from Victor Hugo's "Les Contemplations"; Heriberto YÃ©pez's "Ethopoetics [not ethnopoetics], What Is It?"; excerpts from Christian BÃ¶k's Eunoia; Bruce Andrews' "Four 19th-Century Poems"; Ambar Past's introduction to Tzotzil Indian "Incantations": Joe Safdie's "Against Romanticism" (excerpts); & further ongoing installments

of Outsider Poems, a Mini-Anthology in Progress.
>
>
> Jerome RothenbergÂ Â "Poetry must have something in it > 1026 San AbellaÂ Â Â Â Â Â Â that is barbaric, vast, and wild."
> Encinitas, CA 92024Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â D. DiderotÂ Â Â Â Â
> jrothenberg at cox.net
> Blog at poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com
>

_____ HotmailÂ® has ever-growing storage! Donâ€™t worry about storage limits.
http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/Storage?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tutorial_Storage_062009

↑ Index

240. Jim Andrews

Re: vancouver poet gerry gilbert

Tue 23 Jun 2009

---

i'm very sorry to hear that gerry gilbert has died. i am a fan of his writing.

poetry, the trick to read what can't be read, quick to write what can't be said.
(from his book 'azure blues')

his work is very smart, fun, political, musical, for the page, for the voice, informed, technically accomplished, global, local...he was an extrordinarily committed poet.

i used to listen to his show radiofreerainforest on cfro fm in vancouver. and catch his readings on the odd occassion he came to victoria.

one time i arranged a reading for him in victoria. he was "living on hugs" at that point. as always, he read/performed his work with the polish and style of the life-long poet he was.

he was the real thing folks. like bill bissett, he never won the prominent poetry awards in canada. but he is one of my faves.

my condolences to his family and to the vancouver folks for whom gerry was a very special voice and presence.

rob mclennan put some links together concerning gerry's work at http://robmclennan.blogspot.com/2009/06/gerry-gilbert-poet-april-7-1936-june-19.html

ja

----- Original Message -----
From: "Rob McLennan" <[redacted]>
To: <[redacted]>
Sent: Saturday, June 20, 2009 6:14 PM
Subject: vancouver poet gerry gilbert

> died yesterday;
>
> http://www.ucalgary.ca/uofc/faculties/HUM/ENGL/canada/poet/g_gilbert.htm

↑ Index

241. Kyle Schlesinger
ED SANDERS : GLYPHS 1962-2009
Tue 23 Jun 2009

I¡¯m posting this for Dan Morris
Cheers// KS

ED SANDERS : GLYPHS 1962-2009

A rare exhibition of nearly half a century of Ed Sanders?s glyph-poems produced between 1962 and 2009 will be on display at The Arm in Williamsburg [Brooklyn, NY] from July 10 through July 31. An opening reception will be held on July 10th at 6PM.

Building on a long history of utilizing a highly visible language that continues into the present, Sanders?s glyph-poems fuse image with text, and image as text. Political, personal, ephemeral, historical, uncanny, and humorous¡ªthe glyph-poems on display at The Arm appear in several different mediums, including original drawings, collages, mimeographed pages from Fuck You/ A Magazine of the Arts (1962-'65), plus a number featuring color images, and an artist?s book. Over 200 Glyph-works will be featured in the show.

In addition, Glyphs 1962-2009 will feature new letterpress prints and a limited edition catalogue produced on location at The Arm.

Edward Sanders is a poet, historian and musician. He is at work, since 1998, on a 9-volume America, a History in Verse. The first five volumes, tracing the history of the 20th century, have been completed and published in a fully indexed CD format, over 2,000 pages in length, by Blake Route Press. Another recent writing project is Poems for New Orleans, a book and CD on the history of that great city, and its tribulations during and after hurricane Katrina. He has been granted a Guggenheim fellowship in poetry, a National Endowment for the Arts fellowship in verse, an American Book Award for his collected poems, and other awards for his writing. Other books in print include Tales of Beatnik Glory (4 volumes published in a single edition), 1968, a History in Verse; The Poetry and Life of Allen Ginsberg, The Family, a history of the Charles Manson murder group, and Chekhov, a biography in verse of Anton Chekhov.

Sanders was the founder of the satiric folk/rock group, The Fugs, which has released many albums and CDs during its 45 year history. The Fugs have recently completed a CD, Be Free, The Fugs Final CD (Part 2), featuring 14 new tunes. Be Free will be released in late summer. Two of Sanders' books, The Family and Tales of Beatnik Glory, are under option to be made into movies. His selected poems, 1986-2008, Let?s Not Keep Fighting the Trojan War will be published by Coffee House Press in the fall of 2009. He lives in Woodstock, New York with his wife, the essayist and painter Miriam Sanders, and both are active in environmental and other social issues. Sanders will perform a section of America, the 17th Century, tracing the voyage of Henry Hudson up the Hudson River in 1609, at the Byrdcliffe Art Colony in Woodstock on August 8, as part of the 400th anniversary celebration of Hudson?s discoveries.

Opening reception for Glyphs 1962-2009 on Friday, July 10th from 6PM.

All inquiries may be addressed to:
Daniel Morris
The Arm
281 North 7th Street
Brooklyn, NY 11211
dan at thearmnyc dot com

↑ Index

242. Christina Milletti
Cityscapes Conference CFP
Tue 23 Jun 2009

CITYSCAPES/LITERARY ESCAPES// COLLOQUE URBANITÉS LITTÉRAIRES CALL FOR PAPERS

The University at Buffalo (SUNY) in collaboration with the journal Formules (Paris) will host an international conference on “Urbanités Littéraires” / “Cityscapes/Literary Escapes” from September 10-12, 2009.

The goal of the conference is to study relations between writing and the urban environment, and specify interactive engagements between literature, architecture, and urbanism. Principle aspects to be examined are:

-- Wandering
-- Windows/Doors/Entrances/Corridors
-- Utopia and Dream Cities
-- Streets/Boulevards/Avenues

-- Towns/Suburbs/Slums/Countrysides
-- Silos/Warehouses/Industrial Wasteland
-- Writing the City
-- Bridges/Arcades/Underground

The top contributions from the conference will be published in issue no. 14 of the journal Formules (Journal of Formal Creation). These will be chosen by the review committee and the editorial board of the journal.

Individual presentations should be 20 minutes or less with 10 minutes more for discussion. Presentation proposals of 300 words or less, in French or in English, should be sent to the organizers by email by June 25, 2009. All contributions (both French and English) may be sent to: [redacted]

The organizing committee: Laura Chiesa, Christina Milletti, Justin Read, Jean-Jacques Thomas

↑ Index

243. David Kirschenbaum
Boog City presents Effing Press and Katie May
Wed 24 Jun 2009

please forward

Boog City presents

d.a. levy lives: celebrating the renegade press

Effing Press
(Austin, Texas)

This Tues., June 30, 6:00 p.m. sharp, free

ACA Galleries
529 W. 20th St., 5th Flr.
NYC

Event will be hosted by Effing Press publisher Scott Pierce

Featuring readings from

Farrah Field
Ada Limon
Justin Marks

with music from

Katie May

There will be wine, cheese, and crackers, too.

Curated and with an introduction by Boog City editor David Kirschenbaum

---

Effing Press
http://www.effingpress.com/

Effing Press was founded by Scott Pierce in 2002 in Austin, Texas. To date, Effing has published over 30 books and eight issues of the effing magazine, all designed, printed, and bound in-house by volunteers. Effing also provides design and letterpress printing services.

Performer Bios

Farrah Field
http://adultish.blogspot.com/

Farrah Field’s poems have appeared in Chelsea, Harp & Altar, Harpur Palate, Margie, Massachusetts Review, Mississippi Review, Pool, and Typo. She was born in Cheyenne, Wyoming and raised in Nebraska, Colorado, Louisiana, Arkansas, Sicily, and Belgium. She lives in Brooklyn.

Ada Limón
http://adalimon.blogspot.com/

Ada Limon's first book, lucky wreck, was the winner of the Autumn House Poetry Prize and her second, This Big Fake World, was the winner of the Pearl Poetry Prize. Her third book of poems, Sharks in the Rivers, will be published by Milkweed Editions next year.

Justin Marks
http://justinanselmarks.blogspot.com/

Justin Marks' first book is A Million in Prizes (New Issues Press). He is also the author of several chapbooks, the most recent being Voir Dire (Rope-a-Dope Press). New work can be found in the Raleigh Quarterly and Tusculum Review. He is the founder and editor of Kitchen Press Chapbooks and lives in New York City with his wife and their infant son and daughter.

Katie May
http://www.myspace.com/katiemaysingforyou

Katie May has had jobs serving fries, making marimbas, and telling at banks.

Directions:
C/E to 23rd St., 1/9 to 18th St.
Venue is bet. 10th and 11th avenues

Next event:

Tues. July 28
P-QUEUE (Buffalo)
http://p-queue.org/

--
David A. Kirschenbaum, editor and publisher
Boog City
330 W.28th St., Suite 6H
NY, NY 10001-4754
For event and publication information:
http://welcometoboogcity.com/
T: (212) 842-BOOG (2664)

↑ Index

244. Rodney Koeneke

Tangent reading in Portland this SAT., 6/27: STEPHANIE YOUNG, DANA WARD & CYNTHIA SAILERS

Wed 24 Jun 2009

SATURDAY, JUNE 27 at 7 PM
CYNTHIA SAILERS, DANA WARD & STEPHANIE YOUNG
Clinton Corner Cafe, 2633 SE 21st Ave.
www.thetangentpress.org/readings.html

DANA WARD is the author of a couple of books that just came out in 2009: Roseland (Editions Louis Wain) & the Drought (Open 24hrs). He lives in Cincinnati, edits Cy Press, & works as an advocate for adult literacy at the Over-the-Rhine Learning Center.

STEPHANIE YOUNG lives and works in Oakland. Her books of poetry are Picture Palace (in girum imus nocte et consumimur igni, 2008) and Telling the Future Off* *(Tougher Disguises, 2005). She edited the anthology Bay Poetics (Faux Press, 2006) and her most recent editorial project is Deep Oakland (www.deepoakland.org).

CYNTHIA SAILERS is the author of the poetry collections Lake Systems* *(Tougher Disguises, 2004) and Rose Lungs (AtticusFinch, 2004). She is writing a dissertation on perversion and group psychology. She is currently in private practice as a therapist in San Francisco and works at a publicly funded clinic in the Mission, where she leads a process group for women. She serves on the board for Small Press Traffic, and is expecting a new book, Ladies of Leisure, this June from Cy Press.

↑ Index

245. Rob McLennan
12 or 20 questions, second series;
Wed 24 Jun 2009

On June 1, I started posting on my blog (with a couple of other online hosts thrown in, for good measure) a second series of interviews with Canadian and American (etcetera) poets, fiction and non-fiction writers as the "12 or 20 questions" series, as a follow-up to the original series that ran from September 2007 to June 2008, a series that held 175 interviews with various authors. The second series includes interviews (so far) with Jason Dewinetz, Matthew Tierney, Sandra Ridley, Jacob McArthur Mooney, Carrie Olivia Adams, Dayle Furlong, Antanas Sileika, Sharon Harris, Ken McGoogan, Daniel Allen Cox, J.R. Carpenter, Anita Dolman, Ray Hsu, Karen Houle, Susan Olding, Jeanette Lynes, Asher Ghaffar and Zachariah Wells.

Interviews are still forthcoming with Peter Norman, Eric Baus, Betsy Struthers, Graham Foust, Steven Mayoff, Mike Spry, Kevin Killian, Charles Bernstein, Forrest Gander, Chris Ewart, Andrew Faulkner, Mary Pinkoski, Rebecca Rosenblum, Arielle Greenberg, Peter Richardson, Eva Moran, Ken Sparling, ross priddle, Michelle Berry, Stephen Henighan, Annabel Lyon, and plenty of others.

The series as a whole, with links to invidiaul interviews (to be updated every day or three over the next six months or so), lives here:

http://robmclennansindex.blogspot.com/2009/06/12-or-20-questions-second-series.html

rob

-- writer/editor/publisher ...STANZAS mag, above/ground press & Chaudiere Books (www.chaudierebooks.com) ...coord.,SPAN-O + ottawa small press fair ...14th poetry coll'n - gifts (Talon) ...2nd novel - missing persons www.abovegroundpress.blogspot.com * http://robmclennan.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

246. Sarah Rosenthal
This Friday: Manhatten in San Francisco!
Wed 24 Jun 2009

Hi all, A reminder that there's a launch for my book "Manhatten" this Friday, June 26: 7:30pmCanessa Park Gallery, 708 Montgomery (x Washington) in San Francisco$3-$5 door fee to support Canessa reading series

Reading with me from Manhatten will be poets Dana Teen Lomax, Erin Wilson, Jono Schneider, Andrew Felsinger, and Lauren Schiffman. Bay Area musician

Steve Musial will perform on classical guitar. Wine, tea, other non-alc bevs, and desserts will be served. Parking in the immediate vicinity is usually findable; here's a garage just in case: http://www.sfpsg.com/directions.php

Gallery website: (http://www.canessa.org/)

Map: http://www.mapquest.com/maps?city=San+Francisco&state=CA&address=708+Montgomery

The book is available at http://www.spdbooks.org and http://www.amazon.com. From the jacket:This is not the mythic Manhattan of bright lights and glitz. It is called Manhatten and it is wonderfully out of kilter. In this mixed-genre book (fiction, poetry, review), Sarah Rosenthal layers headlong, voice-driven prose with silent, otherly poems to tell a story of an island where relationships are disturbed yet meaningful and luminous. --Juliana Spahr

Proudly misspelled, Manhatten chronicles the adventures of a young woman as she searches for her life story in the ultimate American metropolis. The heroine--who may or may not be author Sarah Rosenthal--leads the reader into one scene after another filled with family, friends, chance acquaintances, exes, and current love interests, where relationships and geography intertwine and memories collect on every street corner. As keen and insistent as the city it describes, this writing attains a clarity fueled by hunger for insight and language's tonal responsiveness. Spanning two coasts, leaping whole decades in a single clause, Manhatten documents the rush of events and the meditative spaces between, negotiating a life complete with all its enchantments, illusions, intersections, and collisions. --Pamela Lu

I like Sarah Rosenthal's Manhatten because it's generous with self. Also alarmingly well written. And best of all, Manhatten awkwardly and beautifully makes the claim that heterosexuals are human too! --Eileen Myles

Thanks,
Sarah

↑ Index

247. Nico Vassilakis
SUBTEXT reading; Stacy Szymaszek & Don Mee Choi = 7/1/09
Thu 25 Jun 2009

---

for more info:

http://subtextreadingseries.blogspot.com/

thanks for yr time,

n

_____ Windows Live™
SkyDrive™: Get 25 GB of free online storage.
http://windowslive.com/online/skydrive?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_SD_25GB_062009

↑ Index

248. { brad brace }

20 new pleated plaid pamphlets published!

Thu 25 Jun 2009

---

21 Raving Lunatic Ravishing Beauty Rotted Remains 22 Raw Jewels Raw Lumps Rotten Dime
23 Rotten Fish Romantic Hope Rose Water Snow
24 Reaching Back Reaching Over Ruffled Edge
25 Reading Another Book Ready Directly Rugged Charm
26 Real Details Real Deterrent Rugged Hybrid
27 Real Fissures Real Grief Ruined Beauty
28 Real Name Real Recognition Ruined Fortress
29 Real Regret Real Revival Reverential Dexterity
30 Revelations and Allusions Resulting Repercussions Reversal of Roles
31 Revolving Images Rhyme Nor Reason Rotting Roots
32 Rotund Proclamation Rough and Rugged Reliable Particle Count
33 Reliable Regular Relief Effort Regal Gleam
34 Regal Incognito Red Whiskers Redoubled Vigour
35 Reddening Over Reddish Purple Redeem Time
36 Redemptive Qualities Redoubled Efforts Restrained Passion
37 Restrained Revolt Round Orfice Roughly Speaking
38 Round Resembles Routine Cruelties Roving Desires
39 Roving Nymphs Rows to Peer Royal Afterlife
40-2 Royal Descent Royal Forest Rough Estimates

20 new pleated plaid pamphlets published!

{ brad brace }

> Pleated Plaid Pamphlets
> Volumes 21-40
> [accompaniment to insatiable abstraction engine]
>
> http://bbrace.laughingsquid.net/abstraction-engine.html
> http://www.bbrace.net/abstraction-engine.html
> [redacted]

brad brace, bbrace, architecture, poetry, engineering, biography, memoir, illustration, map, creative, writing, drama, opera, puzzles, games, samizdat, artists' books, poetry, fluxus, contemporary, art, design, fiction,musical

ppp21
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-21/7322816
ppp22
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-22/7322842
ppp23
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-23/7322860
ppp24
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-24/7322877
ppp25
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-25/7322893
ppp26
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-26/7322911
ppp27
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-27/7322929
ppp28
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-28/7322947
ppp29
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-29/7322956
ppp30
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-30/7322966
ppp31
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-31/7322978
ppp32
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-32/7322995
ppp33
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-33/7323016
ppp34
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-34/7323033
ppp35
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-35/7323041
ppp36
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-36/7323056
ppp37
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-37/7323074
ppp38
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-38/7323099
ppp39
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-39/7323113

ppp40-2
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-40-no-2/7323128

↑ Index

249. Daniel Godston
Bauhaus: 90 Years / 90 Days
Thu 25 Jun 2009

This year Bauhaus celebrates its 90th Anniversary. "Bauhaus: 90 Years / 90 Days" is a new project which celebrates the Bauhaus movement; it will take place over 90 days. During this 90-day period -- which will begin next month -- projects will happen which will commemorate & pay homage to Bauhaus in different ways. Those could include a dance performance inspired by Oskar Schlemmer's ballet, a musical performance that uses a Kandinsky painting as a graphic score, a poem inspired by Walter Gropius' architecture, a short story inspired by Marianne Brandt's work, a video inspired by a Josef Albers painting, and other possibilities.

Please feel free to contact me at [redacted] if you are interested in finding out more about "Bauhaus: 90 Years / 90 Days." Thanks!

↑ Index

250. Sarah Sarai
My 3,000 Loving Arms embrace Anwar Sadat, Mark Strand, the prolific, watermelon seeds, Saknussemm, Otto, Violet Venable and more
Thu 25 Jun 2009

---

file under self promotion - my new blog: My 3,000 Loving Arms at http://my3000lovingarms.blogspot.com

a few posts:

Poetry can save your life:
http://my3000lovingarms.blogspot.com/2009/06/writers-block-cautionary-tale-sebastian.html

Cherry tomato and 17th century Hungarian intellectual history:
http://my3000lovingarms.blogspot.com/2009/06/me-not-you-published-by-kervin- blount.html

Slam needs reviewers, Mark Strand, Anwar Sadat (part II):
http://my3000lovingarms.blogspot.com/2009/06/mark-strand-reminds-me-ofanwarsadat.html

Molly Bloom and self-control (impossibility thereof):
http://my3000lovingarms.blogspot.com/2009/06/odysseus-tying-himself-to-mast-happy.html

And more.

I'm not going to bother you-all here on the listserv each time I post. Just this once. Please be thrilled just this once. Thanks.

Sarah Sarai
a pastry in the hands of a loving glutton

↑ Index

251. Jennifer Karmin
Poetry Workshop with Bernadette Mayer
Thu 25 Jun 2009

BERNADETTE MAYER & PHILIP GOOD invite you to participate in a weekend workshop on Experimental Poetics. Their home, once a synagogue in days of yore, is located in rural Upstate New York on the historic acreage between Kinderhook and Tsatsawassa creeks at the foothills of the Berkshires.

Exclusive weekend workshop sessions continue throughout the summer months culminating on the weekend of Oct 10-12. The fee, which includes accommodations, as well as all meals & activities, is $400 (double reservation) or $225 (per person). Since each weekend session is limited to four participants, please RSVP well in-advance. Any inquiries may be sent to the contact information provided below. Guests arrive Friday afternoon and depart Sunday after lunch.

There will be writing assignments with plenty of time for casual conversation. Bernadette Mayer will discuss her Experiments List and encourage participants to expand their poetics to greater levels. The central focus in the workshop will be in-depth Investigations of Traditional Forms Made New. In addition, each participant will receive constructive feedback about their overall work through individual consultation; and all participants will be given an expansive list of reading recommendations. At the conclusion of the weekend the group will collate their new poems into a stapled poetry magazine.

To Reserve/Confirm availabilities, please email [redacted].

Bernadette Mayer (born May 12, 1945 in Brooklyn, NY) is a poet and prose writer. In 1967, she received a BA from New School for Social Research. She has since edited the journal 0 TO 9 with Vito Acconci and the United Artists Press with Lewis Warsh, and worked as Director of St. Mark's Poetry Project. She is also known for her wonderful dancing.

↑ Index

252. Gabrielle Welford
Re: ...david bromige
Thu 25 Jun 2009

---

beautiful, layne. thank you. gabe

On Thu, 18 Jun 2009, Layne Russell wrote:

> I was going to do the official David Bromige site. David and I had talked often about it and I had some bigraphical and other material here for it that he sent me. I had asked Steve Tills to assist, and, of course, he said yes. I'm so sorry now that it did not materialize before David left us. And now that David's work is understandably and rightfully so in the hands of family, I have used the domain to, for now, just put up a goodbye to David. If anyone would like to visit this simiple page, you will find it at http://davidbromigepoet.com.
>
> Peace,
> Layne

↑ Index

253. steve russell
Fw: Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
Thu 25 Jun 2009

---

ugh. i wince at the stupidity of this remark from my previous post: "any area of the human psyche still unexplored." as for the "art of invisibility"--environmentalgraffiti.com

--- On Wed, 6/24/09, steve russell <[redacted]> wrote:

> From: steve russell <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
> To: "steve russell" <[redacted]>
> Date: Wednesday, June 24, 2009, 2:01 AM
>
> --- On Tue, 6/23/09, steve russell
> <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> From: steve russell <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
> To: " UB)Poetics List (UPenn"
> <[redacted]>

Date: Tuesday, June 23, 2009, 2:32 PM

but so much remains invisible.

invisibility, isn't that outsider art?
are there any taboos left?
any area of the human psyche still unexplored?

any socio-economic wound in need of further artistic flagellation?

does the invisible artist yearn to be seen?
doesn't any artist wish that his/her work is seen?

Â think of Philippe Petit, his ultimate dance with death, as he became in the most literal sense an outlaw artist walking the high wire illegally rigged between the New York World Trade center's twin towers.

outlaw art, not art that is merely deemed obscene (if such a thing is still possible), but art which literally breaks the law ...
... guirilla art, activist art, art which seeks to destroy
...

is it still possible to shock the goddamn bougeoise?

home invasion art/identity theft art/art that imitates anything at anytime but remains as insignificant as...

--- On Sun, 6/21/09, David-Baptiste Chirot
<[redacted]> wrote:

From: David-Baptiste Chirot
<[redacted]>
Subject: Re: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
To: [redacted]
Date: Sunday, June 21, 2009, 5:51 PM

â€œI liked absurd paintings, pictures over doorways, stage sets, carnival backdrops, billboards, colored prints, old-fashioned literature, Church Latin, erotic books badly spelled, the kind of novels our grandmothers read, fairy tales, little childrenâ€™s books, old operas, silly refrains, naÃ¯ve rhythms
. . .

Arthur Rimbaud, â€œAlchemy of the Wordâ€

It might be veryÂ interesting to also have some
--perhaps--who knows----at any rate some examinations investigations questionings of "outsider
poems"â€”'outsider poetry" in an anthology of this kind----

Such as when does one begin to find the lists of â€œoutsider
Poetryâ€ such as Rimbaudâ€™s beginning to first appearâ€”in Rabelais or Villon, or among the romans or Greeks--??â€”

Among the â€œidees recuesâ€ of Flaubertâ€™s dictionary of them
compiled by Bouvard and Pecuchetâ€”among the anonymous Faits divers of Felix Feneon in 1906â€”al the disappeared and forgotten works which begin to beckon to one from out of the shadowy little known or visited areas where Outsiders are said to dwellâ€”hidden inside fictions as among camouflaging and codes, so as to remain hidden until the â€œright person comes along and finds them
. . . â€œ a soon to arrive or quite distant M Champollion to translate them from Outsider languagesâ€”â€œ

(these works while considered "classics" withinÂ themselves ask questions which may be of use in thinking on "outsider poetry--"

The usual journalistic questions come swarming to mind----what is Outsider Poetry--when did it first appear--by whom--anonymousÂ or known--where--and then why--why this anthology, why now, and what for--and why or when or how is the editor interested in this--new territories to conquer?--to open up things not already opened or come to mind--and for whom one may ask other than as a corollary of textbooks already taught and used by poets also--as yet another tome creating a whole new field of teaching jobs and essay production and commentaries and so on--which accompanies the outsider's procession into the insiders' worlds-- . . .
Perhaps the simple asking of basic journalistic questions is a good way to start some thinking about the "outsiders" and who and why they are and where and when and which to put inside and insider collection of outsiders . . . / to generate some ideas and evermore questions--else one is just going along with a kind of blurry image in the mind of something called willy nilly an outsider by all manner oc qualifications without asking oneself what the heck am i actually thinking about--in considering this or that poet

so there is a lot of work and fun and creation to be done withal these questions and there swarming descendants and proliferating extended families for sure--

Yes--as very many of these questions, investigations, perhapses and wonderings can and do swarm into the light like moths disturbed from their somnolence in the quiet darkness of libraries where the book worms create a new form of writing which is the literal consumption of the textsâ€”creating strange labyrinthine passages which re-write whole sections of poetry and devastate fields of proseâ€”

and mimic in their way certain acts of reading which eat their way through texts leaving behind them an erased zone someday to be part of palimpsests of dust, grime,Â or jottings when the blank pages are reused by the recycling minded as the â€œblank spacesâ€ to fill with a diary, or an outline of an essay on the manner in which locusts resemble readers devouring texts, and in a much more systematic and ruthless manner than mere book worms or moths resembling worn out scraps of old carpeting imbued with the dust of many fortunately departed days--

Yes, regarding an anthology of Outsider Poetry on might well ask--How much does this idea borrow from or diverge from the original conceptions of Outsider work that began early in theÂ late 19th-early 20th century with artists trying to get "outside" their own culture via arts from other cultures (Gauguin, Van Gogh

, Picasso etc) or via the discovery of a "Sunday Painter, a naif" like Rousseau who could also be included in "art,", or art from children (Kandinsky, abt 1905) and then art from the mentally ill (Prinzhorn, 1922). .Â . or the Surrealist uses of the dream and exquisite corpses and automatic writings (precursors perhaps of the machine programmed writings of today used to â€œget outside of the lyric Iâ€--) or the uses of drugs and alcohol to create â€œout of the same old same old mind experiencesâ€ so to speakâ€”and then Dubuffetâ€™s concepts and collection of Art Brut first announced in 1947â€”

There are a huge number of ways to examine what is "outsider poetry"

depending on the cultural construction, as well as the academic, poetic, social constructions that one brings to the concept, the idea, the image of what
"outsider poetry" is or is not, or could be etcâ€”

Thereâ€™s also an immense worldwide phenomena across many media and arts of
"the outsider artist and his/her works" in art magazines, lit mags, among musicians and record collectors, buyers of "primitive" or
"self taught" artists' creations--al of these have contributed to the vast explosion of a now very widespread popular appreciation of and deliberate creation of "outsider works"Â as anÂ
"underground, legendary source" of some of the works considered to be "extraordinary, different,
outside the usual run of things, brut"--from the past,
the present--and maybe even in a sort of Futurism based on the sense that what exists in the Present is a "ruins in reverse" of the future--when the present is taken to be a "construction site" from which building s emergeâ€”

Yes, out of art brut and outsider works for a long time have the professional or amateur â€œartists â€œof the non-brut variety found inspiration, solace, the recognition of a â€œfellow spirit,â€ Just as they do with non-Outsiders except the Outsider comes with far less cultural baggageâ€”at least for a while--

What then would make "outsider poetry" different from the other "outsider works and artists?"Â What then might be the meta literature of outsider works like that of Roberto Bolano's book Nazi Literature of the Americas, whose last section led to the novella Distant Star in which exists such "outsiders" as the Barbaric Writers, fan zines of football teams that aspire to a kind of super aggressive poetry, bizarre motorcycle white power club mags on badly printed low quality papers----and so on-or those produced as de luxe â€œvanity editionsâ€ to the select few--

Then there are the various approaches to what a French writerÂ has called "The Literature of the No," whichÂ I have worked in for a while now and been ecstatic to begin finding it in the work ofÂ other writers such as Edgardo Vila-Matas and M. Berube-as well as a long tradition going back especially to some examples in the travel Literature of the 17th century---this is the "Bartlebys and Company" branch of the unwritten and--al the same perhaps readable texts--the areas of the unreadable which will someday emerge as readable or the unwritten which is ultimately written by a completely different person as though "taking dictation" from an unknown source--a voice, a trace among spider webs "blowing in the wind"--

then there could be the question of the history of the recognitions of an outsider poetry at different epochs--say beginning at one period and ever since the uses and interests of such an Outsider text as the confessionalÂ writings of the condemned serial killer Gilles de Rais, or that of "peasant writers" in several European countries

"coming to light" during the Age of Enlightenment--

Speaking in tongues--might have found through its immensely long history various ways other than Zaum which attempted to create/included in itself something akin to this in writing?--

Then there is the language and writings of it given to puppets, Guignol, the works written with much use of slang like Celine and Genet--andÂ ones who are more extreme by far--so many many others now in the usa alone--in which thereâ€™s the return to the kind of jargon used by Villon whcih not long after begins to decay in its being able to be understood and turns then into a form of writing
"outside" the very words around itâ€”

one could include as Outsider Poetry could one not the immense amount of writing which is right on the paintings and objects of art
brutâ€”which is quite like the book of Kells as redone say by the pre-perspective
â€œprimitiveâ€ painters of Italy, whose works are like forerunners to comic stripsâ€”with the writing of what the personages are saying underneath the image, esp of Holy persons, the Holy Family and Saints and so forthâ€”

(I am for the most part limiting this to Western examplesâ€”as that is what i am more familiar with--)

Outsider writing/poetry could be that done in Mail Art by the writings and stampings collaged images and quotations from magazinzes and

newspapers â€“

The question of what is Outsider Poetryâ€”and according to whom, and whyâ€”and at what time in art historical and in literary historical and in historical timeâ€”al of these play a prt do they not in considering what or may not be â€˜Outsider poetryâ€”â€œ

In Visual Poetry, my works are accepted as â€œvisual poetryâ€ though at a kind of extreme (â€œthe dirtiest of the dirtyâ€ according to Geof Huth and , with Bob Cobbing, part of the â€œextreme school of Quickâ€™nDirtyâ€ by jw curry)â€”

But when one asks about whereone might display them, as soon as they are moved from one realm (poetry, visual poetry) to anotherâ€”the visual strictly, the become immediately called â€œart brutâ€ or â€œpunk art brutâ€™ etc

In writing how then does one qualify an outsider poetâ€”by many criteria of a personâ€™s life and influences an the effects methods and interests and style of the writing, a person like Bill burroughs and myself are lumped as a form of â€œoutsiderâ€ writer off in the darker areas close to the â€œPoetes Mauditsâ€â€”

Yet one might also sayâ€”yes but â€“despite the other qualifications these birds pass without question, what about other factors involved--??â€”the same with jean genet or a writer like Mohamed Choukri who was illiterate until age twenty and went > straight from illiteracy to writing in classical > Arabic, as genet wrote in Classical Racinien Frenchâ€”

>
> Yet they are considered also Outsiders due to > thebackgr9unds, life storyâ€”
>
> So it al a much more complex and swarming areaâ€”to really > extend the questions of I wd thinkâ€”or hopeâ€”because > otherwise why do an > anthology of outsider poetry now, at this moment other than > perhaps, since > writing is always fifty or more years behind paintingâ€”
>
> To only now â€œcatch the waveâ€ of a guaranteed mass > appeal--and throw together an anthology of something > vaguely called an > â€œOutsider poetryâ€ â€“
>
> Isnâ€™t it important to present some ideas of what Outsider
> is > in poetry what might be different from it than in other > artsâ€”orâ€”to make use of > these for forms of thinking on works that arenâ€™t outsider > onesâ€”either what I > call â€œFauxk Artâ€ type writing or the neo-Brute , or > theÂ Nostalgic > poetics of the neo-Naugahyde poetry > of the ranch houses of yesterday and their contribution to > a â€œfauxk rusticityâ€ > or a â€œkind of ruin of the images of the old westâ€ down > to the fake Fauxk --yes, > one can indeed fake the fauxk!!!--wagon wheel in the corner > to be immortalized > in a harsh yet â€˜swingingâ€™ meter based indeed on Western > Swing musicâ€”
>
> That is, one can INVENT all manner of outsider Writers
> just
> as Borges did to a good and powerful extent and BolaÃ±o, > Berube, Vila-Matas and > myself invent them whole saleâ€”out of whole > clothâ€”because even the fictional or > perhaps even more so the fictional becomes a kind of > â€œavant-gardeâ€ leading the > way into these â€œunknown realms existing al around one and > hitherto unnoticedâ€â€”

Because the elasticity of the fictional as it operates among the actualâ€”opens gates there one had never noticed at allâ€”like the place inÂ a wal in a H G Wells story which suddenly for passerby produces a door opening to a compltely Other World--

Or has perhaps gleaned from the art music and various other outsider lit examples of the pastâ€”

That is part of the challenge of this kind of projectâ€”for sureâ€”

â€œEl Colonel sits and reads smoking, and thinking how Death,
the Grim Reaper, harvests not only corpses and souls, but poetry also, and literature, painting, theater, cinema and the documentary of â€œnon-fiction.â€ â€œAs the Blood dries, so the Ink comes to lifeâ€”the paint, the greasepaint, the photo and cinematographic negatives . . . the development of images arises from the decay of the flesh . . . Rimbaudâ€™s â€˜Sleeper in the Valleyâ€™ born and given life by the two red bullet holes . . .
vibrantly, startlingly bright flowers in the verdant valleyâ€™s peaceful fields of a long ago War . . .Â

El Colonel, seated on the large rock growing warm in the midday sun, sees around him tableaux out of a shifting series of eras of painting and writing that he knows from various tomes and journals found through time in the ruins of villages, the war torn forests and fields, the shattered and smoldering ruins of bombed out municipal libraries, of private collections assembled by this person and that, and by the scattered remnants of torn newspapers from mutilated kiosks, or the torn and jagged wind blown strips of posters clinging precariously to the walls of collapsed cinemas, the smashed and bullet pocked walls of small alleys, and the wide-flung spaces of avenues where theatres and cafes once stood, and which now lie in a heap of tangled images, signs, structures, bodies arranged intriguingly among the still smoking

craters of bombings and fires set by incendiary devices.

El Colonelâ€™s eyes surgically examine the corpses as his thoughts â€œmake incisions in the pulpy mass of memories, a substance akin to that of the insides of melons, mangos, avocados . . .
cutting into this fresh and drenched flesh of memories, El Colonel finds always the mixture of death with art, blood with poetry, sadism with cinema, propaganda with photographs and inside them all, the nerves and sinews of rebellion, of refusal, of the Unwritten Writing, the Unread Non-Written texts, the images and paintings of Untaken Photos Not Capturing the Moment, the Unpainted Unseen images not even found in the â€œMuseum without Walls.â€Â

From "El Colonel is sitting on a rock and smokingâ€â€”David chirot (five El Colonel Stories are already on line in various journals-)

Date: Sat, 13 Jun 2009 16:43:18 -0800

From: [redacted]

Subject: Outsider Poems: A mini-anthology in progress
To: [redacted]

For those who might be interested, my current posting on Poems & Poetics (poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com) is the first installment of Outsider Poems, a mini-anthology in progress.Â What I'm hoping to do here is to work in public while assembling material toward a gathering of poems & near-poems from anywhere/anytime that exist in literate societies but outside of the normative literary nexus.Â I'll be developing the project - as far as I can take it - with a sense that the term "outsider poetry" can cover a wide range of sources & possibilities, from art brut & mystical/religious poems & offerings to folk & working class poetry, sermons & rants, glossolalia & glossographia, dialect & "nation language" (K. Brathwaite), & so on - works in short both written & oral.Â In doing so, as with Poems for the Millennium, I'll be open to suggestions from anyone out there, both definitional or theoretical ones for "outsider poetry" in general and specific ones for the selection of poems & poets.Â I don't for the moment know exactly where this is taking me, but that's the pleasure & mystery of any new beginning.

Â

Other recent postings on Poems & Poetics include: Octavio Paz on Modernity & Romanticism; Two Poems Recovered from Seymour Faust; my own "Poetry of the 1950s as a Global Awakening"; "The Nanking Massacre: A Birthday Poem & Tribute for Makoto Oda"; David Antin's "Notes for an Ultimate Prosody"; Armand Schwerner's "Hall of Mirrors, A Dialogue" (previously unpublished); an excerpt from Ilya Kaminsky's "Musica Humana, an Elegy for Osip Mandelstam"; Pierre Joris's translations from Goethe's West-Ã–stlicher Diwan; & Karl Young's "Toward an Ideal Anthology" (excerpted).Â Scheduled for future publication are Charles Bernstein's translation from Victor Hugo's "Les Contemplations"; Heriberto YÃ©pez's "Ethopoetics [not ethnopoetics], What Is It?"; excerpts from Christian BÃ¶k's Eunoia; Bruce

Andrews' "Four 19th-Century Poems"; Ambar Past's introduction to Tzotzil Indian "Incantations": Joe Safdie's "Against Romanticism" (excerpts); & further ongoing installments of Outsider Poems, a Mini-Anthology in Progress.

Jerome RothenbergÂ Â "Poetry must have something in it
1026 San AbellaÂ Â Â Â
Â Â Â that is barbaric, vast, and wild."
Encinitas, CA 92024Â Â Â Â Â
Â Â Â Â Â
Â Â D. DiderotÂ Â Â Â Â

jrothenberg at cox.net
Blog at poemsandpoetics.blogspot.com

HotmailÂ® has ever-growing storage! Donâ€™t worry about storage limits.
http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/Storage?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tutorial_Storage_062009

↑ Index

254. andrea strudensky
CALL FOR POETRY SUBMISSIONS
Fri 26 Jun 2009

Leonard Cohen â€“ You're Our Man
CALL FOR POETRY SUBMISSIONS

Leonard Cohen â€“ You're Our Man
CALL FOR POETRY SUBMISSIONS

In honour of Leonard Cohen's 75th birthday (September 21, 2009,) the Foundation for Public Poetry/Fondation PoÃ©sie Publique is seeking submissions of poetry (poetic responses) based upon Leonard Cohen's poetry. A maximum of seventy-five poems will be selected for this publication.

The publication is a fundraising initiative to help support the commencement of a Leonard Cohen Poet-In-Residence program at Leonard's old high school(Westmount High.)

All submissions will be considered to grant the Foundation for Public Poetry first serial rights. Submissions should include a note of reference to the Cohen poem which the author is responding to. Authors should also include a three-line biography and complete contact information.

For more information, please email: [redacted]

Deadline for submissions is July 12, 2009.

_____ Be smarter than spam. See how smart SpamGuard is at giving junk email the boot with the All-new Yahoo! Mail. Click on Options in Mail and switch to New Mail today or register for free at http://mail.yahoo.ca

↑ Index

255. David Kirschenbaum
Last Call to Advertise in Boog City 58
Sat 27 Jun 2009

Please forward

Advertise in

Boog City 58

featuring Urban Folk 21

Deadlines

—Space Reservations-Email to reserve ad space ASAP

—Wed. July 3-Submit Ad or Ad Materials
—Wed. July 8-Distribute Paper

This is a quick note to see if you'd like to advertise and reach our readership. (Donations are also cool, way cool.)

We'll be distributing 2,250 copies of the issue throughout the East Village and other parts of lower Manhattan; Williamsburg and Greenpoint, Brooklyn; and at Boog City events.

Advertise your small press's newest publications, your own titles or upcoming readings, or maybe salute an author you feel people should be reading, with a few suggested books to buy. And musical acts, advertise your new albums, indie labels your new releases.

Take advantage of our indie discount ad rate. We are once again offering a 50% discount on our 1/8-page ads, cutting them from $80 to $40. The discount rate also applies to larger ads.

For our full rate card, please visit:

http://welcometoboogcity.com/ad_rates.pdf

Email [redacted] or call 212-842-BOOG (2664) for more information.

as ever,
David

--
David A. Kirschenbaum, editor and publisher
Boog City
330 W. 28th St., Suite 6H
NY, NY 10001-4754
For event and publication information:
http://welcometoboogcity.com/
T: (212) 842-BOOG (2664)

↑ Index

256. Loretta Clodfelter
Planned by Sarah Trott Now Available from There
Sat 27 Jun 2009

There has just released Planned, the first full-length book of poetry by Sarah Trott. It is an evocative look at how the American Dream, a three-bedroom house with a two-car garage on a quiet cul-de-sac, became a national obsession with a nightmarish hangover. And nowhere was that more true than Northern California.

http://www.therejournal.com/ordersarahtrottplanned.html

Born and raised in California, Sarah Trott’s writing has been featured in journals and anthologies including Watchword, There, Cricket Online Review and Crux among others. This is her first full-length publication. She teaches high school in Richmond, California, and lives in San Francisco.

There
http://www.therejournal.com

↑ Index

257. Pierre Joris

Recent NOMADICS blog posts

Sat 27 Jun 2009

Packing up to move to Brooklyn, so note new snailmail: 7101 Shore Road, # 2J, Brooklyn NY 11209 before checking out the latest NOMADICS posts at http://pierrejoris.com/blog :

Vaudeville Mongrels & Piaf's Accordéoniste Moving & Music
This & That
The Medea Hypothesis
Brit Poet Laureate takes Piss out of Politics unSituationist Dinner in Paris: Debord Rolls Over in his Grave Voilà! Nicole Peyrafitte's Kitchen & Songs Jean Daive's Memoir of Paul Celan

may your summer be great!

Pierre
==========
"Play what you don't know" -- Sun Ra
==========
Pierre Joris
7101 Shore Road #2J
7101 Shore Road #2J
Brooklyn NY 11209
c: [redacted]
o: 518 442 40 71
Euro cell: (011 33) 6 75 43 57 10
email: [redacted]
http://pierrejoris.com
http://pierrejoris.com/blog/
==========

↑ Index

258. David Chirot

from blog /DAVID-BAPTISTE CHIROT Site Sight Cite Visual Sonic Visceral Poetries

Sat 27 Jun 2009

<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/?widgetType=BlogArchive&widgetId=BlogArchive1&action=toggle&dir=close&toggle=WEEKLY-1245560400000&toggleopen=WEEKLY-1245560400000>The enduring theme for some time on my blog is Human Rights in re Art, Poetry & Torture- (al three often against Human Rights)-- once a society has accepted torture on a routine basis, indeifnite detentions, loss of habeus corpus, the sacrifice ongoing of individuals rights of freedoms for the security of the corporations and the fixers who run the govt-- language is losing its power to even "take a stand" and so is hiding away- "the new mccarthyism" makes it way thoughout the land-- and the tyranny which one does not see is the one that is themost tyrannncial --one can no longer see it or hear it and it is banned-to utter any doubts--or critiques-for are we notturly inthe best of all possible worlds, willnot the economy get better beforeyou know it?--

Poetry, Language, Arts and Torture are along with Guantanamo, Palestine/Israel, and arts of al media from around the world including my own clay impression spray paintings, rubBEings, collages, etc with focus on Visual/Sound Poetries, Poetry, Visual Arts & Music there's always a lot on sidebars--right now flckr streams of Iranin stencal, graf, street arts, one from th iranian artist A1One Gaza, what's left after latest ethnic cleansing attack, american bombing of 140 people in afghanistan, american punk garage (music) a roberto bolano short story, and lots of news and essays reports videos a piece from an ongoing series which is basically when finsihed going to be one re the internet and one re the history of american electricty from ben franklin to abu ghraib, gunatanamo bagram these pieces & deletion from the web series is on the deletion of persons and lands fro the world online and off)-have been appearing through the last four years on the blog and in ejournals, print-- these are interwoven with art works, poetry, documents, fotos etc- athey are accompanioed online and in print b the ongoiing series of stories re "El Colonel" "The New Extreme Experimental American Poetry & Arts" "from the electric chair to the bean bag chair--"

i believe that the language and culture of a society are prfoundly "speaking, writing,acting, sounding" in ways overlooked--for example the use of forgeries of the Italian letter and non-eixstant "evidence online"provided by Curveball, an iraqi refugee seeeking asylum in German whom the Americans never met--al of these fkaes and hoaxes for the invasion of Iraq (ever wonder why Colin Powell used artist's conceptions of the trucks and othermateril for making poision gas by the tanker load--and not fotos?) what is the part that words and images play when there is such a breakdown that things are compartmentalized so as not to reveal their "not adding up, inequalities" etc--why does a Black American President support Apartheid? why do you? or you --unquestioningly people race to the Orwellian vision!

in a time period in which memoirs and poems also are being reveled as fakes, hoaxes at an almost weekly rate --why not fake the evidence for a War? now it's Iran's turn-- with the iranian "Prince" being interviewed on US TV for his ideas about the"Democracy Movement in Iran" nothing like a Prince to tell you all abt that eh- the goal of Newspeak is to prevent the mind frm being able to see contradictions--War is Peace Ignorance is Strength -- or the drastic devlotution inanimal farm from "four feet good, two feet bad" to "all animals are equal but some are more equal than others"--and inthe end, on two feet, the pigs "rise to thelevel of humans" and like them cheat at cards---

06/21 - 06/28<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009_06_21_archive.html> (139)

- LA Times: Obama prepares to hold Gitmo guys indefi...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/la-times-obama-prepares-to-hold-gitmo.html>
- DemocracyNow: Stonewall-web Stonewall Riots 40th A...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/democracynow-stonewall-web-stonewall.html>
- Stonewall rebel reflects 40 years after NYC riots<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/stonewall-rebel-reflects-40-years-after.html>
- ED SANDERS : GLYPHS 1962-2009<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/ed-sanders-glyphs-1962-2009.html>
- Art City: Calatrava, Homer Simpson, France, Breakf...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/art-city-calatrava-homer-simpson-france.html>
- Intercambio nº 21 de ATC´s--Artists' Trading Cards...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/intercambio-n-21-de-atcs-artists.html>
- Invite to Caterina Davinio's Exhibition in San Fra...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/invite-to-caterina-davinios-exhibition.html>
- MAX MIREBALAIS by Roberto Bolano from Nazi Literat...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/max-mirebalais-by-roberto-bolano-from.html>
- Chirot foto/essay: Transformation of the Electric

...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2008/02/transformation-of-electric-chair-into.html>
- A People's History Of The United States - (The 20t...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/sidebar-video-link-peoples-history-of.html>
- Dozens of Journalists among Jailed in Iran<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/dozens-of-journalists-among-jailed-in.html>
- On the Road to No War: End of 5-Day Journey, Civil...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/on-road-to-no-war-end-of-5-day-journey.html>
- Obama needs to Make It Safe for citizens to Protes...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/obama-needs-to-make-it-safe-for.html>
- POLL: Is Iran Being Worked by the CIA or Do you Su...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/poll-is-iran-being-worked-by-cia-or-do.html>
- Our Political Prisoners By David Swanson<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/our-political-prisoners-by-david.html>
- By Dennis Kucinich Kucinich: "Passing a weak bill ...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/by-dennis-kucinich-kucinich-passing.html>
- Wash Post: Obama Drafting Orders to Defy Habeas Co...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/wash-post-obama-drafting-orders-to-defy.html>
- Museum Folkwang presents Irina Korina<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/museum-folkwang-presents-irina-korina.html>
- The Seeds "Girl I Want You"<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/seeds-i-want-you.html>
- The Seeds - Mr Farmer<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/seeds-mr-farmer.html>
- Seeds frontman Sky Saxon dies--The Seeds - Pushin'...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/seeds-pushin-too-hard.html>
- Evil Hoodoo - The Seeds<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/evil-hoodoo-seeds.html>
- Gonn-Hey Joe (fuzz punk version)<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/gone-hey-joe-my-favorite-fuzz-punk.html>

- Obama administration seeks to quash suit by 9/11 f...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/obama-administration-seeks-to-quash.html>
- Fwd: Robot Dreams Symposium at Kunsthaus Graz<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/fwd-robot-dreams-symposium-at-kunsthaus.html>
- Who's A Low Level Terrorist? Are You? By Emily Spe...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/whos-low-level-terrorist-are-you-by.html>
- Author Naomi Klein Calls for Boycott of Israel<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/author-naomi-klein-calls-for-boycott-of.html>
- Auschwitz Survivor "I Can Identify with Palestin...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/auschwitz-survivor-i-can-identify-with.html>
- Deadly US Air-strike on Afghan Village Channel 4...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/deadly-us-air-strike-on-afghan-village.html>
- U.S. Dollars Support Iranian "Dissidents"--USA Tod...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/us-dollars-support-iranian-dissidents.html>
- IRAN PICTURES: 1978-79 Revolution Echoes Protests ...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/iran-pictures-1978-79-revolution-echoes.html>
- : [tapin] BoXoN à marseille samedi 27 juin<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/tapin-boxon-marseille-samedi-27-juin.html>
- CALLE SOPHIE in the Centre for Fine Arts - BOZAR<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/calle-sophie-in-centre-for-fine-arts.html>
- Israel steps up Illegal sales of Palestinian refug...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/israel-steps-up-illegal-sales-of.html>
- Israeli spy case: DOJ: AIPAC case witness was aske...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/israeli-spy-case-doj-aipac-case-witness.html>
- Neda Soltan's family 'forced out of home' by Irani...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/neda-soltans-family-forced-out-of-home.html>
- Milwaukee LASC: Celebrate victory & learn about El...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/milwaukee-lasc-

celebrate-victory-learn.html>
- Richard Marshall's Great Review/Essay re Loose Wat...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/richard-marshalls-great-reviewessay-re.html>
- Iraqi & US poetry of the 2 American Iraq Wars & Sa...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/iraqi-us-poetry-of-2-american-iraq-wars.html>
- Ignorace is Strength By Paul Craig Roberts<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/ignorace-is-strength-by-paul-craig.html>
- Centre of Contemporary Art 'Znaki Czasu' in Torun ...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/centre-of-contemporary-art-znaki-czasu.html>
- Tlaxcala: Stopped by Apartheid Henning MANKELL --P...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/tlaxcala-stopped-by-apartheid-henning.html>
- UK: Free SOAS 9: 4 events/protests. 1st one tmrw<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/uk-free-soas-9-4-eventsprotests-1st-one.html>
- IN ESPAGNOL : LENGUA ¡Dona ya! Haz posible la prim...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/in-espagnol-lengua-dona-ya-haz-posible.html>
- : LENGUA Donate Today; Make possible the first Pri...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/lengua-donate-today-make-possible-first.html>
- Mexico: Manifiestas Conceptual/Conceptual Manifest...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/mexico-manifiestas-conceptualconceptual.html>
- Videos, reports--25 June Torture Accountability Da...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/videos-reports-25-june-torture.html>
- 114 Democrats and 164 Republicans Vote Against Lea...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/114-democrats-and-164-republicans-vote.html>
- 25 June Torture Accountability Day--Why Demand to ...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/25-june-torture-accountability-day-why.html>
- Stroom Den Haag presents Foodprint<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/stroom-den-haag-presents-foodprint.html>
- Brasscheck TV: Back by popular demand<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/brasscheck-tv-back-

by-popular-demand.html>
- "MuzzleWatch"--Update--Anthony Lowenstein: Long Ov...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/muzzlewatch-update-anthony-lowenstein.html>
- Jewish Voice for Piece: Reality Check<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/re-reality-check.html>
- OJO Presents Flesh Car Crash, An Engagement Party ...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/ojo-presents-flesh-car-crash-engagement.html>
- Boek Visual. POR SI DISPONES DE 10 MINUTOS * WHEN ...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/boek-visual-por-si-dispones-de-10.html>
- Bauhaus: 90 Years / 90 Days<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/bauhaus-90-years-90-days.html>
- BBC Inerviews 27 ; Ex-detainees allege Bagram abus...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/bbc-inerviews-27-ex-detainees-allege.html>
- Checkpoint 303 LIVE in San Francisco Tonight!<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/checkpoint-303-live-in-san-francisco.html>
- Which Life Was More Valuable? Death on Camera ...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/which-life-was-more-valuable-death-on.html>
- The Propaganda War Against Iran By Bill Van Auke...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/propaganda-war-against-iran-by-bill-van.html>
- Destabilization 2.0 Soros, the CIA, Mossad and t...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/destabilization-20-soros-cia-mossad-and.html>
- Some Little Known Facts About The USA: Obama & Buf...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/some-little-known-facts-about-usa-obama.html>
- Mousavi's statement number 5 to Iranian people. ...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/mousavis-statement-number-5-to-iranian.html>
- Is U.S. Trying To Save Agent Mehsud? :<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/is-us-trying-to-save-agent-mehsud.html>
- Iran Inspires Activism on Afghanistan and Torture<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/iran-inspires-activism-on-afghanistan.html>

- Video Documentary: Peace, Propaganda & the Prom...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/video-documentary-peace-propaganda.html>
- Rights Watch Podcast: Eyes on Iran Street Protest...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/rights-watch-podcast-eyes-on-iran.html>
- X E R O L A G E 4 2 - A Catalogue of Rare Movement...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/x-e-r-o-l-g-e-4-2-catalogue-of-rare.html>
- Video: Two years under siege<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/video-two-years-under-siege.html>
- Ilan Pappe: The necessity of cultural boycott<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/ilan-pappe-necessity-of-cultural.html>
- * Video... Civilian Casualties of (Ou...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/video.html>
- Video... Federal Reserve: Same Old Sheriff on Wall...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/video-federal-reserve-same-old-sheriff.html>
- Operation Enduring Folly: US Kills 60 in Pakistan ...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/operation-enduring-folly-us-kills-60-in.html>
- grafix from Road Story by Alberto Fuguel and Gonza...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/grafix-from-road-story-by-alberto.html>
- Ignorance is Strength: "Hero" Mousavi aka "Butcher...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/ignorance-is-strength-hero-mousavi-aka.html>
- Human Rights Watch: US: Immigration Policy Harms W...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/human-rights-watch-us-immigration.html>
- JVP: Israel Thumbs Its Nose at President Obama: Ne...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/jvp-israel-thumbs-its-nose-at-president.html>
- Writing from the Other Side: from Flaubert's Dicti...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/writing-from-other-side-from-flauberts_24.html>
- Pew's Philadelphia Exhibitions Initiative Awards O...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/pews-philadelphia-exhibitions.html>
- Smelling Salt Amusements & Performance

Thanatology...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/smelling-salt-amusements-performance.html>
- Peace Action: Act Now to cut Pentagon waste and de...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/peace-action-act-now-to-cut-pentagon.html>
- The Deep Politics of Hollywood Close Encounters ...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/deep-politics-of-hollywood-close.html>
- The Making Of A War Criminal Video: + Kissinger...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/making-of-war-criminal-video-kissinger.html>
- The World According to Monsanto Controlling Our Fo...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/world-according-to-monsanto-controlling.html>
- video--"Obama Managed To Keep His Big Mouth Shut W...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/video-michael-scheuer-obama-managed-to.html>
- Extrajudicial Killing: U.S. attack kills at leas...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/extrajudicial-killing-us-attack-kills.html>
- Video: Palestinian homes on sale to<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/video-palestinian-homes-on-sale-to.html>
- : JFP: Iran--NYT and Washington Post stories<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/jfp-iran-nyt-and-washington-post.html>
- JFP News 6/23 - Kinzer: Iran Protesters Want US to...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/jfp-news-623-kinzer-iran-protesters.html>
- JFP: Iran--NYT amd Washington Post stories<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/jfp-iran-nyt-amd-washington-post.html>
- HRW: Turkey: Pride and Violence (Daily Updates)<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/hrw-turkey-pride-and-violence-daily.html>
- CREW Files FOIA Request With Secret Service for Re...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/crew-files-foia-request-with-secret.html>
- Gonn - sometimes good guys don't qear white<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/gonn-sometimes-good-guys-don-qear-white.html>
- The Gonn - doin' me in<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/gonn-doin-me-in.html>

- Intoxicated Rat, Dixon Brothers, Dorsey Dixon, How...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/intoxicated-rat-dixon-brothers-dorsey.html>
- Pinball Machine, Dorsey Dixon, Newport Folk Festiv...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/pinball-machine-dorsey-dixon-newport.html>
- Spiral Jetty by Robert Smithson<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/spiral-jetty-by-robert-smithson.html>
- Spiral Jetty(excerpts)1970<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/spiral-jettyexcerpts1970.html>
- Robert Smithson - Spiral Jetty (1970)<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/robert-smithson-spiral-jetty-1970.html>
- {Representative Press} Video: Iran Election Questi...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/representative-press-video-iran.html>
- Brasscheck TV: Election fraud<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/brasscheck-tv-election-fraud.html>
- 9 re: Web Spying,Censoring,"Revolutions" --Free Pr...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/9-re-web-spyingcensoringrevolutions.html>
- Readers--Please take part!--: URGENT ACTION: Congr...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/readers-please-take-part-urgent-action.html>
- Jewish Peace News: Obama's Approach: Incremental o...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/jewish-peace-news-obamas-approach.html>
- Festival Mundial de Poesía, Venezuela 09 - Worldwi...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/festival-mundial-de-poesia-venezuela-09.html>
- Human Rights Watch 20th Intern'tl Film Festival: N...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/human-rights-watch-20th-interntl-film.html>
- Petition to Protest Italian Law Against Birth Cert...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/petition-to-protest-italian-law-against.html>
- Novedades en Artes e Historia No. 380<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/novedades-en-artes-ehistoria-no-380.html>

- Official Site of Nicaraguan Writer Gioconda Bell...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/official-site-of-nicaraguan-writer.html>
- : PER-FORMATE UN EJERCICIO DE INTERRELACIÓN ARTÍST...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/per-formate-un-ejercicio-de.html>
- Iran & More News Stories<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/iran-more-news-stories.html>
- High Court Defangs Voter Rights Act<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/high-court-defangs-voter-rights-act.html>
- JPN: Rachel Giora writes in support of boycott of ...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/jvp-rachel-giora-writes-in-support-of.html>
- JFP: Congress Should Require an Exit Strategy from...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/jfp-congress-should-require-exit.html>
- Cabinet Presents Conrad Shawcross: "Pre-Retroscope...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/cabinet-presents-conrad-shawcross-pre.html>
- Brasscheck TV: Can you trust your doctor's prescip...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/brasscheck-tv-can-you-trust-your.html>
- Bailout Fallout: Goldman Sachs to Pay Record Bonus...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/bailout-fallout-goldman-sachs-to-pay.html>
- Call for Stickers-- Stickerman Museum, Tokyo Annex...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/call-fo9r-stickers-stickerman-museum.html>
- Ali Akbar Khan, Sarod Virtuoso, Dies at 87<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/ali-akbar-khan-sarod-virtuoso-dies-at.html>
- Iran’s Tensions, Foreshadowed in Its Cinema<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/irans-tensions-foreshadowed-in-its.html>
- In Venice, Peter Greenaway Takes Veronese’s Figure...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/in-venice-peter-greenaway-takes.html>
- NYT: Utah Town Unsettled by Doctor’s Suicide and a...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/nyt-utah-town-unsettled-

by-doctors.html>
- Your Intrpeid reporter "inter/views" Outsider Poem...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/your-intrpeid-reporter-interviews.html>
- McClatchy: In stark legal turnaround, Obama now re...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/mcclatchy-in-stark-legal-turnaround.html>
- Jeremy Scahill: "The Responsible Left:" Funding Ob...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/jeremy-scahill-responsible-left-funding_21.html>
- More Hypocrisy: U.S. Govt. Threatens to Prosecute ...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/more-hypocrisy-us-govt-threatens-to.html>
- Che's Granddaughter: Vegetarian Revolutionary<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/ches-granddaughter-vegetarian.html>
- Paul Krugman: The Froomkin firing<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/paul-krugman-froomkin-firing.html>
- Call for submissions: Printers' Ball<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/call-for-submissions-printers-ball.html>
- Jewish Peace News: Work for Justice, Go to Jail?<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/jewish-peace-news-work-for-justice-go.html>
- Iran Election: "The idol-breaker Ahmadi" and "Wher...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/iran-election-idol-breaker-ahmadi-and.html>
- Check these Out--Libro Digital de Arte y Artistas ...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/check-these-out-libro-digital-de-arte-y.html>
- Petition for the release of all Iranians<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/petition-for-release-of-all-iranians.html>
- THE PUBLIC ACCESS COLLECTIVE presents Public: Art/...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/public-access-collective-presents.html>
- "Ghana: Digital Dumping Ground"--Frontline 23 June...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/ghana-digital-dumping-ground-frontline.html>
- Gaza siege enters third year<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/gaza-siege-enters-third-year.html>

- MEPs, intellectuals join campaign to end Gaza bloc...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/meps-intellectuals-join-campaign-to-end.html>
- Between Metaphor and Object at Irish Museum of Mod...<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/between-metaphor-and-object-at-irish.html>
- Brasscheck TV: The good news<http://davidbaptistechirot.blogspot.com/2009/06/brasscheck-tv-good-news.html>

↑ Index

259. nieuwland jeroen
Shady cartography
Sun 28 Jun 2009

Dear all,
a short essay about Stephen Walter's artistic cartographic rendering of London, with reference to Olson's poetics:

http://transversalinflections.wordpress.com/2009/06/21/shady-cartography-stephen-walter%E2%80%99s-london/

All best,
Jeroen

↑ Index

260. Stephen Vincent
H. Lazer & Tree Haptics, etc. new de blog
Sun 28 Jun 2009

---

http://stephenvincent.net/blog/
A couple of recent blog entries:

1. "Contextual Reading" - actually I think it should be called "'site-specific reading" - the former sounds academic and the latter sounds post-fashionable! It's my reading of Hank Lazar's, "Portions", a new pocketbook from Lavender Ink.

2. "Tree Haptics" - a photo/text piece on tree bark and the possible origins of mark making.

3. If you fish a little bit, there are haptics of Charles Bernstein and Judith Goldman reading (recently) at Grand Street in Oakland.

As always, the site does not take direct comments, but email responses are always welcome.

Sorry for any cross-posting,

Stephen Vincent
http://stephenvincent.net/blog/

↑ Index

261. Jim Andrews
new dbcinema series: silvia saint II
Sun 28 Jun 2009

---

the following might be offensive to some because it uses images drawn from the internet via a google image search of silvia saint, a 'pornstar.'

here's a new series of dbcinema screenshots as a slidvid/slideshow: http://vispo.com/dbcinema/saint2/slideshow.htm

if you're on a pc, the F11 key should toggle the browser to fullscreen (and back when you're done).

you can also view the screenshots individually at http://vispo.com/dcinema/saint2

you can watch a concatenation of all the dbcinema slidvids at http://vispo.com/dbcinema/saint2/slidvid.htm

all these images were made with dbcinema, a graphic synthesizer i'm writing. alternatively, it might be called a langu(im)age processor.

here's a video talk i did in vancouver about dbcinema: http://vispo.com/dbcinema/video/vantalk . here's something i wrote about dbcinema: http://vispo.com/dbcinema/kandinsky3/intro

ja

↑ Index

262. Doug Holder
Get a book table at the Somerville News Writers Festival!!
Mon 29 Jun 2009

Are you an author, press, retreat, MFA program, lit mag contact Tim Gager [redacted] or [redacted]

Get a Book Table at one of New England's Famed Writers Festivals!!!!!

Somerville News Writers Festival, http://somervillenewswritersfestival.com

In our 7th year In past years we have had: Tom Perrotta, Robert Pinsky, Nick Flynn, Andre Dubois, Afaa Michael Weaver, Junot Diaz, etc.... \ Our events are sold out

$50,

11 AM-4 PM
main event www.somervillenewswritersfestival.com

Host:
Founders: Timothy Gager, Doug Holder
Timothy Gager

Type: Music/Arts - Exhibit
Network: Global
Start Time: Saturday, November 14, 2009 at 11:00pm
End Time: Sunday, November 15, 2009 at 4:00am
Location: Somerville Arts Armory Street: 191 Highland Ave
City/Town: Somerville, MA

V
Email: [redacted]

Description
THIS IS NOT THE EVENT INVITATION BUT RATHER...
DO
---YOU
------WANT
----------A
----------BOOK
----------TABLE FOR THE BOOK FAIR

-Book tables ---small press will be up at 11 AM-4 PM. If you, your publisher or anyone you know is interested, contact me. Deadline, 9/1/09

Event starts at 7 PM Rick Moody, Steve Almond, Lise Haines, Margot Livesey and John Buffalo Mailer

plus poets Frank Bidart, Sam Cornish, Richard Hoffman, Tino Villanueva, Doug Holder, and Tam Lin Neville will be the featured poets. Frank Bidart will be awarded the Ibbetson Street Lifetime achievement award at the festival.

Reading and hosting:Timothy Gager

Advertise with the Boston Area Small Press and Poetry Scene!
http://tinyurl.com/ddjcal

↑ Index

263. Ian Randall Wilson
A Now A Word From. . .
Mon 29 Jun 2009

Hollyridge Press just published five new chapbooks in its chapbook series with work from:

Tony Hoagland

Olena Kalytiak Davis

Rachel M. Simon

Gail Wronsky

Ian Randall Wilson

find them at www.hollyridgepress.com/chapseries.htm

↑ Index

264. Barbara Jane Reyes
Fwd: 07/11/2009 Literary Reading at SFPL: Randall Mann, Kristin Naca, and Debbie Yee
Mon 29 Jun 2009

---------- Forwarded message ----------

[Please distribute widely.]

The Filipino American Center of the San Francisco Public Library in association with Philippine American Writers and Artists, Inc. presents:

Philippine American Writers and Artists, Inc. Literary Reading with Randall Mann, Kristin Naca, and Debbie Yee.

Saturday July 11, 2009
2:00 -4:30 pm
Latino Hispanic Community Meeting Room B

Randall Mann is the author of two collections of poetry, BREAKFAST WITH THOM GUNN (University of Chicago 2009) and COMPLAINT IN THE GARDEN (Zoo/Orchises 2004), winner of the 2003 Kenyon Review Prize; and co-author of the textbook WRITING POEMS, Seventh Edition (Pearson Longman 2007). He works as an editor and lives in San Francisco.

Kristin Naca's poems have been published in Indiana Review, Prairie Schooner and Octopus Magazine. She recently graduated with a PhD from University of Nebraska, and MFA from Pitt. Her book Bird Eating Bird was selected by Yusef Komunyakaa, for the mtvU National Poetry Series Prize. It will appear with Harper Perennial in September.

Debbie Yee is a trusts and estates attorney and Kundiman fellow. Debbie's poems have appeared or are forthcoming in 32 Poems, OCHO, Fence and The Best American Poetry 2009. Debbie blogs irregularly at www.debbieyee.com.

All programs at the library are free.

San Francisco Public Library
100 Larkin Street (@ Grove)
sfpl.org

--
http://barbarajanereyes.com http://bjanepr.wordpress.com

↑ Index

265. Doug Holder
Anew poetry collection: Steerage by Bert Stern
Mon 29 Jun 2009

"A Great Book!" -Mike Basinski, PhD Curator poetry collection Univ.of Buffalo
To order this contemporary classic collection of poetry go to:

http://www.bertstern.blogspot.com

↑ Index

266. Susan Webster Schultz
P/RE-PUBLICATION SALE FOR LIVING PIDGIN BY LEE TONOUCHI
Mon 29 Jun 2009

Dear friends of Tinfish Press:

I hope everyone is having a good summer.

Tinfish Press will be re-publishing Lee Tonouchi's important 2002 book, LIVING PIDGIN, soon. We would like to offer it at a pre-publication price of $10 to anyone within reach of this announcement. Send checks to

Tinfish Press
47-728 Hui Kelu Street #9
Kane`ohe, HI 96744

or use our (usually) handy 2checkout.com method on our website (hit “purchase” and then scroll down the alphabetical list until you get to Living Pidgin).

http://tinfishpress.com

You can see Tinfish Press's description of the first edition of the book here:

http://www.tinfishpress.com/living_pidgin.html

I 've blogged on Lee's book here

http://tinfisheditor.blogspot.com/2009/06/contemplations-on-contemplations-on.html

I also blogged on Paul Naylor's new Tinfish volume, JAMMED TRANSMISSION

http://tinfisheditor.blogspot.com/2009/06/paul-naylors-waste-of-paper-in-jammed.html

and on Norman Fischer's CHARLOTTE'S WAY

http://tinfisheditor.blogspot.com/2009/06/on-impossibility-of-meditative-poetry.html

Please check out the rest of the blog, as well. It's proving a good place for me to meditate on the poetics behind the poetry published by Tinfish.

Thanks for your continuing support of small press poetry from the Pacific.

Aloha,

Susan M. Schultz

↑ Index

267. Tim Peterson
The Collection of Silence, June 30, 7 PM
Mon 29 Jun 2009

The Collection of Silence / Dia at the hispanic society

Eileen Myles writes:

WHAT ?!: TUESDAYS ON THE TERRACE: THE COLLECTION OF SILENCE
WHERE: 155 St. & BWAY
WHEN: June 30, 7PM
WHY: PEACE, AIMLESSNESS, RELIEF, SOLDARITY, RESISTANCE, SOLACE, IRONY, FRIVOLITY, HAD ENOUGH

Being invited by Dia to curate a performance for a summer evening vaguely in response to Zoe’s show and the Hispanic Museum’s collection. I have invited five poets who invited five other poets (so there’s 25 of us, names below.) Invited as well are The Village Zendo, soprano Juliana Snapper, dancer Christine Elmo and four cohorts and about 40 kids from PS 4 conducted by poets Julie Patton and Christine Hou and finally a life drawing group from Brooklyn known as F>A>R>T>S (Friends of the Fine Arts) ; all will converge to sit, move, read and perform SILENTLY for one hour on the Hispanic Museum’s incredibly spacious and evocative Audubon Plaza. You as audience are invited to come up and stroll amongst this silent happening at your own genial pace. You’re urged to dress vividly & shamelessly as if you were attending a wedding or a renaissance fair or a nature hike, an art opening, poetry reading or to spray-paint things on your roof. At 8;15 the silence will end and morph into a decent party.

With Who: MONICA DE LA TORRE, CHARLES BERNSTEIN, STEPHANIE GRAY, TIM LIU, RACHEL ZOLF, JENNIFER BARTLETT, DANNY SNELSON, CA CONRAD, FRANK SHERLOCK, RENATO GÓMEZ, KIM ROSENFIELD, ANGELA JAEGER, JEREMY SIGLER, TIM PETERSON, LYDIA CORTES, NATHANIEL SIEGEL. PAOLO JAVIER, MARK BIBBINS, NICOLE COOLEY, LINDA GREGG, JEFFREY MCDANIEL, LILA ZEMBORAIN, TONYA FOSTER, RACHEL LEVITSKY, EMILY BEALL, CHRISTINE HOU, JULIE PATTON, STUDENTS FROM PS 4 AND EILEEN MYLES, PROJECT ORGANIZER

↑ Index

268. Eric Elshtain
New Beard of Bees Poetic Almanac
Mon 29 Jun 2009

Plant stuff according to Whit Griffin's poetic almanac, Solomon's Seal:

http://www.beardofbees.com/griffin.html

Eric Elshtain
Editor
Beard of Bees Press
http://www.beardofbees.com

↑ Index

269. Amanda Earl
news from AngelHousePress
Mon 29 Jun 2009

---

the fifth of our AHP essay series is now up: Kane X. Faucher muses on anthologies, the compendium and the companion in "The Compendium, the Flower (Exergue toward Lysicology)."

Also, AHP congratulates this year's winners of the bPNichol Chapbook Award: Sandra Ridley: Lift: Ghazals for C. (JackPine Press) and Gary Barwin : Inverting the Deer (serif of notthingham).

Both poets have been published recently by AngelHousePress: Sandra's poetry has appeared in the chapbook, Pent Up and on the site www.nationalpoetrymonth.ca. Gary's poetry appears in the on line annual pdf magazine, Experiment-o and his essay on how a poem works appears as part of the AHP Essay Series. Congratulations Sandra and Gary!

↑ Index

@poetics

The UB Poetics Discussion Group

Archive of Electronic Correspondence

July 2009

367 messages · Tue 30 Jun 2009 – Fri 31 Jul 2009

July 2009 was the list at its most self-doubting — a long midsummer trough in which the room turned over its own inadequacies from every side: the poet who wishes he were a novelist instead, the writing that feels doomed to fail, the grief that poetry can barely hold. Three hundred and sixty-seven messages moved through it, and the largest of them were confessions more than arguments. The month reads like a room asking, quietly and repeatedly, whether the thing it does is worth doing at all.

The largest thread was a defection wistfully imagined. Under the heading I want to write fiction but, poet after poet confessed the pull of the novel — the longer form, the wider audience, the sentence that need not justify every syllable — the recurring apostasy the list had raged at a year before, now voiced not as betrayal but as a tired, honest longing. The grass was greener in prose, and the room admitted it out loud.

The quarrel, sharper, was over failure as the very condition of the art. Prompted by Christian Bök's essay on writing and failure, a member opened a searching thread on poetry and inadequacy — asking about "the actual writing of poetry as an inevitably impossible, doomed, or failed endeavor", and whether we keep writing precisely because the poem always falls short of what we hoped it might do. Failure, on this account, was not a poet's bad luck but the medium's permanent weather, the gap between the wish and the words that no craft ever closes.

And under both ran the month's tenderest and most careful current: how poetry mourns. A thread on mourning and poetics asked why the quieter modes seem to carry grief best, reaching for the great contemporary elegies — Mary Jo Bang's Elegy among them — and wondering what the loud, experimental, self-delighting avant-garde can do in the presence of a real death. It was the room testing its own aesthetics against the one thing that does not care about aesthetics, and finding its confidence humbled — asking whether the loud, experimental, self-delighting modes it had spent a decade defending could stand, unembarrassed, in the actual presence of a death, or whether grief demanded a plainer speech than the avant-garde liked to allow.

I have set July down exactly as the archive delivered it — the wish to write fiction, the writing of poetry as a doomed endeavor, and the halting question of how a poem can mourn — because it was the month the list stopped defending itself and simply confessed its doubts: that the novel tempts, that the poem always fails, that grief may need a quieter art than the one the room had built. And yet the confession itself was the answer hiding in plain sight. A commons that will spend a whole July admitting poetry tempts it toward prose, dooms it to fail, and struggles to mourn, and still keeps writing to itself every day, has already decided the question it thinks it is asking.

— Kristen M. Fabians

Index

Writers, names mentioned, and concepts. Every number links to its message. 367 in all.

WRITERS

Alexander, Charles 92, 107, 178, 180
Allegrezza, William 71, 345, 366
AND, mIEKAL 69, 131, 209, 248, 255, 299
Andrews, Jim 15, 50, 106, 212, 240, 277, 310, 316, 328, 335, 354
Bales, Marcus 317
Ball, Jonathan 61, 103, 272, 356
Ballardini, Anny 336, 355
Baratier, David 63
Beaulieu, Derek 3
Behm-Steinberg, Hugh 350
Bernstein, Charles 49, 286
Berry, Audrey 343
Blacksox 290
Bowering, George 129, 137, 152, 153, 189, 190, 198, 204, 218, 243, 244, 266, 281
Buuck, David 74
Cain, Séamas 287
Camplin, Troy 270, 292
Carbo, Nick 114, 163, 195
Carr, Emily 246
Casamassima, Christophe 132
Cha, Asian 146
Chapman, Chris 55
Cheek, Cris 305, 306
Chirot, David 36, 85, 99, 124, 127, 238, 269, 325, 352
Chirot, David-Baptiste 65, 66, 226, 227
Clark, Hilary 21, 186
Conrad, CA 110, 111, 268, 364
Cranesbill 253
Croggon, Alison 259
Cross, Michael T 23
Dalachinsky, Steve 6, 78, 79, 94, 108, 109, 145, 156, 173, 208, 220, 262, 263, 312, 329, 340, 342, 344
Daley, Ryan 197
Daly, Catherine 120, 154, 303
Damon, Maria 40, 54, 192, 239, 322, 338
Daniel 147
Davis, Jefferson 35
Deed, Martha 100
Dillon, Patrick 9, 230, 245
Dolin, Sharon 57
Dorf, Carol 68, 140, 223
DuCharme, Mark 155
Earl, Amanda 361
EJOYCE 309
Elshtain, Eric 4
Exley, Roy 219
Al Filreis 75, 359
Fox, Skip 98, 134, 181, 191
Frazer, Vernon 280
Frym, Gloria 96
Ganick, Peter 113
Gardiner, Jeffrey 183
Glass, Dan 81
Glass, Jesse 289
Godston, Daniel 58, 115, 194, 252, 267, 291
Gricevich, Andy 339
Henriksen, Matt 162
Hill, Laurie Schneider & Crag 323
Hinton, Laura 321
Hoffman, Crystal 296
Hoffman, Eric 332
Howard, Scott 10, 34
Hudson, Jade 128, 293
III, Nicholas Ruiz 26
Jeroen, Nieuwland 304, 324
Johnson, Halvard 17, 254
Jorgensen, Alexander 341
Joyce, Trevor 60
Karmin, Jennifer 2, 59, 102, 234, 279, 307
Kasimor, Mary 20, 82, 84, 122, 136, 150, 160, 182, 184, 250, 251, 278, 347
Katz, Adam 346
Kelleher, Michael 176, 273
Kennedy, Evan 28
King, Amy 19, 31, 87, 90, 97, 119, 121, 148, 188, 213, 229, 233, 249, 264, 313, 367
King, Cindy 261
Kirschenbaum, David 201, 282, 294
Kirschenbaum, David A. 93
Lepson, Ruth 38, 76, 193
Leslie, Wallis 144
Loden, Rachel 298
Lundwall, Andrew 44
Malo, Mary Jo 1, 56
Mandel, Charlotte 18, 130, 164, 165
Manson, Douglas 295, 320
Martin, Camille 86, 91, 170, 172, 271, 319
McAdams, E. J. 48, 207
McLennan, Rob 30, 41, 260
Michael 116
Morse, Jonathan 142, 265, 327, 330
Mukherjee, Aryanil 45, 46, 62, 123, 301
Munday, Evan 211
Nasdor, Marc 11
Nelson, Paul 51, 159, 315
Nemet-Nejat, Murat 39, 52, 77, 118, 161, 166, 302, 318, 358
Novack, Carol 126

O'Driscoll, Michael 177
Oha, Obododimma 25
Palm, Lars 221
Parrish, Adam 351
Penton, Jonathan 37, 104, 203
Peter 135
Pinto, Regina 179, 308
Piombino, Nicholas 70, 138, 149, 241
PJ 224
Prejsnar, Mark 42
Press, Tarpaulin Sky 22
Pritts, Nate 300
Revich, Allan 83, 133, 348, 349
Rizzo, Christopher 53, 67, 214
Roberson, Michael 205
Robinson, James 331
Russell, Lauren 13, 33, 43, 73, 89, 112, 143
Russell, Steve 27, 47, 88, 139, 151, 169, 185, 202, 228, 232, 237, 256, 257, 275, 276, 283, 284, 334
Samuels, Lisa 314
Sarai, Sarah 157, 171, 217
Savage, Thomas 225
Schickling, Jared 29
Schlesinger, Kyle 95, 285, 362
Schlueter, Luke 236
Schultz, Susan Webster 141
Seaman, David 14, 105
Shankar, Ravi (English) 80
Side, Jeffrey 365
Siegel, Gabriel 101
Siegell, Paul 215, 357
Skinner, Jonathan 12
Slaughter, William 311
Sondheim, Alan 16, 242, 353
Stempleman, Jordan 231
Switaj, Elizabeth 210
St. Thomasino 5
Tobin, Adam 196
Traffic, Small Press 326
Tranter, John 297
Truitt, Sam 235, 247, 274, 288
Twshaner 72
UbuWeb 8
Vassilakis, Nico 337
Vincent, Stephen 125, 258, 333, 363
Weishaus, Joel 222, 360
Weiss, Mark 64, 168
Welford, Gabrielle 199, 200, 216
Whitener, Brian 187
Wilcox, Dan 32, 158
Williams, Tyrone 117, 167
Wintz, Sara 174
Zamsky, Robert 7
}, { Brad Brace 24, 175, 206

NAMES MENTIONED

Acker, Kathy 305
Adams, John 58, 102, 213, 229
Adorno, Theodor 55, 338
Alice, Mary 13, 27, 34, 36, 40, 42, 47, 51, 54, 73, 127, 161, 194, 252, 281, 303, 325, 334, 344
Allan, Don 133, 348, 349
Allan, Edgar 36, 42, 47
Allegrezza, Bill 336, 345, 347
Alpert, Barry 336, 355
Amato, Joe 155, 187, 297
Americans, Asian 65, 127, 161
Anderson, Beth 155, 187
Andrews, Bruce 187
Angelo, Michael 18
Anton, Robert 95
Armand, Louis 180, 297
Armantrout, Rae 170, 271
Ashbery, John 121, 122, 123, 127, 129, 130, 132, 136, 138, 139, 151, 153, 156, 159, 160, 161, 164, 167, 187, 193, 198, 199, 200, 297, 330
Atlanta, Mark P. 42
Atwood, Margaret 129, 136, 139, 151, 153, 156, 159, 160, 164, 167, 187, 193, 198, 199, 200
Auden, W. H. 284
Augustine, Jane 2, 60, 64
Auster, Paul 151, 153, 156, 159, 160, 164, 167, 187, 193, 198
Austin, Geer 285, 294
Baik, Cristiana 294
Baldwin, Joshua 242
Banias, Ari 87
Baraka, Amiri 359
Barnard, Mary 3
Barton, John 252
Barwin, Gary 3
Bataille, George 187
Bates, Joe 201
Baus, Eric 297
Beckett, Tom 221, 231, 242, 248, 253
Behrle, Jim 93
Belz, Aaron 355
Benedetti, David 253
Benjamin, Walter 19, 55, 67, 270, 275, 282, 292, 338
Bennett, Bill 37
Berger, Jonathan 201
Bergvall, Caroline 177, 186, 297, 305
Berkeley, Michael 68, 74
Berkson, Bill 285
Bernstein, Emma 1, 6, 10, 11, 13, 20, 21, 27, 36, 42, 47, 49, 186
Berrigan, Anselm 294, 326

Berrigan, Ted 326
Berry, Jake 87
Bettridge, Joel 178, 180, 183, 297
Birmingham, Jed 114
Blake, William 95
Blau, Rachel 177, 186, 297, 338
Boat, Drunken 3, 57, 80
Boehl, Dan 213, 229
Bonney, Sean 60, 64
Bowen, David 121, 122, 123, 127, 129, 130, 132, 136, 139, 151, 153, 156, 159, 160, 161, 164, 167, 187, 193, 198, 199, 200
Bowering, George H. 190, 204, 208, 232, 244, 245, 257, 266, 276
Boykin, David 291
Boykoff, Jules 297
Bradley, Tom 37
Brady, Taylor 297
Bramhall, Allen 336, 355
Brazil, David 308
Brecht, Bertolt 284
Bromige, David 248, 253
Brook, James 177, 186
Brooks, Gwendolyn 234, 279
Brown, Ann 307
Brown, Pam 213, 229, 297, 336, 355
Browne, Colin 34, 40, 51, 54, 201
Browning, Robert 3, 57
Bruno, Franklin 308
Buckley, Jeff 211
Burns, Elizabeth 314
Burns, Robert 32
Burroughs, William S. 254, 274, 288
Bush, George W. 297
Byrne, Edward 336, 355
Byrne, Mairead 60, 64
Byron, Philip 5
Cabri, Louis 177, 186
Caesar, Little 306
Cafe, Poets 201
Cage, John 254, 274, 288, 349
Campbell, Bruce 338
Campbell, Jeremy 157, 165, 187
Campbell, Sarah 282
Carlos, William 178, 183
Carlstrom, Todd 93
Carrion, Terri 116, 280
Carroll, John 242
Carson, Anne 186
Carson, Margaret 177, 287
Carver, Raymond 139, 151, 153, 156, 159, 160, 164, 167, 187, 193, 198
Catanzano, Amy 155, 187
Celan, Paul 352
Cervantes, James 336, 355
Chace, Joel 297
Cheney, Dick 191
Cheney, Don 125
Chomsky, Noam 37, 242
Ciccariello, Peter 135, 166, 172, 336, 355
Claire, Barbara 19, 297, 336, 355
Clark, Emilie 114
Clark, Tom 297
Clifford, Pat 25
Clinton, Bill 94, 201
Coalition, Chicago 58, 194, 252, 291
Cobbing, Bob 66
Cohen, Ethan 129, 136, 139, 151, 153, 156, 159, 160, 164, 167, 187, 193, 198, 199, 200
Coletti, John 93
Collis, Stephen 282
Collom, Jack 155, 187, 227
Comments, Poets 360
Compton, Shanna 294
Conley, Tim 30
Connolly, Kevin 272
Connor, Bruce 363
Conrad, Tony 110, 111, 120, 268, 364
Cooper, Dennis 3, 57
Copp, Corina 294
Corelis, Jon 336, 355
Corrie, Rachel 290
Cotner, Jon 177, 186
Coultas, Brenda 294
County, Madison 287
County, Mike 294
Crane, Lee 51, 54, 60, 64, 286, 339
Creeley, Robert 67, 134, 148, 270, 275, 292
Crooker, Barbara 336, 355
Crowe, Russell 35
Cunningham, John 322, 329, 349
Cunningham, Mark 37
Curtis, Dana 290
Darragh, Tina 48
Davies, Kevin 209
Davis, Jeff 35
Dawson, Nancy 19, 363
Demske, Nick 366
Dennis, Carl 336, 355
Dentz, Shira 201
Derrida, Jacques 297
Desmond, Rae 297
Devineni, Ram 3, 57
Dick, Jennifer 12
Dickinson, Mark 142, 149, 150, 152, 168, 169, 182, 184, 187, 189, 196, 197, 202, 204, 216, 232, 244, 245, 257, 266, 276
Dickow, Alexander 213, 229, 336, 355
Dillon, Richard 336, 355
Donahue, Joseph 297
Donovan, Thom 297
Dowling, Sarah 75
Downing, Brandon 297
Duemer, Joseph 355

Duncan, Robert 201, 295, 296, 297
Dunn, Jim 294
Durand, Marcella 48, 207
Duwell, Martin 297
Dykstra, Kristin 297
Dylan, Michael 36, 42, 47
Edgar, Chris 51, 54, 297
Elena, Maria 22, 297, 336, 355
Eli, Noah 297
Eliot, Joe 19, 325, 334, 344
Eliot, T. S. 170, 271
Ellis, Stephen 342
Emerson, Claudia 3, 66, 127, 161, 238
England, Amy 114
Eugene, Brett 72
Evans, Bill 19
Fainlight, Ruth 336, 355
Falk, Pat 336, 355
Farrell, Michael 297
Farris, John 94
Faulkner, William 36, 169, 182, 184, 189, 196, 197, 202, 204, 216, 232, 244, 245, 257, 266, 276
Fay, Alice 3
Felix, Joel 127, 161
Ferlinghetti, Lawrence 93
Fieled, Adam 213, 229, 297, 313, 367
Finch, Annie 23, 90, 213, 229, 282, 313, 367
Finlay, Ian Hamilton 350
Finnegan, James 336, 355
Fischer, Norman 18
Fisher, Allen 305
Fisher, Ann 317
Fitch, Andy 177
Fitzgerald, Scott 5, 241, 247, 254, 274, 288
Fleisher, Kass 155, 187
Fodaski, Elizabeth 297
Foley, Patrick 213, 229
Foster, Paul 19, 294, 307
Foster, Stephen 297
Foucault, Michel 339
Fraley, Jason 366
France, Peter 7, 9, 14, 36, 42, 47
Frances, Mary 60, 64
Fraser, Ian 366
Fraser, Simon 282
Freeman, Micah 201, 297
Friedlander, Benjamin 286
Friedman, Dorothy 94
Friesen, Patrick 213, 229
Fuchs, Greg 294
Fuhrman, Joanna 201
Fulton, Alice 102
Gander, Forrest 30
Gardner, Janet 357
Gatza, Geoffrey 336, 355
Gek, Kim 22
Gelsinger, Eric 294
Gery, John 336, 355
Gibbons, Reginald 151, 153, 156, 159, 160, 164, 167, 187, 193, 198
Gibson, Morgan 25
Gilbert, Sandra 10, 13, 20, 27, 36, 42
Gilbert, Susan 47, 137, 151, 153, 156, 159, 160, 164, 167, 187, 193, 198, 294
Giles, Samantha 326
Ginsberg, Allen 3, 27, 36, 42, 47, 93, 95
Goar, Jim 60, 64, 297
Van Gogh 325, 334, 344
Golata, Russ 290
Goldberg, Michael 363
Goldstein, Laura 102
Gordon, Nada 44, 313, 367
Gordon, Robert 22, 36, 42, 47, 242, 297
Gottlieb, Michael 336, 355
Gould, Henry 336, 355
Graham, David 336, 355
Graham, Lea 336
Green, Heather 213, 229
Greenstreet, Kate 59
Gregory, Dick 114
Grenier, Bob 36
Grenier, Robert 42, 47
Group, Poets 42
Grumman, Bob 336, 355
Hall, Donald 3
Hall, Kate 201
Hall, Phil 297
Halpern, Rob 23, 297
Halsey, Alan 213, 229, 336, 355
Hamilton, Robin 17
Hardy, Edmund 142, 149, 150, 152, 168, 169, 182, 184, 187, 189, 196, 197, 202, 204, 216, 232, 244, 245, 257, 266, 276
Harris, Kaplan 326
Harryman, Carla 305
Hartsaw, Paul 291
Harway, Judith 226
Hav, Niels 213, 229
Hayden, Tom 313, 367
Heaney, Seamus 297
Heath, Jennifer 201
Heidegger, Martin 297
Hejinian, Lyn 227
Heller, Mike 297
Henderson, David 5, 338
Hennessey, Michael 177, 186
Henning, Barbara 297
Henri, Charles 308
Herbert, George 53, 61, 62, 66, 67, 270, 275, 292
Herman, Rachel 359
Hewlett, Flora 116, 280
Hibbard, Tom 297, 366

Higgins, Billy 352
Hight, Jeremy 252
Hightower, Scott 213, 229, 313
Hlibchuk, Geoffrey 177, 186
Hoag, Deb 203
Hoagland, Tony 72
Hoffman, Cara 87, 294, 296
Hollander, John 297
Hollo, Anselm 170, 271
Holman, Bob 336, 355
Holsapple, Bruce 177
Horton, David 32
House, Poets 313, 367
Howe, Susan 282
Hoy, Dan 213, 229
Huang, Yunte 338
Hughes, Andrew 294
Hummel, Thomas 162
Hunter, Carrie 31, 71
Hunter, Robert 71, 87, 203
Ijima, Brenda 294
Ireland, Lauren 60, 64, 287
Irvine, James 3, 116, 280
Israel, David 269
Israeli, Henry 269
Jackson, Jesse 201, 235, 241, 246, 247, 254, 259, 262, 274, 288
Jackson, Michael 201
Jacob, Max 297
Jaffe, Larry 336, 355
Jameson, Fred 59
Janssen, Lisa 59
Javier, Paolo 157, 165, 187, 201, 294
Jenks, Philip 102
Johnson, Henry 32
Johnson, Kent 297
Jones, Brian 201, 281, 297, 305, 306, 359
Jones, Jill 336, 355
Jones, Peter 2
Joris, Pierre 355
Joseph, Safdie 336
Kalamaras, George 297
Kaplan, Leslie 303, 325, 334, 344
Karavatos, Nicholas 17
Kathryn, Mary 32
Kaufmann, David 297
Kazay, Jamie 252, 291
Keats, John 142, 149, 150, 152, 168, 169, 182, 184, 187, 189, 196, 197, 202, 204, 216, 232, 244, 245, 257, 266, 276, 297, 299, 301, 302, 303, 325, 334, 344
Keene, John 313, 367
Keller, Helen 37
Kelley, Mike 338
Kelly, Patrick 48, 326
Kendig, Diane 336, 355
Kerouac, Jack 313, 367
Kerr, Bob 93
Khlebnikov, Velimir 247, 254, 274, 288
Killian, Kevin 260, 297
King, Deb 308
Kinsella, John 297
Kirschenbaum, David A. 93, 201, 282, 294
Kirschenbaum, Matthew G. 242
Klee, Paul 291
Klein, Lucas 294
Knox, Jennifer 294
Kroetsch, Robert 129, 136, 139, 151, 153, 156, 159, 160, 164, 167, 187, 193, 198, 199, 200
Kunin, Aaron 297
Kunz, Drew 66
Lamoureux, Mark 5, 201
Lane, Eric 38
Lang, Eugene 3
Larkin, Maryrose 3
Lavender, Bill 286
Lazer, Hank 286
Leftwich, Jim 336, 355
Leidner, Mark 44
Leonard, Tom 37
Lerner, Ben 297
Lerner, Linda 18
Levin, Jonathan 3, 57
Levine, Jeffrey 36, 42, 47
Levitsky, Rachel 294
Lewis, Bernard 242, 297
Lewis, Jeffrey 93
Lichty, Patrick 194, 252
Lightman, Ira 297
Lilly, Ruth 290
Lim, Eugene 294
Livesay, Dorothy 282
Livingston, Reb 338
Lockward, Diane 355
Logan, William 114
London, Frank 36, 114, 299, 301, 302, 305
Loney, Alan 297, 359
Lorber, Brendan 294
Lorca, Federico García 36, 42, 47
Lorde, Audre 338
Louise, Bobbie 114
Lowell, Amy 3
Luoma, Bill 326
Lurie, Bobbi 336, 355
Luther, Martin 42
Macdonald, Travis 5
Madison, James 279
Madrid, Anthony 45, 46, 313, 367
Magi, Jill 297
Mallarmé, Stéphane 43
Mancus, Tony 213, 229
Manley, Gerard 36, 42, 47
Manning, Nicholas 213, 229

Marie, Anne 297
Marie, Jeanne 213, 229
Marks, Justin 294
Marshall, Robert 307
Martinez, Michael 209
Matson, Clive 297
Matthews, Harry 35
Mayer, Bernadette 326
Mayo, Tim 336, 355
Mead, Philip 297
Meadows, Deborah 366
Meltzer, David 116, 280
Menefee, Sarah 336, 355
Meredith, William 177, 186
Merrill, James 227
Mesmer, Sharon 110
Metres, Philip 297
Meyer, Steven 290, 326
Meyer, Thomas 35
Miller, Ben 282
Miller, Cynthia 180
Miller, Paul D. 282
Mills, Billy 60, 64
Miriam, Erica 17, 95, 213, 229
Mitchell, Joan 321
Monk, Geraldine 69, 76, 77, 79, 82, 83, 84, 88, 96, 99, 100, 101, 105, 109, 118, 133, 177, 186, 336, 355
Mooney, Stephen 297
Moore, John 366
Moore, Marianne 51, 54
Morgan, Bill 336, 355
Morgan, Robin 249, 251, 256, 283, 295, 296
Morice, Dave 252
Morris, Daniel 95
Morris, Dee 362
Morrison, Bill 36
Moxley, Jennifer 297
Muckle, John 297
Mueller, Robert 297
Mullen, Harryette 297
Murfin, Ira S. 2, 31
Murphy, Paul 213, 229, 336
Murphy, Ryan 294
Murphy, Sheila E. 336, 355
Mycue, Edward 336, 355
Myers, Michael 59, 213, 229
Myles, Eileen 294
Nelson, Paul E. 51, 54, 159, 315
Nelson, Rodney 17
Newman, Amy 44
Newman, Charlie 252, 291
Newton, Keith 213, 229, 271
Nickels, Mark 18
Nolan, John 235, 241, 246, 247, 254, 259, 262, 274, 288
Norman, Peter 294
Notley, Alice 20, 33, 39
Nowak, Mark 187
O'Hara, Frank 297
O'Sullivan, Maggie 60, 64
Oliver, John 60, 64, 176
Olivia, Carrie 102
Olson, Charles 53, 61, 62, 66, 67, 270
Olson, John 297
Olson, Kirby 53, 61, 62, 66, 67, 270, 275, 292
Ondaatje, Michael 129, 136, 139, 151, 153, 156, 159, 160, 164, 167, 187, 193, 198, 199, 200
Oppen, George 238, 297
Orange, Tom 177, 186
Ostashevsky, Eugene 297
Ostriker, Alicia 355
Pacosz, Christina 336, 355
Padgett, Ron 297
Paige, Abby 5
Parker, Frank 336, 355
Parker, Michael 273, 336, 355
Parkway, Neal 155, 187
Parrish, Gary 294
Parrish, Katherine 351, 354
Pecore, Donna 355
Pecqueur, Paul 294
Peet, Christian 22
Perelman, Bob 177, 186
Perez, Jamie 209, 297
Peterson, Tim 38, 201, 294
Peverett, Michael 336, 355
Phillip, Andrew 305
Phosphorus, White 20, 33, 39
Piccinnini, Douglas 201, 297
Plath, Sylvia 27, 36, 42, 47
Poe, Allan 36, 42, 47
Ponge, Francis 48
Posamentier, Evelyn 336, 355
Potter, Steve 114
Pound, Ezra 67, 270, 275, 292
Pound, Scott 177, 186
Powell, Ren 298, 336, 355
Preminger, Noah 38
Prevallet, Kristin 21, 307
Price, Ron 18
Prince, Richard 201, 279, 319
Pritchett, Patrick 180
Prunty, Randy 42
Prynne, J. H. 297
Pusateri, Chris 297
Quartermain, Peter 177, 186
Rancière, Jacques 338
Randall, Karen 32
Rasula, Jed 286
Raven, Francis 19, 114
Raworth, Tom 60, 64
Reed, Brian 177, 186, 286

Reese, Marshall 291
Retallack, Joan 297
Rexroth, Kenneth 177, 186
Reyes, Louis 195
Ricard, Gabriel 37
Rich, Susan 336, 355
Richards, Brian 3, 57, 336, 355
Ridge, Cedar 35
Riding, Laura 235, 238, 241, 246, 247, 254, 259, 262, 274, 288
Riggs, Don 290
Riggs, Sarah 297
Rilke, Rainer Maria 142, 149, 150, 152, 168, 169, 182, 184, 187, 189, 196, 197, 202, 204, 216, 232, 244, 245, 257, 266, 276
Rimbaud, Dee 238
Rippeon, Andrew 282
Robbins, Bruce 126
Roberts, Gary 60, 64
Robertson, Lisa 30
Robinson, Jeffrey C. 297
Rockwell, Norman 59
Rodefer, Stephen 60, 64
Rothenberg, Jerome 60, 64, 297, 336, 355
Rothenberg, Michael 116, 280
Rothschild, Douglas 93
Roubaud, Jacques 12
Sanchez, Jorge 74
Sanders, Edward 95
Sanders, Jay 95
Santos, Craig 297
Savage, Tom 225, 336, 355
Sawyer, Larry 102, 291
Schultz, Lou 141, 169, 182, 184, 189, 196, 197, 202, 204, 216, 232, 244, 245, 257, 266, 276
Schultz, Susan M. 286
Schwabsky, Barry 213, 229
Schwartz, Gerald 297
Schwartz, Peter 18
Schwitters, Kurt 65, 66
Scroggins, Mark 286
Seaman, David W. 14, 105, 133
Sebastian, Nic 35
Seiferle, Rebecca 355
Selby, Spencer 336, 355
Selland, Eric 297
Semerdjian, Alan 201
Shakespeare, William 36, 42, 47, 201, 339
Shapiro, David 194, 252, 297
Sheppard, Robert 305
Shimoda, Brandon 297
Shmailo, Larissa 336, 355
Shoemaker, Steve 297
Silliman, Ron 51, 54
Simic, Charles 284
Simon, Greg 309, 315, 317
Simon, John 3
Simone, Frank 102
Sims, Laura 155, 187
Slease, Marcus 60, 64
Sloan, Margaret 290
Sloman, Joel 38
Smith, Alexis 137
Smith, Bruce 19
Smith, Dale 297
Smith, Harry 44, 60, 64, 213, 229, 290
Smith, Michael 60, 64
Smither, Elizabeth 336, 355
Smithson, Robert 36, 66, 352
Snyder, Donna 203
Sondheim, Joanna 294
Sorrentino, Christopher 137, 151, 153, 156, 159, 160, 164, 167, 187, 193, 198
Sox, White 326
Spacks, Barry 336, 355
Spahr, Juliana 338
Spicer, John 339
Sprague, Jane 178, 180, 183
Squires, Geoffrey 60, 64
Stackhouse, Christopher 313, 367
Stanley, George 137, 297
Stanton, Rob 94, 201, 203, 297
Stebelton, Chuck 227
Stein, Gertrude 177, 186, 235, 241, 246, 247, 254, 259, 262, 274, 288, 297, 366
Stevens, Wallace 114, 141
Strand, Mark 151, 153, 156, 159, 160, 164, 167, 187, 193, 198
Strauss, Adam 366
Strickland, Stephanie 63, 102, 297
Sullivan, Andrew 5, 305, 359
Sullivan, Gary 313, 367
Sutherland, Keston 60, 64
Swift, Todd 297
Tabios, Eileen 336, 355
Taggart, John 5
Taylor, Tom 37, 336, 355
Taylor, Wendy 336, 355
Texas, Irving 203, 285, 313, 367
Thomas, Dylan 3, 34, 35, 40, 51, 54, 60, 64, 139, 142, 149, 150, 151, 152, 153, 156, 159, 160, 164, 167, 168, 169, 182, 184, 187, 189, 193, 196, 197, 198, 202, 204, 213, 216, 225, 229, 232, 244, 245, 257, 266, 276
Thompson, George 5, 154, 170, 187, 203, 271
Tills, Steve 297
Timerman, Eugene 297
Topel, Andrew 366
Toscano, Rodrigo 75, 126
Touchon, Cecil 336, 355
Tribbey, Hugh 366
Trigilio, Tony 336, 355

Trinidad, David 298
Tsur, Reuven 177, 186
Tubman, Harriet 279
Tucker, Aaron 126
Tuma, Keith 60, 64
Turner, Victor 271, 308
Tyler, Richard 203
Valery, Paul 238
Vangelisti, Paul 336, 355
Vardaman, Wendy 355
Vekemans, Dirk 355
Vengua, Jean 336, 355
Veronica, Angela 290, 294
Vitiello, Chris 213, 229
Waber, Dan 336, 355
Waldman, Anne 326
Waldman, Ken 326
Waldrop, Keith 297
Waldrop, Rosmarie 297
Walker, Laura 336, 355
Walker, Ryan 294
Wallace, George 32
Wallenstein, Barry 18, 297
Walsh, Catherine 60, 64
Warren, Kenneth 74
Warsh, Lewis 294
Washington, George 32, 169, 182, 184, 189, 196, 197, 202, 204, 216, 232, 244, 245, 257, 266, 276, 289, 313, 367
Watten, Barrett 338
Weiser, Karen 294
Weiss, Jason 271, 336
Wertheim, Christine 60, 64
Wharton, Samuel 303, 325, 334, 344
White, Jared 72
Whitman, Walt 36, 42, 47, 62, 67, 176, 201, 270, 273, 275, 292, 325, 334, 344, 351
Wieners, John 364
Williams, Hank 313, 367
Williams, Paul O. 126, 274, 288, 366
Williams, William Carlos 177, 186
Willis, Elizabeth 313, 367
Wilson, Edmund 241, 247, 254, 274, 288
Wilson, Karen 114, 227
Wolach, David 213, 229, 313, 367
Woolf, Virginia 25
Wordsworth, William 338
Wright, C. D. 18
Yankelevich, Matvei 294
Yates, Katie 294
Young, Karl 336, 355
Young, Mark 336, 355, 366
Zawacki, Andrew 297
Zimmer, Kathy 201
Zimmerman, Daniel 147, 336, 355
Zinnes, Harriet 297
Zolf, Rachel 49, 297
Zukofsky, Louis 286
Žižek, Slavoj 61, 66, 67, 270, 275, 292

CONCEPTS

9/11 81, 85, 256
Activism and protest 209, 305
Aesthetics 19, 62, 74, 126, 310, 320, 351
African American poetry 143
Anthologies 2, 3, 10, 13, 20, 27, 36, 42, 47, 87, 114, 126, 201, 203, 227, 234, 238, 279, 305, 307, 313, 315, 331, 345, 347, 348, 355, 367
Appropriation 42, 230, 239, 308, 331, 348
Archives and libraries 13, 20, 27, 34, 36, 40, 42, 47, 51, 54, 63, 102, 114, 155, 158, 187, 203, 227, 242, 279, 297, 313, 320, 325, 334, 344, 367
Asemic writing 349
Autobiography 3, 24, 85, 155, 187, 206, 298
Avant-garde 126, 297, 339
Beauty 50, 52, 53, 55, 61, 62, 65, 66, 67, 201, 270, 275, 292, 305
Biography 24, 95, 206
Black Mountain 80
Blogs 1, 3, 6, 10, 11, 12, 17, 25, 30, 41, 42, 43, 44, 48, 51, 54, 56, 61, 66, 67, 72, 73, 74, 80, 85, 86, 97, 103, 110, 114, 116, 125, 126, 131, 135, 141, 143, 149, 159, 162, 166, 172, 187, 188, 205, 207, 211, 214, 215, 217, 219, 221, 225, 231, 233, 238, 242, 246, 254, 258, 259, 260, 262, 268, 269, 270, 271, 274, 275, 279, 280, 282, 285, 288, 292, 297, 306, 313, 315, 319, 320, 326, 327, 330, 333, 336, 337, 355, 356, 363, 364, 367
Book announcements 22, 92, 102, 107, 113, 114, 162, 178, 180, 183, 201, 282, 297, 298, 305, 313, 344, 367
Bookstores 28, 268, 279
Calls for submissions 29, 128
Capitalism 326
Cities 2, 31, 65, 114, 126, 201, 279, 290, 300, 305, 306, 307, 308
Class 194, 252
Collage and montage 106, 127, 161, 277, 326
Conceptual writing 8
Conferences and festivals 2, 3, 25, 35, 48, 60, 64, 69, 76, 77, 79, 82, 83, 84, 88, 94, 96, 99, 100, 101, 105, 109, 114, 118, 124, 126, 133, 203, 242, 269, 282, 291, 294, 307, 308, 313, 339, 361, 367
Confessional poetry 27, 36, 42, 47
Copyright and permissions 240
Craft 56, 70, 73, 81, 85
Creative writing pedagogy 307
Deconstruction 1, 6, 10, 11, 56, 73
Digital archives 8, 49

Dreams 114, 215, 242, 271, 279, 325, 334, 344
Ecology and ecopoetics 48, 95, 106, 126, 227
Editing 296, 310, 336, 355
Ekphrasis 85
Electronic poetry and hypertext 49, 114, 276, 282, 308
Elegy 1, 6, 10, 11, 13, 20, 21, 27, 34, 36, 40, 42, 47, 51, 54, 297
Empire and imperialism 44, 63
Epic 2, 33, 39, 102, 169, 178, 182, 183, 184, 189, 196, 197, 202, 204, 216, 232, 235, 241, 244, 245, 246, 247, 254, 257, 259, 262, 266, 274, 276, 279, 288, 290, 307
Experimental poetry 113, 289, 305, 339
Fascism 109
Feminism 268
Film 3, 16, 37, 45, 46, 65, 123, 124, 126, 127, 155, 161, 177, 187, 201, 227, 271, 325, 334, 344, 352, 358
Flarf 8, 36, 42, 47, 313, 367
Fluxus 24, 206, 348, 349
Free speech 269
Futurism 2, 65
Gender 25, 126
Grants and funding 3, 17, 63, 95, 116, 175, 226, 269, 280, 298, 299, 301, 302
Haiku 3, 94, 348
Humour and satire 70, 81, 85, 89, 114, 201, 297, 333, 339
Identity politics 116, 280
Ideology 34, 40, 51, 54
Improvisation 102, 215, 291, 305
Indigenous and Native poetics 99, 101, 109
Interviews 19, 30, 37, 72, 114, 116, 154, 187, 211, 269, 280, 297
Israel and Palestine 65, 66, 87, 269
Language poetry 348
Letters and correspondence 274, 288
List moderation 294
Little magazines 3, 8, 25, 29, 41, 57, 80, 95, 102, 114, 116, 146, 147, 155, 176, 177, 186, 187, 195, 203, 215, 241, 242, 247, 254, 273, 274, 279, 280, 288, 296, 297, 311, 313, 367
Lyric poetry 22, 36, 42, 47, 73, 81, 85, 132, 297
Materiality of the text 50, 52, 53, 55, 61, 62, 65, 66, 67, 270, 275, 292
Memory 16, 22, 36, 42, 47, 93, 114, 126, 187, 201, 209, 226, 242, 307, 327
MFA programs 3, 59, 72, 87, 114, 139, 151, 153, 156, 159, 160, 164, 167, 187, 193, 198, 203, 251, 283, 295, 296, 313, 367
Modernism 13, 20, 27, 34, 36, 40, 42, 47, 51, 54, 346, 356, 365
Mourning and loss 1, 6, 10, 11, 13, 20, 21, 25, 27, 33, 34, 36, 39, 40, 42, 43, 47, 51, 54, 56, 66, 70, 73, 81, 85, 89, 114, 126, 187, 201, 307
Multiculturalism 3
Music and poetry 19, 24, 38, 59, 60, 64, 75, 85, 93, 102, 114, 126, 130, 131, 155, 187, 201, 206, 215, 227, 230, 239, 240, 242, 279, 282, 294, 305, 313, 332, 336, 339, 340, 355, 367
Nature 36, 42, 47, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 61, 62, 65, 66, 67, 127, 161, 178, 183, 234, 242, 270, 275, 292, 296, 297, 335, 352
Negativity and refusal 36, 42, 47, 51, 54, 187
Obituary and memorial 157, 165, 187, 340
Oulipo 48, 213, 229, 297
Performance and the poetry reading 2, 28, 45, 46, 60, 64, 87, 97, 102, 124, 126, 155, 158, 176, 187, 188, 203, 273, 331, 348
Phenomenology 67, 242, 270, 275, 292, 310
Philosophy 34, 36, 40, 42, 47, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 61, 62, 65, 66, 67, 114, 180, 270, 275, 277, 292, 297, 310, 313, 367
Place and region 22, 36, 42, 47, 93, 124, 300, 307
Poet laureate 114
Poetics 1, 6, 9, 10, 11, 13, 20, 21, 27, 29, 33, 34, 36, 39, 40, 42, 43, 47, 51, 54, 56, 70, 73, 81, 83, 85, 89, 92, 100, 106, 107, 127, 133, 161, 172, 179, 181, 185, 187, 190, 191, 192, 196, 205, 208, 210, 211, 214, 219, 223, 225, 235, 236, 237, 238, 241, 246, 247, 250, 254, 259, 262, 274, 282, 286, 288, 294, 297, 308, 311, 313, 317, 320, 328, 348, 349, 350, 352, 358, 367
Post-avant 1, 6, 10, 11, 13, 20, 21, 27, 36, 42, 47, 56, 70, 73, 81, 85, 89
Print vs. digital 2, 21, 24, 65, 81, 85, 93, 102, 175, 178, 180, 183, 206, 211, 268, 287, 297, 306, 336, 338, 355, 357, 364
Prizes and awards 3, 19, 72, 95, 114, 203, 227, 240, 273, 279, 282, 290, 298, 313, 314, 341, 367
Prose poem 22
Psychoanalysis 34, 40, 51, 54
Queer poetics 104, 112, 114, 117, 119, 125, 143, 144, 145, 187, 268, 313, 338, 367
Reading announcements 23, 48, 74, 147, 297, 332
Religion and the sacred 19, 22, 34, 36, 40, 42, 47, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 61, 62, 65, 66, 67, 87, 180, 190, 205, 208, 211, 214, 217, 219, 225, 238, 242, 246, 259, 262, 270, 275, 277, 292, 325, 334, 344
Representation 305
Reviewing and criticism 3, 17, 19, 41, 56, 59, 70, 72, 73, 81, 85, 87, 126, 151, 153, 155, 156, 159, 160, 164, 167, 187, 193, 195, 198, 201, 203, 238, 282, 287, 297, 306, 311, 313, 328, 349, 350, 358, 367

Revision 131
School of Quietude 40, 51, 54
Science 60, 64, 67, 242, 270, 275, 292
Serial poem 52, 65, 178, 183, 211, 282
Small press publishing 3, 22, 23, 28, 30, 33, 39, 41, 48, 56, 70, 72, 73, 74, 81, 85, 87, 93, 114, 155, 187, 227, 260, 279, 282, 294, 313, 314, 326, 367
Social media 11, 21, 65, 92, 93, 107, 114, 126, 135, 166, 172, 217, 267, 291, 300, 313, 320, 345, 347, 351, 367
Software and code 4, 15, 25, 176, 224, 234, 242, 273, 277, 308, 310, 351
Sonnet 44, 170, 271, 297, 348
Sound poetry 65, 308
Structuralism 352
Subjectivity 29, 50, 52, 53, 55, 61, 62, 65, 66, 67, 155, 187, 201, 203, 224, 270, 275, 277, 292
Surrealism 66, 297
Terrorism 65, 255, 269
The academy 2, 3, 22, 25, 72, 87, 114, 155, 177, 186, 187, 203, 211, 227, 234, 238, 265, 278, 279, 282, 286, 289, 297, 298, 311, 313, 320, 367
The body 50, 52, 53, 55, 61, 62, 65, 66, 67, 126, 224, 270, 275, 292, 326, 343
The canon 238
The Holocaust 297
The internet 15, 25, 56, 63, 65, 70, 73, 81, 85, 240, 242, 261, 308, 309, 315, 317
The listserv 25, 63, 92, 107, 131, 176, 177, 186, 188, 233, 273
Theatre 2, 24, 59, 94, 114, 124, 127, 139, 142, 149, 150, 151, 152, 153, 156, 159, 160, 161, 164, 167, 168, 169, 182, 184, 187, 189, 193, 196, 197, 198, 201, 202, 203, 204, 206, 216, 232, 244, 245, 257, 266, 269, 276, 279, 290, 306, 322, 325, 329, 334, 339, 344
Torture and Abu Ghraib 16, 69, 76, 77, 79, 82, 83, 84, 88, 96, 99, 100, 101, 105, 109, 118, 131, 133, 187, 269, 284
Translation 34, 40, 48, 51, 54, 62, 66, 67, 80, 85, 151, 153, 156, 159, 160, 164, 167, 187, 193, 198, 269, 270, 275, 292, 297, 307, 313, 367
Visual and concrete poetry 15, 50, 52, 53, 55, 61, 62, 65, 66, 67, 106, 212, 228, 236, 240, 269, 270, 275, 277, 292, 308, 310, 312, 316, 318, 320, 321, 324, 328, 331, 333, 335, 343, 348, 349, 350, 352, 358
Visual art 2, 3, 16, 52, 53, 55, 57, 58, 59, 61, 62, 65, 66, 67, 80, 87, 95, 102, 124, 126, 176, 180, 194, 201, 203, 242, 252, 270, 275, 279, 292, 304, 307, 312, 313, 316, 318, 320, 321, 323, 324, 328, 331, 333, 335, 343, 348, 349, 350, 352, 358, 367
Women's writing 22, 87

Contents

Every entry links to its message. 367 in all.

30 JUN 2009

1. Mary Jo Malo — mourning & poetics
2. Jennifer Karmin — July 5: Buckminster Fuller Performance in Chicago
3. derek beaulieu — Drunken Boat Launch - reading and event July 10
4. Eric Elshtain — Download the Gnoetry software

1 JUL 2009

5. St. Thomasino — a noun sing e·ratio 12 · 2009 a noun sing e·ratio 12 · 2009
6. steve dalachinsky — Re: mourning & poetics
7. Zamsky, Robert — Contemporary French Writing
8. UbuWeb — Flarf & Conceptual Writing in July/Aug Poetry Magazine
9. Patrick Dillon — Re: Contemporary French Writing
10. Scott Howard — mourning & poetics

2 JUL 2009

11. Marc Nasdor — Re: mourning & poetics
12. Jonathan Skinner — Contemporary French Writing
13. Lauren Russell — Re: mourning & poetics
14. David Seaman — Re: Contemporary French Writing
15. Jim Andrews — cross multiplication
16. Alan Sondheim — Alan Sondheim: The Drawing Un/Center/Ed (hi - please post, thanks!)
17. Halvard Johnson — Hamilton Stone Review, Issue 18, Summer 2009, Now Online!
18. Charlotte Mandel — BigCityLit Reading July 8
19. amy king — Fogged Clarity [on behalf of Ben Evans]
20. Mary Kasimor — Re: mourning & poetics
21. Hilary Clark — Re: mourning & poetics
22. Tarpaulin Sky Press — Save money, support first books by six young women writers, read Zorn...
23. Michael T Cross — Atticus/Finch presents: Judith Goldman's The Dispossessions

3 JUL 2009

24. { brad brace } — five (5) new pleated plaid pamphlets published!
25. Obododimma Oha — On Being Married to a Man Who Is Married to Books
26. Nicholas Ruiz III — put your theory where your praxis is
27. steve russell — Re: mourning & poetics
28. Evan Kennedy — seeking Bay Area poets
29. jared schickling — RECONFIGURATIONS call for work
30. Rob McLennan — Marcus McCann in 12 or 20 questions
31. amy king — Celebrate the 4th on the 5th...
32. Dan Wilcox — Poets in the Park, July 11: Mary Kathryn Jablonski & Randall Horton
33. Lauren Russell — Re: mourning & poetics
34. Scott Howard — mourning & poetics
35. Jefferson Davis — Do Tell
36. David Chirot — Re: mourning & poetics
37. Jonathan Penton — Unlikely's July 4th Issue is here!
38. Ruth Lepson — July 25 & 26

4 JUL 2009

39. Murat Nemet-Nejat — Re: mourning & poetics
40. Maria Damon — Re: mourning & poetics
41. Rob McLennan — a compact of words, rob mclennan
42. Mark Prejsnar — Re: mourning & poetics

5 JUL 2009

43. Lauren Russell — Re: mourning & poetics
44. Andrew Lundwall — scantily clad update!
45. Aryanil Mukherjee — Kaurab International Poetry Reading Series:: Event #4
46. Aryanil Mukherjee — Kaurab International Poetry Reading Series:: Event 4
47. steve russell — Re: mourning & poetics
48. E. J. McAdams — Marcella Durand Reading on July 15 in NYC
49. Charles Bernstein — Zolf at EPC & my early audio works
50. Jim Andrews — spiritual materialism
51. Paul Nelson — Re: mourning & poetics

6 JUL 2009

52. Murat Nemet-Nejat — Re: spiritual materialism
53. Christopher Rizzo — Re: spiritual materialism
54. Maria Damon — Re: mourning & poetics
55. Chris Chapman — Re: spiritual materialism
56. Mary Jo Malo — Re: mourning & poetics
57. Sharon Dolin — Reading this Friday
58. Daniel Godston — The Bauhaus: 90 Years / 90 Days
59. Jennifer Karmin — Red Rover Series / Experiment #31
60. Trevor Joyce — SoundEye Festival - final lineup - starts Wednesday
61. Jonathan Ball — Re: spiritual materialism
62. Aryanil Mukherjee — Re: spiritual materialism
63. David Baratier — Save our Ohio Libraries
64. Mark Weiss — Re: SoundEye Festival - final lineup - starts Wednesday
65. David-Baptiste Chirot — Re: spiritual materialism
66. David-Baptiste Chirot — Re: spiritual materialism
67. Christopher Rizzo — Re: spiritual materialism
68. carol dorf — Reading on July 11, Cafe Nefali, Berkeley

7 JUL 2009

69. mIEKAL aND — appalling, redacted, pulchritude
70. Nicholas Piombino — Re: mourning & poetics
71. William Allegrezza — Series A in Chicago--Hunter and Kasimor
72. twshaner — Farrah Field & Jared White Reading in Eugene 7/11
73. Lauren Russell — Re: mourning & poetics
74. David Buuck — David Buuck & Alli Warren @ Books & Bookshelves 7/16
75. Al Filreis — PoemTalk #19 released: learn the language

8 JUL 2009

76. Ruth Lepson — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
77. Murat Nemet-Nejat — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
78. steve dalachinsky — harold norse
79. steve dalachinsky — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
80. Shankar, Ravi (English) — Drunken Boat's special tenth anniversary issue is live!
81. Dan Glass — Re: mourning & poetics
82. Mary Kasimor — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
83. Allan Revich — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
84. Mary Kasimor — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
85. David Chirot — Re: mourning & poetics
86. Camille Martin — rogue embryo's blog
87. amy king — Stain's Hunter College MFA Spectacular in a new space!
88. steve russell — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
89. Lauren Russell — Re: mourning & poetics
90. amy king — CFW - Call for Essays/Stories: Voices Through the Wall: Prisoners Write About Pr...
91. Camille Martin — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude

9 JUL 2009

92. charles alexander — chax press now
93. David A. Kirschenbaum — This Wed../Douglas Rothschild Book Party & Stop Making Sense Live
94. steve dalachinsky — haiku reading
95. Kyle Schlesinger — ED SANDERS : GLYPHS 1962-2009 opens Friday July 10th at 6pm
96. Gloria Frym — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
97. amy king — Your city's / town's poetry reading calendar?
98. Skip Fox — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
99. David Chirot — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
100. Martha Deed — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
101. gabriel siegel — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
102. Jennifer Karmin — July 10 & 12: Printers' Ball Events in Chicago
103. Jonathan Ball — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
104. Jonathan Penton — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
105. David Seaman — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
106. Jim Andrews — Writing Post-Person: Poetics, Literacy and Sustainability in the Age of Dispo...

10 JUL 2009

107. charles alexander — chax press now
108. steve dalachinsky — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
109. steve dalachinsky — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
110. CA Conrad — WHITE HELIUM
111. CA Conrad — MARK(S)
112. Lauren Russell — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
113. peter ganick — 3 new books from a new press
114. Nick Carbo — Polyverse Poetry Festival
115. Daniel Godston — The Bauhaus: 90 Years / 90 Days
116. Michael — The new ROCKPILE Blog at Big Bridge Online
117. tyrone williams — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
118. Murat Nemet-Nejat — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
119. amy king — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
120. Catherine Daly — Re: MARK(S)
121. amy king — I want to write fiction but ...
122. Mary Kasimor — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
123. Aryanil Mukherjee — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
124. David Chirot — fw new soundscape / performed text - buds have spoken b(l)ack - from sean bu...
125. Stephen Vincent — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
126. Carol Novack — Performance by Iranian-born author Amir Parsa et al., including me: Weds., J...
127. David Chirot — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
128. Jade Hudson — ToxicPoetry.com Call for Submissions
129. George Bowering — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
130. Charlotte Mandel — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
131. mIEKAL aND — "Locavores," "staycations" get official in dictionary
132. Christophe Casamassima — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
133. Allan Revich — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
134. Skip Fox — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
135. Peter — hidden poem with brain scans and chairs
136. Mary Kasimor — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
137. George Bowering — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
138. Nicholas Piombino — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
139. steve russell — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
140. carol dorf — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude

141. Susan Webster Schultz — recent Tinfish Editor blog posts
142. Jonathan Morse — Re: I want to write fiction but ...

11 JUL 2009

143. Lauren Russell — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
144. Wallis Leslie — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
145. steve dalachinsky — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
146. Asian Cha — Cha: An Asian Literary Journal seeks "Lost Teas"
147. Daniel — Reading in New Jersey
148. amy king — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
149. Nicholas Piombino — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
150. Mary Kasimor — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
151. steve russell — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
152. George Bowering — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
153. George Bowering — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
154. Catherine Daly — Chaparral--Summer, 2009
155. Mark DuCharme — REMINDER: Robinson, Fleisher & Amato This Thursday, Stratford Park Reading ...

12 JUL 2009

156. steve dalachinsky — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
157. Sarah Sarai — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
158. Dan Wilcox — Third Thursday Poetry Night, July 16 - Dominick Rizzo 159. Paul Nelson — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
160. Mary Kasimor — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
161. Murat Nemet-Nejat — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
162. Matt Henriksen — Autumn it gestures. by Thomas Hummel from Cannibal Books
163. Nick Carbo — Last poetry book by Nick Carbó
164. Charlotte Mandel — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
165. Charlotte Mandel — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
166. Murat Nemet-Nejat — Re: hidden poem with brain scans and chairs
167. tyrone williams — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
168. Mark Weiss — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
169. steve russell — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
170. Camille Martin — new on Rogue Embryo
171. Sarah Sarai — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
172. Camille Martin — Re: hidden poem with brain scans and chairs

13 JUL 2009

173. steve dalachinsky — Re: appalling, redacted, pulchritude
174. Sara Wintz — paging duriel harris
175. { brad brace } — 1984
176. Michael Kelleher — Literary Buffalo Newsletter 07.13.09-07.19.09
177. Michael O'Driscoll — Special Journal Issue on Event and Sound in Poetry
178. charles alexander — ta(l)king eyes, by Jacque Brogan
179. Regina Pinto — Re: POETICS Digest - 11 Jul 2009 to 12 Jul 2009 (#2009-154)
180. charles alexander — new book from chax: Salt, My Love
181. Skip Fox — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
182. Mary Kasimor — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
183. Jeffrey Gardiner — Re: ta(l)king eyes, by Jacque Brogan
184. Mary Kasimor — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
185. steve russell — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
186. Hilary Clark — Re: Special Journal Issue on Event and Sound in Poetry
187. brian whitener — Re: POETICS Digest - 11 Jul 2009 to 12 Jul 2009 (#2009-154)
188. amy king — Re: Your city's / town's poetry reading calendar? - Last calls?
189. George Bowering — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
190. George Bowering — Re: I want to write fiction but ...

191. Skip Fox — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
192. Maria Damon — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
193. Ruth Lepson — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
194. Daniel Godston — updates at bauhaus9090.org
195. Nick Carbo — Poetry review of Chinese, Japanese, What are These? up at Hyphen Magazine.

14 JUL 2009

196. Adam Tobin — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
197. Ryan Daley — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
198. George Bowering — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
199. Gabrielle Welford — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
200. Gabrielle Welford — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
201. David Kirschenbaum — Boog City 58 Print and Online PDF Editions Available
202. steve russell — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
203. Jonathan Penton — Come to our read in Terlingua, Texas! (seriously. Terlingua, Texas. It's ...
204. George Bowering — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
205. Michael Roberson — Poetry and Failure
206. { brad brace } — six new pleated plaid pamphlets published!
207. E. J. McAdams — Reminder: Marcella Durand at Exit Art Wednesday (NYC)

15 JUL 2009

208. steve dalachinsky — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
209. mIEKAL aND — Activist wrongly accused of Brad Will's murder
210. Elizabeth Switaj — Re: Poetry and Failure
211. Evan Munday — Re: Poetry and Failure
212. Jim Andrews — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
213. amy king — Special Issue of Ekleksographia -- Guest edited by Amy King
214. Christopher Rizzo — Re: Poetry and Failure
215. Paul Siegell — A widespread, high-spirited head rush

16 JUL 2009

216. Gabrielle Welford — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
217. Sarah Sarai — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
218. George Bowering — Re: A widespread, high-spirited head rush
219. Roy Exley — Re: Poetry and Failure
220. steve dalachinsky — Re: A widespread, high-spirited head rush
221. Lars Palm — Tom Beckett from ungovernable press
222. Joel Weishaus — "The Gateless Gate" Pages 25-26
223. carol dorf — Re: Poetry and Failure
224. PJ — submission call - audio poetry
225. Thomas savage — Re: Poetry and Failure
226. David-Baptiste Chirot — Life Writing in Poetry Workshop with Judith Harway 7/25/09
227. David-Baptiste Chirot — Woodland Pattern: Creativity & Aging Anthology Celebration and Rea...
228. steve russell — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
229. amy king — Special Issue of Ekleksographia -- Failed to Include
230. Patrick Dillon — Re: A widespread, high-spirited head rush
231. Jordan Stempleman — Re: Tom Beckett from ungovernable press
232. steve russell — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
233. amy king — Poetry Events / Calendars -- complete but ...
234. Jennifer Karmin — JOB: Literacy & Health Education (Chicago)
235. Sam Truitt — Re: Poetry and Failure
236. Luke Schlueter — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
237. steve russell — Re: Poetry and Failure
238. David Chirot — Re: Poetry and Failure

239. Maria Damon — Re: A widespread, high-spirited head rush
240. Jim Andrews — new dbCinema series: Olga
241. Nicholas Piombino — Re: Poetry and Failure

17 JUL 2009

242. Alan Sondheim — Lynx Bookmark File
243. George Bowering — Re: A widespread, high-spirited head rush
244. George Bowering — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
245. Patrick Dillon — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
246. Emily Carr — Re: Poetry and Failure
247. Sam Truitt — Re: Poetry and Failure
248. mIEKAL aND — Palindrome for David Bromige
249. amy king — Tough economy - insight?
250. Mary Kasimor — Re: Poetry and Failure
251. Mary Kasimor — Re: Tough economy - insight?
252. Daniel Godston — Bauhaus9090 updates
253. cranesbill — Re: Palindrome for David Bromige
254. Halvard Johnson — Re: Poetry and Failure
255. mIEKAL aND — Fwd: poets barred
256. steve russell — Re: Tough economy - insight?
257. steve russell — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
258. Stephen Vincent — Paris places to stay???
259. Alison Croggon — Re: Poetry and Failure

18 JUL 2009

260. Rob McLennan — 12 or 20 questions with Kevin Killian
261. Cindy King — Eat Fresh: Joy Harjo for Subway
262. steve dalachinsky — Re: Poetry and Failure
263. steve dalachinsky — Re: A widespread, high-spirited head rush
264. amy king — Re: Eat Fresh: Joy Harjo for Subway
265. Jonathan Morse — Re: Tough economy - insight?
266. George Bowering — Re: I want to write fiction but ...

19 JUL 2009

267. Daniel Godston — Moholy-Nagy birthday celebration
268. CA Conrad — Giovanni's Room Bookstore VERY IMPORTANT PLEASE READ! HELP IS NEEDED!
269. David Chirot — Re: poets barred
270. Troy Camplin — Re: spiritual materialism

20 JUL 2009

271. Camille Martin — new on Rogue Embryo's blog
272. Jonathan Ball — Re: Poetry and Failure
273. Michael Kelleher — Literary Buffalo E-Newsletter 07.20.09-07.26.09
274. Sam Truitt — Re: Poetry and Failure
275. steve russell — Re: spiritual materialism
276. steve russell — Re: I want to write fiction but ...
277. Jim Andrews — Re: spiritual materialism
278. Mary Kasimor — Re: Tough economy - insight?
279. Jennifer Karmin — July 25 & 26: Wisconsin Readings

21 JUL 2009

280. Vernon Frazer — Please check out the new ROCKPILE Website & Blog at Big Bridge (from Michae...

22 JUL 2009

281. George Bowering — Re: A widespread, high-spirited head rush
282. David Kirschenbaum — Tues./Boog City presents P-Queue/Queue Books

283. steve russell — Re: Tough economy - insight?
284. steve russell — Poetry/Failure
285. Kyle Schlesinger — new mailing address
286. Charles Bernstein — University of Alabama Press Recession Sale
287. Séamas Cain — "a sonic field recording ..."
288. Sam Truitt — Re: Poetry and Failure
289. Jesse Glass — Experimental Poetry/Performance in Baltimore/Washington Area
290. blacksox — Showdown in O Town-7/23, 7pm
291. Daniel Godston — Chicago Bauhaus in July
292. Troy Camplin — Re: spiritual materialism

23 JUL 2009

293. Jade Hudson — Last call for Toxic Issue 1
294. David Kirschenbaum — A Few Tables Available at Boog Fest's Small, Small Press Fair
295. Douglas Manson — Re: Tough economy - insight?

24 JUL 2009

296. crystal hoffman — Re: Tough economy - insight?
297. John Tranter — Announcing Jacket 37 -- Early 2009
298. Rachel Loden — D. A. Powell & Rachel Loden in San Francisco
299. mIEKAL aND — The cost of our dead poets society
300. Nate Pritts — ZOMG! H_NGM_N #8, y'all
301. Aryanil Mukherjee — Re: The cost of our dead poets society
302. Murat Nemet-Nejat — Re: The cost of our dead poets society
303. Catherine Daly — Re: The cost of our dead poets society
304. nieuwland jeroen — Visual art / poetry
305. cris cheek — part: short life housing
306. cris cheek — part: short life housing (review)
307. Jennifer Karmin — July 28: Marhsall, NC

25 JUL 2009

308. Regina Pinto — News
309. EJOYCE — Slow Language
310. Jim Andrews — Book by Dominic McIver Lopes: A Philosophy of Computer Art
311. William Slaughter — Notice: Mudlark

26 JUL 2009

312. steve dalachinsky — Re: Visual art / poetry
313. amy king — This Saturday: Stain Carries on -- ~ Julian Brolaski, Adam Fieled, Nada Gordon,…
314. Lisa Samuels — Oystercatcher Press wins UK pamphlet award
315. Paul Nelson — Re: Slow Language

27 JUL 2009

316. Jim Andrews — Re: Visual art / poetry
317. Marcus Bales — Re: Slow Language
318. Murat Nemet-Nejat — Re: Visual art / poetry
319. Camille Martin — new on Rogue Embryo's blog
320. Douglas Manson — Re: Visual art / poetry
321. Laura Hinton — Re: Visual art / poetry
322. Maria Damon — mercy mercy mercy
323. Laurie Schneider & Crag Hill — Re: Visual art / poetry
324. nieuwland jeroen — Re: Visual art / poetry
325. David Chirot — Re: The cost of our dead poets society
326. Small Press Traffic — hey batter batter, swing batter
327. Jonathan Morse — Visuals and verbals

28 JUL 2009

328. Jim Andrews — Re: Visual art / poetry
329. steve dalachinsky — Re: mercy mercy mercy
330. Jonathan Morse — CFP: Ashbery in Paris, 2010
331. James Robinson — Re: Visual art / poetry
332. Eric Hoffman — Reading at Small's in New York City, 9/12/09
333. Stephen Vincent — Re: Visual art / poetry
334. steve russell — Re: The cost of our dead poets society
335. Jim Andrews — Re: Visual art / poetry
336. Anny Ballardini — the Four Seasons - a tribute to Antonio Vivaldi
337. Nico Vassilakis — SuBtExT/Seattle : Norma Cole & Will Owen : 8/5/09
338. Maria Damon — Poetry and Cultural Studies: A Reader. Book Party, Bowery Poetry Club!

29 JUL 2009

339. Andy Gricevich — Meta-Shakespearean Socially Critical Theater in Minneapolis
340. steve dalachinsky — george russell
341. Alexander Jorgensen — Pushcart Prize - looking for news
342. steve dalachinsky — reading
343. Audrey Berry — Re: Visual art / poetry
344. steve dalachinsky — Re: The cost of our dead poets society
345. William Allegrezza — Have Save Cracked Slab Books
346. Adam Katz — Got a used copy of 'A'?
347. Mary Kasimor — Re: Have Save Cracked Slab Books
348. Allan Revich — Re: Visual art / poetry
349. Allan Revich — Re: Visual art / poetry
350. Hugh Behm-Steinberg — Re: Visual art / poetry
351. Adam Parrish — Digital Writing with Python: Final Performance

30 JUL 2009

352. David Chirot — Re: Visual art / poetry
353. Alan Sondheim — more great audiovisual from neurotic rly mourn x-haustion
354. Jim Andrews — Re: Digital Writing with Python: Final Performance
355. Anny Ballardini — Re: the Four Seasons - a tribute to Antonio Vivaldi
356. Jonathan Ball — Re: Got a used copy of 'A'?
357. Paul Siegell — Dusie Dusie Dusie Dusie Dusie Dusie Dusie Dusie
358. Murat Nemet-Nejat — Re: Visual art / poetry
359. Al Filreis — PoemTalk #20: Baraka's "Kenyatta Listening to Mozart"
360. Joel Weishaus — 'The Gateless Gate" Pages 27-28
361. Amanda Earl — AngelHousePress Essay # 6 - Marcus McCann
362. Kyle Schlesinger — ED SANDERS READING IN BROOKLYN FRIDAY JULY 31 @ 8:00
363. Stephen Vincent — Photography Interest??

31 JUL 2009

364. CA Conrad — poet John Wieners 40TH ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION
365. Jeffrey Side — Found a good article called 'POETRY SCENE: CURRENT DIFFICULTIES'
366. William Allegrezza — New Moria Online
367. amy king — This Summer's Saturday -- Tomorrow Night

1. Mary Jo Malo
mourning & poetics
Tue 30 Jun 2009

I've been sympathetically following the tragic death of Emma Bernstein and wonder why "quietist" poetry (and prose, I suppose) seem/s to better express grief. The one exception I've discovered so far is Mary Jo Bang's "Elegy." Who else am I missing?

Additionally, reflecting only slightly upon Ron Silliman's post-avant/quietist dichotomy, I find the only way for me to categorize poetry is via my own poor pedantic: Poetry I Like vs. Poetry I Don't Like. Does

--
http://thisshiningwound.blogspot.com/
http://apophisdeconstructingabsurdity.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

2. Jennifer Karmin
July 5: Buckminster Fuller Performance in Chicago
Tue 30 Jun 2009

Jen & Ira & You at the MCA Meet Buckminster Fuller Meeting the Hippies in Golden Gate Park : A Re-Performance

SUNDAY, JULY 5th
2-4:30pm

4th-floor lobby
Museum of Contemporary Art
220 East Chicago Avenue
Chicago, IL
http://www.mcachicago.org

DURATIONAL PERFORMANCE
instigated by Jennifer Karmin & Ira S. Murfin

This is a performance of a transcript of the video Buckminster Fuller Meets the Hippies in Golden Gate Park. You are invited to watch this performance for as long or as briefly as you like. You are also invited to be a performer in it. You may stay as long or as briefly as you wish, and return as often as you like.

FINAL DAY OF EXHIBIT
Buckminster Fuller: Starting with the Universe is a fascinating mix of utopian vision and organic pragmatism, combining models, sketches, and other artifacts -- many on view for the first time -- represent six decades of the artist's integrated approach to housing, transportation, communication, and cartography. The exhibition features numerous models of Fuller's projects including his famous geodesic dome. Fuller's extensive connections with Chicago are also highlighted through photographs and documents from his years spent living, teaching, and working in the city.

JENNIFER KARMIN is the author of the text-sound epic Aaaaaaaaaaalice (Flim Forum Press, forthcoming 2009). She curates the Red Rover Series and is a founding member of the public art group Anti Gravity Surprise. Her multidisciplinary projects have been presented nationally at festivals, artist-run spaces, and on city streets including: Betalevel (CA), Links Hall (IL), the Poetry Project (NY), the Urban Institute for Contemporary Arts (MI), and Woodland Pattern Book Center (WI). The recipient of numerous grants and residencies, Jennifer teaches creative writing to immigrants at Truman College and works as a Poet in Residence for the Chicago Public Schools. Recent poems are published in the journals Cannot Exist, MoonLit, Otoliths, and anthologized in Come Together: Imagine Peace (Bottom Dog Press), Not A Muse (Haven Books), and The City Visible: Chicago Poetry for the New Century (Cracked Slab Books).

IRA S. MURFIN is a writer, educator, and theatre maker. His writing has appeared in Requited, elimae, Fiction at Work, Lark(!), Mobius, and the book The Mind Garden, among other places. Ira is Co-Artistic Director of the Laboratory for Enthusiastic Collaboration and a founding member of the Laboratory for the Development of Substitute Materials, two devised theatre collectives. His solo and collaborative writing and performance work has been presented at venues including the Chicago Cultural Center, Links Hall, Version Fest, The Neo-Futurists, Prop Thtr, the Chicago Calling Festival, by Walkabout Theater at the Peter Jones Gallery, and the Red Rover, Powells North, Quickies, and Reconstruction Room reading series. Ira is also the former Head of the Soleri Book Initiative at the urban design project Arcosanti. He lives in Chicago and teaches writing at North Park University, St. Augustine College, and with Urban Gateways.

↑ Index

3. derek beaulieu

Drunken Boat Launch - reading and event July 10

Tue 30 Jun 2009

> Drunken Boat, international online journal of the arts, will be publishing its special 10th anniversary issue and celebrating its launch with an event > at the SoHo20 Chelsea Gallery in NYC.
>
> Friday, July 10th from 6:00 pm to 8:00 pm

SOHO20 CHELSEA GALLERY

511 West 25th St.

Suite 605

NEW YORK, NY 10001

http://www.soho20gallery.com/

Featuring one of Canada¹s most radical writers, derek beaulieu, the poet and comix creator, Sommer Browning, novelist and Contributing Editor of Bon Appétit, Rand Richards Cooper, award winning poet and director of The Center for Book Arts, Sharon Dolin, filmmaker and visionary Ram Devineni, Fulbright fellow and Pushcart winner, Elizabeth Kadetsky, Barnard New Women Poet¹s Prize winner and Director of The University Writing Program at Drexel University, Harriet Levin, and award-winning filmmaker and Guggenheim fellow, Elisabeth Subrin.

SOHO20 was founded in 1973, in New York's Soho art district, as a non-profit, artist-run organization devoted to increasing public awareness of the excellence and diversity of women's art. SOHO20 has a dynamic history of supporting highly committed women artists both nationally and in the world community through extensive exhibition programs and through an exciting mix of multicultural events. A rigorous jurying process ensures the high quality of the gallery membership and of its exhibitions. The gallery's commitment to diversity brings a broad and impressive range of works to the public's attention each season. Major critics in leading magazines and newpapers have cited SOHO20 Gallery for the achievements of its artists and exhibitions.

derek beaulieu¹s practice includes 4 books of poetry: with wax (Coach House Books, 2003), frogments from the frag pool: haiku after basho (co-written with Gary Barwin, Mercury Press, 2005), fractal economies (talonbooks, 2006) and Chains (paper kite, 2008). He is also author of two books of conceptual fiction: flatland, published in the United Kingdom by information as material (2007) and Local Colour, published in Finland by ntamo (2008). In 2010 How to Write, a collection of plagiarised prose, will be published by Vancouver¹s talonbooks. Beaulieu has been editorially involved with filling Station, dANDelion, endNote and speechless magazines and also published the highly acclaimed micropresses housepress and no press. His work is consistently praised as some of the most radical and challenging in contemporary Canadian writing.

Sommer Browning writes comix and draws poems in Brooklyn. Her latest chapbook, The House, can be found in Narwhal, out with Cannibal Books.

Rand Richards Cooper is the author of a novel, The Last to Go (Harcourt Brace), and a story collection, Big As Life (The Dial Press). His fiction has appeared in Harper¹s, The Atlantic, Esquire, and many other magazines, as well as in the Selected Shorts series on NPR; his short story, ³Johnny Hamburger,² was included in Best American Short Stories 2003. The Last to Go was produced for television by ABC. Cooper has been Writer in Residence at Amherst and Emerson colleges. A frequent contributor to the New York Times Book Review, he is a film critic for Commonweal and a contributing editor for Bon Appétit, for which he received a 2002 Lowell Thomas Gold Medal Award from the American Society of Travel Writers. Rand Cooper lives in Hartford, CT, with his wife, Molly, and their daughter, Larkin. He writes a column about fatherhood, ³Dad on a Lark,² for www.Wondertime.com.

Sharon Dolin¹s fourth book, Burn and Dodge, won the AWP Donald Hall Prize in Poetry and was recently published by the University of Pittsburgh Press. Her other books include Heart Work, Serious Pink, and Realm of the Possible. She is Writer-in-Residence at Eugene Lang College, The New School. She also teaches poetry workshops at the Unterberg Poetry Center of the 92nd Street Y and directs The Center for Book Arts Annual Letterpress Poetry Chapbook Competition. In May, Sharon was an artist-in-residence at Fundación Valparaiso in Mojácar, Spain during which time she was a guest blogger for The Best American Poetry.

Ram Devineni is a filmmaker and editor of Rattapallax magazine. He recently produced Amir Naderi¹s ³Vegas: Based on a True Story² which premiered at the Venice Film Festival. He recently finished a film about Allen Ginsberg and his journey to India called ³Ginsberg¹s Karma.²

Elizabeth Kadetsky's fiction has appeared or is forthcoming in TriQuarterly, Antioch Review, Best New American Voices, the Pushcart Prizes anthology and Gettysburg Review. The recipient of a Fulbright Fellowship in creative writing to India, she wrote the memoir First There Is a Mountain (Little Brown, 2004) based on her year there as a student of the yoga guru B.K.S. Iyengar. This year, she has new non-fiction in Antioch Review and Going Hungry > journalism have appeared in The Nation, Ms, Glamour, the Village Voice, Santa Monica Review and many other venues. She has received artists grants from numerous places both in the US and abroad. She is a graduate of UC Santa Cruz, the MFA Fiction program at UC Irvine and the graduate journalism program at Columbia University. She grew up in New York City and has taught creative writing at University of Pittsburgh, Sarah Lawrence College and Ohio State University, as well as narrative writing in Columbia University's graduate school of journalism. She is currently visiting writer in Penn State University¹s program in creative writing.

Harriet Levin is the author of THE CHRISTMAS SHOW (Beacon Press), a Barnard New Women Poet's Prize and a Poetry Society of America Alice Fay di Castangola Award winner. A PEW Fellowship in the Arts Discipline winner, recent work appears or is forthcoming in Harvard Review, Prairie Schooner, Kenyon Review, Antioch Review, Gulf Coast, Many Mountains Moving, Cimarron Review and 32 Poems. She lives in Philadelphia where she is Director of the University Writing Program at Drexel University. To read about her work with the Lost Boys of Sudan, see her blog, harrietmillan.blogspot.com

Elisabeth Subrin is an award-winning filmmaker and video artist. A Sundance Institute Lab Fellow, she participated in their Writer¹s and Director¹s Labs with her first feature length screenplay, now in development with Forensic Films. Subrin¹s series of experimental bio-pics have screened extensively in the United States and abroad, including at The New York Film Festival, The Whitney Biennial, The Vienna International Film Festival, The Museum of Modern Art, American Film Institute, Rotterdam International Film Festival, The Robert Flaherty Film Seminar, the VIPER International Festival in Lucerne, Switzerland, The Guggenheim Museum, The Sundance Channel, PBS,

> and
> numerous other major museums, universities, arts institutions and film festivals. One-woman shows include The Museum of Modern Art in New York, San > Francisco Cinematheque, Film Forum in LA, the Institute of Contemporary Art
> in Boston, The Vienna International Film Festival, The Center for Media, Culture and History at New York University, The Northwest Film Center, and The Film Center at The Art Institute of Chicago. Subrin has received grants > and fellowships from The Rockefeller Foundation, The John Simon Guggenheim Foundation, The Creative Capital Foundation, The Andrea Frank Foundation, The Wexner Center for the Arts, and The Yaddo and MacDowell Colonies. She¹s > an assistant professor in the Department of Film and Media Arts at Temple University and a visiting critic in the Graduate Program at Yale University > School of Art. She lives in Brooklyn, New York.

↑ Index

4. Eric Elshtain

Download the Gnoetry software

Tue 30 Jun 2009

Gnoetry practitioner Eric Scovel has generously posted the ingredients you need to download the poetry-generating software Gnoetry0.2.

Go here:

http://mchainpoetics.wordpress.com/gnoetry-0-2-download-and-install-howto/

Please contact Eric Elshtain at Beard of Bees Press if you get the software up and running.

Enjoy!

Eric Elshtain
Editor
Beard of Bees Press
http://www.beardofbees.com

↑ Index

5. St. Thomasino

a noun sing e·ratio 12 · 2009 a noun sing e·ratio 12 · 2009

Wed 1 Jul 2009

---

e·
a noun sing e·ratio 12 · 2009

with poetry by David Chikhladze, Gautam Verma, David Rushmer, Anne Fitzgerald, Mary Ann Sullivan, Ruth Lepson, Virginia Konchan, Sandra Huber, Paige H. Taggart, Marcia Arrieta, Sean Patrick Hill, Travis Macdonald, Mark Lamoureux, Camille Martin, Nathan Thompson, Philip Byron Oakes, Cyril Wong, and Derek Henderson

E·ratio · Issue 12.pdf

http://www.eratiopostmodernpoetry.com/edited by gregory vincent st. thomasino

e·

↑ Index

6. steve dalachinsky

Re: mourning & poetics

Wed 1 Jul 2009

---

nice seeing your name out here again MJ
On Tue, 30 Jun 2009 10:52:25 -0400 Mary Jo Malo <[redacted]>
writes:
> I've been sympathetically following the tragic death of Emma > Bernstein
> and wonder why "quietist" poetry (and prose, I suppose) seem/s to > better express grief. The one exception I've discovered so far is > Mary
> Jo Bang's "Elegy." Who else am I missing?
>
> Additionally, reflecting only slightly upon Ron Silliman's > post-avant/quietist dichotomy, I find the only way for me to > categorize poetry is via my own poor pedantic: Poetry I Like vs.
> Poetry I Don't Like. Does
>
> --
> http://thisshiningwound.blogspot.com/
> http://apophisdeconstructingabsurdity.blogspot.com/
>
>
>

↑ Index

7. Zamsky, Robert
Contemporary French Writing
Wed 1 Jul 2009

I'll be in France for the next month and am looking for reading suggestions -- poetry or prose.

Thanks!

- Robert Zamsky

↑ Index

8. UbuWeb
Flarf & Conceptual Writing in July/Aug Poetry Magazine
Wed 1 Jul 2009

An introduction to the 21st Century's most controversial poetry movements:

http://www.poetryfoundation.org/journal/article.html?id=237176

UbuWeb
http://ubu.com

↑ Index

9. Patrick Dillon
Re: Contemporary French Writing
Wed 1 Jul 2009

Bookworm had a four or five part series called An American Bookworm in Paris.

You can visit the website: http://www.kcrw.com/etc/programs/bw and then at the bottom there is a link "More past shows" It should not be too far back, but you can also search for it.

It's pretty good and has about 15 or more contemporary French writers, many of whom would fit with the poetics of this list.

On Wed, Jul 1, 2009 at 9:42 AM, Zamsky, Robert <[redacted]> wrote:

> I'll be in France for the next month and am looking for reading suggestions -- poetry or prose.
>
> Thanks!
>
> - Robert Zamsky

↑ Index

10. Scott Howard
mourning & poetics
Wed 1 Jul 2009

Hi, Mary Jo,

Here are a few recommendations, re: mourning & poetics.

1. Inventions of Farewell, edited by Sandra Gilbert. That's an anthology of elegies and elegiac poetics/poetry.

2. Poetry of Mourning, by Jahan Ramazani. Scholarly study.

3. Both of the above are v. good for twentieth-century Anglo-American poetry & poetics of loss, but neither really begins to address postmodern poetics. If you're interested, you could also consider this book chapter: "'The Brevities': Formal Mourning, Transgression & Postmodern American Elegies", in _The World in Time and Space_ (Talisman House, 2002), 122-46.

Best wishes,
Scott Howard

///

----- Original Message -----
From: Mary Jo Malo <[redacted]>
Date: Wednesday, July 1, 2009 10:52 am
Subject: mourning & poetics
To: [redacted]

> I've been sympathetically following the tragic death of Emma Bernstein and wonder why "quietist" poetry (and prose, I suppose) seem/s to better express grief. The one exception I've discovered so far is Mary Jo Bang's "Elegy." Who else am I missing?
>
> Additionally, reflecting only slightly upon Ron Silliman's post-avant/quietist dichotomy, I find the only way for me to categorize poetry is via my own poor pedantic: Poetry I Like vs. Poetry I Don't Like. Does
>
> --
> http://thisshiningwound.blogspot.com/
> http://apophisdeconstructingabsurdity.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

11. Marc Nasdor

Re: mourning & poetics

Thu 2 Jul 2009

Have you checked out Jennifer Bartlett's book, "Derivative of the Moving Image" lately.

See the poems "Elegy for the Trees" and "Going to Yugoslavia" -- particularly the former.

I would not consider JB a Quietist poet in any sense. I am sure there are many others who express grief well, but not all of them do it in a narrative manner.

Marc

Marc Nasdor
127 Thames Street, #3L
Brooklyn, NY 11237
Telephone:
[redacted] - cell

Email: [redacted]
http://www.myspace.com/poodlecannon

Date: Tue, 30 Jun 2009 10:52:25 -0400
From: Mary Jo Malo <[redacted]>
Subject: mourning & poetics

I've been sympathetically following the tragic death of Emma Bernstein and wonder why "quietist" poetry (and prose, I suppose) seem/s to better express grief. The one exception I've discovered so far is Mary Jo Bang's "Elegy." Who else am I missing?

Additionally, reflecting only slightly upon Ron Silliman's post-avant/quietist dichotomy, I find the only way for me to categorize poetry is via my own poor pedantic: Poetry I Like vs. Poetry I Don't Like. Does

--
http://thisshiningwound.blogspot.com/
http://apophisdeconstructingabsurdity.blogspot.com/

==========

↑ Index

12. Jonathan Skinner
Contemporary French Writing
Thu 2 Jul 2009

Hi Robert!

Go to Michèle Ignazi books in Paris, on rue du Jouy.

Jennifer Dick keeps a blog of readings and literary events around Paris (much perhaps to glean from there):

http://parisreadingsmonthlylisting.blogspot.com/

You can¹t go wrong with anything by Jacques Roubaud.

JS

↑ Index

13. Lauren Russell
Re: mourning & poetics
Thu 2 Jul 2009

What is quietist poetry? I'm really curious; I've never heard the term.

I tend to think of fragmented poetry (and prose) as best articulating grief. Have you ever read Kristin Prevallet's I, Afterlife: Essay in Mourning Time? And part of what I love about Alice Notley's work is that her poems have engaged with grief in so many different ways. I can't claim to have read the whole book (it's one of the books one's not aloud to check out of the New York Public Library), but the introduction to Patricia Rae's Modernism and Mourning makes some interesting points about the politics of grief and writing about grief. I found it helpful alongside Ramazini, though I can't claim to have read all of that, either.

Lauren Russell

Date: Wed, 1 Jul 2009 18:12:15 -0600
From: Scott Howard <[redacted]>
Subject: mourning & poetics

Hi, Mary Jo,

Here are a few recommendations, re: mourning & poetics.

1. Inventions of Farewell, edited by Sandra Gilbert. That's an anthology of elegies and elegiac poetics/poetry.

2. Poetry of Mourning, by Jahan Ramazani. Scholarly study.

3. Both of the above are v. good for twentieth-century Anglo-American poetry & poetics of loss, but neither really begins to address postmodern poetics. If you're interested, you could also consider this book chapter: "'The Brevities': Formal Mourning, Transgression & Postmodern American Elegies", in _The World in Time and Space_ (Talisman House, 2002), 122-46.

Best wishes,
Scott Howard

///

----- Original Message -----
From: Mary Jo Malo <[redacted]>
Date: Wednesday, July 1, 2009 10:52 am
Subject: mourning & poetics
To: [redacted]

> I've been sympathetically following the tragic death of Emma Bernstein and wonder why "quietist" poetry (and prose, I suppose) seem/s to better express grief. The one exception I've discovered so far is Mary Jo Bang's "Elegy." Who else am I missing?
>
> Additionally, reflecting only slightly upon Ron Silliman's post-avant/quietist dichotomy, I find the only way for me to categorize poetry is via my own poor pedantic: Poetry I Like vs. Poetry I Don't Like. Does

↑ Index

14. David Seaman
Re: Contemporary French Writing
Thu 2 Jul 2009

Do you read French? This year I have enjoyed The Elegace of the Hedghog ./ L'Elegance de l'herisson and I'll Never be French. David Seaman

David W. Seaman, Ph.D.
http://personal.georgiasouthern.edu/~dseaman/Welcome.html

On Wednesday, July 01, 2009, at 10:42AM, "Zamsky, Robert" <[redacted]> wrote:
>I'll be in France for the next month and am looking for reading >suggestions -- poetry or prose.
>
>Thanks!
>
>- Robert Zamsky
>
>
>

↑ Index

15. Jim Andrews
cross multiplication
Thu 2 Jul 2009

---

we live in an age of rapid cross multiplication.

in math, cross multiplication between two sets of things results in a new set that pairs each element of the first set with each element of the second set.

{1, 2, 3} x {4, 5, 6} = {(1,4), (1,5), (1,6), (2,4), (2,5), (2,6), (3,4), (3,5), (3,6)}

the first two sets are one-dimensional. the cross product is two dimensional. the cross product of two sets has more dimensions.

the internet accelerates the processes of cultural cross multiplication. poetry x programming; poetry x spam; poetry x lots of things. because the internet is a vast network. a network is a bunch of nodes in relation to other nodes. and the relations grow between different nodes. and new nodes form out of unions of groups of nodes. as the lettrist poet isadore isou put it, "Each poet will integrate everything into Everything".

given a finite set of plain old numbers, it makes sense to talk about the greatest one or the least one. but it doesn't make much sense to speak of the greatest or least in {(1,4), (1,5), (1,6), (2,4), (2,5), (2,6), (3,4), (3,5), (3,6)}.

we can talk about the point which is the greatest distance from (0,0), or something like that, but it doesn't mean simply 'the greatest'.

similarly, in a situation of cultural cross multiplication, standards that might loosely apply to, say, poetry, might not so easily apply to (poetry, programming).

so we get a situation where no one knows what is greatest or least. because there really is no greatest or least in a situation of cross multiplication.

ja
http://vispo.com

↑ Index

16. Alan Sondheim
Alan Sondheim: The Drawing Un/Center/Ed (hi - please post, thanks!)
Thu 2 Jul 2009

Alan Sondheim: The Drawing Un/Center/Ed

An exhibition of graphics from 3d modeling transformations and other sources at:

Millennium Gallery, 66 East 4th St., New York

June 20, 2009 - July 31, 2009, and probably September, 2009

Monday - Wednesday and Friday evenings 7-10:30 pm
Saturday 1-5 pm

"Each of the prints here is unique; each is the result of print, print error, borderline and uncontrollable phenomena. Most of them originate from work done with the aid of Poser and other 3d modeling programs. The mannequins represent snapshots of distorted dynamic movement, movements real bodies in real spaces could never do, unless constrained by torture, dismemberment, fantasm, sexuality, or (other) uncomfortable elements within the imaginary - bridging the real, ascending, descending. I see every print as an entire world; if it doesn't work alone, it won't work in conjunction. I also see them as ruins - of fragile-analogic bodies, of the digital world, of memory. Ruins are fascinating; no matter how minimal, there always seems to be enough there, never enough there, never there."

- Alan Sondheim, 6/16/09

"The word prolific always comes to mind when describing Alan Sondheim, who has produced an unending, constantly changing array of media works, writings, and musical pieces; and has given innumerable workshops and lectures around the world. He has been a regular participant in the Personal Cinema Series."

- Howard Guttenplan

For further information, phone [redacted] or email
[redacted].

Please visit if you're in the neighborhood (4th Street between 2nd and 3rd Avenues).

↑ Index

17. Halvard Johnson

Hamilton Stone Review, Issue 18, Summer 2009, Now Online!

Thu 2 Jul 2009

---

*

Hamilton Stone Review*, Issue 18, Summer 2009, Now Online!

Poetry by CL Bledsoe, James Grabill, Libby Hart, Nicholas Karavatos, Kathleen Kenny,

Sandy McIntosh, Rodney Nelson, and David Woodward. Fiction by Miriam N. Kotzin, Jen Micharlski, Charles Rammelkamp, Grant Tracey, and Joyce Yarrow.

http://www.hamiltonstone.org/hsr.html

Submissions:

*Hamilton Stone Review *is published three times a year: in June, October, and February.

Poetry submissions to Hamilton Stone Review are temporarily closed. Fiction submissions may be sent to Lynda Schor at [redacted], and nonfiction to Reamy Jansen at [redacted]. No snail mail submissions, please, and it's a good idea to include your work in both the message and an attachment. Please put "HSR submission from [your name]" in your subject line.

PLEASE SEND THIS ALONG TO OTHERS

Thank you.

Halvard Johnson
==========
[redacted]
http://sites.google.com/site/halvardjohnson/Home
http://entropyandme.blogspot.com
http://imageswithoutwords.blogspot.com
http://www.hamiltonstone.org

↑ Index

18. Charlotte Mandel
BigCityLit Reading July 8
Thu 2 Jul 2009

> I'll be part of a group reading:
> Wednesday, July 8th, 2009, 6:00 pm
> The Cornelia Street Café
> 29 Cornelia Street
> (b/t Bleecker & West 4th)
> Cover $7 (includes one house drink)
> BigCityLit Reading
> Featuring poets from the Spring 2009 issue, including Patricia Carragon, Allen C. Fischer, Deborah Flanagan, Joanne Grumet, Ann Lauinger, Linda Lerner, Charlotte Mandel, Mark Nickels, D. Nurkse, eve packer, Ron Price, Kryssa Schemmerling, Peter Schwartz, Maggie Schwed, Barry Wallenstein, Rob Wright and Angelo Verga
> Read the issue at BigCityLit.com

↑ Index

19. amy king
Fogged Clarity [on behalf of Ben Evans]
Thu 2 Jul 2009

The July Issue of the arts review Fogged Clarity (http://www.foggedclarity.com) is up:

3 short films
An interview and poetry from Pulitzer Prize finalist Bruce Smith
Short fiction from Ryan McCarl and Claire Foster, Poetry and readings from Michael Tyrell and Linda Nemec Foster
The music of "The Horse's Ha"
An essay by T.S. Eliot scholar Benjamin Lockerd
And much more

All free and beautiful at www.foggedclarity.com

--
Executive Editor, "Fogged Clarity"
http://www.foggedclarity.com

Ben Evans

--

Amy's Alias
http://amyking.org/

July 2009
Table of Contents

Fiction

Ryan McCarl The Day-TraderClaire Foster Hurricane Season

Poetry

Bruce Smith DEVOTION: RED ROOF INNDEVOTION: AL GREENMichael Tyrell The GardenNixonLinda Nemec Foster The Anonymous Woman Describes the RoomateJanuary, 2003Hillary Bartholomew Daliâ€™s Last DreamTobi Cogswell Getting Off the Bus

Visual

Brandon T. David A Little SecretMichael Fragstein A Wet DayForgetFrancis Raven The World Without Us is BeautifulAesthetic RejectionJulia Haw The Nine Day Wonder

Polemics

Benjamin Lockerd Religion, Dawson, and T.S. Eliot

Aural

The Horseâ€™s Ha Of the Cathmawr Yards

Interviews

Bruce Smith The poet on his life and workJames Elkington On, Of the Cathmawr Yards

--

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

20. Mary Kasimor
Re: mourning & poetics
Thu 2 Jul 2009

Lauren, Yes, the poem "White Phosphorus" is a beautiful poem about mourning for her brother. Is that the Alice Notley poem you were thinking about?

--- On Wed, 7/1/09, Lauren Russell <[redacted]> wrote:

From: Lauren Russell <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: mourning & poetics
To: [redacted]
Date: Wednesday, July 1, 2009, 11:52 PM

What is quietist poetry? I'm really curious; I've never heard the term.

I tend to think of fragmented poetry (and prose) as best articulating grief. Have you ever read Kristin Prevallet's I, Afterlife: Essay in Mourning Time? And part of what I love about Alice Notley's work is that her poems have engaged with grief in so many different ways. I can't claim to have read the whole book (it's one of the books one's not aloud to check out of the New York Public Library), but the introduction to Patricia Rae's Modernism and Mourning makes some interesting points about the politics of grief and writing about grief. I found it helpful alongside Ramazini, though I can't claim to have read all of that, either.

Lauren Russell

Date: Wed, 1 Jul 2009 18:12:15 -0600
From: Scott Howard <[redacted]>
Subject: mourning & poetics

Hi, Mary Jo,

Here are a few recommendations, re: mourning & poetics.

1. Inventions of Farewell, edited by Sandra Gilbert. That's an anthology of elegies and elegiac poetics/poetry.

2. Poetry of Mourning, by Jahan Ramazani. Scholarly study.

3. Both of the above are v. good for twentieth-century Anglo-American poetry & poetics of loss, but neither really begins to address postmodern poetics. If you're interested, you could also consider this book chapter: "'The Brevities': Formal Mourning, Transgression & Postmodern American Elegies", in _The World in Time and Space_ (Talisman House, 2002), 122-46.

Best wishes,
Scott Howard

///

----- Original Message -----
From: Mary Jo Malo <[redacted]>
Date: Wednesday, July 1, 2009 10:52 am
Subject: mourning & poetics
To: [redacted]

> I've been sympathetically following the tragic death of Emma Bernstein and wonder why "quietist" poetry (and prose, I suppose) seem/s to better express grief. The one exception I've discovered so far is Mary Jo Bang's "Elegy." Who else am I missing?
>
> Additionally, reflecting only slightly upon Ron Silliman's post-avant/quietist dichotomy, I find the only way for me to categorize poetry is via my own poor pedantic: Poetry I Like vs. Poetry I Don't Like. Does

↑ Index

21. Hilary Clark
Re: mourning & poetics
Thu 2 Jul 2009

Another: I, Afterlife [Essay in Mourning Time] by Kristin Prevallet (Essay Press, 2007). The book mixes poetry and essay / prose.

Hilary

Marc Nasdor wrote:
> Have you checked out Jennifer Bartlett's book, "Derivative of the Moving Image" lately.
>

> See the poems "Elegy for the Trees" and "Going to Yugoslavia" -- particularly the former.
>
> I would not consider JB a Quietist poet in any sense. I am sure there are many others who express grief well, but not all of them do it in a narrative manner.
>
> Marc
>
> ----------
>
> Marc Nasdor
> 127 Thames Street, #3L
> Brooklyn, NY 11237
> Telephone:
> [redacted] - cell
>
> Email: [redacted]
> http://www.myspace.com/poodlecannon
>
>
>
> ----------
>
> Date: Tue, 30 Jun 2009 10:52:25 -0400
> From: Mary Jo Malo <[redacted]>
> Subject: mourning & poetics
>
> I've been sympathetically following the tragic death of Emma Bernstein > and wonder why "quietist" poetry (and prose, I suppose) seem/s to > better express grief. The one exception I've discovered so far is Mary > Jo Bang's "Elegy." Who else am I missing?
>
> Additionally, reflecting only slightly upon Ron Silliman's > post-avant/quietist dichotomy, I find the only way for me to > categorize poetry is via my own poor pedantic: Poetry I Like vs.
> Poetry I Don't Like. Does
>
>

↑ Index

22. Tarpaulin Sky Press

Save money, support first books by six young women writers, read Zornoza & Massman

Thu 2 Jul 2009

Dear TSky Friends,

Two items that we think might interest you:

1) TSky Press Fall 2009/Spring 2010 subscriptions are now available.

$60 for six books w/free shipping
(vs. $103.94 from Amazon, or $107 from SPD)

Yes, you read the above correctly. $60 will get you five paperbacks and one chapbook w/ free shipping. & Yes, you'll save around $45.

Please visit our catalog at http://www.tarpaulinsky.com/Press/catalog.html to order online or pay by check. (THIS OFFER IS LIMITED TO 100 SUBSCRIBERS.)

All first books. All from women writers. Which excites us no end. Although we have always been committed to publishing both new writers and women writers, the 2009/10 subscription series really puts our money where our collective mouth is. Fall 2009 books include Ana Bozicevic's full-length poetry collection, _Stars of the Night Commute_; Traci O Connor's book of short fictions, _Recipes for Endangered Species_; and Emily Toder's poetry chapbook, _Brushes With_; Spring 2010 titles include Joanna Ruocco's book of short fictions, _Man's Companions_; Kim Gek Lin Short's lyric novella, _The Bugging Watch and Other Exhibits_; and Shelly Taylor's book of interlocking short fictions / prose poems, _Black-Eyed Heifer_.

2) Andrew Zornoza's _Where I Stay_ and Gordon Massman's _The Essential Numbers_ are also now available.

In the process of constantly disappearing, the unhinged, unmoored and unnamed narrator of WHERE I STAY travels through a cracked North America, stalked by his own future self and the whispers of a distant love. From Arco, Idaho to Mexico City, he flees along the highways and dirt roads of a landscape filled with characters in transition: squatters, survivalists, prostitutes, drug runners, skinheads, border guards and con-men. WHERE I STAY is a meditation on desperation, identity, geography, memory, and love-a story about endurance, about the empty spaces in ourselves, about the new possibilities we find only after we have lost everything. "Refreshing, pitch-perfect kind of steering that is innovative not only for the genre it might get called into, but for experiential and language-focused texts of every stripe."--BLAKE BUTLER. "A gifted journey through borderlands between text and image, glassy prose and suggestively indirect prose poem, facts and fictions, sanity and the other thing"--LANCE OLSEN. http://www.tarpaulinsky.com/Press/Zornoza/index.html from THE ESSENTIAL NUMBERS: "1715": "It is unimportant to me whether anyone reads these poems / or their assessment of them should they, I do not care under / whose name they are published, nor could I care less what / literary critics say about them, praise or condemnation, / nothing could be more vapid than some academic advanc- / ing his career on my efforts or within institutionally accept- / able parameters pushing my reputation this way or that, / most contemporary poetry is shit as is the industry that sur- / rounds it and I want no part of it, if I am harsh so be it, if / I am angry then that is life, if I have hurt my consanguineous / they are co-conspirators in their pain, nothing in this work / bears false witness nor have I broken one commandment, / I am a decent man imbued with a religious spirit and cap- / able of love, I have noticed the world is full of cowards." http://www.tarpaulinsky.com/Press/Massman/index.html

All best,

Elena Georgiou & Christian Peet
Tarpaulin Sky Press

↑ Index

23. Michael T Cross

Atticus/Finch presents: Judith Goldman's The Dispossessions

Thu 2 Jul 2009

Greetings Friends:

Atticus/Finch is incredibly excited to announce the release of Judith Goldman's new chapbook, The Dispossessions. An ambitious series of competing voices and cultural affects, The Dispossessions creates an intersubjective field of response to the violence of intimacy, both public and private (or better, the private as public!). Featuring an intricate die-cut wrap on sumptuous Arches paper, this volume promises to challenge the most elegant Atticus/Finch productions of the past. Go to our website (www.atticusfinch.org) to take a look at the cover and read a sample poem.

BUT THAT'S NOT ALL! To make the deal even more inviting, if you purchase Judith's book along with David Larsen's Names of the Lion, I'll include a limited edition broadside featuring work by Rob Halpern FOR FREE (while supplies last!)!!

And finally, I should mention that we've moved back to Oakland! You may order books at our website (www.atticusfinch.org) using Pay Pal or credit card, or you can send a check payable to Michael Cross in the amount of ten dollars to our new address:

2325 Ransom Avenue #1
Oakland, CA 94601

All my best,
Michael Cross

↑ Index

24. { brad brace }
five (5) new pleated plaid pamphlets published!
Fri 3 Jul 2009

126-2 Roseate-Dreaminess Rough-Exterior Rough-Indication 127-2 Rumpled-Reproduction Run-Possibilities Royal-Personage 128-2 Rum-and-Coke Rumbling-Dozers Rumored-Role
129-2 Rumour-Factory Rump-Shake Royal-Zenana
130-2 Ruby-Eyes Ruddy-Brilliance Run-the-Risk

five (5) new pleated plaid pamphlets published!
second editions -- now 867 pages with copious illustrations merely $10

{ brad brace }

> Pleated Plaid Pamphlets
> Volumes 126-130 Second Editions > [accompaniment to insatiable abstraction engine]
>
> http://bbrace.laughingsquid.net/abstraction-engine.html
> http://www.bbrace.net/abstraction-engine.html
> [redacted]

brad brace, bbrace, architecture, poetry, engineering, biography, memoir, illustration, map, creative, writing, drama, opera, puzzles, games, samizdat, artists' books, poetry, fluxus, contemporary, art, design, fiction,musical

ppp126-2
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-126-no-2/7352275
ppp127-2
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-127-no-2/7353225
ppp128-2
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-128-no-2/7354986

ppp129-2
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-129-no-2/7354893
ppp130-2
http://www.lulu.com/content/e-book/pleated-plaid-pamphlet-vol-130-no-2/7354943

↑ Index

25. Obododimma Oha

On Being Married to a Man Who Is Married to Books

Fri 3 Jul 2009

On Being Married to a Man Who Is Married to Books<http://x-pensiverrors.blogspot.com/2009/07/on-being-married-to-man-who-is-married.html>
By

Obododimma Oha * http://x-pensiverrors.blogspot.com/2009/07/on-being-married-to-man-who-is-married.html * I have heard it said that an intellectual is a polygamist, for s/he may not just be wedded to a human being whose needs and desires must be given some consideration, but also be similarly attached to books, to academic activities, to the endless pursuit of knowledge. These two commitments do not always submit to each other peacefully and may become the cause of serious agony for the married intellectual. As it is for men who are academics, so it is for their female counterparts. Perhaps, viewed from the perspective of women who are academics, the conflicting demands are more intense in their own case than in the case of men who are academics. In spite of the changes brought into the family by gender sensitization in modern life, women still have to make the home, catering for their husbands and children. And this does not excuse them from living up to the demands of their jobs: as academics they still have to carry out research, read books, teach students, supervise projects, publish articles or books, and engage in other professional activities. Indeed, as Virginia Woolf writes in A Room of One's Own the woman as a (literary artist) needs a space of her own, economic freedom, and freedom to use her mind, in order to function productively and meaningfully. It is certainly not an easy thing for her to have a "room of her own" in the space of her husband when she functions as a scholar. As a male scholar, I imagine, therefore, that it is not very easy for my female colleagues.

As a male scholar married to a woman and to my books, what does my "polygamy" orchestrate for me in my family life? Am I not like the man invited by his chi and his father-in-law to work on their farms on the same day at the same time? If I ignore my father-in-law and decide to work on my chi's farm, my father-in-law would be mad with me and withdraw his daughter (at least, as culturally permitted in the Igbo society in which I was born and raised). If I ignore my chi and decide to work on my father-in-law's farm, my chi would also be mad with me and take my life. So, my tragedy is located somewhere between the possible loss of a wife and the loss of my life. And, being a faithful husband (oh yes I am!) I don't want to lose my wife I swear, neither do I want to lose my life and leave her a widow!

It is 2.00 am and I am in my study, working at the computer again, fighting back the hands of sleep that have been trying to shut my eyes for me. I have to finish reading an article sent to me for assessment and feed in my report on the e-page of an electronic journal. Deadlines are deadlines, especially for electronic gatekeepers. Moreover, I have to prove to the editor of the journal that scholars based in Africa as not as "dead" as the world is made to believe. So, I am here, not really in my study anymore, but in cyberspace, mutually hallucinating with other cyborgs (thanks to Mel Gibson for that idea). I don't know whether I am asleep or awake again, just as I can't say whether I am really Here or There, whether I am real or unreal! Well, in my nowhereness, I see her on the screen of my laptop, first as a pop-up, then as an emoticon. She is snoring and her snores are angry words. A software now, she jumps out of the screen and gets installed on my mind the real computer. I am browsing my mind now, my laptop has vanished and my mind is saying to me …

Are you real? Are you really here? Are you really unreal? OK, she is your art now, she that you cannot browse. She is the message now the medium , she that cannot give you a deadline. Are you not just another brand of falsehood? Sometimes when she needs your attention, you have a book in your hand or you are sitting before a computer, and you must chase that idea through the paragraphs and pages of some fields of thought. Sometimes she is kept waiting in the bedroom, and you are trying to finish writing that article to beat a deadline. Sometimes the food kept for you on the dining table – because you could not join the family at mealtime – gets cold and you have to eat it quietly like a dog, afraid to complain, so as not to start a war. After all, if you didn't want it cold, you should have come to eat it warm!

Books and books and books everywhere. Books on the shelves. Books on the floor. Books on the table. Books in cartons. Books sitting on books. Books inside books, to mark where you have to return to, after angrily going to find out what she wants you to come and see. Books in the study. Books in the bedroom. Books and books and more books arriving. You cannot provide more money for weekend shopping, for you say the pay is low, the tax is high, and you have children's fees to pay soon, but you can't remove your eyes from books. You buy more and more books and smuggle them into the house! Sometimes you claim you got the books for free, even before she accuses you with her eyes. You keep buying books, sometimes three or four copies of the same book. Some copies for yourself; some copies for your students to borrow and disfigure through photocopying or sheer carelessness.

This conference and that seminar and those workshops … where you shop for ideas on how to stay away from her! Absentee husband, you nickname is Professor Awayness, for you are busy providing awareness away from her and the children. Sometimes a week. Sometimes two weeks. And when you are returning from this one, you are leaving for that one. Sometimes you trans-conference or trans-seminar, after all, what's the point coming home to say you are leaving soon?

And your way of thinking! Haven't you been hardened by all those crazy ideas and tortured language that communicates them? So, what do we have here: a human who can really sleep when he is asleep, play when it is playtime, and do stupid things when fun demands it, without caring so much about what this or that theory says? You are discussing a point with her. Just a little argument and you take off as if you are in one of those crazy listserv debates, quoting this book and that book you have read. You see; that's a symptom of the illness that I mentioned earlier! Can you similarly quote her, your wife? No, not all! Has she got quotable ideas? It is books that tell you what to do. It is books that are right enough decide a little exchange between a husband and a wife!

Yes, she needs a husband, not necessarily an academic hero. But you think that being an academic hero counts much in satisfying those needs of hers. And that's one problem: who determines her needs: you, your books, or she? She wants you to include her in your scheme of things, if not the main programme of your life. And you are uncomfortable about this, very. You think your academic life and pursuit could be hindered, if not ruined, by your focus on a human wife or family. Didn't you even once whisper to yourself: a writer married is a writer marred? Another idea you picked from those crazy associates of yours, those apostles of aloneness!

And now you have discovered another opportunity for keeping her lonely (or another opportunity has discovered you the ready tool!): the Internet, with all those blogs you must update, those emails you must read and respond to, those chats (sometimes three or four going on simultaneously), those skirmishes on listservs you must engage in, those downloads and uploads that increase the weight of your mental luggage. So, has she not suddenly become a widow, an "Internet widow," as Clifford Stoll calls it in Silicon Snake Oil?

At the mention of the word "widow", I wake up and I am right on my feet. My wife opens the door of my study and walks in, fear written on her face.
"Why were you screaming?"
"Screaming? Did I scream?"

“Of course, you did! I came to find out what was wrong. And don’t you think it’s time for you to come to the bedroom and lie down?”
And, suddenly, there’s an electricity outage. 4.00 am. Indeed, it is time to go to bed.

--
Obododimma Oha
http://udude.wordpress.com/

Dept. of English
University of Ibadan
Nigeria

&

Fellow, Centre for Peace & Conflict Studies
University of Ibadan

Phone: [redacted];
[redacted];
[redacted].

↑ Index

26. Nicholas Ruiz III

put your theory where your praxis is

Fri 3 Jul 2009

Greetings all!

Happy Independence Day weekend!

In the name of putting my theory where my praxis is - I am running for Congress in 2010, FL District 24...tell your friends and neighbors!

http://intertheory.org/nriiiforcongress2010.html

...and an Independence Day gift:

Bjork - Declare Independence

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=igOWR_-BXJU

pax et lux,

NRIII

Nicholas Ruiz III, Ph.D
NRIII for Congress 2010
http://intertheory.org/nriiiforcongress2010.html

Editor, Kritikos
http://intertheory.org

↑ Index

27. steve russell
Re: mourning & poetics
Fri 3 Jul 2009

Quietist poetry: I've never heard of the term. A whimper, I suppose, is more nuanced than a shout, but some very good not so quiet poems have been poems of mourning. Consider Kaddish. Ginsberg isn't exaclty quiet. Nor is Sylvia Plath, or any of the confessional poets. Perhaps quietist poetry is a way of whispering with a megaphone.

--- On Thu, 7/2/09, Lauren Russell <[redacted]> wrote:

> From: Lauren Russell <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: mourning & poetics
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Thursday, July 2, 2009, 12:52 AM
> What is quietist poetry? I'm really > curious; I've never heard the term.
>
> I tend to think of fragmented poetry (and prose) as best > articulating grief. Have you ever read Kristin Prevallet's
> I, Afterlife: Essay in Mourning Time? And part of what I > love about Alice Notley's work is that her poems have > engaged with grief in so many different ways. I can't > claim to have read the whole book (it's one of the books
> one's not aloud to check out of the New York Public > Library), but the introduction to Patricia Rae's Modernism
> and Mourning makes some interesting points about the > politics of grief and writing about grief. I found it > helpful alongside Ramazini, though I can't claim to have > read all of that, either.
>
> Lauren Russell
>
> Date: Wed, 1 Jul 2009 18:12:15 -0600
> From: Scott Howard <[redacted]>
> Subject: mourning & poetics
>
> Hi, Mary Jo,
>
> Here are a few recommendations, re: mourning &
> poetics.

1. Inventions of Farewell, edited by Sandra Gilbert.
That's an anthology of elegies and elegiac poetics/poetry.

2. Poetry of Mourning, by Jahan Ramazani. Scholarly study.

3.
Both of the above are v. good for twentieth-century
Anglo-American poetry & poetics of loss, but neither really begins to address postmodern poetics. If you're interested, you could also consider this book chapter: "'The Brevities': Formal Mourning, Transgression &
Postmodern American Elegies", in _The World in Time and
Space_
(Talisman House, 2002), 122-46.

Best wishes,
Scott Howard

///

----- Original Message -----
From: Mary Jo Malo <[redacted]>
Date: Wednesday, July 1, 2009 10:52 am
Subject: mourning & poetics
To: [redacted]

I've been sympathetically following the tragic death
of Emma Bernstein
and wonder why "quietist" poetry (and prose, I suppose) seem/s to better express grief. The one exception I've discovered so far is Mary Jo Bang's "Elegy." Who else am I missing?

Additionally, reflecting only slightly upon Ron Silliman's
post-avant/quietist dichotomy, I find the only way
for me to categorize poetry is via my own poor pedantic:
Poetry I Like vs.
Poetry I Don't Like. Does

↑ Index

28. Evan Kennedy seeking Bay Area poets
Fri 3 Jul 2009

I'm soon moving to the Bay Area and would like to hear about the poetry community there (reading series, bookstores). I especially want to hear from poets in their 20s and poets who run small presses. Does anyone wish to shed some light for me?

xoxo,

Evan

↑ Index

29. jared schickling
RECONFIGURATIONS call for work
Fri 3 Jul 2009

Dear All,

Reconfigurations: A Journal for Poetics and Poetry / Literature and Culture is currently seeking submissions for its third issue.

In addition to the general call for work pasted below, we’re seeking a gathering of statements / questions / perspectives on the current status of poetry book reviews and suggestions for how that genre could be re-imagined, re-invigorated, etc.

We're open to any number of ways this might be approached. Pieces about reviews, email conversations about reviews, unique reviews themselves, reviews of reviews...we'd like to see it.

Please feel free to forward as you wish, and to send your submissions on this topic to: [redacted]

If you’re interested but the August deadline listed below is too soon, please don't hesitate to contact.

All the best,
Jared Schickling

CALL FOR WORK: Volume Three

Volume three of Reconfigurations seeks innovative works concerning immanence / imminence—that is, the phenomena of emergence & becoming, appearance & disappearance—across a wide range of signification: matters inherent or abiding; objects intentional or manifest; perceptions noetical or pataphysical; actions impending or close-at-hand; communities realized or indeterminate.

Submissions: April thru August
Publication: November, 2009

Electronic Submissions: [redacted].
Submissions should be attached as a single .doc, .rtf, or .txt file.
Visuals
should be attached individually as .jpg, .gif or .bmp files. Please include the word “submission” in the subject line of your message.

Windows Live™: Keep your life in sync.
http://windowslive.com/explore?
ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_BR_life_in_synch_062009

↑ Index

30. Rob McLennan
Marcus McCann in 12 or 20 questions
Fri 3 Jul 2009

Ottawa poet Marcus McCann participates in the 12 or 20 questions series;

http://robmclennan.blogspot.com/2009/07/12-or-20-questions-with-marcus-mccann.html

other recent interviews include Forrest Gander & Tim Conley; forthcoming: Nino Ricci, Lisa Robertson & others;

rob

-- writer/editor/publisher ...STANZAS mag, above/ground press & Chaudiere Books (www.chaudierebooks.com) ...coord.,SPAN-O + ottawa small press fair ...14th poetry coll'n - gifts (Talon) ...2nd novel - missing persons www.aboveground press.blogspot.com * http://robmclennan.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

31. amy king
Celebrate the 4th on the 5th...
Fri 3 Jul 2009

July 5th - Buckminster Fuller Performance

SUNDAY, JULY 5th2-4:30pm 4th-floor lobbyMuseum of Contemporary Art220 East Chicago Avenue DURATIONAL PERFORMANCEinstigated by Jennifer Karmin & Ira S. Murfin This is a performance of a transcript of the video Buckminster Fuller Meets the Hippies in Golden Gate Park. You are invited to watch this performance for as long or as briefly as you like. You are also invited to be a performer in it. You may participate for as long or as briefly as you like, and return as often as you wish. FINAL DAY OF EXHIBITBuckminster Fuller: Starting with the Universe is a fascinating mix of utopian vision and organic pragmatism, combining models, sketches, and other artifacts -- many on view for the first time -- represent six decades of the artist's integrated approach to housing, transportation, communication, and cartography. The exhibition features numerous models of Fuller's projects including his famous geodesic dome. Fuller's extensive connections with Chicago are also highlighted through photographs and documents from his years spent living, teaching, and working in the city.

FOR MORE, including -- "Waiting 4 the Bus", "Series A: Mary Kasimor and Carrie Hunter" on July 8th, "First Fridays at St. Paul's" and other items of intrigue, hit:

http://www.chicagopoetrycalendar.org/

"God is a verb, not a noun." "Truth is a tendency."

--Buckminster Fuller

http://www.chicagopoetrycalendar.org/

_____

Amy's Alias

http://amyking.org/

↑ Index

32. Dan Wilcox
Poets in the Park, July 11: Mary Kathryn Jablonski & Randall Horton
Fri 3 Jul 2009

Poets in the Park 2009

Saturdays in July

at the Robert Burns statue

Washington Park, Albany

at Henry Johnson Blvd. & Hudson Ave.

July 11, 7PM

Mary Kathryn Jablonski

Randall Horton

July 18, 7PM

LisaAnn LoBasso

Tom Nicotera

July 25, 7PM

Lori Desrosiers

George Wallace

Free! & open to the public (just like the park)

Bring chairs, blankets, etc. to sit on

Rain site: the Social Justice Center, 33 Central Ave.

sponsored by

the Poetry Motel Foundation & the Hudson Valley Writers Guild

This project is made possible in part through COMMUNITY ART$GRANTS, a program funded through the State and Local Partnership Program of the New York State Council on the arts, a State agency and the Arts Center of the Capital Region.

for information call [redacted]

↑ Index

33. Lauren Russell

Re: mourning & poetics

Fri 3 Jul 2009

It seems to me like a lot of Notley's work is about grief--starting with a number of the poems in Mysteries of Small Houses, including "Towards a Definition" and "The Person That You Were Will Be Replaced," the longer poem "From the Beginning," which was published as a chapbook by Owl Press, and the epic The Descent of Alette. Actually, every time I hear Notley read, I hear grieving in her work. What's really remarkable is how many different ways she's found of engaging with it in her poems.

Lauren Russell

Date: Thu, 2 Jul 2009 10:12:05 -0700
From: Mary Kasimor <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: mourning & poetics

Lauren, Yes, the poem "White Phosphorus" is a beautiful poem about mourning= for her brother. Is that the Alice Notley poem you were thinking about?

*

↑ Index

34. Scott Howard
mourning & poetics
Fri 3 Jul 2009

---

* Quietist poetry . . . ? Well, Quietism seems to have emerged in the seventeenth century as a form of religious mysticism, but the term has occasionally been used to describe various works (philosophical, poetic, political) that advocate a middle way between ideology and indifference. Sir Thomas Browne (also 17th c.) was called a 'quietist', but he was really more of a skeptical essayist (in the trad. of Montaigne). Rae Armantrout's recent work strikes me as quietist in mood/tone.

* Prevallet's Afterlife: Essay in Mourning Time is very good. The literature on mourning and poetics is diverse and extensive. See Ramazani's bibliography, for example. See also: Beyond Consolation by Melissa Zeiger for a post-Freudian take on things. Ramazani's book works well for the modernist paradigm, but to get beyond that framework, one needs to reconfigure the whole notion of resistance. On that note, see: "'The Brevities': Formal Mourning, Transgression & Postmodern American Elegies", in _The World in Time and Space_ (Talisman House, 2002), 122-46, which covers a lot of ground.

* Fragments and grief/mourning? . . . Have you read Mallarme's "Pour un tombeau d'Anatole"? Paul Auster's translation (North Point, 1983) is great. A classic.

///

----- Original Message -----
From: Lauren Russell <[redacted]>
Date: Thursday, July 2, 2009 11:07 am
Subject: Re: mourning & poetics
To: [redacted]

> What is quietist poetry? I'm really curious; I've never heard the term.
>
> I tend to think of fragmented poetry (and prose) as best articulating > grief. Have you ever read Kristin Prevallet's I, Afterlife: Essay in > Mourning Time? And part of what I love about Alice Notley's work is > that her poems have engaged with grief in so many different ways. I > can't claim to have read the whole book (it's one of the books one's > not aloud to check out of the New York Public Library), but the > introduction to Patricia Rae's Modernism and Mourning makes some > interesting points about the politics of grief and writing about > grief. I found it helpful alongside Ramazini, though I can't claim to > have read all of that, either.
>
> Lauren Russell
>
///

↑ Index

35. Jefferson Davis

Do Tell

Fri 3 Jul 2009

Do Tell, a new festival in Hendersonville, NC, will feature poets Thomas Meyer, Laura Hope-Gill, Sebastian Matthews, Thomas Rain Crowe, and myself. It will also feature a passel of storytellers, masters of Jack Tale, Cherokee lore, Lincoln apocrypha, myths of St.George and the dragon, and sundry other bits of hermetic hearsay. It all gets underway next Saturday, July 11th, at 11:00 am.

If you're not from around here, Hendersonville is just a few miles south of Asheville, a cultural crossroads situated between the Blue Ridge and the Great Smokies in the mountains of Western North Carolina. It's well worth a visit - especially this time of year, when temperatures in the flatlands reach into the high nineties. Not to gloat, but our nights are still in the fifties, and the porch thermometer tells me it's 75 F at 5:30 post meridian.

Check the website at http://dotellfestival.org for the full schedule and more information about the performers.

And do come on up and see us!

Jeff Davis

↑ Index

36. David Chirot

Re: mourning & poetics

Fri 3 Jul 2009

When i first heard of quietest poetry i thought it meant the language and post language writers as they're so quiet & absent from everything happening off the page of their work

(Ironically if not a "lyric self" perhaps more like the lyric ego??---I don't know- though involvement with writer and words on page to the exclusion of the world in many ways beyond the immediate self—seems to be a major part of both language and what siliman calls quietist poetry

Actually there is a real Quietist Poetry, and a historical Roman Catholic heresy called Quietism, which is the practice and belief in attainting a state of perfection during life, a state which is sinless and is found through a passivity and contemplation in which the emptying of the mind and annihilation of the self make possible a perfect union with God. Quietism as a movement was very strong and widespread in Italy, Spain and France in the 17th Century and its influence has been found in writers who weren't directly Quietist yet share many of the beliefs and express them in their writings—St Theresa of Avila and St John of the cross for example.

There are also besides this 17th century existence of Quietist that had to be violently executed so to speak extracted from the main body of the Catholic Church—other much earlier strains of a Quietist form which did influence and grow into the Christian Quietism. The earliest forms are along the lines of the Stoic Philosophy and later its Roman descendents, which is how it must have "hooked up" with the Christian version.

A Quietist in a Christian sense then and not necessarily be a Christian, but is a Mystic, one who attains the union with God, or the Cloud of unknowing, the Spirit, and this occurs while the person is alive; it is no a heaven above but one here below—that is one of the heretical aspects of it as well as the idea that one may fuse with God in the manner of a personal individual contact as is the mystic experience, called Quietist or not.

In Louis the XIV's time, many prominent persons became Quietist, so it was under the protection of the king, and at the same time considered outlawed.

A poet like Gerard Manley Hopkins of r example might be thought of as a Quietist and d also the poets whose work involves a deep fusing with Nature as an energy of (Inscape) spiritual power outside the human self before which that self must be sacrificed to break down the barriers between the human being and the Divine being.

(In other words Quietism and Quietist poetry is transgressive, is about the attainment of non-self, which might be accept by Siliman after a fashion, yet the fusion with a Divine Spirit , something far greater than human being—perhaps wd not be so much accepted.) Though of course it is pretty idiotic of me to pretend to speak for Mr Siliman! O I apologize if the speculation “crosses the line.”!--)

I don’t see much difference between siliman and a quietist of the kind he describes, which is quite different fro the heretical form of Quietism. (Robert Grenier might be considered a Quietist poet of the heretical kind--) and just wrote a piece re a poem by nada Gordon and one by James Levine being pretty much the same despite one of them being Flarf and the other supposedly conventional

(each form, movement, style, establishes its own conventions and then has conventions to hear them discussed in the conventional manners--)

re grief i think the greatest line i read in English is the last line of Faulkner’s the wild palms
"between grief and nothing i take grief."

Edgar Allan Poe, whose bi-centenary it is, wrote an immense amount on grief throughout his work and it is really his main theme, subject--source of energy--"mournful and never ending remembrance' as he wrote-- "death looked gigantically down"

a language of mourning and "working through it" in the sense of Freud’s the work of mourning (which could also be thought of as the work of morning, in the way that Poe's morning on the Wissihican puns on Mourning on the Wissihican--) is Robert Smithson’s work and writings with earthworks, in which the mourning for the destruction of landscapes and earlier earthworks such as Indian mounds--is "worked through" by bringing Earthworks art to collaborate with the landscape itself using technology and yes also the corporations responsible for the disasters--to work together to create a new landscape as it were "out of the shell of the old" as the Wobblies say-- the mourning of the earth and the Morning of Time--in conjunction --the mourning of the Goddess, Mother earth, the creation--and how to work with the earth in "working through it together' with the humans who have brought the mourning about--

Mohamed Choukri’s great work For Bread Alone is a work of mourning re his brother, killed y their father --and at the same time a morning as the twenty year old illiterate Mohamed Choukri decides to learn to read and write and become a writer--in classical Arabic, too--very difficult for an educated person let alone an illiterate street person-- i know it is not poetry but then prose is often just as or more poetic than much poetry-so i'd include the novel by the great Catalan writer Merce Rodorede, Camellia Street

Whitman wrote many mourning poems including the famous one for Lincoln--and Robert Frost's Death of a Hired hand though dirge like is certainly a mourning expressed throughout without intruding-- Shakespeare has many a fine farewell in his poetry and plays-- mourning and grief--and the ancient Greek dramas and poetry have some of the greatest-- in the western languages that have read

"At five o'clock in the afternoon" the famous Lorca poem re a bullfighter killed in the ring--

(a lot of Dylan Thomas' poems are the refusal to mourn, which is paradoxically form of mourning----"Do not go gentle into that good night', "Refusal to mourn the death by fire of child in London" etc—

One moment of grief I recall very specifically is the last few lines of Toni Morrison's Sula—

And the horrific killing of the children in Jude obscure by their own parents—

And the greatest one I know

"Death letter" by Son House—you can find him singing it in various versions on you tube

It's very good to hear from you!

And "glory Fourth"-!

--david
On Fri, Jul 3, 2009 at 7:54 AM, steve russell <[redacted]>wrote:

> Quietist poetry: I've never heard of the term. A whimper, I suppose, is more nuanced than a shout, but some very good not so quiet poems have been poems of mourning. Consider Kaddish. Ginsberg isn't exaclty quiet. Nor is Sylvia Plath, or any of the confessional poets. Perhaps quietist poetry is a way of whispering with a megaphone.
>
> --- On Thu, 7/2/09, Lauren Russell <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> From: Lauren Russell <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: mourning & poetics
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Thursday, July 2, 2009, 12:52 AM
> What is quietist poetry? I'm really curious; I've never heard the term.
>
> I tend to think of fragmented poetry (and prose) as best articulating grief. Have you ever read Kristin Prevallet's

I, Afterlife: Essay in Mourning Time? And part of what I love about Alice Notley's work is that her poems have engaged with grief in so many different ways. I can't claim to have read the whole book (it's one of the books one's not aloud to check out of the New York Public Library), but the introduction to Patricia Rae's Modernism and Mourning makes some interesting points about the politics of grief and writing about grief. I found it helpful alongside Ramazini, though I can't claim to have read all of that, either.

Lauren Russell

Date: Wed, 1 Jul 2009 18:12:15 -0600
From: Scott Howard <[redacted]>
Subject: mourning & poetics

Hi, Mary Jo,

Here are a few recommendations, re: mourning & poetics.

1. Inventions of Farewell, edited by Sandra Gilbert. That's an anthology of elegies and elegiac poetics/poetry.

2. Poetry of Mourning, by Jahan Ramazani. Scholarly study.

3.
Both of the above are v. good for twentieth-century Anglo-American poetry & poetics of loss, but neither really begins to address postmodern poetics. If you're interested, you could also consider this book chapter: "'The Brevities': Formal Mourning, Transgression & Postmodern American Elegies", in _The World in Time and Space_
(Talisman House, 2002), 122-46.

Best wishes,
Scott Howard

///

----- Original Message -----

> From: Mary Jo Malo <[redacted]>
> Date: Wednesday, July 1, 2009 10:52 am
> Subject: mourning & poetics
> To: [redacted]
>
> I've been sympathetically following the tragic death of Emma Bernstein
> and wonder why "quietist" poetry (and prose, I suppose) seem/s to > better express grief. The one exception I've discovered so far is Mary > Jo Bang's "Elegy." Who else am I missing?
>
> Additionally, reflecting only slightly upon Ron Silliman's
> post-avant/quietist dichotomy, I find the only way for me to > categorize poetry is via my own poor pedantic: Poetry I Like vs.
> Poetry I Don't Like. Does

↑ Index

37. Jonathan Penton

Unlikely's July 4th Issue is here!

Fri 3 Jul 2009

Thanks to the assistance of Luis Cuauhtemoc Berriozabal, Unlikely 2.0's 2009 July 4th Issue has arrived, featuring:

Three Songs by David Rovics
A Neon Film by Jack Feldstein
An Interview with Aviva Chomsky on coal mining in Kentucky and Colombia, by Hans Bennett Walter Brasch on /People/'s 100 most beautiful people
Sheila Samples on nuclear warfare

Evelyn Pringle's detailed investigation into the FDA's treatment of antipsychotics
"Constitutional Rubbish" by Joel S. Hirschhorn
"Overpass:" A Creative Essay by Dean Kisling
"Whatever Happened to the Man with the Familiar Face?" a Novella by Rion Amilcar Scott
More Fiction by Tom Bradley, Robert Ciesla and Stephen Muret Photographs by Gabriela Anaya Valdepeña, Christopher Woods, and Chuck Taylor and Poetry by Amy King, Leonard J. Cirino, justin.barrett, Hosho McCreesh, Gene Keller, León De La Rosa, Chris D'Errico, Mark Kerstetter, Mark Cunningham, and Deidre Elizabeth

Luis, Assistant Editor Gabriel Ricard, Film Editor Belinda Subraman, and Art Editor C. Derick Varn have assembled a varied, complex, in-depth and absurdist look at whatever it is we're doing in this country, or at least what Mexicans and Australians think we're doing, which is better. K. R. Copeland has topped it with a new logo, and I've contracted the H1N1 virus for research purposes. Check it out; we think you'll love it.

--
Jonathan Penton
http://www.unlikelystories.org/

↑ Index

38. Ruth Lepson
July 25 & 26
Fri 3 Jul 2009

Hi, all,

If you¹re around NYC Sat July 25 come join us at Cornelia St Cafe at 6 to hear my jazz/poetry group, low road. We are Noah Preminger, one of the hottest young musicians in the country, on sax; Eric Lane, an eclectic keyboard player who does hip-hop, afro beat and jazz; and me.

On Sun, July 26 at 3, Tim Peterson, Joel Sloman, Kate Broad and I are reading at Unnamable Books in Park Slope, Brooklyn. (See website for new location.) If weather permits, we¹ll be in the garden.

Hope to see you.

Ruth Lepson

↑ Index

39. Murat Nemet-Nejat
Re: mourning & poetics
Sat 4 Jul 2009

Lauren,

Yes, A lot of Mysterios of Old Houses is about mourning and recovery from it. Two people die in it. As far as I know Poe also uses the term "quietist); but the intensely negative term "quietist" hads come to mean in our day is, In my view, utterly Ron Silliman's invention.

Ciao,

Murat

On Fri, Jul 3, 2009 at 3:40 PM, Lauren Russell <[redacted]>wrote:

> It seems to me like a lot of Notley's work is about grief--starting with a number of the poems in Mysteries of Small Houses, including "Towards a Definition" and "The Person That You Were Will Be Replaced," the longer poem "From the Beginning," which was published as a chapbook by Owl Press, and the epic The Descent of Alette. Actually, every time I hear Notley read, I hear grieving in her work. What's really remarkable is how many different ways she's found of engaging with it in her poems.
>
> Lauren Russell
>
> Date: Thu, 2 Jul 2009 10:12:05 -0700
> From: Mary Kasimor <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: mourning & poetics
>
> Lauren, Yes, the poem "White Phosphorus" is a beautiful poem about mourning= > for her brother. Is that the Alice Notley poem you were thinking about?
>
> *

↑ Index

40. Maria Damon
Re: mourning & poetics
Sat 4 Jul 2009

---

thank you for pointing this out. ron silliman's term (the school of quietude or something like that) seems to take no account of this earlier usage, so i find it very misleading; i wish he'd use something else, if he has to use anything at all. i find terms like this and also bernstein's "official verse culture" somewhat overly general," though at least the latter addresses institutional processes rather than poetry "itself," if there is such a thing.

on the topic of mourning: has someone already mentioned Peter Sacks's work on elegy?

Scott Howard wrote:
> * Quietist poetry . . . ? Well, Quietism seems to have emerged in the seventeenth century as a form of religious mysticism, but the term has occasionally been used to describe various works (philosophical, poetic, political) that advocate a middle way between ideology and indifference. Sir Thomas Browne (also 17th c.) was called a 'quietist', but he was really more of a skeptical essayist (in the trad. of Montaigne). Rae Armantrout's recent work strikes me as quietist in mood/tone.
>
> * Prevallet's Afterlife: Essay in Mourning Time is very good. The literature on mourning and poetics is diverse and extensive. See Ramazani's bibliography, for example. See also: Beyond Consolation by Melissa Zeiger for a post-Freudian take on things. Ramazani's book works well for the modernist paradigm, but to get beyond that framework, one needs to reconfigure the whole notion of resistance. On that note, see: "'The Brevities': Formal Mourning, Transgression & Postmodern American Elegies", in _The World in Time and Space_ (Talisman House, 2002), 122-46, which covers a lot of ground.
>
> * Fragments and grief/mourning? . . . Have you read Mallarme's "Pour un tombeau d'Anatole"? Paul Auster's translation (North Point, 1983) is great. A classic.
>
> ///
>
>
>
> ----- Original Message -----
> From: Lauren Russell <[redacted]>
> Date: Thursday, July 2, 2009 11:07 am
> Subject: Re: mourning & poetics

> To: [redacted]
>
>
>
>> What is quietist poetry? I'm really curious; I've never heard the term.
>>
>> I tend to think of fragmented poetry (and prose) as best articulating >> grief. Have you ever read Kristin Prevallet's I, Afterlife: Essay in >> Mourning Time? And part of what I love about Alice Notley's work is >> that her poems have engaged with grief in so many different ways. I >> can't claim to have read the whole book (it's one of the books one's >> not aloud to check out of the New York Public Library), but the >> introduction to Patricia Rae's Modernism and Mourning makes some >> interesting points about the politics of grief and writing about >> grief. I found it helpful alongside Ramazini, though I can't claim to >> have read all of that, either.
>>
>> Lauren Russell
>>
>>
> ///
>
>

↑ Index

41. Rob McLennan

a compact of words, rob mclennan

Sat 4 Jul 2009

---

my fifteenth trade poetry title, a compact of words, is apparently out now, with Irish publisher, Salmon;

http://www.salmonpoetry.com/acompactofwords.html

with parts of it appearing previously in such places as Jacket magazine, here;

http://jacketmagazine.com/18/c-mclenn.html

check the publisher for ordering and/or review copies; i should have copies myself in a week or so, hopefully, for anyone else;

rob

-- writer/editor/publisher ...STANZAS mag, above/ground press & Chaudiere Books (www.chaudierebooks.com) ...coord.,SPAN-O + ottawa small press

fair ...14th poetry coll'n - gifts (Talon) ...2nd novel - missing persons www.abovegroundpress.blogspot.com * http://robmclennan.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

42. Mark Prejsnar
Re: mourning & poetics
Sat 4 Jul 2009

---

it seems appropriate, even necessary, to respond to this coincidence:

announcing, for all those who will be in or near north Georgia next weekend, a poetry event that makes clear the distinction between quietIST and quietNESS ...

it's the latest in the bi-monthly series of performance events, Language Harm, perpetrated by the Atlanta Poets Group; and this month there is (or are) a dual theme (or dual themes):

quietness / economic downturn

Friday, July 10

at: Eyedrum
290 Martin Luther King Jr. Drive
Atlanta

8:00 pm

$5 free for Eyedrum members for directions to Eyedrum:

http://eyedrum.org/

for further disruptive adventures of the APG:
http://atlantapoetsgroup.blogspot.com/

^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^

be there or be mainstream!

--mark prejsnar

"Whenthey say nonsense, it's usually an accusation."

--Randy Prunty

---------- Original message from David Chirot <[redacted]>: ----------

> When i first heard of quietest poetry i thought it meant the language and > post language writers as theyâ€™re so quiet & absent from everything > happening off the page of their work

>
> (Ironically if not a â€œlyric selfâ€ perhaps more like the lyric ego??---I > donâ€™t know-though involvement with writer and words on page to the exclusion > of the world in many ways beyond the immediate selfâ€”seems to be a major part > of both language and what siliman calls quietist poetry
>
>
>
> Actually there is a real Quietist Poetry, and a historical Roman Catholic > heresy called Quietism, which is the practice and belief in attainting a > state of perfection during life, a state which is sinless and is found > through a passivity and contemplation in which the emptying of the mind and > annihilation of the self make possible a perfect union with God. Quietism > as a movement was very strong and widespread in Italy, Spain and France in > the 17th Century and its influence has been found in writers who werenâ€™t > directly Quietist yet share many of the beliefs and express them in their > writingsâ€”St Theresa of Avila and St John of the cross for example.
>
>
>
> There are also besides this 17th century existence of Quietist that had to > be violently executed so to speak extracted from the main body of the > Catholic Churchâ€”other much earlier strains of a Quietist form which did > influence and grow into the Christian Quietism. The earliest forms are > along the lines of the Stoic Philosophy and later its Roman descendents, > which is how it must have â€œhooked upâ€ with the Christian version.
>
>
>
> A Quietist in a Christian sense then and not necessarily be a Christian, but > is a Mystic, one who attains the union with God, or the Cloud of unknowing, > the Spirit, and this occurs while the person is alive; it is no a heaven > above but one here belowâ€”that is one of the heretical aspects of it as well > as the idea that one may fuse with God in the manner of a personal > individual contact as is the mystic experience, called Quietist or not.
>
>
>
> In Louis the XIVâ€™s time, many prominent persons became Quietist, so it was > under the protection of the king, and at the same time considered outlawed.

>
>
>
> A poet like Gerard Manley Hopkins of r example might be thought of as a > Quietist and d also the poets whose work involves a deep fusing with Nature > as an energy of (Inscape) spiritual power outside the human self before > which that self must be sacrificed to break down the barriers between the > human being and the Divine being.
>
>
>
>
>
> (In other words Quietism and Quietist poetry is transgressive, is about the > attainment of non-self, which might be accept by Siliman after a fashion, > yet the fusion with a Divine Spirit , something far greater than human > beingâ€”perhaps wd not be so much accepted.) Though of course it is pretty > idiotic of me to pretend to speak for Mr Siliman! O I apologize if the > speculation â€œcrosses the line.â€!--)
>
>
> I donâ€™t see much difference between siliman and a quietist of the kind he > describes, which is quite different fro the heretical form of Quietism.
> (Robert Grenier might be considered a Quietist poet of the heretical kind--)
>
>
> and just wrote a piece re a poem by nada Gordon and one by James Levine > being pretty much the same despite one of them being Flarf and the other > supposedly conventional
>
> (each form, movement, style, establishes its own conventions and then has > conventions to hear them discussed in the conventional manners--)
>
> re grief i think the greatest line i read in English is the last line of > Faulknerâ€™s the wild palms
> "between grief and nothing i take grief."
>
> Edgar Allan Poe, whose bi-centenary it is, wrote an immense amount on grief > throughout his work and it is really his main theme, subject--source of > energy--"mournful and never ending remembrance' as he wrote--
> "death looked gigantically down"

>
> a language of mourning and "working through it" in the sense of Freudâ€™s the > work of mourning (which could also be thought of as the work of morning, in > the way that Poe's morning on the Wissihican puns on Mourning on the > Wissihican--)
> is Robert Smithsonâ€™s work and writings with earthworks, in which the > mourning for the destruction of landscapes and earlier earthworks such as > Indian mounds--is "worked through" by bringing Earthworks art to collaborate > with the landscape itself using technology and yes also the corporations > responsible for the disasters--to work together to create a new landscape as > it were "out of the shell of the old" as the Wobblies say--
>
> the mourning of the earth and the Morning of Time--in conjunction --the > mourning of the Goddess, Mother earth, the creation--and how to work with > the earth in "working through it together' with the humans who have brought > the mourning about--
>
> Mohamed Choukriâ€™s great work For Bread Alone is a work of mourning re his > brother, killed y their father --and at the same time a morning as the > twenty year old illiterate Mohamed Choukri decides to learn to read and > write and become a writer--in classical Arabic, too--very difficult for an > educated person let alone an illiterate street person-- > i know it is not poetry but then prose is often just as or more poetic than > much poetry-so iâ€™d include the novel by the great Catalan writer Merce > Rodorede, Camellia Street
>
> Whitman wrote many mourning poems including the famous one for Lincoln-- > and Robert Frost's Death of a Hired hand though dirge like is certainly a > mourning expressed throughout without intruding-- > Shakespeare has many a fine farewell in his poetry and plays-- > mourning and grief--and the ancient Greek dramas and poetry have some of the > greatest-- > in the western languages that have read
>
> "At five o'clock in the afternoon" the famous Lorca poem re a bullfighter > killed in the ring--
>
> (a lot of Dylan Thomas' poems are the refusal to mourn, which is > paradoxically form of mourning----"Do not go gentle into that good > nightâ€™, â€œRefusal > to mourn the death by fire of child in Londonâ€ etcâ€”

>
>
>
> One moment of grief I recall very specifically is the last few lines of Toni > Morrisonâ€™s Sulaâ€”
>
>
>
> And the horrific killing of the children in Jude obscure by their own > parentsâ€”
>
>
>
> And the greatest one I know
>
> â€œDeath letterâ€ by Son Houseâ€”you can find him singing it in various versions > on you tube
>
> Itâ€™s very good to hear from you!
>
> And â€œglory Fourthâ€-!
>
> --david
> On Fri, Jul 3, 2009 at 7:54 AM, steve russell
wrote:
>
> > Quietist poetry: I've never heard of the term. A whimper, I suppose, is > > more nuanced than a shout, but some very good not so quiet poems have been > > poems of mourning. Consider Kaddish. Ginsberg isn't exaclty quiet. Nor is > > Sylvia Plath, or any of the confessional poets. Perhaps quietist poetry is a > > way of whispering with a megaphone.
> >
> > --- On Thu, 7/2/09, Lauren Russell wrote:
> >
> > > From: Lauren Russell
> > > Subject: Re: mourning & poetics
> > > To: [redacted]

> > > Date: Thursday, July 2, 2009, 12:52 AM
> > > What is quietist poetry? I'm really > > > curious; I've never heard the term.
> > >
> > > I tend to think of fragmented poetry (and prose) as best > > > articulating grief. Have you ever read Kristin Prevallet's
> > > I, Afterlife: Essay in Mourning Time? And part of what I > > > love about Alice Notley's work is that her poems have > > > engaged with grief in so many different ways. I can't > > > claim to have read the whole book (it's one of the books
> > > one's not aloud to check out of the New York Public > > > Library), but the introduction to Patricia Rae's Modernism > > > and Mourning makes some interesting points about the > > > politics of grief and writing about grief. I found it > > > helpful alongside Ramazini, though I can't claim to have > > > read all of that, either.
> > >
> > > Lauren Russell
> > >
> > > Date: Wed, 1 Jul 2009 18:12:15 -0600
> > > From: Scott Howard
> > > Subject: mourning & poetics
> > >
> > > Hi, Mary Jo,
> > >
> > > Here are a few recommendations, re: mourning &
> > > poetics.
> > >
> > > 1. Inventions of Farewell, edited by Sandra Gilbert.
> > > That's an anthology of elegies and elegiac poetics/poetry.
> > >
> > > 2. Poetry of Mourning, by Jahan Ramazani. Scholarly > > > study.
> > >
> > > 3.
> > > Both of the above are v. good for twentieth-century
> > > Anglo-American > > > poetry & poetics of loss, but neither really begins to > > > address
> > > postmodern poetics. If you're interested, you could also > > > consider this > > > book chapter: "'The Brevities': Formal Mourning,

> > > Transgression &
> > > Postmodern American Elegies", in _The World in Time and > > > Space_
> > > (Talisman House, 2002), 122-46.
> > >
> > > Best wishes,
> > > Scott Howard
> > >
> > > ///
> > >
> > >
> > > ----- Original Message -----
> > > From: Mary Jo Malo
> > > Date: Wednesday, July 1, 2009 10:52 am
> > > Subject: mourning & poetics
> > > To: [redacted]
> > >
> > >
> > > > I've been sympathetically following the tragic death
> > > of Emma Bernstein
> > > > and wonder why "quietist" poetry (and prose, I > > > suppose) seem/s to > > > > better express grief. The one exception I've > > > discovered so far is Mary > > > > Jo Bang's "Elegy." Who else am I missing?
> > > >
> > > > Additionally, reflecting only slightly upon Ron > > > Silliman's
> > > > post-avant/quietist dichotomy, I find the only way
> > > for me to > > > > categorize poetry is via my own poor pedantic:
> > > Poetry I Like vs.
> > > > Poetry I Don't Like. Does
> > > >
> > >
> > >
> > >
> > >
> > >
> >
> >
> >

> >
> >
>

↑ Index

43. Lauren Russell
Re: mourning & poetics
Sun 5 Jul 2009

Thanks for the recommendations, Scott. I'll keep an eye out for the Mallarme. And thanks for the definition and long history of "quietism," David, though I'm still not really sure what it is. Maybe one has to follow Siliman's blog to understand the current usage?

What happened to the original poster of this query? I'd be interested in her thoughts on the matter.

Lauren Russell

↑ Index

44. Andrew Lundwall
scantily clad update!
Sun 5 Jul 2009

---

new titles:

Interests by Nada Gordon

The Empire by Mark Leidner

Last New Death by Rob MacDonald

The Sin Sonnets (A Redouble) by Amy Newman

All My Poems by Nate Pritts

The Execution of Little Maude by Jeffrey Skinner

Take 11 Wolf Teeth and Call Me in the Morning by Abraham Smith

A Series of Ad Hoc Permutations, or RUBY Love-Songs by Joshua Ware

read these & other SCP e-chaps at http://scantilycladpress.blogspot.com

↑ Index

45. Aryanil Mukherjee
Kaurab International Poetry Reading Series:: Event #4
Sun 5 Jul 2009

Dear All

12th July is Chilean myth Pablo Neruda's 105th birthday. While more is perhaps yet to be excavated from Neruda's ignored and forgotten work, his known work has become mythical over the years. And sadly, like all mythical walls, it often stands in the way to language-wide cross-sections of innovative and explorative poets, wildflower and mushroom collectors of all linguistic sorts, in all of Ibero-America today.

Kaurab International Poetry Reading Series proudly presents an exclusive Chilean reading in Kolkata, India on the evening of July 12, 2009. The main reader of the evening will be Madrid based young Chilean poet Violeta Medina. Subhro Bandopadhyay, a polyglotic young Bengali poet who writes simultaneously in Bangla and Espanol and lives in both Spain and India, will introduce the poet.

The event is organized by Santanu Bandopadhyay, on behalf of Kaurab.

English Announcement -
http://www.kaurab.com/kabita_camp/kaurabshaal/violeta-reading.pdf

Bangla Announcement -
http://www.kaurab.com/kabita_camp/kaurabshaal/

A documentary film on forgotten Chilean poetic genious Gonzalo Rojas made by Violeta Media will also be screened that evening.

Space is limited, but we would still like to extend an invitation to everyone staying/living in Kolkata on 12th July, 2009.

Aryanil Mukherjee
KAURAB
www.kaurab.com

↑ Index

46. Aryanil Mukherjee
Kaurab International Poetry Reading Series:: Event 4
Sun 5 Jul 2009

Dear All

12th July is Chilean myth Pablo Neruda's 105th birthday. While more is perhaps yet to be excavated from Neruda's ignored and forgotten work, his known work has become mythical over the years. And sadly, like all mythical walls, it often stands in the way to language-wide cross-sections of innovative and explorative poets, wildflower and mushroom collectors of all linguistic sorts, in all of Ibero-America today.

Kaurab International Poetry Reading Series proudly presents an exclusive Chilean reading in Kolkata, India on the evening of July 12, 2009. The main reader of the evening will be Madrid based young Chilean poet Violeta Medina. Subhro Bandopadhyay, a polyglotic young Bengali poet who writes simultaneously in Bangla and Espanol and lives in both Spain and India, will introduce the poet.

The event is organized by Santanu Bandopadhyay, on behalf of Kaurab.

English Announcement -
http://www.kaurab.com/kabita_camp/kaurabshaal/violeta-reading.pdf

Bangla Announcement -
http://www.kaurab.com/kabita_camp/kaurabshaal/

A documentary film on forgotten Chilean poetic genious Gonzalo Rojas made by Violeta Media will also be screened that evening.

Space is limited, but we would still like to extend an invitation to everyone staying/living in Kolkata on 12th July, 2009.

Aryanil Mukherjee
KAURAB
www.kaurab.com

↑ Index

47. steve russell
Re: mourning & poetics
Sun 5 Jul 2009

---

beautiful essay, David. In D.C., mourning goes public with memorials to teens gunned down as a result of drug violence. Around a tree or a street lamp, photos, diary entries, notes from the bereaved, and other assorted momentoes.
--- On Fri, 7/3/09, David Chirot <[redacted]> wrote:

> From: David Chirot <[redacted]>
> Subject: Re: mourning & poetics
> To: [redacted]
> Date: Friday, July 3, 2009, 5:46 PM
> When i first heard of quietest poetry
> i thought it meant the language and > post language writers as theyâ€™re so quiet &Â > absent from everything
> happening off the page of their work

(Ironically if not a â€œlyric selfâ€ perhaps more like the lyric ego??---I donâ€™t know-though involvement with writer and words on page to the exclusion of the world in many ways beyond the immediate selfâ€”seems to be a major part of both language and what siliman calls quietist poetry

Actually there is a real Quietist Poetry, and a historical Roman Catholic heresy called Quietism, which is the practice and belief in attainting a state of perfection during life, a state which is sinless and is found through a passivity and contemplation in which the emptying of the mind and annihilation of the self make possible a perfect union with God.Â Quietism as a movement was very strong and widespread in Italy, Spain and France in the 17th Century and its influence has been found in writers who werenâ€™t directly Quietist yet share many of the beliefs and express them in their writingsâ€”St Theresa of Avila and St John of the cross for example.

There are also besides this 17th century existence of Quietist that had to be violently executed so to speak extracted from the main body of the Catholic Churchâ€”other much earlier strains of a Quietist form which did influence and grow into the Christian Quietism.Â The earliest forms are along the lines of the Stoic Philosophy and later its Roman descendents, which is how it must have â€œhooked upâ€ with the Christian version.

A Quietist in a Christian sense then and not necessarily be a Christian, but is a Mystic, one who attains the union with God, or the Cloud of unknowing,

the Spirit, and this occurs while the person is alive; it is no a heaven
above but one here belowâ€”that is one of the heretical aspects of it as well as the idea that one may fuse with God in the manner of a personal individual contact as is the mystic experience, called Quietist or not.

In Louis the XIVâ€™s time, many prominent persons became Quietist, so it was under the protection of the king, and at the same time considered outlawed.

A poet like Gerard Manley Hopkins of r example might be thought of as a Quietist and d also the poets whose work involves a deep fusing with Nature
as an energy of (Inscape) spiritual power outside the human self before which that self must be sacrificed to break down the barriers between the human being and the Divine being.

(In other words Quietism and Quietist poetry is transgressive, is about the attainment of non-self, which might be accept by Siliman after a fashion, yet the fusion with a Divine Spirit , something far greater than human beingâ€”perhaps wd not be so much accepted.)Â Though of course it is pretty idiotic of me to pretend to speak for Mr Siliman! O I apologize if the speculation â€œcrosses the line.â€!--)

I donâ€™t see much difference between siliman and a quietist of the kind he describes, which is quite different fro the heretical form of Quietism.
(Robert Grenier might be considered a Quietist poet of the heretical kind--)

and just wrote a piece re a poem by nada Gordon and one by James Levine being pretty much the same despite one of them being Flarf and the other supposedly conventional

(each form, movement, style, establishes its own conventions and then has conventions to hear them discussed in the conventional manners--)

re grief i think the greatest line i read in English is the last line of Faulknerâ€™s the wild palms
"between grief and nothing i take grief."

Edgar Allan Poe, whose bi-centenary it is,Â wrote an immense amount on grief throughout his work and it is really his main theme, subject--source of energy--"mournful and never ending remembrance' as he wrote--
"death looked gigantically down"

a language of mourning and "working through it" in the sense of Freudâ€™s the work of mourning (which could also be thought of as the work of morning, in the way that Poe's morning on the Wissihican puns on Mourning on the Wissihican--)
is Robert Smithsonâ€™s work and writings with earthworks, in which the mourning for the destruction of landscapes and earlier earthworks such as Indian mounds--is "worked through" by bringing Earthworks art to collaborate with the landscape itself using technology and yes also the corporations responsible for the disasters--to work together to create a new landscape as it were "out of the shell of the old" as the Wobblies say--

the mourning of the earth and the Morning of Time--in conjunction --the mourning of the Goddess, Mother earth, the creation--and how to work with the earth in "working through it together' with the humans who have brought the mourning about--

Mohamed Choukriâ€™s great work For Bread Alone is a work of mourning re his brother, killed y their father --and at the same time a morning as the twenty year old illiterate Mohamed Choukri decides to learn to read and write and become a writer--in classical Arabic, too--very difficult for an educated person let alone an illiterate street person-- i know it is not poetry but then prose is often just as or more poetic than much poetry-so iâ€™d include the novel by the great Catalan writer Merce
Rodorede, Camellia Street

Whitman wrote many mourning poems including the famous one for Lincoln-- and Robert Frost's Death of a Hired hand though dirge like is certainly a mourning expressed throughout without intruding-- Shakespeare has many a fine farewell in his poetry and plays-- mourning and grief--and the ancient Greek dramas and poetry have some of the greatest--
in the western languages that have read

"At five o'clock in the afternoon" the famous Lorca poem re a bullfighter
killed in the ring--

(a lot of Dylan Thomas' poems are the refusal to mourn, which is paradoxically form of mourning----"Do not go gentle into that good nightâ€™,Â â€œRefusal

to mourn the death by fire of child in Londonâ€ etcâ€”

One moment of grief I recall very specifically is the last few lines of Toni Morrisonâ€™s Sulaâ€”

And the horrific killing of the children in Jude obscure by their own parentsâ€”

And the greatest one I know

â€œDeath letterâ€ by Son Houseâ€”you can find him singing it in various versions
on you tube

Itâ€™s very good to hear from you!

And â€œglory Fourthâ€-!

--david
On Fri, Jul 3, 2009 at 7:54 AM, steve russell <[redacted]>wrote:

Â Quietist poetry: I've never heard of the term. A whimper, I suppose, is more nuanced than a shout, but some very good not so quiet poems have been poems of mourning. Consider Kaddish. Ginsberg isn't exaclty quiet. Nor is Sylvia Plath, or any of the confessional poets.
Perhaps quietist poetry is a way of whispering with a megaphone.

--- On Thu, 7/2/09, Lauren Russell <[redacted]>
wrote:

From: Lauren Russell <[redacted]>
Subject: Re: mourning & poetics
To: [redacted]
Date: Thursday, July 2, 2009, 12:52 AM
What is quietist poetry?Â I'm really curious; I've never heard the term.

I tend to think of fragmented poetry (and prose)
as best articulating grief.Â Have you ever read Kristin Prevallet's
I, Afterlife: Essay in Mourning Time?Â And part of what I love about Alice Notley's work is that her poems have engaged with grief in so many different ways.Â I can't claim to have read the whole book (it's one of the books
one's not aloud to check out of the New York Public Library), but the introduction to Patricia Rae's Modernism
and Mourning makes some interesting points about
the politics of grief and writing about grief. I found it helpful alongside Ramazini, though I can't claim to have read all of that, either.

Lauren Russell

Date:Â Â Wed, 1 Jul 2009 18:12:15
-0600
From:Â Â Scott Howard <[redacted]>
Subject: mourning & poetics

Hi, Mary Jo,

Here are a few recommendations, re: mourning
&
poetics.

1. Inventions of Farewell, edited by Sandra Gilbert.
That's an anthology of elegies and elegiac poetics/poetry.

2. Poetry of Mourning, by Jahan Ramazani.Â Scholarly study.

3.

> Both of the above are v. good for > twentieth-century
> Anglo-American > poetry & poetics of loss, but neither really > begins to > address
> postmodern poetics.Â If you're interested, > you could also > consider this
> book chapter: "'The Brevities': Formal Mourning,
> Transgression &
> Postmodern American Elegies", in _The World in > Time and > Space_
> (Talisman House, 2002), 122-46.
>
> Best wishes,
> Scott Howard
>
> ///
>
> ----- Original Message -----
> From: Mary Jo Malo <[redacted]>
> Date: Wednesday, July 1, 2009 10:52 am
> Subject: mourning & poetics
> To: [redacted]
>
> I've been sympathetically following the > tragic death
> of Emma Bernstein
> Â and wonder why "quietist" poetry (and > prose, I
> suppose) seem/s to > Â better express grief. The one > exception I've > discovered so far is Mary > Â Jo Bang's "Elegy." Who else am I > missing?
>
> Â Additionally, reflecting only slightly > upon Ron > Silliman's
> Â post-avant/quietist dichotomy, I find > the only way
> for me to > Â categorize poetry is via my own poor

> pedantic:
> Poetry I Like vs.
> Â Poetry I Don't Like. Does
>
> accept all
>
> all posts. Check guidelines

↑ Index

48. E. J. McAdams
Marcella Durand Reading on July 15 in NYC
Sun 5 Jul 2009

SEA Poetry Series, No. 2, featuring Marcella Durand

Wednesday, July 15, 2009

7:30-9pm

EXIT ART, 475 10th Avenue

Marcella Durand will read a selection of her poems and present a talk on in conjunction with the SEA exhibition, The End of Oil.

Durand’s recent books are Traffic & Weather (Futurepoem, 2008), AREA (Belladonna, 2008), and The Anatomy of Oil (Belladonna, 2005). Other books include Western Capital Rhapsodies, City of Ports, and Lapsus Linguae. Her poems and essays have appeared in Conjunctions, The Canary, Denver Quarterly, Chain, The Poker, Verse, NYFA Current, and other journals. She has given talks on the intersections of poetry and ecology at Kelly Writers House, Small Press Traffic, Dactyl Foundation, Stella Adler Studio of Acting, and other venues. Excerpts from her ongoing collaboration with Tina Darragh, based on environmental science, Deep Ecology and Francis Ponge, have appeared in Anomaly, How(2), and Ecopoetics. She was a writer-in-residence at the Lower Manhattan Cultural Council in 2006, and in 2005 organized a reading and panel on the inter-relations between astronomy and poetry as part of the Inspiration of Astronomical Phenomena Conference at the Adler Planetarium in Chicago.

Currently, she is translating Michèle Métail's Les horizons du sol/Earth's Horizons, a history of the geological formation of Marseille written within a Oulipian formal constraint; a section of her translation appeared last year in The Nation. She lives in New York City's East Village with her husband Richard O'Russa and son Ismael Toussaint Durand O'Russa.

All readings are* FREE* and take place at Exit Art, 475 10th Avenue, between 36th and 37th Street. Following each reading there will Q&A and a cash bar reception. The SEA Poetry Series is curated by E.J. McAdams.

For info on future readings visit: www.seareadingseries.blogspot.com

↑ Index

49. Charles Bernstein
Zolf at EPC & my early audio works
Sun 5 Jul 2009

---

new at EPC:
Rachel Zolf author page
http://epc.buffalo.edu/authors/zolf/

new at PennSound:
My early recorded audiotape works, 1975-1976
http://writing.upenn.edu/pennsound/x/Bernstein-1975-76.html

↑ Index

50. Jim Andrews spiritual materialism
Sun 5 Jul 2009

---

it is commonly observed that a great deal of contemporary art/writing involves a double sense of 'the material'. the term is understood to refer not only to the subject matter (the 'standard' understanding in writing) but also the matter of the media in the piece, the material embodiment of the piece. it's also commonly observed that the latter awareness of and approach to composition not solely by ideation, meditation on the subject matter, but also through operation on the material embodiment, has come to be much more widely understood as a part of reading than it was a generation ago. when we encounter work that does not follow the grammars and approaches traditionally associated with work, we inquire into the methods of composition, the approach to materiality, and look for relations between those methods and approaches and the subject matter, or look for the subject matter in the light of those things. and so read differently, thereby. and in this way, we now read some literary work in ways that are closer to how we approach a great deal of visual art.

but what i want to get at is something that isn't so commonly observed, at the moment, but may be in the next generation. and that's the relation of awareness of the materiality of writing/art to our ideas of who and what we are. that's erm awkwardly stated. what i'm trying to get at is this. the whole emphasis on materiality is involved in a larger movement to explore how things like ideation, imagination, the spiritual, beauty, truth, goodness, justice--all our ideals and things normally associated with the immaterial--operate in the material world.

in this sense, we might say that the whole contemporary awareness of materiality in art is part of a larger ah spiritual materialism. i googled that term, after it occurred to me, and i assure you i'm using it in a different sense than chögyam trungpa, who uses it "to describe mistakes spiritual seekers commit which turn the pursuit of spiritualism into an ego building and confusion creating endeavor" (wikipedia). instead, i'm refering to a relatively common sort of philosophy in which the material substrate of ideation and even the spiritual is affirmed and its relations with even the flightiest of fancies are explored. not to denigrate or dismiss things like spirituality but to explore how they operate materially.

perhaps more evidently, now, this is also related to philosophies of mind in which the materiality of thought itself is affirmed--as a chemical and informational process, however emergent--and the brain and the mind that emerge from its processes are conceived as fully embodied in the material. so that the idea of being able to create thinking machines (however unlike us) becomes a real possibility. and we are conceptualized as nature's (near?) ultimate machines. and machines are conceptualized not as the simple things we once thought they must be but as often very complex biological creatures that, nonetheless, are embodied in the material world and are, therefore, subject to the constraints and possibilities of machines in the material world.

to wrap it up, we now see the relation between contemporary artistic emphasis on the materiality of writing/art and the larger moment of 'spiritual materialism'.

ja
http://vispo.com

↑ Index

51. Paul Nelson
Re: mourning & poetics
Sun 5 Jul 2009

_____
From: Maria Damon <[redacted]

_____
From: Maria Damon <[redacted]>
To: [redacted]
Sent: Saturday, July 4, 2009 8:55:36 AM
Subject: Re: mourning & poetics

thank you for pointing this out. ron silliman's term (the school of quietude or something like that) seems to take no account of this earlier usage, so i find it very misleading; i wish he'd use something else, if he has to use anything at all.

Maria,

Ron Silliman, from his blog in January 2004:

School of Quietude is more complex, I think. The phrase itself was coined by Edgar Allen Poe in the 1840s to note the inherent caution that dominates the conservative institutional traditions in American writing. Iï¿½ve resurrected the term for a couple of reasons: It acknowledges the historical nature of literary reaction in this country. As an institutional tradition that has produced writers of significance only at its margins ï¿½ Hart Crane, Marianne Moore ï¿½ the SoQ continues to possess something of a death grip on financial resources for writing in America while denying its own existence as a literary movement, a denial that the SoQ enacts by permitting its practitioners largely to be forgotten once theyï¿½ve died. Thatï¿½s a Faustian bargain with a heavy downside, if you ask me, but one that is seldom explored precisely because of the SoQï¿½s refusal to admit that it exists in the first place.

Paul Nelson

Paul E. Nelson

Global Voices Radio
SPLAB!
American Sentences
Organic Poetry
Poetry Postcard Blog

Ilalqo, WA [redacted]

_____
From: Maria Damon <[redacted]>

To: [redacted]
Sent: Saturday, July 4, 2009 8:55:36 AM
Subject: Re: mourning & poetics

thank you for pointing this out. ron silliman's term (the school of quietude or something like that) seems to take no account of this earlier usage, so i find it very misleading; i wish he'd use something else, if he has to use anything at all. i find terms like this and also bernstein's "official verse culture" somewhat overly general," though at least the latter addresses institutional processes rather than poetry "itself," if there is such a thing.

on the topic of mourning: has someone already mentioned Peter Sacks's work on elegy?

Scott Howard wrote:
> * Quietist poetry . . . ? Well, Quietism seems to have emerged in the seventeenth century as a form of religious mysticism, but the term has occasionally been used to describe various works (philosophical, poetic, political) that advocate a middle way between ideology and indifference. Sir Thomas Browne (also 17th c.) was called a 'quietist', but he was really more of a skeptical essayist (in the trad. of Montaigne). Rae Armantrout's recent work strikes me as quietist in mood/tone.
>
> * Prevallet's Afterlife: Essay in Mourning Time is very good. The literature on mourning and poetics is diverse and extensive. See Ramazani's bibliography, for example. See also: Beyond Consolation by Melissa Zeiger for a post-Freudian take on things. Ramazani's book works well for the modernist paradigm, but to get beyond that framework, one needs to reconfigure the whole notion of resistance. On that note, see: "'The Brevities': Formal Mourning, Transgression & Postmodern American Elegies", in _The World in Time and Space_ (Talisman House, 2002), 122-46, which covers a lot of ground.
>
> * Fragments and grief/mourning? . . . Have you read Mallarme's "Pour un tombeau d'Anatole"? Paul Auster's translation (North Point, 1983) is great. A classic.
>
> ///
>
>
>
> ----- Original Message -----
> From: Lauren Russell <[redacted]>
> Date: Thursday, July 2, 2009 11:07 am
> Subject: Re: mourning & poetics

> To: [redacted]
>
>
>
>> What is quietist poetry? I'm really curious; I've never heard the term.
>> I tend to think of fragmented poetry (and prose) as best articulating grief. Have you ever read Kristin Prevallet's I, Afterlife: Essay in Mourning Time? And part of what I love about Alice Notley's work is that her poems have engaged with grief in so many different ways. I can't claim to have read the whole book (it's one of the books one's not aloud to check out of the New York Public Library), but the introduction to Patricia Rae's Modernism and Mourning makes some interesting points about the politics of grief and writing about grief. I found it helpful alongside Ramazini, though I can't claim to have read all of that, either.
>> Lauren Russell
>>
> ///
>
>

↑ Index

52. Murat Nemet-Nejat
Re: spiritual materialism
Mon 6 Jul 2009

Jim,

Coincidentally, I just finished a long poem entitled "The Spiritual Life of Replicants."

Ciao,

Murat

On Sun, Jul 5, 2009 at 3:41 PM, Jim Andrews <[redacted]> wrote:

> it is commonly observed that a great deal of contemporary art/writing involves a double sense of 'the material'. the term is understood to refer not only to the subject matter (the 'standard' understanding in writing) but also the matter of the media in the piece, the material embodiment of the piece. it's also commonly observed that the latter awareness of and approach to composition not solely by ideation, meditation on the subject matter, but also through operation on the material embodiment, has come to be much more widely understood as a part of reading than it was a generation ago. when we encounter work that does not follow the grammars and approaches traditionally associated with work, we inquire into the methods of composition, the approach to materiality, and look for relations between those methods and approaches and the subject matter, or look for the subject matter in the light of those things. and so read differently, thereby. and in this way, we now read some literary work in ways that are closer to how we approach a great deal of visual art.

but what i want to get at is something that isn't so commonly observed, at the moment, but may be in the next generation. and that's the relation of awareness of the materiality of writing/art to our ideas of who and what we are. that's erm awkwardly stated. what i'm trying to get at is this. the whole emphasis on materiality is involved in a larger movement to explore how things like ideation, imagination, the spiritual, beauty, truth, goodness, justice--all our ideals and things normally associated with the immaterial--operate in the material world.

in this sense, we might say that the whole contemporary awareness of materiality in art is part of a larger ah spiritual materialism. i googled that term, after it occurred to me, and i assure you i'm using it in a different sense than chögyam trungpa, who uses it "to describe mistakes spiritual seekers commit which turn the pursuit of spiritualism into an ego building and confusion creating endeavor" (wikipedia). instead, i'm refering to a relatively common sort of philosophy in which the material substrate of ideation and even the spiritual is affirmed and its relations with even the flightiest of fancies are explored. not to denigrate or dismiss things like spirituality but to explore how they operate materially.

perhaps more evidently, now, this is also related to philosophies of mind in which the materiality of thought itself is affirmed--as a chemical and informational process, however emergent--and the brain and the mind that emerge from its processes are conceived as fully embodied in the material. so that the idea of being able to create thinking machines (however unlike us) becomes a real possibility. and we are conceptualized as nature's (near?) ultimate machines. and machines are conceptualized not as the simple things we once thought they must be but as often very complex biological creatures that, nonetheless, are embodied in the material world and are, therefore, subject to the constraints and possibilities of machines in the material world.

to wrap it up, we now see the relation between contemporary artistic emphasis on the materiality of writing/art and the larger moment of 'spiritual materialism'.

ja
http://vispo.com

↑ Index

53. Christopher Rizzo
Re: spiritual materialism
Mon 6 Jul 2009

Jim,

Interesting post. Are you familiar with Charles Olson's work? In a conversation with Herbert Kenny, 1969, Olson says "I mean something I believe we possess crucially. I think our body is our soul. And if you don't have your body as a factor of creation, you don't have a soul." Olson articulates the same idea at other times, too.

In any event, an explanation of the above would prove lengthy, so please feel free to backchannel me if you're so inclined. I'm writing two books on Olson at the moment.

[redacted]

Bests,
Chris

On Sun, Jul 5, 2009 at 3:41 PM, Jim Andrews <[redacted]> wrote:

> it is commonly observed that a great deal of contemporary art/writing involves a double sense of 'the material'. the term is understood to refer not only to the subject matter (the 'standard' understanding in writing) but also the matter of the media in the piece, the material embodiment of the piece. it's also commonly observed that the latter awareness of and approach to composition not solely by ideation, meditation on the subject matter, but also through operation on the material embodiment, has come to be much more widely understood as a part of reading than it was a generation ago. when we encounter work that does not follow the grammars and approaches traditionally associated with work, we inquire into the methods of composition, the approach to materiality, and look for relations between those methods and approaches and the subject matter, or look for the subject matter in the light of those things. and so read differently, thereby. and in this way, we now read some literary work in ways that are closer to how we approach a great deal of visual art.
>
> but what i want to get at is something that isn't so commonly observed, at the moment, but may be in the next generation. and that's the relation of awareness of the materiality of writing/art to our ideas of who and what we are. that's erm awkwardly stated. what i'm trying to get at is this. the whole emphasis on materiality is involved in a larger movement to explore how things like ideation, imagination, the spiritual, beauty, truth, goodness, justice--all our ideals and things normally associated with the immaterial--operate in the material world.
>
> in this sense, we might say that the whole contemporary awareness of > materiality in art is part of a larger ah spiritual materialism. i googled that term, after it occurred to me, and i assure you i'm using it in a different sense than chÃ¶gyam trungpa, who uses it "to describe mistakes spiritual seekers commit which turn the pursuit of spiritualism into an ego building and confusion creating endeavor" (wikipedia). instead, i'm refering to a relatively common sort of philosophy in which the material substrate of ideation and even the spiritual is affirmed and its relations with even the flightiest of fancies are explored. not to denigrate or dismiss things like spirituality but to explore how they operate materially.

>
> perhaps more evidently, now, this is also related to philosophies of mind in which the materiality of thought itself is affirmed--as a chemical and informational process, however emergent--and the brain and the mind that emerge from its processes are conceived as fully embodied in the material. so that the idea of being able to create thinking machines (however unlike us) becomes a real possibility. and we are conceptualized as nature's (near?) ultimate machines. and machines are conceptualized not as the simple things we once thought they must be but as often very complex biological creatures that, nonetheless, are embodied in the material world and are, therefore, subject to the constraints and possibilities of machines in the material world.
>
> to wrap it up, we now see the relation between contemporary artistic emphasis on the materiality of writing/art and the larger moment of 'spiritual materialism'.
>
> ja
> http://vispo.com

↑ Index

54. Maria Damon

Re: mourning & poetics

Mon 6 Jul 2009

---

thanks for this, paul.
i wonder where Poe uses it? i'd be curious.
any poe scholars out there?
ben friedlander?

Paul Nelson wrote:
> _____
> From: Maria Damon <[redacted]
>
>
> _____
> From: Maria Damon <[redacted]>

> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Saturday, July 4, 2009 8:55:36 AM
> Subject: Re: mourning & poetics
>
> thank > you for pointing this out. ron silliman's term (the school of quietude > or something like that) seems to take no account of this earlier usage, > so i find it very misleading; i wish he'd use something else, if he has > to use anything at all.
>
> Maria,
>
> Ron Silliman, from his blog in January 2004:
>
>
> School of Quietude is more complex, I think. The phrase itself was coined > by Edgar Allen Poe in the 1840s to note the inherent caution > that dominates the conservative institutional traditions in American > writing. Iï¿½ve resurrected the term for a > couple of reasons:
> It acknowledges the historical nature of literary reaction in this country.
> As an institutional tradition that has > produced writers of significance only at its margins ï¿½ Hart Crane, Marianne Moore ï¿½ the SoQ > continues to possess something of a death grip on financial resources for writing in America > while denying its own existence as a literary movement, a denial that the > SoQ enacts by permitting > its practitioners largely to be forgotten once theyï¿½ve died. Thatï¿½s a > Faustian bargain with a heavy > downside, if you ask me, but one that is seldom explored precisely because of the SoQï¿½s
> refusal to admit that it exists in the first place.
>
> Paul Nelson
>
>
> Paul E. Nelson
>
> Global Voices Radio
> SPLAB!
> American Sentences

> Organic Poetry
> Poetry Postcard Blog
>
> Ilalqo, WA [redacted]
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
> _____
> From: Maria Damon <[redacted]>
> To: [redacted]
> Sent: Saturday, July 4, 2009 8:55:36 AM
> Subject: Re: mourning & poetics
>
> thank you for pointing this out. ron silliman's term (the school of quietude or something like that) seems to take no account of this earlier usage, so i find it very misleading; i wish he'd use something else, if he has to use anything at all. i find terms like this and also bernstein's "official verse culture" somewhat overly general," though at least the latter addresses institutional processes rather than poetry "itself," if there is such a thing.
>
> on the topic of mourning: has someone already mentioned Peter Sacks's work on elegy?
>
> Scott Howard wrote:
>
>> * Quietist poetry . . . ? Well, Quietism seems to have emerged in the seventeenth century as a form of religious mysticism, but the term has occasionally been used to describe various works (philosophical, poetic, political) that advocate a middle way between ideology and indifference. Sir Thomas Browne (also 17th c.) was called a 'quietist', but he was really more of a skeptical essayist (in the trad. of Montaigne). Rae Armantrout's recent work strikes me as quietist in mood/tone.
>>
>> * Prevallet's Afterlife: Essay in Mourning Time is very good. The literature on mourning and poetics is diverse and extensive. See Ramazani's bibliography, for example. See also: Beyond Consolation by Melissa Zeiger for a post-Freudian take on things. Ramazani's book works well for the modernist paradigm, but to get beyond that framework, one needs to reconfigure the whole notion of resistance. On that note, see: "'The Brevities': Formal Mourning, Transgression & Postmodern American Elegies", in _The World in Time and Space_ (Talisman House, 2002), 122-46, which covers a lot of ground.

>>
>> * Fragments and grief/mourning? . . . Have you read Mallarme's "Pour un tombeau d'Anatole"? Paul Auster's translation (North Point, 1983) is great. A classic.
>>
>> ///
>>
>>
>>
>> ----- Original Message -----
>> From: Lauren Russell <[redacted]>
>> Date: Thursday, July 2, 2009 11:07 am
>> Subject: Re: mourning & poetics
>> To: [redacted]
>>
>>
>>
>>
>>> What is quietist poetry? I'm really curious; I've never heard the term.
>>> I tend to think of fragmented poetry (and prose) as best articulating grief. Have you ever read Kristin Prevallet's I, Afterlife: Essay in Mourning Time? And part of what I love about Alice Notley's work is that her poems have engaged with grief in so many different ways. I can't claim to have read the whole book (it's one of the books one's not aloud to check out of the New York Public Library), but the introduction to Patricia Rae's Modernism and Mourning makes some interesting points about the politics of grief and writing about grief. I found it helpful alongside Ramazini, though I can't claim to have read all of that, either.
>>> Lauren Russell
>>>
>>>
>> ///
>>
>>
>>
>
>
>
>

↑ Index

55. Chris Chapman

Re: spiritual materialism

Mon 6 Jul 2009

---

interesting post. I wonder if you've considered the letter to Adorno in Benjamin's writings concerning 'Materialist Theology'. In particcular his response to Adorno's refrain that one's attitude is made manifest in the styles with which an artist composes her material . (Adorno finds cigarette smoking to be a striking exemplar.) Benjamin rejects the idea - launched by Adorno from his dissertation on Kierkegaard's 'Diary of a Seducer' - that attitude, bearing, grace, and 'comportment' are objects that can only be displayed. Benjamin, in simple, argues that the unconscious is already 'attitude.' ... I'm interested in what you might say about the need to worry about thinking machines that reflect Benjamin's mentholation of the unconscious.

On 7/5/09, Jim Andrews <[redacted]> wrote:
> it is commonly observed that a great deal of contemporary art/writing > involves a double sense of 'the material'. the term is understood to refer > not only to the subject matter (the 'standard' understanding in writing) but > also the matter of the media in the piece, the material embodiment of the > piece. it's also commonly observed that the latter awareness of and approach > to composition not solely by ideation, meditation on the subject matter, but > also through operation on the material embodiment, has come to be much more > widely understood as a part of reading than it was a generation ago. when we > encounter work that does not follow the grammars and approaches > traditionally associated with work, we inquire into the methods of > composition, the approach to materiality, and look for relations between > those methods and approaches and the subject matter, or look for the subject > matter in the light of those things. and so read differently, thereby. and > in this way, we now read some literary work in ways that are closer to how > we approach a great deal of visual art.
>
> but what i want to get at is something that isn't so commonly observed, at > the moment, but may be in the next generation. and that's the relation of > awareness of the materiality of writing/art to our ideas of who and what we > are. that's erm awkwardly stated. what i'm trying to get at is this. the > whole emphasis on materiality is involved in a larger movement to explore > how things like ideation, imagination, the spiritual, beauty, truth, > goodness, justice--all our ideals and things normally associated with the > immaterial--operate in the material world.

>
> in this sense, we might say that the whole contemporary awareness of > materiality in art is part of a larger ah spiritual materialism. i googled > that term, after it occurred to me, and i assure you i'm using it in a > different sense than chögyam trungpa, who uses it "to describe mistakes > spiritual seekers commit which turn the pursuit of spiritualism into an ego > building and confusion creating endeavor" (wikipedia). instead, i'm refering > to a relatively common sort of philosophy in which the material substrate of > ideation and even the spiritual is affirmed and its relations with even the > flightiest of fancies are explored. not to denigrate or dismiss things like > spirituality but to explore how they operate materially.
>
> perhaps more evidently, now, this is also related to philosophies of mind in > which the materiality of thought itself is affirmed--as a chemical and > informational process, however emergent--and the brain and the mind that > emerge from its processes are conceived as fully embodied in the material.
> so that the idea of being able to create thinking machines (however unlike > us) becomes a real possibility. and we are conceptualized as nature's > (near?) ultimate machines. and machines are conceptualized not as the simple > things we once thought they must be but as often very complex biological > creatures that, nonetheless, are embodied in the material world and are, > therefore, subject to the constraints and possibilities of machines in the > material world.
>
> to wrap it up, we now see the relation between contemporary artistic > emphasis on the materiality of writing/art and the larger moment of > 'spiritual materialism'.
>
> ja
> http://vispo.com
>
>

↑ Index

56. Mary Jo Malo
Re: mourning & poetics
Mon 6 Jul 2009

What happened to the original poster of this query? I'd be interested in her thoughts on the matter. (Lauren Russell)

Lauren et al. Thank you for all your references and comments.

What prompted my query is my observation (subjective perspective) that in the initial shock and grief of loss we tend to turn to classical, lyrical, and SoQ poetry rather than post-avant and other named postmodern poetry. Either it is because we are truly at a loss for words; and these poems are the most accessible and easily shared, or we haven't the intellectual and emotional resources to engage more abstract poetry. After a "suitable" period of time, when we've had time to process the grief, the creative process ignites, and we're able to craft and read postmodern or existential poetry which more accurately portrays the loss itself. In other words, words fail, but the art of them doesn't.

Regarding the SoQ/Post-Avant dichotomy itself, what I've managed to glean from casual reading, is the criticism is aimed at ending what Mr. Silliman's considers a hegemony in traditional publishing and academia. My impression (again, subjective and lacking in pedantics) is that among the small press and internet poetics community, the hegemony is strictly post-avant.

Mary

--
http://thisshiningwound.blogspot.com/
http://apophisdeconstructingabsurdity.blogspot.com/

↑ Index

57. Sharon Dolin
Reading this Friday
Mon 6 Jul 2009

Dear Friends,

I'll be part of a group reading celebrating the Tenth Anniversary issue of the online journal Drunken Boat on Friday, July 10th at: SoHo20 Chelsea Gallery

511 West 25th Street, Suite 605.

6-8pm. Free.

The other poets are: Derek beaulieu, Sommer Browning, Rand Richards Cooper, Ram Devineni, Elizabeth Kadetsky, Harriet Levin, and Elisabeth Subrin.

Hope you can make it.

Sharon

Sharon Dolin
[redacted]

↑ Index

58. Daniel Godston

The Bauhaus: 90 Years / 90 Days

Mon 6 Jul 2009

"The Bauhaus: 90 Years / 90 Days" is a new project which commemorates the Bauhaus movement, which celebrates its 90th anniversary this year. Every day during this 90-day project (from July till October 2009), at least one project will happen which creatively plays around with and pays homage to an aspect of the Bauhaus movement. Examples of those projects might include a dance performance inspired by Oskar Schlemmer's ballet, a musical performance that uses a Kandinsky painting as a graphic score, a fiber art project inspired by Anni Albers' work, a poem inspired by Walter Gropius' architecture, a short story inspired by Marianne Brandt's work, an essay reflecting on an aspect of the Bauhaus movement, and so on.

Today is the starting date of "The Bauhaus: 90 Years / 90 Days." Grahm Balkany, Director of the Gropius in Chicago Coalition, reads selections of Gropius' speeches -- 12:30 p.m. in Chicago's Federal Plaza (50 W. Adams, Chicago, IL).

These events will be presented at different locations around the world. Information about this project's day-to-day developments will be posted at http://www.bauhaus9090.org. "The Bauhaus: 90 Years / 90 Days" is being organized by the Borderbend Arts Collective and the Gropius in Chicago Coalition.

http://www.bauhaus-dessau.de/index.php?en

http://www.dezignare.com/newsletter/bauhausmovement.html

http://www.chicagobauhausbeyond.org

http://www.gropiuschicago.org

http://tinyurl.com/mcsg2m

http://tinyurl.com/ndsvqd

http://tinyurl.com/m5m73b

↑ Index

59. Jennifer Karmin

Red Rover Series / Experiment #31

Mon 6 Jul 2009

Red Rover Series
{readings that play with reading}

Experiment #31:
Talk Walk Talk - Peripatetic Writing

SATURDAY, JULY 11
7pm

Featuring:
A D Jameson & Michelle Tupko

NEW LOCATION
at the Orientation Center
2129 N. Rockwell -- Chicago, IL
corner of Milwaukee/Rockwell
left side of the Congress Theater building
http://orientationcenter.wordpress.com
suggested donation $4

A D JAMESON is a writer, performer, and video artist. His fiction and reviews have appeared in the Denver Quarterly, Fiction International, the Mississippi Review Online, the Review of Contemporary Fiction, American Book Review, and elsewhere. He's also directed music videos for the Kill Rock Stars bands Xiu Xiu and Mecca Normal.

MICHELLE TUPKO received her MFA in Sculpture from the School of the Art Institute of Chicago and holds a BA in Photography and Filmmaking. Her writing is published in Performance Research and White Walls journals. She is currently writing a book about mountains and the way the foot moves.

Red Rover Series is curated by Lisa Janssen and Jennifer Karmin. Each event is designed as a reading experiment with participation by local, national, and international writers, artists, and performers. The series was founded in 2005 by Amina Cain and Jennifer Karmin.

UPCOMING
August 29: Krista Franklin & Adam Rose
September 26: Kate Greenstreet & Gina Myers

Email ideas for reading experiments
to us at [redacted]

The schedule for events is listed at http://groups.yahoo.com/group/redroverseries

↑ Index

60. Trevor Joyce

SoundEye Festival - final lineup - starts Wednesday

Mon 6 Jul 2009

[Apologies for cross-posting]

Here's the final line-up (except for the Cabaret and the open-mic event, both of which will be finalised on the night, though they're already full to bursting) for this year's SoundEye Festival. Come and join us in Cork where the drink, conversation and weather are great, and the poetry is even better.

*SoundEye #13
8-12 July 2009
Cork, Ireland
(www.soundeye.org)
*

Wed July 8 • 18:00 • admission free
Firkin Crane, Shandon, Cork
Reading: Sean Bonney (UK) + Mairéad Byrne (Irl/USA) + Keith Tuma (USA)

Thu July 9 • 18:00 • admission free
Firkin Crane, Shandon, Cork
Reading: James Cummins (Irl) + Frances Kruk (UK) + Keston Sutherland (UK)

Thu July 9 • 20:30 • admission €5
The Other Place Club, St. Augustine St. (just off Paradise Place / Western Rd.), Cork
SoundEye Cabaret (Programmed by Fergal Gaynor)
With Isabella Oberlander (dancer AUT) + Boiled String (performance poetry CYM) + Mathematical Muse (poetry / performance / music) + Retorika Quartet with Camilla Griehsel (baroque and renaissance strings with soprano) + many more

Fri July 10 • 14:00 • admission free
The Guesthouse, 10 Chapel Street, Shandon, Cork
Reading: Swantje Lichtenstein (Ger) + Kevin Perryman (Ire/Ger) + Stephen Rodefer (USA/Fr) + Michael Smith (Ire)

Fri July 10 • 17:30 • admission free
Firkin Crane, Shandon, Cork
Reading: Jerome Rothenberg (USA) + Geoffrey Squires (Ire/UK) + Christine Wertheim (Aus/UK/USA)

Fri July 10 • 21:00 • admission free
Meade's Wine Bar, 126 Oliver Plunkett Street, Cork
[redacted]'s with M/C Mairéad Byrne
(Pre-programmed open-mic)

Sat July 11 • 11:30 • admission free
Firkin Crane, Shandon, Cork
Poetry by Default programmed by Jimmy Cummins
Reading: Jim Goar (USA) + Marcus Slease (NIre) + David Toms (Ire)

Sat July 11 • 17:00 • admission €3 (towards the upkeep of the building)
(Sonic Vigil runs continuously 12:00 - 18:00)
St. Fin Barre's Cathedral, Cork
SoundEye/Sonic Vigil sound event
Performance: Jaap Blonk (Nl) + Jerome Rothenberg (USA) + Christine Wertheim
(UK/USA)

Sat July 11 • 20:00 • admission free Eason's Hill Community Centre, Eason's Hill, Shandon, Cork Reading: Peter Manson (UK) + Maggie O'Sullivan (UK) + Tom Raworth (UK/Ire) [Tom Raworth's reading is generously supported by Poetry Ireland]

Sun July 12 • 11:00 • admission free
Firkin Crane, Shandon, Cork
Reading: Thomas McCarthy (Ire) + Mark Mallon (Ger/Fin) + Luke Roberts (UK)

Sun July 12 • 13:00 • admission free
The Guesthouse, 10 Chapel Street, Shandon, Cork
Reading: Billy Mills (Ire) + Martin Corless-Smith (UK/USA) + Catherine Walsh (Ire)

[The SoundEye Festival is made possible thanks to the Small Festivals Scheme of The Irish Arts Council]

↑ Index

61. Jonathan Ball
Re: spiritual materialism
Mon 6 Jul 2009

Some of these ideas might approach the way Slavoj Zizek reads the Hegelian paradox that "the spirit is a bone" .... I am travelling without any books and so I can't say much more or even verify my quote etc but your the Olson quote brings this idea to mind, in light of the previous email.

Jonathan Ball

On Sun, Jul 5, 2009 at 10:29 PM, Christopher Rizzo <[redacted]>wrote:

> Jim,
>
> Interesting post. Are you familiar with Charles Olson's work? In a conversation with Herbert Kenny, 1969, Olson says "I mean something I believe we possess crucially. I think our body is our soul. And if you don't have your body as a factor of creation, you don't have a soul." Olson articulates the same idea at other times, too.
>
> In any event, an explanation of the above would prove lengthy, so please feel free to backchannel me if you're so inclined. I'm writing two books on Olson at the moment.
>
> [redacted]
>
> Bests,
> Chris
>
> On Sun, Jul 5, 2009 at 3:41 PM, Jim Andrews <[redacted]> wrote:
>
> > it is commonly observed that a great deal of contemporary art/writing involves a double sense of 'the material'. the term is understood to refer not only to the subject matter (the 'standard' understanding in writing) but also the matter of the media in the piece, the material embodiment of the piece. it's also commonly observed that the latter awareness of and approach to composition not solely by ideation, meditation on the subject matter, but also through operation on the material embodiment, has come to be much more widely understood as a part of reading than it was a generation ago. when we encounter work that does not follow the grammars and approaches traditionally associated with work, we inquire into the methods of composition, the approach to materiality, and look for relations between those methods and approaches and the subject matter, or look for the subject matter in the light of those things. and so read differently, thereby. and in this way, we now read some literary work in ways that are closer to how we approach a great deal of visual art.
> >
> > but what i want to get at is something that isn't so commonly observed, at the moment, but may be in the next generation. and that's the relation of awareness of the materiality of writing/art to our ideas of who and what we are. that's erm awkwardly stated. what i'm trying to get at is this. the whole emphasis on materiality is involved in a larger movement to explore how things like ideation, imagination, the spiritual, beauty, truth, goodness, justice--all our ideals and things normally associated with the immaterial--operate in the material world.

